Group scores BLM over study

By N.S. Nokketyod
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Wilderness Society wants to know why the Bureau of Land Management isn't raising questions about a proposed U.S. Air Force bombing and electronic combat range west of Castletown.

For years, the Air Force has been trying to build a bombing range in southwestern Idaho.

Wilderness Society questions agency interest in bomb range

A draft version of the study that looks at the environmental effects of the latest proposal — the fourth — was released last spring and opened to a public comment period that ended in September.

Air Force and BLM officials are incorporating those comments and compiling a final version of the document. The BLM and the Air Force both must approve it before it is released.

The Wilderness Society has questioned the adequacy of the environmental impact statement, and it wants to know why the BLM has made no comment publicly.

BLM spokesman Jon Foster said the agency still is working with the Air Force on the impact statement, and it would not be appropriate to comment on its adequacy.

The lack of comment implies BLM found the study adequate. The Wilderness Society's Idaho director Craig Gehrkre said in a recent letter to Please see STUDY, Page A2

Twin Falls figure mulls bid for Gem legislature

Leon Smith says run in '98 is a 'strong possibility'

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Leon Smith, 60, is a jack-of-all-trades in Twin Falls politics: former mayor, city councilman, county prosecutor, even district judge candidate.

Now he is eyeing the state Legislature. Smith said he wanted to wait until his youngest son left for college before considering a bid, and "there is a strong possibility" he will run, he said.

"I've been interested in it for a long time," Smith said. If he runs, Smith may have his choice of two races: Rep. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls, is leaving this spring for a bid for state schools superintendent. Rep. Mark Stubbs, R-Twin Falls, is likely to run for a seat being vacated by U.S. Rep. Mike Crapo, who is running for U.S. Senate.

Smith and his family settled in Twin Falls in 1968 after roaming the nation armed with a checklist of qualities they wanted in the perfect town. He was elected to the Twin Falls City Council in 1974, and the council appointed him mayor four years later.

As mayor, Smith led Twin Falls through the turbulent late 1970s, highlighted by development of the city's first land-use plan and a recall campaign against him by critics upset with the City Council's bickering and closed-door meetings.

Albion Normal could be site for virtual reality space center

By Mary Lynne Bristol
Times-News writer

ALBION — The Albion Normal School may soon begin a second life — as a training base for the actors and operators of a virtual reality space ride.

The city has entered into a contract that would allow installation of a portable version of a virtual reality ride that simulates space travel.

Semi-trailers will be backed together, to form the "starship" at malls or other sites. The ships will not be built on campus, but a prototype will be set up in the quad for training people who man the machines.

"We are very excited about the project. Albion Normal has until Dec. 31, 1998, to raise money to pay the $50,000 down payment on a five-year lease of the campus. He can extend the pre-lease agreement another year provided he pays the city $10,000 before Dec. 31, 1998.

Failing to do either will nullify the agreement. If Ellsworth is able to obtain the down payment, the lease with the option to buy will go into effect and 10 percent of all development money will be paid to Albion until a total of $160,000 has been paid.

Ellsworth's financial advisor, Darrell Martin, said Ellsworth wants to get started right away.

"We hope to begin renovation of the Please see ALBION, Page A2

IRS launches problem-solving sessions this weekend

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service begins its most visible response to taxpayer complaints — "problem-solving days" — starting Saturday in 33 cities.

"The tax agency hopes to handle at least some problems on the spot and send a message of a new commitment to personal attention.

Citizens can get the ear of IRS employees and talk about their lingering and unresolved tax problems, which could range from unresolved bills to errors

Some matters may be settled on spot

with payments or IRS collection tactics. In the West, the sessions will be offered in Seattle, Phoenix, Denver, Los Angeles, Oakland and San Jose, Calif.

"Having a national day, it's almost the equivalent of a military stand down," said Phil Brand, a former IRS chief compliance officer now at the accounting firm KPMG Peat Marwick. "I think it has a chance of being almost a seminal event for the service."

Deputy Treasury Secretary Lawrence

H. Summers agreed that beyond tackling taxpayer problems head-on, the sessions carry symbolic weight.

"Over time, problem-solving days and steps like it, (such as) strengthening the taxpayer advocate, will create an IRS with a different culture," Summers said in an interview Tuesday.

The problem solving days also allow the agency to present itself in a more positive light, particularly after Senate hearings into alleged IRS abuses.

"This is our chance to show what we can do to tell our own story," said Ellen Murphy, the IRS assistant director in Dallas.

Nationwide, the IRS has received 1,600 calls from taxpayers inquiring about the problem-solving days, said Summers, who oversees the administration's efforts to overhaul the IRS. The IRS urges people to make appointments before Saturday so it can research cases beforehand. Those without appointments won't be turned away.

The IRS plans to hold Saturday problem-solving days each month.

When neighbors' tempers flare, here's help

The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — In Eddie Collins' 19 years as a neighborhood mediator, he's settled tempers over barking dogs, ended shouting matches between landlords and tenants, and stopped a man from mooning his neighbors.

Working in Portland's Neighborhood Mediation Center, he's taught residents to get along, or at least to ignore each other.

By January, the center will close after 19 years in Portland, replaced by a non-profit organization offering similar services. Closing the center will save $136,000 a year, said Diane Linn, director of Portland's Office of Neighborhood Associations, which oversees the mediation center. She blames the closure on budget cuts.

The city is considering several non-profits and will select one by next year, Linn said. The new group probably will handle fewer cases because it will have less money.

That worries Collins, who fears that people left without help will cause more problems for police. "What will people do if no one is there to help them?" he asks. "People will take matters into their own hands, and crime could go up."

The Portland Metropolitan Human Rights Commission created Portland's center in 1978. It began with nine mediators and offices in North, Northeast and Southeast Portland.

In recent years, budget cuts sliced away at the centers, leaving only the Northeast Portland center at the King Facility with its three mediators. It operates Please see MEDIATE, Page A2

Trial will focus on Kaczynski's mind

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The centerpiece of the Unabomber trial will be the mind of Theodore Kaczynski, the brilliant boy who turned into a technology-hating hermit embittered against everything from planes to pay phones.

With a mountain of evidence found in his Montana cabin pointing to him as the Unabomber, the trial that begins with jury selection Wednesday will focus on whether Kaczynski was a man with a "mental defect," not responsible for his actions, or prove that he's a rational, cold-blooded killer.

Kaczynski's own letters and journals provide the raw material for both sides.

One item — a letter Kaczynski wrote to his parents — suggests that the veneer of a socially competent, intelligent could well have masked childhood hatreds looking for an outlet, said Dr. Eugene Schoenfeld, a psychiatrist and forensic consultant.

"This is a lot of age building up in this guy," he said. "And people will rationalize anger and violence through a cause — a greater good that justifies destruction and murder."

In the Sacramento case, Kaczynski is charged with bombings that killed two and maimed two. Separately in New Jersey, he's charged in one death.

In all, the government claims Kaczynski is behind 16 bombings that killed three people and injured 23 over 18 years.

No longer the scruffy, wide-eyed mountain man arrested in April 1996, Kaczynski now appears in court wearing a tweed sport jacket with his hair and beard trimmed, looking every bit the professor he once was.

That courtroom image is more in keeping with the bright young boy whose mother read him Scientific American.

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Three U.S. citizens and two Pakistanis were killed when gunmen opened fire on their vehicle early Wednesday in Karachi, police said.

Details of the shooting were sketchy but it is believed that the Americans were auditors who worked for an international oil company.

Authorities in the violence-wracked southern port said a car came up behind the vehicle in which the Americans were riding.

The gunmen fired from behind and later forced the car, carrying the five off the road. They then

Fortiers' testimony will be key element in Nichols trial

The Dallas Morning News

DENVER — As far as anyone knows, Terry Nichols never spoke to Michael and Lori Fortier about blowing up the Oklahoma City federal building.

Prosecutors say his pal, Timothy McVeigh, might have done enough talking for both of them.

When the Fortiers take the stand in Nichols' murder and conspiracy trial, the government prosecutors will try to use their accounts of conversations and dealings with McVeigh to show both he and Nichols plotted to destroy the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building.

Fortier's attorney, Michael McGuire of Tulsa, Okla., said Tuesday his client probably will testify this week and he expects a "very thorough cross-examination."

Legal analysts say the couple could provide pivotal, damning evidence against Nichols.

Michael Tigar, has said the Fortiers barely knew Nichols.

He "never spent more than an hour in their company," Tigar said.

Justice Department spokeswoman Chris Wyatt declined to comment.

In his opening statement to jurors last week, sought to distance his client from the Kingman, Ariz., couple.

"Neither Michael Fortier nor Lori Fortier ever heard Terry Nichols say that he was going to bomb anything, wanted to bomb anything, planned to bomb anything ...," Tigar said.

BLM state Director Martha Hahn.

But Gov. Phil Batt's military liaison Dave Lett recently told Mountain Home Chamber of Commerce members that the statement may be misleading, sent to the printer without BLM comments, according to the Mountain Home News.

The Air Force has proposed establishing a complex of conventional bombing, simulated bombing and electronic combat ranges over about 1 million acres in eastern Owyhee County.

Critics call it a superzone, high-threat electronic battlefield. Gebelke questioned the BLM about the document's analysis of noise, cumulative effects, effects on environmentally sensitive and potential wilderness areas, and effects on wildlife.

The BLM is working to resolve Air Force needs with BLM and public concerns, and making sure the Air Force takes public concerns seriously.

The location alternative does nothing to resolve existing problems that affect wildlife and recreational users, but refining the preferred alternative may affect how and when the range would be operated, he said.

When a composite wing of fighters, tankers and long-range bombers was established at Mountain Home in 1992, the Air Force said the airspace and existing Canyon Creek Range in southern Idaho could accommodate day-to-day bases, and ranges in Utah and Nevada could accommodate the more complex composite force exercises.

The Air Force now says it's too far to fly to those ranges every day.

It takes too long and wastes fuel. Air Force officials, however, have said that composite exercises at those distant ranges account for about 10 percent of training time — or about three days per month.

Even with a new training range in Idaho, however, the planes still would have to fly to those distant ranges to practice with live ammo for a few days a month.

The Air Force says the range would enhance training in Idaho, but it is not necessary.

The final impact statement is expected to be released in early February.

spayed the vehicle with bullets, police said.

No one has claimed responsibility for the killings but it comes a day after a Pakistani, Mir Aimal Kasi, was convicted in a U.S. court of fatally shooting two CIA agents in Washington.

On Tuesday, the U.S. State Department issued a warning to Americans in the region to watch out for possible retaliation as a result of the conviction.

Prosecutors claim Kasi, who also wounded three others in the 1983 shooting, was out to avenge the bombing of Iraq and American meddling in Muslim countries.

John Lanahan of Southwest Portland turned to the center three months ago after asking a neighbor to fix a decrepit fence and deteriorating retaining wall.

Lanahan was worried the fence eventually would fall onto his six rhododendron bushes and, eventually, his yard. After contacting the owners, he said he waited for months but happened.

"I got tired of waiting, so I called the center out of desperation," he said. "I wasn't getting anywhere on my own."

A few days later, Collins arrived, surveyed the fence and talked to the owner of the fence. Within a few weeks, the fence was repaired.

"And everything worked out in the end," Lanahan said.

Clinton: Expand NATO to honor vets

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)— One good way for the nation to honor the men and women who fought its wars is by enlarging NATO to help assure peace in Europe, President Clinton said Tuesday in marking Veterans Day.

In his remarks, at Arlington National Cemetery, the president urged the Senate to approve an expansion of the Western alliance to include Poland, Hungary and the Czech Republic.

He said he hoped senators would "remember the lessons our veterans have taught us — that Europe's security is vital to our own, that, allying with Europe's democracy is our best sword and shield and that it is far, far better to prevent wars than to wage them."

Clinton placed a wreath of red, white and blue flowers at the Tomb of the Unknowns before the playing of "Taps."

In a reference to the current crisis involving Iraq, he declared what he said were that nation's efforts to build "weapons of mass destruction."

At the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, Clinton's drug policy adviser said Americans should reach out to Vietnam veterans, many of whom continue to suffer from drug abuse and alcoholism.

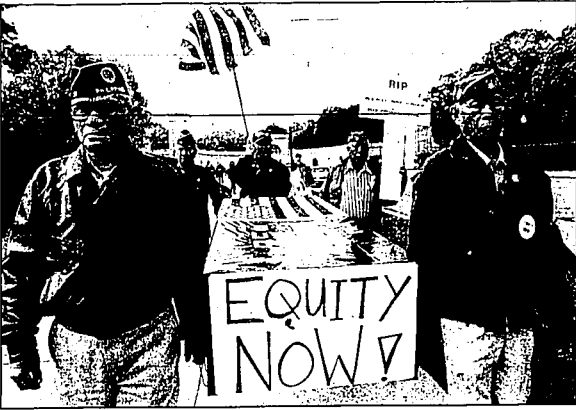

Retail Gen. Barry McCaffrey, a Vietnam and Gulf War Army veteran, said at least 80,000 Vietnam veterans still suffer from severe service-connected disabilities. Around 6 percent suffer from drug dependence and an additional 11 percent from alcoholism, McCaffrey said.

"This continuing heavy human toll demands that we Americans vigorously support the finest possible health care in our Veterans Administration facilities," McCaffrey said.

He also said people are often surprised to hear about the accomplishments of Vietnam veterans.

"Our comrades in arms are now leading all facets of public and private life," he said. "We are governors, senators, members of Congress, mayors, Cabinet officials, sergeants major and commanders in all our services."

The ceremony also marked the Filipino-American World War II veterans carry a rock coffin at the entrance of Arlington National Cemetery in Arlington, Va., Tuesday, to honor their fallen comrades and to protest President Clinton's lack of support for the Filipino Veterans Equity bill. A 1946 congressional act limited benefits for an estimated 200,000 Filipinos who fought for the United States.

15th anniversary of the dedication of the black granite wall, which is engraved with the names of 58,209 Americans killed in Vietnam.

Emmylou Harris brought the crowd of veterans to their feet and to tears as she sang "50,000 Names" with songwriter Jamie O'Hara.

Verses of the song described the wall, mementos left there and people searching for names: "Boy Scout badge and a merit pin, little American flags waving in the wind. There's 50,000 names carved in the wall."

Veteran Joe Castillo helped close the ceremony as he ended his cross-country journey on his horse India.

Castillo read a list of names of his buddies who had talked about traveling the country together when they returned from the war, but Castillo was the only one who came home alive, said Jan

Scruggs, who led the effort to build the wall.

Castillo decided to make the trip alone on horseback. He began in August in Fort Collins, Colo., meeting veterans along the way and having them sign an American flag that he carried.

In New York, veterans on foot and in wheelchairs paraded to honor their dead comrades and set an example for the nation's young. "This day means a lot to me," said Angelo Bianco, 39, of New Egypt, N.J., an Air Force veteran whose service was ended in 1992 by a mishap while flying food to Kurds in the aftermath of the Gulf War.

"My father was a World War II vet," said Bianco, sitting with a contingent of the Eastern Paralyzed Veterans Association. "I hope the next generation will have those values he gave me, of patriotism and service."

Among the marchers were nine

Donors allege laundered contributions

WASHINGTON (AP)— Three donors to President Clinton's reelection campaign have told House investigators that an employee of Democratic fundraiser Johnny Chung asked them to make the contributions and later reimbursed them, according to a House source.

Investigators were told that Chung's part-time bookkeeper, Nancy Na-Chi Lee, asked four people — one has since died — to make out $1,000 checks to the Clinton-Gore '96 campaign, said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity. Ms. Lee was said to have immediately reimbursed the donors in cash, said the source.

Such arrangements would be illegal under federal election law, which bars contributors from giving money in the name of another to hide the true source of the money.

It was the first allegation of laundered contributions directly to the Clinton-Gore '96 campaign. The Democratic National Committee has returned nearly $3 million because the money came from questionable sources, including some donations made in the name of others.

COMING HOME

Cattle from the Jake Myers ranch near Helena, Mont., meander across the York Bridge, which spans the Missouri River, Monday. The cattle are being moved off their summer range in the mountains down to the valley for the winter. Hopefully the sign on the left isn't prophetic.

Papers may be big break in Whitewater case

ATLANTA — Imprisoned Whitewater figure James McDougal claims a recently discovered 1982 cashier's check payable to Bill Clinton was a loan from McDougal's S&L and that the two men agreed to conceal the transaction.

Clinton has testified under oath that he never got a loan from the institution, McDougal says the cashier's check and other newfound documents contradict Clinton and provide a major break for Whitewater prosecutors.

"They're going to hang them with the documents that they got," McDougal said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press. "It certainly proves the chief executive perjured himself when he said he never obtained a loan from Madison Guaranty."

President and Mrs. Clinton's Whitewater lawyer, David Kendall, said McDougal cannot be believed because he keeps changing his account of Whitewater.

Lou Gehrig's drug in limbo for 6 more months

WASHINGTON — Thousands of Lou Gehrig's disease sufferers must wait up to six more months to learn the fate of a long-awaited experimental drug since its maker made the unusual move Tuesday of buying more review time from the government.

Patients have clamored for Myotrophin since 1996 and recently began protests outside Food and Drug Administration offices to demand the drug.

But the FDA has received conflicting studies, one that concluded Myotrophin works modestly and another that found it doesn't work at all.

Unsure which to believe, independent scientific advisers to the FDA told manufacturer Cephalon Inc. to do a tie-breaking study. Cephalon refused, so the scientists in May urged the FDA to reject the drug.

Microsoft: No one forced to use Explorer

WASHINGTON — People don't have to use Microsoft Corp.'s Internet browser just because it's there, company lawyers are arguing in trying to fend off a government lawsuit claiming the computer giant is anti-competitive.

Microsoft filed court papers Monday night asking a federal judge here to dismiss the Justice Department suit accusing the Redmond, Wash., company of trying to corner the market on browsers, which enable computer users to find and retrieve information on the Internet.

"There's nothing ... which in any way precludes or discourages end users from installing on their system any type of software that they think would be useful or fun," said William H. Neukom, Microsoft's senior vice president for law and corporate affairs.

The Justice Department's antitrust division last month filed the suit objecting to Microsoft's requirement that personal computer manufacturers that install the company's popular Windows operating system on their products also install the Microsoft Internet browser, known as Internet Explorer.

1 dead, 7 injured in Kansas nursing home fire

SOUTH HUTCHINSON, Kan. — An early morning fire Tuesday sent smoke pouring through the rooms of a nursing home. One person died and seven were injured, two critically.

The fire at the Pheasant Acres Retirement Center in South Hutchinson was discovered around 2:30 a.m. Officers said the one-story brick structure, housing 36 residents, was full of smoke when the fire department, police and other law enforcement officers arrived.

Officials probe wild horse deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal investigators are heading to Elm Creek, Neb., this week to try to figure out why dozens of captured wild horses and burros awaiting adoption are dying.

