Interest in hospital rises; 6 contend

By Pat Marcantonio
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The number of suitors interested in Magic Valley Regional Medical Center has increased to six.

And a couple for-profit companies are interested in buying, leasing, or affiliating with the county hospital. "At this point this is kind of letters of inquiry," said Terry Schultz, hospital board member and co-chair of a committee studying the future ownership of the hospital. "I would expect there to be quite a bit more in the future."

"We're very much interested in the hospital," said Bob Hanson, vice president of Community Health Systems of Brentwood, Tenn. Mainly, it is interested in a purchase or lease.

The private, for-profit company operates 40 hospitals of 50 to 200 beds in 17 states. The company specializes in solo-company hospitals in non-urban areas, he said. Members of its board include former U.S. Sen. and presi-

Takes money to make it

Festival of Trees releases expenses

TWIN FALLS — For every $1 spent at the Festival of Trees in 1997, about 47 cents went to charity. The remainder paid to organize the event.

The Christmas-time fund-raiser is the biggest, but not the most profitable event organized each year by the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center Foundation Inc.

In-kind support — material donations such as free use of mall space — totaled $46,377.

The foundation recently released final expense and revenue tallies from the 1997 event.

Net income totaled $28,891 after $31,850 in expenses were paid, the foundation reported. Gross revenue was $60,741.

Charity watchdog groups say a variety of factors should be considered when giving money.

Proceeds support local children's charities and rural emergency medical response teams.

Ketchum, Sun Valley will honor Idaho Olympians

By Julie Casey Lynn
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — This weekend, Magic Valley gets a chance to meet and congratulate Idaho's Olympic athletes, those who competed where most only dream.

The Sun Valley/Ketchum Chamber of Commerce and Sun Valley Resort are hosting a celebration for Idaho's nine Olympic and Paralympic athletes, who competed in the 1998 Winter Games in Nagano, Japan. Gov. Phil Batt will present specially designed Idaho Olympian pins and has declared March 30 through April 5 as Idaho Olympians week.

CBS sportscaster Tim Ryan will be master of ceremonies. The city of Sun Valley will present plaques to each Olympian, and the Sun Valley resort is giving the athletes roses presented by local young athletes.

Matt Perkins, a Paralympic skier from Four Ward River Valley Olympians; Ntala Skinner, bobsledder; and Laura Wilson, Nordic ski racer; Sandra Vah Ert, snowboarder; and Muffy Davis, Paralympic alpine monskier.

Also present to be honored will be Greg Sun, a bobsledder from Moscow, and Jason Rife, a Paralympian from Pocatello.

Due to her recent injuries, 1998 gold medalist Picabo Street won't be present. But telephone calls made to Street during the ceremony will be projected over the loudspeaker to congratulate her on her gold-medal performance and wish her well.

The Sun Valley Ski Club is making a giant card for athletes to attend to sign. The card will be sent to Street to cheer her during recovery and rehabilitation.

Boise snowboarder Lisa Kosglow may be unable to attend due to racing conflicts.

Each Olympian will have an opportunity to say a few words during the ceremony.

Times-News correspondent Julie Casey Lynn can be reached in Ketchum at 726-7894.

$97 million pie tastes sweet to workers

The Associated Press

COLUMBIA FALLS, Mont. — Divide $97 million by 1,000 and what do you get? A factory full of workers soon to be flush with Montana-size wads of cash — and a valley full of merchants eager to help them spend it.

In a week or two, flat checks will be mailed to 1,000 current and former employees of Columbia Falls Aluminum Co., the biggest employer in this town of 3,500 near Glacier National Park.

Individual shares will range from $1,000 to more than $250,000, with most employees getting about $100,000 before taxes, or two to three times what many of the workers earn in a year.

For economists, the payout is a rare chance to see what happens when a big load of money falls into a small community. For workers at the aluminum smelter, it's the long-awaited end to a bitter dispute with company owners over a profit-sharing plan.

And for salesmen throughout the Flathead Valley, it's a call to action. In full-page ads, personal letters and special sales they're courting their soon-to-be-padded neighbors.

Restorers, car dealers, finance outfitters, you name it — "I've been getting so much stuff in the mail I don't even open it anymore," said David Toavs, 40, a mechanic at the plant for 19 years.

He plans to pay off his mortgage and then go shopping for an expensive target pistol. His share will be about $100,000, though state and federal taxes will subtract about $30,000.

While some envious townfolk joke about Beverly Hills-billies striking it rich, those receiving the settlement resent any suggestion it's undeserved wealth.

"I see it as post-due wages," said Bobbie Gilman, 48, an accountant at the plant. "It was something I fought long and hard for."

She led a class-action lawsuit against the company in 1992, claiming that owner Brack Duker had not honored a profit-sharing deal he made with workers when he bought the aluminum smelter in 1985. In exchange for a promised 50-50 share of profits, employees took a 21 percent cut in wages and benefits.

After years of legal wrangling, the company and the workers reached a settlement in December: $32 million to be split among 200 current and former salaried workers, $65 million to be shared by about 800 hourly workers. Individual shares vary according to job position and length of employment.

Starr vows vigorous pursuit despite Jones suit dismissal

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Independent counsel Kenneth W. Starr vowed on Thursday to continue his aggressive pursuit of alleged misconduct by President Clinton and others related to the Paula Jones sexual harassment lawsuit, asserting that there is "no room for white lies" in sworn testimony even though the underlying case has been thrown out.

In pointed comments clearly aimed at Clinton and former White House aide, Monica S. Lewinsky, Starr gave no ground to critics who contended that his perjury and obstruction-of-justice probe is pointless in

Bill Clinton Kenneth Starr

He argued that the alleged offenses were potentially serious legal violations — even if they occurred in a civil case, found to be without merit.

"In that civil case, you cannot defile the temple of justice," he said during an impromptu news conference on the front lawn of his McLean, Va., home. "You must play by the rules. ... And if you don't play by those rules, if you lie under oath, if you intimidate a witness, if you seek otherwise to obstruct the process of justice, it doesn't matter who wins and who loses in the civil case. What matters, from the criminal law's perspective, is: Were crimes committed?"

Making his most extensive public comments since the Lewinsky investigation began in January, Starr also defended the pace and cost of his probe and chided the White House for invoking executive privilege to block the questioning of some top aides to the president — a legal tactic that the independent counsel will serve only to drag out the inquiry. His job is not about public relations, Starr said, but about emulating Sgt. Joe Friday from "Dragnet" and seeking "just the facts."

Starr's statements were viewed as a renewed battle cry at the White House even as officials there were still reeling in

 "People are being spent wisely" said Claude Manuel, vice president for public affairs for the National Consumers League in Washington, D.C.

"We have a fund-raising dinner, and we tell consumers how much goes toward the general operating cost," she said.

It's difficult to say how much money is made for every dollar spent, Manuel said. How much net revenue a fund-raiser will generate isn't known until it's over.

A fund-raiser that might be considered the most monetarily profitable could benefit charities in other ways, Manuel said. Organizations enjoy free exposure through the media, and that could be worth the expense.

Daniel Borochoff, president of the American Institute of Philanthropy, said people should keep in mind that when they pay to attend a charity event they get something in return.

"They're actually buying benefits while making a contribution," Borochoff said.

Some people would rather give all of their money to the charity, making a direct contribution rather than attending the event, he said.

A series of fees is organized for the community, Baxter said. Admission cost has been kept at $2 for adults and 50 cents for children to keep it open to everyone. No one is turned away if they can't pay.

The festival's 1997 returns were about average, he said, but the event probably should make more money.

Not knowing from year to year where to hold the festival is a big part of the problem. A place still is sought for the 1998 festivities.

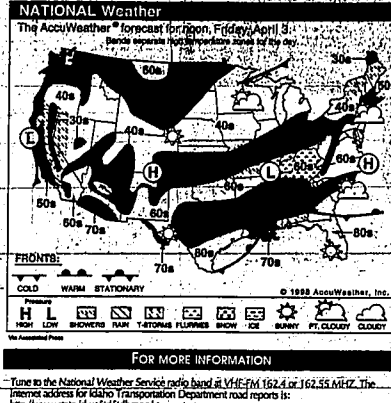

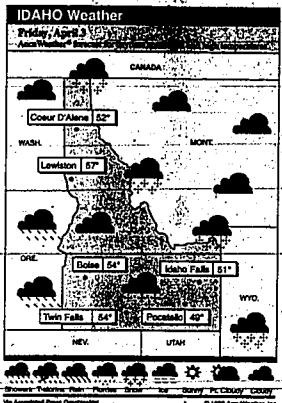

"If we had an ideal site, I think we should be grossing between $100,000 to $150,000 a year," Baxter said.

The festival hosted a "cookie cottage," baking fresh cookies in 1994 for $1.00. It earned more than $1,000, but logistics have kept the event from continuing.

ACROSS THE NATION

Idaho: Skies were generally partly to mostly sunny with a few areas of cloudy skies reported mainly in the north- and central Idaho mountains.

New England: Scattered showers fell from New York to Maine, although no severe storms were associated with the system.

South: Dry weather was the opposite the norm east of the Mississippi except for some light rain that fell later in the day along the Gulf Coast of Mississippi and Alabama.

West: Moderate to heavy snow fell over much of Colorado in the afternoon, along with wind gusts up to 35 mph. Several highways were closed at times because of accidents. The weather also was causing flight delays and cancellations at Denver International Airport.

A few areas of snow were found across northern New Mexico, but it was the wind that plagued the eastern Plains. Gusts of up to 46 mph caused dust storms to develop.

Except for a few renegade showers in spots, the rest of the West experienced mostly dry weather.

Events in the Clinton-Jones sexual harassment case

Clinton rejects
 GORE ISLAND, Senegal — Eleven days and six nations after leaving Washington, Clinton headed back home Thursday night with both he and his senior aides hoping that those words about resiliency and the future also may apply to his own presence.

A combination of a good trip in Africa and the dismissal of the Paula Jones sexual harassment case have opened a window for a "White House team which, by the admission of its own members, was badly in need of air." "This was great, this was great," Clinton kept repeating to members of his traveling delegation Thursday evening as they headed for home.

Not all roses
 WASHINGTON — It was Bob Bennett's shining moment. Or at least it was supposed to be.

After enduring months of criticism from fellow members of the bar over his handling of the Paula Jones case, the president's personal lawyer was savoring vic-torily Wednesday night with a celebratory dinner at the Palms.

But then the happy tableau was shattered when a man from a neighboring table approached Bennett and began shouting abuse at the top of his lungs.

"Choke on your food, sir, and wallow in the consequences of choking!" the nattily dressed man bellowed at Bennett in his banquets where the lawyer had been tucking into a thick steak with his wife, Ellen.

"How can you defend that trash?"

Media has nothing to do
 WASHINGTON — What will the media do without Paula?

A federal judge's decision to toss out Paula Jones' suit against President Clinton has, without warning, deprived a ravenous corps of on-air writers their sensational scandal stories of the '90s. Nearly 700 journalists had signed up to chronicle the trial in Little Rock, Ark., next month.

Now they may be writing their final pieces about alleged pants-dropping. It's as if a director had run onto a wartime battlefield and shouted, "Cut!"

Starr

 Wednesday's decision by Wright to call off the Jones lawsuit, which had been scheduled to go to trial next month, because "there are no genuine issues for trial."

Reeling empowered by the political and legal victory, White House officials were eager to strike back at Starr, and they were quick to portray him as a floundering and partisan prosecutor desperately in search of a case. "As the president was vindicated, Starr acted vindictive," said Rahm Emanuel, a senior adviser to Clinton. "I grew up watching

WORLD IN BRIEF

Pope warns youth of easy path
 ROME — Greeting thousands of young people, Pope John Paul II urged the cheering crowd Thursday to renounce any culture that promises easy gratification.

John Paul crossed the Tiber River for a youth rally in the piazza in front of St. John Lateran, the cathedral of Rome and former site of the signing of the Magna Carta.

"A diffuse culture of the ephemeral, which assigns value only to what appears beautiful and which pleases, would have you believe that the cross should be dismissed," John Paul said.

"This cultural style promises success, a rapid career and self-affirmation at any cost. It invites a sexuality level without responsibility and an existence without plans and respect for others."

"Open your eyes well, dear young people: this is not the road which leads to joy and life, but the path which sinks into sin and death," he said.

A representative of Mercy Medical Center in Nampa had conducted Magic Valley Regional on behalf of Catholic Health Initiatives.

According to Catholic Health Initiatives' website, it was formed in 1966 and is one of the largest nonprofit health organizations in the country with 88 hospitals in 22 states.

Violent weather strikes South, kills 2

COATESVILLE, Va. (AP) — With a powerful storm on the way, John Giles ran next door to warn his father-in-law. In the few minutes he was gone, a tornado destroyed his home and killed his wife and their baby boy.

Eighty yards from his father-in-law's house, Giles found only the brick foundation and front steps of what had been a new, two-story wooden home. The area was swept bare, the front steps and wrought-iron railing leading up to nothing.

Piled on the lawn and blown into a thicket were a baby's dresser table, a sofa, a wheelchair and an ironing board with clothing still inside. A tablecloth and bits of yellow insulation hung from tree limbs more than 50 feet above the ground.

"This is what he saw," said Hanover County Fire Chief Mike Harman Sr., standing at the rubble "where the bodies of Sheila Giles, 39, and 13-week-old Jeremiah were found.

Joe Chambers, who lives about 100 feet away from the Giles home, went out today to assess the damage.

"We had been down there a couple of weeks ago to give a gift for the baby," Chambers said. "I wish my wife was here. I wish they would have put in a basement."

Chambers' house lost one wall. He and his wife, Carole, stayed in their basement.

"We never saw anything. All we heard was the noise," he said.

Police and fire officials gather at the scene where a tornado touched down and ripped off the front porch of the Beverly Grill restaurant in Caroline County, Va. on Wednesday. The tornado tore through Coatesville, about 25 miles north of Richmond, destroying a house, killing a woman and her 13-week-old son. The tornado came out of a line of severe thunderstorms that crossed central and northern Virginia, damaging homes, knocking down dozens of trees and leaving thousands of people without power.

"You could hear everything ripping and tearing, everything flying. It just happened within a minute."

The tornado in this Virginia town 25 miles north of Richmond was just part of violent weather across the Southeast on Wednesday night. At least one tornado touched down in eastern

North Carolina, where rain and hail flooded roads and highwinds knocked down trees. Four people were injured.

In Virginia, the storms left thousands of people without electricity, but power had been restored to all but about 300 customers this morning, Virginia Power spokesman James Norville said.

