Bigger and better

Builders say that's the trend among new homes

By Pat Marcantonio
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Sounds of construction resonated through the new house. A nail gun made fast "zip" noises as one worker completed a closet. A saw hummed in what was to be the front room. Outside, rock music accompanied the crew installing the siding.

"This is our best seller," said Contractor John Devine of Twin Falls, of the 1,500-square-foot house with its vaulted ceiling, pantry and other amenities. Locally and nationally, new homes are being built bigger and better, builders say.

Vaulted ceilings, three bedrooms and at least 1,500 square feet of living space are usually the minimum requirements for houses designed and built by Twin Falls developer John Devine and his partner. This fits into a growing trend, as buyers are seeking larger homes.

In 1973, it wasn't unusual for new homes to be under 1,000 square feet, says.

Builder's star falls

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - In the early 1990s, Star Quality Homes seemed like a corner in the Magic Valley building business.

By 1992, the company was busy building houses in the southern part of Twin Falls and at least 25 more in the Altimor area.

But now David F. Fox and his defunct Twin Falls company are the subject of trustee sales to collect more than $380,000 in debts. Almost a half dozen court actions were filed last year, seeking payment on bills.

Fox could not be located for comment and is believed to have left the area.

About five properties owned by Fox in various subdivisions will be sold in March to meet obligations from failure to maintain hazard insurance, for abandoned work sites, interest payments, numerous liens for services and materials supplied to the work sites and judgments, notices of trustee sales said.

Meanwhile in 6th District Court in Twin Falls County, companies that performed work for or sold materials to Fox filed legal action last year. They included:

- JM Kitchens was awarded a default judgment of $46,598 in September. JM Kitchens had performed kitchen cabinets on nine houses in 1996 and 1997, but was not paid, the lawsuit said. JM Kitchens was subcontractor in many houses that Star Quality built, said Jodi Rolig, JM Kitchens' attorney.
- Anderson Lumber was awarded a default judgment of $21,285 in August after Fox failed to pay for materials.
- Defaulters were awarded after Fox failed to respond to the claim about records said.
- Miller Concrete and Excavation sued Fox in September for alleged failure to pay more than $23,000 for concrete work.
- Metcalf Electric filed a lawsuit for damages and foreclosure in November. The company claims it is owed $6,209 for work on four houses.
- Columbia Plaster Co. filed a claim in July against Fox seeking payment of $2,892 for goods and materials.

Politics, history put abortion in spotlight

Emotions will run high during coming session

The Associated Press

BOISE - Campaigns for Congress and to rewrite history have thrust the abortion debate back on the Idaho Legislature, a body still wary but even more Republican than during the historic, divisive 1990 session.

The Idaho Christian Coalition, Idaho Family Forum and Right to Life of Idaho are more hopeful than ever that an election year, legal battle and a renewed national emphasis will help pass anti-abortion proposals.

And with generally moderate House Speaker Michael Simpson less likely to stand in the way as he runs for Idaho's 2nd District congressional seat, they might get their way.

"The atmosphere probably is a little bit more favorable," said Pat Benson of Nampa, president of Right to Life of Idaho. "Part of it is more of the legislators are aware or are becoming aware of the fact that the pro-life issue is not a negative at the polls."

Experience indicates otherwise. But even Mary Kelly

Related issues due for debate

Here are some of the abortion-related issues expected to be debated during the session of the Idaho Legislature that commences Monday:

- Partial-birth abortion: A new, late-term procedure involving partial delivery of a fetus through the birth canal, followed by draining of the skull. Congress has twice voted to ban it, only to see both measures vetoed by President Clinton. None of the 970 Idaho abortions reported in 1995 or the 1,022 reported in 1996 were partial-birth, and only 12 during those two years were conducted after the 20th week of pregnancy, according to the State Bureau of Vital Statistics.
- Parental consent: Existing Idaho law requires only that parents of unmarried patients under 18 be notified "if possible" at least 24 hours before an abortion is performed. Anti-abortion activists want a tougher statute, in most cases requiring written parental consent.
- Reporting requirements: Pro-choice and anti-abortion activists disagree on whether physicians are required to report abortions in Idaho, and on the enforceability of what reporting provisions are on the books.
- Physician violations, fines: Proposed legislation would impose misdemeanor criminal penalties on doctors who violate requirements that they provide any patient seeking an abortion with information about fetal development, abortion procedures and risks, and services available to assist pregnant women and mothers. Physicians also would be required to submit a tissue sample to a pathologist from any abortion performed in the 20th week of preg-

Record balloon flight ends abruptly, painfully for crew

The Associated Press

YESO, N.M. - Two balloonists parachuted into a cactus-studded pasture Friday after a tear doomed their round-the-world quest just an hour after launch.

The pilotless balloon, laden with explosive fuel, floated east for about eight hours before landing in Texas.

Dick Rutan and Dave Melton, hoping to become the first to fly nonstop around the world in a balloon, parachuted in 45 mph winds Friday morning. They landed a quarter-mile apart about 13 miles southeast of the town of Vaughn.

Rutan, 59, hit cactus and suffered bloody puncture wounds all over his nose and cheeks. He was still pulling engine needles from his face hours later.

Melton, 39, hit the only air-fence in the wide-open area, and later was hospitalized in serious condition with a dislocated hip and ankle.

"He was curled up on the ground. He was in pain," said Vaughn Police Chief J.R. Romo, who saw the pair parachute. "He cussed us out, saying it hurt."

The flight was going fine until "all of a sudden there was this boom," Rutan said at a news conference. "Dave looked at me and said 'We're in trouble.'"

Rutan said they considered trying to land, but surface winds were too strong.

"We were airborne in something that was highly suspect, heavily laden with fuel and Dave and I came to the realization we have to abandon this thing," he said.

The Federal Aviation Administration had ordered all aircraft to stay clear of the 170-foot unmaneuvered balloon, which had drifted up draped over some trees near Gainesville, about 45 miles north of Dallas.

Before coming to a stop, the balloon touched down and sparked a small fire, which was extinguished. It was unclear if the fire was caused by a propane tank failure.

Earlier Friday, the North American Air-Defense Command sent up chase planes to keep watch on the balloon.

A rip in the helium-filled inner balloon was reported at 7:28 a.m. Friday, about an hour after the crew lifted off from Albuquerque.

The men parachuted out of the silver vessel's ball-shaped capsule around 9 a.m., just 100 miles into their journey.

Rutan said they opened a gas valve before parachuting.

Pilot Dave Melton is loaded aboard a medical helicopter for flight to a hospital after sustaining hip and leg injuries when he bailed out of a crippled balloon near Vaughn, N.M.

After 19 years, transplant restores voice

CLEVELAND (AP) — A man who lost his voice in a motorcycle accident 19 years ago has regained "Hello" and "Hi Mom" three days after the first larynx transplant since 1979.

The surgery, last performed in 1969 in Belgium, is causing some controversy in the medical community over the use of the benefit of transplanting a non-vital organ.

Batt backs higher truck weight limits

POCATELLO (AP) — Gov. Phil Batt said he will discuss with Union Pacific Railroad's handling of freight shipments last year that he plans to back a boost in truck weight limits on Idaho's highways. Batt intends to address the issue Monday in his State of the State address to the Legislature. "It's true the governor will look at changes or some flexibility for the trucking industry," said Lindsay Northern, Batt's press secretary. "It's a definite outgrowth of what happened with Union Pacific. He decided Idaho cannot be held hostage by one mode of transportation, being the railroad."

Northern described the governor's meeting with Union Pacific Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Richard Davidson in November as "kind of harsh." Davidson admitted that he had not made good on his promise that Idaho's rail service would stay the same or improve after Union Pacific's merger with Southern Pacific Railroad in 1996. Based on that promise, Batt endorsed the merger.

Batt said he felt he was misled about the merger's impact on Idaho. "Commodity groups, particularly sugar producers, complained about a lack of freight cars to move their products."

"You may see the governor take a more supportive role in making the trucking industry more competitive," Northern said. "The situation has not improved. There are still some people really hurting, primarily agriculture," he said. Northern said powerful railroad lobbyists have blocked past attempts to raise truck weight limits. Freshman Rep. Kent Kuzat, R-Pocatello, who sits on the House Transportation Committee, plans to resist raising truck weight limits if legislation is introduced.

Kuzat is a Union Pacific locomotive engineer. He said he differs with Batt over what he calls an important public safety issue. The maximum gross weight for trucks plying Idaho's highways is 105,500 pounds. The Transportation Board recently put off whether to raise it to 118,000 pounds in a pilot program.

The trucking industry wants the limit raised to 120,000 pounds. Kuzat said almost every state east of the Mississippi River and California have an 80,000-pound limit. "My reaction is there's no real reason or call to raise truck rates right now," he said. "Many of the dire predictions we were hearing last year as for us crops not moved and shippers not serviced and Christmas presents late did not occur."

Paul Sudmeier, head of the Idaho Motor Transport Association, said the higher truck weights proposed for Idaho already exist in Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and Canada.

"The fact of the matter is an Idaho grower can't get his products to market without shipping them through one of the competitive producing areas," Sudmeier said.

Baby's body found

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A teenage mother was charged with second-degree murder Friday in the death of her infant son, whose body was found in a dumpster. Abby Rhoades, 19, had been under police questioning since the infant was discovered on Thursday by a man looking for aluminum cans in the dumpster. Police Chief Kent Lyvsek said the child was placed in the refuse container on a wet towel.

Clinics battle for patients in old mining area

IDAHO CITY (AP) — In doctor's offices in Idaho City, a town that has not had a medical clinic since the Gold Rush suddenly has two.

It's creating an unlikely scenario: a fight to the death for patients in the old mining town, who used to have to drive 40 miles to Boise to see a health-care provider.

At the Basin Community Health Center, nurse-practitioner Lynn Kuwahara has the welcome mat out. "If you walk in, I will see you," she said. "If you make an appointment, you will have first choice." After hours, clinic's calls are automatically transferred to her home.

"I am very entrepreneurial," she said. "I am very willing to work for my investment, and the community knows that."

A few blocks away, physician's offices are also working in overdrive. He recently was in his office from 1 a.m. to 3 a.m. helping a woman through a severe asthma attack.

"The sheriff has my home phone number, and in an emergency, they don't hesitate to call me," he said. Before the clinics opened, within a week of each other this past summer, patients drove to Boise or Garden Valley. The dueling clinics have polarized the community, to some degree.

Neither McCready nor Kuwahara is a physician. However, they are trained to treat most of the conditions handled by family doctors.

McCready's practice is in a mobile home now, but he envisions a $197,000 East Boise County Family Health Center on the site by next summer. For the past decade, community-and-sit-roning villages, home to about 1,800 people, have two clinics is a tale of politics.

"For the past decade, community leaders planned for a non-profit clinic, to be funded through public and private grant money, we are many such clinics in rural Idaho."

Kuwahara, once on the board of directors for the clinic, wanted to work in it, too.

Partly because of "personality conflicts," that did not work, said Joe Weiss, of Pincerville, president of the board for McCready's clinic. So, Kuwahara started her own, for-profit clinic.

The two clinics are a luxury for patients, however. "This is so nice," said Kat Hileman, 20, of Centerville, in her 35th week of pregnancy. "I work up the road, so I can just drive down here. It has to be a drive to Boise, especially in this," she said, glancing at heavy-falling snow outside.

