Magic Valley may lose legislators

Reapportionment scheduled in 2002

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

BOISE — Fewer legislators may represent the Magic Valley when Idaho legislative districts are reshuffled in the year 2002.

That's the opinion of one legislator who has closely studied this issue in the past and is looking at the next round of redrawing districts.

Any number of nine Magic Valley legislators in Districts 20, 21 and 22 may find themselves challenging incumbents from elsewhere, including Boise.

The changes will be part of legislative "reapportionment," a shifting of the political map that occurs every 10 years. It follows population growth. The state constitution requires each legislator to represent the same number of voters, for purposes of equal representation.

A population boom in northern and western Idaho means more legislators are needed in those areas, according to U.S. Census Bureau projections for the year 2000. The Magic Valley simply didn't keep up with that growth, so it may lose some of its representation.

"You'll see some pretty major shuffling, who knows what legislators it will impact," said Sen. Evan Frasure, R-Pocatello, who has researched possible district changes for 2002, and worked on the redistricting that occurred earlier in the 1990s.

Specifically, the Magic Valley may lose half of one of its five legislative districts, Frasure said.

That may leave vulnerable Sen. Robbi

King, R-Glenns Ferry, who represents Elmore and Owyhee counties in District 20.

King's district is likely to experience an influx of 16,000 new voters in the Elmore and Ada County. In the 2002 election, he might want to be able to place all the voters in that area in his district.

The Senate's majority leader, Sen. Steve Boise, said.

King said he would like to see a redistribution of voters in the Magic Valley. He said he would like to see a redistribution of voters in the Magic Valley. He said he would like to see a redistribution of voters in the Magic Valley.

RIGHTS ADVOCATE

Bill Wassmuth, director of the Northwest Coalition Against Malicious Harassment, talks with Pete Espinoza, director of migrant education for Minidoka School District, before giving a talk at the College of Southern Idaho Tuesday night. Wassmuth's visit was part of the Martin Luther King Jr. Day celebration.

Activist speaks out against hate

Area has a long way to go in battle against all biases.

By Jennifer Sendmann
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The leader of an organization that fights hate groups visited the College of Southern Idaho Tuesday in honor of this week's national recognition of human rights.

Bill Wassmuth, executive director of the Northwest Coalition Against Malicious Harassment, is a man of German descent who grew up in Greencreek, a German town, population 32, near Lewiston.

He has been the object of the Aryan Nations' hate. White supremacists targeted the Catholic priest when he was chairman of the Kootenai County Task Force on Human Relations and bombed his Coeur d'Alene home in 1986.

Racist letter — AS

Wassmuth spoke Monday at the Idaho Statehouse in honor of Martin Luther King Jr. Day, which Idaho recognizes as Idaho Human Rights Day.

He continued speaking engagements earlier Tuesday with high school students in Hailey and later to a group of about 20 people at the College of Southern Idaho. The Student Senate's Diversity Council hosted his visit.

The Northwest Coalition Against Malicious Harassment is a nonprofit umbrella organization with members in six northwestern states.

Wassmuth said Martin Luther King Jr. Day is an occasion to review personal commitments to standing up against hate.

"It's an important day, because we still have a long way to go," Wassmuth said.

To illustrate that bigotry and hate continue, Wassmuth read an e-mail addressed to Gov. Phil Batt from Michael A. Huffman II in Coeur d'Alene. The e-mail warned Batt against trying to help

Idaho's Hispanics.

Huffman's e-mail said conservative Republicans are just as evil as Democrats when it comes to betraying white Americans. He also said a good number of Idaho residents are refugees from crime-ridden areas of the southwest United States, where Hispanics predominate.

"Is it not our human right to have at least one state where white Americans predominate and live free of crime?" Huffman asked. "Hispanics have captured the American Southwest. Your 'initiative' will help them demographically swamp Idaho as well."

The coalition has been watching Huffman for some time, Wassmuth said. Subtle forms of white supremacy affect minorities more than the blatant sort exhibited by white supremacists, Wassmuth said. The subtle kind appears in forms of English-only laws, practices that block economic advancement and stereotypes that breed paranoia.

Individuals who ignore injustices are, just as guilty as those who commit them.

Proposals deal with safe water, waste problems

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

BOISE — How dairies should handle manure, and the safety of the public's drinking water, will be the topics of a hearing before the House and Senate agricultural committees Tuesday.

Agricultural supporters and government agencies have drafted rules that would threaten dairies with state and federal penalties if waste runoff leaves a dairy's property boundaries, or if too much manure is applied on dairy fields.

Dairies may sue out compliance only if runoff seeps into canals and rivers. The proposal also expands the definition of waste to include all livestock on dairies, not just cows.

Bill Gilmore, environmental coordinator for the city of Twin Falls, said he drafted the proposal in vague and was threatened at the exclusion of cities and environmental groups. He also said the proposal should penalize farmers who buy manure from dairies and overapply it as fertilizer.

"The proposal is a great start, but they're a great," Gilmore said. "I question how enforceable they are."

South of Twin Falls, nitrates are in drinking water at a concentration of 5.8 milligrams per liter, slightly more than half the maximum legally allowed. Nitrates can cause illness at any concentration higher than 10 milligrams per liter.

Though it's impossible to say where the nitrates came from, Gilmore said 1990 federal studies of the area show 29 percent of nitrates in the ground come from animal manure, including manure from dairy cows.

Gilmore said he would like to see more citizen input, and have a committee set up to review how well the rules work.

"The Snake River Plain Aquifer, where most of the Magic Valley's drinking water flows directly beneath many dairies.

In Cuba, a few shoulders bear the future

Student priests from San Carlos Seminary in Havana rehearse the Mass to be celebrated by Pope John Paul II during his visit to Cuba. The pontiff arrives today.

Today's papal visit may mark dawn of era

HAVANA — Gustavo Gonzalez — tall, thick-necked, handsome — got the word from his father in exile: Come to America, get into business, be a success.

But then, he says, he was summoned by the Father of all, called to compete in an even tougher league.

"Because in Cuba," said the 25-year-old seminarian, "this is the hour of the church."

"The calling" may have come later for his seminary classmates Juan Carlos Carballo and Miguel Angel Blanco, but they hear it just as clearly.

"Being a priest is not simply a profession," said Carballo, 35, who entered San Carlos Seminary after years working for the Cuban state. "It's a stage in life, the result of a personal encounter with Christ."

The trio, midway through an eight-year priestly education, know that the Cuba of their fathers may be in the middle of another encounter, one centered on the future of their nation. And tomorrow may begin to dawn to them. When Pope John Paul II arrives for a historic visit to this communist island in the Caribbean.

"We will be the center of the world during those days," said Blanco, 32. "We don't know what will happen."

What he hopes will happen is the pope's visit will pressure Fidel Castro's government, which ended 30 years of official atheism in 1992, into loosening more strictures.

Idaho: The remnants of the latest disturbance produced cloudy skies over most of the state. However, in western and south central sections, a few locations reported some afternoon sunshine. Mid-temperatures ranged from 21 at Malheur to 45 at Caldwell.

Plains: Wind gusted to 40 mph from northern Texas to Kansas, helping temperatures rise into the 40s. A storm that moved through the central U.S. Monday worked into the Plains, bringing light snow from Iowa to eastern Montana. Sleet and rain sputter over eastern Nebraska, southern Iowa, northern Missouri and western Illinois.

West Coast: A low pressure system off the coast in the Northeast brought clouds and scattered light showers from Maine to New Jersey. Western Michigan, northeastern Ohio and northwestern Pennsylvania got light to moderate snow.

East Coast: Light rain was scattered from Washington to central California.

West: Clashes resumed Tuesday for the first time since an ice storm ravaged much of Maine nearly two weeks ago.

affected by policy dictated from the state level by a person from Ada County," she said.
Blaine County might be split in a re-districting plan. Still, Sen. Clint Stennett, D-Ketchum, doesn't believe the Magic Valley will lose representation.
"The legislative committee that redrew the lines in 1990 took into account cultural values and the region's concentration of government services," the Magic Valley kept its five districts, he said, "basically because of the power we hold."
Stennett's District 21 covers Blaine, Camas and Lincoln counties and portions of Gooding and Elmore counties.
But Frazier said a projected 250,000 new residents have come to Idaho in the 1990s, while almost no population growth occurred during the 1980s.

This time around, a committee of citizens — not legislators — will make the final reapportionment.
The committee signed off on new districts — it must adhere to the 35 districts allowed in the state constitution. To ensure equal distribution of voters, the committee will probably start with population changes in the northernmost county. Boundary, and work its way down toward the Magic Valley and eastern Idaho, he said.
Other possibilities under reapportionment include a fight between Stennett and Stennett or King and Sen. John Sandy, R-Hagerman, the Senate's assistant majority leader. Sandy's legislative District 22 takes in portions of Gooding and Twin Falls counties.
Other legislators who may face a challenge from another incumbent include:

- District 20 Reps. Jim Jones, R-Mountain Home, and Frances Field, R-Grand View.
  - District 21 Reps. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, and Tim Ridinger, R-Shoshone.
  - District 22 Reps. Celia Gould, R-Buhl, and Doug Jones, R-Pocatello.
- "Frazier added that it would be "hard to project at this stage" how likely it is that two incumbents would square off. The citizens' committee will draw the lines on the political map two years from now.
"Standy said so far, he is unconcerned."
"I'm not even thinking about it right now," Sandy said. "I've got a job to do and I'm going to see that it's done."

Cloning enters brave moo world

BOZEMAN (AP) — On a ranch in Texas, a herd of cows is about to give birth to what may be the future of the pharmaceutical industry.
Scientists said Tuesday they have developed a technique for cloning genetically customized calves that will be able to produce medicines for humans in their milk.
"The first cloned calves — George and Charlie — were born last week, giving hope that cloned cows could become living pharmaceutical factories."
"The applications for this in pharmaceutical production are enormous," said Dr. Steven Sills of Advanced Cell Technology Inc., one of the collaborators in the project.
Although the first clones are males, the real payoff will come with females.

Cows that could produce human serum albumin would be a huge boon to hospitals, which are forced to rely on donated blood for the 480 tons of albumin needed every year.
"It's a big deal," said Mark Westhuis, a researcher at Texas A&M University. "This technology has the potential to be a lot more efficient than the technology that we have now."
Patients suffering from liver disease lose significant amounts of blood protein through their urine. In cases of malnutrition, the body takes protein from the blood if it is not available through food.
And because the skin holds much of the body's moisture, burn patients can become severely dehydrated and lose protein that must be replenished.

giving the Roman Catholic Church here more "espacio" space to grow.
The seminarians spoke with a reporter during a break as they rehearsed their roles for Sunday's service. Mass in St. Mary's was the first of the year.
"In their black robes and violet sashes, they are a rare breed in today's Cuba."
Only 107 students are enrolled in Cuba's two seminaries, and last year only five new priests were ordained. The struggling church depends heavily on foreign clerics. Barely half the island's 288 priests are Cuban.
The population of regularly practicing Catholics is small — perhaps 150,000 in a nation of 11 million people. Even so, there are too few priests to minister to them.
The road to priesthood is not easy in Cuba — and not just because the government circumscribes church activity. Family and friends can be a problem, too.

"As a first, friends don't understand this choice we make," said Blanco, a fresh-faced onetime medical technician. "But eventually they come around, they support you."
Gonzalez told his story.
"I went to church until I was 13 or so, then I returned to it around age 17," he recalled. "I began to ask myself: Do I want to be a priest?"
Once he "answered" the calling, he said, it bordered his parents, who are separated — his father in Miami, his mother in Havana.
"It was difficult for my father. He had a different future in mind for me, as a businessman," Gonzalez said.
The square-jawed young Cuban likes much of what he has seen in visits up north. But "the United States is no paradise," he pointed out.
He and the other seminarians are honing a world view that looks past the clash of ideologies.

"The church's social doctrine develops on a much higher level, higher than capitalist, or communist systems," said Carballo, who worked as a civil engineer in western Cuba for five years.
But the U.S. system does offer the church clear advantages, he noted.
"There are more opportunities," he said. "The church can have universities, hospitals, access to TV and radio — all examples of the 'space' the Havana government denies the Cuban church."
Ultimately, Carballo said, Cuba's faithful even hope to reopen parochial schools.
But their most ambitious hopes clearly may have to wait for a historic political transition, one of the world's few remaining communist systems.
"And some analysts believe the worldwide church could play a role in that transition."

Doctor labels Kaczynski schizophrenic

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A federal prison psychiatrist who found Unabomber suspect Theodore Kaczynski competent to stand trial also diagnosed him as paranoid schizophrenic, The Associated Press learned Tuesday.
Dr. Sally Johnson of the federal Bureau of Prisons reached that conclusion after a full week of interviews with Kaczynski. She filed a 47-page report over the weekend, which was kept secret by the judge.
Also Tuesday, other sources said that plea negotiations letter to her report.

The letter did not identify the diagnosis. Sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said Johnson concluded that Kaczynski suffers from paranoid schizophrenia.
The disease is often characterized by delusions of persecution and can lead to violence.
But Johnson found the disease would not interfere with Kaczynski's ability to understand the proceedings of his trial and assist his lawyers with his defense — the only criteria for competence to stand trial.
Patton didn't think the rules are vague, either.

NATION IN BRIEF

Judge says he never intended wolf killings

CASPER, Wyo. — A federal judge says he never intended for Canadian wolves to be killed when he ordered their removal from Yellowstone National Park and central Idaho.

The wolves should be removed from the region in the same humane manner they were put in the area in 1995 and 1996, said U.S. District Judge William Downes.

"The order to remove the wolves is not intended to serve as a license to euthanize wolves and any interpretation that it does so is misplaced," Downes said in a clarification of his order last month. The clarification was filed in U.S. District Court in Casper Friday.

The leader of an environmental group challenging Downes' ruling said the clarification will not change the fact that there will be no place to put the wolves if they are removed.

New Pap smear is costly, researchers say

CHICAGO — A computer system for double-checking Pap smears was no better than humans with microscopes at finding possible early signs of cervical cancer in a new study, and the automation costs far more, researchers say.

The technology might be worth the cost in laboratories that process a higher proportion of abnormal Pap smears or that employ less accurate technicians than the one in the study, researchers said.

The study was conducted at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology in Washington.

Researchers at the institute said a computer system called PAPER-NET found only six slides containing unusual cells among 5,478 Pap smears that had been judged normal in 1994 and 1995 by technicians using a microscope.

The costs per slide were about $3 when examined by a technician and $9.38 using PAPER-NET.

Study: Competition for jobs lowers wages

WASHINGTON — Competition from immigrants for low-wage jobs reduces the paychecks for Americans on the lowest rungs of the job ladder by up to 12 percent, according to a Washington think tank that contends current immigration rates are too high.

