Simplot layoffs: 1 year later

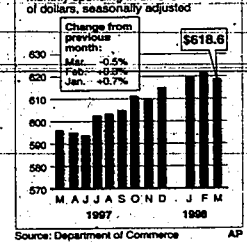

Employees go to college, return to plant jobs, move to other work

By Gregory Hahn Times-News writer HEYBURN - A year ago today, Jim and Marcy Crosland heard they might lose their jobs. When I.R. Simplot Co. announced it was cutting its work force in half at its Heyburn plant, 712 hourly employees that started wondering. That included Jim Crosland and Marcy Crosland, with 14 and 11 years at the plant, respectively. A little more than a month later, Jim Crosland - then president of the American Federation of Grain Millers Local 296 - knew for sure. He and three other workers on the union's negotiating team signed the final deal, doing the best they could for their fellow workers, but eliminating their own jobs. And Jim Crosland didn't just sign away his own income, but his wife's as well. But the two, like many other displaced workers, took advantage of a federal grant. This week, the Croslands finished up their first year of school at the College of Southern Idaho, planning to start a busness together and simply enjoy each other's company. "Grades are good," Marcy Crosland said. "Life is good." The couple has been taking business and marketing classes at the Burley CSI center, she said. The emergency grant money lets them both be full-time students, and the experiences is giving them a new outlook. "I'm thinking positively and going for my goals," she said. Not everyone went back to school, Jim Crosland said, but those that did seem to be successful. Others have moved on to other jobs; quite a few have since gone back to the plant. The layoffs reverberated through the economy and the community, and were rough on everyone, though. "A lot of people had a tough time with it," he said. But from what the Croslands can tell, they are not the only success story. "There is a life after Simplot," Marcy Crosland said. "There really is." For the company, there is life after the layoffs. But since January or so, the company has invested more money in the Heyburn plant and has brought the schedule back to seven days a week, 24 hours a day. Near the end of last year, the plant's work force bottomed out. Salaried positions, staff dropped to around 475. Since then, though, about 425 people have been brought back, most of them former layoff victims. The company is also spending $7.5 million on a couple of upgrades in Heyburn, to add new product possibilities and double the capacity of other lines. Life goes on. And at least for the Croslands, it gets better. "We're kind of glad it happened," Jim Crosland said. "It's given us a chance to do something else."

'I'm thinking positively and going for my goals.' - Marcy Crosland, former Simplot worker because income growth was a moderate 0.3 percent, the smallest in seven months. The savings rate - savings as a percentage of after-tax income - slipped to 4.2 percent in March from 4.4 percent the month before. Wages grew only 0.2 percent, helped by increases for government and service-industry workers. Please see ECONOMY, Page A2

Is economic boom coming to an end?

Numbers suggest Asian turmoil hurts U.S. growth The Associated Press WASHINGTON - Asia's economic troubles are lapping at American shores: Incomes stagnated in U.S. goods-producing industries, manufacturing activity slowed and construction decreased. Consumers, though, kept right on spending. Reports from the government and a private group offered abundant evidence that economic growth was ratcheting down to a more moderate pace after clipping along at a rapid 4.2 percent annual rate in the first quarter. During the last month of the quarter, March, consumers increased their spending by a healthy 0.5 percent. But they had to dip into savings to do it

Marines head to Chicago in training for urban warfare

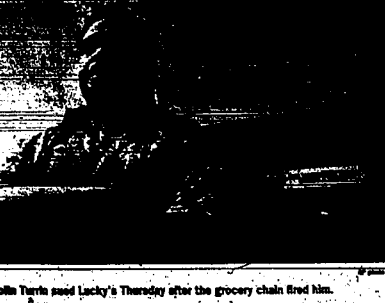

The Associated Press WASHINGTON - Eighty camouflage-dressed Marines are planning an invasion of Chicago next week - not to fight but to start learning how to wage war in an area cluttered with skyscrapers, sewers, rail tunnels and lots of people. It's part of a two-year experiment in big-city warfare to prepare the Marines for some of the dangers of the new century. "Our tactics, doctrine and technology have not kept up with urbanization," Gen. Charles C. Krulak, the Corps' commander, told the Armed Forces Journal. "In future conflicts, our enemies will lure us into the cities in an attempt to mitigate our capabilities and make us fight where we are the least effective." The program, begun last summer, has included training in a four-block model town at Camp Lejeune, N.C., and it ends this later practice war games in Charleston, S.C., and Jacksonville, Fla. It is to culminate in a mock battle fought on the streets of an as-yet-identified West Coast city. The Chicago phase doesn't promise to be too action-packed. Officers from Camp Lejeune's 1st Battalion, 8th Marines, from the Corp's Quantico, Va.-based Warfighting Laboratory and from the Special Purpose Marine Air-Ground Task Force (Experimental) will get a 2 1/2-day lesson in what makes a city tick. They'll tour a gas company, water filtration plant, some bridges, underground tunnels, police and fire departments and other sites, said Lt. Col. Jeremy Holbert, a spokesman for the 3-year-old warfighting lab. Chicago was chosen largely because it has most of the features typical of the complicated, large cities U.S. forces may find someday themselves fighting in: a river, shore access, subways, even a drawbridge. Cities are considered likely scenes of future strife because 70 percent of the world's population will live in urban areas by 2020 and because they tend to have such classic ingredients of conflict as poverty and cultural, religious and social tensions.

He just knows he lost his job last August because he was accused of stealing a salad he thought he paid for. "This case is pretty atrocious," attorney Patrick Chapin said Friday. "When you're concerned with Down syndrome and just push them out the door, when they've been doing everything the same way, the emotional effect is much worse than most people." Turin is suing the grocery chain for $1 million for emotional distress and violation of the Americans with Disabilities Act, and wants reinstatement with back pay. Political issues missing from Stubbs, Simpson contest

By Liz Wright Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The gloves are coming off. State Reps. Mark Stubbs and Mike Simpson traded barbs on ethics, manners and money this week in a quickening congressional race that has yielded little differences between them on political issues. Both are seeking the GOP nomination in the May-26 primary for the 2nd Congressional District seat, along with former senators Ann Rydahl and Dane Watkins of Idaho Falls. Stubbs, Twin Falls, told The Times-News' editorial board Thursday Simpson is reckless with the public's money as his leadership position as Idaho House speaker, Simpson, Blackfoot, countered Friday by saying Stubbs waffles on issues.

At issue are a range of charges and counter-charges. Stubbs said Simpson paid back the state too little for his inadvertent use of his airplane for a March 25 campaign. Simpson Friday reiterated that he made a mistake, and quickly apologized.

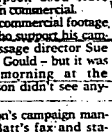

Stubbs said Simpson used state employees in a campaign commercial. Simpson said he shot commercial footage with state employees, who support his campaign - legislative message director Sue Burwell and Rep. Gaila Gould - but it was shot early in the morning at the Statehouse, and Simpson didn't see anything wrong with it. Stubbs said Simpson's campaign manager used Gov. Phil Batt's fax and stationery for campaign purposes during the winter. Please see CAMPAIGN, Page A2

ACROSS THE NATION

Idaho/West: Scattered rain showers and thunderstorms developed over the south and central mountains Friday. The showers and thunderstorms developed as a disturbance off the Pacific Coast pushed moisture into Idaho.
High pressure continued across much of the West, due to a strong storm system of the Pacific coast that was slamming into the ridge of high pressure from the west and a trough of low pressure coming out of Canada. Light rain fell in Northern California and across the Rockies in Colorado and northern New Mexico.

Simpson's campaign manager, Jeff Schrade, was still Batt's aide on Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory issues when he used Batt's fax machine to send a story about Simpson to an Idaho Falls radio talk show, Simpson said. Simpson said he hadn't hired Schrade yet, though they had discussed a job.

Stubs-chided Simpson for threatening to throw a fellow legislator out of a window this past legislative session.

"I think it is a question of what kind of guy do you want in Congress?" Stubs said.

Simpson laughed in response. He said he made the remark to Rep. Bill Sali, R-Meridian, because Sali was inaccurately telling people Simpson was trying to sell an amendment on an abortion bill, Simpson said. He was angry, but wasn't going to act on the threat and lawmakers talk that way to each other in the heat of the session.

"I'd tell Sali that again today," Simpson said. Simpson, meeting with The Times-News editorial board Friday, had several criticisms of Stubs.

Simpson said Stubs is hard to read, as far as how he will vote on issues, and Simpson said this waffling has cost Stubs support from business and water interests.

Simpson also said Stubs is backpedaling on his support of a mixed oxide plutonium project for the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory; Stubs Thursday expressed interest in the project, but not outright support.

Simpson has indicated support for the project in the past Friday, but questioned Friday whether the site is prepared to pursue the politically volatile project.

Simpson and House Majority Leader Bruce Newcomb, R-Burley, denied a Stubs claim that the two would retaliate against lawmakers who do not back Simpson.

"Stubs Thursday said many legislators support him quietly. They fear that Newcomb—a Simpson backer who is likely to become the next House speaker—will retaliate against lawmakers who do not back Simpson."

"I don't think they're afraid of Bruce but the implication is there," Stubs said. "If you go against the speaker, you go against the next speaker."

Newcomb denied he would get involved. He and Simpson conceded Simpson can seem overbearing at times, but only on the surface.

"That's not my style," Newcomb said. "Simpson is one of those dogs that has a big bark but no bite."

Economy

The slowdown continued in April, according to an index of business activity compiled by the National Association of Purchasing Management. It indicated continued growth in manufacturing, but at a slower pace. Employment levels declined a bit.

"The basic message is that the economy is booming in the first quarter but the next rapid growth for this year is probably now behind us," said economist Lynn Reaser of NationsBank Corp. in Jacksonville, Fla. She predicted the impact of Asia will cut economic growth to a rate between 2 percent and 2.5 percent for the rest of the year.

Separately, the Commerce Department said construction spending fell 0.5 percent in March—the worst drop in 15 months. Construction of single-family homes rose 2.2 percent to an all-time high.

The various hints of coolness played the stock market, which took a 147-point tumble on Monday because traders feared overly strong growth would prompt the Federal Reserve to raise short-term interest rates.

Astronomers peer to edge of universe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronomers have detected a small galaxy 12.3 billion light-years from Earth — the most distant object ever seen — and say they are on the brink of seeing things even farther away and closer to the big bang beginning of the universe.

"We've already got some candidate objects that are even farther away," said Esther M. Hu, a University of Hawaii astronomer and co-discoverer of the most distant object. "We are looking about 84 percent of the distance back to the big bang."

The discovery was first announced in Science News, a weekly journal of research reports. The journal is to publish the story today.

The big-bang theory holds that the universe started with an explosion and has been expanding ever since. In the billions of years since, the hydrogen and helium in the big bang have been processed through stars to form other chemicals. Just when the bang happened is controversial, but most astronomers say it was about 13 billion years ago.

Just six weeks ago, another team of astronomers found a small galaxy about 12.2 billion light-years away to establish a most-distant mark.

IRS chief testifies after 3 days of hearings

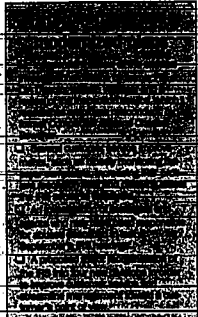

WASHINGTON (AP) — Internal Revenue Commissioner Charles O. Rossotti said Friday the latest allegations of cover-ups and misconduct by criminal investigators support his own pursuit of fundamental change at the IRS.

Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Charles O. Rossotti prepares to testify before the Senate Finance Committee Friday. (AP Photo Hill)

"I think every American who heard the testimony would be just as disturbed as I was, and we simply must change the conditions that lead to the kind of situations described by your witnesses," Rossotti told the Senate Finance Committee on the fourth and final day of oversight hearings into the IRS.

The committee heard tales of armed IRS criminal inspectors raiding businesses whose owners didn't pose a violent threat, and then failing to bring criminal charges. Several IRS agents testified they faced retaliation from managers after attempting to blow the whistle on misdeeds. Charges of racial discrimination and sexual harassment were aired, as were allegations that corporations received multimillion-dollar breaks in tax disputes. And, most surprising, three witnesses described an aborted plot by a renegade agent in Tennessee to bring phony money-laundering and bribery charges against former Sen.-Howard Baker, R-Tenn., in order to enhance the agent's career.

