polls today as voters set up the November ballot.

State election officials were predicting a turnout of 27-percent — the second lowest for a May primary. But many political insiders feared it would approach, and possibly drop below, the 25 percent record low turnout of 1988. Turnout has averaged about 33 percent since the primary was moved to May in 1980.

County election officials said absentee voting has been extremely slow, and the National Weather Service said rain was expected throughout Tuesday across all of the state — both additional indicators of poor turnout.

Department center around a so-called monopoly that Microsoft allegedly holds with the computing industry. They holds that they are not anti-Microsoft, nor pro-Netscape, but simply have the bear interests of the consumer at heart. I loosely quote, I'm from the government and I'm here to help. Consumers choose Microsoft or they don't. By now the Department of Justice should have heard of Apple.

The debate centers on whether or not Microsoft can bindle its Internet browser with its operating system. Critics say the market share for Windows is so dominant that it would be unfair to allow Microsoft can be made its first and its own of the market share for Windows is so dominant that it would be unfair to allow Microsoft when the same opportunity. Baloney, Netscape gives its browser when other the same opportunity. Baloney, Netscape gives its browser early, too, and can make its own agreements with hardware manufacturers to include it on new computers as well. Sure, Microsoft may be at an advantage, but is it really an unfair advantage? Remember how Windows used to be separate from DOS, but they've since marged into one operating system? It's apparent that a windowing operating system? It is easier to use for the end user, so Microsoft integrated that the promser interface (apain, not Microsoft's innovation) can make both the computer and the Internet more accessible, so Microsoft has simply chosen to take their windowing operating custem?

Microsoft has simply chosen to take their windowing operating system one more step down the road; this is an integration of two discrete technologies into one. I suppose the next step is to regulate which screen savers are part of the operating system.

While it may be unnerving to see Microsoft's market share grow, remember that Bill Gates is still in charge. Bill is known for his coarse competitive nature; but there's no way he would risk the divestiture of Microsoft for the sake of winning a game that he's already won. I predict that the tarapyers of this country will end up paying many millions of dollars in court costs, along with increased software prices as we also indirectly pay Microsoft's legal bills.

Gibson said the cognitive self-change class evolved from "Thinking Errors Groups" held at Idaho's medium security prison in Boise. Administrators noticed that teaching criminals how to adjust their beliefs and artitudes worked. They devoted a tier at the prison to the program. The "Thinking Errors" program takes two years to combe prison, the said.

The classes Gibson teaches in Twin Falls to probationers and parolees are structured in three phases which are taught concur

2. Group work for six months to. one year. Probationers work on weekly "thinking reports" and discuss them with each other.

3. One year working on a relapse prevention packet. This packet consists of the tools the probationer needs to stay out of trouble.

The casses are standardized and when probationers or parolees relocate, they can pick up where they left off:

Last Tuesday evening, 18 adults – 16 men and two women-attended the class. Ages ranged from early 20s to well over 50:

The "zero state" is the center of the cycle, Gibson said. This state involves feelings of absolute worthlessness, feelings which drive negative behaviors.

As students learn to recognize their feelings and respond differently to them by thinking about possible consequences, there positive directions. "Should you work to change yourselves?" Gibson asked the class. "Do you like being on probation? Do you want to be on probation again?" "I want my rights back," said man at the back of the room. Gibson told the class to work at "thinking about thinking." Their homework assignment for the describing their encounters with anger, fear, playing the victim, loaning and the "zero state."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE*

e is less harm to be suffered ing mad among madmen in being some all by oneself.

— Denis Didero

"Those duplicate players are all mad," exclaimed a rubber-bridge player. After hearing cray hidding, followed by crazier play, I left hurriedly." he continued. I didn't want to be made the asylum when they locked the doors."

asylum when they locked the doors asylum when they locked the doors beated hidding for the duplicate partscore. South crowded to the limit and East doubled hoping to reduce ruffs. West led a trump; it was a miscue. After a minor-suit lead, accurate defense would have scored two tricks in each side-suit for two down.

