Big changes coming for Idaho elk hunters

More hunters could be afield in Magic Valley region in coming years

TWIN FALLS - Major changes are in the works for Idaho elk and deer hunters next year and state wildlife managers will conduct as eries of public meetings to learn what people think of the idea.

Wildlife officials want to increase mature bull elk numbers in areas where they've declined alarmingly and the upshot could be more elk hunters setting their sights on the Magic Valley region in years to come.

"I think we'll absorb a few more hunters," doctor who is vice chairman of the Idaho Fish and Game Commission.

In early March, the commission will decide the general direction that Idaho's elk and deer hunting will take, Wood said Wednesday, "and it's going to depend on what the public has to say at these meetings."

The elk and deer proposals were drafted after lengthy discussions at 30 public meetings held around the state in November, About 5,000 people attended the meetings and roughly 4,000 written comments were submitted.

Regardless of which direction the commis-sion takes, "there are big changes coming for elk," said Randy Smith, wildlife biologist with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game in Jerome.

"Idahoans, will still be able to hunt elk every year," Smith said Wednesday, "but they will have to make some choices."
The elk hunting proposal contains two options.

The first option would eliminate all "open" hunts, which allow an unlimited number of elk hunters within a hunting unit. All hunters

Sandy plans to table his castration bill

Measure provides for chemical use

BOISE - A proposal to chemically castrate child molesters looked like it was on hold, until a political adversary accused its author of playing politics.

The author - Senate Assistant Majority Leader John Sandy, R. Hagerman - had said he didn't have enough information about the effectiveness of chemical eastration to pre-

"It was a political thing," she said. "I think that if he had pursued it, it would have backfired. It was definitely something that Idaho was not ready for."

Dairymen dump milk in protest

The Associated Press

Dairy farmers in several states dumped their milk Wednesday or diversed it to charitable groups to protest a steep decline in prices.

Clint Van Vleet, a Sulphur Springs, Texas, dairyman and president of the 250-member Texas Milk Producers Association, said 250,000 to 500,000 gallons of milk were dumped in that state.

"We are sending a message ... we want the price system thrown in the scrap heap," Van Vleet said.

Organizers had expected farmers from Wisconsin, Minnesota, Vermont, Pennsylvania, New York, Missouri, Texas, California and New Mexico to take part in the one-day action. But or gantle for the said he had no word on how many actually took part and did not expect overall figures to be available.

Gore, Hillary Clinton defend abortion rights; rallies mark anniversary of ruling

MASHINGTON — The 24th anniversary of the Supreme Court's landmark decision legalizing abortion was marked Wednesday by protest, a bomb scare and condemation of anti-abortion terrorism by Vice President Al Gore. "To those who committed the horrible deeds of Tulsa and Atlanta, I say this... the American people will not tolerate your cowardly crusade," Gore said of recent abortion-clinic bombings in those cities. As he and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton spoke to the National Abortion and Reproductive Rights Action League, tens of thousands of abortion opponents rallied near the White House, them marched to Capitol Hill to protest the Supreme Court's 1973 Roce. Randall Terry, leader of the antiabortion Operation Rescue group, told marchers their job was to "carry the banner of resistance and replace evil politicians."

At a rally on the Ellipse, freshman Rep. Kenny Hulshof, R.Mo., voiced concern that Gore and Mrs. Clinton would "point to random acts of violence in an effort to tuint our worthy cause.

Protest leaders vowed to push legislation to ban a Inte-term procedure known as a "partial-birth" abortion. Clinton vetoed a birl passed by Congress last year to outlaw the procedure, and Republicans. The anniversary got off to a shaky start several hours before the procedure where Gore and Mrs. Clinton appeared found a small fusing, device used in grenade training, device used in grenade training. - including archers and those with muzzleloader rifles - would have to compete for a limited number of elk tags in a "controlled" hunt. Issuing an unlimited number of archery permits within a given hunting unit also is a possibility.

The other option would require Idaho elk hunters to select one of two different unuting tags that would be valid in only one of 28 different cones. In some cases, the zones would be identical to existing hunting units, but other zones would be formed by clumping as many as five different units together, Smith said.

At the heart of the second option would be the choice between an "A tag" or a "B tag."

An unlimited number of A tags would be available for every zone—which means anyone who wants to hunt elk could do so. The downside would be that rifle hunters could shot only immature, or "spike" bulls, some anderless permits could be issued in selected zones.

The rifle season for hunters with A tags would open Oct. 15 oct. 15, depending on local conditions.

"Scrious archery hunters will."

entinued from A1.

A limited number of B tags would be sold, but rifle hunters would be allowed to shoot any buil elk within that zone. In most cases, archers would be limited to spike bulls and antlerless elk, but some zones might offer archers the chance to shoot any elk.

Most existing controlled hunts would continue, but the rifle season for hunters with B tags would open on Sept. 15, Oct. 10 or Oct. 15.

Proposed changes for deer son for hunters with a tags wound open on Sept. 15, Oct. 10 or Oct. 15.

Proposed changes for deer hunting in southern Idaho are less sweeping than the elk options, Smith said.

Both deer hunting options preserve Oct. 5 as the opening date of the season. The first option would extend the deer season by two days, to Oct. 31, while the other option would shorten the season by 10 days.

