Inquest at Shoshone raises more questions than answers

Hearing probes 6 deaths in June in rural Lincoln County

SHOSHONE - There was no living

SHOSHONE - There was no living criminal defendant.
There was no judge.
There were no defense attorneys leaping out of their seats to object to the prosecutor's handling of winnesses.
Instead, there were more questions than answers at the onset of a coroner's inquest Wednesday to determine whether Walter Schoolcraft killed a family of five, then himself, on June 11.
The hearing, arrae proceeding typically saved for murders and unsolved crimes, began with two-hirds of the audience seats empty and the families of the victims doing much of the probing.
At the head of the courtroom, Lincoln

County Coroner Francis Bergin took the place of a traditional judge. In a jury box, seven Lincoln County residents listened to winness testimony.

The hearing resumes this morning, At the end of the week, the six jurors and one alternate are expected to deliver six verdicts, one for each of the deceased. They will look at cause of death, manner of death, whether a crime was committed, and who, if anyone, murdered them. Nine witnesses testified. Two investigators with the Idaho Bureau of Criminal Investigation said that based on their experience – but not their official training – Schoolcraft of death was susigife.

A flurry of notes came from the Schoolcraft ramily seared in the audience. They passed them to Lincoln County Prosecutor Brit Groom, the lead questioner during Wednesday's proceedings.

The Schoolcrafts wanted to know, among other things, if detectives had looked for strange footprints or anything else indicating that someone else had shot the 47-year-old bachelor in his pick-up truck.

Senate panel debates shift of agency duties

By Mark Glmein

WASHINGTON — Critics of the Department of Energy make it sound simple: the agency is a bloated bureaucraey with an ill-defined mission and an excess of Congressional pork.
Why not just put it under the Department of Defense?
The Senate's Committee on Energy and Natural Resources Wednesday held hearings on a bill to abolish the Energy Department.

Besides managing nuclear waste disposal, the Energy Department also administers U.S. oil reserves and runs and regulates research on nuclear weapons and energy.
Sen. Larry Craig, R.Idaho, came out strongly against the proposal, calling éfforts to ellminate the Energy Department an attempt to evade federal responsibility for cleaning up nuclear wasto sites.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — If you can find someone here to take the bet, you might want to put your money on Miss Idaho, Miss Nebraska, Miss New Hampshire or Miss Oregon.
They're the Miss America Pageant contestants staying at Harrah's Casino Hotel.

So what? Harrah's happens to be where each of the past two winners were saying when they won the crown. "The word was that all the girls were arm-wrestling to see who stays at Harrah's this year," said casino spokesman Michael DiLeva. GOP leaders trim agenda, eye September adjournment

WASHINGTON — Eager to ship their candidates home to defend Republican congressional majorities, GOP leaders decided. Wednesday to drop any plans for an election-season tax-cut bill. They mapped a curtailed agenda that could let Congress adjourn for the year by late September:

With lawmakers back at work after a month of political conventions and vacations, the announcement signaled that top Republicans saw little gain — for their own Candidates or GOP presidential contender Bob Dole — in forcing a long sories of high-profile vero battles with President Clinton. oth President Clinton.
Instead, they believe it best to have sumakers stumping at home, where the campaign can become a series of local races. Democrats would like to make the contests a referendum on unpopular House Speaker Nowt Gingrich, R-Ga"H's important we have the opportunity to go back and get engaged in debate back home, and not here," said Sen. Connie Mack, R-Fla., a member of the Senate GOP leadership.

To achieve their goal, leaders want

Congress to complete the 12 remaining spending bills for the upcoming fiscal year, tackle a few other issues, and leave. "I'm going to be one-dimensional here" and focus on spending bills, Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., told reporters.

Democrats expressed little displeasure that there would be no congressional fight over lowering levies.

WASHINGTON — U.S. military strikes against Iraq left Saddam Hussein "strategically worse off," President Clinton said Wednesday, but Iraqi forces still challenged American air patrols in the newly expanded "no-fly" zone over southern Iraq.

Clinton, speaking with reporters in the Oral Office, declared a success the twin U.S. cruise missile strikes against Iraqi air defense sites this week. They had been sparked by Saddam's attacks on the Kurds in the north.

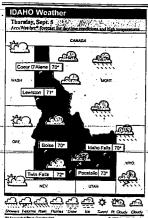

"Irm satisfied this mission has achieved the objectives we set dut for it," Clinton said in his lirst assessment of the U.S. moves, which included enlarging the "no fly" one in southern Iraq. Saddam now "knows there is a price-to be with the federal government.

The agreement limits the amount of nuclear waste flowing into the state, requires the INEL to be rid of nuclear waste entirely by the year 2035, and mandates that the federal government pay for a cleanup that could cost $3 billion.

Jeff Schrade, Gov. Phil Batt's special assistant on INEL issues, said that a restructuring of the Department of Energy would not put the agreement in jeopardy.

Opponents of eliminating the Energy Department, are skeptical-that-the-Corps-of-Engineers—with no substantial experience in dealing with nuclear waste—would do the cleanup job more effectively than the Energy Department.

With the national deregulatory wave having reached a crest, Energy Department supporters have little to worry about in the immediate future.

Officials in Congressional and Energy Department offices say there is no way the bill would past this session.

