Split may be forming over school rules The Associated Press

BOISE—The education committees of the Idaho House and Senate may be heading in different directions over whether to accept changes in the rules used to operate public schools.

Following weeks of hearings and debate, the House Education Committee on Tuesday voted to reject five of some 380 rules recommended by a committee created by the state Board of Education.

a committee created by the state Board of Education.
Rep. Fred Tilman, R-Boise and House chairman, said Wednesday it will be necessary to prepare five resolutions, one for each rule being rejected, for approval by both chambers of the Legislature.
If that happens, it would be up to the state Board of Education to come up with new rules.
But first, Tilman said, he will check with Republican Sen. Gary Schroeder, head of the Senate panel, on that committee's sentiment. If the Senate does not agree with the House's approach, there is little use attempting to pass a resolution in the House, Tilman said.
The Legislature in 1994 repealed all school operating rules, effective April 1 of this year, and ordered a comprehensive review after getting complaints that the school rules were cumbersome, outdated and redundant.
Included in the House rejection motions was perhaps the must controversial recommendation, that physical education and the humanities be dropped as courses required for high school graduation in favor of more math and science.
In the Senate, the education panel high science in the class root moder consideration Wednesday to accept Chapter 2, the section in the rules on uniformity; Schroeder said it appeared likely the section would be accepted, but the motion never came to a vote.
That section includes a rule rejected by the House, setting goals for teacher-student ratio in the class rooms but eliminating the ratios now in effect for kindergarten through the third grade.
Meanwhile, the House committee spent its Wednesday session preparing a letter to the state Board of Education explaining, why it rejected some rules. But after the session, some members acknowledged the state education board may give it little consideration.

The rules rejected by the House panel on Tuesday included, a rule cov-ering extensive testing of students, a program that has been pushed by Schools Superintendent Anne Fox.

Rain fell in parts of the southeast Wednesday while California got a chance to dry out from a seemingly endless stream of storms this month. Much of the Northeast experienced cold but

It rained in South Carolina, as well as Louisiana, Mississippi and southern Florida, with the heaviest rain in Florida.

A developing low pressure system, across the Plains brought warmer air into the region, with southerly winds picking up across Texas, Oklahoma, and Karaes.

Temperatures moved into the 40s and 50s. The stem also resulted in some light snow in the western Great Lakes area.

Much of the West was dry, with some rain in western Washington and snow showers against the eastern slopes of mountains in Colorado and

New Mexico.

Strong winds buffered Southern California but the wind loosened winter's damp and gloomy grip on the region.

Temperatures rose into the 80s in some areas and snow-capped mountains framed picture-perfect vistas.

"It is beautiful today. We've got a pretty fair crowd on the beach for this time of year," said lifeguard David Estey in Santa Monica.

Simpson jury breaks for evening

Superior Court. Judge Hiroshi Fujisaki gave jurors the magnifying glass but withheld the test tube picture, saying the actual vial was among some 700 pieces of evidence already in the deliberation room.

The panel — closeted with a table, a green chalk-board and stacks of their accumulated notebooks — deliberated for two hours Tuesday and six hours before going home for the night Wednesday. That's already more than twice as long as the jury that acquitted Simpson of murder 16 months ago.

Earlier, plaintiffs were granted immediate access to Simpson's financial records to prepare for a possible punitive damage phase if he is found liable in the June 12, 1994, slashing deaths of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman.

Simpson and Ronald Goldman.

Juror' request for a magnifying loupe, used by photographers to study contact sheets of pictures, indicated the panel could be studying the trial's most controversial new evidence—31 photographs of Simpson wearing the same style Bruno Magli shoes that left biolody prints at the crim's scene.

Contact sheets — photos or small images of the full strips themselves—were entered in evidence by plaintiffs, who called a former FBI analyst to testify about them.

After months of disagreements over how to plan for future highway needs, both sides agreed to pull their proposed legislation and work on it over the summer.
"It was obvious through discussions in committee and outside sions in committee and outside committee that our legislation and that proposed by the cities needed some additional work," said Mary Demiar, director of the budget and policy office for the transportation department. "There were just a lot of unan-swered questions."

Those unanswered questions

Those unanswerea quesions include:
Should her department loss its Solyaer exemption from complying with local land-use plans?
Should the state create six regional transportation planning organizations to assist rural areas, similar to the state's three metropolitan planning groups?
Both answers, says Scott, McDonald, lobbyist for the cities, are yes.

are yes.

The state, he said, is forcing cities and counties to sideline potentially valuable property for up to 20 years through their planning and zoning procedures for plans the state may or may not see through. If the state forces the sidelining, he said, it should have to abide by the terms of the original development plans.

"It's called taking land without just compensation," he said.

If the state changes its plans, the city or county which sidelined the property could be held legally responsible by property owners, he said. "Who are they going to sue?" he said. "TD? No, because ITD didn't stop them from doing anything. It'll be the cities or the counties."

And the six regional groups would give rural areas a voice in statewide transportation issues, he said.

Otherwise, she said, "a four-lane highway may come into a city or county that may disagree with that four-lane highway and it might come down to two lanes."
She declined to address the more specific concern of the department's right to change its plans at the last minute.