Under the first option, trophy bucks could be protected by reducing the length of the season, or imposing a "two-point" limitation on antier size. Under the second option, the buck season could be extended.

Elk hunting in Fish and Game's Magic Valley region has been an exclusive affair in recent years. Jast year, 14,000 hunters applied for elk permits – but only 2,500 permits were issued.

Fish and Game speculates that many of the 11,500 empty-handed applicants shifted their aim to open elk hunts elsewhere in Idaho. Statewide, 109,000 elk permits were issued last year.

Over the long run, Fish and Game wants to boost the ratio of adult bulls - defined as 3 years old or older - to 10 for every 100 cow elk.

All Magic Valley hunting units meet that standard, but other areas of the state do not, particuareas of the sun-larly:

Many problem areas have had open hunts for years. Some areas with early-season hunts, which begin in mid-September, also have low number's because mature bulls are vulnerable to hunters who bugle them in during the rut.
Older bulls are desirable because they typically breed before the end of September, while younger bulls breed up to one month later.
Cows bred by mature bulls tend to have their calves in early June, which gives them and their offspring more time to fatten up for the winter.

He said Davisco sent the county a letter on Sept. 5, 1996, onling its plans, and thought the county was satisfied. The company was not rold about the sprinkler system requirement until after construction was well under way.

"You can respond generically to a generic letter, but you can't reply in detail," Britain said.

Formal plans did not come from the company until November, Brittain said. The state fire marshal, the Jerome Rural Fire Department chief and the local fire safety commission looked at the plans and agreed the addition needs sprinklers.

Term limits face tough Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Facing powerful opposition and dissension in their own ranks, term-limit proponents acknowledged Wednesday they face a rough road in the new Congress. House Speaker Newt Gingrich has promised to make a constitutional amendment to limit congressional terms one of the first orders of business this year, and polls continue to show popular support for the idea. But as in the first vote on term limits in 1995, when a 227-204 vote on a proposal by Rep. Bill McCollum fell more than 69 short of the two-thirds majority need-vote on a proposal by Rep. Bill McCollum fell more than 60 short of the two-thirds majority needed, the movement is divided on what the limits should be.

McCollum, R.Fla., told the House Judiciary Committee's constitution panel Wednesday discord among lawmakers was heading the movement toward gridlock.

McCollum, who favors relative hy moderate limits of six two-year terms for House members and two six-year terms for senators, said that without a unified stance, we'll have to struggle to get any more than the 227 votes' in 1995.

A leading proponent of term limits on the Senate side, Fred Thompson, R.Tenn, said he would be satisfied "if we could just move in the right direction."

Paul Jacob of U.S. Term Limits, accussed lawmakers of standling in the way of popular demand for three two-year terms in the House. "The term limits move ment is strongly united behind three terms. Only in Congress."

is there significant approval of six terms."

Rep. Tillie Fowler, R-Fla., offered what she called the "Golddiocks" version. "If you think six years is too short and you think 12 years is too long, you might find that eight years is just right."

Under the Constitution, House members serve two-year terms and senators sty-ear terms. Disputes also arose over whether the limits should be just on consecutive terms or for life.

Drug-test bill contains some troubling flaws

It's a case of the good, the bad and it's a case of the good, the bad and the ugly.

The good part is the principle that drunks and drug abusers should be held responsible for consequences of their behavior.

their behavior.

That's the idea behind a legislative proposal to penalize workers who fail drug and alcohol tests. The bill, cosponsored by Republican Rep. Mark Stubbs of Twin Falls, would strip unemployment and worker's compensation benefits from chemically impaired workers.

For instance, one part of Stubbs' bill would let workers who fail drug and for coming to work buzzed should not be rewarded.

This part of Stubbs' bill makes sense. Obviously, people who get fired for coming to work buzzed should not be rewarded.

But then there's the bad part. The bill would tinker with the worker's compensation system in some troubling ways. Example: If an injured worker tests positive for drugs or alcohol, there would be a legal presumption that the worker was impaired, and that the impairment caused the accident. Therefore, no worker's comp benefits.

That may sound like a good deal for businesses. Yet the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry, the main lobbying voice for Idaho businesses, opposes it. IACI spokeswoman Dawn Bushman explains that worker's comp has always been a "mo-fault" system, designed to protect businesses as well as their workers. Start fiddling with the balance, weakening the "no-fault" protection for workers, and IACI fears the whole system will be in jeopardy.

Another problem is the 5 percent

Another problem is the 5 percent discount on worker's comp premiums that companies could receive for conducting drug and alcohol tests.

Again, that may sound good for businesses. But Bushman points out that companies with good safery records already pay lower premiums. That's how the insurance business works. Drug testing may or may not prevent accidents in a given company. Premiums should be tied to actual safety performance, not drug tests.

And now for the ugly, Stubbs is sponsoring this bill on behalf of a drug and alcohol-testing company in Nampa. The company's owner, David Minert, contributed $250 to Stubbs' last reelection campaign.

election campaign.

Does this connection mean that Srubbs is for sale? Hardly, But the fact that the premium reduction would directly benefit Minert's customers doesn't look good.

If Stubbs were President Clinton, and if Minert were an Indonesian businessman, the talk-radio guys would be licking their choos.

and it Minter were at inconessian obsinessman, the talk-radio guys would be licking their chops.

