WaSHINGTON — Stirred by an international study showing that U.S. students are mediocre in science and math, education officials. Wednesday called for tougher and more challenging classes.

Results from 41 nations showed American middle-school students fared slightly above average in science compared with students of the same age from other nations, but scored slightly below average in math.

"One of the clear messages of this report is that we need to take a good, trard look at what we teach," said U.S. Secretary of Education Richard Riley.

The students' performance should not be blamed on teachers, Riley said, but rather on a system that fails "to give our teachers the opportunity to enhance their skills."

Idaho's telephone industry—particularly its long-distance service—has been partially deregulated since 1988, US West spokesman Clint Berry said. About 150 companies offer long-distance service in Idaho, but residential and small business service still is regulated, he said.

The federal law, signed in February, directed the Federal Communications Commission to come up with new rules. That rurned into 700 pages of new regulation—perhaps not what Congress had in mind, Berry said.

The rules tell the telephone company how to operate, and

Surprised guard squires tourist-in-chief

Assuming the role of tourist-in-chief, President Clinton made a surprise early-morning, visit Thursday to Sydney's Opera House and found an astonished security guard to lead a tour. The president also went on a shopping spree with his wife and bought a Coccodile Dundee-style hat.

One day after winning a standing ovation with a speech in Australia's Parliament, the president privated from business to pleasure. His only official duties were a brief speech to the people of Sydney.

"This is a magnificent place," Clinton declared. He praised Australia as a remarkable nation of immigrants, always willing to

The verdict marked the first time school officials have ever been held liable for anti-gay vio-lence against a student, said Peg Byron, public education director for the Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund, a gay-rights organization that represented Nabozuy. "I think this will send a very clear message to school dis-tricts," Nabozuy said. "It is time it stopped." Spy suspect to plead innocent WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA officer Harold J. Nicholson plans to plead innocent to charges of spying for Russia and Wednesday won additional court-appointed legal help to fight the case.

At a surprise hearing, U.S. Magistrate Thomas R. Jones Jr. (Aranted the request by Nicholson's attorney, Jonathan Shapiro, to appoint an additional defense lawyer to help him. Jones also said Shapiro would be allowed to submit a request for a budget for defense investigative purposes.

Shapiro, who was appointed to represent Nicholson Monday, is in a two-attorney law firm, and said he had never tried a spy case before.

Democrats recommend finance reform

MASHINGTON (AP)

WASHINGTON (AP)

Congressional Democrats, on the defensive over accusations of party fundratising misdeeds, recommended Wednesday an urgent move to reform the campaign money system early next year.

Ninety House Democrats and two Republicans signed a letter to Speaker Newt Gingrich, Real and Minority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., requesting passage of "comprehensive and meaningful campaign finance reform" within the first 100 days of the congressional session that begins Jan. 7 In the Senate, Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said he hopes the chamber will take up the matter within its first 60 days and urged Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss, to make it a priority.

"Nothing would send a stronger

Lott, R-Abiss, to more in a pro-ty.

"Nothing would send a stronger message to the American people that on a bipartisan basis, we're going to clean up the system," Daschle told reporters.

Gingrich did not mention the issue Wednesday in a speech to House Republicans. The House schedule for early next year allows little time for floor consideration of any legislation.

CIA official. Both would defense refute a portion of the government's case against Nicholson, Slapiro said. The subpoena request was dropped when Assistant U.S. Attorney Rob Chesaut said the government would not raise those aspects of the case at a hearing Monday to determine whether Nicholson is released on bail.

Nicholson's formal place.

Nicholson's formal plea of innocence likely would come later at an arraignment some time after a grand jury returns an indictment.

In an interview before the hearing, Shapiro said, "We will be pleading not guilty and we intend to fight the case very hard."

Initially, surprised prosecutors feared Jones had moved up a hearing scheduled for Monday to determine whether there is enough evidence to send Nicholson's case to a grand jury. That hearing also will examine whether he should be denied bail because there is a risk of flight or because he may pose a danger to the community. The government also will call witnesses then, seeking to establish probable cause to believe Nicholson has committed espionage.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—
The United States collided with its NATO allies on two fronts this week: the new peace force in Bosnia and whose generals will command what in a revamped alliance. Wednesday's meeting of the North Altantic Council, the Wednesday's meeting of the North Altantic Council, the alliance's top policymaking body, broke up without agreement on a time limit for the force that will replace the current peace mission in Bosnia.

On Monday, the council ordered Gen. George Joulwan and his planners at Supreme Allied Headquarters to put together a plan for a new Bosnia force of about 30,000, half the size of the mission that expires on Dec. 20.

Some U.S. proposals were left for discussion, including an 18-month cap on the mission and reviewing the size of the new force every six months. The United States also popose any increase in the new force for the elections. Several unbassadors needed to consult their governments before accepting Washington's cap, one official said on condition of anonymity.

Today and Friday, NATO military chiefs of saff will discuss who will be in charge of the alliance? major headquarters in southern Europe. The United States is adamant the command remain American and the French are determined the post in Naples, Italy, go to a European.

NATO is in the process of streamlining industing cutting the number of military headquarters from 65 to about 20.

Right now, Americans hold the two major commands. All the domains of the command commands and the three regional commands. The other regional commands. The other regional commands. France says Europeans should command the regional posts, especially if one of them is eliminated in the restructuring, as planned. The question of command har risen to the level of heads of state, with an exchange of letters between President Jacques Chirac of France and President Clinton.

Viewers get 1st glimpse of Yeltsin since surgery

MOSCOW (AP) — In his first

MOSCOW (AP) — In his first television appearance since heart bypass surgery, Boris Yeltsin strolled slowly around the grounds of the Kremlin hospital Wednesday and declared: "I'm in a fighting mood."

The brief clip showed a considerably thinner Russian president bundled up in a traditional Russian fur hat, plaid scarf and a jacket to ward off the chilly November wind. He leaned slightly on the left arm of his granddaughter, Masha, and his wife Naina and younger daughter, Tayana Dyachenko, were at his side.

"I can't say I'm fully, firmly and strongly on my feet, but the doctors did their job," Yeltsin said on the grounds of the Kremlin hospital.

The stroll was taped after Yeltsin had his sitiches removed Wednesday. The chief Kremlin doctor, Sergei Mironov, said the 65-year-old Yeltsin could be released from the hospital Thursday of Friday.

Yeltsin will spend several weeks recuperating at his courty home outside Moscow or at a government health resort before returning to work in the Kremlin.

Common sense never deters half-baked causes

It's remarkable how many useful exam-ples of how not to govern that we Western-ers can learn from our California neigh-bors.

ers can learn from our California neighbors.

The latest lesson is the peril of hallot bloat – the practice of putting just about any question before the voters via the initiative process, no matter how silly and ill-conceived.

Two years ago, a voter-approved initiative process, no matter how silly and ill-conceived.

Two years ago, a voter-approved initiative prohibiting illegal aliens from receiving most government services, including education, was ruled unconstitutional by a federal judge before it took effect.

Earlier this month, California voters approved an initiative that legalized the use of marijuana for medical purposes. (Marijuana eases nausea among some cancer patients and strimulates appetite among some AIDS victims).

Trouble is, the authors of the measure neglected to use the word "prescription" in their proposition.

As a result any Tom, Dick or Harry – be they desperately ill or in the pink of health – marijuana for their health.

