Shooting victim was TF native

Friends, family remember at Oregon memorial service

The Times-News and Associated Press

TWIN FALLS - The slain father of a boy charged in connection with a May 20 school shooting rampage in Springfield, Ore., was born in Twin Falls.

People packed the Springfield High School gymnasium Friday night in a celebration of life of William and Faith Kinkel, two popular language teachers who were shot to death in their home.

Their 15-year-old son, Kipland P. Kinkel, is accused of killing them in the early evening hours of May 20, the night before the shooting that killed two and injured 22 at Thurston High School.

The Kinkels' 21-year-old daughter, Kristin, seemed to fight back tears as she thanked the crowd for attending. "Wow. Thank-you so much. I want to thank all of you for joining us tonight in the celebration of life of my mom and dad," she said. "I use the term celebration of life because I believe that is what they would have wanted."
William Kinkel was born Oct. 29,

1938, in Twin Falls to William and Mary Katherine "Katie" Kinkel, said an obituary from Englands Memorial Chapel in Eugene, Ore.

Bill Kinkel's mother resides in Eugene, the obituary said. No information in the obituary indicated when Kinkel might have left Idaho.

He graduated from Linfield College in 1961 and received a master's degree in education from the University of Idaho.

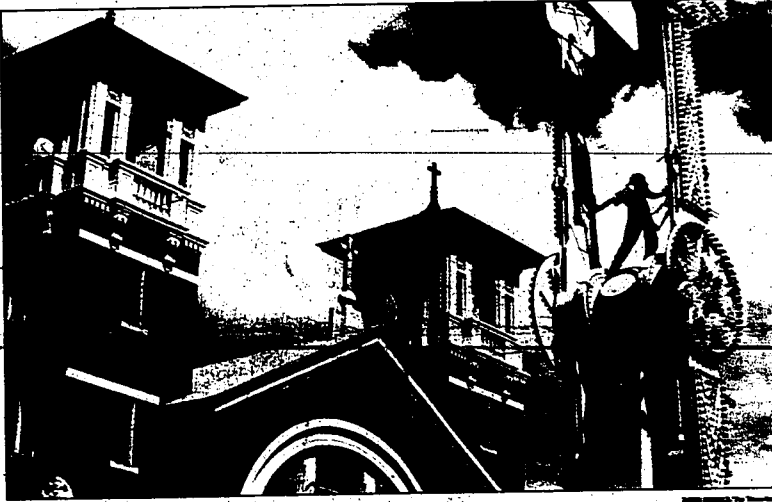

William Kinkel's wife, Faith, 57, was born in Cleveland, and is survived by three sisters and her daughter, Kristin.

About 200 relatives and friends attended a private service Wednesday afternoon at the chapel.

Parade, City Park fun means alternate routes for motorists

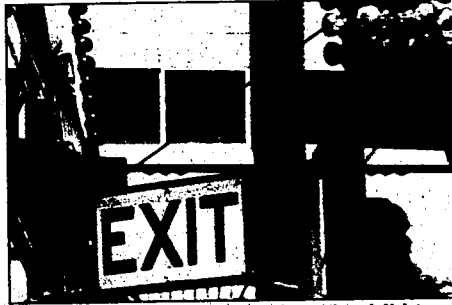

By Brian Haynes
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The Western Days Parade today promises fun for spectators and participants, but it could bring headaches for Twin Falls motorists.

The parade route down Blue Lakes Boulevard North and Sheehon Street will be closed to traffic during the parade, allowing no cars can cross the streets from 11:30 a.m. until the parade ends at around 3 p.m.

"If you get caught at one of those intersections, you might

Pakistan, India trim rhetoric

Both countries say they'll guard against arms race

The Associated Press

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan - Their tit-for-tat nuclear test blows accomplished, rival Pakistan and India chafed instead with words of peace Friday. Pakistan proposed they both sign the nuclear nonproliferation treaty and India suggested a mutual pledge not to strike first.

Neither proposal seemed likely to bear fruit quickly, but the overtures showed both countries were anxious to assure the world that they were not sliding toward nuclear war.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Pakistani Foreign Minister Gohar Ayub said Pakistan would sign the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty if India also does. India has long opposed the treaty.

He also vowed to retaliate "with vengeance and devastating effect" against any attack by India.

"We see a nuclear power," he said. "We have our own missile program."
Pakistan exploded what it said were five nuclear devices Thursday in response to India's nuclear test earlier this month.

Woman sues, saying Viagra pill broke up her relationship

The Associated Press

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. - An hour after Barbara Becker's longtime partner drowned Wednesday, she sued in state court, long overdue sex. Within two days, he was gone - on the prowl, she says, for more conquests.

Now she's suing him for $2 million in damages, and her lawyer says the lawsuit should come with a warning.

"He's dating lots of women," Dominic Barbara said. "He now thinks he is a young man in the body of a 70-year man. The man even had a quadruple bypass last week for God's sake."

It's exactly the kind of trouble some columnists and sex experts have been predicting ever since Viagra hit the market seven weeks ago. With instant men, indiscreetly reared, infidelity was sure to follow, they said.

The drug's maker, meanwhile, has found

Barry Goldwater, icon of conservatism, dies

The Associated Press

PHOENIX - Barry Goldwater, the sharp-tongued, uncompromising defender of conservatism whose fierce but futile campaign for the presidency in 1964 began the philosophical reshaping of the Republican Party, died today at age 89.

Goldwater died at his suburban Paradise Valley home of natural causes.

"He was in his own bed, in his own room, as he wished, overlooking the valley he loved with family at his side," the family said in a statement. "He died as he lived: with dignity, courage and humility."

"He is soaring," Goldwater's wife, Susan, told KPAR Radio.
Goldwater suffered a stroke in 1996 that "He was truly an American original. I never knew anyone quite like him."

-President Clinton

damaged the frontal lobe of his brain, which controls memory and personality. Last September, his family said Goldwater was in the early stages of Alzheimer's disease.

In recent months, he made no public appearances.
"He was truly an American original. I never knew anyone quite like him," President Clinton said shortly after the death was announced. He called Goldwater "a great spirit and a truly fine human being."

"America - the only nation ever founded in the name of liberty - never had a more brilliant champion of liberty" than Barry Goldwater," said Sen. John McCain, the Republican who replaced Goldwater in the Senate in 1967. "Simply put, Barry Goldwater was in love with freedom."

Goldwater was a tough-talking Westerner, a cowboy who never lost all the rough edges despite three decades of Washington politics. It was, in fact, the rough edges that were his most endearing and sometimes infuriating qualities.

He flew planes and climbed mountains. He would take a drink and could sell a joke. His language was sometimes coarse, but what he meant was precise. See WAGNER, Page A2

Twin Falls police and sheriff's deputies will close event intersection from Pole Line Road at the parade's start to Sixth Avenue South at the parade's end, Pullin said.

The only route for east-west travel will be at Sixth Avenue South.

No cars will be allowed through the barricades until the parade is through, and any driver that makes it on the parade route can be cited, he said.

This year's parade will be the biggest ever, National Guard Sgt. John Lerbach said. Lerbach, who coordinates the annual parade, accepted 146 entries this year, up from last year's 130. The year before that, fewer than 100 entries participated.

The cutoff for entries was May 18, but Lerbach said he accepted more after that because he didn't want to deny anyone who wanted to participate. "I figure the bigger the bet-

ACROSS THE NATION

IdahoWest: A low pressure system over northern California pushed moisture into Idaho Friday. Sky conditions ranged from mostly sunny to cloudy.

Fair and dry weather was dominant in much of the Southwest and Rockies. Low pressure spinning over northern California continued to bring showers from Washington into areas north of San Francisco. Most of the rain was light but some moderate showers fell in northwestern Oregon and across the northern Sacramento Valley.

East: A cold front stretching from Maine to the Plains brought severe thunderstorms to western New York and Vermont. The storms were expected to spread into New Hampshire and Missouri. Showers and thunderstorms also reached into Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee. Thunderstorms and 60 mph winds also hit Michigan, where some 90,000 homes and businesses were without power at one point during the day.

Cop killed; search on

CORTEZ, Colo. (AP) — A police officer was shot to death as he was in his patrol car during a traffic stop Friday, opening a chase that carried into the rugged desert canyons near the Colorado-Utah border.

Officer Dale Claxton, 45, was killed about 9:45 a.m. after pulling over a 1988 truck that had been reported stolen out of La Plata County, east of Cortez, police Chief Roy Lane said. "As he attempted to stop the vehicle, the suspect opened fire on his patrol vehicle. He was killed instantly at the scene," Lane said. "The vehicle fled from there."

Despite several roadblocks, the three suspects, clad in camouflage, managed to elude authorities as they drove northwest on U.S. 666 into sparsely populated landscape of pinon pine and juniper trees.

Court keeps anti-abortion law intact

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A federal appeals court on Friday denied a request to delay a Wisconsin law that requires women to wait 24 hours before having abortions.

The ruling by the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago allows the measure to take effect Sunday, more than two years after it was signed into law by Gov. Tommy Thompson.

Besides the minimum 24-hour wait after a woman speaks with a physician, the law requires providing her with information published by the state that describes fetal development and alternatives to abortion. Exceptions are in cases of rape and incest.

Arat Stess makes his feelings known in the Kramerbooks & Afterwords store Friday in Washington. The store is currently engaged in a fight with the Kenneth Starr investigation over whether or not to release a list of Monica Lewinsky's book purchases. Kramerbooks & Afterwords plans to defend readers' right to privacy in federal court, claiming it falls under First Amendment rights.

Bookstore says no to subpoena

WASHINGTON (AP) — To the surprise of customers, Bill Kramer stood in the bookstore-entery he opened 22 years ago and announced he would fight Kenneth Starr's subpoena for Monica Lewinsky's book purchases.

The independent counsel's request has touched a nerve in this city, where librarians picketed Kramer's store after his first reaction indicated — incorrectly, he says — that he would not resist the subpoena.

"We educated ourselves on these issues after that first week," Kramer said.

But a sympathetic First Amendment lawyer says he doubts the bookstore has legal grounds for resistance.

"My gut feeling is that bookstores are not in a good position," said Steven Shiffrin, a Cornell University law professor.

He noted that in decisions since the 1970s the Supreme Court "has allowed police and prosecutors without a search warrant, without a subpoena, to go through your trash, to get your mailman to look at outgoing and incoming mail, to get the bank to give up your credit records, get the telephone company to give up a list of calls you receive or make. A bookstore would so far as the law is concerned." Starr, investigating whether President Clinton engaged in sexual activity with Ms. Lewinsky, and then asked her to be about it, has been trying to reconstruct all her activities.

According to sources familiar with the investigation, Ms. Lewinsky received a copy of Walt Whitman's classic poem, "Leaves of Grass," from Clinton, and prosecutors are trying to determine if her own purchases included Nicholas Baker's steamy novel about phone sex, "Vix."

Feds seize endangered animals, bust smugglers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of rare parrots and monkeys, a Mexican lynx and a mountain lion have been rescued in the breakup of a major exotic wildlife smuggling operation, federal authorities announced Friday.

Arrests or indictments of eight people in Colorado, Missouri, Tennessee and Texas on Thursday dismantled one of the largest such operations ever uncovered in the United States, a Customs Service official said. The names of those arrested were not given in the initial announcement.

The arrests followed a three-year undercover operation in the United States and several other countries. In all, more than 40 people have been arrested or indicted and more are expected, the Customs Service announced.

Bob Hope marks 95th birthday without usual hoopla

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In his later career, Bob Hope celebrated significant birthdays with television extravaganzas. Not this time.

By the weight of his years, the comedian planned to mark his 95th birthday Friday night with a quiet dinner at his Toloka Lake estate.

"We'll have some family and a few friends at the house," said Dolores Hope, his wife for 64 years. "Our grandson Andrew will probably barbecue some lamb. Bob loves lamb."

On Saturday morning, the Hope, will be grand marshals in a parade marking the 75th anniversary of Toloka Lake, a wealthy enclave in the Sacramento Valley.

On a visit to Washington last week, the British-born Hope was given an honorary knighthood, presented by Ambassador Christopher Meyer on behalf of Queen Elizabeth II.

But he canceled soon when he skipped a dinner marking the donation to the Library of Congress of the personal papers, jokes, film photographs and other memorabilia from his 70-year career.

Hartmans' image masks anger

Public eye never saw emotional, addicted woman

LOS ANGELES (AP) — To many of their friends and relatives, comic Phil Hartman and his wife appeared to be a happy, contented couple. Few knew of her emotional demons, her angry outbursts and battles with addiction, until she killed them both.

Brynn Hartman was a devoted wife and mother of two small children, a "wonderful, upbeat person," said Joel Diamond, a record producer and longtime friend of the couple who had once dated Mrs. Hartman.

But his wife, Andrea Diamond, said there were signs of trouble. "Brynn had called me a few times. She said she wanted to talk and she sounded like she had a lot on her mind," Mrs. Diamond told station KCAL-TV on Friday.

"I know that she wrestled with some addictions," Mrs. Diamond said. "At first it seemed that she was doing OK with it. She was struggling with this and I suspected that she was winning the war and so I didn't want to talk about it unless she wanted to talk about it."

Others were aware of turmoil in the Hartman home. "She had trouble controlling her anger," Steve Small, an attorney who handled Hartman's 1985 divorce and stayed in touch with the actor, told the Los Angeles Times.

The got attention because her temper," said Small, adding that the two had separated more than once. "Phil said he had to ... restrain her at times."

