Father owes child support

Michael King, with current wife Jennifer King.

His spending, military moves wrecked marriage

By Virginia S. Garber
Times-News writers

TWIN FALLS — A murdered woman's ex-husband admits owing $15,000 to Idaho's welfare system for child-support payments he didn't make for their three children.

Denise McCoy, who was murdered with those children and her fourth child last week, said before her death that unpaid child support is the reason for single mothers' reliance on public aid.

"There's a good reason why every mother is on welfare, because husbands aren't doing their jobs," the then-single mother said in a Times-News story about welfare reform in 1994. "There's no teeth in the child-support enforcement."

McCoy's ex-husband, Michael King, often didn't have the money to make his full support payments for his children — Genevieve, Jordan and Chelsea King, but didn't attempt to evade welfare authorities, he said in a telephone interview Monday.

King declined to say how much he actually paid but said he once hired a lawyer in an attempt to have the payments reduced. King was at his Seattle home Monday, taking a seven-day break from work.

The same night that the McCoy family died, a 48-year-old bachelor sharcropper was found dead of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot to the head. Authorities suspect Walter Schoolcraft killed the family, then himself.

Investigators say they know motive

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Authorities said Monday they think they know why 48-year-old Walter Schoolcraft killed a mother and her four children, then himself last week in rural Lincoln County.

But they won't reveal why until all the evidence is in. They will continue to investigate all leads, they added Monday.

Clark Rollins of the Idaho Bureau of Narcotics said "we feel we have a motive" for the shooting deaths of

Schoolcraft

Schoolcraft, Denise McCoy, 33, and her children, Genevieve King, 12, Jordan King, 10, Chelsea King, 8, and Adrianna McCoy, 2.

Although investigators say Schoolcraft apparently did all the killing a week ago tonight, Lincoln County residents generally express disbelief that the friendly bachelor, sharcropper, and shade-tree mechanic could have caused such a tragedy.

When discovered by her finance, Dean Barry III, Denise McCoy's body was seated in a living room.

U.S. court revives Utah anti-abortion law

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — State attorneys were girding for a final battle over what remains of Utah's 1991 anti-abortion law after the U.S. Supreme Court breathed new life into the law Monday.

"The high court, sent one provision of Utah's law — the one banning most abortions of fetuses 20 weeks and older — back to the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

By a 5-4 vote, the high court said the appellate court wrongly struck down the entire state law after finding most of it unconstitutional.

Utah Attorney General Jan Graham said she will ask next week for the chance to re-argue the case before the appellate court. The court also has the option of simply reviewing previous arguments.

"What will happen now is we will get finality on the constitutionality of the post 20-week abortion ban," Graham said.

Graham said it also gives the state the chance to argue against paying about $240,000 of the attorneys fees it was earlier ordered to pay.

The plaintiffs' attorney said the case is far from over.

"I think we're still going to be able to challenge that and win because it's unconstitutional," said Simon Heller, an attorney with the Center for Reproductive Law & Policy.

The New York-based abortion rights center represented the women and health care providers who sued the state, preventing the law from taking effect.

Heller believes the law eventually will be declared unconstitutional because it goes beyond the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision.

The portion of the law still at issue would ban abortions for fetuses 20 weeks and older except to save a woman's life, to prevent grave damage to her health or prevent the birth of a child with "grave defects."

Mourners bid farewell to family

By Karen Tolkkinn

GOODING — Snapshots remain. Two children splashed in a bathtub. Two ran on grass. One laughed.

As friends and family members of Denise McCoy and her four children filed out of the Gooding funeral chapel on Monday, they stopped in silence to look at photo boards.

And they took in the fact that those same faces were forever enclosed inside the four caskets 30 feet behind them. The youngest child, Adrianna McCoy, will be buried in her mother's arms.

All five were murdered by a gunman on June 17. The presumed killer was also found dead of a gunshot.

"We are not here to make sense of the senseless," the Reverend Andrew Morris told those gathered in the crowded chapel, during the half-hour funeral service.

Instead, he urged those present to take a lesson from Denise and learn to forgive.

He read aloud from a journal entry Denise had written, dated 12 a.m., March 6, 1994, which was found in her apartment in Twin Falls.

"Dear Lord," it began, "thank you for answering my prayers. She went on to ask for a greater ability to forgive and to heal and said she wanted more time to devote to God and less time to spend reading books and watching TV.

Her journal entries seem consistent with her friends' descriptions of her as a selfless, generous person.

In another journal entry, she remarked on the importance of learning love and compassion from the "low lifes" of the world. She called herself an underdog and thanked God for having chosen her.

Morris described Denise as a "special person in many ways," one who loved country-western music, dancing, singing and helping people. Her children — Genevieve, 11; Jordan, 10; Chelsea, 8; and Adrianna, 2 — liked playing on the playground equipment at school, he said.

He read a letter from Genevieve to her

Heavy downpours produce flooding in Minnesota, Wisconsin

The Associated Press

Up to 7 inches of rain caused flooding Monday in the upper Midwest, closing roads, stalling cars and knocking out power.

Rain and thunderstorms stretched from Missouri through Iowa and southern Minnesota to the Great Lakes state.

Four to 7 inches fell overnight across parts of central Iowa. Streams rose out of their banks in Ames, flooding streets and some homes and businesses, and volunteers started showing up before dawn to fill sandbags.

Interstate 35 was closed for part of the night near Ames, and police said several county roads remained closed during the day because of high water.

Steady rain in southern Minnesota caused flooding and mud slides that closed southbound lanes of a busy highway between St. Peter and Mankato.

Streets and basements in the Mankato area also were flooded, and water and mud pushed a mobile home off its foundation and 20 feet down a hill. Three people were inside the mobile home but were not injured, authorities said.

Mankato got 5.91 inches of rain in 24 hours and Redwood Falls recorded 3.17 inches.

Heavy rain also closed streets and flooded basements during the morning in central and southeastern Wisconsin. High wind hit the region during the afternoon and a possible tornado was reported near Sauk City.

Wisconsin Electric Co. reported power outages affecting almost 8,000 customers in Milwaukee and its suburbs.

Locally heavy rain also fell in parts of Illinois, with 2.39 inches at Urbana and 2.15 at Karok.

In the East, a strong thunderstorm developed across northeastern Pennsylvania and headed into northern New Jersey during the afternoon.

The forecast also called for thunderstorms in the southern Plains, and in parts of Idaho, Montana and Wyoming.

King

...for Schoolcraft to commit the crime, an official said Monday.

At least one of McCoy's family members is upset over King's unpaid child support. Her stepfather, Allen Fox of Gooding, said King would not or never sent any money for the children.

"(King) treated her bad, he really did," said Fox, who said he worried that McCoy and her children would "starve."

"(King) walks a wide berth around me," he said Friday.

King, with his wife, spent two months in the Magic Valley last week because he wanted to be sure none of the mourners' frustration over the murders became directed at him, King said. He wanted to avoid being blamed for his ex-wife's situation at the time of her death, he said.

"I want (her family members) to be able to concentrate," on grieving, he said, so he didn't return for the memorial service in Gooding Monday.

During the visit to Idaho, King didn't visit the scene of his children's death: the home of Dean Barney III seven miles northwest of Shoshone, King said.

In fact, he has never seen Barney's home, he said. King's visits - about two per year - were to McCoy's Gooding residence and to her low-income Twin Falls apartment, he said.

But King and his new wife said they knew and trusted Barney, and he helped remove tension between the divorced couple. McCoy and Barney reportedly intended to be married.

"(Barney) was wonderful, especially with Jordan," 25-year-old Jennifer King told The Times-News in a telephone interview Saturday morning.

and a highly mobile military lifestyle that often kept him away from his family and separated his wife from her family and friends.

"I was young and pretty foolish," Michael King said. But Dennis "absolutely was a trooper," and her determination and courage helped her overlook many troubles in their nearly 10-year marriage.

The two began their friendship during an Oregon high school production of "The Music Man," when he was in the barbershop quartet, and she was the lead dancer, Michael King said.

But after graduation, the Air Force sent him to Leland and the couple had no contact for a year and a half, he said.

They met again at a dance hall when "this bouncing bubble of joy" jumped into Michael King's lap, he said. For the next three days, he talked and talked and talked and fell in love.

They married in 1983 and moved to Alamogordo, N.M., where Genevieve, Jordan and Chelsea were born.

Michael King said, they declared bankruptcy because of debts he racked up.

His spending caused tension between him and his wife's relatives, he said. McCoy's mother and stepfather, the Foxes, "took a very active role" in trying to straighten out the young couple's finances, Michael King said.

Then a series of military-ordered moves took their toll on the relationship, he said. "The military lifestyle is difficult on the family, on any family."

During a 1992 Air Force downsizing, Michael King took the chance to get out of the military early, partly to ease tension in his marriage, he said.

He moved his family to Colorado, where they spent several months on unemployment benefits and then he and his wife moved to Twin Falls. They met at McDonald's restaurant and met the man Michael King said was the father of her fourth child, Adriana.

"Her affair (with a male co-worker) was one factor in a long, long series of hardships," Michael King said. At the time of their divorce in Boulder, Colo., he gave up custody because he intended to rejoin the military and wanted his children to have stable lives, he said.

Starting over

Michael King's new job with Washington Air National Guard - which he began in October 1995 - has given him "an opportunity kind of to start over."

His new marriage is a second chance at a relationship. This period of time "to look back at mistakes I made" and avoid similar troubles.

Just four months ago, Michael King had a vasectomy reversed that he underwent during his marriage to McCoy, Jennifer King said.

"We definitely want more children in our life," Jennifer King said. If the Kings can't have their own baby, they'll adopt, she said.

Jennifer King already has a daughter, who is living with an adoptive family in Eugene, Ore., she said. When the Kings visit, the girl crawls on Michael King's back for piggy-back rides and tells him stories.

"She calls him 'My Michael,'" Jennifer King said.

mother, dated May 1, 1993, that was found in Denise's purse.

"I love you because when I'm feeling down you cheer me up," it said, and because Denise taught her to roller-skate and ride the big bike.

The casket will move for a final funeral service on Friday in Springfield, Ore., where they will be buried.

Corrections

In an article published Saturday, a news source misrepresented the support for a plan to extend a subdivision and golf course south of Kimberly. At a public hearing on Thursday, eight people besides the applicant spoke in favor of the project, and five spoke against it. The Times-News regrets the error.

A class announced on Sunday's Community Page gave an incorrect telephone number. People interested in the baby sitter certification class should call 737-2066 for more information. The Times-News regrets the error.