And through that loophole, an army of pot-trepeneurs has driven a veritable fleet of cannabis-laden trucks.

Already, an estimated 20,000 people have purchased marijuana through large ethoyers' clush" – now perfectly legal.

As California's law is now written, state law enforcement authorities say the chance of getting a marijuana possession conviction is practically ny ill.

Possession of marijuana is still against federal law, but three just aren't enough DEA agents available to police the rapidly expanding legions of therapeutic potheads in the Golden State.

So what were California voters thinking about sent their state's drug laws up in smoke?

They probably had too much to think about. This year as in every election year, the California ballot was aramed with dozens of state and local measures covering everything from affirmative action to sewer district bond issues – upon which voters had to pass judgment in a few minutes.

To that confusire add 2000.

toters nate to pass jungment in a tew min-ter. That confusion, add millions of dol-lars of dueling TV ads about every issue on the ballot, and it's no wonder that Cali-fornians were baffled. Alexander Hamilton once observed that when democracy spares no question the whims of popular vote, it makes every question a trifle. Making laws, Hamilton believed, ought to be the legislature's job. But getting dozens of fractious lawmak-ers to see things your way takes time and money.

It's much easier to pass around some pe-titions and roll the dice in the ballot crapshoot.

California's pot smokers may have come up sevens this time, but for the Golden State, it's just one more lame brained statute. No wonder California leads the statute. No wonder California leads the nation in lawyers. Thankfully, Idahoans have never em-braced a riot of referendums. There were just four initiatives before the state's vot-ers this time, and three of the proposition were thrashed soundly – as they richly de-served to be.

nt could change. As One Percent But that could change. As One Percent Initiative backer Ron Rankin + who not coincidently came to Idaho from Califor-nia - has demonstrated time and again, common sense is never a deterrent to half-baked populism.

When you wish upon Ken Starr..

hitewater independent counsel Kenneth Starr has mostly kept quiet in recent months, neither seeking indictments has mostly kept quiet in recent months, neither seeking indictments against higher-ups in the Clinton administration before the election nor responding to attempts to assassinate his character by functionaries in the White House and the Clintons' former business partners in the jailhouse. Now, Starr is beginning to fire back. In a speech to the Economic Club of Detroit carlier this month, Starr spoke of the importance of civic virtue. Citing James Madison, Starr said civic virtue meant to the Founders "that individuals, as they pursued their self-interested goals, would feel a commitment to justice, to civility and, above all, to truthfulness. Without these traits, the individual cannot be a true citizen. And without virtuous citizens, the framers believed, self-government will ultimately self-destruct."

Start succinctly and accurately sum-

Starr succinctly and accurately su marized what the misdeeds collectiv known as Whitewater are about. No known as Whitewater are about. Not only do they concern events in Little Rock when Bill Clinton was governor, said Starr "It is also about questions – and I stress that they are only questions, which we are very far along in examining – about the integrity of the official processes of government in Washington. It is about whether participants in Washington later deceived federal investigators trying to reconstruct those processes of government." That is not third-rote stuff.

Clinton defenders, including the president himself, have tried to undermine Start's credibility and integrity. He has been called a fartistan who is out to get clinton. Start last week compared himself to Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, a Democrat, who was fired by Richard Nixon.

The Clinton people bristle when Whitewater is compared to Watergate, but Jerry Zeifman, former chief counsel to the House Judiciary Committee, thinks the linkage is apt. In his new book, "Without Honor: The Impeachment of President Nixon and the Crimes of Camelot," Zeifman offers fascinating insights into two people who were principals in the impeachment efforts against Mr. Nixon, who are also key players in events under investigation by Start's office.

Two names surface again and again in Zeifman's book. They are Bernard Nassbaum, former White House counsel who was one of 40 attorneys hired by then House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino, and a Zeyear-old Yale Law School graduate named Hillary Rodham, also on the committee staff.

Law School graduate named Hillary Rodham, also on the committee staff.

Zeifman writes, "I came to regard

Doar (John Doar was a special counsel to the House Judiciary Committee), Nussbaum and Rodham as somewhat less than honorable lawyers, unworthy of either public or private rust.

Week after week," writes Zeifman, "Howel agad opinions and dubious procedural rules were being churned out by Nussbaum and Rodham. Each of them fostered delay. They had to be shot down one by one by a coalltion of Republicans and bemoerats feel by fir O'Neill and Montan and the short of the sho by Doar..."

Starr need not worry about attacks on his integrity. But Zeifman has compiled a formidable dossier on the ethical flaws and questionable character in several people now at the center of Starr's investigation. When the indictments roll in, the Clintons will be on very shaky ethical ground.

Idaho won't miss Willis' money

I was intrigued by a picture of Norma Douglas, one of the leaders of the "Stop the Shipments" proposition in a recent issue of The Times-News. She was lean-ing against a broken-down fence. I think she needs to mend her fences in more ways than one.

I accomplished two things by voting "no" on the Proposition Three question. No. 1: I supported Gov. Batt in his contract with the feds regarding nuclear waste. No. 2: Bruce Willis said he would move out of state if the proposition failed, "naybe." We will miss him and his money like a bad case of the hemorrhoids.

A Jerome school bus pulled out from Tiger Drive and turned to the west without stopping at the stop sign. I was approaching the intersection from the east. When the bus ran-through the approximately 50 feer between my vehicke and the school bus. The action of the school bus necessitated evasive action on my part to avoid a collision.

This bus was No. 13, and I have a good

I have observed another practice of the Jerome school buses that deserves immediate attention. They have a practice where one bus will start through a stop sign and several more will follow the bus that started like a funeral caravan. — I called the owner of the Northside Bus Co. and reported my observations to the owner. I asked him to call me back, that I would appreciate a report of the action taken on this incident. Heresponted "fliat he would handle it and would not be calling me back" I think the citizens of Jerome County and especially those who have children riding the buses should take a closer look at these contracted services.

Do I need to remind The Times News that they were addressing members of the party of Abe Lincoln? It is no secret that Lincoln had to put up with the same type of drivel over his opposition to slavery such as, "We're pro-choice about slave ownership – how dare these extremists my to give freedom to these animals?"

Lincoln had to negotiate these rough waters continuously. The more "sophistic and moderates" of the day urged the debate toward safer issues such as economic development. take the robust denote about to occur within the halls of our Legislature, that? OK. Political discourse was never intended to be a garden parry. What does it profit our culture if we are immersed in wealth while our children's generation goes down the toilet?

—Another real stretch claimed by The Times-News was that the 1990 legislative HB 625 somehow caused the demise of the Republican Parry in Idaho. Wrong, Inept campaligning caused the losses. (The left's main architect that designed most of the losses against Republicans was David Ripley. After losing his own son to the lie of "choice," he is now fully prolife. Death of Hiss leaves many questions

He lied about transferring his car through Chambers to communists, and about not remembering how he had disposed of the Woodstock typewriter on which some incriminating documents had been typed. He lied by omitting from a list of former maids the one to whose family he gave the typewriter. He was convicted of perjury (the statute of limitations saved him from expionage charges).

In 1978 historian Allen Weinstein, who began his research believing Hiss innocent, published his definitive "Perjury The Hiss-Chambers Case," based on 40,000 pages of previously classified material and interviews with 40 people involved in the case but never before interviews with 40 people involved in the case but never before interviewed, including Soviet agents who confirmed Chambers' testimony. Weinstein's conclusion: "There has yet to emerge, from any source, a coherent body of evidence that seriously undermines the credibility of the evidence agains Mr. Hiss."