"It's just unacceptable to me that we have the stewardship of these horses, and then we're letting them die," said Pat Shea, who was sworn in as director of the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management on Oct. 2.

Two weeks ago, during a severe snowstorm, 17 burros and a horse suffocated under a snowdrift. Another 14 horses have died during the past month from strangles, a bacterial respiratory infection with coldlike symptoms.

IDAHO IN BRIEF

Forest Service, BLM chiefs to speak in Boise
BOISE — The top managers of the nation's major public land management agencies will make a joint appearance at an Andrus Public Policy Center conference in February.

U.S. Forest Service Chief Michael Dombeck, Bureau of Land Management Director Patrick Shea and National Park Service Director Bob Stanton will address the current state of their agencies and the direction each wants federal land management policy to move.

"It is both very unusual and very important that the three major federal agencies with authority over so much public land in the western United States will be in Idaho to participate in the same conference," said former governor Cecil Andrus, the Center administration Interior secretary who chairs the policy center at Boise State University.

The Feb. 11 conference will be open to the public.

Student dies in after-dark hit-and-run accident

POST FALLS — A teen-aged mountain bike rider was killed in a hit-and-run accident while pedaling home in the darkness after his classes let out.

Nick Scherling, 13, died Monday along Selctice Avenue in Post Falls. His best friend, Gavin Krieg, watched as Scherling was hit by a pickup.

Connie Bickley, 54, was arrested at her home a mile from where the Post Falls Middle School student died. Krieg said she never even stopped after the accident. She has been charged with vehicle manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident. Idaho State Police also reported alcohol was a factor in the accident.

This year, the school began to double-shift. Some students attend classes in the morning. Others like Scherling and Krieg, go to school in the afternoon and get out at 5:48 p.m.

Chewistown — The Orofino Chamber of Commerce is making it clear to Gov. Phil Batt that it opposes transferring State Hospital North from the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare to the Department of Correction.

The 60-bed Orofino hospital treats mentally ill and chemically dependent individuals. It employs about 104 workers and has a $4.4 million budget.

"We in Orofino would adamantly oppose the closing of State Hospital North and turning the facility over to corrections," Chamber Executive Director James Grunke said in a letter to Batt dated Nov. 7.

"While we do not disagree that additional services need to be offered to communities throughout the state, the program has yet to even be designed or funded."

Official finds White House meeting inspiring

COEUR D'ALENE — Ron Bell, interim president of North Idaho College, didn't discover anything he didn't know at Monday's White House Conference on Hate Crimes.

Instead, Bell found many of the 350 delegates shared his belief that leaders must work to preserve the dignity of all citizens — and passively standing by won't do it.

An emphasis on dignity is important for any leader, ranging from the president of a community college to the president of a country.

Man gets 16 years for police shootout

BLACKFOOT (AP) — A local man was sentenced to 16 years in prison in connection with a Sept. 4 shootout with police.

Rodney Chip Richman, 28, said before being sentenced in 7th District Court that he only intended to harm himself, blaming his life of crime and abusing drugs including methamphetamine.

"I was out to die myself. I was fed up with my addiction," Richman said Monday. "I don't have a conscience and I don't care."

Richman was hit in the face by one shot from a hail of bullets fired by six officers who waited for Richman to come out of a house where the owner had found him naked, holding a gun and asleep in front of the television.

Richman was sentenced after pleading guilty last week to one count each of assault with the intent to commit a serious felony on a police officer, illegal possession of a firearm by a convicted felon and using a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Plates carry freedom's message

BOISE (AP) — T.C. Brock shares the pride he feels in having served his country every day.

Brock, 55, is one of the 3,179 veterans who decorate their automobiles with one of eight military license plates. Brock, a Marine Corps veteran of the Vietnam War, chose the new veteran plates that display the service emblem and the war in which he fought.

"The plates are a chance for him and other veterans to carry out the same simple message he shared with Highland Elementary School students on Monday: Our freedom isn't free."

"For those who fought it, freedom has a taste the unprotected will never know," Brock said. "I can still taste it today."

Before this year, only disabled veterans, former prisoners of war, military reservists, members of the National Guard, Pearl Harbor survivors and winners of the Medal of Honor or the Purple Heart could get special military license plates. The Purple Heart is awarded to those wounded in battle.

But the Idaho Legislature approved the general veteran plate in 1996, with the first on sale this year. So far, 738 have been sold.

Only the veteran plate and the reservist plate carry the $25 first-year and $15 annual fee.

The other military plates are issued for the price of registration, except the disabled veteran plate, which is free.

Preliminary hearing set for man in sheepherder slaying case

BLACKFOOT (AP) — A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Nov. 19 for Idaho Falls, 19, one of three local Falls men facing charges in the shooting and robbery of sheepherder Engliaco Roca Larrague, 57.

He died May 16, a week after a gunman shot him in the head after demanding his money.

Flores is charged with being an accessory to murder. Gustavo Chavez, 21, and Devedey Dwan Lewis, 26, have pleaded innocent to first-degree murder, conspiracy and robbery.

Police allege Flores was in a vehicle used by the other men. Flores was jailed on a $100,000 bond. A preliminary hearing is set for Nov. 19.

Chavez and Lewis were arrested Sept. 24 in the Salt Lake City area and extradited to Blingham County.

Jailing Mom and Dad won't make junior want to learn

Arguably the most intractable problem with which schools must grapple these days is truancy.

But Twin Falls County's proposal to jail parents of hard-core truants strikes us as being extreme - without doing much to solve the core problem.

County commissioners are considering an ordinance that would let the county bring misdemeanor charges against parents as a last resort when youngsters won't go to class. Mom and Dad would face up to a $500 fine and six months in jail.

The intent, obviously, is to get parents' attention. But we're not sure that's the issue.

Chronic truants are often beyond the control of their folks, as Twin Falls High School Principal Ben Allen pointed out last week.

In fact, some parents bend over backward to cooperate with school officials, Allen said. But their kids still refuse to go to class.

That's mostly because they see nothing at school for them. When they're dragged into the classroom, they occupy space, not their minds.

Instead of spending the taxpayers' money on putting Ward and June in jailhouse jumpsuits, wouldn't it make more sense to make the curriculum more interesting and relevant to Wally and the Beaver?

Many youngsters on the run from the truancy officer are bright. Most know they'll have to learn a marketable skill in order to make a living.

What they aren't able to grasp is how watered-down, one-size-fits-all classwork is relevant to their lives.

To keep students - truant and otherwise - in class, schools need to challenge them, just as they'll be challenged in life.

For students not willing to make that investment, the alternative is as Allen suggested: going out into the real world and figuring out first-hand the value of an education.

No one can force a kid to learn, and by the time he's playing hooky on a regular basis, he already has opted out of the educational system. It seems to us that it's smarter to get him interested in learning in the first place than to rescue him later.

There's no question that many parents contribute to the problem, by the way they raise their children and by the decisions they make about their personal lives. Kids raised in families in which education isn't valued are likely to draw the same conclusion.

Schools can't change that. But maybe they can turn education into a seller's market.

The goal, after all, isn't to force kids to come to school. It's to make them want to come. We can't see how jailing Mom and Dad a rap sheet will advance that cause.

Republican zealots do more harm than good

There seem to be an awful lot of Republicans in Washington who think their sole mission in life is to mess with President Clinton. A global gag rule - what a concept. You tell me: Does this make any sense at all?

Here's the deal: Rep. Chris Smith, R-N.J., pops up with an amendment to the Foreign Operations Appropriations Bill that would cut off all funding for family planning services all over the world if the organizations that provide family planning also provide abortion services or do any kind of advocacy concerning abortion, even when the money for such activities comes from other sources entirely. This includes multilateral family planning groups and private organizations.

Under current law, none of the family planning money provided by the United States can be used for abortions or abortion advocacy, and according to Population Action, an umbrella advocacy group, repeated audits have failed to find a single instance of this law being violated.

So, no taxpayer money currently goes to fund abortions abroad, but Republican zealots want to fix it so that family planning outfits around the world get no money for contraception programs if they also provide abortions with funds from other sources or even refer women to programs that do provide abortions.

What is the result of curtailing contraceptive services? More unwanted pregnancies. What is the result of more unwanted pregnancies? More abortions. As has been proved time and again, that's more abortions, whether they are safe and legal or not.

Although the money we send to these programs is minuscule even by most Washington standards, it does help provide family planning for tens of millions of women around the world. This is one of the best value-for-money programs on Earth. Desperately poor women who already have six, eight, 10, 12 children will be driven to the most extreme measures, often leading to their own deaths. Their chances of providing adequate food, education and a decent life for the children they already have will be decimated. There is nothing theoretical about this. We've seen it, we know it happens, we can prove it.

Two years ago, the U.S. international family planning programs were cut by close to $200 million. The Senate version of the foreign appropriations bill restores $50 million of that, for a total of $435 million for fiscal '98 (by a government that spends perhaps $2 billion for one airplane).

This maliciously stupid amendment is now being used by the House Republican leadership as a bargaining chip, a condition of Republican support for Clinton's fast-track free-trade legislation. Only the most extreme anti-abortion groups favor this amendment; many legislators who oppose abortion are also opposed to this folly. But Republicans are increasingly letting extremist groups set their policies on all kinds of issues.

For instance: The deliberate policy of blocking Clinton's nominations for the federal bench is being driven by an outfit called the Judicial Selection Monitoring Project. According to columnist Tony Lewis of The New York Times, this extreme-right organization is behind many of the attacks of recent judicial nominees. The group produced a videotape describing Clinton's overwhelmingly centrist nominees as "liberal activists," using as its main horrible example a judge appointed by George Bush.

Michael Schattman of Fort Worth, whose nomination to the bench has been held up for two years now, sent a copy of the tape to other nominees who are also in limbo. Incredibly enough, the head of the outfit then accused Schattman of "a fanatical desire to stir debate and undermine our organization." There is a sort of farcical lunacy to all this.

The nomination of Bill Linn Lee, a remarkably decent and well-qualified fellow, to run the civil-rights division at the Department of Justice, was sailing along just fine. Conservative Republicans like Sen. Orrin Hatch had no problem with the guy.

Then, Clinton Bolick, a right-wing activist who heads something misnamed the Institute for Justice, starts trashing Lee, who has never done anything but held up existing law in his life. (One of Lee's most famous cases was a settlement with the Los Angeles Police Department for discrimination against female officers, helped along by the discovery that Mark Fuhrman, of all people, had started an organization within the Police department called "Men Against Women.")

In the long run, such stupidity can only hurt the Republicans, most Americans no more favor such extremism than they can take wing and fly. But, in the meantime, the lives of millions of women can be damaged and even destroyed by right-wing zealots so blinded by self-righteousness that they cannot see reality in front of them. It's one thing to mess around with Clinton for the fun of watching him squirm; it's something else to damage women's lives.

LETTERS

Be alert at train crossings

I saw a dangerous thing take place at 9:40 a.m. on Thursday, Nov. 6. I had just crossed the railroad tracks by the Depot Grill, going north and waiting to turn left at the light. I heard a train nearby and looked in my rearview mirror and saw a train cross Shoshone at the crossing. Strange thing though, both traffic arms were still upright and the flashing red lights were not on and not flashing.

Traffic was kind of heavy and I hope no one was hit but it was scary and I know some people had to be scared. So, people, just because the arms aren't down and the lights aren't flashing doesn't mean a train won't cross when you least expect it.

I have been reading some letters in the editor about Idaho Fish and Game lately, so would like to add mine. I can also remember when Bell Rapids, Upper and Lower Salmon Falls areas on the river and Grey's Landing and Big Sand Bend at Salmon Dam were good fishing. Not anymore. I had heard about Carey Lake for many years, good bluegill and bass fishing. Bull. Maybe if you have a boat or a float tube.

Took my first and last trip up there in June, inquired about access roads. There's one and it goes about 100 feet. I decided to try anyway. Nothing. I asked two old timers about more access roads. They pointed out one about 50 feet away but there was a very wide and deep channel in between. They said there was plenty of access before Idaho Fish and Game got in there with its lockbox. That was the end of the access. Another of their bright ideas. I hear them everywhere I go. People tell me it must be run by a bunch of clowns.

Another access problem for us walking disabled should up quite a few years ago at the Anderson Bass Ponds by the hatchery in Hagerman. Ten or 20 years ago, they were very popular fishing spots with easy access. Too easy for Fish and Game, so they extended openings until July 1, when the moss is really thick and growing fast, they said, to protect their precious ducks and geese and erected steel gates and wire cables across all roads. All access roads around the ponds were blocked off and if you can't make your way through weeds and grass at least 6 feet tall, that's tough and you're out of luck.

The trout ponds at the hatchery in Hagerman have really grown some great crops of weeds this summer but not really that many trout, not like past years when the ponds were full of trout. Maybe if they hadn't spent so much money on new vehicles the past few years, they could be growing trout to be planted elsewhere in those ponds, instead of weeds. You know, I can't think of anything they've done in the past 20 years to make fishing better, only harder for everyone.

Oh, I almost forgot, someone did put up a wheelchair fishing area at one of the Foster Lakes years ago. Oh, they're very good, also, at putting up signs and maybe the poor fishing is El Mno's fault.

We need to stop war: It's a waste

Why do we use war to settle things? We should have world peace. Why do people fight instead of compromising? People die just over an argument. It also uses a lot of money. When the war is over, the side that lost feels upset.

World War I was a waste of money. I think we should stop war.

Discontinued mammograms offered

In response to the letter from Denise Hicks of Bullh printed Nov. 7.

The solution to your discontinued mammography problem is a short drive to Rupert. Minidoka Memorial Hospital provides 600 mammography certificates every day. We do not have a limited supply, and we can generally schedule a mammogram within one week.

Minidoka Memorial Hospital is a Mammography Quality Standards Act-approved facility, and we currently employ three registered mammographers. Our radiologist (Dr. Don Wayment) is board certified and provides an abbreviated report that is mailed to the patient.

We tried the limited-time offer for discussed mammograms in the past and found the same negative limitations other facilities are now facing. We decided to meet the needs of the community and work with your schedule.

With that in mind, we implemented the year-round "Mammogram Certificate" three years ago.

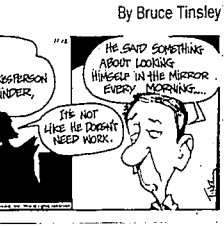

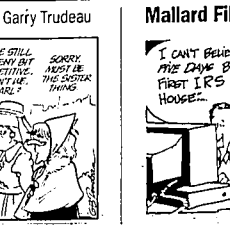

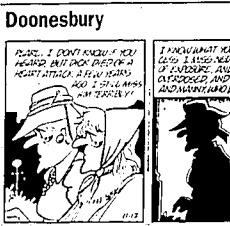

For a discontinued mammography price, call us today or tomorrow or next week or next month - we'll have a certificate for you. Call the Medical Imaging Department at Minidoka Memorial Hospital, 436-0481.

Inaugural America Recycles Day becomes time for logic, reason

Saturday marks the inaugural America Recycles Day. Its theme, "Keep Recycling Working: Buy Recycled," urges Americans to do more than just recycle plastic bottles, aluminum cans and newspapers. It calls on us to help the environment with our purchases, too. But will buying recycled really help the environment?

If a used product goes to the recycling bin instead of the wastebasket, it goes through a long process before it returns to use. It's separated from other recyclables and taken to a recycling facility, sometimes hundreds of miles away. There, the product is subjected to chemicals for cleaning and decontamination. It then uses a lot of energy to reshape it into a form that manufacturers can use. Sometimes recycling saves resources, sometimes it doesn't. Great success has come from recycling aluminum cans because it does save resources. Begun as an effort to save costs by Reynolds Aluminum in 1968, today Americans recycle 63 percent of their aluminum cans. Why?

Because people can make money collecting cans, and aluminum companies save on mining costs.

Most other commodities don't work as well. With newspapers, for instance, recycling is much more difficult. Newspapers are hard to clean. They are easily contaminated while being used and expensive to de-ink. They must be cleaned, bleached and reduced to pulp before they can be used again. The sludge that results from this process often must be deposited in a landfill and can sometimes be toxic. In addition, every time pulp goes through this process, its fibers lose strength.

Glass containers and plastic packaging are also questionable recyclables. Though recycling little cleansing and decontaminating, glass containers are expensive to transport because they break easily. Plastic packaging is much cheaper to produce from raw materials than to gather and send back to recycling facilities. That is why only 10 percent of plastic packaging is recycled each year.

What is a well-meaning consumer to do? Use the price system. The prices paid for recycled newspapers, tin cans, aluminum, glass and plastics are a good estimation of how much energy and resources went into that product. If the price for recycled materials does not cover the cost of collecting, cleansing and melting down recyclables, then resources like gasoline and electricity are probably being wasted by recycling. Another clue is what manufacturers do. Paper producers, bottling plants and fast food chains are keenly aware of price and performance differences in the materials they use. They will buy recycled goods if recycled materials can stand up, like aluminum cans do, to consumer standards for cost, durability and use. Recycling is an important part of managing America's waste. But it is only useful for some items in some areas of the country. Recycling does not save resources for all items in all areas of the country.

On America Recycles Day, remember that conserving natural resources sometimes means, "Don't Recycle." Simplistic ideas like "Buy Recycled" and misinformed decisions will, in the end, waste more resources than they save.

Ireland's 1st president from north takes office

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Ireland's new president took office Tuesday affirming her determination to build bridges across the political and religious divisions of the island, and praised a victim of Irish Republican Army violence for his example of forgiveness and love. Mary McAleese, a 46-year-old Roman Catholic law professor from Belfast, is the first of Ireland's eight presidents to come from British-ruled Northern Ireland.

"Ireland sits tantalizingly ready to embrace a golden age of affluence, self-assurance, tolerance and peace. It will be my most profound privilege to be president of this beautiful, intriguing country," McAleese told 600 guests in St. Patrick's Hall of Dublin Castle. "The theme of my presidency... is building bridges," she said. "There will be those who are wary of such invitations, afraid that they are being invited to the edge of a precipice." McAleese had invited all of Northern Ireland's political leaders to the inauguration, but most pro-British Protestants refused. They regard the president as head of a foreign state that maintains an illegal claim to Northern Ireland. Among the guests at the ceremony was Joan Wilson, whose 20-year-old daughter Marie was one of 11 people killed by an IRA bomb a decade ago in Enniskillen, Northern Ireland. "The young woman's father, the late Gordon Wilson, was injured in the blast and gained international attention by quickly and publicly forgiving the IRA with the words of Christ: 'God forgive them for they know not what they do.'"

WORLD IN BRIEF

Somali floods kill 130; thousands homeless

BARDERA, Somalia — Rain steadily beat down on the Juba River, day into night into day, until the winding waterway burst its banks and flooded the lush green valley in southern Somalia. Mohamed Abdirisak said it took just five days of rain for the Juba to flood his house and cut his hometown in two. The 50-year-old agronomist was among as many as 300,000 others without homes or food today.

