The gift of giving

Roy and Verna Marie Raymond gave a lot - but they never gave up

By William Brock
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS. - Roy and Verna Marie Raymond knew many ways to give. They gave money, tens of thousands of dollars at a time, to causes they supported. They gave land, worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. They gave the most priceless thing busy people can bestow - their energy and enthusiasm.

Killed in a plane crash near Detroit Thursday, the Raymonds planted many cultural, educational and business seeds during their years in the Magic Valley. Some of those seeds have already borne fruit, while others are just starting to sprout.

As owners of Roy Raymond Ford-Mitsubishi, they were able to write five-figure checks to charitable causes, but they couldn't wring any more than 24 hours from a day - so they worked hard and fast.

"More than the money they gave, I was struck by how much of their time, expertise and caring they gave," said Mike Federico, a psychology teacher and baseball coach at Twin Falls High School. The Raymonds helped underwrite a variety of school programs, ranging from athletics to debate, he said.

"You can't buy time," Federico said. "If all people gave that much of themselves, we'd live in a great society."

The Raymonds led by example and involved all of their employees to get involved in community projects, said Jim Stanger, controller for Roy Raymond Ford-Mitsubishi.

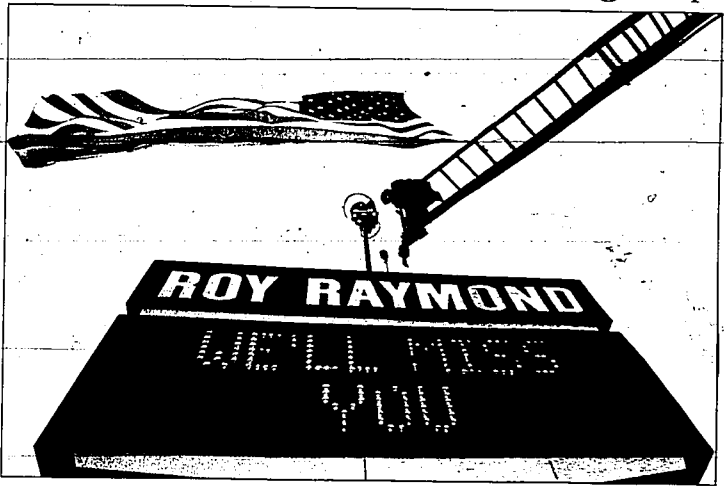

Roy Raymond had a Midas touch for business that extended far beyond his dealership. He was a founder and driving force behind Business Plus, the business-recruitment arm of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce.

Roy was a contributor, decision maker and arm-twister," said Kent Just, the chamber's executive vice president. Roy Raymond presented just with two checks - one for $20,000 and the other for $10,000 - shortly before Christmas. The larger check was for a as-yet unspecified project to benefit local education, Just said, and the smaller one was for business recruiting efforts.

Business recruiting was in Roy Raymond's blood, said Vince Alberdi, manager of the Twin Falls Canal Co. and former economic development director for the city of Twin Falls.

He rekindled local enthusiasm after the Jerome Tupperware factory closed in 1988, Alberdi said, adding: "Roy really set the tone and direction ... when the

Auto dealership will continue operation

TWIN FALLS. - Though its leaders are gone, the Roy Raymond Ford-Mitsubishi dealership will remain in business, General Manager Dave Johnson said Friday.

"Roy Raymond was prepared for such a time as this and we will continue," Johnson said, adding that Raymond's will specifies how the business should be run after his death.

Roy and Verna Marie Raymond were heavily involved in civic projects, and often were away from the dealership for extended periods of time. That gave managers plenty of day-to-day experience at running the business, said Jim Stanger, dealership controller.

Overall, the dealership employs 140 people on a full- or part-time basis and generated sales last year of about $50 million, Stanger said.

Roy and Verna Marie Raymond - pictured with their daughter Emily, a Twin Falls High School Junior - were prime movers behind the College of Southern Idaho's Herrett Center.

Other flights in area reported icing

RAISINVILLE TOWNSHIP, Mich. - Flights in and out of Detroit's airport were icing up before a commercial plane trying to land in a snowstorm went into a roll and nose-dived into a field, killing all 29 people aboard.

While the weather suggested one avenue of inquiry into what brought Comair Flight 3272 down, National Transportation Safety Board member John Hammerschmidt said Friday it was too soon to speculate about the cause.

The plane, an Embraer 120 twin-engine turboprop operated by Comair, went down at dusk Thursday, crashing 18 miles short of Detroit Metropolitan Airport without any indication of trouble from the pilot.

By late Friday, the NTSB had found the two black box flight recorders that might yield clues to

TWIN FALLS. - For about 10 years, SkyWest Airlines has flown Embraer Brasilia 120 turboprop planes into and out of Twin Falls without an accident.

The 30-seat plane is the same type of aircraft that crashed Thursday near Detroit, killing all 29 passengers on board, including Roy and Verna Marie Raymond of Twin Falls.

SkyWest has found the aircraft reliable, efficient and safe, said spokeswoman Diane Douglas with the airline's office in St. George, Utah.

"It's really early to be indicting the aircraft. We really have to wait for the NTSB (National Transportation Safety Board) to determine what was to blame," she said.

The Brasilia carries a reputation as one of the safest planes used by commuter airlines. But the deicing systems on the Comair plane that crashed had failed twice in the past three years.

The Brazilian-built planes also had been involved in seven fatal accidents before Thursday and the entire line has suffered from propeller problems.

Recently, SkyWest completed converting its fleet from 19-seat Metroliners to the Brasilias. Two years ago, it finished the transition of planes serving the Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport. It flies five daily round-trips between Twin Falls and Salt Lake City.

"SkyWest has logged 442,908 flight hours in the Brasilia as of Dec. 31, 1996," Miami - A mother came to police and spilled out cash and quarters totaling $19.53.

A pupil at a Catholic school turned in $5 cents.

They were the first - and so far the only - people Friday to give back money scooped up from an armored truck that toppled on an overpass and rained more than $500,000 into one of Miami's poorest neighborhoods.

"I have children and I needed to set a good example," said Yvonne McFadden, mother of six who earns $5 an hour at a department store.

"I handle money," she said. "It was important for me to do what I felt was right."

Herbert Tarvin, 11, said he heard his teachers at St. Francis Xavier Elementary School talking about Wednesday's crash in Overton and making the right decision. He went to police with his $5 cents.

"I knew it was wrong for me to keep anything," Herbert told WFLG-TV, "and I knew if I kept it, I would have been stealing. It doesn't belong to anyone except maybe the bank."

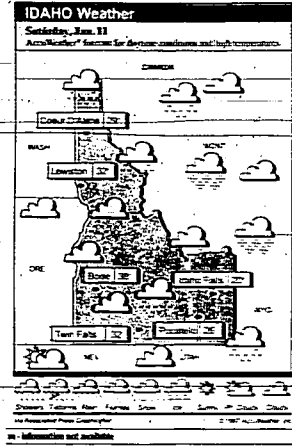

Officers of Brinks, which lost more than $500,000 in coins and bills, as well as $300,000 in food stamps, say their policy is to reward people who turn in lost property.

"They would be comment about the size or nature of the rewards."

Police also said Friday poor people weren't the only ones grabbing for cash. Witnesses reported seeing rush-hour commuters loading money bags into their cars and driving off while two Brinks workers by bleeding.

ACROSS THE NATION

Blizzard, polar cold chill Midwest, head toward Southeast

The Associated Press

A blizzard and 60-below-zero wind chills shut down much of the Midwest Friday, stranding travelers, cooping up residents and stressing out cleanup crews. Light snow fell in New England and it was calm in the West.

Strong northwest winds gusting over 40 mph created snowdrifts and reduced visibility to zero in much of the Plains and upper Midwest. People who shovelled their driveways would see them covered with snow again in half an hour.

The storm was taking its toll on snowplow drivers who hardly had time to shuffle off their vehicles as one storm after another hit western Minnesota.

"It's not just the hours you put in, but the stress of trying to peer through the windshield so you can see the snow," said Dennis Redig, a maintenance superintendent.

Just about everything was closed: roads, schools, government offices.

In Ponca City, Okla., where it was 14 degrees, firefighters quickly hauled frozen hoses back to the station to thaw them with heaters.

In Michigan, a foot of snow had fallen in the Upper Peninsula by midday and another 6 to 12 inches were in the forecast. In the lower Peninsula, a car chocked off Interstate 94 and plunged into a ravine, killing the driver.

The arctic blast of cold air was expected to stay put in the Midwest and make its way toward the Southeast today. Highs were forecast to reach the 20s and 30s.

It was fair in most of the West, with some light snow across the northern Rockies and northern Great Basin.

Alberdi recalled that Roy Raymond hated to waste time, "so if somebody didn't answer the phone on the first ring, that was it fast enough."

Roy-Raymond instinctively knew which businesses to court. Alberdi and Just said, adding that he played a key role in recruiting Norero Worldwide Inc. to Twin Falls.

"Roy wanted everybody to be successful. He wanted to help the city, his church and everybody else," said William E. Workman, who said he, Bill Engles, Boulevard Ford dealership to Raymond in the early 1980s.

The Raymonds' philanthropy wasn't confined to boosting the Magic Valley's economic vitality. They were also donors of funds to education and donated eight acres near the College of Southern Idaho to the CSI Foundation about two years ago.

"It's a prime piece of real estate. There's no doubt about it," said Mike Mason, CSI's dean of finance. The foundation sold the land to the college for $192,300, he said.

"Their money, in turn, helped finance construction of the college's Herrett Center, said Jerry Beck, CSI's vice president for instruction. Quite simply, the Herrett Center would not be standing today if it weren't for the Raymonds' largesse, Beck said.

One wing of the building has been dedicated as the Roy and Verne Marie Raymond Gallery, said Jim Woods, Herrett Center director.

The Raymonds wanted to provide an area "that would be available for children, especially in their grade-school years," Woods said.

In addition to their financial support, the Raymonds frequently brought visitors to the Herrett Center. Roy Raymond often called Woods after his visits, suggesting improvements, Woods said.

Brasilia

Douglas said. "The average age of our fleet is 3.4 years."

The regional carrier is proud of its maintenance and safety record, Douglas said.

She was busy Friday answering questions about the Brasilia, but a majority came from the news media. Only one traveler wanted assurance about the plane's safety, she said.

Twin Falls travel agent Judy Austin also was busy on the telephone Friday, but saw no lineup in people making travel plans, including flying on the Brasilia.

"It's just awful," said Austin, who works for Mountain Travel. "Mechanical things just happen."

The NTSB found that most of the U.S. crashes involving Brasilias could have been prevented with proper maintenance and attention to detail. Yet another safety recall reports a solid safety record since the aircraft went into service in 1985.

"These planes are state-of-the-art," said Michael Boyd, president of Aviation Systems

Research Corp. in Denver. "They're more advanced than a lot of airplanes the major airlines fly."

Comair reported no irregularities appeared during the last major maintenance check on the four-day-old plane Nov. 20.

Overall, fewer than 20 reports of maintenance problems with the plane have been filed with the Federal Aviation Administration. That number is usually low, said Richard Williams, president of Aviation Services in Denver, a company collecting FAA maintenance records for the aviation community.

"It means either the airplanes don't have many problems, or the mechanics weren't reporting them," Williams said.

The plane that crashed did have two prior deicing problems, one in February 1994 and another in April 1995. The plane was down in a snowstorm Thursday.

None of the four fatal accidents in the U.S. was caused by weather conditions or malfunctions of

Flames at the Detroit airport had to be doused frequently in Thursday's snow and cold, airport spokesman Mike Conway said. "We had precipitation all day, and the airlines were deicing aircraft all day," he said.

In addition, just seven minutes before the crash, a pilot reported trouble being at 3,500 to 4,500 feet — about the same altitude the Comair plane en route from Cincinnati to Detroit was flying, USA Today reported.

Ice disrupts airflow over the wings and can cause planes to stall or roll. One witness to the Comair crash, Ted Rath, said he saw the plane roll three times before it crashed into a snowy field. Another said it was turning quickly to the right, and a third said it was "flopping in the air," Hammerschmidt said.