Roth said the primary message of the hearings "is that there has been a very serious failure by managers in this agency." He promised to work in partnership with the Clinton administration and the IRS to change "a bureaucracy, in my judgment, that has been too long burdened the control of any IRS commissioner."

Tapes show concern about 1st lady's work

WASHINGTON (AP) — In conversations taped while he was in prison, Webster Hubbell raised the possibility that Whitewater prosecutors were investigating Hillary Rodham Clinton for double billing on her legal work.

Hubbell, even in his darkest days of incarceration, maintained unwavering loyalty to the first family. At one point, he asked his wife to make that clear to "White House friends" even giving her the words to say. One Hubbell discussion, with his accountant and friend, Michael C. Schaufele, occurred in August 1994 at a time when Whitewater figure James McDougal had become a cooperating prosecution witness.

"Everybody knows Seth, and knows I couldn't have not advised him," Hubbell said on tape. "So I was billing it but for some reason I haven't figured out why — Hillary billed it, my time as hers. That's kinda the theory."

According to the document, some tourists have reported that uniformed police are the crime perpetrators, stopping vehicles and seeking money or assaulting and robbing tourists walking late at night.

Former Black Panther leader, Eldridge Cleaver, dies at age 62

POMONA, Calif. (AP) — Eldridge Cleaver, the fiery Black Panther Party information minister whose prison book "Soul on Ice" became a seminal work of the Black Power movement, died Friday at age 62.

Cleaver, who after a shootout with police and exile in Algeria returned to the United States and traversed the political spectrum, died at Pomona Valley Hospital Medical Center. Spokeswoman Leslie Porras declined to provide the cause of death or details about his hospitalization, citing the family's request.

At times a "convict, political candidate and author," Cleaver was one of the original Black Panthers, formed in 1966 in Oakland by Huey P. Newton and Bobby Seale.

Later, he denounced his past stance, joined the Republican Party and became a born-again Christian. In 1978, he wrote the book "Soul on Ice."

In April 1968, Cleaver, the fledgling Black Panther Party's information minister, was involved in a violent shootout with police in Oakland. Party treasurer Bobby Hutton, 17, was killed in the gun battle, and Cleaver and two police officers were wounded.

Cleaver was arrested after the shootout, but jumped $50,000 bail and fled to Algeria.

Prior to his return to the United States in 1975, he would rarely be believed he would be treated fairly in court.

"A new situation now exists in the United States. The war in Vietnam is over. The status and condition of black people has undergone a fundamental change for the better. The American people have been shocked into objectivity and vigilance by the exposure of the massive, systematic and conspiratorial subversion of their democratic rights," he said.

He also denounced the Black Panthers upon his return. After a protracted legal battle, attempted murder charges in the shootout were dropped, and Cleaver was placed on probation and ordered to do community service for assault.

Before his Black Panther days, Cleaver was convicted in 1958 of assault with intent to kill. He was paroled after nine years in prison. He had a 1957 conviction for narcotic possession.

While in prison, Cleaver wrote "Soul on Ice," a series of powerful, easy-to-read prophetic and full-on essays depicting prejudice and racism. Published in 1968, it became a focus of the Black Power movement.

Cleaver ran unsuccessfully for president in 1968 on the Peace and Freedom Party ticket. Following his campaign, he was ousted from the Panthers because of a bitter and public dispute with Newton.

CBS said Kaczynski was desperate for companionship, and wrote of one woman: "It would have been magnificent to have her care for me that to have physical sex, I could get by with just holding her hand." Kaczynski, 53, pleaded guilty to 15 counts involving the deaths of four others. In return, he was promised a life sentence without possibility of release. He acknowledged responsibility for all 16 of the Unabomber attacks between 1978 and 1994.

Most of world lacks free press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eighty percent of the world's people live in countries that lack one or more of the freedoms that a free press requires, according to a survey released Friday.

The study by Freedom House, a group that monitors political rights and civil liberties worldwide, also said that 61 percent of countries with the strictest controls on the media have suffered more from the economic crises than those where the press is relatively free.

The survey of 156 countries ranks each country's media as "free," "partly free" or "not free." It found that 1.2 billion people in 57 nations have access to a free press. 54 countries with 2.2 billion people and 65 nations with 2.5 billion people that do not have free press.

Its findings are based on a series of questions in each of four categories: legal restrictions on news media, the degree of media independence from the interests of government or other political figures, economic factors that influence news content and the frequency and severity of violations of press freedom.

Teens kill 1, wound 7, arrested in shooting spree

HAINES CITY, Fla. (AP) — Three teen-age boys on a rampage went on a one-hour shooting spree, killing a woman in a car and wounding seven other people, including five relatives who were gunned down in their motel room during a Friday night rampage, authorities say.

The suspects, high school students ages 16 and 17, were arrested and charged late Thursday in the shootings and in a separate slaying on Sunday, investigators said.

Investigators said the motive was unclear. Nothing was taken from the victims.

One of the wounded, a 10-year-old girl shot in the motel room, was in critical condition. The others were in good condition.

The rampage took place in three central Florida communities. The shootings began Thursday night when gunmen jumped from a car and opened fire on a couple who had stopped their car at a mailbox in Davenport. The driver was wounded.

Within about a hour, two people were reported shot in a vehicle at a stop sign in Dundee. Christy Luper, 21, was killed, and another person in the car was wounded.

Around the same time, there was a knock on the door of a motel room door near Haines City, and a masked gunman opened fire on five family members from Hainesville, Ga. — two girls, ages 10 and 15, and their mother, aunt and uncle. The family had just checked in for a reunion.

Burke's Cimaron Rose wins Edgar Award

NEW YORK (AP) — James Lee Burke's "Cimaron Rose" is a thriller set in the small town of Dead Smith, Texas, won the Edgar Award as the best mystery book of 1997.

The award was presented Thursday to Burke at the Mystery Writers of America. The Edgars are named for Edgar Allan Poe.

In "Cimaron Rose," an attorney and former lawman named Billy Roy Ballou agrees to represent a young man accused of raping and killing a girl. Only a few people know the man is Holford's out-of-wedlock son.

Joseph Kanon's "Los Alamos" won the Edgar for best first novel by an American while "A Confederacy" received the Edgar for best mystery novel.

The husband-and-wife team Richard Preston and Jamie Falco were in the true crime competition for the book "The Death of Innocence."

Crew finds knife in O.J.'s neighborhood

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A construction crew found a folding-blade knife in O.J. Simpson's former neighborhood, but police said the knife cannot be linked to the killings of his ex-wife and her friend.

"The evidence that we have is basically that there is no detectable evidence to show that this knife was related to any particular crime whatsoever," said Lt. Anthony Alba, a Police Department spokesman.

The latest knife was found enclosed in mail April 24 by a residential construction crew in a area of Rockingham Estates, a small section of Brentwood that includes Simpson's 12,000-sq-ft house on Rockingham Avenue. The precise location was not disclosed.

Day-care centers pay low

Five-city survey shows wages have stagnated for decade

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — A five-city survey of day-care centers paints a picture of an industry operating at the margins of viability where workers' real wages have remained virtually stagnant for a decade, despite the typical worker with an annual salary of $12,500, the federal poverty level for a family of three.

As the child-care workforce in day-care centers has gone down over the past five years, the 30 percent annual departure rate remains alarmingly high in an industry that employs young mothers of the day.

At a time when day-care centers are experiencing unprecedented growth, the study released Tuesday by the Center for the Child Care Workforce recommends that in new federal and state initiatives, officials should devote more attention and set aside more money to raise wages and improve quality.

The study's authors noted that extending tax breaks for families, an approach favored by many Republicans, would provide little incentive to day-care centers to pay their workers better or invest in their training and education.

"I really hope that parents... will use this information to realize that their personal problem is also a social problem," said Nancy Wharbook, co-director of the Center for the Child Care Workforce.

Child care

Child care staffers' pay is so low that many don't stay at their jobs for long, leading to a high turnover rate. A look at hourly wages for 1988 and 1997:

Lowest-paid assistant teacher	1988	1997
	$5.92	0.17% increase, $6.00 or $0.01 per hour
High-paid assistant teacher	$6.96	0.57% increase, or $7.00 $0.04 per hour
Lowest-paid teacher	$7.25	1.6% increase, $7.30 or $0.12 per hour
High-paid teacher	$13.94	13.9% increase, $15.85 or $1.92 per hour

Source: Center for the Child Care Workforce

based in Washington and San Francisco. They need to use their voice to encourage business leaders and government officials to help not only with affordable day care but with good-quality day care as well, she said.

The Center for the Child Care Workforce is a nonprofit research and advocacy organization that first began profiling the day-care industry in 1988.

Its latest study — which surveyed 158 day-care centers in Atlanta, Boston, Detroit, Phoenix and Seattle — is the most comprehensive effort to profile an industry that gathers and maintains little central data.

As troubling as some will consider their findings, the researchers believe their sample was slightly better than average, since it consisted of day-care centers that have remained open for at least a decade.

The study found that, on average, the centers surveyed paid their most experienced teaching assistants about $7 an hour, up from $6.96 an hour in 1988. The lowest-paid teachers earned only slightly more, $7.50 an hour on average — less than the top assistant, while pay increases of 5 percent over the period brought the average pay for the most experienced teachers (usually required to have a college degree) to $10.85 an hour last year.

Parking lot attendants earn on average $6.38 an hour, while data entry key operators average $6.50 hourly, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Such salaries put the earnings of the day-care industry's best-paid workers below the national average salary earned by civilian females with a high school diploma. The study found day-care top-paid teachers made $18,988 a year on average. Nationally, the average annual income for a working woman with a high school diploma is $13,650, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Generally, the study found that for-profit day-care chains offered the lowest salaries and had the highest rates of staff turnover.

US West Media's net loss deepens 24%

The Associated Press

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — U S West Media Group's net loss deepened nearly 24 percent in the first quarter as the company prepares for its split from U S West Inc.

Overall revenues increased 6 percent, buoyed by growth in high-speed data products, said Chuck Lillis, president and chief executive officer, Wednesday. "Our telephone offerings are extremely competitive and, after just a few months in the market, our penetration rates are exceeding our expectations, and our international businesses are doing well," he said.

U S West shareholders are set to vote June 4 on the proposal to separate U S West Communications, the company's 24-state telecommunications services, from U S West Media Group, which handles cable television and wireless telephone service. Media Group plans to change its name to MediaOne Group if the split is approved.

"Our telephone offerings are extremely competitive and, after just a few months in the market, our penetration rates are exceeding our expectations, and our international businesses are doing well."

Idaho Power begins '98 with slow customer growth

The Associated Press

BOISE — Idaho Power's customer growth during the first three months of this year is ranking as the lowest since 1995.

During the recent period, 873 new hook-ups were recorded, compared to 1,015 during the first quarter of 1997. The prior year the total was 1,721 customers.

Customer additions during the first three months of this year include 668 residential and 202 small commercial customers.

Meridian continues to be the fastest growing community in the Boise-based utility's service area, with 399 new customers registered during the three month period.

Nampa and Caldwell followed with 241 and 132 additions, respectively.

AROUND THE VALLEY

MV Mini-Cassia schools head to Envirothon

TWIN FALLS - Students from several Magic Valley and Mini-Cassia schools will be in Idaho Falls today to compete in the Idaho Envirothon.

The Envirothon is a problem-solving natural resources competition for students in grades nine through 12. Twenty-one teams will compete at Beaver Dick Park and Madison High School.

Teams will be tested for knowledge of soils, forestry, wildlife, aquatic sciences and watershed management. They'll also give 10-minute presentations on an environmental problem, a solution and the solution's impacts.

Teams from Filer, Gooding, Jerome, Oakley, Raft River and Shelone will attend. They must have finished environmental community-service projects to participate.

The winning team advances to a national competition in Michigan to compete for more than $35,000 in scholarships and prizes. Local soil conservation districts sponsor teams.

MVRMC discuss starting a LifeFlight service in TF

TWIN FALLS - Establishing a LifeFlight service in Twin Falls will be discussed Monday at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center board meeting.

The meeting will be held at 5 p.m. in the Education Center north of the hospital, and it's open to the public.

Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise has asked whether the county hospital is interested in establishing the use of the air-ambulance service at Magic Valley Regional.

Magic Valley Regional doesn't have full-time neurosurgeon services and transfers a number of cases to the Boise hospital, administrators said. The availability of such services would enhance paramedic skills and eliminate one-hour transport time in emergency and cardiac cases, they said.

