COMING DOWN

Dale Must prepares to demolish the old Alpenrose building in Ketchum. The demolition is the first step toward converting the site into the Thunder Spring project, a planned 235,000-square-foot complex including retail and recreational ingredients.

Job of fusing old, new starts at Thunder Spring

By Susan Bailey
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — City approvals are in, and the walls are coming down. Wareham Development this week pressed into action to turn the site of a former Holiday Inn, the Alpenrose hotel, into the home of the 235,000-square-foot project called Thunder Spring.

Walls were torn down Tuesday on the southern end of the complex, bringing down a structure housing an indoor swimming pool.

The air Wednesday was filled with dust and noise as the crunching jaws of a track hoe ripped out steel girders supporting a roof overhang, and lifted insulation panels into an enormous disposal container.

Removal of the swimming pool structure could have waited until the spring when construction of the initial group of new buildings takes place, but Wareham didn't want to wait.

"We're going to spend a bunch of money so people see we're serious," said Rich Robbins, principal owner of Wareham, a San Rafael, Calif., developer. "We wanted to bring about positive changes right away. People have been looking at an eyesore long enough."

The demolition is expected to take three weeks, said Dan Weatherbie, supervisor of the project for Kretzbeck Constructors Inc. Building the same structure would take about three months.

The Alpenrose, a remodeled Holiday Inn built by Norm and Judi Fuller in the early 1980s, is a steel and concrete building. Robbins said Wareham intends to keep much of the original building while

TB strains gain drug resistance

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — "Hot zones" of untreatable tuberculosis are emerging around the world and threaten a global crisis, the World Health Organization said Wednesday.

A study of 50,000 patients in 35 nations found that a third of the countries have a form of TB resistant to multiple drugs. Untreatable cases account for 2 percent to 14 percent of the world total.

That number is low, but WHO said lethal tuberculosis could spread rapidly because only one in 10 patients gets medical care appropriate to curb drug resistance.

"Hot zones" in India, Russia, Latvia, Estonia, the Dominican Republic, Argentina and the Ivory Coast have so much drug-resistant TB that it threatens to overwhelm local health systems, said the study by WHO and U.S. health officials.

Foes harpoon Makah whaling proposal backed by U.S.

The Associated Press

MONACO — A proposal to let Washington state's Makah Indians resume whaling after a 70-year baner met stiff opposition at an international conference Wednesday, partly because it affects the needs of other indigenous groups.

The joint U.S.-Russian proposal to the International Whaling Commission sought a shared quota of whales for the Inuits of Alaska and the Chukchi of Russia's eastern Siberia out of a stock that roams waters between the two countries. The Makah would get four whales annually as part of that deal.

The 2,000-member Makah tribe, which voluntarily stopped whaling decades ago because over-hunting threatened the whales, had sought permission to hunt five gray whales a year.

After heated debate, the U.S. proposal was postponed to allow more time to strike a compromise. It was not clear when the commission would return to the issue, but its annual meeting in Monaco adjourns Friday.

Scott Smullen, the U.S. delegation's spokesman, said "informal consultations" were being held to come up with ways to overcome the objections. "We hope to wrap this up tomorrow," he said.

The United States prefers a consensus decision to putting the issue to a vote. A lack of support last year led the Americans to withdraw their bid then to win permission for Makah whaling.

The commission has banned commercial whaling since 1985.

Clinton airs plan to battle warming

President outlines ambitious mission

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — President Clinton urged Americans Wednesday to join him in undertaking the most ambitious "environmental mission" in history, outlining a series of steps he wants the United States to take in advance of an international accord to combat global warming.

To make sure the country does its part to stabilize greenhouse gas emissions, Clinton announced plans to reward companies that reduce harmful emissions ahead of schedule, encourage energy efficiency with $5 billion in tax breaks and research and development, and develop a trading system that would allow companies that reduce pollution to profit by selling their leftover emission allotments to others.

In a strongly worded speech delivered at the National Geographic Society, the president warned the nation that failure to move aggressively would put the nation and world in peril.

"Many previous threats posed clear and present danger; global warming is far more subtle, warning us, not with roaring tanks or burning rivers, but with invisible gases, slow changes in our surroundings, increasingly severe climatic disruptions that, thank God, have not yet hit home for most Americans," Clinton said.

"But make no mistake. The problem is real, and if we do not change our course now, the consequences, sooner or later, will be destructive for America and for the world," he said.

At the same time, Clinton announced the long-awaited U.S. position on a proposed international treaty on global warming.

In international negotiations ongoing in Bonn, Germany, the United States will seek binding commitments from all industrial nations to reduce their emissions of carbon dioxide, methane and nitrous oxide to 1990 levels during the five-year period between 2008 and 2012. He called for further, unspecified reductions in the following five-year period. Current emissions are 7.5 percent above 1990 levels.

Environmental groups, which wanted the administration to set an emission target of 5 percent below 1990 for the second five-year period, criticized the president's effort as too modest.

"Unless we get a stronger deal in Kyoto, we will be passing this burden on to future generations," said Alden Meyer, director of government relations at the Union of Concerned Scientists, referring to the Japanese city where negotiators will draft a treaty in December.

Many representatives of business groups, meanwhile, warned that the president's proposal could starve the American economy.

"A 1990 level is a harsh level to meet and it acts like a vise" on economic growth, said Gail McDonald, chief representative of the Global Climate Coalition, which includes automakers and power utilities.

Business groups criticized Clinton for not providing an economic analysis or spelling out how American industry could grow while cutting emissions.

"He did not define how we are going to go on this strict energy diet that will be required to reach the 1990 levels of emissions," said Andrew H. Card, president and CEO of the American Automobile Manufacturers Association.

Obtrusive billboard or free speech?

Judge's decision sparks city sign moratorium

By William Brock
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Stung by a local judge's decision, the City Council hastily gathered Wednesday and unanimously imposed a moratorium on erecting new billboards.

The 120-day moratorium is aimed at giving city leaders enough time to rewrite the zoning code for "off-premises" signs, commonly known as billboards.

Wednesday's special meeting was called in response to District Judge Daniel Meehl's decision, earlier this month, that found the city's sign ordinance to be an unconstitutional restraint on commercial speech.

The city's ordinance "contains insufficient objective and definite standards ...," Meehl wrote.

Meehl's decision stemmed from an appeal brought by Kunz & Co., a California firm doing business as Idaho Outdoor Advertising. Specifically, Idaho Outdoor was appealing the city's denial of a request to erect a 12- by 24-foot, double-faced billboard at 468 Addison Ave. W.

The city nixed the request on grounds that the sign would not be compatible with building heights of the existing neighborhood, and that it would "impose a foreign or inharmonious element to the existing skyline."

Outdoor Idaho and the city have been wrangling over the request since 1995. The city's Planning and Zoning Commission and the City Council originally agreed to allow the sign — with the condition that Outdoor Idaho remove two other billboards at the West Five Points intersection.

The company appealed, maintaining its signs at West Five Points had nothing to do with its Addison Avenue request.

Meehl agreed the imposed conditions were unconstitutional and sent the matter back to the city.

Planning and zoning and the council denied the request on its second lap through City Hall; nearby property owners also opposed the proposal. Some council members suggested they would have approved the request if Outdoor Idaho had removed its West Five Points billboards.

Meehl's latest decision reverses the city's denial and directs the council to grant Idaho Outdoor's request.

ACROSS THE NATION

Clear except for the panhandle and southeast, clear to partly cloudy skies returned. Winds remained relatively light. In southern Idaho, winds increased to 15 to 25 mph in the afternoon. High temperatures ranged from the mid 30s to the mid 60s.
 East Cold Air riding across the relatively warm water of the Great Lakes picked up moisture and created scattered lake-effect snow showers in Michigan, Pennsylvania and New York state. Most accumulations were less than 2 inches, but 4 to 6 inches fell during the morning on the northeastern corner of Pennsylvania. Light snow also was scattered along the St. Lawrence Valley and adjacent sections of northern New England.
 Midwest: West of the Great Lakes, another area of snow spread across northeastern North Dakota and northernwestern Minnesota in Omaha, Neb., had its first big snow flurries of the season.
 Southwest: In warmer air across the southern edge of the nation, a low pressure area over Arizona sprang showers and a few thunderstorms across parts of the desert Southwest, with the rainfall moving from Arizona into New Mexico. Showers and a few thunderstorms also developed across southern Texas.

2 die as F-16, trainer collide over desert Thunder

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—A training jet collided with an F-16 fighter Wednesday over Edwards Air Force Base and crashed in the Mojave Desert, killing two crewmen.
 The F-16, with two Americans aboard, landed safely on a dry lake bed at the base. The crew members were not hurt.
 The T-38 Talon is a two-seat training-jet, used by pilots to learn supersonic techniques, aerobatics, formation and navigation. The crewmen—Air Force Lt. Col. William R. Nusz and Royal Air Force Leigh Alexander Fox, who was participating in a pilot exchange program—were killed.

 "There was an attempt at ejection," said Lt. Col. Bob Williams, a base spokesman, adding the bodies were found several miles away from the wreckage.
 "They did see a chute," added Maj. Falcia Tavares, an Air Force spokeswoman at the Pentagon.

 The F-16 that landed safely had minor wing damage. Those on board were Lt. Col. Richard Stevens and Capt. Nicole Blatt. Edwards is in Southern California and home to the Air Force Test Pilot School and is a space shuttle landing site.
 The collision was just after 11 a.m. MDIT. The planes were operating as chase planes on a photographic support mission for a B-1B test bombing run.

 adding new buildings to the complex.
 Warehouse Development is known throughout the East Bay area of San Francisco for renovations teamed with new structures. Its corporate office is a converted hospital; elsewhere, it has turned an old grocery store into professional offices, an old warehouse into a pharmaceutical laboratory, among other projects.
 Robbins said he comes from a manufacturing family, and has a love of old warehouses and commercial buildings from another era.
 "You can never get the character in a new building that you get in an old one," Robbins said. "I hate the skyscrapers. We create buildings that are good, productive places for people to work. People come up and thank me."
 Warehouse was founded in 1978; more than 4 million square feet of adapted buildings are in its portfolio.
 On the East Bay, Warehouse has undertaken Emery-Station Plaza, a 300,000-square-foot project including an Amtrak passenger station with links to public transportation.

 The project is scheduled for a 1998 completion, while Thunder Spring should see its beginnings in 1998.
 Robbins said he did not want to complete the Thunder Spring development in phases, although renovating more than 62,000 square feet and constructing more than 172,000 square feet might require it.
 More than 10,000 square feet is set aside for retail space.
 Another 93,000 square feet is earmarked for commercial use, including a proposed wellness center.
 Robbins said he literally stumbled onto the Alpenrose site.
 "I'd been looking at this place for 12 years, and one winter day when I was driving with my old friend Tom Heinrich, he got stuck in the snow," Robbins said. "We were stuck there and the building was nearby, so we decided to look inside."
 He said the buildings, most of them abandoned, were full of waterfalls from broken plumbing, and snow and ice.

 "It was like 'The Shining' and 'Dr. Zhivago' combined," said Robbins. But it didn't take long before his developer's brain started whirring.
 "He started, as developers will, to see the possibilities," said Tim Galien of Galien Associates, the public relations firm in charge of the Warehouse account.
 With the idea in mind of a four-season complex surrounded by a golf course in the summer and Nordic ski tracks in the winter, the two men studied the parcel.
 "This was 12 years coming, for me and the community," said Robbins. "I want to see something positive and viable on this hill, and it want the community to have it. We're all stoked to bring in the demolition crew and start."

Signs

 The Council still doesn't see things Meeth's way, which is why it voted 7-0 Wednesday to impose a moratorium on all new billboards.
 "If we allow something like this to go on unimpeded, we'll end up with a hedgehodge of signs throughout the community," said Councilman Art Frantz.

 Todd Jones, a Twin Falls-based Outlander Idaho employee, sat silently through Wednesday's meeting.
 Later, he said he was encouraged by the council's apparent willingness to let sign-industry representatives participate in any revision of the current sign ordinance.
 Still, Jones was bemused that his company can't win city approval for its request.
 "We're met everything that the existing code told us to meet," he said.

NATION IN BRIEF

As meeting nears, China wants U.S.

WASHINGTON — A week before Jiang Zemin meets President Clinton at the White House, the Chinese wanted the U.S. government Wednesday against meeting in domestic dealings from Washington to Tibet.

"We expect a conference in China's internal affairs," Embassy spokesman Yu Shengyi told reporters at a news conference. "We also cautioned the government to provide a safe environment for Jiang's working visit beginning Sunday in Honolulu. His itinerary includes several speeches, including one at Harvard University where protesters are expected. Human rights groups have promised to follow Jiang, whom Yu insisted is looking forward to "extensive contacts with all American people."

Vaccine for childhood virus passes hurdle

BOSTON — A new vaccine against the rotavirus, an infection that kills hundreds of thousands of children around the world each year, has cleared its last major hurdle, showing that it works in developing countries.

Rotavirus is the leading cause of severe diarrhea in childhood. While a major cause of illness in the United States, it strikes especially hard in poor countries. The vaccine has been tested on nearly 15,000 children and has already been shown to be highly effective in the United States and other well-off places. However, some experts wondered whether it would do as good a job in poor countries, where bad sanitation and infection with other viruses might muddle the work of the vaccine.