What emerged after the end of the Cold War would have made peace hell for Hiss, had he been susceptible to guilt or even embarrassment. A Soviet gener embarrassment, a Soviet gener emental production of the serious pressured by a Hiss emissary to say there was no cridence of Hiss expionage. The general later decument confirming Chambers' approach in the Uniteration archives, was the 1930. From Hungarian archives came documentary evidence (from nother Harvard-educated American spy) that Hiss spied.

You know how we all ing 15-year gap in our understanding of modern history? In was 1960 before I noticed much myself. The gap is getting worse in some school systems, the textbooks still haven't gotten gus to the moon. Those kids are going to have a large blank to fill.

Over the years, I kept hearing people talk about this Hiss case, so I finally went back and did a reading binge on the subject. I found it such an amazing historical monstrosity, like uncovering some horrible wound all full of pus and gangrene, still sending out mephitic vapors decades later. Arthur Miller's celebrated analogy, "The Crucible," is probably still the best text on the topic. For me, the interesting part was not so much whether Mr. Hiss had

As Rudyard Kiphing more or less said, to keep your head when all about you are losing theirs is a nifty trick.

By now, we should be able to look on this gross historical curiosity with some dispassion, but its poison spread long after the case was over, mostly because Richard Nixon remained active in our political life and political imagnation [or 50 long. And Nixon said himself that he would have been nobody wilthout the Hiss case.

The advisory group, prompted by the Legislature and appointed by the Idaho Land Board, on Wednesday heard a very preliminary outline of what the state could expect if it managed non-wilderness Federal forest.

The study only considered three northern Idaho forests the Panhandle, Clearwater and Ner Perce, said Winston Wiggins. Lands Department assistant director. He conceled those forests produced more commercial timber than those to the south, and much more than extern Idaho.

BOISE — Idaho will try to avoid its. If its losing record since 1981 Saturday when-the-Vandals-travel-to-Boise-State-for the finale of both teams' first season of NCAA Division I.A football.

"It's the biggest game of the year for both teams," Idaho head coach Chris Tormey said. "It'll be the last game the seniors play in. It'll be the game they remember."

The Vandals are 5-5 overall and 2-2 against Big West Conference opponents, including last week's 24-17 loss at North Texas. The Bronces are just 2-9 overall and barely won their first Big West game in four trels last week at New Mexico State.

And while Vandals quarrerback Ryan Fien second in the nation only to Wyoming's Josh Wallwork in total-offense and Idaho has lost to the Broncos only once since 1982, Boise State quarrerback Tony Hilde and receiver Ryan Ikebe are intent on ending their careers with a victory in the 26th meeting between the two schools. Ikebe broke the Bronco career record for receiving yards last week, catching six passes for 171 yards and three touch-downs to bring his career totals to 160 catches, 2744 yards, 27 bunchdowns. Hilde, meanwhile, passed for more than 200 yards in a game for the 25th time in his career. He is the Boise State career leader in almost every passing statistic. Senior defensive end Chris Wing also will be playing his last game for the Broncos, if the trainers let him on the field after spraining his knee.

Cross: ISU will stay put

Bengals' athletic director says school will remain an anchor in Big Sky Conference

TWIN FALLS - A man who has made a career out of relocations is now standing behind the Idaho State University athletic program as it stays put.

Irv Cross, whose tour of duty took him from the halls of Northwestern to the Philadelphia Eagles and Los Angeles Rams of the NFL to the CBS brondeast booth and part-owner of a CFL team, is now keeping the Bengal athletic program in the conference that the other two states shools recently abandoned.

"I feel very strongly that ISU will be an anchor in the Big Sly Conference in the years to come," said Cross, the first-year athletic director in Pocarello.

Cross was in Twin Falls speaking to rotary club members Wednesday afternoon.

Men Idaho and Boise State left to join the Division I-A Big West Conference this year, Idaho State was left, without its traditional intrastate rivals.

The Benegals had two choices: Stay in the Big Sky and try to schedule the Broncos and Vandals, or move up to IA.

"Our radiitional rivals are not encouraged to play us because they need six wins against Division IA opponents to be able to go to a bowl game," Cross enid

But that won't stop the intrastate squads from playing, he added.
"I've talked to the other athletic directors, and we're all in agreement. The question is how to do it to where it's best for everyone."

In addition, a jump to I-A would be a tremendous expense for the Bengal program for a number of reasons.

Any increase in the men's sports would have to be met with the same in women's athletics, Cross noted, and the school would have to offer 85 scholarships, an increase of more than 33 percent of the current allotment.

Plus, the school would have to commit to a new, 30,000-seat stadium and sell at least 17,000 season tickets for four straight years. The Bengale current stadium, Holt Arena, seats 12,000.

"I see us staying in the Big Sky Conference, and expanding within theoneference," Cross said, noting that Holt Arena will itself be expanded to seat 20,000.

But there is method beyond the obvious to the decision to back the Big Sky Conference. Cross, who is very involved with the NCAA, is privy to a few of its plans.

"In the next two years, you're going to plans.

"In the next two years, you're going to see the Division I-A superpowers break away and form their own condition," Cross said. "The top 50 teams will play each other for more television revenue. The lower schools will be forced out."
When that happens, there would likely be a merger between the lower I-, schools and the upper I-AA schools,

Olajuwon's heartbeat returns to normal NBA games - B3 physician.

Moseley said Olajuwon, 33, could be released from The Methodist Hospital within the next day or so, depending on test results.

Team officials expected Olajuwon to be sidelained for five to seven days. The abnormal rhythm, or arrhythmia, appears similar to the irregular heart beat he had in 1991, Moseley said.
"It resolved and he did well, and we hope it's going to do the same thing this time," Moseley said.

Doctors were optimistic further tests would show no problems. They do not believe the reoccurrence stems from any degeneration or abnormality of the heart.

"Barring unusual findings in further tests, we hope and expect that this will resolve and that he will go on and do very well," Moseley said.

Moseley described the superstar center in "reasonably, good" spirits Wednesday.
"He was feeling a whole lor better—now that his rhythm was back to normal," said Moseley, describing the irregularity as a "disconcerting leeling."
Moseley said it was not known when Olajuwon would return to the court, but that doctors would have a better idea Thursday.

Thanks due Legion coach for dedication

We wish to thank Roy Slotten, chairman of the American Legion Baseball, for the many years of work, dedication and support to the American Legion Baseball program. Just as coach Don Hornback will be. It's really sad to see such a wonderful coach be unwelcome in Twin Falls. He dedicated his heart to the "boys of summer," only he did this year round. Even during the off sesson, he was spending time with the players. He really cared about them on and off the field. Coach

Good luck, Don. Wherever you go, you will be missed a lot. And thank you, Rey, for all you have done and all the miles you've driven the bus. You're a real classic. IJM AND TERESA HYDE to some pundits, it is also "a game of life" (long hours of hard work, sacrifice, persistency, dis-appointment, exhileration, cappointment, exhileration, exhileration, exhileration, tars). The football players of today – the national and commu-nity leaders of tomorrow! The 1996 varsity edition of "Bruin" football reflects the total embodiment of those qualities that parents would hope and pray for in their own children. I would be proud to walk on the stage of life anytime and any-where with this fine group of young men. I salute you, Bruins! Your success and actions extend far beyond the foot ball field. NEW YORK (AP) - Spaniards Arantxa Sanchez Vicario and Conchita Martinez pounded their way Wednesday night into the quarretfinals of the $2 million Chase Championships. Martinez, with help from trainer Kathleen Stroia, outlasted Judith Wesster of Austria-6-1, 36, 6-4 before Sanchez Vicario downed big-hitting Brenda Schultz-McCarthy of the Netherlands 6-1, 7-6 (7-4). In the quarrets, Martinez will Jaly Iva Majoli of Croatia, while Sanchez Vicario will take on fith-seeded Jana Novotna of the Czech Republic. Novotna advanced by downing South Africa's Amanda Coetzer 6-4, 6-1 to complete the first-

His $7.75 million average is second in baseball behind the $11 million average in the deal Albert Belle and the White Sox agreed to Rusday.