That leaves even many of the senators on the Energy Committee blase about the process—The topic-at-hand-at-Wednesday's hearing was the elimination of a cabinet level department. But by the end of a doubnet level department four hour hearing, only two senators remained in attendance.

Reaction to the latest confrontation was mixed.

Republican presidential nominee Bob Dole supported Chinton's handling of the crisis, saying Wednesday, "He's doing what he should do." Asked if the president waited too long before taking action, he said, "We'll tak bout that later. Not today."

Retired Gen, Colin Powell, who was chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff when a U.S.-led coalition evicted Irag's forces from Kuwait in 1991, said he doubted Saddam would put up any serious resistance to the new U.S. clamp on his air force.

"I'm not quite sure they're going to fly into the teeth of the Great Satan," Powell said, sar-satically using Saddam's term for the United States. "They've been there, they've done that" and lost disastrously in the 1991 Gulf War.

US West should await new technology before deciding

If you're a U S West customer, the Idaho Public Utilities Commission is considering changing your phone bill.

If your make a lot of I long-distance phone calls to towns within the Magic Valley, that's good news. If you don't, you'll be subsidizing your neighbors you'll be subsidizing your neighbors who do.

It's part of a proposal submitted jointly by US West and the PUC staff in an effort to address the burgeoning demand for toll-free calling areas, such as the one that some rural Magic Valley residents have been asking the commission to set up.

The premise is simple: Most folks' basic rate would increase, to compensate US West for the loss of long-distance toll charges.

*US West wants to set up calling "regions." Every customer could make toll-free calls anywhere within his or her own region, in exchange for a dollar or two increase in the cost of basic service for most residential cus.

service for most residential customers.

To us, that's a questionable bargain.

Part of the trade-off for living in a rural area is that goods and services tost a bit more to deliver. That's true for tractors, tacos, widgets and motor bil, and it's no less so for telephone service.

service. 7. No one would expect someone who lives and works in Twin Falls to help pay the travel costs of a commuter who lives in Shoshone and works in Twin Falls. But-that's basically-what Twin Falls phone customers would be doing under the new system. That's probably not necessary.

To non-Twin Falls readers, this may sound like an argument for continued domination of smaller towns by the bigger one. That's not the case. Rather, telephone service should be seen not only in light of immediate citizen needs but also with a view toward the coming new technologies. Telecommunications technology is exploding just now. Even in relatively remote areas such as Idaho, it's possible to get access to a variety of options, such as cellular service, and real-time, on-line, voice and picture communication.

At the moment, the phone company is the cheapest alternative. But is that still going to be the case five years from now?

still going to be the case tive years from now?

By 2005, the telephone in the front parlor in towns like Fairfield and Hollister may be a thing of the past, replaced by the more economical cellphone in the pocket, sending and re-phone in the pocket, sending and re-ceiving calls anywhere.

There are cases – phone service be-tween Twin Falls and Filer being one of them – in which toll-free calling ar-eas make sense now. Customers in Twin Falls and Filer are paying long-distance rates for what amounts to lo-cal sendre.

cal service.
But the PUC ought to make these decisions on a case-by-case basis. With telecommunications technology moving rapidly, any blanket telephone rate structure based on subsidized long-distance-charges is likely, to be programmed for obsolescence.

Why not give Dick Morris his job back?

hat is wrong with what presidential campaign adviser Dick Morris is alleged to have done with a $200-per-hour prostitute? Why did Morris feel that he had to resign after reports of his dealings with Sherry Rowlands became front-page news?

I certainly hope no one will suggest that what he is alleged to have done was wrong. By what or whose standard? And even if someone were to acknowledge that such a standard exists, we can't impose a moral code on people, can we? That's because there are some (like Morris) who obviously do not share it, and today we are taught that to impose morality is a terrible thing far worse than the immoral act itsoil. (Although we would be hard-pressed to define an immoral act in our pluralistic, tolerant, open minded society.)

Besides, to impose a moral code would be a violation of church-state separation as defined by the Suprene Court's misinterpretations of the Constitution, wouldn't it? If public officials can separate what they do in private from their public responsibilities, why can't we surmise that private officials can separate what they do in private from the influence of the constitution of the private from the influence of the constitution of the private from the influence of the constitution of the private from the influence of the constitution of the private from the influence of the constitution of the private from the influence of the constitution of the proper of the public responsibilities, who can't we surmise that private officials can separate what they do in private from the influence of the constitution of the public responsibilities, whe has they do not private from the influence of the constitution of the public responsibilities, whe has they do not private from the influence of the public responsibilities, whe has they do not the public responsibilities, whe has they do not the public responsibilities where the public respon

Not only did Sen. Craig conduct this meeting in Twin Falls, but also in Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls. In time the Arthetics left town and the Phillies left the neighborhood for a new stadium. A few years ago the Rev. Ben Smith, who is now 82, tore down the old one. The church itself seats 5,000, which is more than the Phillies and Athletics of the neighborhood for a transaction of Lehigh and 22nd, where Smith's achievements are remarkable, if unremarked. When God gave Smith a barrel chest and a big voice, He must have had a minister in mind. On a recent Tuesday morning. Smith's place was rocking with the joyous noise of worshipers and the bustle of satifattending to the 32 classrooms and an even larger number of different departments - adult literacy, youth literacy, prison fellowship, one-one-one attention to dray addicts, and much concennes in the part of the control of the part of the properties of the part of the liver order based on absolutes in an age of chaos arising from relativsm. Is that Quixotic? Smith's Sancho Panza does not think so.

