Twin Falls feels UPS strike impact

Both sides differ on issues, but want speedy resolution

By Pat Marcantorio
Times-News writers

DARIN OSWALD/The Times-News

Longtime United Parcel Service employee Jerry Kenyon mans a picket line along with fellow workers Curt Thiemann, Gary Lewis and Scott Fjeld. The Teamsters Union plans to strike UPS indefinitely over a dispute involving worker pensions.

TWIN FALLS — Jerry Kenyon celebrated 22 years with the United Parcel Service on Monday. At the time, however, he was on a picket line. Under overcast skies, Kenyon and a handful of other Teamster union members from Twin Falls picketed the UPS office at 1632 Elm St. They sat in lawn chairs on the sidewalk, wearing T-shirts, shorts and sandals. "No one wants to strike," said worker Curt Thiemann. "Sometimes you got to do what you got to do."

After UPS and union contract negotiations broke down Sunday, the strike put the brakes on UPS deliveries across the nation. About 20 full-time drivers are based in Twin Falls, most union workers who voted to authorize a strike. Across the picket line, the familiar brown trucks were idle with packages in lonely piles. Only three drivers — all managers — were at work. Although divided, both sides shared at least one hope: a quick end to the strike. "Hopefully, we can get this resolved and get back in a hurry," local UPS business manager Jody Maw said. Striking worker Rosie Schroeder agreed.

Questions and answers — A3

"I worry about my customers," she said, but added she'll remain on strike for "as long as it takes."

"Get my attention, take my pension," read the sign held by Thiemann, a seven-year UPS employee. The company claimed it would improve its employees' pensions by withdrawing from the union's multi-employer fund, but union officials said such a move would be a deal killer and local workers fear they would lose money.

"My pension, they take it away and there's no future for my wife and my kids," said worker Scott Fjeld. A paper taped to the UPS door in Twin Falls told customers the business was not accepting any packages and closed four hours early.

"Right now we are doing everything we can to lessen the hardship on our customers," Maw said between answering telephone calls. The company concentrated on delivery of one- or two-day air service.

Please see PICKETS, Page A2

Want to have a package delivered?

Since United Parcel Service is accepting no packages for delivery, the U.S. Postal Service has announced the following guidelines:

- A limit of four priority parcels or parcel post items per customer per visit at local post offices.
- Mailing of the or more priority parcels or parcel post items requires appointments at specific drop sites. For sites nearest you, call 1-800-485-8127 between 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Eastern Standard Time or consult www.usps.gov

Federal Express has announced its plan for the strike:

- No new accounts will be open.
- Cutoff times at all drop-off locations are two hours earlier than usual.
- Until further notice, FedEx will not offer money back guarantees.
- The company will limit the quantity of packages it accepts at drop-off sites.
- No new regular pickup stops.

Jody Maw, United Parcel Service's business manager in Twin Falls, says management is left to handle priority packages coming to the area.

Shippers scramble to send their parcels

The Associated Press

ATLANTA — The first nationwide strike against United Parcel Service brought most of the company's big brown trucks to a halt Monday, forcing thousands of American businesses to scramble for other ways to send packages. President Clinton virtually ruled out federal intervention in the dispute between the nation's biggest package delivery service and the 185,000 striking Teamsters, and no new talks were scheduled. The main sticking points were pay, pensions and the use of part-time employees. The walkout against UPS — which ships 12 million parcels a day, or 80 percent of the nation's package deliveries — immediately affected people on both the sending and receiving ends. "Our customer reactions have been varied. From 'That's OK, we're ordering this for Christmas,' to 'I need this shipped to my vacation destination and I'll only be there a few days,'" said Anna Schryver, a spokeswoman for Lands' End, the Wisconsin-based outdoor goods retailer. "These are the people who are going to be most disappointed."

UPS' chief rival, the Postal Service, was hard-pressed to handle the overflow business, imposing a limit of four parcels per window customer. Similarly, FedEx, which normally ships 2.8 million packages a day, saw its volume approach last Christmas' record of 4 million and had to push back drop-off times, close offices early and suspend money-back guarantees. Teamsters President Ron Carey, who walked out of the federally mediated talks Sunday night, said UPS forced thecerns as the large number — about 60 percent — of unionized jobs that are part time. On PBS' "NewsHour With Jim Lehrer" Monday night, Carey said the strike had been "very effective."

UPS chief negotiator Dave Murray challenged the Teamsters leadership to let its members vote on the company's final offer, made last week. "We believe that we have made the Teamsters a fine contract proposal that does award our people quite generously," said Murray, who also was interviewed on NewsHour.

Barry stakes his claim to Idaho style

SUN VALLEY — Dave Barry says he was well-fed during his stay at the Sun Valley Writers' Conference, plus he got to sample the local amenities. "We (writers) ate enough food to feed Ethiopia for a year and I got to use Hemingway's toilet," the Pulitzer Prize-winning humor columnist told the closing session of the conference Monday. "Didn't think it was a very manly toilet."

A frequent visitor to the Wood River Valley, the 49-year-old writer said Idaho reminded him a lot of his hometown. That would be Miami. "The people are warm and friendly and greet you with open arms," he said. "In Miami, the people greet you and are armed. We have a new tourist slogan in Miami, 'Come back to Miami, we weren't shooting at you.'"

Barry, a friend and Rock Bottom Reminders' badmate of Bellevue mystery novelist Ridley Pearson, took part in a panel discussion with other writers. Saturday and his band played a benefit gig for the writers' conference and for Ketchikan's Community Library. "Idaho has those clear, crisp blue sky days when you can actually hear the big agents snapping on Baldy," said Barry, whose weekly column is syndicated in

Over 122 years, she was 'never bored'

Joanne Calment, who died in France Monday at age 122, was believed to be the world's oldest person.

The Associated Press

ARLES, France — She took up fencing at 85, and still rode a bicycle at 100. She liked her port wine, her olive oil, her chocolate and her cigarettes, and she released a rap CD at 121. No wonder, Joanne Calment, at 122 the world's oldest person until her death Monday, said she was "never bored." She lived through France's Third and Fourth Republics, and into its Fifth. She was 14 when the Eiffel Tower was completed in 1889. "She was a little bit the grandmother of all of us," President Jacques Chirac said. Mrs. Calment died of natural causes at the Arles retirement home where she had lived for 12 years. Though blind, nearly deaf and in a wheelchair, she remained spirited and mentally sharp until the end. That was clear to those who attended her 121st birthday — in February 1996 — when she released her CD, "Time's Mistress." It featured her reminiscing to a score of rap and other tunes. Born Feb. 21, 1875, Mrs. Calment eventually became the greatest attraction in the southern city of Arles since Vincent Van Gogh, who spent a year there in 1888. She met him that year when he came to her uncle's shop to buy paints, and later remembered him as "dirty, badly dressed and disagreeable."

Stabilizing Parkinson's shakes

FDA approves powerful 'deep brain stimulator' to cut tremors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Howard Zirkle's hands shook so badly that he couldn't feed himself — until he received a brain implant that cut off his shakes.

The Food and Drug Administration approved the powerful "deep brain stimulator" Monday, saying it could help thousands of patients with Parkinson's disease or the equally debilitating disorder called "essential tremor" — that Zirkle suffers.

"It's made a great difference in my life," said Zirkle, 72, of Minster, Ohio, who was almost a recluse for five years before testing the implant. "You can't imagine going in to eat anything and not being able to pick anything up. ... I can pick up coffee now, carry it to the patio and not spill a drop."

Medtronic Corp.'s Activa implant "can significantly decrease tremors in many people with these debilitating diseases," said FDA Acting Commissioner Michael Friedman.

About 2 million Americans have essential tremor, a little-understood hereditary disorder that causes violent shaking. Up to 1.5 million Americans have Parkinson's disease, a degenerative neurological disease that causes shaking along with rigid limbs and other worsening symptoms.

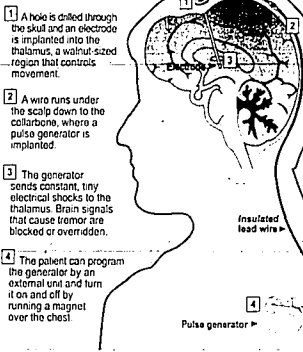

The drug L-Dopa helps some Parkinson's symptoms, although its effects wane over time. Only about 40 percent of essential tremor patients are helped with current medicines.

The shaking eventually destroys patients' ability to work or even feed themselves. Some undergo dangerous surgery to destroy a small part of their brains that causes the trembling. But the surgery can cause permanent problems with speech, movement and swallowing.

The Activa brain implant

Brain pacemaker

A pacemaker-type brain implant helps Parkinson's patients and other tremor sufferers. The operation to install the device takes five hours and costs $25,000. Shakes disappear for half the users.

Source: Medtronic Inc.

promises less shaking with fewer side effects.

In a $25,000 procedure, doctors drill through the skull and implant an electrode into the thalamus, a walnut-sized region deep in the brain. The left side of the thalamus controls movement in the right side of the body, and vice versa.

A wire runs just under the scalp down to the collarbone, where a pacemaker-sized "pulse generator" is implanted. It sends electrical waves to the electrode, which emits constant, tiny electrical shocks customized to block tremors.

In a study of 196 severe Parkinson's and essential tremor patients, tremors decreased in almost everyone and sometimes even disappeared. Some 58 percent of essential tremor patients and 67 percent of Parkinson's patients had a significant reduction.

Then doctors tested whether patients' lives improved when the shaking stopped. Essential tremor patients immediately could write, pour liquids without spilling and perform other daily tasks significantly better.

Parkinson's patients weren't helped as much, the FDA said. The implant lets them finally sit still, but doesn't help other symptoms that can impede their daily functions.

So few patients have had double implants to help both sides of the body that the FDA approved only one implant Monday. Until then, doctors recommend the implant for the hand patients use most.

Part of Activa's appeal is that the shocks can be quickly adjusted by radio waves if patients need more or less stimulation, said Dr. Jean Pintar, Hubbell of Ohio State University Medical Center, who helped test the implant. "It's not just a one-time SWAT-team operation."

And Activa is reversible: Simply turn it off by running a magnet over the chest where the generator is implanted. Zirkle turns off his implant at night to conserve the battery, but his shaking stops seconds after switching it on again each morning.

The implant is not risk-free. Less than 5 percent of patients suffer bleeding in the brain or other complications from neurosurgery. Patients suffer some discomfort during the operation because they must be awake while the implant is placed into the brain to ensure it is in the right spot.

One-third of patients experience tingling in the head and hands that requires changing the shocks to mitigate, the FDA said. Also, patients' batteries must be surgically replaced every three to five years.

The FDA also required Medtronic to study the long-term effects of constant electrical stimulation on brain tissue.

Medtronic will begin training doctors to perform the delicate implant within two weeks.

Clot-busters save patients with lung clots, study finds

DALLAS (AP) — Clot-busters, drugs widely used to stop heart attacks, can also save the lives of people with blood clots in their lungs, a study found.

Use of this treatment for people with lung clots, also known as pulmonary embolism, is controversial for patients without severe symptoms because of the bleeding problems it can cause. But in one of the largest studies to date, German researchers found that patients in that very group who were treated with clot-busters lived longer and were less likely to get new clots in their lungs.

"I'd call this a landmark paper," said Dr. Samuel Z. Goldhaber of Harvard Medical School, who wrote an editorial accompanying the study Tuesday in the American Heart Association journal Circulation. "It shows that clot-busting therapy can be extended to a much wider group of patients."

Heart attacks happen when clots become lodged in blood vessels and starve the heart of blood and oxygen. Clot-busters, also known as thrombolytic agents, are normally used to treat heart attacks because they dissolve clots.

More than 300,000 Americans annually are treated for blood clots that can travel to the lungs. The symptoms are shortness of breath, chest pain or passing out. Many doctors often prescribe blood thinners — not clot-busters — for these patients.

Slowing down: Mars Pathfinder's batteries begin to lose power

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After a month on the Red Planet, the Mars Pathfinder is finally slowing down.

The spacecraft Monday began a new regimen in which it will spend nighttime essentially shut down to save its batteries.

"The battery we have has been degrading slowly since we landed," said mission manager Richard Cook at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena.

Thelander has surpassed the 30 days it was expected to last. And its companion Sojourner rover has gone well past its predicted seven-day life span.

Cook said it is difficult to tell how much time is left for Pathfinder. The cold nights and warm days will take their toll.

"Those thermal cycles are bad on electronic parts like solder joints," he said. "It will be that stress that will eventually break some connection, and that will be it."

North Korea hands over remains of U.S. soldiers; more expected

PANMUNJON, Korea (AP) — North Korean soldiers handed over four sets of remains Monday believed to be those of American soldiers, amid expectations more will be sent home nearly a half-century after the Korean War.

Rain pelted the metal caskets as they were taken across the border to a United Nations' honor guard at the village of Panmunjon, inside the demilitarized zone that divides the rival Koreas.

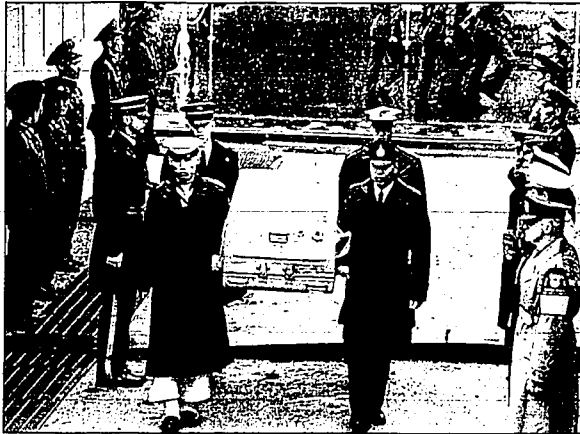

A prayer honoring the dead soldiers was read over the caskets, which were shrouded with blue U.N. flags.

"Today marks the beginning of a journey home for four American soldiers who made the ultimate sacrifice during the Korean conflict in 1950," said Alan Liotta, deputy director of the U.S. Defense Department's office for prisoners of war and soldiers missing in action.

The remains, including some identification that was exhumed with them, were flown to Hawaii for forensic tests and identification.

