BURLEY - The FRI and local authorities are investigating an anonymous call threatening a local Hispanic church.

A message leift on a church answering machine Monday said someone wanted either burn the church down or assault "a few Mexicans," according to a sheriffer error.

Rodriguez said he listened to the message once and immediately called police. The cassette tape was then taken into evidence by the Cassia County Sheriff's Department. Senate bars gay marriages, rejects job bias proposal

President plans to sign measure.

WASHINGTON — The Senate dealt a double blow to gay-rights activists Tuesday, voting to reject same-sex marriage in federal law and killing a separate bill that would have-barred job discrimination against gays.

The Senate approved the Defense of Marriage Act, 85-14, sending it to President Chinton, who said he will sign it. The House approved the same bill by a 5-to1 margin in July.

Idaho's Republican Senators, Larry Craig and Dirk Kempthorne, were among 53 Republicans and 33 Democrats voting for the measure. Fourteen Democrats but no Republicans voted against it. "This should not be cause for any sort of discrimination or gay bashing." Clinton said, adding that he regretted that the discrimination bill had failed.

Conservatives halled best a validation.

he regretted that the discrimina-tion bill had failed. Conservatives hailed both votes as validation of their views.

"This is a string of major victo-ries for the pro-family movement that demonstrates on the threshold of a major presidential electrion that the political debate is moving in our direction," said Ralph Reed, leader of the Christian Coullition.

The marriage bill defines marriage in federal law as a legal union between one man and one woman and allows a state to refuse to honor a same-sex marriage performed in any other state. States sould still have the nuthority to legalize gay marriages, but the federal government would not recognize them.

"The traditional family has stood for 5,000 years. It is the oldest institution that exists," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. "Are we so wise today that we are ready to reject 5,000 years of recorded history? I don't hink so."

Twenty-six of the Senate's 47 Democrats joined Republicans in voting for the marriage bill but also voted for the anti-discrimination measure. The two votes underscored the political predictionment faced by senators who historically have supported gay rights causes. Supporters called the bill a pre-emptive strike against a lawsuit has went to trial Tuesday.

Writer Choate joins Perot's ticket

DALLAS (AP) — Snubbed by several established political fig-ures in his search for a running mate, Ross Perot picked econo-mist Pat Choate Tuesday to share his Reform Party presidential ticket.

Perot called him "a person of intellect, courage, integrity and intellect, courage, integary and grit."

Choate is a protectionist and was a strong Perot ally in opposing the North American Free Trade Agreement. He was Perot's coach for a relevised NAFTA debate the Texas businessman had with Vice President Al Gore.
"He knows the system as few do," Perot said, announcing his choice in a 30-minute infomercial on CBS. "He knows what's wrong with it. We agree what's wrong with it. His views are your views out there across America."

For his part, the campaign novice Choate said he joined Pero'ts third party ticket because government can't be reformed "from the inside."

"It cannot be changed by

"It cannot be changed by either of the two major political parties," the bearded candidate said. "... Too many people profit too much at public expense."

major party candidates. He lives in the District of Columbia and is little known outside of political circles, although he was a frequent radio talk show guest during the NAFTA debate.

Perot's poll standing has plummeted in recent months to the point where he now gets roughly 5 percent in national surveys—well off the 19 percent of the vote he garnered in 1992; to the 1992; to the garnered in 1992; to the garnered in teacher certification, said Curtis member.

How well they might do in the classrooms "is the trade-off," Eaton said. "But it's not for not decide. That's for the local district to decide. This is an enabling rule."

Local control

The proposal, aimed at school-districts that find themselves without enough certified teach-ers, would allow districts to hunt for applicants in higher educa-tion circles or the working world, Eaton said.

Eaton said.

"It would be like an engineer at INEL (Idaho National Engineering Laboratory) at Lockheed. Or someone who is working for Hewlett-Packard Co. in Boise. Or someone at Hecla Mining Co. in Coeur d'Alene," Eaton said.

According to the proposal any

According to the proposal, anyone – such as business people, artists and lawyers – could teach in the schools, Eaton said. But they could teach only for up to three years – a restriction intenddet o encourage aspiring teachers to seek degrees, he said.
Kent Just, of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerces, said he thinks the proposal has "tremendous potential" at a time when local businesses are trying to improve literacy and commuication skills by showing students how education matters to their future.

As long as they are effective

their future.

As long as they are effective communicators, employee trainers in local businesses and industries might be capable of teaching students, Just said. Such people could inspire students to understand that there is life after high school, he said.

"The students are going to get a replaced of the students are going to get a replaced to the said."

"The students are going to get a real-world perspective," Just said. "They don't have to wonder how what they are learning might adapt to a career."

Many say that elected trustees of a school district should be trusted to hire the right people even if they aren't certified teachers. Leaving 'hiring decisions up to the districts paves the way for more independence so schools can reform themselves without worrying about governmental limitations, some said.

"The communities decide how to best educate their children," said Tim Sullivan of the Center for Educational Reform in Washington D.C. "It wasn't dictated by a national union, it wasn't dictated by a national union, it wasn't dictated by a national union, it state government. Local schools used to be local schools, and i believe we were better off for it."

director of the College of Education at Idaho State University.

Before students can ponder future careers, teachers must give the students the appropriate background in a subject and test them to determine whether they have learned the subject matter thoroughly, Matrocks said.