Telephone service was also out in some places, forcing rescue crews to comb rural roads searching the densely wooded, remote area near Coatesville for other potential victims. Delayed by trees blocking the narrow roads, emergency workers needed at least an hour to reach the Giles house.

FDA approves new no-calorie artificial sweetener

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has approved a new no-calorie artificial sweetener that tastes like sugar but is 600 times sweeter.

Johnson & Johnson's sucralose is the only artificial sweetener made from sugar. Scientists changed sugar's molecule to make the sweetness more intense but not allow it to be absorbed. Unlike other sweeteners, it passes straight through the body.

"It's almost magical in the way that it works," said Les Goldsmith of McNeil Specialty Products, the Johnson & Johnson subsidiary that manufactures sucralose.

College graduates fare better emotionally than dropouts

ATLANTA (AP) — Thinking about quitting school for the sake of your mental health? Think again.

College graduates across the country feel better emotionally and physically than high school dropouts because they have better jobs, take better care of themselves and have better access to health care, say government researchers who conducted a state-by-state health survey.

The survey, released Thursday by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, showed college graduates felt healthy an average of 26 days a month, while high school dropouts felt good 22.8 days a month.

South Dakota's college graduates had the highest average of healthy days a month, 27.1. High school dropouts there reported feeling healthy 23.8 days a month.

"Some of the hassles of urban life are not present here," said Lamon Parker of the state's Public Health Department. "There's only 700,000 people here and about 75,000 square miles. There's the clean air and clean water."

Kentucky, one of the nation's top tobacco and coal producers, had the lowest number of healthy days. College graduates reported feeling well only 23.7 days a month, and high school dropouts felt well 21.3 days.

Greg Lawther of the state Health Department attributed the results to Kentucky having the highest smoking rates in the country.

"You could look at just that factor alone and know we're going to have health problems," he said.

CDC researcher Dave Moriarty said the survey's findings reinforce past studies "that say the environment, the economy and socioeconomic levels are an indicator of a person's health."

"What this says is that people that have limited education or access to information are not feeling as healthy as those who do," he said.

Between 1993 and 1996, 431,596 people across the country were asked by telephone about how healthy they felt emotionally and physically during a 30-day period.

The CDC said the report may underestimate a state's health problems, because not everyone had telephones or was eager to confess their habits.

But Moriarty said studies have shown that asking people to rate their own health is an inexpensive and generally reliable technique, especially with the elderly.

The CDC's report doesn't explain the reasons behind the differences among states, but Moriarty said it should help states improve or add to existing health programs.

California, Colorado, Florida, Indiana, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nevada, Oregon and Rhode Island had a lower average number of healthy days than the rest of the country.

Connecticut, Georgia, Hawaii, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, New Jersey, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Tennessee had higher-than-average healthy days.

EDITORIAL

Area needs good relations between cops, community

Jim Dahl has refused to dignify with investigation the apparently joking - but unfunny - threat against one of his police officers.

The Jerome police chief might have a point.

Why waste officers' time and taxpayers' money trying to find the anonymous - bone-heads) who sent patrolman Stan Conway a certificate good for one free visit to suicide doctor Jack Kevorkian?

Still, there's an is - sion larger than the small-minded humorist who dropped Conway a line. Police are inextricably tied to the citizens they protect. Neither can function well without the other.

And there are subtle signs of strain in the relationship.

That's inevitable. There's always going to be a certain level of skepticism between police and the public, running both ways.

It is, for instance, a good bet that Conway's pen pal might have gotten a traffic ticket from the officer, whose aggressive patrol work has drawn sharply mixed reviews on the Northside.

A $25 ticket will cramp the police-public relationship. But how far to carry a grudge?

"You never know what might happen the next time you pull somebody over," reads an excerpt of the letter to Conway.

Imagine the chill those words put into a patrolman.

As we reported a couple of weeks ago, police on the beat in the Magic Valley are a little bit more nervous these days. And with justification.

Police say they're running into more people, even on traffic stops, who seem to be looking for a confrontation. Drugs are poured lighter fluid on a flammable mix. The increasingly popular methamphetamine is an "upper" that makes its users high-strung and unpredictable.

Some local police have taken a proactive approach to the issue. Drawing on his law-enforcement experience in Southern California, Twin Falls Police Chief Lee DeVore has made "community policing" a centerpiece of his policy here. The idea is to get police talking more to the citizens they are paid to protect, and to give officers on the street more power to solve crime problems at the root.

Other agencies are looking at the idea. It strikes us as a good start to strengthen the relationship between police and the public.

It's easy to convince ourselves that this is all an emergency problem. But look at Boise, and remember that it takes only one bullet - fired from either side, out of anger or out of nervousness - for the problem to come home.

And that's no joke.

Drug abuse needs spiritual aid

Mildred Creaght's "Enough is Enough" presentations moved me. I commend the Twin Falls School District for bringing an fully backing Mr. Creaght's campaign.

His message was clear: Illicit drug use and drug abuse mustn't be ignored or minimized but acted upon. Yet I find it unfortunate that in today's political climate, speakers such as Mr. Creaght are not at liberty to give the whole story, which is that drug abuse is chiefly a spiritual issue.

Resolved alone does not necessarily deal with some primary causes of drug use: Fear of pain, fear of not being accepted, discontentment or lack of worth and identity. Simply put, people abuse drugs because they are trying to check out, fit in, feel good or self-destruct. These are issues that cannot be properly treated with medicine, psychology or even, dare I say, education.

We cannot deal with such base insecurities merely through resolve, for our resolve is only as strong as our inner security in the first place. As a Christian, I am a reconciled child of God. As such, I do not need to escape my personal world or find false contentment in an amnesia. I do not need to do foolish things to fit in; I have been accepted by the maker.

And though my inherent nature may be self- or other-destructive (as is everyone's to a degree), I have been made new by Christ, and destructive thoughts and behaviors must first contend with my renewed conscience.

Mr. Creaght professed to be a Christian man, even participating in a community-wide Christian worship service the night prior to his seminars.

I am confident that his faith drives him to spend this powerful wake-up call day-in and day-out. But I also sense his frustration at the diminished degree of lasting impact inspired by 22 years of professional speaking. I suppose that what really keeps him going are the individual young people, pro athletes and leaders he has counseled after his presentations. This is the real battle plan: More than just a community-wake-up call, but individual lives presenting themselves humbly for help - lives that need to be touched by Jesus Christ, the one who said "enough is enough" for us.

Community must get involved

Reading the March 27 Times-News, I was struck by the connection between four articles, the editorial and a letter, all concerned with schools and community involvement.

The front-page headlines hawked the failed bond issue in Jerome where overcrowded schools are the issue. Three attempts at bond issues have now failed because they were tied to a property-tax hike instead of other ways to raise money.

A lovely contrast with the headline was on B-3 in praise of the King Fine Arts Center, being built in a corner of the Newbury High School by the Mount Hartless Heritage Foundation with donations from local businesses, service clubs and individuals - "another way to raise money."

A shocking contrast was on A-5, an article about a high school in Georgia where schools have signed contracts with businesses agreeing to exclude competitors' products in exchange for cash payment. Totally un-American, but it is a way to raise money.

The fourth article, on C-6, gets back to what schools are all about. College of Southern Idaho music teacher Sue Miller focuses her students' attention on their love for her subject and works to help them become proficient in their endeavors. This kind of commitment could (should) be communitywide.

This brings me to the editorial which addresses the drug problem and in which the editor applies his principle to schools (schools are singled out as well as businesses: "A long-term communitywide commitment" is required). A letter to the editor on the same page emphasizes that our young people are the future of tomorrow and wants "headlines of something good."

This may be a stretch, but I am suggesting here that the "required" community-wide commitment will bring to our schools and our young people "something good" worthy of front-page headlines.

Here's the next Macarena

I've thought up a new song and dance and wanted you to be the first to know of it. It's called "The Clinton Grope," and you do this way.

Have your partner stand in front of you. Now with both hands at sides, cup them, then turn one to the rear and one to the front and now you're ready; take three steps forward and three steps back, grope, grope, turn around, turn around, hold me tight - "please don't bite." Now take two steps, etc., as the tempo rises.

I realize that it needs a little work, but it should be popular.

Hospital sale isn't complicated

To Dennis Moughtan: You were quoted in the newspaper as stating that the sale of the hospital is "a complicated matter." Of course, the sale of any major asset is complicated and difficult, but in this instance, the complication should be minimal. Placing a value on the hospital assets will be done primarily where there are several buyers available, each bidding at arm's length.

All of the assets have been sold or bought with tax-free dollars. So all of the assets belong to the county of Twin Falls or perhaps to some other tax-paying entity having some interest for tax money contributions. For reasons unknown, there continue to be the only vague references as to how the money received from the sale of the hospital is to be disbursed. If the money is $70 million, then that money must be returned to the taxpayers of Twin Falls County. If the market value is more than the depreciated value, then of course, that good faith factor will be increased, but the return still goes to the taxpayers of Twin Falls County.

There seems to be some suggestion all through this discussion that John Bingham and Ken Fry have vested some interest in the hospital assets.

These two gentlemen have no operating agreements, and they have been well overpaid pursuant to the operating agreements. They have no interest in the assets of what is called Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, nor does any other county official.

Nor can the county grant any gross gratuity to Mr. Birmingham and Mr. Fry in the nature of the golden parachutes valued at $300,000 per person. There is no consideration for the golden parachute. It is a gift, but I can assure you it is not likely to be paid.

This matter is not that complicated. Bids should be requested from the potential buyers of all of the assets known as the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. The bids should then be analyzed and compared. A sale made and all of the sale proceeds then returned to the taxpayers.

On a national level, the debate is concerning as to whether to use the budget surpluses for tax reduction or for other expenditures. In Twin Falls County, the $70 million that the taxpayers own might be used in part for necessary construction, but for the most part, that money should be returned to the taxpayers of Twin Falls County.

LLOYD J. WALKER

Heap all of the blame on 'them'

My eyes are wide open, Mr. Kuhlman. Did I mention that I am a single mother of two? I, alone, am responsible for their every need. Child support, for me, is a thing of fancy. In essence, "Me" responsibility and I are intimate friends.

May I let you in on a little secret, though? I like my kids. Truly, I do. They are my pride and joy.

And they are my pride. It is a grand thing to stand on a soapbox and preach responsibility. And you are absolutely correct: "They" should be responsible. Ask anyone. "They" ought to be held accountable. "They" are horrible, nasty people. "They" are irresponsible.

My problem is the transition from "they" to "me." "Me" always has a reason, an excuse, a justification. "Me" has a finger ready to point. And "me" responsibility inevitably falls down to "we." From there, "we" goes into denial and accusations. "We" certainly don't want it in our own back yards, or to take away from what is rightfully ours.

I used a monetary approach in my previous letter, sir, exactly the response you gave me. A real-life definition of the finger is held accountable. "They" are not even allowed the children "they" put on the earth. How can "we" possibly afford 40 million more?

If you are truly serious about stopping abortion, sir, do your own self-righteous indignation to the polls. Take it to the schools, to the churches, to the battered-women shelters, to your children and to your children's friends. Teach and share the moral values, and responsibility - scream about. Don't demand the government to do something. You do it. Morals cannot be enforced. They have to be learned.

SP should take responsibility

Question: Are those guys in the black and white cars our friends or protectors? Case in point:

My father, Harry E. Warnke, was struck by one such vehicle being driven by a state trooper of higher rank while crossing a Burley city street in a crosswalk with a cane with the proper signal. He is 86. An ambulance was called, but once began to swell and became very painful. A visit to the doctor revealed a break at the knee.

All this happened on March 13. Finally, on March 18, he was operated on at Cassia Regional Medical Center and a metal pin inserted in his knee. He has since contracted viral pneumonia and is still in said hospital. In the interim, my mother, 83, has been forced to move from a home of 45 years into an assisted-living house at a cost of $3,000 per month to be joined later by my father upon his release.

Dad, not being a sue-happy individual, made an assumption that the state of Idaho would make things right. Contact was made and he was made aware that the state would do nothing - not even admit liability. File a claim they say. If this matter goes to court, and it most certainly will, do the taxpayers of the state of Idaho get stuck for any settlement?

Imagine yourself or your parents going through the trauma, the pain, the loss of your familiar surroundings, the additional living expense that will soon eat up life savings. This is not right nor just.

I submit this to your readers only to point out that in an effort to protect one of their own, who may I understand lose his position if guilty, this agency of the state has made life pretty miserable for my entire family. Someone with a court should look into this matter.

Mountain View provides good care

This is in regard to your recent article about the state finding problems at a care center in Kimberly.

I have first-hand knowledge with the Mountain View Care Center because my brother is a resident at the Mountain View Care Center and I visit him daily. As far as my brother's care is concerned, Mountain View has provided satisfactory care for him and it is trying to do a better job. I compare the quality of the care that he receives with at least two other facilities, which he has resided at during the past three years.

I find the state's findings to be unwarranted in the care centers. I am surprised that similar deficiencies and worse situations are not identified in other care centers. The state should develop a proactive process to take care of the problem so the residents are not victimized. The current process relies on review of documentation and isolated incidents, a reactionary approach. This has resulted in making nurses do paperwork rather than nursing, and consequently the problems persist.

I encourage you to do an investigative report on this topic rather than printing what happened in a given nursing home.

Do you have info on St. Mary's?

I am seeking information on a St. Mary's Church (also referred to as St. Marie's Immaculate Church, that was in existence in 1948. The Rev. M.A. King was the pastor.

Can someone tell me where the church is and the denomination. I have a relative who was baptized there.

Search for baby continues without help of parents

BURLEY - Cassia County Sheriff Billy Crystal continued Thursday his search for a missing 1-month-old boy have stopped cooperating with investigators.

He said the thrust of the research is continuing in Twin Falls County and Jerome, where Canaan Reign Barnett lives.

Crystal said the department was still not ready to release the names of the boy's parents, but said he hoped the name would be released soon.

The parents reported the boy was taken from the Burley Wal-Mart parking lot at 10 a.m. Sunday morning. They said a man with a tattoo under his left eye showed them a gun and told them to meet another person at noon. The parents said they waited until 4:30 p.m. and no one came, so they went to the police.

Investigators from Cassia County, the state Criminal Investigation Bureau and Jerome CB agents could not be reached Thursday afternoon.

Willis works plugs for TF, new movie into Letterman talk

TWIN FALLS - Bruce Willis promoted his new movie, "Mercury Rising," on late night TV Thursday, and worked in a mention of Twin Falls.

Willis appeared Thursday on "Late Show with David Letterman" from Twin Falls' Turf Club - where crews are filming scenes for the Willis movie "Breakfast of Champions."