'Wizard of Oz' actor injured in accident

FENWAY FARMS, Fla. — Melvyn Frank, who played the Munchkin emperor in "The Wizard of Oz," was in critical condition along with his wife Wednesday after a car accident near their home in rural northwestern Florida.

Frank and his wife, Marie, both 82, were injured early Tuesday when their station wagon ran into the back of a van that had stopped to make a turn, witnesses said. A passenger in the van was treated for minor injuries.

Frank was one of the 124 members in the 1939 film classic and one of only nine who had speaking parts. He portrayed the emperor who pronounced the Wicked Witch of the East "not only utterly dead but really, most sincerely dead" after Dorothy's farmhouse landed on her.

Pact on repair bases frees defense bill

WASHINGTON — Ending a months-long impasse, lawmakers said Wednesday they are ready to bring a defense authorization bill to the House and Senate for final votes, a step needed to secure a full cost-of-living pay increase for the military.

A compromise over the distribution of billions of dollars and thousands of jobs repairing weapons at military depots cleared the way for the $200 billion bill, with its 2.5 percent military pay raise.

Civil rights choice backs affirmative action

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's nominee for the nation's top civil rights post, a former Republican on a Senate panel Wednesday by saying that a California anti-affirmative action measure was unconstitutional.

A federal appeals court recently upheld the measure, Proposition 209. An appeal is pending before the Supreme Court. This particular measure violates the protections of the 14th Amendment," said the nominee, Bill Lora Lee.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and other opponents of affirmative action have criticized the Clinton administration for opposing the referendum in Utah. Hatch said it is "essentially just reinforces the 14th Amendment" and ensures that government treats all citizens equally.

Mrs. Clinton: Help stay-at-home mothers

WASHINGTON — Hillary Rodham Clinton, herself a working mother, said Wednesday any program for improving child care should include help for stay-at-home mothers.

But as the first lady set down with reporters on the eve of her White House conference on child care, she offered no policy prescriptions and appeared to abandon ideas mentioned in appearances outside Washington just last month — including her proposal for a national registry of caregivers with criminal histories.

White House aides ignored warnings

Assistants checked on proposal opposed by fund-raiser

President and Nancy Reagan are shown in the East Room of the White House during his term in what Democratic senators say is a meeting during which he is asking donors for campaign money.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite warnings that White House involvement would be "disastrous" and "political poison," presidential aides contacted the Interior Department three times in 1995 about an Indian casino opposed by a Democratic fund-raiser, internal memos show.

The aides inquired about the pending decision and learned weeks in advance that Interior was likely to rule in favor of the wealthy tribes who opposed the casino, the documents show. The tribes later donated more than $270,000 to the Democratic Party.

The White House memos reviewed by The Associated Press show that a lobbyist-fund-raiser for a tribe opposing the casino pressed the White House to intervene. Federal court records show the lobbyist suggested to Democratic officials four days later that he could get some tribal members to attend a $1,000-a-plate fund-raiser for President Clinton.

Senate investigators are now looking into whether the lobbyist's contacts or the subsequent donations had any bearing on the administration's decision to block the Wisconsin casino.

The White House said Wednesday that its contacts were not an influence.

the department's decision and its way toward its final decision before the first status inquiry was made.

"There is no indication that any of the status information the White House learned was passed on to anybody outside the White House," his statement added.

The administration's decision has prompted a federal lawsuit by the tribes who were denied permission to convert a dog track in Hudson, Wis., into a casino.

The memos, turned over Tuesday night to Senate and House investigators, detail how lobbyist Patrick J. O'Connor's brief contact with Clinton on April 24, 1995, set in motion top White House advisers Bruce Lindsey and Harold Ickes, and later Democratic Party chairman Don Fowler.

They also show that presidential aides knew from the start that O'Connor had ties to Democratic fund raising and that some advised against any intervention with Interior.

"The legal and political implications of our involvement would be disastrous," Loretta Aveni, a White House specialist on Indian affairs, warned in an April 24, 1995, memo to Ickes, then the deputy chief of staff.

Domestic policy adviser Michael T. Schmidt sounded a similar sentiment in a memo that same day to the White House counsel's office. "We legally cannot intervene with the secretary of interior on this issue. ... It would be political poison for the president or his staff to be anywhere near this issue."

Those memos were prompted by a call Aveni received that day from Lindsey aboard Air Force One.

The documents said O'Connor, who represented a tribe opposed to the casino venture, had raised concerns with the president during a brief encounter at a Minnesota event.

Clinton faces political reality in siding with IRS overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — In changing course and joining the steamrolling congressional move to overhaul the Internal Revenue Service, President Clinton bowed to public opinion and political reality.

IRS reform was fast becoming the Republicans' best midterm election issue, and many Democrats were abandoning the White House and hopping aboard — including presidential hopeful Dick Gephardt of Missouri, the House minority leader.

Furthermore, the chief Senate sponsor of the overhaul plan — Sen. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska — was another prominent Democrat and, like Gephardt, a potential rival of Vice President Al Gore for the 2000 Democratic presidential nomination.

Continuing to defend the status quo could have proved an embarrassment to the Clinton administration — and a political liability for Gore.

The administration on Wednesday denied political motivation behind Clinton's about-face. White House spokesman Mike McCurry told reporters changes agreed to by sponsored the way for administration support. But a Democratic source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said new private polls reviewed at the White House earlier this month showed even more dramatically than public polls how anti-IRS sentiment was growing, and how popular an issue reforming the tax-collecting agency could be.

Inspectors find E. coli in beef from Canada

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. inspectors discovered E. coli bacteria in a shipment of Canadian beef, preventing more than 34,000 pounds of it from reaching consumers, officials said Wednesday.

It marks the first time E. coli has been discovered in imported beef.

A routine sample of the Canadian ground beef taken Oct. 9 at an inspection station in Sweetgrass, Mont., was confirmed as containing E. coli last Thursday, Agriculture Department officials said.

The ground beef, produced by an EBF Inc.-owned plant in Brooks, Alberta, Canada, was not distributed to distributors and is still sold average in New Orleans.

The 24,551 pounds of beef could either be cooked into a marketable product — cooking at high temperatures kills E. coli — or discarded.

Lawsuit seeks to reroute waste

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A Northern California city and county have sued the federal government to stop it from designating the Concord Naval Weapons Station as the West Coast handler of foreign nuclear waste.

The lawsuit was filed Tuesday in U.S. Northern District Court in Oakland on behalf of the city of Concord and Contra Costa County. It seeks an injunction against the Department of Energy's plan to ship spent nuclear fuel rods next spring from Concord to an Idaho storage site.

The lawsuit comes as federal officials gather in Salt Lake City to select a route for the shipments. Undaunted by South Carolina's failed effort to halt such shipments, city and county officials are centering their legal arguments on the little-known federal Spence Amendment.

The amendment was added to the National Defense Authorization Act of 1994, which regulates the receipt and storage of spent nuclear fuel. It lists three considerations in port selection:

- The lowest population in the area surrounding the port of entry.
  - The closest proximity to the storage facility.
  - And the most appropriate facilities and experience in receiving nuclear waste.
- The initial field of 150 possible ports of entry narrowed to Concord, Portland, Ore.; and Tacoma, Wash. Concord and county officials charge in the suit that, had the Energy Department applied the criteria, Concord would have been disqualified.
- Federal officials maintain that the Spence Amendment covers only South Carolina's Savannah River storage site and was not designed to be the rule for every port selection.
- But Concord City Attorney Rick Doyle said there's a good chance the courts will interpret the matter differently.
- "We stumbled on the Spence Amendment in the early part of the summer, and we have been looking at it since then," Doyle said. "We believe it is generic and applies to all ports in the United States, including Concord."

According to the lawsuit, Concord is 915 miles from the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory by rail and 943 miles by truck; Portland is 785 miles by rail and 738 by truck; and Tacoma is 934 miles by rail and 815 miles by truck.

The Energy Department also studied the population along rail routes to Idaho and concluded 198,000 people would be affected if Concord were chosen, 116,000 if Portland and 199,000 if Tacoma.

The San Francisco Bay area is the fifth-largest metropolitan area in the country and far more populous than the metropolitan areas of Portland, Bremerton or Tacoma, according to the lawsuit.

Over the next 13 years, Concord is to receive five shipments of spent nuclear rods from seven Asian countries. Officials are meeting today in Salt Lake City to choose between the Feather River or the Donner Pass routes through Northern California.

Clinton plans to block assault guns

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton plans to suspend new permits to foreign gun makers in hopes of blocking assault weapons that were modified to skirt a federal ban, the White House said Wednesday.

The National Rifle Association immediately decried the plan as an effort to "ban self-loading firearms in general."

"What is next to be banned? The Benelli semiautomatic shotgun like the one the president used for duck hunting?" said Wayne LaPierre, NRA executive vice president.

Officials said Clinton is expected to sign a two-part directive that would suspend pending and future applications to import modified assault weapons. The directive also would examine the criteria used to allow import of non sporting weapons and adjust that criteria as necessary.

"We now are seeing manufacturers who are able, in a sense, to clone assault weapons and slip underneath the standards," said White House spokesman Mike McCurry. "The president has a big concern about that."

The president's directive would affect about 30 weapons, said senior adviser Rahm Emanuel.

The White House's moves came after 30 Democratic senators, led by Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., wrote Clinton last month asking that he temporarily suspend imports of all semiautomatic weapons to block an Israeli manufacturer's export of thousands of modified military-style assault weapons for commercial sale.

Judge convicts doctor in shooting

CANYON CITY, Ore. (AP) — After sharply limiting defense arguments, a judge Wednesday convicted a doctor on felony charges he shot at neighbor's cattle that strayed onto the doctor's property.

Dr. Richard Shipsey was found guilty on 11 counts of criminal mischief and two counts of unauthorized use of livestock by Judge Jerry Reynolds after a 30-minute trial without a jury in Grant County Circuit Court.

Shipsey said he looked forward to being able to challenge the constitutionality of Oregon's open range law, which allows cattle to roam where they like in Grant and other counties, when he appeals his conviction.

The owner of the cattle, rancher Robert Sproul, left the courtroom without commenting on the verdict. But prosecutor Patrick Hlabery said Shipsey had no right to destroy the cattle because his property lay within the portion of Grant County considered open range.

IDAHO IN BRIEF

Bond issue for new school narrowly loses

DUBOIS — Even though the majority of Clark County residents voted for a $3.25 million bond issue to finance a new school, the district came up 50 votes shy of the required two-thirds majority.

The district's third try in three years for a new school building failed Tuesday with 153 votes in favor of a new middle-senior high school and 172 votes against it.

Superintendent Delbert McFadden said dozens of residents worked for months, trying to come up with a feasible plan.

Estranged husband shot by father-in-law

BOISE — A Boise man died early Wednesday after being shot during a confrontation with the father of his estranged wife.

Police were investigating the circumstances surrounding the death of Garrett Grandy, 33, but no charges have been filed against his father-in-law, Robert Watson.

Authorities said Grandy was trying to meet with his wife Tuesday when the confrontation with Watson occurred at the woman's home.

Man arrested at BSU for installing viruses

BOISE — Boise State University is studying more safeguards for its state-of-the-art computer lab after a homeless man was arrested for installing viruses.

The university this year put about $500,000 in 91 new computers, including two equipped for disabled students. Then a man walked in off the street and put viruses into several of them before all security measures were in place.

As a result, the university is installing protective software and requiring students to scan identification cards before entering the lab, Jim Hackett, director of information technology, said Tuesday.

The university also is considering the purchase of more virus scanner equipment and hiring a security officer who would watch over computer labs and data bases containing student and personnel information.

Driver's manual gives procedure for stops

BOISE — In response to a citizen's suggestion, the next edition of the Idaho Driver's Manual will include recommended procedures for drivers stopped by law enforcement officers.

A Boise resident called the Idaho Transportation Department on Sept. 25 to make that suggestion. That was five days after Boise Police stopped two brothers on what was termed a routine traffic stop that turned into a shootout that left the brothers and a police officer shot to death.

The agency said it is polling state, county and municipal law enforcement agencies to produce a consensus on the best procedure for drivers.

Woman accused of shooting husband

KUNA — The wife of a Micron Technology Inc. production manager has been charged with first-degree murder for allegedly shooting her husband a week ago and leaving his body under their house south of Boise.

Lisa Marie Varie, 32, was living at home while the body of Dennis Varie was under the house. She was arrested Tuesday morning without incident after she allowed Ada County sheriff's detectives to search the house.

Background checks face college professors

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — The state Legislature might be asked to exempt college professors from a state law requiring educators to consent to background checks.

Many public school educators must pay $40 to have their fingerprints taken for a check against criminal records.

New college programs allow Idaho high school students to dual enroll, getting both high school credits and credit for college-level classes.

Educational officials say that meant professors who teach high school students might fall under the law.

Board of Education members have vowed to correct what they are calling "unintended consequences" of last year's legislation.

The law also applies to vocational-technical educators at the college level, and professors teaching high school students on campus or via the Internet or other distance technology.

"This could seriously jeopardize the seamless education and building bridges between public and post-secondary education," said Robin Dodson, the Board of Education's chief academic officer.

Board member Curtis Eafon, Twin Falls, said the board was never informed that the law potentially could apply to college professors.

He said the board's Legislative

Curtis Eafon

Affairs Committee will recommend to the full board that it seek repeal of part of the law, or clarification of to whom it applies.

Legislation allows high school students to dual enroll with the intent of allowing high school students to get a head start on college.