"There is psychology, there is motivation, there is knowing where to start," Mattocks said.

"And the big thing is patience. A chemist who has been doing it all his life, I maintain, would lose patience with a bunch of high school juniors and trying to bring them up to some semblance of speed with the definition of a chemical compound."

Each year, the Twin Falls School District employs roughly 100 "guest teachers" and substitutes who don't have teacher certification, said Keith Farnsworth, director of personnel for the district.

"I think (guest teachers) are director of personata to the trict.

"I think (guest teachers) are very effective because it's something different than the routine of the classroom," Farnsworth said. Though the district prefers guest teachers to have college degrees, about 40 of the 100 have no degrees, while the rest have degrees but not teacher certification.

tion.
Teaching full-time without appropriate training could be "a real hardship for a person who didn't have that background," Farnsworth said.
At O'Leary Junior High School, eighth-grade social studies teacher Curtis Asay said none of his guest speakers have expressed a desire to teach full-time. "They don't mind it for one day, they wonder how I do it from day to day," Asay said.

Asay has even heard talk about making middle school instruction a specialized field because of the challenges associated with addlescent development and behavior, he said.

—Indeed, the state's proposal stresses that school districts should hire only noncertified teachers on an "exceptional and occasional" basis and not as a "regular hiring practice," Exitonsaid.

Although school districts may hire anyone they want, the proposal isn't intended for business people who merely share a "tealworld" perspective but can't teach, Eaton said.

"I think you do that at career days," Eaton said.

Improving education

Improving education

Across the country, other states are holding similar debates on what constitutes a quality teacher, Sullivan said.

"You see it in charter schools, which are free of many regulations," Sullivan said. "A former ballerina. The foremost scholar of Greek literature in the country." They may be "extremely qualified" to teach based on their experience and knowledge, but limited by their lack of educational training, he said.

"It's becoming more of an issue as schools strive to deliver, the best quality education they can," Sullivan said.

Rebecca Hom, a regular guest teacher in Magic Valley schools, said she thinks professionalls might loss their "real-world" working perspective after entering the datasom full-time.

It think maybe the guest they are they exist as advantage in that they have been suddenty and they have been suffered to the person thowing the students something will be suffered to the person though the person the freacher, they are the person than the person though the person that the person though the person that the person though the person though the person though the person that the person though the person the person that the per

Iraq could embarrass Clinton

WASHINGTON — Round one of the showdown with Iraq seemed like a winner for President Clinton as he punished Saddam Hussein with a shower of cruise missiles. Round two, so far, has a differ-ent look: the beginnings of what could be an embarrassment for the White House.

White House.

A week after Clinton declared that the Iraqi president was "strategically worse off; "Saddam's Kurdish allies swept unchallenged across northeastern Iraq sending thousands of anti-government rivals into flight toward Iran.

The swift rout left Saddam in virtual control of northern Iraq for the first time since 1991, when American-led forces established a safe-haven for the Kurds. Moreover, a U.S. defense official said that Iraq, defying warnings from Washington, was rebuilding air-defense sites struck by the United States last week.

"At first blush it appeared to be a great American victory, but on second thought it doesn't seem very impressive at all;" said United States last week.

"At first blush it appeared to be a great American victory, but on second thought it doesn't seem very impressive at all;" said United States and the Saddam Hussein won. But I don't think that view has penerated to the broad body of voters."

The turn of events raised the prospect of another round of U.S. air strikes against Saddam. "We are watching very carefully," White House chief of stiff Lon Panetta said Tuesday.

The battlefield news was compounded by reports about the execution of CIAbacked Iraqi disidents and the splintering of a U.S. sponsored, apposition group that Washington had hoped would help troppe Saddam. A week after asserting that reckless acts have consequences, Clinton was talking about the limits of his power to control events in Iraq.

Swarms of rumors have swirled around the case since six bodies were found in June. Some of the rumors were exotic, involving a drug deal gone awry or a complex plot to hide the true killer.

In the end, the jurors concluded that the most obvious explanation was the correct one: Walter Schoolcraft had short Denise McCoy and her four children, and then he had shot himself.

people who know the whole truth are dead.

The evidence presented at the inquest clearly points to Schoolcraft – and no one else – as the killer. And it suggests (but cannot prove) that Genevieve had indeed been sexually molested, probably by Schoolcraft.

With the victims and the suspect dead, and with no other winesses to the slayings, that's probably as much clarity as the community can ever expect. The investigators and Prosecutor Britt Groom appear to have done a competent job of gathering and analyzing the evidence. The jurors appear to have reached reasonable conclusions based on the testimony presented.

He said that he and President Clinton have "a basic condition of vision" and contrasted his and Clinton's supproach to government as the solution to our problems. "For Bill Clinton," said Dole, "the desire to help us has become an excuse to rule us Our government must not lose its compassion, but it must be forced to lose its imperial diregance."

Dole said that so much depends on getting the basic things right. That is what he meant in Sam Diego when he said he hoped the voters would allow him to be a bridge to the past. It isn't about going backward. Clinton's generation blew up the bridge. Dole wants to rebuild it in order to retrieve the values and principles we left behind in our race toward materialism and pleasure. Then, having reclaimed them, we could move into the future with our personal and national priorities straight.