Feds ID John Doe No. 2 as unconnected to bombing

DENVER (AP) — The man in the widely distributed sketch of John Doe No. 2 in the Oklahoma City bombing has been positively identified as an Army private who had no role in the attack, the Justice Department said Wednesday, In a brief filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Denver, prosecutors said Pvr. Todd Bunting rented a truck at a Kansas City, Kan., body shöp the day after suspect Timothy MeVeightented the truck believed to have been used in the bombing, in mind when he provided the description for the John Doe 2 composite, according to the government's brief.

Prosecutors say they still are looking for another person who may have been with McVeigh when he rented the truck.

The mechanic, Tom Kessinger, identified McVeigh as John Deo No. 1, the man who identified himself as "Robert Kling" when he rented the truck. Kessinger was the only witness to describe "Kling" and John Deo No. 2. In their brief, prosecutors said Kessinger is now prepared to testify that his description of John Deo No. 2 was wrong, that he confused him with Bunting. In establishing Bunting's identify, prosecutors said they either on Kessinger's description of a tattoo visible below his sleep, and a baseball cap featuring a zigzag pattern in the fron.

The government scout was shopping for prices.

Palmadesso, 55, and more than 300 other pricing agents collect prices on 90,000 items each month to track inflation for the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Hauling hundreds of yellow pricing shores clipped in three-ring binders, the Virginia woman logs 200 to 300 miles a week popping in at stores, gas stations, doctor's offrees, restaurapts seeking out prices on goods from pants and cars to mouth retainers and the state of the sta

It's not an exact science, Palmadesso admits.
Her pricing sheet told her to look for a swimsuit made of at least 50 percent nylon and up to 49 percent spandex. The suit was to have a partial lining and bear to U.S.A. Olympic logo.
"We're not going to find that anymore so we'll have to go with something else," she said as she cruised the store to the accompaniment of Muzak.
Cradling her bulky blue binder in one arm, Palmadesso flipped through swimsuits for close to 15 minutes, checking fiber content.
A pink-and-green "Mickey-Loves Minnie" suit looked right, but had only 6, percent spandex. Finally, a blue ruffled suit fit to.

"Does it have a partial lining? Oh, please, have a partial lining." Plamadesso pleaded, peering-inside the suit. "Yes, it does—in the crotch."

Palmadesso recorded the price—$10.99—and raced out of the suburban Washington mall to get to an orthodontist's office. Among other things, she had to find out how much patients with retainers pay for checkups.
"It's going to be a while. I'm with a patient," an irritated office manager told her. "I thought you were going to come at 10-30."

Palmadesso could have pushed it, but the tone of the woman's voice told her it was best to come back later.

The notes' principal will be adjusted twice a year for inflation as measured by the Labor Department's Consumer Price. Index. For instance, if inflation increases 3 percent this year, a $1,000 note would be adjusted upward to $1,030.

Interest will be paid semiannually based on the inflation-adjusted value of the security at the time. Analysts had predicted that most participants in the initial auction would be Wall Street traders and institutional investors such as pension funds rather than individuals.

Gingrich's protests beginning to weary even some supporters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Newt Gingrich's blaming of others for his ethics predicament is beginning to wear a little thin, even among some of his defenders. But despite their speech. The House speaker hasn't decided on the timing but wants to do a speech and talk about the ethics process and answer questions at that time," Gingrich spokeswoman Lauren Maddox said Wednesday.

The Georgia Republican's contentious defenses of himself last weekend in his home district drew primaces from some of his allies.

"I think that he probably may have contributed to the debate and extended it rather than shortened it," said Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz. Sen. John -Asheroft, R-Mo., made a similar point.

Many other Republicans agree, if not publicly.

Just as things seemed to be settling down after his penalties were announced, Gingrich drew new attention to his ethics case by telling hometown audiences he was the victim of an ethical double standard. He blamed his lawyers and the media for the House reprimand and the 3300,000 -he was ordered to pay.

The speaker admitted he failed to seek and follow legal advice concerning the use of tax-exempt contributions to further potentially partisan goals.

President Reagon, for example, greeted big Republican dozors at the White House. He even attended a Roosevelt Room reception for major committees to a group that was providing military aid to Nicaragon's Contra rebots—despite a compressional but on such aid.

And long before Rep. Newt Gingrich was a household name — or House speaker — the Georgia Republican rewarded big contributors to his GOPAC political organization with invitations to a special White House reception with Bush. "Prior to the reception, we will go to the Old Executive Office Building for briefings with Cabinet members and other White House officials," Gingrich said in an October 1989 letter to major GOPAC donors.

So as Republicans accuse Clinton of GOPAC donors.

So as Republicans accuse Clinton of selling access to the White House — and administration policymakers — for giant contributions to the Democratic National Committee, Clinton and many allies are crying foul, on grounds prior Republican administrations did much the same.

They raise more faciation money."

They raise more foreign money,"

Clinton, with obvious bitterness, said of Republicans in a speech last week. "They raise more money in big contributions and we take all the heat. It's a free ride." Federal election records prove part of Clinton's point: Republicans do have a perennial advantage in fund raising, including collections of the large, unregulated "soft money" donations at the core of Justice Department and congressional investigations of Democratic fund-raising in last year's campaign.

investigations of Democratic fund-raising in last year's campaign.

In the 1995-96 cycle, national Republican committees raised 5141 million in soft money, compared with 5122 million for Democratic committees.

And, like Democrats, Republicans have marketed access.

