Rezone

 purpose," Gooding said.
 Several council members lamented that Monday's meeting turned into a runaway train of poor parliamentary procedure. That, they said, led to a poor decision that granted only 41 acres of the 112-acre request — and left the remaining 71 acres needed for rural residential zoning.
 "When it came down to voting, I knew I was voting for something that would never work," Councilman Lance Claw said.
 Councilman Gene Kleinkopf said he wanted to send a proposal for the remaining 71 acres back to the city's Planning and Zoning Commission — where specific development plans could be hammered out. That idea failed on a 4-3 vote Monday.
 As things stand, Pinnacle can't ask to rezone the remaining land for a full year.

 Following Monday's decision, two of Pinnacle's partners chafed that they can't recoup their investment in the land — and said that could scuttle a larger effort to lure rural land switching yards out of Old Time.
 Monday's decision breached enough land to build a new switching yard in the disputed area.
 Pinnacle's owners said they would lose money on the new rural yard site, but hope to sell surrounding industrial land to pull the project out of the red.
 Councilman Tom Mikesell said he wants to talk with Pinnacle's major partners to work out an agreement to specify the types of businesses and landscaping required in the disputed area.

"If I was living in that area, I would want some landscaping," Mikesell said, "and assures that there would be no chemical processing plants on the site."
 Thursday's decision to resume the discussion on Oct. 20 and Nov. 3 was far from smooth. For a while, the two dates were mutually exclusive and council members were poised to vote for one or the other.
 Finally Mikesell suggested both, but Councilman Art Franz threatened to yank back his motion-for an Oct. 20-meeting. Franz didn't pursue the notion and the council ultimately scheduled both hearings.

Suspect

 thing he would just up and do," Garner said.
 Liebel's name came up as a suspect as a result of Twin Falls County's investigation of Hartwig's death.
 Twin Falls investigators sent out a teletype describing the Hartwig case. Garner said another detective in his office spotted it.
 Several factors make Liebel a suspect in Valley's disappearance, Garner said.
 "I don't call them coincidences," he said.
 Nevertheless, Liebel is just a suspect, and the process of an investigation is to eliminate suspects, Garner noted.
 Twin Falls investigators say Liebel used Hartwig's car to take his body out of Hansen, dumping the body in a field south of Hansen. They say Liebel and a man who was with him, Arnold Silago, dumped Hartwig's car — a red four-door — in the Boise foothills.
 Kern County is mountainous, and has a lot of remote desert areas where Valley's body could have been dumped, Garner said.
 "We have a lot of old mines that would swallow up even a car, and you'd never find it," Garner said.
 Valley had a nickname of "Bear," Garner said.

 Silago showed Twin Falls County investigators the face of a dirt mound in the Boise foothills near where Hartwig's car was found, with the words "Little Bear Slayer" carved in it. Silago told detectives Liebel carved those words and the initials "CAL" in the dirt after they dumped the car.
 Liebel left Bakersfield about the time of Valley's disappearance, Garner said. Garner said he hasn't been able to get a more precise date, but said Liebel's girlfriend couldn't come up with a reason why Liebel left Bakersfield.
 Liebel could have ties, although speculative, to the other suspect in the disappearance, Garner said.
 The other suspect, who Garner wouldn't name, is a former biker, and there was bad blood between Valley and the suspect. A biker suspect is homosexual, and Liebel is more than likely bisexual, Garner said.
 Twin Falls County investigators believe Hartwig may have been sexually involved with Liebel.
 Olson downplays the possible links between the cases.
 "I don't hear anything of substance in this," Olson said.
 Garner admits Liebel's ties to the case are still speculative.

 The Valley case is still a missing person investigation, Garner said.
 "I keep trying to send it over to the homicide division, and the sergeant keeps saying, 'Show me a body,'" he said.
 Garner is hoping Twin Falls detectives' interviews with Liebel can pinpoint when Liebel left Bakersfield, and outline his route to Twin Falls.
 Olson said he could not comment about either issue.
 Sheriff's detectives say Liebel has not talked to them at all during their investigation.
 Olson said his advisors to Liebel is not to talk to investigators, and to allow his story to come out at trial.
 "Now that he's been charged, I can't envision him talking to anybody," Olson said.
 Meanwhile, Garner is trying to find Valley, and his car.
 "I know he's going to turn up one of these days," Garner said.

CORRECTION

An article about the Heylman City Council meeting Wednesday, which appeared in The Times-News Thursday, misidentified Robert Vasquez. Vasquez was at the meeting, but he was not the man who confronted City Attorney Steven Tuits and was formally removed by police. That man was in fact Tom Roberts.
 Vasquez, formerly Heylman's police chief, is now Minidoka County's chief deputy sheriff. The Times-News regrets the error.

President Clinton walks onto the stage at the White House Thursday at a ceremony honoring heroic police officers. At the event he announced that in cooperation with gun manufacturers, childproof locks will be added to the majority of handguns in the U.S. Protecting these kids, Clinton said, "is now my highest law enforcement priority."

Clinton promises childproof locks for most handguns in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an alliance forged under pressure, major gun manufacturers stood with President Clinton and announced Thursday they would provide childproof trigger locks with all their handguns.

"This will affect eight of 10 handguns made in America and it will save many young lives," the president said in a Rose Garden ceremony on a summer-like day. He encouraged other gunmakers to follow suit.

Each year, about 1,500 children are rushed to hospital emergency rooms with accidental gun injuries. Nearly 200 children died from those wounds in 1994 alone.

The gunmakers' promise was quietly negotiated after Clinton threatened last January to press for legislation requiring child locks on handguns.

To bolster his demand, the president also signed an executive order in March requiring safety locks on all handguns.

issued to federal law enforcement officers.

The president announced the agreement with gunmakers at a ceremony honoring heroic police officers selected by the National Association of Police Organizations. The president used the opportunity to urge Congress to expand to state and local officers a government scholarship program for the surviving dependents of federal police officers killed in the line of duty.

Greenpeace says children's products contain lead, cadmium

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some vinyl toys and products for youngsters contain levels of lead and cadmium that could pose health risks, the environmental group Greenpeace said Thursday.

Greenpeace said its laboratory tests found that 25 of 131 products — from rain hats to a doll stroller — contained lead levels close to or higher than the proposed health standard of 200 parts per million in some vinyl window blinds.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission disputed the findings. But several independent medical experts who reviewed the tests called the results credible and said more studies should be done.

"It clearly calls for attention. It's an important warning," said

Michael McCallly of the Department of Community Medicine at Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York City.

Some of the products examined by Greenpeace were found to have lead content of 17 to 100 times levels that worried the Consumer Product Safety Commission in its investigation last year of lead in window blinds.

IRS changes given today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two weeks after dramatic Senate hearings on IRS misconduct, President Clinton plans to propose changes including new taxpayer rights legislation and greater citizen involvement in fielding complaints, a congressman and staff members said Thursday.

In a White House announcement scheduled today, Clinton plans to recommend "citizen advocacy boards" at the IRS and an enhanced role for the agency's taxpayer advocate's office, according to Rep. Bob Portman, R-Ohio.

Portman said Vice President Al Gore will unveil results of a National Performance Review study of customer service practices.

Licensing rules for satellite communications

WASHINGTON — Five companies will be able to ask the government for licenses to build national satellite systems offering an array of mobile two-way communications, including e-mail, fax, vehicle tracking and remote meter reading.

The Federal Communications Commission adopted licensing rules Wednesday for the multibillion-dollar satellite systems. The agency hopes that as more companies are licensed to provide such services, competition will increase, giving Americans more choices and lower prices.

The action, made public Thursday, ends a dispute over how to distribute slices of the public airwaves for the service and not cause interference to government weather-tracking satellites.

Man writes suicide note to wife, kills her

SARASOTA, Fla. — A depressed man wrote 11 suicide notes to his wife, relatives and friends, and then killed his wife before fatally shooting himself.

Bob Kirce's marriage was falling apart amid charges of domestic abuse and heavy drinking, but the 24 pages of handwritten notes released Wednesday indicated that the longtime Sarasota County deputy administrator planned to kill only himself.

Investigators said they could reach no conclusion about why Kirce shot his wife early last Friday morning as she stepped out of the shower. He then shot himself and I've chosen my course of action in sound mind and sober and deliberate thinking," Kirce wrote.

CDC plans study of fish-killing menace

ATLANTA — The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention is joining the investigation into a little-understood organism that has killed millions of fish along the mid-Atlantic coast and may be making people sick, too.

The CDC said Thursday it will study Pfiesteria piscicida in several states where it has become a menace.

Last month, officials from several mid-Atlantic states urged the federal government to research the microbe. Congress has approved $7 million for the CDC to investigate.

Pfiesteria is blamed for killing millions of fish in North Carolina and Maryland. But the effect on people is unclear.

Million Woman March begins to take shape

PHILADELPHIA — After months of mobilizing and fund-raising, throngs of women plan to pour into Philadelphia for a Million Woman March and daylong rally they hope will revitalize black families and communities.

Organizers told city officials they expect 500,000, but organizers hope a million-plus will join the two-mile march on Oct. 25 that will begin at Independence Hall.

The event has lacked the fanfare of the Million Man March two years ago in Washington, but regional coordinators report growing interest as publicity has increased and the network of planners has jelled.

Fire buckles overpass, closes busy highway

YONKERS, N.Y. — A gasoline tanker truck collided with a car, crashed and exploded below a highway early Thursday, buckling the road, killing the driver of the car and forcing thousands of commuters to find another route to work.

Chunks of concrete continued to rain down from the damaged New York State Thruway hours after the crash. The freeway was closed indefinitely.

The truck driver escaped with a leg injury. The heat and the instability of the overpass kept rescue workers from reaching the body of the car driver, so badly burned that authorities were unsure if it was a man or a woman.

First lady: Time to give women more power

PANAMA CITY, Panama — In a region where dictatorships have given way to democracies, Hillary Rodham Clinton urged nations of the Americas Thursday to go a step further to protect the rights of women.

"The only way for democracies to survive and thrive," she said, is to give women more power "to seek and claim their rights as citizens, and as human beings." Speaking at a conference of Latin American first ladies, Mrs. Clinton suggested the challenge could be more difficult than the giant undertaking of building the Panama Canal whose Pacific entrance was just blocks away.

Taxpayers pay for Clinton Fundraising

WASHINGTON (AP) — Confronted with documents showing it charged taxpayers for donor events, the White House is now paying the Treasury for eight breakfasts that took place in 1994.

President Clinton was the host, seeking support for the party's health care advertising fund.

The Democratic National Committee sent a check Wednesday to the U.S. Treasury for $1,448 after The Associated Press showed presidential aides records indicating there had been no reimbursement for the White House fund-raising breakfasts.

The White House characterized the episode as an "honest oversight."

The disclosure comes at a sensitive time as the Justice Department investigates whether government resources were misused by the White House to facilitate fund raising under Clinton. Federal law prohibits the use of government resources for political fund raising.

The chairman of the House appropriations subcommittee that oversees White House spending chided presidential aides Thursday, saying they correct such a problem "only when it is dug up by someone else."

"I think there is very good reason to be very, very concerned with the White House being used as nothing apparently but an offshoot and a subsidiary working place for the Democratic national committee," said Rep. Jim Kolbe, R-Ariz. Kolbe, whose subcommittee recently forced changes to White House accounting procedures after a hearing into entertainment events, said he was concerned that other political events may have gone unreimbursed.

The White House said a check of its records, prompted by AP, determined that it had failed to seek reimbursement for eight of the 10 breakfasts featuring Clinton and his wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton.

"This clearly is an honest oversight, and as often occurs if paperwork isn't processed and reimbursements weren't made, as soon as we realize that is the case, we immediately take steps to make sure appropriate reimbursements were made," White House special counsel Lanny Davis said.

"It also should be noted that these breakfasts were not about the election of candidates or the election of parties; they were about providing health care for the American people," he said.

The White House acknowledges Clinton "may have asked" for donors' help while they were at the White House breakfasts, one of the earliest known uses of the executive mansion to aid fund raising during his presidency.

The health fund was used by the party to pay for ads supporting Clinton's ill-fated universal health care plan in 1994.

U.S. grip on no-fly zone tightens

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is tightening enforcement of a no-fly zone over southern Iraq, and Defense Secretary William Cohen said Thursday Iraq will "bear the consequences" if its warplanes continue to violate the ban.

Asked to explain what consequences Cohen had in mind, his spokesman Kenneth Bacon declined, but he noted the presence in the Persian Gulf of U.S. strategic bombers and Navy ships capable of firing Tomahawk cruise missiles.

In addition, the Minix carrier battle group is steaming toward the Gulf, and Bacon said its fighter aircraft should be flying in the area by this weekend.

Bacon said the United States is tightening its enforcement of the no-fly zone by patrolling closer to the 33rd parallel, which marks the northern edge of the zone. He said larger numbers of U.S. planes are participating in each patrol, too.

The no-fly zone was created after the 1991 Gulf War to prevent Iraqi government forces from attacking rebel Shiite Muslims in the southern marsh areas.

Cohen said Iraqi aircraft have periodically crossed into the no-fly zone recently. He accused Iraqi President Saddam Hussein of playing a dangerous game.

"He is posing a risk to himself, his pilots as such, whenever they start to challenge the no-fly zone," Cohen told reporters during a photo session in his office.

Why can't Johnny read? It's time we found out

Wonder how well Idaho schools are doing? Consider this: Almost one-third of Idahoans over the age of 15 — that's 261,000 people — fit the definition of functional illiterate. They can't easily read a map or figure out the instructions on tax forms or employment applications.

In the Information Age, this amounts to a life sentence of low-paying, dead-end jobs.

A statewide committee of teachers, administrators and lawmakers doesn't think that's good enough. So it is preparing to hand the Legislature recommendations designed to ensure that every Idaho child is a skilled reader by the third grade.

To that end, the committee's most-germane recommendations would be these:

• Elementary schools should spend more class time on reading, even if that means dialing back the amount of time devoted to worry-free non-core subjects.

• Education majors in Idaho's colleges and universities must receive additional training in reading education.

At stake here is the very essence of what Idaho's schools are in business to accomplish. Reading isn't just fundamental to functioning successfully in the modern world; it's indispensable.

The professional educators and some of the legislators on the committee are arguing for increased state funding for public schools in order to improve reading. They have a point.

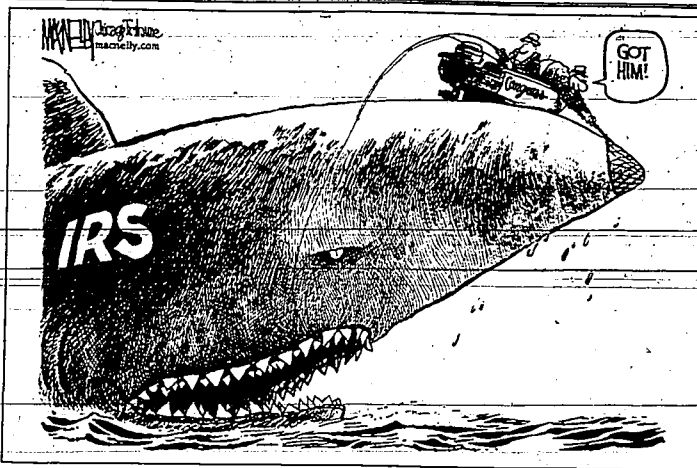

Doing better than the 2.2 percent increase that lawmakers voted for education last winter should be a priority. That's one of the reasons why Gov. Phil Barr is looking for ways to curb the burgeoning corrections system budget.

It also might be worth considering a modest boost in per-child funding in schools with a high percent of impoverished students — say, by 0.5 percent.

But dollars alone won't do the job. What's needed is a smarter set of priorities by those who write elementary school curriculums and a return to basics by those who train teachers.

As we've often said in the past, the key to better schools is accountability. To our way of thinking, the best measure of success is not how much money is spent at schools, how well they equip students for life.