In 1994, an American Eagle AT-72 that had been in a holding pattern in icy weather for nearly 40 minutes suddenly rolled and crashed near Roselawn, Ind., killing 68 people, and investigators blamed ice on the wings.

The Comair flight, however, had not been in a holding pattern, and the NTSB's Hammerschmidt noted the plane was equipped with three deicing systems.

At the crash scene, sheriff's deputies carried victims' remains to a hangar nearby. The wreckage and the bodies were scattered over a 100-by-200-yard area, with the wings and nose and in crater gouged out by the plane.

The investigation was slowed by snow and below-zero wind-chill readings that prevented investigators from working outside for more than 15 to 20 minutes at a time, Hammerschmidt said.

Investigators look over the wreckage of Comair Flight 3272 Friday morning near Monroe, Mich. The flight recorder was found inside Friday and will be sent to Washington, D.C., for analysis.

Tougher standards for commuter airlines go into effect this March

By [Name] Times-News Service

WASHINGTON — The crash of Comair Flight 3272 in Michigan on Thursday stirred fresh public concern about the relatively poor safety reputation of commuter airlines.

There was no early indication that Comair was operating in an unsafe manner, and early evidence pointed to the weather as a primary culprit.

Still, travelers should be further cautioned about flying on commuter lines in two months, when new federal rules go into effect requiring the lines to fly under the same safety standards as major airlines.

"It will put commuter airlines at a higher level of safety," said Wayne Williams, a Florida-based aviation safety consultant. "This puts commuters close to on par with the majors."

By March 21, any aircraft with fewer than 30 seats must comply with stricter staffing, training and equipment rules than they have in the past.

As part of the change, commercial pilots must be in the air no more than eight hours at a time and retire at age 60, a rule that is expected to force out 200 commuter pilots.

When the rules can't control it, weather, especially ice, which may have caused Thursday's crash, and commuter pilots are more susceptible to bad weather because they fly lower and slower than jets, experts say.

So last year, the Federal Aviation Administration, in announcing the new rules, emphasized that no airline, large or small, is certified to fly in icy conditions.

The new rules would apply to Comair's Embraer Air Brazil's 40 jetliners — the type of plane that crashed in Monroe, Mich., Thursday night.

But like most commuter airlines, Comair has not yet brought its fleet of 40 Brazilian planes into complete compliance with the new standards.

Comair's larger jet craft, which include 45 50-seat jets and seven Embraer 33-seaters, have long flown under the stricter rules.

"We are in process of doing that, but we've not completed the process," Comair spokeswoman Meghan Glyn told Knight-Ridder. "We're almost finished."

But the FAA said Comair was scheduled to undergo certification test flights for the new rules next week. As a result, it is unlikely that any non-compliance was involved in the crash, experts said.

The new rules will require smaller carriers to have the same training programs as major carriers, an approved aircraft dispatching office, an airline safety officer, a ground de-icing system, operational and flight attendant manuals, and a host of new equipment requirements.

Some commuter airlines are already operating under some or part of the new rules, experts say. But many commuter airlines still are not yet ready for the March deadline.

"It's not as easy as turning on a switch, it requires training, rewriting of manuals, and new equipment," said Deborah C. McElroy, vice president of the Regional Airline Association.

But once they complete the necessary work, the public will have greater confidence flying on commuter airlines, although any past concern was unfounded, she argued. "The problem was a perception issue, pure and simple," she said. "To the extent there were different regulations, people perceived commuters as lesser."

Taped talk of Gingrich discussing ethics ignites furor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans pressed the Clinton administration Friday to investigate the taping of a telephone call in which Newt Gingrich discussed plans for a GOP response to ethics charges against him.

Gingrich, who had promised he would not mount a counterattack to the charges, is overheard on the tape of a telephone conversation with his lawyer and Republican leaders discussing how and when they would respond. A transcript was published Friday in The New York Times.

In a letter to Attorney General Janet Reno, Rep. Henry J. Hyde, Republican chairman of the Judiciary Committee, asked for a Justice Department investigation into the interception of the phone call and the dissemination of a tape recording of it.

Gingrich, meanwhile, spent Friday schmoozing with political donors on a fund-raising visit to Chicago.

Kevorkian won't face charges White House looks at welfare hires

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The new prosecutor who defeated Dr. Jack Kevorkian's archenemy agreed Friday to drop all charges against Kevorkian in 10 suicides, saying it would be a waste of time and taxpayer money to pursue him.

Oakland County Prosecutor David Goreyca said he doesn't believe he could convict the suicide doctor under existing law, and a failure would "merely serve to enhance Dr. Kevorkian's crusade."

The charges were filed last fall by then-Prosecutor Richard Thompson, who twice failed to convict Kevorkian. Goreyca defeated Thompson in an August primary after criticizing him for wasting resources pursuing Kevorkian.

"Hypothetically, we can charge and convict Dr. Kevorkian 100 times; but since we aren't making law nor are we setting precedents, what are we really accomplishing other than wasting a lot of taxpayer money?" Goreyca said.

Kevorkian said later Friday:

"The prosecutions and legal threats didn't bother me. This matter should not be in the courts: It's a medical issue."

Kevorkian's attorney, Geoffrey Fioger, said he was pleased with the prosecutor's decision and confident "that this prosecutor is not in the business of attempting to prosecute morality."

Kevorkian still faces charges in a suicide in Ionia County in western Michigan.

The retired pathologist has acknowledged taking part in 45 suicides since 1990 and has been acquitted at three trials covering five deaths in Oakland and Wayne counties.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a public-policy version of follow-the-leader, the White House announced its own effort Friday to hire people off the welfare rolls.

The announcement came as President Clinton met in the Cabinet Room with 13 chief executives who have begun innovative programs to hire those on welfare.

"The welfare reform law did not put anybody to work," the president said in gearing up for his push to amend the new welfare law.

"Welfare reform, if it's going to work, will have to have the leadership of the private sector in turning welfare checks into paychecks."

To set an example, Chief of Staff Leon Panetta asked the White House personnel office to investigate whether federal hiring guidelines will allow the White House and federal agencies to employ welfare-dependent mothers.

Even then, officials echoed some of the same concerns that business leaders have raised: they confront a largely unskilled, welfare-dependent applicant pool.

White House press secretary Mike McCurry acknowledged potential bureaucratic obstacles and defended the inquiry against suggestions it would establish quotas. Finally, he conceded that few White House positions are suited to unskilled workers.

"We're just examining the possibilities," McCurry said.

"Their hearts are in the right place," Georgia businesswoman Carolyn Stradley said after the hourlong meeting with Clinton.

"At the same time, companies still need to realize they will get a good return on the investment."

The president, reviving a campaign push for private-sector involvement in welfare reform, promised to draft in the next three weeks a national corporate leadership strategy for the chief executives to review.

Victims included funeral-bound woman

The Associated Press

Maureen DeMarco was traveling to Michigan for a memorial service for her brother, who died in a plane crash, when the commuter aircraft she was on went down near Detroit.

She and 28 other people aboard were killed, including a Procter & Gamble executive looking to recruit employees at the University of Michigan, and a University of Michigan student heading home from a job interview with the company.

Mrs. DeMarco, 37, a teacher at St. Lawrence's Academy in Englewood, Colo., and the wife of Denver Post baseball writer Tony DeMarco, was aboard Comair Flight 3272 Thursday when it nose-dived into a snowy field.

"The odds of this happening are astronomical... just unbelievable," DeMarco said. "I'm going to miss her so, so much."

Mrs. DeMarco's brother, 36-year-old aircraft mechanic Brian Scully, was one of six people killed on a cargo jet crashed in Virginia during a maintenance flight Dec. 22.

Mrs. DeMarco taught Spanish to fourth-, fifth- and sixth-graders and headed the academy's foreign language department.

"This is terrible," said Grace Carr, a friend and co-worker. "I just can't believe this. She was very respected and one of the most competent women I've ever worked with. She's really an exceptional person."

Dexter Adams, 41, of Cincinnati was a purchasing manager for Procter & Gamble en route to the University of Michigan on a recruiting trip. He also served in the Army as a Cobra helicopter pilot and loved flying.

"That's the irony of all this," said "White Hot" Hawkins Jr., a close friend. "The business nature for him to be in an aircraft. He felt right at home."

Adams, who was a West Point graduate, joined Procter & Gamble in 1987. He bought fragrances used in cleaning products.

Arati Sharanngani had traveled to Cincinnati to interview for a job with Procter & Gamble. The University of Michigan senior was preparing for her future after her last term at the university.

"She called me from the Cincinnati airport," said Strydom. "I thought she said something about that she might not come back (tonight) because the weather was bad."

Ms. Sharanngani was a former vice president of the Indian American Student Association and a Divall student and choreographer. She also was a residence hall adviser.

"She was always available; she helped me with homework. I spent a lot of time in her room. She was a great person," student Stacey Waxtan said.

Betty Jean Jones was associate dean in the University of Michigan's Horace H. Rackham School of Graduate Studies and a theater professor.

"She was a very dynamic person, a very well-loved teacher," said Bonnie Kerschbaum, administrator of the theater department.

Ms. Jones, who specialized in contemporary American theater and African-American theater, spent a decade at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro before coming to Ann Arbor. She helped form the American Theater and Drama Society, a group of theater professionals.

Three Delphi Packard Electric employees from Mississippi were on the flight. Arthur Brice and Greg Douchard, both of Brookhaven, and Charles Jones of McComb were on their way to a contract meeting.

The three longtime employees at the company's Brookhaven plant were headed to Detroit for the signing of a labor agreement with General Motors. The plant makes materials used in auto electrical systems.

Jones' daughter, Shekema, 18, said the family "really doesn't know what is next."

In Brookhaven, members of the St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church were mourning Brice, who was an assistant pastor there.

"He is one of the truest Christians I knew. Normally I would have more to say but he lived for his family and the church," said the Rev. Philip Sterling. Brice's nephew Alundis Brice is a cornerback on the Dallas Cowboys football team.

Five Kentucky residents, including all three crew members, were killed: pilot Donn Carlson, first officer Kenneth Reece, flight attendant Darinda Ogden and passengers Darlene Zagor and Keita Takemami, a Toyota executive.

Carlson was remembered as a pilot who talked to everyone, often showed his appreciation and didn't mind helping with the luggage or passengers. He would hold notes in the aircraft window that read, "Thank You," and "You're a good crew to work with."

Ms. Ogden's husband, Richard Nilsen, said his 26-year-old wife had been a flight attendant for Comair since 1992. She was on a month-long assignment on the Cincinnati-Detroit route.

Takemami was a coordinator of the Toyota Motor Manufacturing Inc. plant in Georgetown when it opened in the late 1980s.

Takemami, who was married with children, left Kentucky for Japan but returned two years ago as coordinator of quality engineering.

"His job was to maintain 'the TQM way of doing things,'" said Tom Harris, a Toyota spokesman.

Ms. Zagor was marketing manager for Mathews Conveyor Division in Danville, where she worked for 22 years.

Roy and Verna Marie Raymond of Twin Falls were on the way to a Ford Motor Co. show and dealership meetings in Detroit.

Raymond owned a Ford-Mitsubishi dealership in Twin Falls and was one of south-central Idaho's most successful businessmen. Most recently, he headed Gov. Phil Batt's task force on Medicaid issues.

"Roy made countless contributions, both public and private, to the state," Batt said. "We're deeply saddened by his passing."

Mrs. Raymond was a member of the College of Southern Idaho Foundation's board of directors and was active in Republican politics.

"They were just exactly the kind of people you want in a community like this," said J. Kent Just, executive vice president of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce.

Plane crash just after takeoff injures pair

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — A commuter plane crashed shortly after taking off in a snowstorm at the Bangor International Airport Friday morning, injuring two of the 11 people aboard.

The Boston-bound USAir Express plane reached approximately 400 feet before crashing on the runway about 7:25 a.m.

MST, said Arlene Salac, a spokeswoman for the Federal Aviation Administration in New York.

Other details of the incident were not immediately available. A spokeswoman at Eastern Maine Medical Center confirmed that two people were treated, but did not disclose details of the injuries.

Connie Strout of the airport administrator's office said it was snowing at the time of the accident.

"It's slippery, and there is poor visibility," she said. The Beechcraft 1900 is a turbo-propeller plane with a capacity of 19 people. The airport was closed after the incident.