The Center for Immigration Studies, in an analysis of Census Bureau statistics, contends that immigration affects wages nationwide, not just in high-immigrant areas, because native-born workers are likely to move when pushed out of their labor market by immigrants.

The center's estimate of wage losses for native-born Americans in lower-skilled jobs is significantly higher than other researchers have concluded.

Man gets prison term for shootout with police

WILMINGTON, Ohio — A man sentenced Tuesday to 24 1/2 years in state prison for shooting at Ohio police officers in a widespread gun battle said his brother was involved in bombing a federal building.

"At this point, I do have knowledge of my brother's involvement in the bombing of a federal building," Cheyne Kehoe said, referring to his brother, Cheyne Kehoe.

Cheyne Kehoe, 21, declined to elaborate in his remarks to reporters after he was sentenced in Clinton County Common Pleas Court for the Feb. 15 gunfight with police officers. He was convicted Jan. 12 of attempted murder, felonious assault and carrying a concealed weapon. The two brothers are from Colville, Wash.

Feds pressure health professionals to pay loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers can check the Internet to find out if their doctors and other health care providers are among more than 13,000 who have defaulted on federally insured student loans.

Defaulters were barred Tuesday from serving the 74 million elderly, disabled and low-income Americans covered by the federal Medicare and Medicaid health insurance programs.

The health professionals include — but are not limited to — medical doctors, optometrists, dentists, podiatrists, psychologists and health care administrators, the majority of whom work in California, Florida, Georgia, New York, Pennsylvania and Texas.

The largest group of practitioners on the list is chiropractors. Their names were also posted on the Internet, and will be published in the Federal Register.

"We're looking to try to put these names out and have as much pressure as possible to bring these people around to repay their loans," said Dr. Claude Earl Fox, acting administrator of the federal Health Resources and Services Administration, which oversees the Health Education Assistance Loan program.

A total of 1,402 defaulters owe more than $107 million, or an average of $76,000 each, Fox said.

When contacted, several on the list declined to comment. However, chiropractor Allan Rockmead of Redlands, Calif., said he defaulted on his student loan because he has had trouble getting his practice going since finishing school.

"Everyone hears about these doctors with their cars and a house who just refuse to pay," said Rockmead. "I would love to pay back. I would love to have my credit rating back. But I'm not able to."

Rockmead, who owes $99,021, said he has stayed in contact with the HEAL program and pays what he can.

NATION IN BRIEF

Kaczynski is competent to stand trial

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Theodore Kaczynski is competent to stand trial, prosecutors and defense lawyers for the Unabomber suspect agreed Tuesday.

But the question of who would represent Kaczynski — his current defense team, a new set of attorneys or the defendant himself — was not immediately resolved.

Both the government and Kaczynski's current lawyers agreed that the defendant, who was examined last week by a government psychiatrist, meets the standards for trial — that he understands what is happening and is capable of assisting his lawyers in his defense.

U.S. District Judge Garland Burrell Jr. said he would decide Thursday whether to order Kaczynski to proceed with his current lawyers or allow the defendant to represent himself. Burrell said he planned to proceed with the trial as early as 10 a.m. Thursday.

1 conviction against official dismissed

PHOENIX — A federal judge Tuesday dismissed one of the seven bank fraud convictions against former Arizona Gov. Fife Symington.

U.S. District Judge Roger Strand granted the motion for acquittal during a hearing dealing with a presentencing report. The hearing was continuing; the reason for the dismissal wasn't immediately known.

Symington is to be sentenced Feb. 2 on six charges alleging that he defrauded lenders during his previous career as a real estate developer. Strand dismissed a count alleging that Symington made a false statement to Valley National Bank about his net worth. Prosecutors said Symington told bank officials that a 6-month-old financial statement was still current in hopes of obtaining concessions on a personal loan.

Bill would restrict subsidy for 'net hookup'

WASHINGTON — Schools that use federal money to hook up in the Internet would have to restrict student access to e-mail material under a plan being floated on Capitol Hill.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., the Senate Commerce Committee chairman and an ardent critic of the Federal Communications Commission's Internet subsidy program, said Tuesday that he intends to offer a bill to make this happen.

The subsidies, which come from payments imposed on telecommunications carriers and some of their customers, provide schools, libraries and rural health care specialists with discounted hookups to the Internet.

Mary Bono says GOP urges her to run

LOS ANGELES — Rep. Sonny Bono's widow said top Republicans and an ardent critic of the Federal Communications Commission's Internet subsidy program, said Tuesday that he intends to offer a bill to make this happen.

The subsidies, which come from payments imposed on telecommunications carriers and some of their customers, provide schools, libraries and rural health care specialists with discounted hookups to the Internet.

Mary Bono said she will decide by the end of the week whether to seek the office in a special election set for April 7. "I need to know that her children would be happy with whatever I do," she said on CNN's "Larry King Live."

Agency will follow law on roadless areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Responding to criticism from Western Republicans, a Forest Service official said Tuesday the agency's upcoming policy changes on logging and road building won't short-circuit existing laws.

"Anything we do will comply with all existing environmental laws and fully involve people," agency spokesman Chris Wood said.

The new policy likely would be found illegal if it imposed an immediate moratorium on logging in roadless areas, Rep. Don Young, R-Alaska, chairman of the House Resources Committee, and 18 other GOP lawmakers told Forest Service Chief Mike Dombeck in a letter last week.

They cited decision-making procedures outlined in the National Forest Management Act (NFMA) and National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). Wood wouldn't discuss details of the policy changes, expected to be announced in the coming weeks. But he said they would be subject to the usual requirements for environmental analysis and public comment.

Tim Hermach, executive director of the Native Forest Council in Eugene, Ore., said the Western Republicans were distorting the intent of the environmental laws with their concerns about procedure. "They are trying to make the public think the law protects logging interests," Hermach said Tuesday. "The intent of NFMA and NEPA was to protect the public interest, the health and well-being of the forests and watersheds," he said.

Also on the congressional front, Rep. John Porter, R-Ill., sent a letter to Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman saying the administration's new policy could head off what has become an annual appropriations showdown in Congress.

Porter and Rep. Joseph Kennedy, D-Mass., came within two votes last year of passing an amendment on the House floor that would cut off all federal spending on logging roads. The outlays totaled about $47 million last year. "I am pleased that the chief of the Forest Service ... is presently working on a forest-road reform effort that I hope will obviate the need for future such debates in Congress," Porter said in the letter, sent last week.

"Given new scientific information that documents the social and ecological importance of roadless areas and the irreversibility of building new roads, I believe that the agency should severely curtail new road construction in roadless areas system-wide until they have a better understanding of the ecological consequences..."

Union chief touts UPS deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the Independent Pilots Association says the union's contract settlement with UPS will be the envy of other pilots. But he's not giving details.

"While I'd like to say all the comparisons to all the airlines, I won't because they would be jealous," a smiling Capt. Bob Miller said Tuesday at a joint news conference with company officials.

UPS operates what it describes as the 10th-largest airline in North America. The 2,100 pilots who fly its 214 planes had been insisting on an industry-leading contract. But at the outset of the latest round of talks, Miller said the union would accept as a benchmark the deal FedEx Corp. offered its pilots late last year.

Idaho teacher ponders space shot

BOISE (AP) — McCall third-grade teacher Barbara Morgan said Tuesday that NASA's decision to train her as an "educator-astronaut" for a future space shuttle flight is a natural extension of the teaching program she entered 13 years ago.

"It's not a one-shot thing or a two-shot thing or whatever. This is fully integrating education — which has always been a really important part of NASA's mission — into a highly visible area, and broadening the reach of the astronaut program," Morgan said at a news conference.

She was the backup to original Teacher in Space Christa McAuliffe, who died with the rest of the crew when the shuttle Challenger exploded on Jan. 28, 1986. After waiting so long for her own opportunity, Morgan

Christa McAuliffe was and always will be our Teacher in Space, and I'm really proud of her," Morgan said. "That's something that will never, ever get overshadowed and that never should be forgotten."

Until last week there was no indication when Morgan might get an opportunity to continue McAuliffe's work; but she persevered, and Goldin said a NASA panel reviewed her case, and finally recommended that she be trained as a mission specialist to perform shuttle duties beyond education. "It was not unexpected because we've been working very hard on this for many, many years," Morgan said. "I had full confidence that at some point, when the time was right, decisions would be made and we would move forward."

Man wants Batt about takeover by Hispanics

BOISE (AP) — A Coeur d'Alene man who human rights advocates say is active in white supremacy circles has warned Gov. Phil Batt against trying to help Idaho's Hispanics.

But northern Idaho lawmakers and officials for the Idaho Association of Realtors are condemning Michael Hoffman II's written remarks to Batt.

During his State of the State address last week, Batt said Idaho denounces "hatred racism" spread by groups such as the Aryan Nations and that his Hispanic initiative is designed to build on the talents and ambitions of the Hispanic people.

In a subsequent e-mail to Batt, Hoffman said conservative Republicans are just as well as Democrats when it comes to betraying white Americans. He said many Idahoans are refugees from crime-ridden areas of the southwest United States, where Hispanics predominate.

"Is it not our human right to have at least one state where white Americans predominate and live free of crime?" Hoffman asked. "Hispanics have captured the American Southwest. Your initiatives will help them demographically swamp Idaho as well."

Idaho colleges should prepare youth for jobs of the future

The trouble with the folks who draw up and approve higher-education budgets is that most of them hold traditional degrees from traditional academic programs.

Few have much idea of the skills required to debug a computer network, or operate a cell-phone translator or repair a fax-jet.

Unfortunately, that's where many of the jobs will be in the next 30 years. By some estimates, as many as 80 percent of the occupations most in demand after the turn of the century won't require a four-year college degree.

They won't be able to find jobs in their area of knowledge.

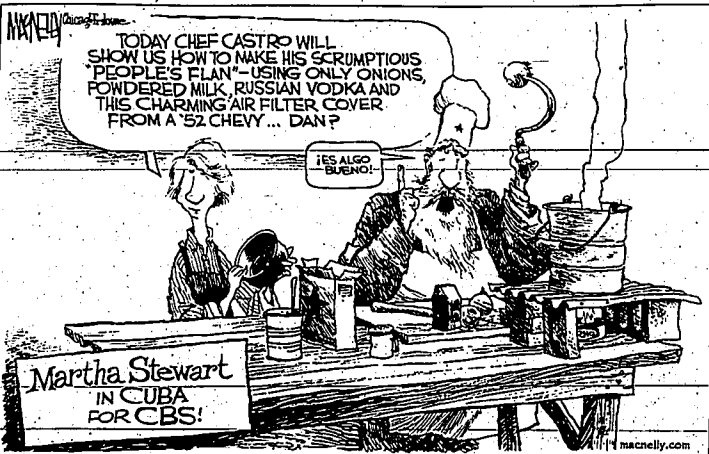

Which is not to say that traditional academic education isn't important. The doctors and lawyers and teachers of tomorrow need to know math and science and history and languages.

But to serve the next generation of Idahoans, the state's higher-education system should be equally nimble in turning out more registered nurses at North Idaho College and food-service technicians at CSI.

It isn't yet. Although the Legislature hasn't exactly heaped vocational education over the past few decades, no one would argue that technical ed isn't just a step-child in the state's higher-ed system.

It's still considered complementary to public education's principal mission, and that extends down to the high school level.

Local school boards and public school administrators too often ignore the very real need for technical education. It cycles its time to build schools and curricula. That mind-set has to change. There are fewer than a half million taxpayers in Idaho, and that's just not enough to support a school system that doesn't provide what our kids need.

Liberal mind allows pope, Castro comparison

Although the Niagara of words from people connected with, or commenting on, the visits of Yasser Arafat to the United States and of Pope John Paul II in Cuba was bound to contain some nonsense, the quantity of it has been astonishing. But useful, because it illuminates the liberal mentality.

The Holocaust Memorial Museum extended then scorching, then re-extended an invitation to Arafat to visit. The invitation came at the behest of several of the State Department's makers of Middle East policy who "felt strongly."

The Washington Post reports, that a visit "could mark a psychological breakthrough for skeptical Jews and help Arafat understand the fears of an adversary."

Skeptical Jews presumably doubt the peaceful intentions of Arafat, whose vocation is the killing of Jews; whose Palestine Liberation Organization is committed to the destruction of the Jewish state created in the aftermath of the Holocaust; and who funds the dissemination of the idea that the Holocaust is a Zionist fiction. Imagine the State Department mind that thinks Arafat needs "help" in understanding the Holocaust.

The idea that an Arafat visit to a museum would be a "breakthrough" illuminates three defining assumptions in the liberal mind: Harmony is the natural condition of mankind; conflict is the result of misunderstandings or "psychological" problems; meaning from conflict, that can be dispelled by "dialogue." And foreign policy, like all government, should be therapeutic. Hence the national "conversation" en route. And the academic discipline of "conflict resolution."

The liberal assumption undergirding the "peace process" is that constant territorial and other concessions by Israel will improve the regional "atmosphere" (a synonym for "psychology") that Israel's final borders will not matter much. State Department liberals cannot understand what Prime Minister Netanyahu understands for Arafat, an Israeli withdrawal to the 1967 borders.

GEORGE F. WILL

would be an "interim solution." Israel's destruction is his final solution. The pope's visit to Cuba illuminates the liberal mentality's inability to disapprove of a communist as heuristically as it disapproves of Joe Camel. Exhibit A: this Washington Post headline: "Castro

America's secretary of state (Cyrus Vance) proclaimed that Leonid Brezhnev "shares our dreams and aspirations." (Brezhnev just differed about judging shares of neighboring nations—stuff like that.)

Still, must Time magazine refer to the pope and Castro as "two giants of the 20th century"? The pope, a spark that lit the fuse in Eastern Europe, is perhaps the most consequential man of the century's second half. Castro's "giant" achievement — it is remarkable — is to have prevented his captive population of 11 million from participating in the greatest years of wealth-creation and freedom-expansion in history.

Perhaps it amounts to breaking a butterfly on a wheel, but consider Time again: "Both are absolute rulers of their realms... Each plays a dominant role on the world stage, imposing his system of belief upon millions through brilliant intellect and sheer force of will."

Vatican City, Cuba, whatever. Castro's "force of will" would be nothing without his police; his "bulldozer" makes him an intellectually buffoonish inhabitant of the ludicrous lib-tul-tul-sac called Marxism. Even in Cuba, there are few Mandarins, other than those trying to impose Marxism.