At least 130 people have drowned since the flooding began three weeks ago, aid workers and local officials said. Those trying to survive on dry patches of land amid the swirling waters have to contend with crocodiles and other creatures.

The Juba Valley is the breadbasket of Somalia, producing sorghum, a staple crop in this nation of 7 million. The calamity could not have come at a worse time: Nearly all of the freshly planted sorghum and the reserves just harvested have been destroyed.

Indonesia hopes rains will stop wildfires

JAKARTA, Indonesia — Thunder cracked and lightning flashed across the sky over Indonesia's capital Tuesday, unleashing a heavy downpour for the first time in six months. The rain, which showed Jakarta for half an hour before dawn and left the air clean and moist, also raised hopes that monsoon rains soon will extinguish wildfires choking much of Southeast Asia.

Local residents breathed in deeply, relieved of the smoke that has stifled the city for months. In the afternoon, a breeze blew through Jakarta's streets for the first time in weeks.

The El Nino weather phenomenon is blamed for aggravating a drought across this nation of 200 million people and delaying the rainy season, which usually begins in October.

Mrs. Clinton promotes peace

ALMATY, Kazakhstan (AP) — If young Californians and Kazaks can call themselves partners, so can the United States and the former Soviet republics, Hillary Rodham Clinton said Tuesday. Saying she had made the 16-hour trip from Washington to "promote solidarity" with the emerging republics, Mrs. Clinton opened her five-nation tour with a visit to Almaty School 55. There, star-struck Kazak student leaders explained how relations with their California counterparts changed their views of the world.

Victor Kam, a student at the National Technical University, said that the Kazakhstan Association of Youth Leaders and its partnership with the California Association of Student Councils helped him "learn to be more tolerant" of those who are different.

Olyeg Bakhtmutov said he believed himself to be "a minute particle" incapable of helping change the world. But now students who are looking for ways to set up American-style student councils in local schools.

Prosecutor considers break-in charges

Mull whether residents broke into own home

By Mark Helz Times-News writer

JEROME - The Jerome County prosecutor is considering whether to file charges against two Jerome residents in connection with break-ins at their house.

No charges were filed as of Tuesday against Steve Carlson, 39, and Holly Carlson, 27, in connection with reported break-ins at 400 W. 277 S.

Deputies have been making regular checks on the house since Steve Carlson, Holly Carlson, and James Carlson, 19, were arrested there last month on drug charges, Jerome County Sheriff Jim Weaver said.

The Carlsons were released on bond, but told to stay away from the house, which the sheriff's department has a lien on, Weaver said. The house was marked with crime scene tape and "no trespassing" signs, he said.

The Carlsons' attorney, Lynn Dunlap, said Tuesday he has received no notice of a lien or warrant of seizure on the house.

Deputies found Steve Carlson and Holly Carlson at the house at about 4 p.m. Saturday, along with James Gergens, 25, of Twin Falls and Patrick Parker, 33, of Jerome, Weaver said.

A motorcycle was reported stolen from the home's garage after an apparent burglary Nov. 3, he said. A deputy found an aluminum baseball bat in some bushes near a broken window, and side door to the garage was open, Weaver said.

The Carlsons, Gergens and Parker were detained for questioning Saturday, and admitted that they had torn down boards covering the broken window so Parker could crawl inside and let the others in through the front door.

DAVID BRADSHAW/The Times-News

Weaver said. Dunlap said the sheriff's office still has the Carlsons' house keys.

He said he was told his clients didn't see any crime scene tape or no trespassing signs on or near the house Saturday.

The Jerome County sheriff's deputies have investigated two break-ins at 400-W. 277 S. In Jerome County, the house has been unoccupied since an Oct. 1 drug bust, resulting in the arrests of three residents.

"If (the Carlsons) were in there, they had the impression that they had the right to be," Dunlap said. "This incident was probably the result of poor communication."

Jury convicts Buhl man of sexual abuse

By Kent McClery Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A man has been convicted of sexual abuse of an adolescent girl.

A Twin Falls County jury found Kirk L. Dean of Buhl guilty of the charge Monday morning. Dean could face a fine and up to 15 years in prison.

Defense attorney M. Lynn Dunlap said he and Dean were disappointed by the verdict.

"The allegation itself marks an individual, and it's hard to live that mark down regardless of trial," Dunlap said.

"Conviction, rightly or wrongly, further marks an individual."

The victim said she went to his home Feb. 21 to babysit for Dean's child the next day, said Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Julie Sturgill. Dean gave the victim a silk pajama top and asked her to try it on, Sturgill said.

Dean adjusted the spaghetti straps on the lingerie and asked the victim to try it on without her bra on, and then without her bra on, Sturgill said.

The victim said she went along because she was afraid if she acted embarrassed Dean would say she was accusing him of acting inappropriately or molesting her, Sturgill said.

The girl went to bed at Dean's house, wearing the top over sweatpants, Sturgill said. Later in the night, Dean entered her room, wearing only his briefs, and got into the bed with her, Sturgill said, and during the next 1 1/2 to two hours repeatedly put his hand under the nightgown, touching her breasts and pubic hair.

Dean admitted getting on the bed with the victim, but said he was wearing sweat shorts, Dunlap said.

Dean said tickling was a manner of behavior that his family and the victim's family had always participated in. Dean admitted tickling the girl on bare skin, but said he had done so previously in front of the victim's parents, without objection.

Dean estimated the time of the incident at 45 minutes in an hour, and not continuous, Dunlap said.

Dean said he bought the nightgown as a gift, Dunlap said. He said if he did touch the victim's breasts, it was inadvertent, Dunlap said.

The jury began deliberations Friday night, breaking about 10:15 p.m. Jurors returned Monday and returned a verdict in about 45 minutes, Sturgill said.

Dean could get a sentence of one to 15 years' prison, or a fine, or could be sent to the state sex-offender evaluation program at Cottonwood for six months, Sturgill said.

Twin Falls schools won't use vans for next year's students

By Jennifer Sandmann Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Student safety and liability outweighed cost savings for the School Board Tuesday when it unanimously voted to no longer transport students in vans.

The School Board decided it will contract with its bus service to transport small numbers of students from Twin Falls High School and Magic Valley High School to activities. It's an issue the district has investigated since the beginning of the school year.

"Vans have not been found unsafe, it's just that buses are safer. And as we've said before, not going at all is the safest," Superintendent Terrell Donich said.

The state Department of Education, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the district's insurance carrier discourage using vans in place of school buses, because they say buses are safer. Despite warning against it, the district's insurance company says it will cover van use.

The School Board adopted administration's recommendation to contract for the bus service. The district will take bids to renegotiate the service in February. Van use will be eliminated next school year.

Contracting will be less expensive than developing the district's own mini bus fleet, Donich said. It will, however, cost more money than using 15-passenger vans.

To the School Board's dismay, it will cost the district the same to transport a dozen students as it will a bus full.

Board member Chad Hafer said he wants taxpayers to know that when they see a half-empty school bus on the road, it's not an abuse of school money. It's a safety issue, although the students aren't unsafe now, he said.

In other business, accountant

Raymond Ware gave the district a favorable financial review. Ware conducted the district's annual audit to check for accuracy and accountability in book-keeping. The district operated on a more than $25 million general fund for the 1997 budget year, ending with only about a $28,000 balance.

"I feel that everything was in good order. . . I want to recognize your accounting staff. They do a great job," Ware said.

Red Cross chapter fires secretary

The Times-News

RUPERT - The Mini-Cassia chapter of the American Red Cross released long-time volunteer and two-year chapter secretary Janet Tilley.

In a letter dated Oct. 28, Chairman Lew Jones told Tilley her services were being "terminated, effective immediately."

Jones said an executive committee of the local board met and unanimously voted for the move.

"I put my whole heart into this thing," said Tilley, who added she had no idea why she was fired.

"It was the hardest thing I ever had to do," said Jones, who said the executive committee thought there was a conflict of interest. He said the committee, under direction of the chapter's attorney, instructed him not to tell Tilley why the decision was made, but to offer her the chance to discuss it at or after tonight's regular board meeting at 7 p.m. at the Red Cross office on E Street in Rupert.

Jones declined to give details on the committee's reasoning but said some issues arose after the chapter hired Manager Natasha Solomon a month ago.

"Only one can be in charge," he said. Jones said the local chapter hopes to continue to grow and improve, but the committee said this step was necessary in that process.

"The Red Cross has to come first," he said.

Hailey neighbors question play structure

By Susan Bailey Times-News correspondent

HAMELY - Citing concerns about location, tree removal, building materials, neighborhood character, noise and crime, residents around Hop Porter Park mobilized Monday night against plans to install new play equipment at the park this spring.

Although a citizen group known as PARK, Parks Are Reserved for Kids, held workshops during the summer to discuss the proposal, those in the West Bullion Street area said concrete plans for the park weren't revealed until a City Council meeting Oct. 13.

More than 90 residents gathered Monday to hear PARK defend its plans to build a wooden structure in the southeast corner of the four-acre park, and many objected strenuously.

What's next?

The Hailey City Council will hold a workshop on the park project at 9 a.m. on Nov. 22 at the Hailey Public Library meeting room.

"It will ruin an old town park, and bring an undesirable suburban tract development feel," said Arne Ryason, 117 W. Bullion St., a neighbor of the park. "As parents we do not want play equipment that will become an attractive nuisance."

The equipment chosen by PARK would cover 15,000 square feet and accommodate about 100 children. An anonymous donor gave the organization $75,000 toward the project. PARK plans

HAILEY

Arlyn Kendrick

Arlyn Kendrick, died peacefully at her home in Hailey on Nov. 7, 1997. She was born Jan. 4, 1919, in Mackay, the middle child of William and Neva Abbey. Arlyn's life began in the upstairs bedroom at the family home in Mackay. Her childhood was quiet, full of learning and hard work, but punctuated by periods of high drama. Her father, the town barber and a volunteer fireman, was called to assist in extinguishing a fire to find his own kitchen ablaze. Young Arlyn had accidentally left her iron on the ironing board. Fortunately, both Arlyn and the kitchen survived without undue injury (her dad was a good ironer!).

Following her father's death in 1927, the family (her mother Neva, brother Bob and sister Jean) moved to Boise, where Neva worked as a secretary at the Statehouse to support the family. Times were tough. Graduating from Boise High School in 1936, Arlyn, too, became a secretary, working for the military where she met her future husband, Gordon. They were married on May 3, 1942, at his station in Tacoma. Gordon served in the Public during World War II. But was in the states at various times long enough to produce daughter Karen (born in January 1945). Second daughter Lynn was born in 1947, and Arlyn settled into the life of a military wife. She continued her lifelong inclination to join groups and was active in square dancing clubs and the MCO Wives Club. She also continued to work periodically as a civil servant, sometimes having a higher security rating than her husband. A high point of her life came in 1956 when her husband was transferred to England. The family spent three years in that wonderful country, exploring the many castles and abbey that surrounded them and visiting as many countries as the couple managed. The 1960s brought many changes. The Kendricks separated, with Arlyn and the girls moving to California where she continued as a secretary. Single parenthood was not easy, but she always managed to keep sight of the humor in any situation. Karen married after high school and Lynn went off to a series of hair-raising adventures as a hippie. Gordon and Arlyn got back together in mutual support and moved to the beaches of Southern California. Arlyn finally returned to the mountains in 1977. Although they remained married until 1980, Gordon and Arlyn went their separate ways. Arlyn then began what appeared to be the most satisfying period of her life as a manager of many organizations rather than part of social or mental conversation. Ever a joiner and loving to direct, she was a manager of many organizations and held office in most of them. Among her favorites were the Sawtooth Rangers Rifle Club, the Building Contractors' Association of Hospital Auxiliary and the Wood River Women's League. We know her in the community as an astute and Arlyn's exuberance and zest for life were unbounded. She will be profoundly missed by all who knew her. She was survived by her two daughters, Karen and Lynn, one great-grandchild Mark, Christ the Lord, ever-increasing numbers of great-grandchildren, and by her brother Bob and sister Jean and their families. A memorial service will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 13, 1997 at Wood River Chapel in Hailey, with a gathering at her home immediately following. In lieu of flowers, a memorial fund has been established in Arlyn's name with the Boone County Hospital Auxiliary.

Cowboy poets head for Burley

By Penelope Reedy
Times-News writer

BURLEY - The 2nd Annual Mini-Cassia Cowboy Poetry Gathering, spearheaded by two local authors, will raise money to keep and maintain horse trails in the South Hills.

What it is, where it's at

It's poetry and music featuring local and out-of-town poets and musicians Friday and Saturday at the American Heritage Academy, Main Street and Parke Avenue in Burley. Free live-performance open mike sessions from 2 to 6 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. Evening performances of 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday for $5 per person.

Heyburn brothers Lloyd and Bill Ramsey pose beside Bill Ramsey's wagon parked on Burley's Overland Avenue to advertise the 2nd Annual Cowboy Poetry Gathering Friday and Saturday.

Land Management - which says they are short on funds - by building hitch racks, high-line trails and handicapped lifts and maintaining trails.

"We seem to think the government ought to be doing it, and we've forgotten we're the government," Bill Ramsey said.

Bill Ramsey, also a member of Cowboy Poets of Idaho, was raised in Burley and began writing cowboy poetry in 1993 while taking his wagon and horses on an Oregon Trail ride for the BLM. He left the area for 20 years and moved to north Idaho where he worked in timber and ran a meat-packing business.

"I've always had horses and always cowboyed," he said, "but it's no way to make a living so I play cowboy; it's more fun to play cowboy than to be one."

Lloyd Ramsey is vice president-elect of the Cache Peak Back Country Horseman, organized seven years ago.

"We teach people how to use the back country," he said. "No tracks. You set up a camp so when you leave, the next person who rides down the trail doesn't know there's been a camp there."

The Ramseys don't want to open up horse trails just anywhere. "The Sawtooths are delicate,"

Bill Ramsey said. "They don't stand horses well. The Frank Church (River of No Return) Wilderness area is another matter. The vegetation is tough. We've got to designate two kinds of wilderness."

The brothers also advocate construction of a dirt, wagon-only road in the Frank Church-River of No Return Wilderness.

"Wagon travel makes it possible for handicapped people to enjoy the wilderness," Bill Ramsey said.

"Next year, we're sponsoring a wagon train again," Lloyd Ramsey said. "We're still working on the details."

Hailey

to raise another $75,000 to build the play structure.

Suzanne Johnson, one of the founding members of PARK, said the donor considers play equipment designers Leathers and Associates of Ithaca, N.Y., one of the best in the nation.

Leathers and Associates is known for custom-designed playgrounds built and maintained by cities, companies or individuals who own playground lands. Communities typically build the structures themselves with volunteer labor.

The play structure designed for Hailey and presented Monday contains swings, ropes, slides, sand, and a climbing apparatus along with castles, mazes, and perches especially for children.

Although several people familiar with Leathers' designs spoke in favor of the project, an overwhelming number questioned placing the play equipment alongside the street. PARK members said a street location was safer for police patrol, emergency vehicle access, and parents bringing children to play.

Terrie and Sam Davis, owners of Povey Pensione, a bed and breakfast across Bullion Street from the park entrance, said the structure would destroy their business by ruining peace and quiet.

They also resented the possible removal of several 60-foot cottonwood trees at the edge of the park, which a forester has said are unstable and liable to topple in a high wind.

Street neighbor Daniel James gathered more than 60 signatures on a petition asking the Hailey City Council to consider the park's impacts on surrounding property owners before supporting its construction. James also said the council should know the site could attract vagrants or juvenile criminals.

PARK members said more traffic would come into the neighborhood, but also said Leathers and Associates have not found play structures to attract criminal activity. Hailey Police Chief Jack Stoneback said he supported the proposed improvements, and expected no rise in crime as a result.

Several council members showed support for the PARK project, including Susan McBryant, who cautioned neighbors against destroying the efforts of organizers.

"These women have signed on for this as their dream," she said.

Mayor Steve Kearns urged residents to iron out problems.

"I think there's a lot of support for Hop Porter Park and I hope those who are interested will get together with those who have already done the work," Kearns said.

can prove the house as still being actively investigated as a crime scene, Dunlap said.

The Carlsons were charged with felony drug counts after deputies found 91 marijuana plants inside or growing near the house.

A District Court arraignment for the Carlsons on the drug charges is set for Nov. 24 in Jerome.

Deputies have been checking the house as many as five times a day, Weaver said. That has left windows of opportunity for intruders to creep in, but the sheriff's office can't spare enough deputies to put a full-time watch on the house, he said.

Times-News staff writer Mark Heinz can be reached in Jerome at 324-6962.

Curriculum questions answered

The Times-News

RUPERT - Some questions were answered but other concerns remain about a new school curriculum still in the planning stages in Minidoka County.

Superintendent Nick Hallett opened the floor for discussion Monday night on the concepts of the EFG Curriculum, named after its ecological, future and global education issues. The EFG model is one of a few programs the district is considering for next fall.

Programs such as EFG teach students at their own pace and ability, eliminating grade levels, and require students to relate school projects to real life and encourage students, parents and the community to interact.

Such concepts are appealing to Minidoka County officials, but some people Monday expressed concerns about using someone else's program. Hallett said the district can improvise by using some of EFG's concepts in its own plan.

"For each school let's find out what's appropriate," Hallett told school officials. "Because if you don't buy into this as a staff it's never going to work."

Acquia Elementary School principal Dan Rogers said his staff is looking at using the concepts just in math and language arts, to see if it actually helps raised test scores.

"For others in the district, it's not an issue of interest. They want to learn more about the product before applying it."

School Board member Curtis Jarvosen questioned the parent commitment involved in EFG, which requires 18 volunteer hours a year per student. Most people Monday agreed parent involvement would help everyone, but the big question is how to do it.

"I like the concepts but that's a dilemma for me," Jarvosen said. "We have very little parent involvement now. How are we going to bring them in?"

Minidoka County Education Association President Bonnie Peck told the group there are probably a lot of parents would like to come in and help, but don't know how.

Hansen takes measures to protect water quality

By Margaret Jones Times-News correspondent

HANSEN - John Bokor, groundwater technician from the Idaho Groundwater Association, will help evaluate wellhead protection for Hansen's city wells this week.

will ask businesses and individuals with possible contaminants to practice safe handling of any materials that might endanger groundwater.

The council also voted to ask for bids for a new aerator for the wastewater plant. Money had been budgeted for this improvement, so the council voted to purchase it now.

the "pontoon" aerator, Etherington said, and it has proven very effective.

In other business, the City Council agreed to hire DeAnne Klimes as dog catcher, working 20 hours a week.

Councilwoman Alice Perkins said she noticed an increase in vandalism around City Hall; she asked council members whether they would be beneficial. They agreed to have Etherington check on prices of different types of fencing.