At the University of Idaho, 24 high school students take classes ranging from foreign languages to music and art. North Idaho College has 57 high school students enrolled.

North Idaho College dean of instruction Jerry Gee said he is requesting clarification. Because it applies to "certified teachers," the Coeur d'Alene school began requiring checks of all new employees in certified vocational-technical fields such as drafting, welding, nursing and culinary arts.

The president of the University of Idaho, Robert Hoover, said news of mandatory fingerprinting would be jarring to faculty in Moscow. He predicted the faculty would receive it poorly.

He noted it would be one more roadblock hampering efforts to embrace the seamless system of education the state board has been pushing.

Man fakes death, gets probation

CALDWELL (AP) — A man who faked his own death and abandoned his family for 12 years was planning his future Wednesday after a judge lifted a prison term in favor of a lengthy probation.

Yancey "Toby" Bentley, 54, a one-time Nampa car dealer, must still pay $363,000 in restitution to the insurance company that paid his family $275,000 in benefits after he left his wife and four children believing he had died in 1984.

Third District Judge James Morley opted for probation of the 5-year to 14-year prison term he imposed this spring after Bentley successfully completed the six-month prison bootcamp program at the state's Cottonwood facility.

The decision angered Bentley's family and the man who finally turned the light on Bentley's secret life.

"If they turn Bentley loose they should put the judge in jail," said Ray Heitner, a fellow car dealer who spotted Bentley 14 months ago at a Denver car show and notified police.

Andrus backs possible candidate

LEWISTON (AP) — He is not in the race yet, but Meridian School Board Chairman Wally Hedrick is the choice of former Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus for state schools superintendent.

In fact, Andrus said Hedrick would be the only candidate he would actively support during next year's election because he does not want to dilute his effectiveness as a campaigner.

"I owe him and respect him and I think he would make a whale of a superintendent of public instruction," the former four-term governor said. "He would manage a very large, spread out department and you would find that the school children, parents, teachers and superintendents would have a friendly and adversarial relationship."

Hedrick, who was director of the Idaho Lottery during the Andrus administration, said he expects to decide whether to seek the Democratic nomination by the end of the year.

In Meridian he is board chairman for Idaho's second-largest and fastest-growing school district with some 19,000 students.

Sawtooth's forest fees were mistake from start

Now here's a surprise: The Forest Service's summer-long experiment with pay-to-play fees in parts of the Sawtooth National Forest went flatter than an RV tire on Baker Creek Road.

In theory, anybody planning to have fun in either the Sawtooth National Recreation Area or the Ketchum Ranger District over the summer was supposed to pony up $2 a day for the privilege. A lot of visitors demurred.

As a result, the Forest Service collected only $42,000 toward defraying the high cost of recreation. It was hoping for much more.

But as a revenue source, this idea had its problems from the start:

- The Forest Service did a lousy job of making its case that the fees were really necessary in the timber outbreak. As a result, many long-time visitors to the forest were left wondering how come mountain air suddenly came with a price tag.

- The agency's fee-collection efforts were, at best, desultory. Signs explaining the fees didn't even go up before the Forest Service started collecting them.

- Remarkably, many visitors to the SNRA weren't even aware that fees were being charged. That's a problem when you're looking to raise $200,000 from them.

Of course, the very notion of dunning Joe Six-Pack to look at the Sawtooths is dumb.

Take a look at a map of the Ketchum Ranger District and the SNRA. There's a major highway running smack through the middle.

Unless the Forest Service wants to start charging folks to visit Stanley or drive to Challis, a pay-as-you-go system is effectively unenforceable.

Particularly since the money - which is supposed to go for maintenance and construction that Congress no longer wants to fund - is earmarked for facilities that primarily benefit tourists who could afford to pay a trail fee or an RV park surcharge.

Let's face it. SNRA users who spend two weeks at Redfish Lake Lodge have a much bigger impact than the family that drives up Fourth of July Canyon Road once a year to watch the leaves change color.

So let the SNRA's intensive users, who are the focus of the Forest Service's newfound fascination with the magic of the marketplace, pay the expense of building and maintaining facilities that they use.

We'd much rather see a tin cup nailed to a trailhead than a tollbooth on Highway 75.

Steele has no special interests

City Hall needs help. Are you one of many citizens of Twin Falls who is wondering just what is going on at City Hall? Are you wondering what happened to representation of the people?

There is a need for some new insight and leadership on the City Council. We have a very capable candidate in Elaine Steele. As executive director of the Historic Downtown Twin Falls Business District, she has shown how to get things done and in order. She, as a non-traditional student, graduated with high honors from both College of Southern Idaho with an associate of arts and Idaho State University with a bachelor of science in corporate training.

I met Elaine shortly after she announced that she was running for council. Her enthusiasm and sincerity in running for City Council greatly impressed me. Elaine's objective is organized growth without compromising our quality of life. Her mode of operation is positive, straightforward, and, most importantly, she is approachable to all citizens and feels it is their opinion that directs the future of our city. Elaine is running for the council seat with no special interests or obligations to special groups that would influence her duties as a council person.

If you want a City Council person with the expertise to research an issue, who listens to the citizens and has the ability to conduct city business in an orderly fashion, vote for Elaine Steele on Nov. 4.

ISU editorial lacks substance

The Oct. 14 editorial titled "ISU shouldn't promote any church's teachings" highlights deficiencies in the author's understanding of the place and point of religious studies in a liberal arts education.

We must be aware that "being called God-fearing [is] ... a badge of honor" has no relevance in determining the value of religious studies. Virtually every society has been shaped and impelled by religious beliefs and practices. Given this information, it behooves each of us to learn as much as we can about the religions that impact our lives. Many notable colleges and universities (Yale, Harvard, Columbia, etc.) evidently subscribe to the idea that understanding world religions is a significant factor in the task of "improving the world."

Apparently, the author of this piece was using his or her understanding of religious impact on public areas with the statement, "Not even state-owned colleges in Utah ... recognize courses taught by the LDS Church or any other."

While it seems likely that ISU was re-miss in being less than fully aware and informed of the course content of the "Marriage and Family" class in question, it is difficult to understand how or why the writer makes the leap to questioning ISU's "commitment to academic integrity" and to the First Amendment to the Constitution "in general."

This editorial contains other peculiarities. Why are you talking about "far-flung operations" as though it were a negative have you failed to notice that Idaho's population is "far flung"? Why are you concerned in particular about courses taught "by people who aren't on the university's payroll"? Are you unaware of Idaho's limited tax base? Are you unaware of the academic tradition of educators and intellectuals donating time and talent to improving education? Why are you asking the State Board of Education to take "a hard look at curriculum at ISU ..."? Are you unaware of the other schools under the board's jurisdiction?

As a student of philosophy and general studies with an emphasis on the sociological and cultural impact of religion, I'm alarmed by the failure of awareness demonstrated in this editorial. Further, I'm distressed by the exhibited failure of logic and reasoning. While an editorial is, by definition, a statement of one person's opinion, one hopes that the author of an editorial will be able to support that opinion with a modicum of substance and logic. That, sadly, is not the case in this instance.

President cools down on global warming

As with his attempt to nationalize health care, President Clinton has realized he can't get it all at once on "global warming," so he appears to have decided to take the incremental approach.

The president announced a more modest objective than he has previously stated by calling for the reduction of greenhouse gases to 1990 levels over the next 15 years. The unproved theory in which the president and Vice President Al Gore believe is that emissions of carbon dioxide, methane and other gases trap heat in the atmosphere and cause the planet to heat up, melting glaciers and potentially threatening health and life as we've known it.

The administration is basing its alarm largely on a 2,000-page opus put together under the auspices of the United Nations and with the active support of virtually every major environmental group, from the Sierra Club to the leftist Union of Concerned Scientists and Environmental Defense Fund. But, as noted in an excellent overview of the report in the Nov. 3 Forbes magazine, the political decision to forge ahead on global warming is based on a seven-page executive summary, not the document itself. That summary was not written by a scientist but by Robert Watson, who at the time was associate director of environment at the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy. He was appointed to that post by Vice President Gore.

The summary reaches different conclusions from the scientists. Reporters are basing their journalism not on the report, but on the summary and its decidedly political conclusions.

Forbes' Christine Hill interviewed Peter F. Rogers, PhD, a Harvard environmental scientist, who is respected by both environmentalists and businesspeople. Rogers says scientists need "at least five more years to study the problem" of global warming. But the politicians want us to act now, before sufficient evidence is in.

Furthermore, says Rogers, the members of the executive committee who wrote the summary were chosen not for their qualifications as environmental scientists but for regional, racial and gender diversity. Says Rogers, "Instead of looking for an expert in a field of study, the panel needed to fill a position with an African scientist or a woman. Debates were judged by votes rather than reasoning."

Rogers says that while it is true half the world's living Nobel laureates in science have signed a petition urging action on global warming, few of them know much about environmental science or climate change. He says that two of the three climatologists who have won Nobel prizes do not agree with those who believe human activities are causing global warming.

Rogers says while the trapping of greenhouse gases is a plausible theory, it is too early to conclude that it is the correct one. Oceans, he notes, hold most of the thermal mass of the Earth, and they have not been properly studied. Most scientists agree that ocean currents and winds play a big role in world temperatures, but these factors are not included in computer models that forecast global warming.

In fact, the models are so primitive that the Great Lakes and the Sierras are ignored. Predictions are so absurd that one forecasts the flooding of Death Valley. Another says that because of higher CO2, 100 years from now, rainfall in the Midwest could rise by 15 percent - or it could fall by the same amount. And most global-warming models fail to include cloud cover, the most important factor determining the Earth's temperature.

Texas A&M's Department of Meteorology chairman Gerald North has the right approach: "I believe we have a decade or so in which we can collect data and refine our models before we have to act."

That's a scientific, not a political, response. But the Clinton administration, always seeking new ways to expand the power and reach of government, wants to use "global warming" as a scare tactic to acquire more power for government and, as a side "benefit," propel Gore, one of the most radical of the environmentalists, into the White House.

The president's decision to adopt incrementalism is an acknowledgment that he and Gore can't have it all right now. But that's their goal, and principled scientists and businesspeople should oppose ultimate objective until the facts are in.

Cal Thomas is a Los Angeles Times columnist.

What's with the passion to record for posterity?

Of all the lessons from the Watergate scandal, the one that should have been the easiest to learn is this: Turn off the tape machine.

But a quarter-century later, here we go again. After stiff-arming congressional investigators for five months, the White House has suddenly discovered more than 100 hours of videotapes of President Clinton's visits with wealthy donors.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not suggesting that the Clinton videos are anywhere near as damaging as the audio recordings that forced Richard Nixon's resignation. The Watergate tapes exposed a side of Nixon that repulsed even many of his former supporters. The president and his top aides were caught hatching plots against their political enemies and then discussing ways to cover up their abuse of power.

With the Clinton tapes, we get to watch the president schmoozing with a bunch of rich people. Instead of expletives deleted, the dialogue includes such nuggets as "Hi, nice to see you."

There may be a smoking gun in all the banal banter, but no one has found it yet. At this point, Congress is mad, and rightfully so, not because of anything in the tapes but because the White House took so long to find them.

What mystifies me is why the videos were made to begin with. Who was supposed to watch these things? My in-laws have home videos that are more interesting. What is it about public service that compels people to record every thought and deed?

Although Nixon is the most notable example, plenty of other public officials have learned the hard way that if you don't want something to become public, don't write it down, record it or photograph it. Ask former Sen. Bob Packwood, the would-be sex machine whose diary musings included a styling tip that he discovered after sopping in his hot tub. "I came out and I tried something," Packwood recorded March 20, 1992. "I just blew my hair. I didn't use any gel at all."

Of course, there is some historical value in collecting snippets from the private lives of public officials, especially presidents. The White House recordings, for example, are a good example. A tape from Aug. 25, 1964, when Johnson told an aide that he did not want his party's nomination, reveals all the pressures that come with the Oval Office.

"I don't want this power of the bomb, and I just don't want these decisions that I'm being required to make," the president complained. "There's just bound to be a lot of people that don't have these doubts and these urges and these bama-cles and these things that I have to carry. And the nation ought to have a chance to get the best available. That's who I want my children to have, and I know that I'm not."

Great stuff, but let's face it: Bill Clinton was not going to bare his soul to a bunch of wealthy donors. He didn't even offer any advice on gel.

Guardsmen from Wyoming fight wildfires in Indonesia

Airmen from the Wyoming National Guard 153rd Airlift Wing Unit work near a C-130 Hercules water-bombing plane after a sortie at Surabaya airport on Wednesday.

SURABAYA, Indonesia (AP) — Two United States C-130 aircraft dumped thousands of gallons of water Wednesday on wildfires burning on the slopes of a volcano, one of dozens of fires burning across Indonesia.

"We're doing the job we were sent here to do. We're putting out fires," said Col. Harold Reed, who is commanding the mission by the Wyoming National Guard 153rd Airlift Wing Unit.

Two modified water-bombing planes and another C-130 support aircraft flew halfway around the world to help Indonesia extinguish the wildfires, which have burned for weeks and created a choking haze that threatens the health of millions in Southeast Asia.

After dozens of sorties over two days, at least two major blazes were extinguished, the U.S. Forestry Service said.

The 50-member National Guard unit has fought dozens of fires across Wyoming, Colorado, California, Arizona and other parts of the United States, but this was its first foreign assignment.