The breakdown for Smoltz's contracts $7 million in 1997, $7.75 million the next two years and $8.5 million in 2000. The club also has an option for 2001 at $8 million.

"He showed last year how very important he is to the fortunes of our club," Braves general manage of John Schuerholz said. "We're absolutely delighted to have John Smoltz back as a member of our organization."

Smoltz worried that the Braves, knowing his desire to stay in Atlanta, would offer a deal at less-than-marker value. But his agent, Lonnie Cooper, said Schuerholz made clear from the start of the negotiations that he was willing to spend to keep his pitching staff together.

Pitching has been the dominant factor in Atlanta's success this decade: five division titles, four NL pennants and one World Series title.

"I'd like to put on a show at Vail. I've kind of been robbed of it a little bit the last couple years we've been there, and I'm ready to show the home crowd that I can do it on home turf."
Neither Street nor Tomba figured to be much of a factor in the two GS races — women on Thursday, men on Friday — with Tomba only a possible contender in Sunday's men's slalom.
The prime contender in Hursday's opener is expected to be Germany's Katja Seizinger, the defending World Cup overall champion and winner of the sea-son-opening GS at Solden, Austria.

The top man is Switzerland's Michael Von Grunigen, winner of five GS races and the World Cup title in that discipline last season. He was third in the Solden event behind teammate Steve Locher, who likely will contend again.

The slaloms feature returning champions as well – Sebastian Amiec of France and Elfi Eder of Austria.

Ex-Knick Mason leads charge; Sonics halt Bullets

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Anthony Mason and Vlade Divac overshadowed Larry Johnson's homecoming Wednesday night by helping the Charlotte Hornets nap a four-game losing skid with 93-86 victory over the New ork Knicks.

York Knicks.

Mason, acquired in the July deal that sent Johnson to New York, had 20 points, five rebounds and four assists against his former team. He also helped get Johnson in early foul trouble on the way to the Knicks' first loss in six road games.

Divac had 17 of his 23 points in the second half for his highest point total of the season. He also added 13 rebounds as the Hornets defeated the Knicks for the 10th time in 13 games.

Johnson, who played his first live seasons with the Hornets, picked up two quick fouls — both while guarding Mason — and finished with nine points and four fouls in 27 minutes.

Patrick Ewing had 18 points for the Knicks, who led by 13 just before the midway point of the third quarter but turned it over 10 times in the fourth.

Charlotte point guard Muggsy Bogues, playing for the frist times since Nov 3, had six points and 10 assists. Bogues left early in the fourth quarter, once again bothered by pain in his left knee, but returned with 44 seconds left.

Hollins, Anaheim ink 2-year deal; DeShields moves to St. Louis

NEW YORK (AP) – Just one day after Albert Belle got a record $55 million deal from the Chicago White Sox, John Smoltz set a new contract standard for pitchers, re-signing with the Adlanta Braves for $31 million. In other free-agent signings Wednesday, third baseman Dave Hollins agreed to a $38 million, two-year contract with Anaheim and second baseman Delino Deshields agreed to a $1.9 million, one-year contract with St. Louis. sign deals three years or longer for a higher average salary. If the White Sox don't raise him to at least the third-highest salary, Belle could terminate the deal and become a free agent again.

After losing Belle, Cleveland was among the teams pursuing Smoltz, a 29-year-old right-hander who led the majors last season in wins (24) and strikeouts (276).

Smoltz, coming off a $16 million, four-year contract, gets 57 million in 1997, $7.75 million the mext two years and $8.5 million in 2000. The Braves have an $8 million option for 2001.

Next up are extensions for Greg Maddux, who won the Cy Young Award from 1992-95, and Tom Glavine, who won it in 1991. Hollins, 30, played 121 games with Minnesota and 28 with Seattle last season, finishing with 5 action 2001. He will be season, finishing with a 262 average, 16 homers and 78 "RBIS. He drove in 93 runs in 1992—and-again in-1993, but has been bothered by hand injuries that required three operations.

"The last two months of the 1996 season I felt like my old self again," Hollins said. "I couldn't play my better for the Mariners than I did, but they made pitch in each of the next two seasons

"He has a chance to fill more than one need, at third base and first base," said Angels general manager Bill Bavasi.

DeShields, 27, was signed by the Cardinals as a reclamation project. His best years were in Montreal, where he hit. 292 in 1993. He had been mostly a disappointment in 1992 and .295 in 1993. He had been mostly a disappointment in three years in Los Angeles, slumping to a .224 average last season with 124 strikeouts.

"It was a number of things, mainly nagging injuries," DeShields said. "A lot of times I shouldn't have been out there, but I played."

DeShields, who made 53 million in each of the last two seasons, gets 51.6 million in 1997. St. Louis has a 53 million option with a $300,000 abouput.

St. Louis also thought about randing, for or signing other available second basemen, a group that "includes Jeff King of Pitsburgh, Ryne Sandberg of Calordo.
"In the long run, we felt that belino gave us our best option, because we didn't have to more gage our future by trading away prospects and we still have some lexibility to make additional moves to improve the team for 1997," said Cardinals general manager Walt Jocketty.

Charges reduced in wake of chief's death

JEROME - The reduction of a charge in the May traffic accident death of Shoshone's police chief was based on the facts of the case, the county prosecutor said.

This week, the charge against Lane was reduced from felony vehicular manslaughter to misdemeanor vehicular manslaughter.

ccording to court documents, Lane

a Jerome County sheriff's deteche had dropped his two-way radio rophone and swerved into oncoming traffic when he reached over to pick it up. The sheriff's department's investigation also concluded Lane was speeding at the time of the wreck, court documents said.

The felony charge was filed against Lane shortly after the accident. He pleaded innocent during a May 30 arraignment in magistrate court and was released on his own recognizance. The case later was assigned to District Court Judge Daniel Meehl.

But the prosecution and Lane's court-appointed attorney filed a joint motion

Tuesday to have the case sent back to magistrate court on a misdemeanor charge.

Horpan said misdemeanor vehicular manslaughter carries a maximum penalty of a $52,000 fine and a year in the county jail.

Lane's attorney, Marilyn Paul, declined to comment.

Jerome County Sheriff George Silver III, who worked closely with Cox in Lincoln County, said he hopes the charge reduction will mean a quicker resolution of the case, "so everyone can get on with their lives."