Early last year, for example, the Republican National Committee promised meetings with Speaker Gingrich, other GOP congressional lead-ers and the party's presidential nominee-who had not yet been selected — for a 5250,000 contribution.

But Republicans involved in prior administrations argue that Clinton has crossed the line when it comes to using the White House itself as an instrument of fund raising.

They also argue that Republicans had a projudues a transfer for the state of the st

They also argue that Republicans had a meticulous system of hecking that contributions came from legal sources; since coming under scrutiny, the Democratic National Committee has returned nearly 51.5 million in questionable contributions, much of it from individuals or corporations with foreign roots.

"We would have major donors to the White House to meet with the president, but it was long after the checks were in the bank," said Bush White House polinical aide David Carney. "These guys were blatantly bringing people in as a way of getting them to give money."

Clinton and Democratic National Committee officials vehemently deny that any fundraising solicitations were made at the White House. Such overtures would be a violation of federal law prohibiting fundraising in official government buildings.
But critics note that prominent Democratic fundraisers were on hand for most of the 70 political receptions held by Clinton over a 19 month period, and they point to records showing that many of those invited made contributions on the same day as the reception, or within a few days after.

Nuclear reactors told to shape up or pay up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission expanded its special watch list to 14 reactors — the most in nearly a decade — because of safety problems Wednesday. It sent a scathing letter to the nation's largest nuclear operator, questioning its ability to run its reactors safely.

The agency added six new reactors is the list that already had eight reactors requiring special scrutiny by the NRC because of safety shortcomings. Don't let game wardens become bounty hunters Getting tough with poachers who filch Idaho's cherished game animals is an appealing idea. But a property-forfeiture proposal being discussed in Boise goes too far.

Wildlife activists are circulating the proposal, with backing from the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. The proposal features various punitive measures for poachers:

A doubling of fines for each successive animal a poacher kills.

A Ilfetime loss of hunting privileges.

• Forfeiture of equipment used in horses, pick-or Forfeiture of equipment used in poaching, including guns, horses, pickups and all-terrain vehicles.

These suggestions are not all bad. Nailing repeat offenders with progressively larger fines would surely grab the attention of sociflaws.

Lifetime banishment from hunting sounds less effective. If a guy is already a poacher, taking away his hunting license won't bother him much. The real problem, though, is the property seizure idea.

Forfeiture laws have been widely abused in drug enforcement. In the Magic Valley as well as around the nation, we've wintessed how drug agencies become addicted to the revenue they get from property seizures, eventually devoting more attention to seizing property than to convicting crooks.

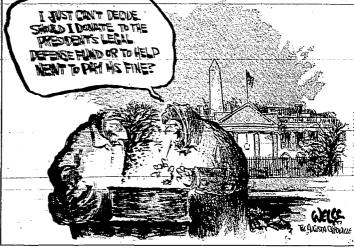

Property seizures too often have hur innocent people, who have lost possessions because they - or their family members - were suspected though never convicted of drug crimes.

The poaching proposal skirts the worst of those abuses, by putting seizure powers in the hands of judges rather than law officers. Seizures would take place after convictions, not at the time of arrest.

But the basic problem would persist, Property-seizure laws turn cops into bounty humters. The officers and their agencies grow dependent on confiscance for property to find their budgers and justify their jobs. Their focus shifts from justice to cash flow.

There are practical problems as well. Seizures become tricky when a suspect shares ownership of a vehicle with a spouse or relative, or when borrowed property is used in llegal activity.

Property seizures also could create

Freedom, please, not tyranny

'It's a sad state of affairs when the American people become blinded to Galatians tells us, "Stand fast therefore

We need to each ask ourselves this our freedom, since all freedoms are gwen from God.

We need to each ask ourselves this question: Would anyone in their right mind want to gain their freedom only to let it go and be put back under bondage? The answer is, of course, no! But in this country, that is just what's happening.

Our government has become corrupted by corrupt men in high places, but we are not only having to deal with those in voted office but we also have a fight against foreign enemies on our free soil and foreign so-called laws, which our many corrupt judges uphold as truths, namely, the United Nations and the rich and powerful elite.

Nations ship the rich and power as elite.

Many out there may not understand what I am trying to express, but with the illiterate nature of our school systems, which is really not surprise. The state of the state now? Remember Ruby Ridge, Waco, etc., many too numerous to name! There are many in this land that have turned, departed from God. To save this nation, a nation under God, we must turn back to God and restore the Constitution of our founders, which was written with the principals of God in mind, his holy word.
You see, freedom is not free; it has a price if you wish to keep it. For this is no longer the land of the free and the home of the brave as it once was but has now become the land of bondage and home of the blinded.

Those that have ears, let them hear, and those that have eyes, let them see, and for God's sake, put an end to all this tyramny!

Curiously, the public learned of the risks posed by air bags only recently, when the media began to publicize the increasing num-ber of children and infants injured and killed by air bags. Even normal-sized adults have suffered torn retinas, facial lac-erations and broken bones from the blast of denotion air hors.

Now – 20 years too ane for the dozens of children who have died or been severely in jured in air bag explosions – Claybrook has joined hands with the automakers in calling for the adoption of "depowered" air bags that inflate with less explosive force. But she's still dodging responsibility: Despitois record: "statements, Claybrook steadfastly denies she had any knowledge of the dangers of air bags during her tenure at NHTSA. Instead she now blainess the automakers whowarned her about air bag.