Buhl looks to expand RV services

By Mary Lou Potts Times-News correspondent

BUHL - Hoping to draw more visitors to the area with full recreation facilities, Buhl is building a rest area park and RV dump station east of the visitor's center along U.S. Highway 30.

The project will be financed through a $17,500 Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation grant and $29,100 from community service clubs and businesses. The dump station is under construction with completion set for late November. The park will provide shade trees, picnic tables and grassy knolls.

Also included in the plans is paving the visitor's center parking lot, which would be completed by August 1998.

The park's completion will depend on the weather, but according to Public Works Department Director Gary Vint, it could be finished by early summer.

Construction is under the supervision of the Public Works Department, and city crews will supply most of the labor.

Donors to the project include Clear Springs Foods Inc., J-U-B District, Buhl Kiwanis Club, Buhl Rotary Club, West End Men's Association, Buhl Beautification Committee and the city of Buhl.

Times-News correspondent Mary Lou Potts can be reached in Buhl at 433-8854.

BYU student wins market prediction contest

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - John C. Beckstead has always had a fascination with investments.

"Since I was 6 years old I have walked around with a Wall Street Journal in my hands," the 23-year-old Brigham Young University finance major said.

His interest paid off recently when he entered a national contest to predict where the Dow Jones Industrial Average would close Oct. 30.

Beckstead's predicted close of 7,331.27 missed the actual close of 7,381.67 by 50.45 points but still came closer than 2,000 other participants in the contest, sponsored by CARE, the worldwide relief and development organization based in Atlanta.

Along with trading rights, Beckstead won a 1998 Lexus GS 400, valued at about $50,000, and spent the past weekend in Chicago meeting with executives of the nation's stock exchanges.

Beckstead assures his prediction was not a lucky guess.

He employed his own forecasting system called the "Fib Five," which he developed while working at Beckstead, Black & Assoc., an investment advisory firm in Salt Lake City and Park City operated by his father, Chad Beckstead, and partner Larry Black.

Beckstead said formula uses five market components to evaluate the market. The components include moving stock averages, interest-rate trends, new market highs and lows, advance-decline lines and market volume movements.

Rita Stone, a spokeswoman for CARE USA, said the contest was a fund-raising event called "World Trade Day."

Beckstead worked with CARE and the global futures and options industry - and raised $1.3 million.

Teens lead authorities on high-speed interstate chase

WALLACE (AP) - Two teenagers driving a car reported stolen out of Spokane, Wash., led authorities on a 60-mile chase Tuesday that began in northern Idaho and ended near Superior, Mont.

The boys, aged 15 and 16, were arrested outside Superior and were being held in the Mineral County Jail, the Shoshone County sheriff's department said. The identities of the two, both from Washington state, were not immediately disclosed.

Shoshone County sheriff's deputies gave chase near Wallace after several drivers reported seeing a car driving erratically eastbound on Interstate 90, the sheriff's department said.

The car reached speeds up to 90 mph and forced a tractor-trailer off the road near the Idaho-Montana state line at Lookout Pass. No one was injured.

The car nearly collided with several other vehicles, the sheriff's department said.

Filer strengthens academic requirements for extracurricular activity participation

By Nicole Gilbert Times-News correspondent

FILER - Filer students are facing stricter academic requirements to qualify for extracurricular activities. Superintendent Bill Feuschners said.

The School Board last week voted in a new standard of evaluating five or six classes must pass every course.

Students taking seven classes must pass six, and those taking eight classes must pass seven.

The board also approved a program to help students exhibiting antisocial behavior or a significant drop in academic performance. Parents, teachers, coaches and the student will collaborate to create a plan of assistance which would enable the student to maximize his or her potential.

In other business, Filer School District is hoping up for the new century thanks to two technology literacy challenge grants.

The first grant of $25,000 will be used to network the computers in each school directly to the Internet and to each other.

The second grant of $43,000 will be shared with Castelford and Buhl to set up telecommunications classrooms linked to the College of Southern Idaho and other schools using the same system. This will allow schools to offer more classes. For example, Twin Falls is using the system to offer students a certified-nurse's assistant course.

Beginning next year, Filer teams will move to the A-2 classification due to increased enrollment.

The minimum enrollment requirement for A-2 schools is 350 students, and Filer High School now has 415. This will put it in league with Buhl, Wood River, Wendell and Kimberly schools.

Warm up with some Pumpkin Soup

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - In response to a reader request, Eleanor DeKlotz of Filer sent in a favorite recipe for Pumpkin Soup.

PUMPKIN SOUP

- 1 29-ounce plus 1 16-ounce can pumpkin
  - 3 ribs celery, chopped fine
  - 1 yellow onion, chopped fine
  - 2 tablespoons butter
  - 2 tablespoons tomato
  - 10 cups chicken broth
  - Salt, pepper, nutmeg, curry powder to taste
  - 2 cups Half and Half or mock cream (see below)
- Saute onion and celery in butter until tender. Cook tapioca in 2 cups of the broth until tender (about 8 minutes). Combine onion, celery, broth and pumpkin. Add spices to taste. Heat and add cream just before serving. Makes large pot.
- Mock cream: Blend 1 1-pound carton cottage cheese (lowfat) and 1 cup lowfat milk until smooth. It will look like it is curdled when you first stir into hot soup. Keep stirring, and it smooths out.

Here's a quick recipe from the Seattle Times.

- ### CAJUN SMOTHERED CORN
- (6 to 8 servings)
- 3 strips bacon, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
  - 1 cup finely chopped onion
  - 1 small red bell pepper, stemmed, seeded and minced
  - 1 rib celery, finely minced
  - 2 medium cloves garlic, peeled and minced
  - 4 cups defrosted frozen corn kernels
  - 1 cup canned tomatoes, broken up
  - 3/4 teaspoon paprika
  - 1 teaspoon dried basil, crushed
  - 1/4 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
  - 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - Freshly ground black pepper to taste
  - 1 tablespoon lime juice
- Put the bacon into a saucepan, set over medium heat and fry until crisp. Remove the bacon with a slotted spoon to a paper towel-lined plate. Put the onion, bell pepper, celery and garlic into the pan. Sauté 3 minutes. Cover the pan and cook 5 minutes. Add the corn, tomatoes, paprika, basil, thyme, cayenne, salt and pepper. Cook over medium heat, stirring often, for 5 minutes, or until the corn is heated through and flavors have blended. Add the bacon and lime juice. Stir 1 minute and serve.

- Here's a recipe from the Baltimore Sun.
- ### SKOVYAR'S EGGNOG COFFEE CAKE
- 1 1/3 cup sugar
  - 1/2 cup margarine
  - 2 eggs
  - 3 cups all-purpose flour
  - 3 teaspoons baking powder
  - 2 cups eggnog
- Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cream together sugar and margarine. Beat in eggs. Stir together flour and baking powder and stir into creamed mixture alternately with the eggnog. Pour into a greased and floured 13-by-9-inch pan and bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 60 minutes or until toothpick stuck into thickest part comes out clean. Glaze: Combine 1 1/2 cups powdered sugar with enough eggnog to make it of drizzling consistency. Pour over cake and sprinkle with nutmeg.

- This recipe, published in the Baltimore Sun, is from "Guerrilla Cooking."
- ### CHEATING VEGETABLE PASTA
- 1 large pot boiling water
  - 1 pound rigatoni or your favorite pasta
  - 10-ounce package frozen peas
  - 2 tablespoons olive oil
  - Salt, pepper
  - 1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
- Bring water to boil. Add pasta and cook according to package directions. About 2 minutes before the pasta is done, dump in the peas, and let them cook with the pasta. Drain. Toss with salt, pepper and a bit of oil. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Serves 6

A movable feast

Man's love for the water and talent for cooking come together as he guides others down the Salmon River

By Dixie Thomas Reale
Times-News correspondent

TUTTLE - Randy McBride has been working the rivers since he was 13 years old - when he discovered the thrill of running white water with the Boy Scouts at Camp Bradley in the Sawtooth Mountains north of Stanley. McBride also learned to cook in the Camp Bradley kitchen.

With a yen for white water and a gourmet's talent, McBride eventually did the only logical thing. He became a white water river guide.

In 1983 he purchased his first permit, a Middle Fork of the Salmon permit. In 1989 he sold that permit and purchased permits for the Murtaugh and Hagerman sections of the Snake River.

McBride ran his business out of Twin Falls until last year, when he moved to Tuttle to be closer to the river. He built a convenience store and RV Park to house his river tour business at a location off Interstate 84, at exit 147. This location is close to the put-in point for the Hagerman stretch of river.

The river tour season runs from April 1 through Oct. 31. McBride grows his own produce for the dinners he serves on the tours. He sells the excess produce at the convenience store. In December, McBride plans to remodel his building. He is going to add a restaurant, to open in the spring.

High Adventure River Tours offers half-day trips and full-day trips. On a typical tour, the group meets at the RV Park. A bus takes them to Salmon Falls Dam, where they put in to the river. The trips can run two hours, (about five miles), four hours (about 11 miles) or six hours (about 15 miles). The group is then bussed back to either Salmon Falls, Dam Park or the High Adventure River Tours RV Park, where everyone enjoys a Dutch oven dinner cooked by McBride. A trip can be scheduled for a minimum of four people; eight people are required for a lunch or dinner trip.

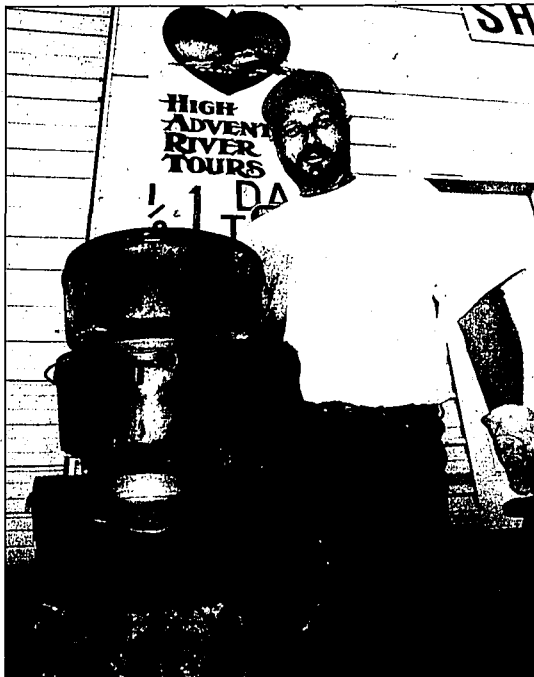

The Hagerman stretch is ideal for the beginning rafter with class I, II and III rapids. Fishing is encouraged on these float trips, as well as sightseeing for blue heron, ducks, geese and the abundant wildlife that live along the banks of the Snake River. McBride also offers river tours of the Hagerman Fossil Beds.

The Murtaugh stretch is another story. It is for the very experienced, the professional rafter. It offers Class III and V rapids. It starts near Murtaugh and ends at the park above Twin Falls, where lunch or dinner is provided.

McBride offers group rates for church groups, family reunions, birthday parties, anniversaries, whatever. Here is a sampling of some of the dishes you might eat on a float trip with McBride.

This quick and easy dish requires a 16-inch Dutch oven.

- ### COOKED CABBAGE ZUCCHINI SALAD
- (Serves 16 to 20 people)
Dice and cook 2 pounds of bacon, until crisp.

Randy McBride moved his High Adventure River Tours store to the Tuttle exit near Malad Gorge State Park a year ago, but he's still heating up his Dutch ovens with tasty recipes.

- Drain and add 1 pound of butter and 10 to 12 sliced zucchini. Stir fry for 4 to 5 minutes, and add 2 heads of cabbage, shredded. Cook 4 to 5 minutes more. Remove from heat and garnish with Parmesan cheese. Serve with pork chops.

- This dish uses a 16-inch Dutch Oven DUTCH POTATOES (Serves 16 to 20 people)

- 10 pounds of red or white potatoes, sliced 1/4 inch thick.
- 2 big red onions, sliced 1/4 inch thick.
- Par-broil till the potatoes crack. Drain off the water. Put 4 cans of cream of mushroom soup in the bottom of the Dutch oven. Add the potatoes and onions. Bake 30 to 40 minutes until the top is bubbly. Cover with Monterey Jack cheese and serve.

Leave the flavor in, not the fat

This Rhubarb-glazed Pork Roast is a taste-tomping, turn-of-taste for the Thanksgiving table.

Traditional holiday dinner menus are notoriously high in fat content. Is there any way for health-conscious cooks to offer up a truly delicious holiday feast that is genuinely low in fat?

The "Better Homes and Gardens New Cook Book" offers some inspiring suggestions. With one-third of its 1,200 recipes labeled either low fat or no fat, the 11th edition is serious about cutting fat out of our meals.

"Americans want to eat healthier diets, but they're not willing to sacrifice flavor in the process," said editor Jennifer Darling, "especially during the holiday season. ... Your dinner guests will never guess the following meal is only 564 calories and 13 grams total fat. Here are the recipes:

- ### RHUBARB-GLAZED PORK ROAST
- 1 1/2 to 3-pound boneless pork top loin roast (single loin)

- 4 cups fresh or frozen sliced rhubarb
  - 1/2 of a 12-ounce can frozen cranberry-apple juice cocktail concentrate
  - 2 tablespoons cornstarch
  - 2 tablespoons cold water
  - 1/3 cup honey
  - 2 tablespoons Dijon-style mustard
  - 1 tablespoon wine vinegar
- Place roast on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Insert a meat thermometer. Roast in a 325-degree oven for 1 1/4 hours to 1 3/4 hours or until the thermometer registers 155 degrees.

Meanwhile, for glaze, in a 2-quart saucepan, combine rhubarb and cranberry-apple juice cocktail concentrate. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer 15 minutes or until rhubarb is very tender. Strain mixture into a 2-cup liquid measure, pressing out liquid with the back of a spoon. Add enough water to equal 1 1/4 cups. Discard pulp.

In the same saucepan, stir together cornstarch and cold water. Stir in rhubarb liquid. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir 2 minutes more. Stir in honey, mustard and vinegar. Heat through. Brush some of the glaze onto the meat for the last 30 minutes of roasting. Cover meat with foil; let stand 15 minutes before carving. (The meat's temperature will rise 5 degrees during standing.)

Drying gourds is a snap

Q: Can you tell me the correct way to dry gourds?

—MARIAN GEORGE, WEST MINTON, PA.

A: Gourds are plentiful in the autumn. You'll find them at farm stands, garden centers and grocery stores.

Soft-shelled gourds, such as the Crown of Thorns and Turk's Turban, don't dry well, but they're colorful and attractive and will keep for several weeks.

Hard-shelled gourds, such as the Bottle, Bushel and Calabash, dry beautifully, albeit slowly. Small gourds may take about a month; large ones, six months to a year.

If you grow your own gourds, make sure you let them mature completely on the vine before harvesting. The stem should be dry and withered.

Harvest them with two to three inches of stem still attached, and wipe away any soil or debris.

Drying gourds is a slow process, but not a difficult one. In a dark, dry, well-ventilated place, arrange them in a single layer on a table or shelf with space between them. You can also use twine to hang them by their stems.

At first, turn them every few days. Some mold may appear on the surface of the gourds, but it won't harm them. Any gourds that begin to rot, however, should be discarded. As they dry, you can turn them less frequently.

All is usually not lost even if several things go wrong

DEAR CATHY: Two years ago, I moved into a new house, bringing with me several clumps of peonies. They are planted along a north wooden fence line and near the west side of my house. The last two summers they have had green leaves, and buds formed. More buds opened and flowers bloomed more this year than last, but many of the buds remained closed.

Later on in the summer, the leaves turned black, curled and died. I don't know if it is due to insect or disease problems. My neighbor on the west side has had green leaves, which is infested yearly with boxelder bugs (I think). She does not spray for the bugs, so I have been fighting them on my property as a result.

Incidentally, I have two lilac

GREEN
THE MIMBRINTS
Cathy Walworth

but all is not lost. First, the easiest: The boxelder bugs are little more than a nuisance. They don't mention anything that suggests they've started chewing yet. But they are invasive little beasts, and I don't like them crawling all over everything. These 1/2-inch long black bugs with their red-striped wings even stink when you smack them. They flock to boxelder trees and like maples, ash and fruit trees, too, so don't plant those.

If they've invaded the house, vacuum up the ones you see and throw the bag away. Outside, use malathion, diazinon or pyrethrin. Check your window screens to make sure they're tight, and seal tiny cracks around the foundation. Now for the black leaves.

Sounds like black spot, a fungus. It would like the enclosed spot you describe, between a wall and a fence. The peonies would appreciate more air circulation. And how's the sun? Peonies hate too much shade. Do they get at least six hours of sun every day? Too much moisture in the air and poor air circulation invites disease. Even though peonies hate being moved, I'd move them to an airier spot. And you might want to begin a spray program as described on the label of any one of several fungicides on the shelf next spring. Funginex is a good place to start.

Peonies will balk at being moved, but it sounds like yours did remarkably well. Often, they'll put and refuse to bloom for the first couple of years after a move. The lilac is likely suffering from black spot, too. If you are watering overhead, and/or in the evening, when leaves don't get a chance to dry before sunset, you are helping fungal spores. Learn to water early in the day, deeply and turn off the water in plenty of time to let leaves, grass and mulch dry before sundown. Because you watered deeply, you won't need to water as often—not for at least a week, maybe ten days.

In fall, when we don't see as much breeze and the sun isn't as intense, fungus often makes a move. Adopt better watering practices and a regular spray program next year, and I think you'll be pleased with the results.

Let the sun shine in: Design employs natural light

Artificial light will rarely be necessary during daylight hours in this Scandinavian-style Cascade.

This modified A-frame vacation home boasts a grand total of 16 skylights and is rich in windows as well.

While all of the rooms are bright, the living room clearly wins the prize. In addition to the eight skylights in the high, exposed-beam ceiling, this room has two floor-to-ceiling glass doors and four equally large windows.

Four smaller custom windows flank the fireplace. Honors for second-brightest area are split between the master suite and the combination kitchen/dining room.

The master suite has another eight skylights in its high ceiling. Diamond-shaped windows, nestled under the peak of the roof at opposite ends of the room, add still more light. The living room has an eye-level window, for enjoying the scenery, and a glass door that opens onto a private balcony.

Built as a loft, the master suite is open to the living room below and is unique in having a 10 by 12 foot upper loft that overlooks the sleeping area.

Other amenities include a private bathroom and walk-in closet.

Tall windows brighten the kitchen/dining area on two sides.

A set of doors opens onto a large deck. Another set of windows, over the sink, allows full appreciation of the outdoor setting. A range and oven, built into the eating bar, and a wet bar in the dining room, make food service convenient.

Two bedrooms, a small utility room and a bathroom complete the Cascade's ground floor. The steep metal roof shrugs off snow with ease.

Wrap your cat's present up right

If you're owned by a cat, this holiday season it might be the wrapping that counts. The Kong Co. has just introduced the first catnip-scented gift wrap.