He is John Difulio, 38, a Fhiladelphian born and bred, whose attachment to the city can be gauged by the fact that he still lives here while teaching a Frinceton, a long commute away. Difulio, a political scientist, says that accumulating evidence confirms the efficacy of faith-based approaches to social problems. The data are hardly counterintuitive.—Just as the density of liquor outlest in a neighborhood correlates with negative phenoment, hie density of churches correlates with positive ones. Indeed, individuals who may not thensives go to church go to the commit crimes or wind up on welfare. One such leader is the Rev. Eugene Rivers of Boston, who at age 12 was "drafted" into "the life" – Philadelphia's gang culture – and at age 18 was drawn out of that life and into the Rev. Smith's orbit. Rivers, now 42, made if from Philadelphia's mean streets to Harvard's shaded walks. He did so, he says, largely because a "thirst for literacy" was for him, as it is for some other young people in culturally barren settings, one result of a conversion experience. He is a sophisticate who really believes that "Sunday school is the most revolutionary institution."

Rivers is nothing if not succinct in his diagnosis of the central affliction of inner city youths. They have no idea of purpose or destiny arising from a sense of the six cred: He considers himself a man of the left but his cultural conservatism complements his conviction that the condition of inner city blacks confirms the primary urgency of spiritual, not political, each of the considers himself a man of the left but his cultural conservatism complements his conviction that the condition of inner city blacks confirms the primary urgency of spiritual, not political, each of officials presiding over the decomposition of the black community.

A familiar, facile question is, "Can the nation save the inner city African-American community?" That question may be backward.

There are 65,000 black churches with. 23 million adherents, most of them in inner cities. The nation thirsts for good news and grounds for hope about the struggles of inner city African Americans. Yet Louis Farnkhan becomes a celebrity on the basis of anti-Semitic and other lunatic ravings while Smith and thousands of unsung others like him remain invisible as they perform daily infracles of social regeneration.

The Rev. Rivers says that one of America's best kept secrets is that "Ben Smith coxists." Another is that African-American churches may be saving more than the decomposition of the problems of most social problems begin with spiritual rather than material betterment, they may be saving the nation's soul as well.

You thought that natural gas was a fossil fuel? Well, the genes of this organism and other methane programs tossi tuer well, the genes of the organism and other methane-pro ducing archaeons might make it possible to produce natural gas a a renewable energy supply. Discovery of the archaea also underlines, in a way no sane per-

Environmentalists agonize over the resulting dilemmis: They fear that greater public awareness of what we don't know might encourage inaction rather than be understood as the reason for greater precaution in human activities that could be changing who knows what.
The final irony in our enormous excitement about extinct. Ille on Mars and indifference to new life on Earth is that the archaea, with their preference for extreme conditions and their independence of the sur seere sy, are the perfect candidate for alien life.
One thing we know for sure.
We don't need to look to outer space for heroic science: There's plenty right here.

Report: Russian pilots unaware of location

OSLO, Norway — The pilots of a Russin jediner that slammed into an arctic mountain apparently were unaware they were about 6 miles off course, Norwegian state radio reported Wednesday. A preliminary analysis of the plane's cockpit voice recorder gives little indication of what caused the Tupolev 154 to crash last week, killing all 141 people abourd. It was the worst air disaster in Norwegian history.

The jediner's flight data recorder has been recovered and will be analyzed in Moscow. The plane, carrying mostly Russian and Ukrainian coal miners and their families, went down while approaching the airport on Spitsbergen, the main island of the Svalbard archipelage, 400 miles north of mainland Norway.

Plan for Marines on Mt. Fuji draws fire

HIGASHI-FUJI FIRING RANGE, Japan (AP) — For years, Japanese soldiers have tossed grenades and blasted how-itzers on this haggard slope of Mount Fuji.

nters on this haggard slope of Mount Fuji.

But a government plan to let U.S. Marines onto these well-worn ranges for even 10 days a year has run into a barrage of opposition — and is seriously testing already strained relations. The plan, which also gives the Marines access to four other Japanese military sites for live-ammunition drills, is part of Tokyo's efforts to end an amismilitary tempest on the southern island of Okiawa by moving the drills off the island.

Most Japanese sympathize with the Okinawans for their heavy share of the U.S. military burden. Most Japanese also see the U.S. military presence as an indispensable safeguard against instability in an otherwise volatile region. But few want Marines in their backyards.

Under the relocation plan, the Marines would have access to the five ranges for drills lasting no more than 10 days each, with a combined limit of 35 days a year.

officials say their plan would require no permanent troop transfers and no new ranges, and have little impact on the towns and villages near the relocation sites.

Even so, thousands of the training grounds' neighbors have taken to the streets in protest since the plan was announced.

"Mount Fuji is Japan's symbol of peace," said Hideaki Sato, who owns a stationery shop in Fuji-Yoshida city, near the sprawling Higashi-Fuji firing range.