Willis commented that it was good to be working on a movie close to the Sun Valley-area home where he lives with his wife, Demi Moore.

Much of "Breakfast of Champions" is being shot in Twin Falls.

Much of the rest of Willis' "Late Show" appearance spoofed Hollywood, with jokes about film stunts such as bungee jumping, a plane into a glass of cable sliding into a tub of chocolate pudding, and jokes about Willis' friend and fellow actor Alec Baldwin.

Man faces charges for firing pistol within city limits

TWIN FALLS - Authorities charged a man early Thursday morning with discharging a weapon in city limits.

Joseph R. Melugin, 31, pleaded innocent to the misdemeanor charge in court Thursday. Melugin also pleaded innocent to the charge of exhibiting a deadly weapon.

Two witnesses said Melugin discharged a 9 mm pistol into the air at about 1:30 a.m. at 517 Jefferson St., a police affidavit said. Melugin apparently had been having an argument.

TF woman announces bid for lieutenant-governor's seat

TWIN FALLS - Working-class advocate and Democrat Don McMurrain of Twin Falls announced Thursday a running mate in his bid for governor.

Erwin will run for the seat of lieutenant-governor while Sussman is assistant manager of Circle K on Addison Avenue in Twin Falls.

The part-time lieutenant governor's job is held by Republican Butch Otter, who is seeking an unprecedented fourth term.

Former Democratic state Sen. Sue Reents of Boise is considering challenging Otter.

Wood River High School plans orientation for new freshmen

HAILEY - An orientation will be held Thursday for the upcoming freshman class at Wood River High School.

Orientation will be held at 7 p.m. in the high school auditorium, Fox Area Road. For more information call 788-3475.

Late-night trespassing at high school leads to charges

BURLEY - Four teens were arrested late Wednesday night and charged with trespassing after being caught on the roof at Burley High School, a Cassia County sheriff's report said.

Eighteen-year-old Matt Hanks and three other Burley boys - all 17, with names withheld - were taken to the roof hiding behind some air-conditioning units, the report said. Deputies were tipped off by a custodian who heard footsteps on the roof.

Hanks was charged with trespassing and the other three with trespassing and curfew violations and released to their parents, the report said.

Elmore: Change won't stop justice

Prosecutor did right thing by resigning, police chief says

By Mark Heinz Times-News writer

MOUNTAIN HOME - On his way out of the Elmore County prosecutor's office, Steven Warrick has filed to unseat a District Court judge who sanctioned Warrick for not following court procedures.

Meanwhile, the local chief deputy prosecutor and police chief said Warrick's sudden departure won't halt the wheels of justice.

Warrick is so far the only challenger to 4th District Judge Michael McLaughlin in the May 26 primary election.

Warrick, elected prosecutor in November 1996, announced his resignation Wednesday.

Elmore County Commissioner Betsy Peterson and Chief Deputy Prosecutor Dave Gross said Warrick's recent troubles have included a sanction from McLaughlin.

McLaughlin's clerk Thursday declined to release any specifics about the sanction. Warrick and McLaughlin Thursday could not be reached for comment.

Gross and a deputy prosecutor have taken over Warrick's caseload while Elmore County commissioners consider a list of possible replacements.

When a new prosecutor will step in isn't certain, but most of the cases Warrick left behind will proceed, said Mountain Home Police Chief Tom Berry.

One felony drug and arms possession case has fallen through the cracks, Berry said. But Gross said he will probably soon resume the case.

Gross said he has sought help from the state attorney general's office to keep on track the first-degree murder case against Jason A. Burdett of Mountain Home.

The charge against Burdett stems from the 1996 death of 20-month-old Brooks Comfort Keenan of Mountain Home. Burdett is charged with fatally injuring Keenan by packing him up and slapping him headfirst into a wall.

Burdett's trial, scheduled to begin June 8, probably won't be delayed, Gross said.

Warrick was slow to act on the Burdett case and others, Berry said.

"We feel he's done the right thing by stepping down, and now we'll get on with business," he said.

Elmore County Sheriff's Department Narcotics Detention Center also said he was less than pleased by Warrick's job performance.

Warrick seemed to have trouble preparing and following through on cases, including some felony drug arrests, Greg Berry said.

ON THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

Stallings launches run for Congress

Senior politician hopes to reclaim 2nd District seat

By Liz Wright Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Championing education, agriculture and the environment, Richard - Stallings - launched his Democratic campaign in Twin Falls to reclaim the 2nd Congressional District seat he held for eight years.

"This is going to be an exciting year and I hope we'll have the support in the Magic Valley we've always had in the past, and I feel very confident that's going to happen," Stallings said 30 applauding supporters at Canyon Springs Park Hotel Thursday.

Stallings left Congress after an unsuccessful bid for the U.S. Senate in 1992. The former four-term congressman from Pocatello is the sole Democrat running for a seat being vacated by U.S. Rep. Mike Crump, R-Idaho.

Mark Scarab of Twin Falls, Mike Simpson of Blackfoot and Ann Foyhild and Diane Wanklin of Idaho Falls are seeking Republican's favor in the May 26 primary to oppose Stallings in the November election.

Stallings Thursday took a job at Simpson, Idaho's House speaker, who had broken state rules by traveling by state plane to campaign rallies across Idaho, March 25. An apologetic Simpson issued a news release saying he thought he was traveling by private charter until he learned otherwise and he promptly reimbursed the state for the flights.

"Now I need to make it very clear today that we arrived not by state plane," Stallings said to chuckles. "Not by any plane, by automobile, it's the Democratic way get around the state."

Simpson's team was begrudgingly amused.

"We've pulled the trigger on our campaign," Stallings said. Please see STALLINGS, Page B3

Urban renewal won't include railyard

By William Brock Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Money to buy the railroad switching yard in Old Towne was officially stripped from the Urban Renewal Agency's project list Thursday. But funds to pursue the deal would still be available - if a deal ever comes together.

Financing for the gritty, 27-acre switching yard has been evaporating steadily from a multimillion-dollar bond issue for Urban Renewal projects. The original plan was an outright purchase of the switching yards for $3.3 million, but that was pared down to an installment-purchase plan with $74,250 to be paid up front.

The financial and board members scratched the remaining amount at Thursday's meeting, then went on to trim an additional $500,000 from the project list's reserve fund.

The revised list details $7.37 million worth of projects. The actual bond issue, however, would include financing and administrative costs, would total $8.85 million.

The bond issue has not been authorized yet, and two public hearings are planned.

The latest Urban Renewal list includes more than 20 projects, some of which have been on hold for years. Bigger items include a $2.5 million to boost water pressure. Please see RENEWAL, Page B3

911 board recommends permanent job for director

By Mark Heinz Times-News writer

JEROME - Given a vote of confidence Thursday by the regional 911 center operations board, Jeff Rodeman is one step away from becoming the center's permanent director.

"Do you have enough time to do all the jobs you need to do?" Lincoln County sheriff and board member Steve Southwick asked Rodeman.

Yes - for now - said Rodeman, who in February was named interim director of the Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center. Rodeman still works as the center's mapping supervisor, the position he held under former director Al Sandner, who resigned in December.

Whether to permanently promote Rodeman rests with SIRCOCOM's joint powers board, which includes commissioners from each of the four counties in the center's coverage area.

The joint powers board initially opted to put Rodeman at the helm for a six-month trial period.

But the joint board this month decided to ask the operations board - which includes heads of area fire, police and emergency medical agencies - whether to skip the rest of the trial period.

That would leave SIRCOCOM with one fewer full-time members, because a new mapping supervisor would not be hired.

The operations board also approved Rodeman's recommendation to keep on joint powers board secretary Veronica Lieberman as a part-time administrative assistant.

Rodeman said Lieberman's help has allowed him keep up with mapping while directing the center.

The joint powers board is expected Wednesday to vote on Rodeman and Lieberman's jobs. If either business, the operations board.

Castleton aspires for new office

Candidate says Supreme Court should reflect state as a whole

By Liz Wright Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The Idaho Supreme Court will reflect a cross-section of the state, not just Ada County, says candidate Lowell Castleton, a magistrate judge from Franklin County.

While pledging impartiality, Castleton said he would represent the sensibilities of rural Idaho if elected to the state's highest court May 26.

"The fact is we have a very Boise-dominated court and I don't think the people of Idaho, if they're cognizant of that, want that to continue," Castleton said in a meeting with The Times-News' editorial board Thursday.

This is the first time candidates for the Idaho Supreme Court have run against each other in an open race since 1968. Justice Wayne Johnson is retiring, and candidates are former attorney general Byron Kidwell and Boise attorney Mike Wetherell.

Castleton says he has what it takes to confront the issues he predicts will come before the Supreme Court: water rights, land-use concerns, the overlapping of criminal law with divorce and child custody cases, and administration of the judicial system statewide.

Castleton, 45, graduated 15 years ago, Castleton practiced water law in southeastern Idaho, representing farmers, irrigation districts and canal companies.

The recent massacre of four children and a teacher in Jonesboro, Ark., allegedly by two other children, sheds light on problem spots in Idaho's juvenile justice law, Castleton said.

For instance, the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare is appealing Castleton's decision to give the agency custody of a 13-year-old boy alleged to have sexually abused two girls. The boy was diagnosed as a sexually incompetent to stand trial, but because no juvenile law spells out how to handle mentally incompetent juveniles, Castleton completed the adult standard and handed him to an agency with facilities to treat the boy, he said.

As a result of what happened in Jonesboro, Castleton expects many states to attempt to lower the age for juveniles to be tried as adults. Castleton would prefer careful attention paid to the details rather than a "kneejerk" response.

"We need something all-encompassing," Castleton said.

If elected, Castleton said he would

Weather dampens start of golf season

By Sam Falkman
Times-News correspondent

JACKPOT, Nev. — The weather set the Jackpot Golf Course off to a slow start, golf pro Dave Albrecht told the Elko County commissioners.

Albrecht said greens fees are down $5,000 compared to this time last year, but the peak summer months could make up that difference. By all indications, Albrecht said, this should be a good year. Bookings for tournaments are already up 30 percent over last year.

Tim Brown of Elko Sanitation gave a presentation on what he would charge to haul Jackpot and Jarbidge, Nev., solid waste.

He said it would be double the cost of hauling the garbage from Wells, Nev.; if Brown is awarded a contract, he would charge each Jackpot household $18 a month. Brown would prefer hauling the solid waste to Elko rather than Idaho's Milner Butte, to more easily maintain and manage his trucks and man-holes.

"We need to explore all our options," Elko County Commissioner Roberta Skelton said. The commissioners will wait until their July meeting in Jackpot to decide on a permanent solution to the solid-waste problem. Commissioners agreed they need more input from the community.

Also this week, the commissioners' meeting was filled to standing-room only with Elko County senior citizens, who want a new center. They have derived a plan for a new center with help from the city of Elko, the county, a low-interest loan, fund-raising and perhaps a community development block grant.

The present facility is inadequate and turns away seniors daily. It also has a blind driveway onto a busy street, which makes entering and exiting dangerous.

Seniors hoped for a $1.8 million facility to serve 250 people a day, and they need the commissioners to guarantee their low-interest loan of up to $500,000.

Commissioners unanimously agreed to guarantee the loan. They also recommended the seniors go ahead without depending on block-grant money.

The seniors gave the commissioners a round of applause.

Charles Traugher, Lost River advocate, dies of emphysema

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Known to some as a "cranky old man" and the lead water advocate for the Lost River Valley, Charles "John" Traugher died Saturday in a Pocatello hospital after a battle with emphysema. He was 66.

The self-made Arco business man waged a long campaign, charging the Idaho Department of Water Resources and other government agencies that had allowed the draining for agriculture of the Big Lost River and Spring Creek, a small stream that dried up in front of his home.

"Some people thought he was just a cranky old man, but frankly, nothing could be farther from the truth"

— Marti Bridges, Idaho Rivers United

caused the devastation in the valley," said Marti Bridges of Idaho Rivers United. "He knew it was coming by the government bureaucracies."

Traugher wrote hundreds of letters to government officials, including President Clinton, with phrases such as "when the law ends, tyranny begins."

He erected placards in the Idaho Statehouse with dozens of photos of dried-up riverbeds where the creeks used to flow.

"Some people thought John went too far," Bridges said. "But his feelings were that the government had really failed the people of that valley."

Some thought he was just a cranky old man, but frankly, nothing could be farther from the truth."

Jury awards costly verdict against insurance company

BOISE (AP) — A 4th District Court jury has handed a $9.6 million judgment to a woman who suffered a herniated disk when the rear wheel of her car fell off.

The court ruled Thursday for Cindy Robinson, who was injured in a 1992 accident and submitted medical bills to her insurer, State Farm.

Robinson's attorneys said the insurance company denied and delayed payment of the bills, based on evaluations by a medical review company. While that company's reports appeared to be authored by physicians, no doctor actually evaluated them, they said.

The plaintiff's lawyers also charged State Farm planned to defeat the legitimate claims of its policyholders through fraudulent reviews of medical records. They alleged the company put its insured customers under financial pressure to reduce the amount they would settle for.

"This is the first jury that has had the opportunity to review this abhorrent practice," the exchange attorney Rick Friedman said. "His verdict should send a clear message to State Farm and other companies that would cheat their insured that the conduct will not be tolerated."

"It is our position, the fact is," said Jeff Thompson of Elam and Rice in Boise, which represented State Farm.

Bellevue holds city elections Monday

By Julie Casey Lynn
Times-News correspondent

BELLEVUE — Bellevue will hold its election for three untested City Council seats from noon to 8 p.m. Monday at Bellevue City Hall.

Bellevue is a chartered city, it is required to hold city elections on the first Monday in April, said Janice Moroni, city clerk and treasurer.

Council president Joanni Ehrmantraut, a six-year incumbent, is running for re-election. Vivian Ivie is running for her second term. Kathy Clark, who was appointed in February, will be running in her first election.

Moroni isn't expecting much voter turnout because it is just a city election.

"We've had a lot of input from people at our meetings," she said. "Since our council is running uncontested, I think that's an indicator that people are happy with the way we are running our city government."

"I'll probably have the votes tallied by 8:15 p.m.," she said. The seats are all for two-year terms.

Times-News correspondent Julie Casey Lynn can be reached in Ketchum at 726-7894.

The Sundance Ag Inc. plant southwest of Burley is producing melam sodium one year after an accident that killed an Albion man. Sundance officials say the plant has taken steps to make the product safer.

Problems still remain for Sundance

By Kurt Friedmann
Times-News writer

BURLEY — At 9:10 a.m. one year ago today, Paul Stewart was dying.