If the Dole campaign decides to lob the character bomb, it must be careful that it doesn't present a "holier than-thou" artistical. The commercials should focus less on Dole and more on the standard so frequently abundoned by members of this administration and their crouses.

Idaho doesn't want Clinton

Idaho doesn't want Clinton

It's enjoyable for me to meet the various Democratic candidates who are running for legislative offices in our fine state. The No. 1 question that I have for them is, "Who did you vote for in the last presidential election?" It's obvious to everyone that, judging by the last two elections, the people of Idaho don't want to have anything to do with the Clinton administration. Elementary logic would say to me, "Do I want someone representing Idaho's interests in Washington, or do I want someone who has Clinton's interests in mind dictating policy to Idaho. The choice for me is simple; I must be one of "them" (anti-Minnick).

Books shatter popular myths about inner cities MOLLY

we extraordinary books make brilliant companion pieces:
about one of the most disturbing and politically and morally roubling crises in our country.

Inner-city powerty is one of those subjects about which too many of us think we already know as much as we need to know.

Minds made up, smug assumptions intact, pat solutions and platitudes — boot straps; "enterprise zones," "responsibility," "teen prepanary," "school vuchers" - endless bromides. "Rosa Lee A Mother and Her Family in Urban America" by Leon Dash, who won the Pulliner Prize for the series on which the book its based, and "When Work Disappears." The distinguished sociologist William For the Mother and the Completely different approaches to the same story.

IVINS

It is hard to think of more radically dif-ferent perspectives. Dash's book is, as they say, up close and personal, the inyour face story of one three-generation welfare fami-ly. Wilson's book provides the consoling perspective of social science; and yet, with its relentless accumulation of fact, it is in its way the more horrifying of the two books. But because Dash's book is essen-tially reportage on a hideous situation, in the end, Wilson's book — with its careful, nuanced, scholarly arguments—is the more hopeful of the two.

"He sees solutions that are critical for all of us, not just for poor blacks in inner cities." The problems of joblessness and social dislocation in the inner city are, in part, related to the processes in the global economy that have contributed to greater inequality and insecurity among American workers in general and to the failure of US. social policies to adjust to these processes. It is therefore myopic to view the problems of jobless ghertos as if they were separate from those that plague the larger society."

Wilson—like Mickey Kaus and others who study the inner city—believes that JOBS are the single most important answer to the sociopathologies of the ghetto.

Baptism should be a choice

Baptism should be a choice
Having served as a minister of American Baptist Churches for the past 55 years, I was appalled at the article regarding a church under the Baptist to substantidte such a practice.

One of the basic theological beliefs of Baptists is the right of individuals to make their own decisions in regard to their faith. If God wanted to take away

Hunters ought to quit whining

Hunters ought to duit willning
I am sick and tired of hearing these hunters whine like babies. When a bear or a mountain lion maims or kills a human, the first thing they do is search out and kill them. Yet when a hunter has his or her right to bait and track them with dogs threatened, they get upset and cry foul.
The purpose of hunting was to create a "sport" which was instilled in us as primitive peoples. But with the advent of guns and trained dogs, it is not a sport anymore. As for the need to hunt, it no longer exists.

The reasoning for a hunt now is that it is required to balance the population of certain animals. But aren't we the enes who upset this balance in the first place with our modern "sporting" equipment? Which is a joke anyway, since when is it "sporting" to kill an animal from 150 yards away when it doesn't eyen have a "sporting" chance. As for Mr. Busbee's letter. Emotion does have a place in wildlife management. When wildlife management. When wildlife management that's when the hands of those who don't care, that's when the problems arise and nothing is left to admire.

Environmentalist wants cows out of creek

ROGERSON - A controversial critic livestock grazing on public land wants keep cows out of Salmon Falls Creek bove the Salmon Falls Creek above the Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir.

John Marvel, a Hailey architect and member of the Idaho Watershed Project, wants federal officials to protect eight miles of the creek from the Idaho-Nevada border to the reservoir. It's an opportunity for the Bureau, of Land Management to be proactive in an area with low management priority, Marvel said during a tour of the area Tuesday.

Marvel said during a con-Tuesday.

Though they have other manage-ment priorities, the idea is not unpop-ular with BLM officials or the ranchers whose cattle graze on both sides of Salmon Falls Creek canyon upstream strays, he said.

But as for Marvel getting involved as an "interested public" in the Y-3's grazing allotment, "his part in my grazing right as far as the good of the country, is a bunch of bull—," Wilson said.

Federal grazing law allows anyone to register as "interested public" in connection with the management of a grazing allotment, Marvel said.
The Idaho Watershed Project has signed on for allotments that affect watersheds that feed water into Idaho.

Match Head sinclude more than I million acres and many degraded streams that dump silt into streams that run into Idaho, such as Salmon Falls Creek, Marvel said.

The BLM districts in Idaho and Nevada are artificially separated, Marvel said. He hopes that management changes in Idaho will pressure the BLM in Nevada to improve management on its side of the border. It would send the message: "We've done something, what are you gonna do?" Marvel said.

of time, he said.

Part of the problem with changing grazing management in the area is a matter of priority, said John Biar, range conservationist in the Jarbidge Resource Area, west of Salmon Falls Creek. acres. And after this year's fire season, the priority is fire rehabilitation, Biar caid.