Court denies new trial to convicted kidnapper

BOISE (AP) — A divided Idaho Supreme Court has refused to give a man convicted of kidnapping and rape a new trial, although the state justice contends the case should go back to district court.

The court on Friday voted 4-1 to reverse 7th District Judge Brent Moss. He ordered a new trial for Michael D. Whiteley, who in 1991 was convicted of kidnapping and rape and sentenced to 32 1/2 years in prison.

In other decisions released Friday, the Supreme Court upheld the zoning, annexation and subdivision plat approval for the Hobbie Creek subdivision in northwest Boise. Two property owners and the city of Eagle challenged rezoning for a 188-acre parcel at the southwest corner of Chinden Boulevard and North Eagle Road.

The court overturned a district court ruling allowing the attorney general's office to intervene in a dispute between brothers administering a charitable foundation. The Supreme Court said once the brothers agreed to dismiss their lawsuits, the state had no authority to later intervene.

Bono's final curtain call produces laughter, tears

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Wrecked by solis, Cher celebrated her ex-husband Sonny Bono Friday as "the most unforgettable character," and told a mourning gathering of mourners from Hollywood and Washington how the entertainer beat the odds with his jolting personality.

"Some people were under the misconception that Sonny was a short man, but he was heads and tails taller than any else," Cher said tearfully.

"He could see above the tallest people. He had a vision of his future and just how he was going to build it," Cher said.

Cher said she had 100 mourners at St. Theresa Roman Catholic Church.

A large color portrait of a grinning Bono hung near his flag-draped casket. Outside, another 2,500 mourners chanted umbrellas in a light drizzle belonging to the service and a funeral home.

The twelfth Republican congressman and former mayor of Palm Springs died Monday when he slid into a tree at Heavenly Ski Resort in South Lake Tahoe, He was 62.

Mourners included House Speaker Newt Gingrich, a dozen congressmen, former Vice President Dan Quayle, former President Gerald Ford, California Gov. Pete Wilson, Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt, a heavy-voiced President Clinton, actor Jack Scalia and singers Tony Orlando and Jerry Vale.

In a ceremony marked by tears and laughter, Bono was remembered as a gregarious man whose accomplishments were more remarkable given his self-deprecating sense of humor.

Cher, Bono's long-time singing and stage partner, described first meeting him, then traced the formation of their professional and romantic partnerships.

"When I was 16, I met Sonny," she recalled. "I never saw any thing like him before in my life. He walked into this room and I swear to God, I saw him and everything else just vanished away."

Laughs filled the church when Cher lovingly recalled Bono's "weird habits" — between Cesar and Napoleon.

"One of the first things he told me was he was a descendant of Napoleon and his father shortened the name to Bono, but he didn't want to make a big deal of it," she said.

Calling him "a kerappy little triton guy with a bad voice," Cher said he purposely decided to cast himself as the duo's straight man.

"What people don't realize is he created Sonny and Cher," the Academy Award-winning actress said. "He had the confidence to be the butt of the joke because he created the joke."

On the career change that propelled him to Washington, Cher said, "I know someone doesn't decide in the middle of their life to become a congressman, but that's so typically Sonny."

Leaving most of the congregation in tears, Cher told her eulogy by recalling a Reader's Digest feature called, "The Most Unforgettable Character."

"That person will always be Sonny for me," she said.

In his eulogy, Gingrich told mourners how members of Congress had gathered before dawn in Washington for the trip west.

"It was the sort of group Sonny would have liked, a lot of people, important, early in the morning being inconvenienced for him," Gingrich said.

Gingrich said Bono never took himself seriously and never acted like a celebrity. Behind his jokes, however, was a dedicated politician who was able to disarm his critics, Gingrich said.

California Gov. Pete Wilson said Bono's candor and tenacity were his greatest gifts.

Welfare provision sparks challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civil liberties groups are challenging a law that allows churches a broader role in government-sponsored welfare programs.

Opponents of the "charitable choice" provision in the 1996 welfare overhaul say it crosses the constitutional line separating church and state. Religious groups have long provided care and social services with state funds, but the groups often set up separate, tax-exempt operations to meet strict guidelines for keeping religion out of their programs.

Initiated by Sen. John Ashcroft, R-Mo., "charitable choice" eliminated those guidelines, allowing states to contract for welfare services with all religious organizations. It allows money to go directly to a church rather than through vouchers and certificates that go to recipients.

Safeguards in the law allow recipients to seek other programs and assure that no one must espouse faith to get benefits, but civil liberties groups say it amounts to subtle coercion.

"Nothing advances a religious mission more than paying someone to walk into a church, not to mention what might go on once you're in there," said Julie Segal, counsel for Americans United for Separation of Church and State. The Washington-based group expects to retain a lawyer shortly to prepare a legal challenge. Along with the American Civil Liberties Union, Americans United and other civil liberties and religious groups are waiting for states to implement that part of the law before they challenge it.

While a handful of states including Texas and Michigan have embraced similar concepts, charitable choice "has not been robustly implemented yet," Segal said.

Mom of obese girl found guilty

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) — A woman whose 680-pound, 14-year-old daughter died on a filthy bedsheet surrounded by empty food cartons was found guilty Friday of misdemeanor child abuse, escaping conviction on far more serious charges.

"I can live with it," Marlene Corrigan said quietly with a slight smile.

Had the judge convicted her of felony child abuse following the not guilty trial, Ms. Corrigan could have gotten up to six years in prison.

As it stands, she faces a maximum of one year at sentencing Feb. 27. Defense attorney Michael Cardoza said Ms. Corrigan would probably get probation and community service. "It's a victory," Cardoza said.

Lava may force island evacuation

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Hot glowing lava has been spotted on top of a volcano in central Java, raising fears that nearby residents may have to evacuate. The official Antara news agency quoted Mas Aji Purbawinata, a local volcanology expert, as saying Friday that villagers could be threatened by hot lava clouds from the Mount Merapi volcano, which is 360 miles east of Jakarta, the capital.

Karpov wins chess crown

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Defending champion Anatoly Karpov defeated Viswanathan Anand in two tiebreaker games Friday to retain the FIDE World Chess Championship title and win its $1.37 million prize.

The tiebreaker decided a six-game match after Karpov and Anand tied 3-3. It required that they play two games with a time limit of 25 minutes for each player in each game.

Karpov, playing white, won the first game Friday in 62 moves, and dominated the second in 32 moves, playing black.

Karpov first became the FIDE World Chess Champion in 1975, when the American title holder Bobby Fischer declined to play in the final and challenger Karpov was awarded the crown. This is the sixth time he has won the coveted title.

"It was a very tough match. Anand made my task as difficult as possible," said the Russian grandmaster. "He played fighting chess. I think it was one of the most interesting matches I have played."

The result capped a week's competition.

Karpov won the opening game and Anand came back with a victory last Saturday before the players drew Sunday. Karpov set himself up for a shot at the title with a victory in the fourth game Tuesday, but Anand forced a draw Wednesday and won Thursday's sixth game to make the score 3-3.

Senator arrives to boost trade

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — Vietnam's emerging economy could offer tremendous rewards for U.S. companies if the communist leadership forges ahead with economic reforms, Sen. John Kerry said Friday.

Kerry, D-Mass., a decorated Vietnam War veteran and champion of normalized relations with Hanoi, began a week-long trip to boost trade and economic ties between the two-time enemies.

In meetings with the deputy interior minister, Kerry said he was impressed with efforts to liberalize both political and economic issues.

"I did not meet with rigidity or an ideological wall," he told The Associated Press.

Kerry said he will emphasize the need for continued reform in talks next week with Premier Phan Van Khai and other senior officials.

PIANOS USED AT C.S.I. ON SALE FINAL DAY!

Budgetary reductions for musical instruments could mean budgetary gains for piano buyers. Excitement of budgetary cuts have restricted music departments' ability to provide high quality pianos for students and teachers. Not long ago, the Kawai America Corp. came to their assistance by providing free pianos and digital as part of a nation-wide

Institutional Loan program. This program involves an annual public sale of the loaned inventory at substantial discount prices. The selection includes digital keyboards, spinet, console, studio, grand, and baby-grand pianos. Many are less than one year old with full warranties. Also available are pianos from other manufacturers. A public sale will be held this Saturday, January 10th, from 12 to 6 p.m. in the Fine Arts Music Building. Purchase or preview is possible earlier in the week by appointment. Please call (208) 733-0577 for more information. Purchase documentation, warranties, financing, and delivery will be handled by Keith-Jorgensen Music, Kawai's institutional representative.

U.S., IMF move to ease Asian woes

Officials head to Indonesia with carrot stick

The Associated Press

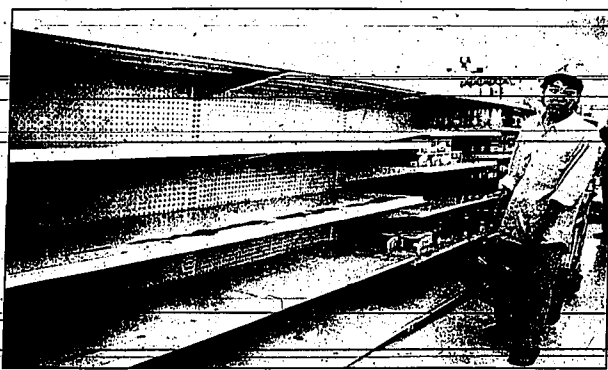

WASHINGTON — High-ranking Clinton administration and IMF officials are heading to Indonesia with a pointed message for President Suharto: Get your financial house in order.

They also hope to give the Indonesian economy a boost before the Asian crisis becomes worse. Stock prices plunged on Wall Street Friday amid investors' concern that Asia's problems will spread to economies around the world.

Indonesia's currency, meanwhile, plummeted after a devastating plunge. Thursday's 26 percent slide came on reports from a $4-billion International Monetary Fund bailout plan was unraveling. That set off a wave of panic-buying in supermarkets and sparked numerous rumors, including one that U.S. troops had entered the presidential palace and Suharto had left the country.

Indonesia has received an IMF-led rescue package similar to other bailouts granted to Thailand and South Korea.

The immediate objective of the Indonesia mission is to speed up 75-year-old Suharto to speed up belt-tightening requirements

Plunging currency values mean empty shelves at a Jakarta supermarket Friday after people spent their money before it declines further in value. Indonesian currency lost about a quarter of its value on Thursday.

demanded by the IMF. If he agrees, then the lending organization and the United States may accelerate payments in a $40 billion rescue package, as they did two weeks ago with South Korea. The IMF has made $3 billion of the aid available so far, and the next $3 billion is supposed to be disbursed March 15. These payments are the only leverage the IMF and U.S. member governments have to get the Indonesian authorities to keep their promises.

Janet L. Yellen, chairwoman of the White House Council of Economic Advisers, said the administration believes it is critical for Indonesia to follow the IMF reforms so market confidence can be restored. This is the same message President Clinton conveyed to Suharto in a 20-minute telephone conversation from Air Force One Thursday night. "There can be debate about the details of what the appropriate policy package looks like, but I believe the willingness to adopt key structural reforms is essential," Yellen said.