By that standard, Idaho's schools aren't taking care of business. It's past time that they did.

Let's go home — the Reform Party's over

BILL THOMPSON

Just what we need. Another political party. It's not any old party, mind you. It's another "reform" party: the American Reform Party, not to be confused with the just plain Reform Party.

You remember the Reform Party. That's the outfit concocted by Ross Perot to give himself an excuse to run for president last year.

Perot never would have launched a presidential campaign on his own, of course. The party faithful demanded his candidacy. Perot, a humble servant of the people, simply answered the call from the Reform Party rank and file.

Never mind that the rank and file were mostly ardent Perotists, bought and paid for by Perot. Never mind that any resemblance between the Reform Party and a democratic political organization was strictly coincidental.

Ask Richard Lamm, the former governor of Colorado who took Perot at his word when the Scheming Weasel insisted that anyone who wanted the Reform Party's presidential nomination was cordially invited to run for it. Come on down, Perot told Lamm.

Lamm took the bait, only to discover that the whole deal was a sham. Perot rigged the nomination process to make sure no one mounted a realistic challenge to his candidacy.

Lamm was set up. Perot used him as a patsy to create the illusion of an open contest for the nomination.

The Reform Party might as well have been named the Perot Party. It was a joke. It's still a joke.

Which brings us to the American Reform Party, formed during the weekend by Reform Party dissidents who apparently figured out that they had been used and abused by Perot.

"We've seen a political home for the millions who voted for Perot's ideas in '92 but could not bring themselves to vote for the man in '96," said Linda Witherspoon, a Reform Party dropout who headed the new party's organizational meeting in Illinois.

Perot ran as an independent in 1992, grabbing 19 percent of the vote with his on-again/off-again campaign that left many Americans convinced that he was at best a disruptive wacko and at worst a lethal threat to the democratic process.

The truth probably falls between the two extremes. Perot is a self-aggrandizing egomaniac who has enough money to make a mess of anything he gets involved in. The citizenry caught on in 1996, giving him only a fraction of the votes he received four years earlier.

A former Perotist, quoted in one of the news reports about the American Reform Party's meeting near Chicago, summed up Perot's current status:

"Perot is an island surrounded by burnt bridges."

Perot doesn't know it, said to say, so he is no doubt cooking up a scheme to insinuate himself into the 2000 election. His Reform Party, in fact, has scheduled a meeting of its own at the end of this month in Kansas City, Mo.

The Reform Party reportedly will be working on its platform at the Kansas City meeting. That means the party will be working on nothing, since its platform can be summarized in two words: Ross Perot.

The American Reform Party, meanwhile, will be working on ... well, who knows what it will be working on? One report says that the group is hoping to rack up enough votes in the Illinois governor's race to qualify for the ballot in other state and county elections.

Come on, people. We're talking about busywork. It's all a waste of time.

There is no hope in Illinois or anywhere else, for the American Reform Party, the Reform Party, the Reformed Reform Party or the National Association of Previously Unreformated Reform Parties.

There are two political parties in America, the Democratic Party and the Republican Party. The two-party system can seem bewildered and bewildering, but it works.

It ought to work better than it does — and it could work better, if the American people would stop complaining about it and start fixing it.

These established parties have served our country well for a very long time. If reform is needed, then why don't we reform the parties that work instead of inventing new parties that confuse the issue?

Help fish with Natural River Option

Salmon and steelhead in Idaho are on the brink of extinction caused primarily by the dams in the lower Snake and Columbia rivers. Our government has spent $3 billion in 15 years on salmon recovery projects (Times-News Aug. 15, 1997) and $1.5 billion on steelhead recovery. This recently concluded that it has failed so far to restore salmon runs in the basin and acknowledged that salmon are on the verge of being a serious risk." (Times-News Aug. 8, 1997).

Idaho Rivers United has proposed a sensible solution (Natural River Option) to save our salmon and steelhead. The Natural River Option would remove the lower Snake River to some semblance of its natural state as a free-flowing river. The four dams on the lower Snake River would be taken out of service, and barging in the Snake and Columbia rivers would be limited.

The lower Snake and Columbia River dams and associated navigation locks allow barges to travel from Portland, Ore., to Lewiston, Idaho. However, this form of freight transportation has never been self-supporting. Taxpayers pay $18 million per year on the debt for building the navigation locks and $25 million per year to operate and operate the locks. Maintenance for the dams costs $435 million per year. Also, power generated by the four lower Snake River dams is relatively minimal and could be replaced with cheaper power for a net benefit of $138 million per year.

In addition, losing Idaho steelhead fishing will cost Idahoans $90 million and 2,700 jobs per year.

Nearly 90 percent of Idaho's salmon and steelhead smolts are killed by the drop-down system. For 20 years, the Corps of Engineers has barged Idaho's smolts to the ocean. For 20 years, this approach has failed. Each year, Idaho's salmon and steelhead continue to decline.

It is high time we stopped this wasteful government spending and implemented a sensible and workable plan to save our fish. I believe the Natural River Option would do this and, at the same time, save hundreds of millions of dollars each year.

Idaho Rivers United provides the above data except where noted. Contact them for further information (Idaho Rivers United, P.O. Box 533, Boise, Idaho 83720, phone 800-574-7481 or (208) 343-2431).

I urge all Idaho fishermen and citizens to contact their congressional delegates and request their support (1) for the Natural River Option to save our salmon and steelhead and (2) to stop the above wasteful ### government spending.

Tell people about alcohol licenses

As noted in the Oct. 2 issue of The Times-News, Whismundel did present the Wendell City Council with a petition containing 30 signatures protesting issuing a beer and wine license to the owners of the Perouse House. The petition wasn't read or looked at before the vote on this motion. According to the city attorney, there was nothing the town council or the citizens of Wendell could do to stop the issuing of the license.

The Gooding County commissioners had issued the go-ahead for the license on Sept. 25. The state of Idaho issued the license Sept. 17. There was no warning or ad placed in the local paper informing us of this meeting to OK the license.

The 30 people signing this petition, plus many more, are the ones who will be affected by the way the Perouse House is run. They have already given us a demonstration of the noise from their hall a couple of weeks ago.

Being a citizen of Wendell, I think someone should have the names of this licensing procedure, our feelings and well-being should have at least been taken into consideration.

Mail benefits local history fans

What a pleasure it was to share in the Remembrance Celebration at the Magic Valley, Twin Falls.

The display of artifacts, photographs and vintage clothing provided by the Twin Falls County Museum were enthusiastically received. We renewed old friendships and met many history buffs who expressed interest and appreciation for the exhibit.

Guided tours brought local history to seventh-grade school children as they viewed the Snake River Canyon sculptured in sand, complete with prehistoric animals, as well as the museum display which featured the story of LA Perrine, known as the father of Twin Falls.

Thank you, Magic Valley Mall, for inviting us to be a part of your unique celebration. Special thanks to Julie, Jim and Debraen Kaigler for their work in setting up the museum display, to those who connected the ours and to the CSI students who helped move museum articles.

Study Buhl drug testing policy

Regarding Buhl School District's recent decision to perform drug testing on its high school student athletes (placing aside the obvious ethical question of being played with the student's constitutional rights), there's another issue.

The long-term goal is to cultivate an environment that will help people make good choices — not only as Buhl students, but in their adult lives as well. But is there any evidence to suggest that this will be the case? A comparison to the Drug Awareness Resistance Education program is in order.

Research from other states has shown that DARE had almost no real impact over the long haul. It's OK to argue, for the knee-jerk reaction is to dismiss these findings, for how could a program that looks and feels so good not be of any concrete value? The premise behind DARE was the common-sense notion that drug education would lower rates of drug abuse. But when empirical science was applied years later, adults who had gone through the DARE program as children had the same rates of substance abuse as those who did not. Evidence showed it was good parenting — not education — that deterred drug abuse.

(That is not to say that DARE would not have been great in the '60s when the drug culture was rampant, but now we all know drugs are bad news.)

Are we about to make the same mistake with drug testing? Like a pack of lemmings straggling toward a cliff, many Magic Valley school districts seem to be climbing over one another in order to be the next one to take the drug-testing plunge.

We should not look upon Buhl's drug-testing policy as a model program to copy, but rather as a case study. It's a rural Idaho experiment in progress.

Let's study the Buhl program over the next five to 10 years. Will this program really lower rates of substance abuse in the long term, or merely make us all feel we're accomplishing something?

If it can be proven that drug testing makes a positive difference in people's lives, and if neighboring districts can stomach the idea of trumping on their children's rights, then let's blanket the Magic Valley with drug testing. But let's not all jump into this program just because it makes us feel good, without knowing how it might affect us later. Isn't that the same message we've been giving our children about drugs?

Craig: Consider your constituency

The performance of Sen. Larry Craig and his like-minded congressional cohorts raises the ancient question, "Should we follow or cry?"

Latest of these political puzzles concerns the fees paid to the Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management for the use of public lands. Idaho delegates, following Craig's lead, expect those agencies to make money without charging a fair price for anything.

Grazing fees for public lands are far too low. So are the prices paid for timber and mining operations on these public lands. And the call for higher annual rent for cabins and homes built on Forest Service land could stand some fine tuning, but it's on the right track. Most of those fees are based on pioneer rates that are now too low.

We need some Idaho representation that will guard the public interest rather than cater to the special interests that buy their votes with campaign contributions.

Literature prize goes to Italian

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Italy's Danilo Fo, whose irreverent plays have made audiences roar with laughter and authorities seethe with anger, won the Nobel Literature Prize on Thursday.

The 71-year-old Fo, whose work was banned from Italy's national TV and radio for years and who was prosecuted, expelled and for his scathing critiques of the government, was a surprise choice, absent from most critics' lists of contenders. Fo himself seemed stunned.

"I'm honored," he said on hearing he had won the $1 million prize. "I will pay him back for the many, many humiliations he has suffered in his life," wife Franca Rame said. "I believe that today many critics, when they hear this news, will have a heart attack."

In honoring Fo, the Swedish Academy called the Italian the modern equivalent of a court jester, citing his "scourging authority and speaking the dignity of the downcast."

The Vatican's official newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, was quick to register its disapproval of the academy's choice. Fo's plays include his own spin on certain biblical stories, and often hold the Roman Catholic Church up to scathing ridicule.

"Giving the prize to an actor who is also an author of defensible texts ... has surpassed all imagination," the Vatican newspaper declared.

Since Fo and his wife founded a theater company in 1959, the pair have made a career out of satirizing post-war Italian politics, including the scandals that brought down politicians and businessmen in the early 1980s.

"Danilo Fo has taken great risks and been very brave, and he has had to suffer the consequences of that," said Steve Allen, permanent secretary of the Swedish Academy.

In 1980, he and Rame were refused visas to the United States because of their support for left-wing activities in Italy. In 1984, the U.S. government reluctantly allowed the couple to briefly visit New York to see a production of his work "Accidental Death of an Anarchist."

The Italian government banned his work from state broadcasting until 1977, and prosecuted him — unsuccessfully — on several occasions for allegedly defaming police and other officers.

Leaders grapple with human rights

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — Presidents and prime ministers from 40 European nations begin grappling Friday with a new Europe and with issues ranging from human rights to organized crime to stability in emerging democracies.

The two-day Council of Europe summit is expected to present the organization's basic tenets of promoting democracy, human rights and the rule of law at a time when those ideals remain fragile in a number of countries, including new members Russia, Ukraine and Croatia.

Russian President Boris Yeltsin said he wants to convince fellow leaders to try to lessen Washington's influence in Europe. "We want a multipolar world in which no country tells the others what to do," Yeltsin said recently.

Though this is the official Russian line, the reality remains preoccupied with domestic problems and foreign policy is a secondary concern. It has accepted the inevitability of NATO's east-Cold War era expansion into former Soviet bloc countries, and after an initial burst of opposition, Edele is heard on the subject these days.

Russian officials said Yeltsin's speech to fellow European leaders will stress the need for Moscow's full integration into a democratic Europe.

Even though the United States doesn't belong to the Council of Europe, it still exerts influence. Last month, Washington circulated an unofficial paper criticizing Croatia's failure to ensure press freedom and civil liberties.

Jews prepare for Yom Kippur

JERUSALEM (AP) — Swinging like chickens over their heads to symbolically cast away their sins, Jews prepared Thursday for Yom Kippur, the holiest day on the Jewish calendar.

Devout Jews traditionally perform the ritual in the rumpus to Yom Kippur, or Day of Atonement, which is marked by fasting and prayer. Yom Kippur begins at sundown Friday and ends at sundown Saturday.

The Ten Days of Penitence begins at the Jewish New Year, or Rosh Hashana, and culminates in Yom Kippur, when Jews abstain from food, drink and work.

In Jerusalem's ultra-Orthodox Men Shearim neighborhood, men in thin plastic aprons sold squawking chickens from hundreds of colored crates stacked in the streets. Men with long black coats, black hats, beards and side locks rocked back and forth as they recited blessings.

"On Yom Kippur, you're supposed to dispose of your sins," said one man who only gave his first name, Eli, as he swung a chicken above his head. His wife Huvy scolded him for holding the chicken by the wings. "You're supposed to hold it here," she said, pointing to the bird's legs, which were bound with string. After the blessing, the chickens were slaughtered with a razor-sharp knife. Men in rubber boots hoed down the narrow street to get rid of the blood and feathers.

TF woman charged with resisting arrest

TWIN FALLS - A Twin Falls woman is charged with resisting arrest after police stopped her for being on school property. Police were called to the area of Sawtooth Elementary School by school officials who said Cassie Sue Hurd, 31, had been ordered not to be on school grounds, a Twin Falls police report said. Police stopped Hurd as she rode her bike near Locust Street and Bitterroot Drive, the report said. When officers told Hurd she was under arrest on two warrants, she tried to flee, the report said, and struggled against them as they tried to handcuff her. Hurd was carrying a brown cloth bag with drug paraphernalia inside, including a glass smoking pipe, a small white tube and a spoon, the report said. On May 19, Hurd was arrested on charges of drug possession and child endangerment after officers said they found her passed out in the cab of a pickup, parked in a parking lot, with her child in her car. Bail for Hurd on a probation violation charge was set for $2,000.

CSI Child Care Center earns award for nutritious meals

TWIN FALLS - Colorful and healthy food earned the College of Southern Idaho's Child Care Center a state honor. The day care center for children of CSI students was one of three programs in Idaho recognized for its menu planning, said the state Department of Education. The day care competed with 109 other Idaho child-care centers for the award. CSI won the award in 1995, too, the first time it was given. A certified nutritionist evaluates menus to assure centers are meeting federal nutritional guidelines. Menus should include a balance of color, variety, shape, flavor, temperature and variety. Centers are encouraged to serve family-style meals, introduce new foods, serve ethnic meals and teach children about nutrition. The State University Child Care Center and Shoshone Banrock Tribe Head Start are the other two winners this year.

Mall display illustrates nuclear waste treatment

TWIN FALLS - A display at the Magic Valley Mall this weekend will illustrate efforts to treat liquid and solidified radioactive waste. Officials from the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory will be on hand to explain an environmental study under way that will cover proposed options for dealing with the waste. The federal Department of Energy hopes to separate the high-level and low-level portions of the waste and prepare them for disposal. About 1.5 million gallons of liquid and 3,800 cubic meters of solidified high-level waste are stored at the INEL. In 1995 agreement with Gov. Phil Batt, the government has until 2035 to treat the waste and move it out of the state.

Ag Weekly columnist hosts event at Barnes & Noble

TWIN FALLS - Magic Valley Ag Weekly columnist Suzanne Huxhold will be the host for Barnes & Noble's "Writer's Harvest: A National Reading" Oct. 23. It's part of a nationwide effort to raise money for Share Our Strength, an anti-hunger and anti-poverty campaign. In addition to Huxhold, College of Southern Idaho professors Bill Studebaker, Russ Hepworth and Larry Quinn, all published authors, will participate. Musical guests will be Suzanne Jusst and Rick Kulan. The event is scheduled from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at Barnes & Noble, 1239-A Pole Line Road. A percentage of the store's sales Oct. 23 will be donated to Share Our Strength.