Stubbs, a Twin Falls lawyer, is a smart and likable politician. But he has a disturbing habit of promoting interests that coincidentally have helped him pay his bills – a habit that we understand has sometimes drawn the private disapproval of House leaders. Here, he is clearly "carrying" a bill for a campaign contributor. A lawyer-lawmaker, especially one with ambitions to higher office, is ever-vulnerable to perceptions that his powers of persuasion are rentable. Like Caesar's wife, Stubbs should take care to be above reproach. He has done the oppoabove reproach. He has done the opposite in this case.

Such a complex case was tried recently in Gooding. Deputy Attorney General La-Mont Anderson, a recognized expert on prosecution of child sex abusers, worked closely with Gooding County Prosecuting Attorney Phil Brown to win the conviction of and a life sentence for a repeat child sex offender.

The breakin at the Tri-County Drug Task Force became our case at the request of the Twin Falls County prosecuting attorney. Because he supervised the Tri-County Drug Task Force, the prosecuting attorney because he supervised the Tri-County Drug Task Force, the prosecuting attorney concluded the case would best be handled by outside investigators and attorneys. The state of Idaho provided griminal justice professionals—who did not have an existing relationship—with the police officers who were the subjects of the investigation.

Investigators from the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement, working with my Complex Crime Unit, spent months reviewing thousands of documents and reconstructing 290 drug cases. The investigation revealed a pattern of corruption that had gone undetected by local authorities for nearly four years. More than $20,000 in evidence, drug-buy and infor-mant reward money had disappeared. The investigation ultimately resulted in criminal charges against two law enforcement officers ment officers.

During an 11-day jury trial, Deputy Attorney General Ken Stringfield carefully presented the evidence to a jury in Twin Falls County.

The resulting guilty verdicts on all seven felony charges against former under-cover officer Juan R. Nunez are a testament to the integrity of the criminal justice system. Through diligent investigation and thorough prosecution, the state was able to prove, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Nunez had committed serious crimes.

The Nunez case was both complex in fact and sensitive in nature. It is, in both regards, typical of the cases that come to the office of the attorney general. These cases are often difficult to prove. Justice demands that we try.

of making a decision and whether to establish a new classification that would allow people of mixed racial parentage to check a "multricalin" identity on the census and all other federal forms. For a heterogeneous group of mixed-race people to be encapsulated into a single classification, however, is in effect to establish a new race and to plunge our already racially troubled natiodeper into racial grouping, racial thinking and racial behavior.

The fact is, mixed-race people cannot be comfortably grouped anyway. Their multiple edutaities often make it difficult even for them to sertle on an identity from among the manifold possibilities coming from their mixed ancestry.

the attainment of a nonracial acodesy?

A "multiracial" category would only give Americans the impression that mixed-race people are just another nonwhite group easily and neatly classifiable.

The multiracial advocates' stated goal of American nonracialism an therefore be attained only by, an increased awareness that there are millions of people who cannot be neatly classified.

But for those millions of mixed-race people who do not wish to sacrifice their identities to this idealistic goal and who wish not ocheck a monor-racial classification or the box labeled "other," there is yet an answer. It is for mixed-race people to be allowed to check the relevant categories that fully identify their particular racial make-

This could satisfy the need of mixed-race people to be able to specify who they are. And it would permit the government to provide data on the number of mixed-race people in the country, another important goal of the multiracial advocates who want to remedy the past invisibility of this group of Americans.

restructuring that will be submitted to the House Republican majori-ty in the coming weeks. Young wants to abolish the Native Americans and Insular Affairs subcommittee, transferring its responsibilities to the full committee and replacing it with the new subcommittee. Most forest issues have been handled by the committee's National Parks, Forests, and Lands subcommittee, chaired by Unh Republican James Hansen. Idaho Sen. Larry Craig is already chairman of the subcommittee in the Senate that handles forestry issues.

Idaho gold production hits record highs

BOISE — University of Idaho Geological Survey officials say a norm in Idaho's gold production might break records for the sec-

More than 300,000 ounces of gold was mined from Idaho in 1995, outgoing University of Idaho College of Mines Dean Robert Bartlert said Tuesday, Bartlett was meeting with the legislative budget committee.

Education Board probes fund allocation

BOISE — The state Board of Education will reopen discussions over who gets how much money in the still sensitive aftermath of its Boise State University undergraduate engineering decision. Board Executive Director Rayburn Barton said the board should evaluate how money is given to the University of Idaho and Boise State University, softening his stance from a week ago when he said Boise State should be allocated its money from the agreement while the University of Idaho's request could go unfunded, "If those funds are not forthcoming from the Legislature that is a question of equity and you should revisit that question," Barton said.

Asked why he was doing so, Shanahan told 7th District Court Judge Brent Moss, "Because I shot her." Moss accepted Shanahan's plea change, then turned the boy over to deputies, sealing the details of the plea agreement.

