AIDS, etiquette and the U.S. flag

State sets standards for Idaho classrooms, seeks public input

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

BOISE — Second-graders should learn that AIDS is "not easily transmitted," and sixth-graders should learn the spread and prevention of the disease, according to the state's guidelines for public school teachers.

Fifth-graders should know how to avoid peer pressure to use drugs, while first-graders should understand the definition of drug abuse, particularly alcohol and tobacco.

The Idaho Department of Education is asking for public comment on proposed guidelines that recommend what children at different grade levels should know about subjects including math, reading, writing, social studies, art and health education.

Kathy Thomsen of Twin Falls, a conservative opponent of some state education reforms, said teachers won't have time to emphasize reading, writing and other basic skills if they include such topics:

"Time is the currency of education, and it takes away from ABC's and 1, 2, 3's that kids are not getting," Thomsen said.

"I think it should be left up to the family (to teach social issues) because each individual family is going to have a different criteria on the amount of information their child should have and they best know what the child is able to handle."

Thomsen said she believes state schools Superintendent Anne Fox, who campaigned on a conservative ticket of basic instruction, is "doing her best to inject more mainstream elements" into the department's guidelines.

The guide, a multi-colored packet, focuses not only on basic instruction, but lessons in etiquette, patriotism and social issues. The guidelines are for teachers and parents of children from kindergarten through sixth grades.

"The influence of a more conservative (regime) we can see in the etiquette and patriotism and manners ... and the HIV/AIDS issues are the more liberal social issues you would see in the values aspect of curriculum," Thomsen said.

Thomsen disagreed that etiquette is something for the schools to teach.

"Etiquette should be taught by parents around the table at home," Thomsen said.

But Rhonda Edmiston, spokeswoman for the Idaho Department of Education, said the recommendations "just reinforce what is being taught at home" and that Fox "would argue that those are basic skills."

"It is easy to label these issues conservative or liberal, but they are also realities, they are not lies," Edmiston said.

According to the guidelines, teachers

Moderate slowdown seen in state

The Associated Press

BOISE — Idaho's once-sizzling economy will continue cooling this year before picking up steam again through the end of the decade, according to the Batt administration's new economic forecast.

And the slowdown during the rest of 1996 should be more moderate than previously expected.

Administration economists anticipate slightly higher nonfarm employment through 1999 than they projected just four months ago, and the bulk of those extra jobs should occur in the traditionally higher-paying goods-producing sector.

"It can be characterized as Idaho's economy making an orderly return to more sustainable levels of growth after a period of very strong expansion," the analyst said. "Economic growth is anticipated to pick up in 1997, but it is not expected to repeat the peak rates that marked much of the first half of this decade."

The only question mark is the current spike in fuel prices. The increase of up to 40 percent in the past two months, if not soon reversed, could have some impact on the state's tourism industry, analysts said, but it would be only short-term.

Idaho's dramatic growth, including a 20 percent population increase over the Governor emphasizes value of tourism to Idaho

BURLEY — During a luncheon speech Friday, Gov. Phil Batt touted the benefits of tourism and poked fun at former Gov. John Evans to wrap up a statewide tourism conference.

Batt spoke to the annual Idaho Governor's Conference on Recreation and Tourism, with representatives from all over Idaho who were in Burley this week to learn how other states promote, and compete for tourism dollars.

He said tourism is second only to Idaho's farming industry in the number of people it employs, supplying 30,000 jobs at present.

"We get between 5 and 15 percent of our sales tax from tourism and tourists put a lot of money in our state's coffers while demanding little in the way of services," he said.

"We don't have to pay for their schools, or their welfare and normally we don't have to build prisons for them either."

He said Idaho has a lot to offer tourists, and he encouraged Idaho residents to stay in the state when they go on vacations this summer.

Batt said if he had known the 4 cent a gallon gasoline tax increase passed this year would end up costing Idahoans 30 cents a gallon at the pump, he wouldn't have signed it into law.

He added that the recent transfer of the City of Rocks from federal to state control will benefit the Mini-Cassia area and increase the entire state's tourism potential.

He also took time to hand out tourism awards and job former Gov. Evans who shared Batt's table during the luncheon presentation.

Batt said while he and Evans were serving in the state senate together, Evans, a Democrat, would often frustrate the Republicans who controlled the senate at that time.

"He is a great orator, and he used those skills to filibuster and tie up our legislation," Batt said.

Magic Valley unemployment rate holds steady

The Times-News
and The Associated Press

TWIN FALLS — Adjusted unemployment rate in the Magic Valley remained steady at 4.8 percent in April.

However, the state jobless rate dropped three notches, hitting a seven-year low as seasonal factors reined in the labor force from the record and near-record levels of the winter.

"All areas of the state experienced either static or declining unemployment rates during the month," analysts said.

The Department of Employment on Friday estimated last month's jobless rate stayed at 4 percent in Twin Falls County, while it dropped to 3.5 percent in Jerome County and increased to 4.2 percent in Gooding County.

The Mini-Cassia area's adjusted unemployment dropped to 4.8 percent, with 4.9 percent forecast in Cassia County and 4.7 percent in Minidoka County.

The agency pegged Idaho's April jobless rate at 4.8 percent, matching the rate of March 1989 when there were 120,000 fewer people in the statewide work force. The rate was 5.2 percent a year ago to mark the eighth straight month the current rate has been below year-earlier levels.

And analysts' outlook remained positive with unemployment expected to remain around 5 percent through the summer.

Idaho, where the rate remained below the national level for the fifth straight month.

White House smiles as employment increases

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate dipped to a 14-month low of 5.4 percent last month, giving President Clinton fresh election-year evidence of an improving economy.

Republicans focused on big job losses in construction and manufacturing.

The news at first lifted spirits on Wall Street, but stocks closed down for the day, reflecting continued weakness in the bond market. The Dow Jones industrial average lost 20.24 points to finish at 5,478.03.

Sill, Friday's performance was calm compared with Thursday, when stocks lost nearly 77 points and bond prices plunged as well on fears that faster-than-expected economic growth in the first quarter would prompt the Federal Reserve to soon start raising interest rates.

After racing ahead with increases of 178,000 in March and a 12-year high of 631,000 in February, nonfarm payrolls expanded by just 2,000 in April.

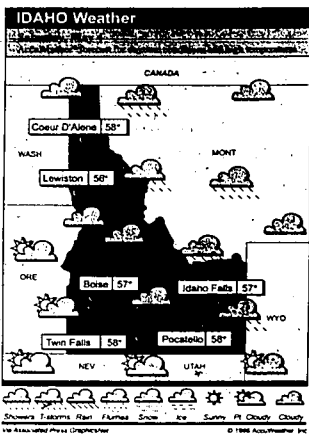

The 5.4 percent unemployment rate for April was an improvement from 5.6 percent in March and was the lowest jobless rate since February of 1995.

The small 2,000-worker gain in payroll jobs was the poorest showing since payrolls had actually fallen by 146,000 in January.

Jobs in service industries were up only 20,000 in the month, far below the 125,000 average gain of the previous quarter. Some service firms that add workers in the spring did not do so this year.

Hail hammers central Kansas; storms pound wide area

The Associated Press
Thunderstorms pounded parts of the Midwest including Missouri, Illinois and Kansas Friday, accompanied in some areas by hail as large as golf balls.
Showers and some thunderstorms stretched from eastern Missouri into Missouri, and temperatures were just cold enough over northern Michigan to produce some light snow near Pellston.
Dry, warm conditions prevailed in the Southwest and Southeast.
The storms in the nation's mid-section produced quarter-inch hail in the Cape Girardeau, Mo., and Pincinnville, Ill. areas. Niangua, Mo., reported golf ball-size hail.
In Kansas, the hail sizes ranged from three-quarters of an inch in diameter at Utica and Rush City to 2 inches at Ness City. The hail in Ness City covered the ground up to 2 inches deep. The storms had diminished by afternoon, but conditions were ripe for more severe weather.
With moisture streaming in from the Pacific, showers and snow showers were forecast across much of the Pacific Northwest and northern Rockies.
Most of the valley locations were expected to get rain showers while the mountains were forecast to receive up to 6 inches of snow at high elevations.

Today's weather fact

As atmospheric conditions become favorable for severe weather, watches are issued. If your area is under a watch, continue your daily routine, but stay tuned to the weather and be ready to run for shelter if need be.
Warnings are only issued when severe weather is reported or imminent. Warnings are issued by county — so make sure you know which one you live in. Seek shelter immediately if your county is in the warning area.
Weather radios, which do nothing but report weather conditions 24 hours a day, will give immediate reports of severe weather. They can be purchased at electronics stores; ask for a NOAA radio.

Lull falls over Freeman standoff

JORDAN, Mont. (AP) — A lull settled over the site of the 40-day Freeman standoff Friday, a day after the FBI warned the militant fugitives it may take whatever action it deems necessary to resolve this matter.
But any FBI action may be delayed by weather. The dirt roads surrounded the area turned into thick mud, clogged gumbo by the locals, as rain fell for a third straight day. Montana Highway Patrol officers and FBI agents cautioned reporters driving through checkpoints to be careful on the slippery roads.
"This mud is awful. There aren't many people moving around much today because it's so hard to get anywhere," one FBI agent said. He declined to identify himself.
"The mud at the fairgrounds (where the FBI is headquartered) is so bad, you can't hardly drive on it. When I tried to stop, my rig just roamed side ways on me. Unbelievable!" another agent said, also refusing to identify himself.
The road conditions could hamper mobility and delay any immediate plans the FBI had to make good on its threat to the Freeman Thursday. The threat to take "whatever action (is) necessary" came after the Freeman refused to negotiate with the agency.

FBI agent Robin L. Montgomery had proposed that two Freeman representatives and two FBI agents meet Saturday at a nearby community hall, along with two Montana state officials who have been trying to mediate the standoff.
Less than an hour after an unidentified woman delivered the FBI's written offer to the Freeman compound on Thursday, it was returned to the compound mailbox with the terse reply: "The FBI does not exist as a government agency." Various legal citations were attached.
Negotiations broke off on Wednesday when the Freeman refused offers conveyed by state special prosecutor John Connor Jr. and former Green Beret Col. James "Bo" Gritz, a leader of the self-styled patriot movement who helped end the deadly siege in Ruby Ridge, Idaho, in 1992.
Members of the anti-government group are wanted on state and federal charges ranging from writing bad checks to threatening to kidnap and kill a federal judge. The standoff began March 25 after two leaders were arrested. The FBI believes 18 Freeman are on the compound.

FBI orders alert after 'war warning'

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The FBI issued a national bulletin about a militia "war warning" calling for attacks on military and law-enforcement installations to "shut federal operations down" if militia leaders are attacked, a newspaper reported Friday.
The April 23 bulletin to police agencies included the text of an alleged militia plan, called "Project Worst Nightmare," that would occur "in the event the military is threatened or militia leaders are assaulted." The Spokesman-Review reported.
The text, which the FBI said was received by several of its offices at about the same time, contends the federal government intends to use the Freeman standoff in Montana to force an all-out confrontation with "constitutional militias."
The newspaper quoted anonymous sources who said the militia plan was issued March 28, three days after the FBI arrested two leaders of the anti-government Freeman at Jordan, Mont.
FBI press officer Julie Wesscher confirmed the nationwide security alert was issued April 23 by the agency's National Security Division.
"This is an on-going matter with the Freeman out there in Montana and we're just not going to have any further comment," she said.

Justice Department spokesman Carl Stern said the alert was "a routine circulation of a document of unknown authenticity in order to alert people to its contents and generate leads as to who might be responsible."
The plan also indicates its unidentified authors believe attacks on militia leaders "must be viewed as a similar act of war as the use of the military."
"A copy of the militia attack plan — urging followers to begin drawing plans to "shut federal operations down" by targeting military, law enforcement and communications facilities, senior federal law enforcement officials and others — accompanied the FBI's alert."
"While this particular text is not associated with any specific militia organization in the United States, it is an indicator that certain militia groups may be taking the following information seriously," the FBI alert told law agencies.
The FBI does not routinely reprint militia propaganda unless its experts believe the material is important enough to alert state and local law enforcement, the newspaper said.
In Seattle, FBI regional chief Burdena Pasanelli said the federal agency "is making no conclusions" about the militia warning.

month, slow slogging in construction activity, inhibited by wet conditions, as well as in trade and services.
But the employment picture was primarily affected by the lull between winter and summer tourism that curbed job opportunities in recreation and hotels and by weather conditions that limited activity in the timber sector.
Overall, the labor force that stood at a record 617,200 in February, lost another 3,800 people in April to slip just under 613,000.

But the exodus was about equally split as the number of workers on the job dropped by 2,000 to just over 583,000 while 1,800 fewer workers sought work.
It was the first time the number of unemployed workers dropped below 30,000 since August 1991.
A third of the way into the year, the unemployment rate is averaging just under 5 percent; more than a full tenth of a point ahead of the record low in 1989.

past decade, helped narrow key gaps between the state and national economies. When the state finally began rebounding in 1987 from one of its worst economic downturns, its per capita income was less than 77 percent of the nation's. This year it should be 83.5 percent.
And during the same period, nonfarm employment jumped 46 percent and should exceed 500,000 next year. The state's average annual wage rose more than 40 percent from 1987 to the present, and should hit $25,000 before the end of this year. The national average annual wage over the decade was up 36 percent.
So far, in the decade, Idaho's economy has outperformed its national counterpart and this is expected to continue, analysts said.
"Idaho's economy will remain one of the strongest in the nation."
Even though nonfarm employment growth this year is estimated at 2.4 percent, the lowest level since the expansion began in 1987, job opportunities will increase at twice the pace of the nation. Job growth in Idaho should increase modestly each year after this and remain two to three times greater than the rate nationwide.
Manufacturing jobs, typically among the better paying, will contribute to that increase even as they continue to contract across America.

The only weak spots should be in timber, finance and real estate. Even mining appears to be on a modest upswing in response to rising metal prices.
Banking employment will decline this year and next as a result of recent mergers, and a combination of factors dampens timber and real estate, including construction, the analysts said.
Slower growth has started to stem the flow of people moving into Idaho to take advantage of an economy significantly stronger than the one they came from. Immigration, which peaked at 23,000 in 1994, should slip under 16,000 this year before falling below 14,000 in 1997 and 1998.
That is translating into a substantial reduction in demand for new homes from 1994's record 12,800 housing starts. Fewer than 10,000 starts are expected this year and the annual number also expected to get over 11,000 before the turn of the century.
In addition to curtailing employment in construction and real estate, the drop in housing starts further complicates problems faced by the wood products industry.

Unlike previous years, the state has drafted a specific list of skills to create a new "seamless" education in which students can move onto other topics rather than wait for their parents to catch up, Edmiston said.
School districts can use the state guidelines to decide what skills to introduce to their students, "but they are not mandated," Edmiston said.

For Bob Dole, it's not what he says, it's whatever he says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever else you know about Bob Dole, listen to him for a while and you'll hear him say "whatever."

Whenever it's a verbal tic, like the teen-ager's "you know," Linguists call it a "filler" or a "bridge."