Just upstream of the reservoir, the creek winds at the foot of lava cliffs, and where it widens it is lined with will lows and wild rose bushes that effectively block cattle from moving very far along the creek. But in the meadows in the wide spots, the evidence of cattle is obvious - cow pies and cropped grass. Cut stream banks in the sharp bends hint at grazing damage in years gone by and high, fast-moving water last spring.

Because of the canyon walls and thick undergrowth in many places, it wouldn't take much to keep the cows out, said Elena Shaw, BLM range conservationist on the east side of the creek that winds generally north out of Nevada into the Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir. But the area has a low priority, and other areas need attention far worse, she said.

Fencing the gaps where the canyon-widens and draws come in from the sides, and any place cattle can get down into the canyon from the surrounding uplands, would keep most cattle from getting in, Shaw said.

Sherry and Lee Satterwhite run live-stock on the cast side of the creek, and they are amenable to fenning canyon access points to keep their cows out of the canyon.

"We haven't got a problem with that," Sherry Satterwhite said. "We haven't got a problem with access points to keep up...

Their cows graze down along the creek early in the year for about two year. Their need year for about two year. Their head year for about two years. Their head years to go the day to the control of the year of the day of the day they are the canyon, Satterwhite said.

Once the cows get down in the canyon along the stream, they can be hard to find, she said.

But Marvel says it wouldn't necessarily take fences.

He would, in fact, prefer that public resources aren't spen ton fences. Instead, he suggests requiring permit holders to head their livestock to keep them out, he said.

Affordable housing must wait for federal funding

WASHINGTON D.C. — The U.S. Senate has approved $500 million so nonprofit agencles can buy housing properties and keep them affordable. Mercy Housing Idaho is in line for some of the cash to purchase the Willswood Apartments at 542 Harrison St., in Twin Falls. But the cash isn't a sure thing.

"Patience is necessary in affordable housing," said Christina Martell, president of Merry Housing, a Nampa program of the Sisters of Mercy order.

She knows from experience.

Mercy Housing waited two and a half years for preservation funds to purchase a Moscow housing project.

"I just hold the process will be favorable with 'us and something will happen so we can keep those apartments in Twin Falls affordable," she said. The purpose of the preservation program is to make money available to nonprofit groups to purchase properties instead of having them sold to private businesses that may raise rents. The appropriation for the current budget year is $524 million.

Sens. Kempthorne and Larry Craig, R-Idaho, supported $500 million for the preservation program as part of the Veterants Administration and Housing and Urban Development (HUD) appropriations, Snider said.

Ti know we can't do without the full toggessical-delegation support.

Mercy Housing already has signed an agreenent with Wills Inc. to buy the 36-urifit complex. Martell has declined to release the proposed sale amount for the buildings, which were built 23 years ago through a HUD loan program.

kept out of streams there.
Despite the fact that Ingram didn't enter a bid at an auction for the lease, the Land Board later gave him a new lease on the basis that the state would get a better long-term benefit under the ranchers.
The Supreme Court ruled Ingram could not be considered a 'qualified' bidder' because he'did not actually enter a bid at the auction.

In papers filed with the federal court in Casper, the Farm Bureau contended the legal statuts of the wolves was changed in recent weeks when the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service moved wolf pups from northwestern Montana to the park.
Federal Gifails dismissed the argument, saying the new pups automatically became part of the "nonessertial, experimental" wolf population when they reached Yellowstone.

A total of 10 pups from the Augusta, Mont., area, were brought to the park in the past we weeks after adults in their pack were killed because they had killed liveston.

Doctor admits he molested patients

REXBURG — Dr. Lavar Withers, the retired physician who pre-viously said his accusers were lying, has admitted he sexually molested patients for more than 30 years.

Withers will serve two months in jall and two years on probation— performing 10 hours of volunteer work a week — and pay 515,500 in fines.

$15.500 in fines.

He agreed to a plea bargain Monday after being threatened with 15 new charges. Although 117 women had come forward to accuse him, he was allowed to plead gullty to a single misdemeanor battery charge. But the wording of the charge encompassed offenses from January 1965 through May 1995, clearing the way for Withers' victims and their families to testify.

Panel may not require biology degree

Panel may not require biology degree

IDAHO FALLS—The tdaho Fisht and Game Commission is looking for a new department director, and may set a precedent by not requiring candidates to have biology degrees.
Jerry Conley is leaving in Coober after 16 years as head of the Idaho Fish and Game Department to head a comparable agency in Missouri.
Proponents of a new job description say the director needs an excellent background in administration, finances and dealing with he public, not biology.
"What's the director's job?" said Jeff Siddoway, commissioner from the Upper Snake River Valley. "Is his job to be out there doing the science and biology, or is he administering money, staff and programs of the department? My inclination is to say he's an administrator, not a biologist."
Opponents of the plan to eliminate the biology degree requirement say the director will be considered a politician.
"I think it's a copout for the commission," said Kent Marlor of the Region 6 Wildlife Council.

Commission approves Jail bond election

ST. GEORGE, Unh -- Voters will have a chance to decide whether to authorize a $9.9 million general obligation to build a new county jail.

jail. Washington County commissioners will bond for the jail regard-less of whether the bond is approved. But commissioner Russell Gallian says approval would allow the county to secure a lower interest-rate of about 6 percent over a 20-year repayment-period.— That would mean a savings of hundreds of thousands of dollars to residents, he said.