Nader's Public Citizen group,

Claybrook continues her ongoing quest to force the automobile industry to adopt measures that SHE bolieves are in the best interests of American drivers. The media also have paid scant attention to Claybrook's ties to personal in jury lawyers, who have generously funded her "consûmer'crusade" for decades. Those lawyers, of ocurse, stand to net tens of millions of dollars suing auto makers over injuries and deaths attributed to the very air bags their buddy Claybrook forced on to American automobiles. In the meantime, the costs of this dubious crash protection have caused huge increases in the price of new cars, auto repair bills and auto insurance. The only clear-cut winners, alas, will be members of the American Trial Lawyers Association.

SHOSHONE – The top seeds held form on the opening day of the A-4 Northside Girls' Basketball Sub-District Tournament Wednesday.

No. 4 Carey ran past fifth-seeded Kerchum in the first game, 59-38. Third-seeded Richfield rallied to defeat No. 6 Bliss, 51-44, and No. 2 Shoshone dominated seventh-seeded Camas County in final game of the night, 43-26.

The tournament continues Friday with top-seeded-Dietrich taking on Carry at 430 p.m., Bliss takes on Camas County in a loser-out game at 6 p.m., and Richfield will battle host Shoshone at 730 p.m.

"We weren't nervous, but we were ready to play," said Peterson. "We started running harder in the third quarter. We need to stay in it the whole game to win." The last time the two teams met, free throws with two seconds remaining decided the game. It looked like this would be a repeat.

Carey took a nine point lead into the locker room at the half behind a solid defensive performance and an offense working the ball inside. Kristen Woodcock and Brooke Bergdahl each had six points in the first half to keep the Cutthroads within striking distance.

Ketchum rallied after the break, toss-

The Saints did not sell out a single home game last year - their fourth straight non-winning season. And coming off a 3-13 record, it appeared to be a hard sell again this year. Then Ditka came to town.

Mike Sawka, 27, ordered two season tickets. He attended the Chicago game in New Orleans last year and liked the city. Now with Ditka the conch, he'll be making the trip eight times a year.

the Engles their best chance of breaking out of the slump - but Thrash isn't predicting a walkover.
"They have always played CSI tough," he said, pointing out that league title contender Ricks escaped Rangely with a mere one-point victory earlier this season.

one-point victory constraints of the said. "They run the offense," Thrash said. "They have no great individual talent, but they can compete with anybody."
Indeed, the Spartans hung with CSI in the first half of their December meeting in Twin Falls before losing, 78-55. But that was with only six players, as coach Paul Conrad had benched five players for a shopliting incident. The possibility that those players will be back on the team, along with a handful of other potential starters who were injured or academically incligible before Christmas, turns the Spartans from a known quantity to a dangerous mystery. There will be no mystery Saturday night, when CSI faces league co-leader College of Eastern Utah in Price.

"They have the best starting five in the league," Thrash said. "They lost in double overtime to Utah Valley, so I'm sure they will be raring to get back into it." CEU. started the CSI slide, handing the Eagles – ranked seventh in the nation at the time—their first loss back in December. Eastern Utah employs a 1-1-3 zone that stymic CSI in that earlier meeting.

"We had some unforced fumovers, and we missed inside shots. We have to take care of the ball and block off the boards," Thrush said.

"They didn't have to play great to beat us here," he added. CSI will have to play great to avenge that seven-point loss. Eastern boasts the league's leading rebounder in K'Zell Wesson, three of the top six in steals, and one of the league's best post players in Harold Arceneaux.

Arceneaux is among the league leader in scoring (18.2 points per game), field goal percent (5.9 In un blocked shots (2.1). In Udoka is the other primary un beautiful to the control of the co

Injury report: Floyd Farrow, who combined with Faheem Nelson for 16 rebounds against Dixie, sat out practice Monday and Tuesday with burstis in his right kines. Thrash said he hoped Farrow could practice Wednesday and be available for this weekend's games. ... Jarvis Mullahon is still bothered by some tendinitis in his knee, but is expected to play. ... Guards Riyad King and Tony Heard both are expected to play this weekend.

scored the Camas County Mush ers 17-2 in the first quarter and mover boked back on their way tovicancy.

The Indians scored the first sevem points as they were deadly from the outside. On the defensive end they dominated the boards, limiting the Mushers to just one shot.

Shoshone's patient offense slawed the pace in the second quarter as Camas County pulled with eight points before the Indians picked it up again.

entorce idano game laws
In response to a request from SenDirk Kempthorne, the Bureau of Land Management says its officers will stop enforcing Idaho fish and game laws.
Kempthorne in a news release Wednesday said using federal agents to enforce state laws appeared to be an infringement of states rights.
Kempthorne said a constituent noticed a BLM officer checking sportsmen for fishing licenses. After questions to the BLM produced unresponsive answers or bureautraite red tape, the constituent asked Kempthorne to help.
State BLM Director Martha Hahn rold
Kempthorne that without specific amthority

HAGERMAN - It is a race against time and a journey back in time.

A $48,000 grant recently awarded to the Hagerman Fossil Beds National Monument will pay for reopening and excavating the Hagerman Horse Quarry this summer, National Park Service Superintenden Neil King said.

The grant is part of the "Expedition into the Parks" conservation program funded by Canon USA Inc. and administered by the National Parks Foundation in Washington, D.C.