He was working on top of a mixing tank at Rainbow Farm Products Inc., now Sundance Ag Inc., when the vat exploded. Stewart was thrown by the blast but caught by a nearby ladder where he swung, 20 feet above the chemical-soaked earth, dazed and bewildered, until rescue workers freed him.

Stewart, of Albion, was rushed to the hospital where he died as a result of his wounds. Eight others were treated.

The plant sat dormant for three months while the Cassia County Commission reviewed the company's special-use permit. In July, a new, more restrictive permit was granted and the facility went back online. Since then, the plant has been reviewed by an independent auditor and even hosted an emergency drill for area-wide response teams, receiving rave reviews.

The legal aftermath of the April 3, 1997, accident is starting to get worked out: the company Wednesday settled one lawsuit filed by three workers who were at the plant that day. But many questions remain.

A few months after the accident the Occupational Safety and Health Administration leveled $330,400 in fines at the chemical company for various violations — the second-highest OSHA fine in Idaho history.

Eight of the 35 citations were categorized as "willful."

Sundance attorneys appealed, saying the fines were "inordinate." A hearing could occur sometime in July, Sundance attorney Bill Parsons said.

But that isn't the extent of Sundance's troubles.

At least three third-party suits were filed against the company after the accident. But Scott Platt, DeVon Bowcutt and Randy Latham met Wednesday with Sundance representatives in Boise and settled their differences.

An independent mediator worked with the group for about 10 hours until a settlement was reached, said E. Lee Schlender, counsel to the three plaintiffs — all employees of Paul's Barclay Mechanical Services Inc., which was working on contract at the plant that day.

"Everyone was extremely happy," he said.

But Bowcutt tells a different story.

He said he wasn't at all happy with the settlement — or with Sundance's attitude towards those injured in the blast. He said his back problems and the pain he suffered from chemical burns could have been prevented, and that's frustrating.

"Nothing is really resolved," he said. "The company knew there was a problem with that tank 45 minutes before the explosion and they never evacuated anyone."

But Robert Kerley, president of Sundance Resources, parent company to Sundance Ag, said the explosion and its effects have been blown out of proportion.

Kerley said the company spent almost $1 million after the explosion to ensure the product is the safest on the market.

"The accident didn't make us wake up and go out and fix anything because there was a problem," he said. "We just updated the plant and added a third stage."

Even aspects of the accident's cause are being debated a year later. The initial investigation found the explosive chemicals used to make the fumigant melam sodium ignited, possibly because a bolt was loose on the tank's manhole cover.

Kerley places the blame on Stewart, saying he was welding on top of the tank and creating a spark that ignited the gas inside.

"What happened wasn't during normal operations," he said. "We had just opened the plant and were trying to get things back online."

"But things are far from resolved, said OSHA Assistant Area Director Jerry Hockett.

"It's going to take some time," he said. "For everyone to heal, and these violations to be dealt with."

High court says employee can get benefits

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has ruled a former J.R. Simplot Co. technician is eligible for unemployment-insurance benefits even after testing saved, we've admitted our sins," said Jeff Schrade, Simpson's campaign manager. "We're now moving on to a Republican victory which will defeat Richard Stallings."

On education, Stallings supports President Clinton's suggestion to use money from a pending legal settlement with tobacco companies to repair schools and reduce class sizes by adding teachers.

He would encourage high school graduates to seek higher education through college or vocational and technical training. Better-educated young people attract high-tech industries — and keep young Idahonians from seeking jobs elsewhere.

"We need to attract good quality high-paying jobs so we don't export our most important crop, our kids," he said.

Stallings vowed to protect agriculture. If elected he would urge Congress to keep sugar beet subsidies, often targeted for cutbacks. He also would promote a diversity of crops that could help farmers stay afloat, and improvements in crop marketing.

One way Idaho can help farmers keep costs low is by maintaining low power rates for irrigation, said Stallings, who opposes any efforts by Congress to deregulate the electrical industry.

"I don't think it's the federal government's prerogative, it's a state issue," Stallings said.

On the environment, Stallings said the region needs to be "doing what we can to restore the salmon runs, doing what we can

Jury deliberates late in abuse case

By Penelope Reedy
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A jury working late Thursday night deliberated the fate of a man charged with sexual abuse of two girls.

But the five-man, seven-woman jury didn't reach a verdict by 11:15 p.m. Thursday in a case involving Manuel Ramirez Curiel, who is charged with two counts of lewd and lascivious conduct with minors under the age of 16.

Curiel, 37, testified Thursday on his own behalf claiming he did not sexually abuse the two girls, who were 6 and 7 years old at the time.

"I know something happened to them, but I didn't do it," Curiel testified Thursday morning.

Curiel testified that he was living in a small, crowded trailer at the time of the reported abuse. Those factors, taken together, would have made it impossible for him to abuse the girls in the way they had described.

One of Curiel's brothers had described the close living quarters during his testimony Wednesday.

Curiel expressed no emotion during his testimony, maintaining his characteristic stone-faced expression the entire time.

Special Prosecutor Richard Bevan argued there was ample opportunity for Curiel to abuse the girls while they were in his care in a trailer at Golden Bell Trailer Park west of Burley from April 27, 1993, to Feb. 6, 1994. "The girls' mother was in prison in Boise during this time, serving a grand theft sentence."

Several witnesses, including two Department of Health and Welfare representatives, doctors treated in intensive care, the parents of the girls, and other children, and foster parents for the girls testified the girls identified a man named "Manuel" as their primary abuser while they lived in Idaho.

The girls also named other abusers, relatives and friends of Curiel, who stayed or visited the family while they lived in Salt Lake City.

The defense presented evidence Wednesday from Dr. Robert Engle, Ph.D., an expert trained in interviewing and examining abused children, who testified children are open to suggestion. He said he believed the parents may have contaminated the girls' testimony by creating memories of abuse that did not occur.

Jelderks' his closing remarks, said the foster parent had no motive for influencing the girls against Curiel. She testified she did not even know who he was until the girls made their allegations.

Leader blasts Army engineers

SPOKANE (AP) — U.S. Rep. Doc Hastings on Thursday blasted the Army Corps of Engineers for planning to rebury the site where the 9200-year-old bones of Kennewick Man were found.

Earlier this week, Congress took steps to block the reburial project. But the corps said Wednesday it may resume the work on April 5 anyway.

"It's painfully obvious that the corps has no intention of complying with clear-cut congressional intent," said the Republican House whip, who represents Washington district include the bone site.

"At this point, thanks to the arrogance and obstinance of the corps, Kennewick Man's last best hope is the federal courts," Hastings said, hoping a federal judge in Portland, Ore., would block the work.

However, one of the Indian tribes that claims the bones as an ancestor supports the site protection plans.

"We want this site protected from looting and more important, looters and grave robbers," said Joseph Pakootas, a tribal spokesman.

chairman of the Confederated Tribes — of the Colville Reservation.

The tribes worry that the graves of other ancient people needed to protect erosion and the Columbia River may be exposed by erosion, Pakootas said.

The tribe will ask President Clinton to veto the bill that seeks to block the site protection work, he said.

In its quarterly report to U.S. Magistrate John Jelderks, who is hearing two lawsuits regarding the bones, the Army Corps revealed Wednesday that it may resume "site protection work on April 6."

"The corps did not elaborate on its reasons for appearing to defy the wishes of Congress. Congress this week passed a bill blocking the corps from moving rocks, dirt and plants on the Columbia River shoreline in Kennewick, Wash., where the bones were found in 1996."

"The corps contends the work is needed to prevent erosion and protect the site from scavengers. But a group of scientists who oppose the work contend it will make the site impossible or very expensive to excavate in the future, and Congress agreed.

Ownership of the bones, among the oldest complete skeletons ever found in North America, has become a legal and political wrangle between area Indian tribes and scientists. The Indians claim the bones belong to an ancient tribe that must be reburied under federal law.

The scientists contend the bones must be studied to determine their ancestry.

The bones are controversial because initial examinations indicated they may have caucasoid features not found in present-day Indians, possibly supporting a theory that the skull more closely resembles people who live in central and southern Asia.

Jelderks is handling two lawsuits against the corps — one filed by the scientists and another by a pro-Christian religious group — seeking the right to sue for the bones. The bones remain in a federal laboratory in Richland, Wash.

Jury awards $1,006 each to hogtied inmates

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — A federal jury Thursday awarded $1,006 each to five state inmates who were hogtied two weeks after a bloody 1991 prison riot.

The jury also found that Montana prison officials violated their rights to five state inmates by searching a week later. But the jury awarded them damages of only $73 for that claim.

James Hoovestral, an inmate attorney, said the amount of damages was not important.

"What was important for us was that this was a constitutional claim and a finding that the Eighth Amendment had been violated," Hoovestral said, referring to the amendment that bans cruel and unusual punishment.

still alive and well in the state of Montana," he said.

The inmates were killed by fellow prisoners during the September 1991 riot at the Montana State Prison in Deer Lodge. Eighteen days later, five prisoners suspected of trying to incite a second riot were stripped naked, hogtied with handcuffs and chains and made to lie naked on bare concrete floors or on metal bunks without mattresses.

Inmates were left there for 24 hours one inmate was restrained for about 43 hours.

All but one of the hogtied inmates also was subjected to rectal searches about a week later, during which they claimed spectators jeered and laughed.

Eighteen inmates sued, alleging their prison officials violated their rights. The claims of four inmates were dismissed when they refused to discuss their actions during the riot.

A four-judge panel last year said the hogtied was a violation of the Eighth Amendment. But the question of damages was left up to a jury, which also was asked to determine whether prison officials denied the inmates medical treatment and then tried to cover up the abuses.

Jurors rejected those claims, and said one of the eight officials not responsible for the abuse.

Judge arraigns father, son lawyers on fraud charges

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A father-son attorney team has been arraigned on charges they committed fraud and securities fraud and engaged in illegal financial dealings.

Earl Spafford, 72, was arraigned on three counts of unlawful dealing of property by a fiduciary and one count of securities fraud. Lynn Spafford, 47, was arraigned on three counts of unlawful dealing with property by a fiduciary, two charges of communications fraud, and a securities fraud charge.

All of the charges are second-degree felonies.

Earl Spafford, a defense and personal injury attorney, was ordered to stop practicing law in October 1996 by a 3rd District judge after the Utah Bar Association accused him of mishandling more than $280,000 in client funds.

River re-routing project creates trouble for agriculture in Colorado

ANTONITO, Colo. (AP) — The Alamosa River is eating up precious pieces of Conejos County.

Not only that, it's sucking dry the groundwater from which some areas of the San Luis Valley draw water for their livestock and crops.

But don't blame the river, say area landowners. Blame the private and government heavy equipment operators who about 30 years ago plowed a straight and narrow path for 12 miles of this wandering tributary of the Rio Grande.

Their intentions were good — to protect the riverside town of Capulin from flooding created by oxbow lake dams — but the consequences of straightening the river's course have been disastrous.

Once-tall cottonwoods lie rotting across the banks, stealing summer shade from crops. One-rich pastureland is now barren, stripped of grasses that can't grow without the water that used to seep within their roots.

Gravel mined by the river's now-torrential flow piles up downstream, occasionally flooding areas once safe from inundation. And riverbanks regularly collapse into the hungry current, taking land stolen from farmers and ranchers by a flood-mitigation measure gone bad.

"The more little river has been treated worse than any other river you can write about," says John Shawcroft, 73, whose family has run cattle in the valley since 1883. "When they straightened it, it put the river in a straight line, and it just cut deeper and deeper and deeper. Before, the river had a lot of meanders. It was just like a snake, going back and forth, back and forth, and it burned up all of the river's energy."

But now the watery snake carries all that energy with it in a fast line downstream.

To prevent the artificially accelerated erosion rate from continuing, area landowners including Shawcroft have joined forces with local and federal government

Jeff Stern, coordinator of the Alamosa River project, walks along eroded riverbanks northwest of La Jara, Colo. The project will help stop river erosion in the soil banks along the stream in Rio Grande County in the San Luis Valley of southern Colorado.

agencies to slow the river's current through a variety of measures, from the reconstruction of bends in the river to the establishment of weirs, eddies and other features designed to slow the river and its impact on local agriculture.

The task facing the Alamosa River Watershed Project, says project coordinator Jeff Stern, is a daunting one. But it's necessary if farmers and ranchers want to keep working that land.

"The river is like us," Stern says. "It's just trying to do its thing. We all have our natural things deep in us, and rivers are the same way. They're living beings."

If the river is undercutting its banks, it is only because it wants to rediscover the meandering course that naturally takes it across the valley, Stern says.

Over the years, Stern says, landowners' jury-rigged fixes to the broken river system have only compounded their problems.

For example, if a headgate, which diverts water into irrigation systems, was discovered suddenly high and dry because the water had withdrawn into the river's

Lawyer questions federal jurisdiction in murder case

LEWISTON (AP) — His lawyer contends the federal government may not have jurisdiction to prosecute Bryan T. Crowe for the December slaying of a tribal member on the Nez Perce Indian Reservation.

Crowe, 23, was indicted in February by a federal grand jury in Boise on one count of second-degree murder for the beating death of Willis T. Greene, 35, who was found dead in a yard near PK's Bar in Lewiston on Dec. 16.

Federal prosecutors said Greene died of exposure as a result of being left outside in cold weather after the attack.

But Mark Moore, a Moscow attorney appointed to defend Crowe, said federal officials may not have jurisdiction to prosecute Crowe. He cited a January decision by the U.S. Supreme Court on a case involving the Yankeetown Sioux reservation in South Dakota.

In that ruling, the high court said the reservation was diminished by Congress in 1834 when large tracts of surplus land were sold.

Daycare owner pleads guilty to federal charges

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The owner and operator of a local daycare center faces sentencing June 8 on federal charges of submitting some $52,000 in inflated meal reimbursement claims to the government.

Tammy Ferguson of Kiddie Korner Kid Care Inc. could receive 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine when she appears before U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winnill.

She pleaded guilty this week to one count of theft of government property related to her non-profit child-care center's participation in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Child and Adult Care Food Program.

Job market still booms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asian financial markets setback to U.S. manufacturers but otherwise the American economy has continued at full steam. A drop in unemployment...

Orders to U.S. factories fell 0.9 percent in February, the Commerce Department said Thursday. For the most part that reflected a 32.8 percent plunge in aircraft orders...

The U.S. economy as a whole has been hurt much by Asia. Jobs remain plentiful. The Labor Department said the number of applications filed at state offices for unemployment benefits fell 0.6 percent as seasonally adjusted 305,000 last week.