A story Friday gave the wrong telephone number for reservations for the June 28 premiere of the movie "Strip tease" at Haley's Liberty Theater. The correct number is 788-4200. The Times-News regrets the error.

In Monday's story about a former employee using the Cassia County School district, plaintiff Sharon Harrison's name was misspelled. The Times-News regrets the error.

Confronting tragedy

The Kings often forgot to call the children in Idaho or were unable to call when the appointed Tuesday and Thursday-evening calling times rolled around, Jennifer King said.

But on the night of the children's murders, Jennifer King was adamant in reminding her husband to call, she said. She sometimes talked and talked to talk to Genevieve and her siblings.

The Kings called at 6:30 p.m. (Idaho time), and about every half hour until 8:30 p.m., but nobody chair, and the children were found shot in their beds in two rooms downstairs at 730 W. 720 N.

Schoolcraft was discovered 3.5 miles away on his farm, seated inside a pickup with a bullet through his head and a rifle across his lap, Bergin said.

Earlier, authorities said that shell casings found at McCoy's home matched a shell casing found in Schoolcraft's pickup - indicating a murder-suicide scenario.

But Rollins declined to elaborate on a motive until ballistics and fingerprints evidence are reviewed Thursday or Friday. Groom called the tentative motive merely "another possibility."

Fingerprint and ballistics tests may indicate what people and weapons were present at the crime scene - and confirm or rule out some possible crime scenarios, Groom said.

Schoolcraft was said to be close friends with Denise McCoy, Barney and the children.

First lady's memory unclear

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a grudging response to the Senate Whitewater Committee, Hillary Rodham Clinton said Monday she recalls almost nothing about her law firm billing records and declined to address a last-minute allegation made against her.

Hillary Clinton

In a terse two-page affidavit, the first lady did not directly answer the committee's questions about a decade-old conversation she had with an Arkansas savings and loan executive while a private lawyer.

Instead, her affidavit referred senators to a separate letter by her personal attorney that suggested the savings and loan executive who described the meeting in a sworn account last week made up the story.

As for the discovery of her missing law firm billing records in the White House personal residence two years after they were subpoenaed, the first lady said "I do not know how the billing records came to be identified ... at the White House, although I have read various media accounts."

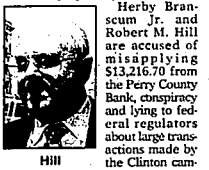

She said she saw the billing records in the mid-1980s when she was the billing partner at the Rose Law Firm for Madison Guaranty, the failed savings and loan at the center of the Whitewater controversy. The FBI has found her fingerprints on the billing records.

Mrs. Clinton said she recalls discussing her $250,000 loan with her firm partners Vincent Foster and Webster Hubbell in the 1992 presidential campaign.

But "I had and have no specific recollection" of the records in 1992. She added she had no "firsthand knowledge" concerning the records.

Whitewater trial begins for bankers

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The second Whitewater-related trial opened Monday with jury selection for two politically connected bankers charged with funneling bank funds to Bill Clinton's 1992 campaign for governor.

Hill

Herby Branscum Jr. and Robert Hill, Hill, are accused of misapplying $13,216,700 from the Perry County Bank, conspiracy and lying to federal regulators about large transactions made by the Clinton campaign.

According to the indictment, Hill delivered at least $7,000 to Clinton on Dec. 14, 1990 — a month after Clinton was elected to his fifth term as Arkansas governor. Clinton later appointed Branscum to the state Highway Commission and reappointed Hill to the state Banking Board.

The indictment does not claim any connection between the contribution and the appointments. The contribution itself was not illegal, nor was it illegal for Clinton to accept it. Instead, the charges hinge on how the money was raised.

Prosecutors allege Branscum and Hill stole bank funds to repay themselves, their relatives and employees for contributions to the 1990 campaign and other, unspecified political races.

Lawyers familiar with the Whitewater investigation say Clinton, at the 1990 meeting, accepted the money and at the same time discussed state appointments. Clinton has been subpoenaed to testify and will give videotaped testimony at the White House on July 7.

Before the trial, Branscum attorney Dan Guthrie described as "preposterous" any suggestion that Branscum's appointment was part of a quid pro quo.

ing the removal of Madison Guaranty files from the firm by Foster or Hubbell in 1992 and 1993. Hubbell said he removed a number of such files.

Mrs. Clinton's affidavit was submitted to the Senate committee (see unsigned) and unsigned, although her lawyer said he was in the process of getting it signed before a notary.

It was prompted by an accusation last week by former Madison Guaranty loan executive Don Denton, who told federal regulators Mrs. Clinton dismissed his warning about an improper loan transaction in an April 7, 1986, phone call she made to Denton. The phone call is itemized in the billing records.

Mrs. Clinton's Whitewater lawyer, David Kendall, wrote a scathing seven-page letter suggesting that Denton made up the story in an effort to help investigators. Denton was granted immunity from prosecution several months ago in exchange for his cooperation with Whitewater prosecutors.

"Mr. Denton's apparently malleable recollection did not recall" this conversation until months after the discovery of the billing records," said Kendall, who said he thinks the call was on a different topic.

Denton suggested that Mrs. Clinton was not being forthcoming with her own lawyer about the facts surrounding the April 7,

Clinton opposes boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton opposes a boycott of Walt Disney Co. by Southern Baptists over the issue of gay rights, the White House said Monday.

"He doesn't agree with that particular position," press secretary Mike McCurry said. "But doesn't change his faith or membership in that denomination."

1986, conversation. "You would think that as much as he's being paid, he'd be more competent and careful, but maybe, she's not confiding in him fully and completely," Denton said in a statement.

The committee had asked Mrs. Clinton to "refresh her memory" about the conversation with Denton and other conversations itemized in the billing records concerning Castle Grande, a 1,050-acre real estate development south of Little Rock, Ark. Financed entirely with money from the S&L owned by the Clintons' Whitewater partners, Castle Grande founded at a cost to taxpayers of several million dollars.

Kendall blasted the 11th-hour questioning of Mrs. Clinton by the Senate committee. The White House, meanwhile, criticized the linking of the news media over the weekend of sections of the harshly worded Republican version of the panel's final report.

In questioning the first lady, the committee Republicans said the loan papers that Mrs. Clinton and Denton discussed "were a way to hide the funding" of hundreds of thousands of dollars in real estate commissions paid to the father-in-law of Hubbell, Mrs. Clinton's law partner.

In a letter to committee chairman Alfonso D'Amato, R-N.Y., Kendall dismissed the committee's questions as a "partisan publicity gimmick" and added: "It simply makes no difference what information we furnish you."

"It is a last-minute, hit-and-run smear, unworthy of a congressional committee engaged in a serious search for the truth," Kendall said.

As for the Republicans' Whitewater report, White House spokesman Mike McCurry said the specks of the contents are part of a "political vendetta."

He said the strategy is to get "political mileage out of baseless charges."

U.S. students compete well in reading test

WASHINGTON (AP) — American students were outperformed only by Finnish children in a study that measured reading comprehension among students from 32 developed nations. Among Americans, black children and young people whose parents didn't graduate from high school had lower reading levels than other students, the National Center for Education Statistics said Monday.

But students whose parents were active in their schools scored significantly better than the international average, regardless of other factors, the report said.

"We are not suggesting that we are where we want to be. We are not. We have a long way to go," Education Secretary Richard Riley said Monday. "Thomas Jefferson would be pleased but he would expect more, and so do we."

"Although the tests may not have stretched this country's students to their maximum, American students have, on the whole, turned in a creditable performance," the education center's report said.

The report examines a 1992 study comparing reading comprehension of fourth- and ninth-graders in 32 nations, with eastern and western Germany treated as separate countries.

U.S. fourth-graders outperformed students from all other nations studied except Finland and Sweden, the report said. And U.S. ninth-graders scored below Finnish students but performed about the same as students from 15 other countries, including Sweden, France, Canada and Portugal.

"I'm not surprised by the study," said Kathy Echave, a reading specialist in Washington.

"I've thought for a long time that there's not really anything wrong with the way U.S. kids read, that this whole business is a little out of shape."

The study also found:

- About 70 percent of white students have above average reading levels, compared with 30 to 40 percent of black children and 50 percent of Hispanic students.
- Students' reading levels increase with the amount of education their parents had.
- Poor students don't read as well as wealthier students.
- Girls read better than boys in ninth grade, but about the same in fourth grade.
- Students being raised by two biological parents or a single mother read better than students with other family structures.

U.S. officials want North Korea to help locate missing defectors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has asked North Korea for access to four American soldiers who defected in the 1960s, at least one of whom may want to return home, a Pentagon official said Monday.

Alan Liotta, deputy director of the Pentagon's POW-MIA office, said the State Department will try to establish contact with the soldiers, who slipped across the Demilitarized Zone between South and North Korea in the early and mid-1960s.

The Pentagon earlier this year disclosed the U.S. Army defectors are still alive. They are Pvt. Larry Allen Abshire of Normal, Ill.; Pfc. James Joseph Dresnok of Glenn Allen, Va.; Cpl. Jerry Wayne Parrish of Henderson, Ky.; and Sgt. Charles Robert Jenkins of Rich Square, N.C. They are listed as deserters.

Liotta said the North Korean government has not acknowledged that the men are there, nor have they indicated whether they would allow U.S. officials to seek contact.

An Internal Defense Department report that was made public last week by a member of Congress said a North Korean defector claimed to have met Jenkins in a coffee shop in the capital Pyongyang and told U.S. officials

Perry

Jenkins wanted to return home. Asked about this Monday, Defense Secretary William Perry told reporters during a picture-taking session in his office that he was not sure about the credibility of the defector report, but that the Pentagon would "look into that very carefully."

The internal Pentagon report, made public last week, also said Washington had received credible evidence that 10 to 15 Americans who may be Korean War POWs are still alive in North Korea, and that at least some of them want to get out. Liotta said the report was an "analytic exercise" that did not reflect the official views of the Pentagon. It was written by a Pentagon specialist in POW issues. Liotta, speaking at a Pentagon news conference, also announced that a team of 10 American officials will begin searching for evidence of human remains at a site in northern North Korea where a U.S. F-80 jet was shot down during the 1950-53 Korean War.

The recovery operation will start

July 10 and last for 20 days, he said.

This will mark the first time the North Korean government has permitted U.S. officials to search for wartime remains since the conflict was halted in July 1953. Technically the United States is still at war with North Korea since the conflict ended with a military armistice rather than a formal peace treaty.