Here's Dole talking at various times and places:

- At a rally in Jacksonville, Fla., as supporters chanted his name: "Thank you, I accept the nomination, whatever it is."
- At a rally in Houston: "President Clinton says, 'I share your pain.' I can say, 'I feel your pain' or whatever."
- In a Washington speech to the National Association of Realtors, acknowledging applause: "I accept your nomination, and whatever."

- In the same speech, talking about the tax code: "It can also encourage home ownership, encourage contributions to charities, whatever."
- Talking with reporters in New York City about selecting a running mate: "I'm going to wait until I'm the nominee before I start making judgments on running mates or whatever."

- Describing an enthusiastic rally in Miami's "Little Havana" district: "They were all shouting, 'Viva, Viva Bob Dole, viva, viva, whatever.'"
- And Friday, testifying on why he thinks the gasoline tax should be reduced: "It puts additional burdens on drivers, commuters, buses, railroads, whatever. You get the picture."

Sens. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., and Bob Dole, R-Kan., discuss notes before a news conference Thursday. And at some point during the conversation, Dole likely has said, "Whatever."

Dole may have been talking this way for years; his speech patterns, like everything else, are coming under scrutiny now that he is now on the cusp of a presidential nomination. Any deep meaning here, or is it just a habit? Donald Moine sees deep meaning.

He is a psychologist in Palos Verdes, Calif., who consults with Fortune 500 companies on their communications problems and wrote "Modern Persuasion Strategies."

The problem is that it contributes to the perception that Dole is old and tired and that he lacks mental energy," Moine said. "It is also a sign of verbal laziness." "It's said because I think Dole is a very honorable person who has much to offer. But people frequently reject ideas because of their packaging. We have to clothe our ideas in the proper words."

Another expert in communications, Linda Carli, who teaches psychology at Wellesley College in Massachusetts, said research "suggests that people who hedge a great deal are perceived as less authoritative and competent," but she also sees an upside to Dole's habit.

"It has the advantage of softening a statement, particularly when you're making controversial statements that you might want to seem less extreme." "It's colloquial," she said, and that's good. "People find an informal style less threatening."

Dole isn't the only public figure with a speaking peculiarity. President Clinton's sales his speeches with home spinners — "a load of hooey" or "this is a really big deal."

Ronald Reagan began sentences with a drawn-out, "Well..." George Bush committed cold-blooded murder on syntax. He once delivered his message to the world as it was given him, reading from his cue card: "Message I care."

And Bush hated to speak of himself in the first person. As a consequence, his speech writer, Peggy Noonan, said in her memoirs, "Instead of 'I moved to Texas and soon we joined the Republican Party,' it was, 'Moved to Texas, joined the Republican Party, raised a family.'" The result made Bush sound like he was delivering a telegram, not a speech.

Psychologist Gerald Goodman at the University of California at Los Angeles saw Dole's habit as "a combination of 'et cetera and 'I'd rather not go into the details because they're not important.' It's a little bit of the boss can say it more than the staff member."

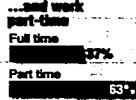

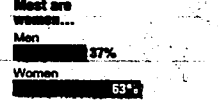

Wayne Fields, a Washington University English professor who followed Dole around in 1988 and studied his speaking patterns, said advisers would be foolish to try to get Dole to change.

"You can change the part of your hair, you can change speech writers, but you cannot change who the person is," Fields said. "You've got to make that your strength. You've got to work with the material you've got."

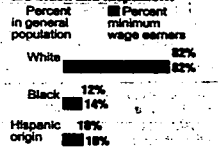

Wage increase support outweighs worry

Who earns minimum wage?

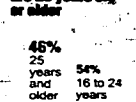

A look at the almost 3.7 million hourly wage earners whose pay is at or below the minimum wage. Percent distribution by sex, background, status and age, 1995.

A disproportionate percent are black and Hispanic...

...and almost half are 25 years old or older

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans overwhelmingly favor an increase in the minimum wage, even though many also believe it could backfire on unskilled workers by eliminating jobs, an Associated Press poll found.

78 percent to 17 percent, respondents favor the plan by President Clinton and congressional Democrats to raise the minimum wage by 90 cents over two years to $5.15 an hour.

The Republicans who control Congress have refused to bring the issue to a vote. They argue that an increase would harm businesses and force them to cut entry-level jobs or raise prices.

In the poll, 24 percent see fewer jobs for unskilled workers as very likely, and an additional 34 percent think that drawback is somewhat likely. But these respondents are just as prone to support the wage increase as those who don't buy into the job-loss argument. Two-thirds of those polled also agree that financial problems for small businesses are at least somewhat likely. But a similar majority believes a meaningful rise in the standard of living of people earning the minimum wage is very likely (25 percent) or somewhat likely (41 percent).

The poll of 1,014 adults was taken Friday through Tuesday by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., part of AUS Consultants. Results have a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

The poll also looks at the potential political impact of the minimum wage issue in an election year. About three-quarters of voters who support the raise say their vote in November would be influenced by their member of Congress taking a position against the increase.

Among Republicans, 63 percent are at least somewhat in favor of a proposal that their party's leaders in Congress have thwarted.

Joe Waldholtz sued by father-in-law

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The father of Rep. Ernie Cline Waldholtz on Friday filed a lawsuit against her estranged husband, Joe Waldholtz, alleging he stole nearly $4 million.

The four-page action, filed in Salt Lake's 3rd District Court, is accompanied by 33 pages of exhibits detailing the transactions. Some, for amounts as large as $408,000, were handwritten wire transfers scrawled on personal stationery or blank paper.

Cline also wrote $420,000 in personal checks to "Joseph Waldholtz and Ernie Waldholtz." All were countersigned by Rep. Waldholtz, R-Utah.

Of the 24 total transactions, 19 went into bank accounts in Utah and Washington D.C. jointly held by Joe Waldholtz and the congresswoman.

Court agrees to hear appeals issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moving with rare speed, the Supreme Court agreed Friday to hear a Georgia death-row inmate's constitutional challenge to new limits on federal appeals by state prisoners. Ellis Wayne Felker, who had been scheduled to die Thursday night, was temporarily spared as the justices granted review just nine days after the law aimed at speeding executions was signed by President Clinton. Felker was convicted of killing a female college student in 1981.

The high court's conservative members, who favor quicker handling of death-penalty cases, took the unusual step of granting an early review. The justices scheduled arguments for June 3 so a decision can be announced before the court's current term ends by early July. The last time the court granted such quick review was in a 1990 flag-burning case.

Four justices opposed the speeded-up argument schedule. Justice John Paul Stevens wrote that it was "unnecessary and profoundly unwise" to put the case on a fast track.

Joined by Justices David H. Souter, Ruth Bader Ginsburg and Stephen G. Breyer, Stevens said consideration of the issues "should be undertaken with the utmost deliberation, rather than unseemly haste."

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and Justices Sandra Day O'Connor, Antonin Scalia, Anthony M. Kennedy and Clarence Thomas voted to speed up review of the case. They made no comment, but each previously has voiced frustration with the pace of appellate review, especially in death-penalty cases.

Congress enacted the limits on federal appeals in response to complaints about inmates spending a decade or more on death row while pursuing various legal strategies.

Felker is challenging the part of the new law that requires permission from a three-judge appeals panel before state inmates can file a second federal appeal challenging the constitutionality of their convictions.

A three-judge panel refused Thursday to let Felker file a second appeal, and the new law bars inmates from appealing such rulings to the Supreme Court.

That ban on appeals is unconstitutional, Felker's lawyer, Stephen C. Bayliss, told the justices in court papers.

"This act raises myriad constitutional concerns and is seriously constitutionally flawed," Bayliss wrote. "The death penalty will strike like lightning — there is no provision for, much less guarantee of, uniformity in the handling of similarly situated applicants."

Boston University law professor Larry Yackle said he believed the ban on such appeals is unconstitutional.

He noted Felker's case addresses only one section of the new law, but predicted many legal challenges to the other provisions.

"Virtually every line in this statute is going to bear litigation," Yackle said. "It's an exquisitely poorly written statute. It is going to have to be litigated to come up with a sensible, workable reading."

A chaplain told Felker, 47, of the high court action as he waited in a special holding cell near the electric chair at the state prison in Jackson, Ga.. Prison spokesman Mike Light said Felker showed little reaction.

Parents marry at daughter's funeral

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The parents of a 2-year-old girl who was accidentally struck and killed by her father's truck got married at the funeral in front of the child's open casket.

Mark Macdonald, 40, said he wanted his wedding to take place with his daughter there.

Macdonald and Ann Scarpelli had been living together for nearly six years but never married, in part because they couldn't afford a big ceremony, Scarpelli said.

Earthquake shakes mostly nerves

Kingdome withstands

Thursday's rattle

SEATTLE (AP) — The strongest earthquake to hit Washington state in 15 years knocked items off store shelves and rocked the Kingdome, a stadium dogged by doubts about its ability to withstand such a jolt.

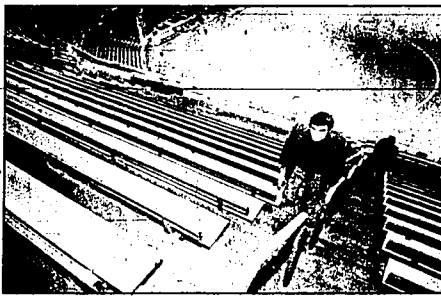

Most of the damage was to people's peace of mind.

"My car rocked. ... I didn't know what had happened," said David Thayer, who was driving on a bridge near the epicenter when the quake hit at 9:04 p.m. Thursday. "I thought God landed."

One of the biggest questions was whether the moderate quake had damaged the Kingdome, where a multimillion-dollar battle over the future of a football team has centered on the dome's stadium's seismic durability. The stadium was pronounced sound after an inspection Friday.

The quake's magnitude was measured at 5.4 by scientists at the U.S. Geological Survey's Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., and 5.3 by the University of Washington Geophysics Center in Seattle.

It lasted about 30 seconds and was centered near Duvall, about 20 miles northeast of Seattle. Dozens of smaller aftershocks followed.

Seismic structural engineer Casey Caughie climbs to the top of the 300-level Seattle Kingdome Friday to inspect support columns after an earthquake stopped a game between the Seattle Mariners and the Cleveland Indians Thursday night.

The tremor was felt as far away as Portland Ore., 145 miles to the south, and Vancouver, British Columbia, 125 miles to the north.

In Duvall, a woman in her 30s who was not identified fell and bruised her arm during the quake, said Deputy Fire Chief Bud Backer. Power was briefly knocked out in some outlying areas, and some stores and homes reported items falling off shelves, but no serious damage or injuries were reported.

The quake halted a Kingdome game between the Seattle Mariners and the Cleveland Indians in the seventh inning, with Cleveland ahead 6-3. The remainder was to be played before Friday night's game between the two teams.

Seattle Seahawks owner Ken Behring cited doubts about the stadium's ability to withstand an earthquake when he packed up the football team and moved to Southern California earlier this year.

The NFL threatened heavy fines against Behring before he returned the team to Seattle. Last month, Microsoft co-founder and Portland Trail Blazers owner Paul Allen took an option to buy the team and keep it here.

No damage to the dome was found during an inspection Friday by three engineering firms, said the stadium's staff architect, Dick Gemperle.

"How we came through this shows what the experts said all along," Kingdome spokeswoman Carol Keaton said. "This building is remarkably durable and strong — an extremely reliable architectural structure."

Behring's attorney, Bill Temko, said Friday that the quake "merely confirms what Mr. Behring was saying all along."

"There is a real seismic risk in the Seattle area. People were scoffing at him and saying this was some sort of ruse," Temko said. "There is a reality to it and luckily for the people in Seattle this was not a bigger earthquake."

Washington has had two major quakes this century. In 1949, a quake centered near Olympia registered 7.1 and killed eight people. In 1965, a quake measuring 6.5 hit the Seattle-Tacoma area, killing seven.

A 5.5 quake struck near Mount St. Helens in 1981. More recently, a 5.0 quake struck near Seattle in January 1995 but caused no injuries or major damage.

Labor steps up fight on sweatshops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department stepped up its campaign against sweatshops Friday, listing the garment makers from whom it recovered nearly $1.37 million in back wages in the first half of this fiscal year.

The 30-page report, "No Sweat," lists 115 names of companies for the first time the names of cutting and sewing shops found in violation of federal wage and hour laws and the manufacturers with whom they were under contract.

The department said it would begin issuing similar reports every three months identifying companies that repeatedly fail to pay overtime and minimum wages.

"This information is critical to retailers, manufacturers and the public," Labor Secretary Robert B. Reich said. "Everyone should be interested in helping eradicate sweatshops."

Reich had called on consumers to pressure retailers to help end sweatshop conditions, but until now, there was no readily available record of violators.

The report was given to the National Retail Federation, the trade group representing the country's largest clothing retailers. Many of the companies had requested a list of violators during a meeting with Reich last year in which he sought their help in improving labor law compliance.

In addition to recovering back wages totaling $1,366,680 from 237 contractors working for 200 manufacturers, the department levied fines totaling $265,180 during the six months ended March 31. The violations were uncovered during 472 investigations by the department's Wage and Hour Division beginning last Oct. 1.

The nation's largest garment manufacturing areas in southern California and New York City alone accounted for $1 million in recovered wages for 2,900 workers during the period.

New York had 82 violations resulting in the recovery of $593,327 in back wages for 1,657 employees. Fines totaled $116,280.

Another 86 violations occurred in California, where $447,532 in back wages were recovered for 1,353 workers. Fines totaled $85,900.

The biggest back wage recovery — $78,000 — came from Fantasy Manufacturing in Santa Ana, Calif.

In Dallas, the department recovered $163,358 for 179 employees and imposed fines of $43,000 for 15 violations.

Quakes kill 8 in N. China

BEIJING (AP) — A powerful earthquake shook northern China Friday, toppling dozens of houses and killing at least eight people. At least 100 people were injured by the 6.4-magnitude quake centered north of the Inner Mongolian city of Baotou, about 340 miles northwest of Beijing, officials said. The government rushed hundreds of rescue workers to the area, which continued to be hit by aftershocks hours after the initial quake, said an official of the State Seismological Bureau, who identified himself only by his surname, Tan.

The earthquake hit at 11:32 a.m. local time and was felt in much of northern China, including Beijing, where high-rise buildings swayed perceptibly. Dozens of old one-story houses collapsed near the epicenter, the seismological bureau said.

Baotou, a city of more than 1.3 million people, is a major railway artery and commercial center on the Yellow River. It is also a key industrial city, with major iron, steel, cement and textile factories. "Chairs and lights were shaking," said Wu Xizhi, an official in the Inner Mongolian provincial capital of Hohhot, about 94 miles east of the quake's epicenter. She said no casualties were reported in the city. — It was the third major tremor to strike China this year, following quakes in southwestern Yunnan and in northwestern Xinjiang.

Suspect probed in other deaths

HOBART, Australia (AP) — Martin Bryant, the man charged with massacring 35 people in southern Tasmania, is being investigated for his possible role in several unsolved murder cases. Assistant Police Commissioner Lupp Prins said Friday officials are re-examining the bludgeoning deaths of a young female tourist and a local retiree as well as the disappearance of a German backpacker.