A four-week average of benefit claims, which smooths weekly fluctuations, rose 1,000 to 398,250 last week. It was the average's eighth consecutive week below 310,000, the longest such stretch in 10 years.

The department's monthly employment report, due next Friday, will offer a more comprehensive look at the job market in March.

In February, even manufacturing held up fairly well. Orders increased for stone, clay and glass products, primary metals and the rest of fabricated metal products and industrial machinery.

It doesn't look like the manufacturing sector is that weak... said economist William Greider of Boston, Mass.-based Financial Services in Boston. "At this point it's hard to say Asia is slowing down the United States at all."

He predicted the Federal Reserve, which decided last week to leave short-term interest rates unchanged, would raise rates by late June to slow the economy to a pace it considers non-inflationary.

'Breakfast' with Vonnegut

Cynical protagonist sounds a lot like the novelist

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

"It shook up Kilgore Trout to believe that even he could bring evil into the world—in the form of bad ideas."

—Kurt Vonnegut, "Breakfast of Champions"

TWIN FALLS — He's sort of about America in the '70s: an unhappy, police-ridden survivor with a bad haircut.

Kilgore Trout, who lights the match to novelist Kurt Vonnegut's "Breakfast of Champions," never really fit in. But that's OK: neither did his world.

"As I approached my 50th birthday, I became more and more enraged and mystified by the idiot decisions made by my countrymen," Vonnegut told interviewer Greg Mitchell in 1974. "And then I had some sudden pity for them, for I understood how innocent and natural it was for them to behave so abominably, with such abominable results. They were doing their best to live like people invented in story books."

"Once I understood what was making America such a dangerous, unhappy nation of people who had nothing to do with real life, I resolved to shut myself out of life," Vonnegut wrote about life.

That's where Trout, science-fiction, hack-cum-Nobel laureate, came in. He's the major demo of several Vonnegut stories, including "Breakfast," which is being made into a movie in Twin Falls.

Trout, played by actor Albert Finney, comes to the fictional Midland City, played by Twin Falls, with a short story that convinces wingnut car dealer Dwight Hoover (Bruce Willis) that he's the only non-robot in the universe.

That's a recurrent theme of Vonnegut's Rebelianism, time-bending prose. Something's not quite right here.

"As I get older, I get more didactic,"

Novelist Kurt Vonnegut in 1973, as pictured on the back cover of 'Wampeters, Foma & Granfaloon.' 'Breakfast of Champions,' which is being filmed in Twin Falls, was published the same year.

the novelist told Playboy magazine in 1973, just after "Breakfast" was published. "I say what I really think. I don't hide ideas like Easter eggs for people to find."

(Vonnegut's publisher did not respond to repeated requests from the Times-News for an interview with the writer.)

Vonnegut at the movies: Films give author's tales life

The Three-News

Novelist Kurt Vonnegut's books have met with limited critical success, but a success when translated by Hollywood. Here's a rundown (only two, "Slaughterhouse 5" and "Mother Night," are available locally on video):

"Slaughterhouse 5" (1972), directed by George Roy Hill and starring Michael Caine, Ron Leibman, Eugene Roche, Sharon Gans, Valerie Perrine, Kevin Conway and John Dehner.

This is the story of Bill Pilgrim (Caine), who is ordinary in almost every respect but one: He has come unstuck in time and jumps back and forth in his life with no control over where he is going next. Part of one morning he might spend on the distant planet Tralfamadore with sexy movie bombshell Montana Wildhack (Perrine), and at the same time be in a ditch in Belgium in World War II where he is set upon by GIs Paul Luzzaro (Leibman) and Roland Wenz (Conway), and then captured by German soldiers. Then Billy finds himself on his honeymoon night in bed with his bride, the overweight but rich Valencia Merble (Gans). Back in the war, Billy is marching with other prisoners when he is pulled from the line to pose for pictures for a German press photographer. And so it goes, from past to present to future, until Billy finally realizes that in order for him to survive even to his death — which, again, jumping around in time; he watches in Philadelphia — he must concentrate on the good things and ignore the bad in life.

Sometimes draggy, sometimes on-target sprawling view of life through the eyes of a professional nobody lost in the time tunnel.

Big-budget adaptation of Vonnegut's bizarre fantasy novel is hard going for those unfamiliar with author's point of view, gains through repeat viewings.

—Leonard Maltin

"Mother Night" (1996), directed by Keith Gordon and starring Nick Nolte, John Goodman, Sherry Lee and Alan Arkin.

If singer Alanis Morissette ever wants to learn the correct definition of "ironic," she should see "Mother Night."

Vonnegut's satire has become an elegiac,

"What passes for a culture in my head is really a bunch of commercials, and this is intolerable," Vonnegut told Playboy. "It may be impossible to live without culture."

Skidde is at the heart of the book, he explained.

"I think young people detect that dislike for life my generation often learned from our parents during the Great Depression," Vonnegut said. "It gives them the creeps. Young people sense our envy, too — another thing we learned to do during the '30s to hunger for material junk and envy people who had it. The big secret of our generation is that we don't like life much."

That's why "Breakfast," the book, is so much like waking up in the middle of a nightmare and finding it's real. It remains to be seen how director Alan Rudolph's movie will play.

"At the end of 'Breakfast,' I give characters I've used over and over again the freedom," Vonnegut told Playboy. "I tell them I won't be needing them anymore. They can pursue their own desires. I guess that means I'm free to pursue my destiny, too. I don't have to take care of them anymore."

Vonnegut has often said that Kilgore Trout can't win. But can he act? "Film is too clankingly real," he told Mitchell a quarter century ago. "Too permanent, too industrial for me. As a child of the Great Depression, I am bound to complain that it is also too — expensive to be much fun. I decided that books are much more agreeable and much more easily patched.

"The big trouble with print, of course, is that it is an elitist art form," he added. "Most people can't read very well."

Sherrie Austin's facts of life: There is more than beauty

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Yes, trivia fans, before she became a country music starlet, Sherrie Austin was a regular on the sitcom "The Facts of Life." And yes, fellows, that's Sherrie (pronounced sher-REE) doing her best Shania Twain vamp in the video for "Put Your Heart Into It," which is shaping up as her first major hit. Austin could probably get by on looks alone, but her debut CD is titled "Words" for a reason: She's more proud of her songwriting than her beauty. That's why she gave up acting and moved to Nashville. "Anyone can be pretty," said Austin, 27.

winty movie about a man who becomes what he pretends to be. Nolte plays an American writer in Germany during World War II. The U.S. government asks him to deliver pro-Nazi speeches which contain coded information that is valuable to the U.S. But he cannot reveal what he is doing to anyone and, 15 years later in New York, he begins to realize that he may have been of more help to the Germans than to Americans. By pretending to be a Nazi, he became one.

The first part of "Mother Night" doesn't quite have a handle on Vonnegut — it misses his gallows humor. But it does have Nolte, who is terrific at showing his character's journey from cocky academic to defeated loser.

This is Vonnegut's specialty — sending an average guy down the absurd, pun-filled road to hell — and Nolte brings it to life. Also excellent is that great underplayer, Goodman, as a shadowy, genial Fed who is either Nolte's savior or his executioner.

What keeps "Mother Night" from greatness is the crucial miscasting of Lee as Nolte's beloved wife. It's a vital role — she shows us that there is one thing the political Nolte believes in — but Lee is awful. Her best performance was as Laura Palmer in "Twin Peaks" and she should stick to playing dead people.

But she can't rob the movie of all its tricky power. "Mother Night" suggests that it's impossible to be apolitical when you live in a politically charged time (in the same way that if you choose not to vote, you are essentially casting a ballot for the bad guy). It is a movie about the danger of standing still.

— Chris Hewitt

"Slapstick" (1984), directed by Steven Paul and starring Jerry Lewis, Madeline Kahn, Mary Faldman, Jim Backus, John Abbot, Pat Morita, Sam Fuller, Merv Griffin and Paul.

Lewis and Kahn give birth to enormous, reformed twins (also played by Lewis and Kahn) who are in reality alien messengers capable of solving the world's problems — as long as they're not separated. Given that cast and a Vonnegut novel as source material, you'd think there'd be no way to screw it up, but writer-producer-director-costar Paul manages.

Some funny things do survive (Fuller and the elder Lewis come off best), but overall pretty appalling.

— Leonard Maltin

"Happy Birthdays, Wanda June" (1971), directed by Mark Robson and starring Rod Steiger, Susannah York, George Grizzard, Don Murray, William Hickey, Pamela Fordin and Steven Paul.

Stagy but enjoyable film of Vonnegut's play about a male chauvinist explorer who returns home after seven years, finds his wife matured (and engaged) and his values now obsolete. Fine performances of Vonnegut's funny black humor situations and dialogue; Hickey is hilarious, as Steiger's Jerry-Lewis-esque buddy.

Stop by for a bite with Anne Rice

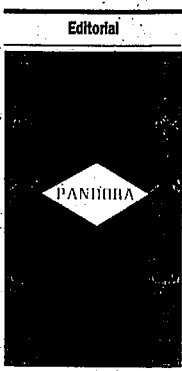

New York Daily News

“Happily, Anne Rice’s ‘Pandora’ (Knopf, $19.95) her first in the ‘The Vampire Chronicles,’ so fans who read her for that purpose can be forewarned. Better yet, you can buy a pound of fresh strawberries — so bright, so fleshy, so yielding — and sit down to enjoy the unbridled camp akin to that of ‘Butfy, The Vampire Slayer.’

At this time, the topics are enigmatic gods and goddesses. However, take away the erotic component of a Rice novel and you’re left with a low undifferentiated prose. There’s a description of being carried on a litter through a market, unreasoning diatribe about reason versus passion, and a tale that begins with one had brother selling out the rest of his family.

“Pandora, originally named Leda, was born in 15 B.C., the daughter of a rich Roman senator. When she was a precocious, Ovid-sputting 10-year-old, she met a tall, blond barbarian soldier named Sennus. (Think George Clooney with Brad Pitt’s hair.)

Fast-forward 20 years, two marriages, two divorces and a lot of post-rogue-war angst: Lydia’s fating date with a man in 15 A.D., a plot triggered by Bad Brother, and she escapes to Antioch, in

Book cover showing Pandora & Sennus

Turkey near the Syrian border. On her journey there she has blood-filled dreams of Egypt that seem to be fragments of an earlier life, or maybe something she picked up as a young woman hanging around the Isis Temple in Rome.

Finally at home in Antioch, she is able to mourn her father and finds the experience similar to the initiation rites of the Temple of Isis. Understanding had transformed her (as it so often will).

Of course, the reader knows that she will meet Marius again, that he will initiate her into the dark gift, the eternal life of a vampire.

And she does, and he does.

What’s difficult about reading Rice is compensating for a contemporary sensibility. People who cut their teeth on Mel Brooks movies and Myron Pyton skis have to be willing not merely to suspend but jettison disbelief to swallow a sentence like, “They will not let the murderous Pisto return, and Sennus gathers to himself all who served under Germanicus.”

What happens to Pandora, a name she took to disguise her Roman roots, and Marius, after their fiery, and vividly described, co-mingling of blood, is same old same old. He insists on the world of reason; she prefers the energies of dreams and mysticism. They quarrel for 200 years or so, then part. But not before a surprisingly concise summation of how Christianity encompassed and drew from existing ideas.

Like her mythic namesake, Pandora unleashes more evils than she realizes when she becomes a vampire. Rice, like any good vampire novelist, uses fiction to make everything work out — until the next sequel.

New mystery characters take stab at murder

Knigt Rider News Service

As much pleasure as a devoted reader gets from another visit with a beloved character in an ongoing series, there is also the thrill of watching a new character take shape and a new series begin.

We can’t tell at this point who will be a source of pleasure in five years, for many a promising series fizzles under the demands of publishing schedules and the limits of the genre. But knowing that some of today’s young wine will turn into vinegar need’t diminish one’s present enjoyment.

“Murder Under Blue Skies,” by Willard Scott with Bill Crider (Dutton, $23.95) — Just because someone becomes famous doesn’t mean they aren’t a murderer before they turned to (written) crime.

So weatherman Scott gives us a famous retired weatherman named Stanley Waters, 50ish and widowed, who is opening the Blue Skies Bar. Brewster Inn in his Virginia hometown.

Unfortunately, a guest at the grand opening has the bad taste to fall into the salsa and die.

“Quieter Than Sleep,” by Joanne Dobson (Doubleday, $21.95) — This first novel by a professor of English is subtitled “A Modern Mystery of Emily Dickinson.” Don’t let that put you off.

The question of who killed Prof. Randy Astin-Berger in the cloister of the college president’s home does not depend on a conviction for resolution. Although the victim was widely disliked, suspicion falls on Dickinson expert Karen Pelletier, whom Astin-Berger had been pursuing all semester and who has the misfortune to discover the body.

Karen, who struggled for 20 years to get an education and raise her daughter, is uncomfortable at post-Enfield College, and the chip on her shoulder colors her probing, including her suspicions of the policeman in charge of the investigation.

“A Wicked Way to Burn,” by Margaret Miles (Bantam, $5.50) — In this first volume of a new series, Margaret Miles introduces us to Charlotte Willetts, a young widow who manages the family farm in Braucebridge, Mass. Charlotte is smart, a logical thinker who tries to get along with her neighbors.

When a wealthy old man from Boston mysteriously combusts on the road, some of the shocked villagers suspect witchcraft. But Charlotte and her friend and neighbor, the eccentric Richard Longfellow, look for another explanation.

Before long, we are knee-deep in colony politics — with French Canadians as the scapegoat of choice — 18th-century science, the production of apple butter, the ill-starred romance of the indentured maid at the inn, the jealousy of the miller and a host of other items.

Favorite Polish pianist returns to Twin Falls

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho is an old friend of concert pianist Wladimir Koczanski's.

But then again, so is most of the rest of the world.

"He is mining there," he asked in a recent telephone interview from his Southern California home. "Not that marvelous. You have spring there, we have El Niño."

Koczanski performs his program of high-toned music and down-home storytelling from time to time across the Snake River Plain, including next Monday night at the College of Southern Idaho. It's a natural fit.

His manager is from Blackfoot. "I've performed at Twin Falls twice (the last time in 1983)," he said. "I feel right at home there."

The South Texas-born musician "I spoke Polish and Spanish before I spoke English" has toured and played with world-class orchestras almost from the time he graduated from the Juillard School of Music nearly four decades ago. His passion for the piano was in his blood (Friedrich Chopin and Ignace Stradawski).

"When I was growing up, Paderewski was the symbol of the Polish nation (and its first president and prime minister)," he said. "His passion very much appealed to me."