The pope, who in two decades has been seen by more people than anyone in history, does not impose "his system" on any of the 981,455,000 communicants who freely confess his faith. Living in an age when religion is no longer a necessary legitimizer of political and social arrangements, he has made his religion the most powerful delegitimizing sort of arrangements that keep Castro's boots on 11 million necks.

Two giants? Hardly. An unfortunate island's unhappiness was deepened for decades because Castro seized power on Jan. 1, 1959. The world changed profoundly and for the better because of the event announced by a puff of white smoke over the 108 acres of Vatican City on Oct. 16, 1978.

Howdy Doody could win in GOP

From what I could gather from the editorial in The Times-News last week, all it takes to get elected into office in this area is to be a Republican. I suppose if a puppet like Howdy Doody were running on the Republican ticket, he'd be a shoe-in. So howdy, Dennis. JAMES R. STEWART

Subdivision threatens water

Pointe West Subdivision's application for a special-use permit will be coming before the planning and zoning board again on Jan. 26. This subdivision application is for 59 homes with lots of one acre with individual wells and septic systems.

An environmental impact study previously done on this land stated the soil was not suitable for septic systems in moderate density. The soils of the Jerome area have been classified by the state of Idaho and the Soil Conservation Service to be sensitive soils. In such soils, septic system effluents can become suspended in the soils, causing blockage of the drain fields. This results in the outflow of sewage on the surface of the ground, posing potential health hazards.

Additionally, soils can become saturated and waste can percolate down through these shallow soils to underlying bedrock, which contains fissures and openings that transport groundwater to the Snake River Aquifer. If polluted effluents reach these openings, they could very rapidly pollute the groundwater resource. In recent letters from the Environmental Protection Agency, they expressed concern that residential growth without wastewater treatment will result in groundwater contamination and associated human health risks.

Bonnie Christiansen of the Health Department, at the June 4, 1996, meeting of the planning and zoning, stated that septic tanks are always a threat to groundwater. In spite of all of this information, the planning and zoning and also county commissioners approved the application. It was approved in the District Court by approximately 80 neighbors, and at that time, it was found that there was no transcript from the planning and zoning meeting or the commissioners' meeting, causing it to be sent back once more to the planning and zoning board.

Although the planned subdivision is one mile from the city sewer and city water, the city does not plan to come out in the area. But plans are being made to bring the sewer from the Cross Roads development into the Jerome system.

There are more than 900 undeveloped lots in existing subdivisions in Jerome County and therefore, we are adamantly opposed to turning 80 acres of prime farmland into a subdivision that is not needed and that will pose a threat to our water supplies for years to come. MIR. and the Pope: Opponents with Shared Values While Differing on Religion. Both Embrace Altruism and Reject Unbridled Capitalism. So that is Cuba's system — not communism but capitalism. unshakable, a New Deal with a Latin beat.

The New York Times says the pope's criticism of "savage capitalism" is among his views that "match" Castro's. Even considering the source, that is a remarkable tendentious gloss on the pope's meditations on the challenge of preventing the mutually dependent dynamics of capitalism and democracy from degenerating into callous majoritarianism and desensitizing self-indulgence.

The "shared values" analyses arise from liberalism's approval of "diversity" (a synonym for "psychology") that Israel's final borders will not matter much. State Department liberals cannot understand what Prime Minister Netanyahu understands for Arafat, an Israeli withdrawal to the 1967 borders.

other than those trying to impose Marxism.

The pope, who in two decades has been seen by more people than anyone in history, does not impose "his system" on any of the 981,455,000 communicants who freely confess his faith. Living in an age when religion is no longer a necessary legitimizer of political and social arrangements, he has made his religion the most powerful delegitimizing sort of arrangements that keep Castro's boots on 11 million necks.

Two giants? Hardly. An unfortunate island's unhappiness was deepened for decades because Castro seized power on Jan. 1, 1959. The world changed profoundly and for the better because of the event announced by a puff of white smoke over the 108 acres of Vatican City on Oct. 16, 1978.

President Clinton meets with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu in the oval office Tuesday.

Israel offers modest pullback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu brought a proposal for a modest pullback on the West Bank to President Clinton Monday.

He said it was part of a "package of goodwill" that required Palestinians, as well.

"We made a decision to go for peace," the Israeli leader said.

Later, he told reporters any pullback depended on assurances Israel's security would be shielded and that the Palestinians fulfilled past pledges to Israel.

The proposal was likely to fall short of Palestinian aspirations and Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, in a separate 90-minute meeting with Netanyahu, urged "a sizable and credible" pullback, her spokesman, James P. Rubin, said.

"We do believe that it needs to take place in a way that it is credible that the size needs to be significant," Rubin said without providing any details of the scope the United States has in mind.

Clinton indicated he was not planning to pressure the Israeli leader, who clings to power by a narrow margin. "I think what we ought to talk about is what both sides can do now," Clinton said.

"I think we have to have a positive attitude," said an optimistic sounding Clinton, despite a lengthening stalemate and warnings from Arafat of violence if Israel did not meet his demands.

"I don't think that rhetoric should be encouraged," Clinton said. He is due to meet with Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat on Thursday at the White House.

Netanyahu and Arafat were going to be in Washington at the same time, but had made no plans to meet.

"I believe it is very much in the interest of Mr. Arafat and the Palestinians to seek to resolve this," Clinton said. "We are working very hard. I find more often than not we have success if we start with good faith."

Netanyahu said Monday in speeches to Christian and Jewish groups that he would not negotiate with Arafat under threat.

Clinton said, "I agree with that."

He told reporters at a picture-taking session in the Oval Office: "I think Israel wants peace and a resolution of this."

Clinton declined to evaluate the pullback Netanyahu was offering. Nor did the prime minister spell it out, saying only it was a "withdrawal that will assure our defenses" and not jeopardize Israel's security.

"We are going to work hard to make progress," Clinton said at the outset of his sixth meeting with Netanyahu. "We are going to have a detailed, frank, good discussion."

El Nino contributes to high temperatures

GENEVA (AP) — The El Nino phenomenon helped make last year the hottest on record, causing freak weather conditions in many parts of the globe, the U.N. climate agency said Tuesday.

The estimated average surface temperature for land and sea worldwide in 1997 was 0.8 degrees higher than the 1961-90 average of 61.7 degrees, the World Meteorological Organization said.

El Nino is a large pool of unusually warm water that appears, roughly every three to four years, in the central and eastern Pacific Ocean along the equator.

Agencies develop Mt. Harrison avalanche plan

By Kurt Friedemann
Times-News writer

BURLEY — In early January, a 12-foot-high wall of snow burst one section of Howell Canyon Road. No one was hurt, and the slide simply meant more work for the snowplow crews, but many county officials wonder if anyone would suffer if it ever happened again.

In the wake of the avalanche, the U.S. Forest Service, the Burley and Albion highway districts and the Cassia County Sheriff's Department are searching for someone to predict slides before they happen, perhaps preventing a future disaster.

With the last 10 days bringing 10 feet of snow to Mount Harrison, the interest in avalanche control has grown with the snowdrifts.

But the agencies say they have no money to pay for the training it takes to recognize dangerous snow or to pay the $600 bill to blast the snow down the hill.

"In the past when we were faced with the prospect of an avalanche, we scrambled around looking for help," Forest Service Outdoor Recreational Planner Zeke Zimmerman told county commissioners Tuesday. "There is no leadership, or even much avalanche awareness."

Highway district members, Cassia County sheriff's Capt. Terry Bingham, and Zimmerman met with commissioners to begin developing an avalanche control procedure.

"Right now we don't have the means to address the problem," Bingham said. "At the present all we could do is close the road and wait for Mother Nature to stabilize the mountain."

A closed road wouldn't be good for Pomerelle Ski Resort owner Woody Anderson, who depends on the road to get skiers to his complex.

"We don't have an avalanche problem at the ski area," he said. "The problem is over the road."

Commissioners said Tuesday they thought Anderson should shoulder some of the financial responsibility, because skiers make up most of the road's winter users. "That road wouldn't be open if it wasn't for Woody's place," Commission Chairman John Adams said. "Some of this needs to come from Woody."

A resort snowcat could be used to clear blasted snow from the road, Anderson said, but helping to pay for snow blasting or training might be out of his reach.

The short-term solution is to close the road if there is a danger, commissioners decided, at least until it can be made safe again through blasting.

"We're probably going to have to sit down and discuss this," Adams said. "It needs to be solved."

Smoother road, smooth sailing (so far)

By Penelope Reedy
Times-News Writer

ALBION — Fear about how ice would affect driving on the new paved road to Pomerelle Ski Resort have so far gone unrealized.

Cassia County sheriff's deputies say there haven't been any noticeable differences in accident rates or other problems.

"One person hit a guardrail and left the scene before we could file a report," Capt. Terry Bingham said Tuesday.

Sgt. Bruce Bristol, the resident Albion deputy who drives the road regularly, says it has "worked out pretty good so far."

He said the Burley Highway District rotary snow blower has been broken down, so there have been problems getting the road cleared.

"Once all the guardrails are up and the blower gets working, things will be fine," he said.

Bristol added the road melts off quickly and drains well.

And personally, he likes the new road just fine.

"We don't have the windshield like we did before," he said, "so I don't shake my equipment up driving up there."

Times-News staff writer Penelope Reedy can be reached in Burley at 677-4042.

Students gulp down information about body

By Gregory Hahn
Times-News writer

PAUL — Tiffany Jones was digested Tuesday.

She was gulped through a giant mouth and swallowed down its esophagus. She danced around the stomach and was broken into nutrients in the intestines. She floated through the blood stream ("gently, nutrients are gentle") and fueled the muscles.

She toured the skeletal system, met the Tin Man and learned about the heart, and saw the difference between a strong, healthy lung and a diseased, smoke-filled one.

And she did it all without leaving the Paul Elementary School library.

In a tour of the human body touted at a reward by some of Jones' classmates as "cool," "fine" and "fun," the school's almost 150 third- and fourth-graders got a chance for some hands-on learning courtesy of the two local hospitals, parent volunteers and the Minidoka County extension office.

The seven-stage fantastic voyage begins in the mouth, where the children are taught the importance of flossing. They try gumming some crackers to see what will happen if they don't. Then it's on to the stomach, where an energetic mom dressed like a pig leads them through a song about the digestive system. The stomach everyone must dance — including reporters.)

From there, the students stretch a Slinky to see how long the small intestine is, flex their muscles and build healthy bones with Dianne (an extension agent), Denise (a volunteer) and Fred (a miniature skeleton). They test their heart rates with a metallic man who once sang about the importance of the organ, and watched respiratory therapist Sherri Malone and "Smoking Susie" show why it's not cool to inhale.

The "Body Walk" while all the way to teach children why they are having fun — and least expect it, said Margaret Hunt, the parent volunteer who coordinated this year's tour.

And it was fun for Tiffany Jones. Her favorite part? "The stomach. No, no — the mouth. You got to eat some food."

Gregory Hahn is The Times-News' Mini-Cassia bureau chief and can be reached in Burley at 677-4042.

Nine-year-old Erik Staker gets sneezed through the nose during Paul Elementary School's "Body Walk." The school puts on the seven-stage tour of the human body for its third- and fourth-graders every two years.

Woman on state Supreme Court presents judicial report

BOISE (AP) — Linda Coppel Trout made history as the first woman chief justice to present the Idaho Supreme Court's annual "State of the Judiciary" report to the Legislature.

Then a few hours later Tuesday, Trout and the four other members of the Supreme Court made still more history: The justices sat in Boise to hear televised arguments from attorneys in Poentelle on an appeals case.

Trout told lawmakers the Supreme Court is striving to make good use of every technological advancement possible to build "a strong, fair and responsive court."

"That includes making the courts and the justice system more accessible to the average citizen, and making sure they understand what's happening."

"We must be willing to simplify the process so that our citizens understand how the courts work and have confidence that a fair decision will be reached," she said.

Worst said he has noticed a more organized and efficient approach to the complicated business of running a psychiatric hospital.

The new owners also have improved the heating, air-conditioning and fire-alarm systems and are quick to respond to building problems, said Southwick who along with Snyder had worked under Sterling.

Costs haven't changed and are comparable to a hospital stay in Magic Valley Regional. Due to the hospital's ownership, Canyon View can bill Medicaid, he said. The hospital averages about 12 inpatients and 50 to 60 acute outpatient cases.

Hempleman said the purchase was well worth it. "We were going to lose that facility and then our choices would have been Boise because those people are still heading help," he said. "Now it's a facility we own and control somewhat and it's local. That was a plus reason and the reason we did buy it."

crasser," and Miller slopped him, the affidavit says.

"The slap was loud enough to get the whole class' attention," Chris stated that the back of his head hit the wall during the slap," according to the affidavit.

Miller helped Kline to the floor and told Kline to go out into the hall, the affidavit says.

Miller confronted Kline in the hall, told Kline never to return to his class and left Kline in the hall for the rest of the class period, the affidavit says.

Kline's mother, Lorrine Kline, told police her son had a bump on the left side of his head, but Markus stated in the affidavit that he couldn't find a lump or any other external injuries.

On the advice of his attorney, Miller declined to make a statement to police, the affidavit says. Kline's father, Ray Kline, said Tuesday that he thought Miller had acted inappropriately.

"Unless the kid was laughing out at him with a lead pipe or something, there was no reason for him to use physical force," Ray Kline said.

School administrators were looking into the incident, but the outcome of the investigation is still pending, Markus' affidavit says.

Jerome High School Principal Carroll Matthews declined to comment Tuesday.

Any disciplinary action against Miller would be considered a personnel matter, and would not be made public, Matthews said.

Reinke's appointment topic of hearing

BOISE — The Senate Judiciary and Rules Committee will hold a confirmation hearing today for former Twin Falls County Commissioner Brent Reinke, seeking to continue his appointment as head of the Idaho Department of Juvenile Corrections.

The hearing will take place at 1:30 p.m.

Reinke is expected to discuss the progress of the department since he took over the department in May 1997.

Committee introduces property rights bill

BOISE — The House State Affairs Committee voted unanimously Tuesday to allow hearings on a bill that would make it easier for property owners to contest government decisions that lower the value of their property.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Jim Kempton, R-Albion, would allow property owners to appeal their case before a jury. Currently a judge sends any decisions back to local zoning boards.

The Idaho Association of Counties opposes the bill, saying it would undermine the ability of local zoning boards to enforce land use decisions.

The bill will be printed and available on the Internet.

more informed before we jump in and get soaked."

"It's not whether we agree or disagree with what's going on in the court system," Floss said. "We're going to go about this in a positive way."

Floss said people other than Crime Prevention members have expressed interest in the program. The group asked Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department Victims Coordinator Nancy Howell to get more information on Court Watch programs.