Thanksgiving potluck tame stuff for local club

Simple meals take backseat to skydiving

By Kent McCleary Times-News writer

Twin FALLS - A potluck is a bit more sedate than some of the activities members of Friends in Recreation Opportunities Group jump into.
Skydiving, whitewater rafting and sking are among the more spectacular. The group met Wednesday night at the Valley Christian Church for turkey and stuffing, mashed potatoes and gray. It was a full Thanksgiving dinner, but not really different than the potluck medla shared each month: some and go d a way to celebrate free-many control of the state of the control of the wheelchar, but also friends and the next outing.

topics may include getting new tires on the wheelchair, but also finends and the next outing. When dinner is served, the crowd at the serving line may include as many people on four wheels as on two feet. And that's what makes a gathering of the group known as FRGG a way to promote activities for members. "The focus is to help people with disabilities do things people think we shouldn't do," said Mary Hammett, FROG's coordinator, with a laugh. Hence skydwing.

Said K.C. Dye, "There's no such thing in our club as can't, ..."

"You either want to do it or you don't," chimed in Pat Small.

But activities alone aren't FROG's focus. "It's more social, and a support group," said Veda Danuser.
"For some people, it's a big step just to do this (potluck)," Steve Hammett said. "The point is to make all activities available to people. If they just want to do the potluck, that's fine, if they want to go out to do the macho stuff, too, that's cool."

Local lawmakers seek Group pulls plug on idea more bus service dollars for computerized system

TWIN FALLS - Local lawmakers are worried that a proposed public transportation plan could shortchange the Magic Valley,

A proposal from the Idaho Transportation Board would place a $1 tax on most tire sales in the state to generate $1.2 million in state money. That money could then be used to red in four times that amount in federal dollars for public services such as buses and vans.

But the money - if approved by the Legislature - is likely to generate a kingsine squabble.

Public transportation is becoming increasingly important to a growing Magic Valley, where more seniors and Medicaid patients need rides to doctors' appointments, and more people are communing to work and the shops.

But the dollars also are coveted by other areas of the state.

The Southern Idaho Medical Information Network announced Wednesday its decision to relinquish a U.S. Department of Commerce grant because it could not raise $4.8 million in matching funds.

The money would have been used to bay-equipment and software to start up the next-work and keep it running for two years.

The plan is to link bogstins, doctors, the public health department and other bealthcare providers so they can share patient information with an automated patient-record system. The system helps avoid duplication of tests for patients, said David Hart, executive director.

"It isn't a failure. It's an experiment that didn't work," said Dr. Georpe H. Miller of Twin Falls, the network chairman, "We thought we could beat the odds." The nonprofit network of hospitals, physicians, and other health care agencies will reorganize at a Feb. 19 meeting. Miller said.

The board tried several ways to raise the needed matching money and believed it was cope to succeeding. Miller said. Then three weeks ago, initial participants Elko General Hospital and Gooding Hospital dropped out, saying they could no longer fund the project.

said the search party will take today off while two dog teams comb the area.

"We are going to stand down as far as all searchers go (today) and allow the dog teams to work. If they can find a clue we will deploy some people and try again Saturday," he said.

Femiling is also trying to recruit other dog teams from around the state to help with the search.

Searchers had thought there was a good chance they would find clues in the area they covered Wednesday.

"We covered a lot of territory today

Cable choice on Rupert's horizon

RUPERT - Project Mutual Telephone officials have asked the city for a franchise agreement that will allow them to offer cable television service. "It's a competitive business, and by getting a franchise we obviously think we can compete," Project Mutual attorney Bob Nielsen told the City Council Tuesday. TCI Cablevision is the only cable provider in Rupert. PMT hopes to have a franchise agreement by Jan. 1, Nielsen said, and begin installing its system next year.

Bollar said the Mini-Cassia Community Chest will be a non-profit organization to receive donations for the building fund and to lease the property, once the IRS approves.

Donations will pay for almost the entire building project. Chamber Director Rae Smith, who will chair the building fund once paperwork is complete, said the chamber will launch a campaign to raise about $14,000 for the 2800 square foot building.

Other tax-exempt programs may also operate out of the new office, Bollar said.

As a result, the network board told the commerce department it would give up the grant.

The board also decided to lay off Hart, hired in June.

"When Elko and Gooding drupped out. — the other institutions ddn't feel they could fund a full-time employee until we had reorganized." Miller said. No date was given when Hart, would leave the jub.

Twenty-eight doctors, Minidoka' Memorial Hospital, Magic Valley

Regional Medical Center, St. Benedicit's Family Medical Center and the South Central District Health Department are among network participants.

Miller still believes the network will become a reality. Health-care providers, particularly physicians, are enthusiastic. Many hospitals and doctors are already setting up their own computer networks which can be linked later.

"There is no turning back now," Miller said.

Filer board considers high school model

es-News correspondent

FILER - Filer's new high school may show up on plans for fair-ground expansion, School Board officials decided Tuesday. But the fair board first must accept the School Board's counter-proposal.

John Pitts, Twin Falls County's fair manager, proposed inclusion of the high school in a $50,000 scaled model of planned fairground improvements. The 3-D model would take in the square mile on which both the fairground and the high school sit, and would represent the Filer district's plans for the Elbool site, including a football stallman and baseball field. In return, the fair board asked the district to gray $1,000 of the bill.

"It could be helpful when it came roughly for the stall stall the stall sta John Pitts, Twin Falls County's board members wouldn't accept it.

"I don't think they will agnee to that, but fillhave to run it by them," he said.

• Terry Walton will be hired as the new assistant wrestling coach at Filer High School. Almost 40 kids turned out for the wrestling team this year, requiring an additional coach to help with practice supervision and training.

A parent and weight lifter, Walton previously helped the high school obtain equipment for the weight room. This will be his first coaching position.

• The board reviewed faulty doorstops and other construction problems at the new high school.

The building is under warranty for one year, and the list of problems will be given to contractor Sout Hedrick Construction for repair.

The board may buy reverse fold bleachers for the top decided to the high school gym. The bleaches would fold up while not in use to allow space for other school activities. The board also discussed partially replacing the upper-deck safety bars with a Plenglas pertition to allow for better viewing of the gym floor.

The School Board began a fine-star review of its school hard, program in hopes of committing costs while still providing healthy meals. Last vear, the program ended nearly $25,000 over budger.

Raging hormones worry teen's grandpa

DEAR ABBY: My grandsons are 16, 18 and 20 years old, and they all have girlfriends. Each also has his own bedroom.

When I visit my son's house, a few times each week, the boys are always in their bedrooms with their girlfriends—with their odors closed, supposedly listening to music or watching a more to reaching to music or watching a more to reach their own, or outside in their pond, and choose not to disturb them. Abby, knowing teen-agers have raping hormones, I don't this this is a very good policy, but I don't feel it's my place to say anything.

attitude is, "Get with it - this is the "90s," - whatever that's supposed to mean.

What do you make of this, Abby?

OLD-FASHIONED

BEAR GRANDPA: I'm "oldfashioned," too. What goes on behind closed doors could be perfeetly innocent, but I see no reason why your grandsons can't watch movies or listen to music with their doors open. Young people need some privacy, but too much of a good thing can result in temptations too intense to resist.

Talk to your son and daughterindaw and share the wisdom of your years by suggesting an open-door" policy.

BEAR ABBY: When I was in

One evening, when the meal-I had prepared was even worse than usual and Joe had nevertheess complimented me, I asked, 'Joe, you know that food was hardly fit for human consumption. Why do you always say it's good?"