It takes about 15 minutes to pump water into each plane's tanks from a canal adjacent to the airport at Surabaya, 400 miles east of the capital, Jakarta.

Once in the fire zone, about 40 miles to the south, the planes swoop low and release the water at high pressure, dousing flames along a 225-foot by 500-foot strip of land.

"It's over in a matter of five or six seconds," said Master Sgt. Barry Arnold of Torrington, Wyo.

Typhoon Ivan devastates islands

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Typhoon Ivan weakened into a tropical storm and blew away from the main Philippine island Wednesday, but left thousands of homes, poultry farms and fisheries in ruins.

At least one person drowned in a swollen river on Luzon. Two others were missing in the island's northern Cagayan province, where disaster agencies reported thousands of damaged homes.

Ivan's sustained winds dropped to 68 mph, though gusts still were reaching 87 mph, and the storm was moving toward the Pacific Ocean.

Veteran space psychologists: Mir is sweatshop

MOSCOW (AP) — Describing the aging Mir space station as a "sweatshop," a Russian space psychologist has accused Russia's Mission Control of provoking a June space collision by overloading the Mir's exhausted crew.

"A Russian cosmonaut is a soldier, a soldier is a human being deprived of any rights," Rostislav Bogdanovskiy, who has spent 35 years working with cosmonauts, said in an interview published Wednesday in the respected daily Izvestia.

The accused officials at Mission Control and state-run RKK Energiya — the corporation that built and runs the 13-year-old orbiting outpost — of callous disregard for the Mir's crew.

"You can sum up their attitude in one word: sweatshop," the newspaper quoted Bogdanovskiy as saying.

Russian space officials have argued for months about who or what was to blame for Mir's nearly disastrous June 25 collision with a cargo ship during a practice manual docking. An early report from Energiya experts put all the blame on Mir commander Vladimir Titov and flight engineer Alexander Luritsin.

Wildcats roar

Filer squads dominate District 4 championships

By Matt Pember
Times-News writer

GOODING - Perhaps the Canyon Conference should be renamed the Filer conference as both the Varsity and Junior Varsity Wildcats taught their competitors to "fear the roar," passing, setting, and crushing their way to District 4 volleyball championships Wednesday.

In what seemed like a David and Goliath story, the varsity clawed its way through the loser's bracket to face the No. 3 seed Wendell Trojans and No. 1 seed Gooding Senators. The Wildcats had to beat the Trojans twice to win an automatic state berth, but it was a challenge Filer was ready for.

In the junior varsity championship, Filer defeated Gooding 15-8, 15-4.

Filer def. Gooding, 15-9, 15-8

Filer came ready to play and jumped to an early 4-0 lead on the Senators. Gooding answered with 3 points, but Filer got the points right back. The Senators came back to tie the game at seven, but Kara Hymas ended the Wendell rally with a rock-hard kill. The game became a defensive battle that sea-sawed back and forth to 9-9, when Filer took charge, going on a 6-0 scoring spree to win the game.

The second game was tied a few, when Filer went on another six-point scoring drive. Gooding closed in on the Wildcats, bringing the score to 9-8. After that it was all Wildcats.

Capitalizing on six Hymas serves, Filer vetoed the rest of the Senator season.

"The girls played very level volleyball, they didn't go up and down," said Filer coach Ed Richards.

Match highlights included 12 kills recorded by both Hymas and Kallie Coon, and Naomi Richards delivering 10 perfect passes.

"I'm just glad to get another chance at Wendell."

Filer def. Wendell, 15-10, 15-5

The Wildcats, running with the momentum built up in the game against Gooding, came in the first match of the championship ready to remedy their early loss to Wendell.

Filer jumped to a quick lead, but Wendell came back with four unanswered points and then took a 7-4 lead. Then Filer rallied, taking the 12-10 lead.

Filer Junior Marci Richards blocks Jefferson DeJong's kill Wednesday night in the A-3 district championship match against Wendell. The Wildcats defeated the Wendell Trojans twice to earn the championship title and a state berth.

Two Hymas serve points took Filer to 14 and Coon ended it with a block. The second game was much more painful for the Senators. Filer jumped to a 5-0 lead on Naomi Richards and Kim Lanning serves.

The Wildcats were winning 12-5 when Marci Richards served three points in a row to win the game and force a second championship match.

Filer def. Wendell, 15-10, 15-12

The game teetered back and forth until the two teams were knotted at three.

Filer ran the score up to 8-3, before Wendell pulled within one. But the Wildcats were too much for the Trojans, closing the game on a 7-3 run.

"The deciding game of the tourney was a tough-fought battle of Filer jumping out to a lead and Wendell coming back. Julianna DeJong and Christine Davis served well to keep their team close.

But the Wildcats' net play was too strong for the Trojans and Filer put the match away on a Hymas kill.

Wendell travels to Mountain Home on Saturday to face the second-place finisher out of District 3. The winner advances to state.

Loss drops Bonneville from No. 1

Carey remains on top in 8-man; Bruins' loss is Capital's gain

The Associated Press

There's only one new No. 1 Idaho high school football team in this week's Associated Press poll.

Bonneville, which had won five of six games to gain the top ranking in A-1 Division II, fell with a thump last week. The Bees lost to neighboring Skyline 49-0 and fell three spots in this week's poll.

Sandpoint is the new division leader, followed by Lake City and Lewiston, with the three top teams all getting first-place votes.

Hillcrest edged Madison, 27-25 to take fifth this week.

In a battle of unbeatens, Carey beat Rockland, 20-18 to keep the Panthers atop the eight-man poll and sending the Bulldogs down one spot to No. 5. No. 2 Deary stayed flawless with a 56-0 win over Troy.

Lakeside blanked Falls Christian, 50-0 to stay in third and Cambridge moved up a spot to fourth after a 44-30 win over Notus.

Highland, the only undefeated team among the state's biggest schools, retained its stranglehold on the No. 1 spot in A-1, Division I, moving up to 7-0 with a 48-13 victory over cross-town foe Pocatello. Centennial stayed at No. 2 with a 21-16 last-second victory over Borah. Capital moved up a spot and replaced Twin Falls at third after beating the Bruins, 28-6.

Idaho Falls beat Blackfoot 42-12 and moved up one spot to fourth, and Twin Falls fell to fifth.

The order of A-2 powers stayed the same, as all five teams won. Top-ranked Snake River beat Preston by a touchdown and kept its lead over Bishop Kelly, which defeated Kuna, 49-13. Buhl stayed in third by beating conference foe Wood River after a bye week.

Sugar-Salem beat Shelley, 26-3 and Lakehead beat St. Maries, 43-22, for the final two spots. Grangeville and Homedale moved into third and fourth.

Glenns Ferry stayed atop the A-3 rankings with a Canyon Conference-clinching 53-12 win over Filer, and

Indians power way to win, tie series with Marlins

The Associated Press

CLEVELAND - Snow, Wind, Record cold.

For the Cleveland Indians, it was simply winning in a winter wonderland.

Flurries fluttered around Jacobs Field all evening, but the only thing that accumulated were runs by the Indians in their 10-3 victory over the Florida Marlins on Wednesday night that evened the World Series at two wins each.

Matt Williams and Manny Ramirez homered and Sam Alomar had three of Cleveland's 15 hits and drove in three runs. The victory ensured the Series will return to the Sunshine State this weekend.

"Let it snow, let it snow," a laughing Alomar sang after the game.

It will surely be warmer at Miami than it was for this brand of winter ball in Cleveland. The 38 degrees at the start made it the coldest since World Series temperatures have been recorded since 1975, and snow fell for the first time in the Fall Classic since Game 1 in 1979 at Baltimore.

The weather, though, had little impact on this game, played in an after the Marlins rallied for a 14-11 win. The Indians took a 6-0 lead after three innings and 21-year-old starter Jaret Wright made it stand up.

"That was important to get going early in the game," said Williams, who went 3-for-3 with two walks. "That goes back to putting pressure on the other team."

"That was huge. That set the tone from the beginning."

Wright outpitched Tony Saunders in a matchup of rookie starters as the Indians won before a crowd of 44,877 bunched against an 18-degree wind chill factor.

"We didn't get off on the right foot," Marlins manager Jim Leyland said. "We made a little run there. We just couldn't stop the bleeding."

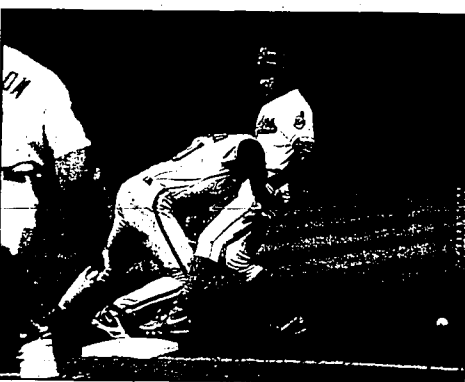

Game 5 will be Thursday night, and the forecast calls for temperatures in the 40s and rain. Orel Hershiser will start for the Indians against rookie Livan Hernandez in a rematch of Game 1, won by Florida.

Williams' two-run homer in the eighth made sure the Marlins would not come back this night. The All-Star third baseman hit just 125 in the 1989 Series for San Francisco and was 4-for-14 in this Series without an extra base hit.

Alomar, a hero in a Game 2, is 8-for-17 in the Series.

Despite the Indians setting a franchise record for wins in a series, they

Street still on sidelines as World Cup hits the road

The Associated Press

TIGNES, France - The World Cup ski season begins Friday with all roads leading to the Olympics.

Italian stars Alberto Tomba and Deborah Compagnoni are ready for the beginning, but American Picabo Street still is recovering from a knee injury.

Last year's overall men's champion, Luc Alphand of France, has retired, and last year's women's champion, Pernilla Wiberg of Sweden, has torn knee ligaments and is out at least six weeks.

That allows versatile skiers like Kjetil Andre Aamodt of Norway and Ertja Seizinger of Germany, runners-up last year, to possibly take charge in the early races.

"I'm an all-arounder," Seizinger said, who in the past had been noted only for the speed disciplines. "This time I have prepared in all four disciplines."

The schedule has two parallel slaloms Friday, with a women's giant slalom Saturday and a men's GS Sunday.

Then, there is nearly a month break before the World Cup season resumes at Park City, Utah, with men's and women's giant slaloms and slaloms Nov. 21-23.

"But the real focus is the Olympics, Feb. 7-22 at Nagano, Japan," Seizinger said. "I'm recovering from a pre-season injury a year ago. She hopes to make her season debut in a super-G World Cup race."

Tomba is the world's most recognizable skier. Now 30, he will be in his fourth Olympics and will have his best shot in a slalom. He won slalom gold in 1988 and silver in 1992.

Tomba, a triple Olympic champion and a two-time world champion, had one 1996 World Cup win and only a bronze medal at the World Championships.

Compagnoni won two gold medals at the World Championships and five World Cup races.

Street, the world downhill champion in 1996, still is recuperating from a pre-season injury a year ago. She hopes to make her season debut in a super-G World Cup race.

Her teammate, Hilary Lindt, the surprise women's downhill winner at the World Championships, has retired.

Tommy Moe, winner of the men's Olympic downhill title in 1994, still is having trouble returning to top form after a knee injury.

Bruins, Poky face off in volleyball

The Times-News

POCATELLO — Fourth-seeded Twin Falls fought through the losers' bracket Wednesday, knocking Pocatello and Minico out of the Region III volleyball tournament.

The Bruins beat Pocatello 15-14 and then followed with a 15-4, 15-17, 15-10 victory over the Spartans.

The win pits Twin Falls against Highland tonight in the championship. The Bruins would have to beat the Rams twice to earn a guaranteed state berth. A second-place finish would send Twin Falls to Glenns Ferry Saturday for a cross-district playoff with a Boise-area school for a state berth.

"We played very, very well," said Twin Falls coach Mike Federico. "I asked the seniors to step it up and I'm very proud of them. They did everything we asked of them."

The Bruins had to overcome a small collapse to beat the second-seeded Spartans.

After winning the opening game 15-4, Twin Falls led 14-6 in the second game but couldn't put it away. Minico took the 17-15 win and led 10-5 in the third game.

High school sports

"The Lisa Levings got the ball," at the service line, Federico said. "When she stopped it was 13-10, through two time-outs and everything. It was really fun to watch."

This time the Bruins held onto the lead and kept their hopes of playing in the state tournament alive.

Soccer

GOODING — Buhl defeated Bliss 5-1 Wednesday to earn the No. 3 seed out of District 4 for the Class A-3 boys' state soccer tournament next week in Weiser.

The Indians took the 2-0 lead 10th halfline off goal by Jaime Moreno.

Bliss pulled within 2-1 at the 8-minute mark of the second half when Cesar Espino scored on a corner kick.

From there, Jonathan Pereira caught fire for Buhl, scoring the next three goals for the easy victory.

Buhl finishes the season 6-2-2 in the conference and 10-3-2 overall.

Bliss will take the No. 4 seed to the state tournament.

Twin Falls 1, Wood River 1

HAYLEY — The Twin Falls girls' soccer team finished its game with Wood River Wednesday in a tie, but it was good enough to sew up a second-place finish in the A-2 conference.

Wood River, 9-0-1, will play at state in Blackfoot as the No. 1 seed next week, while the Bruins will be the second seed.

On Wednesday, the Wolverines got on the board first, scoring in the first half. Twin Falls countered with a goal by Blair Danc, also in the first half.

Both teams went scoreless from there out.