South took East's trump queen and immediately led a bear, dummy's king going to East's acc when West spilt his homors. Past when West spilt his homors. Past when West Spilt his homors when the spilling to lead a second heart went hoped up in penic and led a club but the defense was finished. East took two clubs, but when he shifted to diamonds, South won his ace and crossed to himmy's high trump. South then claimed, two diamond losers going on diamon's high trump. South then claimed, two diamon's losers going on diamon's beauts.

To a rubber-bridge player.

ace and crossed to dummy's high trump. South then claimed, two diamond losers going on dummy's hearts.

To a rubber-bridge player. South's push and East's double were pure limiter, West's errain and his later play was a blumder.

It was correct for West to split his heart homore on South's first heart lead. However, be should have ducked bravely when South neart read, in owever, he should have ducked bravely when South led a second heart toward dummy's 10-5. West's duck concedes a heart to dummy's nine; in return, East gets two diamonds to salvage a one-trick set.

Jazz relax, await outcome of Eastern final

SALT LAKE CITY - Let the Chicago Bulls and the Indiana Pacers run them-selves into a state of exhaustion. The Utah Jazz have a more productive way to pass the time.

Taking tireasy.

On Montlay, while the Bulls and Pacers were sweating out Game 4 of the Eastern Conference finals, the Jazz spent the afternoon relaxing, barbecuing and watching the game on television.

Unth will meet the winner of the series in the NBA Finals, beginning Sunday if the Bulls win in five games or beginning June 4 if they don't.

In either case, the Jazz will be given ample time to heal their assorted strains and pains acquired during the 96 regular-season and playoff games.

Karl Malone has played most of the season with an injured finger tendon in his shooting hand, and he appeared to rejam the finger in the second quarter Sunday.

Sunday.

Still, Malone hit six straight free throws in the second half and seemed unaffected by the overrised bandage on his finger. Malone also had extra incentive to finish the conference finals early. His wife, Kay, is due to deliver the couple's fourth child any day.

"When all going to be fine once we gethome and get back to work," Malone said. "We've been saying all along that we're not satisfied just to get to here." Hornacek, Unah's second-leading scorer during the regular season, was ineffective against the Lakers, and on Sunday he revealed how much he has been bothered by a strained left Achille's tendon. "I really haven't wanted to bring it up, but it's been hard to push off my legs on shots," said Hornacek, who did mange to score 15 points in Game 4. Sampras has, dominated tennis, the past five years with powerful serves and sharp volleys. But those elements are least effective on clay, where stamina and persistence reign.

He has won 10 Grand Slam titles, but has never made it past the semifinals of the French Open, where he is seeded No. 1 year after year, but often loses to much lower-marked players.

On Monday, against a player who won a clay-tour event last month in Barcelona, Spain, the top-seeded Sampras Sammed serves at up to 27 pagh and refused to sacrifice his volley.

Sampras slammed serves at up to 127 mph and reixed to sacrifice his volleying game.

"It's my only choice, to try to play the way I play on hard courts," he said. "Im not going to stay back and win this tournament. I know that I need to come in.

Miller's jumper sinks Bulls; Indiana, Chicago tied at 2

InDIANAPOLIS - Miller Time came with U7 seconds left, and Michael Jordan couldn't march him a half-second later.

Reggie Miller had yet another moment of playoff greatness Monday, making a 3-pointer with less than a second remaining to give the Indiana Pacers a $5-94 victory over the Chicago Bulls, tying the Eastern Conference finals at two games spiece. Jordan had a chance to one-up Miller, but his 26-toxer just before the burger hit the backboard, rolled around the rim and spin out, sending Market Square Arona into p pandemosti.

Samoras toos for now

One of four players — Pete Sampras, Petr Korda, Marcelo Rios and Patrick Rafter — will leave Paris ranked No. 1 in the world when the French Open winds up its two-week run. Sampras would retain his top ranking if Korda and Rios fail to reach the semifinals and Rafter reach the semifinals and Rafter does not win the title. A Korda-Rios final could be for No. L.

Success credited

When Amelie Mauresmo of France became the first qualifier to reach a Corel WTA Tour Tier One final, she credited her success to Yannick Noah's winning the French Open 15 years ago. The French Open Jumor champion two years ago, when she was named the world junior champion. Mauresmo said she saw Noah's victory on TV and decided then at age 4, to play tennis.