Police auction unclaimed property on Saturday

TWIN FALLS - If you're looking to put some thump in your car stereo, the Twin Falls Police Department is the place to shop Saturday. You deafen-ly heard that correctly. Police are auctioning unclaimed property - some of it recovered stolen property, and a large chunk of it car stereo equipment. The pile includes such things as heavy-duty car amplifiers and speakers, and car stereo compact disc players. The list auctioneer is Bill Stonemetz will sell from includes CDs, papers, Nintendo and Sega games, lingerie, eight toy trucks and two real cars, 1987 and 1993 Chevrolet Caprices. Plenty of tools also are available - crowbars, screwdrivers and bolt cutters and the bags that accompany them in the burglary. Sales begin at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Twin Falls police station garage, 356 Third Ave. E.

SHOW AND TELL

Members of a tour group take in the view from Pike Mountain Thursday morning. The view includes information and interpretive signs in place along an asphalt path that crowns the peak.

Sawtooth forest unveils new attractions

By William Brock
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - It was a raw and gusty day, but that didn't stop Sawtooth National Forest officials from showing off two new attractions in the South Hills Thursday.

The Pike Mountain Overlook, at 7,708 feet, and the "Rim View Trail," which stretches 9 1/2 miles from Deadline Ridge to the bottom of the Third Fork of Rock Creek, are open for business.

Located just east of Magic Mountain Ski Area, Pike Mountain affords commanding views in all directions. Up there, visitors can plainly see that snow has already dusted the high country and breathtaking stands of golden aspen dot verdant slopes.

A good gravel road leads to the top of Pike Mountain. Most of the parking lot is gravelled, but there is a paved area for handicapped parking. An asphalt path loops around the summit, and there are several wooden platforms where people can linger over the view.

The construction was completed more than a year ago, but signs explaining the area's history are new. Don Oman, who used to be the Sawtooth Forest ranger for the South Hills, did the drawings for the interpretive signs, his panoramic renderings of nearby mountains are handy for locating key landmarks.

It was Oman, now the Sawtooth Forest's ecosystem officer, who first hatched the idea of building a scenic overlook atop Pike Mountain.

The upper end of the Rim View Trail begins a couple of miles northwest of Pike Mountain. From the Magic Mountain Ski Area, follow a dirt road west toward Rogerson, take the first right turn after the road crests Deadline Ridge.

The high point of the Rim View Trail, literally, is a $15,000 outhouse. Sawtooth officials proudly described the new one-holer as an "SST" - or "sweet-smelling toilet." Special venting is designed to keep foul air from wafting up from the depths.

The trail itself features a hearty, 1,900-foot elevation differential between the upper and lower trailheads. The upper end is forested, but the lower reaches wind through spectacular rock bluffs in Rock Creek Canyon.

Perhaps the most unique feature of the Rim View Trail is that it's closed to anything with hooves. Hikers, horses and anything else with hooves are welcome, but mechanized transport - including bicycles - is prohibited.

The South Hills have plenty of trails for motorized use, said Max Yings, recreation specialist with the Sawtooth forest, but there is little opportunity for non-motorized, non-mechanized trail users to do their thing in peace.

The Rim View Trail could be opened to bicyclists if there's enough public demand, said Twin Falls District Ranger Donald "Pete" Peterson.

Jerome County pursues private ambulance

Citizens want more input

By Karina M. Fitzgerald
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - A month ago, Jerome County commissioners requested proposals from private ambulance services to take over the county's emergency medical services.

Those proposals are due today. But after more than a year of debate, residents are requesting more public input in what has become one of Jerome County's most controversial issues.

"It is our hope that Jerome County can have a quality ambulance service," said six East End residents in a signed letter sent to The Times-News Thursday afternoon. "We urge the commissioners to not rush to judgment on this question. Let's look at the bids and then have more public comment."

The letter writers - Calvin Jones, Delbert Kohtz, Dwayne Wall, Myron Huetig, Larry Huetig and Gerald Huetig - say they're concerned the county ambulance has large outstanding collections already on the books. They question the need for paramedic-level service and allege that the same person who wrote the proposal is allowed to place a bid.

County Commissioner Roy Prescott said he has heard all these claims before. Prescott said the commissioners appointed a citizens' commission to study these issues. A few months ago, the commission suggested the county take a good look at a private, paramedic level service.

"We're not committed to anything," Prescott said. "We are at a point in time where we have to do something different."

Training existing county staff as paramedics would cost the county more, he said.

Paramedics can administer more life-saving drugs and perform more procedures than emergency medical technicians. Proponents say paramedic treatment is essential when it can take a patient 30 minutes to get to a hospital by ambulance.

Opponents say the service is too expensive, since EMTs can rendezvous with paramedics from Twin Falls.

Hailey man protests county's proposed water policy

By Kristan Kennedy
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY - How Blaine County can control water use is under scrutiny, and some people say the effort is ill-conceived.

A citizens committee and Blaine County commissioners Wednesday took another look at a water policy which has been in the works since April. The policy, if it comes to fruition, would be inserted into the county's comprehensive plan and could govern private uses of water - such as decorative or agricultural - and transfers of water rights. The effort is being led by former Blaine County Commissioner Tom Blanchard, current commissioners and a volunteer group of residents.

Wednesday's session did not take public comment, although it was advertised as a public hearing.

Hailey resident Jim Baldwin was the only member of the public present, and he said following the meeting that he fears the new policy could be a wolf in sheep's clothing.

"From my perspective, I think the responsibility of managing the water, specifically the river, should lie in the hands of those most affected by it," Baldwin said. "I'm afraid a new water policy per se will be carried away."

Baldwin messages the Flying Hat ranch, a south-Hailey property which hugs about a mile of the Big Wood River. Baldwin, during high water years, grapples with the Idaho Department of Water Resources and the Federal Emergency Management Agency over river management. He fears a county policy would add an unbearable layer of bureaucracy.

"That makes me real nervous," Baldwin said.

"It's already hard enough to make headway with the state and federal government," he said. "The county really doesn't bring any expertise to the situation, so why do it?"

But the water policy under discussion doesn't specifically address erosion management of the Big Wood, which is Baldwin's challenge as a property manager.

Head Start reaching only around 25% of eligible children

By Karen E. Naleznek
Times-News writer

BURLEY - Every 15 minutes between 8:45 and 9:30 a.m., troops of 3- and 4-year-olds hop off school buses and scurry into Mini-Cassia's Head Start building, where teachers and two hot meals await them.

In all, 128 youngsters from both counties use the small, four-classroom building to learn colors and shapes, and learn to make and write their own names.

But 317 others also qualify for Head Start assistance in the Mini-Cassia area. Officials at the local center say they can't fit anyone else in without more state or federal money.

And about half of the children on the waiting list will probably never get in, said Head Start Family Special Services Coordinator Lynette Michel.

Qualification is based solely on family income, she said. For a family of four, the maximum household income is $16,050 per year. Add two children, and the cutoff amount increases to $21,490.

"We take the lowest incomes first," Michel said. "But it's frustrating that we can't help more children. Our goal is to help 100 percent of them and last year we could only help 27 percent."

Besides classroom instruction 65 days a year, Head Start also provides medical care including dental and physical exams, nutritious breakfasts and lunches and transportation within a 30-mile radius for all its children. Three home visits a month are included, to get the whole family involved with the education process, Michel added.

Burley's building at 16th and Hiland streets has housed children from both counties since Heyburn's Head Start closed its

VALLEY IN BRIEF

Man arrested, released, arrested

TWIN FALLS — A man arrested Thursday and accused of forging checks had been arrested two weeks ago on suspicion of driving a stolen car, but was released because of a court filing error.

John Darrell Harding, 34, was arrested Thursday morning at Motel 8, 1260 Blue Lakes Blvd., after he wrote a check to Domino's Pizza on a check account that belonged to another person, Twin Falls Police reports say.

Twin Falls police arrested Harding Sept. 28 after Twin Falls police saw him exit a stolen car and jump a fence to flee, police reports say. The car, a Dodge Neon, was stolen from Practical Rent-A-Car of Twin Falls.

Officers found Harding in a driveway in the 800 block of North Main Avenue and arrested him, the report said. When asked to identify himself, Harding gave the name of a man who earlier in the day had reported his wallet stolen, the report said.

Harding had a small backpack with him that contained altered checks and money orders, the report said. But the charges of armed theft and forgery did not have enough information—the value of the car or the car's owner, Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Lochs said.

Harding was released from jail Sept. 29, even though the affidavit was corrected by police. Grant Lochs said.

Lochs said, Harding was charged with the car theft Thursday, when he was charged with forgery.

Novelist will sign copies of his book

TWIN FALLS — Novelist Mark Stanleigh will sign copies of his book, "The King of Billy-Gon-Hill," Saturday at Waldenbooks in the Magic Valley Mall.

Stanleigh is a former corporate CEO and marketing executive in California who turned to writing novels several years ago. His next book, "The Intrigues," will be released by Fallbrook Publishing Group this fall.

Stanleigh will be at Waldenbooks from 4 to 6 p.m.

Watercolors on display at Metropolis

TWIN FALLS — The South Central Region of the Idaho Watercolor Society is showing water media paintings at Metropolis Bakery Cafe in downtown Twin Falls.

The exhibition includes 21 works representing the first 13 regional artists: Leslie Anderson of Ketchum, Mazie Bowers of Burley, Brown of Rupert, June Carey of Burley, Elsie Gibson of Burley, Joan Higginbotham of Jerome, Rachel Kircher of Burley, Roy Mason of Wendell, Joan Sargent of Murtaugh, Beverly Stone of Burley, Ingrid Strube of Twin Falls, Chady Ward of Twin Falls and Elizabeth Bosted of Sun Valley.

The exhibition may be seen through Nov. 3 during regular business hours at Metropolis.

For more information, call Joan Sargent at 432-5207.

District School Board meets Monday

DIETRICH — The Dietrich School Board will meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the business room.

The superintendent's report includes the lachryose program, sheriff's office request for software, Red Ribbon Week, enrollment comparison for 1979-1997, the dress code and the general fund five-year comparison.

Unfinished business discussion will focus on the technology policy's second reading, the Chapter V policy and facilities.

Under new business, the board will address a safety bus, bus, tournament expenses, a vision and mission statement, crossover sports and activities, the immunization policy, senior/freshman day and administration of medications during school hours.

A closed executive session to discuss personnel will conclude the meeting.

BOISE

Gaylord E. 'Pete' Choate

Gaylord E. 'Pete' Choate, 83, died on Wednesday, Oct. 8, 1997, at a Boise nursing home.

A service will be held 11 a.m. Monday, Oct. 13, 1997, at Summers Funeral Homes, Boise Chapel. A graveside service will be at 4 p.m. Monday, Oct. 13, 1997, at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. Visitation will be held from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 12, 1997, at Summers Funeral Homes in Burley. Pete, one of six boys, was born Sept. 25, 1914, in Arkansas, the son of Sam and Reenie Fyfe Choate. He hopped a freight train at the age of 14 and came to northern Idaho to live with his older brother. He joined the Marine Corps to defend his country in 1942. He became a Sargent in the South Pacific, where he also was wounded on Guadalcanal in 1945 and received the Purple Heart. He was hospitalized for one year, and after his recovery, he moved back to Gooding. He married Gladys Treas in Gooding on Jan. 5, 1946.

Pete went back to work for Idaho State Crop Improvement Association in Buhl, and then they moved to Twin Falls. He became the Southern Idaho Regional Director of the Association. He retired in February 1981, and his wife died in 1982. He continued to work summers until 1991. He moved to the Veterans Home in Boise in 1986, where he resided until his death. He was a past Post Commander of Twin Falls D.A.V.

Pete was an avid outdoorsman. He loved to hunt, fish, and camp and never missed an opportunity to take his adored grandchildren into his adventures. His grandnephews, and nephews, and friends were the source of much joy in his life. He spent many long weekends on his property in Murphy's Flat Springs along the Jarbridge River. Anybody who knew and loved Pete will also cherish the memories of these times. Pete had a great love for animals.

Pete is survived by his grandson, Fred and Tore Choate; Gary and Rhea Choate; Gay and Glad Hill; grandchildren, Jeremy, Thayne, Amy Amber, Anna, Kaitly, Michelle, Chelsea, Gabriel, Coleste, and Anton; many nieces and nephews; and a great friend and companion, Margie Treas. He was preceded in death by his wife, Gladys.

Memorials may be sent to Idaho Humana-Society, 4833 Dorman, Boise, 83726; and Idaho State Veterans' Home, 320 Collins Road, Boise, ID 83702.

Spud-plant protestors appeal to highway district

By Kurt Friedmann
Times-News writer

BURLEY—Possible neighbors of Idaho Supreme Potatoes Inc. tried another avenue to stop the potato-dehydration plant from locating in their backyards.

Riverway Highway District commissioners considered a "letter of concern" from neighbors Thursday morning, asking whether the board intended to allow the plant to lay a wastewater pipeline along the district's roads.

Highway District Attorney Richard K. Smith said there was already a tremendous precedent for granting such an easement, but the commission had not received a formal request, "so we don't want to speculate."

"The board will make a decision is the public's best interest," he said.

The letter also questioned commissioners' authority in granting a request for anything other than "public interest, such as phone service or power lines."

Smith said the highway district has a 50-foot right of way for construction of highways on public lands. The district controls that same area even after the road is built. So construction along the road within 25 feet of its center is within the district's jurisdiction.

The district's right of way comes from an 1866 federal statute that stipulates it must be approved by local officials, which was by Cassia County commissioners in June 1915, Smith said.

"The Burley Highway District is charged with the use and care of public right of ways," he said. "So the letter's statement isn't strictly true."

Newly elected District Commissioner Bart Bowers said he thought the plant was a good idea. Bowers owns the 80 acres along the Oakley rail spur that Idaho Supreme is considering for the plant site.

"I really think they're a good outfit," he said. "I had no idea we had to take so much heat on this."

Bowers said he had toured their operation and the new plant would be much different. He said the plant will find use for about 6,500 acres of potatoes.

"All that will be kept right here in this area," he said. "The farmer will definitely benefit."

Benefit or not, the commission decided to hold any formal decision until they receive a request from the potato company for an easement.

Burley city administrator to retire in January

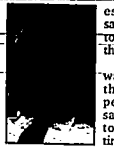

By Kurt Friedmann
Times-News writer

BURLEY—After the first City Council meeting of the year, on Jan. 5, 1998, City Administrator E.E. "Bud" Brinegar plans to resign from the position he has held for 25 years.

He began his career with Burley when he was known simply as a city clerk instead of administrator, and the pay was much less.

"It had been remaining for a number of years," he said of his choice to apply for the clerk's position. "I thought I would try something different."

A quarter of a century later, the 75-year-old Brinegar said he will miss his association with the public the most. His day-to-day involvement in the city's operation has kept him busy and interested, but he said it was time to enjoy other things.

"Time has a way of doing things with people," he said. "I'd like to take some time and enjoy my family."

With a farm in Meridian and some rentals he owns, he said, "I have enough to keep me busy."

In his years of service, though, Brinegar has worked for only three mayors, including current Mayor Frank Bauman.

"When I came into office I didn't know Bud, but over the years we became very good friends," Bauman said. "I hold him in real high regard."

Brinegar, who hails from a farm just outside Hebron, Neb., said the mayor was a close personal friend and he was glad to work with him.

As a teen, Brinegar said, he grew tired of life in Nebraska and decided to hoist his bedroll and hitch his way west - he ended up in Idaho.

"I wanted to try to find my future," he said. "I left home with $18 and made it to Twin Falls."