Twin Falls coach Steve Schmid credited Brian Garcia and Katie Danc with an outstanding game. Also having a solid game in defensive roles were Michelle Marquardt, Kristin Patterson, Alice Tenney, Kelly Delmore, Lynette Price, Lily Morse and Staci Neale.

Earlier this season, Wood River beat Twin Falls 4-1 so Schmid said he was happy with the Bruins improvement.

Twin Falls travels to Rupert to play Minico today.

Florida starters struggle

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jim Leyland's rotation is struggling.

His starters have started slowly and exited quickly against the Cleveland Indians, and Tony Saunders' outing Wednesday was the worst yet for the Florida Marlins. The rookie left hander was knocked out with one out in the third, and he allowed seven hits and six runs.

Cleveland's 10-3 victory evaded the World Series at two games apiece, and given the way the Marlins' starters have thrown, they're lucky to have a split.

"Normally the game is dictated by your starting pitching," Leyland said. "I'm not really excited by what we've done, and I'm not disappointed."

After one turn through the rotation, Saunders, Liven Hernandez, Kevin Brown and Al Leiter have combined to allow 31 hits and 19 earned runs in 18 1/3 innings for an ERA of 9.33. "That's something that we've really got to put a halt to," catcher Charles Johnson said. "I feel a lot of responsibility. I start wondering if I should call different pitches or do something different."

Florida's starters have walked 13 batters, with six later scoring.

"We've walked too many people, particularly a ballclub like Cleveland when they have the DH," Leyland said. "A walk is like an extra out. When you give a good team extra outs, for the most part you're going to get beat."

Hernandez, 3-0 this postseason despite a shaky outing in Game 1, will start Thursday.

Marlins relievers have fared better than the starters but are beginning to show the strain. Leyland has gone to the bullpen 11 times and used every available pitcher at least once.

The bullpen gave up four runs in six innings Wednesday. Saunders' difficulty made Marlins fans long for 17-game winner Alex Fernandez, who went to the sidelines during the National League championship series with a career-threatening torn rotator cuff.

Cleveland scored in the first inning for the fourth consecutive game on Manny Ramirez's two-run homer. Sandy Alomar added a two-out double to make it 3-0 after one inning, and Saunders pitched differently after that, Leyland said.

"It looked like he felt like he had to make a perfect pitch every time," Leyland said. "He didn't have a good outing."

Saunders departed after the first five batters reached in the third. Tony Fernandez greeter reliever Antonio Alfonseca with an RBI single to make the score 6-chise postseason record for him, Marquis Grissom had none. He went 0-for-4 and ended his 15-game hitting streak, two short of the Series record held by Hank Bauer.

Series

Wright, the youngest pitcher to start in the Series since Bret Saberhagen in 1985, improved to 3-0 in the postseason. The cool customer gave up three runs and five hits in six innings and is now 9-0 when pitching after an Indians' loss — not bad for someone who started the year in Double-A.

"When you score 10 runs, three in the first, it's a game of momentum," Wright said.

Brian Anderson finished with three scoreless innings for a save. Saunders, 2-3, did not survive the third inning in the sixth meeting of rookie starters in Series history, and first since Philadelphia's Charles Eton faced Baltimore's Mike Boddicker in 1983.

Marlins starters, meanwhile, have a 9.33 ERA in the first four games.

The unusual weather was the focus before the game. The Indians took batting practice in snow showers as the stadium sound system played "Winter Wonderland" and "Jingle Bell Rock" among others.

Many fans wrapped themselves in heavy gear once reserved for Cleveland Browns games, and one spectator behind the Indians' Charles Eton faced Baltimore's Mike Boddicker in 1983.

The snow did not seem to affect play, however.

It was nothing like Game 3,

Florida Marlins Gary Sheffield tosses his bat after striking out to end the third inning with a runner on in Game 4 of the World Series Wednesday in Cleveland. At right, Cleveland's Sandy Alomar leaves the field.

when the blustery conditions contributed to 17 walks and six errors in Florida's wacky win.

With Cleveland's win, this marked the first time in 24 years that teams have alternated victories in the first four games. Oakland and the New York Mets last did it in 1973.

The Indians scored in the first inning for the fourth straight game. Saunders struck out leadoff batter Rip Roberts, but it was all downhill for the young lefty after that.

Omar Vizquel singled and Ramirez followed by driving the opposite way for his fourth home run of the postseason, a going into the right-field stands.

Adams, Glasson lead in Vegas

LAS VEGAS (AP) — For Billy Andrade, the Las Vegas Invitational is not so much about winning a golf tournament, but playing his way into one.

John Adams, it's all about securing at least another year on the PGA Tour.

Both Andrade and Adams made some progress toward their goals Wednesday, with Adams shooting a 9-under-par 63 to tie Bill Glasson for the lead in the five-day tournament and Andrade shooting a 64 to tie the two others one shot behind.

Six others were another shot back, while Tiger Woods opened defense of his first pro title with a 68. Unlike the other golfers, Woods shot his score at the Desert Inn Country Club, considered the more demanding of the three courses used for the tournament.

Woods, playing with three amateurs, belted by three strokes in the opening 71 he shot in winning here a year ago.

"It wasn't too bad. I hit a lot of good shots today," Woods said, smiling away in a hotel casino limousine. "I'm feeling great."

Andrade and Adams, meanwhile, are on bubbles, but entirely different ones as they try to wrap up their positions on the money list in the final round season tournament of the year. A win worth $27,000 is enticing, but the real banle for many golfers this week is either to get into next week's Tour Championship or make enough money to avoid going to the dreaded qualifying school for next season.

"Certain guys are trying to save their lives and certain guys are trying to get into the Tour Championship," Andrade said.

Andrade is 30th on the money list and can't drop any lower if he wants to play in next week's $3 million Tour Championship in Houston. He won't have much to worry about if he continues to play like he did Wednesday, making eight birdies and no bogeys on the benign TPC Summerlin host course.

"I'm the bubble man and I want to play next week," Andrade said. "I need to have a nice week this week to do that."

Adams, meanwhile, doesn't have a chance of playing in the Tour Championship. He's battling to remain among the top 125 and retain his exempt status on the tour for at least another year.

Adams also played at TPC, where he started slow with four straight pars, then played the next 14 holes in 9-under. Adams, 118th on the money list at $188,996, jump-started his round with an eagle from 30 feet on No. 9, then birdied five holes on the back from 15 feet or less.

"Everybody wants to get off to a good start," said Adams, who has never won in 20 years on the PGA Tour. "When you play a five-round tournament, you need a round like this."

Billy Mayfair, another golfer on the bubble, needs to jump from 139th on the money list to be exempt next year. Mayfair, a three-time winner, needs to win about $40,000 to retain his tour card.

Utah State player faces assault trial

LOGAN, Utah — A Dec. 12 trial has been scheduled for star Utah State running back Demario Brown, charged with simple assault in an incident involving another student.

Brown, a 20-year-old sophomore, was arraigned Tuesday in 1st District Court. Brown did not appear but was represented by public defender Shannon Demler, who entered an innocent plea and requested a jury trial.

Brown was charged with the charge Sept. 18 by Logan Municipal Judge Cheryl Russell. But the verdict was appealed just days after the trial and the misdemeanor case now will be heard in district court.

Demler said Russell didn't have all the facts about the assault when she convicted his client.

The charge stems from an incident June 28 when an USU student said he was attacked and hit from behind in his apartment. Brown contends he hit the student, Rod Kuhnhen, in self-defense because Kuhnhen was drunk, belligerent and about to hit him.

Presidents Cup returns to Virginia

The Presidents Cup, a Ryder Cup-style competition between the United States and non-European players, will return to Virginia's Robert Trent Jones Golf Club in 2000, presumably with President PGA Tour commissioner Tim Finchem making the announcement Wednesday in a conference call from tour headquarters in Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla.

"We looked at a variety of other locations but we concluded that RTJ was the best place," Finchem said. He declined to name the other venues considered but said one was in the Midwest and three were in the Northeast.

The first two Presidents Cups were played on the Jones course in Gainesville, Va., in 1994 and '96 and were won by the United States. The 1998 event will be played Dec. 11-13 at Royal Melbourne Golf Club in Australia.

"We are proud and honored to have been selected once again," said Vernon Jordan, the civil rights leader who is president of the club, which is less than an hour's drive from Washington. "We are going to give you the best Presidents Cup you have ever had."

Cowboys sign Emmitt's brother to squad

IRVING, Texas — Emory Smith, younger brother of Dallas star running back Emmitt Smith, was signed to the Cowboys' practice squad Wednesday.

Emory, also a running back, said being on a team with Emmitt "is something I've been wanting to do since I've been playing football. I just hope some day the Cowboys can activate me."

The Cowboys gave Emory a locker next to Emmitt's in the dressing room.

"I'm very excited about this, I know this is what Emory wanted," Emmitt said. "That would be something if he was activated and it would be Smith and Smith in the backfield. He needs to learn the offense and there are still a lot of people ahead of him. It's good insurance for the team."

Emory was cut by the Green Bay Packers during training camp this summer.

Ex-mistress of Newton files rape suit

DALLAS — Cowboys offensive lineman Tate Newton, who was cleared by a Dallas County grand jury, has been sued by a former mistress who accused him previously of rape.

Tina Hill, 31, of Grand Prairie, filed the lawsuit in Denton County, where Newton lives. She alleges Newton raped her in her mobile home on June 15, and is suing for unspecified damages. Hill did not file a complaint with Grand Prairie police until July 8.

On Sept. 2, a grand jury in neighboring Dallas County voted not to indict Newton on a sexual assault charge.

The lawsuit was filed last week. Newton was served with the documents Wednesday. A plaintiff may sue a defendant in the defendant's home county.

Hill and Newton have confirmed they had a relationship that Newton's attorney, Howard Shapiro of Plano, said lasted 15 months.

Shapiro has said the woman falsely cried rape after an evening of consensual sex in an attempt to extort money — anywhere from $80,000 to $650,000 — from his client.

Grabbling coach discharged from hospital

RUSTON, La. — Eddie Robinson, college football's winningest coach, was released from the hospital Wednesday and ready to get back to his Grabbling team.

"I can't stay away from football," he said.

Robinson, 78, had been admitted for breathing difficulties. He checked in to Lincoln General Hospital early Monday and was placed in the intensive care unit for observation.

He was moved to a regular room Tuesday and discharged in good condition the next day.

"People have called from all over the country. He is just doing great," said Mary Elizabeth Richardson, a hospital spokeswoman. Robinson is retiring this year after 55 seasons and 408 victories as Grabbling's coach. He has maintained a hectic travel schedule for several decades, since Grabbling entered the national spotlight in the 1960s.

South Africans advance to quarterfinals

LUXEMBOURG — Top-seeded Amanda Coetzer of South Africa struggled against a qualifier, but managed to advance to the quarterfinals of the Luxembourg Open on Wednesday, joining compatriot Joannette Kruger who upset Sandrine Testud of France.

Knicks trade 4 players to Celtics for forward

BOSTON (AP) — The New York Knicks traded four players in a quest for a championship on Wednesday, trading four players — including their three youngest — to the Boston Celtics for forward Chris Mills.

Chris Mills

New York dealt second-year forwards Walter McCarty and Dontae' West, rookie forward John Thomas and veteran guard Scott Brooks to the Celtics. The Knicks also will have the option of choosing from any of Boston's six second-round picks over the next four years.

"We're playing for right now," New York coach Jeff Van Gundy said before Wednesday night's exhibition game against the Celtics. "I think people get too concerned with youth. You want players who are good and who are in their prime."

The trade was surprising on both sides, but especially for the Celtics, who signed the 27-year-old Mills just two months ago to a seven-year, $33.6 million contract after he left the Cleveland Cavaliers as a free agent. Also, Brooks does not seem to fit in on a team that already has an abundance of point guards.

"Our dream is a lot further along down the road than the Knicks," Celtics coach Rick Pitino said, adding that more moves will be necessary before the Oct. 31 season opener. "The Knicks feel like they're on a championship drive right now."

Mills figures to have his playing time greatly reduced by going from the Celtics' starting lineup to a backup role behind small forward Larry Johnson. That's why, Mills said, Pitino gazed him veto power over the trade. "If I didn't feel like I was comfortable with it, he wouldn't do the deal," Mills said. "(But) I'm going to do a team that can contend right away. My main objective is to help the team win. If they feel like they need me down there to do that, I'm very happy."

Knicks general manager Ernie Grunfeld said Mills will also help out at off-guard. And although Allan Houston is now New York's youngest player at 26, Grunfeld estimated that the team is devoid of youth. "Chris Mills is only 27 years old, so he has his future ahead of him," Grunfeld said. "He's just hitting his prime."

Wolverines' defense presents problem for Michigan State

By Richard Rosenblatt
The Associated Press

The last time Michigan traveled to East Lansing, the Wolverines allowed two fourth quarter touchdowns, lost to Michigan State and fell out of the Rose Bowl picture.

Last season, Northwestern scored all its points in the fourth quarter and beat Michigan 17-16. Today, No. 5 Michigan is the master of the final period. The Wolverines (6-0, 3-0 Big Ten) have not allowed a fourth quarter point entering Saturday's conference showdown against No. 15 Michigan State (5-1, 2-1).

"We just weren't very good in the fourth quarter," says first-year defensive coordinator Jim Herrmann. "We had to make sure the kids understood how important that was."

