Premium-paring proposal under fire

BOISE - A local lawmaker is hot after a proposal to strip benefits from injured workers who test positive for drugs or alcohol. But he has run up against trial lawyers, iabor and insurance representatives and the prominent Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry. Rep. Mark Stubbs, R-Twin Falls, is co-sponsoring legislation written by a campaign contributor, David Minert, who owns a Nampa drug and alcohol-testing company.

The proposal would force insurance companies to reduce premiums by 5 percent for any employer who tests employees for drugs or alcohol. It would also make injured workers ineligible for monthly worker's compensation checks and unemployment benefits if they can't prove that their injury wasn't caused by drugs or alcohol. An injured employee already can lose some benefits if the employer can prove that intoxication caused the accident— something so cumborsome that the bill's proponents say it has never been done. This bill would shift the burden of proof to the worker.

"It really is silly, the way the law is,"

But opponents—even those who stand to benefit from the premium reduction—say the current law is valuable because it maintains an even keel in the rights of both injured worker and employer.

"We don't want our customers to finance our competitors," US West spakesman Clint Berry said.

The money was spent on changes in the company's communications network and billing process to allow competitors access to local relephone customers, Berry said.

Federal law requires telephone companies to open their operating areas to competition.

But the law doesn't provide any way for companies to ecover the cost of complying with the requirement. US West wants to get the commission thinking about how to pay for the changes in a way that favors neither US West nor its competitors, Berry said.

End bickering, Clinton asks

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON:—William Jefferson:
Clinton began his second term as president Monday, promising to lead the nation into the 21st century with a government that "does more with less."

In a day of inaugural fanfare and political reflection, he urged an end to Washington's "petty bickering and extreme partisanship."

The nation's 53rd inauguration stretched from a rousing morning prayer service to all-night revely at 15 black tie balls.

"Good luck," Chief Justice William Rehnquist said when the president finished the oath before an audience of 250,000 people.

The crowd broke the silence with a roar of cheers. The president turned and swept up Hillary Rodham Climton and swept up Hillary Rodham Climton und swept up Hillary Rodham Climton with the Carnons fired a military salute.

Climton will be the first president of the 21st century and the approaching millennium was on his mind. His vision of his second term was practicality.

"As times change, so government must change," Climton said. "We need a new government for a new century ... a government fit is smaller, lives within its means, and does more with less."

unnecessary sights, sounds and other stimuli, so they essentially suffer information overload.

Freedman and colleagues at the University of Colorado discovered that this trait is inherited. And they linked a gene that appears responsible for that to a brain receptor that helps filter information, a receptor that can be stimulated by niconine.

That means schizophrenics—who smoke get-enough niconine to switch on this receptor for brief relief, Freedman explained. "All the patients report they feel great after a cigarette," he said.

But Gershon cautioned that while Freedman has strong evidence linking this schizophrenia trait to the nicotine receptor gene, he doesn't yet have proof — especially because Freedman has not found the gene mutation that would cause it.

Mission for a 2nd term: A little less meddling

"We need a new sense of responsibility for a new century. There is work to do, work that government alone cannot do."

— Bill Clinton

— Bill Clinton

In his second inaugural address on Monday, Mr.-Clinton-once "againpromised a little something for everyone: economic security, prosperity, reconciliation, a return to traditional values, justice, Social Security and Medicare reform, and, most important of all, less government.

Would that we Idahoans could take him at this word.

But from our perspective out here in the sagebrush toolies, it looks as if some of the federal agencies that affect Idaho most directly – such as the Forest Service and the Burqau of Land Management – are becoming bigger, not smaller, parts of our lives.

The professional land managers in the two departments are quickly being overshadowed by ideologues dedicated to the proposition that Western lands are better off without Westernlands are better off without Westerniands are better oit without westerners.

It seems to us that Babbitization of America's public lands – the notion that the overseers of the country's birthright have a more enlightened view – is symptomatic of the true Clintonian philosophy of government.

It's the conviction that special-interest groups – in the Democrats' case, unions, entilement recipients, environmentalists, government workers and minority groups – generate both the money and the votes necessary to get elected. The trick is to keep all those folks happy.