Mrs. Hartman, 40, apparently shot her husband Thursday morning in the family's Encino home, then shot herself as officers arrived to investigate.

Police were rushing the couple's children, 6-year-old Basher and her 9-year-old brother Sean, out of the house when they heard a single gunshot. They found Mrs. Hartman's body near that of her husband.

Autopsies Friday showed that Hartman died of several gunshot wounds to the head, while his wife died of a single, self-inflicted shot to the head, coroner's spokesman Scott Carrier said.

Test results for drugs and alcohol were not expected for a week to 10 days, Carrier said. Police wouldn't comment Friday.

Relatives of the couple released a statement Friday dismissing "unfounded speculations offered in the media" as unfounded and said the family was united in their sorrow.

"Phil and Brynn were a loving couple, devoted to each other and their children," the statement said. "This tragedy is not indicative of who she was or who they were together."

Friends and professional acquaintances, however, were telling a different story, saying Mrs. Hartman had been battling drugs and alcohol and Hartman had been unfaithful.

One unidentified family friend told the Daily News of Los Angeles that Mrs. Hartman had recently begun using cocaine again, after being in rehab five months ago, while an unidentified NBC publicist who knew the actor said he was involved with another woman and wanted to end his marriage.

A friend of Mrs. Hartman's, Barbara Field, told the TV show "Hard Copy" that Brynn "buried her pain by drinking." "Her marriage was in trouble. It had been for some time," she said. "There were many moments in her life when she was feeling desperate."

Many others, though, saw Hartman only as a successful actor enjoying a contented family life. "I have a plane. I have a boat. I have a great house. I have a great family. In fact I have everything I ever wanted," Hartman recently told film director Joe Dante, Dante said. "It feels great."

Dante was directing Hartman in the movie "Small Soldiers." Hartman, 49, won fame with his impersonations of President Clinton, Frank Sinatra and other celebrities on "Saturday Night Live." and later played a radio anchor on NBC's "NewsRadio." He also contributed voices to "The Simpsons" animated series and did several commercials.

Law enforcement officials investigate the area around the site of an explosion in a garage that killed one man in Danville, Ill., Thursday.

Police find 2nd destructive device in Danville yard

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Police said Friday they found a second destructive device in the yard of a troubled man killed by an explosion before he could be questioned in a church bombing. Investigators would not describe the package discovered outside the home of Richard Dean White or what caused the explosion that killed him in his garage Thursday afternoon. The second device was destroyed. Authorities also were trying to gather details of White's life, describing him as an eccentric figure who lived with his mother. The Army veteran was in and out of mental wards and veterans hospitals several times, said state police spokesman Mark McDonald.

The bearded, 300-pound White, also known as Richard D. Shotts, was killed as FBI agents were on their way to question him about the bombing Sunday at the First Assembly of God Church in Danville. That blast injured 33 people.

It was the second at a Vermilion County church in less than six months. The earlier bombing, Dec. 30 outside the Oakwood United Methodist Church in nearby Oakwood, killed a church volunteer who moved a package containing the bomb.

Prosecutors drop conspiracy charges against teen students

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — Federal prosecutors dropped conspiracy charges Friday against two high-school seniors accused of plotting to blow up their graduation ceremony.

U.S. Attorney William Wilmoth said only that there were "new developments" in the case. But a lawyer for the teens said that a lawyer for the teens said that charges resulted from a misunderstanding and that the two were victims of school-violence "hysteria" in the wake of the Springfield, Ore., shootings.

Jeremy Dotson and Jesse Shingleton, both 18, were arrested and jailed shortly before graduation ceremonies were to take place Sunday at St. Marys High School.

"Apparently, Mr. Shingleton made some sort of remark about graduation, a reference to it being 'hot,' which could mean anything," defense attorney Bill Kiger said. "Somebody took that out of context or made a mountain out of a molehill and there was a lot of unnecessary hysteria. These boys couldn't have made a bomb if they wanted to."

Word of the alleged plot prompted school officials to postpone the graduation to Thursday. Dotson and Shingleton missed the ceremony, spending five days in jail until their release Friday.

Former boyfriend shoots teacher

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A former boyfriend fatally shot a 26-year-old teacher in a high school parking lot Friday morning, then killed himself.

Police said Michael Grammig, 30, had been waiting for Nicole Weiser to arrive in Sunnahan High School's staff parking lot. Minutes before the shooting began, he walked up to her open door and shot her in the head as she tried to escape through the passenger door. Four bullet casings from a 9 mm handgun were found near the car.

"People need to know this is not an Oregon repeat," said Broward County school spokeswoman Sisly Walsh, referring to last week's shooting that left two students dead in Springfield, Ore.

"It was simply something that spilled over from someone's personal life."

Man pleads guilty to burning, beheading, maintains innocence

INDEPENDENCE, Va. (AP) — A white man pleaded guilty and was sentenced to life in prison Friday for burning a black man alive and cutting his head off with a dull ax.

Louis Ceparano

Louis Ceparano, 43, entered the plea even though he insisted he did not commit the crime. He said prosecutors had enough evidence to convict him and he wanted to avoid the death penalty.

Addressing the family of the victim, 40-year-old Garnett P. Johnson Jr., Ceparano said in a low voice: "G.P. was my friend. I didn't do it."

Ceparano received two consecutive life sentences without the possibility of parole.

Ceparano is one of two white men accused of soaking Johnson with gasoline after an all-night drinking party on July 25, burning him alive and chopping the head off the charred corpse.

Emmett Cressell Jr., 37, is charged with murder and scheduled for trial in July. He could get life in prison. He was cooperating with prosecutors against Ceparano; Ceparano has now agreed to testify against Cressell.

Witnesses testified that Johnson was subjected to threats and racial slurs before he was taken outside Ceparano's trailer and killed.

The slaying angered civil rights groups nationwide and rocked Grayson County, where 500 of the 16,500 residents are black.

Attorney General Janet Reno ordered the Justice Department to investigate whether the slaying was a racial hate crime.

Black judges withdraw Thomas invite

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Executives of the nation's largest organization of black attorneys have voted to revoke an invitation to Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas to address the group's annual convention, the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch reported Friday.

A member of the National Bar Association's Judicial Council told the newspaper that Thomas' invitation to speak at a July 29 luncheon in Memphis had been revoked Wednesday. The council is part of the 17,000-member association.

The council member, who was identified by the paper, said the vote was "overwhelmingly in support of the motion to rescind." The association also opposed Thomas' appointment in 1991 to the Supreme Court.

The snub follows intense debate and lobbying within the association. Since his appointment, Thomas' opinions have been largely criticized by many blacks. The invitation to Thomas was extended in January by Louisiana Supreme Court Justice Bernette Johnson, the council's chairwoman.

Goldwater

said was seldom misunderstood.

Goldwater called Richard M. Nixon "the world's biggest liar." When Ronald Reagan claimed he didn't know about the diversion of Iranian arms profits to the Iran-Contra scandal, he was "either a liar or incompetent." And Jerry Falwell, leader of the Christian right, deserved "a boot ... right in the ass" for attempting to fast his religious values upon the Republican political agenda.

In 1974, he was one of a handful of GOP leaders who went to the White House and bluntly informed Nixon that he would be impeached if he did not resign.

Goldwater captured the 1964 presidential nomination after a bruising convention fight with New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. He lost the presidency in an equally bloody campaign against Lyndon B. Johnson, who rose to the White House the previous year after President Kennedy's assassination.

Goldwater wrapped up the nomination when he invited Rockefeller and his moderate Republican partisans to "take a walk" and they did. He then galvanized the remaining delegates with a Patrick Henry-like proclamation: "Extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice ... Moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue."

Democrats seized that comment, as well as Goldwater's hawkish views on Vietnam, where U.S. military involvement was escalating by the month. He was portrayed as a potential destroyer of Social Security and a nuclear warmonger; one famous commercial juxtaposed a little girl picking a daisy and a mushroom cloud.

Johnson wound up winning more than 61 percent of the vote and 486 electoral votes to Goldwater's 38.5 percent and 52 electoral votes.

Goldwater's political career began in 1949 when he helped found a slate of Phoenix City Council candidates who aimed to clean up widespread prostitution and gambling.

He burst upon the national scene in 1952, when he rode Dwight Eisenhower's landslide to an upset 6,000-vote victory over Democratic Sen. Ernest McFarland, then the majority leader. His victory margin swelled to 30,000 votes six years later.

Blunt Goldwater: Foretold rise of GOP right

By Walter R. Meers
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Barry Goldwater was cantankerously cordial, politically candid-to-the-dismay of would-be image makers, blunt, sometimes blundering. But the clarion conservatism of his landslide defeat for the White House 34 years ago foretold the rise of the Republican right.

No political handler could tame him; he wouldn't be managed.

Not when he ran for president in 1964, not when he returned to the Senate four years after his defeat, not when he broke with Republican orthodoxy in retirement, to the point of endorsing an Arizona Democrat for Congress.

"I just sit out here and say to hell with them," he told a visitor to his hillside home overlooking Phoenix.

His was the last of the free-form campaigns for the White House. There were no outsiders, no consultants in an inner circle reserved for friends and conservative believers.

No Secret Service phalanx to prepare and guard his way.

No strategy beyond capturing the Republican nomination.

And no real chance of taking the White House away from Lyndon B. Johnson, only a year after the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

Indeed, Goldwater said he lost his enthusiasm for the 1964 campaign with the killing of Kennedy. But he ran hard, to validate the message he'd bluntly given conservatives four years before: grow up, wait and one day they'd take back the party.

So he trumpeted his themes, sounded belligerent — he once talked of lobbing a bomb into the men's room at the Kremlin — and then bristled when foes called him too trigger-happy to trust with the nuclear button.

He said Social Security should be voluntary, a primitive version of the privatizing proposals now on the Washington agenda. He was scorned for saying that some cost more than income taxes in most American households. The day came.

His campaign aides and volunteers became the GOP conservative leaders of a later generation. Ronald Reagan's first national political venture was in a televised fund-raising speech for Goldwater.

But the current Christian right was not to Goldwater's liking. He had no use for its doctrinaire style. In the end, he was a libertarian, for abortion rights, for gay rights — a Goldwater grandson is homosexual.

Goldwater served five terms in the Senate from Arizona, with time out for the presidential campaign that made his name and honornamed visage nationally known.

The bristling image didn't match the private man. He'd denounce all those liberal reporters, and then have dinner with them and say it was nothing personal.

At lunch there one day in 1964, three guests — all reporters heard gunfire. Goldwater's first wife, Peggy, who died in 1985, was exasperated. Don't worry, she said, it's just Barry shooting at the bullet trap in the drive.

He was, with another reporter at his side. He said he sometimes missed and hit the back of the church across the valley, but never on Sunday.

As a presidential campaigner, Goldwater said he got bored listening to himself give the same speech over and over again, so he changed it. And more than once stumbled into political traps and gave the Democrats grist against him.

The Secret Service delivered more than protection to later candidates; the motorcades were organized, the routes checked in advance. Not in the Goldwater campaign. One night in Phoenix, a fed-up volunteer led the whole entourage, press buses and all, up the narrow road to Goldwater's house. The only way out was to back up in the dark. Which the motorcade did.

The real competition that year was for the nomination, Republican right versus

The only meaningful presidential primary Goldwater won was in California, and that narrowly. He then went to the San Francisco convention with the votes to win, and willed away the days by slipping away to pilot a light plane over the city, buzzing the Cow Palace, he said later.

He picked a little-known congressman, William Miller, for his running mate because, he said, the guy got under Johnson's skin. He defied conventional convention wisdom by telling the Republicans who opposed him that unless they agreed with his cause, he didn't need them, and he said, famously, that extremism in the defense of liberty was no vice.

He lost by 16 million votes, carried six states.

In 1968, he returned to the Senate, and served later as chairman of the Armed Services Committee, overseeing an overhaul of the military command structure. He'd gone to a military school, he'd been a World War II pilot, he became an Air Force reserve general. After his Senate retirement, he received the Pentagon's distinguished service medal, choking back tears.

He'd shed none for losing the White House. He went for a walk in the desert, and then he went home.

Goldwater had occasionally taken the controls of the Boeing 727 chartered for his campaign, although it broke all the rules. They were really fractured when the pilot let him share the controls for the final landing in Washington.

"How'd you like that landing?" he asked a newsmen after the job-bound to a ball.

"Which one, the first, second or third?" the reporter countered.

"Sawafabitch," Goldwater growled, and laughed.

Johnny Horizon Day organizers express appreciation

To all those volunteers, old and young from all walks of life, who cleaned our county roads on "Johnny Horizon Day." You deserve a big thank you for a job well done. All of you must realize that again our byways are clean. A cleaning job that our local highway districts do not even begin to have the time and/or manpower to accomplish.

Then, of course, was the wonderful dedication of the area coordinators who oversaw the cleaning efforts; and thank you to the mayors of each city (area) who stood behind your coordinators. Most remarkable was the willingness of each and every group that was called on to participate. They were all enthusiastic about his project, and the frosting on the cake was the good weather or we experienced.

cleanup. The 29th year has past, and our 30th is May 1, 1999. See you then. P.S. To the same company, highway districts and all the others who furnished trucks, trailers and cars to transport the waste. Thank you.

FRIENDLY COMPETITION

Forklift drivers enter annual rodeo

The Third Annual Forklift Rodeo was held recently at Boise Cascade Corp. The event was sponsored by Western States Equipment from Pocatello and Twin Falls.