Officers back on job after charges dropped

BOISE — Three Idaho Department of Correction officers are expected to return to work next week following a judge's decision to dismiss felony burglary charges against them. Fourth District Judge Daniel Eismann last week granted Ada County Prosecutor Greg Bower's motion to dismiss charges against the men for allegedy stealing a 2-foot-high cartus-shaped neon sign from the Cactus Bar in downtown Boise, the Department of Correction announced Wednesday. Robert Bryan Laing, 28; William Patrick Lee, 27; and Robert Reyes Renteria, 22, still face one count each of misdemeanor petry theft in connection with the Dec. 17 incident.

Committee rejects background checks

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Sonate Health and Welfare Committee has rejected a rule requiring emergency medical personnel to undergo a 534 criminal background check before becoming certified.

The decision means the 6-monthold rule will expire at the end of this month. It was a rule that divided urban and rural providers of emergency medical services.

Urban fire departments, including Boise and Lewiston, supported the rule as a way to protect patients, while rural emergency medical service units said the background check is an ceports.

School uniforms are a popular subject nationwide, even figuring briefly in last year's presidential campaign. Supporters emphasize safety: Uniforms rid schools of gang garb and insignia, and they remove the temptation to steal stealing designer clothes and pricey athletic shoes. In addition, trespassers can easily be spotted. Discipline, concentration on school work and a sense of belonging are other points cited in uniforms favor. One California school reported a 35-percent decrease in school crime after one year in uniforms. Opponents of uniforms complain of their cost, as well as the idea of schools dictating to parish ow children will dress. Brown said she plans to involve the Popplewell Student Council in the discussions.

Mayor James Norwood said Lawrason made several attempts

Land-buy agreement conditions to be set

KETCHUM – Local residents and planners will hammer out the ground rules today for a prosed land buy for affordable housing in Ketchum. The land acquisition requires a financial agreement between the city of Ketchum and a Portland, Ore., developer. At the City Council's Tuesday night meeting, a preliminary list of conditions for the agreement was distributed.

The conditional agreement is being considered by the city for a proposed $216,000 contribution to a land buy that would initiate-affordable-housing development. Retchum. Pacific Harbor Capital of Fordand has proposed an estimated 36-unit apartment complex near the city center to be financed largely through Low-Income Housing Creditis.

Though the proposal is only in preliminary stages, residential neighbors of the proposed site have been vocal in their concern about the project's effect on the neighborshood.

Meeting today

ocal residents and planners will discuss conditions for a minancial agreement between Ketchum and a Portland developer for a proposed land acquisitior deal. They meet at 5:30 today in Ketchum City Hall.

Many said, in a special meeting an, 16, that the council was moving too fast by trying to meet a Feb. 3 deadline for tax-credit application.

But the council is giving the matter its fixed attention, with a special meeting today and a site visit scheduled for noon Friday at 381 Leadville Ave.

at 381 Leadville Ave.
The conditions suggested by Karl Fulner, Ketchum's housing coordinator, included management of parking and limitation of automobiles on site, as well as conformance with Ketchum design criteria including pedestrian and automobile accessibility.

Fulmer also suggested that residents of the proposed complex be required to be employed in Ketchum or Sun Valley and have lived in the area for some length of time! He also suggested giving, priorify to city employees and employees whose jobs affect the public welfare, but Councilwoman Christina Potters questioned the legality of such selection procedures. Fulmer said he would check into the legality of tenant restrictions before today's meeting. Nearby resident Scott Harris said that what the council was considering was social engineering, and argued that subsdized housing—as he called the project—was not "the American way of life".

- was not "the American way of life."

"The project proposed does not suit, white-collar, workers," said Harris, who feared that the apartment's tenants would not fit in with surrounding neighbors. Harris asked the council if it had committed to creating affordable housing in Ketchum.

"For three years we've talked about affordable housing," Council woman Sue Noel said, adding that she was indeed committed to it. "It amazes me that it is such a surprise to people."

Sharing common language: Common sense

DEAR ABBY: 1 agree with your answer to 'I Speak Spanish in New Mexico."
Why are some people in this country so determined to speak another language in front of other people, knowing that it could be considered rude?
For this country to be united, we need to be able to communicate with each other. A common language makes sense, and I cate with each other. A crumon language makes sense, and I believe that all individuals in this country should use a common language. Individuals, organizations (such as religious organizations) and the government should encourage this. There are problems in this country that are difficult to solve, but this is not one of them.

If I moved to Mexico, I would learn to speak Spanish if for no other reason than to show respect for that country. If you live in the United States, please learn the language.

"Who will take care of Ray?"
A simlar worry faced Lorraine-Phifer, 67, a Chicago mother of two disabled adults, and Ruth Sheinin of Evanston, Ill, only 58 years old but already making long-term plans for her mentally disabled adult son.

The question will eventually gip every parent in the growing population of what researchers all "two-generation elderly families," in which aging parents are caring for their adult disabled children.

Because of the Baby Boom and answer, nor did parents weart to give up all contact with their disabled children.

"Dorothy (Dooley) and I are of the generation that thought, you brought this child into the world, you take care of him," said Phifer, the mother of six.