Using a specially developed process, the firm saturates its wrapping paper in fresh catnip nectar.

The paper is then sealed in Mylar to preserve the scent. Just one whiff may set off a frenzy of scratching, sniffing and rolling about in ecstasy.

The product has been tested by veterinarians, according to Joe Markham, president of The Kong Co., and is completely safe. It is available in two festive, contemporary patterns — one fashioned around a fish, butterfly and catfish theme and the other accented by lively abstract stars, kaleidoscopes and paws.

It will be available at leading pet stores and from consumer pet catalogs.

Most popular cook in America hits shelves with an update

Baked Macaroni and Cheese is not gooey. The sauce can be made ahead of time.

Joy includes easy-to-make casserole

Los Angeles Times

A new "Joy of Cooking" cookbook is hitting the stands, and here is a sample recipe.

This isn't the normal gooey, cheesy macaroni and cheese. Instead it has a subtle onion flavor that makes it much more complex and interesting. One taster remarked that it reminded him of what macaroni and cheese must have tasted like before Kraft. The sauce can be made ahead and blended with just-cooked noodles before baking, or the entire casserole can be assembled a day in advance.

BAKED MACARONI AND CHEESE
6 cups water
Salt
2 cups (8 ounces) elbow macaroni

Los Angeles Times

For millions of Americans, the "Joy of Cooking" is a beloved kitchen companion, a friendly source of advice on everything from how to roast a chicken to a recipe for the best brownies ever. Now this icon of domesticity, dreamed up in 1931 by Irma Rombauer, a St. Louis matron of allegedly indifferent culinary skills, has undergone its first major make-over in 20 years.

Under the direction of a hot-shot — some would also say hot-tempered — New York editor and the input of more than 100 of the country's top chefs, cook-book writers and recipe testers, a new "Joy of Cooking" hit the stores last week.

Clearly, publisher Simon & Schuster's desire to bring "Joy" into the 21st century was destined to be less a job of revision than of reinvention. Add a volatile mix of too many cooks in the literary kitchen plus an impossible deadline and you have a book of bmisses egos and malicious gossip.

Controversy is nothing new for the "Joy of Cooking." The book has a history worthy of Danielle Steel: A plucky widow, rapacious businesswoman, epic legal wrangles, troubled inheritances and millions of dollars lost and won are all part of the Rombauer family saga played our across three generations. And now there is the other woman.

The newest revision has the name of Rombauer's niece, Ethan Becker on the cover, joining that of his grandmother and his mother, Marion Rombauer Becker, who had nurtured revisions of the book about every 10 years until their deaths in 1962 and 1976, respectively.

But there's no escaping the fact that for the first time "Joy" belongs not to the Rombauer Becker family but to an outsider, editor Maria Guarnaschelli of Simon & Schuster's Scribner imprint.

Widely acknowledged to be among the best cookbook editors in America, she is also considered demanding, abusive and so pushy that she pulled Becker aside for an editorial conference on his wedding night. Guarnaschelli's manner and her method of dealing with writers has created a tempering in the world of cookbook writing.

"I think 'Joy' had become quaint, and I think a lot of people who cherish it sentimentalize it, which is a sure sign of its demise," she says. "The idea of this new revision is to (update) the reference material that was always there and to give recipes within the chapters that are brand new and will make people want to cook from this book as much as they want to refer to it."

There's no doubt that Guarnaschelli's book is different from the one Rombauer first wrote. Rombauer canvassed friends and relatives for favorite recipes, then put them together in her own neighborly voice. She spent about $3,000 — half of her inheritance from her husband — to print 3,000 copies.

Guarnaschelli reportedly spent $5 million of Simon & Schuster's money. Writers' fees ranged from $7,000 to a reported $60,000. A nearly $2-million advance went to the Rombauer Becker family.

More from Jell-O

Here's an old recipe from "Joy of Jell-O."

JELL-O MILK SHERBET

Dissolve 1 4-serving package orange, black cherry or black raspberry Jell-O with 1/2 cup sugar and a dash of salt in 1 cup boiling water. Chill until slightly syrupy. Gradually add 2 cups milk, stirring constantly. Pour into an 8-inch square pan or freezing tray. Freeze quickly until firm about 1/2 inch around edges, about 1 hour. Pour into a chilled bowl and beat until fluffy. Return to pan; freeze until firm, 4 to 5 hours. Makes 6 servings.

Mixed waste paper becomes trash again

Junk mail is junk again. The garbage can in our household is overflowing this week. Is yours?

After months of separating magazines and junk mail out of the garbage for recycling, we've started tossing ours into the trash can. Since we still recycle our newspapers, cans and cardboard, and feed most of our kitchen scraps into a composter, the waste paper now being thrown out has nearly doubled our garbage load.

RECYCLING
Michael Hofferber

Stop the junk mail. A letter to the Direct Marketing Association (c/o Preferring Service, P. O. Box 9008, Farmingdale, N. Y. 11735-9008) asking to be removed from direct mailings will reduce the amount appearing in your mailbox.

Share your Money and Health and Life. Magazines can be shared with neighbors, relatives, schools, churches, senior centers and libraries. Rather than throwing out the magazines you spent good money on, consider storing them on your bookcase in binders or magazine files.

Buy recycled. Purchasing the best way to cut back on trash. Purchase items that can be recycled locally, like newspapers and aluminum cans. Here in the Magic Valley, it makes more sense to buy periodicals printed on newsprint than magazines printed on glossy paper.

Buy recycled. Purchasing goods made from recycled material ensures not only that what you buy can be recycled, but it also helps improve the market for recycled goods. And, as we've learned with mixed waste paper, without a buyer there is no recycling.

Although this leaves all of us, in the Magic Valley at least, with tons of extra paper destined for the landfill, there are still ways to reduce the load:

Send questions or comments to Michael Hofferber, SISV Recycling Coordinator, P.O. Box 159, Burley, Idaho 83316; or email recy2000@aol.com

Prepare your home for your absence

Q. We plan to take a long trip this winter. Last year, we took a trip and left the heat on in our home and ran up big heating bills. Can we turn the heat off without damaging the house?

DO IT YOURSELF
Gene Austin

A. There is some controversy about this, but most experts say there should be little or no damage if a house is left unheated for several months — assuming the home is properly prepared.

should be emptied of perishables and unplugged.

Draining plumbing is complicated, so it should be done by a plumber, at least the first time.

To safely turn off the heat, water must be drained from all plumbing, including faucets, toilets, water heater, sump pump and storage tank if any, and appliances such as washing machines. If the house has hot-water heat, radiators and boiler must be drained. Toilet bowls and traps under sinks should be filled with a mixture of water and automotive antifreeze to prevent sewer gas from entering the house. Refrigerators and freezers

A simpler and better system for shorter absences from a home is to leave the heat on at a thermostat setting of about 55 degrees. Water heaters should still be drained and turned off, but other plumbing and appliances can normally be left alone. A friend, neighbor or hired house-sitter should check the house at least once a week to make sure everything is OK.

New fluorescents might be worth a look

DEAR JIM: I've heard that replacing my bulbs with compact fluorescents will save $50 per bulb and reduce global warming. Will these types of bulbs create that drab, corpse-like appearance?

—BARB

DEAR BARB: New compact fluorescent bulbs produce excellent color quality — not the drab bluish hue of older ones. I use them exclusively in my own home and no guests have checked my pulse lately to see if I am still breathing.

You can save several hundred dollars overall by switching to compact fluorescent bulbs. They use about 75 percent less electricity than standard bulbs for the same light output. Since they operate much cooler, there is less chance of a child getting burned when touching one.

Many are the same size as standard bulbs to fit most lamps. There are new decorative globe, bullet and candelabra styles and the typical open bent tube designs. Reflector style compact fluorescents, for recessed, task and spot lighting, focus the light where you need it.

Although compact fluorescent bulbs initially cost more than standard bulbs, they last 10 times longer. Under normal residential use, a typical compact fluorescent bulb will last for three to four years. This is ideal for hard-to-reach ceiling fixtures, especially over stairs.

Compact fluorescent bulbs are available in 4-watt to 23-watt sizes. Keep in mind that bulb wattage refers to how much electricity it uses, not to how much light it produces. Light output is listed as "lumens" on the package.

Resist the temptation to buy a higher-wattage compact fluorescent bulb than you need. The approximate light output equivalent for compact fluorescents versus standard incandescents is: 4-watt/25-watt, 11-watt/40-watt, 15-watt/60-watt, 20-watt/75-watt and 23-watt/100-watt.

Not all compact fluorescent bulbs are similar. Ones with an electronic ballast are best. Cheaper models with magnetic ballasts tend to flicker at start-up, and may buzz.

There are two basic designs of compact fluorescent bulbs. Integral designs include the ballast, base and bulb in one unit. Adapter designs have replaceable bulbs for lower overall costs since the ballast lasts longer.

Write for an instant download (www.duley.com). Update Bulletin No. 727 - buyer's guide of compact fluorescent bulbs/features, light quality, ballasts, styles and a room-by-room lighting guide. Please include $3 and a business-size SAE.

Write to James Duley, 6906 Royalgreen Drive, Cincinnati, Ohio 45244.

DEAR JIM: I am trying to bend some aluminum siding to repair a corner piece damaged in a storm. I do not have a professional bending brake to make a crisp sharp corner. How can I bend it myself?

—STEVE

DEAR STEVE: For those who do not know, a brake is a heavy piece of equipment, sometimes with a hydraulic cylinder, to bend long creases in sheet metal. They are too expensive for the average do-it-yourselfer.

Buy two pieces of metal angle at your hardware store. Lay each over the edge of a Black and Decker Workmate and tighten the siding between them. Start the bend by hand and then pound it flat with a hardwood block.

Study: Trim the fat - don't eliminate it

CHICAGO (AP) — You can never be too rich or eat too little fat, right?

Wrong, suggests a study that found moderate reductions in the amount of fat in a person's diet are better than low-fat diets when it comes to lowering the risk of heart disease in people with high cholesterol.

Men who got 26 percent of their total calories from fat lowered their LDL, or so-called "bad" cholesterol, by 13.4 percent, researchers reported in Wednesday's Journal of the American Medical Association. Men who cut their fat intake more — to 22 percent of total calories — did no better in reducing "bad" cholesterol, but they reduced levels of HDL, the so-called "good" cholesterol, and raised levels of another blood fat called triglycerides.

Elevated triglycerides are associated with a higher risk of heart disease.

"It's become a very popular notion that the less fat a person eats, the better off they are, as far as heart disease risk is concerned," said the study's lead author, Dr. Robert H. Knopp, a professor of medicine at the University of Washington School of Medicine in Seattle.

He said, the study suggests that extreme fat restrictions do not help and may even be harmful.

Dr. Dean Ornish, an advocate of low-fat diets, and the findings contradict a misleading message that a dozen previous studies contradicted.

The study measured risk factors for heart disease itself, said Ornish, a faculty member at the University of California at San Francisco.

Some recipes inspired from Aunt Bee's kitchen

Sweet potato souffle, cornbread stuffing carry the taste of the Andy Griffith South

A friend recently let me borrow a fun cookbook, full of recipes from a land where life was simpler and cooking was what you just did. It's "Aunt Bee's Mysterious Cookbook."

Maybe, the mythical town from "The Andy Griffith Show," had the supreme cook, in the form of Aunt Bee. She always seemed to take such great delight in feeding Andy and Opie Taylor, and you can almost taste her dinners right through the TV.

The cookbook includes very "down home" recipes with ingredients you're likely to find in your cupboard, making it more likely to be useful. And there are food trivia tidbits and dialogue from the show peppered throughout the book.

Of course, Mayberry is in the south in the country, so there's more of an emphasis on the south in the recipes. But certainly the tuna casserole, pot roast and apple pies are not different from how we eat here in Idaho.

Since the holidays are fast approaching — they had Christmas up before Halloween was over — I chose some more traditional Thanksgiving dishes to share, just to see if Aunt Bee might have made something a little different than what we usually have.

So instead of the usual pumpkin pie recipe, I've put in the pecan pie recipe. My dad's family from the south, so pecan pie is "the other" traditional holiday pie. Maybe your family will start a different tradition with one of Aunt Bee's recipes.

VALLEY COOKING
Rebecca Taboka

- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 6 tablespoons butter, melted
- Cinnamon
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1 cup chopped pecans
- Marshmallows

Grease a baking dish. In a mixing bowl combine the sweet potatoes, orange juice, milk, vanilla, sugar, salt, 3 tablespoons of melted butter and cinnamon. Beat until fluffy, and pour into the prepared baking dish. Melt the remaining butter and add the brown sugar, flour and pecans. Sprinkle this mixture over the potatoes. Bake in a 350 oven for 35 minutes. Top with marshmallows and bake until browned. Serves 6.

MA PARKER'S BOARDING-HOUSE CORNBREAD STUFFING

- 4 teaspoons margarine
- 1 cup finely diced celery
- 1/2 cup diced onion
- 1/2 cup diced green pepper
- 4 cups crumbled cornbread
- 2 cups crumbled biscuit or toast crumbs
- 2 teaspoons dried sage
- 3 hard-boiled eggs, chopped
- 2 to 4 cups turkey or chicken broth

Salt and pepper
Grease a square dish. In a large heavy skillet melt the margarine over medium heat. Sauté the celery, onion and green pepper until tender. Combine the cornbread, biscuits, and sage and add to the skillet. Add the chopped eggs. Pour in 2 or more cups of broth, until moistened to taste. Add salt and pepper to taste. Spoon the stuffing into the prepared dish. For moist stuffing, cover and bake in a 350 oven for 40 minutes. When the gourds are completely dry, they will be light, and the seeds inside will rattle. Wash the dried gourds with a mild soap or a weak bleach solution, using a scrub brush or steel wool to remove mold. Let them dry thoroughly.

Dried gourds make lovely autumnal decorations. One practical use for a large dried gourd is as a beautiful, natural birdhouse. Here's how to make one:

With a 4-inch holesaw bit, drill a window, then drill four small holes at the top. String natural jute through the holes, fill the gourd partway with birdseed and hang from a tree branch.

"Birdhouse" gourds are also available by mail order from Marder's, P.O. Box 1261, Bridghampton, N.Y. 11932; telephone (516) 537-3700.

Q: How do you attach protective pads to the bottom of chair legs without glue? They keep sliding off.

—RENE TREVINO, HOUSTON, TEXAS

A: It is necessary to use some kind of adhesive, but I've always found that the adhesive backing that comes on most protective pads works perfectly. It holds well and won't damage your chairs or other furniture.

These surface protectors are a fabulous invention. They'll certainly save your floor from nicks and scratches. To help them stick better, clean and dry the chair legs before applying the pads.

You'll find these little pads in hardware and housewares stores; brand names include EZ Glide, Surface Guard, MagicMount and Flan. They come in all shapes and sizes, in different styles for different purposes.

The carpeted pads are good for chair and table legs, to keep them from scratching the floor. Glass or plastic coasters are ideal for legs with wheels. The coasters with one flat side and one spiked side are for furniture on carpeting; the spikes protect the carpet from indentations.

Adhesive flannel dots or sheets you cut to size can be used on vases, lamps and other objects, so they won't damage tables; they can also be affixed to the back of a picture frame to protect the wall. And nonskid rubber disks keep things in their place, from countertop appliances to the dog's water bowl.

Q: How do I keep potatoes and onions from going bad? I've been told a cool, dark place is best, but I don't have one nearby.

—KRISTIN AMEND, KANSAS CITY, MO.

A: A cool, dark place is ideal, but you can improvise. There's an appropriate spot for onions and potatoes in every kitchen. They should not be kept together, however, as a chemical reaction occurs, causing the potatoes to spoil more quickly.

Onions can be stored in the refrigerator, where they will keep for up to two months. It does them no harm whatsoever, and will even make them less troublesome to chop: A cold onion won't cause as many tears.

Potatoes shouldn't be refrigerated; the low temperature causes the starch to turn to sugar, which affects both taste and appearance. High temperatures, however, will cause the potatoes to shrivel more quickly. Fifty degrees Fahrenheit is best, and in some houses, the garage or basement is a convenient storage

SPOT. Keep the potatoes in a covered basket or bin (make sure air can circulate), and they should last for up to two weeks. Otherwise, don't keep them near the stove or other heat source in the kitchen, or exposed to light. A basket or bin in a cupboard or pantry is fine. You can store your onions in the same place if you don't have room for them in the refrigerator. Just use a separate container.

Area announcer selected for the 'Big 3' this fall

MURTAUGH — For the sixth time, Zeb Bell, professional announcer, has been chosen to announce his 11th Wilderness Circuit Finals Rodeo in Ogden, Utah.

Then, from Nov. 16-22, Bell will announce the American Quarter Horse Association "World Show" in Oklahoma City. This is the eighth time he's been selected by the AQHA.

Following the "World Show", Zeb will travel to Las Vegas as one of the announcers for the 1997 National Finals Rodeo Dec. 5-14.

NCAA rule violation lands top college scorer on bench

NEW YORK — Charles Jones, the nation's leading scorer for Long Island University last season, was suspended by the school Tuesday for the first time in two years for violating an NCAA rule.

Following the suspension, Jones, who averaged 30.1 points per game last year, played in two summer basketball leagues and violated the rule that permits players to participate in just one of really any league during the offseason. Jones, who transferred from Rutgers after two seasons, led the Blackbirds to a 21-9 record last season, Northeast Conference regular and postseason titles and their first NCAA appearance since 1984.

Agassi bumps Tebbutt from USTA Challenger

LAS VEGAS — Andre Agassi took a small step in his quest to regain his world-class stature with a 6-2, 6-4 victory over Australian Michael Tebbutt in Tuesday's opening round of the USTA Men's Challenger tennis tournament at UNLV.

"I feel like this is a step for me, and it's part of my preparation in hopes of really getting myself back to where I know I can be," Agassi said after dispatching Tebbutt in 56 minutes.

Seven Eagles score more than 10 points as CSI cruises to win

By Damen Clow
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two games, two promises kept. The Southern Idaho men's basketball team showed its dynamic defense in Saturday's season opener. On Tuesday, it showed its depth, as seven players scored in double figures in a 108-64 win over the Northwest Nazarene junior varsity.

Northwest Nazarene's Jeremy Lund opened the night's scoring just 20 seconds into the contest, but the Golden Eagles held the Crusaders to just two more points over the first 10 minutes of the game.

"We came out and played hard defense, got a lot of turnovers and got a big lead," said freshman Terrence McCutcheon, who led the team with three steals and added four assists. "But coach doesn't like us to relax — he wants us to play with intensity the whole game."

"...coach doesn't like us to relax — he wants us to play with intensity the whole game."

—Terrence McCutcheon, CSI player

The Eagles had a 52-27 advantage at halftime, but kept the intensity through the second half and broke the century mark with three minutes left in the game on Curtis Bobb's 3-pointer.