So while America's schools fail to consistently produce high school graduates who can read; and the squalid streets of our nation's capital are ablaze with tribal warfare, thousands of bureaucrats labor in the fluorescent-lit wartens of the Interior and Agriculture departments on such key public-lands issues as scenic enhancement and archeological easements. What's wrong with this picture, Mr. President? "Government is not the problem and government is not the solution," Clinton declared Monday. "We, the American people, we are the solution. Our founders understood that well, and gave us a democracy ... flexible enough to face our common challenges and advance our common dreams."

dreams."
But not expansive enough to serve as the insurer of last resort against the vicissitudes of a market economy, nor foolproof enough to reconcile the craven demands of career politicians. Thankfully, most Americans don't expect government to be anything more than just and fair. The fact that it so often manages to be neither, while Striving to be more, is at the core of our frustration with public institutions.—

-stitutions.—Standard with punce institutions.—It's a question of priorities skewedby equal parts myopia and greed. The best that the president could do for the country, it seems to us, is to let the Founding Fathers' vision work as they intended.

"The pre-eminent mission of our new government is to give all Americans an opportunity - not a guarantee – but a real opportunity to build better lives," Clinton said Monday.

Well spoken, Mr. President. Now kindly let us Idahoans follow that advice and live out your term on our own terms.

A thenry IV's coronation, the archishop anointed the king with oil said to have been given to Thomas a Becket by the Virgin Mary (and the archbishop found the king's hair aswarm with lice). Republics, favoring simplicity, have less exotic civic liturgies. Republics rely on rhetoric to quicken the public pidse. America's pulse probably stayed steady during President Clinton's bland, formulaic Inaugural Address.

The day before the inaugurantion, a Washington Post report of an interview with Clinton carried this headline. "Clinton Sees End of Fight Over Government's Role." Colly. An argument as old as Plato's "Republic." over? A great constant of American life, the argument about how much and what kind of government want, and what we are willing to pay for it in circumscribed freedom and conscripted treasure, over? Clinton's wish was the father of that thought as it appeared, somewhat hedged, in his Inaugural Address: "We have resolved of or our time a great debate about the role of government." "Our time" ends this week.

Americans are in an unusually intense period of debate about the proper spheres of individual and government are responsibilities, with a subsidiary debate raping about which levels of government are responsible for what.

Granted, as long ago as the 1944 presidental examinar in the Reuviblican candid shall be a first objective of national policy," achieved, if necessary, by government job creation. In 1962 President Kennedy declared that arguments about the nation's domestic arrangements now

"relate not to basic clashes of philosophy or ideology but to ways and means of reaching common goals," principally through "the practical management of a modern economy."

Clinton chose to echo George Bush's Inaugural Address, in which Bush declared that "the people did not send us here to bicker," Bush then pusued and extended his hand to two Democrats, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell and Speaker Tom Foley, The four-year grawing they gave that hand did much to prevent a second Bush Inaugural Address.
Clinton on Monday decried "petry

Clinton on Monday decried "petty bickering," but the adjective hardly bickering." but the adjective hardly modifies the nour to stigmatize arguing as bickering is to declare it the low activity of small people. But when Clinton, referring to the American people, spoke of the "partisan politics they plainly deplore," he denied what is obviously the case in a nation with two durable parties, when the electorate frequently entrusts the political branches to different parties, it is inisting an partisan clashes.

Clinton is said to be preoccupied by history estimate of his greatness. When asked to be preoccupied by history estimate of his greatness. When asked by well asked to be present the president can achieve that without "smining a big fight," he said he has had some big ones, mentioning fights over the budget and trade and even the crime bill. (You remember - midnight basketball and all that, 1 He likens himself to two other presidents who served at the dawns of centuries; Jefferson and Teddy Roosevelt, Jefferson projected the nation's sphere to the Pacific. TR, who spoiled for fights as ardently as Clinton Jongs for Jove, projected the government into the nation's economic life and the nation is to the world in dramatically new ways. The contrast between building the Panama Canal and passing the crime bill is a telling index of two men's contrasting ideas of what is big.

Nowadays, people who have nothing much in mind for next week speak instead about the next century or millennium, as Clinton does. "It's no easy thing," reports the Washington Post's front page, empathizing with him," "slstering in a milennium."

Actually, nothing could be easier. Just empainting with timit, unlearing it a millennium."

Actually, nothing could be easier, Just stand there. One minute it is one millennium, the next minute it is another. Millennia arrive whether or not anyone ushers them in – another blow to presidential pride and a setback for the quest for greatness.

Senior users fight for water plan

BOISE – It has been three decades since the city of Los Angeles eyed Idaho water with a proprietary gleam. Now the constant struggle for water is mostly among Idahoan. As the newest Idaho Water Plan hit lawmakers' desks Monday, Magic Valley water users sat back, having onvinced plan writers to revise five policies to glavor senior – or prior water plans holders over more junior rights holders over more junior rights holders over more junior rights holders over more junior proposals that may not make it into the state water plan, said water lawyer John Rosholt, who represents the Twin Falls Canal Co., the North Side Canal Co., the American Falls Reservoir District and the Milner Irrigation District, which irri-gate 375,000 acres in Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding and Elmore counties.