Sinatra doing better

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Frank Sinatra was still hospitalized Friday for a mild heart attack and the outlook was good for the 81-year-old entertainer, his spokeswoman and the hospital said.

"The prognosis is good," spokeswoman Susan Reynolds said. Paramedics took Sinatra to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center early Thursday for what Dr. Rex Kenamer called "an uncomplicated heart attack." It was Sinatra's third hospitalization in two months. "He's not in ICU, he's in a private room, and that's a good thing," said hospital spokeswoman Charlie Lohme.

Kevorkian won't face charges | White House looks at welfare hires

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The new prosecutor who defeated Dr. Jack Kevorkian's arch-enemy agreed Friday to drop all charges against Kevorkian in 10 suicides, saying it would be a waste of time and taxpayer money to pursue him.

Oakland County Prosecutor David Gorcyca said he doesn't believe he could convict the suicide doctor under existing law, and a failure would "merely serve to enhance Dr. Kevorkian's crusade."

The charges were filed last fall by then-Prosecutor Richard Thompson, who twice failed to convict Kevorkian. Gorcyca defeated Thompson in an August primary after criticizing him for wasting resources pursuing Kevorkian. "Hypothetically, we can charge and convict Dr. Kevorkian 100 times, but since we aren't making law nor are we setting precedents, what are we really accomplishing other than wasting a lot of taxpayer money?" Gorcyca said.

Kevorkian said later Friday:

"The prosecutions and legal threats didn't bother me. This matter should not be in the courts. It's a medical issue."

Kevorkian's attorney, Geoffrey Fieger, said he was pleased with the prosecutor's decision and confident "that this prosecutor is not in the business of attempting to prosecute morality."

Kevorkian still faces charges in a suicide in Ionia County in western Michigan.

The retired pathologist has acknowledged taking part in 45 suicides since 1990 and has been acquitted at three trials covering five deaths in Oakland and Wayne counties.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a public-policy version of follow-the-leader, the White House announced its own effort Friday to hire people off the welfare rolls.

The announcement came as President Clinton met in the Cabinet Room with 13 chief executives who have begun innovative programs to hire those on welfare.

"The welfare reform law did not put anybody to work," the president said in gearing up for his push to amend the new welfare law.

"Welfare reform, if it's going to work, will have to have the leadership of the private sector in turning welfare checks into paychecks."

To set an example, Chief of Staff Leon Panetta asked the White House personnel office to investigate whether federal hiring guidelines will allow the White House and federal agencies to employ welfare-dependent mothers.

Even then, officials echoed some of the same concerns that business leaders have raised as they confront a largely unskilled, welfare-dependent applicant pool.

White House press secretary Mike McCurry acknowledged potential bureaucratic obstacles and defended the inquiry against suggestions it would establish quotas. Finally, he conceded that few White House positions are suited to unskilled workers.

"We're just examining the possibilities," McCurry said.

"Their hearts are in the right place," Georgia businesswoman Carolyn Stradley said after the hourlong meeting with Clinton. "At the same time, companies still need to realize they will get a good return on the investment."

The president, reviving a campaign push for private-sector involvement in welfare reform, promised to draft in the next three weeks a national corporate leadership strategy for the chief executives to review.

Plane crash just after takeoff injures pair

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — A commuter plane crashed shortly after taking off in a snowstorm at the Bangor International Airport Friday morning, injuring two of the 11 people aboard.

The Boston-bound USAir Express plane reached approximately 400 feet before crashing on the runway about 7:25 a.m.

MST, said Arlene Salas, a spokeswoman for the Federal Aviation Administration in New York.

Other details of the incident were not immediately available. A spokeswoman at Eastern Maine Medical Center confirmed that two people were treated, but did not disclose details of the injuries.

Connie Strout of the airport administrator's office said it was snowing at the time of the accident.

"It's slippery, and there is poor visibility," Bart said. "We're deeply saddened by his passing."

Sinatra doing better

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Frank Sinatra was still hospitalized Friday for a mild heart attack and the outlook was good for the 81-year-old entertainer, his spokeswoman and the hospital said.

"The prognosis is good," spokeswoman Susan Reynolds said.

Paramedics took Sinatra to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center early Thursday for what Dr. Rex Kennamer called "an uncomplicated heart attack." It was Sinatra's third hospitalization in two months. "He's not in ICU, he's in a private room, and that's a good thing," said hospital spokeswoman Charlie Lahue.

France studies nuclear facility, cancer link

JOUBOURG, France — Reacting cautiously to a report that a major waste processing plant may be causing leukemia in children, the French government said Friday it would conduct its own study.

Environment Minister Corinne Lepeu said government scientists would check for abnormal levels of radioactivity in the fish and sediment near the Normandy plant.

"There are some correlations, it's true, but fortunately it's very few cases," she said. "We have to be careful and not panic."

The report focuses on the La Hague plant, surrounded by razor wire and built into a bluff not far from where Allied troops came ashore on D-Day in World War II.

Georgian diplomat ordered to remain in U.S.

WASHINGTON — In a surprise reversal, Republic of Georgia President Eduard Shevardnadze Friday ordered a diplomat involved in car wreck that killed a 15-year-old girl to remain in the United States until an investigation is completed.

In addition, State Department spokesman Nicholas Burns said Shevardnadze informed the U.S. embassy in Georgia that he is prepared to waive the diplomatic immunity of the envoy, Giorgi Makharadze. He could face charges ranging from negligent homicide to second degree murder.

Formal charges against him could come next week. The State Department asked Georgia on Thursday to waive diplomatic immunity.

Student protesters march in Belgrade

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Students battered by one triumph over police demanded Friday the government withdraw riot squads that had blocked street protests against Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic.

After a daylong standoff with police, 30,000 students were allowed to march through Belgrade early Friday. The students dispersed, but said they would be back today — and demanded that the government pull riot police off the streets.

The students delivered a letter to Premier Mirko Marjanovic demanding the removal of the riot police. They had asked for a meeting, but were told to leave the letter instead.

Earlier this week, a delegation of students met with Serbia's interior minister to make similar demands, but had no success.

Air Canada pilots strike on 4 carriers

TORONTO — Pilots at Air Canada's four regional airlines walked off the job Friday, causing delays and flight cancellations.

Talks involving Air Nova, Air Ontario, Air B.C., Quebec carrier Air Alliance and their 900 pilots broke down Thursday. Pilots, who want their working conditions upgraded to match those of Air Canada pilots, set up picket lines at various airports.

Ontario president Steven Smith said he hoped 60 percent of scheduled flights would operate with the help of chartered planes and replacement crews.

Oil spill in Japan threatens nuclear plant

MIKUNI, Japan — An oil spill spreading miles of sea. Japanese shoreline drifted toward seaside nuclear power plants Friday, threatening to dog vital cooling systems.

Coast guard and fishing ships rushed to set up a boom around parts of the spill near the entrance to Wakasa Bay to keep the floating glob of oil from the power plants ringing the bay.

The $60,000-gallon, 100 Japanese tonnage, Japanese history, has already ruined swaths of rocky coastline, taking a toll on the area's fishing and tourist industries.

At least a dozen oil slicks have spread to five states along a 125-mile stretch of Japan's western coast since an offshore Russian tanker sank and split last week.

Germany lashes out at Hollywood stars

BONN, Germany — Germany lashed out at Hollywood on Friday, scolding Oliver Stone, Goldie Hawn and other celebrities for likening its treatment of Scientologists to Hitler's persecution of Jews.

"It is false to talk about a persecution of Scientology in Germany," Foreign Minister Klaus Kinkel was quoted by the Bild Zeitung newspaper as saying. "When Scientology exposes its treatment in Germany with the Holocaust, they are falsifying history."

Labor Minister Norbert Blum, Family Affairs Minister Claudia Nolte, and Rudolf Scharping, parliamentary leader of the opposition Social Democrats, made similar statements in a front-page Bild article Friday. "The U.S. celebrities have incited victims of the Nazis," Nolte said.

Korean workers clash with police in Seoul

SEOUL, South Korea — Protesting workers hurled bricks of concrete at police firing tear gas and a car pincer set himself on fire Friday on the 16th day of the largest organized labor protest ever in South Korea.

About 20 workers and police were injured, the national news agency Yonhap reported, adding that the violence left the industrial city of Ulsan, 130 miles southeast of Seoul, looking "like a battlefield."

Guard chief lauds flood relief efforts; Gore set for visit

BOISE (AP) — The head of the Idaho National Guard said Friday state and local agencies are getting a lot better at responding to disasters like the flooding and landslides that Idaho has suffered in recent weeks.

"Of course, with two presidential disasters now in two years, we're getting more experience than we've had in a long, long time," Maj. Gen. John Kane told legislators at a Statehouse disaster briefing.

Ten northern Idaho counties were declared disaster areas last February because of flooding that caused some $49 million in damage. This year, President Clinton has declared 16 of Idaho's 44 counties federal disaster areas because of damage caused by heavy snow that collapsed roofs in the north and rain and snow that caused flooding and landslides in the west.

Vice President Al Gore was scheduled to visit Boise Friday to meet with state leaders about the damage and their needs for federal help in the recovery effort. Gore also was visiting disaster areas in California and Washington state.

After viewing a large sinkhole caused by storm water runoff during his brief stop in the Seattle area, Gore announced $5 million in emergency funds for highway repairs in Washington, $10 million for Idaho, $2 million for Oregon, $5 million for Nevada and $20 million for California.

More than 550 requests for assistance have been received statewide. Federal Emergency Management Agency spokesman Pat Maddock said most have come from Payette County with 168 and Washington County with 111.

About 2,700 families registered for federal help after the 1996 floods.

Kane said federal, state and local damage assessment teams would start visiting the newly damaged areas on Monday.

"They'll go knock on doors. They'll try to contact everybody that's been affected," he said.

"They'll look at every bridge, every dike, every road and every mud slide and see what's come of that and what it's going to take to fix it."

Preliminary estimates put the cost of fixing damaged roads and bridges that temporarily isolated some communities could reach $42 million, with $5 million in matching funds coming from state and local governments.

"The recovery is a slow, slow process," Kane said. "Two years from now we'll still be adjudicating money issues with the federal government in the areas that we're talking about today."

The Idaho Transportation Department hopes to open U.S. 95 north of New Meadows to heavy vehicles on Saturday. Motorists will still face restricted travel times in the heavily damaged stretch south of Riggins.

Those restrictions should be lifted Monday. But the department continues to require travelers on U.S. 95 south of New Meadows to follow pilot cars through a damaged stretch between Council and New Meadows.

Idaho 55 is open from New Meadows to Boise, although a huge slide between Banks and Gardena remains unstable.

To the north, Bonner County residents in Sandpoint are beginning to tally up damage estimates to homes, businesses and out-buildings. County emergency services director Irma McNeiff said snow loads have contributed to the collapse of about 40 businesses and outbuildings.

Meanwhile, snow melt and rainstorms also have filled southern Idaho reservoirs to near capacity.

Lucky Peak Reservoir on the Boise River is 85 percent full, U.S. Bureau of Reclamation engineer Rick Wells said.

BOISE — Prominent Idaho cattleman Robert N. Rebholz died Wednesday at age 58 after a nine-month battle against cancer.

Rebholz moved to Boise in 1978 and founded a successful diversified agri-business, Agri Beef Co. Funeral mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. today at St. John's Cathedral, Boise.

He was chairman of the National Livestock and Meat Board and the Beef Industry Council and president of the Idaho Cattleman's Association and a director of the Idaho Beef Council.

Rebholz is survived by his wife, Dorothy and four children.

Prosecutor backs officer in shooting

COEUR D'ALENE — Kootenai County Prosecutor Bill Douglas has decided that a deputy who shot and killed a Twin Lakes man last week acted in self defense and was justified.

"The officer used reasonable force given the subject's actions leading up to the shooting," Douglas said this week.

On Dec. 8, Robert K. Mills Jr., 54, was shot to death by Deputy Michael O'Brien. O'Brien was on administrative leave and received counseling before returning to work.

Nampa lawmaker pushes DUI crackdown

BOISE — A Nampa lawmaker wants to crack down on people who drive without insurance or operate a vehicle while under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

Rep. Bill Taylor, R-Nampa, Friday introduced bills requiring vehicle impoundment for 30 days in the case of anyone arrested or cited for failure to obtain insurance, or drunkenly driving.