St. Luke City's program started with efforts to get prostitutes cleaned out of a neighborhood, Howell said.

By sitting in on court hearings, the neighbors discovered the prostitutes, their pimps and customers weren't being punished, she said.

The underlying issue turned out to be limited jail space, so the group worked with judges and politicians to expand jails, Howell said.

Howell said she spent three days in Salt Lake watching the program.

The Salt Lake Court Watch works on the premise that court systems mostly have been influenced by the resources of defendants, while the public has little input and little knowledge about the courts, Howell said. The program also shows proof to courts, prosecutors and police that the public is interested in the penalties given convicted criminals, she said.

Court Watch is intended to improve the court system by offering approval when courts perform appropriately, and constructive criticism when they don't, Howell said. Supporting victims' rights is a Court Watch goal, she said.

Former House speaker, TF native, dies

Bill Young was the Silver Fox, Batt remembers

NAMPA (AP) — Twin Falls native R.L. "Bill" Young, a former speaker of the Idaho House of Representatives, president pro tem of the Idaho Senate and clerk of the Idaho Supreme Court, died Monday in a local hospital. He was 81.

the House from 1953 through 1956. He also served in the Idaho Senate from 1957 through 1958, and was president pro tem during his last two-year term. "He was the pride of Canyon County. We called him the Silver Fox," Gov. Phil Batt, who served in the Senate's Canyon County delegation with Young, said Tuesday. "He was a marvelous legislator. He had numerous organizational abilities. He made everybody feel like they were part of the team."

Supreme Court from 1971 to 1982. "He was Mr. Republican in Canyon County for a long time," said GOP Rep. W.W. "Bill" Deal of Nampa. Young was working for Morrison Knudsen Corp. as an assistant vice manager in the Pacific Naval Base Contractor's office on Guam when the Japanese attacked in December 1941. He later reported he had seven or eight other men hid in the jungle for a couple of days before surrendering to Japanese troops. They eventually were taken to a prisoner of war camp in Kobe, Japan, where Young remained until being liberated in September 1945.

His nephew, David Young, is Canyon County prosecutor. Secretary of State Patq Cannon said Young and then House Speaker Larry Mills took him under their wing when he entered the Legislature as a young lawmaker from Carey in 1951. Young was Republican floor leader at the time. "He was a fabulous man, just really a good man, ready to help anybody and a very good legislator," Cannon said. "Bill Young was special."

Valley district calls for bids for sports complex

By Ashley Mayes
Times-News correspondent

HAZELTON — Requests for open bids for the sports complex addition to the school were the main business for Valley School Board's recent meeting. So far, projects for the sidewalk, gravel, football field, parking lot and electrical system all have brought price quotes. Sidewalk project: • 975 feet of a thickened edge sidewalk. • 150 feet of standard seven-foot sidewalks. • Doug McCoy Construction Inc. said it could do the project for $19,000. Gravel project: • About 1,200 yards of pit run gravel. • About 1,200 yards of three-quarters base gravel. Magic Valley Sand and Gravel of Hurdley said it could do the project for $84,000. Football field project: • Poles, cross arms, pole setting and hole digging. • Trenching and bulk fill.

Officials still on lookout for Blaine bus vandals

The Times-News

HAILEY — Officials still are looking for vandals who deflated Blaine County school bus tires last week. "The incident coincided with a snowstorm which dumped 6 inches of snow on the valley Thursday and Friday, and about 1,000 children were left without rides to school. As of Tuesday, Halley police had made no arrests. Police Chief Jack Stoneback said vandals, if caught, could be charged with vehicle tampering or malicious mischief, both misdemeanors. Homer said he believes the crimes are failed attempts to thwart class and bus schedules. All have coincided with cold or snowy weather. Last week's stunt caused major traffic delays on Idaho Highway 75.

Officials say Superintendent Phil Homer offered a $500 reward for information or leads. Homer last week refused to cancel school, despite the attempt to derail the majority of the district's bus fleet Thursday morning. The incident coincided with a snowstorm which dumped 6 inches of snow on the valley Thursday and Friday, and about 1,000 children were left without rides to school. ## Hansen test scores jump from last year

By Margaret Jones
Times-News correspondent

HANSEN — Hansen students' scores on the Iowa Test of Basic Skills have shown great improvement over last year's testing, school officials say. Julie Price, the school's Title One director, outlined test results for the school Board Monday night. She said two measures have paid off: Impressing upon students the importance of doing their best on the test, and making sure the subject matter is studied during the school year by the time of the test. The school's third-graders showed the most improvement, but fifth-graders led behind last year's scores, Superintendent Dennis Coulter said. Specific scores weren't available Wednesday.

In other Hansen schools business: "The district is looking for a used 22-passenger bus for transporting small groups, Coulter said. A discussion was held on how foreign exchange students would be included in senior graduation activities. Policies vary from one end of the valley to the other — with students included in the graduation ceremony in one district, to no participation in any activities in another. The board agreed it needs a policy to give the students when they enter the school. The board is researching merits of establishing a "certificate of employment" with a record of a student's training from sophomore year through graduation. The board granted permission for the junior- and senior-high groups to go on a ski trip Feb. 19 and March 6. The fifth and sixth grades will ski Feb. 18. Board members discussed the fact that the school has no sex-education policy. Patrons have asked about the school's policy. Trustee — Glenda Lockwood said. • Elementary Principal Tom Standley announced parenting classes will be held in late April or May. The classes are designed to help parents create solid family relationships. He also said the puberty class for fifth and sixth grades will be held in May, preceded by an informational class for parents. • Standley also told the board the school resources deputy Sam Gibb spoke to the Parent-Teacher Organization about the pilot POSSE program — Parents, Officers, and Safe School Environment — which is in effect in schools in the county's west end. • The elementary student council has been providing a concession stand at basketball games. Money earned from the stand pays for elementary activities, best-of-the-year awards, and some experience-and-lessons-on-counting change. • Elementary students will be involved in the first "Read Like a Pro" contest in which students read for points to earn a gift certificate from Barnes & Noble book store.

- Hansen Wishing Star program posts success
HANSEN — The first year for the Wishing Star Christmas tree in Hansen was a success, organizers say. From the time the men cut the hills until the last star was sold, everyone seemed eager to see the project succeed, Chairman Marlene Dixon said. East End Providers received $880 from the sale of stars for the tree, and Make a Wish Foundation was given $400. Donations of up to $50 a star were received with more than 875 stars sold. Schoolchildren brought their nickels and dimes for stars with their names. Residents involved in the fund-raiser have decided to raise money for planting a live tree for future years. Ken Dav is providing a spot and a watering system in his parking lot for the tree.
- Transit authority schedules public meeting
KETCHUM — The Ketchum-Sun-Valley Transit Authority will meet at 12:30 p.m. today. The operations review includes notification of a telephone poll conducted Dec. 16, when board members voted for the purchase of two data units for $3,225; the data collection units; recommendation to the KART Board to write a letter of recommendation to the State Board of Transportation IV ETC Committee; a partnership; review letters regarding Hugh McClure, Patricia Morrow, and Larry Oulickson; and discussion of a letter from ICRMP.

Budget writers attack treasurer's policy

The Times-News

BOISE (AP) — Legislative budget writers on Tuesday attacked a new interest-compensating policy Republican Treasurer Lydia Justice Edwards. They described it as little more than a paper chase intended to make Edwards' performance look better than it really is. After a 30-minute discussion, the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee delayed a decision until next month. At issue is whether to divert general tax money to cover increased banking fees, and Edwards' new policy of billing state agencies for interest when they have to spend state money as a substitute for anticipated federal cash. Gov. Phil Batt declined to recommend covering the higher banking fees that the banks are now recovering by keeping some of the interest they would otherwise pay the state on its invested money. But he did recommend allocating $85,000 in general tax money to pay the bills Edwards has been sending nine agencies since last August for the interest she could not make on state money they used to tide them over until their federal money showed up. Analysis said that no additional cash is generated in either case, and the effect is to give general tax money to the treasurer so it can be redeposited in the general fund as earnings from the treasurer's office. "It seems we're shifting from one pocket to another,"

Budget writers attack treasurer's policy

Republican Rep. Ron Black of Twin Falls said, "We're just appropriating money to the state treasurer to make the treasurer look better." "What we're doing is a paper shift here," Black said, although the shift would carry the cost of passing the emergency appropriation bill and expense of the paying the interest bill.

Batt taps Democrat for vacant seat

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Phil Batt has picked Bert C. Marley of McCall to serve in the term and Batt picked the legislative term of Democrat John Alexander. • Alexander resigned his House seat effective Monday because of job requirements at the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory. The Bannock County Democratic Central Committee nominated Marley and two others for the term and Batt picked Marley Tuesday afternoon. • The new representative is the son of former state senator Bert Marley. Marley, 49, is a teacher at Marsh Valley High School near Arimo. Batt said the Democrats sent him three well-qualified candidates.

Hand cream chases away dryness

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - In response to a reader request, Jeannie Terry of Twin Falls sent in a nut-free eating recipe. She got the recipe from a friend years ago, she said, when she and the friend lived in Elko.

HAND CREAM

1/2 ounce cocoa butter
12 ounces glycerin
4 ounces stearic acid
2 1/2 ounces strong ammonium
1/2 teaspoon boric acid
16 ounces warm water
Perfume and cake coloring of choice
Put glass bowl in pan of hot water. Heat glycerin. Then add cocoa butter and heat until melted. Then add stearic acid and stir until dissolved. Add ammonia and stir until milky. Put boric acid in the 16 ounces warm water. Take glass bowl out of pan of hot water. Add ingredients to the 16 ounces warm water and boric acid. Beat with hand mixer until thick. Add color and perfume of choice. Can store in glass jars. Lasts a long time.

Another reader, Jaclyn F. Webb of Long Beach, Calif. (born and raised in Idaho), makes a quick-and-easy hand lotion. She combines equal parts of witch hazel, rosewater and glycerin in a bottle and shakes well.

Webb also enclosed a chocolate cake recipe (you can cut this one) that she has had since her youngest son, now 45, was in first or second grade.

"His teacher gave out the recipe," Webb wrote. "and it has been a favorite of my family all these years."

CRAZY CHOCOLATE CAKE

3 cups flour
2 cups sugar
6 tablespoons cocoa
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
3/4 cup oil
2 cups cold water
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon baking powder
Sift dry ingredients. Then pour all liquid in and mix together. Bake about 50 minutes in ungreased oblong pan at 325 for fudge and 250 for metal.

Here, from Knight-Ridder/Tribune News Services, is a story from Margaret Alford, a journalist and Charlottesville, Va., native who lives in Seattle.

VIRGINIA IRUNSWICK STEW

1 whole chicken, cut up (to save time, use a package of 4 skinned, boneless chicken breasts)
1 onion, quartered or chopped
2 ribs celery, sliced
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
16 1/2 ounces white shoepeg corn, frozen or canned
1 1/2 cups frozen small butter beans (lima beans)
16 ounces can tomatoes
2 small potatoes, cubed
1/2 cup ketchup
2 to 3 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon Tabasco sauce
1/4 teaspoon marjoram
2 to 3 tablespoons butter
Put chicken in big pot and add enough water to cover it. Add onion, celery, salt and pepper. Boil until chicken is very tender, about 1 1/2 hours. Remove chicken to cool (make sure no bones are left in broth). Add to broth the corn, beans, tomatoes, potatoes, ketchup, vinegar and brown sugar. Cook 2 hours or until tender. Remove chicken meat from bones, cut up and add to vegetables along with Worcestershire, Tabasco, marjoram and butter. Serve with cornbread or corn muffins. Serves 6 to 8.

Stained glass brings old-world-beauty to modern life

By Rachel Denny
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - It is a fading art, largely unknown to the general public, victim of commercialization. It is the art of stained glass.

Linda Gray, a stained glass teacher at the College of Southern Idaho, became interested in stained glass 25 years ago while she was living in California.

"Stained glass is a wonderful medium to start and stop in," Gray said. "For people with limited time it's great."

With Gray's schedule, it was hard for her to pursue her art. She had to shuttle her children different places, and so it was difficult to start something like a painting. Stained glass was the answer.

But, as with any art form, stained glass does have restrictions.

"Two restrictions are a place to do it and money," Gray said. "This is a hobby that is real accessible to someone with the money."

The first things that an individual needs are the colored pieces of glass. Gray said the common misconception about stained glass is that people receive their glass already cut. But after the glass is bought, a glass cutter is needed to score the surface of the glass and make it easier to break.

"A quality glass cutter is real important," Gray said. "If you have a good score, you'll have a good break."

College of Southern Idaho stained glass teacher Linda Gray demonstrates the finer points of stained glass window making. RACHEL DENNY, The Times-News

After the glass is cut to fit a pattern, the next step is adjusting the pieces so that they go together. When the pieces don't go together, the pieces have to be ground so they will fit together. "Glass grinders are our cheater tools,"

Gray said. "If you have an irregularity, you can grind it off. One reason it's Please see STAINED GLASS, Page C7

DESSERT NACHOS

12 whole graham crackers
8 ounces Cool Whip (lowfat)
1 cup chopped strawberries
1 cup chopped peeled kiwi
1 cup sliced bananas
Strawberry dessert topping
Break crackers in half. Score each half diagonally with knife. Break apart to form triangles. Arrange half of the triangles in single layer on serving platters. Spread evenly with half of the whipped topping. Top with half of the fruit. Drizzle with dessert topping. Repeat layers. Refrigerate until firm. Serves 6.

TOUCHDOWN TACO DIP
8 ounces cream cheese, softened
1/4 cup chopped cilantro
1 garlic clove, minced
1 medium green pepper, seeded and finely chopped
1 (16-ounce) can refried beans
1 cup salsa (mild, medium or hot)
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese
1 cup grated Monterey Jack cheese
1 (16-ounce) can black beans, rinsed and drained
Optional garnish: Thin strips Cheddar and Jack cheese

In a large mixing bowl, combine all ingredients except for garnish. Stir until blended. Serve in a bowl with tortilla chips for dipping. Or, form the dip into the shape of a football. To do this, chill the dip for 30 to 60 minutes. While dip is chilling, cut a sturdy piece of cardboard into a football shape, cover it with foil, and set it on a cutting board or serving tray. Then mound the dip into the shape of a football, and press garnishing beans across its surface. Make the laces with strips of cheese. Serve with sturdy tortilla chips. Serves 12 to 20.

Take the stress out of wedding planning

January and February may not be the most popular months to get married, but this is certainly a busy time for couples planning a wedding later this year. An engaged bride-to-be may be stressed, but as anyone who has planned a wedding knows, it can also be a stressful time. Staying organized will help you enjoy these days - and have the wedding you dream of.