Victoria Cafasso, a 20-year-old Italian, was stabbed to death on a beach at Beaumaris on Tasmania's east coast late last year. Retiree Leo Rogers was stabbed more than 60 times in his home in suburban Hobart in 1995 as well.

Police also will reopen the inquiry into the case of Nancy Grundwaldt, a 26-year-old German who disappeared near Beaumaris in 1993.

Prins said police would review two other, unspecified cases but he refused to say whether they were the 1992 auto crash fatality involving Bryant's elderly female companion and the 1993 death of Bryant's father.

Court inquests found that the first case was an accident and the second a suicide. Media reports, however, say the 28-year-old Bryant inherited a fortune as a result of both deaths.

The facility treating Martin was the subject of a hoax Friday when a telephone caller told the Royal Hobart Hospital there was a bomb inside. While the call proved to be a crank, it forced the temporary evacuation of 80 staff and 12 patients from the hospital. "People have been angry that doctors and nurses are caring for Bryant, who was badly burned during his shooting and arson spree Sunday and Monday. Doctors insist Bryant must remain in the hospital for at least another week before he will be fit enough to be transferred to a Hobart prison. "It's their professional duty to care for all patients, no matter what," said Lindsay Pyme, the hospital's chief executive.

Pyme said the threats have shaken the morale of staff already distressed from treating horrifying wounds on some survivors of the massacre Sunday at Port Arthur, a picturesque tourist site 30 miles from Hobart.

"It is really getting beyond a joke," the weary Pyme said. A few hours earlier, 600 mourners packed a funeral service for Royce Thompson, a 59-year-old bus driver who was shot to death as he stood by his tourist bus.

Police accuse Bryant of shooting sightseers and staff at the Port Arthur colonial prison complex on Sunday with high-powered assault weapons. He then barricaded himself inside a guest cottage with three hostages and set it ablaze Monday morning.

Police said they captured Bryant when he fled the inn after his clothes caught fire. The charred bodies of the hostages were found in the building's ashes.

Report: U.S. spy plane flew over French sites

PARIS (AP) — A French newspaper reported Friday that a U.S. spy plane flew over and photographed sensitive French military installations in March, but U.S. and French authorities firmly denied the "sensationalist" report. Citing "reliable French military sources," the leftist Parisian daily Liberation said the U-2 plane photographed a nuclear warhead assembly plant, an air base and a tank testing ground.

Liberation said the U.S. Air Force told French authorities, who had spotted the plane on radar, that the pilot was just burning fuel to make a higher landing.

The U.S. Embassy in Paris said the U-2 was returning early from a mission over Bosnia due to harsh weather conditions. At Air Force headquarters in the Pentagon, spokeswoman Maj. Laura Feldman said the pilot was following French air traffic controllers' instructions to fly in a holding pattern to lighten the fuel load before landing at Istres, a French Mediterranean base.

"Our aircraft do not use their surveillance equipment, not even for testing, over French territory. French installations are never under surveillance," the embassy said in a statement faxed to The Associated Press.

A French defense Ministry spokesman called the Liberation story "a sensationalist article for which there is no serious basis and which the ministry considers of no interest."

Germany, U.S., Russia develop space robot

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia, Germany and the United States are developing a new robot to work outside the orbiting space station Mir, according to a news report Friday.

The robot, dubbed Inspector, would reduce the need for spacewalks by astronauts living aboard the Mir, the Interfax news agency said. Participating in the project are the Russian firm Energia, the German firm Daimler-Benz Aerospace and the U.S. firm Rockwell Aerospace.

Interfax said the Inspector would be fitted with a video camera and could be used to inspect the outside of the decade-old Russian station, which frequently needs repairs.

From as far away as 150 yards, the Inspector would be able to zoom in on objects that are less than an inch long, it said, adding that the robot could be controlled from inside the Mir or from Mission Control on Earth.

According to Interfax, the first Inspector is scheduled to go to the Mir in August 1997 aboard a Progress-M cargo ship. It will return to Earth aboard an American shuttle, it said.

Sheep dog kills woman

ZALAUDVARNOK, Hungary (AP) — A sheep dog attacked and killed a 69-year-old woman as she rode her bicycle through Zalaudvarnok, a hamlet in western Hungary, police said Friday. The dog was later caught and euthanized.

Witnesses found the woman's body and alerted police Thursday afternoon, said Maj. Zoltan Schranz of the regional police headquarters in Zalageresze, some 100 miles southwest of Budapest.

Rebel leader secretly flown out of Monrovia

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — A warlord whose standoff with militia leaders plunged Monrovia into a month of chaos and bloodshed was secretly airlifted out of the country Friday in a move that could finally end the fighting.

A high-ranking official of the African peacekeeping force deployed in Liberia said his troops, in a convoy of tanks and armored vehicles, sneaked Roosevelt Johnson out of the army barracks where he had been holed up and put the rebel leader on a helicopter to neighboring Freetown, Sierra Leone.

A U.S. diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity, confirmed Johnson's departure. "He flew out this afternoon," said the official, who said details of the evacuation would be released later.

Government officials in Sierra Leone said Johnson was expected to arrive later Friday.

From Freetown, he planned to travel to Accra, Ghana, for a summit next week on Liberia's six-year-old civil war. U.S. officials in Washington said they expected Johnson to take part in the meeting.

In Washington, the Clinton administration endorsed plans for next week's summit of West African nations to discuss the Liberian crisis and said U.S. Special envoy Dane Smith would attend.

"The White House will continue its diplomatic efforts in Liberia and stands ready to support any Liberian government that came to power peacefully, through legitimate, democratic elections," spokesman Mike McCurry said.

Many Liberians see their country as a former American colony, because of its founding by freed American slaves in 1847.

It was not known right away whether Johnson planned to return to Monrovia or go into exile, an option he has rejected in the past.

There was no immediate reaction from Johnson's bitter rival, warlord-turned-government leader Charles Taylor, whose feud with Johnson sparked so much bloodshed in Monrovia that bodies littered the streets.

Johnson's flight came a day after Taylor vowed an all-out assault on him and his fighters, a threat that sent thousands of civilians rushing to the port Friday to try to escape the city by boat.

A day earlier, U.S. Ambassador William Milam, U.N. special envoy Anthony Nyakyi and leaders of the African peacekeeping army said they had a cease-fire promise from Johnson's side.

They said they were trying to reach Taylor, a rebel faction leader and also a member of the six-man government that has tried since April 6 to arrest Johnson on murder charges.

Johnson, a former Cabinet minister, was sacked by the government and charged with murder in connection with clashes in March that violated a 1995 nationwide peace accord.

Johnson's refusal to surrender sparked fighting that quickly spread into a citywide spree of looting, shelling and gunfire. The United States military began evacuating foreigners April 10, and by Friday about 2,100 people had been flown to neighboring countries from the American Embassy.

Overnight, 60 more Marines were flown into the compound from U.S. warships off the coast, bringing to 290 the number of troops protecting the Embassy and its 18 remaining personnel. Security concerns have increased since Tuesday, when three Liberians who fired their weapons toward the Embassy were killed by Marines.

There was scattered shooting Friday, but the city remained relatively quiet for a second straight day. Still, scenes of horror abounded: dogs chewing on corpses of war victims dumped on nearby beaches and fighters allegedly devouring dead rivals.

Unconfirmed reports from witnesses said fighters were roasting and eating the limbs of their victims in one area of combat. Cannibalism has often occurred in the civil war because some fighters believe they can increase their power by eating slain rivals.

Civilians exhausted and terrified after weeks of fierce fighting flooded the port, several miles from the areas of conflict, in a desperate bid to board fishing boats and other vessels heading for Ghana, Nigeria, Ivory Coast and other neighboring countries.

Major says he'll hang on until next year's election

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister John Major said Friday he will hang onto power until next year's national elections, in hopes of building up his party's support after its trouncing in local polls this week.

But the Conservative leader's goal is threatened by a tiny, one-seat majority in Parliament. If the government is defeated repeatedly or on a big issue, he might have to call an election before the May 1997 deadline.

And although Major is hoping the economic tide will turn in his favor over the next year, it would take a record-breaking recovery to avert defeat by the resurgent Labor Party in national elections.

"Of course I am disappointed," Major said of the Conservatives' pounding in municipal elections on Thursday. "We've felt the political pain. I intend to stay here until the rewards are through."

Thursday's ballot marked the last big test of public opinion before the Conservatives' latest five-year term runs out. The party has been in power for 17 years.

Final results in the 150 municipalities contested put left-of-center Labor in control of 85, up 10; the centrist Liberal Democrats with 23; up five; and the Conservatives with three, down one. In the remainder, no party won control.

Wounded American in critical condition

TUZLA AIR BASE, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — An American soldier who wounded himself in the abdomen was reported in critical condition Friday, awaiting medical evacuation to Germany when his health permits.

A statement from U.S. headquarters in Tuzla said Spc. Hector Rodriguez, 28, suffered "an apparent self-inflicted wound" on Thursday. Spokesmen said they were unable to explain the circumstances and that an investigation was continuing.

Only bits of information dribbled out of headquarters. Despite repeated requests, spokesmen refused to disclose such details as Rodriguez' hometown 24 hours after the shooting, even though his family had been notified.

Rodriguez is being treated at the 212th Mobile Army Surgical Hospital at Base Camp Bedrock, about five miles southwest of Tuzla. He will be evacuated to Landstuhl Regional Medical Center in Germany.

Headquarters said the incident occurred at Base Camp Demi, near the town of Kladanj, about 18 miles south of Tuzla, an area patrolled by the 2nd Brigade of the 1st Armored Division.

Rodriguez is a member of Company C, 4th Battalion, 12th Infantry, which is based at Camp Demi.

He is the third American wounded by gunfire since 5,000 U.S. troops began arriving in Bosnia in December to participate in the NATO-led peace force. The two others were wounded by hostile fire.

Two Americans have been killed, one by a mine and the other in a truck accident.

BridgeView begins expansion project

By Virginia S. Garber
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - BridgeView Estates will break ground as early as next week on a 71,000-square-foot expansion of its sprawling facility on the Snake River Canyon rim.

BridgeView Estates, which opened in 1992 just east of the Magic Valley Mall, offers independent and assisted retirement housing, as well as health care and rehabilitation for the elderly, chronically ill or disabled.

The $4.6 million project will add 39 apartments for independent living to the north end of BridgeView, General Manager Julie Johnson-Conrad said. Renairs already have secured 25 of those apartments, she said.

At the building's south end will be commercial additions and alterations which include the BridgeView project - jumped from $28,000 in April 1995 to $5 million in April 1996.

Building permit value skyrockets

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - A planned $4.6 million addition to BridgeView Estates and a surge of multifamily housing sent the total value of April building permits soaring to 243 percent of April 1995 construction values.

The Twin Falls building department in April issued permits for $8.5 million in residential and commercial construction, compared with $3.5 million in 1995, department records show.

The value of permits for new single-family residential construction was up 14 percent from April a year ago.

New commercial construction was down 81 percent, but commercial additions and alterations - which include the BridgeView project - jumped from $28,000 in April 1995 to $5 million in April 1996.

Twin Falls issued no permits for new multifamily units in April 1995. Last month, new multifamily construction totalling $1.2 million received permits.

The building department's Dwaine Thomson said that two big projects account for much of the city's new multifamily housing - Saratoga Apartments' eight-plexes on the corner of Caswell Avenue West and Washington Street North, and Russell Square's four-plexes on Elizabeth Boulevard west of Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School.

State lawyer issues warning on common law

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

BOISE - Common-law "court" activists and similar groups threaten the "economic well-being" of public officials and should be considered safety risks in the courtroom, a state legal official says.

"These groups need to be taken seriously," writes Lawrence Wasden, deputy chief of staff for the Idaho Attorney General, in the May edition of The Advocate magazine published by the Idaho State Bar.

"Their ideas border on anarchy and are illogical. Yet, constitutionalists possess fanatical zeal for their doctrines. Even though they hold the Constitution in one hand, they crush it with the other."

Some groups recruit military and law enforcement employees as a way "to prepare for effective armed confrontation with current law enforcement," he writes.

Wasden includes the common-law movement in his definition of constitutionalists. Common-law "courts" recently started meeting in the Magic Valley, as well as other parts of Idaho.

Trial court administrators and county sheriffs should be informed of hearings where constitutionalists may be present so they can provide appropriate security, he writes.

Helen Trowbridge, a convicted tax evader and member of the common law movement in Twin Falls, said she agrees with some of Wasden's characterizations except for those about violence.

"That is an inflammatory statement," Trowbridge said. "We don't foresee having armed confrontations with law enforcement. We mainly ask them to obey the law."

"We all pray we can work something out between the two groups. We really are on the same side in this whole thing," she said.

But on the subject of the federal ban on assault weapons, Trowbridge said violence "may possibly" Please see WARNING/B3.

Twin Falls man charged in theft of shotgun

TWIN FALLS - A Twin Falls man suspected of supplying the gun that killed two teens March 30 has been charged with a felony in connection with the theft of a shotgun.

Joel "Tweety" Campos, 19, appeared in court Friday on a grand theft charge. Bail was set at $25,000, a public defender was appointed and a preliminary hearing was set for 9:30 a.m. May 10.

Campos stole at least one firearm from a Twin Falls couple while their daughter was gathering her possessions to run away from home on March 12, according to an affidavit by Detective Dennis Rinehart of the Twin Falls Police Department.

Prosecutors are deciding whether to charge Campos as an accessory to the murders of Jafrá Sumaya and Jesse Ellison, both 19. Police say Campos lent Eric Ferrier, 18, a gun that killed the pair following an argument about gangs. Prosecutors temporarily dropped murder charges against Ferrier pending an investigation.

The parents of the runaway told police they were missing several long guns as well as a .45-caliber handgun and several boxes of ammunition, the affidavit said. A neighbor said Sumaya and Ellison died after being shot with small-caliber bullets, but police have declined to say what kind of weapon was used.

Telephone troubles cause inconvenience for newspaper

TWIN FALLS - Telephone difficulties have plagued communication lines at The Times-News office since Wednesday evening, but the problem should be fixed by Tuesday morning.

Nor all incoming calls are making it through and employees are having trouble making outgoing calls. In addition, the voice mail system is not functioning - all electronic messages recorded since Wednesday night have been lost. "We're really sorry for the inconvenience," said Treva Feltman, office manager. "If you need to talk to someone right away, your best bet is to come down to the office."

Otherwise, callers may have to try several times before their calls go through. Telephone technicians have been unable to identify the problem, but new equipment is being flown here from Alabama, and it should be installed on Monday.

15-year-old Twin Falls boy arrested on cocaine charges

TWIN FALLS - A junior high school student who vomited after accepting free cocaine from her classmate Thursday lead police to arrest a 15-year-old boy on an adult charge of drug delivery.

Abel Orantes of Twin Falls appeared in court Friday, and bail was set at $10,000, according to court minutes. A preliminary hearing is set for 9:30 a.m. next Friday.