Potential negative effects are spending and the procurement of an accelerated ambulance or a pre-proposal between the two hospitals. Saint Alphonsus and six other non-profit and for-profit hospitals have expressed an interest in some relationship or purchase of Magic Valley Regional.

The local hospital's credentials committee recommended the Magic Valley Regional board request a specific proposal from Saint Alphonsus.

USDA Rural Development puts out distance-learning

TWIN FALLS - Distance learning is available for distance learning and telecommunication projects through USDA Rural Development.

This year $12.5 million in grants and $150 million in loan money is available nationally. Rural Development announced. Applications must be sent to Washington, D.C., by June 1 for grants and by Aug. 1 for loans.

For information, call Rural Development in Boise at 378-5618.

Gooding approves curfews

Ordinance makes it illegal for children under 18 to be out between midnight, 5 a.m.

By Sharon Metcalf
Times-News correspondent

GOODING - Gooding County commissioners approved county curfew and parental-responsibility ordinances this week.

The first makes it illegal for under-18-year-olds to be in public places from midnight to 5 a.m., except under certain circumstances. The second ordinance holds parents and guardians of children under 18 responsible for failing to supervise their children who skip school, break curfew or commit crimes. Both approvals were unanimous.

Commissioners said they were not required to hold public meetings on anything but planning and zoning ordinances, but they heard comments from two residents and several law-enforcement personnel.

Popping in from watching the high school track meet, Beverly Bryson expressed concern that people not in law enforcement would take advantage of the curfew and stop young people after midnight by flashing lights.

"If you're talking about people who pretend to be police, you run that risk any time," Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Cough said. "All this ordinance does is extend the county curfew time from 10 p.m. to midnight. It's less restrictive."

Cough said the curfew is a tool to be used when juveniles are hanging around looking for trouble. Now parents will know where their children are after midnight, he said.

Commissioner Tom Faulkner said the parental-responsibility ordinance was more or less designed for parents to ignore what their children are doing.

Both ordinances will be in force after publication.

In other Gooding County business:

County Treasurer Helen Finamore

has resigned, effective May 29. Central and precinct committees will choose three potential replacements to put before the commission.

Commissioners signed a lease-purchase agreement for a county updating system.

County Engineer plans for the Economic Development in Wendell received approval.

Bob Beine reported a cost of $3,600 for resurfacing the county parking lot.

CAMPAGNING IN HAGERMAN

Republican candidate Ann Rydalch talks with Hagerman residents Rora Overley, Bernice Grimes and Theonia Marsh Friday at the Hagerman American Legion and Auxiliary Hall. Rydalch spent a couple of hours in Hagerman Friday while campaigning for Congress.

Rydalch draws a few supporters

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN - Many in the small cluster of people who showed up to talk with Ann Rydalch Friday already knew her from high school, when she was credited as being the first woman governor of Idaho.

The former state senator from Idaho Falls still applies to a higher political calling. She is seeking the Republican nomination in the May 26 primary.

Other candidates are Idaho House Speaker Mike Simpson of Blackfoot, Twin Falls attorney and legislator Mark Stubbs and former state Sen. Dane Wadkins of Idaho Falls.

Rydalch has family all over Twin Falls and Hagerman, a fact that didn't escape those who showed up Friday evening at the American Legion Hall to munch brownies and chat with her. Instead of making a speech, Rydalch talked to individuals.

"I think I'll support Ann," said Bill Choules of Hagerman after talking with her. "She's kind of a native from around here. And she does seem very concerned."

Choules commiserated with Rydalch over the potential for increased electricity rates. If the power industry is deregulated, others discussed the federal government.

Another Hagerman voter, retired U.S. Forest Service employee Jim Scott, told Rydalch he thinks federal agencies are becoming more squeezed between Congress and the public. Scott said he hasn't researched all the candidates yet, but his impression of Rydalch is good.

"I think she's open and she recognizes there are good people in government," Scott said.

Rydalch didn't much express her platform on establishing accountability in federal agencies and making businesses more competitive by seeking the latest technology. At afterward, Rydalch said she learned some good ideas from talking to people. She still sees an uphill battle in gaining the GOP nomination.

"It's going to be hard and I know that going into this," Rydalch said.

Rydalch served seven years in the Idaho Senate and worked for 1 1/2 years in the U.S. Department of Energy in Washington, D.C. She now works at the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory near Arco.

John Kieffer, a Democrat who attacked Rydalch's open house because she thought she makes a good candidate, said he would support her if she wins the primary.

If the other GOP candidate kept attacking each other, Kieffer said, Rydalch will gain votes.

"They're fighting, and that will do her some good," Kieffer said.

Jerome's growth attracts new business

D.L. Evans bank plans to build new branch

The Times-News

Jerome - Jerome's economic renaissance has attracted a new business - D.L. Evans Bank.

General was broken Friday on a new D.L. Evans Bank branch on Lincoln Street just north of Ridley's Supermarket. The new office will be about 3,000 square feet and more open, said John V. Evans, bank president. Construction costs were not available.

"By June 1 a mobile bank unit will be available for business until the new branch is open in about one year."

"We've seen the growth in Jerome over a period of years, and we've been watching it very carefully," Evans said. The bank was particularly interested in the growth of dry-cleaning businesses because financing for those sectors is one of the bank's specialties, he said.

"All you have to do is go over to Jerome to see what kind of building activity is taking place," Evans said. "It's been going on for a while."

Evans, for many years, was a sheep-raising town, and that's turned around.

Evans said the bank wanted to better serve old and new customers, he said. Barley-based D.L. Evans Bank already operates six branches in Albion, Rupert, Twin Falls and Orchard.

"It's exciting to be able to satisfy the needs of more of the Magic Valley than we were able to do before," said Evans, Idaho's former governor.

Car Dealer Con Paulos agreed the Jerome branch is exciting.

"We drive around the city and the county, we seem to be growing in all directions, which is very exciting," he said.

Commercial and residential construction both seem to be thriving, and existing businesses are visible, Paulos said. A planned Jerome downtown revitalization project, which includes restoring sidewalks, has begun, he said.

"It's just reflective of our general economic conditions, and they seem to be good," he said. "The valley is doing well as a whole so Jerome is doing well as well as a lot of other economic units."

Lauree Khatman, Jerome Chamber of Commerce executive director, said the branch has become contagious.

"One thing is feeding off another. One branch leads to another."

Citizen group backs Ketchum water revenue bond issue

By Susan Bailey
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM - A group of citizens, Ketchum Citizens for the Water Revenue Bond, has begun a campaign urging residents to vote for a $3.4 million revenue bond issue to construct two water storage reservoirs, each holding 1 million gallons of water.

"These water storage tanks are needed for adequate fire protection for our city," said Brian Barozzi, chairman of Ketchum Citizens for the Water Revenue Bond.

Barozzi said no property tax money would be used to pay off the bond issue. Current water fees would cover 65 percent of the bond issue, with no rate increase; the remaining 35 percent would come from a water development impact fee.

City Administrator Jim Jaques said developers with 1998 construction projects would begin paying impact fees.

He also said the maximum bond issue amount consists of $2.6 million in construction costs, a debt service reserve fund of $243,770, a capitalized interest fund of $434,324, and cost-of-bond issuance at $71,000.

Construction of the water tanks would take place in June, with a December completion date, Jaquet said.

Mayor Guy Coler said the tanks would not be visible on the hillside. The tanks would be buried in a canyon opposite Ketchum Rural Fire Station, one-third of a mile north of city limits and 900 feet east of Idaho Highway 75.

Coler said the city water system, constructed 20 years ago, included a single 1 million gallon water storage reservoir on Gall Springs Road. Since then, no additional water storage has been constructed.

Juvenile crime worries Minidoka commissioners

By Penelope Ruddy
Times-News writer

RUPERT - Recent crimes involving Mini-Cassia area juveniles - particularly drug and theft charges leaving teen-age suspects charged as adults - have raised questions about the detention facilities Minidoka and Cassia counties share.

The greater numbers of Minidoka County youths held in the Mini-Cassia Juvenile Detention Center, particularly Minidoka County commissioners, concern Minidoka County commissioners.

"Minidoka numbers are compressed higher," Harper said at a recent county department board meeting.

On average, the detention center will house seven or eight Minidoka County teen-agers and four or five Cassia County teen-agers, said Jim Kamache, chief probation officer for the Mini-Cassia area.

"I think it's essential (Minidoka County) law enforcement people are on top of what's going on," said Kamache, whose office is headquartered in Minidoka County.

The statistics puzzles Cassia County Sheriff Billy Crystal. He said the opposite is true at the adult facility, where juveniles are the inmates, as are in Cassia County.

Crystal thinks the county's juvenile diversion committee, overseen by juvenile probation officer Vickie Taylor, has a lot to do with the lower numbers from Cassia County.

The diversion committee provides another avenue for punishment besides incarceration for those juveniles committed to Cassia County.

But he wonders if the committee has been in place for 15 years, several years before many aspects of the juvenile system merged with Minidoka County.

After the diversion board decides which juvenile cases will be sent through the courts, the remainder - first offenders only - are referred to a conference committee that interviews offenders and their parents.

"We run about 118 to 130 cases through the committee and commit," he said. Please see CRIME, Page B3

Sun Valley's 1st year-round doctor dies after stroke at home in Arizona

SUN VALLEY (AP) - Dr. John Richards Moritz, the pioneering Sun Valley physician for whom the resort city's Moritz Community Hospital was named, died April 25 at his home in Scottsdale, Ariz., following a stroke. He was 92.

The Blue Hill, Neb., native is credited with bringing modern, year-round care to the area after starting his practice from a makeshift, eight-room operation on the third floor of the Sun Valley Lodge.

"I loved John Moritz," actress and Sun Valley resident Ann Sothern said. "He was such a kind, compassionate, wonderful man, and a darn good doctor, too. He was my doctor."

Moritz practiced medicine in Beatrice, Neb., before moving to Sun Valley in 1939. He was summoned by a local medical school teacher who was working as chief surgeon for the Union Pacific Railroad, which owned the resort at the time.

The doctor was a Navy lieutenant commander during World War II while the Sun Valley hospital was converted into a convalescent facility for the military. After the war, Moritz returned to a booming community.

"The number of people that came to Sun Valley for skiing and for medical care increased," he told a local historian, Glenn Frazier, in a 1986 interview. "And with that the demands on the medical facility increased.

Although he never learned to ski, Moritz became an authority on skiing-related injuries and played a role in developing the quick-release ski binding. Dr. Alma Switz, orthopedic surgeon on California, said his father set the standard for orthopedic care in the West."

A new hospital was built for the resort area in 1961. It originally was called the Sun Valley Community Hospital, but was renamed for Moritz when he retired in 1973. The hospital merged with Blaine County Medical Center in Hildale in 1992 to form Wood River Medical Center.

Filling council vacancy tops Ketchum's meeting agenda

The Times-News

KETCHUM - Filling a council vacancy and consideration of a self-construction request to hook into the city sewer system top Monday evening's City Council agenda.

The meeting kicks off at 6:30 in City Hall. Anyone is welcome.

The first agenda item is nomination of Randy Hall to fill a council vacancy. Other nominees are: Steve Shivers and Kyle Kunz are slated for nomination to the city's planning and zoning commission. Connie McGowan is the lone nomination to the city's housing commission.

Later, the council will hold a public hearing on a parking proposal for streets near Atkinson Park from May 15 through Labor Day. After that, the council will ponder a request from the Warm Springs Golf Course to connect its golf shop to the city's sewer system.

Search continues for missing man, 2 boys found dead

CANON CITY, Colo. (AP) - In stores and restaurants, residents on Friday mourned the deaths of two young boys whose bodies were found huddled together high in the hills south of town.

But there was also suspicion, as a search near Tamper Peak continued for Troy Tilley, the missing boy who had taken the two hiking last Saturday.

Mark Lippincott hugs his wife, Carmen, at a command post near Canon City, Colo., on Thursday, when a search party found their son, Josef, 10, and his 11-year-old friend Drew Taylor dead of apparent exposure.

area, and there was a problem and he got separated from the boys, said Ray Esquibel, Fremont County Search and Rescue mission coordinator.

The three had left Saturday for a short hike and had planned to attend a baseball game later that day; the boys wore baseball caps, light jackets and long pants.