Wilke Nelson, program officer with the NFF, said Tuesday the program's objective is to help protect the natural resources in national parks by gathering and viality of those resources.

"In the case of Hagerman, there's a very compelling need and one that is being met through science and partnerships so it was a perfect fit with the over

Weather experts expect minor flooding

Advances in weather forecasting tools and techniques in the next decade will allow scientists to predict the kinds of storms and floods that ravaged Northern California and the Pacific Northwest, experts said Wednesday. "I'm going to stick my neck out on this and say within five to 10 years you will see remarkable advances on this front," said J. Michael Hall, director of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Office of Global Programs. Hall said climate longists soon will be better equipped to predict weather and climate changes in terms of months, seasons, years

One of the keys will be measuring and monitoring of ocean temperatures, he said during a briefing at the Capitol.
"We are more or less half way through this mystery," Hall said.
"The research has taken 10 or 15 years. There's another 10 or 15 years to go."

We have been attending a church that is not the same faith as my in-laws. If they knew it, they would be very hurt – especially since they want their grand-hildren to grow up in their faith. Both churches are Christian churches, and there are more similarities than differences. Because of these similarities, I think my in-laws would get over ur attending this church if they knew; my husband disagrees. I like this church, especially the programs for our children. My husband, however, feels a loyally to the religion in which he was

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend
and I recently bought a house together. We share all the cook-ng and cleaning. Prior to "us," he was living with a girl for 10 years, and I was mairried for 15 years.—His former girlfriend was completely domestic, and I'm totally the opposite. I'm a successful small-business owner with a very busy schedule.

Recently he asked me to hem a it would cost 55. He refused to pay for it, saying his former girl-friend would be more than happy to do it for nothing.

I am furlous! I'd rather pay $100 than allow her to think she's taking care of my man's needs. He refuses to fight over this and is ordering a new pair of pants. What should I do?

DEAR SUZIE: When the new pants arrive, if they solve the problem — give him a hug, However, if they don't solve the problem, don't needle him. Since sewing is not one of your many sewing is not one of your many talents, when the new pants arrive, quietly take them to your seamstress. Five dollars is a small price to pay to let sleeping dogs lic.

"PEAR ABBY! I hope "A True Friend" reconsiders trying to help her friend who wears heavy makeup by telling her about it for her, own good."

I have an attractive, intelligent friend who also wears very heavy makeup. I had often wondered why she didn't realize that the shade was too dark and was applied a little too thick, but thank God, I was never so bold as to mention it to her.

One afternoon I went to henome unannounced, and she came to the door without makeup. Much to my surprise, she had a bright-red port-wine birthmark that covered half her face.

Abby, instead of suggesting that they go together for a professional makeup to learn the "latest tricks," your suggestion to accept her for the inner qualities that make her special would have been sufficient – and is dam good advice for all of us.

—Attue FREND, TOO en sufficient – and is darn good vice for all of us. – A TRUE FRIEND, TOO

MIAMI — How do you get a child to sleep through the night? Do babies really need to be burped? What can be done to stop kilds from sucking their thumbs?

burped? What can be done to stop kids from sucking their thumbs?

They are the riddles that keep parents awake deep into the night, serenaded by peals of infant screaming.

So when more than 700 pediatricians from 38 states and 10 countries converged upon Florida earlier this month, they came prescribing some answers.

The doctors attending the annual Materies of Pediatrics conference, sponsored by the University of Miami medical school, didn'x claim that theirs were the infallible, foolproof solutions to parenting woes.

But their suggestions, the best of which we've culled below, offer guideposts for parents on the issues they deal with daily, of course, before making any majorchanges affecting your childs, health, you should consult with the family pediatrician.

Burning, Burping isn't arequired part of child rearing, Dectors report that it doesn't necessarily decrease crying, And in some cultures, burping isn't even part of parenting rituals—babies are allowed to burp on their own. But it doesn't really hurt anything, so long as it's done tenderly.

• Constipation. If your infant is constipated, try some dietary measures. For babies younger the 2 months dark corr worm.

Originally a conventional munitions storage facility, the Oregon depot was established in 1941 on 20,000 arec of sagebush 189 miles east of Portland. Hermiston Mayor Frank Harkenrider was in high school then, and his hometown was a farming community of 800 with the railroad running through it. As the depot five miles away shipped out munitions for U.S. troops fighting in World War II, Korca, Vietnam and the Gulf

All three technologies render the nerve gas harmless by breaking down the molecules that form it.

Agency may let Boise River flow

BOISE (AP) — As the Boise River begins to rise toward flood stage, officials are telling neighboring homeowners not to pamic, but to prepare. Federal dam managers said, Tuesday they will likely have to make more room in reservoirs to make the more from a snow-pack 183 percent of normal. Officials hope to drain Lucy Peak, Arrowrock and Anderson Ranch reservoirs by April 1. "There's a good chance we'll have to go higher," said Jim Fodrea, Bureau of Reclamation water resources program manager.

Opponents: Proposed BLM rules a dramatic shift in policy

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—Proposed changes in U.S. Bureau of Land Management law enforcement rules are an effort to vastly expand the BLM's authority, according to an analysis commissioned by opponents.

The Cheyenne law firm of Budd and Falen issued a 33-page review of the controversial regulations in response to a request from the American Sheep Industry Association, Wyoming Farm Bureau and Wyoming State Grazing Board.