And those proposals support senior water users, who typically use surface water, over junior water users, many of whom pump from wells permitted after World War II.

Senior water users fear they could lose the right to immediately sue if a more junior pumper infringes on their water rights, Rosholt said. New language in the plan would force complainants to first go through an administrative procedure known as conjunctive management - which handles groundwater and surface water as a single entity. He would like to revert to the old language, that allowed several ways to contest such infringement.

Also, Roshot warned against taking more water from the Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer than is naturally replaced each year, as is written into the new water plan but prohibited by state law. Restricting such use could mean farmers couldn't invest in larger pumps or potentially hold back development in other ways, said Sen. Laird Noh, R. Kimberly.

"It's just like having a line of credit,"

Rosholt said. "You want to make sure you have the money to pay the bill." He was a Magic Valley water users be a more than their proposals a would concerns, and their proposals or change the proposal are reasonable, Noh said Bag their proposals could receive criticism from thosse who represent junior water users. "The proposals. "would favor those junior appropriators less," Noh said. "I have an idea that an effort will be made to find some balance here." In any case, concerns haven, the same control of the proposals.

to ind some balance here."

In any case, concerns haven't yet reached the ears of eastern Idaho Sens.

John Hansen, Stan Hawkins or Lin

Whitworth, who all sit on Not's compuitee. But they could crop up after the plan goes to the House for approval, Noh said.

A public hearing is still a couple of weeks away, Noh said.

Computer whiz kid helps Jerome School District

By Mark Heinz

JEROME - There are only two things to do with students who have amazing computer skills - hire them and trust them, or worry about them using their talent to manipulate the system, Jerome School District computer technician Tom Rosen says.
With Nick Newsom, Rosen opted for

With Nick Newsom, Nosen opten on the former.

A Jerome High School junior, Newsom gets handson training and a paycheck through his work on the school district's computer system.

But Rosen said he has also benefited from his working relationship with Newsom. The two met during the last academic year when Newsom approached Rosen and told him there were some problems with the district's system.

"He said we had some security loop-

"He said we had some security loopholes in our (operations) system," Rosen said. "I thought he was full of balone,
But he showed me some things I didn't even know existed."
It was easy to decide what to do next,
Rosen said. Newsome was hired.
Newsom, 17, started working for the district through the School-to-Work program. Last summer he worked full-time, helping install hardware and wiring to the district's rapidly expanding network of classroom computers.
Since then, he has helped program, maintain and repair the system for a few hours each week.
Newsom, who grew up in Los Angeles,

new nours each week.

Newsom, who grew up in Los Angeles, said his interest in computers and other technology was sparked by childhood said his interest in computers and onnet technology was sparked by childhood takering.

"My father is a very technology-minded person; he always brought home a lot of old electronic things for me to play with," he said.

When he was about 12, Newsom got tired of waiting for his father to program games into the old computers sitching around the house, so he statring learning how to do it himself.

"I broke a couple and learned by trial arrows a proper situation of the computer of the couple of the computer of the computers of the couple of the computers of the computer of the couple of the computers of the couple of the coupl them.

When one of the company's systems operators died in an auto accident, Newsom was called in to take his place and gained computer knowledge first-band.

"I didn't know what I was doing at first, I just had to figure it all out," he said.

first, I just had to figure it all out," he said.

Newsom started to visit Jerome after his father moved here to start a crop-dusting business. About a year and a half ago, he decided to stay.

"One day I found myself registering for classes instead of getting on the plane back to California," Newsom said.

Rosen said Newsom's help has been invaluable to him and Special Services Director Chris Gibson as they scramble to keep up with the district's demands for improvements.

What Newsom has is "the giff" a natural understanding of computers similar to the talent great artists seem to be born with, Rosen said.

But Newsom also has good social skills which make him a terrific teacher, Rosen said.

"Ha'll ag algaces He'll make more which make him a terrific teacher, Rosen said.

"He'll go places. He'll make more money his first year out of college than I make now," Rosen said.

Newsom is on his way.

Through alternative school night classes, he hopes to graduate by the end of this academic year. After that, he hopes to go through rigorous technician certification courses offered by Movell and Microsoft software companies. Newsom suid he also wants to go to college, carve out a niche in the network consultant business in Los Angeles and get his pilot's license so he can easily commute between California and Jerome.