The legislation will be heard by the House Judiciary, Rules and Administration Committee. Both bills require the owner or operator to pay towing and storage costs and an impoundment fee of $25. If the vehicle isn't reclaimed within 60 days, and fees and costs repaid, it could be forfeited.

Ex-INEL manager gets weekends in prison

POCATELLO — A former Idaho National Engineering Laboratory supervisor has been sentenced to 10 weekends in federal prison for illegally disposing of waste at the site and falsifying disposal records.

Jay A. Johnson, 38, formerly of Shelley, was sentenced Tuesday by U.S. District Judge Lynn Wimmitt after pleading guilty in September to two felony charges. He could have received five years in prison and a $250,000 fine on each count.

"I do take responsibility for these actions," Johnson said.

Besides the weekends in prison, Wimmitt sentenced him to four months of home detention, 100 hours of electronic monitoring, drug testing, three years probation with mental health treatment and a $500 fine and $100 special assessment.

New WSU provost hails from California

PULLMAN, Wash. — A provost at the University of California at Santa Barbara has been named provost and academic vice president at Washington State University, officials said Friday.

Cretchen M. Bataille, currently provost of the College of Letters & Science at UCSB, will assume her post at Washington state's land grant university July 1, President Sam Smith announced.

Bataille, 52, will be paid $148,000 a year, plus $15,000 in deferred compensation from private funds, the university said.

Bataille replaces Tom George, who resigned in May to become chancellor at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point. She was among 35 candidates for the job.

Convicted murderer still on life support

POCATELLO — A convicted murderer from Ada County named on life support Friday after trying to hang herself at the state women's prison.

Sally Joanne Needs, 52, was in critical but stable condition at Bannock Regional Medical Center. She was found in her cell shortly after 9 p.m. Wednesday after using parts of her clothing and a small Kennedy bag to fashion a noose to hang herself, the Idaho Department of Correction said.

Officers cut Needs down, rushed for medical help and along with two nurses tried to revive her until emergency medical technicians arrived.

Needs is serving a life prison sentence for a 1977 first-degree murder conviction.

Agency rounds up 32 illegal aliens

IDAHO FALLS — Thirty-two undocumented workers were rounded up in Mexico after being rounded up by U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service agents at three Idaho Falls and Ucon businesses.

All three cooperated with the federal agency when they were informed officers wanted to check worker documentation, said Randy Robinson, assistant director for investigations in the agency's Helena, Mont., field office.

Robinson refused to release the names of the businesses involved in Tuesday's raids.

Hearing set for Jan. 27 in self-inflicted shooting

JEROME - A man who reportedly confessed to lying to sheriff's officers about a self-inflicted gunshot wound faces a misdemeanor charge in Jerome County Magistrate Court. Jeremy Lee Furgason, 20, of Burley was charged Wednesday with obstructing and delaying an officer. A court hearing is set Jan. 27. Furgason told officers from the Jerome and Cassia county sheriff's departments that he had been shot in the leg by an unseen assailant near Milner Dam at about 10 p.m. Sunday, according to a court file. He suffered minor entrance and exit wounds to his left thigh. Furgason said he had gone to the dam to meet with the husband of a woman he had been having an extramarital affair with, the file says. The file also says Furgason later changed his story and told officers he had been shot by another Burley man. Furgason said he had seen this second man engaging in an illegal drug transaction. Furgason later said he turned a 9 mm handgun on himself in order to gain sympathy over his relationship with the woman and to direct suspicion toward her husband, the court file says. A correction published in Friday's Times-News turns out to have been wrong. The correction, based on information from Jerome County sheriff's detective Dan Chatterton, said that no charges had yet been filed against Furgason. According to the court file, however, those charges were indeed filed on Wednesday, as originally reported in Thursday's newspaper. The Times-News stands behind its original report on the case.

Gooding County to hold ambulance district hearing

GOODING - Gooding County commissioners invite the public to a hearing at 7 p.m. Monday in the large courtroom at the Gooding County Courthouse. The hearing is for testimony on the formation of an ambulance district, County Clerk Helen Edwards said. The county's ambulance service encountered a major budgetary shortfall last year after crewmen's wages were raised to comply with the federal Fair Labor Standards Act. An ambulance district would authorize a new tax to offset the shortfall from the present service. Many who spoke last September in Wendell at a public hearing on the ambulance woes favored formation of a new taxing district, but some urged caution over its effect on owners of large rural acreages.

Planning, Zoning panel elects new chairman

TWIN FALLS - The Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday picked a new chairman and decided to tackle a new livestock confinement operation ordinance. Kacey O'Connor of Buhl was elected chairman and Emmett Harrison, a retired Twin Falls car dealer, was elected vice chairman. Char Sinclair resigned as chairman of a subcommittee formed to craft a new livestock ordinance. Commissioners accepted her resignation and decided the entire commission would tackle the controversial ordinance, which had been part of a proposed county zoning ordinance but was separated to simplify the public comment process. The commission will work out a schedule for reviewing the zoning ordinance and completing the livestock ordinance at a lunch work session Tuesday. The work session is open to the public, but no comments will be taken.

Gooding sets regular work session Monday

GOODING - A regular work session of Gooding's mayor and City Council will be held at 6 p.m. Monday at City Hall. Items on the agenda include discussion with the chief of police, an update on the sewer lines with Kelley & Associates and discussions on the NDBeacon and Dale Riedel's bill.

Willis reorganizes business ventures

Blames Hailey sewer, Ketchum decision for stalled development

By Kristan Kennedy Times-News correspondent

Bruce Willis

HAILEY - Hailey's silver-screen real estate mogul Bruce Willis is reorganizing his commercial ventures in Blaine County - but his business moves don't indicate he's leaving town, a spokesman said. Valley Entertainment general manager Joe McAllister said the company is restructuring some business plans. A freeze on Hailey's sewer system, and rejection by the city of Ketchum for a theater and restaurant project, have made the company re-evaluate, McAllister said. Valley Entertainment is remodeling The Mint and putting some idle lots up for sale. "Idle," McAllister said, is the key word. He said last month's Hailey building freeze has stopped plans slated for Hailey lots. Willis' wife, Demi Moore, who purchased The Drug Store, has plans to develop a fitness center. When Willis bought north Hailey commercial land by King's, he had an overnight lodging haven in mind. But with Hailey's building at a standstill, those prime lots sit idle. McAllister said last month the sewer situation in Hailey has influenced decisions on building. But new plans in no way cast doubt on Willis' commitment to the valley, he said. "This is Bruce's home, that won't change, end of rumor," McAllister said. McAllister said Willis is concentrating his efforts on projects more likely to get off the ground, notably Soldier Mountain, due for an opening celebration Jan. 25. "Mr. Willis is definitely not folding his suitcases and leaving town," McAllister said. Willis' staff is busy directing the first season of celebrity ownership on Soldier Mountain, the long-ignored Camas County ski hill Willis purchased last spring for $850,000. His fishing operation, The Mint, a night club transformed from a sleazy bar to a Main Street gem two years ago, also is undergoing some changes. The downstairs restaurant is temporarily closed and will open in February or March as a billiard hall, McAllister said.

Repair job is a washout

Project condemns Jackpot Elementary

By Sam Feltman Times-News correspondent

JACKPOT, Nev. - What was supposed to be a simple roof-repair job has condemned the Jackpot Elementary School, displacing students, ruining school equipment and books and pointing fingers of blame. "It might be a comedy if it didn't affect so many students and teachers and the cost wasn't already past the million-dollar mark. Both Jackpot and Carlin, Nev., schools were to receive new roofs, and contractors started the untimely roof-repair job the week before school started. The old roofs were torn off in preparation. Somebody forgot to order the materials for the new roofs. True to Murphy's Law, it rained twice. The asbestos in the Jackpot school ceiling got wet and came down into the classrooms. Most of the books and school supplies were ruined by water.

Unemployment drops in December

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - December's unemployment rate for three Magic Valley counties dropped from the previous month. But the worst is yet to come in January, a state official predicts. With winter in full swing and slowdowns from weather-related jobs, January is usually the bottom of the employment barrel for the year, said Lon McDonald, analyst with the Idaho Department of Labor.

December unemployment rates
□ Twin Falls, Gooding and Jerome counties:	4.9 percent.
□ Minidoka and Cassia counties:	6.9 percent.
□ Blaine County:	4.7 percent.
□ Elmore County:	6.6 percent.

December's seasonally adjusted jobless rate was 4.9 percent for the region encompassing Twin Falls, Gooding and Jerome counties, McDonald said. That compares with 6.3 percent in November, inflated because of heavy layoffs of food-processing workers, he said. Holiday employment also helped lower the December unemployment rate around the region. One year ago at the same time, the rate was 4.7 percent. The December jobless rate in Minidoka and Cassia counties was 6.9 percent, compared with 6 percent in November. In December, 1995, the Mini-Cassia rate was 8.2 percent. In Blaine County, the jobless rate last month was 4.7 percent, up from 3.7 percent in November. The year before the rate was 4 percent. In Elmore County, the last month's jobless rate was 6.6 percent compared with 5.8 percent the month before and 7 percent in December 1995. The average job rate for the year of 1996 was 4.4 percent for Twin Falls, Gooding and Jerome counties. In Cassia and Minidoka counties, the average rate was 6.4 percent and for Elmore County, 6.1 percent. Blaine County was among the lowest with 3.8 percent.

Grant will bring 20 new jobs to Jerome

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - An economic development grant awarded to the city of Jerome will mean 20 local jobs. Gov. Phil Batt announced Friday a $126,500 economic development grant to the city of Jerome that will extend a water main to Gilmer Inc. of Jerome. The grant was one of the projects supported by the late Roy Raymond in his role as chairman of the Idaho Economic Advisory Council, the private-sector advisory board to the Idaho Department of Commerce. "Mr. Raymond always asked the hard questions to make sure it was the best use of the money," said Carlen Herring, manager of economic development at the Region IV Development Association. The grant will help Gilmer Inc. create 20 new jobs - one of the requirements of the block grant of federal funds. The money is part of $10 million Idaho housing annually from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The grant money is used to build public infrastructure needed for economic development. But because it's federal money, a portion of the jobs created must be for low- and moderate-income residents, said Jan Bickenstaff, administrator of the community development division of the state Department of Commerce. The money will pay for the city to extend a water main to Gilmer on West Main in the Jerome city's area of impact. The closest water line to the building is about half a mile away, said Doug Blevin, owner of the trucking company. The water line will provide fire protection required for construction at Gilmer, Blevin said. But it also will improve water service for other businesses in the area, he said.

Minidoka County Saturday school aims to snuff out substance abuse

By Lori Battenski Times-News writer

RUPERT - Minidoka County students caught with cigarettes, alcohol or drugs during school hours will soon begin paying the price for it on weekends. The School Board Wednesday adopted a program requiring students cited on school grounds to attend school on Saturday once a month with their parents. Most Saturday schools allow students to read textbooks or do homework, but this program will teach students about the dangers of substance abuse, what it can lead to and how to stop. "This is just a piece of the solution to a problem that has no simple answer," Superintendent Nick Hallett said. "I wish we didn't need this program, but we do." Bringing parents into the classroom will be a key part of the program's success. If the message against substance abuse can be taken back to the home, the students will have a better of kicking their habits, Hallett said. Please see SCHOOL, Page B3

Government orders probe into horse adoption program

The Times-News and Associated Press

WASHINGTON - A federal wild horse adoption program is under investigation to determine whether horses that are adopted are being sent improperly to slaughterhouses...

The Interior Department said Tuesday that it has ordered an immediate investigation over possible illegal or unethical conduct by some employees of the Bureau of Land Management...

"If it is found that a BLM employee or other horse adopter has been involved in criminal violations, the investigation will be promptly turned over to the appropriate U.S. attorney's office," said Bob Armstrong...

There is no evidence that any BLM employees in southern Idaho are adopting and selling horses for slaughter, said Jack Sepr, BLM spokesman at the Idaho state office in Boise.

The investigation is focused on areas where a lot of horses are adopted. The Burley District has averaged 17 horses a year over the past 16 years, said Richard Wright, who supervises the program at the local BLM District.