Developers put flexibility into buildings

The Associated Press

DENVER — Developers are flexing their muscles with an increasingly-popular type of commercial building — flex space. Flex space, as its name implies, is a flexible building that combines office space with industrial space. It can handle tenants with such diverse needs as manufacturers, warehouses, high-tech offices, and even biotechnology labs.

And there's no doubt these buildings are hot. "We love the product," said Chester Latham, principal of Pacifica Holdings, one of the largest real estate investor/developers in the metro area.

Pacifica has about 400,000 square feet of flex space in Colorado Springs, Latham said. Many tenants use what is known as a "system furniture" — a type of portable walls — sort of traveling cubicles — that can move around the floor. A lot of software and high-tech companies like Flex space, Latham said.

Companies can put together teams to tackle a project, and when the project is over, they can disband and reconfigure the space for the next project.

Because flex buildings don't have elevators — one of the most expensive parts of any building — they can be built quicker and Please see FLEX, Page A7

Police arrest man on suspicion of burglary

HANSEN - A Hansen man has been arrested on suspicion of burglarizing DW's Market.

Norman Edwin Johnson, 19, was arrested Thursday by Kimberly police. Officers responded to a burglary alarm at Davy's Market at 1042 p.m. Wednesday. The burglar had pulled an air-conditioning unit from a store room wall and taken $13 cash and several cartons of cigarettes, a Kimberly police report said. A witness spotted a man running away from the building but was unable to follow him.

The next morning, police recovered a path taken by the person running from the scene, the report said. Store owner Ken Dew recognized the hat as belonging to Johnson.

Johnson admitted to the burglary after questioning from police officers, the report said. He was arrested and released from Twin Falls County Jail Friday after arraignment.

Hagerman woman dies in California car accident

HAGERMAN - A car accident near Blythe, Calif., has claimed the life of a Hagerman resident and sent another to the hospital.

Pugmire died Wednesday as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident. Her husband, Marion, was flown to a hospital in Phoenix, Ariz., where family sources say he is listed in stable condition.

The Pugmires, longtime Hagerman residents, were traveling in Arizona on vacation to visit friends when the accident occurred.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Group puts several area residents on influential list

TWIN FALLS - The Times-News' publisher Stephen Hargren, Secretary of State Pete Cernusca, water court judge Daniel Hartz and state Sen. Laird Nash, R-Kimberly, are among the "100 most influential people in Idaho," according to the just-released "1998 Idaho Public Affairs Directory" published by Rittenbaugh Press.

Other Magic Valley residents named are Twin Falls attorney John Rosholt, former Idaho Farm Bureau president Tom Geary of Burley and actor and Blaine County resident Bruce Willis.

The directory chronicles people who set agendas and influence decisions but aren't necessarily in the public eye. It is based on interviews and questionnaires of more than 50 Idahoans with various backgrounds in law, politics, business and news.

Twin Falls man faces charges of sexual assault

Jon Paul Wilcox, 38, is charged with forcible sexual penetration by use of a foreign object, a felony. He was arraigned on the charges Friday.

The victim told police Wilcox fondled her and touched her sexually, a Twin Falls police report said. In December, she got a restraining order to keep Wilcox away from her, the report said.

Twin Falls police arrested Wilcox on a warrant. He was released from Twin Falls County Jail Friday on $5,000 bail.

Magazine salesman without vendor's license heads to jail

TWIN FALLS - A magazine salesman was jailed Thursday for ignoring police officers' suggestions he get a city vendor's license, police say.

John J. Allinder, 18, was arrested by Twin Falls police at noon Thursday after Heyburn Avenue residents called police to complain about Allinder. Allinder was selling magazine subscriptions, saying he was earning points toward a trip to Europe, a Twin Falls police report said.

Officers had talked to Allinder Sunday after city residents complained about his aggressive tactics and charges of harassment, police say. Officers told Allinder then he needed a city vendor's license and explained how to obtain one; Allinder told them he didn't need one and didn't want to get one, police say.

When the same officers were called back Thursday and Allinder had no license, the report said, he was arrested on charges of failure to purchase a vendor's license, a misdemeanor. Allinder, who had a Colorado driver's license and a local address at the Weston Plaza Hotel, was booked into jail.

Analyst attributes colder weather with the climb

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - December unemployment rates in the Magic Valley mostly rose from the previous month, with cold weather the biggest reason for the work slowdown. "With rural communities, they just don't do as much in the winter and... so the labor force drops," says Lon McDonald, labor analyst with the Idaho Labor Department office in Twin Falls.

For Gooding, Twin Falls and Jerome counties, the December unemployment rate was two-tenths of a percentage point

About 100 people were called back to the potato processing plant in December. But slipping potato prices also had an effect on local growers - and ultimately on the whole community - because of the importance of the crop to the economy, McDonald said. "These kinds of dollars percolate all over," he said. "It affects the mood and expansion." Blaine County tends to have a low unemployment rate, but it was also affected by lack-of-snow-to-support-its industry, McDonald said. But since the jobless survey was conducted, more snow has fallen. "Lincoln County is kind of interesting. It always has been red rural, but it's had

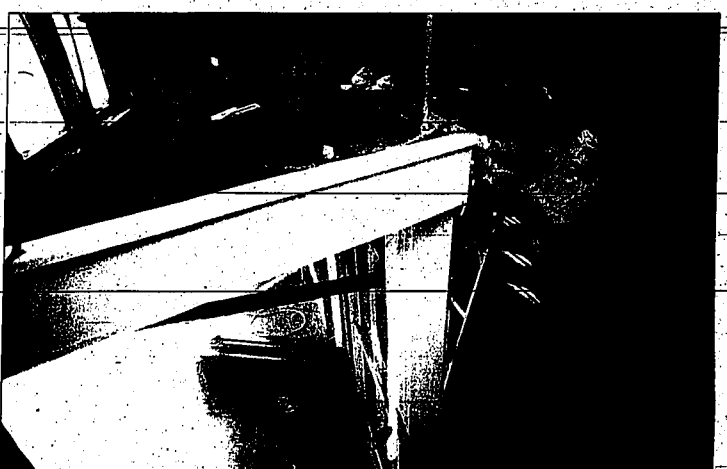

Auction signals end of pool hall

Old Buhl hangout changes function for 1st time in over 80 years

By Loretta Burkhardt Times-News correspondent

BUHL - Gibbs Cigar Store, an old time pool hall and one of Buhl's oldest establishments, finally will be put to rest at an auction today. The hall's appliances, recreation furnishings - some more than 50 years old - game tables, pool tables, cues and balls will go the highest bidder at 1 p.m. New owners Arthur C. Kimball and business partner Faye Ross say remodeling of the building has already begun. They hope to turn the old hangout into a bakery and eatery - one that will cater to "those who have special dietary needs," Ross said.

Though this is not the first time Gibbs has seen a change in ownership, it is the only time since 1916 that the store's name and function have changed. Gibbs, where magazine racks hold comic books and lights were never turned low, was not only the best place in town to play a game of pool, some Buhl residents say in its glory days, it was also a place to go after a game to

Upper grades benefit from D.A.R.E. Moving on

By Jennifer Sandmann Times-News writer

BUHL - What do you do when you're pulled over by a police officer? How much alcohol it takes for a minor to be legally drunk? What are the legal consequences for breaking the law? Such questions are the ones High School discussed these issues and others in health class Friday.

The Twin Falls County Sheriff's Dept. is sponsoring D.A.R.E. - Drug Abuse Resistance Education - from just elementary to junior high and high schools, said Ron Kirtland, a D.A.R.E. officer for the department. D.A.R.E. officer Dan Thom asked Buhl sophomores to role-play Friday. Teens played out the difference a driver's cordial attitude makes when stopped by an officer.

Buhl School District is the first in the county to bring the program into the upper grades, Kirtland said. The junior high course runs one hour weekly for nine weeks, and the high school course lasts

10 weeks. The curriculum expands on D.A.R.E.'s message to stand up to peer pressure and avoid using drugs. Bringing the program to older students will reinforce the D.A.R.E. mes-

Threat of lawsuit makes fate of nuclear waste unclear

New Mexico Attorney General Udall says WIPP violates public health and safety

The Times-News and The Associated Press

SANTA FE, N.M. - If an underground dump takes nuclear waste from Idaho and other states, it might leak if oil and gas drilling hit the waste, said New Mexico Attorney General Tom Udall.

Udall is threatening to sue the U.S. Government over the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant dump project.

The Environmental Protection Agency has said it plans to allow the $1.8 billion WIPP project near Carlsbad, N.M., to start receiving waste as early as this spring.

Gov. Phil Batt and Idaho's congressional delegation have pushed for the opening of the New Mexico site that would dispose of more than 2 million cubic feet of plutonium-contaminated waste now stored at the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory.

But Udall and other critics told an EPA hearing Thursday in Santa Fe that the agency has failed to do its job of ensuring WIPP won't endanger people.

Over centuries, the repository will become "a pressurized canister of radioactive waste, waiting to burst upon the next intruder," Udall said.

He said its 850,000 containers will rust in the underground salt caverns and generate hydrogen gas under high pressure.

If safety questions aren't answered, he said, the EPA and the U.S. Department of Energy "may force us into a lawsuit." He accused the EPA of rushing to give its blessing to the project without critically examining what could go wrong.

WIPP would take barrels of waste - trash, rods, rags, clothing, cutting oil and solvents, all contaminated with plutonium - sitting at federal facilities, many in the West. The radiation levels of the waste varies from nearly innocuous to waste so "hot" it must be handled remotely.

The first shipments of waste to New Mexico could come from the INEEL. Batt's agreement with the federal government requires that all plutonium-contaminated waste stored at INEEL - estimated at 2.3 million cubic feet - be shipped to WIPP by 2018, with ship-

Shopkeeper wants Hagerman alley moved

By Gina Mulder
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — A local shopkeeper's request to redirect a city alley around a proposed new site was tabled until the district has time to review the proposal's safety aspects.

Council members Tuesday night reviewed Gary Chappell's proposal for developing a commercial site at the south end of town, formerly the Hagerman Motor Hotel.

Chappell said he plans to build a 10,000-square-foot retail addition onto the existing store and increase parking to accommodate about 100 cars.

However, a 20-foot-wide city alley dividing the property lies right where Chappell plans to situate the new building, creating a design nightmare of sorts.

"I can't position a building on the property unless that alley is redirected or walled," Chappell said. "I can't put a building big enough on the site to get a return on my investment with the alley running through the middle of the property."

Chappell suggested rerouting the alley west of the site, being at the east end of the property line. The alley would run south from South Street, then turn west heading toward the store's parking lot and empty onto State Street.

Another alternative Chappell suggested would be to move the alley between State Street and Third Avenue, but council members refused to consider that option.

City officials said they would discuss rerouting the alley after the Hagerman Rural Fire Department can review the proposal and address any safety issues.

Chappell said the entire project will cost about $900,000.

That type of project, he said, would generate about $3,400 annually in taxes back to the city.

The development will be Hagerman's newest and largest grocery/convenience store, featuring a bakery, deli, fast food and gas.