"The had hopen't want his life to get seri-Jerome.

But he doesn't want his life to get seri-

Jerome.

But he doesn't want his life to get serious too soon.

"While Tm a kid, I'll still do all the kid stuff and have fun," he said.

Newsom said working with computers and telecommunications gives him a chance to change society for the better.

"It's putting power in the hands of the average Joes and allowing them to accomplish tasks without having a supercomputer in their room." he. said. "Over the Internet, you can't judge somebody's opinion by what color or sex they are, or by what religion they have."

City approves park cleanup

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - With a pair of eager Boy Scout troops looking on, the City Council unanimously approved a volun-teer program to rid municipal parks of reach trash.

"Hopefully this will blossom into more than just an anti-litter program," said city Parks and Recreation Commissioner Don Morishita, who presented the idea to city leaders.

Known as Adopt-A-Park, the program is modeled on the Idaho Department of Transportation's Adopt-A-Highway campaign, Morishita said.

Several groups, including local Boy Scouts and a 4H club, have asked to participate, Morishita said. He predicted that clvic-minded organizations will enthusiastically support a program to rid city parks of rubbish.

Officials at St. Edward's Catholic October About the program, said Mayor Jeff Gooding.

The group's immediate goal is raise half of the $1.2 million by March. With $500,000 rajest, that leaves $200,000 to go.

The Cassia County School Board originally had planned to spend $1.4 million on an auditorium, paid for out of a bond issue that voters approved last year. But the board accepted the foundation's expansion proposal in October.

Since October, foundation members have been working every day to raise the money, needed to meet the board's expectations of 5600,000 by the time the project is advertised for bidding in early March. In the meantime, school district officials are moving forward with plans to build the 1,200-seat auditorium while leaving room for additions later.

School architect Jay Christopherson said plans were submitted to the state for approval on Dec. 20 that outline the 1,200-seat auditorium, with additions such as the orchestra pit drawn in separately.

When the project is advertised for bids in March, Christopherson said it will be advertised with "add-alternatives," meaning bilders will be asked to hald their prices on the alternatives until the foundation has enough funds committed to move forward with the plans.

"We've broken it out so that, the auditorium is included in the base bid, with line items for other add-alternative," he said. "This way, the foundation cum criming runds while we work un the rest of the building."

expected to last from three to five weeks.

"The length of time will be a factor" during jury selection, Stoker said.

He and prosecutors John Bradley and Howard Smyser will spend all week whittling down a jury pool of 150 people to a board of 12 jurors and two alternates. Opening statements in the trial are expected to begin Monday morning, barring substantial delays in selecting a jury.

After inquiries about their health and ability to serve on a jury during a prolonged trial, potential jurors will fill out questionnaires today. The questionnaires, exploring potential jurors' previous criminal justice experi-ences, their feelings about the professionalism of police, arm-neys, doctors and crime experts, and their knowledge of the case, are given to the attorneys.

From there, the lawyers ques-tion potential jurus about their answers and pose hypothetical situations that relate to the case. Based on those responses, atto-neys can excuse or accept the juror.

The adage that trials and be wan or lost during jury selection holds some credibility in this case, Butcher's interney said:

"Every trial expert has a different opinion. Some say spreading statements are the most important. Some say closing statements. Some say closing statements in the same said "I think it's all important."

Arts magazine reaches for 'High Ground'

SPOKANE — Like so many good ideas, the art magazine High Ground was born over a glass of cheap wine. That's how Ross Coates recalls it anyway.

The event occurred several years ago, in Los Angeles. Coates, a Washington State University professor of art, was attending the opening reception for an art exhibit.
An exhibition of his own had opened just the week before, but this one was for Marilyn Lysohir, Coates' longtime companion

ion.

So, he recalls, he's standing there with his glass of wine in hand when a stranger walks right up to him.

"Where are you from?" she asks.

"Well, um, I'm from Pullman," Coates answers.

answers.
"What the hell is going on up there?"

"What the hell is going on up there?" she says.
Taken aback, Coates manages to croak out a question of his own, even though "What?" is all he's able to say.
"Well," the woman says, "you're having a show. I just say your show. This person is from Pullman, and she's having a show here. And then there was this other guy, he was from Pullman, who had a show last month. And there's somebody else who's going to have a show next month, and he's from Pullman. So, what the hell is going on up there?"
And just that fast, Coates had an going to have a show next month, and he's from Pullman. So, what the hell is going on up there?"

And just that fast, Coates had an insight, a thought that began to crystallize for both him and Lysoliir when they returned home and started looking around awhat was going on in the Moscow.