The recovery team will search for wreckage and remains at a site in Unsan County, which Liotta said is about 10 miles from the Chinese border.

The F-80 that crashed there Nov. 5, 1950, was carrying only a pilot. Liotta declined to identify the pilot. He said he and other U.S. officials who were in North Korea last week to make arrangements for the search operations were allowed to see that crash site. He said they saw no wreckage or other signs of the crash.

In September a second search operation will be conducted, this time at a site near Nampo, about 30 miles southwest of Pyongyang, where U.S. war records show an Air Force B-29 bomber crashed on May 7, 1951, with 13 men on board. Ten of those men are still unaccounted for; nine of them apparently died in the crash.

Anti-heroin ads: Designed to frighten

WASHINGTON (AP) — The advertisement features a distorted picture of a gaunt young woman against a purple background. Next to her are a hypodermic needle, along with a poem titled "Put It in My Nose: 'I put it in my nose. Then below my elbows. Even in between my toes. Almost anything goes, once you put it in your nose.'"

The tag line below the image says, "Before you start using heroin, think about how hard it is to stop."

A 30-second television spot depicts a blurred figure apparently trapped under a frozen lake, trying to escape. A voice says: "Welcome to heroin. Enjoy your stay."

The ads are two of 16 powerful images Partnership for a Drug-Free America used Monday to launch an advertising campaign it called "a preemptive strike" against heroin use among young Americans.

"They are not pretty. They are not nice. They are not polite. They were designed to disturb and upset people," said Doris Steedman, the partnership's director of creative development, before unveiling the ads at a news conference.

The campaign, targeting 18- to 25-year-olds, is the first national anti-heroin advertising effort.

Feds seek to tighten rail regs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just a week before investigators plan a public hearing into the deadly commuter train wreck in Silver Spring, Md., the Federal Railroad Administration latched an effort to tighten safety rules.

The agency announced plans to develop a series of improved railroad regulations and called for comment and suggestions from the public.

"This rule-making will ensure that we continue to maintain the highest levels of safety for the more than 550,000 Americans who use our rail system every day," Federal Railroad Administrator Jolene Molitoris said in a statement.

The deadline for comments is July 9. The address is U.S. Department of Transportation, FRA Docket Clerk, Room 8201, 400 7th St., S.W., Washington, D.C., 20590.

The National Transportation Safety Board has scheduled a public hearing next week to probe into the causes of the February crash that claimed 11 lives.

A series of emergency rules was issued shortly after the crash: lowering some train speed limits, requiring improved train crew communications and ordering railroads to inspect their safety provisions.

If Willis moves out, his ego will need a big truck

Gosh. It seems that if we don't rescind Gov. Phil Batt's nuclear waste agreement with the federal government, actor Bruce Willis is going to pack up his Range Rover and move back to California.

No more glitz-in-the-Wood-River-Valley. No more glamour. No more exciting world premieres with Demi at the Liberty Theater at $50 a pop.

Dang...What will we do with our Friday nights? "If everybody votes, 'Yeah, we want it, I'll shut up and I'll start looking for another place to live, I think.'"

"If everybody votes, 'Yeah, we want it, I'll shut up and I'll start looking for another place to live, I think.'"

— Bruce Willis, actor who is trying to reverse an agreement on nuclear waste made between Gov. Phil Batt and the federal government

A lot of Idahoans would take this deal.

Like too many wealthy, highly visible people, Willis has become a spokesman for a cause — primarily because he's wealthy and highly visible. That doesn't make him an expert on nuclear waste — or on Idaho, for that matter. But in his Planet Hollywood arrogance, he seems to have the impression that he and his white-wine-and-brie pals know what's best for us up-headers.

Not that any of us are thrilled to have the world's radioactive garbage in our backyard. But Batt has been persuasive in arguing that the compromise he struck last year to remove it was the best deal that Idaho was going to get.

It's possible that the initiative seeking to undo the arrangement will qualify for the November ballot, but it's unlikely to pass. Outside Blaine County, it has been greeted with a collective shrug.

That's a lot different from the attitude in the Magic Valley toward the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory five years ago; when former Gov. Cecil Andrus was drawing a line in the sand about accepting further shipments of Back then, there was something approaching consensus in southern Idaho that the Energy Department had had trouble telling the truth, and that Idaho — with its then-feebly clout in Congress — was being made a dumping ground because it wasn't strong enough to stop it.

But two important things have changed since then:

• The DOE finally got serious about negotiating with Idaho.

• Batt had enough patience to search for a compromise that would work for Idaho.

That compromise will move out-of-state radioactive waste from the state in the long run, in exchange for Idaho accepting shipments in the short term.

If most of us had our druthers, we'd send the stuff off to New Mexico tomorrow, but the reality is that's just not going to happen. What we've got is an enforceable commitment by the feds, and progress toward the goal of removing the waste.

That's more than Andrus managed to achieve.

Willis is welcome to disagree. But if he thinks his my-way-or-the-highway ultimatum is going to impress anyone, he's vastly overestimating his own importance.

Bruce Willis, it seems, has seen one too many Bruce Willis movies. "Bonfire of the Vanities" comes to mind.

Sign petition against airport

Attention Mini-Cassia citizens! If you think buying land at any proposed site for an airport to replace the Burley Municipal Airport is a bad idea, please sign the petition currently circulating that opposes this plan. Also, let your county commissioners know how you feel.

If you don't know what's being proposed, go to your county courthouse and borrow the $98,000 Airport Site Selection Study that has been made on the subject of a new airport for the Mini-Cassia area.

In addition to devaluing the land because of rezoning, uprooting farmers from their farms and homeowners from their residences, a new airport will cost a lot of money for land acquisition, construction costs, infrastructure, etc. Please note the existing airport at Burley can be improved with the addition of 180 feet to the runway and other minor, less-costly modifications.

Immediate needs in the community must be addressed before any plans for a new airport go forward, i.e., the crime problem, need for schools, road repairs, recreation programs for our youth and on and on.

We don't need a new airport in either Mindoka or Cassia County! Please say no to this proposal.

LCO doesn't protect land

When the public attended the hearings on the comprehensive plan, one issue provoked a great deal of input. That was the Livestock Confinement Operations ordinance (LCO).

The concern over this issue mandated the need to re-address the LCO, and the county did so in February. A committee was selected to draft a new LCO, but the committee was a poor representation of the county's population. The county drafted the LCO, which is intended to be an addition to what came out of the county's committee. Those involved in writing our proposal include some of the original LCO committee members, a dairyman, a veterinarian, people with expertise in water resources and environmental quality, farmers and rural residents like myself.

The supplemental proposal has specific requirements based on categories of size, i.e., agricultural, ag-commercial and industrial, and addresses expansion, grandfathering, animal density and enforcement. It is a much more thorough proposal and would complement what came out of the county's LCO committee. Planning and Zoning holding open houses to present all the proposals on changing ordinances at 7 p.m. each night at the Buhl City Hall tonight, Hansen City Hall on Wednesday and at the College of Southern Idaho Aspen Room 108 on Thursday.

Apathy is killing this country. We must get involved, and local government is the place to start. If you are concerned about your property rights, you need to take a stand. Come to one of the open houses and see all the ordinances on display. And if you're interested in the LCO and TFCFUN's proposal, you can get more information through P.O. Box 227, Buhl, ID 83316.

Willis can be broken in court

People think when they make a "will" that it is binding and cannot be broken. This is not so.

You can name your executor and state how you want your wishes carried out when you are deceased, but your wishes won't mean a thing if someone is determined enough to take it to court — then even a small inheritance is enough to cause some heirs to "bear false witness against another."

Let me tell you about a case in which I have personal knowledge. The person making the will named two siblings to be co-executors of the estate to work together: take charge of bank accounts, pay bills, disperse property — both real and personal — and to leave no debts behind, with the remaining balance, if any, to be shared between all of the heirs.

One co-executor, because of personal gain, did not work with the other named co-executor. So, by having two of the other heirs sign affidavits saying it was their belief that the co-executor who was trying to carry out the wishes of the will was mentally unstable and in such poor health that they were unable to do the job, the other heirs challenged the will in court.

The judge ruled that although he found no evidence of mental instability and felt that poor health was not a factor in being able to do the job, the two affidavits had been filed by two other heirs to have the person removed as co-executor, so he removed that person. It made no difference what the will said.

It behooves people to know that a will can be broken! And be sure that you know about bank accounts with "joint survivorship," make clear your intent or the money you leave to pay bills and share with the other heirs may end up the sole property of the "survivor."

Sign Stop Shipments petition

An Idaho Statesman poll showed that 88 percent of Idahoans oppose further shipments of nuclear waste into our state. Idahoans are also worried about the unstable geology of the INEL and the fact that it is located over the Snake River Plain Aquifer (which provides more than 250,000 people with water). Another major concern is the fact that we will be taking nuclear waste from countries like Canada, England, France and Sweden, and that these radioactive materials will be shipped by boat, truck and train, which are hardly foolproof methods of transportation. The only way to stop this disaster in the making is to sign the Stop the Shipments petition and put the question on the ballot in November.

As the Twin Falls County coordinator for this campaign, I would like to personally thank those tireless volunteers who have been out collecting signatures, as well as the following local businesses who are currently carrying petitions: Metropolis, Ace Printing, Dunche's, Churchman's Jewelry, Babbel's Cleaners, Sirucek Chiropractic and the Cosmic Jolt in Buhl.

There is still time to sign if you have not already done so. Just step off at one of the above businesses and sign on. If you are carrying a petition, remember that I need to receive notarized petitions no later than June 24 so that I can turn them in to the clerk's office for verification and then mail them out to Boise so they can be delivered to the secretary of state's office on July 5.

You may reach me at 733-2094. Again, thank you for your support. If you would like to see the petition, please do so as soon as possible.

Provide Air Force with range

As a member of a media team, I just returned from Azraq, Jordan, where a large number of our servicemen are on assignment from Mountain Home Air Force Base. They are there for three months, living in a tent city in the middle of a barren desert. We were permitted to accompany them on one of their combat missions in a KC-135 refueling tanker as it refueled the F-16 fighters going to and returning from their missions in Iraq.

How proud I was to witness first-hand the professionalism and skill of these, our own pilot boys from Mountain Home AFB. They are patrolling the dangerous skies of Iraq to help preserve our peace and freedom. As you ask them to pre-arm their lives on the line by flying into harm's way, we must provide for them a training range of sufficient size (which Saylor Creek is not) for air-to-air combat as well as SAM avoidance training to protect themselves and be successful on any mission they are asked to do.