Thursday during a class at O'Leary Junior High School, a student passed a girl some cocaine contained in a gum wrapper; the girl asked to be excused by the teacher, inhaled the drug in the school restroom, then flushed the rest down the toilet, according to an affidavit written by Officer Brian Pike of the Twin Falls Police Department.

Friends took the girl to the administrative office at O'Leary Junior High School after she threw up several times, the affidavit said. One friend told school officials a student had been "very aggressive" about pushing drugs on them; another said the student had doled out the drug several times in the past, the affidavit said.

Police said they seized approximately two-tenths of a gram of cocaine from Orantes, who asked for "a second chance."

Senator hires Mike Tracy

By the Associated Press and The Times-News

BOISE - Mike Tracy, until recently director of information for the Idaho Farm Bureau, was named Friday as press secretary for Republican Sen. Larry Craig's re-election campaign.

"I have worked with Mike for years on a variety of issues and he's always had a good feel for what Idahoans are thinking about those concerns," Craig said in a prepared statement.

Craig's campaign manager, Mike Reynoldson, lauded Tracy's media background. As a former Farm Bureau spokesman, Tracy is known in agricultural and natural resource circles for his stand against mandatory worker's comp insurance for farm workers.

Tracy also has opposed minimum flows in Idaho's rivers, wolf re-introduction and federal wildlife managers.

"If I was picking a press secretary, I would try to find somebody a little more neutral," said Rep. Mark Stubbs, R-Twin Falls. "Still, I think this is in keeping with the (Craig) campaign."

Tracy will join the Craig campaign May 13.

Grouse dance heralds spring

By William Brock
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - It's an unlikely setting for one of the Intermountain West's prominent rites of spring.

On a scrubby sagebrush flat, deep in the Shoshone Basin, male sharp-tailed grouse gather on chilly mornings to strut and dance and do whatever it takes to lure females into their midst.

The air is filled with sound as they cool, hoot, and drum their feet on the ground. The performance builds, then they begin to dance.

The birds lower their heads, raise their tails and spread their tailfeathers in a fan. Pumping their legs furiously, they run in tight circles and flutter their bottoms like showgirls in a skirt with seven petticoats.

It's an amazing spectacle, deeply evocative of the dances of Plains Indians. Best of all, it's a performance that is enjoying a slow resurgence in southern Idaho.

Sharp-tailed grouse are native to the Magic Valley, but their numbers fell to almost nil by the turn of the century, said Randy Smith, Jerome-based wildlife biologist of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. Habitat fragmentation was the principal reason for the decline, Smith said.

In an effort to return them to southern Idaho, Fish and Game has been capturing sharp-tailed grouse near Rockland and releasing them in the Shoshone Basin. More than 200 birds have been released during the past five years.

Releases were made in the Langford area for the first two years, but the birds never took hold - probably because birds of prey hung out in nearby aspen trees. Smith scored his territory similar to the Rockland area by installing on a site three miles south of Langford Flat, alongside the Big Creek Road.

The site is nothing special - simply an open expanse, similar to countless miles of other flat, open country. The land is covered with bunchgrass. Please see GROUSE/B3.

2 vie for District 1 commission seat

By Rob Lundgren
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - Candidates John Tootson and Glenn Ehwel will face off in the May 28 Republican primary for the commissioner's seat in Jerome County's District 1.

Both candidates agree growth in the county is a high priority, but they differ in their views about what should be managed. "I'm pro growth, but at a controlled, moderate pace," Tootson said. "We need to be able to provide people's children the opportunity to come back and find a job in Jerome."

Tootson said he hopes the new welfare legislation provides the commissioners with the authority to ensure those who receive indigent financial assistance truly are poor before their bills are paid.

Glenn Ehwel
Age: 47
Residence: Jerome
Education: Bachelor's degree in Industrial Engineering from California Polytechnic State University, Pomona, Calif.
Experience: Licensed mechanical engineer since 1980, planning and zoning administrator from 1988 through 1991.

John Tootson
Age: 61
Residence: Jerome
Education: Bachelor's degree from Idaho State University, and a Master's degree in personnel management from Central Michigan University.
Experience: District 1 commissioner for the past 18 months. Retired colonel U.S. Army, owned an insurance agency and seed business for the past 11 years.

He said he supports the need to build a new jail to relieve crowding in the county's jail, but it should only be built with approval from voters, he said. And he said two potential cost-saving elements of county government need to be explored: Alternative forms of government. Please see COMMISSION/B3.

Orofino couple may receive help replacing house flooded by creek

OROFINO (AP) — Wayne and Cindy Wilson have been living in a rented mobile home the last couple of months.

The family has no home of its own. The new house they moved into last summer was undermined by a flooding Orofino Creek in February. As it was about to fall into the creek, officials ordered it destroyed, fearing if a large chunk of debris went into the water, it would dam a downstream bridge or divert, causing more flood damage.

That left the couple with a $66,000 mortgage and an empty lot. Cindy Wilson, a high school teacher, and her logger husband will have to move soon. The people who own the mobile home are going to move in before June 10. "We are scurrying around to find someplace else to get into," Cindy said.

But after some high-level help, there's a possibility the state may be able to use federal funds to buy the couple out.

Orofino City Manager Rick Lamm said the city has submitted a preliminary application to buy out the Wilsons and four other homes, through the Federal Emergency Management Agency's hazard mitigation program.

The property along Orofino Creek would revert to the city, and never could be built upon again, Lamm said.

Final applications are due May 30 for FEMA funding, after property appraisals are complete, he said.

Lamm said the city is trying to get the rest of the money for the property owners through the Community Development Block Grant program.

"Our objective is to try to make them whole again," he said. "We are positive and optimistic that relief isn't too far off.

"It just isn't the Wilsons. It's for the other flood victims as well," he said.

Federal officials and the bank that holds the mortgage both told the Wilsons they were out of luck. But Sen. Larry Craig asked Henry Cisneros, secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, for help.

Hal DeCell III, assistant secretary of the department, said the Wilsons could be eligible for help under FEMA's hazard mitigation program.

"Wayne and Cindy Wilson sacrificed their home during the floods to save Orofino," Craig said. "It would be wrong to leave them homeless while paying a mortgage on an empty lot."

Mormon Church sues firm over genealogical information

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Corporation of the President of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has filed a lawsuit to stop a company from selling marriage data taken from the church's genealogical index.

The lawsuit, alleging federal copyright infringement, seeks a permanent injunction against Kelly Edgar, Vital Records

Archives and Telesearch.

The Mormon Church owns copyrights to its International Genealogical Index and permits use of its data only for genealogical or family history research. It prohibits reproduction or commercialization of the data. Edgar, the defendants copied portions of the church index and began marketing and selling a product called "Marriage Index."

In copies of advertisements attached to the lawsuit, Vital Records Archives of Salt Lake City offered to sale marriage lists containing information on up to 15 million marriages.

There is no telephone listing for Vital Records Archives in the Salt Lake directory.

Educators fear Fox's changes will jeopardize Idaho's grants

LEWISTON (AP) — Idaho's $11 million federal grant to support the School to Work program is in danger because of revisions undertaken to satisfy state Schools Superintendent Anne Fox.

A member of the national grant committee warned at a meeting last week that the grant will have to be reviewed at the national level again. Laurie Moyer told a gathering of school district superintendents on Tuesday the review will determine if the Idaho grant retains its ranking after the latest changes.

Moyer is the north central Idaho facilitator for School to Work, a program much praised by employers for helping students get actual job training and experience that helps them land and keep jobs.

Moyer said 20 states that applied for grants didn't get them. Conceivably, she said, the money Idaho was awarded could go elsewhere.

Lapwai Superintendent Dennis Kachelmier said if the changes take away resources to access additional students, it would be an "abomination."

The superintendent at Cottonwood, Stan Kress, said his concern is that individuals and groups behind Fox are influencing public school policy without being identified.

Fox's contention is that she was elected by a supermajority that approved her views earlier in the year.

"The advisers she has, she believes, are the leaders of those who elected her," Farley said. Those people believe in a return to the basics, more discipline and more standardized testing of students.

A staff member meets monthly in Lewiston with area superintendents to talk about funding, grant programs and other state-level developments.

A committee made up of 26 business, professional, agency and educational representatives made about 140 changes to the grant application before last week's meeting, but Fox refused to leave her name on the grant until more changes were made, Moyer said.

Maria Kneisler, Washington D.C., is concerned that Fox and a few members of the collaborative team would make more changes before the group's June meeting, Moyer said, after the superintendent's meeting.

The changes already were enough of a concern that Kneisler isn't certain what the national committee would do, Moyer said.

"They haven't run into this before where one of the original stakeholders decided to remove her name from the grant," Moyer said.

Fox finally agreed to go along with the grant if changes were made in the skills certificate and guidelines for a kindergarten through sixth grade program.

"The skills certificate was intended to show that a student had mastered a list of standards that employers expect from workers. Instead, the certificate finally agreed to go along with the grant if changes were made in the skills certificate and guidelines for a kindergarten through sixth grade program.

Transient probed in bomb threat

BOISE — A man police identified as an Oregon transient was undergoing a mental evaluation Friday after being identified as responsible for placing a box filled with rambling political diatribes against state officials in a Capitol portico.

The 49-year-old man was taken into custody after he walked into the Statehouse lobby and asked a clerk at the information desk whether Fox Phil Barr received the package he had left the night before.

Discovery of the box Thursday night prompted evacuation of the handful of people in the Capitol at that hour because it was marked "time bomb." After assessing the device, police bombarded it with a remote-controlled water cannon and then removed it.

The transient had been seen in the Capitol earlier in the week, telling people he was a presidential candidate and giving his address as the Gospel Rescue Mission in Boise.

ISU professor faces drug charge

POCATELLO — Idaho State University physics professor, George Irwin has been suspended with pay following his arrest on a charge of trafficking in marijuana.

University officials said on Friday that Irwin and his wife, Terry, were served with a felony summons on Wednesday after police searched their Inkom home and found 39 marijuana plants. Operation Step Up and the Idaho Bureau of Narcotics worked together on the investigation, the said.

Irwin will be instructed to vacate his office at the university, remain off campus and refrain from contacting students pending resolution of the charge against him, officials said.

Court: Panel must follow deadline

BOISE — The Industrial Commission has no authority to reconsider a final decision, once the deadline has passed for that order to be appealed, the Idaho Supreme Court says.

The court on Friday unanimously overturned an Industrial Commission ruling awarding former Del Monte Corp. employee Ron Welch unemployment benefits.

The company and Welch in November of 1993, alleging misconduct because he didn't follow procedures while feeding canola seed into a cleaning machine.

The Industrial Commission at first denied jobless benefits, and rejected Welch's request for consideration. But later, the commission reconsidered and awarded Welch benefits.

Students decide: Prom or swim?

POCATELLO — When manager Kelly Gentry thought of opening the city's Swim 'N Gym recreation center for Highland High School students who are not going to Saturday night's prom, she did not think it was a big deal.

Students would pay $2 to come to the center for three hours starting at 8:30 p.m. to swim, play basketball and just hang out. But since the announcement earlier this week, interest has swelled and local businesses have offered support. "It's just been kind of mystical the way the community has reacted," Gentry said. "Some of these kids don't have dates. Some of them can't afford to go. This is just an alternative so they don't have to sit home."

Assistant Principal Don Neves applauded the effort even though some parents have apparently expressed concern that it will somehow detract from prom night.

Andrus rejects 'New West' philosophy

The Associated Press

Former Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus Friday rejected a vision of the evolving "New West" where a service and recreation economy replaces cornerstone resource industries and called for an ever-diversifying regional economy that melds the old with the new.

"Some people clearly want a New West where we never cut a tree, never graze a cow or never break a rock," Andrus told the Pacific Northwest Economic Conference in Portland. "But in my opinion, that vision of the New West is just as wrong and narrow sighted as the vision that would have us clear-cut the Olympic Peninsula, put cows in every trout stream and run a gay rally," he said in his prepared remarks.

He described his vision of the evolving West as one where timber, mining and agriculture remain strong and recreation and services become stronger.

"We develop good jobs in a highly diversified economy, one that values the contributions of cowboys and skiers as well as computer programmers and timber workers," Andrus said.

To achieve that end, Andrus' only four-point agenda called for — among other things — investment in education and infrastructure while maintaining stable tax policy, adoption of reasonable environmental standards and promotion of public policies that keep responsible resource users key economic players.

Journal reports old case of hantavirus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A young man's mysterious death 16 years ago was a case of hantavirus infection, proving the disease has been found longer than previously thought, according to a new report.

A 22-year-old man, whose name has been withheld for privacy reasons, died suddenly while visiting his mother in San Francisco in 1980 during a hitchhiking trip from New Mexico.

The report, published in the journal Emerging Infectious Diseases, says the man had been in a hantavirus-infected area in New Mexico before his trip.

The man's mother, who lives in San Francisco, said she had never heard of hantavirus before the report was published.

The man's death was the first reported case of hantavirus infection in the United States.

Hantavirus is a rare but potentially fatal disease that is spread by contact with the urine, droppings or saliva of infected rodents.

Olympic planners assure effect on Mini-Cassia area

By Jennifer Branch Times-News writer

Idaho. This area will be a gateway for many northerners traveling to Salt Lake City, he said. It also will be a destination for tourists who want to see more of the west, skiers wanting to escape Olympic crowds and teams looking for places to train, Johnson said.

The bulk of Olympic visitors will begin arriving as early as 1997, becoming familiar with the territory, looking for training grounds and setting up accommodations, Johnson said. Olympic athletes won't be allowed to use Olympic sports areas for training and will be seeking areas with similar altitudes to prepare for the games, Johnson said.

Johnson said. People trained to run the Sun Valley competition would be used during the Olympic games, he said.

Community focus groups will be developed throughout the Intermountain West. Planners will use them to gather comments on how the games should be marketed to show the area's culture, he said.

As far as long term effects, the committee wants to market the area's schools to athletes who they say will find Salt Lake City an ideal place for study and training. All of the Olympic sites - mountain ski areas and ice arenas - can be reached within a 30 minute drive from downtown.

The planners, who will be headed by Arlen B. Crouch, a Salt Lake City businessman and a board member of the Olympic Organizing Committee.

The Salt Lake City airport, with skiing just 30 minutes away, should be a draw to foreign travelers looking for a place to ski, he said. Non-stop flights into Salt Lake are expected to be available from London and Tokyo, Crouch said.

The planning committee won't begin intense planning until after the 1988 Winter Olympics. It doesn't want to over-plan and over-spend, Johnson said.

Travelers can get potatoes at visitor's center

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - If you're visiting the Buzz Langdon Visitor's Center Monday, be sure to pick up something almost synonymous with Idaho: a baked potato.

Travelers passing through Idaho today can get free baked potatoes at the visitor center near the Perrine Bridge or at 14 other visitor centers statewide. Keegan Potatoes of Twin Falls donated nearly 2,000 potatoes for the Idaho Department of Commerce's "Free Tasters for Travelers" promotion. It's all part of Tourism Awareness Week, designed to recognize the importance of Idaho's visitor information centers and the $2 billion Idaho tourism industry.