The commission passed a resolution on Monday to put the bond issue on the Nov. 5 general election ballot. The 437-bed jail already is under construction.

Students pack classes in district schools

MERIDIAN — Schools in Idaho's second-largest district have been swamped with 1,000 new students this year — 325 more than expected.

A crush of unexpected middle school and senior high students sent enrollment in Meridian soaring to 19,641. That means middle school and high school classes frequently have 30 to 35 students, and the district may have to ask voters for another bond issue with two years to keep pace.

"The interesting thing is that the big increase is in the middle school and high school." School Board Chairman Wally Hedrick said. "It's uncharacteristic for families to move when the children are in middle school and high school because they want to finish out in their schools."

Planting bulbs: A few hours for a springtime of color

Planting bulbs is one of the most enjoyable and rewarding ways to spend an autumn afternoon. A few hours in the garden will result in an almost miraculous burst of color the following spring when the leaves and flowers shoot up from the earth.

Tulips and daffoldils are popular spring-blooming bulbs - and with good reason. They are among the easiest to plant and grow and they come in a vast range of beautiful varieties. I have masses of relips, daffoldils and other bulbs in my gardens.

Here are some tims for planting and my gardens.

Here are some tips for planting and caring for them.

Buying bulbs

Look bulbs over in the garden center before you buy them. Or, if you've ordered them from a mail-order source, inspect the bulbs as soon as they arrive. Good bulbs are solid, firm and heavy. If they feel light, airy or soft, don't buy or use them. They should be free of any mold or rotten spots. It's best to plant bulbs as soon as you get them, but if this isn't posible, store them in a cool, dry, well-ventilated place.

Tulips and daffodis bloom in the spring, but that doesn't mean they all come up at the same time. There are early blooming mid-season and late-season varieties of each consideration when planning your garden. Do you want all the bulbs to bloom at once or throughout the spring? Choose bulbs according.

Also, be sure that the bulbs was calculated to the sure that th

Suppliers often include instructions on how to plant and grow their bulbs. If you're ordering something unusual or unfamiliar, be sure to read the recom-

Planting bulbs

Planting bulbs
For the most dramatic effect, plant bulbs in clusters of at least 15 to 20.
They'll be much more striking than just a single row or two.
I like to plant smaller bulbs, such as grape lyacinths, in with my groupings of tulips and daffodils for a truly impressive show. Plant the larger bulbs first in deep holes, then plant the smaller ones in between, in shallower holes.

The conventional wisdom says to wait till you're trapped under 6 feet of snow and 12 garden salogs to plan next year's garden. But some of ust can't dawn with delayed gratification, teant to know what's going to happen now.

to know what's going to happen now.

Looking out most any window tells me that we need more red in our garden. After the leaves are gooe and the flowers have shriveled into tan sticks, all the garden catalogs in the world aren't going to tell me that. All I can do in January is fall in love with some new color scheme and buy things that don't match anything I already have, which is a lot like some of us shop for clothes, but we won't go into that right now. We need more red or purpleleafed trees, shrubs and flowers. The purple-red leaves contrast nicely with the pale sage bluegreen and offer a welcome

You brought in splendid flowers, housplants and arrange-ments that made the flower halfflower than the flower ments that made the Hower building decorate itself. Pat your-self on the back, plan next year's garden and keep growing. Congratulations to you all. Everyone who entered and dis-played flowers is a winner.

Caring for bulbs

Water the beds occasionally in the fall and spring if there's not much rain (less than about an inch each week).

In Northern climates, mulching will protect bulbs through the winter. Cover the beds with 2 to 3 inch-sof pine needles or hay at the first hard frost. Remove the mulching asson as you see shoots in the spring. Deer, squirrels, mice and other-rodents love most bulbs so it's best to take precautions. Planting the bulbs deep is your best defense. You can also sprinkle the area with an organic deterrent, such as blood meal.

Next spring

Next spring

After the flowers fade, dead-head them and let the plants die down naturally. Don't cut back the foilage until it yellow or falls. This way, the bulbs can store their strength for next spring's show.

Teens who said no to sex grow up with no regrets

DEAR READERS: Last week I devoted two days to the wanderful responses I received from readers telling me how they just said "no" to sex. Today I'm devoting my column to more of the responses readers sent regarding this important question:

A couple of guys called me a tease, but in the military any girl who doesn't put out is either a "tease" or a "feshian." That gets the male ego off the hook for his failure to conquer.

My most successful phrase was used when the kissing got out of hand. I would say, "I have stop signs, not yield signs." And I followed it with, "When I say

Installing natural lighting in your home is inexpensive and easy

Drying flowers blooms in popularity

Sue Bunkin's fields are awash in color this time of year. Rainbows of flowers stretch across plots and paths. In mid-September, her barn will take center stage.

By then, Bunkin, who dries flowers for her own use and for sale at cart shows, has moved the show inside. Most of the flowers sale at craft shows, has moved the show inside. Most of the flowers strung on the lines are "everlastings"—Howers classified as such-because they are easy to dry. Strawflower, statice and globe amaranth are a few well-known species in this category.

When Bunkin, of Pipersville, Pa., near Philadelphia, began growing flowers to dry, she started with those. Her idea was to have something to remind her of summer throughout the year.