After his foodstore years Brinegar decided to settle in Burley with his wife, Virginia, and raise two children. As a Burley resident, he said among the accomplishments he is most proud of are the city's purchase of 7/8 acres southwest of Burley and consolidation of area law enforcement.

"There use to be three different departments in one building. There would be a fender-bender and state, county and city police would all show up," he said. "They're much more professional."

Although consolidations and purchases are everyday occurrences for a city administrator, Brinegar said, he couldn't have done all he did without great department heads and city councilmen.

"I have been lucky enough to work with a lot of great people," he said.

City Councilman Curtis Mendenhall said Brinegar made the right choice in deciding to step down.

"He recognizes that changes need to be made," Mendenhall said. "It's time for some new blood and new ideas."

Rupert woman missing after boarding Greyhound

By Gregory Hahn
Times-News writer

RUPERT—Last Saturday at about 2 p.m., Annette Ralph boarded a Greyhound bus outside Missy's Discount Center to start a two-day journey to her parents' home in Moreno Valley, Calif.

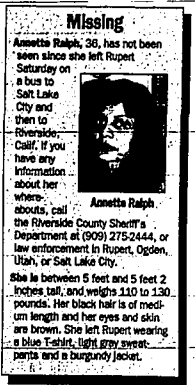

She hasn't been seen since.

The Rupert resident was dropped off at the bus station by her ex-husband Virgil Ralph and their 7-year-old son. She was headed to Salt Lake City, where she planned to change buses and leave for Riverside, Calif., at 10 p.m.

But when that bus arrived in California around noon the next day, she was not on it.

"Her mother and I are devastated by the lack of news," said Rudolph Khan, a retired plant pathologist at the University of California at Riverside.

"He recognizes that changes need to be made," Mendenhall said. "It's time for some new blood and new ideas."

Annette Ralph

leave no record of the passenger's name, explained Salt Lake City bus station manager Michelle Smith. When the passenger gets to a bigger hub such as Salt Lake City, the ticket can be exchanged, and a permanent computer record created.

But few passengers do this, she said. And Moreno Valley police learned, whether Annette Ralph made the connection or not, she never appeared in the computer.

"She could have got off anywhere," Crowley said.

Wherever she is, Khan said, she needs frequent thyroid medication. He has been checking hospitals between Rupert and Salt Lake City frequently, but to no avail. And he doubts she would have just mysteriously left them and her young son.

"I am a scientist," he said. "I believe there has to be a cause and effect."

sted of medical professionals, local business owners, area residents and former commissioners - voted 6-3 to pursue a private option.

"Actually, I'm extremely disappointed in the way the situation has been handled," said Veronica Lierman, a former county commissioner who chaired the committee.

Lierman said she is concerned by an apparent close relationship between Commissioners John Tootson and Prescott and staffers with Unistar Enterprises, a bidder for the service contract.

"I feel that commissioners Tootson and Prescott have allowed the service to be destroyed from within: it will be interesting to see what happens with the bids," Lierman said.

"We have offered that contract to the world," Prescott said. "We are not setting up any single business but we need to get a reasonable response for Jerome County at a reasonable cost.

Larry Wood - a former Jerome County Emergency Medical Service administrator and now the director of Unistar Enterprises - said he has no special ties to Prescott or Tootson.

"We've worked for a year develop an arm's-length relationship with Jerome County," Wood said.

Wood said he has had no input on the most recent request for bids. He did offer suggestions for a similar bid proposal which went out more than a year ago, but he was on the county payroll at the time.

Wood said Unistar is aggressively seeking the county contract and has interviewed potential employees - to get an idea of how much the contract would cost, and to be able to start business quickly if it gets the job.

Unistar, a paramedic level service, is comprised mostly of former Jerome County EMS employees. It also carries the contract for handling an estimated $142,000 in outstanding EMS collections for the county.

Prescott admitted the number was high.

"But we've been higher and historically that number has been lower," Prescott said.

Prescott said he had heard from Unistar, Magic Valley Regional Medical Center's paramedic crews and a Boise company but no bids had been due as of Wednesday night.

Bids are due at 5 p.m. Commissioners were expected to take all proposals under advisement.

Wednesday, discussion centered around a water-ski pond basin, located in the Bellevue Triangle. The county protested the pond's use, but the landowners prevailed. A court ruled last year the use was an allowed one.

Bringing other county ordinance ideas born out of one landowner's well-publicized battle with the county, Baldwin fears the water-ski pond could make life miserable for those who don't abuse water uses or privileges.

The county still is tinkering with the idea of an "inholdings" ordinance - governing use of priate property surrounded by public lands - a concept conceived after Hyndman Creek Road residents Norman and Carol Rye built a large home out East Fork Canyon surrounded by public lands.

The ordinance is stalled indefinitely, because many fear it's constitutionally unsound. The water policy could draw the same concerns.

And Baldwin especially fears the policy could delve into the fragile area of water rights transfers.

"That, too, makes me really, really nervous," he said.

When the policy idea first was announced last spring, it came under criticism.

At the April meeting, four attorneys opposed such a policy in concept. The consensus was the idea should be drastically simplified or withdrawn.

But officials have forged on with a modified version.

A year ago, Blaine County commissioners took a more active role in water rights issues when officials said the county wanted to open lines of communication with the IDWR when proposed uses weren't in sync with local interest.

But defining local interest is key.

And Wednesday, the committee grappled over wording in the draft but didn't get in defining local interest and what uses fit the term.

Baldwin doesn't want another policy to expose the county to unnecessary litigation. And he said some county policies are really special-interest policies.

"Right now they're talking about uses, but experience tells me they could go further," Baldwin said. "I've seen river rules made more by the fisherman who lives in a condo than the guy who lives on the water. That's not fair."

doors last year. Because program funding allows for only 128 students anyway, Michel said, it makes no sense to combine the centers and save on rent.

"But we still bus all the kids within a 10-mile radius of the old center," Head Start supervisor Laura Espinoza said. "That was part of the deal we made with parents before we closed it."

Part of the money problem is that Idaho's 30-year-old Head Start program is one of only a few nationwide that still doesn't receive any state money.

The other problem is the federal government only allots so much, so Mini-Cassia's Head Start can't ask for more. And there's really no chance this will change in the next few years, Espinoza said.

Until it does, Burley's Head Start center is training other child care providers and parents to help those that remain on the waiting list.

And elementary schools in both counties have also implemented programs for 3- to 5-year-olds, but only children with a serious learning or physical disability can qualify.

Cassia County Special Services handles about 60 children a year, including eight children who also qualify for Head Start.

"The difference is we have to take all the kids that qualify for our program," center Director Rich Davidson said. "But we work with Head Start to help as many as we can."

G-Man: Controversial play sorts the private life of J. Edgar Hoover

By Kristan Kennedy Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — J. Edgar Hoover's life and career were, of necessity, dictated by secrecy.

Just how secret will be played out on stage Sunday in the controversial tale of the former FBI director, "Never Settle the Night."

Jim Strahs' play takes place in Hoover's office, and is one author's view of Hoover as a man tortured by his own secrets and his repressed homosexuality. The piece has drawn great criticism and also great reviews, said Jonathan Kane, organizer of the Sun Valley Performing Arts Festival.

"It's a wild piece, and kind of scary," Kane said. "It's this author's view of history. To say the least, it's a pretty interesting character study."

In Strahs' view of Hoover, the audience sees a man who, while obsessed with hunting down communists and homosexuals, was a cross-dresser himself.

"It's debatable whether Hoover was a cross-dresser or even gay," Kane said. "But if there's one theme to Hoover that seems consistent, it is that he was, at times, in the middle of his own personal insanity."

Hoover ran the FBI from 1924 until he died in 1972. Under his leadership, he was known for his vigilance against communism and his tendency towards the eccentric.

The play, which is the finale of the Sun Valley Performing Arts Festival, features New York actor Bill Raymond. Strahs wrote the play two years ago with Raymond in mind for the title role.

Richard Hefer of Ketchum will play Clyde Tolson, Hoover's right-hand man and purported lover. Raymond will double as columnist Walter Winchell.

The play is directed by Linda Haranin, a visual artist and set designer from New York. Haranin has worked with the Mabou Mines for 20 years, the ground-breaking company for experimental theater.

Strahs will be on hand for the Sunday performance, and will lead a discussion following the play. Today at noon, he'll conduct a workshop on playwrighting at Conclast Bookstore in Ketchum.

least part-time with the Dresden State Orchestra until two years ago. Now 33, he still has a home outside Berlin.

"You need a strong base," Vogler said. "That is very important."

This fall, Vogler is scheduled to tour the East Coast and play in Singapore, as well as performing in Germany. He'll spend December in a recording studio working on his new CD.

"I tour about eight months of the year," Vogler said in a telephone interview from his home in New York City.

"Traveling is fun, but one needs a station in the middle. Otherwise you feel homeless."

On Sunday, he'll bring along his favorite 1712 Italian cello to play one of his favorite pieces, Antonin Dvorak's Cello Concerto in B minor.

"It's the most gorgeous piece for cello and orchestra," Vogler said. "It is very romantic — and outstanding work of Dvorak."

The symphony will also perform Idaho State University music professor Peter Earles' "Oklahoma Elegy," which he wrote as tribute to victims of the 1995 Oklahoma City bombing that killed 164 people.

"This whole piece is a betrayal of the Americans I want through," said Earles, an Oklahoman nurse.

Following Sunday's concert, the Magic Valley Symphony League will host a reception honoring Vogler and Earles in the Eagles Nest in the Taylor Administration Building.

The symphony is directed by Ted Bulley.

Season tickets, which are $14 each, can be purchased at the CSC Fine Arts Center box office beginning Sunday's concert.

FLIX AT THE VIDEO COUNTER

Tupac Shakur's strange elegy

By Stephen Hout The Washington Post

"Gang Related" has some problems, all story related, but it has no problems, performance related.

It illustrates again the tragic futility of the death of Tupac Shakur, who possessed a fragile but powerful screen charisma rare enough in any age, but particularly rare in an era of beefy superheroes.

It follows on his other posthumously released film, "Gridlock'd," in showing his immense potential. The irony, I suppose, is that the young man's need to be an alpha male, a "gangsta," got him killed, but his best screen identity and the persona to which his directors almost all responded and documented was of a softer, more troubled personality, a young man at the end of his troubles.

That's exactly who Shakur is in Jim Kouf's "Gang Related." The film stars L.A. homicide detective named Rodriguez whose partner is Divinzi, a comically brutal cop played by Jim Belushi. The two have hit on a neat scam: They set up dope dealers, sell them heroin, then murder them, keeping both heroin and money. As they see it, they are being well rewarded for acts of civic hygiene.

What sets the movie in motion is that one of their victims turns out to be not a dealer at all, but an undercover DEA agent. This leads to a useful story formulation, not new to pulp fiction, but always a lively premise: the cops in charge of catching themselves.

But Kouf, who has a gift for street-level cop shenanigans (he wrote the original "Stakeout"), has even more fun with this one. The plot continually refuses to be predictable, and the story moves smoothly from dark farce to courtroom drama to menacing melodrama to a final, Hitchcockian twist ending that leaves justice satisfied, if not the law pleased.

Gang Related
Who's in it? Tupac Shakur, Jim Belushi, David Paymer.
What's it rated? R.
Where's it playing? Twin Cinema.
Should you go? It's a cut above the standard guns-and-gore cop movie.

New videos in Twin Falls area stores this week:

"Anamorphic" (PG-13) — A documentary film crew (including Eric Stoltz, Joe Cube, Jennifer Lopez and Owen Wilson) goes looking for a lost tribe in the Amazon. But evil stranger Jim Vinig leads them instead into the lair of a giant anaconda. Make that a 40-foot anaconda, a special-effects sucker that can leap through the air and drupe you in coils faster than you can say "Michelin Man."

"The Story of the Terrible" — The suspense is restricted to mundane slasher-movie tactics. And despite an impressive array of special effects and shots of real snakes, this monster is never convincing. Slither away before you see this. Contains violence, gross-out and minor sexual situations.

"Beneath" (R) — Cinema-anthropologist Jack Green's disorienting debut explores a Southern tribe of limbless blinders who are limbless and night-blind. They only rely on their other senses, Bully (Bill Paxton) is a traveler who takes on Par (Mark Wallberg), who wants to become a traveler through this father who was virtually expelled for marrying an out-sider.

Christopher Soderlund will dance at a Twin Falls studio Saturday.

Dancer presents 'Afrojam'

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Boise-based dancer and choreographer Christopher Soderlund will present "Afrojam," a dance-based workout, on Saturday at the Lori J. Head School of Dance, 434 Main Ave. S.

Two workshops are planned, one for youngsters through age 6-11 from 10:25 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and one for students 12 through adult from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Soderlund, a Boise native and a professional dancer for 16 years, recently returned to Idaho after three years in Madrid, where he was the principal dancer and featured vocalist in Europe's largest stage show, "La Scala," and where he was the featured dancer in "Gala de la Hispanidad," a live television show.

Soderlund describes "Afrojam" as exercising the body, mind and spirit to the beat of world music.

Cost of the workshops is $5 for youngsters and $8 for adults. For further information, call Lori Head at 736-3998.

Brad Pitt undergoes spiritual transformation in 'Seven Years in Tibet'

Combined wire service

Movies playing in south-central Idaho this weekend. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times and Knight-Ridder Newspapers reviewers.

• "Air Force One" — The president's plane is hijacked and only the man himself, played by Harrison Ford, has the moxie to take on the bad guys. (R, for violence.) (Metro-Vue Drive-in)

• "The Edge" — What makes this traditional tale of men trying to survive in the Alaskan wilderness worthwhile is the on-screen rivalry between Anthony Hopkins and Bart the Bear, two consummate professionals who hold nothing back. (R for language and some adventure gore-violence.) (Twin Cinema)

• "G.I. Jane" — Demi Moore is tough the way other people think they're tough in this old-fashioned combat movie directed by Ridley Scott, about a young woman who wants to be a Navy SEAL. (R, for language and combat violence.) (Metro-Vue Drive-in)

• "Gang Related" — Jim Belushi and the late Tupac Shakur are detectives at the center of this tale of murder and police corruption. Lela Rochon, Dennis Quaid and James Earl Jones are among the supporting cast. (R, for strong language, some violence and a scene with nudity.) (Twin Cinema)

• "George of the Jungle" — If you're looking for something silly, this live-action version of the 1950s cartoon about a would-be Tarzan who keeps banging into trees is the place to go. (PG, for crude humor and mild violence, language and sensuality.) (Twin Cinema)

• "Hercules" — It might not be the stuff of classical studies, but the 25th Disney animated feature is definitely a classical gas. This irreverent fun imagines Here as a sports superhero, the Michael Jordan of the Hellenistic world. G (double-entendres, cartoon violence too intense for children under 5.) (Twin Cinema)

• "In & Out" — Frank Oz's far-stolen nuclear warheads. (R for strong violence and some language.) (Twin Cinema)

• "Rocket Man" — Scientist Harland Williams creates comedic chaos on the first manned (and unmanned, with love interest Jessica Lundy) mission to Mars. (PG for language, crude humor and thematic elements.) (Century Cinema)

• "Seven Years in Tibet" — Brad Pitt stars in a story based on Heinrich Harrar's memoir, about the spiritual transformation he experienced on a Himalayan sojourn in the 1940s. (PG-13 for some violent sequences.) (Twin Cinema)

• "A Thousand Acres" — Michelle Pfeiffer and Jessica Lange triumphantly share the screen as embattled siblings in this adaptation of Jane Smiley's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel about the bonds and burdens of kinship and a gift that shatters a family. (R for some strong sexual language.) (Twin Cinema)

• "Men in Black" — Tommy Lee Jones and Will Smith are the kings of cool as government agents determined to keep visiting aliens from messing up planet Earth. (PG-13, for language and sci-fi violence.) (Twin Cinema)