They were the latest remains to be repatriated from North Korea since the United States gave access to the reclusive communist country 1 1/2 years ago to look for evidence of U.S. soldiers killed during the war.

Liotta said another joint search was scheduled for later this month.

U.N. Command soldiers carry one of four coffins containing remains believed to be those of U.S. soldiers killed in the Korean War after they were handed over by North Korean soldiers Monday.

North Korea has opened its archives to the Americans for the first time, leading to hopes that more possible burial sites of Americans will be identified, Liotta said. The remains turned over Monday were found by a 10-member

U.S. forensics team sent to the North in July to search for missing Americans. The bodies are believed to be the remains of soldiers of the 8th Cavalry, 1st Battalion, who died in October 1950 in the Unsan area, Liotta said.

The exchange came one day before North Korean negotiators are scheduled to meet with representatives of South Korea, China and the United States in New York to begin talks on a permanent peace treaty.

The recovery of American war dead is a key U.S. demand for improving relations with North Korea. The United States, which fought on South Korea's side in the Korean conflict, has no diplomatic relations with the communist North.

About 8,100 U.S. servicemen remain unaccounted for from the Korean War, which killed more than 50,000 Americans. So far, 209 sets of remains have been returned to the United States, but only seven have been positively identified.

Most of the remains excavated and returned by North Korea in 1993-94 were in too poor condition to identify. So the United States asked North Korea to stop further exhumations until an agreement on joint recovery was reached. In the first joint U.S.-North Korea recovery in 1996, one set of remains was returned.

Russia gets close-up view of U.S. military bases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cold War must be truly over.

With the blessing of the U.S. government, a Russian air force jet flew from Washington to Ohio to Florida taking photos of American military facilities.

The five-day mission, which ended Saturday, was a training exercise in preparation for implementation of the 1992 Open Skies Treaty. The treaty, signed by 27 nations, promotes openness by allowing participating countries to gather information about each other's military forces through unarmed observation flights.

The flight was the first over the United States by a Russian aircraft under the treaty. A U.S. team departs for Russia later this month.

For his part, the chief of the Russian team declared the mission a big success.

"I think that for our countries this was a very great event," Russian Air Force Col. Mikhail Botvinko told reporters Monday. "We have shown that we can work well together in a spirit of mutual understanding."

The Open Skies Treaty was signed in Finland in March 1992, but enactment has been delayed because Belarus, Ukraine and Russia have yet to ratify it. The United States approved it in December 1993.

Until the agreement takes effect, only training flights will be permitted.

"Everybody is practicing on everybody while we're waiting for the treaty to be in place," said David Rigby, spokesman for the

On-Site Inspection Agency, the Defense Department agency overseeing U.S. participation.

The 20-member Russian crew, traveling in a modified 1970s twin-engine turboprop cargo plane, arrived in the United States on July 28.

The mission, begun last Tuesday, took the crew from Dulles International Airport outside Washington to Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio and Robbins Air Force Base in Florida before returning them to Dulles.

St. Elias range tops Rockies

Name the highest mountain range in North America. Did you say the Rockies? Wrong. For a while now the continent's highest peak is Mount McKinley in Denali National Park. But not all that many can name the second ridge: The St. Elias range between Canada and Alaska.

Turtle meat also comes in light and dark.

Q. What was the original meaning of that musical title "Ballin' the Jack"?

A. "Ballin'" was railroad lingo for rolling on a track. Or "high balling." The "jack" was the locomotive.

Wives of Myanmar — that's Burma, old timer — wear no wedding rings. They keep their own names and property rights.

Vicunas are born almost always between 8 and 10 a.m.

Q. When did The Great Fire of London burn down the city? And how many people died?

A. On Sept. 2, 1666. No known deaths, remarkably. But in five days it destroyed St. Paul's Cathedral, more than 80 other churches, the Royal Exchange, balls of 44 craft and trade guilds, and about 10,000 houses on Building Lane to the Currier. Lot of places in London are named after fires, have you noticed? Shoulder of Mutton, Rabbit Row, Beehive Lane, Bear's Head Yard.

Debatable claim is every U.S. President has favored at least one sport. Abraham Lincoln preferred wrestling.

Q. When was the first synthetic textile rayon first produced? And why was it called that?

A. In 1884. From the French "rayon" meaning "ray of light" because of its sheen. A French scientist named Hilaire de Chardonnet came up with it.

Chenoweth defends gun ban plan

SPLASHING AROUND

NAMPA (AP) — Rep. Helen Chenoweth is defending her campaign to repeal the ban on gun ownership by anyone with a domestic violence conviction.

Her critics claim she is trivializing spousal abuse. "I am not questioning the seriousness of domestic violence," Chenoweth said in response to that criticism. "I am questioning the wisdom of one law."

Her written defense came in direct response to Joseph Morissette, a batterer treatment specialist for the Terry Reilly Health Services, who said Chenoweth's statement that a raised voice could result in a domestic violence conviction displayed "a disturbing lack of knowledge" about the crime.

"While domestic violence crimes encompass both physical abuse and 'unlawful threats,' it also requires that the perpetrator have the apparent ability to do the violence."

Morissette wrote in an appearing in two southwestern Idaho newspapers in recent weeks.

In supporting the gun ban U.S. Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., won approval for last year, Morissette cited a string of statistics on violence against women, highlighted by U.S. Surgeon General figures that ranked abuse by husbands and partners as the leading cause of injury to women ages 15 to 44 in 1992.

Chenoweth, in her response published in the Idaho Press Tribune in Nampa, said domestic violence was a serious issue but that the gun ban was not one of the "well-thought-out solutions" needed to check it.

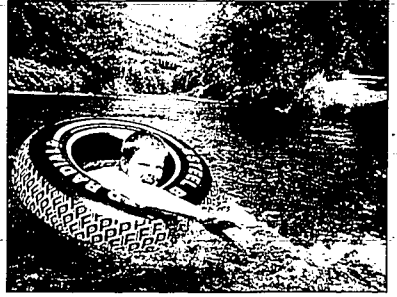

Lautenberg's approach approved as part of a major budget bill last year has numerous problems, she said. It creates a new penalty for a crime by being retroactively applied to those convicted of domestic abuse prior to its passage. That is unconstitutional, she said, and the American Civil Liberties Union has indicated agreement.

Chenoweth also complained that the law essentially ends careers of police and soldiers who "have less-than-perfect histories" but whose "record has been spotless since," and disarms victims because in some cases police charge both parties in a domestic dispute with domestic violence. In addition, she contended the law undermines the right of states and judges to deal with domestic violence punishments on a case-by-case basis.

But Morissette said that while domestic violence is a behavior that can be modified, "perpetrators need to learn that society no longer will tolerate violence in or out of the home — not on strangers, not on children and not on those with whom we live."

"Until society sees domestic violence for what it is, and until the police, prosecutors, courts and especially our lawmakers work together to send a clear message, women, children, our elders and even men trapped in violence will continue to suffer from domestic violence," he wrote.

Mealey says grizzly recovery plan has flaws

LEWISTON, Idaho (AP) — The federal grizzly bear recovery plan for the Bitterroot Mountains has a fatal flaw, according to Idaho's top wildlife official, and the state may be ready to prove it in court.

Fish and Game Director Steve Mealey said the draft environmental impact statement on recovery, which is stridently opposed by Idaho officials, does not match a study leading to the current plan to reduce bears in the north-central Idaho wilderness.

The study by Dan Davis and Paul Butterfield found that the region could support grizzly bears after examining habitat from Kelly Creek southward.

The Interagency Grizzly Bear Committee decided in 1991 that the Selway-Bitterroot was a suitable grizzly recovery area.

That decision led to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's reinroduction proposal. But it fails to follow the earlier study, Mealey said, because it cuts off the northern part of the study area.

That is the richest bear habitat but is left out of the spending proposal that shifts the recovery area southward into drier areas which are less able to support bears.

"I'll tell you that is a fatal flaw," said Mealey, who began his career as a grizzly specialist. He stopped in Lewiston recently to discuss the grizzly plan with the Lewis-Clark Wildlife Club. Mealey said no document exists to prove that the new project area proposed by the federal agency could support grizzly recovery.

And he and Fish and Game Commission member Keith Carlson of Lewiston reiterated the state's staunch opposition to grizzly recovery although a coalition of some environmental and logging interests have gained federal endorsement of their plan for local citizen management of the recovery effort.

Mealey said the state has serious concerns about how scientific data was used in developing the current proposal.

Neither side budges in Utah campus land fight

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Neither side is budging in a land dispute between Western Medical Surgery Center and Utah State University.

In December, USU President George Emert ordered that work stop on the surgery center's expansion. He says he would prefer that the center be moved off campus to free the site north of Romney Stadium for university use. But Western Medical has 42 years left on a land lease approved by a former university administrator in 1985 and says it has no plans to leave.

The campus turf battle began in October when ground was broken for a small addition to the center that would accommodate surgery patients for stays of less than a day. Two months later, the work was two-thirds finished when USU issued a cease-and-desist order.

For the last eight months the unfinished addition, estimated to be worth $95,000, has been subjected to the elements, and now Western Medical says it is now weather-damaged. The company also accuses USU of robbing the community of health care.

USU administrators admit they see no obvious solution. Emert said he originally supported the expansion because Western Medical had planned to join with Columbia/HCA and open an in-patient hospital off the campus in North Logan.

More women opt for epidurals to relieve childbirth pain

BOISE (AP) — Treasure Valley mothers-to-be increasingly are opting for epidural anesthesia to relieve the pain of childbirth.

"I think it's where the generation of child-bearing women is in this point," said Judie Walker, director of maternity services at St. Luke's Regional Medical Center.

At St. Luke's, the number of laboring women who get epidurals has risen almost 20 percent in the past four years. In 1993, 43.3 percent of the 3,891 women who delivered babies at St. Luke's opted for epidurals.

That has risen steadily each year, to 62.8 percent of the 2,170 women who have delivered babies at St. Luke's so far this year.

For years, St. Luke's was the only Boise hospital with a maternity unit. Cross-town rival St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center opened a maternity unit last month. It is too new to have an epidural track record.

Neighboring Canyon County has two general hospitals with maternity units. The procedure is relatively new at Mercy Medical Center in Nampa, where anesthesiologists expect up to 40 percent of laboring women eventually will opt for epidurals. At Columbia West Valley Medical Center in Caldwell, the epidural rate for 1996 was 22 percent. It is up slightly, to 25 percent, so far this year, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Epidural anesthesia, which can add $300 to $600 to the cost of giving birth, is the placement of a needle into a space in a woman's back, near the spinal cord. When the needle is withdrawn, a thin catheter or tube is left in place and medication is given as needed.

Mining company pins hopes on Argentine project

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — After shedding debt, slashing costs and dumping unprofitable operations, Sunshine Mining Co. managers concede they will still be seeing red ink this year.

But they believe the company has stabilized and now has the ability to ride out a depressed silver market until what they see as the key to profitability begins turning — the Pericatos Mine in Argentina.

"We think we're out of the difficulties of the past," said John Simko, chairman of the 113-year-old company based in Boise and founded on the historically lucrative Sunshine Mine in the Panhandle's Silver Valley.

"Our future is bright," Simko says, recalling his commitment when he took over Sunshine five years ago. "We've got to keep this company going, whatever the price is."

In that time, Sunshine has posted over $50 million in losses and its common stock is under a dollar a share.

Emergency dispatch system needs to be stabilized, stat

Magic Valley residents who have been paying a buck a month with their phone bills for almost 5 1/2 years can be forgiven for wondering if the Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center's long shakedown cruise will ever end.

Ten months after SIRCOMM's emergency 911 telephone system came on line, there's already a budget crisis. There also are lingering complaints about problems with the system, including the unsettling news that some local emergency response agencies can't talk to SIRCOMM because they have the wrong radio equipment.

Some wrinkles were to be expected in a system of this complexity. But it has, after all, been six years since voters approved SIRCOMM. Many of these bugs should have been worked out by now.

If the $1-a-line surcharge and $640,000 in direct tax support from the counties weren't going to be adequate to keep the system running, why didn't we hear about it when SIRCOMM was being built?

Now it appears possible that SIRCOMM's board, made up of city and county elected officials from Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding and Lincoln counties, will be going hat in hand to the counties for help. (We wish them luck; much of the money local government saved by switching from local to regional dispatch has long since been earmarked for other purposes.)

It's also possible that the SIRCOMM board will end up lobbying the Legislature for a surcharge on cellular phones. But even if the lawmakers agree, the $15,000 in potential revenue probably isn't a panacea of SIRCOMM's financial problems. The system is facing a big-ticket expenditure for new radios, and it is locked in a running legal skirmish with the company that built SIRCOMM's infrastructure over what the firm says is money that it hasn't been paid.

Further, a study by the Ada County sheriff's office concluded that SIRCOMM needs 22 full-time dispatchers, not the 16 it has now.

If SIRCOMM is going to need another major revenue source in the future, then the board needs to let taxpayers and fee payers know soon.

Now that it's in place, this is not a system that can be fixed piecemeal. If SIRCOMM isn't on a solid financial footing yet, it needs to be made so soon.

Remember to vote today

The voting booth is the symbol and substance of freedom. By casting our ballots, we reassert that we are the masters of our government, and not the other way around. Please take a few minutes today to vote on highway district candidates, and on the Twin Falls County events center proposal.

Fund raiser benefits community

I have had the pleasure of working very closely with the Crime Prevention Association for more than two years. I would like to thank all of the many citizens from Magic Valley and as far away as Boise who supported the NFL All-Stars vs. Crime Prevention game held June 13. Despite some unfortunate negligence and erroneous publicity, the game was a tremendous success! The proceeds and support were more than we had hoped for.

The Crime Prevention Association is a citizen-based organization with the law enforcement agencies as our lifelines.

Last year, our fireworks booth was manned by 12 members working 91 hours; profit $1,333.17. This year, members spent 20 hours for proceeds of $3,500. Chief DeVore expressed concern for the money that leaves the community; some examples of money spent here are Western Plaza housed two people for more than two months as well as the players for one night, 50 local people were employed in telemarketing; restaurants, office space and some printing were all done in our community.