THE BUDGET

It's not exactly romantic, but the first and most important step in planning a wedding is establishing a budget. Traditionally, the bride's family was responsible for almost all the wedding costs. Many weddings are still planned this way, but it is increasingly common for the expenses to be shared among the bride's and groom's parents and the couple. There are no real rules: A generous grandmother may offer to contribute as well; some couples prefer to pay for the entire event themselves.

Without the guidelines of tradition to follow, good communication becomes even more important. The bride and groom should discuss the budget openly, albeit diplomatically, with their families. No one should feel pressured to contribute. Parents may offer a certain sum. Or they may prefer to pay for something specific, such as the music, photographer or gown. If this is the bride's attire, music, photography, flowers and miscellaneous. Avariciously, plan on devoting about 50 percent of your budget to the reception (which includes the site, food, drink, rentals, service and the cake) and 10 percent each to the other categories. (The miscellaneous expenses include: invitations, favors, transportation, gifts, bouquets and other extras.) This means that if your overall budget is $20,000, about $10,000 should go to the reception, $2,000 to the bride's gown and accessories, etc. These percentages are flexible, but they do provide a good starting point.

YOUR WEDDING-STYLE
As you work on the budget, think about the kind of wedding you want. Begin by describing what you envision. Please see MARTHA, Page C7

Reader's sick rose may just need some sun and air

DEAR CATHY: I have a small rose shrub in a container on my deck and its blooms don't open fully, or at all. It is only 1 year old in the pot. If it is an Ae. Canada rose from Mrs. Morden (Morden blue), I think the container is on the deck in summer, and air circulation and sun are fine. The flowers develop well until they are about to open when just stop. After a few days you can pull the petals off as a whole and the reproductive parts of the flower, which come out of the flower, but developed normally. The plant seems relatively healthy except for this problem, which it had pretty much the whole year. I didn't really notice any signs of disease on the flower. I was wondering if this could be a nutrient deficiency or if a certain type of fungicide might help. There were no insects such as aphids which might have stunted the flower development. Do you have any idea what might be wrong?

—FLOWERLESS IN MOSCOW

DEAR FLOWERLESS: Thanks for writing. Old Garden Roses and Shrub Roses are my personal favorites, and I can understand your concern. This is always a hard question, and you and your Morden are not alone. Roses most often don't open fully because of wet conditions. This is usually due to too much water, which looks as "balding." Every once in a while we get a rose curculio boring a hole into the calyx or side of the bud, and that will put the "kabosh" on blooms, too. I'm putting my money on the wet conditions. I wonder how much breeze and sun the rose gets? Does the rose see at least six hours of sun daily? (I prefer morning sun, which helps it dry out from the evening dew.) Is it in a small area, protected from wind? When do you water? Is every thing a mulch, leaves, surrounding plants (such as grass) all dry by sunset? If not, water particles hanging in the air get trapped between the leaves and the ground and just leave back and forth all night. Fungus heaven. Morden roses are considered "very double," which means they have more than 50 petals. On top of that, they present their blooms in clusters of around 15. That's a lot of petals. And it takes a nice dry day to do it. When there is too much moisture, the roses just can't get all those petals unstuck. Last year we had more than our share of wet days. If there were a nutrient deficiency, you'd have noticed discoloration in the leaves. From your observations, it sounds like the leaves looked fine. The rose curculio is a tiny insect that bores tiny holes underneath the bloom, eats his fill and leaves a crater in the petals. You'd have seen a lot of petals cut away. It's not likely you'll see a curculio, but you'll see his damage. A systemic insecticide is the only thing that works on him. "The only other critter that comes to mind is the tiny thrip. Unless you know what you're looking for, these guys are invisible. Their damage doesn't even look significant, until the rose doesn't open. Thrips are less than 1/8 inch long, light tan and leave the petals (they're fond of lighter-colored roses) with light streaks of light-to-medium brown. The petals often don't unfurl properly; they just look like the edges are going bad, like lettuce left in the refrigerator too long. Otherwise, don't fog a thrip problem. Try moving your rose around, since it's in a container. See if more sun and air help. Good luck, and please write again to let me know how Morden is doing.

Gardening sites sprout all over Internet

While your shovels and rakes rest in the garage and your seedlings and bulbs snuggle beneath mulch, you can wander along winding pathways and small roses growing in cyberspace gardens.

You can wander the Internet, looking at gardening tools, books, new plants and seeds. Or you can relax in one of the gardening chat rooms and talk about cowslip primroses with a Michigan gardener and share classroom gardening tips with a teacher in Texas.

There are thousands of gardening sites up and running and more taking root each day. If you are new to the home computer world and don't have specific web site addresses, use the computer's search engines such as "gardening," or the specific names of catalogs, companies, events or public gardens. When you find sites you like and want to revisit them, use the computer's bookmark function to make those sites easy to find.

Some of the gardening sites are loaded with full-color photos and graphics that take awhile to appear on your computer screen. Other sites are straightforward and simple, but don't disregard these because many have useful information without the eye-dazzling color.

Internet gardening sites can be a treasure trove of information about a number of topics, such as growing tulips, into your living room.

Cookbook centers around farm's bounty

By Donna Lee
Providence Journal-Bulletin

Ruth Fine Handy's grandparents suffered through harsh times near the turn of the century in Russia. At times, foraged greens were the only food.

Now Handy cooks with the bounty of the Fine Farm in Attleboro, Mass., and her bees in the family's third generation. During the summers she sells produce at the Corn Crib farm stand in North Rehoboth, Mass.

She recently published "The Fine Farm Cookbook," 247 pages of simple, appealing recipes, most of which include fresh vegetables or fruit. Fat has been reduced when possible, but not at the expense of flavor.

Among the choices: garden lasagna, Italian vegetable quiche, stuffed shrimp, Bodecher with creamy spinach, half-sour dill pickles, vegetable chili, zucchini-mushroom, Italian sausage stew, blueberry-crumble cake and pumpkin cheese-cake. She includes conversation pieces, such as radish cake (Handy says people never guess what it is) and chocolate beer cake.

"My grandparents were born in the village of Germ, in White Russia, not far from Lithuania," she writes.

After Handy's grandparents married, her grandfather abandoned his idea of becoming a rabbi and turned to dairying. He came to New York in the turn of the century, worked as a house painter and brought over his wife and three young children in 1903.

He opened a little grocery store on the Lower East Side. The Jewish Agricultural Society of New York located a farm in Attleboro and the family, which now included five children, moved there. The 200-acre farm, called the Corn Crib House, was built of hand-hewn timber there.

Handy's uncle, the late Ben Fine, who earned his doctorate from Columbia University, became education editor at the New York Times and was a trustee. Felix Handy's father, Hyman Fine, studied agriculture at Rhode Island State College, and ran the farm.

Ruth Handy graduated from Brandeis University and became a Spanish teacher. She and her husband George have seven grandchildren where they raise vegetable seedlings. He does all the field work on the 140-acre farm. Now 63, she teaches water aerobics at the Y.

None of her three children wants to farm; one son has his own computer software company, a daughter is a nurse, another is a RISD graduate who does design work.

"The Fine Farm Cookbook" costs $12 for the spiral bound book, plus $3 for postage. Write a $15 check to Fine Farm, mail to Fine Farm, 353 Smith St., Attleboro, Mass. 02703.

BUTTERNUT SQUASH SOUFFLE
1 large butternut squash, about 3-4 pounds
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup flour
3 eggs (or egg substitute)
2 cups low-fat milk
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
Dash of nutmeg

Peel cut, remove seeds and cook squash until tender. Mash until smooth. Add remaining ingredients; mix well in blender or food processor. Pour into a 1 1/2 quart casserole that has been sprayed with vegetable spray. Bake at 350 degrees for about 1 1/2 hours or until firm. You can partially bake this in a microwave oven and finish baking in a standard oven until golden on top.

2 tablespoons sugar
juice of 1 lemon
2 carrots, sliced
1 large apple, peeled, cored, cut into cubes
1 large raw beet, scrubbed (or 1/2 can beets with their juice)

Put all ingredients in a large kettle and boil vigorously, stirring until everything is well blended. Simmer for about 3 hours. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Remove meat from bones. Cut meat into chunks and return to soup. Discard bones. Remove beet if using a raw one; remove skin, cut into small pieces and return to soup. Skim any fat from top of soup.

Taste soup; it should have a sweet and sour flavor. You may add more lemon juice, sugar or seasonings.

A 'super' furnace can cut your heating bills by 30 percent

Dear Jim: You recently mentioned "super" gas furnaces. I want low utility bills and reliability, but comfort is most important. I am willing to spend extra to get the best available. What's new and best in 1998? Ed D.

Dear Ed: You are in luck! The new designs of "super" efficient condensing gas furnaces also provide the best comfort. In order to utilize the most efficient "super" central air conditioning, you will need the special blower-system that comes with these furnaces. You will notice improved comfort from less temperature swings, less indoor drafts and better humidity control. For allergy sufferers concerned about indoor air quality, a super condensing furnace is a must. If you don't plan to move soon, installing a super furnace can pay back its initial higher cost in utility bills savings. You can expect to cut your heating bills by 30 percent and your summer cooling bills by slightly less.

All super furnaces use condensing heat exchangers. Not to bore you with technical details but by condensing water vapor in the gases, less heat is lost out the flue (as little as 5 percent). Many of these designs have lifetime warranties.

With a super furnace, your chimney is no longer used. The flue gases are so cool (almost all the heat stays in your house) that they are vented outdoors through an inexpensive 2-inch-diameter, plastic pipe.

For the greatest savings, choose a furnace with sealed combustion. The combustion air is brought into the furnace by another small, low-cost plastic pipe through the exterior.

Sealed (isolated from indoors) combustion minimizes the chance of carbon monoxide poisoning, not uncommon with older gas furnaces.

A small blower in a sealed furnace forces the flue gases outdoors. If you are willing to spend a little more for the very best, select efficiency in the summer too. They are a good fit with a two-level central air conditioner for perfectly-matched systems.

Consider installing a combination thermostat with a variable-speed blower. You set both the humidity and temperature level. If your house is warm enough, but too dry, just the blower starts (to heat) to humidify the air. In the summer, if it is too humid, the blower runs slower to hyper-dehumidify.

Write for Update Bulletin No. 741 - buyer's guide of 20 super condensing gas furnaces, efficiencies, blower types, heating stages, single and two-stage charts. Prices include $4 and a businesslike SAE. Or visit The Times-News Online's NewsLink page at <http://www.magicalvalley.com>.

Dear Jim: I am considering building a fence for a windbreak (and a break from my neighbors' kids). Are there any guidelines as to how high to make it and exactly where to locate it? Susan S.

Dear Susan: Adding a wind break, either a fence or shrub, can be effective. In one test in Nebraska, dense shrubs on the northwest side reduced heating costs by 23 percent.

As a rule of thumb when installing a fence as a windbreak, it should be installed 2.5 times its height away from your house. For example, a five-foot fence should be located about 12.5 feet from your house.

Weight loss isn't the problem, nutritionist says

By Kathleen O'Gorman Knight-Ridder News Service

Anne Fletcher, a former executive director of the Tufts University Diet and Nutrition Center in Boston, says "Losing Thin for Life" (Clippers, $25), in which she looks closely at the survival strategies of 208 people who have kept off 20 or more pounds for more than 10 years. Their average loss was 64 pounds.

In addition to exploring the strategies of her "masters of weight control," Fletcher includes 122 recipes and meal-planning regimens. "And Fletcher follows up with another tool to help wanna-be weight losers. A paperback diary, "Thin for Life" (Clippers, $15), dispenses inspiration and advice from the masters alongside space where you can keep track of what you eat and how you exercise, day by day.

Fletcher's newest books come on the heels of her 1994 best-seller, "Thin for Life" (Clippers, $14 in paperback). It introduced 160 masters and told how they kept off at least 20 pounds for three years.

And Neida Mercer, an author and registered dietitian who is the director of community nutrition for the University of Michigan Health System, with her colleagues analyzed more than 12,000 food products for "The Meat Grocery Shopping Guide" now in its fourth edition (University of Michigan, $18.95). The foods are listed as "best choice" or "acceptable choice" based on whether they are high in dietary fiber and lower in fat, saturated fat, cholesterol and salt.

To order "The Meat Grocery Shopping Guide," call (800) 758-6346. The MFPI staff also offers two low-fat cookbooks — "High Fiber, Low Fat Cookbook" and "High Fiber, Low Fat Vegetarian Cookbook" (both $14.95) — that can be ordered through that 800-number. The prices do not include tax and shipping.

Here are some recipes:

OVEN-FRIED CHICKEN

(Serves 6, one chicken breast per serving)
Nonstick cooking spray
3 large garlic cloves, peeled, ends removed, minced
1 teaspoon olive oil
1 cup unseasoned bread crumbs
2 1/2 teaspoons yellow mustard
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1/2 teaspoon salt
Generous grating of black pepper

1/4 cup Dijon-style mustard
2 tablespoons water
1 rounded tablespoon of honey
6 boneless, skinless chicken breast halves (about 1 1/2 pounds), washed, patted dry Preheat the oven to 325 degrees with rack in the center. Spray a rack set in a shallow baking pan with nonstick cooking spray; set aside.

In a small nonstick skillet, combine the garlic and olive oil. Sauté over medium heat until slightly softened; do not brown. Remove from skillet and place in a shallow pie plate. Add the bread crumbs (reserve and set aside 2 tablespoons of the bread crumbs for later use), lemon rind, salt and black pepper. Combine ingredients thoroughly. Mixture should be fine and uniform.

In a shallow bowl, stir together the mustard, water and honey. Dip each chicken piece in the mustard mixture, then dredge in crumb mixture, turning several times and pressing crumbs into surface. Place each piece on prepared rack. Sprinkle lightly with 2 tablespoons of remaining crumbs. Bake for 20 minutes, or until chicken is crisp and juices run clear when cut in the middle.

Remove from oven and serve immediately.

(Nutrition details per serving: 197 calories (22% calories from fat), 5 grams fat (1 gram saturated fat), 3 grams carbohydrates, 28 grams protein, 422 mg sodium, 22 mg cholesterol, 33 mg calcium, trace of fiber)

ROSEMARY-DIJON NEW POTATOES

(Serves 6; three potato halves per serving)
1/2 cup chicken spray
9 small or medium uniformly sized new potatoes (about 1 1/2 pounds), scrubbed, unpeeled
2 1/2 tablespoons olive oil
1 teaspoon Dijon-style mustard
1/2 teaspoon chicken bouillon granules
1/2 teaspoon salt
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
1 package fresh rosemary, separated into 18 pieces, each 1-inch long or tablespoon dried Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Spray a 2-quart baking dish with nonstick cooking spray. Set aside. Slice the potatoes in half. Make a "V" cut notch (cutting trough deep) across the entire length of rounded side of potato half (the skin side). Place the potatoes in the prepared baking dish, flat side down. Set aside.