Herrmann has installed a blinding, attacking defense and the results have paid off — the Wolverines are second nationally in scoring and total defense, permitting 8.3 points and 207.7 yards per game.

"Our attitude is that we are not going to be scored on," safety Marcus Ray said. "Coach Herrmann is fiery guy. He wants perfection. We've been talking."

Michigan State, meanwhile, plays some pretty good defense, too. The Spartans, 19-17 losers to Northwestern last Saturday, are 24th in both total offense and defense, allowing 12.2 points and 279 yards per game.

Trying to solve the defenses will be the Spartans' Todd Schultz, who has helped coach Sedrick Irvin, and the Wolverines' Brian Griese, with help from running backs Anthony Thomas and Chris Howard.

Schultz is 38 of 143 for 987 yards and 10 TDs, while Irvin has 591 yards and five TDs.

Can 'Gentle Ben' bear up on Ryder?

The Associated Press

The easy Texas charm of "Gentle Ben" Crenshaw seems wrong for the Ryder Cup captaincy he accepted Wednesday, yet enough smoke seeped through to indicate he might have the fire to reverse 14 years of U.S. mediocrity in the competition.

"It sometimes think 'Gentle Ben' might be a misnomer," said Crenshaw, who played the last 12 holes of his Ryder Cup singles match in 1987 without a putter after he broke it over his foot.

"Sometimes I can very competitive in sports," he said in a conference call from PGA of America headquarters in Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., where he was introduced as the 19th U.S. captain. "I think players I've played with know that."

Crenshaw also touched on three insightful points that indicated his studious approach to the game might put him in a position to make the difficult decisions needed to be a successful Ryder Cup captain.

"The U.S. team lost the last two Ryder Cups because the Europeans were better around the green."

"It is willing to bench team members who are not playing well at The Country Club in Brookline, Mass., in two years. I will challenge his team's strategy of pride with the fact that the United States has failed to bring home the Cup five of the last seven times since 1983."

The PGA of America moved with unusual speed in selecting Crenshaw, making the choice five weeks earlier than the selection of Tom Kite in 1995.

The European team is taking a more deliberate pace and it will wait as long as a year before making its selection. "The feeling is why put all that pressure on someone for two years when one year seems to be the norm?" said a source familiar with the PGA European Tour, who spoke on the condition of anonymity. "Another reason for waiting is that maybe Seve will win it this time and decide he will captain again."

Seve Ballesteros, widely praised for his job this year, said he wants to make the next Ryder Cup captain. "I've got a chance and I don't want to miss it," he said.

The choice of Crenshaw, 45, made sense in that he is a veteran player with Ryder Cup experience and is still active on the tour.

Sky-high EWU welcomes Bengals to Cheney

The Associated Press

Eastern Washington coach Mike Kramer should be thanking the schedule gods: Fresh from their upset at Montana to take the Big Sky Conference lead, his Eagles host Iowa State this weekend.

EWU (6-1 overall, 4-1 Big Sky) fields the league's top rushing offense, averaging 5.1 yards per carry, and with 32 touchdowns also leads the Big Sky in scoring.

The Eagles also boast the Big Sky's toughest defense, and lead the quarterback sacks category (2.9 per game).

ISU (5-5, 3-3) has the league's worst passing game, only partly compensated for by runners, who average 2.9 yards per carry (fifth in the conference). On defense, only Cal State-Sacramento is worse.

Kramer insists none of that matters. "In spite of their record, we're pretty aware of what Idaho State is capable of doing against us," he said. "They are capable of beating us if we're not totally prepared, focused and intent on getting it done."

Kramer's biggest task is keeping his Eagles from getting too cocky about facing the Big Sky's cellar-dweller after nipping the Grizzlies 40-35 in Missoula. The breakthrough ended Montana's home-winning streak at 20.

AROUND THE VALLEY

Local legislators present property-tax forum

HAILLEY - Wood River Valley state legislators will host a property-tax forum at the Blaine County Courthouse Wednesday.

Rep. Wendy Jaeger, D-Ketchum, Rep. Tim Rüdinger, R-Shoshone, and Sen. Clint Stennett, D-Ketchum, hope to carry back the public's ideas to the Idaho Legislature this winter.

The forum will start with an hour-long workshop on the state's school-funding formula, followed by a discussion of how tax assessors determine properties' worth, how state lawmakers establish a budget and the state's 3 percent cap on property-tax revenues. Schools consume up to 80 percent of Blaine County's property-tax bill.

At 7:30 p.m., officials will discuss creating new tax options, adding taxes, expanding tax breaks and consolidating government. Speakers include officials from the Idaho State Tax Commission, the Idaho Department of Education and Blaine County School District, and property assessors.

Small Business Day teams up with United Way's efforts

TWIN FALLS - Small Business Day will be held as part of the United Way's campaign this year, marking a change in the fund-raising effort.

The event, held in cooperation with the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce, will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. Nov. 13 at the Turf Club.

Small-business owners and managers are invited to learn about the United Way of Magic Valley and the 19 agencies it supports. There also will be a continental breakfast and drawings for prizes.

In the past, volunteers went door-to-door to small businesses soliciting donations, which added up to about $14,000 annually. By changing the drive to an event, United Way officials say they hope to attract more interest from small business and increase donations to $25,000.

This year's United Way total goal is $300,000.

The business event is the second large change in the campaign. Instead of a gala kickoff party, the United Way sponsored a "Change with you" event where volunteers helped member agencies set up planters, trees at the Magic Valley YFCA and painting the Salvation Army. It also sponsored free immunizations, a barbecue and other activities for children.

MVRMC laboratory gets national accreditation

TWIN FALLS - The laboratory of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center received national accreditation by the College of American Pathologists.

The designation followed an intensive on-site inspection by specially trained representatives of the Commission on Laboratory Accreditation, said Susan Morris, laboratory administrative director. The accreditation also establishes the level of medical, technical and administrative performance within the lab meets or exceeds the standards set by the college.

This is the highest level of accreditation that laboratories can receive in the United States, she said.

The inspection is voluntary, but the county hospital sought the accreditation because the program assists laboratories in achieving excellence by promoting a level of professional and technical expertise contributing to quality performance, Morris said.

The lab is accredited for two years.

Shoshone schools cancel city snow removal contract

SHOSHONE - The Shoshone School District has canceled its snow-removal agreement with Shoshone city crews.

"It was a mutual decision. ... It just didn't fit into our schedule the way we thought it would," City Council member J.R. Churchman said in a council meeting Tuesday night.

At issue was the availability for city crews to get streets cleared around Shoshone's two school buildings in time for students and staff to have a safe pathway to and from school. Both sides agreed the district would be better off finding an alternate source for snow removal.

The superintendent Max Evers said the school district was paying $2,000 a year for the service contract with the city - the bulk of which paid for snow removal.

Tuesday night, the council voted to charge the district $300 a year for its share of lawn maintenance for the ball fields.

Jerome family escapes fire

JEROME - Three people escaped injury after a candle started a house fire Tuesday night in Jerome.

The Jerome Fire Department received the call at 11:11 p.m. to respond to 212 E. Sixth St. Upon arrival, firefighters found the living room, front porch and stairways engulfed in flames, Fire Chief Jim Auclair said.

Greg Jensen, whose age wasn't available, was coming out of the bathroom when he saw black smoke in the kitchen. He awoke his two sons, ages 9 and 7, from downstairs bedrooms and they all escaped out a window, Auclair said. As soon as they had left, Henson turned and saw flames coming from the front of the home. They went to a neighbor's to call for help.

The blaze was quelled within 15 minutes, but it took an hour more to fight flames trapped between walls of additions to the house, Auclair said. The source of the fire was a candle on top of the television console, he said.

Seventeen firefighters responded with two engines. They were assisted by the Jerome Rural Fire Protection District. The only access to the home was across a bridge over an irrigation canal, and firefighters had to be cautious because of a hole in the middle of the bridge, Auclair said.

Damage to the older home, owned by Paula Henson of Twin Falls, was estimated at $30,000 to $40,000, the chief said.

Jerome seniors might not leave school early this year

JEROME - The switch this year to a trimester system at Jerome High School could end the tradition of letting graduating seniors out a few days early at the end of the school year.

High school Principal Carol Matthews recommended to the Jerome School Board Tuesday that seniors be released May 28, one day before the last day of school. Graduation should be held May 30, she said.

The board took no action on Matthews' recommendations Tuesday but is expected to vote next month on a final graduation-week schedule.

With the trimester system in place, there won't be much time left over for an early release one, seniors complete required classroom hours, Matthews said.

But administrators will need a day to go over seniors' academic records to be sure they meet graduation requirements, she said.

In other Jerome schools business: Boys and Girls Club of Magic Valley representative Karlan Toolson said the club might want to use rooms in the Washington School building on Lincoln Street to start a Jerome chapter.

The Boys and Girls Club has been successful in Twin Falls and is trying to start satellite chapters, Toolson said.

Most of the children the club serves are 6- to 12-year-olds from low-income families, she said. Older children can help out as mentors.

Superintendent Jim Cobble said there might be spare room in the Washington School building, but the space first must be inspected for fire safety.

Horizon Elementary Principal Ann Reynolds reported that for the third year in a row no Halloween costumes will be allowed in the school.

An increasing number of children at the school come from families who can't afford costumes, and those children were feeling left out, she said.

Some teachers also complained costumes were too disruptive, Reynolds said.

The were also a few complaints about costumes promoting pagan and violent themes, she said.

District Business Manager Mike Gibson said that, as of Sept. 30, there were 3,065 students enrolled in Jerome schools - down 46 students from the same time last year.

Drug convict gets probation for walking away from work release

BURLEY - In the crowded intimacy of the Cassia County commissioners' meeting room, Wednesday's 5th District Court included an interesting exchange between Judge George Granata Jr. and convicted felon Ronald Karlson during his probation violation hearing.

Karlson, 34, convicted of possession of a controlled substance July 10, admitted to having walked away from his work release.

Public defender Robert Crandall told the court the reason Karlson left his work was that he was suicidal, and Karlson admitted himself to Canyonview Hospital in Twin Falls where he spent six days participating in various therapies.

"How did you get there?" Granata asked.

"I had a friend drive me," Karlson said.

"You can understand that walking out on work release is a serious problem," Granata said.

"Yes, your honor," Karlson said. "There were other ways I could have handled it."

"Are you on medication?" Granata asked.

"Yes, I'm taking Prozac," Karlson said.

"Is it helping? I understand some people have to take it for the rest of their lives," the judge said.

"Yes, it's made a big difference. I can think. I can find who I am," Karlson said.

"How many times do you have to use meth to get addicted?" Granata asked.

"One time," Karlson said.

"That's all it takes?" Granata asked. "What's the high?"

High school Principal Carol Matthews recommended to the Jerome School Board Tuesday that seniors be released May 28, one day before the last day of school. Graduation should be held May 30.

By Penelope Reedy Times-News writer

"It gives you lots of energy. Keeps you up a long time," Karlson replied.

Karlson turned himself in after his six days of treatment at Canyonview where he, Crandall told the court.

Granata imposed the state's recommendations of three years' probation and revoked the withheld judgment. He also insisted upon intensive outpatient counseling for Karlson, said.

Karlson's general equivalency diploma to be completed within a year.

Karlson was stopped and searched May 16 by Cassia County sheriff's deputy Antonio Bernier after falling off his bicycle on Oakley Avenue.

Net result: Jerome tennis court job may cost more than expected

JEROME - Tennis courts in City Park stand to get a refurbishing through a joint effort by the city, the Jerome Recreation District and the Jerome Tennis Association, but the job might cost more than originally planned.

Gordon Paving of Twin Falls submitted the low bid for the project, $45,466, which is more than the $30,000 the city budgeted. The Jerome City Council awarded the contract, provided the company does the work in the spring to save money.

City Engineer Scott Bybee said he requested bids with various repair costs listed separately, so the project could be trimmed to meet available money.

"We will not get everything we originally wanted, but will get a nice tennis court," Bybee said.

Bybee has proposed a different version of the coating project.

Under the new plan, the old surface would not be removed, but it would be covered over. In the meantime, digging the fall and winter, the tennis association, the recreation district and the city will have time to dig up another $4,000 in donations.

Gary Funderburg of the tennis association wants many association members would probably work on soliciting donations, since they wanted to "do it right from the start."

Group members worry that by not removing the old surface, the courts would not last.

"I would like the city to take out the old courts, bring in sand, and get a new bid from start to finish," said Mike Pohanka, one of the tennis association.

He said he would hate to see $30,000 spent, if five years later the job would have to be done again.

Ex-employee points finger at Simplot

Accuses plant of misleading many laid-off employees

By Gregory Hahn Times-News writer

HEYBURN - When 175 or so workers were laid off from the J.R. Simplot plant here at the end of August, about 45 of them took advantage of a federal job training program and started classes at the College of Southern Idaho.

But the company has called several former employees back, and they have had to make a choice: drop out of school and go back to work, or lose company benefits.

On Wednesday, almost exactly halfway through the CSI semester, Simplot called James Crosland, a mechanic and former head of the Local 296 of the American Federation of Grain Millers.

According to him, he was presented with a choice he should never have been given.

"They're lying to these people and saying they have to quit," he said.

Simplot personnel manager Paul Richardson declined comment Wednesday, referring questions to Jo Ann Bagby, the plant's administrative manager. According to Bagby's voice mail, she is unavailable until Nov. 3.

At issue is an item called a "voluntary layoff" form.