The $3,500 brought in will benefit the community for our project, a random drawing to update senior citizens' security in Twin Falls City and County. Boxes are provided in the senior centers around Twin Falls County. A drawing from each box will determine who has won. Selected seniors will have an officer do a walk-through of their home to advise the Crime Prevention Association what is needed. Next, the Crime Prevention Association members will install the free equipment, along with the help of some of the clubs such as the Optimist Club and other groups in the area. This is a valid community project, one we are proud to be involved in.

Chief DeVore provided facts regarding the percentage rate of sworn officers per 1,000 people in each community in Twin Falls County. Bull, 1.8 percent; Kimberly, 1.8 percent; Filer, 2.4 percent; Twin Falls, 1.5 percent. The percentage is lowest in Twin Falls County, and it has the largest population.

Let's consider getting the City Council to appropriate money for additional officers so we can get the needed forces on our streets. Some changes in our judicial system are necessary. Obviously, the system is not providing the deterrent needed to stop the crime.

Please become involved with the Crime Prevention Association and Neighborhood Watch and start taking an active part in protecting yourselves and your community!

PENNY L. PLOSS, President, Crime Prevention Association, Twin Falls

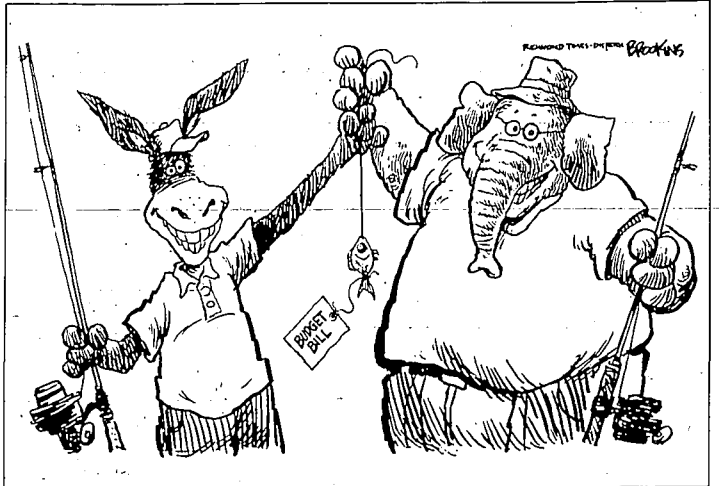

Hate letters more than satire

In recent months, The Times-News has published four hate letters aimed at Californians the most recent were July 1 and July 30. The author, Mr. John Plumtze, tries to soften his message by calling it satire. Satire? Four letters. Not hardly! Mr. Plumtze's message is thinly veiled sarcasm meant to ridicule, demean and to torment people.

I do not know if Mr. Plumtze has a hidden agenda or just a warped sense of humor, but whatever the reason, there is already way too much hate and divisiveness in Idaho. I am appalled the Times-News would encourage this messianic by giving it a public forum.

The letters violated The Times-News' written standards for letter content. Why then were they published?

DALE A. DUNN, Rupert

Budget deal violates notions of honesty

In his novel "1984," George Orwell defines "doublethink" as the "power of holding two contradictory beliefs in one's mind simultaneously, and accepting both of them." There was, in this sense, something deeply Orwellian about last week's orgy of self-congratulation over the balanced-budget agreement.

President Bill Clinton said, "we have put America's fiscal house in order again." Republican Senate leader Trent Lott boasted that the two parties "rose above partisanship." All this cheering celebrated an agreement that delays a balanced budget.

Here's why. In fiscal 1997, the budget deficit is now estimated between $30 billion and $40 billion. That would be less than 3 percent of annual federal spending. With modest spending cuts, Congress and Clinton could easily have balanced the budget for 1998.

Instead, budget deficits will probably grow for the next three years to between $60 billion and $90 billion. The deficits expand, because compared with present policies, the budget agreement cuts taxes and adds significant new spending. The balanced budget that theoretically occurs in 2002 optimistically assumes Congress will make future spending cuts.

The whole exercise exhibits an enormous contempt for the public's intelligence and integrity. To describe it as a balanced-budget deal violates normal usage, that is, for most people - notions of honesty and candor. The bipartisan deceit presumes that so many people will benefit from the deal's various handouts that the public can be gulled into believing almost anything.

A lack of integrity is not the budget agreement's only failing. The other defects start with economic policy. This is the wrong time to stimulate the economy with higher deficits. We are in the seventh year of a business expansion. Unemployment hovers around 5 percent. Why risk higher inflation by injecting more purchasing power into the economy through tax cuts and greater spending?

Next, consider tax policy itself. The new tax bill drowns the income-tax system in added complexity. There will be five special rates on capital gains (28, 20, 18, 10 and 8 percent). The bill creates at least three types of new tax-deferred savings accounts. The college tax breaks come in two versions: a maximum $1,500 credit for the first two years and a $1,000 credit for later years.

"It's very complicated even for average taxpayers," says Gregory Jenner, head of national tax policy for Coopers & Lybrand. Most new tax breaks have different income limits and phaseouts. The child credit phases out for single parents with $75,000 and couples with $110,000, the college tax credits phase out for single taxpayers with $40,000 and couples with $80,000. Jenner exposts taxpayer errors to rise.

What about Social Security and Medicare? Everyone agrees they need to be overhauled to anticipate the baby boom's retirement. But Clinton and Congress avoided that choice. The Senate budget included two desirable changes in Medicare: a gradual rise in the eligibility age from 65 to 67 and higher premiums for wealthier recipients. It's easy to justify both. Medicare is a transfer from the poorer young to the richer elderly. Why shouldn't they pay more? But the budget dropped both Senate proposals.

The central virtue of a balanced budget is discipline. It compels politicians to choose between higher taxes and lower spending. Both Republicans and Democrats disdain such discipline. The only major effort to limit spending in the budget involves lower Medicare reimbursement rates for doctors, hospitals and managed-care groups. This accounts for most of the $115 billion of Medicare savings between 1998 and 2002. But these "savings" merely slow the program's growth.

In the cheery view of White House aides and congressional leaders, their foray into "bipartisanship" creates the climate for facing the long-term issues of Medicare and Social Security. Well, it could happen. A balanced budget could arrive even earlier than 2002 if Congress makes future spending cuts or has more luck (tax revenues exceed projections or health spending slows).

But the happy talk is mostly wishful thinking packaged for public consumption. One obvious obstacle to a balanced budget could be a recession. Although the economy now seems strong, an expansion that lasts until 2002 would become the longest (13 years) in U.S. history.

As for the new bipartisanship, it is superficial. Each side merely embraced its fondest tax-cut or spending projects. There was no genuine meeting of minds that might herald a consensus on Social Security and Medicare. In 1995 and 1996, Clinton savagely attacked Republicans for their Medicare proposals. There is no climate of trust.

What we got last week was good theater and bad policy. When tax time arrives, people will see the law's complexity and realize that many of them don't qualify for new tax breaks. Some new programs will deliver less than promised. White House aides boast that the children's health insurance will add "up to 5 million," but the CBO puts the added coverage at less than half that.

"Honesty may not be the best policy," Richard Nixon once said, "but it is worth trying once in a while." On the budget, this Congress and this president decided otherwise.

LETTER

Property tax system outdated

In December, farmers, ranchers, homeowners, business owners and others must pay property taxes to the counties. This has been the way the schools and counties have been financed for 200 years or more. Times have changed drastically, but this way of taxing has not. Our state lawmakers have refused to face up to the awful inequity of taxing owners of property they way they have since this country was formed.

The percentage of agriculturalists has dropped to about 2.6 percent of the population. Farming is a risky way of making a living. The weather plays a big part in their ability to make an income. Farmers' and ranchers' costs have risen greatly. Fertilizer, machinery and the land get more expensive. The man who farms has no way to control what he receives for his produce.

Now let us look at other ways of earning money. When one decides to get an education to be a professional person, he spends a big sum for it, but he is never required to pay any tax on this money. If he becomes a lawyer or doctor or a school administrator, he receives up to $20 an hour or maybe more. His investment enables him to ask for this amount, but his investment is not regarded as property as a farm is. Why isn't the amount spent for an education regarded as property as a farm is? If the amount spent for a farm is taxed, so should the amount spent for an education.

Another thing, farmers buy land to earn their living. Why must they pay taxes to support the school houses, colleges and county buildings? Why aren't the school personnel required to buy the school buildings or the lawyers and judges required to own the court houses where they receive their fancy salaries? Why must the farmers and businessmen pay the taxes to support all this as the county commissioners and school boards decide what is needed? The whole system is servery and has been for about a hundred years!

Taxes on homes are somewhat fair since most of us live in a home somewhat related to our incomes. A small sales tax is also somewhat fair and income tax is also fair.

Those who receive a good income are fortunate. Our state lawmakers should address this very unfair way of taxing!

WORLD IN BRIEF

U.S. ship pays first visit since takeover

HONG KONG — Docking Monday at a pier along busy Victoria Harbor, the USS Blue Ridge became the first U.S. warship to visit Hong Kong since the territory's return to Chinese rule. Such visits "demonstrate the U.S. commitment to regional security" on the Pacific Rim, said Vice Admiral Robert Natter, commander of the 7th Fleet. The fleet's 19,000-ton flagship stopped in Hong Kong to give its sailors a chance to unwind, and possibly join Chinese soldiers in sports or other recreation, Natter said. The USS Patriot and USS Guardian were to join the Blue Ridge today.

Iraqi inspection goes without snags for UN

BAGHDAD, Iraq — A U.N. weapons inspection team said Monday it encountered no interference from the Iraqi government on its latest inspection mission — a marked contrast to earlier inspections. The trouble-free, 10-day stop at a biological weapons site was a "good sign of cooperation," said Nils Caltstrom, director of the U.N. weapons office in Baghdad. In June, the U.N. Security Council threatened tough new sanctions against Iraq unless it fully cooperated with U.N. teams overseeing the elimination of Iraq's weapons of mass destruction, including nuclear, chemical and biological arms.

UN official OKs Iraqi oil export plan

UNITED NATIONS — Secretary-General Kofi Annan Monday approved an Iraqi plan for distributing food and medicine purchased with oil revenues, meeting the main condition Baghdad set for resuming oil exports. Iraq has not exported oil since late May under the U.N.'s oil-for-food plan, saying it would await Annan's approval of the distribution plan. The holdup was apparently aimed at pressuring the Security Council into speeding up the procedure for approving shipments of humanitarian goods. Iraq has been barred from exporting oil freely under U.N. sanctions imposed in 1990 after President Saddam Hussein sent troops into Kuwait, touching off the Persian Gulf War.

Gunmen kill Shiites in village market attack

LAHORE, Pakistan — Gunmen on motorcycles sprayed bullets into a crowded bazaar Monday, killing seven Shiite Muslim activists, police said. An eighth man — a Sunni Muslim — also died in the attack. Police said they were unsure if he got caught in the cross fire or was targeted by the gunmen. The attack in Shorkot, a predominantly Shiite village, occurred hours after two men on a motorcycle shot and killed a Sunni lawyer in Lahore, the Punjab provincial capital 125 miles away. There was no claim of responsibility for either attack.

Russia finds money for military back wages

MOSCOW — The Kremlin freed about $1 billion Monday to cover all back pay owed to Russian servicemen and make a dent in long overdue wages for teachers. Members of the armed forces will receive back wages by the end of August, First Deputy Finance Minister Vladimir Petrov said, according to a report by the Interfax news agency. Compiled from wire reports

Palestinian in no hurry to satisfy Israeli demands

JERICHO, West Bank (AP) — West Bank security chief Jibril Rajoub seems in no rush to satisfy Israel and the United States with a crackdown on Islamic militants.

"First of all, we are not working for the prime minister of Israel," Rajoub said at his office Monday, swiveling in his black leather chair, a portrait of Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat behind him.

Rajoub also said Arafat's government cannot fight the Hamas group widely blamed for last week's deadly market bombing as long as Israel has Palestinian areas under siege.

The tough Palestinian line bodes ill for U.S. efforts to rescue the peace process, which was scheduled to resume at the end of the week with the return of U.S. envoy Dennis Ross.

At the headquarters of the Palestinian secret service, the absence of hustle is telling. There are no Islamic militants or political activists waiting to be questioned about Wednesday's attack on a Jerusalem market.

Rajoub, 44, is viewed by diplomats as a possible successor to Arafat. He insisted that no one yet knows who carried out the double bombing that claimed 15 lives, including those of the two bombers.

Rajoub said he believed the bombers — two Palestinians in their 20s, according to Israel — were sent as part of an effort to destroy the peace process, and Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu "immediately took measures against the Palestinian Authority as if we are the enemies."

Since the bombing, Israel has prevented Palestinians from moving between West Bank towns and has closed the borders with Egypt and Jordan. The border closing has barred tens of thousands of Palestinians from their jobs in Israel.

An anonymously distributed leaflet claimed responsibility for Wednesday's bombings on behalf of Hamas, which in 1996 carried out suicide attacks that killed more than 60 people. The claim has not been authenticated.

Bombs hamper dike building

FRANKFURT AN DER ODER, Germany (AP) — Soldiers reinforcing dikes along the swollen Oder River in eastern Germany had a new hazard to deal with Monday: unexploded bombs from World War II.

Workers digging up gravel for a levee found seven small German-made bombs, a mine and several grenades in the pit near Reitewitz, just north of Frankfurt an der Oder, about 50 miles east of Berlin.

Soldiers kept building the new barrier behind a crumbling section of the main dike after munitions experts removed the explosives, said Juergen Zweigert, a spokesman for the Brandenburg state Interior Ministry. No one was injured.

More than 10,000 soldiers and an army of volunteers patched small ruptures overnight along the 100-mile-long dike.

Residents to vote today on center, commissioners

TWIN FALLS - Twin Falls County residents today will have a chance to vote on the proposed $7 million new center in Filer. Polls will be open today on the expo center bond issue election from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the same locations voters use in general elections. The exception is the Three Creek and Hollister area, where voters now can vote at the Hollister Elementary School.

Some local highway districts are also holding elections. In the Twin Falls Highway District, ballots can be cast from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the highway district office in Twin Falls, the Twin Falls County Courthouse, the Kimberly community building, Hansen City Hall and the Hollister Elementary School.