Search dogs discovered the boys' bodies about 4 p.m. Thursday side-by-side in a heavily wooded area about 700 feet from a makeshift campsite. The two apparently had been sitting on a log under a tree on the rocky, snow-covered ridge, huddled against the biting cold.

The search for Tilley was called off Friday evening, a day after the bodies of his stepson Drew Newler, 11, of Canon City and Newler's friend, Josef Lippincott, 10, of Colorado Springs, were found in the wooded area near a makeshift campsite.

Mark Lippincott, Josef's father, had no second thoughts about the boy being found.

"I love Troy. I know Troy very well, and I would not change the circumstances of my son being with Troy. Troy's death what Troy had to do. He's in trouble, I think. Troy would have done what he had to do to protect the boys."

But Lippincott said he and Troy had known each other for two years and coached together in a local junior football league. Their sons were inseparable.

"We spent numerous hours and weekends together," said Lippincott.

Alma Switz, a local resident, said what many people felt "there are questions. It's just a lot of mixed feelings. Everyone is just shocked, wondering what happened."

People wondered how Tilley, an expert on outdoor survival, could have become separated from Drew and Josef. The boys' tracks were in the snow near their bodies, but there was no sign of Tilley.

"Right now we're proceeding on the assumption he is still in the Fremont County Sheriff Dale Dore said that the boys' deaths were blunt trauma or serious injury. The boys died from exposure, according to autopsy reports released Friday.

The goodnight for lost and found during "Not really knowing," said Dorrie Hamilton, whose daughter Britany was in Drew's fifth grade class. She said she had been about going hiking and wanted other kids to go with them."

Bruins take 3rd seed in Region III

By Karen Baumert
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - If it ain't broke, don't fix it, right? The third seed in the regional tournament seems to have worked the last couple of years for the Twin Falls baseball team, so why change now?

The Bruins took the No. 3 seed into the Region III tournament last year and came out with a berth in the state tournament. Friday's 8-7 victory over Minico assured Twin Falls the No. 3 seed heading into this season's Regional tournament next week.

The third-seeded Bruins has been lucky for us. Twin Falls coach Mike Federico said. "The three seeds are the toughest because you don't get a bye."

The Bruins will open the tournament Tuesday at home against unranked Pocatello. Bruins' fifth-seeded Pocatello hosts fifth-seeded Minico, who needed the win against the Bruins to claim the No. 1 seed, dropped to No. 2 and will draw a bye in the opening round. The Spartans will host the winner of the Burley-Twin Falls game Wednesday at Twin Falls. The loser of the Burley-Twin Falls game will play the loser of the Pocatello-Highland game on Wednesday.

Early on Friday, it appeared that Minico would roll to an easy victory.

Bruin's reliever Joe Durham's two-out, two-strike single in the sixth capped a 7-3 deficit into an 8-7 lead.

Ryan Jund led off the inning with a double. Jason Ward followed with a walk and pinch-runner Brandon Miller scored Jund with a single. The Spartans caught a break when a Bruin baserunner rounded second a little too far on the slide and got picked off for the first out.

Twin Falls coach Mike Federico argues with umpire Bill Shobony over the call.

Rockets fizzle in 2nd half against Jazz

The Associated Press

HOUSTON - The Houston Rockets, famed for their playoff upsets, got a lesson in survival from the Utah Jazz.

Rafael Malone scored 25 points and led a second-half charge as the Jazz beat the Rockets 93-71 Friday night. Malone also became the second top scorer in NBA history to lose to a No. 1 Utah trailed 42-36 at halftime, but outscored Houston 37-29 over the final 24 minutes.

The victory evened the best-of-5 series at 2-2, with the deciding Game 5 set for Sunday in Salt Lake City. The winner will play the San Antonio Spurs in the second round.

Now, the Rockets get another chance to continue their string of 17 consecutive playoff series victories that began in the first game. Houston won Game 1 112-90 at Utah.

The No. 3 Denver Nuggets beat top-seeded Seattle in 1994, but the Jazz avoided that fate when Malone hit 10 pointers in the second quarter and Utah outscored Houston 28-20 in the fourth.

Utah's Greg Ostertag led Houston with 27 points and 15 rebounds, and Clyde Drexler was the only other Rocket in double figures with 11 points.

The Jazz started out with horrible shooting and allowed the Rockets to take early control, but Malone hit 11 third-quarter points that got the Jazz started and blew out the Rockets in the fourth period.

Heat, Knicks players out for fighting

NEW YORK - Three players - Larry Johnson and Chris Mills of New York and Alonzo Mourning of Miami - were suspended by the NBA today for a fight at the end of Game 4 of the Knicks-Heat series.

All three players will be barred from Miami Arena on Sunday for Game 5, which will have a plot twist similar to last year when another fight led to several suspensions that had a severe impact on the outcome of the series.

Mourning and Johnson drew two-game suspensions for throwing punches, and Mills was suspended for one game for leaving the bench area.

The suspensions will not change the status of Patrick Ewing, who is on the Knicks' playoff roster but has not played since fracturing a hand in December.

"He's not going to play a general manager. Ernie Brunfeldt said today.

Mourning was fined $20,000, Johnson was fined $10,000 and Mills $2,500.

Mourning drew the largest fine for throwing the first punch.

The fight happened with 1.4 seconds left in the Knicks' 90-85 victory. As the Heat attempted a shot, Johnson viciously boxed out Mourning, using his elbows, some 15 feet from the basket.

As the other players turned upward, Mourning suddenly threw a punch at Johnson. Knicks coach Jeff Van Gundy bolted from the bench and lunged at Mourning, and the two players landed away at each other but barely landed a punch.

Orioles double up Twins, 6-3

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rafael Palmeiro gave Baltimore a 4-3 lead with a two-run homer off Brad Radtke (3-2) in the sixth. The Orioles won consecutive games for the first time in two weeks and sent Minnesota to its fourth loss in five games.

Doug Drabek (2-4) allowed three runs in six innings to stop his four-game losing streak. Arthur Rhodes pitched two scoreless innings, and Armando Benitez finished for his sixth save.

Yankees 2, Royals 1
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Hideki Maibuchi combined with two relievers on a two-hitter, and Bernie Williams hit both runs as the New York Yankees beat the Kansas City Royals 2-1 Friday night for their 17th win in 19 games.

Leabu (1-0) gave up both hits and struck out eight in 7 1/3 innings, lowering his ERA to 1.47. At 18-6, the Yankees are off to their best start since 1967.

Gianni Gonzalez and Mariano Rivera finished, with Rivera getting his fourth save.

Williams had an RBI single off Pat Rapp (1-3) in the sixth and a sacrifice fly off Jose Rijoado in the eighth.

Red Sox 5, Rangers 3
BOSTON — Aaron Sele (5-1) lost to his former team as Troy O'Leary hit a two-run homer that broke a 3-3 tie in the sixth.

Boston Red Sox center fielder Damon Lewis, left, and right fielder Troy O'Leary can't come up with this two-run single by Texas Rangers Will Clark at Fenway Park in Boston Friday.

Darren Bragg had a three-run shot in the first for Boston, and he won for the 16th time in 19 games.

Sele, who spent his entire career in the Red Sox organization before a trade to Texas last November, allowed five runs and six hits in seven innings, struck out eight and walked one.

John Wadkin (3-0) pitched two scoreless innings, and Tom Gordon got four outs for his 10th save.

Indians 7, Devil Rays 5
CLEVELAND — Travis Fryman hit his first homer in nearly a month, a three-run drive in the fourth off Dennis Springer

(1-4), and Cleveland won for just the fifth time in 15 games.

Barreto Colon (2-1) was inconsequential again, but recovered from a four-run fourth to retire 10 of his last 11 batters. He allowed four runs — three earned — and eight hits, walking four and striking out six. Mike Jackson got three outs for his 10th save.

Northern foes womp Diamondbacks, 7-4

MONTREAL (AP) — Vladimir Guerrero hit a two-run homer and rookie Javier Vazquez got his first major league win as the Montreal Expos snapped a five-game losing streak.

Guerrero's shot off Arizona starter Brian Anderson (3-3) proved a shattering thing, timing that helped Vazquez get his first victory in six starts.

F.P. Santangelo and Shane Andrews also homered for the Expos, while Brent Barlow and Dave White homered for Arizona.

Vazquez (1-2), who never pitched above the Double-A level before this season, gave up three runs and hit two in a 2 1/2 inning effort, struck out eight and walked three. Ugoeth Urbina pitched the final two innings for his sixth save.

Astros 12, Phillies 5
PHILADELPHIA — Sean Berry drove in four runs and Derek Bell drove in three as the Houston Astros won their seventh straight.

Bell hit a solo shot in the fifth off Matt Beech (0-2) and Berry hit a two-run homer in the sixth.

Bell, who had three hits and scored three runs, has 10 hits in his last 14 at-bats and is 27-for-50 (.540) in his last 11 games. He raised his average to .421 and took over the NL lead from Colorado's Dante Bichette.

Phillies manager Terry Francona and coach Chuck Cottrill were ejected by plate umpire Jerry Meals in the fifth, when they claimed Beech's run-scoring wild hit the bat of Brad Ausmus.

Brewers 5, Reds 2
MILWAUKEE — The Milwaukee Brewers finally found a first baseman to replace John Jaha. All they had to do was look across the diamond.

Pirates 5, Dodgers 4
PITTSBURGH — Turner Ward led the Pittsburgh Pirates to a comeback victory in a 2 1/2 inning effort, struck out eight and walked three. Ugoeth Urbina pitched the final two innings for his sixth save.

Braeves 6, Giants 2
ATLANTA — Greg Maddux rebounded from his worst outing in seven seasons to beat the San Francisco Giants for the 11th time in his last 12 decisions against them.

Maddux (3-2) allowed two runs and six hits in seven innings, improving to 2-5 in decisions in starts following a losing decision. Maddux had allowed 10 runs earned runs in his previous two starts, including a four-run first inning to Colorado's Matt Stensland.

Greg Maddux hit a two-run homer in the first before Maddux settled down. Tony Graffanino, Andrew Jones and Michael Tucker each had one for Braves, who have four in a row and 13 of 16.

Brewers 5, Cardinals 5
CHICAGO — Fortunately for the Cubs and Rod Beck, Mark McGwire came up in the ninth inning with only one runner on.

McGwire hit his major league-leading 12th homer but Chicago beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 Friday behind a solo homer by Henry Rodriguez and Mark Grace's two-run double.

"He gets paid to hit home runs," McGwire said of "the ballgame" Beck said. "We both did our jobs today."

Charlotte advances to face the Bulls

ATLANTA (AP) — Anthony Mason took it upon himself to make sure the Charlotte Hornets rebounded from the lowest scoring game NBA all-day history. Mason scored 21 of his 29 points in the second half and the Hornets eliminated the Atlanta Hawks in the first round with a 91-82 victory on Friday night.

Charlotte, advancing to the second round for the second time in team history, won the best-of-5 series 3-1 and advanced to meet the Chicago Bulls. Atlanta became only the third team to lose a playoff series to an opponent it swept during the regular season, and the Hawks were knocked out in the second round for the first time since 1995.

The Hornets, who shot only 34 percent and tied an NBA playoff record by scoring 64 points in a 20-point loss in Game 3, surprised that miserable effort by the end of the third quarter.

Give all the credit to Mason. He contributed 13 points in the first quarter, scoring 13 points with his powerful, unorthodox moves under the basket. With the game tied at 24, three Hornets tried down the floor, unbothered by the presence of Dikembe Mutombo in the middle of the lane.

Mason slipped past Mutombo for a layup, moved outside to hit a baseline jumper, then spun and his another jumper that gave the Hornets an 80-74 lead with 4:39 remaining.

Mason had also sparked a minor controversy late in the regular season when he said Hawks had "no heart," pumped his fists on the way back down the court and went on to hit his season high for points, in addition to grabbing 14 rebounds. It was reminiscent of his effort in Game 2, when he scored 25 points in a 90-85 victory.

Atlanta never cut the margin below six points, the rest of the way.

Charlotte came to the Georgia Dome early to get in some extra shooting practice. They worked on a double-figure (33 percent) from the field — and Glen Rice, despite a sore thumb on his shooting hand, led 26 points after scoring only eight in Game 3.

Steve Smith had 27 points to lead the Hawks, but only six came in the final period. For some reason, Atlanta coach Lenny Wilkens kept his top scorer on the bench for nearly half of the final period. Also, Alan Henderson, who one day earlier was named the NBA's most improved player, sat on the bench for nearly nine minutes in the fourth.