In other Hagerman City Council business this week:

- Council members Benam Wood, David Shorr and Pete Weir took the oath of office. Weir and Glanner were sworn into office for four-year terms and Wood for two-year terms.
- Weir said he has received several phone calls complaining about city employees smoking in City Hall.
- Weir said state law prohibits smoking in certain areas of public buildings. He suggested the council educate itself and begin complying with the law.
- The complainants "said they will go to the powers beyond (the city) if they don't see something done about the smoking in City Hall," Weir said.

Council members tabled discussion about creating compliance of Hagerman's nuisance ordinance until the city can allocate money needed for enforcement.

Weir said he has received several complaints about property in town which has noxious weeds and is in violation of the city code.

However, the ordinance is ineffective if the city is unable to enforce it.

"If we don't have a backup contingency, we're just spitting in the wind," Woods said. "If we give someone notice and they give us 30 days to do it, we need some time, we need to have in our budget the money to have the city correct the problem right at that time."

Filer appoints new school board member

By Nicole Gilbert
Times-News correspondent

FILER — The Filer School Board has appointed a new member to Shirley Galley will replace James Wray, who resigned after moving out of the zone. Superintendent Bill Beards said.

Galley, who has a son in middle school, said she believes Filer has a strong "school" system. She would, however, like to see practical programs expanded for those students who are not interested in pursuing four-year degrees at universities.

"I appreciate the opportunity to be on the board and hope I can be of some assistance," she said.

The school district will experience a funding decrease due to a drop in student attendance, because of the drop in state funds will affect teachers' salaries, among other things. However, the district will be able to substitute the loss this year in its contingency plan.

Filer Middle School will get a new heating system this winter.

The board will advertise its need for the next two weeks, then will accept bids from local businesses Jan. 23, Penuhrens said.

It is an underground pipes-for-the-current steam-heating system are rapidly corroding, he said, and are highly unreliable. The board intends to replace them with gas heat.

In other business, the school board hired student teacher William Maxwell for Filer Middle School's music program. It also hired Jerry Buys as the new high school varsity baseball coach.

Driver feared dead in river is found alive

HUNTINGTON, Ore. (AP) — Huntington and Baker County authorities were investigating a crash site where a pickup had plunged down a steep embankment into the icy Burnt River when the driver walked up to them.

—Kim Pierce, 39, of Meridian, had spent the night wet in sub-freezing temperatures.

Baker County Sheriff's Deputy Tim Fisher said Pierce was wet, banged up and disoriented, but had escaped the submerged-pickup, located in a blanket and climbed back up to the road. He had been traveling alone, officials said.

"On Thursday Mr. Pierce was quite disoriented still from spending a night outside," Fisher said. "About all we know right now is he managed to climb up the steep hill on the road's north side and spent the night there, waiting for the morning sun."

Porcine needs could net owner fine, time in jail

BOISE (AP) — Fred, the potbellied pig isn't a bad pig. He is a pig with needs.

But those porcine needs — food and romance — could bring his owner in jail for six months and cost $300. It is against the law in Ada County to let your pig room free, and Fred has gotten away from Cheri Dunham so many times that authorities are taking action.

Dunham has a court date Monday.

"I'm a good person. I go to church. I got my first speeding ticket two years ago, and I don't belong in jail," Dunham said, chuckling over her citation Thursday. "Fred's just a grumpy old man. It's not as if the court system has nothing better to do."

She figures Fred has escaped 10 times since she bought him.

20-year-old avoids prison sentence

By Penelope Reedy
Times-News writer

BURLEY - Anthony Joe Studer II, convicted of grand theft by possession in July 1996, received leniency for repeated probation violations from Judge George Granata Jr. in Thursday's 5th District Court.

Studer's grand theft conviction was on charges of having several guns owned by his father and a friend.

A friend of the prison term Deputy Prosecutor Howard Smyser recommended, Granata sentenced Studer, 20, to 180 days in the Mini-Cassiar Criminal Justice Center with work release. After serving his time, Studer will begin another three-year probation.

The court hesitates to send a 20-year-old to hard time. On the other hand, Mr. Studer has a right to be punished," Granata said. "If you're back in here again, I will send you to the penitentiary."

Studer broke his probation by changing his address without notifying authorities and by having sex with a minor, authorities say.

Smyser told the court he didn't think Studer was a good candidate for probation because he has repeatedly violated it.

"I don't think Mr. Studer is safe in our community," Smyser said.

"You're dealing with a sexual predator."

After his arrest, Studer continued to communicate with minor females. Court records say jailers confiscated a love letter to a minor.

Smyser told the court Dec. 23 at Studer's arraignment that the young women's parents were concerned about Studer attempting to contact their daughters. Granata then ordered Studer not to have contact with minor females, including letters or telephone conversations, without supervision.

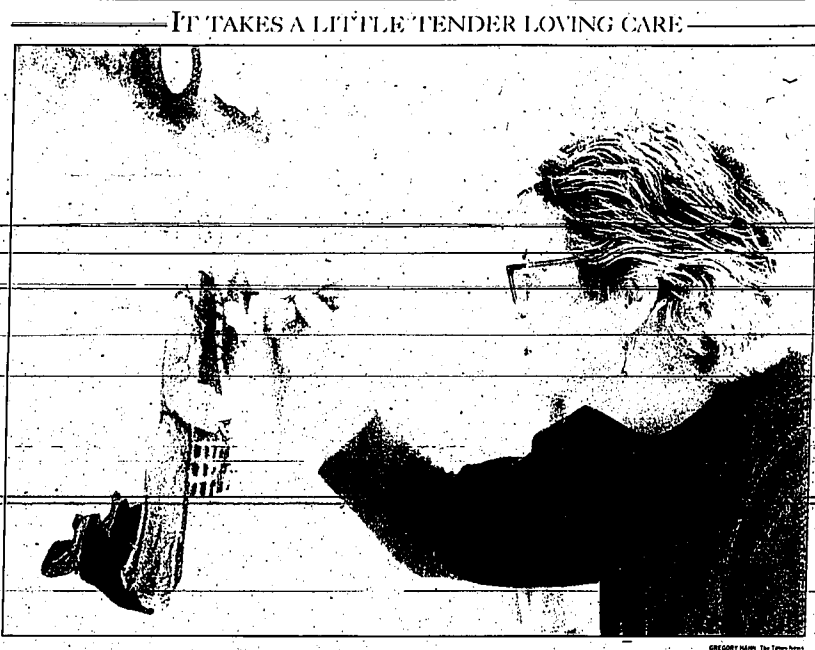

Studer's attorney, Brent Tingey, said he didn't believe prison was the best punishment for Studer. He listed Studer's accomplishments saying he has no juvenile record, was an Eagle Scout and attained a high school diploma despite dyslexia.

"I take issue with the state's view that he is a sexual predator," Tingey said. "I believe he thought he was having a relationship with a young girl that went sour."

Studer apologized to the court for his actions.

"I did the things I'm accused of," he said, "and I'm willing to face the consequences."

Fire destroys office of Wendell ostrich farm

By Steve Koehler
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL - A fire Friday morning gutted the barn office of Cradle Acre Ostrich Farm in rural Wendell.

The farm, owned by David and Hallie Torres, is at 3009 S. 2000 E., just outside the city's southwest corner.

David Torres said his wife was on her way to feed the rabbits in the barn when she noticed the fire.

"The office in the center section of the barn is what burned," he said. "We sprayed water on the outside until the firemen got their hoses going."

Wendell Fire Chief Red Orr said firefighters were called at about 9:45 a.m. and extinguished the blaze by noon.

The couple's 52 ostriches were in pens outside the barn and were not injured, but Hallie Torres' pet iguana in the office died. The barn and incubator room incurred modest smoke and water damage.

Orr called for an investigator from the state fire marshal's office in Boise to determine the cause of the blaze, which was blamed on an electrical short.

"It could have been worse," David Torres said. "Nobody got hurt. It could have been a total loss. We're thankful about that. We'll try to restore what we've lost. The firemen did a good job."

The couple intends to continue raising ostriches, which are sold for meat, leather and breeding stock.

Judge sentences driver of 'arsenal on wheels'

The Times-News

BURLEY - A 37-year-old man, whom Deputy Prosecutor Howard Smyser said was arrested Oct. 15 while driving "an arsenal on wheels," was sentenced Friday in 5th District Court.

Judge George Granata Jr. sentenced David Lee Cline, 37, to one term of two to five years and another of two to seven years in the Idaho State Penitentiary on charges of possession of methamphetamine and unlawful possession of a firearm. The terms will run consecutively.

Smyser told the court the circumstances of Cline's arrest had "unique potential for harm" and were "truly interesting."

At the time of his arrest, Smyser said, Cline was wearing a shoulder holster and had a 9 mm pistol within easy reach. He had a scanner in the car and was intoxicated. A further inventory of his car yielded a fanny pack filled with drugs, drug paraphernalia and extra loaded magazines for his firearm.

"A sawed-off shotgun was found in the trunk, and military-style explosives were found under the seat."

"What's your explanation for driving around with those items?" Granata asked.

"I've always carried a handgun," Cline said. "I do a lot of rock-hounding. The shotgun is a snake gun. I bought the car and didn't know the explosives were there. The car was used by a lot of people for storage."

Smyser also said Cline had done time in California, and records show he may have absconded from another charge.

Man reports guns stolen from unit

TWIN FALLS - A Twin Falls man reported several guns stolen from a storage unit.

The man reported he checked his rented unit at Stash It Mini Storage Wednesday and found no lock on the door, a Twin Falls police report said. Gun cases, a 22-caliber Ruger pistol and a 12 gauge shotgun had been stolen from the unit, along with several boxes, since he checked it Christmas Day, the report said.

"I think it's more effective in high school than in fifth grade," said sophomore Mike Gemar.

It relates more to what students are dealing with, she said.

Health teacher Mike Gemar plans to incorporate D.A.R.E. with his unit on drugs.

"I didn't know how the kids would react to it," he said.

The students say they think D.A.R.E. should continue to be offered in high school, Gemar said. He wanted to see D.A.R.E. reinforced the anti-drug testing policy the district initiated this year and try to make it a positive policy for students. It gives them an easy excuse to avoid drugs, he said.

came within 3,000 votes of passing what would have been one of the most restrictive anti-gay measures in the country. Walton tried to get another measure on the 1996 ballot but could not get the enough signatures.

Walton told KTVB-TV in Boise Friday that a big part of the anti-abortion drive will be tracking candidates and elected officials on issues important to the Idaho Christian Coalition.

"People don't realize how valuable the vote is. We will be educating them on that," Walton said.

Walton's guides are going to be a big deal to show who voted for what and what candidates stand for. People will be able to make up their own minds who the best candidate is."

Walton said Idaho should not be seen to be in front on abortion issues.

"Idaho should be the leader. We should be pushing the envelope and showing other states that it's possible to have meaningful anti-abortion legislation," he said.

Walton said the coalition will push for a law requiring parental consent before a minor can obtain an abortion.

and South Carolina would be stored forever in underground caverns out of salt beds half a mile below ground.

WIPP by law is supposed to safely contain nuclear waste for 10,000 years. But Udall said the EPA hasn't adequately considered the contamination that would result if someone drilled into it.

Santa Fe has long been a hotbed of opposition to WIPP, and the EPA panel got an en-ful Thursday.

Carol Miller, a health consultant speaking on behalf of the New Mexico Public Health Association, called WIPP "a small, tremendously over-budget EPA project for the nation's nuclear waste problems."