Polling places in the Buhl Highway District are the Buhl Moose Hall, Buhl Grange Hall, the Castleford Methodist Church, the Clover Lutheran School and the old Lucerne grange building. Voters in the Hillsdale Highway District can vote for highway district commissioners at both Eden and Hazelton city halls.

Paving job to close road to Shoshone Falls

TWIN FALLS - Shoshone Falls Grade will be closed for repaving Wednesday. The closure will begin from 5 a.m. to late afternoon, according to the Twin Falls Highway District. Residents of the area will be allowed to come and go, but sightseeing traffic will be stopped at Falls Avenue East.

Twin Falls County driver's license offices reopen

TWIN FALLS - The Twin Falls County driver's license and motor vehicle offices reopened today, a week after burglars stole the offices' equipment. The offices at 260 Fourth Ave. N., in Twin Falls are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Call 736-4600 for information.

No new leads had developed Monday on the theft of equipment last week, Twin Falls police said. Police said burglars could use the equipment to create false identification cards.

Falling tree limbs knock out power in Magic Valley

Windy weather in the Magic Valley caused at least two power outages, as tree limbs tangled with power lines.

More than 1,500 Twin Falls residents were left without power Monday afternoon when strong winds caused a tree to knock over a power line, an Idaho Power Co. employee said.

The outage affected houses from the presidential streets to west of the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, the employee said.

The houses lost power at about 3 p.m. and got it back less than 45 minutes later, he said.

Wendell's power went down for the second time since in a week Monday, when a thunderstorm knocked out the power for about 90 minutes.

The power blinked off briefly four times shortly after 11 a.m., then went out at about 12:30 p.m. for about an hour and a quarter.

An Idaho Power spokesman said a tree limb fell onto a line. The repair process can involve turning the electricity off and on while reconnecting the lines.

Council finally approves resident's garage plan

TWIN FALLS - After months of seeking permission, Joe Sorenson can finally build his garage. Sorenson's patience was rewarded at Monday's City Council meeting with a zoning change for his home, the last house on Canyon Springs Road before it drops into the Snake River Canyon.

The garage will supplant the home's hilted squash court. Sorenson's request was complicated by the area's zoning, which was for single-family homes - which specified minimum setbacks from the road.

Sorenson's request has bounced between the City Council and the city's Planning and Zoning Commission several times in recent months. The zoning was changed to allow the property as a single-family variable area.

Interchange plans to be unveiled gradually

By Mark Helz
Times-News writer

JEROME - Officials Monday refused to budge the lid that has been tightly kept on a plan some say will finally open up wide-spread development near the Interstate 94-U.S. Highway 93 interchange. Jerome County Commissioner Roy Prescott, the plan's chief exponent, said only a general outline will be given in a 400-word statement during a meeting this morning in the Jerome County Courthouse basement meeting room. And although Prescott said he has invited reporters from several area news organizations to the meetings, he promised no information beyond the prepared statement.

Neighbors oppose subdivision

By Mark Helz
Times-News writer

JEROME - Residents of a rural neighborhood west of Jerome say a proposed subdivision would swallow up farmland and cause lifestyle conflicts the county's comprehensive plan was supposed to prevent. Backers say their subdivision is in line with the county's comprehensive plan and zoning ordinance, and the land is ideal for home sites that would boost the Jerome and Twin Falls housing markets.

Jerome County commissioners spent all of Monday morning listening to testimony from both sides during an appeal on the subdivision, and plan to rule within the next two weeks. The California-based Benetech Inc. wants to develop a 59-lot subdivision on a little less than 80 acres of land in an agricultural zone just west of Interstate 84 near Jerome. The Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission has turned down the plan twice in the last two years, said county zoning administrator Art Brown. County commissioners also turned down an appeal from the company. The planning commission last month approved Benetech's plans, on its third attempt, Brown said.

That prompted area residents to appeal to the county commission. Several neighbors spoke against the proposal Monday, citing concerns over ground water contamination from septic tanks and the development's intrusion on their rural lifestyle.

Residents also said they worry that an overflow pond for the subdivision and a ditch running through the property could pose a threat to children.

Project engineer Gerald Martin said Benetech would build a fence around the pond and road irrigation water through a pipe.

Resident Gary Childers and others said the subdivision would pump more traffic onto the already busy West Road

Backers say their subdivision is in line with the county's comprehensive plan and zoning ordinance.

What's next

A meeting on the interchange plan will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Jerome High School.

There will be no questions taken," he said.

Federal, state and county officials involved with the plan - as well as some private parties - will be available for questions, he said.

Prescott has hinted for some time that a plan to open the interchange area to some commercial and recreational development was in the works.

But has repeatedly refused to give away any details, even after he and Crossroads Ranch Project Manager Steve Thorson made a June trip to Washington, D.C., to discuss the plan with members of Idaho's congressional delegation and their aides.

The Crossroads Ranch property sits near the interchange, and Prescott said Thorson is a player in the plan.

Magic Valley officials were also tight-lipped Monday.

"This is theirs to announce," said Bureau of Land Management Shoshone Area Manager Bill Baker.

Baker, Twin Falls City Manager Tom Courtney and Twin Falls County Commissioner Dennis Maughan said they had been given a general outline of the plan within the last week or so, but refused to reveal what they'd been told.

Jerome Chamber of Commerce board member Rick Bennett said he'd had some involvement in the plan through his job at Land Title and Escrow Inc. He declined to give any details, but said the chamber was not involved.

Chamber president Kent Lee also said the Jerome chamber had no involvement.

The Idaho Lands Department also controls land near the interchange, but area supervisor Howard Kestie said he had been told nothing about the plan.

Jerome downtown facelift project gathers support

By Dixie Thomas Reale
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - Three of every four property owners have signed on to a planned facelift in downtown Jerome, one project backer says.

The public will get its chance tonight to speak out on the $2 million plan at a Jerome City Council hearing.

Since downtown property owners will pay $360,000 of the bill - through a $64.92-per-street-front-foot fee - supporters need to get 60 percent of owners to sign on to the plan. Three-fourths of the owners have, said LeRoy Craig, a member of the committee pushing the LID.

"We didn't pursue the rest of the owners because most of them are from out of town," Craig said. "We are away about the required 60 percent required for the grant."

Aside from the property owners' money, $1.4 million for the project would come from federal and state transportation grants, and $540,000 would come from federal grants obtained by the city of Jerome.

The proposed improvements include left-turn lanes and four-way left-turn signals at Main and Lincoln streets; level and widened streets; curbs and gutters; improved sidewalks; improved lighting; landscaping; irrigation; street furniture and trash containers for two blocks in each direction from Main and Lincoln.

The City Council could pass an ordinance after Tuesday's hearing creating the LID, said Mike Pepper, LID project coordinator. The council would then appoint engineers, solicit bids, award contracts, and oversee the project.

The improvements could be completed in 1999.

Judge hears bid for Butcher retrial

By Gregory Hahn
Times-News writer

RUPERT - Kody Butcher was back in Fifth District Court Monday, six months after he was convicted in the April 1996 slaying of Blake Morgan Jr.

Butcher and his lawyer Randy Stoker were back to try to convince Judge William Hart that a retrial should be granted and the conviction should be erased.

Butcher was convicted in February of first-degree murder in an Ada County jury concluded Butcher shot Morgan while he slept on the couch of his Rupert home. Jesus Diaz was convicted for aiding and abetting second-degree murder in the same killing. He has filed a motion for retrial, scheduled to be heard Aug. 12.

Stoker told the court Butcher's motion was based on three points: additional evidence and two parts of the jury instructions.

Stoker said he had evidence to undermine Todd Maas, a convicted felon and key prosecution witness, who said Butcher confessed to the shooting a few days later while both in the intake unit at Twin Falls County jail.

Maas first revealed this in a taped interview, only part of which was released to Stoker.

After the trial, Stoker learned about another portion of the tape where Maas said Butcher was involved with another killing. Stoker said police have never contacted Butcher with that crime, and this inconsistency could impeach Maas as a witness.

Special Prosecutor John Bradley said the remainder of the interview was not included in the Morgan trial because it revealed nothing about the case, and now holds no evidence that would affect the verdict.

Stoker also criticized the wording of jury instructions. He said a recent Idaho Court of Appeals decision required all murder instructions to include the words "specific intent."

The decision was based on an attempted second-degree murder trial, though, and is under review, Bradley countered.

Prosecutor Rick Bollor said all instructions are taken from the Idaho Criminal Jury Instruction manual, and that wording has first degree on an attempt. The attorney general's office told Bollor it though the change in instruction would apply only to

Plan to designate English as Utah's official language draws opposition

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A state lawmaker's proposal to designate English as Utah's official language has drawn opposition from civil liberties advocates and Hispanic groups.

Rep. Tammy Rowan, R-Orem, says an official language would not only designate taxpayers' money but bring various cultures together. Her bill was heard last month by a legislative committee, which will decide next month whether to officially endorse it.

Regardless, Rowan is free to introduce the measure during the 1998 Legislature, which begins in January.

Opponents say the bill violates the U.S. Constitution.

"This violates human rights," Rep. Loretta Baca, D-Salt Lake, said. "It is unneeded, unwarranted and will be perceived as racism."

in the Hispanic community."

At present, Utah offers its citizens's license tests in English and Spanish. Under Rowan's bill, it is likely the Motor Vehicle Division would offer the test only in English.

— Loretta Baca, D-Salt Lake

Matt Shaw of the ACLU said such legislation would violate the Equal Protection provision of the Constitution. But Rowan said Utah violates that clause now because those who speak languages other than English or Spanish do not get equal treatment when taking a driver's license test.

Rowan said Utah residents speak more than 120 different languages, and she questioned how state officials decide one language deserves to be printed on official state documents while others do not.

"This bill would pull us together unless some groups use it to pull us apart," she said.

Several representatives of the Hispanic community fear that bilingual education classes, food stamps and welfare programs could refuse communication through any language but English. "Any English-only law will not justify the community but divide it," said David Doty, an attorney who works for the Davis School District.

4 die when car plunges into canyon

BAKER CITY, Ore. (AP) — Four Oregon people died after their car went off a gravel road, careened 770 feet down a steep Hell's Canyon embankment and plunged into the Snake River.

Police identified the victims as Forest Ora "Gus" Garrigus, 67, and Fred Louis Lancaster, 63, both of Oxbow, and Arthur Lee Shepherd, 62, and Shirley Carole Shepherd, 59, both of Halfway.

All four suffered multiple injuries during the crash and died before the car hit the Snake River after careening off a primitive Bureau of Land Management road and traveling several hundred yards down the steep embankment, said Dr. James Davis, Baker County medical examiner.

A Gresham resident called 911 on his cellular phone after seeing a cloud of dust on the slope above the river and seeing debris, including oil, in the water.

Divers found the bodies still inside the car late Friday or Saturday morning.

Garrigus for years wrote a weekly report on fishing and hunting conditions that was published in the Hells Canyon Journal newspaper.

Firm hopes mining decision sets precedent

NEPHI, Utah (AP) — A Dallas-based minerals company is hoping an agreement allowing a gypsum mine to operate in a wilderness area on Mount Nebo near here will set a precedent.

3R Minerals is seeking to tap mineral deposits inside the Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument in southern Utah and wants the Mount Nebo ruid to help pave the way.

Springville attorney Allen K. Young is representing 3R Minerals, which holds a claim to about 3,000 acres inside the monument.

Young also represented Nephi miners Bob Steele and Jack Dansie in a federal lawsuit that ended in an unusual settlement with the U.S. Forest Service two years ago.

Midway through the Steele-Dansie trial, the Forest Service agreed to pay a $120,000 cash settlement and allow the two to develop their claims in perpetuity.

That settlement resurfaced last week as miners began removing gypsum from the site, trucking it out over a road crossing a wilderness area south of Nephi.

"This just shows that if people are willing to fight the maze of federal red tape, they can prevail," Young said.

His new clients believe there could be billions of dollars of the strategic metals underground south of Escalante—in the Carcass Canyon Wilderness Study Area of the preserve. The company acquired its mineral claims in April and May 1996, only a few months before President Clinton created the 1.7 million-acre monument.

A decisive point in the Mount Nebo case was that Steele and Dansie owned their claims before Congress created the wilderness area in the Uinta National Forest where their mine is located.

Steele and Dansie's Juab County gypsum operation is the only open-pit mine inside a federal wilderness area and the only wilderness mine of any kind with year-round motorized access.

Officials unsure of victim's identity

NAMPA (AP) — A man whose body was pulled from an irrigation canal in Canyon County remained unidentified Monday, and authorities hope a composite drawing of the victim would lead his identification.

The body of the middle-aged Hispanic man had been in the water for five to seven days before being pulled from the canal on Saturday, Coroner Vicki DeGues said. Because no one matching his description has been reported missing, police have had few leads toward identifying him, Detective Gary Tweed said.

DeGues said the man died of head injuries sustained after being hit with a blunt object. He is also processing the victim's fingerprints and dental X-rays on the chance they will lead to his identity.

Fair gets off to a damp start

By Penelope Reedy Times-News writer

RUPERT - Food booths at the Mindokota County Fair opened Monday to suddenly cooler weather. Blustery winds and rain forced participants to grab their burgers, fries, and corn on the cob and duck out of the rain and into the merchants' building. Far from inconvenient, some welcomed the change in the weather.

swine club. Tiffany Pennick and Rachael Robbins scaled ladders to hang posters in the shelter of the livestock barn. The group's eight members decorated the arena with colorful "patchwork" hanging pigs made from plastic milk jugs. "A Patchwork of Family and Community" is the theme for this year's fair, and exhibitors such as the Ham Hocks have interpreted the theme in a number of creative ways. Sherry Anderson, superintendent of the flower show, painted a poster in which each letter is decorated as a different calico print.

Children can compete in a Tiny-Tot Gymkhana in the arena at 6 p.m., followed by a local talent show at the grass arena at 7. relief society is exhibiting a predominantly blue patchwork wall hanging with a pioneer theme. VALLEY IN BRIEF

Meeting to address 911 problems

JEROME - The Kimberly police commissioner wants to get people talking about the Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center. Dave Overacre said he has invited officials from every city in Twin Falls County to a forum at 7 p.m. Aug. 20 in the Shields Building on the College of Southern Idaho campus to discuss questions and concerns about SIRCOMM. The 911 center's funding and service will be the main topics, Overacre said, and the public is invited. SIRCOMM representatives have been invited to the meeting through a letter to the Twin Falls County Commission, he said.