Meanwhile, in a small bowl, stir together the olive oil, Dijon mustard, chicken bouillon, salt and pepper. Spread about 1/4 teaspoon of the mixture (in each notch of each potato half) into a 1-inch section of rosemary or a tiny pinch of dried rosemary in each notch.

Cover with foil and bake for 30 minutes. Uncover and bake for 15 minutes or until a fork comes out easily when potatoes are pricked in the center. Remove from oven. Just before serving, spoon any pan drippings over potatoes.

Cook's note: These potatoes are a perfect accompaniment to a dinner of grilled salmon and steamed broccoli.

Manchester design allows formal to meet informal

Cables on all four sides give a high-spirited look to the Manchester, a large two-story home with formal rooms up front and informal gathering spaces at the rear. Keystones and decorative stonework add to its visual appeal. Families who enjoy entertaining will appreciate the spaciousness of this plan.

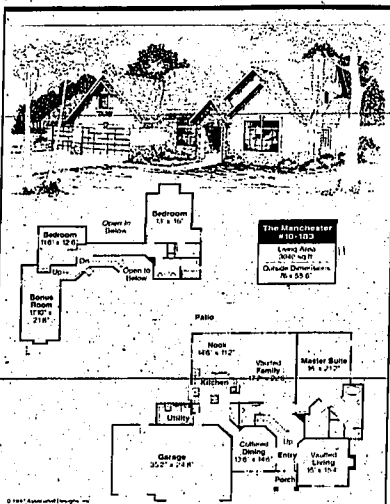

Stepping into the house, you find yourself in a vaulted entry. Dining room and kitchen are to the left, vaulted living room to the right. Directly in front of you is an elegant open stairway that leads to a bridge overlooking the entry and vaulted family room. A centrally located bathroom hides behind the stairs.

Passing under that bridge brings you into a dramatically spacious and naturally lit family room. A three-angled snack counter with overhead cabinets marks the kitchen boundary without impeding visual or conversational flow. Sliders on two sides of the nook open onto a large patio.

Counter space is abundant, and storage is more than ample. Laundry appliances are nearby in a large utility room that's equally handy to the three-car garage.

The lavish master suite has a 9-foot ceiling, a deep walk-in closet and a private bathroom with double door entrance. Luxuries include an exceptionally long, double vanity, oversized shower, soaking tub, and private deck. Diffused, natural light filters in through glass blocks on exterior walls next to both the tub and the toilet.

Two bedrooms, a two-section bathroom, and a bonus room are upstairs in the Manchester. The larger bedroom has a walk-in closet and a cozy window seat with two storage cabinets hidden under the cushions.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $15 to Associated Designs, 1100

Jacobs Dr., Dept. W, Eugene, Ore. 97402. Please specify the Manchester 10-183 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring more than 250 home plans is available for $12. For more information call (800) 634-0123.

Cake, salad top list of reader favorites

The Baltimore Sun

This cake recipe, from the Baltimore Sun, was unbelievably popular at the Box Tree Inn restaurant, a Maryland establishment from days gone by. The unusual icing is a life-bitter-sweet with granular side.

BOX TREE INN'S CHOCOLATE CAKE

- 1 cup butter, softened
  - 2 cups sugar
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
  - 4 eggs
  - 3 cups flour
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 3 teaspoons baking powder
  - 1 cup milk
- Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cream butter and sugar, beat thoroughly. Add vanilla and eggs (well beaten). Add flour, salt and baking powder, alternating with the milk. Spread batter into two greased and floured 9-inch cake pans.

Bake for 25 to 30 minutes or until tester comes out clean. Let cake cool on racks. Serves 12.

Chocolate Icing
3/4 cup milk
1 1/2 cups sugar

Pinch salt
1/4 pound semisweet or bitter-sweet chocolate
1/4 cup butter
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
Cook milk, sugar and salt until mixture boils. Add chocolate and butter. Continue boiling until small amount forms a soft ball in cold water. Remove from heat and cool. Add vanilla and beat until creamy. Stir bowl containing chocolate in a larger mixing bowl filled with ice water. Use a large spoon to beat chocolate until it's shiny-dulls. Ice cake immediately.

Note: The frosting is very tasty but temperamental. Cook it to no more than 230 degrees. It will make a hard fudge if cooked to 240. Also, it is not quite enough icing for a generous covering, so be skimpy with the icing in between the two layers.

Supermarkets hone in on take-home meal craze with 'pre'-everything meats

By Lori Linsenberger
Knight-Ridder News Service

Never before have so many people been able to consider themselves home cooks without ever having to open a cookbook, scan a recipe or even turn on an oven. The foodmakers of America are making it come true with a proliferation of high-quality, home-style convenience products crowding supermarket shelves.

Consider pre-packaged, pre-washed, pre-cut, pre-ripped, pre-mashed potatoes, and gravy; ready-to-heat loaves of bread dressed up with garlic, butter, cheese and seasonings and seeds of thousand-serve cakes, pastries, and pies.

Now meat producers are getting into the act by providing the main course, pre-cooked, pre-seasoned and pre-marinated cuts of beef, pork and poultry that require little or no actual cooking at home.

Starveys allow that many consumers buy dinner from restaurants and a majority take the food home to eat, said Dave Wellman, senior editor of Supermarket Business, a trade publication for the grocery store industry.

"Supermarkets want a piece of that take-home business, and so do food processors," he says. Poultry producers such as Tyson have led the way with fully cooked, roasted chickens that can be eaten right out of the box or heated up and, more recently, fresh chicken breasts that have the seasoning already added.

Pork producers such as Hormel have introduced tenderloins, pork chops and pork roasts that come already marinated, with cooking instructions on the package. Hormel boasted a 60 percent jump in sales of those "Always Tender" products in 1997 and plans to add flavors such as salsa, honey-mustard and onion-garlic to teriyaki and peppercorn, its most popular flavors, a spokesman for the company said.

Now Big Beef is going after its share of the action. Consumers who wouldn't know a round steak from a rib-eye can "pre-para" a pot roast, a tri-tip roast, barbecued beef and other beef dishes at home. The Minute Main Courses introduced by Flint Hills Foods in Alma, Kan., are fully cooked products sealed in a vacuum package that can be refrigerated for several weeks.

Perhaps Flint Hills' most intriguing product is a pot roast that can be heated in the microwave and served in less than 10 minutes. Excel, based in Wichita, Kan., and IBP have similar products, and so does Tyson.

A 3-pound package of Minute Main Course pot roast is $5.99 and realistically feeds three to four people. A fresh chuck roast, on the other hand, costs about $2.50 a pound.

It's a wild idea.

Experts rate volunteers' eating habits

For some, the truth can hurt

By Kathleen Donnelly
Knight-Ridder News Service

During the Designated Eater project, brave guinea pigs learn the brutal truth about their diets. The project works like this: For 100 days — one volunteer is recorded every morsel they eat in food diaries. The diaries were then delivered to members of the Nutrition and Food Science Club at San Jose State University, under the guidance of Kathryn P. Sucher, registered dietitian and professor of nutrition and food science.

Designated Eater No. 1:

Nina Yabok
One morning last fall, the computer at Nina Yabok's local Burger King went down, putting everyone's breakfast in jeopardy. Everybody, that is, but Yabok.
"When I got to the drive-thru window, they had my order all ready to go," Yabok says with a sheepish laugh. "They recognized my car."
That morning, Yabok, a 49-year-old business attorney, orders the same breakfast: French toast sticks and a large Diet Coke. "I mean that," Yabok says, her diet has absolutely no pattern.
For example, she arrives at her office, sucking the drogs of the drive-through Diet Coke, between 8:30 and 9 a.m.

"I work the whole day," she says, "and where I eat is determined by whether or not I have a meeting."
And then she comes home to her significant other, who has sweetly waited dinner for her. Maybe, she muses, she could start making a change with breakfast.
"I love it, but I can only begin to conceive of how many calories and how much fat is in it," she says.
"I mean, these are deep-fried pieces of bread soaked in sugar water."
In fact, when Nina Yabok shows up for her diet analysis, she announces she has kicked the French toast sticks habit.
Of course, she has eaten a few of the ubiquitous bacon-and-egg-on-muffin combinations that are a morning fast-food staple.
"You consumed an average of about 3,000 calories a day," says Sucher, looking over Yabok's diet. "And if we look at a pie chart of those 3,000 calories, about 37 percent are fat."

The key to diet modification, says Sucher, is to know your likes and dislikes and accommodate them. If you like fast-food type breakfast sandwiches, make your own. Use egg whites or low-fat egg substitute, skip the bacon, melt a little part-skim mozzarella on your English muffin and voila! Sucher's students have suggested Yabok cut her caloric intake to about 2,000 a day, about 23 percent from fat. This will take some diligence. It also will take buyout carrots and apples for snacks, salads for lunch and low-fat stir-fried vegetables for dinner.

Designated Eater No. 2:

Carmen Flores
Carmen Flores is confessing. "When I'm working, I don't eat. On the days I work, I eat everything late in the day. And I'm a snacker. I do a lot of the convenient thing, too."
A 43-year-old single mom with a 5-year-old son and an 8-year-old daughter, she's up by 4 a.m. to make it to her job as a mail carrier in the Santa Cruz Mountains by 5. At that point, she's operating on 16 ounces of black coffee and a multivitamin.
"She's usually too busy to grab lunch while she's on her route, which means Flores doesn't get any food until she makes it back to the post office, around 3 p.m."
"I keep PowerBars in my locker. I have to say it, but sometimes I'll do a Coke and potato chips and just leave the PowerBars where they are."

—Carmen Flores

Pasta and beans just right for picky family

By Molly Lopez
New York Daily News

One night, I was given the job of making dinner for my family. This isn't an easy job, since everyone in my family has a different idea of what a good dinner is.
To my two littles sisters and my younger brother — it's McDonald's. To my 15-year-old sister, it's homemade macaroni and cheese. My 19-year-old sister is the hardest to please because she doesn't eat any meat except poultry.
I finally decided to make a healthy meatless dish that included pasta, beans, vegetables and herbs. This is a heavy casserole that makes a large amount, so you can eat the leftovers for a few days. It's delicious served at room temperature.

PASTA & BEANS

- 1 (16-ounce) package frozen chopped spinach
- 2 large onions
- 2 garlic cloves
- 1 (10-ounce) olive oil
- 1 teaspoon salt or to taste
- 3 cups dried macaroni or small shells
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- 1 teaspoon dried thyme
- 1 and 1/2 tablespoons dried basil
- 2 (14 and 1/2-ounce) cans diced tomatoes
- 2 (15-ounce) cans cannellini beans (or kidney beans)
- 4 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese

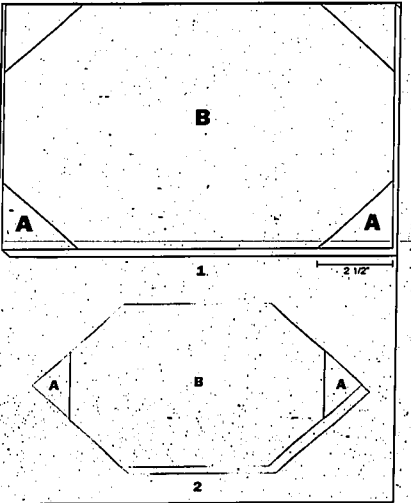

Unwrap the spinach and place it in glass bowl. Cook 3 minutes on high in the microwave, just to thaw it. Place the spinach in a colander in the sink to drain. Meanwhile, bring a large pot of water to a boil over medium heat. Peel and mince the garlic. When the water is boiling, add the pasta and cook according to package directions. Stir occasionally. Drain the pasta in a colander and set aside.
In a large frying pan, heat the olive oil to stir and saute the onion and the garlic and saute for 8 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add 1/2 teaspoon of the salt, the package dried herbs. If desired, another 10 minutes over low heat. Add the spinach and remaining salt to the frying pan. Add the tomato, beans and frozen spinach. Cook for 10 more minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in the cannellini beans and cooked pasta and heat briefly. Taste and add salt, if desired. Sprinkle with the Parmesan cheese and serve. Serves 6 to 8.

3 tablespoons thin-sliced green onions
Combine water, chicken base, barley and onion in a 1 1/2-quart saucepan. Bring to a boil over high heat. Reduce heat, cover and simmer 10 to 12 minutes or until barley is tender. Combine one-fourth cup of the milk and the cornstarch in a small bowl. Whisk until smooth. Add to sauce.
In a medium bowl, combine remaining 2 3/4 cups milk, instant potatoes and cayenne stir until smooth. Add potato mixture to barley mixture in pot. Increase heat to medium and cook and stir until mixture begins to boil. Stir in cornstarch mixture and add to the soup. Cook and stir for 2 minutes, or until soup thickens slightly. Add cheese and stir until melted. Ladle into bowls and garnish with green onions Serves 6.

For the recipe and written directions for this Football Cut-up Cake, see page C1.

For Denver Broncos fans, this meat-loaf is named for the multi-high city.

HIGH MEAT LOAF
1 pound lean ground beef
1/2 pound ground pork
1/2 pound ground veal
1/2 cup shredded cheddar cheese
1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1/2 cup dry, unseasoned bread crumbs
2 eggs
1/2 cup tomato sauce
1/4 cup dry red wine
1 tablespoon
1/4 tablespoon pepper
Combine all ingredients in a bowl and mix well. Pack into a 9-by-5-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes. Serves 8.

Stained glass

become more popular is because the grider makes it so you don't have to be excellent at cutting."
When it's time to combine the whole project, two methods can be used (either together or separately). The methods are the copper-foil method and the lead-cup method.
The copper-foil method involves wrapping each edge of the glass with copper, which makes a metal frame. After the copper is in place, the pieces are cut out by melting solder on top of the copper.
Lead came involves forming lead around the glass. This must be putted to be made waterproof. A plus for the lead came method is that glass needs to expand and contract, and this method allows for expansion and contraction.
After putting the window together, the window is waxed, the hanging loop is connected and the window is hung. Connecting the hanging loop correctly is very important, according to Grus.
"Over the years, it's amazing how many repairs I've done because of improper hanging," Grus said. "If you put hanging loops on, get them into the interior of the window."
The loops have to be placed all the way into the window, because the copper and lead are both soft, even after soldering, and over time, the hanging loop will cause the copper and lead to sag.