The WIPP approach, she said, is "dig a hole, bury it and hope nobody ever finds or disturbs it at any time in the future."

Not all speakers on Thursday's schedule were critics.

The administration of Gov.

Gary Johnson said it supported "with pride and conviction" EPA's preliminary decision to allow WIPP to open.

The phased approach to WIPP over the past 24 years has resulted in "a solid scientific foundation" for the project, said state Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources Secretary Jennifer Salisbury.

Salisbury, who heads the governor's WIPP task force, said "it makes no sense to now abandon a $2 billion investment."

"It was more than a pool hall,"

Pat Hamilton Sr. said. "It was a clean place ... a nice place for even kids ... a home away from home if you needed a safe place to be."

It was also the town's weekend bank when a man needed to cash a payroll check, he said. Pat Hamilton Sr. used to give Faux $100 every Friday, he said, then collect the paychecks Monday morning.

"Before the days of the ATM," he said, "it was Gibbs."

"But Clint made it Gibbs, and no one could ever take the place of that man," Pat Hamilton Sr. said.

TF grabs win from Burley

Region III foe falls, 62-51

Twin Falls' Mark Thrash comes down with a rebound over Burley's Tyler Carson Friday night at Twin Falls. High during the 62-51 Bruin victory.

TWIN FALLS — It would have been easy for the Twin Falls High School boys basketball team to write off this season, simply roll over and wait for it to end.

The Bruins had started to do, just that, until Friday.

Twin Falls, which had a player dismissed from the team for violating team rules earlier this week, shrugged off that mental blow with a 62-51 victory over Region III foe Burley.

The Bruins, who looked like a regular Tuesday against junior-league improved to 9-2 overall, 1-2 in the region.

Burley fell to 4-5 overall, 1-3 in the region.

“After the loss (Kirk) Blackwood, we started to think that our season was over,” Twin Falls center Mark Thrash said. “We were a big part of our team, and we could have used that as an excuse to lose — instead we used it as something to bring us together.”

Against Burley, the Bruins looked like a team which had come back together.

“We never had a game-high 28 points, but was complemented by strong games from several teammates. Rick Berry had 10 points, while Mike Nicholson and Beau Barry shined defensively.

Berry, who was handed point guard duties earlier this week, and especially strong in final quarter, with six points and two crucial steals.

“We had to concentrate on defense this game,” Barry said. “Burley’s (Tyler) Carson and (Aaron) Bradley are tough players. We knew we had to stop at least one of them.”

Bradley finished with 22 points, but Barry’s defensive play limited Carson to four points.

“Twin Falls took us out of our offense,” Burley assistant coach Gordon Kerbs said. “They were just the better team (Friday), there is no question about that.”

For Twin Falls, the win was especially important. The Bruins had lost their first two Region III games of the season, and mental distractions or not, couldn’t afford to drop a third straight.

“I think this gets us over the hump that we needed to get over,” Barry said.

Twin Falls coach Dan Vogt agreed.

“We needed a win like this to help mold us back together,” he said. “And to help get us back to the kind of team that we are.”

Southern Idaho women’s basketball team eventually pulled away for its first consecutive win of the new year, a 65-60 defeat over the College of Eastern Utah.

The visiting Golden Eagles shot just 36 percent in the first half and held more than a two-point lead until they ended the opening period with 12 unanswered points in two and a half minutes for a 34-21 lead.

“We really picked it up at the end of that half,” said CSI coach Joel Bates, whose team was playing its first game since last week’s loss at Wenatchee Valley in Washington.

CSI (12-4, 0 in conference) held a 25-0, 60, or 38 percent, from the first. Helping the team in its cause was Eastern Utah’s 23-percent shooting in the first half and 33 percent overall.

Charlotte Norman and Cecilie Bates led CSI with 12 points apiece — Bates’ courtesy of four 3-pointers after coming off the bench — and Sarah Nelson and Holly Harper finished.

Eagle men survive scare at CEU

CSI beats Eastern Utah

PRICE, Utah — Life on the road in the Scenic West. It has to be more than a phrase, especially after this week.

A day after fifth-ranked Dixie lost to the Vikings in Rexburg, the College of Eastern Utah looked to jump out of the SWAC cellar with a come-from-behind win against visiting Southern Idaho.

In the end, however, it was the CSI men who scored the final eight points of Friday’s game, availing multiple CEU threats for a 71-61 victory before today’s visit to Colorado Northwest.

“When you win the road, you’ve got to be pleased,” said die emotionally exhausted coach Jim Thrash, whose CSI team moves to 15-1 on the season, 3-1 in conference play and 4-0 on the road.

CEU fought back from a nine-point deficit in the first half and a 12-point deficit to start the second — nullifying CSI’s nine-point run after the break — as CEU’s Pete Mauro came alive to score 22 second-half points.

“Mauro heated up and got a lot of uncontested layups,” Thrash said. “A couple of times he stole it, and a couple of times someone stole it and gave it to him. He probably earned 20 of them (points) and the rest are due to our unbelicvably bad turnovers.”

Trailing 55-52 with five minutes to play, Mauro scored 10 straight points, including three consecutive fast-break buckets resulting from CEU steals.

James Stokes took an inside pass and converted it for a CSI bucket and free throw with two minutes to play, and Thrash’s defense held Eastern Utah on the next possession. Stokes hit two technical foul free throws after Mauro was charged with slapping the backboard, and CSI led 68-62 with 1:20 left in the game and didn’t look back.

“At times I thought our defense was excellent,” Thrash said. “That’s how we got our lead. Then we’d let them take the ball away.”

Floyd Farrow put on a show of his own for CSI, leading all scorers with 16 first-half points and going 6-for-9 from the field.

“Thank goodness Floyd Farrow was there tonight, or the outcome might have been different,” Thrash said. “He came back from the Christmas break a different player.”

Farrow’s scoring spurt helped CSI to a 28-19 lead with five minutes left in the half. CEU then scored eight straight as their guests turned the ball over on half-court violations and traveling calls, as summed up by CSI assistant coach Kevin Jones.

“We never heard of a team committing 22 turnovers — and winning,” Jones said. Such is life on the road in the Scenic West.

CSI (17 games, 7-2, 2-1 in conference, 14-12 in SWAC) leads the conference with a 21-10 record. Southern Idaho (12-10, 4-4 in conference, 14-12 in SWAC) is second. Eastern Utah (12-10, 4-4 in conference, 14-12 in SWAC) is third. Dixie State (12-10, 4-4 in conference, 14-12 in SWAC) is fourth. Idaho State (12-10, 4-4 in conference, 14-12 in SWAC) is fifth. Utah State (12-10, 4-4 in conference, 14-12 in SWAC) is sixth. Nevada State (12-10, 4-4 in conference, 14-12 in SWAC) is seventh. Oregon State (12-10, 4-4 in conference, 14-12 in SWAC) is eighth. Washington State (12-10, 4-4 in conference, 14-12 in SWAC) is ninth. California State (12-10, 4-4 in conference, 14-12 in SWAC) is tenth.

IN BRIEF

Son of hockey legend takes ice for Steelheads

BOISE — Bart Hull, the son of National Hockey League legend Bobby Hull and brother of St. Louis Blues All-Star Brett Hull, was activated today to play for the Idaho Steelheads of the West Coast Hockey League.

Hull, 28, last played organized hockey when he was 12 with the North Shore Winter Club in Vancouver, British Columbia. But Steelheads coach Dave Langvin said the color commentator for radio broadcasts during Idaho’s inaugural season also had been skating with the team every day at practice.

“This situation arose where we had short notice on players getting the opportunity to play with Utah, and Bart is getting a much-needed chance to play,” Langvin said.

Hull’s activation for Friday night’s game against the Phoenix Mustangs was due to injuries and player loans. The Steelheads loaned center Alain Savigne, left wing Leo Svangstu and goaltender Kevin Deschambeault to the Utah Grizzlies of the International Hockey League.

“I’m totally excited about playing, but don’t really know what to expect because I haven’t skated in a game for so long,” Hull said.

The last time he played organized hockey 16 years ago — Colorado Avalanche All-Star center Joe Sakic was his teammate on the North Shore Winter Club.

Local golf pro finishes 2nd in 1998 Slazenger Classic

LAS VEGAS — Twin Falls pro Mike Hamblin finished second, three strokes behind Boise’s Jeff Thomson, in the 1998 Slazenger Las Vegas Classic which ended Friday at Desert Pines Golf Club in Las Vegas.

Seventeen Rocky Mountain PGA professionals played 54 holes in the annual winter pro-am the last three days.

Thomson fired a 70-71-71 212, while Hamblin finished with a 72-71-72 215.

Dallas Cowboys head football coach Barry Switzer, left, talks with team owner Jerry Jones near the end of the morning team practice session on Aug. 8, 1997, in Austin, Texas. Switzer, who took most of the blame for the Dallas Cowboys’ 6-30 season and failure to reach the playoffs, has reached an agreement with owner Jerry Jones to step down as coach.

The Associated Press

IRVING, Texas — The Barry Switzer era with the Dallas Cowboys ended Friday with the announcement of his own demise.

His final day was marked by the same bumbling and lack of discipline his team showed earlier in the season. Switzer couldn’t get his access code to work and was denied entry into the Valley Ranch complex until someone heard him banging on the front door.

Switzer, who resigned after the only losing season in his 20-year football career, did not speak to reporters but issued a statement that said he was proud of winning a Super Bowl and three division titles since joining the Cowboys in 1974.

Owner Jerry Jones did all the talking, saying Switzer was more comfortable with passing out a statement.

“We have come to the realization we must chart a fresh and

Switzer era ends with Barry a no-show; Jones does the talking

The 61-year-old Switzer angered Jones in August by being arrested for trying to carry a pistol in his luggage through the Dallas-Fort Worth International airport. Jones, who was trying to rebuild the Cowboys’ tarnished image, almost fired Switzer on the spot, but eventually fined him $75,000.

Switzer’s four years as Cowboys coach is the shortest tenure of the team’s three head coaches. Jimmy Johnson lasted a season longer while Tom Landry was in charge for 29 years.

Switzer, who will not work for Jones any longer, got a buyout estimated at $2 million for the two years he had left on his contract. Johnson received a similar buyout when Jerry Jones parted ways four years ago.

“Barry will not have a capacity within the organization,” Jones said. “We settled on his contract. I’ve known him for 37 years. We will still have a personal, ongoing friendship. His ledger is square with me.”

Switzer’s resignation was announced by Jones’ spokesman, who said Switzer had resigned after a 3-4 defense next year, took himself out of the running.

“I have an image of the new coach real clear and good,” said Jones.

Asked if he saw his image in the mirror, Jones laughed and said, “No. Not me.”

new path in returning this team to the level of success our fans demand — of being a Super Bowl team,” Jones said.

Former San Francisco coach George Seifert is at the top of the list to succeed Switzer, according to a source in the Cowboys’ organization who spoke on condition of anonymity. Seifert is free from his 49ers contract on Feb. 11 this season.

Other candidates include Terry Donahue, former UCLA coach; Jim Gruden, offensive coordinator for the Philadelphia Eagles; Miami coach Bruce Davis; or perhaps even someone from Switzer’s own staff such as defensive coordinator Dave Campo.