"It was so dreary during the winter," she said.

That was about 20 years ago—before gardening had become such a popular pastime. Bunkin remembers looking through a couple of seed catalogs and finding a few types of flowers identified as good for drying. Now catalogs from such companies as Park Seed, W. Atlete

Imagination can turn a kid's room into a private paradise

Puts well-lik, cary child's room didn't take much work – just a lut of imagination.

Knight-Ridder News Service

To create a wonderful children's room, you don't need a lot of money, although it helps. What's more important, says interior designer Cynthia Brian, is creativity.

Brian, of Moraga, Calif., who splits her time between designing and coaching child actors, is an expert in the subject. In 1950, she designed her family's dream home, but by the time they moved in, all that was left for decorating was some loose change. So Brian improvised.

Knowing her then-9-year-old son's love for sleeping outside, she covered patio custions with sheets, and erected a tent over them. For wallpaper, she thought of Justin's love for the slight sky and his country and sertled on a stars theme. That decision led to a redwhite-and-blue color scheme. An old desk and bookshelf were revived with bright, fresh paint. To finish off the look, she turned to Justin's already sisable collections of trains, tractors, toy soldiers and teddy bears.

Now that Justin is 15, there's a sturdy mattress under his third tent. The room is also growing up with him, and the patriotic theme serves him well. His sterce, for example, is hidden under American flags.
For daughter Heather, then S, Brian designed a room she had fantasized about having when she was a little girl.
The L-shapped room offered ample space to work with, providing one area with a space for a full-street, burn-sock

So how to proceed?
Basically, it's very simple. Cut the flower you want to dry, strip the leaves from the stem, group the flowers in small bundles, tie them together near the base and a cool, dry place with low light.

must be neither moist nor stag-mar.

Stems should be cut to the same length and the bunches tied with a rubber band or string about one inch from the cut end. With string, it is helpful to use an overhand knot that can be tight-each stems will con-tract as they day. In the case of strawflowers, In the case of strawflowers, which have particularly brittle stems, professionals recommend emoving the stem to about a quarter of an inch below the head and inserting floral wire into the head before drying.

Bankin cuts strawflowers to that length from the plant, saying, it increases her yield nearly ten-fold.

There are other tricks to help the process. Flowers should be cut just as they begin to open. For example, strawflowers dry best when cut just as the first two rows of petals have opened.

Flowers should also be cut when they have no surface dampness. Moisture can lead to mold and mildew and a change in color. Bunkin noted that wet conditions coupled with hot afternoons increase the challenge of when to pick.

"I'll wait till a cloudy day," she citd.

Strawflowers, she said, get mildew if there's too much water mildew if there's too much water no top.

Dampness also will affect the drying process, which could take from a week to a month to complete. The plants are finished drying when their stems are brittle. For specimens more difficult to dry, a drying medium is often used to assist the process. Sand (be sure it is very clean) is the cheapest. Mixtures such as borax and sand are also popular. More expensive silica gels are highly effective and can be used along with a microwave to speed the process to a couple of minutes.

The process is basically the same whether using sand or another drying medium. Place an inch or two of the drying material in the bottom of a container such as a shee box, laying the flower in and spooning the substance gendy over the top, getting between petals until the flower is covered by another inch or so It using silica gel, it's helpful to place the container in a sealed polyethylene bag so outside moisture is not reabsorbed.

The quickest way to dry flowers is using silica gel and a microwave, but getting the process right can involve work.

Autumn brings forth abundance of fresh food, canning ideas

It's nearly autumn, the time of harvest. Soon our cellars, pantries and cupboards will be bursting with fruits and vegetables gathered from the summer bounty. I store my winter food the easy way now. I go to the case lot sales in October. When I was a kid growing up on the farm, my mom would can bushels and bushels of food each year (it seemed like tons.) She would draft all available kids to help pick fruit off a particular tree, or vegetables from the garden. It would take a full day, usually more, to do the picking we would line the fruit or vegetables up in boxes on the porch. Then, for the next several days, Mother would keep us busy peeling, pitting, scalding, cooking filling jars, sealing jars, testing seals and finally storing the sealed jars of food in the root cellar inder the house.

The house always had a seany, fruity, almost metallic, canning smell to it. The moment you walked in, you could tell just from the smell that Mother was canning.

She lived through the Great Depression and couldn't stand to see anything go to waste. She even gleaned and canned some sugar beets that were left in a neighbor's field after the harvest one year. My father had a fit. He didn't think sugar beets were something, that civilized folks ought to be eat-

Gold's started selling horseradish in the Depression, and now has accounts in virtually every state (Hawaii yes, Alaska no). It sends horseradish to England, Australia, Israel, South Africa, Russia and Brazil.

Now reaching into a fifth generation of Golds, the privately held firm estimates its share of the U.S. market at about 70 percent, with annual sales between $15 million and $25 million.

"Fresh, fresh, fresh, "my landher has always preached to me," Morris' son Marc says over the din of machinery in the company's Long Island plant, where 75,000 pounds of horseradish roots are ground and bottled each day. "That's the key to our success."