The Hawks led by as many as 10 in the second quarter, the fourth largest point differential in the series they built a double-figure, first-half lead. But the Hornets didn't fall this time, instead, they bounced back like the Bulls, winning the first two games at Charlotte.

Mason gave the Hornets a boost going to the locker room, driving in for a layup as the clock wound down. Although Atlanta led 41-35, there was a sense of doom from the home fans that the game was slipping away.

The Hornets pulled ahead for the first time since midway through the first period when David Wesley converted a three-point play with 4:57 remaining in the third, making it 55-53. Mason

What Burrell made look easy in a 116-101 win over the Nets Wednesday night was shooting his jumper. Giving the Bulls an unexpected lift after making only 2-of-11 in the first two games of the series, he scored 23 points, hitting 9-of-11, including three 3-pointers. At one point, he made eight straight shots and his 23 points came in only 24 minutes of play. Burrell gave a glimpse of his streaky shooting during the regular season when he scored 24 fourth-quarter points in a game against Denver.

"It's about spacing, being prepared to shoot and knowing where you are supposed to be," Burrell averaged 13.7 minutes and 5.2 points per game in 88 games he came to the Bulls in a trade for Dick Simpson last September. Since that deal, Chicago has reacquired Simpson.

"It's an inconsistency," he shot 42 percent during the regular season — was part of his adjustment to sporadic playing time. Now he's given Chicago a chance at another option as the Bulls shoot for a third straight title.

George Karl angry but won't say why

SEATTLE (AP) — On the eve of what might be the most important game of George Karl's coaching career in Seattle, he said he was "angry."

"I'm not sure why," Presumably, it has something to do with his future as coach of the SuperSonics, who will play the Minnesota Timberwolves in Game 5 of a first-round playoff series on Saturday.

But Karl's Sonics flopped in the playoffs in 1994 and 1995, being upset in the first round by Denver and the Lakers.

Ackerley and president Wally Walker have said they'll talk to Karl after the season is over.

"I'm still working," Karl said. "It's good to be in the playoffs."

He said he expects another close game when the Wolves, led by 21-year-old Stephen Marbury and Kevin Garnett, face the Sonics.

"It's our personality, I guess," Karl said of the unexpectedly close series. "We always kind of don't get started until our backs are pinned. Hopefully, in round 2, we don't do that way."

The Sonics sent the series back to Seattle for its finale with a 92-83 victory in Minneapolis Thursday night as Gary Payton and Hershey Hawkins each scored 24 points.

"I'm angry, I'm angry, there's no question that this guy's angry," Karl said. "There's a lot why I'm angry, but I'm not going to give it away."

Payton and Hawkins got under way, Sonics owner Barry Ackerley pointed out that Boston's Los Angeles Lakers and the Sonics were the only two teams in the NBA to have won 55 or more games a year for six consecutive years.

"Where are my rings?" Ackerley asked. "Boston's got rings. LA has got rings. Where are my rings? I didn't get a ring."

If the Sonics lose to the Wolves at the Key Arena, where they've lost to them twice already this season, it will be Karl's final game with the Sonics. His contract runs out on July 1.

The Sonics made it to the NBA Finals against Miami in the first round, losing in six games to Michael Jordan and the Bulls, and they've won three straight Pacific Division titles.

That's if the Sonics get into round 2, where the Los Angeles Lakers are waiting after a 3-1 first-round playoff series victory over Portland.

A year ago, they had to win Game 5, against Phoenix, in Seattle to get out of the opening round.

Payton, Seattle's All-Star point guard, averaged a playoff career-high 25.3 points in the first four games of the series. He's confident the Sonics are going to beat the Wolves in Game 5.

"If we just come and play, we'll be fine," he said. "If we play like we play in round 1, it'll be a lot easier for us."

The Wolves, in their second playoff series, also are confident. Why shouldn't they be?

"It's about spacing, being prepared to shoot and knowing where you are supposed to be," Burrell averaged 13.7 minutes and 5.2 points per game in 88 games he came to the Bulls in a trade for Dick Simpson last September. Since that deal, Chicago has reacquired Simpson.

"It's an inconsistency," he shot 42 percent during the regular season — was part of his adjustment to sporadic playing time. Now he's given Chicago a chance at another option as the Bulls shoot for a third straight title.

Burrell still getting comfortable with Bulls

DEERFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Scott Burrell had figured out a sophisticated offense, win the respect of Michael Jordan, earn his playing minutes and blend with a team that had won consecutive championships.

His erratic season says how difficult it was. His performance in the Chicago Bulls' series clinching win over New Jersey shows how far he has developed in all areas.

"You come here and you're nervous about playing with those guys at first. It's a veteran team and you don't know how you are going to fit in and learn the (triangle) offense," said Burrell, the only member of the Bulls' playoff roster without a championship ring.

"It's tough. There are so many really plays, but passing and certain options that they run off every pass and there are different options and they want you to be able to recognize things as a unit, and once you get the hang of that, it comes a lot easier."

What Burrell made look easy in a 116-101 win over the Nets Wednesday night was shooting his jumper. Giving the Bulls an unexpected lift after making only 2-of-11 in the first two games of the series, he scored 23 points, hitting 9-of-11, including three 3-

Kentucky Derby

Trainer Hick Zito waits for Kentucky Derby prospect Hahory Hunter to return to the towel he was using to dry the coat after his bath Friday morning in Louisville, Ky. Hahory Hunter is placed as the second-favorite colt in the Kentucky Derby early line at 7-2 odds.

Derby entries to get sponge inspection just like any other race

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Before the 125th Kentucky Derby walk to the post to the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home," they will get the same inspection that any entry in a chest claiming race gets these days.

Officials will place a long, snake-like apparatus into the nostrils of each horse to determine if there is anything obstructing the airways.

It's to detect "sponging," a sinister and potentially deadly practice that turned up at Churchill Downs in 1994 in that incident, someone placed sponges into the nostrils of race horses, restricting their breathing and hindering their performance.

Federal authorities investigated the race-fixing scheme, and a grand jury in Louisville is expected to take up the matter Monday with indictments are likely, a source familiar with the investigation told The Associated Press, confirming an earlier report by ENP. The U.S. Attorney's office Friday would neither confirm nor deny the grand jury's interest.

Since June 17, 1997, when the inspections began, "we've not had the minimum of a problem," said Bernie Hettel, chief steward for the Kentucky Racing Commission. "We've certainly not detected any kind of medication tampering."

Hettel said each horse entered in each race at a track in Kentucky undergoes the inspection, and the entries in the world's most famous horse race will not differ.

Hettel said he will be relieved if indictments are brought so the specter of the race-fixing scheme can be put to rest.

"We've been working in conjunction with the FBI for about a year and a half now," he said.

Alex Waldrop, general counsel for Churchill Downs, said the track has kept its distance from the investigation. But if there are indictments, Waldrop said the track would consider unilaterally banning those individuals involved.

The Racing Commission can also suspend or yank the licenses of people who run afoul of the rules.

Authorities believe the sponging incidents began in the spring of 1996 and could involve seven races. Among the races in question are the fourth race on May 30, 1996, in which Great Judgement finished fifth and Nothing by Chance finished seventh in the 103-year-old race on June 2, 1995, in which Spose finished third and That's Life was fourth. Sponges were found in all of those horses' nostrils.

The laminitis appeared the next day.

Celebrities pop in at Churchill Downs

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Trainer D. Wayne Lukas entertained a couple of Bo's at Barn 44 at Churchill Downs.

On the day before Saturday's Kentucky Derby, Lukas was visited by actress Bo Derek and former Michigan football coach Bo Schemmbocher.

Derby notes

"He also called his friend, Bob Knight, to come down," said Gil Brandt, another Lukas pal better known for his NFL expertise as a draft consultant and former Dallas Cowboys executive. "And when Wayne calls all those folks here, he's confident."

Lukas will saddle his record third horse in the Derby when he sends Cape Town to the post in the 15-horse field for the 1-mile run for the roses.

WEATHER REPORT: The Derby day weather report, as of Friday, called for mostly to partly cloudy skies, some sun, a 20-percent chance of late afternoon showers and temperatures in the 70s.

TRIPLE CROWN: There have been 11 Triple Crown winners: Affirmed (1978), Secretariat (1973), Citation (1948), Assault (1946), Count Fleet (1943), Whirlaway (1941), War Admiral (1937), Omaha (1935), Gallant Fox (1930) and Sir Barton (1919).

MISUNDERSTANDING: Nationalists, winless in 15 career starts, was unable to work on the Churchill Downs track because of a misunderstanding. Unaware that the track closed early, at 8 a.m., because press was missing 11:30 a.m. Nationalist's connections had to settle for walking their horse under the shed roof.

Nationalist, the first maiden in the Derby since Pendleton Ridge ran 13th in 1990, has earned $283,767 for owner Myung-Kwon Cho of South Korea.

investigation last September, when veterinarians had to destroy Class O Lark after the horse was diagnosed with laminitis, a painful and fatal hoof disease. The 6-year-old gray thoroughbred pulled up during a race in June, and the laminitis appeared the next day.

Keeper Hill prevails at the end

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Keeper Hill scooted through an opening on the turn to get a clear shot at the leader, then wore down Bansee Breeze in the final yards to capture the $605,500 Kentucky Oaks on Friday.

David Flores whacked Keeper Hill more than 20 times left-handed during the stretch run. Owned by John A. Chandler and trained by Robert Frankel, Keeper Hill returned $8,640, $4,800 and $4 as the lowest favored in the field of the 103-year-old race.

It was the largest field since 16 entered the 1959 Oaks and the race was split into two divisions.

Try N Sue and being receding in the leaders, Bansee Breeze, third in the Ashland in her last start, opened a clear advantage in the stretch.

Santa Anita Oaks despite a stumbling start.

Keeper Hill finished 1 1/8 miles in the field of a record Oaks crowd of 94,415.

Bansee Breeze was almost four lengths clear of Realty Polish. As the second choice, Bansee Breeze paid $5,200 and $4.20. Realty Polish returned $10.

Star of Broadway, one of two shots D. Wayne Lukas had at tying the record training fee, Oaks winners, set the early pace and Keeper Hill was ninth going down the backstretch. Heading into the far turn, Jerry Bailey swung Bansee Breeze officials of the leaders. Bansee Breeze, third in the Ashland in her last start, opened a clear advantage in the stretch.

Stories follow horses in pursuit of history at Churchill Downs

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Look upon the fabled twin spires standing sentry-like at Churchill Downs, close your eyes and listen for the rousing hoofbeats galloping past the finish.

Muted sounds of Secretariat and Citation still mingle with the pounding hooves of many more Kentucky Derby winners galloping in a timeless line through folklore and memory.

Soon after 3:30 p.m. Saturday, one more will join their group by winning the 124th Kentucky Derby. A field of 15 is scheduled to be dispatched for this $1,038,800 race of all races.

Led by the undefeated Indian Charlie, they bring an eclectic collection of stories to a lineup that will be sorted out by luck and their various talents through a grueling 1 1/4 miles. Yet the racing fans will play a bigger role than luck if the heavy rain that fell this week continues Saturday.

Rain brings more variables into the running of the race, though Churchill's surface will dry quickly if the rain stops. Friday the track was upgraded to fast when it stopped raining overnight. Still, racing fans will be searching for those horses for mud indicators if more rain falls.

On a dry and perfect racetrack, all of the questions in this race would be much simpler to outline. As always, the story lines brought to the Derby would be the same.

Begin with Bill Mott, the youthful trainer of some great ones like Cigar, who was named this week to the National Thoroughbred Racing Hall of Fame. He's never had a Derby program for his stable, of this 124th Derby, and five generations of sprinters in his family would suggest not.

But as everyone knows by now, Favorite Trick keeps coming up with the unexpected. He was the first juvenile to be named Horse of the Year since Secretariat in 1972. He showed a distance-running style in winning the Breeders' Cup Juvenile at 1 1/16 miles last fall. Mott and jockey Pat Day keep insisting that his long, fluid stride will carry him 1 1/4 miles.

trainer Patrick Byrne. Can Favorite Trick, undefeated in nine starts until a few weeks ago, outrun his sprinting pedigree to win this distance race? That's one of the compelling questions,

It's Father's Day in Louisville for the Bafferts

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Chief peered through a cold, spattered glasses on a Tuesday morning. Standing there, absorbing the typically frantic scene along the backside at Churchill Downs, a smile played at the corner of his lips.