Jones, who has already said the Cowboys are moving to a 3-4 defense next year, took himself out of the running.

“I have an image of the new coach real clear and good,” said Jones.

No. 1 Hornets beat Trojans, 70-61

By Matt Pembler
Times-News writer

WENDELL - If you weren't in Wendell on Friday night, you missed a game that exemplifies what basketball is all about.

The top-ranked Deco and fifth-ranked Wendell squared off in an A-3 Canyon Conference game that was as good as it was touted to be.

But in the end, it was the Hornets who laid siege to the Trojans for a 70-61 victory.

Both teams battled hard offensively and defensively, and deployed full-court presses from the opening tip on.

"I truly believe it was a well-fought game defensively on both ends," Deco head coach Lloyd Gurey said. "We just happened to score more."

Deco led for most of the game, but couldn't pull Wendell away.

The turning point came in the third quarter. Down by seven points at the beginning of the quarter, Wendell had problems with the Hornets' press.

The Trojans had trouble getting the ball inbounded and when they did, they couldn't get it to go through the hoop.

Deco's Brad Allen and Brady Mallory played havoc with the Wendell offense, scoring a combined eight points off fast break steals. By the end of the quarter, the Hornets led 41-34.

Still, Wendell charged back.

In the fourth quarter, Wendell's Brian Sears led his team on a comeback. Sears hit three pointers in the final period, and finished 7-11 from the 18-foot mark.

"I have to give accolades to Mallory and Sears," said Gurey. "Sears was phenomenal."

Sears' leadership brought the Trojans back to within seven. But the rally proved to be a little too late.

But Deco's Eric Howard made an easy lay-up at the buzzer, capping the Hornets' conference victory.

Deco remains undefeated at 9-0 and travels to Bull on Tuesday. The Trojans fly 7-21 en route with Wood River in Wendell on Tuesday.

Scorebook error stuns Burley, coach

Bonneville squeaks by Bobcats, 51-50

BURLEY - The scorebook read 50-50. The game was the end of the fourth quarter.

Naturally, fans and players alike were all set for the Burley and Bonneville girls' basketball teams to start an overtime period.

It never happened.

A recounting of the official scorebook after the game tied 50-50 at the end of the fourth quarter. It had it 51-50... game over.

"The scorebook's not official," Burley coach Kim Krumm said. "The scorebook is. When all the points were added up, they had 51."

"Something like that should have been caught earlier."

"That would have changed the ending result."

With the game tied 50-50, Bonneville ran down the final minutes in a complete winning game at the buzzer. The Bobcats couldn't connect, but it turned out they didn't need to.

"We wouldn't have let the time run, so we didn't think that the game was tied," Krumm said. "We thought we were headed for overtime."

Teams were lined up for that overtime, set for the jump ball, when the game was signaled over by the referee.

"I'm just really disappointed," Krumm said.

Burley was led by Heidi Gioecheva's game-high 23 points.

The Bobcats fell to 5-8 with the loss. They play host to Jerome tonight.

Watt said falling behind 11-3 after one quarter made it difficult for him to catch up.

"I've seen a lot of other teams but just never did catch up," Watt said, adding that Castlerod's Katie Kuffing and Kelly Burgess combined for 24 points, hurt the Hornets from the perimeter.

Woods climbs into contention at Mercedes

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) - Tiger Woods stormed back into contention in the Mercedes Championships before nature unleashed a storm of his own and washed out the second round with only four players having finished 36 holes.

Woods, who started the day at even par, made an eagle on the 53-yard ninth hole for a 32 on the front nine and picked up two birdies to go to 10 under through 14 holes before heavy rain washed out play.

Cook got seven holes in and was 10 under for 25 holes, two strokes ahead of Phil Mickelson and three better than Nick Price and Frank Nobilo.

Woods, Ernie Els, David Duval and Stewart Cink were all at 6-under with Woods the farthest along having played 14 holes.

The second round will resume at 8 a.m. Saturday followed by the third round.

Woods, Palmer honored by fellow PGA golfers

CARLSBAD, Calif. - Tiger Woods was voted 1997 Player of the Year by his fellow members and Arnold Palmer received the PGA Tour Lifetime Achievement Award on Friday at the La Costa Resort and Spa.

Woods, who was voted the 1996 Rookie of the Year, also received the Arnold Palmer Award for leading the 1997 money list during the annual PGA Tour awards dinner held during the Mercedes Championships.

Woods was four tournaments in his first full year on the PGA Tour, including the Masters by a record 12 strokes, and earned a record $2,066,833.

Greg Norman stands in the rain and closes his eyes in frustration on the fourth green during the second round of the Mercedes championships Friday in Carlsbad, Calif. Play was suspended twice because of hard rain and standing water on the greens. The second round will resume Saturday.

HAZELTON - A 10-0 run to start the game and an 11-point scoring surge in the third quarter gave the Panthers enough to lift Valley over Canyon Conference rival Glens Ferry in boys' basketball action Friday night.

Camas County 78, Ketchum-Sun Valley 44

FAIRFIELD - Pressure defense by Camas County forced Ketchum-Sun Valley Community School into 20 turnovers as the Musters crushed a 78-44 Northside-Conferece boys' basketball win Friday.

"We played hard," Musters' coach Lou Anderson said. "Everybody on the team scored. They had 20 turnovers to our credit. That was a big part of the game."

Oakley 58, Murtaugh 51

MURTAUGH - Oakley slipped by Murtaugh in a boys' A-4 Southside conference basketball game Friday night.

"Oakley battled back from a seven-point lead in the first half," Murtaugh assistant coach Tracy Stanges said. "They just took care of business at the free-throw line, that made a difference. We played real well but we just didn't come out ahead."

Woodson leaves Michigan to enter NFL draft

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) - He was cool and confident, as usual, when how Charles Woodson was to enter the NFL draft. It is how he now will face life in the NFL.

Woodson announced Friday he was giving up his final year of eligibility at Michigan to enter the NFL draft.

Woodson helped the Wolverines win a share of the national football championship with a 21-16 Rose Bowl victory over Washington State on New Year's Day, Michigan (12-0) won The Associated Press title on a vote of writers and broadcasters, while Nebraska (13-0) was named national champion.

Michigan's All-American cornerback joined more than a dozen underclassmen who already have declared themselves available for the April 19-20 draft.

Projected as a top three draft pick with first- or second-round picks Peyton Manning and Ryan Leaf, Woodson intercepted eight passes, including one in the Wolverines' 21-16 Rose Bowl win, and scored four touchdowns.

On Thursday, Marshall wide receiver Randy Moss said he's on his way to the NFL, and so did linebacker Anthony Simmons of Clemson and Takeo Spikes of Auburn and North Carolina cornerback Robert Williams. Texas' Ricky Williams, the 1997 rushing leader, surprisingly decided to stay in school for his senior season.

Underclassmen opting earlier for the draft included Lee (Washington State); running backs Curtis Enis (Penn State), Ahman Green (Nebraska) and Chris Fuamatu-Ma'afala (Utah); offensive linemen Eric Bateman (Brigham Young), Mc Collins (Florida), Olin Kreutz and Benji Olson (Washington), and wide receiver-defensive back R.W. McQuarries of Oklahoma State.

At least three players said Friday they would stay in school for another season: running backs Kevin Faulk of LSU and Amos Zereoue of West Virginia and quarterback Donovan McNabb of Syracuse.

Faulk's teammate, offensive lineman Alan Faneca, said he was passing up his final year for the draft.

Woodson said the most difficult part of his decision to leave was telling his mother, Georgia, who made him promise to complete his degree in sports communications. He is a little more than half way there.

Minico leads Buhl, Twin Falls after 1st day of wrestling action

BUHL - The Buhl Invitational wrestling tournament got underway Friday with 18 teams going after the title.

After the first day of action, Minico holds the lead with Buhl and Twin Falls close behind.

"There is really good competition. This is one of the best tournaments in the Magic Valley."

High school wrestling

Buhl wrestling coach Scott Hahn said the tournament continues today, starting at 9 a.m. Finals are scheduled to start around 2 p.m.

Red Sox slugger pleads innocent to drunk driving

EASTON, Mass. (AP) - The voice of the intercom outside the Boston office surrounding Mo Vaughn's spacious home said the Red Sox slugger was sleeping.

But trouble had slipped through a crack in the door on a raw, drizzly Friday afternoon. The fan favorite and community icon had to deal with his drunken driving. On Red Sox, who are just 10 miles away and 12 hours earlier, his 1997 Ford pickup truck had rolled over on a highway after hitting an empty, parked Ford Escort in the breakdown lane at 2:15 a.m., police said.

He pleaded innocent to operating under the influence of alcohol and failing to stay in his lane. He was released without bail and had a court hearing set for Feb. 26, the second week of Boston's spring training in Fort Myers, Fla.

Vaughn, apparently, was unh. He refused medical treatment, and a police report gave no indication of injuries, authorities said. His reputation, though, may need healing.

Workers at the Mo Vaughn Youth Development Program, which runs after-school programs in inner-city Boston, had no comment.

"Our primary concern at this time is for Mo's physical and emotional well-being," the Red Sox said in a statement. "The Red Sox strongly oppose the use of any substance, including alcohol, which may adversely affect the health and performance of the members of the Red Sox organization."

Continued from B6... Eastern Utah (89-14) opened the second half with a 13-5 run, holding CSI to one free-throw goal in the first seven minutes, but the homecourt squad gave up a number of unforced turnovers that stopped any comeback the team had in mind. CSI pulled to within six at 42-36, but Norman hit a pull-up jumper from the free-throw line and Bates hit her third 3-pointer with 11:22 left. Moments later, Nelson, Kristy Hymas and

Norman all scored in the paint and the lead was back in double figures, where it stayed for most of the remainder of the game. "We gave up more points than I would have liked, but this is a difficult place to play," Bates said. "I don't think a lot of people realize that, but you don't come in here and win easy."

Tackle problems 1 day at a time

John was the toughest guy in the ninth grade - which was only a bad thing if he didn't like you.

Thankfully, he liked me, and I was smart enough to figure out how to keep it that way. When he blamed me for not being behind during football practice, I jumped up and told him, "Good hit." When he found out I was interested in a girl he liked, he suggested that it would be best if I stayed away from her - and I agreed. When he and I were matched in a gym class wrestling tournament, we worked out a mutually beneficial strategy: I would go down quickly, and he wouldn't hurt me.

VALUESPEAK

Joseph Walker

Cowardice? That's such an ugly word. Think of it as adolescent Darwinism. Just as turtles had to evolve the dinosaurs by being tougher than a T-Rex, I figured that the safest way to survive junior high was to stay on John's good side - which, admittedly, was sometimes hard to find.

During gym class basketball games, John was fierce rebounder and defender, but he had no offensive game at all. Laysups caromed off the rim wildly. The backboards began to quiver even before his jump shots crashed into them. And his free throws weren't free throws; they were adventures. All of which was upsetting to John. And since it was unwise to play against him when he was upset, I offered a little constructive criticism.

"The problem," I said, "is your follow-through."

"My what?" he said, ominously.

"Follow-through," I continued. "As you shoot the ball, you're supposed to follow through by flicking your wrist - like this." I demonstrated, flicking my wrist into a graceful goose-neck.