A major distributor of stained glass supplies in this area is Prisms in Hagerman. Co-owners Christi Ritchie and Merylin Iils teach classes in stained glass making.
"We carry everything to do with glass," Ritchie said, "and all of its hundreds of colors."
Ritchie enjoys stained glass because it's such an old art form.
"Mainly it's just keeping it alive and keeping it of interest to people," she said. "This is all hand done, from beginning to end. It's something we love to do — what you mainly used to see in stained glass was antique, but now it's more modern. It's incorporated."

Two stained-glass suppliers in Southern Idaho are Prisms at 190 S. State St. in Hagerman and Wisterin Place at 316 Main St. in Piler.

then think about how to achieve that effect. Is the wedding big or small? Formal or casual? Held during the day or night? At home, or in a restaurant or hotel? These are some basic decisions determine both the feeling of the wedding and the cost. Consider the difference between an afternoon tea for 50 people and an evening dinner-dance for 200.

The best weddings reflect the bride and groom's style, so let your personalities show through. What better way to announce and celebrate your new life together?

planner to keep track of all the details. In a loose-leaf binder or accordion file, create a different section for every aspect of your wedding, from budget to gift registry to bridesmaid dresses. Fill it with pictures, ideas, notes, proposals, fabric swatches, receipts and contracts.
A bridal consultant is by no means a necessity, but having a professional's help makes wedding planning much easier. This service may seem like a luxury, but a consultant will make sure you don't exceed your budget. And don't forget how much time he or she will save you, which is what makes this service most valuable to a busy bride.
A consultant may charge a percentage of the overall budget (15 percent is common) or a flat hourly fee. As with most wedding services, a referral from someone you trust is a great way to find a good bridal consultant. You can also call the Association of Bridal Consultants (860-355-0464) for the names of professionals in your area.

WAYS TO SAVE

The wedding reception is the single biggest expense, which also means it's where you can save the most. Instead of a sit-down dinner, have a lunch buffet or a breakfast, brunch, tea or cocktail party. Look into sites such as public gardens, parks and universities, which are often less expensive than traditional wedding venues.

Prices for all wedding services vary widely, so make sure to do some comparison shopping. Some vendors will charge less for parties on any day of the week than on Saturday, or in the less popular months of the year — how about February, 1999?

Domestic violence victims have the law on their side

DEAR ABBY: You printed a letter from a woman who signed herself "Living a Nightmare," who had been a victim of domestic violence dating back to her honeymoon. You provided her with some solid advice, however, some information was missing from your reply that would benefit all women involved in violent relationships.

DEAR ABBY
Abigail VanBuren

woman, we will have accomplished a great deal.
— SCOTT A. LYNSCH, HALES CONNERS, IVIS

DEAR SCOTT: I hope it does, because I have been told that the problem has reached epidemic proportions in this country. Domestic violence cuts across all social, economic, educational, religious, ethnic and cultural lines, and there are no stereotypical perpetrators or victims. I have received letters concerning women who physically abuse their boyfriends and husbands, and domestic violence also occurs in same-sex unions. When people hear about a physically abusive relationship, the first question they usually ask is, "Why doesn't she leave?" Only when people start asking, "Why is he using violence?" will we be able to end the problem.

DEAR ABBY: Our friends moved in down the street from us and have proceeded to copy every original design idea we have used in our yard and house. Not only have they copied our surroundings, they have joined every club and organization we belong to, and we bump into them everywhere we go. If we say we did something or went somewhere, the next thing we hear is, "We should do that." And they do. My husband thinks we should move, but I love our house and don't want to be uprooted. I don't want to lose their friendship, but I would like to keep our house distinctive. Any ideas?

— CONFUSED NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: People imitate those whom they admire. They also do it if they are insecure about their own taste and judgment. Be candid and tell them that although you feel flattered, being copied detail for detail makes you very uncomfortable. Then, offer to help them make unique selections of their own.

In addition to ordering the booklet you recommended, women should know that help is a phone call away. Confidential assistance is available 24 hours a day through domestic violence hotlines throughout the country. I suggest getting started by calling 1-800-799-SAFE, a nationwide toll-free hotline that can provide immediate help and connect women with the resources nearest them.

Women in violent relationships also need to understand that an entire generation of children are at risk, because domestic violence is a learned behavior that's passed along to the next generation. Research shows that in homes where a father is physically abusing his spouse, the children are more likely to grow up to participate in violent relationships themselves. This should be of great interest to "Living a Nightmare," as she already recognizes that the home lives of her children are "terrible." If she understands that her children are likely to repeat the pattern themselves, I'm sure she'll want to call for help at once.

Abby, please print this to make "Living a Nightmare," and everyone in a similar situation, aware of these facts. Last year I was fortunate enough to become involved in a public awareness campaign to generate awareness of, and put an end to, domestic violence. If it helps just one

Former Bruin sets NCAA record on basketball court

By Karen Baumer
Times-News writer

CEDAR CITY, Utah — Myndee Larsen, a 1993 Twin Falls High School graduate, set an NCAA Division I women's basketball record last weekend and is on course to set another by season's end.

The 6-foot-5-inch senior at Southern Utah University nailed 28 consecutive field goals over the course of four games, shattering the former record of 23 held by three players.

The mark has been tied by only one other player in all of the men's and women's NCAA basketball.

"I didn't know until after the game," Larsen said. "I would have been thinking about it the whole time probably even though that's bad."

And that's exactly why her coach, Joe Hillock, didn't tell her.

Myndee Larsen, Southern Utah University

"I didn't even know until after the game."

"We did not let her know she was up for the record. It was a conscious decision by myself. We were on the road so she couldn't read about it in the paper."

The streak started at home in a game against Valparaiso, where Larsen hit her final attempt of the night. She followed with a 14-of-14 performance against Youngstown State at home, the best single game by anybody in the division this year.

That's when Southern Utah hit the road.

Larsen knocked down 14 of 14 against Western Illinois and then hit her first five against the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

The sixth attempt ended the streak, and ended the game in a loss.

"We thought it was in on the bench," Hillock said. "That would have been a Cinderella story too, because it would have won the game for us."

But the ball rolled around and down in — and — and — out.

I was double-teamed and fading away because it was a last-second shot," Larsen said. "If I had jumped into

Tigers trip No. 1 Indians

Jerome coach credits experience, tough opponents for 61-49 win

By John Dorr
Times-News writer

JEROME — Wipe out.

The 15-game win streak of the Buhl Indians, the No. 1-ranked team in the state, ended Tuesday at the hands of the Jerome Tigers in A-2 District 4 girls' basketball action.

Not only did the Indians lose the game 61-49, they also lost the coin flip to decide the top seed in the district tournament. Jerome will enter as No. 1, while second-seeded Buhl will battle third-seeded Wood River in Hattie.

As if the Tigers (1-2, 3-1) needed any more encouragement, they accomplished all this without senior post Stephanie Bells who was sick.

In the previous meeting the Indians (15-2, 3-1) charged out to a big lead with the help of a press. They went cold from the field in the second but held on for a one-point win. This time the tennis stayed close and Jerome didn't see Buhl's press until the end and had no trouble handling the pressure.

The Tigers led by three after the third period, but Buhl's Jennifer Bartosovskey tied the game at 42 early in the final period with a putback and a foul. That's when Jerome's Angela Kalm took over.

The senior post scored six straight points for Jerome and added the paint with lots of Indians around to give Jerome a four-point lead.

"I knew I had to put up something," said Kalm, who finished with 14 points to lead the Tigers. "This means we got the first seed, but we still have to beat them twice to get to state."

Jerome went up by four after a long jumper by Becky Thibault, but Bartosovskey answered with another putback. The next time down the floor Kalm tested in her eighth point of the quarter with three Indians surrounding her.

Cynthia Bell added a jumper as Jerome took a six-point advantage with a little more than two minutes remaining and Buhl would get no closer.

Bell added two more from the free-throw line and Cyria Warner hit four straight from the charity stripe, two from a foul and another pair from a technical, to put the

Bruins clamp on Minico

By Jeff Nielsen
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Riding a two-game losing streak, the Twin Falls High School boys' basketball team knew the keys to getting back on track:

Hustle on defense. Hit the boards with fury.

The Bruins did just those things Tuesday against Region III foe Minico, and in doing so trounced the Spartans 68-29 in a game at Minier High School.

Twin Falls improved to 10-4 overall, 2-3 in Region III play with the win. Minico fell to 3-12, 0-5.

"Defense was definitely our focus coming into this game," Twin Falls forward Blake Rambu said. "We wanted to get back to the basics. We had gotten away from that."

"The Bruins' stingy defense forced Minico into 19 turnovers.

At one time, early in the fourth quarter, the Spartans had as many turnovers (18) as they had points. Twin Falls led 52-18 at that point.

"Everybody was giving 100 percent on defense," Twin Falls assistant coach Stacey Helrens said. "Defense has been our strength all year, and it was on Tuesday."

Before Tuesday's win, Twin Falls had lost four of its last five.

Wizards forward Webber faces drug, assault charges

SEAT PLEASANT, Md. — In too much of a hurry to get to practice, Chris Webber ended up with a face full of pepper spray, six hours in jail and a marijuana charge.

After a routine traffic stop for speeding, the Washington Wizards forward was arrested Tuesday and charged with assault, resisting arrest, possession of marijuana, driving under the influence of marijuana and five other traffic-related violations.

All the charges are misdemeanors, and Webber will probably be tried before a District Court judge sometime this spring. The assault charge alone carries a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $2,500 fine.

"We look forward to having the matter tried," said Webber's lawyer, Bruce Marciniuk, who was released on his own recognizance.

Webber, 24, was driving the Navigator, a sports utility vehicle, when he was stopped about 9:30 a.m. on a four-lane highway in Landover, Md., on the way to a 10 a.m. practice at the MCI Center in downtown Washington.

Police said a marked squad car tailing Webber had to go faster than the posted speed limit of 40 mph to keep up with his vehicle.

According to the police report, Webber did not have a license or registration and offered his credit card as proof of identification.

Venus beats younger sister in Australia

MELBOURNE, Australia — Big sister beat kid sister, or rather watched her beat herself.

Sisterly love didn't suffer, though. At the end of Wednesday's match, they clasped hands, hugged, then turned to the crowd, hunched, held tightly, and bowed together. When they left the court, they were still holding hands.

"That show of affection got the loudest applause of the day."

Serena double-faulted eight times, Venus five. Serena whiffed 12 errors, Venus 24. Each held serve only twice in a miserable first set that barely raised a peep from the crowd.

This was the seventh times sisters have met in a Grand Slam event — most of the others involved the Matevecs — and so far every one has been won by the older sister.

The highly anticipated duel between the Williams teens turned quickly into a

Grads take their games to new levels

By Damon Clow
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When former Magic Valley high school standouts Jesse Nielson and Nick Kelsey met in the CSI gym last Saturday, their rivalry was still the same.

The two freshmen, who are redshirting this season, had traded the Canyon Conference for the scenic West, DeClu and Wendell for Ricks College and the College of Southern Idaho.

Nielson exchanged the orange and black of the Hornets for the blue and white of the Vikings, and Kelsey took off the gold and black of the Trojans for, well, the gold and black of the Golden Eagles.

"It's bigger, just because it's on a bigger scale," Nielson said of the rivalry.

The 6-foot-4 post-turned-guard said he travels with the team on occasion "if I get tired of classes or if it's a really good game."

The two last met Feb. 27 of last year in the district championship. Both players scored 19 points, but Nielson's Hornets outlasted Kelsey's Trojans, 75-64, earning a trip to the state tournament where they eventually took their second straight consolation title.

Kelsey, along with older brother and fellow Wendell graduate Nate, who played college ball in Spokane, Wash., now redshirt for the 9th-ranked Golden Eagles.

Redshirt rivals

"You don't realize, the guys you're playing with, how good they are," said the 18-year-old Kelsey. "They're a lot better athletes than what I'm used to."

"Everyone's fast and they can all jump out of the gym," Nielson said, adding that upon his arrival in Rexburg.

"The first month, I was overwhelmed."

The talent is not the only thing that improves at the next level.

"Practices are more demanding and a lot longer," Kelsey said. "I guess that's the difference between high school and college."

Kelsey is part of the gold practice squad, the group that mimics opponents' offenses and readies CSI's renowned defense for that week's games.

Nielson has a similar role on the Vikings. He will warm up and go through shooting drills with the team in practice, then scrimmages the starting five while running the next opponent's offense.

Kelsey has the upper hand thus far in the series after the Golden Eagles defeated Ricks, 66-59 last Saturday. The two teams meet again Feb. 12 in Rexburg.

Both players have expressed an interest in continuing at their current schools upon their return from the church missions they plan to take next year.

That means it may be at least three years before they see each other on the court, though chances are that once again, the rivalry between their schools won't have changed a bit.

"Our girls played hard," ISDB coach Beth Price said. "We just couldn't seem to get control of the game."

ISDB faces the Carey JV at home on Thursday.

Murtaugh 56, Hansen 36

MURTAUGH - The Huskies couldn't keep the pace with Murtaugh after being outscored 19-10 in the third quarter in a girls' Southside Conference game Tuesday night.

Murtaugh was strong with excellent timing. Murtaugh coach Jim Hamblin said, "The team defense is getting better each game."

Murtaugh (12-6) travels to Raft River on Friday.

Carey 48, Camas County 28

CAREY - Camas County's scoreless third quarter was the key to its loss in a girls' Northside Conference basketball game Tuesday night.

"We started out slow but got it together in the second half to win the win," said Castelfredo coach Gary Reynolds.

Keying the comeback was a 15-8 run in the fourth quarter.

Kelli Easterday led the Wolves with 18 points.

Wendell 53, Kimberly 40

KIMBERLY - In a physical Canyon Conference girls' basketball game Tuesday, the Wendell girls' basketball team beat Kimberly 53-40.

"Their big people are strong," said Kimberly coach John Miller. "They get after you on both ends, but we were able to control the game."

The Bulldogs started out slow, giving the Trujans a 14-point lead at the end of the half.

Miller said, "It helped us to keep close at the end. We played better in the second half than in the first."

Wendell seniors Cindy Chandler, Jamie Sybesma, and Lew Ann Poole combined for 38 points.

"They dominate the court when they're out there," said Miller.

Misty Miller had 15 points for the Bulldogs, challenging the Trujans' pace.

"All their points were inside," Miller said. "It's a good thing for us, because they have good posts."

Kimberly falls to 9-7 in conference, 4-13 overall.

Tennessee routs DePaul BSIU tennis coach takes on new job, trims old one

CHICAGO (AP) - Tamika Carter, a career 23 points and top-ranked Tennessee began the game with a 21-0 run Tuesday night to rout DePaul 125, the second highest scoring game ever for the Lady Vols.