"Yeah," he said, "this is the best place to be this week. This is super... just super. This is one of the great weeks of my life. I'm glad I can be here."

The Chief is Bill Baffert Sr., 74-year-old father of Bob, the Huntington Beach-based trainer of favored Indian Charlie, who is expected to win the reigning celebrity of Kentucky Derby week in "Loo-h-a-vul," as the natives prefer to call it.

Bob is everywhere you look, at every news conference, at every party, on every TV and radio show. But he is never more happy than when he's talking to the moment to relax and watch his father.

"The Chief's really having a good time, isn't he?" Bob said, grinning. "For me, it's my third-year here, and it's a little like going to Disneyland for three years. You lose that little bit of excitement when you walk through the gate."

"But with him, he's really excited being here. He's like a little kid. It's great because we couldn't drag him here before."

Trainer Bob Baffert tugs on the reins of Derby favorite Indian Charlie, with exercise rider Larry Danmore aboard, prior to an early morning exercise Friday at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky.

The father is proud of the son, and the son is thrilled the father can finally be with him, as he tries to win America's most famous horse race for the second consecutive year.

Imagine, this is the first time The Chief has been on hand to see Bob try to win a thoroughbred race. And the race happens to be the Kentucky Derby. That's a little like John Elway's father never seeing his favorite quarterback play until he made it to the Super Bowl.

"He never wanted to come around before," Bob said. "He thought he'd be bringing me bad luck."

Instead, he has only brought warm smiles and good cheer to a family that already loves the sport in laughter. The Bafferts, from Bill

Sr. to Bob to brother Bill Jr., never met a quip or one-liner they didn't like.

Apparently, that was part of the fun of upbringing at The Chief's in Nogales, Ariz.

Switzerland's Martina Hingis reaches for the ball during her quarter-final match against American Jennifer Capriati at the women's tennis tournament in Hamburg, Germany, Friday. Hingis won in straight sets, 6-1, 6-3.

Hingis shows Capriati the limit

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — Martina Hingis, the Swiss teenager who is No. 1 in the world, beat former teenage prodigy Jennifer Capriati 6-1, 6-3 Friday to reach the semifinals of the German Grand Prix.

In the semifinals, Hingis will meet Barbara Schett, who demolished Virginia Ruzici 6-0, 6-0.

Second-seeded Jana Novotna, a 6-1, 6-3 winner over German qualifier Julia Abe, will play Patty Schnyder, another Swiss, who routed three-time Hamburg champion Arantxa Sanchez Vicario 6-3, 6-0.

With Hingis leading 5-2 in the second set and Capriati serving at 30-15, the match had to be stopped when water suddenly started falling onto the court from the new retractable roof that was installed over center court before the tournament.

The roof was not being used Friday, a glorious sunny day. But it had been used earlier in the week when it rained. Organizers speculated that some condensation may have collected in the seams of the structure.

The roof had to be opened and closed several times before play could resume in about 30 minutes.

Agassi rips Bjorkman

MUNICH, Germany — Andre Agassi beat Sweden's Jonas Bjorkman and an approaching storm to cruise into the semifinals of the BMW Open with a 6-2, 6-3 victory Friday.

With threatening dark clouds over the Iphitos club clay courts, Agassi quickly finished off the on-seeded Bjorkman as first drops of rain began to fall.

At one point, just as Agassi was preparing to serve, there was a boom of thunder and Agassi jokingly sought cover behind a lineswoman's bag.

"It's not a very good situation if you don't finish. Perhaps you will have around all day and finish tomorrow," said Agassi, who needed only 59 minutes for his impressive victory.

Agassi's semifinal opponent will be Galo Blanco of Spain, who beat Tomas Nydahl of Sweden 7-5, 7-6 (7-1).

Dosedel beats Diaz

PRAGUE, Czech Republic — Slava Dosedel of the Czech Republic beat Spain's Jacobo Diaz 6-1, 6-4 Friday and advanced to the semifinals of the Czech Open clay-court tournament.

Dosedel will face Nicolas Lapentti of Ecuador, who beat another Spaniard, Fernando Vicente 6-0, 7-5.

The other semifinal will be between Romania's Dinu Pescariu, who rallied to beat Javier Sanchez of Spain 6-7 (4-7), 6-3, 6-3, and Fernando Meligeni of Brazil, who ousted Russian Andrei Cherkasov 6-3, 6-1.

Love stays on top in Chunichi Crowns

AICHI, Japan (AP) — Davis Love III shot a 71 on Friday and was at 5-under-par 135 midway through the Chunichi Crowns tournament, one stroke ahead of Rick Gibson.

Tommy Nakajima made the first hole-in-one ever on a par-4 in a Japan PGA Tour event when he knocked in his tee shot on the 247-yard hole and then managed to shoot only a 73 and five strokes behind at 140.

Love, the 1997 PGA Championship winner, had two holes-in-one in the previous round on the windy Nagoya Golf Club Wago Course as he shot a 71.

"I wasn't hitting the ball solid but putted really well," Love said. "I sank several par puts of 10 feet or longer today."

Gibson, a Canadian, had a 70 to be at 136.

"I was off a little today in approaching and putting," Gibson said. "And it was windy and the greens were fast and firm. I'm glad I had a par round."

Another stroke back at 137 was Masanobu Kimura, who shot a 68. Koki Iodoki followed at 138 after shooting a 69.

Ryoken Kawagishi, wireless since his fifth career victory in 1995, had a 70 for 139.

Brian Winstan shot a 68 and shared sixth place at 140 with fellow American Justin Leonard, Zao Moe of Burma, Nakajima and three others.

Leg loses Martin

LOS ANGELES — He's playing the second week of four consecutive weeks, but all is not well for Casey Martin. He made the cut last week in the Nike Tour event in Alabama, but his ailing right leg is giving him tremendous pain, according to his parents.

"It's been so bad for him, he's in such pain, especially at night," said

King Martin, the father of the disabled golfer. "He just can't get any sleep."

Sjoland takes Italian lead

MILAN, Italy — Patrik Sjoland of Sweden led four of the final five holes Friday and finished with an 8-under-par 64 to take a two-stroke lead during the first round of the rain-plagued Italian Open.

Only half of the 156-player field teed off Friday, and officials cut the event to 54 holes.

First-round play was washed out Thursday and delayed by six hours Friday, when workers scrambled to make water-logged fairways and greens playable. Preferred lies were in use as organizers shortened four holes by a total of 234 yards at the Capecoronaire Golf Club course.

Ray's got game — and star appeal, too

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ray Allen doesn't look like a movie star. Comfortable in baggy khaki jeans, a rumpled white V-neck T-shirt and white athletic socks on shoeless feet, he barely resembles an NBA millionaire, either.

But director Spike Lee didn't want a star to play Jesus Shuttlesworth, America's No. 1 high school recruit, in the new movie "Hoop Dreams." He sought a talented basketball player who looked young enough to portray an 18-year-old, and Allen, of the Milwaukee Bucks' second-year guard, fit the bill.

Lee approached Allen about auditioning for the part when the Bucks were in New York to play the Knicks. Unlike a lot of athletes eager for show business careers, Allen hadn't considered any other stage than a basketball court.

"I can't do any movies," Allen recalled of his initial reaction. "It was great for him to just ask me. That was my first year in the league and I was still trying to get used to meeting all these celebrities, so I was amused by it."

His only previous experience was as narrator of a third-grade school play, so he worked with an acting coach for eight weeks before shooting began in Brooklyn last summer.

Gordon wins California pole

FONTANA, Calif. (AP) — When the NASCAR Winston Cup Series comes to sunny Southern California, the No. 24 Chevrolet shines.

Last year, Jeff Gordon won the inaugural California 500 at California Speedway, then on Friday rekindled that success in the No. 24 by winning the pole for Sunday's race.

It's no wonder the speedway has become one of Gordon's favorite spots of the season.

"I'm a pretty happy Jeff Gordon right now. California has been good to me and California Speedway has been good to me," said Gordon, the defending Winston Cup champion. "The guys did an awesome job getting this car ready back at the shop and the guys here tuned on it just right all day long."

Gordon had the fastest lap around the 2-mile, D-shaped oval by going 181.772 mph to clinch his 17th career Winston Cup pole. He'll start on the pole for Sunday's California 500, while Jeremy Mayfield will start on the outside pole in his No. 12 Ford Taurus. Mayfield won 180.659 mph to earn his second front-row start of the year.

It will be Gordon's 17th career pole in the Winston Cup series in his 166th race, but that's not only reason he has grown to like the track so much.

Jeff Gordon of Pittsboro, Ind., won the pole for Sunday's California 500 in Fontana, Calif.

But other drivers are trying to get their name — and their feet — on the MotorWalk, too, especially some of the Ford drivers, who thought they had good enough cars to knock Gordon off the pole.

"We were off today. We had some good lap time, but we didn't had a lot more," said Mike Martin, who qualified third with 180.248 mph in his No. 6 Ford Taurus. "I was afraid we could have wound up back around 25 to 25th."

Two drivers didn't wind up anywhere on the qualifying line after crashing into the wall during their runs. Dale Jarrett and Brett Bodine both spun and the wall between Turns 3 and 4. They were released from the infield care center without injuries and will attempt to qualify during second-round qualifying today.

Jarrett, driver of the No. 14 Ford Taurus, hadn't been fielded well on Friday, but said that illness — some flu-like symptom — had nothing to do with the crash. He has had six top-10 starts this season.

"We had been a bit loose, we made some changes and tightened it up before qualifying, but obviously not enough," Jarrett said. "I just took a good one and, unfortunately, messed up."

Special Projects Report

"Sign of the Times"

by Charles Lemmon continues

Tonight on KMYT's News at 10:00

KMYT Southern Idaho's News Source

For some, the future begins today

Did you see where the Associated Press is reporting that a mile-wide asteroid, described as "the most dangerous one we've found so far," may very well be on a collision course with earth?

And if we dodge that celestial bullet, a 75-square-mile chunk of the Arctic ice shelf snapped off earlier this year, and scientists indicate that that is just the beginning.

VALUESPEAK

Joseph Walker

The way I see it, there are several ways to respond to such news. You can take a political approach and start looking for someone to blame.

Or, you can do what most of us do in the spirit of Mad Max's Alford E. Newman, I call it the "What Me Worry?" approach. We look 30 years down the road and say, "Well, I'll probably be dead when that asteroid hits - if it hits - so why worry about it?"

Now, I'm not suggesting that we should be focusing a lot of time and attention on dealing with stuff like asteroids that may or may not intersect with earth's orbit and ice shelves that may or may not be melting away.

And if we can't think about them, perhaps we can think about who came before us. My great-great-grandfather helped to settle the valley where I now live.

All of us are beneficiaries of goodness afterthought, perpetrated upon us by an unknown man in a woman who cared about the kind of world they were leaving to unborn generations.

Quartet puts its Stamp on things

By H.R. Webel Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS - According to the "Guinness Book of World Records," he's the world's lowest bass singer.

Summer is performing with the Stamps, a male quartet that performed regularly with Elvis Presley during the height of Presley's career.

"We are trying to reach the lost, not just people who have gone to church all their lives," he tells his audiences.

J. D., as he is affectionately known, will play Ed Bruce's lead, Ed Hill (baritone), Rick Strickland (tenor) and Jerry Kello (keyboard technician).

The Stamps was formed in 1924 and has been billed as the longest singing male quartet of all times.

until his death in 1977. In spite of Presley's incredible success as a rock & roll and pop singer, he received only two Grammy awards for his gospel recordings.

Summer has been said that J. D. was his idol and that Elvis once said that given the choice of voices, he would have chosen to be a bass singer like J. D.

Enoch, the Stamps lead singer and road manager, is known as "The Personality Personified." Hill, a veteran baritone, is remembered by many as the man booming across concert halls with the immortal words "Ladies and gentlemen, Elvis has left the building, thank you and good night."

Strickland is called the "enthusiastic, spunky tenor." He began performing with the singing Americans in 1963.

Chapman sends out a message

Shootings hit home with contemporary Christian singer

By Ken Garfield Night Writer News Service

Not long before she was murdered at her high school prayer meeting, Kayce Steger of Paducah, Ky., told a friend that her dream was to meet Christian singer Steven Curtis Chapman.