Beard.
The BLM has said it is simply trying to consolidate law enforcement rules in different areas of the agency and is trying to put into "plain English" rules that have existed for year.
"That's what they tell us, there's nothing new (about the rules)," said Jay Guerin, BLM spokesman in Wyoming.

But the sheep industry association.
Farm Bureau and other groups argue the rules would give the BLM too much live reformment authority, expanding even to activities on private band adjoining BLM property.

The review, prepared in part by attorncy Frank Failen, took issue with the BLM's statements that the roles make no significant changes to existing policy.

"The artempt to hild the significant changes under the guise of consolidation and a plain English translation is shallow and completely lacking to guad faith," the review said.

review said.

Protests have prumped the ELM to control its public comment penied on the rules for one must band intr Western U.S. senators, including Sens. Craig Thomas and Mike Enri of Wymman, are seeking congressional hearings on the proposals.

The review said attorneys could find no samutory or constitutional authority for a number of the BLM's rules and said some appear to be unconstitutional.

Of particular concern to the attorneys are penaltics of up to $100,000 in fines and one year in jail for violations of the Federal Land Policy Management Act.

The review said the way the rules are written, a person stopped by a BLM ranger for speeding on public land and not wenting a seat belt could face the maximum penalty.

wearing a seat belt could face the maximum penalty.
"If they want to set the penalty that high, they must want to use it," Falen said. "And certainly they want leverage against people."
The review said the BLM rules would criminalize some activities that in the past have been only violations of resource management rules.

"In this case, the BLM has criminalized thousands of minor violations ... that previously were not criminal, without explaining the specific acts which are now criminal," the review said. The review said of the review said is said was the BLM's unwillingness to note changes between existing rules and the impact of the proposed rules and the rules amount to a vast and possibly illegal expansion of the BLM's authority.

"Even if such an incredible delegation of power was constitutional, this rule-making should still shock all who read it," it said.

"Even if the BLM had the authority to enforce these excessive fines in the past, the fact that it now intends to use such authority is alarming." Snow fall is already more than twice the normal amount in Jackson.

More business for local online providers

COEUR d'ALENE — While most America Online rustomers cringe at the sound of a constant busy signal, it can be music to the ears of local laterant service providers.

Recent dissatisfaction and all-out litigation against America Online has cansed many computer nears to switch to a new service where they will not have to wait hours or even days to long omto rs or even days to log onto burdened phone lines.

"I think it's the best thing AOL has ever done," said Tom Jones, Internet systems engineer for DMI Computers in Coeur d'Alene, a local service provider. "Our Internet provider. "Our Internet

President David Schmidt said there is a moratorium on new customers in the Spokane area until new telephone service is available. The Coeur d'Alene area still-has room.

AOL to reimburse customers for inability to connect online

The nation's largest online service, America Online Inc., has agreed to reimburse customers for their inability to log on in a settlement with 37 states, a source familiar with the agreement said today.

Terms and details of the settlement were not immediately disclosed. The source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the size of any credit would be determined by how much time a customer recently has been online.

America Online stock shot up $5.62 1/2 to $58.87 1/2 on the New York Stock Exchange in response to the settlement announcement. Analysts said the sertlement should help stop an embarrassing barrage of negative publicity at a time when AOL's online service is threatmed by easier and easier access to the Internet.

AOL also said it would add a disclaimer to its ads, starting in February, that says customers are having trouble logging an. No ads will be run without the disclaimer.

A tale of 2 ski trips

he same for long.

It's an axiom I've heard for years, but it ras driven home after a couple of crossountry ski outings in the South Hills over he weeken?

the weekend.

-The first; under a bright moon Friday night, was one of the most pleasant ski jaunts I've had in years. A couple of friends and I skied up the Rogerson Road from Mapic Mountain Lodge, plowing through knee-deep snow that was as light and fluffy as cotton candy.

FORCE OF NATURE William Brock

It was fairly cold, but windless as we shuf-fled up to Deadline Ridge – where we beheld the bright lights of Rogerson and peered south into (Nerdad. Art midnight, we turned around and retreated on our tracks, then veered onto a snowmible trail that planged through a grove of aspens. Safely through the 'qualiste, we left the sled tracks and entered a zone of sub-alpine firs.

ded tracks and entered a zone of successful first state, with moonlight glinting off crystals in the snow. We swooped between big, contical trees frosted in white and the snow, thigh-deep, flowed around us like sugar from a split sack.

The moonlight, silence and sublime quality of snow was indelibly etched in my mind's eye.

The second outing came a day and a half yn a sown and a half and speak of the conditions were vastly different. It was much warrant winder and snowing hard as a friend and I made our way to Deadline Ridge.

Conditions were brutal on top, so we descended into the lee of the ridge, heading north, side-hilling along the upper slopes of the Rock Creek basin. After a while, we arrived at a snowy bulge that ended abruptly at a comine.