Twenty-eight forklift operators from Caldwell, Heyburn and Aberdeen represented the J.R. Simplot Co., and 17 operators from Salt Lake City, Park, Wallula, Wash. and Burley represented Boise Cascade.

Nearly 250 people attended the event which included a truck test, dummies Vince and Larry, a coloring contest, a live train broadcast by Kat Canyon, pizza from Alf Pans and balloons. Operators were judged on a written test of general knowledge, an energy systems quiz, a precision check-out performed on the driven forklift and a driving test. Safety penalty points were added accordingly.

Simple employee winners included Paul Haskell, of Heyburn in third place with 305 points operating an electric machine.

Boise Cascade winners were Rob Clark of Burley in first place with 339 points on a propane forklift, Tom Quinley of Burley with 283 points operating an LP truck and Nate Warren of Albion in third place with 241 points on a propane-mounted forklift.

The first-place winners take a traveling trailer to their respective facilities until the competition next year. All winners received a personal trophy and pizza.

The first rodeo was held in 1996 at Simplot's in Aberdeen when employees wanted a change of training venue for OSHA required forklift training. A course was set in the back lot and each participant was graded on safety, skill and speed in completing the course. Supplier development invited Boise Cascade to participate in 1997. Boise Cascade salesman Bob Jacobs volunteered to host the event at the Burley facility.

The Boise Committee's mission is to promote training, safety awareness and develop customer supplier cooperation in an enjoyable, competitive activity.

Next year's event is expected to increase by 20 percent.

AROUND THE VALLEY

Another boy escapes from youth camp

TWIN FALLS - A juvenile escaped from the Magic Hot Springs Youth Camp Friday, the third escape from the juvenile center in two months.

The 16-year-old boy was last seen wearing a pair of blue jeans and boots, the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office said. He is 5 feet 7 inches tall and 155 pounds. Sheriff's deputies began searching for the boy when he was reported missing at 11:30 a.m.

Earlier this month, a 17-year-old boy escaped and was found a day later in Jackson, Nev. In early April, another 17-year-old boy escaped from custody at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. He was found later that day in a stolen car in Lewiston.

Boy suffers broken leg after being hit by car

BUHL - A 6-year-old boy suffered a broken leg Friday afternoon after a car hit him as he was crossing the street, police said.

The boy was in the crosswalk at Seventh Avenue and Main Street when he was hit by a car and knocked 47 feet from the point of impact, Buhl police Cpl. Paula Vawter said.

The boy was treated at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center for a broken leg. The teenage driver was cited for reckless driving and failure to yield to a pedestrian child in a crosswalk, Vawter said.

Cops arrest 2 men in connection with burglaries

TWIN FALLS - Police arrested two men Friday in connection with two recent burglaries.

Wade Jones and Michael Robbins faces a charge of theft by possession of stolen property, Twin Falls police Det. Gregory Barnhart said.

More than $20,000 of property was taken in the burglaries last week at Magic Valley Storage, 1522 Elm St., and East St. and Equipment Co., 2540 Addison Ave. E., Barnhart said. Most of the property, about $15,000 worth, was found by police at the homes of Jones and Robbins, he said.

Some of the property from the storage unit was valuable NASCAR merchandise. It was the same merchandise that police believe was stolen last month by an employee at Gary's Westland Motors, Barnhart said.

The property was recovered and was being kept in storage when it was stolen again, he said.

Mountain Home drug raid ends in 1 arrest

MOUNTAIN HOME - A Mountain Home man was arrested Thursday after police found four pounds of marijuana and two ounces of methamphetamine in his home, a Mountain Home police news release said.

The arrest of Regino D. Castillo, 28, caps a joint investigation between City County Special Investigations Unit and the Department of Probation and Parole, the news release said.

Castillo was charged with:

- Possession of marijuana with intent to deliver in the presence of children.
- Possession of methamphetamine with intent to deliver in the presence of children.
- Trafficking in marijuana.
- Trafficking in methamphetamine.
- Counts of felony injury to a child.

Castillo was on probation for possession of methamphetamine with intent to deliver. Police also found scales and cash during the search.

Judge urges DOE to hold shipments

Legal issues delay waste disposal site opening

By N.S. Noldkrovd
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A federal judge Friday urged the Energy Department to delay shipping radioactive waste to a New Mexico disposal site until legal questions can be settled.

Federal officials had expected to start shipping plutonium-contaminated waste to a New Mexico disposal site next month. Shipments from the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory were slated to begin in July or August.

It's unclear whether the judge's decision would delay shipments from Idaho.

New Mexico Attorney General Tom Udall says a 1991 injunction against shipping waste to the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant remains in effect.

The Energy Department says the injunction no longer applies because of subsequent congressional action. And officials expect to start shipping waste from the Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico to WIPP on June 17.

But the court has never formally lifted the injunction, leaving the issue unsettled.

A federal judge Friday asked New Mexico officials and environmental groups to file any motions relating to the opening of WIPP by June 9, department spokeswoman Anne Elliott said. Elliott said she had forwarded the department's responses to those motions by June 22, and any responses to the responses by June 25. The judge expects to issue a ruling by July 10 and urged the Energy Department to hold off shipping any waste until then, Elliott said.

ALWAYS THE BEST TABLE

Virginia Dopita, a waitress at Chocara's Family Diner in Jerome, decides to change her pace and sits with longtime patrons C.J. and Karen Smith to take one of her final breakfast orders. Friday was Dopita's last day at the diner. After 48 years as a waitress, she has decided to retire.

JEROME - With less than an hour to go in a waitressing career that had lasted nearly a half-century, Virginia Dopita wasn't about to slow down.

Leaving a cake—and an unopened retirement gift behind her on a counter, Dopita hurried to seat a group of customers that came into Chocara's Family Diner just as her Friday farewell party was getting started.

She served several more during the next few minutes, before finally sitting down and cutting her cake. She made sure there were pieces enough for everyone in the diner.

Dedication to hungry customers is typical of Dopita, said Wayne Thompson, who farms near Jerome. Thompson should know. He's been one of her regular customers for about as long as she's been a waitress.

"I've never seen her when she didn't have a smile on her face," he said.

Much of Dopita's adult life has centered on a short section of Jerome's West Main Street. Chocara's - until recently known as The Wrangler - sits there among numerous other small businesses.

Dopita and her husband, Fred, have lived just down the street from the diner since their marriage.

"I've been married for 47 years, and I'd been working for about a year when I met my husband in the cafe that was over there," she said, pointing to a brown building less than a block away.

Now home to El Rancho Delos, it housed Ham's Cafe in those days. Later, it was The Magic Valley Cafe. She worked there until 1977, when she moved to The Wrangler.

UI officials, local judges, lawyers honor 'The Judge'

By Gregory Hahn
Times-News writer

RUPERT - Ketchum attorney Edward Benoit called Judge Sherman Bellwood "a thoughtful, fine and generous man."

"Donald Chisholm, whose brush with national notoriety in Life magazine came in the wake of Bellwood's most famous decision, said the judge was "blessed with charm and wit and a warm compassion for his fellow man."

The Minidoka County Commission recently called Bellwood "impartial to the citizenry and one in that he exemplified the highest standards during his professional life."

And on Friday, the county's Judicial Building was officially renamed to honor Bellwood. Fifth District Judge J. William Blair honored a tribute to Bellwood and the events of the dawn of southern Idaho attorneys, judges and residents. Made famous by the stiff sentences he imposed on the "Minidoka Six" in a drug case in the early 1970s, Bellwood left a large endowment to the University of Idaho Law School. He also left a generation of lawyers and judges who remembered him fondly.

"When Sherman Bellwood passed away in August two years ago, I think he knew that by his death he would change legal education in the state of Idaho forever," said John Miller, dean of the university's School of Law, who spoke to the crowd in Rupert.

Miller described the Bellwood lecture series, which the judge endowed in a surprise section of his will. Only two speakers have come so far, Miller said, but one of them was U.S. Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor - who attracted more than 1,700 listeners. The endorsement allowed the law school to fly O'Connor to Moscow from Sun Valley in a private jet.

"He has allowed us to expose our students to the finest legal minds in the country and in the world," said Miller, who presented the county with a videotape of O'Connor's speech.

"The donation was so unexpected - and large - that it's been a challenge to use effectively," said Professor Dennis Colson, who is working on an historical essay about the man known in many Minidoka residents simply as "The Judge."

"The first question we all asked," Miller said, remembering when the school first learned of the endorsement, "was, 'Who is Judge Bellwood?'"

Since then, Colson has been striving to learn more about the judge. Bellwood was at the front end of the Bellwood name for students who attend the lecture series.

"In a way," he said, "Judge Bellwood was at the front end of the problem with drugs in our culture."

Sleepless in Wendell: Residents protest noise

By Steve Koehler
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL - Booming music, roaring vehicles and barking dogs have left some Wendell residents sleepless and irritated.

At a City Council meeting this week, Jack Pressnell complained of the Portuguese Hall's nighttime noise. He said a "boombox" stereo there vibrated the windows of his house a block and a half away. He also told of "cars doing 60 miles an hour" and scattered beer cans in the area.

"The hall, which has beer and wine licenses, is on F Avenue East."

Resident Peggy Whitehead said someone turned down the music after city police arrived but it turned it back up after police left.

Meyer Owen Ross said the city has discussed the problems with hall officials. They told her the people who use the hall for two recent parties are forbidden to use it again. Only those with an invitation will be allowed to use the hall in the future, and all drinking at the hall will be inside.

"If it doesn't stop, we'll be taking down the hall," Ross said.

Trucker Neal Young complained about noise from the engine brakes of trucks entering town, suggested the city draft an ordinance forbidding the brakes' use.

An engine brake is a safety device for slowing a truck going down hills. Ross said it should not be used to slow a truck in town.

Young also complained of noise from car stereos and barking dogs.

"We're living in a kennel - we're not living in a town," Young said.

Police Chief Phillip Cowell said police legally need a signed complaint from a citizen before they can write a ticket for a trouble-some dog or loud car stereo.

Freeman were violent, dangerous former bureau agent testifies

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — The FBI needed two years to capture the Montana Freeman because the wrong move would surely have triggered a bloody gun battle, the man who headed the investigation testified Friday. The Freeman was always heavily armed, had armor-piercing ammunition and had threatened to hang public officials, former FBI agent Tommie Cassidy said in his second day on the witness stand.

Courtroom sketch made from Billings, Mont., Friday, shows John P. McDewitt, Callisto, Calif., left, who passed out hand-written complaints from jailed Montana Freeman.

Some defense attorneys for the dozen Freeman on trial suggested the FBI easily could have arrested the four leaders on pending charges before they fled to their remote farm stronghold in eastern Montana. Cassidy, now of the University of Arkansas Criminal Justice Institute, emphatically disagreed.

Schweitzer and Petersen were captured at the edge of the Jordan farm compound on March 25, 1996, triggering an 81-day standoff with some two dozen Freeman and sympathizers who remained. The standoff ended June 13, 1996, without a shot having been fired.

five to six weeks. Prosecutors may call as many as 62 witnesses, and No. 2 followed Cassidy to the stand Friday afternoon — FBI agent Daniel Vierzhaber of Billings, who shared command of the investigation with Cassidy. Vierzhaber explained in detail the FBI procedures for conducting wiretaps, then began the laborious process of identifying hundreds of documents and other pieces of evidence that prosecutors will show to the jury.

Addicted mom of 4 receives another chance

By Penelope Reedy
Times-News writer

BURLEY - After six months in state custody, an admitted methamphetamine addict has another chance at a successful life.

Dee Dee Franck of Rupert, a 23-year-old mother of four, pleaded guilty to a forgery charge in December. She spent three months on a "trider" program, undergoing evaluation at the Pocatello Women's Correctional Institution.

She received a positive recommendation from a counselor there. So on Friday, Judge George Granata Jr. set her free on a three-year probation. She had already been on probation for grand theft at the time of her arrest, and she admitted being addicted to methamphetamine.

The judge asked Franck what she had learned while she was gone.

"I've learned about myself," she said, "to be myself and not let others influence how I feel about myself."

Granata cautioned her about returning to former habits.

"I've learned about myself, to be myself and not let others influence how I feel about myself."

"The most important thing is you must stay away from your old friends," he said.

As a condition of Franck's probation, she must undergo a drug and alcohol evaluation. She must also take the cognitive self-change class, which authorities say teaches offenders how to change their thinking strategies to help them stay out of trouble.

Court records say some of Franck's four children have been in foster care while their mother has been in prison, which she has never been living with family members.

Cassia residents seek improvement district

By Kurt Friedmann
Times-News writer

BURLEY - Some Cassia County residents want to create another local improvement district. One of the reasons for the possible taxing district have hit a snag. Part of the process to create the district involves figuring a possible cost for the specific improvements the district will help pay for - and paying for that estimate might prove too expensive.

Residents want to create the district between 17th Avenue and U.S. Highway 30 to hook onto Burley's city sewer system. But hiring an engineering firm to study the sewer system costs money, and improvement district estimates are balking at the price, said Bruce Young, the group's spokesman.

"They want a firm bid on what it's going to cost," he said. "But that's not an expensive way of the sort of stalled at the moment."

There may be a solution. Mayor Doug Manning said the city had been discussing such a project in the past, and officials knew there had been some recent discussion as well.

"We already have a study that shows grades, slopes, cost and everything," he said. "It's definitely something that needs to be looked into."

Once the district is formed with the process they must decide how homeowners will pay the tax, by square footage, by frontage feet, or based on usage. "Once they decide on a method of assessment, the commissioners will approve a resolution for a public hearing and set a date and time," Prosecutor Stephen Bywater said. "The hearing allows everyone to have an opportunity to come in and be heard."