Crosland said Wednesday the workers needed only to sign this form. When the form is in place, a company can no longer demand a worker's services or threaten to take away their benefits, Crosland said.

The option to, in effect, take a leave of absence has always been available to Simplot employees, he said. Under regular conditions, a worker asking to be laid off would lose his or her benefits, but during a permanent layoff, Crosland said, the rules are different.

Both Crosland and his wife took advantage of the federal program and signed up at CSI. She was recalled early.

District may choose schools for class change

By Karen E. Nalezinek
Times-News writer

RUPERT — School Board officials are continuing to discuss an innovative curriculum that could change education in Minidoka County as early as fall 1998.

The district is looking at the EFG Curriculum, named after its basis of ecological, future and global issues.

At its Nov. 18 meeting, the board could choose up to three schools to pilot the program, or one based on its ideas, Superintendent Nick Hallett said.

The new curriculum drew attention in Minidoka County in September after school officials saw it in action at a school in Tennessee. After seeing its success, they thought it might help raise the county's test scores, which continue to fall below average.

The district likes several aspects of the EFG Curriculum, Hallett said. The program lets students progress at their own speed — they won't move on to a higher level until they've proven competency — and offers teachers more flexibility to expand instruction beyond the textbooks, bringing real-life situations into the classroom.

"Right now people are saying you've persuaded us on the concepts, we just don't want to be confined to someone else's program," Hallett said.

"We've decided to let people tell us what they want us to do. Some people are still suspicious why we want to be involved with someone else's curriculum when we could design our own."

School board member George MacDonald, who accompanied the group to Tennessee, said he has no reservations about the curriculum, but said it should start in one or two schools so people can observe its progress.

"I feel that what we saw in Tennessee was change in its purest form and it was all good," MacDonald said.

"I'm afraid that people out there who are not close to education don't understand this (curriculum), and I'd hate to see it fall on its face because of that."

As a compromise, Hallett said the district may decide to go with EFG's concepts but develop its own program.

MacDonald said he's sure the district should take a geographical issue, "an educational issue and I think it's a little safer to steer away from EFG's Mac Donald said.

"They've already put it in schools so they know the pros and cons, so why not learn from their mistakes?"

Regardless, Hallett has asked officials to gauge their schools' interests in testing the program. Eighty percent of a school's staff and parent-teacher organization members must back him, he said, and the school will need to demonstrate a commitment to the innovative program.

Schools must submit their applications by Nov. 12 if they want to be considered.

Jerome construction maintains strength

By Chris Thomas-Simile
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — In the city of Jerome, building permits and construction are up — dramatically.

September was the third month in a row with building permits issued in Jerome for construction in excess of $3 million, city building inspector Rod Wilson told the City Council Tuesday evening.

"October seems to be down but it's not over yet," he said. Wilson says "1997 will be a very strong year for building" and expects construction in 1998 to be "1 1/2 to 2 times more than '97."

In other Jerome city business, Bob Wilkinson of US West met with the council to answer questions concerning US West's stand in not giving out maps of buried cable in rights of way around the city. Wilkinson said US West does not give such maps to anyone.

Adrian Lake requires people to own the liability of the "Big Line" but when planning to dig in an area with buried cable, it is necessary to call the Dig Line representative of the company. Dig lines are within 48 inches and locate the buried cable so the power digging does not accidentally cut it.

Construction Dennis Moore asked about emergencies with broken water lines. "The water can get awfully deep in 48 hours."

"When an emergency it is my understanding that there is no billing for damages," Wilkinson said.

He advised the city to start its own file on where lines are buried. When US West installs and buries lines, the director of public works can go to the site, measure the area and map where lines are buried.

However, Wilkinson advised the city not to take taking plans available to others. If the city's map shows the lines at 16 feet from a landmark and they are actually 18 feet, the city could be held liable in litigation.

Wilkinson said:

City officials decided they would make their own maps. City engineer Scott Bybee offered his services.

Jerome Recreation District Director Eli Roberts returned $22,100 to the city — excess money from managing the city's swimming pool for the summer. Roberts reported that in the eight weeks of operation, the city pool had 2,858 people swim, compared to 14,927 in 12 weeks for the recreation district's pool. The city pool brought in $3,413 in income and cost $11,312 to operate. The recreation district pool had income of $23,000 and expenses of $34,000.

The predominant age group using the pools was under 12.

Roberts said the recreation district is willing to operate the pool for the city again but said both pools are in need of resurfacing. She said there definitely is need for a pool but wondered whether it was economically feasible to operate two pools.

"Tax money is being spent to support both pools," she said she would like to see "the money combined into one new facility."

Mayor Gerald Ostler read a proclamation naming Nov. 28 as National Animal Shelter appreciation week in the city of Jerome. City Administrator Jon Cecil said he wanted to use that week as a kickoff for fundraising for the city animal shelter. It needs repairs, and Cecil is aiming at $10,000 for the repairs.

Cecil said the city has entered the third phase of City Hall remodeling. The east entrance to City Hall will be closed temporarily while work progresses.

Ostler said the council needs to work up annexation procedures for the coming year. Areas in the county receiving city services without paying city taxes need to be annexed, he said.

Gooding council finally approves golf course lease

By Sharon Metcalf
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — The Gooding City Council Monday approved a 15-year lease at the Gooding Country Club golf course.

The new lease is identical to the 30-year lease which expires Jan. 1, 1998, with two exceptions. — A 50-cent-per-nine-hole fee will be collected, then paid to the city each month for a capital improvement fund.

The city will no longer make a cash contribution to the course. The council then accepted a resolution, citing Idaho Code, allowing the council to lease real property in the city's best interests.

Interest by an outside party in leasing the golf course had caused a stir in recent months, resulting in a close review of the situation.

Councilman Phil Becker, a member of the country club, abstained from voting Monday.

In other city business: — The council approved a final draft of a 30-year lease of part of East Park to the city recreation district for a swimming pool.

Since the pool is only in the planning stages, with fund-raising to begin in November, the lease agreement can be voided after the city if fund-raising goals are not met.

City Attorney Craig Hobday and Becker will attend an Oct. 31 conference in Nampa on how to conduct executive sessions and confidential meetings pertain to local government.

Police Chief Paul Brown expressed disappointment in the poor turnout for the department's open house Friday, but thanked council members for attending.

He had hoped citizens would take the opportunity to meet their local police force.

Continuing problems with irrigation flooding on 14th Avenue West can be solved by extending pipe from problem areas into the canal, said City Superintendent Todd Bunn.

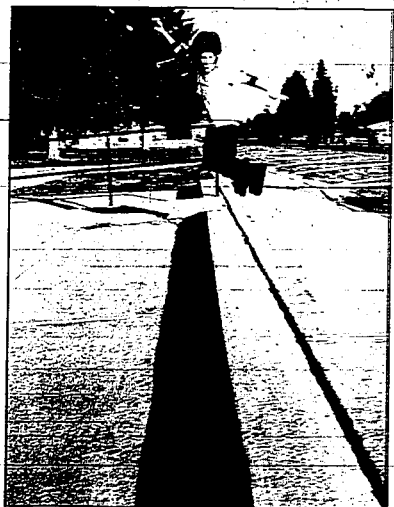

When the Idaho School for the Deaf and Blind does require its total allotment, over 100 fields and yards is a continuing problem. Bunn will proceed by contacting Northside Canal Company for approval.

Bunn — also — was given approval to investigate costs for an additional city outbuilding to house new city trucks and simplify mechanical repair in the winter.

The council Monday held a closed executive session.

Seattle company starts taking reservations for space travel

SEATTLE (AP) — Her, Rocket Man! Got your bags packed? Seattle-based Zephrum Expeditions is taking reservations for trips on a rocket-powered cruiser that would fly 62 miles above the Earth's surface — far enough from the planet's gravitational pull to achieve weightlessness for about 20 minutes.

"I'd love to go — wouldn't you?" said Scott Fitzsimmons, vice president of the subsidiary Zephrum Space Voyages.

The company started taking reservations Monday and so far has "at least 15" confirmed passengers making a $5,000 deposit on the $98,000 trip, Fitzsimmons said Wednesday.

Plans call for the voyages to start in 2001, when Zephrum plans to schedule two departures a week, with six passengers along on each "seven-day space experience," he said.

Most of those seven days would be spent in preparation and training, said program manager Chris Orendar. Participants will spend two days at a space residence and three days in advanced astronaut training, he said.

"The sixth day is the exciting flight day," Orendar said, with the flight room lasting 2 1/2 hours. The rest of the day will be spent "in celebration and awards," he said, and the seventh day is a travel day, with space veterans heading home.

The company and its parent — including the Vienna, Va.-based aerospace company Vela Technology — have come up with a design for small jet-like vehicles, powered by rockets, that will take private passengers up above the ozone layer to where the sky meets black.

There are now Internet "filters" on most individual computers in the district, Gibson said. But those filters often crash the computers if offensive material is detected.

A filter program — covering the district's entire network with no

Boeing AlliedSignal trip Dow

NEW YORK (AP) — Boeing and AlliedSignal spoiled this week's streak of rising profit reports, but stocks suffered only minor losses Wednesday as the overall trend remained positive. The Dow Jones industrial average fell 25.78 to 8,945.65 after nearly turning higher during the final hour. Without a steep decline by Boeing and AlliedSignal, the Dow would have finished the day with a slight gain, extending its speedy recovery from last week's slurry.

Microsoft deals with nearly every major PC maker to make its Internet Explorer easier for Web surfers to use. Microsoft's new attempt and continues the practice. Microsoft says it is only giving customers what they want, doing nothing illegal and is confident it can win any court challenge.

In past run-ins with government, Microsoft has used some tactics that got it in trouble, but for the most part it continued its aggressive grab for rivals' business. For example, Microsoft now links twice about big outright acquisitions after authorities in 1995 announced its proposed merger with Intuit, the maker of Quicken, a deal that would have helped it lock up the market for personal finance software.

Though Bill Gates' extraordinary success — and $38 billion fortune — might cause some sour grapes, many rivals contend his company plays too close to the line of what's permissible in business. The Justice Department wins the $1-million-per-year fine, "it would be a gray disaster to our customers," Gates said.

Microsoft is planning to incorporate the Internet Explorer viewing screens into Windows 98, and Internet Explorer the program that future computer buyers will use to view both what they have on their own PCs and what they encounter while moving about the worldwide Internet. "A fundamental principle at Microsoft is that Windows gets used with each new version," said Microsoft Chairman Bill Gates.

Best trophies often shot in the minds' eye

Sometimes being in the right place at the right time is not enough.

I was in Copenhagen recently on one of my regular visits to see my mother. Desiring a break, I chanced to get away for an afternoon in the deer park just north of the city.

The park is bordered on all sides by city and suburbs, concrete, brick, rails and asphalt, but inside the fences nature still rules—mostly. A few of the gnarled oak trees are so old they have names. Some were seedlings eight centuries ago when the last of the Vikings still plied the waters visible to the east from high ground.

I almost always spot herds of deer on my visits to the park, which was once the royal hunting preserve. The royal Italian Renaissance hunting lodge still overlooks large meadows in the center of the park.

QUIET
WATERS
N.S. Nøkkentved

Walking paths familiar since my childhood, I followed the bellowing of the European elk, smaller than their American cousins. The park also is home to herds of roe deer and the small Japanese sika deer.

It was a cool October day, the beeches were just starting to yellow, and the sun played tag with fast moving clouds. In the shadows amongst the trees, I could hear the bellowing of a lone bull elk. I turned off the gravel path to try to get a better look.

Cutting through a thicket, I glimpsed the bull. He carried a 10-point set of antlers. They must sag continually on the trees' lower branches.

Armed with a 300 millimeter telephoto lens, fast color slide film and a Nikon with a motor drive, I spent the next two hours stalking the grizzled veteran.

He was an old fellow. The rutting season was all but over, but he didn't take kindly to my approach. When I neared he would bellow and paw the ground, lower his head and shake his rack as if I were one more challenger. I kept at a respectful distance.

The sun was behind him, making a picture in the shadows hard to shoot with any reasonable results. So I maneuvered to get into a better position.

When I moved to get the sun over my shoulder, he moved into deeper shadows. A large swampy area kept me from moving directly through the trees to get on the other side of him.

He tantalized me several times with a stirring silhouette, standing between the trees as the sun broke through the clouds. Good enough to make me fire off a few frames, but not the shot I wanted.

I started to rain lightly.

I stopped and leaned against a tree to rest for a few moments. I peeked around the trunk. The elk hadn't moved. I checked the number of frames left on my film. Already I had used 34 frames on the roll of 36.

I peeked around the tree again. He was moving away.

Anticipating his movements, I worked myself into a position where the light would be right if he stepped into the open. The rain stopped. Sunlight broke through the overcast, turning raindrops into jewels against the dark green of the underbrush.

And there he was, stopped in a shaft of sunlight, dark reddish brown, with some white low on his throat and grey on his back and around the muzzle. With his head thrown back and his chin up, he bellowed at me.

Bracing the long lens against the trunk of an old beech, I snapped one shot, and brackening the exposure, I snapped the last frame on the roll.