It struck me as a place to avoid, but my pal – a former Unh ski patrollman – had a keener understanding of the limits. I knelf down about 3 feet from the edge of the conditions and the struck of the conditions and the control of the conditions and the conditions are shown as a structure of the conditions and the conditions are shown as a structure of the conditions and the conditions are shown as a structure of the conditions and the shown as a structure of the conditions are shown as a structure of the conditions are shown as a structure of the conditions are shown as a structure of the conditions and the shown as a structure of the conditions are shown as a structure of the conditions and the shown as a structure of the conditions and the shown as a structure of the conditions and the shown as a structure of the conditions and the shown as a structure of the conditions and the shown as a structure of the conditions and the shown as a structure of the conditions and the shown as a structure

We didn't want to die either, but the potential was there if we kept heading down. Reluctantly, we concluded that the safest way out was up - so we turned around and slogged back to the Rogerson Road.

It was a lot more work, but I'm here to tell the tale.

Rough-legged hawk weathers freezing climes

By Stu Murrell Times News correspondent

JEROME - The rough-legged hawk clearly is a cold-weather bird because it wears long underwear; in the form of feathers, clear down to its toes.

Rough-legs can be found in abundance around the Magic Valley's farmalands, perching on power poles, sprindler lines, and on the ground. In fact, the Magic Valley is home to many hawks at this time of year because it is a prime migration and wintering area.

Most rough-legs survived from nesting grounds in the Canadian and Alaskian Artetic. They are drawn by the abundance of food; in the Magic Valley, voles are the rodent of choice.

Unlike other members of the buteo family, rough-legged hawks hover over their prey. Buttos are medium to large-steed hawks with broad, rounded wings that normally soar above their hunting that normally soar above their hunting

The primary feature distinguishing roughlegs from red sailed basks is their whitish tail with dark bars. Immature, red-tails have dark palls, stylied with bars, while adults here ministrabilly red tails.

Rough-legged hawks are social birds and several can often be seen in the same tree or field.

Jake Reichhard, who lives southeast of Jerome, said he routinely sees 10-15 hawks roosting in large trees each evening during winner. A recent photographic expendition turned up 20 coughlegs in a 5-square-mile area east of Jerome.

Jerome. Rough-legs have relatively small feet for a large hawk, which limits their diet to mice and voles. Rederiks on the other hand, have large feet as the end of their bare legs and eat everything from mice and sailors to yellow-bellied marmots and jackerablite.

Panel: Feed starving elk herds

CHALLIS — Twenty inches of new snow during the weekend prompted a local citizens' advisory panel to recommend the distribution of alfalfa pellets to almost 1,000 elk in the Stanley Basin.

Many of the elk, which have been in the Salmon River and Valley Creek bottoms for two weeks, are starving to death.

Biologists estimate the area can support about 500 elk, said Gary Power, Region 7 supervisor for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

Feeding the elk will be expensive because the operation is labor intensive, said Mark Hurley, landowner-sportsman coordinator for Fish and Game.
Each adult will be given 11 pounds of alfalfa pellets and ay. The pellets cost about 5145 per ton and Hurley expects Fish and Game will have to Feed the animals for about 90 days.

Snowtubing' reverses downhill slide at nationwide ski resorts

BOALSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Until a few days ago, skiers and snow-boarders had Tussey Mountain to themselves. They'd make their runs down its north face, some schussing, others snaking elegant slalom lines against brilliant white. As they came down the slope, the world was quiet and orderly, as it should be.
Then overnight, life changed on Tussey.

Telluride opens Bridal Veil Falls to climbers

TELLURIDE, Colo. (AP)—
For more than 20 winters, Bridal the sheer rock face.

Telluride is an enclave for enthusiasts of high-risk sports, such as out-of-bounds sking and parasailing in the narrow box canyon. This year, the town opened the frozen 360-foot expanse of Bridal Veil Falls to Snowmobile-size ice chunks break free and slam down the staircases of frozen falls, shattering icldes as big as trees. That's akin to a welcome sign to ice

"Its beauty is in the mental testing, in the tools you use," said Johnson, an experienced ice climber. He says he's a "Bridal Vell virgin" who plans a trip this winter.

Vell virgin" who plans a trip this winter.

Until 1974, no one tried to climb the unstable overhangs. Jeft Lowe and Mike Weiss surprised themselves by succeeding. And hundreds have followed, ignoring the 'keep out' signs of the landowner, Idarado Mining Co.

"I climbed it before it was legal," said Cris Ann Crysdale at the Telluride Mountaineer outdoors shop. "It was stressful trying to climb, worrying about whether you were going to ge caught or be trapped in an avalanche."

Though the climb is now legal, towering fans of ice aren't a come-on to tourists. And ice climbers number only $5,000 in North America. There's no charge for the climb, but the avalanche-prone trail up dissuades casual visiors.

Bridal Veil Falls is one of the big-name climbs in the country. Nearby Ouray started an ice climbing park a few years ago. It draws climbers from all over the world, and some stay to try Telluride's falls.

But for Malcolm and other seniors, the passes are more than just a freehe. Malcolm said skim boosts his confidence, makes him feel younger and allows him to enjoy the outdoors.

"Sking certainly is great exercise and it is exhilarating," he says. "The outdoor activity is good and it's healthful."

Even so, Malcolm, who keeps busy taking walks, tinkering around the house and playing an occasional round of golf, actoroviceles he has slowed some over the years.

"I'm a little out of condition, so I don't ski as aggressively as I used to," he says. "If I were to get back to," he says. "If I were to get back to better shape, I still wouldn't ski as aggressively as I used to, but I could ski more aggressively than I do now."