So does that of another Pole, the John Paul Koczanski played for the piano in Rome shortly after he ascended to the papacy.

Wladimir Koczanski, a favorite Polish pianist, returns to Twin Falls for a concert at the College of Southern Idaho on Monday night.

"He's a marvelous man," Koczanski said. "I hope he is with us for a long time!"

A visit to Poland in 1981, during the height of the Solidarity movement that challenged and eventually overthrew the Soviet-installed communist government, prompted Koczanski to organize a private-sector relief program.

"The people would come up to me in the street and tell me how bad things were for them," he said. "I told that story to my audiences back in the United States, and they responded with great generosity."

It was a Lone Star-sized gesture from a man who confesses a fondness for the music of Virginian-born Patsy Cline.

"It's still good Texas music," he explained.

ARTS IN BRIEF

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Mall will host "The Treasure of the Incas" for five weeks, beginning Monday.

The traveling exhibit, which promoters say is the largest and most authentic representation of King Tutankhamun's treasures, will be displayed at the center of the mall through May 9.

Among the more than 30 pieces in the exhibit is an elaborate, 200-pound copper presentation of the 5,000-year-old Egyptian king's gold funerary mask, guardian statues from his tomb, a bust of Queen Nefertiti, various stone carvings and papyrus paintings.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sundays. Self-guided tours are free. A curator-directed tour is $2. Call 733-3000 for details.

TWIN FALLS — Monday's scheduled performance by Wild Blue Country, a six-piece country group made up members of the U.S. Air Force Band, is sold out.

The Times-News is sponsoring the 7:00 p.m. concert in Roper Auditorium on the campus of Twin Falls High School.

KETCHUM — Poets talk about family ties when they read at 7 p.m. tonight in Iconoclast Books in honor of National Poetry Month. The Ketchum bookstore hosts a reading in cooperation with the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities.

Readers include Idaho poets Josephine Jones, Gay Rigby Whitesides and Twin Falls writer Judy McConnell Steele. Essayist King Tutankhamun's treasures, will be displayed at the center of the mall through May 9.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sundays. Self-guided tours are free. A curator-directed tour is $2. Call 733-3000 for details.

TWIN FALLS — Author Ellen Sinaiko and her husband, Ernestine, will appear at Barnes & Noble for a book signing on Saturday.

Sinaiko is author of "Puppy's First Book." The event is scheduled for 5 to 6 p.m. at 1239-A Pole Line Road E.

The Times-News

At the Friday event, Josephine Jones reads "Out on the Farm," a piece recalling a visit to the family homestead. Gay Rigby Whitesides plans to read a series of poems about her father, Judith McConnell Steele a work about her niece and Diane Josephy Peavey reads about life on her family sheep ranch in Carey.

The reading in honor of National Poetry Month is a collaboration between these four women writers.

There is no admission charge for the evening reading. Sun Valley Center and Iconoclast Books both have available for purchase a small chapbook printing writings by Steele, Peavey, Jones and Whitesides.

In Hollywood, a high-concept film is one that can be explained in 10 words or less to executives with short attention spans. The most famous example is "Signing girls is only witness to murder," a long-standing industry joke—until it really was made into a TV movie.

"Renegade FBI agent shields autistic child who endangers national security" fits nicely into the pattern. Once that idea has been established, you can dispense with complicated characters, plot twists, even laws of nature.

"Mercury Rising" does all that and still turns out to be a better than average thriller. That's a tribute to director Harold Becker and stars Bruce Willis and Alec Baldwin, who stretch the script's one idea almost to its breaking point.

Willis plays Art Jeffries, an FBI undercover agent who was unshot to a boy during a shootout. The thought preys on him. When he learns 8-year-old Simon Lynch has broken an allegedly perfect code, bringing down the wrath of the National Security Agency, he dedicates himself to protecting the boy. (Milo Hughes, trying hard to behave like a spy, too.)

Willis delivers the quiet, compassionate character he does well, though he's not much different from the quiet, dispassionate man-

David J. Phillip

Outcast FBI agent Art Jeffries (Bruce Willis) must protect Simon (Milo Hughes), a nine-year-old autistic savant who becomes the target of assassins after inadvertently deciphering a top-secret government code.

der of "The Jackal." Alec Baldwin makes cogent, nasty speeches as an NSA power broker, who believes Simon has to be murdered so the code can go on protecting thousands of agents around the world. (If the code is breakable, couldn't it be uncrackable by somebody else next week?)

Small roles are decently cast, from Chi McBride as Jeffries' partner to Kim Dickens as Jeffries' irrelevant girl friend.

Sun Valley Drama Festival brings Bass, Black to stage in June show

By Susan Bailey
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — As part of the grand relocation of actor Robert Redford's Sundance Playwright's Lab to Sun Valley, the Sun Valley Festival of New Western Drama presents works of two nationally known writers in its annual slate of new plays during the two weeks of June 8-21.

Activities are centered on the new-age Theatre in downtown Ketchikan.

Plays by cowboy humorist Baxter Black and novelist and environmental writer Rick Bass form the centerpiece of the 1998 festival. The festival debuts two world premiers of western-theme dramas illuminating the American West as a region with its own definable character.

"Hey, Cowboy, Wanna Get Lucky?" by Black, who writes a column for Magic Valley AG Weekly, runs June 12-14 with 9 p.m. shows and a Sunday matinee.

Black, the foremost cowboy poet and humorist of the American West, is a modern-day Mark Twain. He finds his humor on the rodeo circuit in his drama of bull riders, bringing authenticity and wit wisdom to the subject. The play is pure Baxter Black, shining light on the value of grit and friendship, and instructing the audience with hilarity.

"Sky, Stars, Wilderness," by Rick Bass of Troy, Mont., features a Texas ranch family wrestling with the values of land, fellow creatures, and wild, untouched places. Three generations chose not to raise stock, but to preserve the web of life that surrounds them. Spirit and science find a common ground in what can only be called deep ecology.

"Told from a woman's consciousness, this subtle drama teaches while beautifully entertaining."

Bass, an internationally known novelist and environmental writer who has won numerous prizes for his writing, has been to Sun Valley before as a guest of the Community Library. Among his works are "Winter," "Nine-Mile Wolves," "P.O.I. Notes," "Wild to the Heart" and "The Deer Pasture." He was born on a Texas ranch but has lived in Montana for the past several years.

"Sky, Stars, Wilderness" comes to Ketchikan June 19-21 with 9 p.m. performances and a Sunday matinee. Running concurrently with the drama presentations is the Playwrights Lab, headed by writer David Krane, who previously headed the Sundance Playwright's Lab in Utah for the past 14 years. Krane has transferred his vision to Sun Valley, where acting companies will workshop up to four new Western plays-in-progress with the playwrights in attendance.

Krane's lab expects many plays developed in the Lab will later be given productions by the Sun Valley Festival, and around the country.

Playwrights workshops take place in private, but June 18 features the Playwrights Night, where writers meet the public. Actors take part in excerpts from the works in progress during the Lab.

The Sun Valley Festival of New Western Drama is a non-profit group.

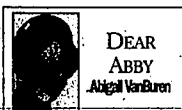

Teen-agers who have sex don't have to do it again

DEAR ABBY: As the mother of a teen-age girl who has chosen to have sex, I urge other parents to look at the reasons their teen is going outside the family for affection and attention. Perhaps instead of feeling devastated by the fact that their daughter is no longer a virgin, parents should explore the other things going on in her life.

The girl should be made aware that because she has said "yes" once doesn't mean she has to say it again and again. There is a growing movement for "secondary virgins."

I urge parents to have meaningful discussions with their SONS about their responsibility in the matter. Teen-age girls should not have to accept the entire responsibility. Not only are 13- and 14-year-old girls having sex, also 13- and 14-year-old BOYS are, also having sex. They, too, need information and responsible advice.

—DISAPPOINTED BUT SEEKING HELP

DEAR ABBY
Abigail VanBuren

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Your daughter did not become sexually active because she was looking for the kind of affection and attention she could receive from her family. The reasons that teenage girls start having sex can range from wanting to be popular, to thinking it will "hold" a boyfriend, to loneliness or curiosity.

However, I wholeheartedly agree that because a teen-age has sex, once does not mean that she (or he) must do it again.

Puffy has the golden touch

Knight Ridder News Service

Lots of performers have gone on to become record producers and even own their own record companies. But that would have been too easy for Sean "Puffy" Combs, who snarled out as a dancer in other performers' music videos.

On the road to becoming hip-hop's hottest producer, as well as president and chief executive of the Bad Boy Entertainment conglomerate that's responsible for a major portion of today's rap music, the man known to the world as Puff Daddy also has become one of his label's best-selling artists and, in February, the winner of two Grammy awards and a Sammy Davis Jr. Entertainer of the Year Award.

At only 26 years old, Puff Daddy is The Man. Combs is a mogul who sees himself as the next Berry Gordy. He envisions his company as the 500 operator that will go down in history as one of the biggest entertainment conglomerates of all time.

It isn't enough for Puffy to be just a producer, or just a performer. He's lobbying to expand the influence of R&B and hip-hop artists in the Grammys. He's opened a soul-food restaurant in New York. He's just started a movie production company and, yeah, he expects to appear in some movies himself.

He's also a community-minded individual who puts together computer camps and sets up charities for poor youths.

Meanwhile, his reach in the music business is rapidly growing. Look at the Billboard charts over the past couple of years, and you see the imprint of Combs, the producer, in the works of Mase, Mariah Carey, The Notorious B.I.G., Aretha

Franklin and Boyz II Men (as well as his own top-selling ode to his buddy-down friend, The Notorious B.I.G.). He made the careers of rising stars like Mase, The Lox and Total.

But now Puff Daddy, the performer, is taking the stage from Combs, the producer. On the second leg of his much-anticipated "No Way Out" tour — in keeping with his big-man-on-campus persona — he's sharing the stage with fellow Bad Boy recording artists Mase, Total, The Lox, Busta Rhymes, Lil' Kim, Lil' Cease and the R&B quartet Dru Hill, the newest addition to the tour.

It's an impressive entourage, all the more so considering that five of them (including Combs himself) currently occupy spots in Billboard's top echelons. Mase, Combs' latest protege, has spent the past 16 weeks on the top 20 list with his debut album "Harlem World," which sold more than a million copies in the first month after its release.

Mase's success story is vintage Combs. Two years ago, Mase was just another struggling rapper when he ran into Combs at a party. He auditioned for him on the spot. Combs gave him the thumbs-up, and soon he had Mase rapping on other albums, then, finally, his own.

Such is the power Puff Daddy has amassed.

With good reason. Whether you like his music or quickly change stations when you hear it on the radio or see his videos on TV, the man has such an uncanny knack for angling out winners that even his most ardent critics concede he's got ... something.

Puff Daddy with Danny DeVito. Puff Daddy's forthcoming video, co-starring Busta Rhymes with cameo appearances by DeVito and Dennis Hopper, premiered on MTV, BET and the BOX on March 31.

'Nomo': Mr. Nice Guy

By Darnen Clow
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Whether it's because of his relationship with the coach, with his girlfriend, or with a Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher to whom he bears a vague resemblance, CSI pitcher Justin Nakashiki has taken his share of attention.

"I just got with it," the 19-year-old right-handed pitcher said, smiling. "If it got to me, I would have killed myself by now, as much crap as I get."

Nakashiki's closeness to CSI coach Jim Walker led fellow Golden Eagle hurler Matt MacLeod to dub him "Boomer," after Walker's son and assistant coach, Justin "Boomer" Walker.

"I'm always hanging out in his office and I always know what's going on before everyone else," Nakashiki said.

It was the elder Walker, a native southern Californian, who dubbed Nakashiki "Nomo," after the Asian-born Dodgers pitcher of the same name.

The name stuck, even with girlfriend Joy Sperry, a member of the CSI volleyball team who has a scholarship to play Div. I ball next year. (After college, Nakashiki departs, he hopes to follow the wife to Washington State.)

Beyond the good-natured bantering, Nakashiki's numbers are no laughing matter for opposing hitters.

He is among the conference leaders in win percentage (.51, .800 strikeouts (41) and innings pitched (45-plus), and was the starting pitcher last year in Walker's 20th anniversary.

It was a fluke that sent Nakashiki from his hometown of Syracuse, Utah to Twin Falls.

"Boomer was down watching a catcher playing against us, but that kid ended up pitching, and Boomer saw me by mistake," said Nakashiki, the opposing pitcher in that scenario.

The 2-1 defeat in that game was his only loss of the year, and it was courtesy of two unearned runs. ("The story of my life," Nakashiki joked.)

Nakashiki, the middle of three children, didn't start taking baseball seriously until the eighth grade.

"Growing up, I never had cable, so I didn't watch baseball until I got here," said Nakashiki, who now admits to watching the Seattle Mariners because their lineup is so impressive.

With an equally explosive CSI lineup, Nakashiki is looking forward to a home-field advantage for the regional and bi-regional tournaments, and a trip to Grand Junction, Colo., for the NJCAA World Series.

And that's no joke.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

1. Did you have a childhood sports fantasy?
"Not with baseball. I never thought of anything. But I always wanted to play basketball with Magic Johnson."

2. What do you and Hideo Nomo actually have in common?
"The heat (laughs). We have nothing in common. We're both righties and Japanese, but that's about it."

3. What do you learn at school today?
"You know if you take a tobacco leaf and roll it in wet paper, that's stop smoking? I never would have come up with that."

4. How do high school baseball coaches and college coaches differ?
"At the high school level, coaches are more like friends. Skip a pretty good one with the guys, but most college coaches aren't like that. They don't associate with the players."

5. The "Boohee State." What's that about?
"I have no idea why (Utah) is called the Beehive State. At first, I thought it had something to do with the Mormons, because they have Beehive Clothing companies all around."

CSI NOTEBOOK

Next on the schedule for CSI are the Treasure Valley Chukkers (22 in conference, who come to Kammer Field Friday to take on the 40 Eagles.) CSI pitcher Craig Mosher leads the Scenic West Athletic Conference with a 2.23 ERA and a 1.000 winning percentage and is third in strikeouts with 48. James Clise is third with a .500 batting average and Matt Silvey is third with 38 RBIs.

ST. LOUIS - Two games, two big homers.

Maybe Mark McGwire really will threaten Roger Maris' home-run record this year.

McGwire, who hit a grand slam on opening day, connected for a three-run homer in the 12th inning Thursday to give the St. Louis Cardinals an 8-5 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I don't know anything is possible," manager Tony La Russa said. "It's that amazing? You never ever take him for granted."

A year after hitting 58 homers - the most since Maris' record of 61 in 1961 - McGwire is 4-for-8 in his first two games with seven RBIs and three walks. In his first 53 games with the Cardinals, he has 26 home runs.