"We know someone you really have to meet."

So will your taxes go up? Well, that depends.
The proposed budget is 14 percent more than last year. But a large pair of the increase is from grants not funded by local property taxes. The budget grew by $2,305,825, and of that, $1,32,887 comes from grants.
When the grants run out, the county either absorbs the cost, or the job or program funded by that grant ends, Maughan said. Reople hired under a grant are told that when the grant money runs out, their jobs end. After finger fracas, Utah warns drivers about obscene gestures

FARR WEST, Utah (AP) — Next time someone cuts you off in traffic, think twice before flipping that finger, the Utah Highway Partol warns. Use of the offending digit opparently led to an assault earlier this week at an intersection in this northern Utah community. Utah Highway Partol Trooper Dean Bowman said the incident took place about 12:20 pm. Manday. Jonathon Crig. 18, of Layton, was driving a Ford Bronco south when he signaled to turn right. A north-bound Ford Explorer turned left, cutting in front of Crig. 18.

The Explorer's driver told authorities he thought the Bronco was signaling to turn into a convenience store parking lot rather than turning at the corner.

Bowman said a 15-year-old passenger in Craig's vehicle made an obscene gesture at the Explorer's driver, who then pulled over after making the turn and allowed the Craig vehicle to pass.

"Elipping people off just strikes a match with some people." Bowman said. "We'd like to get the nessage across for people to keep their fingers to themselves." Witnesses rold authorities the Explorer next rammed Craig's Bronco three times from behind. Bowman said Craig pulled over and jumped out of his vehicle with a cell phone to call police. At that point, the Explorer's driver allegedly ran up to Craig and punched him in the Tace and then slammed Craig's bead into the front of the car repeatedly, Bowman said.

Feud may have led to horses being shot, killed

BLACKFOOT (AP) — Police say a long-running dispute between two men may have caused a shooting incident that left one horse dead, three wounded and Danny K. Poole, Firth, facing a felony charge of shooting them.
The horses belong to Dave Paulk of Blackfoot and are kept in a pasture on U.S. 91 in Wapello, just north of Blackfoot.
Friday about 5 a.m., someone shot all four horses with a 22 caliber rifle, killing one and wounding the other three. The dead horse, a cutting mare worth about $20,000, was shot six times. Her 4-month-old colt was shot five times and may be paralyzed. Another mare was wounded in the leg and the shoulder and may also be paralyzed. Her 6-week-old colt was grazed across the top of the head.

or the head.

Later that day, Poole was arrested after a neighbor told a sheriff's deputy he saw Poole's truck drive away after the shots were fired.

Call it bodice-rippers meet, family values. Call it the romance novel baby boom. Call it really popular. Romance novels — which account for almost half of all (yes, all) massmarket paperbacks sold — are pulsing with more than the hot breath and heaving breasts of their hunky heroes and spunky heroines.

their hunky heroes and spunky heroines.
These days, the patter of little feet plays a big role in getting guy and gal to march down the aisle toward happily ever after.
In an era in which society seems to be heaving a collective sigh over "traditional family values," romanier readers and publishers alike are being swept away in the roxy glow of nucleary familyhood — however it might be achieved.
"I see more and more covers with pregnant women," observes Kathleen Towne, co-owner of Trade-A-Book in Santa Clara, Calif., which boasts one of the largest selections of used romance novels in Silicon Valley. She says the trend toward using kids to bring couples together has been hot for a couple of year.

Notes Libby Hall, a Fremont, Calif., grandmother who has written 37 romance novels under the alias Laufre Paige:

"It used to be publishers wanted titles like 'Wild Heart' and 'Savage Love.' Now it's 'Baby Makes Three," Or, "And Mommy Makes Three," Or, "And Mommy Makes Three," Other titles include "The Baby Wish," "Caution: Baby Ahoad," and (my personal fave) 'Sheik Daddy," Exactly how doth kiddies bring him of the tortured look and fier of the resourceful nature together to create a family of the ideal,

Trouble spots hike Russian sense of weakness

The Washington Post

MOSCOW — In the course of the Russian presidential campaign, President Boris Yellsin and his rival president Boris Yellsin and his rival sever tired of saying Russian president Service to the Yellsin and his still a great power despite its troubles. Yelsin announce promised to create "the new Russian grandeur."

But the events of recent weeks have produced something less than grand. Once again Russians have seen potent symbols of their weakness, of their reduced pile in the world and their helplessness against a band of guerrilla fighters at home. And Russian nationalists have wasted no time in trying to exploit those symbols of shame.

First came the rebel attack in early August on the Chechen capital, Grozny, where Russian troops were routed and forced to retreat after 20 months of war.

In less than four weeks, Russia lost 500 soldiers. The army of a onetime superpower, hungry and dispirited, was unceremoniously kicked out of town.

offensive. The unspoken point is that Russia was left on the sidelines, much as it was during the NATO attack on the Serbs in the Bossian war last year.

Although it is not a burning public issue in a country still proccupied with day-oday survival, some specialists say Russia's case. of weakness and irrelevance. will make it more difficult for other countries to build bridges to Moscow and will fuel nationalists' demands that Russia turn its back on the West. This could be especially problematic in the next few months as key decisions are looming to expand the Atlantic alliance into Eastern Europe, a prospect opposed by the entire Russian political elite.