Malcolm plans to continue his alpine adventures for at least another decade.
"Some places around here you have to be 80," he says, referring to Alta's policy of free skiing at age 80. "TII try and make it until I get a free pass there."

Retiree Keith Matthews of Orem moved back to Unh in 1995 after nearly three decades in northern California. He doesn't think he'll be skiing at age 80.
The 65-year-old Unah native is recuperating from prostate cancer surgery in November and hasn't been able to get up to the mountains recently. But will the lifelong ski and hussiast ever hit the slopes again?
"You kert." Matthews says triumphantly. "In fact, I just bought new boots last year, I even lawe a friend who wants to go." That friend, he points out, has two freplacement knees and is in his early 70s.

replacement knees and is in his early 70s.

The number of seniors still participating in the sport doesn't surprise workers at Sundance ski resort in Provo Canyon, where Matthews skied for free when he turned 65.

"A lot of people at age 65 are still strong skiers," says Sundance spokeswoman Missy Larsen, who sees about 150 seniors a week—sometimes bus loads of them — visit Robert Redford's quaint resort.

Jerry Warren, Sundance director of skiing operations, agrees. He says injuries are higher among teenagers and people in their mid 30s than among brittle-boned seriors.

teensugars and people in their mid 30s than among brittle-boned seniors.

"It has not been a concern. They really are skining enthusiasts," he says. "Most of them started when skining was mostly exploration. They're very, very nice and appreciative. Their attitudes are terrific." But ski resorts are the first to admit that discounted or free passes aren't offered solely out of kindness. The policies are also good business, especially as the average skier age climbs.

While only 6 percent of alpine skiers nationally are over 55, according to a National Sporting Coods Association 1995 survey, the median skier age has been steadly increasing to reach the current average of 37.

Industry expert. Mark White, of the Salt Lake Convention & Visitors Bureau, says youths are being targeted to make up for the aging baby boomers who are leaving the sport. But he thinks there will be more emphasis on senior skiing in the future.

"The advertisements now focus on racers and guys jumping off cliffs," White says, offering the daredevis in Waren Miller's films as examples. "For the vast majority of skiers, hat's nor what the sport is about. The industry has got some challenges in getting older skiers to go out and participate."

odder skiers to go out and participatie."

Even if they do ski for free, White says, seniors drum up business by patronizing restaurants and retail shops, and they usually don't ski alone.

"I think (free sking) is definitely a good business choice and we're giving something back to the community," says Sundance's Larsen,
And a lot of people will bring their

Malcolun, who enjoys watching and teaching his young grandchidren to ski, is a prime example.

'Smart

SOLITUDE, Utah (AP) — A computer chip, hidden inside a credit card-size Ski Access card or embedded in a special Swatch Watch, may become the key to Watch, may become the key to sking. Pioneered by the Austrian firm Fix Data, Solitude Ski Resort invested $600,000 in the access system. The card, or watch, is passed within 18 inches to felectronic scanners at each lift to open the turnstile. The chip's memory can be programmed with lift ride credits for Solitude's seven ski lifts. Skiers pay only for rides they use. They can purchase the 54 Access card and have it, programmed for multiples of 10 rides, at $3.40 per ride or $34 per day.

"After 10 rides in a day, skiing is free. Skiers who want to ski by the day rather than by the ride, can purchase the 54 Access Card and then the first day pass for 534. Any pass after that is 529. Solitude is the only North American resort using the Ski Data ride system. Other resorts have lifts rated by points and sell a pass good for a certain number of points.

Solitude says its 10-ride system is simple:

Solitude says its 10-ride system is simpler.

And resort officials hope the system eventually can be expanded to pay for Utah Transit Authority bus rides up the canyon, restaurant meals—or even to work as a lodge-room-key.

Solitude owner Gary DeSeelhorst says the card will be tested for food and beverage charges in early 1997 in Solitude's Thirsty Squirrel private club.

The system card sould also lead on inter-arear skilng. If the skirresorts between Deer Valley and Snowbird along the Wasatch Mountains crest all used the same Ski Data system, one ticket could be used everywhere.

A skier could begin at Showbird, then ski at Alta, Brighton and Solitude without too much effort. One new lift or ride on a snow machine could add Park City and Deer Valley to the available ski terrain.

All other Utah resorts use the old metal-wicket and gummed-paper day-past tickets.

Snowbird uses paper tickets with bar codes read by a lift attendant at the base of each lift. The card system offers the capability of knowing which lifts skiers are using and allows messages to be communicated direct by to skiers — a far cry from the old chalkboar method of combined to the control of the combined strength of the combined str

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

'How poor are they that have not patience! patience! What wound did ever heal but by South displayed little patience in his play of today's slam. He snatched at the opportunity for the quick discard of a loser. Unfortunately, along with the loser, discarded his slam as well.

South took dummy's spade ace and impatiently continued with the spade king. He couldn't wait the spade king. He couldn't wait to discard his losing club. Then he raitled off six trump winners, hoping to entice diamond discards. I then he was the same of the state of the same with the spade king. He can be supported to the same of the same o down.

With patience, South would have made the slam. Why hurry about getting a quick club discard when later might be better than sooner?

when later might be better than sooner?
At trick two, South should start he trumps. He rums off five winners and takes note of the defensive discards. If he sees a diamond discard or two, he crusses to dummy dismond king and discards his elub on dummy's spade to dummy ship of the start of t