Drowning can be prevented

Drowning is the second-leading cause of preventable death in Idaho. With our canals full, schools on summer break and the onset of warm weather, now is the time to avert this senseless tragedy.

Parents, please instruct your children that canals are made for delivering irrigation water and not for swimming. The same caution should be used around canals as with any fast-moving body of water. It only takes a minute for a youngster or curious toddler to fall victim to the swift current or undertow.

In the past, a canal might have seemed a tempting place to escape the summer heat, but today access to public swimming areas and an increasing awareness of chemical and safety hazards has made this practice outmoded and illegal.

The risks of canals multiply as they meander through our cities and countryside in addition to Idaho's numerous lakes, rivers and reservoirs create a need for our youth to be as familiar with water safety as they are with traffic safety. Enroll your children in swimming lessons and encourage them to agree to an established set of rules. These might include:

- Never swim alone — use the buddy system.
- Be sure there is adult supervision or a lifeguard on duty.
- Only swim in designated areas and not in irrigation canals.
- Do not dive or swim in unfamiliar water without first assessing the area.
- Enjoy swimming at your local city swimming pool.

Perhaps the most important safety standard a parent can provide is to set a good example for their children to follow. While advocating swimming lessons and at the same time prohibiting the use of canals for water recreation might seem at cross purposes, the consistent goal is the welfare of our children.

The Twin Falls Canal Co., a member of the Safe Kids Coalition, wishes everyone a safe and fun-filled summer.

American accused of dumping garbage

BEIJING — China Monday linked a U.S. businessman in custody in Shanghai to complaints that foreign garbage was being dumped in the country.
William Ping Chen was detained two weeks ago at the height of a state-run media sharply criticizing the United States for treating China as a dumping ground.

The accusations began after officials found 640 tons of U.S. garbage — dirty plastic bags, sewage, used syringes and rubber gloves — at a dump outside Beijing.

Bomb explodes in car; nobody injured

MANAMA, Bahrain — A bomb-laden car exploded outside a downtown hotel Monday and an anonymous caller said the blast was intended to pressure authorities to release political prisoners.

There were no casualties and the only damage was to the car that was carrying the bomb and a nearby vehicle, police said.

The blast took place outside the six-story Bahrain International Hotel, frequented by foreigners and locals alike, and near the Standard Chartered Bank.

Volcano erupts, spewing rock and ash

WELLINGTON, New Zealand — A volcano on New Zealand's North Island spewed molten rocks into the air like "thousands of bright red skyrocket" Monday and blotted out the sun with an 8-mile-high plume of steam and ash.

The eruption came six days after scientists said that volcanic activity on the 9,176-foot snowcapped mountain had subsided, after months of rumbling. The volcano last erupted in September.

Witnesses said the eruption began Monday morning when the volcano shot steam and ash eight miles above its crater. That was followed by a huge explosion of gas and debris.

Hood pleads guilty to 2 slayings

Family blasts case handling

By John Thompson
Times-News writer

RUPERT - Corey Hood pleaded guilty as expected on Monday to voluntary manslaughter in connection with the May 16 slaying of 17-year-old Wendy Hunter.

But in a surprise plea arrangement crafted by Minidoka County Prosecutor Gara Newman, Hood also agreed to plead guilty to voluntary manslaughter in connection with the April 23 murder of Hood's grandmother, 75-year-old Mae Hood of Heyburn.

Newman and other lawyers in the case are under a gag order and she could not comment about the plea bargain.

Judge William Hart accepted the plea after warning Hood that he could spend the next 33 years in prison and pay fines of up to $30,000. Hood said he understood the implications. Voluntary manslaughter carries a maximum penalty of $15,000 in fines and 15 years in prison.

Hood, 21, is still on probation for a 1995 rape conviction. Pleading guilty violates that probation and could result in an additional three years at the state penitentiary, Hart said.

Hart also asked Hood why he agreed to the plea bargain. Hood responded, "Because I did it."

After a brief consultation with his lawyer, Doug Whipple, Hood said, "On May 16 I voluntarily slit Wendy Hunter's throat in Rupert."

"Did you do it in the heat of passion?" Hart asked.

"Yes sir," Hood replied.

"Did it result in her death?" Hart asked.

"Yes sir," Hood replied.

"Is it in your best interest to plead guilty today?" Hart asked.

"Yes sir," Hood replied.

Newman explained in court that Hood gave a videotaped statement on Friday. In that statement Hood agreed to give truthful testimony about the other defendants, who are charged in connection with the two murders.

The complete plea agreement was not available from Hood's court files on Monday and will probably be sealed under the gag order.

Matthew Mines and Brian Mack are charged with first-degree murder in Hunter's death. Shannon Reeves, Hood's cousin, is charged as an accessory to the murder.

Mack is also charged with first-degree murder in Mae Hood's death. None of those charges had been changed as of Monday afternoon, according to a Minidoka County Magistrate Court clerk.

Newman said that Hood "has agreed to give truthful testimony about the other defendants and that is one of the reasons he is pleading guilty." She added that the plea agreement will not be kept unless 100 percent of the information Hood gives is true.

The agreement Hood signed Monday, called a "Judgment of Confinement," states that the court will set a minimum prison term. He will not be eligible for parole during that time but will be eligible for parole afterward, the document says.

According to the Idaho Code, pleading guilty to voluntary manslaughter means Hood agrees that he knowingly, willfully, unlawfully, intentionally, feloniously and in the heat of passion, but without malice aforethought and premeditation, killed Wendy Hunter.

Hood is divorced and is the father of three children who live in Nevada with their mother, Sharmy Smith. Hood's parents divorced when he was either 2 or 3 years old, according to information from the Idaho Department of Correction.

Corey Hood heads for court Monday to plead guilty to voluntary manslaughter.

Hood's probation recommendation from the Correction Department says the rape offense does not appear predatory or a pattern likely to be repeated. The probation plan states that Hood was not to be intimately involved with anyone under the age of 18.

Aside from the rape conviction, Hood was convicted on a first-degree burglary charge as a juvenile, according to Correction Department documents.

RUPERT - Beverly Hunter wept in front of the Minidoka County Courthouse on Monday, after learning partial details of a plea bargain between the county prosecutor and one of the men charged with killing Hunter's daughter.

"This is the biggest bunch of — I have ever seen," Hunter said. "We have no rights in all of this. There is no one here to tell Wendy's story."

Corey Hood, 21, won't stand trial for the death of 17-year-old Wendy Hunter of Rupert. Hood pleaded guilty Monday to voluntary manslaughter.

By letting Hood bargain his way out of a first-degree murder charge, Prosecutor Gara Newman is accepting Hood's version of what happened on May 16, the day Wendy Hunter died, Beverly Hunter said.

"I want people to know that this is his side of the story that is being told here," she said.

Hunter alleged that Newman has not been truthful with the Hunter family about the court proceedings. "The prosecutor has done a 'really lousy job,'" she said.

"Our judicial system has gone to hell in a handbasket," added Wendy's

Rupert man nabbed robbing officer's car

RUPERT - A police officer who made a burglary arrest on Sunday had no trouble identifying the stolen property. It was his.

Rick Garth, a Rupert reserve officer, caught a 19-year-old man going through his car about 1 a.m. Sunday, according to a police report.

Garth had stopped to check the doors on the Mini-Cassia Chamber of Commerce building at 324 Scott Ave. When Garth returned to his car, he found Jason West, 19, according to the report.

Garth ordered West to lie on the ground. After another officer arrived, they searched West's pockets. The officers found two shotgun shells, two 51 bills, earplugs, a credit card receipt, needle-nose pliers, a pager and a camera.

All of the items were from Garth's car, according to the report. West was taken to Burley and was booked into the Mini-Cassia Jail, according to the report.

Prosecutor: Murder charges to be refilled against Ferrier

TWIN FALLS - Murder charges will definitely be refilled against Eric Ferrier of Twin Falls, said Twin Falls County Prosecutor Richard Bevan last week.

Bevan, who said he was compiling forensic evidence and conducting investigation to bring a stronger case against Ferrier, said it is "imminent" that charges will be refilled.

Ferrier, 18, was accused of shooting Jesse Ellison and Jafra Sumaya on March 15 in an argument over pig and monkey. He has also been arraigned on aggravated battery charges in a March 27 stabbing of a newspaper carrier in Burley.

Twin Falls ranks 1.3 percent below national cost of living

TWIN FALLS - For those residents who think the cost of living is high in Twin Falls, be glad you don't live in New York City.

Twin Falls is ranked 1.3 percent below the national average in overall cost of living for the first quarter of 1996, according to the American Chamber of Commerce Research Association's Cost of Living Index. New York City's cost of living was well over double that of the national average.

The rating index also measured the individual components which make up overall cost of living with the national average rated as 100. Twin Falls scored 101.5 for grocery items, 101 for housing, 84.4 for car taxes, 98 for transportation, 89.5 for health care and 101 for miscellaneous goods and services.

Among cities with metropolitan areas of 1.5 million or greater, Boise, Idaho and Houston ranked the lowest in overall cost of living, each about 5 percent below the nation's average.

Medical fund set up for boy

WITH RECKLINGHAUSEN'S DISEASE

KIMBERLY - A medical fund has been set up for Jeremiah Silva, 4, of Kimberly, who has been diagnosed with Von Recklinghausen's disease (multiple neurofibromatosis). The disease has caused Jeremiah to have blindness in the left eye and an inoperable brain tumor, according to his legal guardian, Charles Fleming. He is undergoing radiation therapy at Primary Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City for the next five weeks.

The fund has been set up to help the family with medical and traveling expenses. Donations may be sent to Jeremiah Silva, First Security Bank, P.O. Box 7, Twin Falls, ID 83303-0007.

Bombing range meeting draws mixed response

By William Brock
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Some folks are for it and some are against it, but others still haven't made up their minds about the U.S. Air Force's latest push for a state-of-the-art bomb training range in the southern Idaho desert.

Several dozen people turned out Monday night at the College of Southern Idaho to learn more about the Air Force's plan to establish a 12,000-acre "drop zone" about 30 miles west of Castleford. The public scoping meeting, as it was billed, allowed people to browse through a wealth of Air Force information and chat with uniformed personnel from the Mountain Home Air Force Base.

Visitors also were encouraged to offer comments that could influence the Air Force's final proposal. An Air Force attorney, Peter Bogy, said in Federal Court in Boise earlier this month that a new bomb training range would be nice, but isn't essential for air crews stationed at the Mountain Home Air Force Base. Warplanes from Mountain Home presently train at the Snyler Creek Bombing Range in Owyhee County and at nearby ranges in Utah and Nevada.