Bywater said commissioners would turn down the improvement district only if there was too much opposition, if the sewer plan was inadequate, or if there wasn't enough property to support the taxes needed to pay for the work.

"It's a great idea," Bywater said. "There is already a sewer lift station at the King's warehouse and once they were hooked up they would receive all the benefits of city sewer."

Wolf pair's death delays new rules

BOISE (AP) - Federal wolf recovery managers on Friday dropped plans for shifting to a more flexible management scheme in central Idaho this year because of the death of one of the six breeding pairs in the region.

"The mortalities are an unfortunate setback for the experimental plan for prohibiting Idaho and resulted in suspension of the more flexible option of issuing lethal take permits to livestock permittees using federal grazing allotments," the Fish and Wildlife Service said in a statement.

The service had intended to issue the permits to grazers with all sources of livestock wolf recovery regulations permitting the change.

complaints because they want to stay on good terms with their neighbors, Councilman Connie Bjornn said.

The no 20 issue spilled over into debate about the city's proposed parking ordinance, which would restrict truck parking in residential areas. The reason for prohibiting residential truck parking is to eliminate the noise from truck refrigeration units.

Long-haul trucker Joey Sanchez accused that trucks with refrigeration units should be restricted. But truckers should be allowed to park their tractors at their homes, he said.

The proposed ordinance's

8,000-pound vehicle limit would also eliminate mobile homes and other units in residential areas, Sanchez said. Councilmen agreed to review

Idaho Democratic leader resigns

BOISE (AP) - Three days after a somewhat unsettling primary election for Idaho Democrats, the executive director of the state Democratic Party on Friday announced her resignation.

Karen White will step down as director of day-to-day operations in a few weeks, Party Chairman Tony Park said in a statement.

White, who has been executive director for just 14 months, will move to Maryland to manage the re-election campaigns of Democratic Gov. Farris Glendening and Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend. Park described the Maryland project as "temporary" but provided no indication of White's long-range plans.

White moved to the party post in March 1997 after being part of the second straight Democratic washout at the polls the previous fall. She managed the unsuccessful 1996 U.S. Senate campaign of millionaire businessman Walt Minnick.

A veteran of 38 other campaigns in 31 states, White was recruited by Minnick from Louisiana. She was quoted by Vogue magazine two years ago as saying she was being paid $9,000 a month to run the Idaho campaign. Financial disclosure reports showed a direct monthly salary of $5,400.

Disclosure reports showed she was being directly paid $2,900 a month as Democratic executive director.

The 1996 election, which saw further erosion of Democratic standing in the Statehouse, combined with the 1994 Republican landslide to leave the party on the brink of extinction.

When she took the party job, Democratic leaders said she turned down political offers in Colorado and Michigan because she wanted to raise a family in Idaho.

Park said that White has left the party "in a position to win some key elections this fall, at the congressional, statewide and local level."

But Tuesday's primary has unsettled that optimism: Wally Hedrick, generally embraced as the choice of party leaders, narrowly lost the nomination for state schools superintendent to political unknown Marilyn Howard, a Moscow school principal.

The Republican seen as the strongest congressional candidate in the 2nd District ousted three GOP challengers to win the right to take on former Congressman Richard Stallings in November, denying Stallings the edge he would have had against any of the other Republicans.

Shot kills man outside tavern

CALDWELL (AP) - A man was shot to death early Friday outside a tavern in Caldwell, police reported.

The identity of the victim was not immediately released. Authorities said the man had apparently been seen outside the tavern once. Witnesses told investigators that they saw a sport-utility vehicle pull away from in front of the tavern near Interstate 84 shortly after hearing gunshots.

Police continued their search for that vehicle.

Remaining 3 plead guilty to hate crimes

BOISE (AP) - The three remaining men accused in a string of racially motivated attacks on Hispanics last year in Canyon County have pleaded guilty to conspiring to violate federal civil rights law.

U.S. District Judge Lynn Winnmill set August sentencing dates for Chris Maurer, 19, and David and Gerald Greig, both 18.

Their pleas followed the guilty pleas a week ago by Scott Brooke, Jack David Carter and Roy Graham, also all 18, to the same conspiracy charge. They will also be sentenced in August.

All six are from Nampa and face maximum penalties of 10 years in prison and $250,000 fines.

They were accused of physically assaulting several Hispanics near their homes and chasing Hispanic children through the streets of their neighborhood, yelling racial slurs.

"A person's skin color or national origin should never be an invitation for violence," said Bill Lann Lee, acting assistant attorney general for civil rights.

"We remain committed to ensuring that the perpetrators of all racial violence will be properly punished."

State assists in response to flooding

REPUBLIC, Wash. (AP) - Gov. Gary Locke on Friday declared an emergency in two rural counties where flooding this week washed out roads and left hundreds of residents stranded.

Locke's proclamation covered Ferry and Stevens counties, and directs state agencies to use state resources to help the communities recover.

"Heavy rains this week flooded many roads and damaged property in counties where many residents experienced flooding just a year ago," Locke said.

Repairs to roads and public services must begin immediately. The state can ask for Federal Highway Administration money to repair flood-damaged roads, and waive normal bidding procedures. The greatest damage is around Republic in Ferry County. Washington 20 over Sherman Pass is estimated to take two months and $2 million to repair.

The greatest damage is around Republic in Ferry County. Washington 20 over Sherman Pass is estimated to take two months and $2 million to repair.

Separate sections of Washington 21 north and south of Republic also remained closed because of heavy flows across the roadway and washouts.

A private contractor was sent Friday to begin emergency repairs to the roads, the state Department of Transportation said.

"A three-person state team was in the area Friday to help assess damages and determine what resources are needed to make repairs, said Linda Burton-Ramsey, director of the state Emergency Management Division.

her father pushed her into waitressing.

"He wanted to put me to work," she said.

Opportunities were slim in those days, and the job was a blessing. Sticking with it came naturally, she said.

"I've just always been in good health," Dopita said. "I came from a real hard-working family."

The cafes often shared the street with a blacksmith shop, Dopita said. There was also a full-service gas station, where a crew of attendants would spring into action every time a car pulled in, she said.

"That was way before all these self-service places came in," she said.

Despite the changing times, her favorite part of the job is still the same.

"I love meeting all these people and visiting with them," she said.

"I won't miss all the work. I guess, because I'm getting tired of all those years on my feet."

But she soon was back on her feet, serving a genuine smile along with lunch plates and cups of coffee.

Thompson said Dopita's way with people has always attracted customers.

"They'd come from out of town and eat Sunday dinner, and (Dopita) would always make it a pleasant experience," he said.

Thompson and other long-time customers gleefully ribbed

Dopita, as she went about her work with a speed and grace that would be the envy of many far younger than her 73 years.

But their mood turned somber as they discussed Dopita's impending retirement.

"She's the best, sweetest waitress in the whole town," said Nolan Brooks.

"I've never heard anybody that hasn't spoken well of her," Leo Alfain said.

Thompson said he plans to keep coming to the diner, but he knows it will never be the same.

"You can't replace Virginia," he said.

Disposal

Shipments of waste stored above ground at INEEL, dating back to 1970 - were expected to start in July or August, INEEL spokeswoman Kathy Whitaker said earlier Friday.

A 1995 agreement between Idaho Gov. Phil Batt and the federal government requires the government to begin moving waste by April 1998.

But when the Energy Department in 1991 tried to begin shipping waste by extending an administrative order, New Mexico and environmental groups filed a lawsuit.

A federal district court in Washington, D.C., issued an injunction "permanently enjoining" the government from burying waste under that order. The injunction was upheld in the U.S. Court of Appeals in July 1992.

Since then, Congress has passed legislation that sets aside public land for WIPP, a site already plagued with a long history of missed openings dating back to the early 1980s.

Government officials want to bury plutonium-contaminated waste from nuclear bomb building 2,150 feet below ground in 3,000-foot thick, 225-million-year-old salt deposits in the desert east of Carlsbad, N.M.

WIPP would take an estimated 850,000 containers of waste - trash, tools, rags, clothing, cutting oil and solvents, all contaminated with plutonium - sitting at federal facilities, many in the West. The radiation levels of the waste varies from nearly innocuous to waste that must be handled remotely.

"He's changed a lot during the last six months," he said. "Last year he was belligerent. Since he spent time in jail, he's been a credible. Twenty-five years ago, I got into trouble. The judge showed mercy on me and I've been an upstanding citizen ever since."

Deputy Prosecutor Howard Sinsler asked the court to treat Hunter differently than Widmeyer and Osterhout, but pointed out the "harsh realities" of the case.

Haley said his client and his family had taken extra efforts to recover the stolen property.

Detectives on the case also discussed Hunter's cooperation.

Granata said he wanted to encourage people to cooperate with law enforcement and believed it was appropriate to reward people who "own up" to their responsibility.

He said he believed Hunter was the only person involved in this series of burglaries who was truly remorseful, and had made an effort to turn himself around.

CSI signs new players

Next season's men's, women's basketball rosters nearly complete

Special to The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - The College of Southern Idaho men's and women's basketball teams are close to completing their rosters for the 1998-99 season.
Women's coach Joel Bate has signed eight players to join his three returners. Men's coach Jim Thrash is just a couple short of completing his team. He has signed five players and has five returning.
"At this point we would like to add two more," Thrash said. "We have a kid visiting next week from California and we are looking at probably another five or six kids."

Even without any more players, Thrash has put together a team that is as strong if not stronger than last season's NJCAA Region 18 regular season champions.
Leading the way is 6-5 guard Dennis Nathan of Portland, Ore. Nathan averaged 29 points, 15 rebounds and 10 assists per game as a senior at Gresham High School.
"He is big-time talent," Thrash said. "He makes everyone better."
Heavily recruited out of high school, Nathan signed with the University of Oregon and then attended a prep school. Academically, he is unable to attend Oregon this season.

Joining Nathan will be Beaverton High School's Mike Hood. Hood is a 6-3 guard who helped lead his team to the 4A state championship. He averaged 14 points and six assists per game. He was named most valuable player of his team and best defensive player in the Portland area. Hood placed second in votes for player of the year behind the son of Portland Trail Blazers coach Mike Dunleavy.
"He is a very intelligent player who can pass, shoot and defend," Thrash said. Hood, who has played with Nathan on the same AAC team for the past three years.

At the wing position, Thrash has signed Kevin Bommer, a 6-5 player from Tyrer High School in Clatsop County, Tenn. Bommer averaged 18 points, 9 rebounds and three blocked shots per game.
"He is very quick and a good outside shooter," Thrash said. "He handles the ball well."
Bommer was also recruited by conference foe North Idaho College.
Another wing who could cause coaching problems for other teams is Lars Steverson of Eugene, Ore. The 6-6 player from Sheldon High School averaged 15 points and eight rebounds per game.

CHICAGO (BULLS)

Pacers take Bulls by their horns

Game 6 plays down to the wire in Indiana

The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS - The Chicago Bulls aren't going to the NBA Finals just yet - and maybe not at all. Instead, they'll be going where Michael Jordan hasn't been in six years - a Game 7.

Jordan had an unusually mortal moment when the Bulls needed him most, slipping and falling as he drove to the basket for what would have been a tying hoop with less than five seconds left.
He lost the ball, the Pacers recovered and finished it off with a free throw for a 92-89 victory in Game 6 of the Eastern Conference finals on Friday night.

Game 7 will be Sunday night at the United Center, and one more slip-up could mean the end of the Bulls' dynasty.
It will be Chicago's first Game 7 with Jordan on the team since the second round of the 1992 playoffs.

For the Pacers, it will be their third Game 7 in a conference finals in five years. They lost in 1994 in New York and in 1995 to Orlando.

This time, they can thank Travis Best, Rik Smith and Dale Davis - and not Reggie Miller - for getting them there.

Best refused to flinch despite being guarded by Jordan for most of the final minute. He hit a driving 6-footer with 33 seconds left for an 89-87 lead and an actual left that led to two free throws that gave Indiana a 91-89 lead.

"A game like that you have to keep playing basketball, you can't worry about having five fouls or whatever," Pacers coach Larry Bird said. "Travis Best made the big plays down the stretch."

Please see GAME, Page B6

Indiana saves Best for last

The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS - Looking almost Jordanesque, Travis Best ducked around Steve Kerr and took off, beating the Bulls for just a second before turning the once-labeled layup off the glass.

Best, a third-year player, scored just six points Friday, but what a six points they were. His acrobatic layup gave Indiana an 89-87 lead over the Chicago Bulls with 33 seconds left.

"We were looking for Reggie, but he wasn't open," Indiana coach Larry Bird said. "Travis took it upon himself to penetrate, which we've been telling him to do because when he penetrates, good things happen."

Best stepped to the free throw line with 8.5 seconds left, looking so calm he may as well have been taking a few shots at the end of practice. He nailed both free throws to seal the victory.
Jordan tripped over Derrick McKey's feet at the other end of the court and McKey scooped up the ball. Pippen fouled him with four-tenths of a second left, and McKey made one free throw for the final 92-89 margin.

Indiana's victory ties the Eastern Conference finals at three games apiece. Game 7 is Sunday at the United Center.

With Miller struggling - he was a dismal 2-of-13 from the floor and finished with eight points - the Pacers needed someone to take over. Rik Smith did his part with 25 points, and Dale Davis added a career playoff-high 19 points.