As far as local BLM employees profiting from the sale of adopted horses, "I have never known of that happening," Wright said.

Wright supervised the adoption of about 80 horses at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in November. But not all were adopted by local residents. Wright checks each local adoption before turning over the title to the horse, he said.

In addition to the internal BLM investigation, the Interior Department's inspector general also is close to issuing reports on the program, including a financial audit.

The Justice Department has reviewed how the program is being run, prompting a preliminary review. At least one senator has opened the possibility of congressional hearings later this year.

The Interior investigation was prompted by an Associated Press report earlier this week that documented at least 57 adopted horses being sold to slaughterhouses since September, a fourth of them under 5 years old. The report also showed that in some cases BLM employees could not account for the whereabouts of horses they had adopted.

The program is administered by the BLM, primarily in Western states, to reduce the size of wild herds and find a home for horses too old or otherwise unable to survive in the wild. More than 150,000 animals have been adopted since the program began in 1973.

Armstrong said the adoption program, on which the government is spending $16 million this year, "assures the protection of healthy wild herds, while providing homes to those animals that cannot adequately survive in the wild." He said he wanted recommendations on whether changes in the adoption policy should be made.

The reports of adopted horses being sent to slaughter, and the possibility that BLM employees have profited, brought a sharp response from Sen. Craig Thomas, R-Wyo., a strong booster for the program. "Clearly this was not intended," he said Tuesday, promising to look into the matter. He said he might ask for hearings by the Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

"The idea was to move adoptable horses off the desert and put them in the hands of private owners for their use," Thomas said. "It certainly never was intended for the employees to take advantage of the program and siphon these animals off for a profit. And if that's the case, and if that's possible and apparently it has been, obviously that has to be changed. It's pretty shocking to discover that this kind of thing has been going on."

Under the program, the BLM monitors the horse for a year after the adoption, but after that ownership is transferred and the BLM no longer has a legal say in what happens to the animals.

Two months ago Thomas Pogacnik, who runs the BLM's horse adoption program, said 90 percent of the horses and burros rounded up - thousands of animals each year - go to slaughter.

On Tuesday, Pogacnik said it is "just flat-out wrong" to suggest that many of the animals adopted are sent to slaughter. And when asked later if he has any idea how many horses are sent to slaughter, he said his agency does not know and does not track them after adoption.

Pogacnik said he based his earlier 90 percent figure on an estimate from a Nevada state brand inspector's information that 90 percent of all domestic horses eventually are slaughtered.

Adopters pay $125 for each healthy horse, and can get lame or older horses for as little as $25, or even for free. They typically receive $700 per animal when they sell them for slaughter.

Idaho budget writers OK emergency cash for '96 fires, work on highways

BOISE (AP) - Legislative budget writers began augmenting the current state spending plan Friday, approving huge infusions of cash to pay the state's share of fighting last summer's wildfires that expedite improvements on state highways.

The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee voted unanimously for $3.6 billion - two thirds of that general tax receipts - to pay the bills for fighting fire on 6,700 acres of state lands. That was just a fraction of the cost of suppressing fires that ranged over 750,000 acres of Idaho woods and forests in 1996. And that the panel authorized the Transportation Department to spend an extra $5.2 million that the state fuel tax unexpectedly generated since it was increased by four cents a gallon last April. There was also another $20.4 million in federal highway money the state had not expected when the budget was originally written. That included nearly $13 million for repairs from last winter's flooding. Federal aid to cope with the aftermath of the new round of flooding this month is not included.

The additional state fuel tax receipts will finance highway projects that would get underway not be started until after the beginning of July.

"Being able to accelerate these projects from 1998 to 1997 is a real advantage to the state," Senate Transportation Chairman Evan Frazure, R-Pocatello, told his colleagues on the budget panel. Both had been recommended by Republican Gov. Phil Batt as were several smaller emergency allocations that drew a number of questions but no negative votes in what seemed to be an early indication that Batt's tight budget blueprint, dictated by slowing economic growth, will survive the committee's scrutiny more or less intact.

One Batt proposal that may not survive is his renewed attempt to end the state's control of the Epilepsy League of Idaho. The governor tried a year ago only to see 14 of the 20 budget-committee members vote to keep giving the private charity the $65,000 grant.

Despite that loss, the Batt administration slashed the grant in half by letting it absorb the brunt of the vocational rehabilitation program's 25 percent budget cut imposed statewide last September to cope with reduced revenue projections. Budget chief Michael Brassey said it made no sense to reduce other programs that attracted twice or three times as much federal money for every state dollar spent. Terminating the contribution to the Epilepsy League became a logical part of Brassey's plan, since the state grant essentially ended Dec. 31.

The grant - the only one of its kind in the state budget - was initiated in 1991 and has managed to escape annual efforts to scrap it.

Colorado family's safety a concern, associate says

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) - Family members of slain 6-year-old Britney, queen Janisette Ramsey are keeping their whereabouts secret for "safety and security" reasons that might be explained by the ransom note found at their home, the family publicist said Friday.

Pat Korten, the media consultant hired by attorneys for John and Patricia Ramsey, suggested the ransom note found by Mrs. Ramsey would explain why the family has taken extreme precautions to conceal their whereabouts. Police have not released the note. Korten also indicated the Ramseys are being protected by guards, but would not elaborate. "You don't know what was in that note," Korten told The Associated Press. "Protecting their whereabouts is important not just their personal privacy but also for their safety and security. We need to take that into account as well. We do have concerns about their security and safety." Boulder police issued a news statement Friday that said a mysterious 911 call placed Dec. 22, the Ramsey home was made during a party by someone trying to dial a long-distance call. Police records showed the call was disconnected before a police dispatcher could talk to the caller. Korten said in their news statement Friday that an officer was dispatched to the Ramsey home and confirmed the number was misdialed.

Don Walters works Friday installing new hardware on a door at the Drift Inn. The business has been given notice that it doesn't meet state fire codes due to some minor violations.

Inn owner scrambles to comply with code

Local fire inspector has him all burned up

WORKERS can complete by Monday, Walters said. "We would have made it. They're asking us to do things that they're not asking other people to do," Walters said. Nor so, said Paul Aston, a city building inspector who conducted Thursday's review. "I would challenge him to show us the instance where we're asking him to do something we haven't asked of someone else," Aston said.

The clash between Bierman and building inspectors dates back almost two years, Aston said, when Bierman bought a small store next door to the Drift Inn and annexed it into the lounge. "He did that without a permit," Aston said. "That changes existing requirements and a whole bunch of things."

Walters estimated the cost to bring the business into compliance at around $2,000. "We're going to prepare ourselves to comply with what the requirements are, but if they're going to continue with more requirements, we'll prepare for a court battle," Walters said.

A deputy state fire marshal could be called in to review the reported violations and possibly mediate the conflict, Taylor said. Drift Inn owners would need to request that action. If the Drift Inn does not meet state fire code, it could be closed down. "People who do business have a responsibility to make sure the business is safe," Taylor said.

Walters made me very uncomfortable to have four of those guys show up unannounced," said Don Walters, a business associate of Bierman. Taylor bristled at the accusation he is harassing anyone. "I'm not picking on him," Taylor said. "We try to apply the uniform fire code uniformly. We don't exclude churches, schools, day care, anyone."

The inspectors added requirements to bring the business into compliance with fire codes. According to a notice issued last week, the Drift Inn owner has until Monday to install hardware on doors to open-closers with just a push. The requirements, including replacing an exit door window with safety glass, more illuminated exit signs and corridor lights, an elevator permit for two new outlets, the removal of stairs, holding extension cords to the wall and securing part of the building's facade is more than

Vets say brucellosis discovery will cause concerns

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — The discovery of brucellosis in a Wyoming game warden's office will spark concerns among officials in other states about the risks of the disease in Wyoming, Idaho's state veterinarian warns.

Bob Hillman and Montana state veterinarian Clarence Siroky said during a meeting of the Greater Yellowstone Interagency Brucellosis Committee that the case is serious and requires action. Wyoming wildlife officials confirmed earlier this week a horse used in operations on state-run elk feedgrounds in the Jackson area had contracted brucellosis. The disease is a little known concern although the admitted that a second horse may also have the disease. That has yet to be confirmed they said. Hillman and Siroky recommended testing all horses in the area that may have been exposed to the disease. The case, they said, shows brucellosis can be transmitted from wildlife to livestock. All states need to sit down and look at livestock movement and look at livestock movement out of Wyoming in light of the transmission that we've seen," Siroky said. And Hillman said a red flag has been raised. "If they are going to be asking Wyoming, Idaho and Montana, 'What are you doing in safeguarding livestock against brucellosis in wildlife?'" he said. While Montana and Idaho can assure other states they are taking steps to prevent the spread of the disease, Wyoming might not be able to make those same assurances, Hillman said.

Also for sale are four prime downtown Ketchum lots between Sun Valley Road and Magic Lantern Theater. Willis proposed a performing arts center, restaurant and skywalk to the city of Ketchum in the summer of 1994, but the plan was rejected. All told, the south-county property for sale is estimated at a total value of $2.5 million. The Ketchum land in the downtown core is valued at close to $1 million, McAllister said. McAllister said The Mint, which initially had good traffic for its bistrot dining, is ironically returning to the roots. In the old days The Mint was the last stop before Alcoholics Anonymous. The Mint had operated in Haley since the mining days — one of the few places in Haley one could show pool. Starting next week, Jennis can go back to The Mint and show some pool. However, pool at The Mint won't have the ambience of the former bar, known for bowls and arched windows and elegantly arranged around the pool tables. Food service at The Mint scales back considerably, McAllister said. Six other restaurants in the valley are changing menus, schedules and agendas, including China Pepper in Ketchum and The Sawtooth Club, which recently unveiled a new menu. Also, many ball courts and commercial projects have been closed in the last month in the valley, including Main Street Harley's Red Elephant Saloon.

Willis

The upstairs night club, which has drawn national talent and booming crowds; and the packed house New Year's Eve with $100-per-person tickets, will continue to draw top names to the valley, McAllister said. "People love the bigger national acts here in Haley, along the lines of the King — that won't end," he said. "In fact, it will be enhanced."

As far as other turf goes, McAllister said, Willis is making some real estate decisions — like moving the county evap, especially in the south county, where development has ceased — until Haley can clean up its sewer act. It's conceivable a new commercial project could break ground for two years in Haley, now the valley's largest city, according to Haley wastewater manager Ray Hyde. For Willis, that means a building formerly owned by The Drug Store, the former Wood River Journal office, and a chunk of prime commercial property by King's site ripe to develop but stalled by politics. The south Haley lot is listed at $715,000. Many of Willis' plans for the land are waiting for sewer hookups. Willis and company last week listed property in Haley as well as Ketchum and Bellevue. Listings include a 299-acre light-industrial property in Bellevue recently purchased with plans to build a light industrial complex. McAllister said the project doesn't make sense in the current business climate. List price is $925,000.

Each district must fund the program in place over a long period of time. "Get your ducks in a row, we've had to shift our focus towards other areas such as violence and guns where really we need to be doing these programs together." School administrators in Pocatello, Boise, Meridian and Coeur d'Alene are using Saturday school as a tool to curb substance abuse, Getty said. Each district must fund the program in place over a long period of time. "Get your ducks in a row, we've had to shift our focus towards other areas such as violence and guns where really we need to be doing these programs together."

Relatively few students are caught using cigarettes, alcohol or drugs in Minidoka County. However, in other areas of the state, alcohol and drug use does appear to be rising. Trish Getty, coordinator of safe and drug-free schools for the state Department of Education, said substance abuse in Idaho schools has steadily increased since 1992.

Between 1976 and 1992, we saw a steady decrease because we had a strong prevention program in place over a long period of time. "Get your ducks in a row, we've had to shift our focus towards other areas such as violence and guns where really we need to be doing these programs together."

Hester feels pretty lucky; her classroom has been moved to the recreation center with a privacy screen. She says she isn't having the problems other teachers are. Most of the kids don't seem to mind. As Becky Messmer, a mother of a second-grader, said, "kids adjust."