Twin Falls resident Bob Penny, who saw combat action as an Air Force pilot in Vietnam, said he's open to the idea of more bomb training in Owyhee County - as long as it doesn't squander what the desert has to offer.

"I'm as interested in that country as anyone and I enjoy the desert and its hunting and fishing opportunities," Penny said outside CSI's Fine

Arts Auditorium. "If they're going to use it, I want to see that it's done right."

Penny said he needs to study the proposal further, but so far, "I don't see anything that looks impossible to work with."

The Air Force has long wanted to expand its bomb training opportunities in southern Idaho, but previous proposals have died in bitter public acrimony.

Spokesmen for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game and the U.S. Bureau of Land Management agreed Monday that the Air Force is taking the agencies' concerns far more seriously this time around. Some members of the public echoed the BLM and Fish and Game agencies.

"I think they've done a pretty good job of gerrymandering things around to eliminate the problems," said Dudley Stroud, of Jerome. "They've been about as fair as they can be - yet still meet their needs."

No matter how much it's changed, the concept of an electronic battlefield in the southern Idaho desert still doesn't sit well with Twin Falls resident Mike Frazier. "I think once they get their foot in the door, they'll try to get away with more and more," Frazier said. Increased military flying over the BrunEAU, Jarbidge and Owyhee river canyons will mean more noise pollution, he said, adding that it will create moments of high anxiety for people inside the canyons.

"I've been down in the BrunEAU River Canyon before when an F-4

One bid heard for course

By John Rupprecht
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Mike Hamblin requested permission Monday to submit a proposal to lease the city-owned Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course, but the Twin Falls City Council opted to leave leases open to other proposals until July 15 before making a decision.

"We will accept bids or proposals, but we haven't committed ourselves to leasing it yet," said Vice Mayor Art Frantz. Hamblin, the course professional who has much control over Muni's day-to-day operations, mentioned job security and control over greens' crews as major factors in his desire to lease the course.

The council set the following clauses for prospective lessees:

- The lease would be for a minimum of 10 years.
- The city would maintain its rates for greens fees, season passes, storage fees and golf cart fees.

• There would be a $5 million performance bond for financial protection if the lease failed.

The deadline for lease proposals is July 15.

The council also heard residents' comments on a proposed retirement center on Locust Street North's vacant residential land between Lawndale Drive and Evergreen Drive. Residents of Evergreen Drive, Lawndale Drive and Juniper Street voiced concerns for future developments of an open lot of land which isn't part of the proposed retirement center.

In other action, the city council also:

- Approved Bargreen Ellingson, Inc.'s bids for purchase of airport restaurant equipment.
- Repealed ordinance No. 2348 concerning the vacation of right-of-way on

CSI would suffer if taxes capped

By Lis Wright
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Services would suffer and fewer students would enroll at the College of Southern Idaho if voters approve a cap on property taxes in November, CSI president Gerald Meyerhoeffer told CSI board members Monday.

"We are the most impacted in the state when it comes to the One Percent Initiative," Meyerhoeffer said.

State lawmakers probably would raise sales or income taxes rather than allow such drastic cuts, Rep. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls, told board members.

And legislators probably would try to limit property taxes to appease voters - even if the courts strike down the One Percent Initiative as being unconstitutional, Black said.

"It is worse than throwing out the baby with the bathwater," Black said. "You cut off the arms and legs here. It is pretty dramatic."

Idaho residents in 1992 voted down a similar initiative, which is aimed at capping taxes at 1 percent of assessed valuation.

Meyerhoeffer said the college will prepare an impact statement about the potential cutbacks next week. The CSI public unanimously voted to tell the would cause.

Next month, state and local officials will try to convince Gov. Phil Batt to give the colleges about $5 million annually in general funds to ease the pain of community college cutbacks, Black said.

Though a fiscal conservative, Batt may agree to phase in the initial spending.

'Aspenization' of Durango spawns crime

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — The Aspenization of Durango with its surging population is good for real estate agents on one hand while on the other it has brought serious crime, crowding, a young transient population and low-paying jobs.

about their biggest complaint, and it gets back to growth.

Jobs are scarce and low-paying. Crime has increased. Schools are crowded, as are their favorite hiking and biking trails.

Housing costs have gone through the roof.

"There's this whole

'Aspenization' syndrome, where the average working individuals can't afford to buy a house anywhere near here," said Jerry Swingle, a community activist with the San Juan Citizen's Alliance. Many of the area's jobs are limited to the service sector that caters to tourists.

Robert L. Perkins

Robert L. "Bob" Perkins, 73, of Hansen, died Friday, June 15, 1996, at his home, following an apparent heart attack.

Bob was born June 29, 1922, in Long Pine, Neb. to John E. and Catherine Perkins. He attended school in a P.E. Neb., and moved to Ainsworth, Neb., where he met his lifelong friend, Edwin Kern. He graduated from Ainsworth High School in 1940. Bob proudly served in the 69th Central Postal Directory from 1941 to 1945. He received the Bronze Star for bravery during the Rhine River crossing. After his discharge, he met and married Mary Rogers of Ainsworth, Neb. They moved to Idaho along with Bob's parents in May 1949, settling in the Hansen area. To this time, their children were born, Roger and Eileen.

Bob's long working career started with farm work for Fruehlich Brothers, delivery service for Urie Brothers, mulling at the Hansen Elevator, delivery for Sopri Oil Company, and working for the Valley Stages. Bob served as police chief for the City of Hansen for several years. Following his retirement, he also took a part-time position at United Oil, and later worked at Veris's Lymwood Chevron Station, a job he did intermittently until the present.

Bob enjoyed the varied sports his children participated in from Little League through high school. Bob married Alice Gerily, of Shoshone in July 1975. They spent nearly 21 years together hunting, fishing, camping with the United States Sawtooth Ramblers, and making many wonderful memories and friends. Bob also served as a special deputy for the Twin Falls County for over 40 years. He was a life member of the Idaho Peace Officers and Magic Valley Peace Officers Association, and a member of the Kimberly Post No. 10328 of the VFW and Kimberly Post No. 965 of the American Legion. A self-help support group for men with prostate cancer.

The group will provide a forum in which you and your family can discuss with other patients and their families, problems and anxieties you have concerning the disease. The group will also be a source of information to new patients requiring treatment and to old patients interested in keeping up to date with information concerning prostate cancer.

Better than any other technique, support groups demonstrate that you are not alone; that others share similar experiences and concerns. Support groups can become a positive influence on your life, as they have for tens of thousands of patients with cancer throughout the United States.

Police confiscate knife at dance hall

RUPERT - Police confiscated a knife and arrested a man early Sunday at the Fiesta Mexicana dance hall, according to a report. When police arrived at the dance hall at about 2:30 a.m., the establishment's security guards had already handcuffed Eufrazio Ortega, 55, and he was sitting on the floor... Security guard Allen Piper told Sgt. Dennis Bossert that Ortega had been asked to leave for threatening people with the knife.

Authorities: Driver was killed in crash

ALBION - Authorities say they are reasonably certain that the man who died in a recent accident north of town was the driver of the crashed vehicle. Chad Jones, 24, of Burley died June 7 in a one-vehicle roll-over. Jones, 24-year-old son of Rupert and 19-year-old Scott Nash, of Burley were thrown from a 1983 Dodge Durfee and Nash were seriously hurt in the crash. Nash was listed in critical but stable condition Monday afternoon at University of Utah Medical Center in Salt Lake City, a hospital spokeswoman said. Lt. Jim Hignens of the Cassia County Sheriff's Department said that in apparent Jones had been driving. One of the other victims has been interviewed about the accident, but he could not remember what had happened, Hignens said.

Missing 74-year-old woman believed to be homicide victim

PRINCETON (AP) - The case of a 74-year-old woman who has been missing for a month is being investigated as a homicide, even though no body has been found, a Latah County sheriff's detective said Monday. "There's a question that we suspect foul play," detective Robert Piel said. Piel would not say what evidence led investigators to conclude that Hazel Martin was slain. He also did not say if there were any suspects.

Authorities believe she returned home that night because her truck was found in the garage of the home where she lived alone. More than 150 volunteers joined the search because they were immediately found, with the exception of a pair of slippers and two pillowcases that were discovered along the Palouse River. Investigators believe the items belonged to Martin.

Wagon train marks 150 years since Mormons journeyed West

NAUVOO, Ill. (AP) - Armed with video cameras and optimism, more than 100 people set forth Monday in a line of hand-drawn wagons to follow the trail used by thousands of Mormons to flee religious persecution 150 years ago. "We're doing it for the greater love and appreciation of our pioneer ancestors," said Utah rancher or Montel Seely. "When you do something that someone else has done before you, then you experience the (hustle, the fatigue, the hunger. You say, 'Now I know what they endured.'"

Some will walk each day's 20 miles with it. The Whitakers have traveled with other wagon trains, she said, but this one is special because it recreates the rigors their Mormon ancestors experienced when they left Nauvoo in February 1846. "It's something we want to give to our children," said Mrs. Whitaker, dressed in calico and sporting a teal water bottle. "We have it easy, but I think we still go through a lot of what they did." "Having it easy" means camping in friendly towns, many of them planning cookouts and festivals to welcome the wagon train. It also means being accompanied by a water truck and portable toilets. But the travelers still have to face the summer heat and dust, the smell of the horses, the bone-jarring wagon ride. Those who walk will start earlier and finish later than the faster-moving wagons.

Nauvoo, making it one of early Illinois' largest cities. But the new religion met hostility from its neighbors. When founder Joseph Smith was killed by a mob, his followers fled Nauvoo, driving their wagons across the frozen Mississippi. Freezing and disorganized, the wagon train made slow progress. When they camped for the third time, they could still see their first campsite in the distance, said Lloyd Metzner, head of the new expedition. Nine-year-old Niki Reynolds and her family came from Plymouth, Minn., to participate. She originally tried to get out of going because it will take up most of her summer, but now is glad to be going - except for spending so much time with her brother. "We fight a lot," she said. "I'm pretty sick of him."