"That looks goofy," John said.

"Maybe so. But it's better shooting shots that look goofy."

Oops. Tactical error. Within a few minutes, was spread-eagled on the gym floor, the result of a well-placed elbow from John while going after the game's first rebound. As I hustled out of the gym, blood spurring from my nose, I heard him call after me: "How was that follow-through?"

So I'm a little reluctant to discuss - you know ... follow-through with anyone, especially since I'm clearly no expert on the subject - and now I'm not a fan of the follow-through on my jump shot, which still goes back nicely, thank you very much. I'm talking about the follow-through that makes it possible for us to accomplish the goals we set each year at New Year's.

Take, for example, my 1997 goals. I swore off Dr. Pepper. I cut out late-night junk food binges. I started exercising half hour a day. I swore off, cut out and started those things eight times, I think. You see, I'm great at setting goals, but like my junior high hero, John, I'm not much at following through.

I've jumped on and off the Dr. Pepper wagon so many times I've increased my vertical leap by 3 inches. I've started so many diets the Food and Drug Administration is actually begging me to try Phen-Fen. And I've launched enough exercise regimens to make Richard Simmons look like a sissy.

But this year, I'm taking my own advice and going to tackle new New Year's goals by following through. No more of this blind "lose 20 pounds" stuff. For each resolution I make, I'm also going to make a plan, and then I'm going to concentrate on the plan every day. While it's important to keep our eyes on our ultimate, long-range goals, it is sometimes discouraging to think about losing 20 pounds when the weight comes off only once at a time. That's where focusing on the plan - the follow-through - can help.

If working the plan becomes part of the resolution, then accomplishment of the ultimate goal naturally follows. I can't lose 20 pounds today, but I can exercise for 30 minutes today. I can say "no" to late-night snacks tonight. I can drink water instead of Dr. Pepper today. And if I follow through on the plan every day, every week, the 20 pounds will follow.

And my goose neck will be gone.

The 12 days of Christmas

By H.R. Wexkel and Denise Turner
The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - The Methodists renew their covenant with God. The Catholics celebrate Mass. The Lutherans read select Scriptures. The Episcopalians prepare a dinner.

Epiphany, from the Greek word for "manifestation," is a Christian feast day. Celebrated on Jan. 6, it commemorates the revealing of Jesus as the Christ to the gentiles. Some churches celebrate Epiphany in a big way. Others churches, such as the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, have never included the feast day in their church calendars.

Epiphany is celebrated 12 days after Christmas ("On the first day of Christmas, my true love gave to me...") and is considered part of the Christmas season, but it wasn't always. The feast, probably of Eastern origin, began as a holiday that supplanted the pagan celebration of the winter solstice.

The early church tacked on a commemoration of Jesus' birth, baptism and first miracle at Gans and, later, the coming of the wise men (Magi). By the time the fifth century rolled around, Epiphany had become an accepted feast in the Western church.

Now it's part of the Christian calendar of feasts and holy days, commemorating various aspects of the person and work of Christ. This year, several churches in the Magic Valley are celebrating Epiphany.

The Twin Falls United Methodist Church will hold Epiphany services at 8:30 and 11 a.m. on Sunday. Pastor Jim Frisbie said the observance will be a time for people to renew their covenants with God. A prayer developed during the 1770s by John Wesley will be read.

At St. Jerome's Catholic Church in Jerome, Epiphany was celebrated during Mass on Jan. 6 with readings about the Magi from the Gospel of Matthew. Other Scriptures from Isaiah and Psalms were read to emphasize the mystery of the incarnation, according to Christian Education Director Teresa May.

Church has unique slant on Epiphany

TWIN FALLS - The people at St. Ignatius of Antioch Orthodox Church celebrate Theophany. It's like Epiphany, but not exactly.

Both observances, on Jan. 6, celebrate the manifestation of Christ. But Theophany puts the emphasis on the baptism of Jesus. Epiphany focuses on the mystery of the incarnation through Jesus' birth, baptism and first miracle. The Orthodox hold services the evening of Jan. 5 (according to Orthodox belief, a day begins on the evening before a date on the secular calendar). Four prayer services and a celebration of the Eucharist, or Holy Communion, were held at St. Ignatius this year.

Father Philip Nixon led worshippers during the "royal hours of prayer," which included observances of the arrest of Christ, his appearance before Pontius Pilate, his crucifixion and the time when he was taken from the cross.

"Theophany means the showing forth of God and refers to Christ coming up out of the water and the voice of the father heard saying, 'This is my son,'" explained Nixon. "Then the Holy Spirit descended in the form of a dove. The Please see THEOPHANY, Page C2

Ministers sell religion and comedy on TV

The Associated Press

PETERS TOWNSHIP, Pa. - Mix a little Oprah with a touch of Jerry Seinfeld, throw in a dose of Bill Clinton and - voila! - you have the idea behind "Real People."

The low-budget show, aired six times a week on a public-access cable channel, is the brainchild of two Presbyterian ministers who believe religion needs a dose of good humor to keep the pews filled.

The show is an opportunity for The Revs. Rus Howard and Robert Kopp to advertise their churches in Peters Township, an affluent Pittsburgh suburb, and partly to give themselves someplace to ham it up.

This is not Must-Pray TV. The half-hour typically includes at least one humorous line or crack about Howard's colorful socks. Howard has to remind the long-winded Kopp to introduce the guest. Kopp reminds Howard to stop asking so many questions about sex. They're constantly trying to force each other to be the straight man.

"We wouldn't work on religious television. We'd be too caught up in promotion." Please see PUBLIC ACCESS, Page C2

The Hartford Courant

The last decades of the 20th century have been characterized by a renewed search for personal meaning and a growing interest in spiritual beliefs outside mainstream organized religion.

That search, however, has been accompanied by controversy about who "owns" certain religious practices, particularly those of American Indians.

Many American Indians believe vision quests, sweat lodges, various spiritual dances and the fashioning of ritual artifacts should and should not be performed - particularly for profit - by people who are not American Indians themselves.

In 1993, during an international gathering of the Lakota, Dakota and Nakota nations, representatives from 40 Lakota bands and tribes issued what they called a "Declaration of War Against Exploiters of Lakota Spirituality."

In it, they spoke of suffering "the unbearable indignity of having our most precious Lakota ceremonies and spiritual practices desecrated, mocked and abused by non-Indian 'wannabes,' hucksters, cultists, commercial profiteers and self-styled 'New Age shamans' and their followers."

For those interested in exploring the spirituality of American Indians, the ethical questions have become complicated. Does it become cultural theft?

"On the good side of this, you've got people who are exploring their spirituality, which is going to make them better people, more advanced, more evolved people," said Carol Brodson, publisher and editor of Spirit of Change Magazine. "But they're doing it outside the cultural context."

The controversy was highlighted last year after a letter was published in Spirit of Change Magazine, a holistic magazine published in Groton, Mass., and distributed throughout New England. The letter, from an American Indian man in Vermont, accused the magazine, its advertisers and readers of exploiting American Indian culture for profit.

A flood of letters, pro and con, followed. In September, the magazine organized a conference at Mount Washington, Mass., and participants discussed the issue. The discussion has continued, in the letters column of the magazine, and in many Internet sites on the World Wide Web.

Part of the dilemma centers around the contemporary quest for inner knowledge, with people seeking a connection to the Earth and larger spiritual meaning. This has been nurtured by concerns for the environment, multiculturalism, skepticism about large institutions, including the medical and religious communities, and the growing movement away from materialism.

This interest, which began in the 1950s and '70s with Eastern religions, natural foods, meditation and yoga, has expanded to include Ayurvedic medicine, herbalism, reiki, past life regression, spiritual imaging, feng shui, breathing workshops, shamanic healing and spirit journeys and other practices.

Battle among Jews brews in Chicago

Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO — Through an unmarked door on Devon Avenue, up a dark stairway and into a three-story suite of rooms, a dozen Russian immigrants gird themselves for another two-hour wrestling match with the English language.

In the former Soviet Union, they were scientists, engineers and college professors. Here in the United States, however, their employers are not much interested in those skills. Nor, for that matter, do politicians court their votes or advertisers chase their slim wad.

In fact, for some of these middle-aged men and women it is one thing to learn their souls one thing from them. They only here in West Rogers park, where many of Chicago's 50,000 Russian-speaking Jews have made their homes, there is a spiritual battle under way. On one side are people who call themselves Messianic Jews — people who embrace Jewish customs and celebrate Jewish holidays. They believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Messiah. Often linked to evangelical Protestant churches, they offer books, cookies and the promise of salvation.

On the other side are Jews, both Russian and American, who insist they are neither Jew nor Christian, but not both. Now, led by the local chapter of the American Jewish Committee, they are beginning their own advertising campaign to warn immigrants away from the Messianic Jews.

For nearly 2,000 years, those lacking of strong religious affiliation make them promising candidates for evangelism — goes on throughout the United States, Russia and Israel. Chicago has become a test case for opponents of Messianic Jews. The success of the American Jewish Committee's campaign here may determine whether similar efforts are mounted from New York to Tel Aviv to Moscow.

For nearly 2,000 years, believers in Christ have tried to convert Jews, an effort that was sometimes biblical, sometimes political, and often intertwined with cultural oppression of Jews. In this century, most mainline Christian churches have backed off evangelism of Jews. But from the 15-million-member Southern Baptist Convention to storefront groups of Messianic Jews, many still believe it is their sacred duty to themselves, to God and to the Jews — to share their faith.

That approach has raised bitter controversies over how far a person should go in preaching his beliefs, and whether some forms of evangelism are anti-Semitic.

The vast majority of Jewish immigrants from Russia did not practice their inherited religion there, don't practice it here, and don't know quite what to make of the Americans who are so interested in their spiritual state.

"Most of us are atheists," said Rosalie Borisovskaya, an English student. Last month, she said, two men came to her door offering Bibles and videos. Borisovskaya thought it would be a good chance to practice her English, so she invited them in, and they talked for half an hour. Finally, she had enough. "I don't like their pressure," she said.

Controversial former Mormon leader dies

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) —

Paul H. Dunn, a former Mormon church official discredited when his tales of warlike and sports heroics were unveiled as fabrications, died early Friday of a heart attack.

Dunn, 73, of Highland, died at 7:30 a.m. in a hospital, where he had been receiving care from back surgery earlier in the week, church spokesman Don LeFevre said.

Dunn, a longtime member of the First Quorum of the Seventy of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, was among the faith's most revered inspirational speakers and writers when the accuracy of his personal stories was questioned in 1991.

After the Arizona Republic reported that numerous Dunn stories could not be verified, the church's governing First Presidency issued a statement saying it had "no way of fully or firmly verifying the accuracy or inaccuracy of the current allegations or accounts that are now under challenge."

But Dunn issued an apology that was printed in the church's official newspaper, The Church News.

Years earlier, Dunn had been given emeritus general authority status by church leaders who already had been warned that Dunn's stories were not truthful.

Among Dunn stories that were discredited was an account of his best friend, Harold Lester Brown, dying in his arms during the World War II battle for Okinawa.

A freelance writer, Lynn Packer, discovered that Brown did not die in battle, but was still living in Okinawa. Mo. Center with the truth, Dunn said he had actually loosely based the story on the death of another soldier in a mortar attack he had witnessed. Dunn admitted that soldier didn't die in his arms, either.