Whe begoin coates that in this whole paleau area, there's all kinds of good stuff happening." Coates says.

And almost that fast, the two of them decided that they needed to help get the word out. Which is how High Ground came to be.

Two issues of the art magazine have been published so far, one each in 1995 and '96, and a third is on the drawing board. Coates and Lysoliir, who act as coeditors/publishers, work with a budget that wouldn't match a typical magazine's expense allowance (after printing 600 copies of the '96 issue and pricing them at $31 apiece, Coates and Lysohir expect to "break even" if they sell some 450). Yet while clearly not a money-making project, High Ground does boast a mailing list of about 250. More to the point, it

A piece he created on hunting was exhibited in Salt Lake City, Texas and Alaska.

US West gets OK for mobile-phone service

DENVER — US West Communications has won licenses to provide a new mobile-phone service to customers in 53 markets in its 14-state region, company officials said Monday.

Company officials said the PCS, or personal communications service, will provide customers with security from eavesdropping.

In addition, US West will integrate the new service with existing wireline services, which will enable customers to connect mobile phones with computers, fax machines, pagers and traditional wired phones. wired phones.
Solomon D. Trujillo, president and US West is expected to begin offering mobile-phone services in some of its markets by the end of 1997. It could take the company several more years to introduce the service in every market, company officials said.

The Baby Bell won 53 licenses to provide wireless PCS service in a Federal Communications Commission auction.

The auction, which lasted five months, ended last week.

US West's winning bids totaled $57 million.

Boise wood products company reports modest 4th-quarter profit

BoisE — Boise Cascade Corp. reported fourth-quarter 1996 carmings of $2.1 million Monday, ending the red ink that had marked its earnings for the previous two quarters.

But it again paid dividends to holders of preferred stock, resulting in a loss of formous carmings on each share of contract of the property of the previous two parters.

The modest profit for the October-December quarter reflected continued unfavorable conditions in the paper market that were partially offset by strong performances from the Boise-based company's office products and building materials segments, Chairman George Harad said in a statement.

Little change was expected during the early part of this year, Harad said, because paper prices remain depressed and office product strength should be offset by seasonal weaknesses in building material sales.

But, he said, "the company's performance should improve as the year progresses, assuming moderate ongoing growth in the U.S. and overseas."

compared to a profit of $70.4 million, or $1.15 per share, for the final quarter of 1995.

Sales increased only fractionally to $1.26 billion as the weighted price for paper dropped another 3 percent from the third quarter. Paper accounts for about half of all Boise Cascade sales. Net income for the year totaled just over $9 million compared to $351.9 million in 1995. But again because of dividend payments to preferred stockhold-ers, common stock suffered a 63-cent-pershare loss compared to $535 in net earnings during 1995. Sales totaled $5.1 billion, up $34 million from the previous year. The financial picture during the last three months of 1996 was bolstered by $10.7 million increase in net income as a result of the sale of the company's Runford, Maine, mill and 667,000 acres of timberland and a pretax writedown from issuance of stock in Boise Cascade Office Products Corp.
Harad said future earnings capacity should be improved by the start-up of the new paper machine at the Jackson, Ala, which should produce 330,000 tons of uncoated free sheet paper annually.

'We must keep our old democracy forever young'

The Associated Perss

Excerpts from the next of President Clintum's innegated address on Mandre. My fellow crimers

At this last presidential innauguration of the 10th century, let us this ore yets toward the challenges that award us in the next centure, it is our pers good fortune that time and chance have put us and only on the edge of a breigh more prospect in human affairs. A moment that well define our course, and our chancer in decades to come. We must keep our course, and our chancer in decades to come. We must keep our old democracy fureign runny. Grided by the ancient vision of a premise than let us set our sights upon a land of New Prunise.

The promise of American was born in the 18th country our off the bold contribution that we are all created equal. It was extended and preserved in the 19th commy, when our ration spread across the continent, saved the union, and abodished the scourpe of sharery. Then, in turnooil and triming, that prunise exploded ours the world stage to make this the American Century.

What a century it has been.

that prumise exploded amo the world stage to make this the American Century, it has been. America became the world's mighies industrial power, sound the world from tyramy in two world were and a lung oild sun-and time and again, mached across-te globe to millions with lungal for the blessings of libery. Abong the wor, Americans pro-cinced the press middle class and socrety in del age, both unminded centers of learning and opened public schools to all split the amount and explored the beausing memory of the computer and the information of the computer and the microthing and desponed the self-sing of joint per making a rem-lacion in civil rights for African Americans and all minorities, and extending the design of defineration, when for the third time succession. Now, for the third time success control is specified to the self-

commary with a clinice to spread our nations from cuast to cases. We began the 10th commary, with a clinice on farmers the industrial resultation to our values of free enterprise, conservation, and human decency. Thuse choices made all the difference.