CSI

Continued from C1 ing over several years, though the argument is weaker during a flat economy, said Black, who chairs the House Education Committee. CSI can obtain stronger political clout at the state level through establishing broader public support, perhaps by asking Mini-Cassia property taxpayers to join Twin Falls and Jerome counties in funding CSI services, Black said. Additional taxing districts may be cheaper for Mini-Cassia counties than the current fee structure that CSI imposes on out-of-district students, Black said. Another way to gain public support is to pass a law ensuring local control over state funds and changing Idaho code to prevent community colleges from becoming four-year universities, a fear of some members of the public, Black said. Meyerhoeffer said CSI doesn't intend to turn into a four-year school, though it will continue to improve its four-year degree offerings on campus through satellite telecommunications and commuting professors.

Range

Continued from C1 flew over and it scared me to death," Frazier said. "When I'm going to get away from it all and relax, I certainly don't need the noise to bother me." Frazier said he's particularly concerned about the prospect of sonic booms from B-1B bombers, which are being re-assigned to Mountain Home. When they arrive, the big bombers will be the loudest planes on base. The Air Force's latest proposal is to drop 25-pound dummy bombs on a 1,000-acre target area inside the drop zone. Some of the bombs would emit smoke and a brief, intense flame. The drop zone at Clover Butte lies between the main stem of the Bruneau River and the Bruneau's east fork. An alternate drop zone lies west of Grasmere. In addition to the drop zone, the Air Force wants to create five "no-drop zones" that warplanes would attack with cameras, not dummy bombs. Some 30 electronic "threat emitters" - which simulate enemy defenses - would be scattered throughout the desert in southern Owyhee County. The Air Force also wants to increase the size of its "military operating area" by adding another 400 square nautical miles over the Big and Little Jacks Creek drainages. The area is famed for its bighorn sheep hunting - and the Foundation for North American Wild Sheep is steadfastly opposed to Air Force operations over the area.

Continued from C1 father, Earl Hunter. Newman is bound by a gag order forbidding her to comment about the case to news media. As part of his plea bargain, Hood agreed to provide Newman with truthful information about Brian Mack, Shannan Reeves and Matthew Mines, the three other people charged in connection with the Hunter slaying. Corey Hood also pleaded guilty Monday to voluntary manslaughter in connection with the April 23 death of Mae Hood, the grandmother of Corey Hood and Shannan Reeves. None of the charges had been changed as of a court official. Mack is also charged with first-degree murder in connection with the Mae Hood slaying.

Tammi Greener, Wendy Hunter's sister, said Monday that how the investigation has been handled by the various law enforcement agencies involved. During a telephone interview from her Elko, Nev. home, Greener said a pair of bloody socks were found four days after the murder at the site where her sister's body was dumped near the Snake River east of Heyburn. "My mother is very upset about the investigation," Greener said. "People we know who have information have tried to talk to detectives and have called detectives but the detectives never returned the calls. And Gara Newman called my mom last night and promised not to plea bargain the case."

Idaho DOE: More dumps if Batt deal void

MOSCOW (AP) — An Energy Department spokesman says voiding Gov. Phil Batt's nuclear waste deal will mean radioactive waste already stored in Idaho will remain for a longer time and even more than the extra 1,133 shipments the agreement authorized could be dumped in the state.

Idaho National Engineering Laboratory spokesman Brad Bigger said success of the initiative to nullify the Oct. 16 court-ordered agreement would mean "stopped shipments" forever, not "stopped shipments."

And a spokesman for the Stop the Shipments initiative campaign agreed that voiding adoption of the proposal, if it wins ballot status, would not necessarily end radioactive dumping at the INEL.

"What we're telling them is we're taking this back," Latah Idaho Initiative coordinator Joanna McPherson said. "This isn't a decision that should be made by the governor. This affects everybody's lives. We need to put this back in the people's hands and the Legislature's so we can decide as a state how to handle this."

It was the fact that the state was running out of time to have a say in how resumed nuclear dumping at INEL would be handled that prompted Batt to cut the deal the Clinton administration now says it will not consider with any other state.

The state had managed to stop all but nuclear Navy waste from being shipped to the INEL three years ago by legally challenging the environmental assessment that claimed it was safe. But that assessment had been reworked, and it was only a matter of time before the federal court would have accepted it and allowed unrestricted dumping to resume.

Under past U.S. Supreme Court decisions citing the commerce clause of the constitution, the federal government has been allowed essentially unchecked authority to store radioactive material on federally owned land outside the INEL.

In addition, Congress was on the verge of passing legislation requiring the state to accept waste from the nuclear Navy.

While Batt's deal allows the additional shipments over the next four decades, it sets out a series of deadlines for cleaning up waste already stored at the INEL and removing most of it by 2035.

Failure to meet those deadlines under the court-enforced deal would immediately stop any further shipments of Energy Department waste. That is about half of the 1,133 shipments allowed under the Batt deal. The other half come from the nuclear Navy and are unaffected by the government's failure to meet any deadlines.

In addition, the deal precludes dumping in Idaho any of the tens of thousands of commercial waste shipments the government must begin taking control of in 1998.

Fort Hall man dies in car rollover

FORT HALL — A Fort Hall man died and two others were injured when he lost control of the car he was driving and veered off a Fort Hall road.

Theodore Harold George, 32, was traveling at a high speed when he lost control of his car, veered off the north side of the road and rolled the vehicle over into a field, an Idaho State Police spokesman said.

George was taken by helicopter to Hannock Regional Medical Center by helicopter, but died from his injuries. Police believe alcohol was a factor in the accident, but blood alcohol tests results were not yet available.

Man dies in Snake River accident

JACKSON, Wyo. — A New York man became the Snake River's first victim this year while rafting in Wyoming.

Thomas Joseph Schlonski, 55, of Webster, N.Y., died after the commercial raft he rode in flipped in the rapids of the Snake River Canyon. An autopsy performed by a Jackson doctor for Lincoln County found that heart failure was the likely cause of death.

Schlonski was a life preserver and was pulled from the water within six minutes with very little water in his lungs, but was found to have heart trouble, Lincoln County Sgt. Timothy Malik said.

"It sounds like everything went as good as it possibly could have gone. It was just his time," Malik said.

Schlonski was on a raft with 11 other tourists and two river guides from Mad River Boat Trips of Jackson. The raft apparently turned sideways in a rapid and flipped, Malik said.

Batt calls for calm in Kamiah dispute over land boundary

KAMIAH (AP) — Gov. Phil Batt is urging calm in the emotional boundary dispute between non-Indians and members of the Nez Perce Tribe.

"I would hope we would all restrain ourselves in our dealings with each other because it is volatile," Batt told tribal leaders during his latest summit with them.

And Tribal Executive Committee Vice Chairwoman Julia Davis called for a joint effort with the state to moderate the situation.

"There seems to be a lot of bad feelings that the non-Indian people have about the tribe," Davis said.

A surveying error resulted in the property line of 20 acres of former Indian trust land being moved about 300 feet. The non-Indian occupiers of the mis-sharpened land were issued trespass notices and the mistake was made by a federal surveyor at the turn of the century. The tribe claims it was made by a private surveyor in 1964.

Batt

Batt said the federal government should conduct a complete survey that addresses a number of discrepancies and then come of a resolution.

"I think they need to be addressed through a bill in Congress, which compensates those who are deprived of assumed ownership through the process," the governor said.

But tribal chairman Sam Penney predicted that the courts would be the next stop in the running dispute. He said the tribe became formally involved in the boundary dispute after it determined that efforts by Republican Sen. Larry Craig and GOP Rep. Helen Chenoweth on behalf of the non-tribe members were unwarranted. Craig and Chenoweth have denied favoring the non-Indians over the Indians.

INEL hopes to avoid forced layoff

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Idaho National Engineering Laboratory managers will try to make up a shortfall in the number of people volunteering to leave their jobs without forcing layoffs or unpaid furloughs, the contractor's president said.

Lockheed Martin Idaho Technologies offered six months pay and education benefits to any one who would leave before the latest effort to deal with federal budget cuts at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory. Managers had only hoped for up to 375 volunteers, but only got 270.

President John Denson said there will not be any forced layoffs this fiscal year.

"We do need to do something about 375 people, though," he said.

Denson and top managers will spend about a week trying to decide how to make up the rest of the savings. They will notify which of the 270 applicants are free to go today.

But they will have to stay in some cases, too many workers from one job type applied to leave.

Lockheed Martin had hoped to retain workers in research and development projects that are specifically funded by Congress, and let workers go in the indirectly funded support fields such as cafeteria workers and public affairs specialists.

But they will have to go from both groups applied for severance.

It may mean Lockheed Martin will have to shuffle some of the remaining workers out of support positions to save on services that are siphoning too much money from the directly funded projects.

"If I can let a direct person go and reassign an indirect person, I'd do it," Denson said.

Trail machine users seek access to Clearwater region hideaway

ELK RIVER (AP) — A trail machine group has petitioned the Clearwater National Forest to end 20 years of no motor access to scenic Elk Creek Falls — a move conservationists are decriing.

Wendell Stark of the Clearwater Road and Trail Committee wants the Forest Service to re-open, regrade and gravel an old access road to the falls to accommodate elderly and disabled visitors so even the most challenged can appreciate the power and elegance of Elk Creek Falls.

The proposal, in the hands of the Palouse Ranger District, suggests a viewing area, rebuilding two trails to 48 inches wide and clearing four trails to accommodate wheel chairs.

But Larry McLaund of the Idaho Conservation League claimed Stark and his supporters are only using handicapped access as an excuse to get motorized vehicles into an area that has barred them for decades.

"This is basically a rouse to intrude upon one small area that a number of concerned conservationists have fought for a number of years," McLaund said. "To build a road in there would be a tragedy."

Elk Creek Falls and much of the land above Dworshak Reservoir and the North Fork of the Clearwater River contains some of the best elk and deer habitat and some of the world's most covered trout.

Over a decade ago, conservationists turned back a proposed power generator at the falls, which would have violated the mandates of 1987's Clearwater National Forest Plan is preserved for nonmotorized recreation only.

And Palouse District Resource Officer Jack Coyner expects similar outrage over the trail committee's proposal.

"The road was first closed as a result of public opinion," Coyner said. "Back in those days it was done as a smaller study and concentrated on plans for individual units."

Although gated since 1977, the road to the falls was an old county road that went down through the Falls area and then crossed Elk Creek below the falls.

McLaund warned that any plan that does not include the posting of a sentry at the road head begs for abuse.

"How are you going to stop it?" he says. "You can't check everybody who goes in there."

Forest Service officials emphasized that no decisions have been made, and Coyner said changing the mandate of the forest plan would be an uphill battle at best.

"I think it would take a fair amount of going out and gathering public opinion before it was favorable to change that direction," he said.

League treasurer waives initial hearing on embezzlement charge

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — One of two accused of bilking the local branch of the Western Boys Baseball Association of at least $50,000 has waived her preliminary hearing.