Chapman believes the 15-year-old girl from his hometown got her wish. She got to hear him sing last December about a better world that awaits in a way that perhaps only believers can appreciate.

Chapman is a Christian. This is what he knows for so. This is what he knows his career is getting others to know.

"There's no question in my mind these girls were waiting from heaven," Chapman said. "You know what? This world isn't our home. These girls are home."

The song that Chapman sang at Bible Baptist Heartland Worship Center in Paducah, at the funeral of Kayce Steger? "Not Home Yet."

Chapman won five Dove Awards at last week's nationally televised show. With his folk-pop style and scholarly good looks, he has sold more than 4 million records, won three Grammys and 37 Doves, considered the King of Contemporary Christian music.

The popularity of Christian music has risen in the past few years, and other stars talk about having to work harder to avoid the ego that swells when

Youths put on a captivating play

By H.R. Webel Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS - Lights, sound, music and let the play begin as the young people from Lighthouse Christian Fellowship prepare to take the stage for their first performance of "The Captive," a musical drama about a man in a jail cell envisioning how people live their lives.

About 400 members of the cast and staff will take the production on the road this summer, with performances scheduled in Logan, Eaton and Park City, Utah; Mesquite and Elko, Nev.; and Victorville and Huntington Beach, Calif.

Written by Pastor Brian Nickens, Hilber Nelson and Susan Hatch, "The Captive" depicts prisoner Matt Trent, played by Matt Eaton, meeting people like Marilyn Monroe, John Lennon and Adolph Hitler. Then the jailed man sees an innocent man who is about to be killed, giving his life for those who hated him. That man is Jesus Christ. The theme of the musical drama is based on Colossians 2:8: "So be it that no one takes you captive through hollow and deceptive philosophy, which depends on human tradition and the basic principles of this world rather than on Christ."

Nickens, Hatch and Nelson co-direct the presentation. Nelson designed the costumes and did the choreography. He also designed and helped build the sets that are collapsible and will be taken with the group on the tour.

This is the second drama tour for the young people from Lighthouse and their third year for presenting a musical drama.

Coach lets the gospel speak for him

By Berta Delgado The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS - It didn't take long for Texans to notice that a Christian man was taking the reins of the Dallas Cowboys.

A short bio in The Dallas Morning News the February morning after Coach Gullety was named indicated that the person he would most likely meet Jesus Christ. What he would do as he were president for one day allow prayer in school.

Gullety, born and raised Baptist, said his faith in Jesus impacted his life in breathing. But he's not one to brag about it. He said he prefers being a quiet witness, letting the way he lives speak for his Christianity.

On a recent afternoon in April — between duties such as preparing for the National Football League draft of college players — Gullety spoke openly about Jesus, his family, his father and football. But it wasn't Coach Gullety, coach of one of the most popular sports teams in the world, who was speaking.

It was his son, Matt Gullety, who was speaking. "I'm speaking for my father," he said. "I'm speaking for my father and father of two grown sons."

He said he was fortunate to grow up in the church in the small town of Americus, Ga., where his parents were devoted Christians.

"I did it all. I was in the boys' choir at the high school choir at church in the FCA (Fellowship of Christian Athletes), and I did the Royal Ambassadors at church," he said, smiling at the recollection as he leaned back in the leather couch of his spacious but simple office at the team's Valley Ranch complex.

He said his parents and grandparents guided him toward Christ, but it was ultimately his decision as a young man whether to accept Jesus as Lord and Savior.

"Through years of going to church and being involved in Bible studies and Sunday school, you hear a lot and you have to make a decision whether you believe it or not ... he said. "And once you believe it, you are going to live it. So what I learned from my dad was to make a decision, make the right decision, and live it."

He said his dad, Tom Gullety, who died last summer, taught him to do things the right way.

"Was he perfect? No. Am I perfect? No," Gullety said. "Nobody's perfect. I still struggle, just like he struggled, but he pointed me in the right direction and then said, 'Go on what you know.'"

Gullety says that he's done a lot of work for his son, 18-year-old Andrew, who will attend Elon College in North Carolina.

There are a few chuckles, but no more guests to the Sunday-morning service at God's Trucking Ministry, as drivers in Jessup, Ill. are to deliver the spiritual food these drivers have been wanting.

God's Trucking Ministry is a church that has been an odd reformed trailer, a franchise mission serving those who fall between the cracks. Outside, the church is a simple white delivery chrome and asphalt expanse of a T.A. Baltimore South, one of the largest truck stops on the East Coast.

Hundreds of truck engineers, sitting while delivery drivers wait to be served, turn the minute of prayer.

Inside, young men in suburban burrs and earnings bow their heads in prayer along with older men in overalls and jacket protectors. These truckers are strangers who share the same hour of life on the road in diesel-lined cabs, but they share moments of fellowship, an isolation and companionship.

Together they sing "Victory in Jesus" and "Stand Up, Stand Up for the Right." The hymns collected in school binders. They sing "Amen," as Hoppy urges them to grab their hats in prayer, then the "completion of the service" with the helmet of salvation and God's word. And they pray silently.

Trucking Ministry offers the long road to salvation

By Harold Smith, The Salt Lake Star

JESSUP, Md. — Chaplain Hoppy Hopkins glances up at the clock showing Jesus tenderly herding his sheep, then he faces his congregation. He'll like to see how many of the drivers arrive, he tells them. In the meantime, he offers up a few reflections on all of things, hoppy.

In his 40-plus years on the road, it seems, the chaplain has found nothing to compare with the steel-diner-sized bangers at White Castle.

"These little burger hamburgers are these little burger hamburgers from the heart."

"You've been there," says a man behind the lines. "I've even heard that they're a little better than White Castle."

There are a few chuckles, but no more guests to the Sunday-morning service at God's Trucking Ministry, as drivers in Jessup, Ill. are to deliver the spiritual food these drivers have been wanting.

ly for whatever it is they need to climb back into their cabs with a lighter spirit.

Once away from home for weeks at a time, under constant pressure to get their cargo delivered faster and cheaper, truck drivers can fall prey to alcohol, drugs and prostitutes, the chaplain says.

But over the past decade, Jesus has paroled a high profile at Jessup, Md. God's Trucking Ministry of Jessup served drivers from 48 states, seven Canadian provinces and Mexico.

God's Trucking Ministry Inc. consists primarily of volunteer preachers who visit truck stops in Frederick and Eagerstown, Md., and the Baltimore Travel Port, exit 57 of I-95. Hoppy sleeps on a fold-down bed in the same corner of the trailer where he keeps his collection of Bibles, his computer, his framed diploma from Liberty Home Bible Institute and his totes.

During his years as a trucker, Hoppy went through periods of going to church and periods of backsliding. When he left the road last year, he signed up for the two-year correspondence course from Liberty Home Bible Institute, part of Liberty University, Lynchburg, Va. He graduated with the Class of 1992 and got to shake Jerry Falwell's hand.

Still, few have their own full-time chaplain, especially one devoted enough to live in his chapel.

Chaplain Hoppy Hopkins is a solid minister of faith. Dressed in his uniform — a God's Trucking Ministry jacket and a Christian baseball cap — the 62-year-old minister is on hand day and night, doing whatever he can to shorten the distance between his fellow truckers and salvation.

He organizes three non-denominational "New Beginnings" Bible study each week. He writes letters to truckers who stop in the chapel and often drops a line to their wives. He researches and writes spiritual messages, replenishes the chapel's stock of Christian-pamphlets and tapes, puts together food packages for the homeless but surplus loads left on the chapel porch.

Two years ago, Hoppy says, God led him into permanent residence as senior chaplain at God's Trucking Ministry in Jessup. Last year, he was named pastor of Jessup served drivers from 48 states, seven Canadian provinces and Mexico.

RELIGION LETTER

Let's see if Smith, Young pass the test

According to the passage of scripture concerning Deuteronomy 18:21-22, false prophecies do it take to make a false prophet? The answer would be one.

Chapman

Continued from C1. Kayce Steger, Jessica James and Nicole Hadley. Five other students were injured. The 14-year-old suspect will be tried as an adult. He is charged with murder charges and is being held without bond.

Coach

Continued from C2. Carolina in the fall, and 22-year-old Tate, a junior at Auburn University. "They're both Christians and they're both heading in the right direction," he said. "I'm very proud of them."

Copy-D, False Prophecies

According to the LDS Bible, the Book of Jeremiah 23:30-40 related to the prophecies. Sweet Jesus Christ, who died on Calvary and really loves you, is praying for you. The LDS Bible says, "John," and Jesus Christ warned in Matthew 24:23-26, when Jesus Christ died on the cross, he was dying for you and so we could have a personal relationship with him. If you receive him by faith, you will have everlasting life with him

"I remembered the message I felt like I was supposed to share"

"I remember the message I felt like I was supposed to share — we grieve but not as those who have no hope," Chapman said. "Pain is a huge part of life ... that's what makes us long for heaven." Chapman captured the message in "Not Home Yet."

'Healing through love'

Clinic treats the poor for free

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) — The waiting room is the size of a walk-in-closet. The examining room is much bigger. But in Nancy McAvey's clinic, this medical clinic on McAvey is a godsend.

She and her three young children walked nearly two miles through Westminster to reach the Mission of Mercy van and its mostly volunteer staff of doctors, nurses and a dentist. With no health insurance and scant money from her husband's job as a laborer, McAvey is grateful for the free health care.

"We're just not without them," she said as dentist Daniel Stewart worked on her 8-year-old daughter's cracked front tooth.

Mission of Mercy, a nonprofit organization based in Emmitsburg since 1993, aims its primary medical care at the lost and lonely, the uninsured jobless and working poor, and those impoverished in spirit as well as funds.

Dr. Michael Sullivan, the only paid physician, sometimes prescribes prayers along with drugs. He and wife Gianna Talone-Sullivan, a Catholic pharmacist who says she found the mission on God's direct orders, believe in "healing through love," the mission's slogan.

"That is what makes us different from every other primary health care out there," said Sullivan, 47, formerly an internal medicine specialist with Pennsylvania-based Geisinger Health System. "We take our patients have lost their dignity, lost their self-respect. Far greater than anything we do for them medically and dentally is to make them feel they are worth something and that people care about them."

Dr. Michael Sullivan, right, finishes his examination of William Blaine inside the Mission of Mercy Mobile Medical Clinic in Westminster, Md., on Jan. 7. Dr. Sullivan and his wife, Gianna Talone-Sullivan, operate the non-profit service which provides medical care for the poor in three Maryland counties.

The traveling clinic, a 34-foot recreational vehicle, visits seven sites at least twice a month in Frederick, Carroll and Baltimore counties and Gettysburg, Pa. Last year, the mission launched similar services in Mesa and Phoenix, Ariz., where Talone-Sullivan lived before meeting her husband in 1992.

They also plan to create a home for HIV-positive single mothers and their children in Baltimore.

The Maryland van averages 70 patients a day, mostly by appointment made through the churches and social services offices that play host to Mission of Mercy. The staffers, many of them from the Baltimore area, run the clinic with practiced efficiency.

Individual donations of less than $5,000 cover about two-thirds of the service's costs of about $300,000 per year, executive director David Laidlaw said. Other funding comes from foundations, including the Foundation for Spiritualism in Medicine in Baltimore.

Religion isn't pressed on the patients but it is constantly on view aboard the van. There is a Virgin Mary statue on the dashboard, a portrait of her on one wall and a crucifix on another.

Restaurant owner serves food out of the Bible to your plate

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — You think you go to a lot of trouble tracking down just the right recipe and the freshest ingredients? Meet Moshe Basson. For culinary inspiration, the 47-year-old chef looks to the Bible, the Mishna and the Talmud. For salad greens, he heads into the fields around Jerusalem or the hills of Galilee. For some of his supplies, he seeks out a cadre of village women who bring fresh mushrooms, herbs and eggs to sell at the city walls where they come to pray.

Basson is the owner of the Eucalyptus Restaurant in the center of Jerusalem, a 70-seat operation that's become well known for what he calls "the food of the land of Israel."

Israeli cuisine is like a native-born Israeli, "a mix of everything — Polish, Sephardi, Arab," Basson says, referring to a sabra, "a mix of everything — Polish, Oriental, Moroccan."

— Moshe Basson.

attracts Israeli, general, Palestinian Arabs, Jews who have settled in the Arab territory, left-wing activists, the all shades of Israeli political opinion.