Foreign Minister Yevgeny Primakov, a Middle East specialist who has been close to Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein, has denounced the U.S. bombardment of Iraq three times in two days. In Bonn

Wednesday, he lashed out against the United States for "acting on its own initiative." The Russian government issued a second protest, charging. that. "Washington is in fact claiming the role of supreme arbiter, virtually trying to replace the (U.N.) Security Council." Communist Party-leader Gonnady-Zyuganov, who often appeals to nationalist sentiments, denounced the United States for appointing itself "policeman of the world."

Alexel Arbatov, a member of parliament from the centrist Yabloko faction and a specialist on Russian foreign policy, said in a television interview that Saddam is clearly leading a "criminal" regime but "even criminals have to be punished under the law." He criticized Washington for acting "unilaterally" without going to the Security Council first and said any action against Iraq should be based "on the force of law, not the law of force."

But Arbatov acknowledged that Russia had done the same in Chechnya. "You remember," he said, "how we waged war in Chechnya and then discussed how to introduce a state of emergency there, which hasyet to happon."

Russia's criticism of the American airstrikes against Iraq is party linked to its commercial interests. The newspaper Kommersant Daily reported Wednesday that Russian oil executives accompanied Deputy Foreign Minister Viktor Posuvalyuk in Baghdad this week. The oilmen were hoping to capitalize on trade with Iraq if U.N. sanctions were eased — an action now postponed because of the latest crisis. "One had better speak about missing profits for the near future," Posuvalyuk told the Interfax news agency on his return.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

A burden in the bush is worth hands." — James Thurber

"I did my share," volunteered West. "Had you done your share, we would have beaten his slam."
"No one could have expected more from you," replied East.
"Less perhaps, but certainly net more. Maybe I should have been in vour chair."

in your chair."
What did East mean by his

What die Eas Massell Cryptic remark?
South won his heart 10 and starfed diamonds. He led a diamond to dummy's acc and a diamond back to his queen. When East discarded, he led a diamond to dummy, finessing against West's jack:

West's jack:
South could now count 10 sure winners. His only problem was to develop his 11th and 12th winners without losing two tricks.
Choosing the correct play,
South led a club toward his king after winning the third diamond in dummy. West won and it atter winning the third diamond in dummy. West won and that was the end of the defense. Since South could win only one club trick, his only chance for a 12th trick was to try the spade finesse. It worked and South's slam went

It worked and South's slam went on the scorepad.
Why did East want to sit in West's seat? Had East been in the West chair, he would have casualip played a low club when South led a club I to his king. After the shrewd duck, should South repeat the play in clubs, hoping for the ace to be with East? Or should he able the snade finesse, risking the ace to be with East? Or should he dark the spade finesse, risking the less of a spade and a club?

With no sure way to go, the chances are good that South would have gone wrong, and a cool-headed duck by West would have defeated the slam.

Runners set to hit the road

Twin Falls, A-2 cross-country teams open today at CSI

By John Derr and Brad Bowling. Three-Newi writera TWIN FALLS - Several of the Magic Valley's high school cross country teams will stretch their legs in competition for the first time today at the College of Southern Idaho.

Southern Idaho.

Twin Falls and Jerome will be among the teams lating ir up at the annual J-Club Invitational, which is usually held on the Tigers' home turf but was moved because the golf course is unavailable. Junior warsity mores will start at 4:30 p.m., with the varsity girls starting at 5 p.m., followed by the varsity boys.

Here's a glance at this year's Bruin squad, along with the A-2, District 4 teams.

Twin Falls Bruins

IWin Falls Bruins
Coach Larry Lewis has a couple of either or situations on his hands.
The girls' team, with 20 runners, has plenty of depth but precious little experience; the 14 boys, on the other hand, boast five returning letterman, but not as much depth as Lewis would like. Junior Teresa Emery leads the girls and already is showing the results of summer workouts. She has trimmed, two and a half minutes from last year's times, Lewis said.
Tracy Wagner and Meredith Carlon, along with Nikci Danielson should provide a strong nucleus once they improve their conditioning, he said.
"I really don't know what to expect from the girls. We need to get some meets under our belts," Lewis said.

On the boys' side, Chris Fischer has trimmed 90 seconds off his times from last year, running the 5000 meters in the low 17s.

The other returners are Spencer Dixon, RobThurston, Steve Diehl and Chris Smith.

"Right now, we're working on mental artitude and getting tougher each week," said Lewis, who prediets the Pocatello girls (defending state champs) and Highland boys will be the front runners in the Region III Competition.

Minico's boys will be improved, and Sharlyn Maughan could be a state title contender on the girls' side. Burley also will field teams on both sides this year.

Former girlfriend sues Rams' Phillips

ST. LOUIS — Once again, Lawrence Phillips is in the news and it as nothing to do with carrying the football. The lanest problem is a civil lawrshir brought by a former girlfriend. Unsealed Tuesday in Kansas City, it accuses the St. Louis Ramshokie running back of beating, threatening and sexually assulting her during a two-year relationship at the University of ehresica.

Che adrice of his lawyers and his agent, Phillips wouldn't comment on the lawsuir Wednesday as negotiations continued for a possible set-tement. During the Rams open locker room period, the molde never made art appearance.