"One we got the break going, we got some nice dunks and some nice assists, too," said Golden Eagle coach Jim Thrash. "There was a lot of unselfish play in those last 10 minutes."

With center Greg McQuay benched in the first half, Juliano Jordani and Chico Moore manned the paint and CSI turned rebounds into fast-break points with a 28-4 run. Joe Marshall scored eight and Adrian McCullough scored seven of his team-high 18 points during that span.

Jordani and Moore controlled the boards early as CSI (2-0) outrebounded the Crusaders 20-8 in the first half and 45-15 overall.

Expos' Martinez wins Cy Young

Montreal ace gamers nearly twice as many votes as Braves' Maddux

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Pedro Martinez ended the Atlanta Braves' streak of NL Cy Young Awards at four, easily beating Greg Maddux and Denny Neagle.

Martinez, put on the trade market by Montreal immediately after the season, received 25 of 28 first-place votes and 134 points in balloting released Tuesday by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

"I'm dedicating this award to Juan Marichal, who I think deserved this award and didn't get it," Martinez said, referring to his countryman, regarded as the greatest pitcher from the Dominican Republic.

Maddux, who won the award four consecutive times from 1992-95, was second with the remaining first-place votes and 75 points. Neagle, his teammate on the Braves, was third with 24 points, followed by Philadelphia's Curt Schilling with 12 and Houston's Darryl Kile with seven.

"I don't consider myself better than Maddux right now," Martinez said.

National League Cy Young votes

Player	1st	2nd	3rd	Total
Pedro Martinez	25	1	1	27
Greg Maddux	1	18	1	20
Denny Neagle	1	1	1	3
Curt Schilling	1	1	1	3
Darryl Kile	1	1	1	3

Atlanta and Maddux have combined to monopolize the award in recent years. After Tom Glavine won it in 1991, Maddux won it with the Chicago Cubs in 1992, then repeated in his first three seasons with the Braves. John Smoltz then won it last year.

Martinez, a 26-year-old right-hander, joined with Schilling to become the first pair of pitchers in 25 years to reach 300 strikeouts in the same season.

Martinez went 17-8 and led the majors with a 1.50 ERA, becoming the first ERA leader with 300 strikeouts since Steve Carlton in 1972. Opponents hit just .184 against him, the lowest average against any major league pitcher last season. His 305 strikeouts were second in the majors, 14 behind Schilling's total, and his 13 complete games led both leagues.

"I think that the ERA and the 300 strikeouts really shined on top of everything," Martinez said.

With a 65-39 career record, Martinez is more sought after than any of the free-agent pitchers on the market. The arbitration and waiting to pay a large salary in free agency after 1998, have said they intend to trade him this offseason.

"I'm more sad than mad at them," Martinez said. "That's their politics and that's the way they do things."

At peace with owner, Miller takes O's post

The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Ray Miller already has taken care of the toughest part of being manager of the Baltimore Orioles — establishing a rapport with owner Peter Angelos.

Miller became the Orioles' fourth manager in five years Tuesday, six days after Al Manager of the Year Davey Johnson ended a run-ning quarrel with Angelos by resigning.

"Mr. Angelos guaranteed he would do everything in the world to keep this club competitive and in a position to win," Miller said. "If we're short of something, I'm sure ownership will go out and get it."

Red Devils lead tough Southside

By Damen Clow
and Eric Machacek
Times-News writers

The Murtaugh Red Devils finished the last girls' basketball regular season with an 18-2 record and took their conference's top seed into the state tournament, where they finished behind conference foes Hagerman and Raft River.

Such is the testimony to the strength and competitive nature of the Class A-4, Southside Conference.

Murtaugh, state consolation title-winner Raft River, Oakley, Hagerman and Hansen, will all begin the 1997 campaign having felt the loss of just two of their five starters.

While the losses are significant — Murtaugh will be without strong center Melissa Tolman in the middle and the Trojans no longer have Amanda Steed's 10.2

By Lisa Winther

The road to the Northside Conference girls' basketball title should go through three teams this season. But that doesn't mean another team won't sneak in the door.

Dietrich, which placed second at the state tournament in 1996 and third in 1997 will have to overcome the loss of Lori McCowan and Tionna Norman to graduation. Those two accounted for 32 points a game for the Blue Devils.

Still, Dietrich returns three starters from a team that finished 24-4 last season.

Jordan was held under 20 points for the second straight game and the new Cavs bludgeoned him in Cleveland's first victory over Chicago in the Jordan era.

Pro basketball

Jordan, who has owned Cleveland for years, said not so fast. The Bulls are playing too poorly to justify how good the Shawn Kemp-led Cavaliers really are.

"We certainly didn't see them a challenge to be good, but they look in terms of competition," said Jordan, who scored only 19 points while guarded by a young prospect of his, rookie Derek Anderson...

Dennis Rodman echoed Jordan's sentiments about the struggles of the former NBA champs, somewhat of a major loss coming from Rodman, who was pondering retirement as recently as last week...

The Bulls, without the injured Scottie Pippen and with Rodman still trying to find his form, dropped to 4-3 and remained without a win on the road as they seek a sixth NBA title this decade.

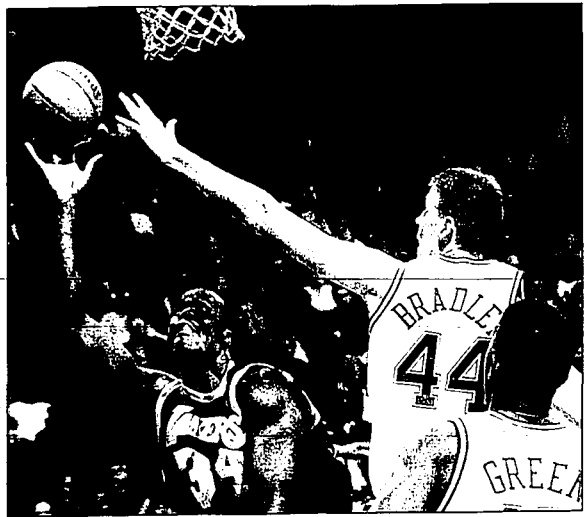

Wesley Person had 17 points for the Cavaliers, 8-3, and rookie Brown Knight had 11 points and seven assists. Michael Bantom led the Cleveland bench brands with a season-high 11 points.

Bantom's top dunk early in the fourth quarter came a few minutes after a similar throwaway by rookie Cedric Henderson, signifying how young Cavs it was Cleveland's largest margin of victory over Chicago since a 20-point win in 1993...

Rubin said there's no interest on the team, Rodman said. Rodman's unrequited feud with Pippen ended with only two minor incidents of the court.

Reverse forward Mark Strickland, receiving extra playing time with Jamal Mashburn injured, scored 10 of his career-high 14 rebounds for the Heat.

Mitch Richmond scored 17 points and led the Kings. Austin, starting at center while Alorzo Mourning is out with a left knee injury, scored 8 points during a 22-6 spurt in the second quarter as the Heat opened a 58-39 halftime lead.

Los Angeles' Shaquille O'Neal drives to the basket against Dallas' Shawn Bradley and A.C. Green during the first quarter of Tuesday's game in Dallas.

"Oh Lord," Rodman began. "Well, if you take that hair off her, I think she's a man."

Rodman continued, "I'll probably get fined for that statement, but I don't give a damn. Really."

Hawks 89, Sonics 87 ATLANTA — Atlanta improved to 7-0 when Steve Smith hit a turnaround jumper from 16 feet with 4.9 seconds remaining.

Gary Payton had a chance to tie for the Sonics, driving into the lane as time was running down. But his left-handed layup hit the rim three times before bouncing out as the horn sounded.

The Sonics were held scoreless after Detlef Schrempf made two free throws with 4:07 left to push his team to an 87-80 lead.

Atlanta finished with a 9-0 run, capped by Smith's basket after Schrempf missed a scoop shot in the lane with 26 seconds remaining.

Heat 101, Kings 82 MIAMI — Isaac Austin scored 24 points and P.J. Brown grabbed a career-high 18 rebounds for Miami.

Reverse forward Mark Strickland, receiving extra playing time with Jamal Mashburn injured, scored 10 of his career-high 14 rebounds for the Heat.

Mitch Richmond scored 17 points and led the Kings. Austin, starting at center while Alorzo Mourning is out with a left knee injury, scored 8 points during a 22-6 spurt in the second quarter as the Heat opened a 58-39 halftime lead.

Robinson had a season-high 36 points and 16 rebounds as the Spurs improved to 6-1, their best start since 1991-92. Rookie Tim Duncan added a career-best 22 points and nine rebounds for San Antonio, which rallied from a 12-point third-quarter deficit.

All five starters scored in double figures for Minnesota, led by Stephon Marbury's 22 points. The Lakers' 22 points in the second half, including a driving jumper that put the Wolves up 92-91 with 2.8 seconds left.

But Robinson, who scored his previous season high of 32 in a win at Toronto on Monday night, got the ball on the baseline after the Bulls' pass. He drove for a layup but missed, then tipped the ball in from the other side of the rim.

Lakers 118, Mavericks 96 DALLAS — Shaquille O'Neal scored 25 of his season-high 37 points in the first half as Los Angeles rolled to its fifth consecutive win.

The Lakers' 5-0 start is their best since 1987-88 when they got off to a franchise-best 8-0.

O'Neal, making his third start of the season, dominated Mavericks center Shawn Bradley in the first half, converting 12 of 15 shots as the Lakers built a 57-43 lead.

The Lakers shot 58 percent from the field as a team in the opening half and cruised to their 10th straight win over Dallas.

Miller helped create contenders in Baltimore and Pittsburgh as his first game. But he has bitter memories of his previous stint as a manager.

He went 109-130 with the Minnesota Twins from June 1995 to September 1996.

Using Miller's training regimen and most of his coaching staff, Tom Kelly took Minnesota to the World Series in 1997.

"I take no credit for their winning the World Series, but I take pride in setting up a situation where they could win," Miller said.

Esgles led 79-42 with 10 minutes remaining.

Bob Lowe scored nine of his team-high 14 points in the final eight minutes, but crowd-pleasing dunks by McCutchen and James Stokes in the final minutes kept the noise level high and helped keep the Crusaders out of the game.

Northwest Nazarene cut the lead in 58-35 four minutes into the second half, but McCullough began his inside scoring, and McCullough went on another tear, scoring eight points in one minute to give CSI a 73-38 lead.

McCutchen added two dunks and a turn-around jumper and the Golden Eagles had all but secured the win by the time McCutchen set the floor one minute into the second half, but the 6-7 sophomore still finished with 16 points and nine rebounds.

"Again, I was pleased with our depth," Throck said. "There were some guys that played better tonight who didn't play as well in the first game."

NC State trips Bulldogs; Princeton bests Texas

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — No. 19 Georgia had all the starters returning and a highly touted freshman for new coach Ron Jirska in his first game.

North Carolina State had something that proved even better — defense.

Justin Guiney hit a baseline jumper with 2:14 to play and North Carolina State held on when Georgia missed three shots in the final 13 seconds Tuesday night, giving the Wolfpack a 47-45 win over the Bulldogs in the first round of the Coaches vs. Cancer Classic.

Princeton and No. 22 Texas met in the second game. The winners will play Wednesday night. "We know we are better than that, we just couldn't get untracked," Jirska said after seeing the Bulldogs make only 17 of 68 shots (25 percent).

Princeton 62, No. 22 Texas 56 EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — It's usually much later in the season when Princeton scores or beats a team considered much better.

The Tigers started their season with Tuesday night with a 62-56 victory over No. 22 Texas in the Coaches vs. Cancer Classic.

College basketball

Princeton will play North Carolina in its first game. Georgia 47-45 in the opener of the doubleheader at Continental Airlines Arena, in Wednesday night's championship game.

The Tigers used the same basic principles — patient offense and team defense — used over the years in NCAA tournament scores against the likes of Georgetown, Arkansas and Villanova and the huge first-round win over defending champion UCLA in the 1996 tournament.

No. 24 Temple 68, Auburn 42 ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Sophomore Lamont Barnes scored 19 points, including five dunks, and No. 24 Temple started off its season Tuesday with a 68-42 win over coltschooting Auburn at the NABC Classic.

No. 11 New Mexico took on Southern Cal in the second game of the opening-night doubleheader. Temple, coming off a 2-0 start, also showed signs of early rust. But O'Neil got plenty of help from an Auburn (0-1) team that hit just 3 of its first 14 shots and scored five points in the game's first 10 minutes.

Orioles

As Johnson's pitching coach, Miller was instrumental in helping the Orioles win 68 games last year by advancing to the AL championship series.

Baltimore had the league's best ERA, allowed the fewest hits and runs and had three 15-game winners for the first time in 15 seasons.

"We felt like Ray was definitely the best man for the job. He's a proven winner," assistant general manager Jim Malone said.

Neither Miller nor the Orioles would divulge the length or amount of the contract.

NBC, Turner shows NBA the money

NEW YORK (AP) - NBC and Turner Sports were intent on keeping their exclusive hold on NBA games. And they were clearly willing to pay for it.

The NBA, after talking to other networks, renewed its contract Tuesday with NBC and Turner for $2.64 billion over four years, more than double the value of the current deal. "The key to this deal is exclusivity, which we can pass on to advertisers, sales staff and affiliates. It creates a seller's market," NBC Sports president Dick Ebersol said.

Commissioner David Stern said the league chose to keep its current partners rather than maximize its revenues.

"In negotiations, you can always say there was a little bit more money to be gotten, but sometimes it comes time to end it and move on," Stern said. "In the deal, which gives the league $1.75 billion from NBC and $890 million from TNT. "This was the minimum amount of money we needed to keep up with the revenue demands of our teams and the players," he said.

To offset the increase in rights fees from $750 million by NBC and $352 million by TNT, the NBA awarded NBC eight additional playoff games and seven regular-season games in early prime time. TNT was given 10 additional regular-season games, including a Thanksgiving night game.

Marlins begins trimming costs: Alou off to Houston for pitchers

MIAMI (AP) - Two weeks after winning the World Series, the Florida Marlins began their fire sale.

The 5-year-old Marlins started gutting their high-priced roster Tuesday, trading Moises Alou to the Houston Astros for two minor-league pitchers and a player to be named.

Moises Alou

"Experience teaches you when this happens, the perception is that it's not a good deal," Marlins general manager Dave Dombrowski said after the first of what promises to be many teal deals. "It's not what you prefer to do."

Alou signed a $25 million, five-year contract last December, but spent only one season in Florida. He led the wild card Marlins with 23 home runs and 115 RBIs, and was a key contributor in the World Series win over the Cleveland Indians.

Owner H. Wayne Huizenga wants to ditch expensive stars as fast as he signed them after last season, when he committed $89 million to free agents.

Huizenga, claiming he lost $34 million this year, intends to sell the Marlins to a group headed by team president Don Steinley, and the pair have vowed to cut payroll from $54 million to about $20 million.

That means Gary Sheffield, Bobby Bonilla, Alex Hernandez.

Alou hit .292 during the regular season.

per game - the nuclei are intact for another spring season.

"We're aggressive enough on defense that this can't be a problem," said Red Devil senior guard Holly Hepworth on the loss of the 6-foot-2 Tolman, who is now on the College of Southern Idaho volleyball team.

In Tolman's place is relative newcomer Kereta Dye, a 5-foot 10 senior in her second year of basketball after helping lead Murtaugh to the state volleyball final.

"Anything less than a conference and district championship would be a disappointment to these girls," predicted Murtaugh coach Jim Hamblin. "They expect big things."

Murtaugh Red Devils

1996 record: 2-5
Coach: Jim Hamblin, 5th year
Key returners: 5-10 senior forward Tobe Bell, averaged 21.3 points per game, 11.2 rebounds, all states; 5-9 junior forward Lindsey Ward, 8.9 ppg; 5-5 senior guard Holly Hepworth, three-year starter.
Outlook: "We're going to have a few key people somewhat new to varsity basketball," said Hamblin, "but athletes are athletes."

The Red Devils' guard corps will include seniors Holly Hepworth, Brady Turner and Lisa Anderson, all members of the volleyball team.

"We're going to be a running team," said Bell, who noted that she played last year the starting five have played together since their junior high school days.

Raft River Trojans

1996 record: 20-9
Coach: Randy Spaeth, 1st year
Key returners: 5-9 senior forward Hansel averaged 11.2 ppg; 5-10 senior Jill Smith, 11.6 ppg; 5-10 senior Kim Smith; 5-8 senior Holly Darrington; 5-8 senior Tara Lee; 5-10 senior forward Kari Rafter.
Outlook: Raft River will have to get used to a new system under rookie coach Spaeth, who had the football team in the top five through most of his first season on the gridiron.

The team does not have the height of last season's squad - despite having four players listed at 5-foot-10 - but the speed, depth and senior leadership that Spaeth hopes will make his first year a successful one.

The roster also includes four juniors - Tasha Hansen, Shawna Ervin Yates and Shauna Cooke.

Richfield: The Tigers not only earned a state berth last season but return all five starters. Shoshone, which finished third in last season's district tournament, returns three including its top scorer.

But the conference race may not be cut-throat. Carey, Bliss, ISDB and Camas County all return a club of last year's starters.

Dietrich Blue Devils

1996-97 record: 24-4, first in conference, tied for sixth in district
Coach: Gene Shaw, 8th year
Key returners: Julia Anderson, senior, a 5-9 center who averaged six points and nine rebounds; Krista Green, senior, 5-5 guard with good shooting skills and the ability to lead. She also averaged nine points per game last season. Rayna Jones, junior, a 5-6 junior who is quick on her feet and an enthusiastic player, averaged five points.

Other players: Senior Milena Ivanova, 5-4 guard; senior Megan Johnson, 5-8 guard/forward; Amy Maughan, 5-8 guard/forward; junior Laura Anderson, 5-9 forward; junior Robin Southwick, 5-7 guard/forward; junior Aynsley Weber, 5-6 forward; and sophomore Brandi McCowan, 5-9 guard.
Outlook: After losing the scoring of Lori McCowan and Tonna Norman, Shaw says his team should be quick and should have good depth. "Putting the ball in the hole and rebounding will be our concern for this season," Shaw said. "We should have a tough conference with Shoshone, Richfield, and us battling for the top spots."

Hagerman Pirates

1996 record: 14-13
Coach: Jason Warr, 2nd year
Key returners: 5-6 senior guard Shoua Nelson, averaged 6 ppg; 5-10 senior post Camille Karrels, 8 ppg; 5-7 junior forward Jelinda Knight, 7 ppg.
Outlook: "These girls have played together on state teams in both volleyball and basketball," Warr noted. The Pirates also have team quickness, which they must utilize on defense to make up for a lack of team height and depth at post.

Four juniors - Katie Martin, Carrie Osborne, Jessica White and Rochelle Berkebile - and sophomore Mindi Henslee will add to Hagerman's scoring threat.