"I come from a family of 11 children," Joe answered. "My mother would spend all afternoon in the kitchen preparing the evening meal. Then, one night when she called us to the table, there was only a plate at each place with a pile of hay on it. My father looked at it and asked her, 'Jessie, what is this hay doing on our plates? Mother said, 'Oh, you noticed' This is the first time any of you have ever given any indication that you know what was on your plate!"

Nose to nose with the 'big griz'

I got a little nostalgic the other day when I recalled the time I almost killed my brother. It wasn't a case of sibhing rivalry, this was morral terror—the fear of being eaten alive. It was Labor Day Weekend, 1984 and we were keen to climb a prominent mountain south of Livingston, Montana. Specifically, we wanted to knock off one of the most impressive peaks in the Absaroka Range, Mount Cowan, which dominated the view from my brother's home.

He was a business professor at Montana State University and I was doing daily journalism in Bozeman. We couldn't skip out of work, so we got a late start on Friday afternoon—hitting the trail sometime after 4 p.m. Neither of us had been to Elbow Lake, where we intended to camp, but we knew it was an eight-mile hike on a trail that led more or less straight up. The weather looked good and we still had a few hours of daylight. Climbing Cowan seemed like a reasonable undertaking.

Clouds began to appear after a few miles, then a light rain started to fall. Not to worry.

Clouds began to appear after a few miles, then a light rain starred to fall. Not to worry, we rold ourselves, we'll be at the lake soon. The start of the conditions and daylight reworsened as we ascended and daylight the worsened as we ascended and daylight the worsened as we ascended and daylight the worsened as we ascended and daylight the start of the start of the trail, but the path wound through steep, rocky terrain. There was no place big enough for a tent. We had to keep moving. We finally reached the lake moments before total darkness eclipsed the gloom. There was no time to scout for a "nice" campsite, so we threw the tent together at the first level spot.

Actually, the site was more concave than level. Water pooled beneath the tent and the floor soon rippled like a waterbed. We gave silent thanks that Td waterproofed the seams a few days before.

Even so, it was disconcerting to know that soggy sleeping bags were only an "opps" and an "oh no" away.

And then there was the food.

Given the inclement conditions, we hadn't show the start of the start of and immediate fear for his life.

Rudely jolted awake, my brother tried to defuse the struction by putting his hand on my shoulder. I was far too keyed up for that to calim me, so he grabbed my forearm and began tugging violently.
'Oh, no," I thought, "his resing me in now!"
If Td had a pistol, Tm convinced my brother would have died in a haid of gunfre. As it was, the bediam went on for a good 10 seconds before I realized that he was not the enemy. His only crime was snoring too loudly.

LIER - A symphony of noismon on as fundaded my dog for a Saturday hunt. Siamming car doors, loud voices and blaring whistles heralded the arrival of four pheasant hunters and their three dogs. They were loud, but I didn't mind them hunting the adjacent farm - where they probably would scatter wary pheasants into the field where I planned to hunt. Scouting for a place to hide, I heeled my dog and headed for a low spot in the wheat stubble. Beau, my lah, sprawled on the ground as I dropped to my knees.

The air vas filled with noise.

Fredictably, pheasants filed in advance of the approaching hunters-stately out of range of their shotguns. Several hens and three roosters landed in the study of the state of the spot where they landed.

Moving into the wind, Beau raised his nose and settled onto a track. His tail swung rhythmically back and forth as his body gyrated to the beat. Moments later, a rooster erupted from the wheat stubble, then crumpled from the wheat stubble, then crumpled from the blast of my shotgun and fell to earth.

The second rooster held fightly, then last his next and base the light, then last his next and base the light, then last his next and base the lightly, then last his next and base the lightly, then last his next and base the fightly, then last his next and burst into the air the second rooster held fightly, then last his next and breat his of the part of t

Solitary hunters face a dilemma when trying to cut off escape routes. To swing the odds back in their favor, lone hunters are most effective when they walk from escape routes into areas of heavy cover.

To people with disabilities, the Rocky Mountains more than live up to their name. They're wild, rocky and inhospitable. Yet many have found ways to enjoy the wilderness with the right gear or facilities, training, support—and a strong will.

A handful are like John Davis, a 25-year-old Vail, Colo., resident who lost the use of his legs after a car accident, and whose idea of fun is careening down rocky mountain-like paths at 50 mph in his custom-built wheelchair.

The planning group has been focusing on overcrowding, visitor condities sepecially between Sciens and snowmobilers, safety and resource damage not only in the parks but the adjacent forests, which have different use standards. The point is to reduce conflicts, assure a high-quality experience, protect wildlife, and other resources, increase safety and reduce the amount of noise and pollution from snowmobiles while accommodating the gate-way communities's reliance on winter business. "It'll be a joint product," Sacklin said. "Then it's up to each unit to DDT disrupts calcium metabolism in female birds, causing them to lay eggs with unusually thin shells that are easily crushed when adult birds sit on them during nesting.

Merlins and peregrines have absorbed particularly high concentrations of DDT because they only eat other birds and so are near the top of the food chain.
"The banning of DDT was of course very important," said Steve Spangle, an endangered

"I think there's a better awareness now about the importance of raptors, whereas they were more likely to be shot in the old days," he said.

When weather turns, compass can save a life

By Dave Curtin orado Springs Gazette Telegraph

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.

Russ Carpentier has traveled more miles in the backcountry than most people wrack up in a lifetime. He's caretaker at Barr Camp on Pikes Peak. And this summer he backpacked 420 miles of the Colorado Trail.

He and his three companions were well prepared for their walk from Buffalo Creek, near Deckers, to Durango. They had nearly 20 topographic maps detailing their route and, of course, a compass. They thought they knew how to use them. But early in the trip, near Breckennidge, Carpentier that they were too the standard of the deckennidge, Carpentier that they were too the standard of the deckennidge, Carpentier in the trail he picked the wrong one. a little battered, but a lot resinance. "I figured how hard can it be to read a topo?" Carpentier said. "Well, it was hard. It's very meniculous. Every line means something."
It's rare that backcommy travelers in Colorado's mountains have to roly exclusively on a map and compass. Trails are generally well marked, landmarks fairly obvious, draimages pretty easy to follow.

obvious, drainages pretty easy to follow.

Most of the time.

But when the weather closes in, the trail becomes a confusing mare or a descent requires a specific route through bands of cliffs, your life can depend on how well you use a map and compass. And when crunch time comes, most reciple find they can't use them as well as they thought.

That's, what, 20, students, Learned at a recent map and compass class at a recent map and compass class at a recent map and compass class at Fountain Creek Regional Park. The popular three-bour class filled so quickly that a 'second class was formed from the hikers, fishers and hunters on the weiting list.

Why is it so popular?

"In the place we live there's opportunity to utilize these skills," instructor Put Grove said.

"People want access to backcom-try areas and they want to be comfortable reading a map when they get there. Some people have had exposure to a map or a compass but want to learn how to use them together."

Here's a primar on basic map and-compass skills all backcounty travelers should know.

While a Forest Service or Bureau of Land Management map covers a wide area and includes road and trail numbers; it doesn't have topographic information and by itself is insufficient for cross-country travel. Topos can be found at most mountain shops and some books. There's tons of information on these (topo) maps, "Grove said.