Not that he's getting carried away over his start.

"I don't look at it that way," McGwire said. "It's just one game at a time, there's a long ways to go. When they're over with, I've got to prepare for tomorrow."

Surprisingly, Dodgers manager Bill Russell wasn't that impressed. "He's pitchable," Russell said. "We struck him out a couple of times. When you keep the ball down, you can get him. But when you pitch him high, he kills you."

With the tied 5-5, career .042 batter Javy Acevedo (1-0) beat out an infield hit against Frank Lankford (9-1) with one out in the 12th and took second on a wild throw by second baseman Eric Young, his third error of the game.

Royce Clayton was hit in the forehead with a pitch and McGwire homered to left on an 0-1 pitch with two outs, ending a 4-hour, 6-minute game in which each team used 21 players - including all position players.

St. Louis runners were thrown out at the plate in the eighth and ninth innings. The Cardinals took a 5-3 lead into the ninth but Thomas Howard hit a two-run homer off rookie Briden Loper with two outs. Dodgers right fielder Matt Luke threw out Ron Gant at the plate trying to score on Tom Lampkin's single in the bottom half.

Cliff Politte, a 54th-round draft pick in 1995, started for the Cardinals and made his major league debut in his hometown. He allowed one run and two hits in five innings.

Dodgers starter Chan Ho Park struggled, allowing two runs and six hits in 4 2-3 innings, throwing 102 pitches. Mark Guthrie got him out of a bases-loaded jam in the fifth, retiring Lampkin on an inning-ending pop fly.

"It wasn't a typical Chan Ho performance," Russell said. "He just couldn't get his breaking ball over."

St. Louis Cardinal Mark McGwire connects for a three-run home run during the 12th inning against the Los Angeles Dodgers in St. Louis, Mo., Thursday. The Cardinals won, 8-5.

Andre Agassi

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga. - His career revitalized, Andre Agassi is poised to claim a spot in Davis Cup history this weekend. He won't get his first with a victory by the U.S. team.

Agassi, who hasn't lost a Davis Cup singles match since 1990, is one away from Bill Tilden's record for most consecutive victories by an American in the 98-year-old team competition.

This weekend, Agassi will try to extend his 15-match streak when he leads a Pete Sampras-less U.S. team against the Russians in a first-round tie, contested on the same court where Agassi won an Olympic gold medal in 1996.

"He's not afraid to step up and hit big shots," U.S. captain Tom Gilliland said. "He's a prime-time player who likes the big stage. Some players will under the pressure of big matches. Not Andre."

Tilden won 16 straight matches during 1924-26. Agassi's streak began after he lost to Australian's Darren Cahill during the American's 3-2 victory in the '90 final.

PHOENIX - Rick Majerus said Thursday he's staying in Utah despite a reported $1 million-a-year offer from Arizona State.

"I wish them all the luck in the world," Majerus said on ESPN. "I'm staying where I'm at."

He declined to say how much the offer was.

"Arizona State is a wonderful situation, a tremendous school. (Athletic director) Kevin White is a good friend. His kids are going to my camp," Majerus said. "It was interesting. I think you should listen."

You explore options. It doesn't hurt to talk. I'd rather not do it publicly."

Sean Moore, a spokesman for Arizona State's athletic department, said the offer was the only major name mentioned for the job.

Arizona State's basketball program has been in disarray since Bill Frieder resigned under fire in September. Two former players pleaded guilty to conspiring to fix four games in 1994.

Despite that, the Sun Devils were 18-14 and earned an NIT bid this season under interim coach Don Newman. But the school made it clear from the get-go that Newman wasn't getting the job.

School officials have made it clear they want a coach with the skills and reputation to turn Arizona State into a national champion, on par with what intrastate rival Arizona has accomplished during Lute Olson.

The Majerus watch began almost before Frieder was out the door, and it was no surprise when athletic director White went to San Antonio this week to meet with Majerus, who took the Utes into the NCAA final before losing to Kentucky.

The Arizona Republic and The Arizona Daily Star both reported Thursday that White offered bounty worth at least $1 million a year. School officials have declined to comment publicly on the deal.

Utah had given Arizona State permission to talk with Majerus. He said he decided to stay midweek Thursday, few hours before going on the air with ESPN's Chris Myers.

McGwire, who hit a grand slam on opening day, connected for a three-run homer in the 12th inning Thursday to give the St. Louis Cardinals an 8-5 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I don't know anything is possible," manager Tony La Russa said. "It's that amazing? You never ever take him for granted."

A year after hitting 58 homers - the most since Maris' record of 61 in 1961 - McGwire is 4-for-8 in his first two games with seven RBIs and three walks. In his first 53 games with the Cardinals, he has 26 home runs.

Not that he's getting carried away over his start.

"I don't look at it that way," McGwire said. "It's just one game at a time, there's a long ways to go. When they're over with, I've got to prepare for tomorrow."

Surprisingly, Dodgers manager Bill Russell wasn't that impressed. "He's pitchable," Russell said. "We struck him out a couple of times. When you keep the ball down, you can get him. But when you pitch him high, he kills you."

With the tied 5-5, career .042 batter Javy Acevedo (1-0) beat out an infield hit against Frank Lankford (9-1) with one out in the 12th and took second on a wild throw by second baseman Eric Young, his third error of the game.

Royce Clayton was hit in the forehead with a pitch and McGwire homered to left on an 0-1 pitch with two outs, ending a 4-hour, 6-minute game in which each team used 21 players - including all position players.

St. Louis runners were thrown out at the plate in the eighth and ninth innings. The Cardinals took a 5-3 lead into the ninth but Thomas Howard hit a two-run homer off rookie Briden Loper with two outs. Dodgers right fielder Matt Luke threw out Ron Gant at the plate trying to score on Tom Lampkin's single in the bottom half.

Cliff Politte, a 54th-round draft pick in 1995, started for the Cardinals and made his major league debut in his hometown. He allowed one run and two hits in five innings.

Dodgers starter Chan Ho Park struggled, allowing two runs and six hits in 4 2-3 innings, throwing 102 pitches. Mark Guthrie got him out of a bases-loaded jam in the fifth, retiring Lampkin on an inning-ending pop fly.

"It wasn't a typical Chan Ho performance," Russell said. "He just couldn't get his breaking ball over."

ST. LOUIS - Two games, two big homers.

Maybe Mark McGwire really will threaten Roger Maris' home-run record this year.

Shaq scores 50 without Williams

RAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — It's not nice to irritate Shaquille O'Neal.

Miffed that the New Jersey Nets did a little too much talking after a win over Los Angeles in late January, O'Neal made them pay on Thursday night with his best game as a Laker.

O'Neal scored 50 points and the Lakers took advantage of the absence of injured New Jersey center Trayvon Williams in beating the Nets 117-106.

"Lucky my shots were falling, my throws were falling," O'Neal said. "I just wanted to come out and have a complete game. They beat us pretty bad last time, and they talked about what they did, so we just wanted to come in ready to play."

The Lakers did just that and O'Neal did even more.

His total tied the previous NBA high this year by Tracy McCarty of Washington, and was three less than O'Neal's career best in 1994 with Orlando. It was his best game with the Lakers, however.

"It's rare when a player comes out and is on top of his game like this," Lakers guard Kobe Bryant said. "Everything was coming toward Shaq, the ball was coming toward Shaq. Shaq had an excellent game, it was only right to cap it off at the speed limit."

The performance came on a night when everything was falling for the 7-foot-1 center, even his foul shot. He hit 18-of-20 from the line, where he is usually a 50-percent shooter.

Bobcat coach Matt Harr thought his team began to press once they fell behind.

"Through four innings it was good as high school baseball gets," Harr said. "But then they started throwing curve balls and we got a little angry at the plate. We started thinking too much instead of letting our athleticism take over."

The Spartans didn't let up once they took the lead. Designator hitter Jesus Jara added a run on a solo homer in the fifth and Minico pushed three more across in the sixth.

Moncur was once again in the middle of the Minico scoring mix in the sixth, driving in the runners with a hard single. For the first time, Moncur was 2 for 4 with four RBIs.

Moncur is a threat," said Spartan coach Steve Wright. "If the wind wasn't blowing in today he would have hit two more home runs."

Minico improved its record to 5-4, while they dropped to 4-4. Minico hosts Idaho Falls on Saturday, Burley has the week-end.

Cooke sizzles, ends Reds' fizzle

CINCINNATI (AP) — Former College of Southern Idaho pitcher Steve Cooke and the Cincinnati Reds earned their first victory of the season as Willie Greene and Chris Snyders homered.

"It's a relief," said Cooke, who got the win by ending two days of poor Reds pitching. "You don't want to start the season losing a whole bunch of games."

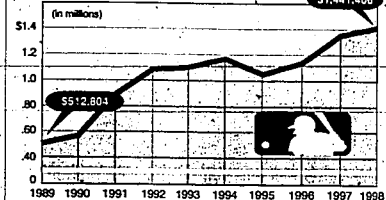

It was the first enjoyable moment of the week for the Reds, who have been jolted by one setback after another. During batting practice Thursday, first baseman Scott Rolen was hit by a thrown ball and broke the bone below the right eye.

Cincinnati gave up 20 runs as it lost the first two games and owner Marge Schott broke her trip in a fall at her home on Tuesday night. Cooke, signed as a free agent from Pittsburgh last December, helped the Reds to four hits and one run over six innings. Jeff Shaw picked Tony Grayson off first base to undercut a threat in the eighth, and then pitched a perfect ninth for the save.

Cubs 8, Marlins 7
MIAMI — Jeff Hamman's RBI singled capped a two-out rally in the ninth as Chicago overcame a 6-0 first-inning deficit.

With the score tied in the ninth, J. Powell (0-3) hit Mark Grace with a 2-2 pitch and pinch-hitter Jose Hernandez singled. Blauser then lined a 1-0 pitch into left field.

Pirates 4, Expos 3
MONTREAL — Tony Womack hit a go-ahead, two-run single in the seventh as Pittsburgh overcame Vladimir Guerrero's first two-bomer game. Guerrero, limited to 90 games last season because of injuries, hit solo homers with two outs in the third and fifth innings off Jason Schmidt (4-0).

With Montreal ahead 3-1 in the seventh, Jose Guillen, Lou Collier and Turner Ward singled off Mike Maddux (0-1) to put Pittsburgh within a run. Rick DeGoff relieved and Womack singled through a drawn-in infield, his second game-winning hit of the season.

Phillies 6, Mets 5

NEW YORK — Mark Portugal got his first win since 1996 and Philadelphia, despite Greg Jefferies losing a home run on a rare umpire's reversal, held off New York.

The Phillies spoiled Al Leiter's debut. He was long gone when his brother Mark, relieved for the Phillies — it was the first time they pitched in the same major league game.

Brewers 8, Braves 6 (11)

ATLANTA — Jeremy Burnitz homered twice, including an 11th-inning grand slam, and Milwaukee picked up its first NL victory. Burnitz's game-winning drive off

Brian Edmondson, the seventh Atlanta pitcher, came one pitch after shortstop Eric Bellard booted a grounder that could have been turned into an inning-ending double play. It was the third two-homer game of Burnitz's career, and the five RBIs were a career high.

Gerald Williams hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the 11th for the Braves.

Mike Myers picked up his first win and Adam Butler took the loss in his first major-league decision.

Giants 9, Astros 2

HOUSTON — Stan Javier went 4-for-5 and drove in a career-high five runs to lead San Francisco.

Javier had a two-run single in the third and run-scoring hits in the fifth, sixth and eighth innings. San Francisco had 17 hits, including seven doubles and a triple. Jeff Kent was 3-for-4 with two doubles and a triple.

The Giants, the defending NL West champions, won two of three games against last year's NL Central winners.

Rockies 6, D-backs 4

PHOENIX — Dante Bichette hit a go-ahead, three-run homer in the sixth inning, and Eric Carayno, Rockies beat Arizona 6-4 Thursday night to open with a three-game sweep of the expansion Diamondbacks.

Ellis Burks and Greg Colbrunn also homered for the Rockies, who outscored Arizona 21-6 in the series and won the Diamondbacks 38-20.

Pedro Astacio (14) improved to 6-1 since the Rockies acquired him from Los Angeles on Aug. 18 but was hit hard, allowing four runs and eight hits in 5.3 innings.

Rangers launder White Sox, 20-4

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Juan Gonzalez's grand slam capped a 10-run, seventh-inning and the Texas Rangers set a club record with 23 hits in a 20-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox on Thursday night.

Five of the hits were home runs, with Kevin Elster, Mike Simms, Ivan Rodriguez and Lee Stevens also homering for the Rangers, who scored their most runs since collecting 26 against Baltimore on April 19, 1995.

Aaron Sele (1-0) pitched five solid innings, allowing four runs and two earned — on six hits in his Texas debut. Roger Pavlik, making his first relief appearance since Aug. 15, 1992, came on in the sixth and was credited with a save.

Red Sox 6, Athletics 3

OAKLAND, Calif. — Mo Vaughn singled home the go-ahead run in the seventh inning, and the Boston Red Sox beat the Oakland Athletics 6-3 Thursday for a second-opening two-game sweep.

Nomar Garciaparra was two outs, including an RBI single in the sixth. John Wagoner (1-0) got the win in relief of Tim Lincecum, and Tom Gordon pitched a perfect ninth for his second save.

Devil Rays 7, Tigers 1

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Mike DiFelice tripled with the bases loaded to break a seven-inning tie and Tampa Bay became only the fifth expansion team to win its initial series.

Tampa Bay, which won two straight against the Expos after losing the opener, joined Houston (196-7), Kansas City (156-9), San Diego (82-9) and Toronto (57-7) as the only expansion teams to finish their first series over .500.

Oakies 4, Royals 3

OKLAHOMA — Jeffrey Hamman's two-run single in the bottom of the ninth capped a four-run uprising that carried Baltimore.

The Orioles had only two hits and trailed 3-0 before rallying against Jeff Montgomery (0-1).

Twins 3, Blue Jays 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Paul Molitor hit a bases-loaded triple off Kevin Escobar in the eighth inning as Minnesota rallied to beat Toronto.

Escobar (0-1) relieved Pat Hergenroter at the start of the inning with a 2-0 lead but gave up a two-out singles to Pat Meares and Chris Nixon, then walked Mike Larson.

Molitor finished off several 3-2 pitches, then tripled off the glove of Felipe Franco in left.

Davenport escapes; Seles fights back

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Lindsay Davenport nearly joined the crowd of the Family Circle Cup, escaping in three sets against Ruzsanda Dragomir on Thursday.