Will blasts Craig's pork for sheep

IDAHO FALLS (AP) - Sen. Larry Craig is a free-sending wolf in penny-pinching sheep's clothing, conservative columnist George Will says in the current issue of Newsweek magazine.

needed help since 1993, Siddoway said. That's when the National Wool Act was repealed, a 40-year-old program of price controls and subsidies generated from tariffs on wool imports.

Will says Craig claims to be for tight government and less spending, but helped add a $20 million revolving loan and grant program into the new farm bill for the National Sheep Industry Improvement Center.

Since then, 15,000 American sheep ranches have reportedly closed down, cutting the domestic wool inventory by 18 percent. Government support in the form of grants and interest-free or low-interest loans is needed to encourage ranchers back into the industry, she said.

Industry defenders say the center will help keep the American sheep industry competitive. Will dismissed the program as a frivolous waste of taxpayer dollars.

Siddoway said she wanted to make these points to Will personally, but couldn't get an appointment or call from the columnist.

"It involves the unsleeping pursuit of advantage for friends and a slothful refusal to think about what are and are not proper functions of government," Will wrote.

"He refused to listen to any real producers for students, yet he still dishes out the pork for lobbyists and PACs, who contribute generously to his election campaigns," Minnick said.

For Craig's 1996 campaign opponent, Boise Democrat Walt Minnick, Will's words were great. Minnick, a former national press secretary, is an out-of-town Washington insider who panders to special interests.

"Maybe if third-graders formed a PAC and hired a lobbyist, Craig wouldn't deny them a hot lunch."

"Conservatives like George Will know a career politician when they see one," Minnick said in a news release. "Even the national press is chomping at the bit to come out and say he's a fiscal conservative and then going home to Washington, D.C., and stopping the trough for his special interest contributors."

Continental snares another Fox

By Steve Crump Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - There's been another Fox sighting in the neighborhood. Continental Cablevision has added iX, its 38th channel and its new Fox affiliate.

iX, seen on cable channel 41, joins Twin Falls' KTF (channel 6) and Nampa's KTRV (channel 9), both Fox affiliates, available to Continental subscribers in Twin Falls, Kimberly and Hansen.

Continental Cablevision is upgrading the power of its signal from 330 megahertz to 450 megahertz, Thompson said, so additional channels may be possible.

The company, which was purchased by US West in February, has added a half dozen channels in the past two years, more recently Turner Classic Movies and the Learning Channel in December.

"It will broadcast Fox programming, like 'X-Files' and 'In Living Color,' a lot of syndicated programming and some sports," Continental Cablevision manager Vince Thompson said Friday.

"It will be a little longer before we get iX to Jerome, Wendell and Gooding," Thompson said. "It takes a while to clear things with the (Federal Communications Commission)."

Continental Cablevision serves nearly 7,000 subscribers in parts of Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding, Cassia, Camas, Power and Bingham counties.

"Newsgroup (Fox's corporate parent) has just acquired Prime Sports, so we'll have Pac-10 and Big-12 games."

"We're real close to adding another channel, and we also hope to do something with (channel 42) soon," Thompson said.

Poaching charges inspire would-be game guardians

IDAHO FALLS (AP) - Two men who want to be appointed to the Fish and Game Commission say their own brushes with game wardens encouraged them to seek change in enforcement.

Gov. Phil Batt has a new commission seat to fill by July. It was created by the Idaho Legislature for the 12,000 residents of Custer and Lemhi counties. The term of Wesley Rose of Jerome ends July 1 and the governor is expected to replace Rose.

Infanger of Salmon was ticketed for keeping a steelhead without punching his tag. The case was dismissed in court for lack of evidence.

A search of Fish and Game computer records for the 17 commission candidates revealed that two of them had been cited for hunting or fishing violations in the last 20 years.

Quigley is competing for Rose's seat. If he gets it, Quigley said he would work to simplify the rules. "You almost need to be a research attorney to understand the (fish and game) proclamation and everything in it," he said.

"They'll ticket you for anything, even if they don't have the evidence," Infanger said.

Dale Quigley, Twin Falls, said the state's confusing patchwork of hunting regions caught up with him in 1983 and he killed an elk in a closed area.

Quigley was hunting in a black powder hunt unit north of Idaho Falls when he crossed onto the Market Lake Wildlife Management Area from a back road and shot the elk, he said. He said it was snowing and he didn't know he had entered a protected area. On his way out, he noticed the signs and turned himself in.

"It's not like you're a poacher, but they consider you a poacher. To the Fish and Game, they probably consider every hunter a poacher. That's just the feeling I get from a lot of hunters."

He turned himself in once he realized where he was, and lost his hunting privileges for a year.

He believes the fact that he turned himself in should count in his favor, not against him.

Infanger said he understands that conservation officers have a job to do, like police pulling over speeding motorists. But in some cases, he believes, they have abused their power.

Former Congressman settles poll debt

BOISE — Former Democratic Congressman Larry LaRocco notified state officials Friday he has reached agreement with his 1994 pollster to settle an $18,600 debt for 33 cents on the dollar.

In documents filed with the secretary of state's office, LaRocco campaign treasurer Larry Grant said the campaign had conducted both general and special solicitations but "his contribution base has eroded" since the two-term lawmaker was ousted by Republican Helen Chenoweth.

LaRocco ended 1994 with $28,700 in debts and was able to raise only $10,600 during 1995. That covered all but the last-minute $18,600 polling charges from The Mellman Group in Washington, D.C.

The debt settlement plan filed with the state showed the campaign with about $2,600 in cash and salable assets to apply toward the $6,200 settlement amount. It said LaRocco would personally assume responsibility for paying the balance if another fund-raising effort falls flat.

Alleged financial improprieties probed

BOISE — Prosecutors are conducting a preliminary investigation into alleged financial improprieties in the operation of the Boise City-Ada County Housing Authority.

"We asked them to begin an inquiry into the allegations and determine if there is enough to go forward with a full-blown investigation," Ada County Commissioner Roger Simmons said.

The Boise Weekly detailed allegations of financial mismanagement, nepotism and abuse of public funds and resources last week, and Executive Director Judith Worrell-Payne told the newspaper this week that she welcomed the probe.

Simmons said the prosecutors agreed to look into the charges after meeting earlier in the week with him, Commissioner Vern Bisterfeldt and Boise Mayor Brent Coles. Commissioner Gary Glenn asked for an investigation three weeks ago.

Board yanks license of Rexburg doctor

BOISE — Effective immediately, the Idaho State Board of Professional Discipline has revoked the Idaho medical license of Dr. Brent E. Woodfield, who formerly practiced as a gynecologist in Rexburg.

Board chairman Dr. Donald Bjornson, Idaho Falls, announced the action on Friday, ending a legal battle of several years.

A story on the case last fall said Woodfield was working then as an obstetrician at the Carl Albert Indian Health Facility near Oklahoma City, using his Idaho license.

In July of 1993, the board issued an order revoking Woodfield's license, based on a finding that his care fell below standards expected in smaller communities.

Former client sues Boise stockbroker

BOISE — Boise stockbroker Louise Schneider, already the target of state regulators, has been sued in federal court by a former client. Linnea Blaser of Boise says she invested $246,000 with Schneider in 1994 and 1995 and lost at least $65,000 because of fraud.

Blaser charged Schneider violated state and federal securities laws in handling $95,000 in investments in Schneider's art collection and $151,000 in standard securities.

The suit filed in U.S. District Court this week, accuses Schneider of fraud, unauthorized transactions and misrepresentation of investment risk. Also named as defendants are Schneider associate in Schneider & Bishop Investments, Wendy Bishop, and Multi-Financial Securities Corp. of Denver, a registered securities brokerage that Schneider was affiliated with from April 1994 to March 1996.

Opposite sides of death penalty to meet

BOISE — Religious leaders with widely differing views on the death penalty will come together Sunday in a service for Death Row inmate Donald Paradis.

The service was organized by Tom Blackburn, minister at Community Christian Center in Garden City. He has visited Paradis nearly every week for a dozen years and is convinced of his innocence.

Paradis was convicted of killing 19-year-old Kimberly Ann Palmer in 1980. He could become the next inmate to be executed in Idaho.

Eleven religious leaders will participate in the service. Some, like Blackburn, support capital punishment but believe Paradis is innocent. Others come from denominations such as Episcopalian, which adamantly oppose the death penalty.

Nez Perce want ranch to replace loss

LEWISTON — The Nez Perce Tribe hopes to gain title to a 10,300-acre ranch in northeastern Oregon and buy another 6,500 acres to replace wildlife habitat lost to the lower Snake River dams. The Northwest Power Planning Council has approved the purchase as part of its program to replace habitat losses caused by dams in Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Montana.

The ranch, which sprawls from the boundary of the Wallowa Whitman National Forest on the south to the Washington-Oregon border, is owned by Helm Resources.

Chenoweth defends comments on militias

LEWISTON (AP) — Rep. Helen Chenoweth is drawing fire from Democrat Dan Williams for her remarks about militias on a nationally televised program.

But Idaho's Republican congresswoman contends she will defend anyone's constitutional rights as long as they are peaceful, and charges Williams with distorting her comments.

Chenoweth appeared Wednesday night on CNBC's "Equal Time" to discuss the Freeman standoff in Montana and anti-government sentiment with co-hosts Dee Dee Meyers, President Clinton's former press secretary, and Mary Matalin, former President George Bush's campaign manager.

"Every time the national media want to find someone who will defend militias, they turn to Rep. Chenoweth," Williams said in a prepared statement. "Again, she's creating the impression around the country that Idahoans are all militia sympathizers."

The show's producer, Susan Morrison, said Chenoweth was invited to appear on the program because she is a conservative Republican freshman and her re-election race is targeted by Democrats.

Chenoweth on Thursday said Williams obviously did not watch the program.

"I think this is evidence of a young man who doesn't have a very deep understanding of the constitutional rights," she said. "It is framing the issues in a grasping way."

Williams pointed out that Chenoweth suggested militias are composed of peaceful people who like Second Amendment rights. He also charged she misled the show's audience by asserting she would not know a militia member if she met one.

"For Helen Chenoweth to deny she knows anyone like (U.S. Militia Association leader) Sam Sherwood is a clear misrepresentation," he said. "The suggestion that militias are merely civic-minded volunteers like the Kiwanis is unbelievable."

Sherwood of Blackfoot volunteered to help her campaign two years ago. But Chenoweth said she never met him in her office or in her campaign headquarters.

A year ago, she said she appreciated all the people who worked on her campaign and that included Sherwood.

"I wonder if Mr. Williams heard the question on mining and the other questions Mary Matalin and Dee Dee Meyers asked me," Chenoweth said. "According to a transcript of Wednesday night's show, Meyers asked Chenoweth whether she believes the militia movement is growing fast."

"I really can't answer that because I don't understand them that much," she replied. "If indeed they are growing, it's because perhaps people feel they like to assemble and associate with other folks who enjoy Second Amendment rights and the right to assemble."

Schemes resurface in Idaho

BOISE (AP) — State financial officials say it appears that Nigerian scams are surfacing in Idaho again.

The schemes typically offer people up to 30 percent if they will help a Nigerian state-controlled company or a government ministry transfer millions of dollars out of the African nation.

The schemes apparently work. The state Department of Finance said in the last several years, businesses and organizations worldwide have been defrauded of more than $200 million.

State Finance Director Gavin Gee said several banks have reported recent approaches to Idaho consumers and businesses. "We urge extreme caution in dealing with anyone posing as an official of a Nigerian company or the Nigerian government offering 'business opportunities' of any kind," he said.

The scheme targets small businesses, churches and other nonprofit organizations in the form of a letter marked "urgent" or "confidential" from Nigeria via mail or fax.

The proposals attempt to get the bank account number and name, address, telephone and fax number of the bank.

Teacher, late doctor earn PeaceMakers

BOISE (AP) — Gail Lebow of Nampa and the late Dr. Donna Bell of Mountain Home are being honored with the first Idaho PeaceMaker Awards for their work toward harmonious resolutions of conflicts.

Lebow, a teacher in the Valluave School District, has worked toward peaceful collaborations during school district negotiations in the Boise valley. Lebow also is a founder of the Caldwell Chapter of the National Coalition Building Institute.

Bell was a family practitioner in Mountain Home who was committed to the physical and emotional health of children, and was a pioneer in mediating child-custody cases in Elmore County.

David and Lianne Pahler are parents of a 15-year-old girl who was allegedly sacrificed to Satan by three teen-age boys.

3 teens face charges in torture, 'sacrifice'

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — Elyse Marie Pahler's photographs in a jelly jar on the spot where she was killed in what prosecutors say was a sacrifice to Satan.

The photo shows a smiling girl, her blond hair drenched in sunlight.

To her three teen-age killers, she represented a "ticket to hell," prosecutors said Thursday.

Three boys took Elyse, 15, to a secluded eucalyptus grove about a quarter-mile from her home, fed her drugs, raped her, cinched a belt around her neck to make it easier to stab her, and offered her up as the "ultimate sin against God," Deputy District Attorney Dan Bouchard said.

Royce E. Casey, 17, Jacob W. Delashmutt, 16, and Joseph Fiorella, 15, are already charged with her murder. This week, Bouchard amended those charges to include rape, torture, and conspiracy to commit murder, charges that could bolster the district attorney's attempt to have the youths tried as adults.

Formal charging of the additional counts was scheduled for today. All defendants are in custody.

Elyse knew her killers by riding with them on the same school bus, Bouchard said.

Delashmutt, Fiorella and Elyse attended Arroyo Grande High School in this city north of Los Angeles. Delashmutt was expelled from the school in September. Fiorella left in February to be schooled at home. Casey attended a nearby school.

The three stabbed the girl to death at what was believed to be an altar to Satan, Bouchard said. The boys "selected and stalked" Elyse believing that she was a virgin and that her sacrifice would earn them a "ticket to hell," he said.

Elyse disappeared July 22 and had been reported missing until Casey came forward and led authorities to her body on March 14, Bouchard said.

The girl left her house voluntarily the night she died, police said, although it wasn't clear where she was headed or at what point she encountered her killers. She died that night.

Casey's defense lawyer, Kevin McReynolds, said the allegations were exaggerated in an attempt to inflame public opinion.

"A lot of the allegations are grossly overstated and some of them are flatly without any factual support whatsoever," McReynolds said.

Fiorella's lawyer declined comment Thursday. Delashmutt's attorney was unavailable for comment, his office said.

A hearing was set for June 12. If the teen-agers are tried as adults and the jury finds special circumstances, they face up to life without parole. If tried as juveniles, they face up to about seven years of juvenile detention, said Sandi Gibbons, a spokeswoman for the Los Angeles County district attorney's office.

The oldest of four children, Elyse was described by her family as being active in church and gifted in all areas of her life.

"She loved God, his beautiful world and loved her friends and large family," the family said in an obituary form.

Elyse's mother, Lianne Pahler, said the worst thing was thinking about the torture her daughter must have endured.