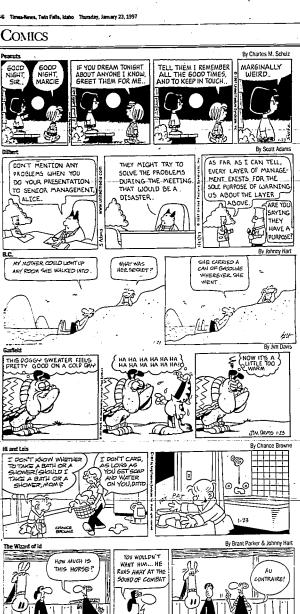

Now, Illianois and other states stress in home support services and community-based homes that require less—and less expensive — staff supervision but more parental involvement. LETTERS OF THANKS

Sandison volunteers time The staff at Hospice Visions, a non-profit hospice, would like to acknowl-edge Dr. Richard A. Sandison for the valuable time he spends volunteering as our medical director. We would also like to thank all the area physicians who allow us to provide quality, com-passionate care to their patients and families.

passionate care to their patients and families.

To our community members and businesses, we extend an enormous thank you for the support given this past year. When we asked for help in providing an early Christmas to a young boy and his family, many offered assistance without hesitation. KEZJ ran public service announcements asking for assistance in this matter. Target donated a Super Nintendo, which he spends hours playing, and Kmart donated a coat to each of the children. Needless to say, the family was overwhelmed and very grateful. Finally, a special thank you to our board members and volunteers who continue to support our efforts.

And the Hopice Visions Team

And the Hospice Visions Team Twin Falls

Christmas Wish granucu I would like to express my appreciation to the employees of Fred Meyer here in Twin Falls. Without their loving support and financial contributions, my children would not have had a wonderful Christmas. I especially would like to "Geometry" for all her dedication in the contribution of the contribution cimuren would not have had a won ful Christmas. I especially would lik thank "Smokey" for all her dedica and special effort in making it all po ble.

Working for Fred Meyer in the Twin Falls store has been a true blessing. Not only do we work together as a team to benefit our customers but we work together as a family. The team spirit draws us together as one big family, helping, caring and sharing each other's load.

A great big "thank you" to the employees of Twin Falls Fred Meyer. You guys are wonderful!

Entertainment provided noons and evenings of entertainment. Having the opportunity to go to the College of Southern Idaho scholarship programs, community concerts, Arts on Tour, Christmas in the Park, Magichords, high school and junior high school programs, First Baptist Church cannatas and many more has brought much pleasure to me.

I thank each person responsible for these first-rate talent and entertainment opportunities in Twin Falls.

New team earns support

The Kimberly High School Debate Team would like to publicly thank Albertson's of Twin Falls for their support. It is sponsoring a coupon fund-raiser that would involve the community in the-team's behalf. It will run through the months of January and February of this year.

The Debate team is fairly new in Kimberly, therefore, Albertson's social awareness is highly appreciated.
Thank you again for your encouragement.

Open house succeeds

Open house succeeds

It isn't every day you get to open a brand new public radio station, and It would like to extend a sincere thanks to everyone who made BSU Radio's open house a success. This was our first chance to let the public see our Twin Falls production center. With all of the support we received, we are even more eager to bring more services to the Magic Valley.

A special thank you goes out to the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors and to the Magic Valley businesses which sponsor our programs, including Mystic Pathways, Oasis Pump & Wash, Computer Depor, Magic Valley Denture Center, Shilo Inn, Magic Valley Denture Center, Shilo Inn, Magic Valley Denture Center, Shilo Inn, Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and Title Fact Inc.

You truly are the "public" in public radio. If you ever have a question or concern about your BSU Radio service, please give us a call at 736-3046.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

ar is sharp-sighted, and can things underground, and ch more in the skies."

— Cervantes

Fear got the best of West in his defense against today's slam. There's nothing like an estab-lished long suit in dummy to en-courage a panicky defense. South chose to blast to slam chances of getting a favorable lead.

South chose to blast to slam rather than rely on a scientific ex-ploration. Sometimes science tells the opponents too much, helps them in defense, and reduces the chances of getting a favorable lead.

West did well to lead a diamond instead of a heart. Had he led a heart (a reasonable choice), South would have enjoyed a free finesse, giving him an easy road to 12 winners. East covered dummy's diamond queen and South ruffed. South drew two rounds of trumps, discarded a heart on dummy's diamond ace, and led a low club to his 10 and West's ace. Staring learnfully at dummy's long clubs, West desperately shifted to a heart, and South had an easy claim. There was no way to lose ambiter trick.

heart, and South had an easy claim. There was no way to lose another trick.

Why was it foolish for West to make his reckless shift to hearts? The bidding provided the most important clue. Could South have reasonably bid the slam without either the heart ace or king?

A more reasoned answer lay in picturing South 's distribution. South was known to have started with five trumps and no diamonds. This left him with eight cards in hearts and clubs. Hogardless of how many discards he would enjoy on dummy's clubs, in the end he would still hold at least two hearts in his hand. Therefore, the desperate heart lead could not help West; it could only help declarer.

Magic Valley Speedway will host NAPA 150

Will nOST NAPA 1.50

TVIN FALLS - Magit Valley Speedway will be the site of the inaugural NAPA Auro Parts 150 stock car ruce Sopt. 20.
The race is part of the NASCAR REB-CO Northwest Tour ruce schedule and will be the first event of its kind at the 113-mile ovid south of Twin Falls.
It will be the final event on the 1997 REB-CO schedule, and organizers expect to draw race fans from all over the Northwest.
"Not only is this the biggest racing event to ever come to Idaho, the fact that the NAPA Auto Parts 150 is the last race on the schedule makes it even more exciting," said NAPA representative Bob Dyson.