Elko School District includes Jackson, Mt. Wendover, Wells, Valley, Montello, Carey and Elko, Spring Creek, Carlin and Owyhee, as well as smaller and one-room schools such as Jarbidge, Ruby Valley, Independence Valley, Mountain Valley, Montello, Carey and O'Neil, all in Nevada. Elko County covers approximately 110,000 square miles. The four modulars that are being used are expected to be in the backpack for a long time. According to Nutting, the school district can't try a new bond issue until November 2008, so at best, nothing new can be built until 2002. When the old school is rebuilt or replaced — hopefully by insurance money — the expanded group can utilize those modulars.

Repair

What wasn't water damaged is contaminated by asbestos. The cost for cleaning asbestos from a single page is $20, according to Orval Nutting, Jackpot School principal. After the first rain, in September, class continued as usual after a single day's break. The second rain, in late December, sent students and teachers out of the building permanently. Luckily, they were able to save the computers. The most important records also were salvaged. But most of the textbooks and school supplies are being destroyed, and a lot of the staff's personal teaching tools are destroyed. Displaced students have been scattered throughout the high school, and classrooms are already in place and the Jackpot Recreation Center. The Elko County School District is moving the students into four new modular classrooms. The first modular unit will not be ready until mid-February. Others won't be ready until March. Meanwhile, the school is using every available space. The two first grades have combined in what was the English-as-a-second-language room. Colleen Russell, the mother of a first-grader, said she is upset — the room is too crowded for her active 7-year-old. Second-graders have combined classrooms in the high school library, leaving high school students and teachers without access-to-resource material without disrupting the younger children. The ESL teacher uses a cart of whatever room is available. This, in turn, crowds high school teachers out of her home room during her prep hour. Kindergarten teacher Shelly Nutting isn't sure what will happen to the elementary school. The asbestos is being cleaned up now, and claim adjusters are evaluating damage. It is not determined yet whether the old building can be saved. One thing is for sure, lawyers will be involved. Nobody is taking responsibility for the mess. Elko County's growth of more than 400 students a year, and a failed bond issue, have left Elko schools overcrowded at best. Also, Elko County is so large that it cannot consolidate its schools.

Nutting pointed out, "Jackpot's lucky" — Carlin's problem is what we're extending to two stories, and the water hit the computer and science lab. Elko School District includes Jackson, Mt. Wendover, Wells, Valley, Montello, Carey and Elko, Spring Creek, Carlin and Owyhee, as well as smaller and one-room schools such as Jarbidge, Ruby Valley, Independence Valley, Mountain Valley, Montello, Carey and O'Neil, all in Nevada. Elko County covers approximately 110,000 square miles. The four modulars that are being used are expected to be in the backpack for a long time. According to Nutting, the school district can't try a new bond issue until November 2008, so at best, nothing new can be built until 2002. When the old school is rebuilt or replaced — hopefully by insurance money — the expanded group can utilize those modulars.

Bullets 102, Clippers 98

LANDOVER, Md. — Chris Webber capped a 25-point effort by scoring the go-ahead basket with 1:46 left, and Washington led an 18-point lead before recovering to beat the Clippers.

Calbert Cheaney scored a season-high 22 points for the Bullets, who led 76-58 midway through the third quarter but ended up battling from behind to snap the Clippers' four-game winning streak.

The Clippers led 50-50 in the second quarter. Strickland made a foul shot with 2:26 remaining. After a series of missed shots, Webber put Washington on top for good with a tip-in with 1:46 to go.

Nicks 111, Celtics 98

BOSTON — Patrick Ewing scored 31 points and grabbed 15 rebounds and reserve John Starks added 18 points as New York rallied in the fourth quarter to beat Boston.

It was the Knicks' 16th straight victory over the Celtics, who set a team record for most consecutive losses to an opponent.

The Knicks used a 10-0 run that capped by two free throws by Buck Williams with 4:39 left for a 95-86 lead.

New York's Buck Williams tries to block Boston's Marty Connor during the second quarter of Friday's game in Boston.

Pistons 84, Spurs 78

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — With David Robinson, Sean Elliott, Dominique Wilkins, Chuck Person and just about every other Spurs star since George Gervin sidelined by injuries, the Pistons closed to a 84-78 victory Friday night.

The Spurs, who have lost five straight in their injury-plagued season, were even more short-handed than usual as ex-Piston Elliott (leg) and Wilkins (ankle) missed games with nagging injuries. However, Vinny Del Negro (shoulder) did return to the lineup.

Pacers 108, Nuggets 89

DENVER — Reggie Miller scored 18 points and Rik Smits and Antonio Davis each had 15 in the Indiana Pacers' thumped the cold-shooting Denver Nuggets 108-89 Friday night.

Phoenix won the game from the foul line, converting 15 of 18 free throws in the final quarter. Johnson, who shot 13 assists, made six of nine free throws during that quarter, and John "Hot Rod" Williams hit two early in the quarter to break a 79-79 tie.

Charlotte went within two with 4:40 left after consecutive baskets by Dell Curry and Anthony Mason, but Johnson made a layup to key a game-ending 13-3 run.

Bulls 116, Bucks 101

MILWAUKEE — Dennis Rodman had Chicago career highs with 16 points and 26 rebounds and Michael Jordan scored 33 points as Chicago beat Milwaukee Friday night, 116-101.

Toni Kukoc added 20 points and Scottie Pippen had 19 for the Bulls, who became the first NBA team to win 30 games.

Glenn Robinson scored 35 points on his 24th birthday for the Bucks, who lost despite shooting 56 percent. Vin Baker had 26 points and Ray Allen added 22.

Boston signs ex-Atlanta lefty

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox signed free agent pitcher Steve Avery to a one-year contract Friday, hoping he can rebound from a rib cage injury and lead a staff that lost Roger Clemens.

Avery, the MVP in the 1991 National League championship series, became expendable after the Braves obtained lefty Denny Neagle in a mid-season trade with Pittsburgh.

Nets center in hospital

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Shawn Bradley, the NBA's leading shot blocker, was hospitalized with pneumonia Friday and is expected to remain there for more than a week, the New Jersey Nets said. The 7-foot-6 center was admitted to the Hackensack Medical Center on Friday, spokesman John Mertz said. Bradley was ill Thursday, and missed practice and that night's game against the Minnesota Timberwolves.

Bullets will change name

WASHINGTON — The Washington Bullets Friday

won a trademark infringement case brought by a New Jersey-based barnstorming basketball team, clearing the way for the Bullets to change their name to Wizards next season.

Idaho skiers at championships

MT. BACHELOR, Ore. — Several Idaho skiers were in the running after two days of the US Cross Country Championships.

Erk Flora of Hailey was the first Idaho skier at 17k in the men's 10K, only a couple of minutes off the top of the spot. Carl Swanson of Ketchum finished at 28th and Adam Heaney of Sun Valley finished 30. Ian Skinner just missed the top 30 finishing at 31st.

With great top 10 finishes only half a minute off the top in the women's 5K race, Laura Wilton of Ketchum finished seventh with Jennifer Douglas right behind in eighth. Cindi Hillemyer finished in 15th. Four more Ketchum women skied into the top 30 — Bethany Crittendon in 21st, Gretchen Ekstrom in 25th, Jennifer Fayette in 27th and Hilary Patzer in 30th.

Kerry Collins said: "We've had that big-game feeling around here for a while."

To make it the final step to the Super Bowl, the Panthers will have to accomplish another first: Win in cold weather.

In its 33-game history, Carolina never has played when the temperature at the opening kickoff was below 34 degrees. Sunday's forecast calls for highs about 10 and stiff winds.

Temperatures in the 20s and several inches of snow greeted the Panthers when their 5-K run arrived around dusk Friday, and more snow was predicted overnight. "We practice outside all the time," Bailey said, noting that the Panthers practice indoors. "No matter whether it's hot or cold, we still have to deal with it."

said of the difference in blocking from last season, when Jacksonville was 4-12, to 1995, in which the Jaguars won their final five games to grab a wild-card berth. "It's gotten better as the season has gone on."

"These guys are playing together longer. We added Leon and moved Brian DeMarco to guard, then Rich Tyski came in and has done a great job. Tony has been solid last year and this. And we have Dave Widell, a solid veteran at center who thinks he knows everything."

The Patriots know what the Jacksonville offense can do. The Jaguars never thinned at Buffalo and Denver, two extremely difficult places to win. "That's a fair assessment," Patriots quarterback Drew Bledsoe said. "We know that part of our job offensively this week is keeping the ball out of Mark and Natron's hands, because they've been very proficient in the past. "Knowing that Jacksonville has been successful offensively gives us a little sense of urgency on offense. We've got the type of weapons that work quickly from any point on the field."

Just like the Jaguars, the Patriots can strike for lots of points. They proved that early in last week's victory over Pittsburgh with a 53-yard pass to Tony Glenn on their first offensive play. They also got a 78-yard run by Curtis Martin and a 34-yard screen pass to Keith Byars for touchdowns.

The Patriots led the AFC with 418 points, and have the weapons to match the explosiveness of Jacksonville. They have Glenn, who set a rookie record with 90 catches, and speedy Shawn Jefferson, who had 50 receptions and led the team with a 15.4 average. To match Means, they have Martin, a 1,000-yard rusher in both his NFL seasons.

Judging others can be risky

My friend, I'll call him Larry, has been in the news recently. And it wasn't good news, if you know what I mean.

Those of us who know him were stunned and saddened. Those who didn't were ... well, curious. For two or three days after "The News" broke, I heard from former friends and work associates who were trying to reconcile the Larry we knew with the one who was being portrayed in the news stories. And I was constantly being cornered by current colleagues who wanted the inside story on "The Man Everybody is Talking About Today."

VALUESPEAK

Joseph Walker

"So what was he like really?" I shrugged my shoulders every time I heard the question. It wasn't that it made me angry. I just didn't know what to say beyond what I would have said two weeks earlier: "He's a good guy."

"Yeah, right," the questioner would inevitably chuckle. "But there must have been something weird about him. I mean, look at what he did!"

What he is accused of doing is bad, all right - no question about it. But I never had any reason to believe that Larry would be capable of such a thing. He is bright, witty, interesting to talk to, fun to be with. I've worked with him, traveled with him, talked with him for hours at a time. There were no hidden clues to a secret life, no tell-tale signs of duplicity. Just Larry, my friend.

"Well, there is one thing that has always struck me as a little weird," I eventually said. "Ever since I started working here, it was weird how much you reminded me of him."
They would look at me and laugh, assuming that I was pulling their leg - even though I wasn't. Not that everyone at my current place of business actually reminds me of Larry. But the fact is, they aren't really all that different from him. They are good, hard, effective workers - just like he is. They are pleasant, likable folks - just like he is. They have families whom they love and care about - just like he does. And they have weaknesses, failings and imperfections - just like he does.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not trying to equate human peccadilloes with the horrible crime of which Larry has been accused. But it is risky to view the world in absolute terms, with good guys always dressed in white and bad guys always in black. While I don't deny the existence of people who are evil deep through to the bone, for the most part, our jails are filled with good people who made a series of bad choices leading up to an unfortunate appearance on the nightly news.

At least, that's what a mutual friend of Larry's and mine decided on the phone the other day. "I keep looking back and wondering why I couldn't see that Larry had a problem," she said. "But I never suspected a thing. I feel like such an idiot."

"Why?" I asked.
"I don't know," she said. "I guess I like to think that I'm a pretty good judge of people and I'll be able to tell if there's anybody who is ... you know ... dangerous."

"Do you really think Larry is dangerous?" I asked.

"Well, I didn't think so," she said. "But now ... I don't know. And that scares me. But do you want to know what scares me even more? I know Larry pretty well, and we're alike in a lot of ways. So when I see his picture on TV and in the newspaper, part of me says, 'That could be me.' Who knows what I'm capable of eventually doing if I start making bad choices? Who knows what any of us is capable of doing?"

Who knows, indeed? That's why, as I watch these sad and sorry events unfold, I pray for Larry. I pray for the person whom they say he victimized. I pray for their families.

And I pray for us.

Miss Idaho winner shares inspiration

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Missy Mariah Espin didn't pray for the Miss Idaho crown. She didn't even expect to receive it. But she did.

Program set

Missy Mariah Espin will present a freestyle program at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls West State Center on Harrison Street. The free event is open to the public.