As the dissect of the 15x commar, a large people must choose to shape the forces of the information age and the global society, to unleash the limitees proposed as only a product of the information age and the global society, to unleash the limitees protential of all our prople, and form a more perfect union.

When last we gathered, our march to this new future seemed less certain than it does today. We wowed then to set a clear course, to renew our ration.

In these four years, we have been touched by trapedy, exhilarated by challenge, strengthened by achievement. America stands alone as the world's indispensable mation. Once again, our economy is the strongest on earth.

Once again, we are building stronger families; thriving communities, better educational opportunities, a cleaner environment.

Froblems that once seemed destined to deepen now bend to our efforts: our streets are safer and record numbers of our fellow clieneshave moved from welfare to work. And once again, we have resolved for our time a great debate over the role of government. Today we can declare: Government is not the problem and government is not the problem and government is not the solution. We, the American people, we are the solution. Our founders understood that well, and gave us a democracy strong enough to feel our common challenges and advance our common challenges and advance our common challenges and advance our common challenges. As times change so georgment.

crough to face our common challenges and advance our common freams.

As times change, so government must change. We need a new government for a new century, a government for a new century, a government may change. We need a new government may be not be a lour problems for us, to solve all our problems for us, to solve all our problems for our selves. A government may be not selves. A government and an advance in the control of the selves of the selves and interest around the world, and where it an give Americans the power to make a real difference in their everyday lives, government should do more, not less. The preeminent mission of our new government is to give all Americans an opportunity—not a guarantee—but a real opportunity to build better lives. Beyond that, my fellow citzens, the future is up to us. Our founders taught us that the preservation of our liberty and our union depends upon responsibile citzenship.

And we need a new sense of responsibility for a new century. There is work to do, work that government a lone cannot do. Teaching children to read. Hiring people off welfare roles. Coming out from behind locked doors and shuttered windows to help reclaim our streets from drugs, and gangs and crime. Taking time out from our own lives to serve others.

Each and every one or us, at ou, own way, must assume personal responsibility — not only for ourselves and our families, but for our neighbors and our nation.

Our greatest responsibility is to embrace a new spirit of community for a new century. For any one of us to succeed, we must succeed as one America.

as one America.

The challenge of our past remains the challenge of our future. Will we be one nation, one

In these four years, we have been touched by tragedy, exhilerated by challenge, strengthened by adiievement.

people, with one common destiny — or no?? Will we all come together, or come apart?
We cannot — we will not — succumb to the dark impulses that lurk in the far regions of the soul, everywhere. We shall overcome them, and we shall replace them with the generous spirit of a people who feel at home with one another.
Our rich texture of racial, religious and political diversity will be a godsend in the 21st century. Great rewards will come to those who can live together, learn together, work together, forge new ties that bind together.
As this new era approaches, we can already see its broad outlines. Ten years ago, the Internet was the mystical province of physicists. Today is a commonplace encyclopedia for millions of school children. Scientistsnow are decoding the blueprint of human life. Cares for our most feared illnesses seem close at hand.
The world is no longer divided into two hostile camps. Instead, now we are be utilding bonds with nations that once were our adversaries. Growing connections of commerce and culture give us a chance to lift the fortunes and spirits of people the world over. And for the very first time in all of his tory, more people on this plane live under democracy than dictatorship.

My fellow Americans, as we look back at this remarkable century, we may sak, "Can we hope not just to follow, but even to supass the achievements of the 20th century in America and to avoid the awful hloodshed that stained in legacy." To that question, every American here and every American in our land today must answer a resounding "yes."

ing "Yes."

This is the heart of our task. With

This is the heart of our task. With a new vision of government, a new sense of responsibility, a new spirit of community, we will sustain of community, we will sustain of community, we will sustain again in a land of new yourine. In this new land, education will again in a land of new yourine. In this new land, education will be every citizen's most prized possession. Our schools will have the highest standards in the world, igniting the spark of possibility in this property of the laughter of our children because no one will try to shoot them or self them drugs any more. Everyouse who can work will work with noday's permanent underlasts part of them drugs any more. Everyone who can work will work with unday's permanent underclass part of tomorrow's growing middle class.