Jerome sheriff probes check fraud

JEROME - The Jerome County Sheriff's Office is investigating a series of forged traveler's checks, passed at truck stops along Interstate 84. On July 17 bogus checks were passed at Travelers Oasis on I-84 and Petro II on U.S. Highway 93 near the I-84 interchange, a department news release said. The Jerome Police Department has reported cases of more forged checks within its jurisdiction at the same time. The sheriff's office is looking for a suspect described as a black female in her 20s or early 30s who might be using a fake Texas driver's license as identification to cash the checks. The traveler's checks are Bank of America VISA, all with the same serial numbers, the sheriff's office said. The forgeries are high quality. Businesses are warned this is the second time within the past few months forged checks have been passed at truck stops within Jerome County, along I-84.

The sheriff's office asks anyone with information to call Detective Sgt. Dan Chatterton at 324-8845. Business are encouraged to call Chatterton to learn the serial numbers of the forged checks.

Shoshone City Council to meet

Governor's case could wrap up this week

PHOENIX (AP) - The trial of Arizona Gov. (P) Symington is heading into the home stretch this week as lawyers wrap up testimony in his federal fraud trial. Jurors could begin deliberating Symington's fate as early as the end of the week. Symington is expected to complete his testimony this morning as the trial enters its 13th week. The governor is charged with 22 federal felony counts. Most financial statements to banks to get loans and loan concessions when he was a real estate developer. Conviction on any one of the felony counts would mean the two-term Republican would automatically be removed from office. Defense lawyer John David said Symington will testify for more than another two hours Tuesday. Assistant U.S. Attorney David Schindler wrapped up his cross-examination of the governor on Friday as Symington angrily denied trying to extort loan concessions on one of his failed projects. Symington denied allegations by former union pension fund final arguments over jury instructions this afternoon. Those instructions - the judge's guidelines for interpreting the complex legal and factual issues involved - could be a key to whether Symington is convicted or acquitted. Strand had issued several rulings before the trial, limiting the kinds of evidence which could be presented by both sides and which defenses Symington could use. An important ruling was that prosecutors had to prove that statements were "material" to the banks. Prosecutors say that means they must prove only that Symington's financial statements could have influenced banks' lending decisions. Defense lawyers have repeatedly argued that banks did not rely on the statements when deciding whether to loan Symington money. After lawyers finish their closing statements and Strand gives the jury instructions, 12 of the 16 jurors hearing the case will be randomly chosen to begin deliberations. The other four jurors will be released as alternates, Strand said.

Subdivision

Continued from B1 near Jerome. "Right now, there's enough cars there that you have to sit for what seems like five, sometimes 10 minutes before you can even pull out onto the road," Childers said. Martin said the company plans to widen the road near its property and to build two exits from the subdivision. Twin Falls attorney Timothy Stover, hired to represent several neighbors, said the subdivision goes against several principles of the comprehensive plan, including the preservation of agricultural land and the prevention of conflicting land uses. The proposed subdivision could cause Hite's conflicts because the land is near a composting plant and several dairies, he said. Idaho agricultural regulations forbid crop dusting within a half-mile of residential development, which would also put the subdivision at odds with area farmers, Stover said. But Benetech spokesman Weston Jones said buyers would like to agree to take in stride the effects of area agriculture before they could build homes or move into the subdivision. Farmer planning commission vice-chairman Mike Dahmer said the proposed development could cause ground water problems because area studies indicate the house are studies indicate the soil is too shallow for adequate household septic systems. South Central Health Specialist Environmental Health Specialist

Bonnie Christensen said every lot in the proposed subdivision has been drilled for soil samples. The district has put holes on two lots, because the soil is too shallow for any regular septic system. The company or buyers would have to do additional work, such as importing sand onto the lot, before homes could be built there, Christensen said. Dahmer and others also questioned whether there would be adequate water for 59 homes. Even if fully developed, the subdivision would still use much less water than regular crop irrigation on the same land, Martin said. Times-News staff writer Mark Hens can be reached in Jerome at 324-6962.

Retrial

Continued from B1 attempted second-degree murder cases, he said. Hart asked Bradley and Stoker to file briefs on the issues - Bradley by Friday, Stoker by the following Wednesday.

Bradley could then respond, a few days later. Hart said he would try to have a decision soon after the last brief is filed. Stoker also said the jury should not have been instructed to consider aiding and abetting first-degree murder, a charge Butcher has never faced. Gregory Hahn is The Times-News' Mini-Cassia bureau chief and can be reached at 677-4042.

FAMILY LIFE

Public has low tolerance level for Public Displays of Affection

The Gazette

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Exhibit A: Rush hour. Man and woman leaning against a bus-stop bench in an ardent embrace. Open-mouthed kisses. Roving hands. Intertwined torsos. Gawking motorists.

Exhibit B: Lunchtime. In a ditch beside the railroad tracks. Teen-age boy and girl, lying in the weeds in full view of passing cars. Neck nuzzling. Hugs right hand under her shirt.

Exhibit C: Afternoon. In the park. Thirtyish couple seated at a sun-soaked picnic table. She's on his lap, facing him. French kisses. More French kisses. Sloppy, audible French kisses.

Isn't love grand? Sure. Up to a point — the point where private, intimate actions become public, exhibitionistic performances.

But in the land of PDA — Public Displays of Affection — the line between demerol good taste and vulgarity is not always clearly defined. One person's expression of true love can be another's exercise in revolting. Some are shocked and offended when they see a couple making out in the park; some are unfazed. It depends on personal parameters and attitudes.

It depends on personal parameters and attitudes. It depends on what you're doing, and what they're doing. However, there do seem to be some universal truths regarding PDAs. Scenes like the three described above likely would elicit a common reaction from casual observers. They might be too polite to say it, but they'd at least think it.

"GET A ROOM!" Why the outrage? Because most of us simply don't like it when unwritten rules of civility are broken, especially when it happens right in front of our disbelieving eyes.

"You can tell the difference between a love kiss and a kiss where the next thing, they're gonna be lying on the grass," says Carroll Hightower, who occasionally sees PDAs during her strolls around Prospect Lake in Colorado Springs, Colo. "When I see them doing that, I feel like kicking 'em to the curb. Go home. Find a bed. I don't want to see it."

Most seem to agree with Hightower. Based on interviews with about two-dozen parkgoers, the unofficial PDA-tolerance guidelines look like this:

Holding hands? No problem. Walking arm in arm? That's cool. Hugging? OK, depending on amount and duration of body contact.

Kissing? Fine, if it's quick and tidy. But no tongues, please. Petting or fondling? Nope. Illegal use of hands is a major no-no. For a lot of people, this is where innocent, love-dovey stuff turns into serious, sexually oriented behavior.

Foreplay and beyond? Absolutely not. And expect to get a ticket for indecent exposure if you're, uh, caught with your pants down.

Of course, parks aren't the only places you're liable to stumble upon people grommed onto each other like a couple of amorous sucker fish. It's not unusual to see spontaneous romance in all sorts of places, from cars and bars to schools and restaurants. The use of alcohol — or other inhibitions-reducing substances — makes PDA sightings more likely, especially at gatherings like parties, concerts and 80-proof picnics.

And when it comes to altruistic, distance matters. "One factor in how people feel is whether they can avoid being involved. For example, if it's going on in the park, but it's at a distance where people can ignore it, more or less, they're going to be less judgmental," says Stanley Jones, a communications professor at the University of Colorado and an expert in the field of touching.

It's probably a good thing that the arrival of the "V-chip" is still several years away. Parents will have some time to figure out what it is and whether it will do anything in their battle against the tsunami of popular culture.

Advocates predict the technology will revolutionize American families' relationships with their TVs. But who knows?

Most of us, however, already know from our own experience as children the lure of forbidden fruit. Studies also have found that the greater the restrictions on a program, the more kids want to see it.

In a recent study of 374 children, researchers at the University of Wisconsin found that older children (13 to 15) wanted to see shows significantly more when they were rated PG-13 and R, and significantly less when the same show was rated G.

Another survey found that 10 boys 10 to 14 said they wanted to watch a Grated movie, but 53 percent would want to watch it if the same movie were rated R.

The new TV ratings still will be based on age, similar to the movie ratings, but will merge with content ratings: V for violence, FV for fantasy violence, S for sex, L for language. Parents don't need researchers to tell them the more letters a given show collects, the more attractive it will suddenly seem, at least for older children.

One trick is installed by manufacturers in new sets, the V-chip would supposedly put an end to all that winning and negotiating around the TV. One program programmed by parents, the chip would simply blank out whatever shows the parents think are too adult for their kids.

What then? What if you don't agree about what constitutes violence or vulgar language? What about context as in the famous "Schindler's List" example? Some technical programming will become even more adult-oriented, and parents will be forced to shoulder an escalating responsibility to shield their children from lewd language. What will happen when parents go to watch their own favorite shows and the screen is blank?

Amid the ongoing mysteries, one entrepreneur is proposing an even more sophisticated technical solution: a so-called PG-chip that would allow in-show editing of specific words or actions.

Members of the National Association for Family and Community Education saw a preview at their recent conference in Las Vegas and were impressed.

"Like we consider the TV Guide as a form of filtering, this technology would simply refine that filtering in order for people to make choices," said Harriet Steenson, the group's vice president for public policy. She said the group would try to make leaders aware of the PG-chip as the Federal Communications Commission considers standards for manufacture of the V-chip.

Human touch helps heal elderly

DEAR ABBY: Alvarado

DEAR ABBY: I just read your answer to the director of a nursing home in Oklahoma who wrote about a woman whose mother had died in a nursing home. Rather than place flowers on her mother's grave, the daughter took them to a nearby nursing home and left them with a friendly note for a resident who had never had a visitor.

That certainly struck home with me. I've seen the same act of kindness many times, and can't tell you how much these small gestures mean to lonely elders who have outlived family and friends. The average age of nursing home residents is 85. It affirms their worthiness and restores an important connection to the larger community.

But I would also like to plead, in this case, that the woman actually meet the resident and give her the flowers in person. She needn't say much — just a quick hello, a brief introduction, a warm handshake would do. Human touch is healing. It's encouraging. It's life-affirming.

I don't mean to belittle her anonymous act. That's a wonderful step, and if that's all she's able to do she has done more than most people would. I would just encourage her to take the next step. It would make all the difference in the world to that nursing home resident, who would be forever grateful.

—BRENT H. NETTLE, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, SAN FRANCISCO MINISTRY TO NURSING HOMES

DEAR MR. NETTLE: Thank you for your sweet letter. I, too,

DEAR ABBY: "Anonymous" in Oklahoma was very generous, under no circumstances, disclose the names of its residents.

This reader obviously had her heart in the right place. However, in light of the often dishonest world we live in, where most scams target the elderly, it's much safer to suggest that readers send flowers to the nursing home and ask that they be delivered at the facility's discretion to a resident in need.

I have family members in nursing homes across the country and am unable to visit them as often as I would like, although they are always in my thoughts and prayers. I would be horrified to discover that a nursing home staff member had given the name of one of my relatives to a stranger.

While we should all perpetuate random acts of kindness, it is also important for caregivers and care facilities to respect and protect the privacy of their patients.

—CAREGIVER IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Anonymous in Oklahoma," who suggested that readers send flowers or gifts to those at nursing facilities rather than leaving flowers at a grave:

While this gesture would surely be appreciated, I would question the judgment of any nursing facility that would reveal the name of a patient, especially a patient without family, to the press. While I believe that the woman who con-

IN BRIEF

Blue Lakes CC picked for senior am qualifier

TWIN FALLS - Blue Lakes Country Club has been selected by the U.S. Golf Association as the sectional qualifying site for the 1997 U.S. Senior Amateur Golf Championship.

The 18-hole qualifying date is Aug. 27. Entries must arrive by Aug. 13 at the USGA headquarters. Entry forms are available by calling Bob Saxvik at 338-5167 or the Idaho Golf Association at 342-4442.

The event is open to amateurs 55 or older before Sept. 20, 1997, with USGA handicap indexes of 8.4 or less. The top qualifiers will advance to the national Senior Championship at Atlantic Club Club, Bridgeton, N.Y., on Sept. 20, 26.

State senior golf title will be decided in Burley

BURLEY - The Idaho senior golf championship tournament will be Saturday and Sunday at the Burley Golf Course.

The event, hosted by the Idaho Senior Golf Association and the Idaho Golf Association, fills up every year, so interested players need to sign up soon.

Entries are being accepted at the golf course. The $50 entry fee includes a banquet on Saturday night. Carts are extra.

Orofino edges Boise for a Legion title Monday

OROFINO - The home team caught a break and beat the Boise Barons, 2-1, Monday for in the championship game of the Idaho American Legion A-district baseball tournament.

The game was tied 1-1 in the sixth when an Orofino runner dove over the Boise catcher at home plate. The runner was initially ruled out although he was not tagged, but the umpires, after consulting the rule book, allowed the run to stand, and the Barons went on to win the title.

Orofino beat Burley earlier in the tournament, and the Bobcats took third.

Idaho high school athletic realignment could happen Wednesday

By Michael Crump
Times-News correspondent

BOISE - The final step toward a major realignment of the state's high school athletics divisions could take place Wednesday during a special meeting of the Idaho High School Activities Association.

The association, which oversees most major high school sports in the state, will discuss and possibly approve a plan to reorganize the state's four activities divisions into five.

A representative from each of the state's 137 high schools will have a chance to debate the proposal and vote on it.

The five-district plan was developed by several high schools currently in division A-1, which comprises schools with enrollment of 800 or more students, who wanted a division for themselves, according to Bill Young, the association's Executive Director.

Under the proposed plan, these schools would no longer be grouped with the state's largest schools, such as Twin Falls, Centennial and Pocatello. They would move into the 4A division, which would include schools with enrollments of 600 to 1,199 students. Schools with 1,200 or more students would be classified in the 5A division.

The current four-division system includes a modification for football in which the smaller Class A-1 schools play in A-1, Division II.