"I never pray let me win or don't let me win, even with things I want really, really bad," said Espin, who was crowned Miss Idaho in June 1996. "I believe Heavenly Father knows what is in his plan for me."

The plan for this year appears to have included lots of public appearances at schools and churches in southern Idaho.

Espin didn't plan on winning the Miss Idaho pageant, she said, but she is happy to represent the Miss America organization on the road.

She is the first pageant Espin ever entered. Until then, she was a music education student at Utah State University. She will return there as a sophomore at the end of her reign this year. Sunday, she wants to be a band teacher. She's 19 years old.

At the Miss Idaho pageant, Espin played her favorite piece on the clarinet, von Weber's "Concertino for Clarinet." The melody covers every extreme of emotion, she said.

Espin's primary emotion during the past six months has been joy. The Miss America pageant, last September, was "amazing," she said, "larger than life."

She came away (from both competitions) with $6,000 in scholarships.

Espin's family lives in Pineson, her hometown. There, she was valedictorian of her high school class, a National Merit Scholar and a member of All-State, All-Northwest and Intercollegiate Honor bands.

Espin's father works in a calcium mine. Her mother, a nurse, stays home with the children. Espin is the oldest of four daughters. ("My dad is outnumbered, but he's a good daddy for girls"). Her baby sister was born while she was competing for the Miss America crown.

Espin was raised in a strong Mormon home. She graduated from Seminary and received her Young Womanhood Recognition Award. She has served as class president in Young Women's and as a Family Home Evening "Mom." She is living in Boise during her reign as Miss Idaho and is currently on the activities committee in the ISU and Ward.

"My LDS upbringing and beliefs affect every area of my life," she said.

When she speaks to young people's groups, Espin talks about the importance of music and its message. It's a powerful medium - physically, emotionally and spiritually, she contends, and it can be used for good or evil.

A long time ago, Espin made the choice to use her music for good.

LDS will scale down new temple

The Associated Press

BELMONT, Mass. - Leaders of the Mormon church have agreed to scale back their design for a temple after residents complained about its impact on the neighborhood and skyline.

The recent decision came less than a month after the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints won town approval to build the $30 million temple as envisioned. The plans for a building with six spires, 76 to 139 feet high, had prompted opposition from some in this middle-class suburb.

Grant Bennett, bishop of the church's Belmont Ward, said the decision to reduce the building's size was made chiefly "to try to create a spirit of harmony and goodwill in the community."

The Boston Temple, as the building is known, would serve an estimated 5,000 Mormons in the Boston area, as well as about 40,000 in New England. The temple will be built on an 8.9-acre site 40 feet above Route 2.

Bennett said construction of the temple, originally planned to begin last fall, could be under way by the summer.

Ascension Priory in Jerome offers glimpse into antique library

By H.R. Weisel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - With an awesome sense of reverence, a Benedictine monk carefully lifts a soft cloth folded around two leather-bound books in the library at the Ascension Priory near Jerome. As the volumes are tenderly opened, the illuminated pages of the first book printed in Europe by movable type - the Holy Bible - display the intricate creativity of Johann Gensfleisch zur Laden, known to us as Johannes Gutenberg.

The Gutenberg Bible at the Priory is a replica of the first facsimile printed in the United States. Only 1,000 numbered sets were produced by Pageant Books in New Jersey. The Priory's limited edition copy is numbered 177.

The Gutenberg Bible was written in Latin with 300 to 400 copies believed to have been printed in the first production. The pages are elaborately illustrated with detailed designs using bright colors.

"Each Gutenberg Bible was rubricated and illuminated by hand, hence, each of the 46 or so surviving copies is different," according to a publication from the Priory.

"The original Gutenberg Bible had three volumes, but this replica was printed in two volumes," said Father Jude Anderson, librarian at the Priory.

A description of the Bible, printed in the back of volume 2, states, "First facsimile ever printed in the United States and only the second in the world. The reproduction derives from Ansel Verlag edition which was based on the copy in the Koniglichen Bibliothek in Berlin and the copy in the Ständischen Landesbibliothek in Fulda, considered by authorities to be the most beautifully illuminated of the 46 copies known to exist. The text pages have been printed by lithography and the illuminated pages by sheet-fed gravure. The pages used are 100 percent rag content made especially for this book. The edition has been bound in two volumes and limited to 1,000 numbered sets of which 996 are for sale."

The capital letter of the first word in most paragraphs is decorated with a red arching. In the original Gutenberg Bible, the etching and illumination were done by hand. The replica bears marks of the handwork, with no design exactly alike. Shimmering gold, an azure blue and bright crimson are most prominent colors and appear to be somewhat raised, apparently because of the texture of the paper-like ink used in the original copy.

The renowned Gutenberg, according to the January edition of Ascension Priory Pathfinder, "stemmed from a patrician family in Mainz (Germany). His family was associated with the bishop's mint at Mainz. Johannes may have grown up knowing something of goldsmithing. He was born between 1394 and 1399. In 1428 he settled in Strasbourg. In 1436 he was busy doing experiments regarding printing. By 1448 he had returned to Mainz. During the next few years he borrowed considerable money to further his experiments. In 1455, a court ordered Gutenberg to pay his creditors 1,200 guilders. Gutenberg meanwhile had derived a suitable mould and alloy for casting type of different widths.

"Gutenberg seems to have published posters and one-page documents before the appearance of the first book to come to the printing press: a Latin Bible. It was completed around the end of 1455. The Bible was produced by Gutenberg's estranged partners, Fust and Schoeffer. It is not known what part Gutenberg had in the printing of this '42-line' Bible. It was a costly undertaking with 1,282 leaves in each copy. Of the surviving 46 copies, 12 are on vellum, the rest on paper."

With the printing of the Gutenberg Bible, the historically famous door to promote literacy was opened. The printing press, invented by the German man, was a landmark in technical history, speeding up the printing process that had prevented the publication of printed information in adequate quantities to allow the average person to have a book.

Also on display in the Priory library is a replica of the Gutenberg printing press. Father Meinrad Schallberger, one of the Priory monks, made the tiny press. Miniature hinges made from leather, a brass lever and crankshaft with tiny wooden knobs and a hand-carved round wood screw that can be lowered to press the printer's plate onto a sheet of paper demonstrate the magnitude of Gutenberg's invention.

When visitors come to the Priory, Father Jude leads a tour, displaying the Gutenberg Bible and talking about the history and use of other interesting antique books in the library. Among the most notable publications is a Jewish Bible printed in 1832. It follows on one side of each page and in Spanish on the other side.

Father Jude Anderson, O.S.B., the librarian at Ascension Priory, displays a facsimile of the Gutenberg Bible, one of many treasured Bibles in the Jerome monastery.

An Antiphonal prayer book used in monastic prayers with an "impression date" of 1762 and first published in Spain in 1862, contains words and square music notes used when singing Gregorian chants. Huge concordances with metal plates, called "Concordance Editionum Vulgatae Editionis (Latin)," are also on display in the Priory library.

"Our small community of monks took up residence in our new home situated on a gentle slope some 10 miles north of Twin Falls with an outstanding view of the Magic Valley," Father Jude wrote in an illustrated brochure describing the life, work, mission and goals of the monks living at the Priory.

Community groups use the facility for meetings, retreats and worship.

Visitors are welcome at Ascension Priory, located at 541 East 100 South, Jerome. For more information, call 324-2377.

New rotunda unveiled at ancient site of Jesus' tomb

JERUSALEM (AP) — Church bells rang and the audience applauded as ropes pulled back canvas curtains to reveal a soaring dome, streaked with rays of light and stars painted in 23 1/2-karat gold.

For the first time in years, a skylight in the center let sun shine into the dim interior of the 900-year-old Church of the Holy Sepulcher, where tradition says Jesus was buried and resurrected.

The renovated 115-foot dome over the venerated tomb was unveiled Thursday, after being covered with scaffolding during decades of squabbling between the main denominations that control the church.

"The significance is not the artwork," said Ara Norzart of Fresno, Calif., who designed the dome's new look. "It's the fact that the three churches got together and agreed after so many years."

Norzart said the design was intended to represent "the explosion of light" at Jesus' resurrection.

The $5 million for the project was donated by George and Marie Doty of Rye, N.Y., who were honored guests at the unveiling.

"This is a day of great joy for us," said George Doty, a retired investment banker. "We're all children of God, hoping for the same future. It is gratifying to see how much can be accomplished when men of good will go forward cooperatively together."

Leaders of the Greek Orthodox, Roman Catholic and Armenian Orthodox churches presided over Thursday's ceremony, which was attended by Palestinian and Israeli dignitaries and dozens of priests, monks and nuns.

The Ethiopian, Egyptian Copt and Syrian churches also control sections of the Holy Sepulcher. All of the denominations jealously guard their rights to the different parts of the church and joint sites, including the tomb and the dome.

The Ottoman Turks set down rules for guardianship of holy Orthodox Russians occupy the rotunda in the traditional site of Jesus' tomb in the Church of the Holy Sepulcher on Thursday. Millions of dollars were invested in the restoration and decoration of the dome that was unveiled by Greek, Orthodox, Roman Catholic and Armenian denominations that jointly control the 900-year-old church.

Although the dome sustained major damage from fires and an earthquake during the past two centuries, it was only recently that the denominations were able to agree on restorations.

Follow the path of Jesus, find genuine contentment

As we begin a new year, we express our rekindled faith and hope as we celebrate Christ in a world of confusion and doubt.

We believe Christ was predicted by Old Testament prophets. He was born in Bethlehem to the Virgin Mary, literally the only begotten Son of God in the flesh. He taught us to love one another, forgive, be kind, serve others, love children, be honest and acknowledge his father in heaven. He healed people and raised the dead. He loved and taught truth. He organized a church with apostles, pastors and teachers, asking them to teach all nations his words and ways.

Despite his righteousness, he was mocked and crucified on a cross. He suffered in the garden to atone for our sins. He was resurrected and offers that same resurrection to all of us. He loves us unconditionally and has asked people everywhere to follow his example.

We believe he went through all the experiences of life in order to understand our trials. "Other sheep I have," he said, and taught them his way as well. We believe some of his sheep were on this continent, the record of that people and his visit being the Book of Mormon. This is a second testament of his divinity, a testimony that he truly is Jesus the Christ, the savior. We believe he will come again. We know Christ is the perfect example and, if we follow him, we will be happy.

We wish you Happy New Year with hope that the celebration of Christ's birth and his life will bring you more peace and happiness in this new year.

Bible is the best guide for the true believer

Whose church is it? Reading the article, "Tilton's wife says she leads new church" in the Times-News the other day (Jan. 4), one begins to wonder. Evidently, the charismatic Robert Tilton and his wife, Leigh Valentine Tilton, are wrangling over ownership of a particular church in the Dallas area.

Circumstances of this nature are bound to happen when the Bible is not followed as the absolute guide. Why is it that someone (other than God) has to own a church? Is there not a church that one can read about in the New Testament? Indeed there is and there is only one (not hundreds). There are no members of that one church in the New Testament if they desire. They need to read their New Testaments and see what the apostles taught relative to the topic. Are people so presumptuous to think they can improve upon what God has set up before the creation of the world? Evidently.

The New Testament is put in propositional form. That means that one can either accept its claim or deny it. For one to deny what the New Testament teaches is a serious matter indeed, but the option is theirs. There is no need for a so-called letter-day prophet or even a vicar of some respective church to lead because all that God would have us to believe is in the Bible.

Jobless rate stays near 7-year low Housing project proposed near Micron plant in Utah

New jobs, especially in service, increase

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Unemployment held steady near a seven-year low at 5.3 percent in December as the economy created 262,000 new jobs.

A jump in service employment was the biggest since last spring. While the unexpectedly large increase in payroll employment renewed inflation worries on Wall Street, President Clinton dismissed those concerns and pointed with pride to the jobs created during his first four years in office.

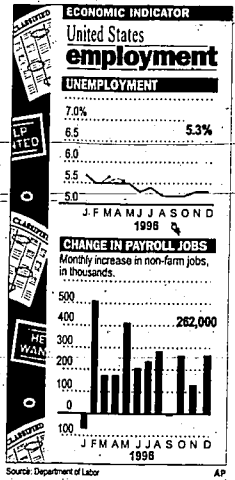

"This is the first time in the history of our country that over 11 million jobs have been created during our four-year administration," he told reporters at the White House.