The Pacers still found themselves down 69-66 with almost three minutes left in the third quarter. Game 6 was the game that put the Bulls on a bench of Chicago Bulls on his heels. Instead of changing a layup or jumper, he threw a no-look pass behind his back to Davis.

That ignited a 6-0 run that put the Pacers up 70-69, and the teams exchanged leads the rest of the game.

Marat Safin keeps up the good work

Dickman (6-2 post, Silverton, Ore.). Kim Weger (5-11 post, Lewisville, N.C.), Brent Yost (5-11 wing, Bancroft, Ore.) and Joanne Zorovic Barron (5-8 guard, Comperville, Wash.). Sarah Ceilan (5-7 guard, Idaho Falls), Michelle Lucas (5-8 guard, Silverton, Ore.), Brenda Peterson (6-3 post, Corvallis, Mont.) and Joanne Whittaker (5-11 wing, Boise).
"Post-wise, we have three pretty big kids. All of them can play in the middle," Bate said.
Brenda Peterson had 98 blocked shots her senior year and Lauren Dickman and Kim Weger are athletic.

The Golden Eagles will look to Yost and Whittaker to help replace graduating standout Charlotte Noonan.
Whittaker was a member of the state championship Centennial squad at this year's Idaho basketball championships and brought home gold in the open 400 and 800-meter events at the Class A-1 state track championships.
Bate described Yost as very strong mentally.
"In our guard line we have three really versatile guards," Bate said. "Zorovic Barron is more of a true point guard. She can score and is an excellent passer. Sarah Ceilan and Michelle Lucas are both real solid guards."

Chicago called a timeout to set up a final play, and it was no surprise to anyone when the Bulls rebounded to Jordan.
Guarded by Derrick McKey, he made a move to his right and stumbled. Coach Phil Jackson popped off the bench looking for a foul, but the ball popped loose, and McKey, grabbed it and was fouled.
With confetti prematurely falling from the rafters, McKey made the first free throw and then purposely missed the second so that the clock would expire.
Jackson continued his criticism of the officials.
"Obviously they swallowed the whistle on that last call," he said referring to the play when Jordan slipped. "He got tripped — what in basketball is more evident than a guy getting tripped? He didn't fall on his own."

Smith finished with 25 points on 11-for-12 shooting. Davis had 10 points and eight rebounds and Mark Jackson added 13 points for the Pacers. Miller shot just 2-of-13 and had eight points.
"We have a bunch of game people on this team. I'd like to see a line like we did from Reggie Miller and that if we did win the ballgame," Phil Jackson said.
Indiana hasn't lost at Market Square Arena in two months, and now they'll need to get a road victory in a building where the Bulls have never played a deciding seventh game.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Kimberly sweeps American Legion opener

KIMBERLY - Kimberly licked off the American Legion season Friday with two wins at home over Shoshone, despite being one-hit by Indians hurler Joey Flora.

"That first game, we had a couple of good pitchers throwing a lot of strikes and keeping the hitters off-balance," said Kimberly coach Terry Bohan, whose squad won 2-1 and 13-2. "We had two teams playing that hadn't played baseball for roughly seven months."

Marshall Bishop allowed three hits and struck out eight batters to Flora's six as the Bulldogs scored their runs on walks, a balk and a wild pitch.

In the second game, Bishop was 3-for-3 with 3 RBIs and Jordan Dille was 3-for-4 with a home run and five RBIs to complement the four-hit pitching of Justin Williams.

"Our bats started talking a little bit, which is nice to see in the first doublesender of the year," Bohan said.

Kimberly (2-0) plays at Buhl Wednesday.

Dye steps down after inaugural season

NAMPA - Bobby Dye, the former Boise State University basketball coach who came out of retirement to coach professionally, resigned on Friday after coaching the Idaho Stampede through its inaugural season in the Continental Basketball Association.

Dye, who had a 27-34 overall record in the Stampede's first season and a 223-210 record in 19 seasons in the college ranks, said he wanted to spend more time with his family.

Team officials said Dye, who has a financial interest in the Stampede, will be retained to help the search for a new coach and serve in an advisory capacity to the team in the future.

Dye becomes the second Idaho coach to resign this off-season, following the resignation of Dave Langevin, coach of the Idaho Steelheads of the West Coast Hockey League.

Former coach Bill Meek dead at age 76

DALLAS - Bill Meek, football coach at two Texas schools as well as Kansas State and Utah, died Thursday of cancer.

Meek, 76, coached SMU from 1957-61 and compiled a 17-29-4 record. His best season was 1958, when SMU finished 6-4 with victories over Southwest Conference rivals Texas, Texas A&M and Texas Christian.

To take advantage of quarterback Don Meredith's passing ability, Meek installed a spread-offense offense. Meredith was an All-America quarterback in 1958 and 1959 and went on to play for the Dallas Cowboys of the NFL.

Wisconsin aid named to lead BSU program

Athletic Director Gene Elymayer said Baker will take over June 29 from Jim Moran, who is becoming the Boise State men's head coach as Greg Donnan leaves for a position with USA Tennis.

"I couldn't have picked a better place professionally and personally to start my career as a head coach," Baker said.

After 11 innings of toil, Brewers win

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Rookie Geoff Jenkins led off the bottom of the 11th inning with his sixth home run as the Milwaukee Brewers overcame Doug Jones' seventh blown save in a 4-3 victory over the Florida Marlins on Friday night.

Jenkins' opposite-field shot off Jay Powell (4-3) made a winner of Bob Wickman (2-4), who pitched two scoreless innings after Jones blew a 3-2 lead in the ninth when Cliff Floyd hit a solo homer.

Jones also surrendered a ninth-inning homer to blow a save in the Brewers' last game, against Pittsburgh on Wednesday night. He drew plenty of boos from the crowd of 25,032 when he entered the game Friday night to hold a 3-2 lead.

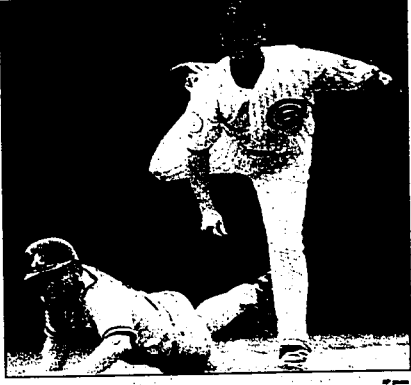

With one out, Floyd hit a 2-1 offering into the right field seats to tie it. Several fans tossed their giveaway seat cushions onto the field and into the lower deck in disgust.

Floyd's homer ruined right-hander Jeff Juden's chance at victory. Following his sacrifice fly in the fourth that gave the Marlins a 2-0 lead, Juden joined with Juden as he trotted back across the diamond, apparently over the right-hander's 29th and eighth pitches.

Jones has pitched in nine homers in 2-9 innings. He gave up four all last year, when he saved a club-record 36 games in 38 chances.

Already this season he's blown seven saves in 18 chances, but with Chad Fox (shoulder) on the disabled list, Brewers manager Phil Garner has stuck with him.

Bob Hamen's pinch runner in the seventh against Livan Hernandez had given the Brewers a 3-2 lead.

Atlanta Brave Keith Lockhart is forced out at second by Chicago Cubs' shortstop Jeff Blauser who throws to first in the third inning Friday in Chicago.

Blauser's throw was not in time for the double play on Brave Chipper Jones.

Hamen, hitting just .151 with one homer and two RBIs, sent a fastball 421 feet into the center field seats to break a 2-2 tie. His pinch-hit homer was the Brewers' first.

One out after Hamen's homer, Brewers right fielder Jeromy Burnitz was ejected by home plate umpire Brian Gorman for disputing a called strike.

Craig Counsell, who grew up in Milwaukee, scored the Marlins' first run in his hometown debut. He reached on first baseman

David Nilsson's error in the third, was sacrificed to second and scored on Todd Dunwoody's single.

Cubs 5, Braves 3

CHICAGO - Brent Brown hit a two-run homer with one out in the bottom of the 11th inning Friday and the Chicago Cubs beat the Atlanta Braves 5-3 for just their second victory in eight games.

Jason Harshbarger walked off John Rocker (1-1) and moved to second on a sacrifice by Scott Servais.

National League

Brown then drove an O-1 pitch over the ivy in center for his fourth homer of the season.

Terry Adams (3-3) pitched two innings of hitless relief for the victory in the game that began as a pitching duel between Tom Glavine and Kerry Wood, who had 13 strikeouts in seven innings.

Curtis Priddy hit his first home run, leading off the ninth, during the game at 3:37 off reliever Rod Beck.

Mets 11, Phillies 0

PHILADELPHIA - Rick Reed won his fifth straight start Friday. Edgardo Alfonzo hit a two-run homer as New York won its seventh straight.

Reed (6-2) allowed four hits in 8 1/3 innings, but only one after the second inning, as he retired 16 straight batters before Bobby Abreu led off the eighth with a single.

Philadelphia starter Matt Breen (1-1) took the loss for the Phillies, who had won their previous three.

Expos 4, Pirates 1

PITTSBURGH - Carlos Perez, backed by Rondell White's two homers, won his fifth in a row with eight innings of one-run pitching to give Montreal a rare road victory.

White went 3-for-4 and homered in consecutive at-bats off pitcher Jon Lieber (2-7), who also yielded Chris Widger's solo shot while lasting six innings.

The Expos had been 2-9 on the road against the NL Central and were 5-16 away from Olympic since May 7.

American League

11-14, Baltimore is 5-1 since dropping the seventh inning, the last two since May 7.

Texas has lost a season-high five in a row. It was the Rangers' eighth straight loss at Camden Yards.

Royals 5, Athletics 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - Jeff King had five RBIs, including a bases-loaded triple, as Kansas City snapped a six-game home losing streak.

The Royals came in with a major league worst 6-18 home record, and were ninth at Kauffman Stadium, since May 7.

Trailing 3-2, they loaded the bases in the seventh by sandwiching two walks around Hal Morris' single.

Mike Fetters relieved Mike Mohler (0-2) and walked Dean Palmer, loading the bases. Then King tripled into the right-field corner for his seventh career five-RBI game. King had just five RBIs in the previous 40 games.

Chris Haney (3-3) got two outs for his first win since April 15, and Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth for his ninth save.

Angels 3, Twins 1

MINNEAPOLIS - Chuck Finley ended his 0-for-50 slump with 8 1/3 innings of five-hit pitching, and Anaheim snapped a four-game losing streak.

Jim Edmonds drove in two runs, the first with a solo homer that ended the Sox' scoreless streak at 20 innings.

The loss kept Minnesota from extending its winning streak to a season-best five games.

Finley (5-2) was the start pitcher of the month in April with a 4-0 record, but he was hit on the leg by a line drive in the eighth and had struggled since, going 0-2 in his first five starts this month.

Tigers beat Sox with Easley dinger, 8-7

DETROIT (AP) - Damon Easley's second homer of the game, a three-run shot in the eighth inning, gave the Detroit Tigers an 8-7 victory over the Chicago White Sox on Friday night.

Trailing 7-4, the Tigers rallied in the eighth off reliever Carlos Castillo (1-4). Kimera Barbee hit a leadoff homer before Tony Clark and Luiz Gonzalez.

Easley, who also homered in the seventh off Chicago starter Jason Bere, then hit his 15th homer into the left-field seats to put the Tigers ahead 8-7. Easley has hit in an AL-best 18 straight games.

Deon Crow (1-0), making his major league debut after being recalled from Triple-A Toledo earlier in the day, pitched two shutout innings for the win. Todd Jones pitched the ninth for his ninth save.

Chicago's lead was blown away by Tony Clark and Luiz Gonzalez.

Easley, who also homered in the seventh off Chicago starter Jason Bere, then hit his 15th homer into the left-field seats to put the Tigers ahead 8-7. Easley has hit in an AL-best 18 straight games.

Indians 7, Blue Jays 3

TORONTO - Bartolo Colon struck out a career-high 14 as the Cleveland Indians won their fourth straight.

Jim Thome, David Bell and David Justice homered to support Colon (4-3), who gave up three hits in his third complete game of the season.

Thome hit a two-run shot in the fifth, his 11th homer of the season and fifth in his career off Blue Jays starter Roger Clemens (5-6).

Clemens gave up four earned runs on seven hits, including four and struck out nine in seven innings.

Seattle Mariners pitcher Randy Johnson pitches in the first inning against the Tampa Bay Devil Rays Friday night at Tropicana Field in St. Petersburg, Fla.

including two doubles and a tiebreaking RBI single in the fifth inning. Russ Davis and Rich Armbrister also drove in runs for the Mariners, who have been trying to meet Johnson's request for a trade.

Johnson (5-3) struck out 10 and walked two.

Orioles 6, Rangers 3

BALTIMORE - R.J. Surhoff hit a three-run homer off Aaron Sele and drove in four runs as the resurgent Baltimore Orioles beat the Texas Rangers.

Harold Baines also homered against Sele, who was trying to become the first nine-game winner in the majors. Sele (8-3) yielded five runs and seven hits in 3-2 1/3 innings, his shortest start of the season.

Roberto Alomar had three hits for the Orioles, who have won three straight for the first time since April

Miami 3, Long Beach State 1

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. - Randy Johnson, the subject of many trade rumors, allowed three hits in eight innings as the Seattle Mariners beat the Tampa Bay Devil Rays.

Ken Griffey Jr. had three hits,

Miami, Arizona State win CWS opening games

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Alex Santos allowed only four hits and struck out eight in eight innings as Miami won its first CWS game. Santos (4-0) won his third straight College World Series with a 3-1 victory over No. 7 Long Beach State Friday night.