The new system would alter some traditional Magic Valley rivalries, most notably the impending cross-river

McDowell thunders into Boise for nationals

The Times-News

BOISE - For the first time ever, an Idaho racer will be the favorite to win the state's largest auto racing event - the Nightfire Nationals, which begin their four-day run Thursday.

Jerome drag racer Mitch McDowell already holds the track record at Firebird Raceway, having blistered the quarter-mile in 5.56 seconds at the Thunderfest race in June.

That 263.31-mph clocking is one of the reasons McDowell and his 1997 Dodge Avenger have made an impact on the drag racing scene during their first year in the Nitro Funny Car division.

As Idaho's first and only AA/Nitro Funny Car driver, McDowell won the season-opening Ignitor at Firebird, but will be challenged by many-time Nightfire champ Keith Jackson from Lakewood, Colo.

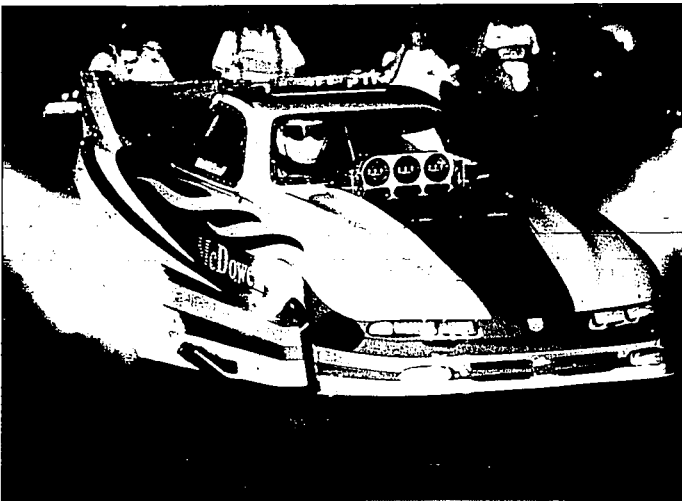

Jackson previously held the Firebird track record at 5.68 seconds until McDowell blasted that number in June. McDowell qualified for his first national points stop two weeks ago at the Allie-High Nationals in Colorado, and beat veteran Gary Densham with a 5.44-second trip in the first round.

He capped an impressive weekend in Seattle with a near-victory over six-time national champion John Force.

Bowling rolls out new image

The Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. - If a mention of bowling conjures up an image of a smoky room filled with paunchy guys in untucked shirts with team names sewn onto the backs, chances are you haven't bowled lately.

New alloys have plow-in-the-dark balls and pins for late-night bowling. Kid-friendly bumpers that keep balls out of the gutters and monitors that play funky messages when bowlers roll a strike.

Even the lexicon has changed: The industry prefers bowling centers instead of bowling alleys.

One of the biggest forces behind the new image is Richmond-based AMF Bowling Worldwide - also the biggest player in the industry with 322 bowling centers in the United States and 87 in 10 other countries.

The company, which still has only about 5 percent of the roughly 6,800 centers in the United States, is aggressively expanding by buying up smaller chains. It also has big plans for international growth to countries where bowling isn't nearly as popular as in the United States.

AMF also is the world's largest supplier of bowling equipment - everything from bowling balls to machines that pick up the pins after they have been toppled.

Smoltz out-duels Cooke in Braves win

The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH - The talk around the National League is John Smoltz isn't the pitcher he was last season. The Pittsburgh Pirates agree - to them, he's even better.

Former College of Southern Idaho star Steve Cooke got a close-up look, dueling Smoltz on the mound for Pittsburgh. Cooke (8-11) limited Atlanta to a first-inning run and three hits and falling apart in the sixth and taking the 6-0 loss Monday night.

More baseball - C3

Smoltz (10-9), the 1995 NL Cy Young Award winner, has limited the Pirates to nine hits and two runs over 16 innings while beating them twice this season. He is 5-1 against them since last season but only 9-9 lifetime, not counting his 4-0 record in the 1991 and 1992 playoffs.

"I've had to answer a lot of tough questions about why I'm not 20-2, but I really think I've done a better job of year of maintaining a good feeling and just taking each game as it comes," Smoltz said. "I'm satisfied with where I am and where the team is. If I'm the guy who has to lose tough games and we win the division, so what?"

Smoltz's 11th career shutout came at an opportune time for the Braves, whose NL East lead over Florida slipped to 5 1/2 games as they lost three of four to the Marlins over the weekend.

"This was a big game for me and the team because the bullpen needed a rest," Smoltz said. "I was able to finish what I started. If by mechanics are sound, I can go nine every time."

Smoltz, who struck out nine, has lasted at least seven innings in 18 of his last 20 starts. He did not allow a runner past second until Joe Randa walked to start the seventh inning and moved to third on a double play.

"Remember last year when he lost his first two and then won 14 in a row? This is the Smoltz I remember from last year," Braves catcher Javy Lopez said. "He's much more confident and he's sharper with every pitch."

76ers not happy following Iverson's arrest

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The law says Allen Iverson is innocent until proven guilty. The Philadelphia 76ers, however, didn't sound so sure. One day after the NBA's rookie of the year was arrested in Virginia on marijuana and gun possession charges, 76ers owner Pat Croce, coach Larry Brown and vice president of basketball operations Billy King made their disappointment clear. "It upsets me. It bothers me," said Croce, joined by the other two in a telephone conference call Monday. Brown, who has yet to speak with Iverson since being hired in April, said the arrest is "not something any of us can be proud of." The 22-year-old Iverson was a passenger in a car that was stopped at 1:27 a.m. EDT Sunday for speeding on Interstate 64 near Richmond, state police spokesman woman Mary Evans said. The car was going 93 mph in a 65 mph zone. "When the trooper stopped the car," he smelled marijuana, and that's why he asked them to get out," she said. The trooper found a .45-caliber pistol on the floor mat in front of Iverson's seat during a search. Iverson told the trooper it was his gun, Evans said. Iverson was charged with possession of marijuana and possession of firearms with a controlled substance.

Johnson reaches 400 final

ATHENS, Greece (AP) - Cathy Freeman made history and Michael Johnson made amends. Freeman, a 24-year-old Australian, became the first Aboriginal to win a world Olympic title, taking the women's 400 meters at the world championships on Monday night. "Tonight, I will be a proud mother and I will be a proud mother," Freeman said after her dramatic around Olympic Stadium with both the Australian and Aboriginal flags. "It gives me a special feeling. Being the first is always special."

Freeman has been campaigning throughout the world for Aboriginal rights, so her victory took on great political significance. "It was very important because it shows I can deal with the pressure... the pressure put on me by outsiders," Freeman said. It makes little children feel they have a chance when they see me, feel me, touch me. I take my role seriously as a role model." Johnson, taking his role seriously as the world's best 400-meter runner after a mistake Sunday that almost cost him a place in the semifinals, reassured his authority by winning his heat and advancing to Tuesday night's final. "Yesterday, I was very disappointed in myself," the world and Olympic gold medalist said, after finishing his three other American teammates who reached the final, along with three Britons. Freeman was not the only athlete to make history Monday night. Llewellyn Herbert became the first South African to win a medal in the world championships, earning the silver in the men's 400-meter hurdles.

Continued from C1 match-up between Jerome and Twin Falls. Although currently in Class A-2, Jerome is scheduled to move into the larger division next year. Twin Falls and Jerome would no longer be in the same division, "said Jerome Athletic Director Skip Andrew. "Games with Twin Falls have always been good for us financially and don't pose travel problems. If the plan passes, we'll probably still try to schedule games with them." Andrew added that the plan would benefit Jerome as well. "We can't always compete in every sport with the schools as large as Centennial or some of the other large Boise-area schools," Andrew said. "The new plan allows us to play against schools we have a fair chance to compete against. We'll probably vote yes on Wednesday." The person who will determine when Twin Falls will vote, superintendent Terrell Demich, was out of town and could not be reached for comment. Some of the area's smaller schools have unfavorable outlooks on the new proposal, but "We are excited to the plan because it's a potential problem for us," said Valley superintendent Arlyn Boddy. "The system breaks up our long-standing rivalries in the Canyon conference. We also are looking at longer travel times for games." The new divisions will put the Eden-Hazelton school and Glens Ferry as the only members of the seven-team Canyon Conference in Class 4A, while the others go to 3A. "It's a selfish thing, really. It will affect the attendance at both home and away games, which is a financial issue for not only Valley, but our competitors. We would likely have to schedule games during the school week and many of our athletes would miss school because of the commute," Boddy added. Glens Ferry superintendent Will Spalding expressed similar sentiments. "It is time for realignment in Idaho, but the proposal still has had for smaller districts like Glens Ferry and Valley. Still, I'm going to look into more details and reserve judgment until the meeting," Spalding said. The meeting will be held at the Doubletree Inn Riverside, 2900 Children Blvd. in Boise from 1:2 p.m. each member school will send a delegate to the meeting. Members will be able to debate, adopt, repeal, or amend any issue concerning the realignment. If the realignment comes to a vote, it can be approved by a simple majority vote. "I think there's a 50-50 chance that the plan will pass," Young said. If the realignment passes, the new classification system would be in effect in the fall of 1998. "Regardless of the way the vote goes, we have the interests of the students of Idaho schools in mind and will do what's best for them," Young said.

McDowell

Continued from C1 McDowell set a personal best 285-mph (5:31 seconds) run over the weekend, and led Force off the starting line. McDowell's ride took about 300 feet into the race, however. McDowell's ride took a new track record. The 26th annual Nightfire Nationals, complete with $100,000 prize purse, will be McDowell's final Idaho appearance of the season. More than 800 entrants are expected from 15 states at the Canadian province for the northwest's second largest NHRA drag racing weekend. Among those will be Twin Falls' Mark Kidd in the sportsman class. Racers will

Radke wins 12th straight for Twins

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Brad Radke pitched seven strong innings to tie a team record with his 12th straight victory as Minnesota, behind a pinch-hit grand slam by Greg Colburn, beat Boston 3-2.

Radke tied the Twins record set by Scott Erickson in 1991 and also became only the third pitcher since 1950 to win 12 consecutive starts. Bob Gibson of St. Louis did it in 1968 and Pat Dobson did it with Baltimore in 1971.

Radke's winning streak is the longest in the majors this season, surpassing Roger Clemens' 110 starts. The AL record for consecutive wins is 16, held by four players. Schoolboy Rowe was the last to do it in 1934.

The major league record is 19, set by Tom Keefe in 1883 and matched by Rube Marquard in 1912.

Radke (16-5), a 24-year-old right-hander, entered this season with a career major-league record of 22-30.

Colburn's second career grand slam, his first in the AL, came off reliever Omar Daal in Minnesota's sixth-inning grand slam. Chris Carpenter (0-4) walked in the first two runs that inning.

Red Sox 11, Rangers 5

ARLINGTON, Texas — Troy O'Leary's three-run triple in the eighth inning led Boston over Texas.

With Boston trailing 5-4, John Valentin led off the eighth with a single off Matt Whiteside and Mike Stanley drew a walk off Danny Patterson (7-5). Will Cordero's infield single loaded the bases and O'Leary's drive to left hit off the scoreboard to clear the bases.

Burch Henry (5-2) pitched 2 1/3 innings of one-hit relief with three strikeouts to pick up the victory.

Nomar Garciaparra went 3-for-5 with his 12th homer and an RBI single for his league-leading 47th multi-hit game. Valentin also went 3-for-5.

Yankees 5, Royals 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — David Wells pitched two outs of getting his third shutout in four starts, Charlie Hayes hit two home runs and the New York Yankees held on to beat the Kansas City Royals 5-4 Monday night.

The victory was the fifth in six games for the Yankees (64-45), who moved a season-high 19 games over .500 and within 5 1/2 games behind idle Baltimore in the AL East.

Wells (12-5) took a three-hitter into the ninth but was relieved by Jeff Nelson with one out after allowing a pair of singles and striking a throwing error that allowed Kansas City to score its first run.

An RBI groundout made it 4-2 and Mike Sweeney hit a two-out, two-run homer before Marjano Rivera got the final out for his AL-leading 33rd save.

Joe Girardi's run-scoring double in the eighth gave New York what turned out to be the winning run.

Indians 7, Tigers 2

DETROIT — Manny Ramirez homered and drove in four runs, Jim Thome hit his 30th homer and Charles Nagy continued his domination of Detroit.

Nagy (11-7) improved to 12-4 lifetime against the Tigers, his most wins against any club. Nagy, who is 2-1 against the Tigers this season and was 3-0 last year, set up two runs on seven hits and two walks with seven strikeouts.

Ramirez had a two-run homer in the third, an RBI single in the ninth and a sacrifice fly in the first.

Thome's homer came in the seventh and made him the first Cleveland left-handed hitter to hit 30 homers in successive seasons since Hal Trosky in 1936-37.

Scott Sanders (3-9), making his fourth start since being traded to Detroit from Seattle, was the loser, 2-3 innings. He has lost all three of his decisions in a Tigers uniform.

Brewers 5, Angels 2

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Jose Valentin, Dave Nilsson and Jeremy Burnitz all homered in the fourth inning as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Anaheim Angels 5-2 Monday night for their 10th victory in 12 games.

Scott Karl (7-10) won for the fifth time in five starts since the All-Star break. The left-hander was charged with two runs, one earned, and five hits in six-plus innings. He struck out six and did not walk a batter for the second consecutive start.

The loss was only the seventh in 28 games for the Angels, who slipped back into a tie for first place in the AL West with the idle Seattle Mariners.

Marlins douse Astros

MIAMI (AP) — Rookie Livan Hernandez won his sixth straight game with 7 1/3 strong innings and Bobby Bonilla drove in three runs with a homer and single as the Florida Marlins beat the Houston Astros 4-1 on Monday night.

The Marlins, who ended the Astros' seven-game road winning streak, beat Houston for the 14th time in their last 16 meetings at Pro Player Stadium.

Hernandez (6-0) became the first pitcher in the Marlins' five-year history to win his first six decisions. He allowed four hits and struck out four before Jay Powell went the final 1 2/3 innings for his second save.

With the Marlins ahead 2-1 in the sixth, Bonilla hit a two-out, two-run homer — his 12th of the season — over the right-field wall. Earl Flair, Bonilla singled home a run in the fourth inning.

Astros rookie Chris Holt (7-8) was the loser.