The first thing Grove checks for an his topographic maps is the scale, usually shown on the bottom center of the map. The standard for topographic maps is set by the U.S. Geological Survey (USGS). The most popular are 7-minute maps (one inch on the map equals 24,000 inches on the ground, or about 25 of a mile).

The building blocks of the topo are contour lines that show the steepness and lay of the land: diffs, passes, mountains, ridges and ravines.

Always check the legend for the contour interval, because it can range form 10 feet to 100 feet. On the typical USGS 7-minute map, the contour interval is 40 feet, which means every contour line represents an increment of 40 feet, which means every contour lines that show the steepness of the contour interval is a fleet, which means every contour line the presents an increment of 40 feet, which means every contour lines that show the steepness in the map before you use it, Grove says. USGS maps include the date of the original map. The date is important because the landscape is not static Roads are built, trails fall into disuse or a rock slide map before you use it, Grove says. USGS maps include the map before you was it, Grove says. USGS maps include the proper contour line represents an increment of 40 feet, of the app before you was it. Grove says. USGS maps include the part of the contour line represents an increment of 40 feet, which means every contour lines are any changes on the map before you use it. Gr

In Colorado it ranges 10-14 degrees East.
(Note: The "N" indicator is found on the compass dial, the direction-derayed arrow is fixed on the compass housing, and the needle always points to magnetic north).

Hold the compass so that the needle, the "N" indicator and the direction-of-travel arrow are all pointing in the same direction (magnetic north).

"Turn the entire compass until the needle is pointing to the degree of declination indicated en your map. Be sure to turn the entire compass, do not rotate the compass dial.

After you have turned the compass dial.

After you have turned the compass, the needle will be pointing to magnetic north, but the "N" indicator and direction-of-travel arrow me pointing to true north on your compass. The angle between the two is the declination. If your declination is 124 degrees east you can mark this on your compass dial for a ready reference when taking bearings.

To use a map and compass together, spread the map on the ground, put the compass on the map and orient it to true north (remember to take the declination into account). To do this, rotate the map under the compass so that the legend shows true north is lined up with true north on the compass.

The result: The map, compass and terrain are aligned with one another.

Women's Voices poll speaks of solutions - and questions

Now is the beginning of the time when nd-of-the-year employment surveys are end-of-the-year employment surveys are released.

And one of the best I've come across is about women at work.

It comes from the Women's Voices project, an ongoing study by the Center for Policy Alternatives in Washington.

The center's national opinion poli, conducted in August, surveyed a diverse group of 1,361 adults, 300 of them men. In addition to the questions, which included those about work and family, it alsa asked for solutions.

And that's why I like it so much.

Some of the findings:

"Women are working harder than ever at home and on the job," the report begins.

• 64 percent of the working women surveyed make half or more of their family's income; 55 percent of all married women earn half or more of their family's income.
• 83 percent work full time; 79 percent of married women with children work full time.

full time.

• 75 percent of women say they do the family chores.

• Women report their higgest problems are combining work and family and receiving equal pay for equal work.

• One-third of the women under age 60 say their retirement will be "financially insecure."

insecure." Some of the solutions:
"Women see family as central," the report says, 'but they also see an important role for government, and they are willing to put strong demands on business."

Women strongly favor tax incentives to fund expanded child care and the creation of more small businesses — even if it means higher taxes.

They want a better partnership with their employers to solve problems such as child care and retirement insecurity.

Women want businesses to use profits to raise wages and to provide more education and training, child care and health insurance.

life — and a better life.

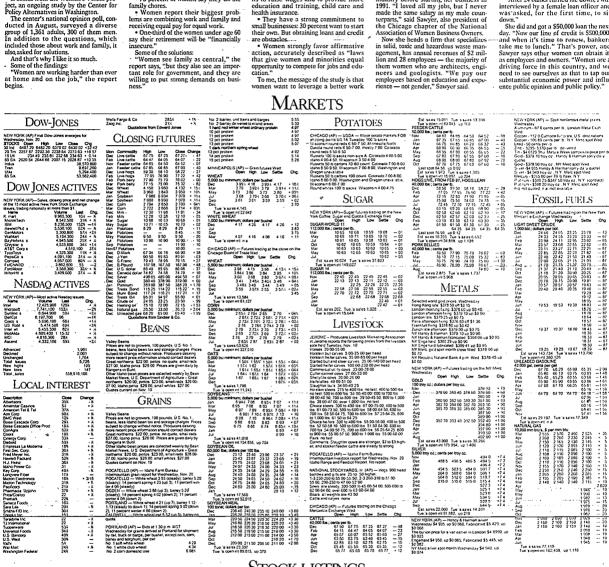

Deborah M. Sawyer; president and CEO of Environmental Design International Inc. in Hillside, Ill., did just that.

Sawyer has a master's degree in lettoleum microbiology from Eastern New Mexico University in Portales and worked for the government and private industry before starting her business in 1991. "Il lowed all my jobs, but I never made the same salazy as my male counterparts," said Sawyer, also president of the Chicago chapter of the National Association of Women Business Owners. Now she heads a firm-that specializes in solid, toxic and hazardous waste management, has annual revenues of $2 million and 28 employees — the majority of them women who are architects, engineers and geologists. "We pay our employees based on education and experience — not gender," Sawyer said.

Starting her own business was hard, the entrepreneur remembers, echoing the survey's finding. "When I went for bank loans, they looked at me and thought, 'Young, female, black, single, (no man to take care of me) and in a high-tech field! — and they were all strikes against me, 'Sawyer said.

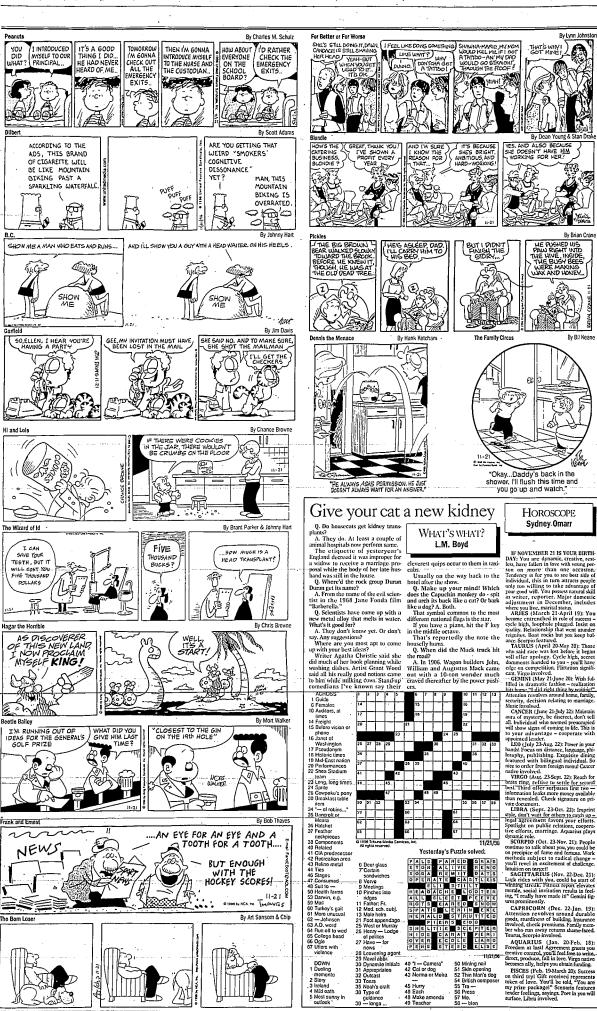

"After 24 banks turned me down, I was interviewed by a female loan officer and was 'asked, for the first time, to sit down."