"Since he's come to St. Louis, there's been a lot of things that have surrounded his life, and not all of them very good, that he's trying to put behind him," said Phillips' agent, Mitch Frankel. "He's sometimes maybe concerned that people are going to ask him questions and he doesn't really know how to handle them."

Orlando Magic sign forward Ellis

ORLANDO, Fla. — The Orlando Magic signed veteran forward LeRon Ellis on Weshesslay Terms of the contract were not disclosed. Ellis played with the team in a summer league, averaging 8.9 points and 5.1 rebounds and shooting 54 percent from the field.

"LeRon had a productive summer playing on our summer league squads," coach Brian Hill said. "As we look toward training camp and the presenson, we are looking for quality players and people."

AFAMEDA, Callis — Oakland Raiders quarerbook Jeff Hosteeler purinipaned in full practice drills Wednesday for the first time this senson, wearing a brace to protect his sore right knee.

But fur now, Billy Joe Hobert remains the Raiders' starting quarterback for Sandry's game at Kansas City. Raiders officials said they would wait us see how Hostetter felt after a couple of days of practice.

The Raiders have lost seven straight games with Hostetler on the sidelines, a streak that extends back to last November.

Hobert, who was 17-04-25 for 192 yards, two touchdowns and two interceptions in the Raiders' season-opening 13-14 loss at Raltimore, said he was preparing to start again — but not sure if he'll get the chance.

Schlichter pleads innocent to charges

SCHILETTEEP PIECUS INTOCENT TO CRIZIGES

INDIANAPOLIS — Former NFL quarterback Art Schildater faces

new felony charges than could send him back to jail for up to 19 years.

Schilfichter, released from prison just last month, appeared in Chimiand Court on Tuesday, when automatic pleas of innocent were ensewed on two courts of forgery and one count of theft.

A pertail hearing was scheduled by Judge Gury Miller for Oct. 1.

Schilchter allegedly forged a pair of $25,000 checks stolen from his majorger in order to pay off graibling debra.

Schilchter, released from the U.S. penitentiary in Terre Haute four detention.

Prosecutor Scott Newman said the new charges arose after Brenda Jamossicy, an acquaintance of Schlichter, said the former Indianapolis Colts quarterback had solen $8,500 from her. According to court documents, Schlichter asked her to loan him the money and offered two $25,000 checks as collateral.

Andre Agassi denied it, and so did Thomas Muster. Sort of.
When they were done with their 2.5-hour showdown Wednesday night, and Agassi haunched out a 62,75, 46, 62 victory, they scoffed at their simering feud in a way that suggested that they basically can't stand each other.

"Next time I wish he would look me in the eye when-we-shake hands," Agassi said. "I feltilke we had a battle out there."

Agassi, who next goes against No. 2 Michael Chang in Saturday's semifinals, said he has plenty of respect for Muster's game, though he fell short of saying he had any respect for the man.

Though Muster obviously does. By Agassi's fan club, he means his cooch, Brad Gilbert. Muster - complained to the umpire about Gilbert and others in Agassi's box talking loudly throughout the match to distract him.

Muster's also been complaining all year about the way Agassi dissed him-for reaching the No. 1 spot for a brief time, based almost exclusively on clay court play. Agassi took special relish in Muster's seeding getting down-graded at Wimbledon, where he went from a No. 2 ranking to a No. 7 seed, and here at the Open,

NCAA probes Cal as Bozeman returns to court

BOZEMAN FCI

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Asthe NCAA looked into allegations of recruiting violations in the California basketball program, former coach Todd Bozeman prepared to head back to court to face accusations of harassment.
Bozeman was scheduled to appear in Alameda County Superior Court on Thursday morning in a case in which a former Cal student has accused the coach of threatening her and making repeated phone calls to her with 'highly sexual connotations.'
A temporary restraining order was imposed late last month against Bozeman, 'requiring him to stay away from former student Suzanne Wilson. On Thursday, Judge Dawn
Girard will consider- whether tomake that order permanent.
Bozeman, forced to ressign as Cal coach last week after leading the Bears to a 63-35 record in 3V years, has denied Wilson's acctsations and claimed she was the one who sought a sexual relationship with him.

Chorus of inflation doves has begun to grow louder

Every week, the durable idea that infla-tion is about to ignite and spread like an Idaho wildfire is tested more severely. It is beginning to wilt.

The government estimates that the country's economic output rose at a 4.8 percent annual rate in the spring, a sprint-vean of consecutive quarterly increases. Unemployment has been below 6 percent for almost two years.

Either of those conditions — consistently high growth or low joblessness — is supposed to raise the risk of inflation. Both together are supposed to guarantee interest and the supposed to guarantee interest and the supposed to guarantee in the supposed to gu of The Knights Vigilant of the Order of the Gonsumer Price Index, last week: For the first time in at least a generation, the goal of price stability is within the reach of all major industrial countries." He went on to talk at some length about how the Consumer Price Index, the main inflation yardstick, might overstate true price increases. Actual inflation could be "considerably lower," Greenspan said, because the CPI doesn't account very well for product improvements in the silicon age. For example, while personal computers cost about what they did 10 years ago,

CPI statisticians act as if today's Pentium machine is the same as a primitive IBM PC with an 8086 chip. "The economy seems irreversibly evolving toward producing more of the impalpable forms of output and, hence, making it ever harder to define price," Greenspan said. "Measurement problems obscure our vision" of inflation. This is like Ronald Reagan saying, "Well, we think the Soviet Union is an evil empire, but we're not really sure."