Giants 9, Reds 1

CINCINNATI — JT Snow drove in a career-high five runs with a pair of homers, powering San Francisco over Cincinnati.

The Giants moved 13 games ahead of the idle Los Angeles in the NL West, their biggest margin in eight years. San Francisco's been in first place since May 11, leading by as many as six games as recently as July 6.

San Francisco took three of four in their first series since trading with the Chicago White Sox for pitchers Danny Darwin, Wilson Alvarez and Roberto Hernandez. Alvarez and Hernandez got two of the three wins against Cincinnati, which has lost 12 of its last 16 games.

Kirk Rueter (8-5) allowed one run on seven hits over seven innings to improve to 4-0 in six career starts against the Reds. The left-hander has a 1.87 career ERA against Cincinnati.

Giovanni Carrara (3-1) was the loser.

Phillies 7, Rockies 3

PHILADELPHIA — Ticker Green pitched seven solid innings for his second straight win and Scott Rolen hit a two-run homer as Philadelphia won for the sixth time in its last seven games.

Green (2-1) moved all of last season with a shoulder injury and returned to the Phillies on July 11 after completing his rehab at Temple. A Scranton-Wilkes-Barre Green allowed three hits in seven innings, including Vance Cash's three-run homer, while striking out seven and walking four.

Rolen homered with two outs in the fifth off Frank Castillo (8-10), giving the Phillies a 4-3 lead. Rolen, who also doubled and scored in the second, has an 11 game hitting streak.

Mets 4, Cardinals 2

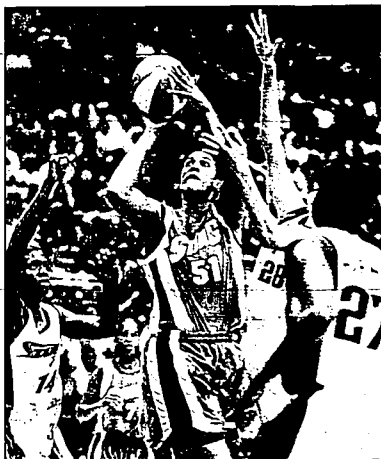

NEW YORK — Lance Johnson hit a pair of RBIs and Rick Reed won his fourth straight start, leading the Mets over St. Louis.

A steady rain began in the third inning and there was a delay of 1 hour, 27 minutes as the storm of the sixth. Even when the game resumed, it was played in a drizzle. Johnson went 5-0 and Reed doubled and scored as the Mets opened an eight game homestand. Mark McGwire was hitless in four at-bats, dropping his total to 11 since joining St. Louis, as the Cardinals lost for the sixth time in eight games.

Exhibition Dodgers 16, Padres 8

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. — Eric Anthony had three home runs and six RBIs to lead a 16-run attack as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the San Diego Padres 16-8 Monday in the Hall of Fame exhibition game.

Billy Ashley added two homers for a key 16th inning and had a game combined for nine homers and 31 RBIs. Minor leaguer Omar Mesa hit for the win in relief for the Dodgers.

Rhonda Mapp (51) of the Charlotte Sting buds some space in a sea of Utah Starzz. Wendy Parker (14), LeLuna Hardmon (27), and Elena Baranova (25), on her way to the basket Monday in Salt Lake City.

Starzz win 2nd straight

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Elena Baranova and Tammy Reiss each scored 17 points to lead the Utah Starzz to a 73-70 WNBA victory over the Charlotte Sting Monday night.

It was the first time the Starzz have won back-to-back victories. They defeated Houston 74-63 Saturday.

Andrea Stinson led the Sting with 15 points and Vicky Bullett carried Dolphin punts. She dropped out six and did not walk a batter for the second consecutive start.

The Starzz led 42-34 at half-time following a 19-6 run in 5-42.

Krajicek wins opening-round match

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Richard Krajicek of the Netherlands, a three-time winner this year, beat Cedric Pilaine of France 6-3, 6-4 Monday night in the opening round of the $2.3 million ATP Championship.

Although the field was covered for 10 days, the turf didn't hold up well. Wide receivers and running backs repeatedly slipped.

Manino dropped back to pass in the first quarter and fell, ending up almost side-by-side with Broncos defensive end Neil Smith, who also lost his footing closing in for a sack.

During timeouts, workers ran out to pick up divots and helped players scrape mud off their shoes.

Utah had double-digit leads five times in the second half before Charlotte whittled a 69-55 margin with 5:15 left for 7:30 with 40.8 seconds remaining on Penny Moore's layup.

Kim Williams scored for Utah with 12.8 seconds left and made a key 16-foot shot with 3.9 seconds remaining. She lost the ball out of bounds, but the Sting were unable to score again.

Five seeded players had matches Monday, and four advanced as No. 20 Marcelo Rios of Chile beat Jonas Bjornkorp of Sweden 6-3, 7-5, and No. 13 Petr Korda of the Czech Republic beat Michael Tilmann of Sweden 7-6 (7-4), 6-1.

The lone seed to lose was No. 15 Tim Henman of Britain, who was beaten 6-3, 6-3 by Andre Medvedev of Ukraine.

Elway injured as Broncos slip south of the border

MEXICO CITY (AP) — No matter how bad the field, or at times the football, Mexican fans love the NFL.

A crowd of 104,209, the third-largest in league history, turned out at this city's massive soccer stadium Monday night to cheer on the Miami Dolphins, second favorite in Mexico only to the Dallas Cowboys, and even one of their own.

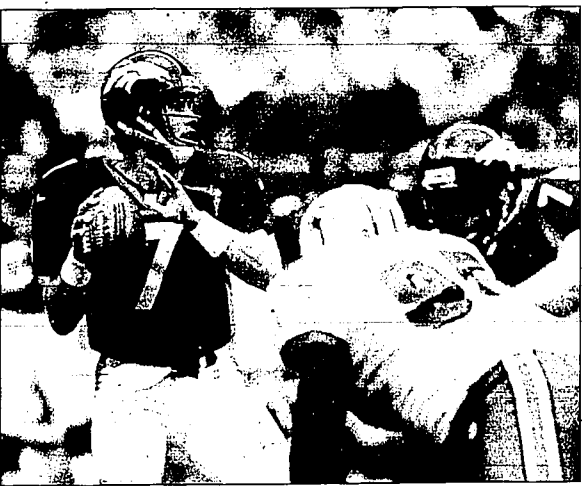

Players slipped on the field all night and John Elway and Zach Thomas were knocked out of the exhibition game early with injuries. It hardly mattered to the singing, shouting crowd on a damp and unseasonably hot night as the Dolphins beat the Denver Broncos 38-19.

The fans chanted "Go Dolphins" when their beloved Dolphins did well, and flashbulbs popped even for PATs. The Broncos had their share of supporters, but were booed all night, even when lining up for field goals. The crowd unleashed its loudest hoots and whistles when a Bronco took a punt in the end zone on the kickoff following the final touchdown.

The place went nuts when Dolphins rookie Brian Manning caught a pass from Craig Erickson and ran for a 66-yard touchdown early in the fourth quarter. Manning placed the crowd in the second quarter when he extended an 18-yard pass from Dan Marino. Brandon Bennett's 31-yard run with 3:13 left gave the Dolphins (1-1) a 31-19 lead and linebacker Anthony Harris returned an interception 53 yards for a touchdown with 1:33 left.

Elway helped sway the crowd a little toward the Broncos' side with some nice passes to Ed McCaffrey, but he left with a partially torn knee in his throwing arm. He said he'll have an MRI on Tuesday, "and it could be really good or it could be really bad."

The Dolphins, already hit hard by injuries, lost Thomas when he broke his left fibula on a kickoff return in the first quarter. Thomas said he hopes to be back by the season opener Aug. 31 against Indianapolis.

Denver Broncos quarterback John Elway (7) looks injured for a receiver in the first quarter of the American Bowl against the Miami Dolphins Monday in Mexico City. Elway injured his arm later in the game.

The one favorite on the Broncos (1-1) was Mexico City native Marco Martos, who was in the ninth day of a 10-day contract with the Broncos. A star in the World League, Martos drew a huge ovation when he lined up to receive his second-half kickoff.

Flash bulbs blazed when he returned it 26 yards and the crowd went wild when he caught a pass in the final minute. Martos is the first born, bred and schooled Mexican national non-kicker to play in the NFL. He drew bigger media exposure here this week than Elway and Marino combined, but is probably destined for another year in the World League.

It wasn't all bad for Denver. Fans cheered a 9-yard touchdown pass from backup quarterback Jeff Lewis to fullback Dewayne Potson and a 2-yard boutlet run for a score by Bubby Brister. Denver took a 6-0 lead on two field goals by Jason Elam before Marino led the Dolphins to Manning's TD on his third and final series.

Estadio Guillermo Candeo (formerly Azteca Stadium), was the site of the largest crowd to watch an NFL game, 112,376 in 1994, as Houston beat the beloved Cowboys 6-0 on a field turned to mud by torrential rain.

Miami was a clear winner Monday night in the apparel department, as thousands of fans wore Dolphins caps, jackets and Marino No. 13 jerseys.

"The first team in the Mexican tradition is Dallas, and second is Miami," said Alfredo Rodriguez, 32, who attended with his three brothers, all wearing Dolphins jerseys. The reason, he said, is charisma and exposure.

Even the younger generation knows the score.

"First there is Dallas, and then there is Miami," said 13-year-old Renato Velazco Soriano, who attended with his mother and younger brother. Each of the boys wore Dolphins clothing and carried Dolphin punts.

Although the field was covered for 10 days, the turf didn't hold up well. Wide receivers and running backs repeatedly slipped.

Manino dropped back to pass in the first quarter and fell, ending up almost side-by-side with Broncos defensive end Neil Smith, who also lost his footing closing in for a sack.

During timeouts, workers ran out to pick up divots and helped players scrape mud off their shoes.

Smith still angry after 1st practice with Bills

FREDONIA, N.Y. (AP) — Defensive end Bruce Smith had his first workout of the preseason with the Buffalo Bills on Monday, then left the field on a stretcher after about his contract.

The Defensive Player of the Year last season, Smith held out for three weeks before reporting to the team, before the over-time exhibition loss to Chicago on Saturday night. He was fined $105,000, $5,000 for each day missed.

"It's very difficult," Smith said. "So far as the contract situation is concerned, I'm not going to talk about it anymore. There's nothing else that can be said. I've talked out."

Smith, 34, has been complaining about a contract reworked in 1995 that calls for him to be paid $2.2 million this season. He wants to play out the final year in hopes of becoming a free agent.

"There's nothing more than can be said. I've been over this question 1,000 times," Smith said. "I played under a tremendous amount of stress last year, and look where it's gotten me — basically, nowhere."

Smith said he was bothered so much about the contract that he had problems sleeping. He was, the 19th-highest paid defensive player last season.

The deal apparently didn't have an adverse effect on the field. He had 13 1/2 sacks, 54 quarterback pressures and 120 tackles in being named the NFL's top player for the second time in his 12-year career.

In May, he turned down the Bills' five-year, $22 million offer that included a $5 million signing bonus and would have made him the highest-paid player in team history. Buffalo said the offer was final.

"I've been underpaid for a number of years," he said. "I'm respected by other coaches and other teams as being the best defensive player in the National Football League. Doesn't the money and the respect go hand-in-hand? It should."

Smith joined the Bills less than a week after he was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol near his home in Virginia Beach, Va. He would not comment about the incident in which police said he fell asleep at a red light with the engine running in his 1996 Mercedes.

Leigh Steinberg, Smith's agent, said negotiations with the Bills could resume during the season. He would not discuss details of his meetings with Bills general manager John Butler.

"At this point, Bruce is there to play football," Steinberg said. "At some point, we'll revisit the situation. He wants to finish his career in Buffalo. It's time to let the good relationship Bruce had with the team and the city of Buffalo resume."

Detmer battles for Eagles' starting spot

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles don't have a quarterback controversy. They have a quarterback dilemma, and coach Ray Rhodes has precious little time to solve it.

Monday night's second exhibition game against the Pittsburgh Steelers will be Rodney Peete's turn to start.

"It's an open competition," Rhodes said Monday as his team returned to training camp two days after a two-touchdown loss to the New York Jets.

"There's good competition at the position, we said that all along." It's just that nobody listened.

"You guys kept saying it was Thy (Detmer's) job to lose," Rhodes said. "I've said it's a competition."

That competition got a little more intense after the 31-17 loss at East Rutherford, N.J.

Detmer started the opener and struggled just like he did the last five games of last season, which included the Eagles' 14-0 playoff loss to San Francisco, Philadelphia's first-ever playoff shutout.

"It's not as sharp," Rhodes said. "He didn't play as well as we expected."

For the fourth time in his last five games, Detmer had a pass intercepted and returned for a touch-down when Aaron Glenn went 97 yards. Over that span Peete has thrown three touchdown passes and nine interceptions.

What's made it worse for Detmer is the fact that Peete played decently in relief Saturday in his first action since a season-ending knee injury the fifth week of last season.

"Rodney did a nice job," Rhodes said of Peete's 6-of-11, 69-yard performance. "He had a couple of balls dropped on him. But he played well. He's going to start against Pittsburgh and we'll see what happens. The best guy will emerge."

Second-year man Bobby Hoving, who could make it a three-way battle, was the Eagles' star Saturday night. He was 11-of-14 for 105 yards and both of the team's touchdowns, while rushing for 40 yards on eight carries.

"Bobby played extremely well," Rhodes said. "He got us two touchdowns. He showed good camrapture on the field. He ran well when he had to run. He made good decisions."

Stewart ends controversy

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — Kordell Stewart has kept coach Bill Cowher's promise: There is no Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback controversy.

Roundup

Unlike last year's three-ring circus among Stewart, Mike Tomczak and Jim Miller that divided players' loyalties and disrupted the camp's continuity from start to finish, Stewart arrived as the sea-in-stone starter. Three weeks later, he has the look of a star.

To paraphrase the line popularized in Pittsburgh by former starting QB Bobby Brister: Kordell Stewart is the man. Write it down.

"I think every day you kind of see him maturing into the role of a leader," Cowher said. "To this point, he's put everything into perspective. He hasn't changed his Personality. He's been genuine and he's handled everything that's been thrown at him."