Packer, reached at his Salt Lake home Friday, expects soon to publish what he called a "quest biography" of Dunn that will include what he said was evidence that Dunn had trouble with the truth from his youth — once making up in a letter his selection as a military baseball league's Most Valuable Player.

The well-known publicist was the greatest storyteller in the history of the church, but in fact he was the greatest fabricator in the history of the church, Packer said. "I think certain professions have a greater responsibility to tell the truth and be accurate. Journalism is one, and certainly the clergy, men and women of the cloth."

As legendary as his war stories were Dunn's baseball tales. He had written and told audiences that he signed a contract to play with the St. Louis Cardinals after graduating high school.

In truth, Dunn never played a game for the Cardinals or any other major league team. The Dodgers had named him to several practice and exhibition games in 1942 for the Cardinals.

Packer said his sources told him that following revelation about Dunn's stories, the church official for a time was harassed from speaking to church groups or publishing church newsletters. However, Packer said, that harassment apparently was lifted in past months, and Dunn was seen at recent book signings.

LeFevre could not immediately confirm whether Dunn had indeed been banned from speaking or writing for the church, or if such a ban had been lifted. A brief statement issued by the First Presidency made no mention of the controversy, simply referring to Dunn as a former teacher and advocate of youth (who served as a mission president and general authority of the church over a period of 24 years).

Dunn had been called to the First Council of the Seventy in April 1976 and was sustaining the First Quorum of the Seventy in 1976.

Baptists make friends with North Koreans

Knight-Ridder News Service

An unusual friendship is developing between Southern Baptists and communist North Korea. And a Texan, John LaNoue, has a lot to do with it. LaNoue, who works in Dallas with the Texas Baptist Men's organization, says he is a "minor player." But he has helped forge ties with North Koreans and have allowed Southern Baptists to donate food and clothing and provide other assistance to the Asian nation of 24 million.

The country has been plagued by floods, typhoons and food shortages in the past two years. "We are just responding to their concerns," said LaNoue, a Beaumont native who holds a doctorate from Golden Gate Baptist Seminary in Mill Valley, Calif.

When LaNoue was in North Korea for three months this year helping other world relief groups monitor the distribution of food sent from the United States, a North Korean official told him of the need for the coats. He relayed the request to the Southern International Mission Board, which is handling the project.

The first load of 50,000 coats was flown this week to North Korea on Russian transport planes leaving from Houston. LaNoue said that most children in North Korea cannot walk considerable distances to their schools, and temperatures can get as low as 4 below zero. Other groups, including World Vision and Catholic Relief Services, also are working in North Korea, he said.

Baptists sent several semitrailer loads of dehydrated food donated by Breddlove Dehydrators in Lubbock to North Korea in early 1996, and LaNoue put out word that Baptist volunteers went to North Korea to remove salt from farmland flooded by sea water.

Then, when Typhoon Winnie hit last August, it left mud covering the salt-producing evaporation ponds of North Korea, and LaNoue put out word that help was needed. Within a few days Texas Baptist Men bought $60,000 worth of salt in China and shipped it to North Korea. Salt is needed to preserve kimchi, the food staple similar to sauerkraut that is made from fermented cabbage.

Religion isn't given a high priority in North Korea. No missionaries are allowed to be permanently assigned to the country. But government officials can allow religious groups in on a temporary basis for benevolent purposes. A few Protestant and Catholic churches exist in the country, but they have often received with hostility. The borders still are armed camps.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Among the nations of Europe, none has a deeper love for the Virgin Mary than Portugal.

Explorers sought her blessing before naming the sea soldiers invoked her name before heading off to war. She is Portugal's patron saint and its queen — the nation's mortal royalty wore no crowns.

That love is the subject of an exhibit at the Newark Museum, "Crowning Glory: The Art of the Virgin in the Arts of Portugal."

Cosponsored by the New Jersey Performing Arts Center as part of its year-long celebration of Portuguese culture, the exhibit opened Nov. 26 and runs through Feb. 8.

Eighteen months in the making, the exhibit displays almost 80 pieces from Portugal and its former colonies in places such as India, China and Africa.

The curators of the show borrow from the pieces found in churches and private collections all over Portugal. They date from the 15th century to the present. The idea is to find some way to celebrate Portuguese culture, the exhibit's goal for the last 20 years, said director Mary Sue Sweeney Price.

The Newark area is home to about 30,000 people of Portuguese ancestry.

The show includes a number of mediums such as paintings, sculptures, and tiles.

A security guard looks at the description of a 16th century painting of the Virgin Mary and the Christ Child at the Newark Museum in Newark, N.J., in December.

The artworks depict Mary throughout her life, from her birth and life before Christ was born to her sorrow at his death to her own death and ascension to heaven.

I've talked to FBI investigators about the underground child pornography trade in this country, and they've described for me some of the photos and how the images became the target for inclusion in these images. The mere thought of a child being forced or enticed to perform these acts makes my stomach turn.

People who produce pornography can be ruthless and brutal characters. Some may argue, defensively, that while they may enjoy an occasional glimpse at a pornographic film or magazine, they would never subscribe to child pornography or deal with people who do. But how do you know what other projects the peddlers of your favorite pornography are involved with?

If only more people would turn off their electronic cameras as they are shut off. Then they would realize in more cases than not that they are deriving pleasure from some human's suffering.

Missionaries plan 26-mile marathon run — in shirts, ties

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Amid a sea of Spandex in Saturday's Charlotte Observer marathon, four runners are sure to stand out. They are Mormon missionaries who plan to jog the whole way in white shirts, black socks, dress slacks, ties and plastic nametapes. If it gets too hot to go door-to-door in it, it's good enough to run a marathon in.

Adam Gerlach, 19, said some of the 100 other missionaries working the area think maybe this is taking devotion too far. "They've all offered to come to our funerals." The missionaries are spending two years in the area, riding bicycles from one house to another, sharing the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints with whomever answers. As much as they'd love to share the Word with a passing runner or two (or two thousand), they know they'll be in no position to minister. They'll be lucky if they can keep their hearts in church, spokesman Scott Gearhart said.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Services will be unavailable to unit's inmates
BOISE — While they are in the reception diagnostic unit, new state prison inmates will have no access to religious services, prison officials have declared. It takes about 10 days to process new prisoners through the reception diagnostic unit. During that period, the new inmates were kept out of religious services, according to a policy adopted Dec. 18. "We have just eliminated any sort of religious interaction during the 10 days they are in the RDU," said Department of Correction spokesman Mark Carpio. "Once they get out of the RDU, no matter where they wind up, they will have full access to any religious opportunities."

All male inmates coming into the Idaho prison system are processed first at the reception diagnostic facility, even those sentenced to a diversion program that might allow them to be released on probation after 120 days of evaluation.

Spiritual leader suffers from illnesses
CORWIN SPRINGS, Mont. — The spiritual leader and former president of the Church of God and Triumphant is suffering from epilepsy and a neurological disorder. Elizabeth Clare Prophet, 58, disclosed the ailments at a church conference in San Antonio, Texas. Church spokesman Chris Kelley said Prophet is confident in her ability to continue to lead the church.

"She's going to one of the top neurologists in the world," he said. Her physician, Dr. Jo Leppik, a clinical professor of neurology and pharmacology at the University of Minnesota, said the neurological disorder was found during treatment for epilepsy. He said the disorder "is characterized by memory loss that inhibits her ability to accurately recall past and recent events and which interferes with new learning."

DEULO - Deelo High School Lab Bands I, II and III will perform at 7 p.m. Monday in the new Deelo Elementary gym.

Concepts - Deelo is a semi-professional jazz combo based out of Twin Falls, will also perform. Admission is $3 per person or $10 for families and proceeds will be used to pay for the three groups to attend the 1998 Weber State University Jazz Festival in March.

The Deelo Lab Bands will perform jazz and popular music, including tunes made famous by Nat King Cole, Benny Golson, Celine Dion, Count Basie, Richard Rodgers, Woody Herman, Eric Clapton, Spandau Ballet, Walt Disney and Carole King.

Concepts plays regularly around the Magic Valley in places such as Satchemo's, Java, The Club, Blue Lakes Country Club and in Sun Valley. They are in demand for private parties and dances. They were selected to perform on the first Idaho All Jazz Ensemble Concert and are the 'house' band for the College

Members of the Deelo High School Lab Bands will be performing Monday at the new Deelo Elementary School gym.

Charity-Anywhere and the Pullmans thank all the many volunteers who assisted in the construction.

Not all of the expenses have been paid, so contributions are welcome. Please send your donation to Charity-Anywhere.

Search for Mother of the Year continues

BOISE - State Treasurer Lydia Justice Edwards, Idaho's current lieutenant governor and mother-in-law, has issued a call for help in finding the state's 1998 Mother of the Year.

The contest was first organized in 1933 "to strengthen the moral and spiritual foundations of the family and to provide the children with cultural and spiritual programs to mothers and opportunities for service in areas such as tutoring, literacy and mother mentor programs.

To be considered for Mother of the Year, a nominee must have a proven education character, be at least 45 years of age, have been married in a legally accepted ceremony, be a mother of older children more than one year at the time of nomination) and be nominated by at least one sponsoring organization (nominations will not be accepted from the woman's family, a member of her family or a "family organization." Nominees must be actively involved in the selection process. Contest rules require that each nominee submit essays describing her children and their achievements; the influence of her husband on the children's achievements and her "philosophy of parenting."

All nominees become members of AMI, and the woman chosen as Mother of the Year will receive a certificate of honor and board for one year after her selection. The state Mother of the Year will be asked to prepare and coordinate an interfaith event during her tenure.

To receive a nomination, sponsoring organizations should write to Lydia Justice Edwards, State Treasurer's Office, P.O. Box 83720, Boise, ID 83720-0091, or call Marvellen Daney at (208) 334-3200. Resumes may be sent via e-mail to lydia@mironet.com.

Deadline to submit nominations is Feb. 1.

Artists create using a pile of snow

MCALL - The 12th annual Snow Sculpting Championship will be held Feb. 3-5 during the McCall Winter Festival.

Artists are invited to participate. Teams will consist of three people only. They will be given a 5-foot by 5-foot by 8-foot high snow block and three days to create a snow sculpture. Teams need to provide their own transportation and tools. No power tools or torches are permitted. Only snow and water may be used. While in McCall, teams receive free board and room.

For more information or an application, call Diane Wiegand or Evan Bennett at (208) 634-7056.

chosen because of the outstanding assistance she provides to school counselors in the Magic Valley. She has effectively worked in partnership with high school counselors to assist students in seeking educational opportunities. She has organized higher education programs for area high schools, the Magic Valley College and Career Fair, developed a CSI webbook and recruitment video for CSI and co-adviser to the CSI Ambassadors. During 1996-97, she chaired the High School Relations Committee for Coordinating the Higher Education Tour, where challenging representatives travel and meet with high school seniors throughout the state regarding post-secondary school opportunities.

Casperon was nominated by Magic Valley School Counselors Association President Wendy Ellis. The Idaho School Counselors Association Professional Recognition Committee, chaired by Revis Turner, will submit the recipient's name for the Year Award to the American School Counselors Association for a national award.