The biggest scoring output and most lopsided victory in Tennessee's career came Dec. 20, 1985, when the Lady Vols beat Hawaii Pacific by 152, 130-38.

With Tuesday's victory, Tennessee has won its eighth straight victory before Feb. 1 for the first time. Catchings, the daughter of former NBA center Harvey Catchings, was slotted as the highest scoring player in Illinois as a sophomore before moving to a sophomore. She got her homecoming off to a quick start, scoring eight of the Lady Vols' first 11 points, twice making steals and driving the length of the floor for layups.

WOMEN'S COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Iowa St. 82, No. 5 Texas Tech 73

AMES, Iowa - A church bulletin night brought out the crowd, which in turn brought out the best in Iowa State. The hot-shooting Cyclones got 24 points from Stacy France, who made seven of her team's school-record 14 pointers, and claimed sole possession of first place with 17 points in a 22-point victory over No. 5 Texas Tech on Tuesday night.

ISDB faces the Carey JV at home on Thursday.

Murtaugh 56, Hansen 36

MURTAUGH - The Huskies couldn't keep the pace with Murtaugh after being outscored 19-10 in the third quarter in a girls' Southside Conference game Tuesday night.

Murtaugh was strong with excellent timing. Murtaugh coach Jim Hamblin said, "The team defense is getting better each game."

Murtaugh (12-6) travels to Raft River on Friday.

Carey 48, Camas County 28

CAREY - Camas County's scoreless third quarter was the key to its loss in a girls' Northside Conference basketball game Tuesday night.

"We started out slow but got it together in the second half to win the win," said Castelfredo coach Gary Reynolds.

Keying the comeback was a 15-8 run in the fourth quarter.

Kelli Easterday led the Wolves with 18 points.

Wendell 53, Kimberly 40

KIMBERLY - In a physical Canyon Conference girls' basketball game Tuesday, the Wendell girls' basketball team beat Kimberly 53-40.

"Their big people are strong," said Kimberly coach John Miller. "They get after you on both ends, but we were able to control the game."

The Bulldogs started out slow, giving the Trujans a 14-point lead at the end of the half.

Miller said, "It helped us to keep close at the end. We played better in the second half than in the first."

Wendell seniors Cindy Chandler, Jamie Sybesma, and Lew Ann Poole combined for 38 points.

"They dominate the court when they're out there," said Miller.

Misty Miller had 15 points for the Bulldogs, challenging the Trujans' pace.

"All their points were inside," Miller said. "It's a good thing for us, because they have good posts."

Kimberly falls to 9-7 in conference, 4-13 overall.

Conference, 58-34, Tuesday.

"They had just an excellent ball half," said Trujans coach Gary Eisenstein. "They're ranked the No. 1 team for a reason."

Raft River had a tough time stopping Tanner Layton and Justin Steinhilber.

"They did a good job working together," Eisenstein said. "They had 12 of their first 20 points on the inside. We just played a really good ball half tonight. We'll just have to see what we can do next time."

The Trojans fall to 2-1 in conference, 9-4 overall. They travel to Oakley on Thursday.

Mavs continue success against SuperSonics

DALLAS (AP) - Erick Strickland had a career-high 30 points and Michael Finley scored 20 as the Dallas Mavericks ended a five-game losing streak with a stunning 107-98 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics on Tuesday night.

Dallas has beaten Seattle in both of their meetings this season, giving the Mavericks two all-time series victories. The Mavericks had lost 20 of 21 before Tuesday's game.

Detlef Schrempf scored 21 points, Gary Payton had 20 and Vin Baker Jr. for the Sonics, whose three-game winning streak ended.

Trail Blazers 86, Cavaliers 84

CLEVELAND - Kenny Anderson hit a 20-foot jumper at the buzzer to give Portland the victory.

Anderson outplayed rookie Brevin Knight until the final inbounds play, drilled free and ended a three-game losing streak shot from the top of the key that

Hawks 103, Bucks 93

ATLANTA - Reserve Alan Henderson scored 18 points and Maurice Taylor had 15 points, eight assists and five steals in his return from the injured list as Atlanta defeated Milwaukee.

The Hawks came back from a 15-point, first-half deficit and won despite several foul-riding defenses of Steve Smith, who was played by foul trouble and shot only 1-for-10 from the field.

Atlanta had seven players in double figures, Dikembe Mutombo scored 16, Christian Laettner 15, Tracy McGrady 12 and Rester and Smith 11 each.

NCAA: Standout took money while at LSU

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - College basketball stand-out Lester Earl was accused by the NCAA on Tuesday of accepting $6,600 in cash from an LSU assistant coach before transferring to Kansas.

The NCAA also said coaches who are no longer at LSU improperly helped Lester Earl's transfer.

The investigation will have no bearing on Earl's status as a player for the third-ranked Jayhawks this season and would affect his future only if it was proven that he took the money while a student at the Baton Rouge-based school. He has one year left at Kansas, and the university has appealed to get him a second year.

Avery lights up court as Duke downs NC

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) - William Avery scored 17 points during a 2 1/2-minute span in the first half as Duke rolled over North Carolina A&T 101-66 Tuesday night in the Blue Devils' first game since regaining the No. 1 ranking.

Trajan Langston also added 11 of the 16 points in Duke's 17-point opening half for the Blue Devils (17-1). The Aggies, led by Jonathan Richmond's 15 points, Atlanta outplayed by rookie against schools from the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Men's college basketball

Duke, which was No. 1 for the first two weeks of December before losing to Michigan, made 20 of 33 shots (60.6 percent) in the opening 20 minutes to grab a 27-point halftime lead.

The ACC is now 36-0 against teams from the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference during the past five seasons.

No. 16 Michigan 65, Minnesota 57

ANN ARBOR, Mich. - Robert Tryon had 2 points and 12 rebounds as Michigan temporarily took over sole possession of first place in the Big Ten.

Micoe Boston added 15 points and 14 rebounds and Louis Bullock 6 points for the Wolverines (15-4 overall, 5-1 Big Ten). Michigan began the night in a three-way tie for first with Michigan State and Iowa, who play Wednesday night in

No. 21 Cincinnati 60, Tulane 50

NEW ORLEANS - D'Juan Baker scored eight straight points down the stretch to lift Cincinnati off an 11-point losing streak.

The Bearcats (14-2, 6-0) won their 10th straight game. The Green Wave (6-1, 1-1) have lost five of six.

Cincinnati's 23-point lead shrunk to four before the Bearcats put it away in the final minute.

No. 19 Xavier 72, St. Joseph's 62

CINCINNATI - Gary Lumpkin and Torrey Bruges led a balanced attack by scoring 15 points apiece for the Musketeers (12-4, 4-2 Atlantic 10).

Xavier took control early as Lumpkin scored six consecutive points and pulled away by routing St. Joseph's (10-10, 1-1) in a full-court press and half-court traps.

No. 25 Clemson 69, Virginia 52

CLEMSON, S.C. - Tony Christie had a career-high 17 points as Clemson held off Virginia's second-half rally.

Christie's four 3-pointers helped Clemson lead the Cavaliers (10-2, 2-4) pulled within eight points.

Greg Buckner then scored four points and Christie another three in an 14-6 run for the Tigers. Buckner finished with 19 points.

Mahogany piano carries epic history

KETCHUM - Featured in the current exhibit at the Ketchum/Sun Valley Heritage and Ski Museum is a recently acquired 129-year-old, mahogany piano, donated by Val Webster of Boise. Webster is the great-granddaughter of August Farnlum, who brought the piano to the United States in the mid 1800's. Farnlum was born Petra Smith in Sneborg, Denmark in 1850. She and her sister were taught to appreciate music by their father, a Lutheran archbishop, who purchased the home with the piano for his family when Petra was 8 years old. When Petra was 26, she travelled to America to visit her sister who had emigrated there. During the visit, she met and married August Farnlum, a Swedish emigrant. The couple immigrated in Colorado where they raised five children. Because they wanted to instill in their children a love for music, Petra and August arranged to have the piano shipped to Colorado. Upon its arrival, they were delighted to find family photos and memorabilia on the piano.

Sue Barney shows a mahogany piano that was recently donated to the Ketchum Sun Valley Historical Heritage and Ski Museum by Val Webster of Boise.

no longer able to play the piano, she asked family and friends to play for her. The piano, as well as an exhibit of memorabilia from local participants in the Winter Olympics through the years, may be seen at the museum, located at the corner of Washington Avenue and First Street. Regular hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily.

FOCUS ON PEOPLE

Schwartz earns honor

The United States Achievement Academy announced that Irene Schwarz of Hazelton has been named a United States National Award Winner in English. Fewer than 10 percent of all American high school students are awarded the honor.

Schwartz, who attends Valley School, was nominated for the award by Ron Cline, a teacher at the school. She will appear in the United States Achievement - Academy Official Yearbook, which is published nationally.

The Academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors and other qualified sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the Academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability and recommendation from a teacher or director. Schwartz is the daughter of Otto and Susan Schwarz of Hazelton. She is the granddaughter of Albert and Esther Schwarz of Hazelton and Erma Allen of Kamiah.

BOISE — Albertson's Inc. has entered into an agreement to acquire Buttrey Food-and-Drug Stores for $15.50 per share of common stock.

Buttrey is headquartered in Great Falls, Mont., and is a leading supermarket and pharmacy retailer operating 43 stores in Montana, North Dakota and Wyoming.

Buttrey and Albertson's is one of the nation's largest food-drug chains, currently operating 866 stores in 20 Western, Midwestern and Southern states.

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Gary Michael said the acquisition fits with Albertson's expansion plans and is the second acquisition this year. Last week, the company said it has agreed to buy all the outstanding shares of Sessell Holdings Inc., which operates 10 supermarkets in the Memphis, Tenn., area.

"We will continue to pursue opportunities that allow us to strengthen our market presence in existing markets or efficiently enter new markets," Michael said Tuesday.

The agreement calls for an Albertson's subsidiary to start a cash tender offer at $15.50 per share no later than Monday. The offer will be subject to regulatory approval and other conditions, including the tender of a majority of Buttrey shares.

Following consummation of the offer, the Albertson's subsidiary will be merged with Buttrey and any remaining shares will be converted into a right to receive $15.50 per share in cash. The deal was unanimously approved by the Buttrey board of directors.

Albertson's said as part of the transaction, the Buttrey shareholder owning a majority of the outstanding stock has agreed to tender publicly all its Buttrey shares. Albertson's has an option to purchase all of its Buttrey shares under certain circumstances.

"From a strategic standpoint, this transaction will strengthen our market presence in Montana, North Dakota and Wyoming, especially in many of the smaller towns where Albertson's does not currently operate."

Asian turmoil hits tourism in United States, elsewhere

The Associated Press

HONOLULU — The aisles are empty at the Dine 'n' Drink shopping center, where vacationing South Koreans usually go to buy clothes, jewelry and small appliances.

The store's rows have been cut back. "It's very slow right now, as you can see," Eugin Kwon, manager of the store, said from Waikiki, says.

The financial turmoil in Asia — and the accompanying tumble of currencies such as the Korean won and Indonesian rupiah — are hurting tourism in Hawaii, across North America and around the Pacific Rim.

Canada reports a drop of nearly 7 percent in its number of Asian-Pacific visitors, with the Banff ski resorts seeing 20 percent declines.

Australia is bracing for a 3.3 percent plunge in its number of Asian visitors. Los Angeles expects a decline in the more than 800,000 Asian annually from Japan and South Korea, despite the recent openings of the Getty Center art museum and Langa beach aquarium and waterfront projects.

The Hawaii Visitors and Convention Bureau predicts the number of Korean visitors to the Aloha State will drop 80 percent this year. As a result, several

Firms promise faster Internet access

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Some of the biggest players in the computer and telephone industries are teaming up to offer Internet access so blindingly fast that clicking through Web pages could be as easy as flipping through a book.

Some of the phone companies hope to offer the service, which would work over ordinary home telephone lines, early this year. Computer users would have to get new modems — for about $200 — but not micro PCs.

Microsoft Corp., Compaq Computer and Intel Corp., along with the nation's five regional telephone companies, are developing a single national standard for the service, which is known as asymmetric digital subscriber line, or ADSL.

ADSL is currently available in a few locations around the country, but the equipment used in one place is not necessarily compatible with the hardware used elsewhere.

ADSL would be cheaper and easier to install than the two best-known means of getting high-speed data into the home — specialized telephone lines and cable modems, which use the heavy coaxial cable that connects to your TV set.

Also, ADSL would allow people to talk on the phone while their computer is connected to the Internet via the same line — something that can't be done now. The agreement on a national standard is to be announced next week at the Cable Trade Association in Washington.

With the use of these new modems, the World Wide Web would evaporate. ADSL modems would let consumers browse the Web at more than 10 megabits per second, or bps. That's 30 times faster than the fastest modems now commonly available.

ADSL is also a continuous connection. Your computer would be in constant touch with the Internet. You wouldn't have to use your computer's dialer program to call America Online or some other Internet service.

Boise Cascade ends quarter up, but year down

BOISE (AP) — Boise Cascade Corp. reported an operating profit of $7.2 million for the first three months of 1997 Tuesday, breaking three straight quarters of red ink.

But for the year, the company had a net loss of $30.4 million, $3.6 million better than last year.

The Boise-based integrated paper and forest products company reported net fourth quarter earnings of $7.2 million, 2 cents more than the third quarter, but still a net loss of $30.4 million for the year.

The operating profit compares with a net loss of $6.2 million, 23 cents per diluted share, in the third quarter of 1997.

Tourism

Korean airlines are cutting or reducing flights to Hawaii.

Definitely, it is the currency depreciation. Going abroad has become so much more expensive for U.S. tourists.

Perhaps no other region is more dependent on Asian tourists than Hawaii. Tourist spend about $11 billion a year in the Aloha State, generating a quarter of its tax revenue.

Japanese account for about 2.1 million of Hawaii's 6.9 million annual visitors and typically spend the most dollars. U.S. mainland tourist spends, Koreans represent a burgeoning market of 125,000 visitors a year.

U.S. mainland visitors were down 10.6 percent in the first 11 months of last year after rising 4.8 percent in 1996. Hawaiian tourism officials report. The state's prediction are flat, at best. "We're just a little south in the middle of the Pacific, so what happens around us is of great concern to us," Gov. Ben Cayetano says.

Yes, it was. Assume West shifted to the diamond eight at trick two. (A club shift won't change matters.)

ANSWER: One diamond. This hand is too strong for a raise to two clubs.

South offered his club queen to East, but East refused, eliminating an entry to dummy's king. Another club put East on play, and East had no escape. A diamond exit would produce an overtrick.