Hansen Huskies

1996 record: 11-11
Coach: Rick Abel, 1st year
Key returners: 5-1 senior point guard Brantley Davis; 5-8 senior post Morgan Jokumson; 5-8 junior post Megan Freestone.
Outlook: The Huskies have both the experienced upperclassmen (including seniors Margi Hollifield, Dayna Medley and Jeanne Ratto) and junior Emily Crockett and 10 eager underclassmen who will see varsity playing time during the season.

The coach labels the girls as smart, team-oriented players with good quickness, but notes they lack size and strength and will have to work on improving skills such as shooting.

Like Raft River, the Huskies will be learning a new system under a new coach. Helping Abel is assistant coach Holly Hall, who has coached the girls for two years.

Oakley Hornets

1996 record: 2-21
Coach: Neal Wyatt, 4th year
Key returners: 5-6 senior guard Mickey Judd; 5-8 senior guard Crystal Gay; 5-8 junior post Erin Wells.
Outlook: The good news for the Hornets is that their biggest problem - lack of size - is the most common problem in the conference.

The chore of rebounding will fall into the hands of Wells and fellow posts Kristin Hardy, Misty Hale and Alisha Bahbitt, the three starters. A 5-6 junior center with fellow sophomores Jessica Roudy and Breann Severe.

Castleford Wolves

1996 record: 7-14
Coach: Gary Reynolds, 1st year
Key returners: 5-11 junior center Melissa Frey; 5-5 junior point guard Jacklyn Burgess; 5-8 sophomore more forward Katie Ruffing.

Outlook: The Wolves have just one senior - 5-8 forward Amy Meirhoff - to greet new coach Gary Reynolds. But the coach believes his young squad, just 12 players in age, has a lot of heart, energy and varsity, is hard-working and has a positive and willing attitude to learn and adjust.

Kelli Easterday (5-7 forward) and Olivia Sjolqvist (5-3 guard) are the other juniors, and the squad includes three sophomores - 5-9 center Ashley McCormick, and 5-7 twin forwards Kathy and Dina Dudley.

Note: The following schools are considered A-4 in classification but play a junior varsity schedule and are not eligible for post-season play.

Twin Falls Christian Warriors

1996-97 record: 4-8
Coach: Jodi Berkbow
Outlook: TFC's determined to come back this year as strong as they did last year. The program is still in its developmental stages, but a concern might be lack of height.

Leading the Warriors will be Jill Mayer, who ranked in the top 10 in scorers in Class A-4 last season.

Key returners: Shavna Veestra, a 5-6 senior, who averaged 4.1 p.p.g. as a forward; Jill Mayer, a 5-8 junior, who averaged 12.7 p.p.g. at the forward and center positions; and Haley Jordan, a 5-5 sophomore, who averaged 1.6 p.p.g. as a guard.

Other players: Holly Oliver at forward; sophomore Erin Barabam at forward; junior Sydney Veestra at forward; junior Tiffany Braun at forward, and sophomore Tawna Becker at guard.

Magie Valley Christian Conquerors

1996-97 record: 0-6
Coach: Misty Kallfleisich
Outlook: Though the team is young, the girls play and work well together. Coach Misty Kallfleisich said she is excited about this bunch of girls and is hoping to finish out this year's season at 500.

Key returners: 5-10 forward/center Jessica Nelson, 5-5 guard Jenna Cugno, and 5-4 forward Darlene Galskyak.

Other players:

5-11 forward/center Jacqueline Sarris, 5-9 forward/center Jivee Haves, 5-6 guard Sarah Lincoln, 5-6 forward Annie Croner, 5-9 forward Katie Litke, 5-3 guard Megan Griffin, 5-6 forward Ann Harris, 5-5 guard/forward Sidney Russell, and 5-4 guard Abby Tucker.

Giants acquire third baseman who wore out Yankee welcome

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The San Francisco Giants, who traded their way to an NL West title this season, acquired third baseman Charlie Hayes from the New York Yankees on Tuesday for a pair of minor leaguers.

As part of the deal, the Yankees will pay the Giants $1.6 million to cover Hayes' entire salary in 1998, according to a baseball executive who spoke on the condition he not be identified.

Hayes, who would not have been protected in next week's expansion draft by the Yankees, annoyed teammates and New York manager Joe Torre this August by claiming umpire John Hirschbeck shouted ethnic slurs at New York pitcher Hideki

Charlie Hayes

Iribu.

No other Yankees verified Hayes' accusations, and Torre said he heard nothing inappropriate from Hirschbeck.

Owner George Steinbrenner also was said to be displeased with Hayes.

"It's no secret he had fallen out of favor with certain individuals in the organization," Yankees general manager Bob Watson said.

The Giants, who had finished last in the NL West two straight seasons, built a winner this year with trades. They acquired two starting infielders and a key reliever in a deal for All-Star third baseman Matt Williams last fall, then got three pitchers from the Chicago White Sox in late July to solidify their staff.

Hayes, who hit .258 last season with 11 home runs and 53 RBI, will be used by the Giants as a backup to third baseman Bill Mueller and first baseman J.J. Snow and as a right-handed pitcher.

"Charlie's a clutch man, a run producer, and he's been on winning teams," manager Dusty Baker said. "We're going to try to utilize Charlie much as we did Mark Lewis, to keep Billy strong."

Basketball argument turns deadly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Two bystanders were killed off a disagreement about who was the better point guard, Allen Iverson of the Philadelphia 76ers or Gary Payton of the Seattle SuperSonics.

Words turned to gunfire Sunday after the game between the 76ers and Sonics.

Derrick Washington, 21, and his cousin, Jameka Wright, 22, were killed in the crossfire in the Southwest Plaza public housing development.

Washington was a father of one and Wright was a mother of two.

Police on Tuesday were looking for the triggerman, who fled with a group of men. "They started out arguing about the basketball thing, but then they started arguing about other things," said Jerrald Kane, a city homicide inspector. "It got down to basically just general bad-mouthing."

Early All-Americans named

The Associated Press

Only three schools could brag about having a preseason All-America this year.

Kansas forwards Raef LaFrentz and Paul Pharis, and Arizona guards Mike Bibby and Miles Simon highlighted The Associated Press' preseason All-America team Tuesday. They were joined by North Carolina forward Antonio Jamison.

Since the preseason All-America team is first selected before the 1986-87 season, only Duke's Bobby Hurley and Grant Hill, before the 1992-93 season, had been chosen as a teammate tandem.

LaFrentz, a 6-foot-11 senior and the only returning All-American from last season, was the leading vote-getter. He was named on 69 of the 71 ballots cast by a national media panel.

Jamison, a 6-9 junior, was second with 67 votes and was followed by Bibby, a 6-1 sophomore who received 59 votes, and Simon, a 6-5 senior who had 32, and Pierce, a 6-7 junior, who was named 28 ballots.

Bibby averaged 13.5 points and 5.2 assists last season while shooting almost 40 percent from 3-point range. He was believed to be the first freshman to lead a team to the national championship as the Wildcats won it all last season with an OT victory over Kentucky in the title game.

WNBA expands to 10 teams

NEW YORK (AP) - Detroit and Washington are officially entering the WNBA. Orlando and Chicago may be next.

The WNBA received formal approval Tuesday from the NBA Board of Governors to expand to 10 teams. Detroit and Washington will join Charlotte, Cleveland and New York in the year-old league's Eastern Conference. To make room, the defending champion Houston Comets will shift to the Western Conference and join Los Angeles, Phoenix, Sacramento and Utah.

Richfield: The Tigers not only earned a state berth last season but return all five starters. Shoshone, which finished third in last season's district tournament, returns three including its top scorer.

But the conference race may not be cut-throat. Carey, Bliss, ISDB and Camas County all return a club of last year's starters.

Richfield Tigers

1996-97 record: 16-12, second in conference

Coach: Jim Thomas, 3rd year
Key returners: Senior Larisa Fuchs, 5-9 post, led the team averaging nine points; senior Ginger Ward, 5-6 guard; junior Debra Ward, 5-4 guard; junior April Whitsett, 5-6 guard; and junior Amy Hamilton, 5-4 guard.
Other players: Senior Melanie Tree, 5-6 post; sophomore Ashley Burr, 5-1 post; sophomore Anna Lankford, 5-6 post; sophomore Mindy Stevens, 5-0 guard; sophomore Michelle Ward, 5-3 guard; and freshman Jennifer Brannburger, 5-4 guard.

Outlook: Although the Tigers return five starters, they have a new coach and a new system. They also will have to overcome a lack of height.

Shoshone Indians

1996-97 record: 13-12, third in conference

Coach: Tim Chapman, 7th year
Key returners: Senior Danielle Ross, 5-9 post, averaging 12 points and nine rebounds; senior Catherine Sandy, 5-8 wing, who averaged four points and six rebounds; and sophomore Amy Williams, 5-3 guard, who averaged six points and four assists.
Other players: Senior Anita King, 5-3 guard; senior Annetta King, 5-3 guard; senior Jenny Ochs, 5-3 guard; junior Karen Pendleton, 5-6 guard; and sophomore Anna Cox, 5-10 post.
Outlook: Shoshone lost only one player to graduation and returns a wealth of experience. With three solid returning starters and three others that started part of the season, the Indians should be deep.

"We have a lot of experience," said Chapman. "Our rebounding should be strong with Ross, Cox and Sandy, along with the quickness of the King twins, Williams, and Pendleton."

A concern might be hitting shooting.

"We need to step up and hit some of those outside shots in play with confidence," said Chapman. "We also need to go out and compete every night."

Bliss Bears

1996-97 record: 6-12

Coach: Diana Butler, 13th year after a two-year rest, assisted by Carol Wood.
Key returners: Senior Jeremy Couch, 5-5 wing, averaged five points per game; senior Heather Huffman, 5-5 point guard, led the Bears in scoring, averaging 15 points per game; senior Amber LaFory, post/wing, averaged eight points per game; and junior Jenni Sawyer, 5-3 wing.
Other players: Junior Ann Gough, 5-10 post; sophomore Rachel Fawcett, 5-10 post; and sophomore Marcel Victor, 5-3 point guard.
Outlook: The Bears not only possess a good attitude, but they should be powerful in the paint.

"We will be concerned with the depth of our team, speed, and shooting percentage," said Butler.

Camas County Mustangs

1996-97 record: 1-15

Coach: Matt Croner, 1st year
Key returners: Senior Michelle Croner, 5-9 post, averaged seven points; senior Molly Lee, 5-2 guard; senior Trishan Smith, 5-6 post; and junior Stephanie Gill, 5-3 guard/forward.

Other players: Senior Christy Jones, 5-6 junior; Julia Bennett, 6-5 junior; Kandice Cansy, 5-6 junior; Barbara Geig, 5-2 junior; Mandi Meneueva, 5-10 sophomore; Maggie Bennett, 5-6, and sophomore Angie Prudgme, 5-4.

Outlook: The Mustangs proved they could be competitive this fall when they claimed the No. 2 spot in the conference in volleyball. Now they must prove they are a viable contender in basketball.

Carey Panthers

1996-97 record: 14-7

Coach: Chuck Simpson, 4th year
Key returners: Junior Kelly Cook, 5-5 wing/guard, averaged four points; sophomore Kristy Barton, 5-8 center/post/guard, averaged four points; sophomore Rachael Peck, 5-7 center/post/guard, averaged six points; and sophomore Jenny Royal, wing/guard, who averaged five points.

Other players: Senior Sami Alley, guard/forward; junior Lindsey Burton, 5-5 guard/forward; junior Sheila Simmons, post/forward; freshman Jesse Ratke, guard/ward; and freshman Dawn Simmons, guard/forward.

Outlook: Carey returns no regular starters but the Panthers do return four girls that started last year. The Panthers also gain the experience of Sami Alley, who started on her former high school team.

"We are a young team," said Simpson. "We will need to work on being able to play with confidence and reading each other."

The Panthers are looking to have a strong defense aided with their foot speed and their ability to shoot the ball.

ISDB Raptors

1996-97 record: 0-17

Coach: Steve Robertson/Beth Price
Key returners: Ledia Balls, Marcia Harrison, and Ida Willing. Balls, a senior, averaged 6.6 points per game last season at the forward position. Harrison, also a senior this year, averaged 11 p.p.g. as a forward. Willing, a junior, averaged 4.9 p.p.g. at the guard position.

Other players: Kristy Bowles, a guard; Jenna White, forward; and Mavis Irwin, at guard.

Outlook: The Raptors will try to build on their rebounding strength from last season. But may have to do with little depth. ISDB lists only six players on the roster.

Note: The following team is classified as an A-4 school and will compete in the Northside Conference but will play only junior varsity teams and will not be eligible for post-season play.

The NFL's sweet six doesn't include Cowboys

By Dave Goldberg
The Associated Press

It's a typical Jerry Jones highlight. "We have a chance to win a storybook season," he said after his Cowboys beat the Cardinals (the Cardinals?) on Sunday.

Storybook, perhaps, but not with the ending Jerry prefers.

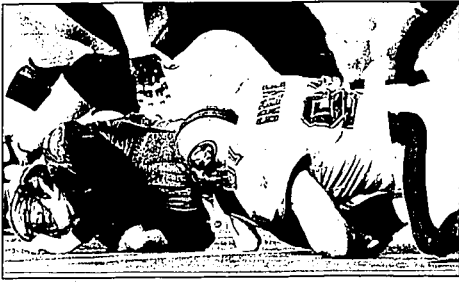

For as the NFL's stretch run begins after the 10-game Indianapolis season, there are perhaps six teams that have a shot at winning the Super Bowl. And the Cowboys are not among them.

It's really a short list, a top three of Denver, San Francisco and Green Bay (any order you want) and dark horses Pittsburgh, Jacksonville and Minnesota.

The others, like the Cowboys? First or second-round playoff material at best.

And say hello to Indianapolis, a team with a real shot of going 0-16, particularly now that the Colts are down to Kevin Ruggins, a fourth-stringer who will become a fifth-stringer when Peyton Manning arrives next summer. It's that a sign of relief from the Manning family when the Saints, who turned pupa-Archie into a punching bag, won their third game last weekend and probably eliminated themselves?

San Francisco's Kevin Greene sacks Philadelphia quarterback Ty Detmer during Monday's game in Philadelphia. The 49ers are among the class of the NFC.

NFC
San Francisco (9-1) can and probably will clinch the NFC West against Carolina at home next week. "Then we want home field for the playoffs," says Dana Stubblefield, one of several dominant players on what's probably the league's best defense. The last four games are the toughest — at Kansas City, Minnesota, Denver and at Seattle — but 13-3 probably does it.

Add to the playoffs Green Bay and Minnesota, both 8-2. They meet Dec. 1 at the Metrodome, where Mike Holmgren is 0-5 as a head coach. Tampa Bay (7-3) should make it, along with two of the three teams competing for the AFC East title. The Cowboys are 5-5, one game behind the Giants and Redskins.

Yes, the Cowboys will be underdogs only once in their last six games, in two weeks at Green Bay. But they always have trouble with Norm Turner's Redskins, who come to town Sunday, and they could also lose any of the other three home games — Tennessee, Carolina and the Giants.

Their 2-4 division record bodes poorly in tiebreakers.

It's simple: they're not a dominant team, although the defense is close, and they don't play in the NFC West, where the schedule gave San Francisco half a season to work out its kinks. Yes, they could make the playoffs, but picture them playing at Minnesota, San Francisco or Green Bay in January.

Jerry's storybook ending won't happen. But Seiter will probably retire or be retired, and someone who can work with coach Jones (not George Seifert, as was rumored Tuesday) will arrive to coach an aging team that desperately needs help on the offensive line.

AFC
Denver (9-1) will just about wrap up the West if it beats Kansas City (7-3) this weekend. In fact, the Chiefs, without Elvis Grubik, could have a problem making the playoffs. They go to Seattle the following week and then have the 49ers, meaning they could be looking for four straight losses.

Seattle (6-4) should be a wild card. It's got New Orleans, Baltimore, Atlanta and Oakland (combined record 12-28) among its six games.

Then take Pittsburgh and Jacksonville (both 7-3) and assume the Dolphins, Patriots (all 5-7) have a shot. The Patriots are 4-1 in the division and hold the tiebreaker edge; the Jets, 2-4, don't.

That's eight teams for six spots in the conference.

And the Super Bowl?

Denver's likely to have home field advantage in the playoffs. Having learned their lesson last year, it's hard to see the Broncos at Mile High as long as John Elway and Terrell Davis stay healthy.

The NFC representative could depend on where the title game is played.

If the Packers' problem is getting by Minnesota.

If the game's in Green Bay, the Pack probably goes back. But in San Francisco or Minnesota — HELL!

Spaniard hands Sampras early setback

ATP format gives No. 1 player another shot; Rafter next

HANOVER, Germany (AP) — The opening match of the ATP Tour World Championship on Tuesday featured Pete Sampras, the defending champion and world's No. 1, against the youngest newcomer. Except, it was Sampras who played like the novice and Carlos Moya who looked like the veteran.

Sampras, seeking his fourth title in the elite season-ending event, made a staggering total of 50 unforced errors and lost to the 21-year-old Spaniard 6-3, 6-7 (4-7), 6-2. "It was a tough day," Sampras said. "It's not the start I wanted, but I'm not out of it."

Pete Sampras serves to Carlos Moya of Spain during the first game of their match Tuesday in the ATP World Tour Championship in Hanover, Germany.

Moya's victory gave him a measure of revenge for the loss to Sampras in the Australian Open final early this year. "I didn't make any stupid mistakes as he had to fight for every point. I was very motivated," Moya said.

Because of the round-robin format of the preliminary round, Sampras is still scheduled to face tough matches against Patrick Rafter and Greg Rusedzki, who are both ranked higher than No. 7 Moya.

In a battle between two stars of 1997 and newcomers to the event, Rafter beat the big-serving Rusedzki 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. Rafter, ranked No. 3 in the world, also beat Rusedzki to win the U.S. Open, his first Grand Slam title.

In the other group, Michael Chang, No. 2 in the world, survived four set points in the first round to beat Sergi Bruguera 7-6 (10-8), 6-2. The $3.3-million tournament brings together the top eight players in the world, split into two groups. The top two from each group advance to the semi-finals.

Sampras, playing for his eighth championship of the year, will meet Rusedzki today, while Rafter battles Moya, Jonas Bjorkman and Yevgeny Kafelnikov in the other group.

Moya had also beaten Sampras in practice Monday. "I realized that he wasn't playing very well, that the court was slow and that I had a chance."

The Spaniard made full advantage of the slow, hard court, installed after several players complained that last year's carpet surface was too fast.

Although he won last year,

Sampras was one of the complainers. He may have had a few regrets Tuesday. "The conditions are very, very slow. It's tough to finish points," Sampras said. "It's not easy to serve and volley. The balls get chewed up, they bounce high and slow and it gives him more time to set up his shots."