Gold's began in 1932 with Morris' father Hyman, an immigrant from Poland. After a cousin who grade vegetables in front of a Brooklyn storefront became embroiled in a dispute with his landlord and was tossed in jail, Hyman bailed him out and wound up with the discarded grinder. He took it home to wife Tiblie and from their apartment, they decided to grind horseradish and sell it on the streets of Brooklyn.

At 11 minutes, two Wood River defenders collided, leaving a clear path for midfielder Tyson Remingson to some the second Bruins goal.

The floodgates' opened midway through the first hulf as Twin Falls scored twice in 90 seconds. Right wing Erick Martinez stored in the penulty and Santos got behind the Walverine defense for the fourth goal. The second half offered more domination by a Twin Falls team that returns many player from last year's state third-pinc fluider. Right fullback Pat Levert drilled a 29-yard shot into the top of the net, then limiter forward Penteado stuffed home a loose ball on a play created along the left wing by Santos (four assists).

"We played a very good passing game," said Twin Falls coach Elmer Blaikle, helped by Vince Gibson and Skip McFarlin. "The defense and midfield should be credited with stopping Wood River and not giving them time to pass. Stopper Jay Barmun, Nick Mayo and midfielder Justin Williams created a lot of chaos and played through the ball well." Sophomore goalkeeper Steve Dodds got the shutout.

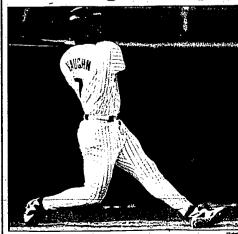

Wood River, fifth at the State A-2 tournament last fall, managed only a handful of shots on goal, the best chances coming off kicks by senior cocapitain Zach Latham.

ISDB kept the ball in the court, made good passes and serves and forced the younger players from Ketchum into numerous errors. In game one, sophomore Ida Wilding had seven service points and junior Janna White had six service points and one kill.

Raptor coach Malke Zillgirt said her girls are rapidly learning volleyball fundamentals and are having a lot of fun.
Because of the wide variety of backgrounds represented at ISDB, many of the girls don't get introduced to the sport until high echool. Zillgitt said one senior-girl is competing in her first year. For these reasons the Raptors play mostly a junior varsity schedule.
Despite any weaknesses the backgrounds or skill levels may bring into play, ISDB makes the most of what they have. The girls communicated with each other and played well enough to force Kerchum into many errors, especially on service returns.

In game two, junior Karen Ellis, a left-handed hitter, took-control. Playing at a front-line corner position, Ellis several times took a pass and found a hole on the Cutthroat court.

Teading the way for the ISDB girls in game two were junior Lilia Balls with eight service points and Ida Wilding with four. Also contributing to the Raptors' success were some timely corner links by junior Janna White and junior Kristi Bowles.

Yes, Norman may have a grudge against Graham because Graham wouldn't allow Norman to be miked by CBs at the 1994 Presidents Cup when Norman was forced to the sidelines by illness. But Norman and Thomson arent exactly cozy either. Thomson has been a vocal critic of the huge appearance fees Norman demands to play in his native Australia. The ouster of Graham mostly stemmed from the fact that the International players felt they had a better chance of winning with a different captain. That is how much-they want to win.

Split ruling protects some holes on Tour 18's copycat golf courses

HOUSTON (AP) – Tour 18, the company that duplicates famous golf course holes for the not-so-tamous weekend duffer, can keep the holes it copied from Pebble Beach and Pinehurs No. 2 course, a federal judge ruled Tuesday. This duplication, in the courtview, has weakened the Highthouse's propensity to bring to goller's minds Harbour Jonn when they encounter the rade dress of the lighthouse," wrote U.S. District, and the sold Hitmer.

The three golf courses sued Tour 18 in federal court last year, claiming their holes were so distinctive that they were protected as if by copyright.

Hitmer's camplicated 118-page split ruling found for both sides in heated debate over whether a famous golf course hole deserves legal protection.

Trade deficit steepens; productivity up modestly

WASHINGTON — Two of the economy's weak spots were highlighted Tuesday in reports showing the U.S. trade deficit widened sharply in the second quarter while growth in productivity, thekey to rising living standards, showed only a modest increase.

The Commerce Department said the deficit in the current account, the broadest measure of U.S. trade, jumped to $38.8 billion in the April-June quarter, the worst showing in a year, as higher oil and merchandise imports swamped a big gain in U.S. farm exports.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department reported that productivity, the measure of output per hour of work, edged up at anemic annual rate of 0.5 percent in second quarter. month ago, the government's prelimi-y estimate said second quarter produc-

A month ago, the government's preliminary estimate said second quarter productivity had actually declined by 0.1 percent. But analyst took little encouragement from the upward revision, sayingthat there is no sign that the country is breaking out of the vise of stagnant productivity that has constrained personal incomes for more than two decades. Productivity is viewed as the key to raising living standards. Higher productivity means that workers are producing more per hour of work, allowing employers to reward them with wage increases without threatening higher inflation. Minimum wage law includes tax, cost savings

AKRON, Ohio — While the minimum wage debate raged in Washington, local small business owners such as Jim Bunnell went about their daily routine of linding and keeping good workers. The owner of Bunnell Printing Industries in Akron pays his beginning workers 55 an hour almost 18 percent above the current 54.25 minimum, which Congress and President Clinton recently agreed to raise to $5.15 by July 1977. Bunnell's 100 workers also get benefits, such as health-cure covby July 1997.