In the tournament opener, sixth-seeded Arizona State took full advantage of four errors by third-ranked Florida State for an 11-10 victory.

Miami (51-10) plays Arizona State (32-21) Sunday. Duke (29-18) faces Long Beach State (41-22) on Monday. FSU (53-19) in an elimination game.

Salazar, going ahead for good with three runs in the seventh inning, the last two aided by the fifth error by the Seminoles.

"I'm obviously a little bit embarrassed by the way we played. That's not Florida State baseball," Seminoles coach Russ Mason said.

"I think we've played 70 consecutive games," Mason said. "We're doing it in frustration with each word. We are not frustration anymore. We are competitive again. The days are back."

With Arizona State trailing 10-9 with two outs in the seventh, Randy Johnson's Mar 21st earned the crowd's first wild throw in the game, allowing Damian DeBorja to score on a triple.

The Sun Devils went ahead when Russ Davis hit a home run off Sele on a fielder's choice, moved to third on Diaz's error and scored on a wild pitch.

Things looked grim for the Seminoles in the sixth after Sele hit an 0-2 pitch into the left-center field for a two-run grand slam that erased an 8-6 deficit. Sele also hit a two-run shot in the fourth.

Arizona State built an 8-2 lead with a six-run fifth inning off reliever Lee McDonald (10-4), highlighted by Halvorson's three-run homer. The Seminoles caused many of their own problems with three errors in the inning.

Inkster vaults into 4-way tie for 1st

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - Score a couple for the old guy... Full Inkster shot a 4-under-par 68 Friday and Hollis Stacy had a 67 as two of the LPGA's veteran stars made a move to the top of the leaderboard at the Rochester International.

Joan Pitcock, of Wellington, Fla. hits out of the bunker on the 16th hole during the Rochester International Friday at the Locust Hill Country Club in Pittsford, N.Y. Pitcock is tied for the lead at 5-under-par with three other golfers.

Inkster's solid round placed her in a four-way tie for first at 5-under-139 with Moira Dunn and Joan Pitcock, who shared the first-round lead, and Jennifer Burton. Burton just over shot behind was Sweden's Eva Dahlhof.

birdies came before the rains came around noon. "I lost my tempo on a couple of holes. It was a long day. I was out at 9:15 a.m. and finished at 3:30 p.m. It's hard to keep your concentration."

Friday, getting two birdies, one bogey and 15 pars. "I had a ton of birdie opportunities," said Burton, who finished tied for second a week ago at Corning. "I didn't make as many putts as I did yesterday. I had a hard time reading the greens today."

"The swirling wind made club selection the most difficult problem and had most players shaking their heads. "It was just a struggle out there. I never got anything going. I had no tempo," said Coe-Jones, who bogeyed her final hole to finish at 71. "The good news is that five-under is the lead."

"Pitcock knew she was an uncommon crowd and she had to struggle to get her 'grim reaper' attitude in check. "I don't lead a lot, and I've been out here a long time (11 years)," said Pitcock, who shot a 72. "I feel like I'm in the corner. It doesn't mean much right now. Leading today doesn't matter."

Nelson ties course record at Pitt Senior Classic

SEWICKLEY, Pa. (AP) - Larry Nish shook off an opening bogey to shoot a 7-under-par 65 Friday, matching the course record and giving him a two-shot lead over Walter Morgan.

Nelson, currently the third-leading money winner on the Senior PGA Tour, birdied five of the final eight holes on the front nine of Sewickley Heights Golf Club. He pulled his drive on No. 1, a 41-yard, par-4, into a fairway sand trap.

memorable days came about 20 miles to the east, at Oakmont Country Club, where his 62-foot birdie putt at the 16th hole sealed his dramatic one-stroke win over Tom Watson in the 1993 U.S. Open.

McGinley leads TPC; O'Meara 2 strokes back ALVESLOHE, Germany - Ireland's Paul McGinley took a one-stroke lead Friday after the first round of the TPC of Europe, while Masters champion Mark O'Meara was two back.

European tournament since winning at Augusta, shot a 5-under 67, while McGinley sank seven birdies in his round of 65 at the $1.9 million event. England's Peter Mitchell, who captured the Portuguese Open in March, was a stroke back at 66. He let a chance to be first slip away on his final hole, missing a five-foot putt to bogey. "O'Meara was in a group of 14 players who shot 67, including Colin Montgomerie and Bernhard Langer, as over half the field shot under par."

"Naturally, I still have a little jet lag, but it was a good start for me. "O'Meara's bogey came on the par 4 fourth hole when his second shot flew into the bunker."

UNLV widens lead to 10 shots over Clemson ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. - UNLV's record-setting 10th straight victory in the Sun Belt Conference golf title remains on a record-setting streak.

The Rebels, their talent so deep that their worst individual round Friday was an even-par 71, opened a 10-hole lead over Clemson going into Saturday's final 18 holes.

UNLV took control of the tournament with a 12-under round on Thursday and then was nearly as good in the third round. Senior Bill Laude and junior Chris Berry both shot 5-under 67s, while freshman Scott Lander and junior Charles Hoffman had 71s.

"It shows what our depth is like," said sophomore Jeremy Anderson, who had the non-concurring score of 72. "Anyone of us can go out and shoot a 67 or 68. We're just grinding our butts off." UNLV's 12-under team score Friday gave the Rebels a 54-hole total of 25-under-par 629. They already 12 shots better than the 72-hole tournament record of 23-under set by 1992 champion Arizona over the same Championship Course. Clemson put up its solid 10-under score of 278 and lost ground to the Rebels. First-round leader Oklahoma State also shot 78 and is third, 13 shots back, and Georgia Tech is fourth, another stroke behind.

U.S. team thinks big: World Cup title in 2010

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. soccer team looked ahead Friday - not only to its win against Scotland but to winning the tournament in 2010.

"This is no little plan. This is a vision on a grand scale," U.S. Soccer Federation president Alan Rothenberg said. "Somewhere out there we've got a 9-year-old Ronaldo, and we've got to find him."

More than $50 million will be devoted to soccer development during the next 12 years, Rothenberg said. Expanding on the Project 90 program, which teen-agers leave college soccer to join professional teams in exchange for room, board and scholarships, the USSF plans to bring up to 120 youth players in its professional development program by 2009.

Rothenberg projected that players for the 2010 World Cup team will be at the under-14 national camp next year and he wants 1,000 players identified and funneled into training programs. By 1999, there will be an under-17 team training full time at the Bollettieri Soccer Academy in Bradenton, Fla. In addition, 360 players from ages 13 to 21 will be training with national team coaches at least 75 days a year. By 2010, Rothenberg said the program will expand to 1,000 players training 100 days a year. "Americans, when they set out to do something, they set out to do it right," U.S. coach Steve Sampson said. "We're not satisfied where we are right now."

The downside is the top U.S. players would be ineligible for college soccer under NCAA rules. "At very best players in a professional environment," Sampson said. "Around the world, the best teams have players in a professional environment at 16, 17, 18 years of age."

But first comes this year's tournament and Saturday exhibition game against the Scots, the last for the Americans before they leave for France next Thursday.

Forward Eric Wynalda and midfielder Tony Ramos, playing themselves into shape following knee operations, expect to see more time than they did in last weekend's 2-0 victory over Kuwait.

Midfielder Frankie Hejduk (hamstring) doesn't expect to play, meaning Sampson will have his full roster available for a single game before the opener against Germany on June 15 in Paris.

Scotland, which opens the tournament against defending champion Brazil on June 10, is expected to provide a better test than Kuwait and Mexico, who failed to qualify. The U.S. team began the final stretch of its World Cup training with a scoreless tie against Mexico on June 16.

Tiger Woods blasts from the sand to the 17th green at Muirfield Village Golf Club in Dublin, Ohio during the first round of the Memorial Tournament Thursday. Woods finished at 2-under-par, four shots off the lead.

Couples, Mattiace lead Memorial

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) - This time, at least, Fred Couples and Len Mattiace avoided the water, getting into the clubhouse at the Memorial Tournament with the midway lead before rain once again stopped play at Muirfield Village.

But for two errant shots that plopped into the water, Couples might have won the Masters and the Byron Nelson.

On Friday they avoided any such disasters and finished 36 holes at Muirfield Village at 9-under-par 135, two strokes ahead of Mark Calcuttash and Harrison Franz.

Lurking well within striking distance were a bunch of major championship winners, including Tom Lehman at 138 and Ernie Els, Davis Love III, Justin Leonard and Steve Jones at 140.

"It's such a log jam," Couples said after shooting a 67. "If you go out and shoot 70 or 71 on Sunday you are not going to win. It will likely take two more rounds in the 60s-for someone to walk away with the $350,000 first prize.

Tiger Woods, whose round included a double bogey when he needed two shots to get out of a bunker on No. 14, shot a 74 and was at even-par 144, nine strokes back.

While Couples and Mattiace avoided the water, the Memorial could not avoid the rain that haunts the tournament. When a thunderstorm stopped play for 1 1/2 hours it was the 14th time in 28 rounds over the last nine years that a round in the tournament had been delayed, interrupted or canceled because of rain.

Couples led the Masters 41/2 away with a ball in the water on No. 13 in the last round and lost the Byron Nelson when he splashed a shot on No. 17 on Sunday, both times with errant 6-iron shots.

Learn to reject rejection

Andrea recently tried out for the top choir at her high school. She didn't make it.

"Of course, that's OK with me. She's still one of my all-time favorite singers, along with her big sister Amy Jo, her voice teacher Shauna and Nat King Cole. I've already asked her to sing at my funeral (which may come sooner than expected if she reads this). I don't care what choir she's in."

But Andrea does care. No matter how hard she tries to act otherwise. I know that she's disappointed. So I tried to comfort her by telling her about Abraham Lincoln, who lost more elections than he won.

VALUESPEAK Joseph Walker

"But this wasn't an election, Dad," she said. "This was a teacher who I respect evaluating my talent and saying that I'm not good enough."

So I told her how Fred Astaire was once dismissed by a talent scout who said of him, "Balding, not much of a singer, can dance a little."

"But Fred Astaire could go to another studio where they appreciated his talent," she said. "That is the only choir like this at my high school."

So I told her about Wilbur and Orville Wright, who invited dozens of acquaintances to watch them fly into history at Kitty Hawk. Only a handful came.

"But the Wright brothers could fly anyway and prove everyone wrong," she said. "I can't just go force my way into the choir."

So I told her about my week, which included rejection notices from two synodical services, a "thanks-but-no-thanks" letter from a job for which I had high hopes and a book signing party at which I was asked to sign a grand total of ... let's see, what was that number? Oh yes. Zero books.

It didn't help. And by the time I was through with my litany of rejection, I was depressed.

And not just for me. To tell you the truth, I've grown accustomed to rejection. Sure, it stings a little. Sometimes it stings a lot. But I've learned that the sting eventually fades away, and that there is very little that a good night's sleep - or a good meal or a good movie - can't help you to forget.

But watching my children face rejection is another thing altogether. Like most parents, my natural inclination is to try to protect my kids from life's vicissitudes. But you and I both know that that's impossible. Everyone experiences rejection sometimes. Great actors have lost great roles. Great writers have received rejection notices. Great athletes have been cut or traded. Great scientists have heard their theories ridiculed. Great cooks have been asked to pass the ketchup.

And even if we could protect our children from all trauma, it probably wouldn't be the right thing to do. Life is about learning and growing and the sad reality is we probably learn more from the bad stuff that happens to us than we do from the good stuff. It keeps us humble - and hungry. It's only when we allow rejection to discourage us from trying that it is fatal to our dreams and aspirations. But if we take the pain and frustration of rejection and channel it into renewed determination to achieve our goals by working harder and more effectively, it can actually turn out to be a positive thing.

It worked that way for Babe Ruth, whose best years came after he was rejected by the Red Sox and traded to the Yankees. It worked that way for Albert Einstein, whose world-changing discoveries came after he was rejected by school teachers who thought he was peculiar. It worked that way for Margaret Mitchell, who finally published "Gone With the Wind" after being rejected by dozens of potential publishers. And I suspect it will work that way for Andrea.

Whether she makes the top choir next year or not.

Coalition of ministers go on the move in Magic Valley

TWIN FALLS - "How good it is, how pleasant, where people (of God) dwell as one ... there the Lord has lavished blessing - life for evermore."

That's the mission statement of the Evangelical Ministers Coalition, organized to bring together evangelical churches that emphasize salvation by faith in Jesus Christ. The mission statement comes from Psalms 133.

The coalition took root in January, when the Rev. Michael Giordano contacted ministers in the Magic Valley and asked them to join him in his work. He talked to 31 people representing 12 churches from Twin Falls, Gooding, Jerome and Burley.

"What I have to share is not my vision, it is God's vision or heart," said Giordano, who preached in Utah, but

THE GREAT RACE

Coast-to-coast event has spiritual side, chaplain says

By H.R. Weikel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - The greatest race for all mankind is the race of life, and the finish line is out of this world.

The "Greatest Americana Race" (Great Race), set to begin next week, is a race of accuracy with participants driving vintage automobiles across the United States to a finish line in Haverhill, Mass. - with a lunch stop in Jerome and a pit stop in Burley.

In both races, God is in the driver's seat, according to the Rev. Wayne Hoag, race chaplain and announcer. Hoag is a 1969 Filer High School graduate who now pastors the Sierra Bible Church in Truckee, Calif.