"Something is wrenched from you, a piece of your heart. That's what it feels like," Elyse's mother told KNBC-TV.

"The pain, it's so great, it's as great as any physical pain, anything you can imagine."

On the spot where Elyse died, someone, perhaps a friend or relative, left the photo in the jar. A note tucked neatly inside read: "With her Lord. I love you always, Nana."

Couple wed at father's deathbed

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The father gave away the bride, the bride and groom exchanged vows, and then the bride held her father's hand until he died.

Candace Shepherd Meeker, 20, said her father's last wish was to give her away in marriage. So she married Shawn Meeker, 21, a month earlier than planned in a ceremony at the hospice where her father was spending his final days.

Her father, Donald Shepherd, had cancer. Mrs. Meeker had visited him daily at Hospice of Dayton since November.

"Shawn and I met in a skating rink seven years ago, and we have been in love for a long time," she said. "We had planned to be married in June, but when my dad got worse, we decided to step things up."

"Dad said so many times he wanted to live to see me get married."

On Tuesday, doctors told the family they feared that Shepherd, 47, would not live much longer.

So the Rev. John Brown, a volunteer chaplain at the hospice, was called in. Shepherd, with oxygen tubes and other medical apparatus attached, was wheeled in to the hospice chapel.

"When the minister asked who would give me away, my father said, 'I do' in a firm voice," said Mrs. Meeker. "We all had tears in our eyes."

After the brief ceremony, Mrs. Meeker accompanied her father back to his room and sat holding his hand at his bedside. He died about two hours later.

"Dad died in peace," she said.

Doctor says George C. Scott has aneurysm

NEW YORK (AP) — Oscar-winning actor George C. Scott, whose doctor said he is suffering from a life-threatening aneurysm, was spared Friday from testifying in a $3.1 million sexual harassment suit until his condition is treated.

The decision by Judge Alice Schlesinger came as Scott was flying cross-country to see his personal physician, whose testimony convinced the judge of the actor's health woes.

Scott, 68, has an aortic aneurysm that has grown in size in recent years, and he shouldn't undergo the stress of testimony until it is repaired, according to an affidavit from Dr. Jeff Harris of Malibu, Calif. Harris' diagnosis was introduced at a Manhattan hearing on the suit filed by Julie Wright, 26.

Piano tuner may pay for tuning pianos in Cuba

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Benjamin Treuhaff sént "pianos to Havana." Now he may have to pay the piper.

The piano tuner has shipped 23 pianos to Cuba through his "Send a Piano to Havana" campaign, and he has a permit from the Commerce Department to ship 126 more, plus 1 1/2 tons of parts.

But the Treasury Department, which issues travel licenses to Cuba, has fined him $10,000, saying it's for money he earned rebuilding pianos when he visited Cuba in 1994 and spent $3,500 without federal authorization.

Treuhaff acknowledges that he charged to tune pianos while in Cuba, but it amounted to less than $1 per job for what would cost about $75 in the United States. His five trips to Cuba left him $5,000 in debt, he said.

"One branch of government says it's OK to send humanitarian aid ... Another government branch slaps me with a $10,000 fine," he said Tuesday.

The Oakland Tribune quoted an unidentified spokesperson for the Treasury Department as saying that Treuhaff knew he was wrong.

"If he's complaining that the (travel restriction) law exists, then he can join the crowd," the official said. "The law is clear, and it's the position of (the government) that he's run afoul of that law."

Treuhaff has 30 days to appeal.

Click on the Web for pictures from spy satellites

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ever wonder what those secret spy satellites were looking at during the Cold War?

Now you can see some of the pictures for yourself.

The U.S. Geological Survey is releasing 300,000 satellite images collected by intelligence agencies between 1960 and 1972.

Copies of the images can be viewed at Survey information centers or through the Internet computer network.

Survey officials say the images cover both the United States and much of the rest of the world.

The photos are expected to be valuable to environmentalists and other researchers who want to compare them with more recent Landsat satellite photos to observe changes in land use and conditions.

The Geological Survey is reviewing other declassified satellite images and expects to release a total of 800,000 by the end of summer.

Senators rule Canyon

Pair of disqualifications fail to stop Gooding thinclads' roll

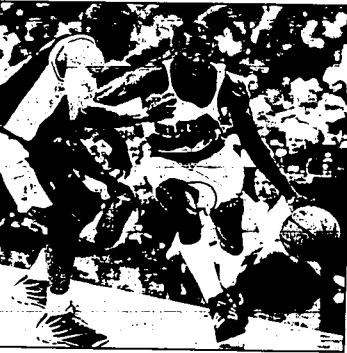

By Kevin Miller Times-News writer
DECLO — Even with an 18-point handicap, the Gooding boys' track team found a way to win its fourth consecutive Canyon Conference title.
Two Senator relay teams that figured to finish first and second were disqualified for lane violations, and Gooding athletes only placed first the pole vault, but depth was enough to score 137 team points.
"It was closer than we had thought. We had some kids do some great things," Senator boys' coach Jeff Jeffries said.

Gooding also took the girls' team title, the first sweep for the Senators. Jenni Nelson won the 1,600-meters and 3,200-meters and the Senators won two relays.
"The idea of this meet was to score as many points as possible," unlike next week at the state qualifying district meet, Jeffries said. "We're making our statement this week."
Beleaguered Glenns Ferry sprinter Ross Farris made a brief statement Friday as well, sweeping the sprints and taking the long jump by almost a foot.
Farris, the defending state A-3 champion in the 100-meters, 200-meters and 400-meters, has struggled this year at the finish line.

"I don't know if I was really in it mentally in the beginning," the Boise State University football recruit said. "Now I don't have a choice."
Farris just out-learned Travis Mai at the tape in the 100, winning in 11 seconds. Mai had beaten Farris in their last two meetings.
The 200 and 400 weren't nearly as close for Farris, but his times - 22.6 and 51.7 - didn't please him.
"I've got to start beating people as badly as I was (last year), I still have to peak, I think," Farris said.

Spurs tear up Suns' shot at NBA title in '96

Phoenix's Elliot Perry drives around San Antonio's Avery Johnson Friday in Phoenix.

The Associated Press
PHOENIX — David Robinson had 30 points and 13 rebounds, and Vinny Del Negro added 25 points as San Antonio beat Phoenix 116-98 Friday night to win their first-round series in four games.
The Spurs, who had lost their six previous playoff games in Phoenix, will meet the winner of the Portland-Utah series in the second round.
"I thought our effort was fantastic," said Robinson, who was 12-of-21 from the field. "We maintained our intensity throughout the game. Everybody was ready to play."
Del Negro, who set a career playoff high with 29 points in Game 1, scored nine points in the third quarter Friday night, when the Spurs broke the game open by outscoring the Suns 33-18.
Phoenix made 14 of 21 shots in the period to stretch a one-point halftime lead into an 85-69 advantage going into the final quarter.
Avery Johnson had 15 points and 13 assists for the Spurs, who won the best-of-5 series 3-1.
"He's the heart of our team," Robinson said. "He's been a big part of our success."
Charles Barkley led the Suns with 21 points, but was only 6-of-15 from the field. Reserve Chris Carr added 17 points for Phoenix, which was 41-41 in the regular season.

"It's no fun to lose in the first round. Barkley said, "and it's no fun to play on a .500 team."
San Antonio, which led by as many as 23 points in the fourth quarter, was 10-of-16 from 3-point range, including 5-of-7 by Del Negro. The 10 3-pointers were a playoff record for the Spurs.
The Spurs, stung by the Suns' 14-rebound edge in their Game 3 victory, dominated the boards in Game 4, outrebounding Phoenix 47-30.
The Spurs led 52-51 at intermission after a first half that featured 10 lead changes, and no lead of more than four points by either team.
The Suns cut the Spurs' lead to 67-61 on a 3-point shot by Wesley Person with 5:58 left in the third quarter, but San Antonio finished the period with an 18-3 run, most of it after Robinson went to the bench with his third foul.
After the Suns pulled to 77-67 on baskets by Wayne Tisdale and Danny Manning, Del Negro hit consecutive 3-pointers to give the Spurs a 16-point lead.

A tender foot and jinxes too as Derby race nears

The Associated Press
LOUISVILLE, Ky. — As if a foot problem wasn't enough, the jinxes are stacking up for Unbridled's Song.
He is the favorite for Saturday's Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, and a favorite hasn't won a Derby since Spectacular Bid in 1979.
"He won the $1 million Breeders' Cup Juvenile, and no winner of that race has won a Derby."
"He drew the No. 20 post, from which only one Derby winner has started."
Then on Friday, he drew No. 19, which has never produced a winner, when City By Night was scratched because of a foot problem.
One jinx, however, doesn't apply: No 2-year-old champion has won the Derby since, again, Spectacular Bid. But Unbridled's Song wasn't the 2-year-old champion. That was Maria's Mon.
Jim Ryerson, Unbridled's Song's trainer, was confident the quarter crack in the gray colt's left front foot would not keep him from running well in the 1-mile Derby.
"It appeared the winner of the Florida Derby and Wood Memorial would run in bar shoes on his two front feet, but a final

Eagles shine at championships

The Times-News
REXBURG — The College of Southern Idaho track and field team won every event it entered in the Region 18 championships Friday.
Teams from Ricks, CSI, Utah Valley and North Idaho participated. The Golden Eagles will also compete today in seven events.
On the women's side, the Golden Eagles swept the top three spots in the 3,000. Angie Forner ran 10:42 for the win with Denise Danielson in second at 10:48 and Lena Bratford third at 10:55. "These were all three national qualifying marks," said CSI Coach Gary Slevens. "With the wind the way it was, that is pretty amazing."
For the men, Chris Watson won the javelin, throwing 163 feet. He then came back to win the discus with a new school record at 163 feet, five inches.
Holtbrook Call won the macephace with a national qualifying time of 9:41. Matt Forey claimed third in the same event at 10:05. Both had previously qualified for nationals.
The men's 4x200-meter relay team beat Ricks by three-tenths of a second for a win.
"The region winner automatically qualifies for nationals," Slevens said. "But everybody we have here who wins has already qualified anyway."

Brooks takes early lead at Houston Open

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — Mark Brooks had a bogey for the first time in two days but still shot 68 Friday for a one-stroke lead after two rounds of the Shell Houston Open.

First-round co-leaders Tommy Tolles and Mike Springer each shot 70 to trail Brooks over the tournament Players Course at the Woodlands. Doug Martin had a bogey-free 68 to join them in a tie for second place at 9-under 135.

David Duvall and Jeff Maggert, playing on his home course, were two shots off the lead. Another shot back were Len Martiace, Jay Delsing, Lee Jansen and Hisayuki Sasaki.

"Sometimes it's not that good to get off such a great start," said Brooks, who closed Friday's second round with three birdies. "I tried to stay aggressive. I probably went too long without making a bogey."

Like 31 holes, Brooks, who won the Bob Hope in January and finished second at the Nike Classic in February, opened with a bogey-free 66, one shot off the lead. He finally got his first bogey of the tournament on the par-3 14th when he missed a 10-foot par putt after a chip.

"I'm kind of glad I had one," he said. "It just gets kind of stuck in your head that you haven't made one. It can prevent you from maybe taking a chance when you probably need to go ahead and try to get close."

Karrie Webb birdied her first five holes and played her first nine holes in 29.

How each responded told a lot about their experience. Skinner rolled in a 35-foot eagle putt on the next hole, then picked up three routine birdies on the outer front side. She wound up with another 5-under-par 67 to take a one-stroke lead Friday after two rounds of the $1.2 million Sprint Titleholders Championship.

"You can't allow yourself to get goody on those situations. You can't mentally check out," said Skinner, a 13-year veteran and the defending champion of the LPGA's richest event.

As she rode from the 18th green to the first tee for her second nine, Webb realized she was within range of a phenomenal round. The thought of a 59 crossed her mind.

"And it scared her. 'I get excited, but within myself,' said Webb, who is enjoying the best rookie season in the history of the LPGA. "I have never broken 30 before. I wish I could have finished there so I could enjoy what I did."

But she became defensive instead of continuing to attack, took a bogey on a reachable par-5 and another one when she missed the green at No. 8.

Duo sit atop PaineWerner Invite
CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Brian Barnes took a big step Friday in his bid to establish himself on the Senior PGA Tour, shooting a 6-under-par 66 that gave the burly Spartan a share of the first-round lead at the PaineWerner Invitational.

Five under par over his last five holes at the Tournament Players Club at Piper Glen, Barnes finished with his best opening round score of the year and tied Australia's Graham Marsh for the top spot in the $80,000 event.

Larry Gilbert was one shot back on a day when gusting winds made the hilly course play longer than his listed 6,774 yards. It was another stroke back to John Jacobs, Rocky Thompson and Tom Wargo.

Barnes, 31, is playing in his sixth event of the year after a spider kept him out of action for several months in 1995.

RUPERT — Madison ended Minico's 11-game winning streak in the first game of a baseball doubleheader Friday.

After losing game one, the Spartans came back to take a 1-4-4 win.

"I don't know whether I should be concerned or not concerned. We'll find out," Minico coach Russ Wright said. The Spartans begin the Region III tournament at the top seed on Tuesday.

Erin Runyon and Jed Mingo both poked two RBI singles in a four-run third inning when Minico went up 6-4. But Madison got to starting pitcher Dan Price for three runs in the sixth inning.

The Spartans (16-7) jumped out quickly in game two, scoring eight runs in the first two innings to put starting pitcher Chad Fieldy in position.

Justin Dayley went 4-for-4 with a double and Brock Crystal drove in three runs with three hits.

Centennial cruises by Bruins in softball

MERIDIAN — The Twin Falls softball team found out Friday why Centennial is the defending state champion.

The Bruins fell to the Patriots 13-0 and 6-5.

With a pitcher on the mound that Bruin Coach Ted Larsen described as far and away the best he's seen, Centennial held Twin Falls scoreless in the game one.

Twin Falls' out-hit Centennial in the second game, but stranded eight batters. Down-6-3 in the top of the seventh, Bruin Ali Garcia hit a triple to score two runs and pull Twin Falls within one. But the rally ended there, giving the Bruins a loss.

Amy Palmer led the Bruins at the plate. She finished the day with four hits.

Indians rattle M's; Santiago, Phillies trip Braves

SEATTLE (AP) — In a game suspended by an earthquake that "wobbled the Kingdom and shook up its fans," the Cleveland Indians held on to beat the Seattle Mariners 6-4 Friday night.

Four fans got into the festive post-earthquake mood by wearing yellow hard hats. The teams, meeting for the first time since playing in the AL championship series in October, played the final 2-3 innings of Thursday night's game and then were scheduled to play a regularly scheduled second contest.

Major leagues

Twenty hours and 33 minutes elapsed before the suspended game was restarted at 5:38 p.m. PDT.

An estimated 15,000 fans were on hand when the suspended game was restarted. Orel Hershiser (3-2), who departed the field in favor of Juan Tavares just before the 5.4 magnitude tremor hit in the seventh inning Thursday night, got the victory. Jose Mesa pitched the ninth for his 10th save in as many tries.

Bob Wolcott (1-4) was the losing pitcher.