She did and got a $50,000 loan the next day, 'Now our line of credit is $500,000, and when it's time to renew, bankerstake me to lunch." That's power, and Sawyer says other women can obtain it, as employees and owners. 'Women are a driving force in this country, and we need to see ourselves as that to tap our substantial economic power and influence public opinion and public policy."

PCs, TVs battle for consumer

Producers aim for eyeballs, Intel's chief says at annual trade show

LAS VEGAS — Intel Corp.'s Andrew Grove declared war on the television set Monday, saying the personal computer is competing with TV for the hearts and minds of conwith TV for the hearts and names sumers.

"In this war, he who captures the most eyebals wins," said Grove, Intel's president and chief executive, in the opening keynote address at Comdex, the computer industry's huge trade show.

"Consumers will have a choice between looking at the TV or interacting with the PC," he said. "We are in competition for these consumers, for their dollars and their leisure time."

"But this war, he who captures the most eyebals with a company to period and the company to the company time."

More than 210,000 people have packed Las Vegas for Comdex, an annual ritual of traffic gridlock, long lines and promises of major technological breakthroughs.

In his speech, Grove said a true rivalry between the PC and the TV will be made possible largely through advancing technology in the computer chips his company makes.

technology in the computer chips his company makes.

Currently, television is the clear winner for offering an evening's worth of entertainment. The laterate may have a lot of information, but most video on PCs is jerky and fuzzy.

But the playing field will even next year when PCs can offer broadcast-quality video, Grove said. Before a packed auditorium, he mused a PC-to-demonstrate-chips-from-the-movies Twister, and Space Jam. The images and sound were both clear.

Grove said the war with the TV is necessary for Santa Clara, Calif-based Intel to continue the pace of its rapid growth.

Intel, the world's largest semiconductor maker, is largely responsible for driving growth in the PC industry by producing generation after generation of faster chips.

That path requires ever more expensive factories. A plant like the one Intel said last week that if plants to build in Fort Worth will cost more than $1 billion. If trends continue, latel foresees factories costing $10 billion in the next century.

This is going to sound awfully arrogant, but I think when it comes to digital TV, the television industry is trying to play catch-up with the capabilities that are readily available in personal computer technologies.

> -Andrew Grove, Intel Corp. president and CEO

"The economics of our industry only work if we have large numbers of users demanding our technology." Grove said, "There are only about a third as many PCs as TVs installed worldwide... We still have a long way to go.

Grove's comments Monday were a strong departure from the vague of long way to go generate mether successive and PC convergence that are generally put forth by technology industry executives.

As that thinking goes, TVs would become more interestives, while PCs would offer more necessives. We would be comenced the control of the property of the property entertainment.

But Monday, Grove dismissed TV industry's technological progress. A reporter asked him what effect the efforts at developing high-definition TV would have on the war for consumers' attention.

"This is going to sound awfully arrogant," Grove said, "but I think when it comes to digital ITV, the television industry is trying to play catch-up with the capabilities that are readily available in personal computer technologies."
Grove said two basic technologies will soon come together to vastly improve the quality of motion video on PCs, which was first available only four years ago.

capability a single chip will have in four

In reflecting back on the 25 years since Intel invented the microprocessor, Grove noted that the company has often underestimated the pace of technological change.

Seven years ago, for example, latel estimated that the microprocessor of 1996 would operate at a speed of 150 megahertz and perform 100 million instructions per second. In fact, Intel's best chip's today run at 200 megahertz and perform 400 million instructions per second.

IBM helps Dow hit another milestone

NEW YORK (AP) — Less than six weeks after its first close above 6,000, the Dow Jones industrial average crossed the 6,400 mark for the first time as stocks advanced broadly involatile trading Wednesday. A late wave of profit-taking reased another sharp gain by IBM and other technology beliwthers, but other blue-chip shares picked up the slack as eight-month low in an afternoon bond market rally. The Dow industrials rose 32.42 to 6,43002, the 10th record close in the 11 sessions since Election Day for the barometer of 30 big U.S. companies. The Dow has risen in 120 file last 13 sessions with a gain of 408.09 points, or nearly 7 percent, over that stretch.

Big Blue bounces up

The Washington Post

There have been no big product announcements, expense reductions or rosier profit forecasts at International Business Machines Corp. in the past week. But since Friday, the giant computer company's stock has surged 51.75 to a nine-year high, apparently spurred on by favorable comments from several influential Wall Street analysts.

"Institutional investors now are viewing this stock as a relatively safe way to play technology," said William J. Milton, a computer industry analyst at in New York.

The new spurt began on Friday with a favorable report from a Merrill Lynch & Co. analyst, Daniel Mandresh, who raised his prediction of where the stock would be in 12 months from $155$ to $195$. On Tuesday, a Morgan Stanley & Co. analyst followed suit, increasing his estimate from $145$ to $170$. In the last three years, IBM has shuffled its top management and retooled many of its products. "They're now past recovery and into growth mode," said Stephen C. Dube of Wasserstein Perella Securities Inc. in New York.

U.S. trade deficit still moves in wrong direction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit climbed to S11.3 billion in September, the second-worst showing on record, as oil imports shot up and the deficit with China once again surposted the trade gap with Japan.

The Commerce Department reported Wednesday the deficit in goods and services was up 10.1 percent from an August deficit of $10.3 billion.

That is the worst showing since an all-time high of $11.6 billion in July. For goods alone, the September performance was a record delicit of $16.1 billion, surpassing the old mark of $15.9 billion in December 1985.

The widening of the overall deficit caught analysts by surprise. Many of them had been forecasting a slight narrowing, believing that the slowing U.S. conomy would dampen demand for foreign products.

So far this year, the deficit is running at an amuol rate of $11.5 billion, even worse than last years imbalance of $10.5.1 bill. While President Clinton has made trade a top priority of his foreign policy, the deficit has widened every year he has been widened every year he has been

"Revenge is a luscious fruit which you must leave to ripen." — Emile Gaboriau

The holdup play is a tool used most often by a declarer intent on isolating a defender's threatening as will be so fiften, the play is also available to a defender. In today's unusual example. West executes the holdup play to unleash his blocked heart suit.

Dummy's leart queen loses to East's king, and East returns the jack to dummy's are. Needing dummy's damed suit to make his game. South starts the diamonds, hopping hearts are 4-4 or that the suit is blocked. After the bidding: South leads a low diamond to his king at trick three, what happens the first the suit is blocked. Beart with the first play the suit of the suit king at trick three, what happens if West takes his are to clear the Il Wess tances to the hearts?

Nothing good for his side. East wins his blocking heart 10, but there is no way for West to cash his remaining hearts. This gives South time to collect four diamonds, two spades, two chubs and a heart, giving him his vulnerable game.

a heart, giving him his vulnerable game.

If West holds up and retuses to win either of the first two din monds, what can South do nov? He has no effective responses (I he switches to clubs, he develops a hird club winner, but he is still one trick short, and if South heads a third dinnord. East unloads his blocking heart to, allowing West to run his heart suit.

Today's defensive heldtup play soluble, when the heart will be solved the heart will be solved the heart will be solved to the heart will be solved the hea