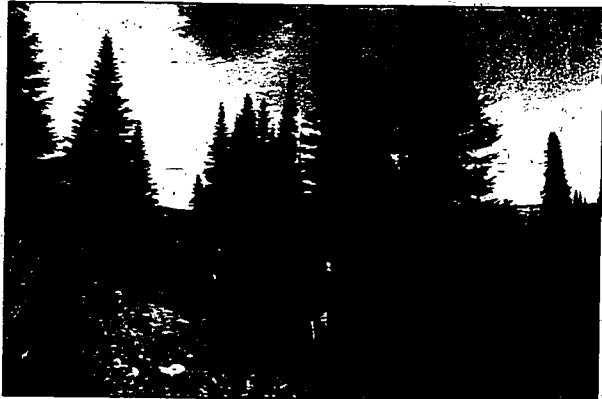

He stepped bellowing, eyed me suspiciously, and as if he sensed that I was out of film, that the game was over, he turned to graze a patch of grass and faded back into the shadows.

Upon my return to the States I eagerly awaited the results of my little hunt. Alas, the photo processor had run my slide film through the print film process, ruining all my shots. All my patience had been for naught—well not completely.

I still have the pictures in my mind, and I can't help but think they get better with age.

The big picture

Sawtooth National Forest officials lead a group to the top of the Rim View Trail on a recent tour. The Rim View is the newest trail in the South Hills, but it is open only to hikers and animals.

Unlike many other trails in the South Hills, the Rim View Trail affords spectacular views as it winds through rocky bluffs overlooking Rock Creek Road.

Newest trail in South Hills offers stunning views

By Mark Wicker
Times-News correspondent

HANSEN—The newest hiking trail in the South Hills has its ups and downs.

Nineteen-hundred vertical feet's worth, to be exact.

The Rim View Trail scrambles for 9 1/2 miles, from the bottom of the Third Fork of Rock Creek all the way to the top of Deadline Ridge. Nearly 2 1/2 years in the making, the trail was recently opened by the Sawtooth National Forest.

The Rim View is unique for a couple of reasons. For starters, signs at the trailheads indicate that it's for non-mechanical use only—which means anything with four or six feet is OK, but anything with wheels, including bicycles, is prohibited. Thus, you'll have to walk or ride an animal if you plan to soak in the trail's stunning scenery.

This is a major exception to virtually all of the other trails in the South Hills, which are open to motorcycles, all-terrain vehicles, and anything else that can fit.

Another distinction is that the Rim View Trail literally takes the high road. Most trails in the South Hills cut through the bottoms and follow tumbling creeks. While pleasant, streamside paths generally don't offer much in terms of a view.

The Rim View Trail, by contrast, was engineered specifically to give sweeping panoramic views as it winds through the impressive bluffs of Rock Creek Canyon.

The terrain is extremely varied.

From the upper trailhead, on Deadline Ridge, the trail swiftly disappears into a forest. The lower trailhead is at the confluence of the Third Fork and Fourth

With evening temperatures dipping below freezing, spectacular fall colors are on display everywhere—so now might be a perfect time to "take a hike."

Fork of Rock Creek, at an obvious turn-out on the west side of the road. From there, the trail ascends sage-covered ridges, gradually climbing above the surrounding valleys and canyons, eventually passing through stands of aspen and evergreen trees.

If you're planning a round-trip from one trailhead to the other—and back again—be forewarned: You're looking at a 19-mile hike with a lot of elevation gain. This is a big trip for even the experienced hiker.

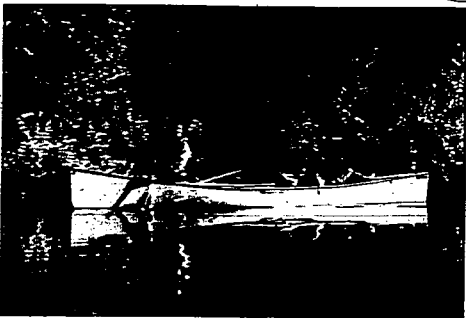

If you want to cut the Rim View Trail down to size, consider bringing a friend and a second car. Leave a vehicle at each trailhead and hike the trail in one direction only; when you reach the trail's end, simply hop in.

Rock climbing moves indoors, where walls offer challenges

Knight-Ridder News Service

The ground is 30 feet below you. Your sweaty fingers grip tiny pieces of rock, the balls of your feet wedge to the side of the wall, supported only by protrusions smaller than your fist. One wrong step and—relax, you're safe! Your partner is there to pull the slack on the rope to keep you from falling to the ground.

For tens of thousands of people, indoor rock-climbing is a regular workout to be fit, have fun and dump stress. No longer just a supplement to outdoor climbing or an extreme sport solely for radical thrill-seekers (even if it was part of the recent X-Games in San Diego), indoor climbing has evolved into an increasingly mainstream sport in and of itself.

In 1996, 71 percent of nearly 50,000 Climbing Magazine readers said they were participating in indoor climbing, and commercial climbing gyms have grown from 89 in 1994 to more than 300 in 1997, according to reports from the Outdoor Recreation Coalition of America and the Sporting Goods Manufacturers Association. Nearly one-third of all climbers climb only indoors, estimated Wayne Campbell, president of Radwall, a company that builds climbing walls and free-standing structures.

In Southern California, Sporting Goods and outdoor-recreation stores such as REI, Adventure 16, North Face and Sport Chalef have walls and free-standing rocks that customers can climb to test climbing equipment such as shoes and harnesses.

Radwall built "Surge Rock" on the Las Vegas Strip, the tallest free-standing indoor climbing rock at 75 feet. Gameworks, a huge interactive entertainment center, opened Surge Rock in May. It charges $10 to climb to the top, $6 to get to the halfway mark.

Not enough vertical room? The indoor rock-climbing phenomenon has spawned a strange exercise-machine category—rolling rock walls, which are like self-

Neyada Wildlife officials and Sparks, Nev., police carry off a 225-275 pound bear that was tranquilized after it wandered too close to a Sparks neighborhood Tuesday morning. The bear will be released in the Excelsior Mountains of Mineral County southeast of Hawthorne, Nev.

Voyageur Park bears are a friendly lot - but for how long?

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn. (AP) - Rusty is a young black bear who likes people. People seem to like Rusty. Unfortunately, the mutual attraction could get him killed.

Timmerman's research is designed to develop new ways to count, analyze and predict bear behavior and keep them away from humans.

Timmerman's study is funded by the University of Minnesota, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and the National Park Service and will serve as her dissertation.

'Rusty (a bear) is an accident waiting to happen. He's like a big, old dog who comes running every time he hears people. His mother must have been a beggar.'

- Kris Timmerman, wildlife conservationist

Rusty lives in Voyageur National Park, one of the least visited in the country. Located on Minnesota's border with Canada, the 218,000-acre treasure surrounds two large lakes and is full of interconnected ponds, creeks and islands.

As Timmerman paddles a canoe to trapping sites on remote lakes surrounded by towering birch and pine trees, the landscape is nearly the same as it was when French pioneers, known as Voyageurs, set their bear traps here in the last century. Using barrel traps and snares, Timmerman is beginning her research by tagging bears and putting radio collars on them.

The same cannot be said about Rusty's mother. But visitors came anyway, seeking photographs. They fed him, and he happily posed as long as the handouts kept coming.

An attempted scratch behind the ears could end in disaster. Only 35 people have died in black bear attacks this century, but hundreds have been mauled. The offending bear is usually hunted down.

Empy traps support her opinion. Many have been tripped and the bacon used as bait is gone. Bears look for the easiest way to get the largest number of calories, and campsites too often offer the best deal.

When Timmerman and her team go to catch Rusty, he saunters to them, ready to eat from their hands. Timmerman tranquilizes Rusty in order to move him, and he falls asleep, eating, a few minutes later.

Contact between humans and bears at Voyageurs is likely only to increase. The park was visited by 300,000 people in 1995, up 36 percent from a decade earlier, and local businesses are pushing hard to reach the 1 million mark that was projected when the park opened in 1975.

With the help of two student assistants from the university, more than 25 bears have been marked. Officials estimate that the park could house hundreds, but Timmerman's is the first study to attempt a scientific census.

Whooping cranes reach winter home

BOSQUE DEL APACHE NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGE, N.M. (AP) - It was a small hop for a crane or a plane - the final 40-mile leg of an 800-mile odyssey to help save the endangered whooping crane.

Whooping cranes and sandhill cranes can be seen from the wing of Kent Clegg's ultralight airplane, following it south to Ship Rock N.M., Saturday.

Like a scene from "Fly Away Home," three whooping cranes flew into this winter refuge on the Rio Grande Tuesday behind an ultralight plane, painted white with black wing tips to mimic an adult whooping crane.

After the lead plane and a chase plane landed, a ground crew - which made the trip in a van - unloaded pens to contain and protect the birds.

veterinarian last Thursday after a golden eagle swooped from above and nipped the crane on the leg near Price, Utah.

"We're simulating their parents bringing them south for the first migration," Kent Clegg said after landing with the whoopers and six sandhill cranes in an alfalfa field. "We use that airplane but we get it out of here as quickly as for a crane or a plane - the final 40-mile leg of an 800-mile odyssey to help save the endangered whooping crane."

Clegg said it would take a couple of days for the birds to adapt to the wild and to other birds on the refuge.

The whooper rode the rest of the way in a trailer towed by the ground crew, along with a sandhill crane that was too weak to fly with the plane.

Clegg circled his single-seat ultralight three times over the field before touching down at 8:52 a.m. MDT, heading north under clear skies and into a chill wind out of the northwest.

"Our biggest concern is to get them to roost on water" where they would be protected from attacks by coyotes, he said.

Clegg said the injured whooping crane was doing well and would be released at the bosque with the rest of the cranes.

A flock of more than 1,000 sandhills roosted in an adjacent field. As the airplane arrived, they rose from cornstalks where they were feeding, flapped their wings a little in a kind of greeting and settled down again.

"Coyotes are a big problem on this refuge," Clegg said.

The eighth sandhill on the flight was destroyed after being hurt in a separate accident near Price when it got trapped in the hood around the ultralight's propeller, severely injuring its leg.

One whooper was treated by a

There's no doubt you get a good physical workout. Rock climbing may not be the easiest way to get your heart rate up for cardiovascular endurance, but it's excellent for total body muscle toning, said Brent Webster, rock-wall director at the Laketown Towers Sporting Club in Irvine, Calif.

Walleye found in Cascade pond

BOISE (AP) — Illegally stocked walleye have been discovered in an 80-acre farm pond near Cascade, a finding that could have a far-reaching impact on Idaho fishing.

The pond eventually drains into the Snake River, making the presence of walleye particularly disturbing, said Fish and Game Department fish manager Don Anderson.

The fish were not stocked by the landowner, Anderson said the owner asked if they were bad fish. "I told him, no, they're great fish, just in a bad place."

Because they are efficient predators and prolific spawners, if walleye find their way into the Snake River, it could have a severe impact on fish in Burrows, Oxbow and Hells Canyon reservoirs.

All support strong populations of smallmouth bass, crappie, catfish, perch and trout. "If walleye become established in these reservoirs, existing game fish would be in peril," Anderson said. "Walleye might also become established further downriver and impact our endangered salmon and steelhead, species that are already struggling for survival."

Walleye are a high maintenance species, requiring productive water and prolific prey species to survive. Most Idaho waters lack these qualities and thus cannot support adequate walleye populations to provide good walleye fishing. So their presence in Idaho waters would be of no real advantage but a detriment to other fish populations.

Walleye also are not a fish for every angler. Walleye fishing requires persistence and specialized techniques. Unlike perch, bass and crappie, that provide year-round fishing, walleye become difficult to catch as the season or weather changes.

They feed primarily at night. The walleye will be removed this week by fish and game biologists at a cost of about $12,000. Illegal stocking and spending money to correct the problems are not new to the area. Just five miles away at Horsethief Reservoir, yellow perch have been illegally stocked three times in the last 15 years.

Though stocking fish without a permit has been a violation of state law, the problem has persisted. In an effort to discourage the activity, the last Legislature directed the Fish and Game Department to pursue costs up to $10,000 associated with correcting the damage caused by an unlawful fish release.

Hunters, don't miss film made for you

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Anyone who enjoys hunting might want to see a movie that opens Friday in Twin Falls and Jerome.

The 92-minute film, "The Nature of Hunting," is presented by the Remington Arms Co. The movie is several years old, but it has been re-released in a larger format with better picture and sound quality.

The film depicts hunters from Mississippi to the Rockies in their quest for waterfowl, deer, elk and other game. The film is not rated, but there are graphic scenes of animals being killed with shotguns, rifles, and bows.

The film runs through Oct. 30. Admission is $6 for adults and $3 for children at the Twin Cinema 12, and $5.50 for adults and $2.50 for children at the Jerome Cinema 4.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Bobby Wolff

"Misfortune / wandering the same track lights now upon one / and now upon another."
— Aeschylus

Today's heart game was played in a recent team contest. Both declarers went down by one, failing to overcome the obstacle of West's atrocious trump stack. Can you spot a safe way to play trumps to avoid three losers in that suit?

At both tables, West led a neutral diamond 10 to South's ace and both declarers started trumps. With only one loser outside trumps, both routinely led a trump to dummy's ace and a low one back. East's discard was a shocker and there was no reprieve. West was now due three trump tricks, and there was no way to avoid a club loser.

How could South play today's trump suit to avoid losing three trump tricks? Leading a low trump to dummy's jack will do the job in today's layout, but it will not work when East holds a singleton jack.

ANSWER: Pass. North has a good suit and a good hand, but the chances for game are not good.

The safety play may sacrifice an overtrick with trumps but it gains a bundle when they misbehave.