Rangers 11, Tigers 0

DETROIT — Ken Hill pitched a one-hitter, allowing only an infield single in the first inning, and Juan Gonzalez homered and drove in four runs.

Hill (4-2) gave up an infield single to Bobby Ligons in the first before retiring 26 straight batters. The right-hander struck out seven and walked none for his first American League shutout and second career one-hitter.

Orioles 8, Brewers 2

BALTIMORE — Brady Anderson hit a pair of no-run homers and E.J. Surhoff also homered twice against his former team, powering the Orioles to victory.

It was the third multi-homer game of the season for Anderson, who leads the majors with 14 home runs. The Orioles' leadoff hitter, who hit his homers in 1995, added a run-scoring double to match his career high with five RBIs.

Surhoff, who signed as a free agent in December after spending nine seasons with Milwaukee, hit solo homers in the second and sixth innings.

Yankees 2, White Sox 0

NEW YORK — Bernie Williams and Joe Girardi hit RBI singles in the eighth inning for the Yankees.

Williams' single off Matt Karnehm scored Wade Boggs to snap a 0-0 tie. Williams then scored on Girardi's blow hit.

Mariano Rivera (3-0) worked the seventh and eighth innings after relieving Dwight Gooden. Rivera has not allowed a hit in 13 straight innings and is uncared upon in 16 consecutive innings.

John Wetteland closed out the combined three-hitter by working a perfect ninth for his sixth save in six tries.

Gooden, impressive in his last start against Minnesota, again failed to get his first AL win. Reliever Larry Thomas (1-3) took the loss.

Royals 3, Athletics 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kevin Appier pitched seven strong innings and Kansas City scored the go-ahead run on an Oakland error.

Appier (3-3) gave up three hits in seven innings to win for the sixth time in his last eight decisions against the A's.

Jason Jacome and Hipolito Pichardo pitched the eighth, and Jeff Montgomerie closed out the combined five-hitter by getting three outs for his seventh save. The win snapped the Royals' three-game losing skid and handed the A's their fourth loss in a row.

Officials accord Kingdome clean bill of health

SEATTLE (AP) — The earthquake that stopped the Cleveland-Seattle game in the seventh inning shook up players and more than 21,000 fans, but the Kingdome came through just fine.

"The Kingdome is the safest place to be in Seattle in an earthquake," Kingdome staff architect Dick Gemperle said after a 12-member engineering team inspected the 20-year-old King County-owned facility.

Seahawks owner Ken Behring cited earthquake safety as a reason for his attempt to move the NFL team to Southern California. County Executive Gary Locke on Friday called that argument "a red herring."

The earthquake at 9:04 p.m. Thursday — measured variously at magnitude 5.3 or 5.4 — gave the Seattle area a good shake, but the most serious injuries were a few bruises.

Damage was limited to items toppling from shelves and a few cracks in buildings. Locke said county and city crews inspected all roads, bridges and public structures, including the Key Arena where the NBA SuperSonics play, and found nothing amiss.

The quake "merely confirms what Mr. Behring was saying all along," Bill Temko, Behring's lawyer, said Friday from California.

The game, the first in a four-game series, was halted with the Indians ahead 6-3. It was to resume at 5:35 p.m. Friday, followed by the second game at 7:05.

Phillies 6, Braves 3

ATLANTA — Benito Santiago hit the first grand slam ever allowed by Greg Maddux, connecting in the ninth inning for his second home run of the game of the Atlanta ace and leading the Philadelphia Phillies over the Braves 6-3 Friday night.

Maddux had not allowed a slam in 2,174 2-3 career innings until Santiago's homer with one out broke a 2-2 tie. The Phillies scored five times in the ninth off Maddux (4-2) and won for the eighth time in nine games.

Maddux took a three-hitter and a 2-1 lead into the ninth as he tried to preserve Atlanta's 16-0 mark when leading after eight innings.

Three straight singles tied the score and, after an intentional walk, Santiago then hit the first pitch over the center-field wall for his eighth home run. It was his fifth homer in 52 career at-bats against the four-time Cy Young winner. Santiago, who hit a solo homer in the fifth, matched a career-high with five RBIs.

Dodgers 10, Pirates 1

PITTSBURGH — Mike Piazza homered and pitcher Chan Ho Park had an RBI single for his first major league hit and the Los Angeles Dodgers broke open a close game with an eight-run ninth inning to beat Pittsburgh.

Eric Karros hit a three-run homer and Raúl Mondesí followed with a solo shot, highlighting the Dodgers' big inning. A throwing error by third baseman Charlie Hayes with one out made seven of the eight runs unearned.

Piazza connected in the first inning against Danny Darwin (2-3) for his sixth homer. Piazza matched the longest hitting streak of his career at 16 games.

Park (3-1) worked the first five innings, leaving the game after throwing 87 pitches. He allowed five hits.

Cubs 4, Mets 2

CHICAGO — Sammy Sosa ended an 0-for-18 slump by hitting a three-run homer with two outs in the ninth inning, lifting the Chicago Cubs over the New York Mets.

Sosa came to the plate after Mets rookie Dale Wilson (1-2), one out from his first complete game, walked Mark Grace intentionally. With pinch-hitter Scott Balliet on after a bunt single into the left field stands for his seventh home run of the year.

Wilson struck out 10. Jaime Navarro (2-3) struck out nine.

Rockies 9, Marlins 5

DENVER — John Vander Wal, the major league second baseman for pinch hits in a season, drove in the go-ahead runs with a pinch-double as the Colorado Rockies rallied for a 9-5 win Friday night over the Florida Marlins.

Sosa connected in the first inning against the season for the Rockies, who won for just the second time in their last eight home games.

Held hitless for four innings, Colorado scored four runs in the fifth and three more in the sixth to chase John Burkett (1-5), who lost for the fourth straight start.

Astros 4, Expos 1

HOUSTON — Shane Reynolds won his fifth straight start and Derek Bell hit a two-run homer Friday night, leading the Houston Astros to a 4-1 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Reynolds (5-1) held Montreal to three hits in seven innings and struck out seven. He did not allow a runner until Mike Lansing beat out an infield hit with one out in the fourth.

Penguins, Red Wings go 1-0

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The New York Rangers were lured into a shootout of the stars, and no team in hockey has more of those than the Pittsburgh Penguins.

NHL playoffs

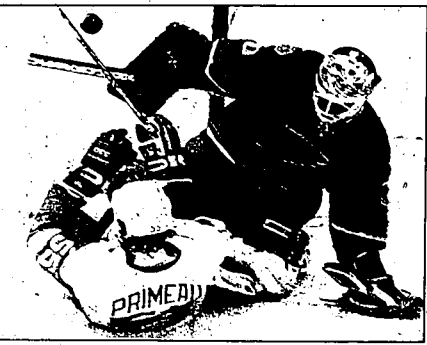

Jaromir Jagr, ignored in voting for the league's best player, set up Mario Lemieux's game-winning goal as the Penguins rallied in the third period to beat the Rangers 4-3 Friday in the opener of their second-round series.

Lemieux and Mark Messier, two of the three Hart Trophy finalists, each had a goal and an assist as the Penguins opened a 1-0 series lead against New York for the third time since 1989. Pittsburgh won the other two series, in 1989 and 1992.

"It's a shame he isn't up for the Hart Trophy," Lemieux said of the NHL's second-leading scorer. "It was a shock not to see his name there. He made a great play to get me the puck on the last goal."

With New York caught in an unfinished line change, Jagr's spinaround move on defenseman Bruce Driver at the blue line freed him to make an on-the-ice pass to Lemieux, who sped into left circle. "Once Jagr got the puck, I yelled at him and got on my horse," said Lemieux, who scored the game-winner at 12:43 of the third. "He let me build up speed, and then I had an open net."

Ken Wreggett stopped 26 shots

St. Louis Blues goalie Jon Casey deflects a shot as Detroit center Keith Primeau slides into the crease Friday in Detroit.

for his fourth consecutive victory since replacing the injured Tom Barraso during Pittsburgh's four-overtime marathon in Game 4 against Washington in the opening round. "We didn't play our game," Rangers coach Colin Campbell said. "We can't turn away from Jaromir Jagr and let Mario Lemieux beat us in a foot race. We can't let great players make great plays."

Messier had led a third-period flurry that briefly put New York ahead 3-2. But his careless slash on Petr Nedved — the ex-estamante he all but ran out of New York — also set up the momentum-swinging initial Pittsburgh goal after the Penguins didn't get off a shot for nearly 10 minutes.

Red Wings 3, Blues 2

DETROIT — Sergei Fedorov

scored his first playoff goal with 2:06 remaining Friday night, giving the Detroit Red Wings a 3-2 victory over the St. Louis Blues in Game 1 of their second-round series.

Paul Coffey intercepted a pass and started the play with a feed to Vyacheslav Kozlov.

He skated into the left circle, then slipped the puck to Fedorov in the slot.

Fedorov forced goalie Jon Casey left, then flipped it into the net on the stick side.

Dino Ciccarelli and Darren McCarty also scored for Detroit, which had the league's best record this season. Shayne Corson and Brett Hull scored for St. Louis. Hull's goal moved him into a 15th place tie with his father, Bobby, on the career playoff scoring list, each with 62.

Armstrong off and running in title defense

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lance Armstrong obliterated the field and took a significant race lead after winning the second half of Friday's double stage in the Tour DuPont.

Armstrong, 24, of Austin, Texas, the leader of the Motorola team, captured the 7.1-mile Raleigh individual time trial in 12 minutes, 56.965 seconds, an average speed of 32.89 mph.

Tony Rominger of Switzerland (Mapei-GB), the world's second-ranked cyclist, was second in 13:20.030 with teammate Daniele Nardello of Italy third in 13:26.059.

"I think the time tells me I'm in shape," said Armstrong, who leads Rominger, the reigning Tour of Italy champion, by 35 seconds. "The last two weeks in Europe were the best I've ridden in my life. So it was just a matter of getting over the travel."

After winning the second stage Thursday night, the 1993 world road champion's victory Friday was his third of the season and seventh in six years competing in the Tour DuPont.

In mid-April, Armstrong, ranked seventh in the world, also won Fleche-Wallonne and finished second in Liege-Bastogne-Liege, two one-day historic World Cup races held four days apart in Belgium.

"He's quite stronger than I am at the present," Rominger said of Armstrong.

"But I'm on the way to getting better. I'm satisfied with my effort and I'm on my way to the Tour de France."

Baptiweds bond together

Mom: An imperfect angel

Mom was an angel. It's just that she wasn't always angelic.

Don't get me wrong - she was a great lady and the single most powerful influence on my life. From her, I learned how to live, how to love, how to care and how to give. But she also taught me how to cheat at Solitaire, how to speak a very colorful version of French (as in "excuse the French") and how to poke the bottom of a chocolate candy to make sure you weren't getting one of those yucky brown sugar nougats (and how to smooth over the chocolate so no one else could tell that the candy had been poked).

As far as I'm concerned, she was the perfect mother, in part because she was imperfect - and perfectly willing to acknowledge that fact.

I remember an evening late in the Disco Era. I was home from college for the weekend and was in my room studying when Mom came storming in, her dark eyes blazing. Without saying a word, she grabbed the clock radio by my bed and threw it against the wall on the other side of the room. I sat on my bed, stunned and speechless. I looked at the shattered radio. Then I looked at the crumpled drywall above it. Then I looked at Mom.

"Too loud again?" I asked.

"Well, yes," she said. "But that's not the real problem and you know it."

Most of the time when Mom said "and you know it," I did. But this time, I was at a loss. The room was reasonably clean. I had taken out the trash when she asked me to. I glanced around her into the bathroom across the hall to make sure I hadn't left the toilet seat up.

"Sorry," I said, shrugging. "I'm not sure what I did."

Her eyes narrowed. She thrust her hands deeper into the pockets of the moo-moo she was wearing. "It was that ... that ... song," she said, spitting the last word out contemptuously.

I was still unclear on the problem. Like many in my generation, I had mastered the art of studying to music. The louder the music, the more it forced my concentration. As a result, I tended to be only marginally aware of what was playing on the radio at any given time. So it took a second to recall that the song that was playing at the time of The Attack of the Matronly Music Critic was "Play That Funky Music" by a group called White Cherry.

"Uh-huh," I grunted. "I take it you don't like that song?"

"How can I like it if it has that word in it?"

"What word?"

She hesitated. "You know," she said. "That word. That horrible, ugly, nasty word!"

I knew the word she was talking about. It was about the only word missing from her "French" vocabulary. But I knew that word wasn't in the song, which could only mean ...

"Mom, the song is called 'Play That Funky Music,'" I said. "That's spelled f-u-n-k-y."

"Yeah," I said. "You know - hip. Cool. Groovy. Funky."

"Oh."

Now it was Mom's turn to be speechless.

"Well, that word is OK, I guess," she said at last. She looked at me sheepishly. "I'm sorry. I should have known you wouldn't listen to music that had language like that in it."

I decided that probably wasn't a good time to tell her about my new Alice Cooper eight-track tape. So I told her it was OK, that I understood. And by the time I got home from a date that night, there was a brand new clock radio by my bed.

Today, I have teen-agers of my own, and I know all about jumping to mistaken conclusions - musically and otherwise. Thankfully, Mom taught me that it's OK for a parent to be imperfect as long as you're willing to accept and acknowledge imperfection in yourself and your kids. After all, that's one thing all parents have in common with their children: we're human.

Even our "angel" mothers.

Jerome Baptist class of '47 stick together through marriage, parenthood, grand-parenthood

By H. R. Weixel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - A group of couples at the Jerome First Baptist Church have been "praying and playing together for nearly 50 years."

That's how the Baptiweds explain their Sunday School class.

In early 1947, a number of Jerome High School graduates were getting married. So they bonded together and became the Baptiweds.

This set off a dynamic and long-lasting relationship that resulted in "experiencing all of life's problems together," said class member Bill Barnes.

"We went through the terrible two's stage with our children," said class member Doris Barnes, Bill's wife. "Then came the troubled teens era, followed by cutting the apron strings as our kids left home. Now most of us are into enjoying our grandkids and great-grandkids."

She added, "We've laughed and cried together through it all."

There have been many happy times, according to Doris Barnes, but sad times came along, too. A pastor left or a congregation member died early in life, or late in life.

"Our Bible study times have always been precious," Doris Barnes said, "both during our classes and at every social event."

More than 100 couples have called the Baptiweds their class. Some have moved from the area, others have died. About 55 members remain on the class roll. Randy Shropshire has been their teacher for more than 20 years.

"I can't remember when I started (teaching), because I enjoy the class so much, I don't really have to teach," he said. "They are so responsive."

In addition to their weekly Sunday School classes, the couples schedule monthly social events that include pie socials, hayrides, bus tours and hot dog barbecues.

"It doesn't seem to matter what we do," Doris Barnes said. "It's always a lot of fun and, if something we schedule gets canceled, we usually end up at somebody's home and just play games."

Bill Barnes continued, "When we were younger, we went roller skating with the Methodists. But most of us have gotten past the roller skating age."