Bunnell's 100 workers also get benefits, such as health-care coverage and access to a 401(k) retirement savings plan. And lim Bunnell expects to raise his minum wage to 56 an hour next year — not because the law requires it, but because he can't attract workers with a lower wage.

attract workers with a lower wage.

"We've been forced to raise the rate because of the markerplace."

Bunnell said. "Finding good people is our biggest challengs. The federal minimum wage is, a non-issue for us."

Although the wage hike is likely to affect most businesse and consumers in some way, Ohio employers will experience little direct impact. A mere 3-2 percent of Ohio workers, or 170,000, cam the federal minimum wage or lower, said David Garick, a nan for the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services.

this is going to hurt, "Geiger said.
The tax and cost-saving measures were combined with the wage increase to soften the blow to business. Bur advocates like employee benefits that could find and keep workers.

"Those people looking for jobs aren't looking at just wages but at the entire compensation package," Geiger said. "As we have a smaller and smaller labor pool, 50 percent of our members report having trouble finding people. They've got to offer incentives."

Those incentives will be easier and less costly to offer under some provisions of the "Small Business Job Protection Act of 1996."

The most exciting provisions expand and simplify employee pension benefit plans, as well as make them portable from job to pension benefit plans, as well as make them portable from job to

For instance, "savings incentive match plans" — essentially simplified 401(k) retirement savings plans — allow employees of businesses with 100 or fewer employment of the control o nans — allow employees of busi-nesses with 100 or fewer employ-ees to set aside up to $6,000 a year before feederal taxes. Employee contributions can be matched by their employers in a few different ways, aid Suzamo Spisals, senior pension consultant for The Benefits Group, a benefits consulting firm in Independence, Ohio.

Ohio.
"The practical effect of that is small business owners using a simple plan don't have to pay $500 to $1,500 a year to a planned administrator any more, " said Neil Kingskinn, partner in Akron law firm Fortney & Kingskinn. Also, the simple plans allow business owners greater freedom to contribute to the plans. Under 401(k) plans, contributions of owners or other "highly compensated" workers are limited by what Jesser-paid workers contribute.

what Jesser-paid workers con-tribute.

NFIB spokesman Jamie Wickett applauded the pension simplification rules.

"Only one in five small business owners even offers a pension plan," Wickett snid. "Mach of the reason for that is the complexity of existing rules associated with qualified plans. The new pension prion isn't burdened by rules."

Other pension benefit provisions make nonprofit groups eligible for 401(k) plans, allow relatives working in family businesses to earn their own retirement benefits, and allow spouses without paid jobs to countibate up to $2,000 (cather than the current $250) to individual retirement accounts.

MUSICAL B18

"The wrong way always seems the more reasonable." она. — George Мооте

How would you play today's neart game? Many would hope for reasonable breaks: either a win-ning trump finesse or the dia-mond king onside. As you've alning trump finesse or the dia-mond king onside. As you've al-ready guessed, there's another mond king onside. As you've all-ready guessed, there's another way, one that would not reveal it-self to a casual analysis. The obvious line is to win the ace and king of spades and ruff a spade in durmy. Dummy strump ace is cashed and a trump finesse loses to West's queen. After South ruffs West's spade exit, he draws the last trump and horse to find sice is claimed unit in during interest of the control of the cont with a spade to dummy's ace and ruffs another low club, setting up dummy's fifth club. Finally, South ruffs his last spade in dummy and leads dummy's last club. West can ruff or not; it doesn't matter. If he ruffs, South's trump jack is the trump jack is the ick. If he doesn't game-going trick. If he doesn't, dummy's fifth club provides the

THE THEISEN MOTORS

WE SATISFY MORE!

Theisen Motors, the top Lincoln/Mercury dealer in the state of Idaho. No fleets or commercial vehicles, but family cars delivered one at a time to smart customers who demand quality & value. For over 43 years Idaho families have put their trust in Theisen Motors for automobile excellence.

Winners of the prestigious Chairman's Award, Ford Motor Co.'s Bighest award for sales & service satisfaction, judged by our customers. Unprecedented in the industry that one of the largest value dealers is also #1 in customer scarces first class service. Top notothmerchandise, genuine Lincoln/Mercury parts and convenient service brown. These are four good reasons for OUALITY, SERVICE, KNOWLEDGE, EXPERIENCE & PRIDE—Honda ranks Theisen Motors as one of the top dealers in customer satisfaction in both sales & service.

THE THEISEN MOTORS COMMITMENT:

The dictionary defines commitment: 1) A pledge to do something. 2) The state of being bound emotionally or intellectually at a course of action. Commit to place in frust or charge; to entrust. To pledge to a position, to bind or obligate by a pledge. For over 43 years we at Theisen Motors have been committed to selling and servicing automobiles one way—to always sfrive for perfection.

OUR PLEDGE TO YOU:

- To give the finest automobile service anywhere in the United States.

 To always try to "Put ourselves in Your Shoes" in solving a service problem.

 To be professional in sales, service and
- leasing.
 To make our customers' ownership an enjoyable and rewarding experience.
 To the Easiest Place in the World to

You can't buy trust...you have to earn it. That's what Theisen Motors has been doing for 43 years: earning the trust & confidence of the people of Idaho with a total dedication to complete, long-term