• "Most Wanted" — Keenen Ivory Wayans is a Persian Gulf war hero trying to elude a capture on the streets of Los Angeles after being framed for assassinating the First Lady. (R, for violence and language.) (Twin Cinema)

• "My Best Friend's Wedding" — Julia Roberts detaches herself as Hollywood's romantic princess by playing the evil pretender who sets out to destroy her ex-boyfriend's nuptials. (PG-13, for profanity, mature situations.) (Twin Cinema)

• "The Peacemaker" — Action aplenty as George Clooney and Nicole Kidman costar as brave Americans trying to track down adventure written by David Mamet, which means that the real predators in the scary forest walk upright. Anthony Hopkins is a billionaire whose model wife (Elle MacPherson) may or may not be involved with photographer Alec Baldwin; when a plane carrying both men crashes in the Alaskan wilds, they're forced to depend on each other for survival. Rated R, violence, language. (Ski Time 4 Cinema)

• "Kiss the Girls" — Except for the riveting performances by Morgan Freeman as a forensic detective and Ashley Judd as a near-victim of a serial killer, you could kiss this off. Great acting, but almost zip suspense. (R, profanity, nudity, violence.) (Ski Time 4 Cinema)

• "Seven Years in Tibet" — Brad Pitt stars in a story based on Heinrich Harrar's memoir, about the spiritual transformation he experienced on a Himalayan sojourn in the 1940s. (PG-13 for some violent sequences.) (Twin Cinema)

• "Kiss the Girls" — Except for the riveting performances by Morgan Freeman as a forensic detective and Ashley Judd as a near-victim of a serial killer, you could kiss this off. (R, profanity, nudity, violence.) (Century Cinema)

• "The Peacemaker" — A technical accomplished but soulless thriller, the first release from Steven Spielberg's DreamWorks studio finds George Clooney despatched to seek hijacked nuclear weapons, not to mention a part that puts him on the big screen. R (violence.) (Jerome Cinema)

• "Spawns" — Literally blown to hell by his evil boss, a government assassin (Michael Jay White) is resurrected as a soldier in the army of the devil and the devil's lieutenant on earth, a wretched, flailing clown (John Leguizamo). Rated PG-13, violence, language. (Jerome Cinema)

Lock of hair signifies much

WHAT'S WHAT? L.M. Boyd

Q-When was free-traffic-cocaine outlawed in the United States?
 A- In 1914. With the Harrison Narcotics Act. It had been a key ingredient in many patent medicines. People hadn't yet learned the rudiments of it...
 Animals in the wild rarely fight to the death.
 Was a long ago when a lock of hair symbolized the body and soul. When a woman gave a lock to her gentleman friend, she was delivering everything, saying, in effect, "Whatever the question, the answer is yes."
 Under "Circuitry Miniaturization" said this: More than 50,000 nerve fibers go into your pituitary gland, and it's no bigger than a pea.
 In a barnyard's flock of chickens, the pecking order becomes sharply defined. Mix in another flock too quickly, and the pecking order is destroyed. So any bird pecks any other bird. Feathers fly and blood flows in a carnage of the dying and the dead. Sociologists once studied this phenomenon at length as though it were a mystery. Not so much anymore, though. Now they study road rage.
 Intoned Benjamin Disraeli, deeply: "Man is not the creature of circumstance, circumstances are the creature of man."
 Under the Norman laws of old England, a man convicted of adultery paid his fine to the king, but a woman convicted of adultery paid her fine to the church.
 Q-What do Germans mean by "the three K's"?
 A- Kinder, kirche and kuche? A long-outdated term, that. It once defined the sole role assigned by German men to German women: children, church and cooking.

SUN VALLEY — Eight years ago, a crowd of 2,700 came to the Sun Valley Lodge to hear a little Dixieland jazz.

Nearly 7,000 more than 1,200 are expected to tap their feet to jazz, ragtime and swing tunes from the 1920s, '30s and '40s.

Wedged between summer carousing and winter's chilly skiing pleasures stands the Sun Valley Swing 'N Dixie Jazz Jamboree. Jazz sounds waft around Ketchum and Sun Valley, beginning with the opening ceremonies at 5 p.m. Wednesday and ceasing late Sunday, Oct. 19.

Originally designed as sort of a Woodstock for senior citizens, the jamboree now attracts an audience of all ages.

"Our goal is to encourage young people to play and listen to this music," said Tom Hazzard, a retired Boise businessman and the jamboree's founder. "It's the only purely American art form, and we should be proud of it."

More than 75 jazz groups each year send demo tapes to Hazzard, hoping to be chosen for the October festival.

"Every band in the world wants to come," Hazzard said. "Including the Greentown Jazz Band from — of all places — Ljuzjiana, Slovenia."

"You hear Swedish bands playing to Germans, singing in English," he said. "English is the language of jazz."

Music begins at 9:30 a.m. on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday at a dozen sites around the Wood River Valley.

Twenty-five bands play the jamboree, alternating with 12 Idaho groups including high school swing bands. Each performs for 75 minutes.

Among the locations scheduled for the jamboree are the Sun Valley Opera House, Sun Valley Ice Rink, Sun Valley Lodge Dining Room, the Duchon Room, River Run Lodge, Warm Springs Lodge and the Elkhorn Saloon.

The jamboree also includes a number of special events, including salutes to Glenn Miller, Duke Ellington and Benny Goodman.

Six bands are new to the jamboree this year: Bill and Eddie, a California duo; Draga Vasa Connection; Fulton Street Jazz Band; Greentown Jazz Band, and the New Reformation Band from Saginaw, Mich. Returning favorites include the Hot Cats Jazz Band, Hot Tomatoes Jazz Orchestra, Queen City Jazz Band, Stumptown Jazz and Uptown Lowdown Jazz.

Gov. Phil Batt will open the jamboree in the Sun Valley

Indoor Ice Rink at 5 p.m. Wednesday, bringing out his clarinet for a few blasts to show his enthusiasm.

Michigan band headlines First Fed's jazz night

TWIN FALLS — If it's all the same to you, Dave Oppermann would rather you didn't call his jazz repertoire "dixieland" band.

"Dixieland jazz is sort of confining as a label," said Oppermann, founder and major domo of The New Reformation Band, which will highlight First Federal Saving Bank's annual jazz night on Tuesday at the Magic Valley Mall. "We play everything from big-band music to swing to traditional jazz."

Oppermann and a friend, a trumpet-playing Congregational minister, fell in love with dixieland jazz in Saginaw, Mich., where they both lived at the time. Twenty-seven years ago, they hit upon the idea of a jazz church service.

"It turned out great," said Oppermann in a telephone interview from Saginaw, where he owns a travel agency. "And, yes, we did play 'When the Saints Go Marching In.'"

Although the band's repertoire is now largely secular, it still does some sacred music — and a few church services. "Jazz and gospel aren't that far apart, you know," Oppermann said.

He and his bandmates play about 100 dates a year, and not all of them have quit their day jobs. Drummer Milt Sernick, for example, sells welding equipment and wire.

"Our trumpeter, Dave Tattrow is the city manager of Otsville (Mich.), where he owns a funeral and pizza parlor," Oppermann said.

In addition to the music Tuesday night — Jim Mair's College of Southern Idaho Jazz Combo will also perform — there will be hors d'oeuvres and a no-host bar, plus a raffle of original work by local artists. They include Chris Bolton, Dale Hom, Rebecca Hom, Roy Mason, Sheri Conroy, David LaMure, John McClusky, Janet Thomas and Bonnie Eisen-Tario.

All the proceeds from Tuesday's event will go to the Magic Valley Arts Council.

Technology improves, worker output doesn't

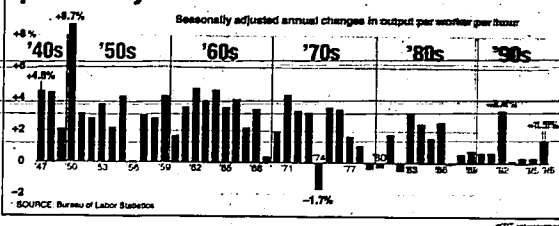

But measures may be flawed, some warn

Krip/Herder News Service
SAN JOSE, Calif. — It's a paradox that threatens the future of Silicon Valley: The billions of dollars invested in computers and other technology don't seem to be making American workers more productive.

According to government statistics, productivity — the value of goods and services a worker can produce in an hour — has been growing sluggishly for about 25 years, with few signs of recent improvement.

These numbers are at odds with popular perceptions — and dozens of daily decisions by business owners and managers. "I take Google, for instance, who is sure that the $6 million they're spent on computers and training in the last seven years has made Alain Pineda Realtors Inc. more productive. When her brokers enter a new listing, the information automatically is routed to the company's database and Web site, as well as an areawide listing taken by other real estate firms. At the touch of a few buttons, brokers can summon all sorts of data for prospective homebuyers, from the sale prices of nearby homes to test scores in the local schools." Aided with phone mail, e-mail and pager, everyone at the firm is available 24 hours a day.

Where's the productivity?

But you can't find the evidence of this new efficiency in the statistics. The paradox stumps economists.

"Nirvana ought to come, but it keeps slipping away," said Frederic Scherer, a professor of public policy at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School. The issue is of more than academic interest. Improvements in productivity are crucial to higher living standards because they allow the nation to produce more goods and services without higher prices. The average wages of American workers, adjusted for inflation, stagnated in the mid-1970s, about the same time the nation's productivity growth slowed dramatically.

U.S. productivity has yet to show big gains from the addition of technology to the workplace. But some economists believe the benefits of technology have been hidden and will soon be apparent.

For Silicon Valley, the stakes are even higher. Business spending on technology has fueled the region's boom. If it turns out that computers don't add significantly to productivity — or even if that view gains wider credence — that investment could slow dramatically.

Most economists think that's unlikely. They believe that technology really does make the nation more efficient, but the improvements don't show up in the statistics because the measuring tools are flawed or because society is still climbing the technological learning curve. Even Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan has reported to tweaking the numbers in an attempt to demonstrate faster productivity growth.

"A lot of these benefits are going unmeasured," said Erik Brynjolfsson, a professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Sloan School of Management who is teaching at Stanford University this year. But as the presumed benefits of technology fail to appear in successive government reports, skeptics have begun to question the conventional wisdom.

"There's a lot of hype," said Stephen Roach, chief economist for Morgan Stanley & Co. "There's a lot of evidence in the overall macroeconomy to suggest that there's been a mis-back from billions spent on information technology."

Roach and others argue that business has essentially been misled by lousy accounting. They contend that managers never account for all the costs of computers: the hardware, software, the technical support, the training and even the lost time while employees figure how to make the machines work.

The Gartner Group, a Connecticut-based consulting firm, estimated last year that a networked personal computer costs a company an average of $13,200 a year. But these dollars are scattered across corporate budgets — or not counted at all. And if managers don't know how much computers really cost, they can't know if they're getting their money's worth.

Roach blames "a phenomenal increase in the sales force of Silicon Valley" for diverting corporate managers from honestly calculating the costs and benefits. But when businesses catch on, he warns, the consequences for Silicon Valley will be severe.

"The next recession, whenever it comes, will be the first recession of the information age," Roach said. Most economists aren't so worried. Greenspan, for example, has suggested that hidden productivity improvements help explain why the economy is now in its seventh year of expansion, with unemployment at 5 percent and few hints of inflation.

Mortgage rates remain low, despite bump

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Mortgage interest rates fell this week to the lowest level in nearly 20 months, but quickly nudged higher after Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan's inflation warning.

The decline in the average rate on 30-year fixed-rate mortgages to 7.26 percent — which came a week earlier brought the average to its lowest level since the week ended Feb. 15, 1996, Freddie Mac, the mortgage company, said Thursday. However, anyone thinking of locking in a pending mortgage or refinancing an existing one may have missed an opportunity for the lowest rate. That's because bond market rates — which serve as benchmarks for mortgages — bounced higher Wednesday after Greenspan warned investors of the risk of higher inflation.

Economists are predicting mortgage rates will drift up this year and probably next year, although not drastically. Robert Van Order, chief economist at Freddie Mac, said he expected next week's average to range between 7.3 percent and 7.4 percent.

Rates have fluctuated this year with financial markets' nervousness about inflation. This year's peak was 8.18 percent during the week ended April 3.

Wife's illness leaves husband stewing on the sidelines

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been married for 40 years and have three grown daughters who live a few miles from us. Last year, my wife had a stroke that left her physically incapacitated and requiring daily care. She is unable to stand, walk or even get out of bed without help. Our daughters come to visit at often as they can and help with her care.

DEAR ABBY
Migal
Katzman

Their visits usually go something like this: Daughter arrives, knocks at the door and comes in. She nods at me, asks how I'm doing, then heads for the bedroom. From then on, however long the visit lasts it's "yakety-yak, blah-blah-blah" with Mom, the hired caregiver or each other if more than one daughter is here.

My daughters talk to me only if there's a problem involving finances or bills. Otherwise, it's

"Gotta run. Bye, Dad. See you later!"

I realize I'm not the best of company. I've never been good at idle chitchat or mingling with people, and the present circumstances don't help any. But it would be nice to be included in the loop occasionally, even though I'm not exactly bubbling over with joy these days. In the past, I've tried explaining my feelings to my wife, but all I got was a sarcastic "Oh, you poor dear!" From my daughters I get, "Think positive, Dad, be upbeat." Then off they go to talk to Mom while I sit in the living room alone. I feel left out of my own family. Your opinion, please.

—GOOD OLD DAD

DEAR GOOD OLD DAD: It's not too late to make a change. Be honest with your daughters. Let them know you'd like more than the limited conversations you have had with them until now. Begin by asking them personal questions. If you "hear" only "yakety-yak, blah-blah-blah," the situation won't improve. If you listen when they answer, you and your children may discover you're finally getting to know each other.

Smith thanks players in emotional sendoff

The Associated Press

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — He said he lost his enthusiasm for a game he has loved a lifetime, and loves still.

And in explaining it all, he lost his composure.

Dean Smith retired as basketball coach at North Carolina on Thursday, a job that lasted 36 years, produced two national titles and raised him to the pinnacle of his profession.

year and resign after the season. Can you imagine how many rocking chairs at different places I would get and them all acting like they like you? I've seen that all too often.”

With students gathered outside, pressing against windows, his North Carolina team entered a packed room of about 300 reporters, former players, faculty, staff and friends inside the Smith Center. Dean Domett just moments before the coach. His players were somber, shocked that Smith had chosen to retire so suddenly.

Rams sweep Bruins

Undeclared Rams prove too much for TF; key match due next week

By John Derr
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With a dominating front line and scrappy defense, the Highland Rams remained undefeated in Region III volleyball with a 15-9, 15-3, 15-7 victory over the Twin Falls Thursday.

The Bruins fell to 2-4 in league and 8-10 overall. Twin Falls will battle Minico and Burley next week in important matches that will determine seeding for the tournament.

Highland improved to 7-0 in league play and 20-6 overall, clinching the top seed for the tournament.

“They (Highland) played well tonight and they hit through our blocks,” said Twin Falls coach Mike Federico.

Normally a solid serving team, the Bruins ended the night with nine service errors. “We tried to be aggressive and serve strong,” added Federico.

Despite the loss, Twin Falls had some shining stars. Kelsey Kleinkopf was a force at the net, finishing with seven blocks and three kills. Brooke Clarke led in kills with seven while Lisa Levings chipped in a balanced attack of five kills, two blocks and an ace.

Highland used a rotation of 10 players that kept two big hitters at the net throughout the match. The system worked as five Rams ended the night with at least five kills. Joy Kugler led Highland with 12 kills.

In game one, Highland came out strong, building a 5-1 lead. Lisa Levings smacked an ace to stop the run. With the Rams leading 9-5, Sarah Jensen served up four points to tie the game at 9-9, the last coming on a kill by Kleinkopf.

That would be the end of the scoring for the Bruins as Highland's Kugler scored on a pair of kills and blocks to close out game one.