New miracles of medicine at least will reach not only those who can claim care now but the children and hardwarking families too long denied. We will stand mightly for peace and freedom and maintain a strong defense against serror and destruction. Our children will sleep free from the threat of nuclear, chemical or biological weapons. Ports and airports, farms and factories will thrive with trade and innovation and ideas. And the world's greatest democracy will lead a whole world of democracies. From the height of this place and the summit of this century, let us po forth. May God strengthen our hands for the good work ahead, and always, always bless our America.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"Isn't the best defense always a

An attacking defense is fine as long as the attack is in the right direction. If declarer has losers he can't avoid, there is little need to attack immediately in that direction. Better to look for a more important target. South ruffs the diamond lead and plays his ace and another club. How should East attack after he wins his queen?

If East makes the "obvious" switch to the heart queen. South loses two heart tricks, but he makes his game. He crossruffs his losers, easily ruffing two clubs and a heart in dummy.

South's play in clubs should alert East that South is planning to rossruff. Before leading to trick crossruff. Before leading to trick acet Last that south is planning to crossruff. Before leading to trick four, East must ask himself this question: "If South has heart losers, where can he put them?"

The answer is, "Nowhere." Therefore, instead of attacking in hearts, East must attack the impending crossruff. After he wins lis club queen, a trump lead beats the game. South wins in dummy and crossruffs in the minors. However, when South leads hearts from dummy. East splits his honors. After this play by East, South cannot keep East off lead and a second trump lead by East eliminates a heart ruff in dummy. South then loses three hearts and South then loses three hearts and a club for one down.

Might South have made his Might South have made his game against the best defense? Yes, but only if he leads a low heart from his hand at trick two. He can then play carefully to keep East off lead, preventing htm from leading a second trump. This farsighted plan allows declarer to ruff three losers in dummy, limiting his losses to only one club and two hearts.

SALT LAKE CITY - Karl Malone scored 32 points, including 14 in the decisive third quarter, as the Utah Jazz defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 93-74 Monday night. The Jazz outstoord the Cavaliers 32-10 in the third quarter to take a 77-48 lead heading into the final period. Jeff Hornacck scored 19 points for Utah. Bobby Phills had 17 points for Cleveland, which has lost seven of its fast eight. The Cavaliers took a 28-27 lead with 9:05 left in the second period after Phills scored seven straight points. But Adam Keefe gave Utah the lead for good with 7:36 left in the half, and the Jazz outscored the Cavaliers 15-10 rest of the half.

Kansas, the lone unbeaten team in Division I, led The Associated Press college baskerball rankings Monday for the eighth straight week and was the first unanimous No. 1 choice since Duke in the 1991-92 season.

For the first seven weeks of their run, the Jayhawks (1480) had Wake Forest right behind them, but the Demon Deacons (13-1) lost to Maryland on Sunday and fell to fourth.

Clemson (16-1) moved up one spot to No. 2 and Kentucky (16-2) jumped two places to No. 3.

Kansas received all-71 first-place votes and 1,775 points from the national media panel.

Colorado jumped into the Top 25 at No. 18, the Buffaloes first ranking since Colorado jumped into the Top 25 at No. 18, the Buffaloes' first ranking since the 1968-69 season. That was also the last time they won the then-Big Eight and the last time they were in the NCAA tournament.

NEW ORLEANS – A contentious Bill Parcells said Monday "nothing's changed" despite a report that Studday's changed" despite a report that Studday's Super Bowl would be his last game as coach of the New England Patriots. Yet one of his players wondered about his motives, and his boss, team owner Robert Kraft, criticized Parcells' agent for his role in the Boston Globe story. "This is old news," Parcells said at an evening news conference. "The not going to discuss this, gentlemen. Nothing's charged just because there's another report out."

Part of Monday's report by Will McDenough was based on comments by Robert Fraley, Parcells' agent.

At first, Parcells denied that Fraleyhat talked about the situation, then asked reporters, "did you see a quote?"

This town was invented for the Fridge, who grazed contentedly on oysters and clams, downing them by the dozen. He climaxed his stay by scoring a touchdown, something Walter Payron did not manage, in the Bears' 46-10 rout.
The first New Orleans Super Bowl in 1970 was jolted by reports that Len Dawson had ties to a Detroit gambler. Like the McMahon affair, the story had no basis in fact and Dawson responded by being the game's MVP in a 23-7 victory over Minneson.

The Super Bowl is supposed to be in a warm-weather setting so the climate doesn't interfere with the game. New Orleans, though, has occasionally challenged that premise. The coldest game in the series was played at Tulane Stadium in 1972 when the thermometer barely nudged 40 degrees. There years later, if was so frigid that fountains froze outside the Pittsburgh Steeler's borel. That was the last Super Bond a Tulane and the one that ignited Pittsburgh's run of four championships in sky years. Final Societies 16, Vikings 6.