Greenspan has previously acknowledged under the bed. But his remarks, and his fail-ure to tighten the money supply a week prin-tion to the them to many supply a week prin-viously, are the best signs yet that he is beed-ing the swelling chair of inflation doves. The latest voice belongs to Roper Bootle, a British professor and chief economist of the piarent company of Midland Bank. "Anyone born in the last 60 years has known nothing else but prices continually rising, and it is natural for people to assume that the future is going to be simi-lar to the recent past," Bootle writes in "The Death of Inflation."

Gun cases protect gear, ensure safety

Not all firearms are expensive or irre-placeable, but all of them deserve the protection of a gur case.
With valuable guns, it is easy to see the logic of buying a case to protect a nice fin-ish or expensive wood. It is just as easy to come up with reasons why even less expensive and field-worn firearms deserve the same respect.
The basic idea of a gun case is to pro-tect the firearm. The case shields the weapon from dirt and dust that can infil-trate during a long trip into the desert. A case also keeps snow and water out dur-ing a boat ride for a late duck or deer hunt. A case also protects the gun from bumps and knocks that can runn a finish, dent a stock, or cause a scope to lead a lent a stock, or cause a scope to lead a dent a stock, or cause a scope to read a bullet far astray.

A gun case has other advantages that deserve consideration. A gun case make-the weapon much easier to handle while also darrying bullets, spotting scopes, gear bags and other shooting-related items. In fact, most gun cases have enough room for many extras such as gloves, ammo and cleaning equipment. Safety always is a consideration when handling firearms and a gun case makes the process safer. Casing a gun reminds the user to check the gun to see if it is loaded – both before putting it in a case and immediately upon taking it out. Under no circumstances should a gun be carried in a case with a round in the chamber.

Security and good public relations both are served by the use of a gun case. The image of gun owners isn't enhanced when neighbors – who may or may not be progun – see firearms coming and going near than the progun.

cles, boats, or in any situation where abuse may occur. If you can spend a little more money, aluminum eases are very strong, light and good looking.

At the other end of the security spectrum, soft cases offer protection from dirt and some abuse – but they do not afford substantial protection from bumps and drops.

substantial protection from bumps and drops.

Some soft and hard cases will float even with a gun inside, which is a nice quality when you're loading gear on or off a boat. When selecting a case, be sure to check the hinges and the closures because they are the pars most likely to fail. Make sure the closure device cannot "pop" open when the case takes a blow.

Remember, when cases fail, firearms generally wind up on the ground.

The interior foam should be firm and there should be enough to buffer the gun from outside impacts.

Finally, make sure the case can be locked or used with a paddick. You may not need that option very often, but when you do, it will be important.

Every gun, from the most expensive custom model to beat-up, old plinkers, stands to gain from the protection of a case.

No matter how you get there, or how long you stay, Alice Lake is the embodiment of wild Idahe.

Cradled in the Sawtooths, Alice Lake is tranquil yet wild

TANLEY - Alice Lake is one of many struming alpine lakes in central Idaho's lofty reaches, but it truly epitomizes what the state's wild country is all about.

It is framed by serrated, score-carped peaks and fed by imposing waterfalls that thunder down a narrow, glacially carred valley. Widflowers should the hillsides in temperate months and langry brook trout hink in the lake's cold; clear waters.

My first visit to Alice Lake occurred in my youth, in the late 1950s, when my-femily and I hilsed in for the day, I was a little cranky after a four-hour drive from Pocatello, but my disconfers wea-ished when we pulled up to the tral-head at Pertit Lake. There's also plenty of wildlife in Alice and Twin Lakes, which are located another half-mile farther up the trail.

Jousting tournament is America's oldest running sport

MOUNT-SOLION, va.—When it is right, Roger Campbell knows. When those three dangling white rings look as big as bent basket boll hooks and Persent is rolling thunder, it all herness as easy, as one, row, three.

Campbell's sport is jousting, and Ere the other competitions wishfring lacost on a dead van, he does not tilt at windless. The metal rings they capture are sometimes no higger than one quarter inch in diameter, about the size of the hole in a perpenuint Lifesaver. The top riders - on steeds that must travel 80 yards in no more eight seconds - are capable of plancing all three on lacost held horizontally at eye level.

Many of the best gathered in western Virginia, as they do annually on the third Somulay in Angust, for the oldest consentively run sporting event in the United States, the 175th Natural Chimeys Jossing Tournament. Theirs is a drama played out in Levis instead of armor, the stage a level field adjacent to one angle and a modieval fortress from another.

And it is here that Campbell, 43, of Buckingham, Va., a four-time national champion, again tested himself against the youngster.

At last year's national championships, held annually on the second Sunday in October at Oatlands Plantation in Leesburg, Va., Campbell faced Buddy-Wooter's, 23, of Denton, Md., in the finals of the professional class. There, in quarter-inch decrements, each had progressed from I-inch rings to those with the Lifesaver holes. Campbell, on his 5-year-old bay gelding, Peanut, rode lirst and pierced one. Wooters collected all three.