Spirlea gets revenge on Williams

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP) — Venus Williams dethroned her first rematch with Irina Spirlea since their collision at the US Open. But, then again, she lost this time. Spirlea was more direct. "I was looking forward to it," Spirlea said after punching the air twice after avenging her U.S. Open semifinal defeat to Williams with a win in the first round of the Advanta Championships Tuesday night. "It was revenge after the U.S. Open."

Their hard-fought match at the Open Sept. 5 was punctuated by a collision as the two made the changeover in the second set. Later, Spirlea used an expletive when referring to Williams and was fined $5,000 for it.

In a subsequent interview, Spirlea and coach, said there was a racial motivation behind the confrontation — Williams is black in a sport populated mainly by whites — and called Spirlea "a big, tall white turkey."

While Williams seemed weary of discussing the incident, Spirlea, of Romania, said she didn't mind the publicity it brought her. "At least they know me," she said.

Williams, of Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., thinks the confrontation will help her for at least another year or two. "Everybody is going to keep bringing me back on a shuttle to the past," she said. "That's the way it is."

Spirlea dominated in a 6-3, 6-2 triumph that took 61 minutes. She attacked the net smartly and used a powerful forehand to keep Williams off-balance. "I was passing better (than in the Open)," said Spirlea, ranked eighth in the world and the tournament's seventh seed. "I was not staying too far back. I tried to get to the ball earlier."

Washington general manager George McPhee said Simon was "embarrassed and disappointed in himself... and most importantly, contrite."

Aborigine champion rejects urging to boycott Olympics

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Cathy Freeman draws strength from her Aboriginal roots. The champion runner, however, refuses to boycott an Olympics in her home country.

In a letter to the Nyngah Circle of Elders from Western Australia has targeted Freeman and asked her to boycott the 2000 Sydney games to help Aboriginals in their dispute with Australia's government over land rights.

"Cathy Freeman, we ask you not to run. Stand and mourn with us," the letter said.

The approach was rejected by Freeman's manager and former boyfriend Nick Bideau and has surprised other members of the Aboriginal movement.

"We love her we want to see her run — she's Australia's golden girl," said leading Aboriginal spokesman Terry O'Shane. "We totally reject the suggestion of a boycott of the Olympics."

Bideau said Freeman, the world champion at 400 meters and Australia's premier athlete, would be dragged into the land rights debate.

"These people have tried to use her fame for their own good," Bideau said.

Relations between Aborigines and the Australian government are at a low, with the two sides exchanging barbs on the eve of a parliamentary debate on laws that will severely restrict Aborigines' land rights.

Freeman first won the hearts of her compatriots as a shy 16-year-old when she was part of the Australian 4 x 100 meter team that captured the Commonwealth Games gold medal in New Zealand in 1990. At the time, she deferred commenting on the Aborigines.

Four years later Freeman won the 400- and 200-meter gold medals at the Commonwealth Games in Canada. She did victory laps carrying the Australian and Aboriginal flags, the latter a yellow circle on a red and black background. Yellow for the sun, red for the earth, black for the skin.

The move brought condemnation from chief de mission Arthur Tunstall but few others, and was credited with doing much for uniting white Australia with Aborigines.

NHL suspends, fines Caps player for racial comment

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Simon's racial slur will cost the Washington Capitals' forward $36,585 in salary after he was suspended for three games by the NHL on Tuesday.

Simon directed the remark at Mike Grier of the Edmonton Oilers, one of six black players in the league, at the episode of Saturday night's game. He apologized to Grier for the episode Monday night and again Tuesday following a hearing with NHL vice president Brian Burke.

Simon missed Sunday's game pending the hearing and will sit out Washington's games at Pittsburgh today and at Buffalo on Thursday. His $1 million salary "pays him $12,195 per game."

Simon, a member of the Ojibwa Indian tribe, flew to Toronto to meet Grier Monday night. The two talked for about five minutes.

"Chris was really struggling with what he said," Grier said. "He said I'm sorry and I believe him, he had a very sincere look in his eye. It takes a stand-up person to come up here and handle it the way he did. I accept his apology."

Rose Bowl to offer limited number of tickets

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A limited number of tickets to the Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day will be available to Pasadena residents and the general public briefly next month.

The Pasadena Tournament of Roses Association announced Tuesday that 500 tickets will go on sale at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium box office at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 6.

Each purchaser will be required to provide photo identification proving residence in Pasadena, and be allowed to buy two end zone tickets at face value of $75 each.

Two days later, at 4 p.m., 1,000 tickets will go on sale nationwide by telephone only through TicketMaster.

U.S. Ryder Cup chief gets a feel for course

Crenshaw takes early walk around Valderrama

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Tom Kite thinks the United States lost the Ryder Cup because the team wasn't familiar enough with the Valderrama course. His successor isn't about to let that happen again.

"Nothing matters at all except getting the feel for this course for those few days," U.S. captain Ben Crenshaw said after a 1 1/2-hour walking tour of The Country Club on Tuesday — nearly two years before the course will play host to the 33rd Ryder Cup.

"Two players felt that they didn't need any more practice rounds in Spain, which I thought was a little surprising. I'm still going to encourage them to play," Crenshaw said. "Why not? We're here in this side of the water this year. I'd like anybody to learn these greens in three days. I tell you what — You learn something every time you go out there."

and rugged. It asks for so many shots," Crenshaw said. "It was a nice surprise. I've been here essentially the same as the (1988) U.S. Open."

Inside, among the equestrian prints and antique mirrors, Crenshaw told stories about his previous trips here — the first time as a 16-year-old junior — and repeated anecdotes shared with him by previous Ryder Cup captains.

Ben Crenshaw, named as captain in October in what was a mild surprise to those expecting a more fiery leader to take back the Cup, Crenshaw plans to plot a coaching strategy somewhere between his analytical predecessor and omnipresent European captain Seve Ballesteros. Already, Crenshaw has begun talking to potential players and picking the brains of previous captains.

"It's very much on their (the players') minds and will continue to be," he said. "I wouldn't go so far as to say they're feeling like they're in a box. But they know how painful the last two were."

"They're going to be very adamant this time, and they don't need me or anyone else to give them (motivation). They know what they have to do... They've proved all over the world that they can play in difficult conditions. But somehow they've got to get the job done."

At a long table dotted with silver trophies, with two-faced waiters bringing a New England-favored meal — open-faced tenderloin sandwiches on popovers, and a cranberry walnut vinaigrette salad garnished with a small pumpkin — Crenshaw spoke glowingly of the history of the site and city. Along with his wife, Julie, they have scouted out a lunch headquarters, evidently settling on something in downtown Boston, to allow the team to get a feed for the city.

"Gentle Ben" also said he wanted to restore some of the camaraderie that had been a tradition of the tournament — the farewell dinner, for one thing. And he's open to any suggestions that would pull his team together in the way that Europeans bonded at Valderrama.

"I'm going to do all I can to promote togetherness in any way. I think it helps," he said.

— Ben Crenshaw

QUESTIONS

Continued from D5. Is that why salaries are secret — so women won't find out how underpaid compared to men?

Comment: Companies' keep salaries secret and usually forbid people to talk about them because they're underpaid compared to men.

You're lucky to have a friend who tells you such important information — I hear from many grateful women whose male colleagues tell them the truth about their pay, but by generally you have to find out on the outside. That means through professional organizations, networking, people who work at other companies and from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Many companies have job classifications with salary ranges, but usually they're so broad that they don't tell you much. Your question reminds me of something an economist told me long ago.

She said: "It doesn't help to know the salary of the women you work with. Find out what the men are making."

Wall street

Continued from D5. wave of global financial turmoil by draining more investment capital from foreign markets.

U.S. stocks were largely calm after Tuesday's worries about the unresolved situation overseas continued to plague U.S. stocks. The Dow's biggest mover was Eastman Kodak, which slid after announcing plans to cut 10,000 jobs, but the blue-chip barometer was also held back by Caterpillar and General Motors, both of which dropped on worries about how Brazil's economic woes may hurt those businesses.

Kodak, whose shares had rallied in recent days in anticipation of a major restructuring announcement, fell 1 1/16 to 62 3/16 when many traders said they had expected even greater retracements.

Caterpillar's shares were dragged by Oppenheimer, fell 1 1/2 to 48 3/16, and GM fell 1 1/16 to 63 5/8.

Looking to the U.N. for backing

U.S. optimistic for foreign council support of resolution against Iraq

The Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — Declaring that Iraqi defiance has reunited the Gulf War coalition, U.S. and British diplomats asked the Security Council Tuesday to slap a travel ban on Iraq and warn of "further measures" unless it cooperates with U.N. arms inspectors.

But the resolution did not include the threat of military force should Iraq continue refusing to cooperate. The council in hopes a vote could be taken Wednesday.

The resolution would ban Iraqi officials who interfere with U.N. inspectors from traveling abroad, condemn Iraq for its expulsion of American inspectors and suspend further reviews of economic sanctions until the inspectors certify that Baghdad is cooperating.

U.S. Ambassador Bill Richardson said he was optimistic for a 15-0 vote.

"The coalition has reunited itself because of Iraqi behavior," Richardson said. "We believe that there's strong unanimity and consensus on the council that Iraq's behavior has been unacceptable."

Richardson admitted there were "some wrinkles" that needed to be worked out with the French and Russians. He did not elaborate.

But council diplomats said the French raised questions about the timetable for reviewing the state of Iraq compliance.

Threats of force were deleted from the resolution in hopes of winning support from Russia, France, China and other nations anxious to resume lucrative trade links with Iraq once sanctions are lifted.

Iraq's deputy prime minister, Tariq Aziz, accused the United States of stirring up the crisis by using the U.N. weapons inspection team for espionage. He said Iraq wanted the opportunity to present its case directly to the Security Council.

U.S. and British diplomats said they were willing to accept a weaker resolution in hopes of winning council unanimity. Iraq issued its expulsion order after five members — France, Russia, China, Egypt and Kenya — abstained on a resolution last month threatening a travel ban.

U.S. and British diplomats believe Iraq President Saddam Hussein saw the abstentions as a sign of divisions on the council and sought to exploit them by moving against the American inspectors.

Iraq's deputy prime minister, Tariq Aziz, admitted Tuesday that his efforts to fend off council action had failed. Aziz flew to New York on Monday to press Iraq's demand that the United Nations agree to reduce the percentage of Americans on the inspection team, stop U.S.-manned U-2 spy flights and provide a timetable for the end of sanctions.

Cohen cancels trip with Iraqi showdown looming

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Signaling a possible showdown with Saddam Hussein, Defense Secretary William Cohen said Tuesday he and the nation's top general canceled trips to Asia to be available to advise President Clinton on "any kind of contingency."

Of U.S. weapons inspectors, Clinton said Tuesday. "They must get back to work and the international community must demand it."

And at the United Nations, the United States was rounding up support for a resolution that to warn Iraq of "further measures" beyond restrictions on Iraqi officials' foreign travel.

Secretary of State Madeleine Albright conferred again with Russian Foreign Minister Yevgeny Primakov and was accused of Moscow's support in a "graduated approach" toward Iraq, said a senior U.S. official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Clinton in a Veterans' Day speech at Arlington National Cemetery, called Saddam's persistent interference with U.S. surveillance unacceptable. "I want every single American to understand what is at stake here," the president said.

Asked if U.S. approval would be needed for military strikes, Cohen said, "I think there is inherent authority under existing United Nations authority to carry out such strikes, should it be necessary."

"I postponed the trip at the request of President Clinton, who wanted his national security team to be available to consult with should any sort of military action be necessary in the future," Cohen said on ABC's "Good Morning America." "We're hoping to see a diplomatic resolution of this, but we have to be prepared for any kind of contingency."

Saddam's decision not to interfere with renewed U.S. surveillance flights on Monday did not dampen U.S. resolve to punish him for banning U.S. weapons inspectors. Clinton administration officials said on-site inspections were essential to verify whether Iraq was hiding illicit weaponry.

No fast track legislation makes Clinton a lame duck

By Robert A. Rankin Knight-Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's failure to win the trade bill he sought so desperately signals he may now be a lame duck in terms of congressional power, even though there are three years left in his term.

Clinton suffered his worst political setback since 1994 early Monday when the House of Representatives refused to grant him "fast-track" power to cut trade deals abroad.

"After days of twisting arms and seeking deals to turn votes their way, Clinton and House Speaker Newt Gingrich agreed to pull the measure off the floor about 1 a.m. to avoid certain defeat, but the result is still failure."

"It's very clear on this issue that he has no power," said Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, referring to Clinton.

Was Democrats who dealt Clinton his defeat, his biggest since the rejection of his health-reform plan in 1994. About 160 of the 228 House Republicans were ready to vote for him, but only some 40 Democrats out of 205 — fewer than one in five — said they would back their president on this high-profile test, which he defined as central to his economic strategy and, indeed, to his legacy as president.

Larry Craig Bill Clinton

Analysis

his own party of the first Democrat to win re-election as president in 50 years — and it comes, only one year after his triumph, on a question he framed as his biggest priority before Congress this fall.

The measure in question proposed to give Clinton authority to negotiate trade deals abroad on a so-called "fast track." Under that process, a trade deal is sped to Congress for straight yes-or-no votes, with lawmakers prohibited from changing its terms. It's a power every president since Gerald Ford has enjoyed.

Clinton said Monday he will try again next year, but few believe he stands any realistic chance of winning then what he was unable to win this fall.

"It sounds good, but a lot of members think it would happen.

We've never had a trade vote in modern history in an election year, and I don't think we're going to see it now," said Edie Wilson, director of fast-track lobbying at the Democratic Leadership Council, the centrist group that provides Clinton's ideological base.

Clinton's rejection exposes an apparently unbridgeable gulf between the relative handful of moderate "New Democrats" who follow Clinton's lead and the much larger majority of liberal "Old Democrats" who frequently do not. That raises large questions about who will lead the party in the future and what it will stand for.

House Democratic Whip John Lewis of Georgia said the lesson for Clinton is plain: "He can come back and meet with our leadership and try to change this bill more to our liking." That, of course, would cost Clinton GOP votes he also needs.

Reminded that Clinton insists untrammeled fast-track authority is central to his economic strategy, Lewis replied, "But it is also about the Democratic caucus values. There are certain fundamental values we are not prepared to give up on. We want him to come home."

The House shutdown was an equally stunning triumph for Big Labor, which led opposition to the trade measure. After losing almost every test of strength in American life for two decades, here Big Labor beat an all-out campaign waged jointly by Clinton, House Speaker Newt Gingrich and legions of Big Business lobbyists in a House run by Republicans.

The importance this measure held for Clinton is hard to overstate; in a "Meet the Press" interview broadcast Sunday, he said he believes his primary legacy as president will be defined by how "Old Democrats" who frequently do not. "I think that's what I'll be judged on," Clinton said.

For weeks Clinton has argued fast-track authority is essential for him to break open foreign markets and increase U.S. exports, which he credits as one-third of his economic strategy, along with ending the federal deficit and investing in human needs. He vowed Thursday he was "pulling out the stops" to persuade the House to grant him the power and engaged in frantic deal-making trying to turn votes his way.

House rejection of fast-track authority does not stop America from trading; indeed, Clinton let the authority lapse in 1994, but U.S. exports have boomed ever since. Independent experts say this negotiating power is not crucial to America's short-term economic health.

"It's worth doing, but by itself (the economic) effect is marginal," said Lawrence Chimerine, managing director of the Economic Strategy Institute, a trade think tank here.

Still, the defeat could hurt Clinton politically, abroad as well as at home. One of his top priorities for the next year is to push to expand trade, and this loss can only embarrass him in his travels. He goes to Vancouver, Canada, later this month to attend a meeting of the Asian Pacific Economic Conference and next April plans to attend a Summit of the Americas in Santiago, Chile, where trade expansion is the main topic.

"I think this will be a huge blow for him internationally," said Rep. Robert Blunt, D-Calif., who led House efforts to round up Democratic votes for fast track.

The political consequences at home appear even larger. "This means the Democratic Party starts off the 1998 election cycle not only in financial disarray but in ideological disarray. It means they will have injured their own Democratic president with three years left to go in his term," said the D.C. Wilson.

The president's power in the GOP-majority Congress was already quite limited. For example, the Senate is refusing to approve his nominees for Surgeon General and the top civil rights post in the Justice Department because both favor Clinton policies that Republicans dislike.

The traditional argument presidents should be permitted to staff their administrations with qualified nominees of their choice is being ignored, a telling sign of disrespect for Clinton in the Senate.

"His loss on fast-track leaves Clinton clearly wounded, but he's not necessarily lame in Congress yet, said one respected analyst. "Absolutely it's a setback, but he's lost before," said Tom Mann, director of governmental studies at the Brookings Institution, a centrist think tank here. "I think he goes issue by issue. He goes on doing what he's done in the past. It will raise real questions about succession in the Democratic Party though, about who's going to define where the Democratic Party is."

This fight clearly elevated the stature of House Minority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., who led Democratic opposition to the measure. He is expected to contest the Democratic presidential nomination in 2000 against Vice President Al Gore.

"This may be the first round of a Democratic presidential primary. It sounds like Gephardt's winning," said Sen. Craig.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Hobby Wulff

"The man who suspects his own cunningness is yet to be born."

"What was your result on board 13?" asked the club bore. "I got doubled in four hearts and scored 790 points," he gushed. "I'll bet you didn't beat that."

"They wouldn't let us play the hand," replied his fellow duplicate buff. "But we did manage to get him for 800 points at four spades doubled."

Against the bore's doubled heart game, West led a spade to East's king, and East returned a trump. South won his ace, ruffed his spade queen in dummy, and led another trump to his king. Having lost two spades, and with two trump losers yet to come, South took the club finesse. Fortunately, the finesse won and South cashed his minor suit for 810. Lumbering back, he led two trump tricks to West.

"How did you manage to beat them three tricks at four spades?" challenged the club bore. "Surely, he misplayed the hand."

"He didn't," was the deflating reply. "We just made sure we took all our tricks."

After the same bidding, with West sacrificing at three hearts, and East declaring, South led his diamond deuce to North's king. North returned the heart six to South's king and the automatic club shift netted two tricks. North then cashed his diamond ace and led a third diamond. South's trump queen was more than dummy could handle, and the vulnerable sacrifice laid an egg.

The club bore left abruptly, looking for another player who could impress with his result.

Bridge score table with columns for NORTH, WEST, SOUTH, EAST and various card suits (S, H, D, C).

Vulnerable: Both Dealer: North

The bidding: North East South West 4♥ 3♣ 4♦ 4♠

Pass Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Spade-7

Hand with THE ACES: South holds: ♠ A K 10 8 6 ♥ 5 ♦ 10 6 5 4 ♣ A 4

North South: ♠ 10 9 8 7 ♥ 4 3 2 ♦ 2 ♣ 10 8 7 6 5 4 3 2

ANSWER: Two spades. Do not bid three diamonds. That would be a forcing bid and would surely lead to trouble.