The first Great Race was held in 1983, when Tom McRae and his friend Curtis Graf envisioned a vintage car race that would stretch across the nation with stops in "good ol' American" cities and farming communities. Norm "Bubba" Miller, chairman of Interstate Batteries, was "dragged into the partnership," and the race was on.

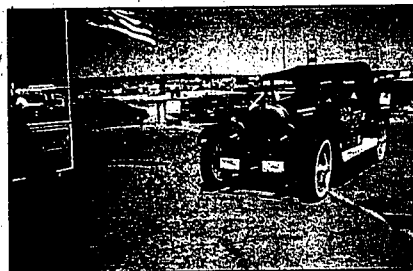

"We immediately prayed, commending the race to God, asking him to stop us if it wasn't in his will, and the rest is history," McRae said.

In 1984, McRae called Hoag when he was pastoring in Moab, Utah, and asked him to be the announcer for the race shows and events. The minister had broadcast high school sports for about 20 years.

Hoag said in a telephone interview, "I jumped at the chance to work with the Great Race, and have been 'great racing' ever since. In the past four years I've traveled more than 18,000 miles with the race, introducing cars, drivers and navigators to millions who live along American highways ... I've felt chills go up and down my spine as 50,000 voices join together in the singing of 'God Bless America. I've watched thousands of people bow their heads as I've led them in prayer. I've heard the streets reverberate with amens at the close of those prayers. This annual event has given me the chance to share the gospel and minister to people who otherwise might not have a Christian influence in their lives."

Hoag, son of Arthur and Pauline Hoag of Filer, served as youth pastor at the Magic Valley Christian Center in Twin Falls for three years before his move to California. This year, he will conduct a Focus on the Family pastor's conference when the Great Race makes a stop over Kansas City.

Focus on the Family traditionally enters a car in the race, Hoag said. The car is usually donated and then sold after the race, with proceeds going toward

Focus on the Families ministries.

The goal of the Great Race is not to finish the course the fastest, but to drive it in exactly the time allotted - it's a controlled driving contest. The exact course is a secret, so racers cannot practice before they begin. Drivers and navigators are given directions during the 14-day event as they traverse the 4,000-mile route.

As a motto, members of the race staff use Proverbs 16: 9: "In his heart a man plans his course, but the Lord determines his steps."

McRae said in a press release, "For some of us the Great Race has to do with life itself and not just antique cars. You may be one who is struggling with poor health, poor self-esteem, impossible relationships or other serious personal problems. For me, years ago, it was an addiction.

He continued, "Six years before the first Great Race, I was in the thick of another race, one of life or death. In July of 1976 it was done, washed up, addicted to marijuana and alcohol. I became manic-depressive and may have well killed myself if not for my wife, Sandi, and some life-saving events."

McRae tells others of his struggles and of praying the sinners' prayer, reading the Bible and visiting a "Christian shrink."

He concludes, "Jesus is the Son of God and he died for each of us, paying the penalty for our sins. Are you unhappy with your life? God is in the business of changing lives. He changed mine; he will change yours. He not only rescued me from a horrible life. He also gave me the Great Race."

The 1998 Great Race (also called the History Channel Great Race), is sponsored by the History Channel. It begins Sunday at Union Station in Tacoma, Wash. The pre-1951 cars, trucks and motorcycles will converge on Boise for a night show Monday, then on to the visitors center in Mountain Home. The restored vehicles will begin to arrive in Jerome about 9 a.m. Tuesday, with the other 75 racers arriving right behind the leader. The pit stop in Burley will be held at the Riverfront Marina.

Hoag and a number of entertainers will welcome the racers.

"The Great Race is a family affair," he explained. "Families run it, families race in it, families by the thousands come out to see it. This event fills me with hope - family values, grounded in faith, still live on."

Reporter comes with a godly side

The Associated Press

WOODBRIDGE, N.J. - When they called a staff meeting to announce that Gannett Co. had bought the local newspaper, the Home News Tribune, Michael Riley broke the tension.

"I'll be holding a prayer vigil at my desk," he announced.

There was much laughter. Because while Riley is a feature writer and columnist for the central New Jersey daily, he has a second calling. He is minister at the Shelton Baptist Church in Edison, N.J.

On weekdays, he juggles story assignments and pastoral responsibilities. On Sundays, he's in the pulpit.

The two worlds are not always in sync. A half dozen families have left his congregation because they disapproved of things he had written at the paper. And at least at first, his fellow reporters and editors did not know quite what to make of this man of the cloth in their midst.

"It is different having an ordained clergyman in the newsroom," says religion writer Monique Parsons.

But then, the 40-year-old Riley is no clerical stereotype. His conversation is not without expletives. He writes frankly and intimately about sex and about his own weaknesses.

Even his path to the pulpit was unusual. "I was pretty much a 16-year-old atheist," he recalls. But then there was a girl in history class - a "really, really, really good-looking girl" - who happened to be really good.

Guns, revenge carry a seductive power

COMMENTARY

By Lauren R. Stanley Knight Ridder News Service

really frustrated me. I was only playing a computer game, to be sure, but that game... I was only about five minutes... sure made me feel better. Because I had gotten my revenge. The incident started when my parents flew in for a visit. The airline on which they were flying quite simply "lost" the flight, and for 90 minutes, I ran all over the airport with a friend of mine, trying to find my parents. For every minute I was a very frustrated and worried daughter, angry at both the airline and the airport, neither of which was user-friendly. Later that evening, my friend was playing a computer game. I was so frustrated, I asked him to put in a certain game that has to do with this particular airport. A game in which terrorists are running rampant, and my job, as the player, is to shoot as many of them as possible. I was so frustrated with this particular airport game in which terrorists are running rampant, and my job, as the player, is to shoot as many of them as possible. I was so frustrated that all I wanted to do was get my revenge on the airport. So I pointed the computer's gun at the screen, shot a whole bunch of people, and felt a whole lot better.

I had been seduced by the power of revenge. Now, in light of the shootings in Oregon, I have vowed never again to succumb to the power of even acting out fantasies of revenge. True, there is a world of difference between "shooting" and "killing" people in a computer game and shooting and killing people in a high school cafeteria. And not everyone who plays computer games or who has guns and fires guns goes out and does what Kinkiel is charged with doing: Murdering people. But both guns and revenge are highly seductive. And sometimes, it can be hard to resist the seduction. Like so many others right now who are trying to figure out what this awful event took place, I am left to wonder: Would these killings, and all the other killings, have taken place if guns had not been so easily available? Would Kinkiel and all those others who have acted out their fantasies of revenge by using real guns and real bullets have injured any people if it had been harder for them to get those guns and bullets? I don't know why Kinkiel acted as he did last week in a small town in Oregon. I can't explain these shootings, or any of the other thousands of shootings that take place every day in this country. But I think I know some small part of the reason. Because I know both the seductive power of guns, and I know the seductive power of acting out fantasies of revenge.

Ministers Coalition brings gospel to park

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Park will ring out with music from the Evangelical Ministers Coalition presents a Gospel in the Park festival next week. The festival will feature hymn drama, puppetry, instrumental groups, praise bands and worship teams from many Magic Valley churches. The gospel singing group "Just Us" will be the headliner. Deana Wadsworth and Bruce Broyer, vocalists and guitar players, join Corey Wadsworth who plays the bass guitar. Songs will include "I'll Fly Away," "I Saw the Light" and "Put Your Hand in the Hand of the Man." The Salvation Army puppeteers will use music to bring biblical truths to life. The puppet team is part of the Salvation Army's "The Hand of the Man." Youth pastor Marcey Hofschneider said, "Our main goal is to get out the gospel and to reach people who don't go to church." The puppets — Debbie, Slick Chick, Grandpa Marthew, Mr. James and Mr. Thomas — sing along with tapes and use sub-doctrines, interceding in prayer for each local community and breaking down the walls of isolationism as purposes emphasized by the coalition. What is the Evangelical Ministers Coalition doing to do means to tear down denominational barriers," said the Rev. Pam Rose of Jerome's St. Ann's church. Church apologizes after offending Jews

The Seattle Times SEATTLE — The elders of Overlake Christian Church apologized to the area's Jewish community for a statement warning against gossip and rumors. The warning referred to hearsay swirling around allegations of sexual misconduct made against the Rev. Bob Moorehead, the church's senior pastor, who resigned May 17 while denying any wrongdoing. The church's original statement, which a number of Jewish people said they found offensive, included this: "Gossip and hearsay can never be used to determine guilt or innocence. Today, his column appears weekly in the Ethics section of the Home News Tribune, and it may soon find its way into many other Gannett newspapers. It is often humorous, and is drawn across edge, and Riley often draws readers to an unexpected religious point. He has written about his mother — how she was not a good mother, and how he has grappled

He has written about how, despite the flu, he had to get milk from the grocery store — only to be caught in the checkout line from hell: "People annoy me, milk cartons, and English speakers, friends, enemies, and club-footed women. The whole sorry lot of them. But sometimes — they annoy — they hell out of me. Literally. I thank God for them, because they remind me to be nicer and more gentle as I make my way in the world." # Utah couple spends decades in attempt to debunk Mormonism

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Sandra and Jerald Tanner's quest fit the times: They were fumbling into adulthood in the early '60s, brash and full of big ideas. They weren't war protesters or hippies, though their rebellion was more personal.

The fifth generation Mormons — Sandra was 10 and Jerald 20 when they met in 1959 — concluded that Mormonism's 19th century founder, Joseph Smith, was a fraud and the religion he created a sham.

And, breaking the church doubters' code of silence, the firebrands began broadcasting their convictions first in mimeographed handouts to dismayed family members and eventually around the world through a newsletter, pamphlets and more than 40 books.

At the same time, they began ferreting out and publishing early Mormon documents, newspapers, diaries and books they believed proved their case.

More than 30 years later, the evangelical Christian Tanners are recognized for their trove of documents. They're loved by those who seek anti-Mormon literature and grudgingly respected by many Mormon scholars for their painstaking and accurate research, if not for their interpretations.

Their Utah Lighthouse Ministry and its bookstore have become a chief resource for the faithful interested in early Mormonism as well as the disillusioned looking to get out.

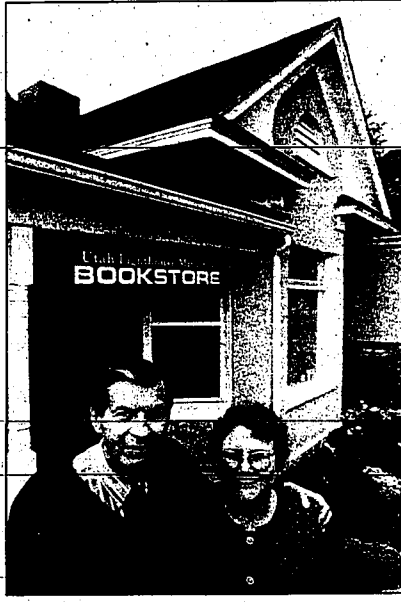

"The Tanners, pound for pound, year after year, have been the most successful opponents of the church," said Daniel C. Peterson, professor of Islamic studies and Arabic at Brigham Young University. "I don't mean it as a compliment."

Sandra Tanner, the public speaker of the duo, was one of the experts the Southern Baptists turned to last year when they created the video "The Mormon Puzzle" to explain the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints to Baptists. She also will present a workshop about Mormonism for the first time when some 10,000 come here next month for their annual meeting.

"The Tanners have caused a lot of Mormon historians to do better homework," said Elbert Peck, editor of the Mormon-interest periodical Sunstone.

Yet, Peck notes, the Tanners' evangelical agenda colors their interpretation of the church's history. "They're one-sided in their approach. They believe the Mormon church is wrong and they are doing research to prove that," he says.

The Tanners see it quite differently. "It was like God had given us a burden to share with them that they had been misled and betrayed," says Sandra, a great-granddaughter of Brigham Young. "The church isn't worthy of their devotion."

The Tanners met in the spring of 1959, when Sandra, raised in Southern California, was visiting her grandmother in Salt Lake City. Tanners had been on a pilgrim's pilgrimage to Independence, Mo., where he talked to members of offshoot Mormon religions and became convinced that Smith and later prophets were corrupt.

The two married in June of that year, and were excommunicated within a couple of years of asking that their names be stricken from church membership rolls. They turned to the Christian Missionary Alliance, where they remain active today.

They also launched their own ministry — to put on microfilm and later into print obscure historical documents. Within two years, Jerald gave up his full-time machinist's job.

One episode in the mid-1980s, more than any other, changed how the Tanners were perceived by Mormon intellectuals. It was Jerald's conclusion that the so-called "white salamander letter" was a forgery while other historians, including those employed by the church, considered it an authentic historical document.

After Mark Hofmann killed two people with pipe bombs in 1985 in a failed attempt to cover that and others of his forgeries, Jerald and Sandra helped investigators and reporters piece together the case.

The fact that the Tanners debunked a document that could have hurt the church showed their integrity, said Peterson.

"We had three little babies. They were meager years," recalls Sandra.

They bought a home in 1964 in a down-and-out Salt Lake neighborhood, and operated the bookstore from their front parlor until expanding next door three years ago.

God, Allen points out. Ironically, the search for the historical Jesus has yielded a figure who isn't historical at all, and to whom historical reality is quite irrelevant.

Next showing of Shroud of Turin set for year 2000

TURIN, Italy (AP) — The Shroud of Turin, which has drawn more than 13 million visitors since April, will go on display again in the year 2000.

The 2000 display of the linen, which many believe had wrapped the body of Jesus after his crucifixion, is part of the Roman Catholic Church's celebration of Christianity's third millennium.