Maria Bates will now enter a formal plea to the felony charge in anticipation of a trial. No arraignment date was set.

Bates husband, Clay, is still awaiting a preliminary hearing to determine whether he should stand trial on the grand theft charge.

Maria Bates, who served as treasurer of the club, was accused of embezzling up to $60,000 from the league since 1991.

The 9-to-12-year-old league, which began suspecting financial irregularities last fall, has stayed afloat with sponsors and a $35-per-player fee.

Anyone starting over could use 'shower'

DEAR ABBY: Every year after graduation, thousands of young adults begin new jobs and move into homes of their own. Although this is an exciting time for them, it also can be a difficult one as they struggle to furnish their new living quarters. Most are reduced to begging from relatives, "making do" with castoffs, or doing without.

Dear Abby Abigail VanBuren

Since people marry later now, bridal showers often are given for older persons who have good jobs and who already have acquired everything they need. Some couples even purchase and furnish homes and live together for months or years before they say "I do."

Young, never-employed-brides who migrate straight from parents to husbands (the ones for whom bridal showers were designed) are rare today. Isn't it time to add a new twist to the old tradition and give "starter" showers for single men and women who are setting up housekeeping for the first time? "Starting over" showers would benefit people who have lost everything in disasters, as well as people who have recently divorced. What do you think, Abby?

MARILYN SWARTZ, TACOMA, WASH.

DEAR MARILYN: When I first heard about showers for singles several years ago, I thought, "Here's an idea whose time has come to a great end—for all the reasons you stated. DEAR ABBY: In all the years of faithfully reading your column, I have never felt compelled to write to you—I read your column because of "The Tone of Your Voice," I couldn't stop crying. For years, people have criticized me for my tone of voice. They say it is too sharp and full of hostility. Abby, I fail to understand how feel can be true because I honestly feel no anger or hostility. My mother, husband and siblings all take offense at my tone of voice, which kills any hope of honest communication. Close friends have also told me that I am often misunderstood because of my tone of voice. Please, please tell me how I can overcome this handicap. It is no fun being disliked and misunderstood. Thank you.

A MISUNDERSTOOD WOMAN

DEAR MISUNDERSTOOD: Find a speech therapist or voice teacher. With proper training, the tone of your voice can be changed.

DEAR ABBY: You printed several letters about children at weddings and the consequences of their (mis)behavior. While I agree with the concept that it is the bride's day, I thought maybe you would enjoy a lighter side to the problem.

Ten years ago, our oldest daughter was married in our backyard. The weather was perfect, the lawn and flowers looked beautiful, and we had 70 guests. One of our neighbors had hired a baby sitter to stay with her two children. She was very strict instructions not to let the girls outside, until the reception had started.

As everyone stood to pray, the baby sitter quietly got up and back door and let the dog outside and quickly shut the door before the girls begged to go outside. For 30 seconds, everything was fine—then the dog saw little guests and started barking and howling throughout the entire prayer. As the preacher concluded, the baby sitter let the dog inside and everyone burst out laughing. So, although everything was perfect and we had no disruptive children, we hadn't counted on the dog's blessing. We have it on the wedding video and it still makes us laugh every time we watch it.

Kids' needs often spur efforts at matchmaking single parents

Orlando Sentinel

Every Saturday while you're inside your apartment, hosting one of the bazillions and extracting week-old pizza crusts from under the sofa, your kids are sunning themselves at the community pool. Every Saturday, they run into the same muscle-bound Adonis stretched out on a cot catching some rays. Your kids have struck up a friendship with him. They know stuff. Like I said, it's a single. One day, this Greek god rings your doorbell, armed with a bouquet of roses and theater tickets. Seem several spots — who happens to be interested in your dating habits — fixed up you. "Whether or not Pool Guy is your cup of tea, single parents should reach for the lines of such a matchmaking effort." Perhaps it's more common for children in single-parent homes to sabotage their parent's dating ventures, but it's not unusual for kids to do or say things that show they're concerned Mom will wind up an "old maid."

Single-parent families are one of the fastest growing family forms in America; about 17 million kids live in single-parent homes, and 90 percent of these families are headed by women. Even though more women find themselves in this arrangement, the movie "Sleepless in Seattle" (where a boy tries to find his dad a mate) illustrates that the children of single dads seem to be more apt to want to fix up their parent than those of single moms," said Edward Price, founder of the Single Parent Association in Arizona. "It appears kids don't think Dad can raise them on his own. Price added.

The botched blind dates and the subtle asides say more about the strife in the child's life than about how often Mom or Dad dates. Single parents can stop the arranged dates and attend to their children's needs with more honest communication that probes into exactly what the child is missing. Such tactics are "usually about the child wanting a mom or dad, rather than you having a relationship," Diane Hamilton of Appleton, Wis. She

The Times-News

BOISE - The cycling event once considered too tough for women will start today as a grueling tune-up for the Atlanta Olympics. The race starts in Boise today and will roll through the Wood River Valley Thursday to the Pearl Izumi Road Race. After looping south across the Idaho-

Utah border, the riders will rest in Burley June 26 before tackling the race's longest stage, the 84-mile Burley-Buhl road race June 27. A stellar field of 100 cyclists, including 39 Olympians from 10 countries will compete for a prize list that tops $100,000. Cyclists representing Russia, Ukraine, Lithuania, New Zealand, Australia, Canada,

Great Britain, Belgium, Slovakia, South Africa and Switzerland will cover 650 miles and climb more than 16,540 feet over the next 12 days of racing in Idaho and Utah. Lewis falters in trials

Slaney will compete for 1st time since '88

The Associated Press

ATLANTA - Mary Slaney is back in the Olympics. Carl Lewis may be on his way out.

Slaney, 37, gritting her teeth on the final straightaway, rallied from fifth place in the last three laps to finish second in the women's 5,000 meters Monday night and complete an improbable comeback by qualifying for her first Olympics since 1988.

"It feels great. I'm glad to be over," Slaney said. "A year ago I didn't think it could happen, and it's happened."

Slaney could be in danger of failing to make the Olympic team after a lackluster showing in the qualifying round of the long jump at the U.S. track and field trials.

In other women's finals Monday night, Tisha Waller won the high jump, Meredith Rainey captured the 800, Cynthia Rhodes placed first in the triple jump and Nicole Carroll won the javelin.

Todd Williams won the men's 10,000 and John Godina became the first American track and field athlete to qualify for two Olympic events this summer when he placed second to Anthony Washington in the men's discus. Godina was second to Randy Barnes in the shot put Saturday.

Michael Johnson, Butch Reynolds and Quincy Watts all advanced easily to Wednesday's final of the men's 400. Alvin Harrison had the best time of 44.43 in Monday's semifinals.

Slaney, perhaps the greatest and most ill-fated American women's middle-distance runner in history, blew kisses to the crowd after finishing second in 15 minutes, 29.39 seconds on June 15.

Though she holds five U.S. records from 800 meters to Carl Lewis jumps 8.03 meters during a qualifying round at the Olympic track trials in Atlanta Monday. Below, right, Michael Johnson finishes second in his heat for the 400.

3,000 meters, Slaney never has finished higher than eighth in an Olympic race and has had 50 many operations on her legs — "18 to 20, somewhere in there" — that she could not remember the exact number.

Her biggest Olympic disappointment came in 1984 when she collided with rival Zola Budd while leading the 3,000 and crashed out of the Los Angeles Games. A replay of that 1984 race was shown on the screen Monday at Olympic Stadium after Slaney had qualified.

Lewis, who already has failed to qualify in the 100 and is vague about his commitment to competing in the 200, struggled before qualifying for Wednesday's long jump final.

Lewis, long jump champion in the last three Olympics, finished sixth in the qualifying round with a best leap of 26 feet, 4 1/4 inches. In his prime, Lewis often jumped farther than 28 feet.

"I've never seriously considered giving up bicycling for a career as a host for one of those annoying TV infomercials, but the following dialogue has been floating around in my head for the past couple of days:

"Are you in a funk over your exercise program?" (Audience murmurs.)

"Have you ever been down because your exercise program isn't giving you the results you need?" (Loud applause and shouts from the audience.)

"Are you fat, not fit? Do you want to improve your health, self image, mental well being once and for all?" (Audience roars with approval.)

"Well today, on this special paid program, we have the answer to your problems! We have discovered the secret formula top athletes use to achieve results in sports and life. We have condensed it into a simple, easy-to-follow program that you can receive today, by calling 1-800-SPENDESS. No gimmicks! No hassles! Just the results that YOU have been longing for. (Audience screams uncontrollably, with some people doing backflips over the seats.)

"Let's bring out our special guest. A wanna-be professional bicycle racer from Twin Falls, Idaho, Mr. John Foster. Give him a hand. (Silence. Crickets chirp in background.)

"How have things been since you began the program we are going to talk about today?"

"Well, in the two weeks I have been using the program, I have had my best results of the year. Two Sundays ago, I finished second in a Nampa, Idaho, road race and just last weekend I placed fourth in the Oregon State Championships. My confidence is way up and I have become a firm believer in the program."

"Well folks, there you have it. Unsolicited testimony from a wanna-be world class athlete. This program WORKS! Just by ordering today, you can guarantee better health almost immediately! John, I understand that you are not the only one using this amazing program."

"That's right, Wink. A vast assortment of athletes, business people, farmers, teachers, lawyers, doctors, parents, administrators, students and bag boys use this fabulous program for success in everyday life. I even know of a young man from McCall, Idaho, named Greg Randolph who recently made the U.S. Olympic Cycling team, and virtually all of his success is attributed to this program. It really works."

"That's incredible, John. Even more amazing, we are currently offering the program free of charge! What an amazing offer! Today only, on this program, we are going to share the secret that has allowed so many people to prosper. As a matter of fact, most of the viewers won't be surprised to hear that the heart of our program is called Hard Work."

"That's right, Biff. Without Hard Work, I never would have achieved my results of the past few weeks, and I am looking forward to using Hard Work over the next few months to prepare me for the National Championships. It is an amazing tool and I have to thank all of the people in Twin Falls for showing me how to use it."

"Thanks for that heartfelt testimonial, John. Millions will be ordering the program for their own health and well-being. What a wonderful tool!"

"Well, that's all for today. Thanks for watching, and stay tuned for celebrity women's billiards, coming up next."

Bulls' best: Will they stay or will they go?

Next year's roster is far from secure

CHICAGO (AP) — There never has been a team quite like these Chicago Bulls, and the coming months will determine if there will be another anytime soon.