"People who theoretically hate each other," Basson says. "It's the only place they can find certain dishes and sometimes they eat together, without borders of religion, politics or nationality — even when I've seen them shaking their fists at each other on television a day earlier."

Hollywood begins to discover God, religion

Knight Ridder News Service

Not so long ago, God was like a guy without an agent, which is to say that as far as Hollywood was concerned, He didn't exist. Now, you can't find popcorn at the Mission of Mercy, a nonprofit organization that provides medical care for the poor in three Maryland counties.

From love stories to science-fiction speculators to cop movies to thriller stories to thrillers, God is everywhere.

Witness this exchange, from "City of Angels" (released on God Friday), between an angel (Nicolas Cage) and a physician (Meg Ryan) who does not believe in God.

"Then how do you explain it?"

"Explain what?" she replies.

"The enduring myth of heaven," she says.

Forget the enduring myth of heaven for a second. How do you explain this scene from "Fallen": In a dingy precinct house, two cops (Denzel Washington, John Goodman) share coffee, and

"What does it all mean? Why are we here?" wonders Washington, who played an angel just last year in "The Preacher's Wife."

He's leading up to the big question: "Do you believe in God?"

Nicolas Cage Meg Ryan

"The question surfaces at a key moment in 'Contact,' when would-be astronaut Jodie Foster is grilled by — of all people — a theologian, to determine whether she is fit for space travel.

There are literally dozens of other examples — two glossy movies about Buddhism and the Dalai Lama; the heinous 'Summer of '42' thriller 'Devil's Advocate.' The hard-parting angel comedy 'Michael,' the loopy New Age spirituality of 'Phenomenon.'

The independents have also seized upon weighty religious themes — a Hasidic woman has a crisis of faith in "A Woman Above Rubies." A Catholic boy embarks upon a mission to "find God" in the coming-of-age drama "Wide Awake." Now, from Europe, comes word that somebody is producing a screenplay written by the pope.

What in the name of heaven is going on?

"Perhaps it's become such a common thing at the end of the century, and people are looking at the big picture," observed Sam Behrman, a filmmaker who has written "Fallen," a movie about a killer who turns out to be an immortal demon.

Others point to simple demographics. The industry is run by baby boomers, and movies reflect their interests. In the '70s, they were preoccupied with having fun. In the '80s, they were preoccupied with making money. In the '90s, they are confronting mortality, and turning to spirituality.

Still others say Hollywood is simply doing what it has always done — finding new markets.

Robert DeNiro, a frequent writer/director/star of "The Apostle," said there is a significant moviegoing audience that wants to see religious movies.

"For Hollywood, it's an educational process that goes on. For a long while, we've seen religious people depicted mainly in one or two ways: as negative caricatures or as a bunch of hypocrites. People are starting to say, 'No, we're not going to have that.' And Hollywood is picking up on that," he said.

DeMunnicks has actively courted a Christian audience for some time. His latest movie, "Prince of Egypt," the story of Moses. DeMunnicks executive producer, DeMunnicks has arranged private screenings for Jerry Falwell and other fundamentalist leaders.

This is a marked change in attitude for the motion-picture business, which in the past has treated organized religion with suspicion, indifference or contempt.

BOOK "Sacred Circles: A Guide to Creating Your Own Women's Spirituality Group," by Robin Deen Carnes and Sally Craig (Hyperion/San Francisco, $16). In this book, Carnes and Craig offer nuts-and-bolts tips and worksheets combined with blunt advice on creating strong, effective women's spiritual groups. The guide is flexible enough to be used by a wide variety of groups, those with mainstream religious affiliations such as Christianity or Judaism, nature-based circles, using Native American customs, or "sacred circles" drawn from the traditions of Wicca or paganism. The first portion describes step-by-step guidelines for convening a circle, creating a successful first meeting, and other practical matters. The fascinating second-half ventures into the esoteric territory of the power of storytelling, reclaiming ritual amid the hubbub of everyday life,

Rabbis aim to free women trapped by ancient divorce law, critics see 'sin'

By Arlene Lavinson The Associated Press

NEW YORK — A few times each month in the borrowed meeting room of a Madison Avenue law firm, a small group of rabbis meets to commit women's liberation, Orthodox Jewish style, by dissolving marriages.

A Jewish woman appears before a three-member panel of Orthodox rabbis who convene as a religious court, or 'beit din,' in New York on April 22. The woman was appealing to the beit din to annul her marriage. The rabbis are, from left, Rabbi Moshe Morgenstern, Rabbi Emanuel Rackman and Rabbi Alan Schaffer.

... "It's sinful," said Rabbi Gedaliah Dov Schwartz of Chicago, chief presiding judge of the Rabbinical Court of America, the legal authority for the country's largest Orthodox organization. "If you break Jewish law, it's a sin."

... need, Rackman and allies say. The women who plead their cases are most often victims of physical, sexual or emotional abuse and greedy husbands. Typically, after a civil divorce, the former husband demands a huge sum of money or other concessions such as full child custody in exchange for a get.

... families rely on welfare, forbid den an intimate relationship with another man. Since the Madison Avenue court first convened in late 1996, more than 730 women have pleaded cases and most have received annulments, said Rabbi Moshe Morgenstern, an accountant by profession who does most of the court's legal research.

... As these rabbis interpret scripture, however, when a husband denies his wife a divorce, a beit din may annul the marriage. "We are liberating these wives," said Rabbi Emanuel Rackman, one of five rabbis who take turns on the three-man panel they call the Supreme Rabbinic Court of America.

... While most Orthodox rabbis dismiss the annulments as invalid, at least 25 rabbis in the United States and Israel recognize them and will perform marriages for the women.

... Some of the women who have been abandoned by their husbands, who found new mates and fathered children — legitimate under Jewish law — are getless women with large families.

Pageantry welcomes bishop coadjutor

NEW YORK — About 5,000 Episcopalians gathered at the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine for a colorful "candlelight vigil" to consecrate Mark S. Sisk as the next bishop for the New York diocese.

Clergy marched with candles and incense, and representatives of some of the diocese's 207 churches and 64,000 members carried banners through the cathedral to welcome him.

"You'll add your stamp to this diocese, as I've added mine," Grein told Sisk from the pulpit. "A bishop is given the great treasure and the great responsibility, and the task that is to be performed is to build it up, to nourish it, to keep it."

The Most Rev. Frank Tracy Griswold III, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States, joined about a dozen other bishops in the official consecration.

Sisk, elected to the position last October, was previously president and dean of Seabury-Western Theological Seminary in Evanston, Ill. The Episcopal Church, with 2.4 million members nationwide, is a member of the 22-nation Anglican Communion, whose spiritual leader is the archbishop of Canterbury in England.

Dioceses encourage men to join priesthood

PITTSBURGH — The Rev. David Bonnar was one of eight priests ordained by the Catholic diocese of Pittsburgh in 1988. This year there may be two; in 1999, there will be none, perhaps a first for this century.

But Pittsburgh, with 371 active priests compared with 467 just 10 years ago, isn't alone. Nationwide, for every 100 men enrolled in Catholic seminaries in 1965, there are only 40 today, said Donn Hoge, a sociology professor at the Catholic University of America in Washington.

And the Center for Applied Research in the Apostolate at Georgetown University reported that from 1970 to 1995, seminary enrollment in the United States dropped by half.

Hoge blamed the requirement of celibacy for the decline and estimated that enrollment would quadruple if priests were allowed to marry. Although Catholics believe that men are called to the priesthood by God, they're getting a little help from Bonnar. He's director of vocations for the diocese, responsible for recruiting candidates for the priesthood.

To that end, the diocese is emphasizing the responsibility of each parish to identify and encourage men to embrace the priesthood. Priests and seminarians visit schools and parishes to share their experiences. The diocese also is producing a video for men of high school and college age detailing the priestly life and what it would mean to have a pastoral letter later in the year on religious vocations.

Bonnar said he isn't panicking, even though Pittsburgh's 218 parishes "can always use more hands and more hearts."

"God has not stopped calling."

CONTEMPORARY CHRISTIAN CD REVIEWS

By Brent Castillo Knight Rider News Service

Delirious — "Cutting Edge" Label: Sparrow

Description: Delirious' delivers an inspirational message with an upbeat, light-rock sound. The songs in this two-CD collection are a mix between Top 40 and contemporary worship music. The lyrics are straightforward with a gospel theme. One of the best is the beautiful "Message of the Cross." "The cross was the shame of the world, but the glory of God for Jesus, you conquered sin and gave us new life."

Artist bio: The five members of Delirious' have been winning fans in the UK since 1996. The BBC's Mark Goodier dubbed them "The British rock secret." This is their first U.S. release.

What's good about it: Delirious' has a pleasing mix of catchy rhythms packed with a message of hope.

Various artists, "Rock of '80s," Vol. 1! Label: Star Song

Description: If there is anything worse than '80s glamour rock, it has to be '80s Christian glamour rock. This 14-song collection is laden with glitter-titten lyrics topped off with macho electric guitar licks and screechy-throated vocals. The exceptions are songs by Charlie Peacock, Da and the 77's. They have that mid-'80s new wave sound. It's enough to make you want to flip up your shirt collar.

Artist bio: Artists included on the album are Whitecourt, REZ, Allies, Stryper, Petra, DeGarmo & Key, Mylon & Broken Heart, Charlie Peacock, Geoff Moore and the Distance, Rick Cut, Shout, Da Whitecross and the 77's. "What's good about it: It makes you appreciate how far Christian music has come. In all fairness, this album may have sentimental value to those of us who were listening when there was no other choice in Christian rock."

Trappist Monks: Old tradition alive in Oregon

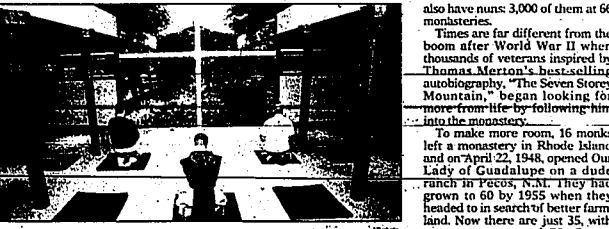

By Jeff Barnard The Associated Press

LAFAYETTE, Ore. — When Father Richard Layton struggles to live the 900-year-old Trappist ideal of silence, prayer and obedience, he finds inspiration outside the chapel in 12 graves marked by simple white crosses.

"These are the ones who stuck it out," says Layton, one of 35 monks of Our Lady of Guadalupe Trappist Monastery, secluded in the rolling hills of Oregon's wine country.

Still living by the Rule of Benedict, a way of monastic life in the Middle Ages, the monks rise before 4 a.m., dress in white robes with black scapulars, sing Psalms five times each day, and live a simple life apart from the bustle of the outside world.

"If you want to pray, if you want to have that 'angel kind' of offense of the divine," says Brother Patrick Corkean, "this is it." They are formally known as the Cistercians of the Strict Observance, a that group split from the Benedictines and founded an abbey in 1098 in Citeaux, France.

Brother Mark Fluit, center, leads retreatants Jamie Delikowick, left, and Barry Owens in meditation March 10 in Beantown House at the Our Lady of Guadalupe Trappist Monastery in Lafayette, Ore. Retreatants can spend several months living here with the monks to sample monastic life.

Their popular name, the Trappists, comes from the abbey, in La Trappe, France, where 17th century Abbot Armond-Jean Le Bouthillier de Rance restored rules of silence, prayer, manual labor and seclusion.

For all the saying power of the order, few feel called to this life nowadays. Each monk regularly wrestles with the question of whether this is the life God wants for him.

There are 4,000 monks at 96 monasteries around the world. Unlike other orders, the Trappists also have nuns, 3,000 of them at 66 monasteries.

Times are far different from the boom after World War II when, thousands of veterans inspired by Thomas Merton's best-selling autobiography, "The Seven Storey Mountain," began looking for more from life by following him into the monastery.

To make more room, 16 monks left a monastery in Rhode Island and on April 22, 1948, opened Our Lady of Guadalupe on a huge ranch in PEROU, N.M. They had grown to 60 by 1955 when they headed to in search of better farmland. Now there are just 35, with an average age of 70. Some, including a former laborer who married and raised a family, followed their spiritual journeys outside the cloister. Only two novices are working toward final vows, one of them 64 years old.

"What is helping me to stay in this interest in contemplative prayer," says Corkean, who entered a former laborer who with a master's degree in economics and now runs the monastery's fruitcake mail-order business.