The second game was all Highland. With four players recording multiple kills, the Rams dominated. Teresa Thomason had an ace and Kleinkopf had a pair of kills for the Bruins scoring.

Teresa Thomason handles a serve in the second game of the Bruins loss to Highland Thursday in Region III volleyball action.

The Bruins were not about to give up as they battled hard in the first game. A block and a kill by Kleinkopf took it to 5-5, but the net play of the Rams was again too much as they held Twin Falls to just two more points before finishing the match.

Federico kept the focus of his team on the tournament in two weeks. “When it comes to tournament time every team is

0-0. We need to be ready to put it together for a week.”

“We stayed strong fundamentally and each player did their job,” said Highland coach Tammy Christian.

“Consistency was the key and we have been working on focusing on every match.”

Highland also won the junior varsity match 15-10, 15-2.

Winless Warriors come to Twin Falls

By Damen Clow
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The players call it “The Hex,” and Beau Barry is this week's accused.

When his collarbone broke in the fourth quarter of last week's win over Boise, Jake Robertson became the second Bruin backup quarterback to have his season ended by injury.

Last night, Robertson joins Dane DeBoer and his injured knee on the sidelines as Twin Falls (4-1, 1-1 in Div. I West playoff pod) tries for its second straight pod win and second straight win over Meridian (0-5, 0-2 in pod).

The game will be televised on KSAW Ch. 3 at 7 p.m. and carried on KLD/AM 1310.

“Barry will be the third backup this season to Bruin quarterback Ryan Jund, who has thrown every Twin Falls pass, netting 589 yards in five games. Sophomore team quarterback Jared Burly will also be available for action.”

“It's going to hurt us more defensively.”

“I don't think they feel they can protect up front very long,” Schaal said.

The Warriors have size on the offensive line, but their lack of team speed — and a one-back offensive scheme that features a sophomore fullback — has the Bruin-coach expecting to see a lot of three-step drops and short passes.

so we told them we have to respect every team and try to avoid any let-down,” Schaal said.

home-field advantage.

“Preparation has been pretty simple this week,” Schaal said. “Now it's just a matter of execution.”

Elsewhere in the pod, Centennial and Capital put their undefeated pod records on the line against each other, and Borah looks for its first pod win against Boise, which must win to keep postseason hopes alive.

Tribe surges late to tie O's at 1-1

Night-Rider News Service

BALTIMORE — The Baltimore Orioles arguably played the deepest, most talented bullpen in baseball.

Center fielder Marcus Grissom mocked it in defiance with one swing. Grissom's three-run, eighth-inning home run off Orioles right-hander Armando Benitez gave the Cleveland Indians a 3-1 lead Thursday night before 49,131 at Oriole Park at Camden Yards.

Thus, the Indians will return to Cleveland for Game 3 of the best-of-seven American League Championship Series tied at one victory apiece.

Grissom stepped to the plate with two outs and runners at first and second base after Benitez issued walks to catcher Sandy Alomar Jr. and pinch hitter Jim Thome. Grissom then deposited a 1-1 fastball into the bullpen beyond center field for the game-winning hit.

The home run ruined the performance of Orioles right-hander Scott Kamieniecki. Orioles manager Davey Johnson intended to start Kamieniecki in Game 5 on Monday, but a pour outing by left-hander Jimmy Key foiled that plan.

Kamieniecki gave the Orioles three scoreless innings of major relief and appeared on the verge of earning the victory. Orioles shortstop Mike Bordick delivered a two-run, sixth-inning single off right-hander Charles Nagy that gave Baltimore and its vaunted bullpen a 4-2 lead.

Key, who during the regular season pitched 212 1/3 innings, again demonstrated the effects from the workload. The 36-year-old left-hander went 1-2 with a 2-5 earned-run average before the All-Star break but posted a 5.68 ERA during his final 11 starts of the regular season.

Key's late-season swoon continued Thursday night, and he emerged fourth.

Undeclareds take the weekend off

High school football in the Magic Valley tonight will be as much about who is not playing as it is about who is.

Buhl and Hagerman, undefeated in six games, are taking the weekend off.

The Indians finish their season with their two conference games against Wood River and Jerome, while top-ranked Hagerman has three conference games remaining — No. 5 Oakley, No. 3 Raft River and No. 4 Murtaugh.

Wendell, in a three-way tie for the second playoff spot in the Canyon Conference, has a bye, as does Minico, who trails first-place Madison by one in A-1, Div. I.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Faxon shoots way into quarters

VIRGINIA WATER, England - Brad Faxon's World Match Play quarter-final match against Colin Montgomerie is being called as "Ryder Cup II." Faxon isn't buying it.

Brad Faxon of the United States watches his fairway shot on the 15th hole Thursday in Virginia Water, England.

Worsam defeated Jesper Parnevik of Sweden 4 and 3, and Singh ousted Tsukawa Watanabe of Japan 4 and 3.

Waldorf's 63 gives him PGA lead

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. - Since he finished fourth in the Texas Open 2 1/2 weeks ago, Duffy Waldorf has spent most of his time away from golf and the rest of it trying to keep his newfound putting stroke working.

Waldorf was 2 under after going out on the back nine, then had two streaks of three straight birdies in finishing his bogey-free round. He capped the afternoon by hitting a 4-iron to 4 feet on the par-4 9th.

Waldorf is 63, which is 10 strokes better than the next closest player, Tiger Woods, who is at 73.

Jazz star: Grips not about money

SALT LAKE CITY - Utah Jazz forward Karl Malone has a number of complaints, but money is not one of them, he said.

Malone has been complaining since just before training camp opened in Boise, Idaho. He returned to Salt Lake and held a news conference Wednesday night at his home.

Malone said his comments earlier in the week that he feels disrespected by team management have been misconstrued.

Malone's apparent suggestion that he might leave Utah after his contract is up sparked a firestorm of indignation. The reaction prompted Karl Malone to call local radio station on Thursday and spend six minutes defending her husband.

Though he acknowledges being disgusted by the grandeur of some contracts being signed - Minnesota's Kevin Garnett recently signed for $12.3 million - Malone says everybody has missed his point. "It's not about money," he said.

Malone said he felt betrayed when Jazz owner Larry Miller failed to back him up when Malone ripped his teammates who arrived at camp in Boise out of shape. "I was disappointed that Larry said I was just spouting my mouth off," said Malone. "That showed me no respect... It should have been, I agree with him."

Ravens' back expected to appear

ROCKWALL, Texas - Baltimore Ravens running back Byron "Bam" Morris is expected to turn himself in in response to an arrest warrant issued as part of an attempt to revoke his 10-year probation on a drug conviction.

Morris' attorney, Jay Ethington, said his client might also turn himself in early next week but is taking no matter very seriously. Ethington said Morris could surrender as early as Friday or as late as next week.

District Attorney Ray Sumrow of Rockwall, 25 miles east of Dallas, sought the arrest warrant. He said he violated two conditions of his probation by using alcohol and by failing to report to his probation officer seven times from July 1996 to August 1997.

Martin bumps Muster in Austria

VIENNA, Austria - Unseeded Todd Martin started and finished strongly in a 6-4, 3-6, 6-4 victory over No. 6 Thomas Muster of Austria in the $600,000 CA Trophy tennis tournament.

The tournament's top remaining player, No. 3 Steed Mann of Croatia, beat Chris Woodcock 7-6 (7-4).

Martin, ranked 51st, continues to improve after being out for six months with an elbow injury. "I had a good start, and finished very well. I played my best tennis at 54 in the third set."

Sawamatsu, Coetzer advance

FILDERSTADT, Germany - American Mary Joe Fernandez lost to Narko Sawamatsu of Japan and Amanda Coetzer outlasted teenager Anna Kournikova Thursday to reach the quarterfinals of the Porsche Cup WTA tennis tournament.

Sawamatsu beat Fernandez 6-2, 0-6, 6-3 in a baseline duel that saw the American lose the momentum after an easy second set.

Coetzer, the fifth-seeded South African, needed all her experience and stamina to prevail over the 16-year-old Kournikova 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Courier still alive in Helsinki

SINGAPORE - Americans Jim Courier and Jonathan Stark and Swedes Thomas Johansson and Magnus Gustafsson won their matches Thursday and advanced to the quarterfinals of the Heineken Open.

Courier, the No. 3 seed, had a tough fight from the start in Australia before winning in a tiebreaker, 6-4, 7-6 (7-2).

Stark, the defending champion, used his big serve to defeat Jiri Novak of the Czech Republic 6-3, 3-6, 6-3. Novak made some great passing shots, but couldn't compete with Stark's dominant serve.

Marlins' ace out for postseason

Alex Fernandez

MAMIAMI (AP) - Alex Fernandez hoped the exam would reveal only a sore shoulder. Instead, he was shaken by the most dreaded words a pitcher can hear: His rotator cuff is totally torn, his postseason is over, his career could be finished.

The Florida Marlins' plans for the NL championship series were scrambled Thursday by the shocking news that Fernandez, finishing up the first season of a $35 million, five-year contract, was done for the foreseeable future.

son, a year or a year and a half," he said, his voice cracking with emotion. "Hopefully it's less than the prognosis."

But there also was the possibility that the once-durable ace could be sidelined much longer, maybe forever.

Broncos prepare to welcome Aggies

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) - New Mexico State coach Tony Samuel did a mid-season critique of his team and decided the Aggies are spending too much time on the field on defense and not enough when they have the ball.

That combination translates to a 1-4 record. "We've got a little bit of a problem with possession time," said the first-year coach.

"Defensively, we're not getting off the field quick enough," Samuel and the Aggies hope to change that pattern Saturday when they meet Boise State in a Big West Conference opener for both teams. The game will be played in Boise, with kickoff at 7:05 p.m. MDT. "I think we match up physically," Samuel said. "We have similar packages and they run a few of the same offensive plays. Defensively, one or two of their schemes are similar to our schemes."

Boise State also is 1-4 from a rugged pre-conference schedule that included Wisconsin and No. 12 Washington State. Washington State pinned a 58-0 loss on the Broncos last week, marking only the second shutout in Boise State history.

New Mexico State, meanwhile, was beaten in overtime (38-35) by Cal Poly.

Defensively, one of the Aggies' biggest problems last week was their inability to stop Cal Poly on third down. Cal Poly is 14-for-18 on third down opportunities. Quarterback Nate Sparks is Boise State's offensive leader. He has thrown for five touchdowns and 893 yards and has 1,030 total yards.

he talked about his players - all of them. "What loyalty I've had, from my players..." Smith said, wiping away tears, then dropping his head for several moments while he tried to regain his composure.

"I knew some day this would be my last team. Yes, there is guilt. I look at their faces and I just couldn't handle that. I couldn't if I turned right now. But I still believe it's best for them unless I could give them what I want."

"I enjoy basketball. I enjoy coaching basketball," Smith said. "It's not out-of-season stuff. I didn't have a choice."

He couldn't really pin down major factors in his decision, though he mentioned his 66-year-old body was out of shape and overweight. "... when you're nearing 200 pounds at 5-10, it's time to do something..."

Mostly he talked about knowing what to do. "I've been saying for the last eight years or so maybe it's time to go something else."

Smith said he knew it was time to give it up when he saw former Tar Heel Larry Brown coaching the Philadelphia 76ers at training camp in Chapel Hill.

"Larry Brown always fires me up, watching him out on the court, the enthusiasm. I said, 'I used to be like that and if I can't give this team that enthusiasm I said I would give it up.' That's honestly how I feel."

He meant the many public appearances, autograph signings and speeches.

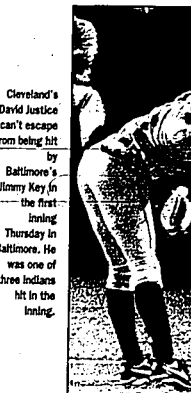

Chancellor Michael Hooker said he tried to talk Smith out of his decision, but didn't press the coach.

"I didn't try as hard as I might have because I respect Dean. I know what he said. 'He knows what he wants better than I do, and it would have been selfish for the institution to impose on him an obligation that is not appropriate for the circumstances.'"

The 60-year-old Guthrie was on a long-term contract if approved by the UNC Board of Trustees.

"This isn't quite the way I had envisioned the way we'd receive the years," Guthrie said. "I had hoped Dean and I could go out together and ride off into the sunset in five years..."

"I didn't stay around here for 30 years hoping Dean would leave. My goal was to go out when he did, but I'm not ready to go," he said.

Cleveland's David Justice can't escape from being hit by Baltimore's Jimmy Key in the first inning Thursday in Baltimore. He was one of three Indians hit in the inning.

Key hit three batters during the first inning, and would issue two walks and add to a three-ball count on seven of 21 hitters.

The lack of command became apparent during the first inning. Indians shortstop Omar Vizquel pitched after being hit with an O-I

The next two pitches would be strikes, the second of which Ramirez sent into the bleachers in center field for the Indians' 2-0 lead.

The Orioles, though, tied the score during the second inning off Nagy. First baseman Rafael Palmeiro lined a leadoff double into right field and scored on a one-out, two-run homer by third baseman Cal Ripken.

Cowboy fans could be wining after this week too

By Dave Goldberg
The Associated Press

Even before they bombed last week in the Meadowlands, the Dallas Cowboys were struggling. Now they go to Washington for Monday night game they're ALLY need - a loss and they're at 500, a game behind the Redskins in the NFC East with no guarantee they can get out of the hole.

Someone still believes in the Cowboys: they're 2.5-point favorites on the road.

But home field often means little in this heated series, nor does the relative abilities of the teams. In 1989, when the Cowboys won one game all season, that win was in Washington.

A statistic of interest: The Redskins lead the league against the pass, but are next to last against the run and allowed Philadelphia 203 yards on the ground last week. Dallas, meanwhile, is the only team in the NFL without a touchdown rushing - Emmitt Smith, who was averaging a TD a game in his first eight seasons, hasn't scored yet.

Maybe that the Cowboys need is Norv Turner, who used to be their offensive coordinator. Unfortunately for Dallas, he coaches the Redskins.

REDSKINS, 20-4

Miami (plus 3.5) at New York Jets

NFL International is ballooning this game overseas as the battle of the super-center coaches. Tom Landry would love that. But Turner would love even more winning the division from the Pats, something that's long been possible.

JETS, 20-6

Philadelphia (plus 3.5) at Jacksonville

Roy Rhodes has never lost a game in October. The streak stops here, mainly because Rhodes' front office couldn't land Mark Brunell when he was available and settled for Ty Detmer.

JAGUARS, 28-22

Green Bay (minus 11.5) at Chicago

The Bears stayed with the Packers on opening night. They're dirtied new, but the Packers aren't playing very well.

PACKERS, 20-10

Buffalo (plus 8.5) at New England

Whoa! The Bills tie down for no one.

PATRIOTS, 20-17

Detroit (plus 6) at Tampa Bay

The Lions are as schizoid as they were in the Pontiac. Here they lost to the Bucs in Pontiac. Here they won.

BUCS, 24-9

Carolina (plus 3.5) at Minnesota

The problems in Charlotte are deeper than the Kerry Collins-Stevie Berson exit.

VIKINGS, 27-10

St. Louis (plus 14) at San Francisco

Oh, to play in the NFC West. 49ERS, 31-13

Atlanta (plus 2) at New Orleans

Feyton Manning might play in the NFC West, too. SAINTS, 16-12

Indianapolis (plus 11) at Pittsburgh

Only one thing to say about the Colts: they're the best useless team in the NFL. STEELERS, 27-10

New York Giants (plus 4.5) at Arizona

This game goes to the defense that forces the most mistakes. The Giants offense makes more. CARDINALS, 16-10 (overtime)

Cincinnati (plus 2) at Tennessee

Red Devils edge Pirates in volleyball

The Times-News

HAGERMAN - The hometown Pirates ran up an 8-1 lead over Murtaugh on Thursday's non-conference volleyball match, but a momentum shift and smart play gave the Red Devils a 15-13, 15-13 victory.