Considering the Super Bowl odds | Boise hockey

NEW ORLEANS - The New England Patriots have a high-pow-cred offense, a hot defense and a coach with a perfect Super Bowl record. They also have an excellent chance of continuing an AFC tradi-tion of getting routed in the big rame.

That's because the Green Bay Packers have the most productive offense

ductive offense and stingiest defense in foo-ball, and they match up very well with New England in two key areas: receivers and scomdary.

Those positions easily could determine the outcome of Sunday's game. With two-lime most valuable player Brett Favre throwing to a deep receiving corps and two verfattle backs, the Packers can be overpowering. With those weapons operating against a mediocre secondary, the Packers could be dancing into the end zone all day.

"If I was a betting man and I didn't know anything about football," Patriots cornerback Ty Law said Wednesday, "I'd bet on Green Bay, too. They soored the most points in the league and we were ranked down may be took it provided the play well enough to deserve respect. Every game wellost, it seemed to be the delense's fault and we took it personally.

"But in the second half of the season, we've come on. We've given up how many points in the last five games (62), and only aim in the last five games (62), and only aim in the playoffs. I know what is going on in our locker room and with our defense."

BOISE – It was not his first choice, but Diamond Sports President Cord Pereira said he was excited about Idaho being awarded an expansion franchise in the West Coast Hockey League.

"After evaluating all of our options, we're confident that the WCHL product is an excellent fit for Idaho and will deliver the quality and excitement we've been emphasizing." Pereira said Wednesday in formally accepting the league's membership invitation.

— Diamond Sports initially pursued membership in the Western Hockey League, an established amateur development league with most of its teams in Canada. Instead, it will begin WCHL play in October at the S,000-seat Bank of America Centre being built in downtown Boice.

The WCHL is in the process of expanding from Sit to nine teams, stretching from Arizona to Alaska. Besides Boise, expansion franchises are being added in Tueson, Ariz, and Other league teams are in Anchorage and Fairbanks, Alaska; Reno, Nev; and Bakersfield, Fresno and San Diego, Calif. The Far East Red Army team from Khabarovsk, Russia, also is expected to play a full schedule with league members next season.

The new Idaho franchise already has sold more than 1,600 season tickets, and those season ticket sold more than 1,600 season tickets, and those season ticket holders have until Saturday to vote on whether the Lecilawks or the Steelheads.

The WCHL plays a 64-game regular season that opens in early October and continues through March, the top four finishers in the regular season meet in the best-of-five Taylor Cup championship series.

Even without a building to call home, the Twim Falls group has done a lot since its inception in 1970. The organization has grown from a handful of people to an 11-member board of directurs and 250 memberships. The TFTA was a key ingredient to the recent addition of a new five court facility at the College of Southern Idaho. The Cty of Twin Falls and CSI also helped with the addition. The Twin Falls group naw wants to wark on getting bleachers, benches and trees for wind breaks. Some of the 1FTA programs include spring mixed, summer and fall mixed leagues, partional junior tennis league and the USTA Schools Program. The organization also has the biggest 2.5 women's league in the state. The TFTA will be up for the National Organization of the Year to be named in the next few months.

"Our entry will compete against 16—other-sections," Reed-said—"I'm so proud of how much people do for tennis in this area."

For now, the clock will hang at the YFCA, said TFTA treasurer Judy Pollow.

Washington State forward Carlos Daniel apologized Wednesday for the shoplifiting arrest last week that kept him out of Saturday's game against arch-rival Washington.
"I want to apologize to my parents and then to my teammates and coaching staff for the embarrassment and humilitation I put them through for the bad decision I made," said Daniel, who leads the Pac-Iol in rebounding.
"I made an out-of-character decision and I had to pay for it," Daniel said. "But it won't happen again."

Daniel said. But it won't nappen again."
Daniel will accompany the Cougars to Thursday's game at California, but it was unclear if he will start.
"That's the coaches' decision," Daniel said in a conference call from Pullman. "I just want to play."

Daniel, 21, was arrested last Thursday for shoplifting toiletries from a Pullman supermarket. He was ticketted for third-degree theft, a misdernecognizance. He faces a 5500 fine.

Conch Kevin Eastman was on a recruid not be reached for comment. Wes Werner, a sports information director, said Daniel has been practicing with the starting team this week.

Daniel is also listed in the tentative starting lineup.

Eastman decided Saturday morning to suspend Daniel, who is averaging 138 points and 8.8 rebounds per game. The Cougars sot 74-72 to Washington the same afternoon in Pullman.

"I saw the game and we should have won the game," Daniel said Wednesday.

Charmaine Ralphs with six; Sandra Dilworth with 11; Melanie Arritt with 10; and Lucy Holmes with eight.

Half-time shootout winners were Tasha Rice, Lana Moss and Jessica Garrett. Garrett was the star with her 3-point-er.

Packer fans say their team rules

NEW ORLEANS (AP) – Johnny Thompson figures he's ready for the Super Bowl. He knows when the game starts, he knows where the Superdome is and, as a true Packers supporter,
he knows to wear his cheesehead.

he knows to wear his cheese-head.