Two of Denver's four Super Bowl losses occurred in New Orleans, including a $5:10 embar-rassment against Sam Francisco in 1990, the biggest biscopie in Super Bood bistory. Came week that year was joiled by a TV report existing magnetic that the crisis in the administration of new commissioner Paul Tagliabne. Not long afterward, the league overhoused in sexing procedures.

Packers warm up to great outdoors

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The NFL's best late-season defense will be on display in the Super Bowl. It may not be the Green Bay Packers. They allowed the fewest points and yards during the regular sean. But the New England Parriots defense has held its two playoff opponents to just three field goals and its last seven opponents to only four touchdowns.

In the last four minutes of their field goals and its last seven opponents to only four touchdowns.

In the last four minutes of their 20-6 AFC championship game win over Jacksonville, the Patriots forced three turnovers — Afterward, defensive end Willie McGinest spoke up for a defense that was vulnerable to long passes early in the season and was blown out 34-8 by Denver in the 11th game.

"No one's been giving our defense the respect that we deserve, no matter who we play," he said. Out the season was a season of the season, doesn't have the jed done and their said that counts.

McGinest, in his third pro season, doesn't have the notoriety of Green Bay defensive end Reggie white. And free safety Willie Clay, whose interception will. 3-43 left stopped a potential tying-drive by the Jaguars, isn't an All-Iro like Packers strong safety LeRoy Butler.

Yet in their last seven games, the Patriots have allowed 73 points, just one more than the Packers.

The team took advantage of the weather to have its first outdoor practice since Oct. 31.

"It was nice being outside. You know, it's been a couple months since we've been able to do that," said coach Mike Holmgren, who moves workouts to the team's indoor practice facility across from Lambeau Field every season by November.

The 62 Burton has played in all but one game, starting four. He is averaging 11.9 points, 3.3 rebounds and 3.3 assists.

Hawail, Tulsa players earn WAC kudos

DENVER - Hawaii's Anthony Carter and Tulsa's Shea Seals were amed players of the week in the Western Athletic Conference Monday.

named players of the week in the Western Athletic Conference Monday. Carter was named WAC player of the week for the Pacific Division for leading the Rainbows to conference victories over Colorado State and Wyoming last week. In the two games, Carter, a 6-foot-2 junior guard, was 17 for 21 from the field and averaged 19 points, 5.5 assists, 2.5 rebounds and 1.5 steals. Seals, a 65 senior guard-forward, led Tulsa po WAC victories over Rice, New Mexico and UTEP to win Mountain Division honors.

UConn stars can't travel with team

STORRS, Conn. - Connecticut point guard Ricky Moore and center Kirk King cannot travel with the Huskies until their suspensions are lifted, leaving some doubt about whether they'll play against Miami on Wednesday.

There's liftle chance the two players would be on the team flight to Miami, since the glane was scheduled to leave at 630 a.m. MST Tuesday and the NCAA offices were closed Monday for the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday. But if the NCAA restored their eligibility soon enough for Wednesday night's game, special arrangements could be made to get them on a commercial flight to Miami, school officials said Monday. Moore, a sophomore, and King, a senior captain, were declared ineligible last week pending an NCAA ruling on whether they should be further penalized for accepting improper gifts — reportedly airline tickets.

Wynalda takes Player of Year award again

LOS ANGELES – U.S. National Team forward Eric Wynalda became the first two-time winner of the 1996 Honda Player of the Vear award Monday when he was honored as the top soccer player in the United States in 1996.

Wynalda, 'Z1, is the all-time leading scorer for the National Team with 27 goals. He also plays for the San Jose Clash of Major League Soccer. Wynalda, who also won the award in 1992, received 79 first-place votes and 315 points from a panel of 180 sports journalists from around the country.

Northridge's Rhoden Big-Sky Player of Week

OGDEN, Utah - Gerald Rhoden, a Cal State Northridge senior guard who scored 44 points in two conference victories last week, was anamed Monday as Big Sky Conference Player of the Week.

The 6-5, 215-pound senior guard from San Diego added five rebounds in the Matadars't two conference wins against Weber State and Cal State Socramento.

The victories pushed league newcomer Cal State Northridge into a tie for second place with Idaho State: Rhoden scored a career-high 31 points in the 90481 win over Weber State, shooting 62.5 percent and 57.1 percent from behind the three-point arc.