The employment report sent stock prices on a roller coaster ride. The Dow Jones industrial average plunged more than 60 points right after the opening bell as stocks followed bond prices lower. However, by late afternoon, bargain hunters had reversed those losses and pushed the Dow up by more than 70 points.

Clinton died not less an authority than Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan to argue that tight labor markets have yet to trigger inflation.

Greenspan has noted that the inflation pressures that might be expected in such a situation "just have not materialized," Clinton said. "I basically believe ... that we can keep this going without undue inflation."

Government price statistics are showing that except for a jump in oil prices, inflation pressures did remain dormant strong and it has got to capture the attention of the Fed. ... The 262,000 job gain in December was not likely to move as soon as its February meeting but that a rate increase by late March or May was a growing likelihood.

Labor Secretary Robert Reich said workers' wage pressures had been overblown. He said that the higher wages were more than offset by a "dramatic slide in employer-provided benefits," reflecting in part a slowdown in health insurance costs.

The 5.3 percent unemployment rate in December marked the second month that the jobless rate has been at that level. Originally, the November figure was reported as 5.4 percent but that was revised down in Friday's report based on the government's annual benchmark revisions. According to the revised figures, the unemployment rate hit a seven-year low of 5.2 percent in August and remained at that level through October.

For the year, payroll jobs grew by 2.6 million, the best showing since a gain of 3.8 million jobs in 1994.

For December, the increase of 262,000 was the best showing since a rise of 280,000 jobs in August. It was led by a gain of 112,000 workers in service jobs, the biggest rise in this category since last May.

Factory employment rose by 19,000 in December, led by advances in aircraft and a number of other industries. Employment in construction industries was up 23,000.

America Online, with 6.5 million members, started offering a flat $19.95-a-month rate a few weeks ago, a step some blame for the current logjam.

"Like anything that's a great value, consumers are flocking to it," said David Garvine, president of market-research firm. He said the company is upgrading its systems to handle the crush.

LEHI, Utah — The site of the mammoth Micron Technology computer chip plant lies dormant for now, but developers are planning thousands of homes and hundreds of acres of businesses, schools and hotels nearby.

The Greenfield Project would cover 2,780 acres on the north side of Utah 89 between Micron and the Alpine-Highland Interchange on Interstate 15. The Utah Valley Land Co. and its 240 partners own the unincorporated Utah County property, now used for dairy farming and grazing.

Meantime, the Salt Lake real estate firm of Wallace Associates Inc., as the company's managing general partner, recently filed a petition for annexation into the Lehi.

Project manager Tom Hulbert said the development will consist of 4,150 residential units, including upscale houses and condos, commercial, retail and high manufacturing areas, eight restaurants and three hotels.

Plans also call for a library, post office, fire station, resource center, two elementary schools, one junior high school, seven church sites and a golf course. Jogging, biking and equestrian paths and parks also figure in the proposal.

Utah Valley Land Co. intends to get water through the Salt Lake County Water Conservancy District. The district has battled Micron and north Utah County cities for water rights. Four cities, including Lehi, sued the water district last year.

Developers say they will consider Draper for annexation if Lehi isn't interested in annexing the area.

Meantime, Micron's plant remains on hold, pending an improvement in the world memory chip market.

It's self-appraisal time for investors

NEW YORK — So how did you do with your savings and investments in 1996?

As you collect year-end statements from bankers, brokers and mutual funds, it's a good time to check on the progress of your money-management efforts.

You'll soon be needing to sort out your records anyway, to get ready for the annual income tax reckoning with Uncle

SAM. In addition, with the arrival of January, investors who operate on a calendar year are free to make changes by selling profitable investments without adding to their tax liability for 1996.

Year-end stock and fund tables published in newspapers, magazines and financial newsletters provide you with a handy way to check the 1996 performance of individual investments you may own.

A mutual fund's total-return-for-the-year can be appraised in comparison with some market benchmark, such as the popular stock and bond indexes. It can also be measured against the average for other funds of its type. A bank investment certificate, as a certificate of deposit, similarly, can be graded against the results you could have gotten in alternatives such as Treasury bills or money-market funds.

But that's just a starting point for evaluation, you stand. If you are working toward long-term goals, as most investors are, you may put more emphasis on the three-, five- or 10-year records of any investments you own.

A good fund manager or stock can have a bad year every now and then. But if the longer-term results are lagging, you may want to consider alternatives.

Some Internet providers turning back clock on flat rates

The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Time is running out for Internet users who are online under an unlimited, flat-rate plan.

The problem is that people are doing the computer equivalent of pulling their chairs up to the buffet table at an all-you-can-eat restaurant, costing Internet providers money, tying up phone lines and making it difficult for others to log in.

Netcom On-line Communications Service Inc. of San Jose, a pioneer of the flat-rate price, plans to announce a return to hourly rates next month. Other Internet providers, while still allowing unlimited service, are charging double the going rate.

In the next few years, other companies are expected to discontinue flat rates and return to some form of an hourly charge.

America Online, with 6.5 million members, started offering a flat $19.95-a-month rate a few weeks ago, a step some blame for the current logjam.

"Like anything that's a great value, consumers are flocking to it," said David Garvine, president of market-research firm. He said the company is upgrading its systems to handle the crush.

Retailers report uneven holiday sales

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The nation's retailers reported uneven holiday sales results because after a strong and steady start in early December, traffic and sales slowed in the weeks before Christmas.

Many retail chains released their monthly sales for December Thursday, and while there were some standouts — clothing and home-oriented retailers such as Sears, Wal-Mart and off-price clothing chain Ross Stores — other retailers were left scratching their heads about why shoppers lost the momentum they had established — just — after Thanksgiving.

"I expected it to be a lot more active than it was, with the economy being better," said Jeri M. Long, district manager for J.C. Penney stores in the Washington area. "It did start out pretty good right after Thanksgiving, for about a week, and then it just got mediocre."

Many retailers reported sales gains over last year in the low single digits for December at stores open at least a year, widely considered the best measure of a retailer's performance. In the fall, many analysts and retailers had expected sales gains in the mid- to high-single digits.

Department store sales were slow, with May Department Stores Co., the parent company of Hecht's, reporting a 2.7 percent increase in sales. Federated Department Stores Inc., which owns Macy's and other chains, reporting flat sales at comparable stores.

Many chains blame cracks in the calendar for their soft sales, including the fact that there were five fewer shopping days between Thanksgiving and Christmas this year than last year. Also, a few retailers contended with shifts in their own sales reporting calendars, throwing off comparisons to the same period last year and causing some, such as Saks Fifth Avenue, to report two sets of numbers.

But analysts were skeptical of the shifting calendar explanation, especially with the standout performance of some industry giants. For example, December same-store sales rose 9.5 percent at Sears; 10.4 percent at Kmart; 6.9 percent at Wal-Mart; 9 percent at TJX Cos., which owns TJMaxx; and 16 percent at Ross Stores.

There were also some mixed messages within categories, though. Home-oriented specialty store Pier 1 Imports reported a strong 10 percent gain, while Hechinger Co.'s comparable sales dropped 3 percent.

Electronics retailers were among the worst performers in December: Sales at both Best Buy and Circuit City, for example, fell 13 percent in December. "It's an uneven mix of performance throughout the industry, and that's the nature of the environment we're in," said Michael P. Neimeira, an economist with Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi Ltd. "At different times of the cycle, different retailers do well and pick up market share, and others don't."

Digitized image whirls with vacuum in new television commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — A decade after his death, Fred Astaire will cut a rug once again. In place of Ginger Rogers his partner will be a vacuum cleaner.

Robyn Astaire said it was the first time she has had an advertiser use her late husband's image. Among the hundreds of proposals, she said, this one was "artistically suitable" because Astaire would have seen nothing wrong with using the vacuum cleaners as dance props.

"He was always receptive to new proposals. He would have used a vacuum cleaner in a minute. Why, he used a mop in the '30s," Mrs. Astaire said. The three, 15-second ads use excerpts showing her husband performing in the movies "Royal Wedding" and "Easter Parade." They will debut before the huge audiences expected to tune in the Jan. 26 Super Bowl.

In one ad, Fred Astaire appears to be carrying a vacuum cleaner hose rather than a cane he actually held as he danced up and down stairs. In another commercial, the coat rack he danced with is replaced by a vacuum broom. In a third ad, he appears to clean a light fixture on the ceiling with a handheld vacuum.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Fred would have accepted this," his widow said after the commercials were shown to reporters. "I'm sorry if it offends some people. There will be many more who will enjoy these commercials." TV audiences are used to seeing Marilyn Monroe, Jackie Gleason, John Wayne and other long-dead celebrities digitized into commercials for everything from perfume to beer. Critics argue that it denigrates them in how their image or performance is used.

Fatsy Northcutt, who runs Northcut Productions, a video and multimedia production company in Sausalito, uses America Online for her business. But she has gotten so frustrated with delays that she is planning to quit the service "with an Internet-only provider."

"Sometimes I'll actually go into the setup and change the number. I'm dialing in to get a better line. I can always get on, but I can't read three or four times," she said. "So far it's been inconvenient but never disastrous — but at the wrong time it could be horrible."

The average Internet user is on for about 16 to 18 hours a month, said Eric Faulstich, an analyst at Gartner Group.

Flat-rate can easily be a money loser for online companies. At a cost of 90 cents to $1.80 an hour to connect a user, Internet providers will charge no more than $19.95 a month start losing money after as little as 11 hours.

Zilkler Internet Park, an Austin, Texas-based Internet service provider, offers its customers a flat-month rate of $39.95 instead of $19.95. But at that price, the company can insure customers get more than a busy signal.

It's similar to those specialty airlines that only have first-class seats: You'll always have a few who will pay more for leg room," said president Smoot, Carl Mitchell.

Top executive at the Microsoft Network, which has about 2 million members, said he doesn't foresee MSN abandoning flat rates. "But that's as far as I can see — and that's about a year," said Jeff Sanderson, marketing chief.

might consider making some changes.

No matter what period you are looking at, it's important to put the results of your investment in the context of the environment in which they were achieved.

A fund manager who has made you some pretty good money over the past couple of years may not be the best pick for a stock-picking genius, considering the powerful bull market that has occurred. . . .

invested at the beginning of 1996 — including items such as savings bonds and traditional bank savings accounts.

After you assess the individual investments to which you have entrusted your money, it's also important to look at the overall picture.

It may matter a lot to you emotions that one of your funds finished No. 8 in the growth and income category for the fourth quarter of 1996.

But what's much more important to your long-term financial health is the overall return you are getting on your money, consistent with the degree of risk you want to take — and whether your investment is growing sufficiently to get you to your goals.

To see as clearly as possible how you are doing, add up actual or estimated amounts you had different in 1997.

That information, in turn, can give you a basis for deciding what, if anything, you need to do

Using these approximate totals, you can get a picture of how far you've progressed financially during the year. From what sources the gains came, and whether you are on track to meet such objectives as children's college tuition and retirement.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

By Thomas Fuller

"As good as no time as make no good use of it."

When an enemy threat gives declarer time for only one shot at success, it's time to consult the probability tables. Often a choice that appears dangerous offers better odds than the alternative.

West leads his diamond queen. East signals encouragement with his six, and South's king wins. South can win eight tricks on the run, but for a ninth winner, he must choose between the major suits. Is it better to play three rounds of hearts, hoping to split the suit 3-3? Or is it better to lead to dummy's spade king, hoping West has the spade ace? Remember, he has time for only one choice. As soon as he loses the lead, West's diamonds will be set up, and he won't have time for a second shot.

The probability tables provide the odds. The chance of finding the hearts 3-3 is only about 36 percent. The chance of finding the spade ace with West is 50-50. Since a 50 percent chance is better than one of 36 percent, a lead to dummy's spade king is the correct (and winning) play.

What if the spade ace is with East? Doesn't that expose South to losing several spade tricks for a larger set? No, that threat is only an illusion.

Even if East has five spades, all he takes is the five spade winners, leaving South with the same eight winners with which he started.

ANSWER: Four spades. It may not make a difference, but the A-3 of spades is too much trump support for you to stop short of game.