But there was one thing the Green Bay fan was not quite clear about. Who are those guys on the other team?

"I know we're going to kick Doug Bledsoc's butt, and that's all I need to know," Thompson said as he weaved down Bourbon Street, cheddar wedge on head, beer in hand.

Surely he meant Drew Bledsoe, the New England quar-terback.

The poor Patriots. They've reached the big time but remain largely unknown.

Bledsoe and some of his teammates were stopped in the French Quarter by a group asking if they played for the Packers.

Sporting new cheesehead hats, Green Bay Packer fans chant at a Memphis bar Tuesday night. Some 200 fans showed up to welcome the cheesehead caravan taking a truckload of cheese-shaped hats to New Orleans for the Super Bowl.

"I said, 'No, we play for the other team. Do you know the name of the other team?' They thought about it for a minute and said they didn't know what team it was," Bledsoe recounted rue-fully.

Rough treatment for someone who is headed for the Pro Bowl, who led the NFL in completions and who ranks ahead of Brett Favre in yardage this season. Even sober Packer fans were hard-pressed to name members of the other Super Bowl team.

"They're one of those expansion teams, aren't they?" asked Bill Kopiah, 59, of Marinette, Wis. "That's why we don't know them." "No, they're not an expansion team," said his wife, Donna. "They're just too far East for us to know. We don't really follow Boston culture in Wisconsin." After giving it some thought, the Kopiahs came up with Bledsoe and coach Bill Parells. "Maybe it's because they're an AFC team and we rarely play them," said 42-year-old Jef Halberson of Racine, Wis. "Or maybe it's just that no one really expected them to be here. They kind of struggled, didn't they? That's probably one reason nobody knows them."

Struggled? The Patriots were 11-5 — a better record than 25 NFL teams.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Favre named NFL player of year

NEW ORLEANS – He's a two-time MVP. Now, he's a two-time player of the year.
Brett Favre, whose 39 touchdown passes was the third-highest total in NFL history, won the award Wedensday for the second consecutive time. On Tuesday, the Packers' Mike Holmgren won coach of the water.

Favor vacatived a $25,000 check and $5,000 for being one of six 1994) as two-time winners.
Fave received a $25,000 check and $5,000 for being one of six finalists, with the money designated by Favre to benefit the Brett Favre foundation.

Raiders wait until Super Bowl to name coach ALAMEDA, Calif.—The Oakland Raiders appraently are waiting until after the Super Bowl to name a successor to Mike White, fired as the team's coach a month ago.

Reportedly, the Raiders want to interview New England assistant Bill Belichick for the job but under NFL rules can't talk to him or even express interest in him until after the AFC champion

Coach Bill Parcells said he stuck to the routine of what would be a typical Thursday practice during the regular season. He noted the practice was just as physical as Monday's workout, the team's first in New Orleans.

Backup Packer receiver leaves practice

NEW ORLEANS – Backup receiver Derrick Mayes left the Green Bay Packers' practice Wednesday with bruised ribs.
Mayes has been listed as questionable for Sunday's Super Bowl. Packers coach Mike Holmgren said he doubted Mayes would practice on Thursday.
"They are a little bit bruised right now," Holmgren said. "I think he's going to be OK, but right now he's pretty sore."
Mayes was hurt during punt coverage drills when a few players became entangled. He took a knee to the ribs.

Parcells takes a guess on his nickname

NEW ORLEANS - Even Bill Parcells isn't sure how he got the nickname "Tuna."

nickensine "Times."
"I think," the New England Patriots coach says, "it goes back to my first time with the Patriots. My players were trying to con me on something one time and leaid 'Well, you must think! Tim Charlie the Tima, you know, a sicker, and that's kind of how it starred. They used to wear these little tuna pictures on their helmets, so that swhere it started."

"But if the birds were wild and running, the heeler in him would take over and old Part Time would work them like he was rustling cattle," he said. "By the time the birds figured out what was happening, they were trapped. They'd make a break for it, flushing right into range." I started chuckling.
"I suppose you don't believe it?" Field asked.

"I suppose you don't believe it?" Field asked.
"It isn't a matter of believing. I'm just questioning the wisdom of breeding a Brittany to a blue heeler."
Why can't a guy crossbreed and get the right stuff?"
"I suppose you can," I replied. "But what if you get the wrong stuff? Besides, if Part Time was such a good hunter, how come you've never mentioned him before?" "Oh, Ldidn't hunt him much after he lost his nose," Field said.
"See," I said, "a weak nose. You don't want that."
"No, he didn't hem."

"No, he didn't lose his sense of smell," Field shot back. "His nose was physically gone. Part Time had part of his nose torn off.

"Aunt Bertha just froze at the wheel," Field said. "When I tried to get her to back off of Part Time's nose, she looked at me like someone who'd lost a wig.

"As near as I could tell, the strange growling that came up from under the car kept her mind under siege. When she finally calmed down enough to pull her Rambler off Part Time's nose, he was plumb freaked out.

Snowboarding flies high

It's no longer limited to 'Generation X'

By The Associated Press and the Times-News

ALBION - Snowboarding is coming

ALBION - Snowboarding is coming of age.

For the past few years, the stereotypical snowboarder has been a bodypierced youngster living out of a Volkswagen van, but now an older clientele is strapping on the big board and hitting the slopes. There's still a chasm between skiers and snowboarders, but it appears to be narrowing considerably.