"Murtaugh started coming on and he hit pretty well, and they played a little smarter than we did," said coach Susie Choules, whose Hagerman squad falls to 10-5 on the season. "They had some well-placed tips and some good serves, too."

Gooding def. Wendell 15-5, 15-9

GOODING - The Senators created a three-way tie for first place in the Canyon Conference volleyball standings with a two-game victory over Wendell.

Gooding, Wendell and Filer stand at 8-2 in conference games headed into the final week of the regular season. "We didn't play when we played them the first time," said Gooding coach Jenny Koski, referring to a Trojan win at Wendell Sept. 11. "We played what we're capable of tonight."

Jami Nebeker had eight kills and Amy Koonce added Carrie Low had each kill.

The Trojans took the junior varsity match 15-7, 15-7 and the freshman match 15-6, 15-11.

Filer def. Glenns Ferry, 15-10, 15-4

FILER - The Wildcat volleyball team kept its grip on what is turning out to be a tight Canyon Conference volleyball race, beating the visiting Pilots in two games.

Filer recorded 26 kills on 54 attempts, led by Kelli Coon's seven. Setters Naomi and Marci Richards had more than 60 assists with just one setting error. Kim Lanning added four aces for the Wildcats (19-6, 8-2 in conference).

Jamie Waters led Glenns Ferry with five kills. The Wildcat junior varsity won its match 15-8, 15-10, and the freshmen prevailed 9-15, 15-8, 15-8.

Jerome def. Burley 10-15, 15-9, 15-12

JEROME - After an opening-game setback, the Jerome Tiger seniors came away with victory on Thursday's "senior night."

Alyce Goodby, Angela Kuhl, Stephanie Ballis and Katie Babcock received high marks from coach Mike Thompson.

"They just came out tonight and got the job done," Thompson said. "All four of them really played well."

TWIN FALLS

Alynn Reynolds' week turned sour in a hurry last Friday, and now he and two football teams are feeling the pinch.

Reynolds is a teacher, athletic trainer and football offensive coordinator at Twin Falls High School. This year, he is taking Fridays off - hea coach Mark Schaal guides the Bruins effort to watch his twin sons Aric and Adam play for Buhl.

Last Friday, Aric, Buhl's junior quarterback, was injured on the play just before halftime of the Indians' 25-13 win in Kimberly. He was hit while throwing on a rollout.

The pass was intercepted, Aric's collarbone was broken, and father and son later took off to Twin Falls, stopping at Bruin Stadium to consult with one of the Bruins' team doctors, Dave Spritzer.

"It was kind of funny, because I was walking in with Aric and (Spritzer) was walking out with Jake," the elder Reynolds said.

Jake is Jake Robertson, Twin Falls' junior wide receiver, who had just broke his collarbone in the fourth quarter of Twin Falls' 34-16 win over Boise.

"(Spritzer) said it's a fractured clavicle, and I said, 'How would you know? You haven't ever looked at him,'" Reynolds continued. "Then I introduced him to my son, and we took them to get x-rays."

"Sure enough, the x-rays looked pretty much the same, just on different bodies."

Robertson caught a 25-yard pass from Ryan Jund; setting up a score in the Bruins' 34-16 win, and received the hit near the Bruin sideline. The impact fractured Robertson's collarbone on the right side, while Reynolds' is broken on the left.

Both Twin Falls and Buhl are in serious contention for post-season play. The Bruins can conceivably clinch a spot with one over-playoff-pod for Meridian, while Buhl (6-0) is off to its best start in years since it was a bye week before its two conference games.

"Both of them should be out 4-6 weeks, if everything goes right," Alynn Reynolds said. "It just has to heal up."

"division this year. So what makes this game so big? The Bobcats' only plus heading into it. The Hawks have never played in Burley, and their first time doing so will be on their hosts' homecoming.

Small school Game of the Week

Raft River at Mackay

The past two years, the winner of this match has gone on to state and excitement of winning the state A-4, 11-man championship.

The two teams - which met in the state championship in 1995 - represented the Magic Valley Conference in last year's state playoffs. The Miners won the state title, while the Trojans lost to Nampa Christian in the semifinals. Mackay has already lost twice after an undefeated '96 campaign and will want revenge on its home field against the Trojans and their new coach.

Not too big but can't really call it a small school Game of the Week

Kimberly at Declo

The Canyon Conference gets two representatives in the state playoffs. As assuming the Pope stays Catholic and Glenns Ferry remains its spot, the race will be between Kimberly, Declo and Wendell.

Unless the Hornets (4-1) can pull off a last-game miracle at Glenns Ferry Oct. 24, they'd best beat the Bulldogs (3-2).

Local sports

Declo def. Kimberly, 15-8, 15-5

DECLO - The Hornets evened their conference volleyball record at 5-5 with a win over Kimberly on the team's "senior night" Thursday.

Elise West had seven aces, while Schrenk and Lisa Erikson were perfect from the service line, and coach Tanya Rigby praised the all-around play of Alices Turner and the front row work of Emily Turner.

Carey def. Bliss, 15-8, 15-2

BLISS - After a shaky start, the Carey Panthers had little trouble with the host Bears in a Southside Conference volleyball match Thursday.

"The first game of the match we played very well, and it was close," said Bliss coach Diana Butler, who praised the serving of Panther junior setter Lindsay Barton. "We just didn't have the mental toughness, I guess."

Bliss falls to 2-8 in conference play and faces Dietrich Tuesday.

Shoshone sweeps host tri-match

SHOSHONE - The Indians upped their volleyball record to 11-9 with two wins in a tri-match with Camas County and Castelford.

Jenny Oneda and Karen Pardollan had 16 service points each in the opening set, while Oneda over the Mubers, and Annetta King had 10 service points in the 15-0, 15-1 win over the Wolves.

Castelford outlived Camas County in the third game, 15-3, 18-20, 15-10.

The Indian junior varsity fell in both matches.

Ketchum def. TFCA, 15-6, 12-15, 15-13

TWIN FALLS - In its last game of the volleyball season, the Twin Falls Academy volleyball team fell short to the Ketchum girls.

Still, TFCA coach John Burklow credited Jenny Speicher with an all-out effort defensively and Rachel Dawson and Emily McElroy with solid offense.

Jill Mayer, ace of TFCA, kept the game alive with many spikes and effective passes. "They all played pretty well, and it was the best game we've played all season," Burklow said.

The Warriors finish the season with a 2-7 overall record. Ketchum won the junior varsity match 4-15, 6-15, 10-15.

Buhl splits at tri-match

AMERICAN FALLS - The Buhl Indians split a pair of matches at American Falls Thursday, falling to the host Beavers, 15-10, 15-4 before beating Marsh Valley, 15-4, 15-9.

The Beavers jumped to an 8-0 lead before Buhl scored. The Indians' middle attack kicked in and closed the lead to 11-0, but American Falls' strong middle block drove out the first game.

"They're a nice ball club," they're a state-caliber team," Buhl coach Roger Shield said in the same league as Preston.

After falling in the second game to the Beavers, Buhl (15-12) controlled the ball and got good play from its setters in the two-game victory over the Eagles.

Kalinda Brown led the Indians with 10 kills in the second match, earning the praise of her coach and a few bystanders. "Their coach commented, and the two officials commented, on how well she hit the ball," Shield said.

Poky def. Minico 15-13, 15-4, 15-8

RAFT RIVER def. Oakley 15-11, 15-12; No reports

Soccer

Burley G, Wendell O

WENDELL - Brook Thornton scored four goals and Shantala Sanders and Amy Strom kept a flawless goal as Burley's girls' soccer team prevailed 6-0 over Wendell Thursday.

Morgen Arnel and Haile Holmes added goals for Burley (4-6-1), who plays next Tuesday at Minico and finishes the regular season next week against Jerome and Buhl.

Buhl 8, ISDB 2

GOODING - The Buhl girls' soccer team earned yet another win, defeating ISDB 8-2 Thursday.

Buhl was the only team to score in the first half, leading 2-0 at the break. Buhl added six in the second half, including only one SDSB goal.

Jonathan Pereira and Brad Ross scored two goals apiece for Buhl. Teammates Jaime Moreno, Nick Numan, Chad Brown and Jeff Zinn, each added a goal.

Buhl moves to a 7-2-2 conference record. The Hornets' last league game will be on Monday against Wendell at 5 p.m.

ISDB plays Minico Tuesday at 4:30 p.m.

Ricks travels to CSI gym

By Karen Baumer
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - It's put-check time for the College of Southern Idaho volleyball team.

The Golden Eagles hosts Ricks Tuesday in a match that will show the depth of CSI's character.

Earlier this season, the Vikings ended CSI's three-year winning streak at 190 matches. Now, the Golden Eagles have a chance at revenge on their home court in a regular-season best-of-five games.

"I think everybody will be fired up to play," said CSI coach Ben Stroud. "We're just up and down. At times we look really good and times not so good. Hopefully, we can stay focused and put something together."

Stroud says Ricks came in a best-of-three games match with the third game quick score. In quick score, every serve translates into a point regardless of whether the Eagles served the ball.

That match should be fresh on the Golden Eagles' minds today, as Stroud sent assistant coach Claudia Fonseca to the players' dorm Thursday night with the game film.

The team struggled to contain Ricks' standout Mary Burningham. With her out of lineup last week, the Vikings lost a Region 18 match to Snow College.

play with love, and in a conference where all the teams are ranked in the state's top five, neither team (15-9 or Murtaugh 12-3) can afford any more losses. One of them is going to get one tonight.

Hansen at Camas County

The Mubers have had a week off between their crabsake schedule and their breakake one. Sure, 4-1 isn't good, but they have four tough games left, starting with the Huskies (3-3) and including state-ranked North Gem and Carey.

"We're just going to have to do a better job of using our block," Stroud said on containing Burningham. "Our block is so big we're just going to have to keep challenging her. She's a good hitter. She knows how to tool it, hit around it, hit over it. The biggest thing for us is to not beat ourselves."

"For those into rivalries, matches don't get any bigger than this. But this match means more than that. The Region 18 North Division race should come down to Ricks and CSI. A win here would put the Golden Eagles in good position for the No. 1 seed out of the North. CSI still has a road trip to Ricks left on its schedule."

"I'm kinda looking forward to it," Stroud said. "I just hope we get up and play hard."

Rockland (5-0) has to finish the season against the likes of Carey and North Gem. Shoshone doesn't.

The Indians (4-1) won't have a more important game the rest of the regular season, which they could easily close out with an eight-game winning streak.

THE WINSTON CUP CIRCUIT

WINSTON CUP SERIES
COMING UP: Oct. 12, Sears DieHard 500, Talladega Superspeedway, Talladega, Ala.

DALE EARNHARDT
DEFENDING CHAMPION: Jeff Gordon
OTHER FORMER WINNERS: Dale Earnhardt is the master of Talladega with seven victories overall and five in this race. Darrell Waltrip has four Talladega victories. Bill Elliott, Ernie Inzer,

ALMOST HOME COOKING

Many of the race fans attending Talladega events are lodged slightly to the east in the adjoining cities of Anniston and Oxford. As you might expect, "Barbecue" is plentiful in the area. One of the crowd's most popular spots, though, is north of Anniston at the "Top of the River," an informal seafood restaurant with colorful appetizers like the famous fried oil pickles.

of being buffeted about in the gigantic drafts. The slightest mistake can cause either a disastrous crash or a set of circumstances where the negligent driver is sent dramatically to the back.

AUTOMOBILE RACING CLUB OF AMERICA: Oct. 11, Mountain Dew 500, Dallas.
NOTABLE: Once again, Coopersville, Mich. driver Tim Stoele has dominated the ARCA series. ... A victory last week at Charlotte was No. 23 of Stoele's career, and he has won 18 times on superspeedways. ... Kirk Shelmerdine, once Dale Earnhardt's crew chief, finished an impressive third in the Charlotte race.

John Andretti

Mark Martin and Sterling Marlin have each won twice. Among the track's single winners are Kerry Schrader, Terry Labonte, Jimmy Spencer, Dave Marcis and Gordon.

THREE WHO COULD SURPRISE: Can Jeff Burton win here? Dale Jarrett? You bet, John Andretti? Absolutely.
KEY TO THE RACE: It's a wearying afternoon

FROM LAST WEEK

WINSTON CUP: Dale Jarrett picked up his sixth victory of the year, outrunning Bobby Labonte and Dale Earnhardt in the late stages of Charlotte Motor Speedway's UAW-GM Quality 500. Labonte highlighted a rare appearance of four Pointiacs in the top 10.

BUSCH GRAND NATIONAL: Jimmy Spencer and Mark Martin staged one of the season's greatest battles, with Spencer holding off Martin in Charlotte's All Pro Bumper-to-Bumper 300. It was

Mr. Excitement's second victory of the season in his No. 20 Chevrolet.

CRAFTSMAN TRUCK SERIES: Joe Ruttman picked up another SuperTruck victory on the road course at Sears Point; Sonoma, Calif. The race was a heartbreaker to Davey Hamilton, who crashed with a couple of laps remaining, and the final laps also featured some extra-curricular activities between Rich Bickle and Boris Said.

TWIN FALLS — Bruce Quale won his first Winston Racing Series Feature Division track championship in 1994, driving the Ike Dean owned Pro Stock car.

Since then, the feature division has changed to the Mountain Dew Modifieds division. Quale placed third in 1996 and took home the championship this season.

"This year's championship was totally unexpected," Quale said. "The first one was the best, but I hid the points standings from the first race that year."

Going into the last race this year, Quale needed the most points available for the evening to have any chance for the season victory. He did it by setting a quick time and then winning the event. Eddy McKean, who needed only a fourth-place finish to wrap up the championship, struggled in the last race to give Quale the championship.

Quale's wife, Dana, is now the crew chief. He is still the crew chief. He is helped out by Brad Schwartz and others. The K&K Country team won eight poles this year, more than anyone else. The team holds the track record for the feature division at 15.13 seconds.

The Katt Country team got off to a slow start and at one time was as low as sixth in the points standings.

"It was the most competitive season ever with four drivers having multiple wins and a fifth with one win," Quale said.

Quale and McKean finished with five wins, Dick Capps 4, Travis Metz 3 and Scott Lynch 1.

While racing for the lead in the race of champions the week after winning the track championship, Quale was involved in a tangle and ended up against the wall and a light pole.

The car was damaged beyond repair, so Quale plans to have a new car ready for the first race next year.

"I had planned to replace the car next year, but now I have little other choice," Quale said.

Bruce and Dana are looking forward to picking up his sixth-place award in the Great West division of the NASCAR Winston Racing Series at the banquet in Nashville.

This will be their second trip to this gala affair.

"We really look forward to going back and this time like and Teresa Dean are going with us," Bruce said.

He will pick up his track championship award at the Magic Valley Speedway awards banquet Nov. 22 in Twin Falls.

CREW OF THE WEEK
 At long last, the "dream team" of driver Dale Earnhardt and crew chief Larry McReynolds is perched on the edge of victory. Earnhardt has finished second, second and third in his last three starts, and Talladega Superspeedway now represents the team's best chance at ending that ubiquitous, 55-race winless streak.

At 95, Nhieu Thi Nguyen becomes an American

From Vietnam to U.S., journey ends in dream fulfilled

The Associated Press

LOGAN, Utah — In her day, nobody outworked Grandma.

Hoeing sweet potatoes, even the men couldn't keep up.

And when she saw that their rows weren't straight, she went back and did them herself.

"A perfectionist," her granddaughter Suzie Yeates calls her.

The sweet potatoes were about as sweet as life got for Grandma, at least until she left Vietnam.

Da Nang. What a place to spend the 20th century, which Grandma darned near did. At least, Vietnam offered the peculiar brand of strong cigarettes Grandma favored. In the United States she had to go clear to San Francisco for them, until she quit smoking, sometime in her 80s.