Two million people are expected to view the shroud before its current, two-month showing ends June 14. The cloth bears the faded image of a man and wounds similar to those suffered by Jesus.

Pope John Paul II was among those who came to Turin's cathedral. During his visit Sunday, he urged scientists to do more tests on the cloth.

Results of carbon-14 testing 30 years ago indicated the cloth dated to the 13th or 14th century, but some experts say contamination might have skewed the results.

Gambling commands most attention of American entertainment dollars

More people in Illinois can mark the day in 1994 when a working-class guy named Mike Wittrock turned up as the single winner of a $40 million Loto jackpot. For a culture that thrives on the lure of the quick score, few things seem as pure and easy as plucking down $1 for a shot at winning millions against nearly impossible odds. That notion has been reinforced dramatically this week as the multi-state Powerball jackpot has soared to $175 million for a single winner in Wednesday night's drawing. Most state lotteries were sold to voters on the promise that the money would provide badly needed funding for education. Other gaming outlets such as riverboat casinos and racetracks were depicted as ready sources of tax revenue and engines of economic development for cash-strapped governments and communities. Now, as a federal commission convenes in Chicago, gambling is being described as the single largest source for the national entertainment dollar. As the industry has flourished nationwide, it has become a honey pot for political campaign donations and could supplant the tobacco industry as a lobbying power in Washington. But as legal gambling has spread, so too have concerns about its overall impact, both social and economic, raising the question of whether the gaming industry might be subject to scrutiny in the same way that the tobacco industry has been. The National Gambling Impact Study Commission, established in 1996, is charged with trying to determine whether the promised benefits from gambling have been realized, and to assess the attendant social and financial costs. It also is examining how gambling is advertised and promoted, focusing on whether lower-income groups are targeted, and how new technologies like the Internet function as gambling outlets.

The commission is packed on one side with strong opponents of gambling, such as James Dobson, president of Focus on the Family, a Christian-medical ministry. But the panel also includes gambling executives such as Terrence Lanni, chairman of the casino giant MGM Grand Inc.

Though their differences on gambling appear irreconcilable, the commission members are expected to produce a report for President Clinton and Congress by June 1999.

Dobson's views on gambling are rarely hidden. At the recent National Day of Prayer held in Washington, he labeled gambling as a potent marker of the nation's moral decline.

"When I was a kid, people understood that gambling was dangerous," Dobson said. Now, he said, it is marketed almost as a "patriotic duty."

In an interview later, he said, "Many, many leaders of the House and Senate are taking huge contributions from gambling... It's a major concern to me because knowing how the system works, those who give big dollars get access and a lot of times get their way."

In this election cycle, the gaming industry has made more than $1 million in "soft money" contributions to the Republican and Democratic parties, according to the non-partisan Center for Responsive Politics.

Frank Fahrenkopf Jr., president of the American Gaming Association, says critics have for years tried to make the argument that gambling is morally wrong. But he added that when Americans balked at that assertion, opponents "shifted their focus" to economic and social costs.

Fahrenkopf's studies conducted by the gaming association and other, more independent institutions show that critics are exaggerating the social costs of gambling and that the activity provides direct economic benefits to communities.

Survey: West paces way in hot hiring fever

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Businesses are expecting to hire workers this summer at the highest levels seen in 20 years, according to a survey by a temporary employment placement company.

The hiring plans reported in the survey should help keep unemployment at its lowest level in nearly 30 years.

The Midwest and West topped the nation's employment regions, with wholesalers and retailers there expecting more hiring than at any time in the survey's 22-year history. Transportation companies and public utilities were also planning the highest staffing levels in almost 20 years.

Thirty-two percent of businesses surveyed by Manpower Inc. said they intend to increase their work force, 59 percent said they would hire current staffing levels and only 5 percent expect to cut back. The rest were unsure.

The last time the outlook was as bright was in the third quarter of 1978, when 34 percent of surveyed firms said they expected to hire workers and 6 percent planned cuts.

The results of the latest survey, conducted during the last two weeks of April, confirm a trend. In both the third quarter last year and the second quarter of 1997, 30 percent of businesses planned to increase their payrolls and 5 percent expected them to decrease.

Dow loses 70 points; Asia halts rebound

The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue-chip stocks fell Friday, halting the recovery from this week's sell-off, as investors bid up smaller companies with less exposure to an increasing number of overseas crises.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 70.25 to 8,899.95 despite an early 56-point surge back above 9,000.

The decline capped a volatile week in which the Dow lost 214.49 points as the latest wave of Asian jitters sent the bluechip barometer plunging 150 points on Tuesday and as much as 175 points on Wednesday. A late rally erased most of Wednesday's losses, but the rebound quickly lost momentum as a budding nuclear-arms race between India and Pakistan complicated an Asian backdrop already wracked by economic and political instability.

The broad market was mixed Friday, with those indexes dominated by smaller companies advancing for a second straight session.

Yeltsin targets tax dodgers

International Monetary Fund endorses Russian strategy

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin announced a crackdown on Russia's millions of tax dodgers Friday as part of a broad strategy to fill empty government coffers and pull the country out of its financial mess.

The International Monetary Fund swiftly endorsed Yeltsin's program and said Russia should be able to weather the current storm even without the kind of bailout package arranged for beleaguered Asian economies.

The Russian stock market finished down 3.8 percent Friday, the ruble was slightly weaker, and Moody's, the international credit rating service, warned of an increased risk that Russia will default on bond payments. The developments all indicated that the financial system is still on shaky ground, but the panic selling from earlier in the week seemed to have stopped.

As for now, I think the government's strategy and measures will stabilize markets," John O'Ding-Smee, a senior IMF official, told a news conference.

The IMF said it would recommend the release of a delayed, $700 million loan installment to Russia, part of an existing package.

"The government's worst nightmare is that the ruble will collapse, forcing prices up. Russia has been plagued by Russian inflation for much of the 1990s, and fresh price hikes would hit all Russians and undo years of government efforts to bring inflation under control.

So far, the latest crisis has been limited to the financial markets, and the government wants to ensure that ordinary Russians do not start feeling the pain.

The ruble has come under great pressure, but the Central Bank has strained to prop it up.

A currency devaluation "can and should be avoided," O'Ding-Smee said.

The Russian government would like to avoid a bailout deal because it would imply the economy is in deep trouble. However, many foreign investors would be soothed to see Russia receive some sort of aid from Western governments or loans from large Western banks.

Meanwhile, Yeltsin pressed ahead with a confidence-building campaign he launched earlier in the week.

He fired the head of Russia's tax-service and replaced him with former Finance Minister Boris Fyodorov. The president also signed a decree making it easier for tax inspectors to seize property from tax debtors.

South Africa's military gets its 1st black leader

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Former anti-apartheid guerrilla became the first black to head South Africa's military on Friday, receiving a ceremonial sword and a salute from his white predecessor.

Newly Inducted Chief of the South African National Defense Force General Siphiwe Nyanda takes the salute for the first time at a ceremony in Pretoria Friday.

Military jets, transport planes and attack helicopters roared overhead as Gen. Siphiwe Nyanda took over command of a military that sought to kill him when he commanded African National Congress guerrillas just a few years ago.

Speaking to President Nelson Mandela, the country's first black president, and other dignitaries at a military base outside the capital, Nyanda struck a tone of conciliation. It would be tragic, he said, if white South African soldiers felt they were no longer important.

He reassured whites that he didn't want affirmative action to be "misinterpreted as an undermining of their role and importance in the future."

Once past imbalances are redressed — currently, most low-ranking soldiers are black, while most officers are white — appointments will be made on merit, Nyanda promised. Racism in the military will be dealt with

Congress proclaims leader

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The Philippine Congress declared Joseph Estrada the winner of presidential elections in a speedy proclamation Friday taken as a sign power will be transferred peacefully to the opposition.

Estrada, a college dropout who made it big as a B-movie actor before switching to politics, thanked his supporters, "especially the Philippine masses."

The declaration came a day after Estrada's main rival, House Speaker Jose de Venecia, conceded defeat in the race to succeed President Fidel Ramos. It came 18 days after the May 11 vote — record time for top Philippine elections.

"De Venecia congratulated Estrada as members of Congress cheered loudly. "We have set an example, an enlightened example," he said.

Habibe allows new political parties

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President B.J. Habibie loosened the tightly controlled political structure he inherited a week ago, saying Friday that Indonesia would now allow formation of new political parties.

The move addresses a key demand of the 1998 "Reform" protesters and riots ended the 32-year reign of Habibie's predecessor, Suharto; that the government give average Indonesians a political voice they have never had.

Suharto's restriction last week amid economic and political crisis has given Habibie an opportunity to overhaul Indonesia's political system, which has been widely criticized.

He already has vowed to change electoral laws so that elections can be held in 1999.

On Friday, he agreed to ease restrictions on the formation of political parties. Under Suharto, Indonesia had only three officially recognized parties, and those who tried to set up unofficial ones were imprisoned.

Candidates were allowed to take votes by government officials, who also scrutinized their party's policies.

In a speech to Islamic leaders, Habibie insisted that the political system would be based up under his government. But he said new parties would have to follow the constitution and the formal national philosophy of Pancasila, both adopted in 1945.

The president also mandates a belief in God and respect for the tenets of humanity, national unity, democracy and social justice.

Habibie also said parties should not be based on racial, ethnic or religious platforms that would antagonize other groups in society.

"The government, in principle, has no intention of limiting or restricting people from forming political parties. There can be as many as they want," Habibie said.

University of Indonesia political scientist Arbi Sanit suggested Friday that many political factions would seize the chance to form parties, raising the possibility of coalitions being formed in a new Parliament.

Several new political parties already have been proposed in the days since Suharto's ouster. Some are to be based on factions within the existing three parties, including the ruling Golkar party, which Suharto had led.

Labor groups, suppressed under Suharto, have formed a new party. And on Friday, a women's party, Partai Perempuan, was founded.

"This law resolves nothing," said conservative lawmaker Thierry Mariani.

French National Assembly passes gun law

PARIS (AP) — Spurred by rising violence in France's National Assembly on Friday approved a law limiting handgun ownership and limiting it to hunters and collectors.

"It's time to put a stop to individual arms and reaffirm that the state alone must keep the monopoly on violence," said the author of the bill, Socialist deputy Bruno Le Roux.

The law, which must be approved by the Senate, passed with votes from the leftist coalition and over conservative opposition.

It bans "arms of defense," including handguns and rifles except those licensed for hunting. Anyone buying ammunition must show their hunting registration.

It remains to be seen how the law will be enforced; it places much of the burden on vendors to verify and register their customers.

Russian government finds funds to stay in space station

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia has found the funds to continue participating in an international space station, the country's top space official said Saturday, a day after warning financial problems may force Russia to drop.

"Russia retains its commitment to the international space station project and will certainly carry out its share of ownership and limiting it to hunters and collectors."

"It's time to put a stop to individual arms and reaffirm that the state alone must keep the monopoly on violence," said the author of the bill, Socialist deputy Bruno Le Roux.

The law, which must be approved and Deputy Prime Minister Boris Nemtsov, the ITR-Tass news agency reported. Just hours earlier, the Cabinet had rejected Koptev's plea for more money.

The first part of the space station, a Russian-manufactured propulsion system, is supposed to be launched in November. Russia's contributions to the station have been delayed repeatedly because of financial problems.

The 16 countries taking part in the program are to meet this weekend at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida. The project will cost well into the tens of billions of dollars. Russia this year is responsible for $240 million in expenses.

Nemtsov said today that there were "certain extra-budgetary sources" to support Russia's participation, ITR-Tass said.

As of next year, he said, funding for the international space station will come from a "special budget section." He did not elaborate.

Koptev said a module to house the crew, which Russia is also building, was more than 90 percent ready. But work has been delayed because Russia's space industry received only half the funds it was promised last year, he said.

Ortega sexual abuse charges test Nicaraguan crime treatment

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A stepdaughter's tale of sexual abuse by former President Daniel Ortega has become a test of how sexual crimes are treated in a middle-income Central American country.

Koptev made the announcement after a meeting Thursday night with Finance Minister Mikhail Zadornov.

The personalities and circumstances involved added to the case. The stepdaughter is the leader of the Sandinista National Liberation Front that overthrew dictator Anastasio Somoza in 1979. He was the leader of the young guerrillas that overthrew Somoza to the applause of most Nicaraguans and much of the rest of the world.

They changed a conservative Nicaraguan society, loosening the tight bonds of traditional morality with a wave of sexual liberation that gave women a significant new political role.

"They could do nothing wrong," said sociologist Oscar René Vargas, "they were the darlings of Nicaraguan society. Women loved them."

But the Sandinistas' leftist ideology and radical economic measures, the U.S. support of armed rebels and the Sandinistas' own corruption frustrated many Nicaraguans. In 1990, they were voted out of power.

Only a week ago, Ortega was re-elected party leader, despite the controversy over his stepdaughter's claims.

Zolimerica Ortega Murillo, 30, is the daughter of Ortega's wife Rosario Murillo, who accompanied him in his days of exile in Costa Rica.

Ms. Ortega filed a criminal complaint Wednesday claiming Ortega had molested her since she was 11. In her account, Ms. Ortega said he would masturbate while spying on her in the shower and would come to her bed at night and fondle her. She said she forced her to have sex with a third person while he watched.

In 40 pages of testimony, Ms. Ortega said that she saw her stepfather, who adopted her in 1986, both as her aggressor and as her protector as she grew distant from her mother.

She said the sexual abuse continued after her marriage and the birth of her two children, lasting until the went public with her charges in March.