"Oh, man," said Campbell, who began jousting at age 9 on his father's draft horse, "these young guys are something. And when a guy is riding like that, all you can do is shake his hand."

Jousting, most authorities believe, originated in France about 1044, spreading across southern Europe and then England. Tournaments were primarily-displays of military skills, but the sport later took on social and political overstones—and chivalry eroded into free-for-all grudge matches between nobility.

—The Church of England, in fact, so-abhorred the decline in sportsmarship that it forbade Christian burial to any knight killed in a tournament. In 1252, unglet killed in a tournament. In 1252, and is the condition of the cond

Bill on waterfowl baiting laws flies in the face of Fish and Wildlife

ST. PAUL, Minn. — The banile cry to overhaul the nation's waterfowl batting laws has been more and the proposed by Ren Dan Jone Dan Jone Paul Dan Jone Dan J

In the cover letter of his draft legislation, dated Aug. 2, Young writes:
"Based on testimony received at that hearing, it is clear that a number of sportsmen in this country are being cited and fined for hunting with the 'aid' of bait, despite the fact that they are totally unaware of the existence of any bait."

The bad guys, according to Young, are agents for the Law Enforcement Division of the Fish and Wildlife Service.
Young considers the agency hostile to his cause and, according to sources, has not sent copies of his legislation to the Law Enforcement Division. Nor has be sought input from the agency on his proposed new laws.
This is a division that is out of current, one Young aide said. They have an empire to protect."

Still, bootleg copies of the hall filtered throughout the country last week to agents, who would have to endoue a week who have to endoue a week who have to endoue the rejulation, along with other efforts to change the law.

Bird thought to be extinct found in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bird species not captured in the wild in nearly 70 years has been found in Vietnam, wildlife scientists said Tuesday. Two Edwards pheasants were taken alive by villagers in the Each Ma National Park several days ago, according to Washington-based World Wildlife Fund officials who spoke with David Hulse, the fund's director in Vietnam. Spokesman Lee Poston said ome of the birds subsequently died. He said it was the first time wild Edwards pheasants had fied.

He said it was the first time wild Edwards pheasants had been found and captured in the wild since 1928, although thera were recorded sightings in 1985. In recent years, the species was thought to be extinct in the wild, although about 500 are kept in zoos in the West.

Hulse was quoted as saying the discovery of the bird in Vienam officers a second chance to save the "exquisite bird and its habitat." Officials said the bird inhabits very wet forest that has been threatened by logging and defoliant sprayed during the Vienam War but is now protected with extensive reforestation programs underway.

Poston said scientific experi-ments conducted in 1988 and 1994 in Vietnam had failed to

Wilderness of Rocks in Catalina Mountains offers symphony in stone

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — One nice thing about hiking in the Wilderness of Rocks: You don't have to rack your brain trying to figure out how the area got its name.

Just look around.
The place is a gargantuan gerden of granite, a monumental symphony in stone, high in the Catalina Mountains north of Catalina Mountains north of Tucson.

We're talking rock-o-rama here — big rocks, small rocks, tall rocks, wide rocks, balanced moks and fallen nocks strewed in erratic, grantite splendor across a vast, road-tess landscape.

Happily for hikers hooked on the beauty of nature-sculpted stone, it's possible to trek through the heart of the Wilderness of Rocks on a series of trails forming an 8.6-mile loop route.

The 'trail' begins near the observatory complex at the top of 9.157-00r Mount Lemmon.

To reach the trail head, drive up the Catalina Highway and take the well-marked turnoff to Mount Lemmon Ski Valley just before the highway reaches the community of Summerhaven. Pass Ski Valley and continue on a narrow two-mile road that ends at a parking area just under the summit of the mountain.

Those who want a breathinking bird's-eye preview of the hiding route might choose to head down the eastern leg of the loop and return on the western leg. The hike down the castern leg the properties with a short —0.4-mile—begins with a

Floridian looks to hook the prime snook-fishing nook

FORT LAUDERDALE -

FORT LAUDENDALE — The outgoing tide was about three bours old as Capt. Amby Purtill's boat gladed through the smooth, monilit... waters... of Portreversales Indet.

A Hotilla limed the seawall to the south, everything from battered aluminum johnboats to fizz skiffs to family cruisers.

It was prime time to hook a mook, and those anglers were camped on what they figured were the prime smook spot size of the Heet. He also smiled because he knew the location of those boats meant that a more troubactive smoot spot near Portrepales would be deserted.

Sure emough, Purtill had the area and the smook by thinself. Another boater lingered long erough to watch Purtill carch and release several smook, then tried fishing the firinges of the area. Unable to figure out what Purtill was doing was doing, the boater and his anglers were unable to carch a smook and the fire pilchard at the end of his fishing line swam past snook, andoesh sizes. An angler can put out a lively sand perch, but if the area is primarily inhabited by pilchardi, that sand perch will stick out like a Thone steak at a vegetarian restaurant. Now some snook, like some vegetarians, might wolfdown that out-of-place offering, but nost will sick with the regular menu.