The top seed rallied from a 4-1 deficit in the third set to win 1-6, 6-3, 7-5 and reach the quarterfinals.

"I wasn't worried about being the next one," Davenport said. "But this has been a very odd tournament."

No. 2 seed Jana Novotna fell to Spain's Magui Serna, who had to finish a suspended match before pulling off the third-round upset 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

And in a morning match, Anne Miller beat former Australian Open champion Mary Pierce.

Arantxa Sanchez Vicario and Conchita Martinez, two past Family Circle champions, lost opening matches earlier this week.

Magui Serna wins a handball shot against Lindsay Davenport during the third round of the Family Circle Cup tennis on Thursday.

estimated Californian pumped her feet and used to the cheering crowd.

Davenport advanced to a quarterfinal meeting against No. 9 Silvia Spasova, who defeated Magdalena Gecanovic 6-3, 6-4.

Third-seeded Magui Serna, who reached her year's final before being hit by a leg, continued her trek back with a 6-0, 6-7 (7-5), 6-2 victory over No. 16 Natasha Zvereva.

6-2 in the top 10 stands were given before the quarterfinals of the season's first clay-court event.

Seles seeking her first victory of 1998, breezed through an opening set in 18 minutes, which she said cost her in the second set. She lost her focus with the easy start and had trouble when Zvereva attacked back.

"I knew if I could play like that (first set)," Seles said. "But I slowed down a little bit and then I let her get back into the match."

Seles found her stride after losing a second-set tiebreaker and put Zvereva away with her deep, grinding groundstrokes.

No. 4 Arantxa Coetzer won a delayed match over Silvia Farina in the morning and defeated Virginia Pesquera-Pascual 6-4, 6-4 to reach a first round. She'll tap on Arantxa Glesne.

LOCAL SPORTS IN BRIEF

Tribe skipper acs Canyon Springs hole
TWIN FALLS — Bull Indians baseball coach Gary Krumm took a break from the diamond Thursday afternoon and recorded his first hole-in-one.

Krumm used a 9-iron on the 125-yard fifth hole at Canyon Springs Golf Course. Witnesses included Terry McNew, Kevin Holcomb and Jim Astorquia.

Cove Best-Ball set for April 11-12
TWIN FALLS — The Cove 2-person Best Ball will be held April 11-12 at Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course.

Sign-ups end April 8, and the fee is $110 per team in both men's and women's divisions. There will be $3,000 added money by The Cove.

There will be gross and net play in the championship flights and net only in the other flights. The maximum handicap spread is six for men's teams and 10 for ladies' teams, and the maximum individual handicap is 30 for men and 40 for ladies. No temporary handicaps will be accepted.

There will be a barbecue dinner Saturday night free for all contestants and $10 for guests.

Candleidge men open with scramble

TWIN FALLS — The Opening Scramble for the Candleidge Golf Course Men's Association will be this Sunday with an 8 a.m. sign-in and a 9 a.m. shotgun start.

The fee of $15 includes lunch after the blind-draw, five-man team tournament. The field is limited to 90 players.

Legion baseball holds meeting

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls American Legion Baseball program will hold a meeting for all baseball parents this Sunday at 6 p.m. in Mike Folester's classroom at the high school.

Attendance is important as there is less than one week before the biggest fund-raising night of the season, the annual Turf Club Dinner and Auction April 9.

Wargo's 68 leads 1st round of Tradition

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Using a punting stroke he says he lost more than two years ago, Tom Wargo shot a 4-under par 68 Thursday to take the lead after the first round of The Tradition at Desert Mountain.

Wargo carded four birdies and 14 pars to take a one-shot lead in the $1.4 million tournament — one of four majors on the Senior PGA Tour. David Graham, 1997 Player of the Year, and Jose Maria Canizares each shot 69 on the Cochrise Course designed by Jack Nicklaus.

Two shots back were Jim Colbert, Dick Hendrickson, Jimmy Powell, John Morgan and John Bland of South Africa.

Koch leads by 3 strokes

LINCOLN, Calif. — Carin Koch, an unheralded member of the successful Swedish contingent on the LPGA tour, shot a 6-under par 68 on Thursday and holds a four-stroke lead over five players after the overcast and cold first round of the Longs Dubs Challenge.

Koch, 27, a non-winner who has two career second-place ties in her four LPGA seasons, carded a 33-hole round that included eight birdies and two bogeys on the 6,112-yard Twelve Bridges Golf Club.

Donna Andrews, Brandie Burton, Cindy McCurdy, Pearl Sirt and Jim Stephenson are tied for second after rounds of 70.

Burley tennis team falls to Bonneville Bees

BURLEY — Despite missing a number of players due to spring break, the Burley tennis team put in a strong showing Thursday but fell 7-5 to the visiting Bonneville Bees.

Wargo was real pleased with the girls' play," said Bobcox coach

Richard Call. "With a 7-5 score, we felt really good about that because we had to drop four of our top-seeded boys because they were out of town. But overall, the team rallied, filled in some spots and they did real well."

Day made eight birdies on the first 12 holes, then played steady par over the final six to finish at 64 — two strokes off the course record — giving him the lead and a leg up on the final exemption for next week's Masters.

Former Iona College basketball coach Tim Welsh has been named head coach of Providence College in Rhode Island. Welsh replaces Pete Gillen, who left for the head coach position at the University of Virginia.

College basketball coaching carousel continues spinning.

The Associated Press

Basketball coach Tom Penders took $643,000 to leave Penns on Thursday while Arizona State discovered that more than that couldn't get Rick Majerus to leave Utah.

Penders, under fire for weeks after a number of players complained about the program and threatened to transfer, settled the four remaining years of his contract. He leaves as the winningest coach in school history with a 208-110 record in 10 seasons.

Penders said "the future is bright for Texas basketball and for me and for my family as well. It is the time in my life to pursue other options."

Majerus chose not to do that in a decision Thursday afternoon. He said he considered his own happiness and the happiness of others in reaching his decision.

"I've got recruits coming in," he said. "There are people that care about me and I care about them." Meanwhile, the fallout of coach Jeff Jones' departure from Virginia continued.

Pete Gillen got the Virginia job, leaving Providence available for Tim Welsh, who moved up from Iona. Welsh's old job is expected to go to assistant Jeff Ruland. Welsh was introduced as Providence's fifth coach in 12 years, and takes a step up in leagues from the Metro Atlantic Conference to the Big East.

"It's been a dream of mine to go to the highest level," he said. "To be in the Big East at such a great academic and athletic school is a super opportunity."

Welsh had a 70-22 record in three years at Iona, and took the Gaels to the NCAA tournament for the first time in 13 years this season. He received a seven-year contract from Providence. While Welsh was being hired at Providence, Gillen was introduced at Virginia. Gillen leaves a team that was 13-16 and moves to one that posted a 11-19 record and loses its two best players, Chris Staples and Norman Nolan, to graduation.

"I have not seen the team play this year," Gillen said of the Cavaliers. "I was too busy in a fox hole with a helmet on my head in Providence."

In nine years at Xavier and the past four at Providence, Gillen has a 274-128 record.

At Iowa, Tom Davis said he would retire after next season, the final year of his 10-year contract. Davis' team was 20-11 this season, but was eliminated early from the NET. He said he had considered resigning, but "I thought this would give certain members of my staff an extra year to figure out" what to do.

Tarkanian receives huge settlement

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jerry Tarkanian's "terrible ordeal" with the NCAA is finally over, after 26 years of pain, anger and disappointment.

The NCAA paid the Fresno State basketball coach $2.5 million Thursday to settle his lawsuit against the organization — although Tarkanian said the money won't begin to ease his agony.

"They came after me, they never stopped," Tarkanian said. "The more I fought them, the more they came after me."

Tarkanian and his wife, Lois, filed the suit in 1992, claiming the NCAA manufactured evidence against his basketball programs to try to run him out of coaching. The settlement was reached six weeks before it was to go to trial in Las Vegas, where Tarkanian coached for almost 20 years.

NCAA executive director Cedric Dempsey said the organization decided to settle after it failed to move the case out of Nevada and after several mock trials put on by NCAA lawyers ended with Tarkanian winning.

While not admitting any liability, the NCAA said it regretted the dispute and considered Tarkanian a good coach.

"Obviously, Jerry Tarkanian has proven himself to be an excellent college basketball coach," said the statement, which added the NCAA and Tarkanian would go ahead with a clean slate.

While Tarkanian said he'll never get over the hurt, he also said he just wants to get along.

"I want to be their friend; I don't want to be their enemy any more," he said. "I hope I never have problems with them again."

"The biggest mistake I ever made was taking them on. In the average coach has no chance. It's been a terrible ordeal, I'm glad

Fresno State players charged with assault, robbery

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — A former Fresno State basketball player and a recruit were charged Thursday with using a gun and samurai swords to threaten, assault and rob a man.

Center Avondre Jones and point guard Kenny Brunner were charged with felony counts of making threats and assaulting Collin DeForest with a deadly weapon, a sword. They also were accused of robbing DeForest of cash and a 35mm camera.

Jones also was charged with using a firearm to threaten DeForest, and Brunner was charged with using a sword as a deadly and dangerous weapon.

Finally, Jones was accused of possessing marijuana, which District Attorney Ed Hunt said investigators found in Jones' apartment.

Both players have proclaimed their innocence. Arraignment is scheduled for April 16.

Jones, a center on this year's team, and Brunner, a former Georgetown point guard recruited to play next season, were arrested March 17, a day after Fresno State beat Memphis in the NIT.

Cheerleader Jerry Tarkanian kicked Jones off the team because he had been on strict probation from a previous suspension for violating unspecified team rules. Brunner was suspended indefinitely.

Meanwhile, an assault case against Fresno State point guard Rafer Alston was dismissed Wednesday after he showed a judge proof that 40 hours of community service had been completed. Alston had pleaded no contest to a misdemeanor battery charge for punching and choking neighbors last year.

They can never come close to paying me for the hurt they caused."

Attorney Terry Giles said he believes the settlement represents vindication for his clients.

"Not only for Jerry and Lois, but anyone who felt like they didn't have a chance to put forth their case against the NCAA," Giles said. "It was just about fairness, that was the basis of our lawsuit."

"We're ready to move forward in a very positive way."

Giles, who referred to the NCAA as "the true 600-pound gorilla," said the organization had made out a cashier's check for $2.5 million and was sending it Thursday by express mail.

He said attorney fees will take up 30 percent to 40 percent of the settlement, with the Tarkanians getting the rest.

The Tarkanians didn't ask for a specific dollar amount in their suits. Under Nevada law, plaintiffs merely ask for over $10,000 in damages.

Lois Tarkanian called it a victory, saying, "We felt it was an amount that showed we had victory in this case. This shows you can take on a large organization like this and maybe win. You can stand up, you just have to never give up."

tended the NCAA targeted his teams at Long Beach State and UNLV.

"The NCAA regrets the 26-year ongoing dispute with Jerry Tarkanian and looks forward to putting this matter to rest," Dempsey said in a statement.

"While the process has been difficult, all sides have hopefully become wiser, and more understanding of one another's positions."

Dempsey said the case has led to changes in the NCAA's investigative processes, including allowing coaches and their attorneys to attend enforcement committee hearings and making investigators record their interviews on tape.

But he stopped short of saying mistakes were made in investigations of Tarkanian's programs or making a formal apology to the coach.

"No, it does not," Dempsey said when asked whether the settlement meant the NCAA was admitting mistakes.

Tarkanian was coaching at Long Beach State when he wrote in the Long Beach Press Telegram about what he believed to be unfairness by the NCAA in penalizing smaller schools and not more prominent programs who were perhaps more deserving of punishment.

Sharon came to comfort Rick at the hospital but, overwhelmed by the problems in their marriage, and Nikki's grave condition, he sent her away. Realizing Nikki might die, Victor asked Diane to let him marry Nikki and fulfill her dream of reuniting the family. Nikki went into cardiac arrest. Later, Victor was at Nikki's bedside when she awoke, and proposed to her. Next Week: Jack needles Victor on his plan regarding Nikki and Diane.

Adrienne Frantz:
Amber's venal motiveSoap stars
Sell Groves

It takes millions of years for a drop of tree resin to become a piece of precious amber. But it took just a few episodes for Amber of "The Bold and the Beautiful" to turn from a shallow creature concerned only about herself, into a young woman who makes the noble gesture of donating one of her kidneys to save a life. Was she motivated by love, as she says, or some guilt, which she also admits, or something else?

Adrienne Frantz, who plays Amber, likes what's been happening with the ambitious waitress-turned-nanny-turned-singer on "BBB." She's not at all worried that the once scheming Amber might now be so straight-arrow, now she'll suffer that most dreaded of all soap character afflictions: perpetual unpredictability.

Adrienne says, "Amber is such a complex character, you really can never be sure what she'll do next. She's always had a sort of mischievous nature," Adrienne says. "When she wants something, she goes out to get it. The car crash made her realize that other things are more important. For example, she'll always push love away, but now she's letting it happen."

"But for all that," Adrienne adds, "you're still going to see little old Amber be, well, Amber." In other words, she'll prove the old adage that people don't change as much as they adapt to changing circumstances.

"You could say that," says Adrienne.

Asked what surprised her most when she joined the show, Frantz says, "I didn't expect everyone to be so wonderful. It's like a big family. It's a great atmosphere to work in."

Adrienne says she was originally told her role would be straight dramatics, had a surprise of her own for Bradley Bell, the show's executive producer.

"He was reading an interview I had done, and he asked, 'You really sing?' I said, 'Yes. You didn't know that?' We went into his office and I sang for him, and he said, 'That's really good.' Later I gave him a demo CD. And right after that, I started singing on the show."

Amber on 'BBB'

Frantz, who has her own rock group called "Adrienne's Band," started voice lessons when she was 6 years old. "I first wanted to be an opera singer, and I still love opera. But I also love singing rock music, and I especially enjoy singing my own music."

Although Frantz enjoys the singing scenes on the show, she says, "The great dramatic scenes are my favorite. I use substitution in my work. If I scene call for it, I look for something in myself that I can have Amber use to show her feelings. As you know Rick (Jacob Young) suffered kidney damage when his car crashed while he was dragging with C.J. Amber feels guilty because she encouraged Rick to drive faster. When Rick was on dialysis, I recalled my grandmother who had kidney failure and I would sit with her in the hospital when she was having dialysis treatment. When I saw the dialysis machine they used for Rick, it brought back all those feelings that Amber shows in the scene when she tells Rick how sorry she is for what happened. It was a difficult scene, but I think it was one of the best I've ever done."