His receivers handled virtually everything he threw at them in exhibition victories over the Bears and Chiefs. While quarterbacks' numbers can be misleading in the preseason, as receivers and defenders rotate with frequency and defenses aren't as complete, there is no mistakinging Stewart's stats: 15-of-21, 239 yards, two touchdowns passing, one running and four scores in as many drives.

Jets

New York quarterback Neil O'Donnell had good stats in Saturday night's victory over Philadelphia, completing 10 of 13 attempts for 112 yards, including a 29-yard touchdown pass to Keyshawn Johnson.

Pittsburgh quarterback Kordell Stewart passes against the Kansas City Chiefs in Kansas City; Mo. Stewart has been playing well, thus avoiding a quarterback controversy on the team.

But those statistics hid the fact that O'Donnell looked like a quarterback who had played in just six regular-season games last season. O'Donnell, at times looked indecisive and hesitant.

"There were a few times where I thought I could have got rid of the ball instead of holding it a little more," O'Donnell said.

Coach Bill Parcells wants to get O'Donnell much more work than he received last preseason when then-coach Rich Kotite sat him out for the exhibition finale at Oakland.

Cowboys coach arrested

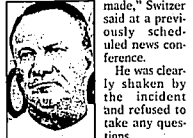

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — So much for the Dallas Cowboys climbing up their off-the-field image. The problem this time, however, wasn't with a player.

Coach Barry Switzer was arrested Monday after a loaded revolver was discovered in his carry-on baggage at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Switzer was detained, his 38-caliber weapon was confiscated, and he was released about two hours later on his own recognizance, said airport spokeswoman Angel Bisatti.

Switzer, after returning to Austin to join the team at training camp, said he had inadvertently left the gun in his travel bag after putting it there with the intention of hiding it from three young children who were guests at his home over the weekend.

"I am embarrassed for (Dallas owner) Jerry Jones and the Cowboys organization for an innocent, honest mistake that I

Barry Switzer, Switzer said at a previously scheduled news conference. He was clearly shaken by the incident and refused to take any questions.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Imagination grows by exercise and contrary to common belief is more powerful in the mature than in the young.

West leads the spade seven. East plays the 10, and South ducks. When East continues the suit, what happens if South takes his ace? South cannot untangle the club suit against the best defense.

West leads the spade seven. East plays the 10, and South ducks. When East continues the suit, what happens if South takes his ace? South cannot untangle the club suit against the best defense.

How to solve South's dilemma? The first step is to recognize that East's opening bid virtually marks him with the club queen. Therefore, routine play of the club suit cannot work. What plan will?

North: A 10 9 8, K A Q, K 10. South: A 3 6 3, K Q J, A 9 8 4.

West: 7 4 3, 10 8 6 5 3, 5 4. East: K Q J, K Q 5, K 10 9, Q 7 2.

Vulnerable: North-South. The bidding: East South West North.

Opening lead Spade seven. South holds: K Q J 10 2, K Q 3, Q 7 2.

ANSWER: The no-trump. Although the spades are solid, there is still reason to rebid the five-card suit. Better to rebid two no-trump to describe a semibalanced hand and stoppers in the unbid suits.

Vern Smith patiently waits while a Red Cross worker finds a vein in his arm to draw blood from Monday. Smith's vein has been a rich one over the years, having donated 25 gallons of blood.

25 gallons can save a lot of lives

TWIN FALLS - Vernon E. Smith of Twin Falls has set a Red Cross blood donor record in Idaho. The retired mail carrier was presented a 25-gallon plaque Monday at the Twin Falls blood drawing at the First Presbyterian Church. After giving his 200th pint of blood, Smith, 75, said it would be his last donation. Twenty-five gallons is a record, and Smith feels he has donated enough, but he will continue to help at the drawings. "There is no age limit for donors as long as they are healthy," said Sharla Warren, blood chairman for the Sawtooth Red Cross chapter. While Smith is the first to reach the 25-gallon record, two other Twin Falls longtime donors are close behind. Harold Sampy, a Times-News employee, received his 24-gallon pin, and Shirley Bolster earned her 23-gallon pin on Monday. The top two local donors have enjoyed much good-natured rivalry throughout the years, and this probably encourages other people to continue donating, Warren said. Unlike many donors, Smith also works behind the scenes. He has done everything from putting up signs to making coffee and helping in the kitchen. Currently, he picks up the food the American Legion donates for refreshments for blood donors. Smith credits the late Frank Mogensen, longtime Scoutmaster at the United Methodist Church and a faithful blood donor, for getting him started on his 40-plus year donor trail. Smith started donating blood in the 1950s, but it took him until March of 1959 to earn his first-gallon pin, because it was hard to get off work while he was a city mail carrier. After transferring to a rural route in Hansen (he retired in 1977), he has given regularly. His gallon pins, all of which are affixed inside a glass frame labeled "Blood Donor Trail," have accumulated steadily, usually every 18 months to two years. For many years, blood drawings were held every two months. It was recommended that people give only five times a year, but Smith often gave every time. "All they ever asked was how long it had been since you'd given the last time," Smith said. "There had to be 56 days between donations."

Now only five drawings are held each year. During his 45 years of attending the drawings, Smith has seen many changes. Donor registration has been simplified and, instead of blood going into glass bottles, it now goes into plastic bags out of view at the side of the bed. "I used to lie there and watch my blood swirl around," Smith laughed. His steady donor record was delayed in recent years because of a hiatus in the Boise Regional Blood Services program. Four years elapsed between his 23rd and 24th gallons. Smith has served on the Sawtooth Red Cross chapter board, including several years as chairman. He currently is active in American Legion Post 7 and volunteers at the Buzz Langdon Tourist Center at the Perrine Bridge.

Sunshine and care spread in Jerome

By Dixie Thomas Reale
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - Larae Haberman is a ray of sunshine in an otherwise ordinary neighborhood. The folks living near the corner of East Seventh and Buchanan streets in Jerome are the lucky recipients of this resident's generosity. Neighbor Mary Toupin said, "Life has dealt Haberman a full load of responsibility, with a husband and a handicapped son, age 35, who lives at home. Haberman's son, Keny, has been severely handicapped since birth and requires constant care: feeding, dressing, bathing, lifting into and out of a wheelchair and to and from the car. Haberman's great-grandchildren, who are actively involved in her life. The grandkids often stay overnight at Grandma's house. "With all of this family responsibility, Larae Haberman still manages to find the time to make cakes, pies, cookies, meat loaf, hams, a bowl of fruit, a Jell-O salad or other covered dish for a friend or neighbor who might be sick or feeling blue," Toupin said. "She always thinks of others, is always doing for others before thinking of herself." Haberman, originally from Wendell, moved to Jerome with her new husband, Ardel, shortly after their marriage in 1948. The Habermans have four children, 12 grandchildren, and 13 great-grandchildren. Haberman, herself a twin, has two sets of twin grandchildren. Haberman walks two to three miles with a couple of other women at 7:30 every morning to wake up for the day. "I have been blessed to call her neighbor for 26 years," said Toupin of Haberman. "She opens her home to out-of-town guests, both friends and relatives, for two, sometimes three, days at a time so they won't have to stay in a motel. She would be offended if an out-of-town friend or relative called a motel rather than staying at her house. She grows a large flower and vegetable garden every year, and all the neighbors get flower bouquets and produce regularly from her garden throughout the summer months. "A few years ago, when her own father was ill, she took him into her home rather than send him to a rest home for several months before he died. When her mother-in-law was in a nursing home, she would go every day and take her laundry home to do for her. She didn't have to do the laundry, but she insisted they didn't do the sheets right to suit Mom." Neighbors say Haberman looks out for everybody in the neighborhood. If they need anything at all - help, food or a friend - she is right there.

Despite the praise of her neighbors, Haberman insists she is just an ordinary person doing what anyone else would do. "I'm a firm believer that you shouldn't let your right hand know what your left hand is doing," Haberman said. Times-News correspondent Dixie Thomas Reale can be reached at 324-3670 in Jerome.

Pirates discovered at the Buhl library

Summer reading participants at the Buhl Public Library made their own eye patches to wear as part of a presentation on pirates.

BUHL - The last program of the summer at the Buhl Public Library will be filled with pirates. Reba Hanson and Mary Beth Welch re-lived the days and adventures of the pirates by reading stories and showing pictures, capturing the attention of the children. As part of the program, those attending made and wore an eye patch.

Stories read included pirate ships, pirates and buried treasure. After the storytime, the children went out side where Library Director Louise Nofziger and her helper, Jason Van Sickle of Hazelton, had buried treasure in a sand pile. The little pirates dug to find their own treasure.

Reba Hanson, left, and Mary Beth Welch were in dressed full costume for their presentation on pirates at the Buhl Public Library.

The X marked a spot in front of the Buhl Public Library where local pirates spent time digging for buried treasure.

Finding a good nursing home is tough

Knight-Ridder News Service

Alone and in a strange town two years ago, Joyce Makins faced one of the most important decisions in her life.

Her son, Lou Cleary, who was a Kansas City jockey at the time, had suffered a series of strokes after life-saving emergency brain surgery. Makins had flown from Florida to be with him.

But after doctors at a Kansas City Hospital had done everything they could to contain and repair the damage, Makins faced a bigger problem.

The strokes had stolen Cleary's ability to speak or move; medical experts could not say when, or if, those abilities would return.

But the hospital needed to discharge Cleary, and Makins believed his medical condition made it impossible for him to return to the family home in Florida.

So he began searching for somewhere in Kansas City where Cleary could live until time and effort sufficiently restored his health.

Finding the right nursing home for yourself or a loved one is never easy, according to several authorities whose job it is to help families do that.

One place they checked seemed ill-equipped to provide the special care Cleary needed, even though that care theoretically was available there, Joyce Makins said.

A second place was better, but "It had a dementia center," she said. "People were screaming a lot, and we thought that would not be right for Lou."

Eventually, they found a home that was calmer and provided the necessary care. Also, it was run by the same company, Tuter Health Care Management, she said.

Makins believes the situation in Olathe before that home was closed.

With available help it's not impossible

Clearly as his savings were depleted and Medicaid took over his payments.

"The first home he went to was one on the social worker at the hospital recommended," Joyce Makins recalled.

The home looked good, but as time passed the Makinses worried the quality of the help Cleary got there was starting to slip.

They found what they considered a much better situation a year ago in Olathe, Kan. — a modern, impressive-looking facility just minutes from where Joyce Makins worked.

"It was ideal. I could go down and visit Lou on my lunch hour," she said.

But that home had profound financial problems which led to its closing this month. And, just like two years ago, the Makinses and Cleary needed to make some important choices fast.

Their choices seemed bleak at first. One place they checked seemed ill-equipped to provide the special care Cleary needed, even though that care theoretically was available there, Joyce Makins said.

A second place was better, but "It had a dementia center," she said. "People were screaming a lot, and we thought that would not be right for Lou."

Eventually, they found a home that was calmer and provided the necessary care. Also, it was run by the same company, Tuter Health Care Management, she said.

Makins believes the situation in Olathe before that home was closed.

The biggest drawback is that the latest home, in south Kansas City, is way too far from Joyce's job in Olathe for her to continue lunch-hour visits. Now she fights rush-hour traffic to see him after work, instead.

"If we were wealthy, we could hire someone ourselves to help with Lou, and he could be home all day," Joyce Makins said. "But when you are at the mercy of the state, you have no choice."

The difficulties that the Makinses went through were extreme, but not by much, according to people who've helped many families through the process.

Despite tight regulations, rigid inspections and a growing presence of consumer advocacy programs, "You can't rate nursing homes like restaurants," said Sandra Lawrence, Kansas resident's advocate.

"Realistically, count on being there a lot, every day if possible, to be sure your loved one gets the best possible care."

—Marianne Esteban, Kansas resident's advocate

Strand, executive director of Kansas Advocates for Better Care, a consumer watchdog and education group in Lawrence, Kan.

Nursing homes are required by law to provide copies of state inspectors' reports and similar records for their facilities when someone asks, but those alone never provide complete pictures of the home's strengths and weaknesses.

"It is impossible to create a Consumer Reports-type rating that will give you an accurate picture of the quality of care at a nursing home will provide," Strand said.

Quality is hard to measure statistically, of course. But the biggest concern accurate ratings are elusive is that conditions in a home can change significantly on any given day, Strand said.

Nursing homes tend to pay low wages for what often is hard physical work, she said. So nursing-home workers often don't stay long. Some homes recruit and replace the equivalent of their entire work force once, or even two or three times a year.

"Turnover is so rapid, there is no way to tell how things today might stack up against a rating made only a few months ago."

"Staffing is a very serious problem throughout the country," Strand said. "It also is the No. 1 source of complaints we get from consumers."

Consumers can get side-by-side statistical comparisons of nursing homes from several sources.

Ultimately, there is only one way to choose a nursing home wisely, said Marianne Esteban, the Kansas Department on Aging's regional long-term care ombudsman in Kansas City, Kan.

"Visit the ones you are interested in. You need to see, smell, listen and touch," said Esteban, who's been a resident's advocate eight years now.

And as a general rule of thumb, focus first on the homes closest to you, she suggested.

"Realistically, count on being there a lot, every day if possible, to be sure your loved one gets the best possible care," she said.

Esteban and most other authorities say it takes at least two visits to get a true sense of what any nursing home is like. Three would be better.

If possible, bring the future resident or some other family member along on at least one visit to help catch important subtleties that you might miss, other authorities suggest.

Boeing merger forms largest aerospace firm

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The two executives dickered as they stepped out of the company D.C. flights on display at the International Air & Space Museum and into television lights to announce the beginning of the world's largest aerospace company.

It was a beginning with a long past, and there were more than a few ironies Monday as Boeing Co. chief Phil Condit described the vast global reach, the nationwide manufacturing capacity and the multibillion dollar earning potential for the newly formed Boeing.

Condit was marking the first day of operations under the merged company, D.C. flights included McDonnell Douglas, once the nation's largest defense contractor and a keen Boeing competitor for commercial airline sales.

"Visit the ones you are interested in. You need to see, smell, listen and touch," said Esteban, who's been a resident's advocate eight years now.

And as a general rule of thumb, focus first on the homes closest to you, she suggested.