She did that cold turkey, a hard row to hoe, but important to her health. And without her health, Grandma may not have made it to 95 — and her appointment in Salt Lake City to take an oath of U.S. citizenship.

"She wants to be like me," says Suzie. "I'm the only one of her family left."

Suzie's a teacher at Hillcrest Elementary School. Her cousins are engineers and psychologists and such, and their children are college graduates.

Nobody works in a field any more, unless it's the infield where great-granddaughter Susannah (Sii) started for the Mountain Crest softball team.

Grandma's accomplishments were measured by instances of survival, first against Japanese invaders and French colonial troops, then the Viet Cong.

During the 1946-54 French-Indochina war it wasn't always fashionable to be French. If one was rumored to have French blood, as Suzie was, the rebel Viet Minh would show up by one's cradle.

Grandma, the child of monks, worries about her ancestors' fur-off spirits and who is tending their graves. She talks of being with Buddha, but has taken down the shrine in her room. The lines aren't what they used to be, when she would kneel up to four hours a day chanting.

She was married at 14. Grandma never laid eyes on her husband before he came to take her away. She didn't know him from the hill of rice she was selling in the market in Da Nang.

That's where this mountain range, sized her up. He sent a matchmaker to her home and the marriage was arranged.

Suzie remembers her grandma, her Hao as "very kind." He was a cook and, from time to time, a crook. In Grandma, but only did he get a mother for his daughter.

but also someone to take his place in jail.

"They needed him to work," Suzie says. "That is why men are valued more in our society."

Grandma went to work making in Hyrum, from whom she found husbands for her two daughters. One turned into a big shirt salesman and came in handy for Grandma later, when Da Nang fell.

She and him found a restaurant north of Hyrum, where the French were finally driven from Vietnam. Unfortunately, that dream came before the end of the month, leaving her customers half apologetic.

Later the restaurant which Grandma had done a well was stolen, and the restaurant's brick floor torn up. Finally, she and her son were also uprooted.

Staring on her sparsely kitchen table, Suzie looks through the family album. In the photo, the family looks sharp, dressed like ambassadors. There's a bearded man, scribbling down a Saigon check, humming with schlemes. Some men appear thin as wire — "he was shot by the French in the back," Suzie recalls of one.

That the album itself survived is a big miracle. It went along on each and every flight from danger. If only Grandma could have taken the house as well. On one occasion they found another family living there.

But not to worry. How Grandma acquired land, Suzie will never know, but there it was, "out of nowhere." She remembers being high atop a cart and her grandmother ordering workers about as they raised a house of wood and grass. Grandma eventually divided the land, sold half and on the rest built a bigger house with rooms to rent.

"My grandmother was always the decision-maker," Suzie says. But some things were beyond her reach. Especially things at Da Nang airport where her daughter lit work.

"That's when I came into the picture," Suzie laughs.

Suzie never knew her father, and scarcely knew her mother. The staffy daughter happened to be an interrogator for the French. When he took a tone to Ich, Suzie's father vanished. Ich died young in a stove explosion.

Grandma offered sanctuary. "Somehow he could find money," says Suzie, but it was no secret how Grandma did it. She worked. She raised vegetables and pigs, she planted trees, she did this and that and finally wound up a custodian in a French school where she worked until she was 55.

It's that French school, the Collège de Touraine, that Suzie misses most. It was her break in life, and Grandma made it. When Suzie returns to Vietnam, she'll make right for that school.

Although girls of Grandma's generation didn't go to school, Grandma taught herself to read and write. When Suzie came along, Grandma was determined that the girl would go to school no matter what people said. As the granddaughter of a custodian, Suzie could get a scholarship.

Suzie learned French which turned out to be "a bridge to English." She went to work as a bookkeeper in a nightclub at China Beach and then as a secretary in a U.S. Army depot. She's a beauty and an accountant from Hyrum, Randy Yeates, noticed.

"We are a new generation," Suzie says. "We forgot about the matchmaker."

Randy gave Suzie her last name, whoever gave her her first name was dashed and couldn't get his tongue around her actual name, Thanh. Even her nickname, My, was apparently too tough.

Suzie's paycheck went to Grandma, who he then was a widow. Hao had returned home and had a stroke while lifting a pig he'd put up for sale.

Pigs, slopping them, chopping banana trees for them, were part of Suzie's days too. She worked, marketed, and cooked for Grandma. But the war, which at first was marked only by the wounded in the streets was upon them now, with refugees from the north bringing terrible tales.

"Da Nang was hit by rockets every night," Suzie recalls. "Randy was really nervous."

Suzie and her baby Teresa left for the United States in 1971. She did not sleep easy. There was a recurring nightmare with Viet Cong chasing Suzie and her kids.

"It was a recurring nightmare of me getting out of here? Then I would wake up."

For two years, there was no news of Grandma. In Saigon, Suzie's aunt went every day to see who came off the ships. Watching television as the Viet Cong stormed towards Saigon, Suzie telegraphed her relatives: Get to the American Embassy.

"But they thought I was overreacting. They didn't think it was that bad."

Grandma, meanwhile, was safe enough, with her ration cards. She told the VC about her stepdaughters' high-ranking husband and that she had given a son to the war against France.

The Yeateses moved heaven and earth to evacuate her and the cousins, and the cousins' relatives. Trips to Washington, petitions, affidavits, fine print — when the dust cleared six families were safe and sound in Cache Valley.

When in 1981 Grandma flew into Salt Lake City, she peered at the snow and said, what nice white sand. Like China Beach.

A fall forced her to move from a senior citizen high-rise in San Francisco to Hyrum. When it was being said that non-citizens would be denied government benefits, Grandma started learning about the U.S. flag and the president.

It turned out to be only a scare, but why turn back? Grandma passed her test.

Decades after Korea, MIA's daughter returns to war zone

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In the four decades since her father was shot down in an Air Force bomber over North Korea, Pat Dunton has often tried to visualize the mysterious land where he and thousands of other U.S. servicemen are still missing.

Next week, for the first time, she will see it first hand. No more imagining from a world away.

Mrs. Dunton, of Coppell, Texas, leaves today to observe a human remains on a battlefield in the northwestern corner of Unsan. The site is a few hours' drive from the Yalu River bridge her father's B-29 had targeted for destruction before the bomber was knocked from the sky on April 12, 1951.

Here is a cure, if not unprecedented, visit to a country that for years ignored pleas from American families to help determine the fate of missing U.S. servicemen. About 8,000 servicemen are unaccounted for, Mrs. Dunton the 1950-53 Korean War among them her father, Lt. James S. Wilson Jr. of Memphis, Tenn.

"It's been a long time coming," said Mrs. Dunton, who has donated 240 acres of her life savings to finance together the painful search for her father's fate. She has no expectation that her visit will win concessions to her father's case. But she sees it as an indication North Korea might move further toward cooperation, including opening up more of its wartime archives and talking directly with other American families of missing servicemen.

"It's a start for the families, if we can get some cooperation," Mrs. Dunton said in a telephone interview. "If not, this is just a public relations move by the North Koreans."

Mrs. Dunton is president of the Korean War Cold War Family Association of the Missing, whose members are relatives of almost 800 unaccounted for servicemen. On her mission, Mrs. Dunton will carry letters from MIA families asking; the North Koreans to broaden the avenues of cooperation.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Bobby Wolff

"The pain others give passes away in their later kindness, but that of our own kinders, especially when they hurt our sanity, never passes away."

—William Butler Yeats

"He gave us the chance to beat him," confessed a repentant East. "Unfortunately, I wasn't up to the challenge."

Look over the play and decide what you would have done differently.

West led his heart deuce and South finessed to his queen, losing to East's king. East shifted to dummy's weakest suit, choosing his fourth-best spade to give partner an accurate count in spades. South ducked the spade to dummy's nine, forcing West to win his king. Now there was no longer an effective defense. South lost a trick to East's club king and made an overtrick.

What should East have done differently? It was correct to shift to spades, but it was wrong to lead fourth-best. It would have been better for East to envelop dummy's nine by leading the 10. If South covers, West's king wins, and the spade return establishes East's spades (Q2-8 over dummy's 9-0). And if South takes the club finesse, the game goes one down. (South can save his game if he finds the endplay.)

Where did South go wrong? He should never have given East his chance to shine. Instead of finessing in hearts at trick one, South should have won with the ace. This cautionary move would have ensured an overtrick and left the defenders no winning option for beating the game.

ALL MY CHILDREN

Kelsey asked Mike questions about being gay. Tim seethed at seeing Janet and Trevor on a date. Bianca called Dimitri after hearing Jack and Travis argue about her. Frederick, a psychic, gave Edmund a message from Maria. Brooke let her sexy side show as she posed for Jim. Tad became a reluctant hero. Next Week: Laura recognizes a voice from her past; Dimitri sets a trap.

ANOTHER WORLD

Josie survived being pushed out the window by Rayburn, but later experienced a devastating loss. Matt kissed Lila. Donna shocked everyone by accepting a job offer from Grant. Lila told Shane she was changing him. Carl told Rachel he suspected Alex was behind the accusations about his Carly's infidelity. Later, Carl confronted Matt and Amanda. Next Week: Felicia faces danger.

AS THE WORLD TURNS

After Lisa told Jack about Carly, he placed a call to Hong Kong. Carly told Molly Abigail is the key to getting Holden. Molly told Mrs. Williams she's Abigail's birth mother. Camille receives another threatening phone call. Carly moved when Jack fixed the old crib in the Kasshof house. Lily told Holden Molly is pregnant. Emily begged David not to move in with Lucinda. Next Week: David makes a decision that could change Emily's life.

BOLD AND BEAUTIFUL

Just as Taylor was about to tell a still angry Ridge he's the father of her baby, he lashed out at her saying he's glad they had no children together. Lauren was stunned when her sexy song for Eric turned him on, but in Stephanie's direction! Tony suffered a torn plectra. Dr. Santana told Thorne to keep Ridge away from Taylor since he may be the cause of her stress. Meanwhile, Tony called Ridge, who agreed to come over. Next Week: Sheila "proves" something to James.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES

Jack saved Jennifer from T.C. who later had Jack beaten up. Austin urged Go to recall the love she shared with Ellie and let Hope go. Meanwhile, John and Hope survived a fire and a rock slide, but then faced hostile natives and Kristen and Stefan arrived to save them. But John refused to leave the jungle without the orchid needed for Roman's cure. Marlena learned Roman is taking extra medication. Eager to fire in high style again, and unaware of Jonney's agenda, Vivian persuaded a worried Ivan to move into Jonney's town house with her. Sami set out for Rome. Next Week: Marlena faces a new crisis with Roman.

GENERAL HOSPITAL

After Bobbie told Luke of Susan's public humiliation of Katherine, he said they should get even. Luke later visited Carly after learning she was pregnant. A nurse told Alan the truth about Carly. Nikolas told Liz whoever set Sarah up had easy access to her purse. Jay brought a still unopened Evra to set at his penthouse where V later found her going through her pill box. Alan continued to take pills. The man looking for the doll was Felicia and Marie. Next Week: Tony told Bobbie the baby's due date.

GUIDING LIGHT

Buzz came to after being knocked out by a fall and assumed unable to recall his children, but appeared to be interested in Nola. Jon found his Cross Creek home in shambles, and a nameless woman on the floor. Billy gave Cassie the combination to his safe. Jenna and Vanessa vowed to help each other get through their pregnancies. Hart promised to help Cassie get through her problems. Next Week: Alan and Annie come up with (what else?) another plot.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE

Ta's tanning led Blair to toss her out a window. After speaking to Cassie about Dorzian, Mel asked Mary for her professional opinion. Dorothy told Mel about Maria's trip to New York before her death. Todd rejected Ta's advice to delay the custody hearing and acted as his own attorney. Cassie reconciled with Debra. Max made a tough decision about Al. Next Week: Tony faces against Kait.

PORT CHARLES

A drugged Scott mistook Lucy for Dominique. Karen told Kevin the 'I'll fight General Hospital to prove she's not responsible for the mistake on his case. Rex promised to deliver $40,000 to Jake for the DNA project. Matt confronted Boardman about the 'invisible man' treatment he's been getting. Joe and Karen asked Kevin about the shadowy figure he saw before he underwent surgery. Next Week: Scott lands in jail. Evidence is planted in Chris's locker.

SUNSET BEACH

Gregory rejected Olivia's warning that Cedric would never give up her baby to them. Helena, Cole's ex-fiancee, told Caitlin about him. Lopez Olivia hid in the bathroom when Cedric and Gregory arrived at Cole's room to confront his "mystery woman." Paula rejected Ricardo's plea that Gabi lied about the rape. Annie arrived in Kansas to continue discussing with Yun to keep Meg and Bea apart. Virginia decided to use Jimmy to keep Michael and Vanessa from going away together. Next Week: Olivia gets upsetting news.

YOUNG AND RESTLESS

After getting Tricia to leave her apartment at the point of a gun, Nina threatened suicide and was shot as Ryan tried to get the gun. Nina's survival was in doubt. Jill told Tricia Ryan was a suspect. While Victoria evaded Nikki's questions about her marriage, Ashley told Jack Cole is the special man in her life. The fertility specialist said Neil's tests were normal, but perhaps Drew should be tested. Cassie asked Grace and Tony to have a baby. Phyllis warned Brian she'll ruin his marriage if he tells Paul and Chris about their relationship. Next Week: Grace considers a perilous move.

Brad Maule: Waiting for Tony's moment of truth

Soap sums
Set Goals

Brad Maule, who plays Dr. Anthony (Tony) Jones on "General Hospital," and his wife, Laverne, have just introduced a new kitten named Niko to the Maule menagerie of assorted pets — most of which have been rescued from shelters or other facilities over the years. They hadn't planned on adding another animal to their already large contingent of critters that includes (at least) one other cat, two dogs, and 50 Koy fish.

"But you know how these things are," Brad said, "she sort of fell into our lap, and we're glad she did."

As for the Koy — which are a sort of Japanese goldfish — "We started with a few, and they just kept having babies."

Speaking of babies, Brad's snar after ego. "Tony, he's fathered the child Carl (Saul and Brown) is carrying. And since Tony Jones has been the epitome of the soap's "good guy" for, say, 13 years," he surmised, "he intends to marry Carly and — make — everything right."

But to make something right means something he'd had to first ask: How, could the kind, compassionate, sensitive Dr. Jones have gotten into this situation with this much younger woman in the first place?

"I think what's happened to Tony is a classic combination of not being able to deal with his ongoing grief over the death of his daughter, B.J., and a case of mid-life crisis," Maule said.

As while he's trying to, but used to say, "make an honest man out of" the Gary, what about all the signs that Carly hasn't been quite honest with him?

"I agree that he seems to be wanting his own," Brad said. "But, you know when people are closest to the situation, and you think they should be able to see everything, that's usually the last thing you'd expect. Up to the moment of the big revelation, they will be completely blind to the obvious."

Brad Maule

The story line gives strong indications that Carly's child was fathered by A.J. Quartermaine (Billy Warlock). The fans also know that Carly is the daughter whom Tony's former wife, Bobbie (Jackie Zeman) gave up for adoption when she was born. So far, only Luke (Anthony Geary), Bobbie's brother, knows of the connection between the two women. When the moment of truth comes, Tony will be caught in an avalanche of revelations.

Asked if he likes playing Jones as he currently goes through this period of delusion and confusion, Brad said, "I'm glad to do it as long as he can complete the circle."

He explained: "Tony is, in essence, a good person, and we know that he can't remain like this indefinitely. In some way, this will have to be shown as a temporary departure from who he really is. That means there must be a way to complete the circle, not only in terms of my character coming to his senses and getting his sight back — and, if I may digress a moment, as you know, Tony has been blind before, but in the literal, not figurative sense, and regained his ability to see — but also for the fans. A villain will never make the fans as angry with him as a good guy doing something stupid — as Tony has been very kind. So, we need to make the right for the fans as well."