The Rev. Ed Hall was the pastor at the church when the Baptiweds Sunday School class started. Class members sort of took the young minister from New Jersey under their wing. They recalled

Group works to build bridges before gathering

The Associated Press

RALEIGH, N.C. - With 150,000 seats to fill and thousands of volunteers to enlist, an evangelical Christian men's group has a lot of work to do before putting on its largest conference to date.

But even more pressing to leaders of Promise Keepers is to make the crowds in June at Charlotte Motor Speedway more than a sea of white, conservative men. Promise Keepers says it wants to broaden the range of the movement in North Carolina and South Carolina to other races.

The Rev. Garland Hunt, a minister of a predominantly black congregation in Raleigh, has urged local black ministers to back the effort as a way to bridge the gap between the races.

"We've required government for a long time to lead the way for integration," said Hunt, who hopes to bring up to 75 men from the Raleigh International Church. "There is a real need in this country for Christians to model out racial reconciliation."

Promise Keepers announced in January that it would hold one of its 22 national gatherings at Charlotte Motor Speedway on June 21-22. Up to 150,000 men may attend and 8,000 volunteers will be needed, officials said.

The group, founded by then-University of Colorado football Coach Bill McCartney to encourage men to become better husbands, fathers and church leaders, has taken off since 1990.

There is a real need in this country for Christians to model out racial reconciliation.

- The Rev. Garland Hunt, Raleigh, N.C.

In 1995, more than 700,000 men filled stadiums in places such as Detroit and Los Angeles and vowed to live by standards of spiritual and moral purity.

The men agree to seven "promises," including a vow to "reach beyond any racial and denominational barriers to demonstrate the power of biblical unity."

Local Promise Keepers officials met with black church leaders in Charlotte to encourage participation in the June conference. A conference for pastors by Promise Keepers in February also tried to allay suspicions.

So far, interest has been lukewarm.

But even to get to measure black participation is the interest among mainline denominations, whose theology often collides with the literal interpretation of Scripture espoused by many at the conference. McCartney has spoken out against homosexual rights and abortion.

Methodist women plan tea - for 87th year in a row

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

JEROME - The United Methodist Women of Jerome are holding their 87th annual spring tea this year. That's a lot of tea bags.

The group was organized in 1909 at the Jerome United Methodist Church with 30 members present.

Until 1940, the women's organization was called Ladies' Aid Society. Then it became Women's Society of Christian Service. In 1973, the members adopted their current name.

The women began holding a "Rose-Luncheon" in the early-1930s. That evolved into a "Lilac Tea."

A few years ago, at the tea, group members performed a skit featuring an early meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society, complete with hats and gloves. This year, the women are celebrating the fact that they wear many different hats - all at the same time - by using hats as decorations for the tea.

The busy women, 68 of them, serve funeral dinners for bereaved families in their church, make baby quilts, pillows and bibs for hospitals and hold fund-raising events to fund United Methodist mission projects, with special emphasis on helping abused women and neglected and abused children.

Last year, the group sent school supplies to a mission orphanage in Russia, where Elroy and Harriet Weixel of Jerome were teaching.

The Weixels will speak at this year's spring tea. They are known for telling of their adventures in Chelyabinsk, Russia, by mixing humor with hardship in an unusual and entertaining manner.

The tea will be held at 2 p.m. May 11 in the church parlor. Admission is free, and all community women are invited. Theme is "Mothers and Others." Nicole Auslander will provide special music.

Joni Jones and Florence Smith are co-presidents of the women's group. The church is located at 211 S. Buchanan.

For more information, or to make reservations for babysitting, call Lulu Mae Correll at 324-4185.

Letter

It is up to men to make the world a better place

Many religions live in their own little world, paying little attention to the real world where knowledge keeps on increasing, taking us back a thousand years - long before man was able to read or write.

Early man had very little knowledge of the world he lived on. Even Jesus believed the earth was flat and that the stars could fall from heaven.

In the real world, it is up to man to stop all wars and make the world a better place. This was also the message Jesus tried to give the people, but too many dreamers wanted miracles, whereas Jesus answered by saying, "Why doth this generation seek after a sign? Verily I say unto you, there shall no sign be given unto this generation." (Matt. 12:29)

He also said, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me works that, I do; and he that doth also; and greater works than these shall he do because I go unto my Father." (John 14:12)

Again he said, "O righteousness, because I go to my Father, and you see me no more." (John 16:10)

LDS farms feel squeeze of growth

FARMINGTON, Utah - The farm system cultivated by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints during the Great Depression is finding itself the victim of creeping development.

From Tremonton in north Utah to St. George in the south, LDS Church farms are being cut up, sold off and pushed farther toward the horizon by rapid development.

Even a massive consolidation of farms that began in the early 1980s has not saved some enterprises from being parceled out for roads and homes. In Orem, the church sold a huge chunk of an orchard to the local school district for a new school. A dairy in Magna was sold to make way for a new subdivision.

All over the state, cities have built access roads through farm properties and put municipal water tanks in orchards. Farmers have also had to become careful to control irrigation drainage and carefully time the spraying of pesticides for fear of contaminating the air and drinking water.

N. Dakota Catholics still need bishop

BISMARCK, N.D. - Western North Dakota's 60,000 Roman Catholics have never gone this long without a bishop at the helm, and many are getting anxious to see the position filled again.

The western diocese has been without a bishop since the Rev. John Kinney left about 10 months ago to take a similar position based in St. Cloud, Minn.

Anticipation that the position might be filled has heightened in recent weeks, as many are hopeful a decision is close.

"What I look for and hope for is a bishop who is able to fall in love with the people of this area and be at home here," said Tom Porter, a Bismarck musician and member of the welcoming committee preparing to greet the next bishop.

But Sister Joanne Graham, diocesan chancellor, said there is no guarantee a new replacement will be on board any time soon.

Congregations swap ministers

TOWSON, Md. - Two congregations were just being neighborly when they exchanged ministers and choirs for a morning. But the racially separated churches also had a deeper motive.

"We go to school together, we work together and we go to the malls together. But on Sundays we go to our own separate churches," said Jim Forman from the mostly black Mount Olive Baptist.

The recent cross-cultural experiment was dubbed a success by members of both churches, which are only 2.8 miles apart.

"I used to think being a neighbor was living nearby," Rev. Chas. C. Thomas Jr. of the mostly white St. Thomas' Episcopal told the Mount Olive congregation. "Now I know what it means. You worship a little different but it's the same Lord."

"There's only one heaven," Forman said. "We're all going together. We've got to start preparing down here because we're going to be together up there."

that he knew nothing about farming, but he wanted to learn, so he'd hitchhike out to farms by 5 a.m., climb onto a tractor and take it across the fields, usually driving over the corrugates.

Hall performed the wedding ceremonies of many Baptiweds couples.

The Baptiweds fondly remember the time they put on a shivaree for a newlywed couple, George and Joyce Silver II. Bill Barnes was put in the driver's seat of his old model-T Ford, to drive the newlyweds up and down Jerome's main street. All the Baptiweds were "hanging onto the running boards" as they headed for town.

Barnes decided to make a U-turn in the middle of town, only to find a policeman pulling up beside him with a ticket in hand. Everybody started laughing and yelling, "throw them in jail." As the group argued with the officer, the Silvers sneaked across the street and into a bar, where they hid in the ladies' restroom. From there, they called a cab and had the cabbie drive past the Baptiweds and police and out into the country, where they struck out across the sagebrush and returned home.

At other shivarees, the grooms were required to push their brides down Main Street in a wheelbarrow. The brides had to wear long underwear.

Through the years, the Baptiweds have earned money for paint, pews and other improvements around the church. They purchased a cookshack and served meals at farm sales for many years.

Building a patio behind the church was a proposed project that was tabled every month for three years. Three years went by, and the congregation decided to build onto the church building.

"Then we knew why we never could build the patio," Doris Barnes said. "God had bigger plans, since the new addition was built over the place we had planned for the patio."

Heresy trial splits Episcopal Church

Orlando Sentinel

ORLANDO, Fla. - When the Episcopal Church announces its finding May 15 in a closely watched heresy trial, there will be more at stake than Central Florida Episcopalians than theological principles.

Retired Bishop Walter Righter of Iowa, accused of ordaining a homosexual seminarian in defiance of church teaching, underwent a one-day ecclesiastical trial on February 27 at the Cathedral Church of St. John in Wilmington, Del.

Central Florida Bishop John Howe, one of 10 bishops who filed the charges against Righter, announced earlier this year that the diocese had voted to "reconsider or rescind" its 1996 dues pledge to the denomination's headquarters - $207,030 - if the church absolves Righter of the charges. The program and administration are paid in 12 monthly installments. About $69,000 has already been paid, church officials said.

The denomination's national leadership characterized the action as intimidation and said it would not influence the outcome of the trial.

The 40,000-member diocese encompasses 15 Central Florida counties, including Orange, Seminole, Volusia, Lake, Osceola and Brevard. In a move initiated by lay church members and approved in January, the diocese's governing board recommended withholding the pledge.

"Many of our congregations are deeply troubled by the apparent inability or unwillingness of the Episcopal Church to uphold its own teachings and standards, most notably in regard to matters of sexuality," they wrote with their dues pledge. "Should the Episcopal Church abandon its own teaching we will, in conscience, be required to reconsider or rescind our pledge."

In response to the diocese's letter, national treasurer Stephen Duggan said the pledge was not included in the church's budget. "We simply cannot conduct the mission of the church on a contingent basis," he said in a two-page letter sent to the diocese in March.

"We cannot tell overseas dioceses that their support will be forthcoming only if a theological dispute is resolved in one fashion or another."

Attempting to influence the ecclesiastical decision in the heresy case by withholding dues amounted to "intimidation," Duggan said.

Bishop Righter is accused of ordaining Barry Stoffel, a non-calibrate homosexual, as a deacon in 1990. Deacons serve largely ceremonial roles, but the post is also a necessary step to the priesthood. At the time, Righter was serving as assistant bishop in the Diocese of Newark, N.J.

"The official policy of the Episcopal Church has not changed," Howe said. "There are individual bishops that are doing things contrary to what the official Episcopal Church says in areas of human sexuality."

Righter's attorneys maintain the church's teaching on sexuality are not binding doctrine. If convicted, Righter faces penalties ranging from an admonition to being stripped of his priesthood.

Bible guides investments of Florida firm

Orlando Sentinel

ORLANDO, Fla. - There's no end to the factors used by investors to predict trends in financial markets: federal-budget negotiations, unemployment figures, the rate of inflation, rainfall in the Midwest, presidential elections, the stars.

Peter L. Chamberlain, 44-year-old head of an Ocoee, Fla., investment firm that bears his family's name, uses most of the traditional indicators in advising his clients. But Chamberlain also uses another guideline: the Ten Commandments. Biblical principles, he thinks, can be the best thing for your investment principal.

Chamberlain founded the firm 15 years ago with his father, an executive with a pharmaceutical company, who retired to Central Florida.

When the younger Chamberlain finished his MBA at Rollins College the field seemed a natural one for father and son.

Father and son agreed that their business should have a strong ethical and moral component, the values that reigned in the Kalamazoo, Mich., home in which Peter was raised.

In running their investment firm "we use the same ethical and moral principles you would use in choosing a friend, a mate or a church," Chamberlain said. Companies that are not guided by the Ten Commandments "won't prosper in the long term."

As a matter of policy, B.R. Chamberlain & Sons does not recommend companies that manufacture alcohol, tobacco or movies. Chamberlain said he has no problem investing in the defense industry, unless there is some specific concern about weapons sales to a particular country.

Chamberlain's success in linking religious principles with investment strategy brought him to the attention of the Florida Baptist Convention, which appointed him to its 21-member investment committee.

The committee oversees a $51 million portfolio, which includes pension funds.

Using religious principles to guide financial investments is not without its critics: a group of Lutheran ministers in Minnesota unsuccessfully sued the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America's pension fund for doing that.

But in one corner of Chamberlain's office are plans for the new $50 million headquarters of Campus Crusade for Christ, called the World Center for Discipleship and Evangelism. Chamberlain has agreed to help raise money for the center. Chamberlain is also president of the First Orlando Foundation, a philanthropic arm of First Baptist Church of Orlando, where he and his family worship.

Preacher sentenced for money laundering

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A preacher convicted of laundering $1.5 million in drug money through his church was sentenced Tuesday to 14 1/2 years in federal prison.

Dozens of church members showed up in court, and several wept as the Rev. David Brace pledged with U.S. District Judge Ed Prado for leniency.

"The remorse and sorrow that I've had has been very deep," said Brace, 44. "I was a fool, and I admit that openly to this court."

Brace has said he was under pressure to save his debt-ridden Faith Metro Church in Wichita, Kan., when he got caught up in an alleged money laundering scheme that actually was a sting by federal agents.

Brace, who confessed to his part in the plot, was convicted in December on four counts of laundering $350,000. He also was fined $10,000.

Dow drops 20 on bond weakness

Knight-Ridder News Service

NEW YORK — The Dow Jones Industrial Average closed down 20.24 points at 5478.03 in volatile trading Friday, trailing weakness in U.S. Treasuries despite a weaker-than-expected April employment report.

The bellwether index opened higher Friday morning on higher bond prices after the Labor Department reported that April non-farm payroll jobs were below analysts' expectations.

Market participants expected the latest non-farm payroll jobs data to be above analysts' forecast of a 124,000 increase, which would have sent bond prices and stocks lower.

April's employment data reported a gain of 2,000 payroll jobs, and the unemployment rate decreased to 5.4 percent from 5.6 percent the month level in over a year.

Meanwhile, March's payroll gain of 140,000 was revised upward to 178,000.

"The only thing the jobs report proves is that economist forecasts are as reliable as weathermen's forecasts," said Mace Blinksilver, managing director of U.S. equities trading at Credit Lyonnais Securities.

Stocks moved into negative territory late in the day, following weaker bond prices.

The breadth of the market was mixed. On the New York Stock Exchange, declining issues outpaced advances of 1,474 to 1,070 on heavy volume of over 427.8 million shares.

Aggressive franchiser eyes Coldwell Banker

Knight-Ridder News Service

HFS Inc. of Parsippany, N.J., rapidly expanding franchiser of hotels and residential real estate brokerages, Thursday announced plans to acquire Coldwell Banker, one of the nation's largest residential realty firms.

The purchase price is $640 million in cash and the assumption of about $100 million in debt.

When the deal with Coldwell

Banker's owner, the Fremont Group of San Francisco, is consummated, probably during the second quarter of 1996, HFS — which only a year ago was primarily a hotelier — will either own or be the franchiser of more than 10,000 U.S. residential real estate brokerages.

The acquisition makes HFS the largest real estate franchiser (in terms of number of brokerages) in the country.

HFS, formerly known as

Hospitality Franchise Systems, entered the residential real estate market in 1995 — when it bought Century 21 for $260 million from Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

That deal gave HFS 6,000 brokerages.

In February, HFS bought Electronic Realty Associates (ERA), with 2,100 brokerages, for $46.8 million.

The Coldwell Banker deal adds about 2,500 brokerages.