At the Pomerelle Ski Area, near Albion, snowboarders outnumber skiers on some days, said Manager Jody Burrows. Averaged over an entire season, however, skiers still outnumber snowboarders, she said.

"Snowboarders normally are some of the first ones out and they're also some of the last to go. They're diehards," Burrows said Wednesday. "My husband just took it up, and he's 42 years old. I don't think he'll pick up skis again."

At Soldier Mountain, near Fairfield.

hards," Burrows said Wednesday. "My husband just took it up, and he's 42 years old. I don't think he'll pick up skis again."

At Soldier Mountain, near Fairfield, Mountain Manger Matt Baxandall said snowboarders now represent about 30 percent of the ski area's annual traffic.

"If you'd asked me five years ago, I would have said it, was less than 10 percent, asandall said.

At Sun Valley, snowboarders represent about 10 percent of the restrit's business – up from 8 percent last year, said spokesman Jack Sibbach.

"It's a crossover thing," Sibbach said. "A lot of older alpine skiers are taking up it."

Nationwide, snowboarders make up nearly 14 percent of all skier visits – up from 6 percent five years ago, according to the National Ski Areas Association.

While an exact breakdown of skiers versus snowboarders isn't available at Mount Bachelor, in Oregon, a trip to the mountain makes it obvious that the snowboarding has a strong foothold in this region.

"Early season, the ratio seemed to be a 50/50 on some days leading up to Thanksgiving," said Chuck Kenlan, an instructor at Mount Bachelor.

Kenlan added, though, that snowboarders tend to hit the slopes earlier and continue later in the season because poor snow conditions have less effect on snowboards. Overall, Kenlan estimates that 80 percent of Mount Bachelor's visitors use alpineskis, and 20 percent snowboard. But the snowboard segment is skyrocketing, resort officials say, and the sport isn't limited to "Generation X" anymore. Longtime alpine skiers are giving snowboarding a try.

"People my age, 46, are converting over to snowboarding," said Kathy DeGree, vice president of marketing at Mount Bachelor. "It's easier (than sking), It's fun. It's something different to do."

And that means dollars to ski resorts, which have struggled to lare visitors in the past five years.
Ski Industries America, a trade group, reports that the acrual number of persons who alpine ski declined 18 percent in the past five years.
At the same time, the number of snowboarders increased 55 percent nationwide.

Mount Bachelor hasn't escaped the fall-out. Its skier vis-its peaked at 654,000 in 1959. The resort cellipsed 600,000 ski visits only once since. Snowboarders normally are some of the first ones out and they're also some of the last to go. They're die-hards.

Mount Bachelor's "tartoo man" advertisement for its new Northwest Express chairlift specifically targets the snowboard segment of the market. And the ad has stirred up controversy in the region's tourism community. Some Central Oregon tourism businesses say Mount Bachelor's focus on snowboarders might be good for the mountain but not good for motels, retailers and other tourism businesses.

In addition, national studies show most snowboarders have money. In a 1995 survey, the National Sporting Goods Association found that 60.3 percent of snowboarders have household incomes greater than $35,000 a war.

Rocky Mountain elk offer ranch guests sleigh ride treat

HARDWARE RANCH, Utah (AP) — The big bull Rocky Mountain elk, wearing its crown of andlers, sat quietly in the snow-covered meadow as sleigh after sleigh loaded with the curious passed within a few feet of it. Then, it began fidgeting. First it glared, then it scrambled to its feet and turned its white-rumped tail to a sleich that has cotten Enriem.

rurst it gaared, then it scrambled to its feet and turned its white-rumped tail to a sleigh that has gotten off the regular path. It then pranced away before turning back to face the sleigh and resume its glare.

"Anything unusual makes the elk nervous," explained Lowell Marthe, wildlife manager at the 25,000 acre Hardware Ranch Wildlife Management Area, where upward of 1,000 elk usually winter.

"The animals are not used to the sleigh being in this location," the said.

Earlier, when the sleigh pulled by two Belgian draft horses with a border collie running alongside took the well-traveled circular path through the center of the red, the elk hardly gave it a glance. Not even the ones that appeared almost close enough to touch.

Marthe said if anyone supped down from the sleigh, the heat would bolt immediately.

"They're used to the horses and sleigh, but not a person on foot."

Marthe said big bulls seem to be more numerous among the 600 elk that have come down to the Blacksmith Fork Canyon ranch for winter feed.

"Most likely it's because of the spike-only hunting permits," he said.

A spike bull is a young elk whose antiers have not yet devel oped branches. Marthe said since 1992 only about 20 branchamter bull permits are issued each elk hunting season in Northern Undah. A lot of the bigger bulls don't come down to the ranch during the winter at all. They stay up higher in the mountains to browse.

The remaining condors appear to be healthy and have developed a tight social unit, possibly making them less vulnerable to predation, he said.
Last month's release of the condors marked the first time the birds have flown in Arizona since 1924. The birds are equipped with radio transmitters and tags on their 9-foot wings that allow their flights to be tracked by field crew based at the Cliffs. The group also is responsible for strategically placing calf, deer and elk carcasses out at night for the birds. the birds