Can the Bulls uphold the NBA's decade-long tradition of repeating as champions? The answer is obvious. Yes, if Michael Jordan is still scoring if Dennis Rodman is still rebounding and if Phil Jackson is still running the show from the sideline.

"They were the three main cogs of Chicago's won an incredible 67 of 100 games. And only by retaining them can the Bulls hope to come close to duplicating their dream season."

"I don't do promises or repeats," Jordan said Sunday after the Bulls wrapped up the title with an 87-75 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics. "I'd like to see us together so we can win another championship."

That would be typical NBA. The Los Angeles Lakers won in 1987 and again in '88. The Detroit Pistons won in 1989 and again in '90. The Bulls won in 1991 and again in '92 and '93. The Houston Rockets won in 1994 and again in '95. Can the Bulls make it two in a row and five in seven years?

"Great players, led by the greatest player that ever played this game and the greatest coach that ever coached the league," was how Bulls owner Jerry Reinsdorf described the Bulls immediately after the game to a sellout crowd at the United Center and an international television audience. "Obviously, we want to keep this team together if we possibly can."

Jordan's future probably won't be decided for months. His agent, David Falk, represents the most big-name free agents on the market this summer and has said he wants to save Jordan's contract for last. Falk also said Jordan's stated demand for a two-year, $36 million contract was absurd — as in absurdly low.

He might be right.

All Jordan did this season was win an unprecedented eighth scoring title, turn an MVP triple play in NBA Finals, and lead the All-Star Game, lead the Bulls to the best regular-season record ever (72-10), reaffirm his status as the best player of his era and conduct perhaps the greatest return from retirement in sports history.

He doesn't want his Chicago career to end now.

"I'm very positive. I believe we'll be back," Jordan said. "We did say we.

That includes Phil and hopefully Dennis."

With the draft approaching and with many other plans to be made, the Bulls must come to terms with Jackson soon or decide to go in a new direction. The Bulls have offered him $1.65 million, about twice what he made this season but about half of what untested John Calipari will receive from the New Jersey Nets.

Jackson, the NBA's career winning-percentage leader, wants closer to Calipari's salary, and put more and more pressure on Reinsdorf as the season progressed.

With the sellout crowd of 23,554 still cheering wildly after the Bulls won Sunday, Jackson said over the public-address system: "If management wants me back, I'll be back."

Jordan, who has said he'd strongly consider leaving if Jackson goes, credited the coach for most of the Bulls' success. While guiding a team with Chicago's talent might seem simple, it couldn't possibly have been easy dealing with the egos and divergent agendas of Jordan, Rodman, Scottie Pippen, Toni Kukoc, Ron Harper and others.

"As far as wanting to come back, who wants to go through this again?" said Jackson, who was named NBA coach of the year. "This is a little insane. The playoffs, the energy level, the duress on the personal life and the professional."

"But I've committed to some players on this team and that's why I feel confident I'll be back."

Like everyone else, Jackson was leery when the Bulls traded for Rodman back in October. Rodman was described as a ticking time bomb whose explosive nature ruptured the San Antonio Spurs' playoff runs the previous two seasons.

But while Rodman displayed his

Hundreds arrested after championship

CHICAGO (AP) — The aftermath of the Chicago Bulls' championship left 650 people arrested in 6 hours and 38 stores looted or broken into. City officials were happy to declare victory.

"They're just criminals," Mayor Richard Daley said Monday of those who took part in the violence.

The numbers were down dramatically from Chicago's three previous NBA championship celebrations, especially 1992's, when rioters set fire to businesses and damaged scores of police cars, city buses and subway cars. The damage that year was estimated at more than $10 million.

Daley credited police, firefighters, the media, Michael Jordan and the Bulls, and Chicago's citizens for the relatively small amount of trouble.

Nevertheless, superintendent Matt Rodriguez said the approximately 6,000 police on the streets had their hands full — especially right after the Bulls' 87-75 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics in Game 6 Sunday night.

"In the first half hour, it was almost like New Year's Eve," he said.

"There were shots being fired all over the city," added Fire Commissioner Raymond Oruzi.

The inside of one West Side drug store was nearly destroyed by looters, but police spokesman Pat Camden said damage at most of the other stores was limited to broken windows.

Sonics fans find reason to cheer

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle SuperSonics returned home Monday to an airport crowd of hundreds of boisterous, sign-waving fans who were certain this team is anything but a loser.

Mayor Norm Rice was at Boeing Field to greet the team after its defeat to the Bulls in Chicago on Sunday night in Game 6 of the NBA Finals.

"I think the Sonics embody all the things that we care about in the city," Rice said. "They showed heart. They showed character. They showed a willingness to come back and make things happen."

Blades cleared of manslaughter in surprise ruling from judge

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Seattle Seahawks receiver Brian Blades sat motionless, ably blinking as a judge ended a family nightmare Monday.

A manslaughter conviction in the shooting death of his cousin was erased. Broward Circuit Judge Susan Lebow in effect ruled the case should never have reached the jury.

Prosecutors simply hadn't proved the NFL star acted recklessly or negligently in a struggle for control of his gun, which fired a fatal shot into the chin of his best friend Charles Blades.

When the shock of the judge's ruling wore off, Brian Blades raised his left hand in the air in a "praise God" gesture as he was hugged by relatives.

"The victory is not mine, it's the Lord's. It is a tragedy, a tragedy I'll have to deal with the rest of my life. I do have faith in the man above, and I'm going to keep serving him," Blades told Seattle's KING-TV as he left the courthouse.

The judge's surprise ruling erased a verdict reached Friday that could have sent Blades to prison for 10 years.

The directed verdict of acquittal means he cannot be tried again on the same charge.

It came on a motion filed by his lawyers even before the case was to the six-member jury last Thursday.

"The judge recognized that it should never have gone to the jury," defense attorney Fred Haddad said after Lebow's decision. "She's going to get crucified for this, let's face it. She's going to get massacred."

Lebow said her review of case law over the weekend led her to accept the defense contention that the prosecution had not proved its case.

Assistant State Attorney Peter Magnino said he was shocked and disappointed by the judge's intervention-but-is-confident an appeals court will reinstate the verdict.

"I'll take the conscience of the community, and I'll rely on their judgment," he said afterward.

Charles Blades, 34, was shot to death when he tried to defuse an argument between Brian Blades, 30, and his younger brother, Bennie, also an NFL player, after the three were drinking to celebrate the Fourth of July last year.

Bennie Blades, a safety for the Detroit Lions, said outside the court that the family was elated and thankful the case was over. "God shows up just when you want him," he said.

Bennie said his older brother had never lost hope and in fact had predicted the acquittal after the jury verdict Friday.

"I know I've got a good God," he said to his brother, as saying, "When it comes Monday, I know I'm going to be a free man."

Saupras, Graf top seeds as Wimbledon draws near

Tennis' crown jewel tournament begins Monday

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Despite his strong showing on grass last week, Thomas Muster was seeded seventh for Wimbledon, five spots below his world ranking.

Three-time defending champion Pete Sampras got the top seed Monday, followed by three-time champion Boris Becker at No. 2 and 1992 champion Andre Agassi at No. 3.

On the women's side, defending and six-time champion Steffi Graf got the top seed. Monica Seles, returning to Wimbledon for the first time since her stabbing in 1993, was seeded No. 2.

Unlike other Grand Slam tournaments, the Wimbledon seeding committee reserves the right to depart from the world rankings to take into account a player's record on grass.

That was the case with Muster, a clay-court master who is ranked No. 2 in the world.

In four previous appearances at Wimbledon, the Austrian lost in the first round each time. He had never won a match on

"If Wimbledon didn't seed by rankings we would be better off having a ranking list for each surface," he said.

The committee got no favors from the seeding committee, Edberg did.

The two-time champion, who will be playing in his final Wimbledon event, was seeded No. 12 even though he is ranked No. 20.

Edberg benefited from his strong performance at Queen's, where he lost in the final to Becker.

The committee also favored Todd Martin, who is ranked No. 15 but was seeded No. 13.

Graf, who pulled out of this week's Eastbourne tournament with a knee injury, was given the top women's seed even though she is No. 1 with Seles in the world rankings.

The two were co-seeded No. 1 at the French Open earlier this month.

Irvin goes to trial June 25
DALLAS — Dallas Cowboys receiver Michael Irvin is scheduled to have his day in court June 25.

The trial date set Monday for Irvin's drug-possession case is one day later than originally scheduled. A pre-trial hearing in the case resumes Tuesday morning, a court official said.

Irvin and two topless dancers were re-indicted Friday, two days after a judge threw out their original charges because of the grand jury that indicted them April, l lived outside the county. Legal problems for the three stem from a March 4 drug bust at an Irving motel. Police said the three, along with former teammate Alfredo Roberts, were found in the motel room with drugs. Roberts was not indicted.

Irvin was charged with felony cocaine possession and misdemeanor marijuana possession. If convicted, he could face as much as 20 years in prison.

As with Irvin, Angela Renee Beck is charged with felony possession of at least 4 grams of cocaine. Jasmine Jenner Napuwang is charged with having less than a gram of cocaine, also a felony.

The women, both 22, also are charged with misdemeanor marijuana possession.

Pippen still Olympics-bound
CHICAGO — As much as Chicago Bulls management would like him to take the summer off and recuperate from his injuries, Scottie Pippen remains intent on playing for the U.S. Olympic men's basketball team this summer.

Pippen has had problems with his ankles, back and knees during the second half of the season, and their lingering effects have been apparent during the gins July 1 in Chicago, which would give Pippen less than two weeks off. Asked if that would be enough time to heal, he said, "I would think so."

Pippen has cited a desire to fulfill his commitment as a reason to stay on the team and he has seemed enthusiastic about the opportunity to play in the Olympics in his home country.

Berkeley, Calif. — A California football player charged with robbery pleaded innocent Monday.

Sekou Sanyika, 18, a highly regarded redshirt freshman linebacker, surrendered early Monday and later entered his plea at Berkeley Municipal Court, Assistant District Attorney Kevin Murphy said.

Sanyika is expected back in court June 24 for pre-trial hearings along with Edward T. Lambert, who was charged with strong-arm robbery.

Lambert, 18, who has accepted a scholarship to play football for San Jose State, has pleaded innocent.

Sanyika was driving a car carrying Lambert and another person when the robbery occurred, police said.

Authorities said Sanyika pulled over next to a man walking down the street and Lambert got out, punched the man and took his backpack and wallet.
