Some question whether Clinton can lead a moral authority process

Knight Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — Fifteen months after he launched his initiative to improve race relations, President Clinton on Friday delivered the kind of heartfelt plea for national healing that he once hoped would help create his legacy.

"We must bridge the opportunity gaps, we must build an America where discrimination is something you have to look in the history books to find," Clinton said.

The battle must be fought on a number of fronts, he said, including schools, workplaces and minds.

But as Clinton received recommendations from his advisory board and pledged to carry forth the effort, questions remained over whether a president crippled by a sex scandal could effectively lead a process that requires a level of moral authority.

His advisers, led by board chairman and historian John Hope Franklin, insist the president remains credible on the subject of race no matter what else is going on in his life.

"I make a distinction," Franklin said in an interview.

President Clinton holds a copy of his Race Advisory Board's report, entitled "Changing America," during a ceremony in the Old Executive Office Building in Washington, D.C., Friday.

The scandal generated by Clinton's affair with former White House intern Monica Lewinsky "doesn't have anything to do with my confidence in the president's sincerity about this."

Judith Winston, executive director of the initiative, said that despite the scandal, Clinton has credibility on the race issue "that is without parallel."

"My concern is that the people who need to be paying attention will pay attention to this," she said.

Certainly, Clinton demonstrated Friday his unusual ability to isolate his personal problems from his policy goals.

Though he has appeared drawn of late, he seemed fully engaged when he spoke to members of Congress, his Cabinet and government and private officials who have devoted time to resolving racial problems.

Woman gains freedom after prison officials err

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A 58-year-old woman who was jailed last year when prison officials discovered she never served a manslaughter sentence imposed 16 years ago was set free Friday.

"Life is going to be good," Lorena Randlely said. "I'm going to find me a church and I'm going to get in that church and I'm going to serve God."

Ms. Randlely was sentenced in 1981 to eight years in prison for shooting her boyfriend to death. But because of a bureaucratic mix-up she never arrived at the prison. She continued to live quietly at home and never hid from the law.

Finally, a tip led prison officials to the forgotten conviction's door in May 1997, and Ms. Randlely was being serving time ever since.

On Friday, Ms. Randlely's sentence was commuted by a state clemency board to time served, and her lawyer argued that she had essentially served probation at home all these years.

"She never left the jurisdiction," Stacey Dougan said. "Indeed, she lived an exemplary life for those 16 years, dedicating herself to raising five grandchildren."

Prosecutors had argued that despite the mix-up, Ms. Randlely had a duty to turn herself in. But her lawyer said Ms. Randlely's conviction was not fair, since evidence of sexual abuse at the hands of the victim should have been introduced as a defense at her trial.

After being convicted of shooting Hartman Delano Poitier, Ms. Randlely was released on bail pending an appeal. The appeal was denied in 1982.

However, the letter notifying Ms. Randlely that she should go to jail went to the wrong address. So for the next 16 years she raised her children, helped raise her grand-children, went to church and spent many hours sitting on her front porch. Her daughter even worked as a dispatcher for the police.

Five children charged with raping 6-year-old

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Five children between the ages of 8 and 14 have been charged with raping a 6-year-old girl, police said.

The children, four boys — ages 8, 11, 13, and 14 — and a 12-year-old girl, pleaded innocent to delinquency by reason of rape at a preliminary hearing Wednesday in Summit County Juvenile Court.

The children raped the girl numerous times at different locations over the summer, Sgt. Dave Van Pelt said.

The girl was visiting the area and was friends with at least one of the children, Van Pelt said. She eventually told relatives of the attacks. Police do not yet know what led to the repeated rapes.

The children did know the gravity of the situation. They knew what they were doing," Van Pelt said. "This was not a childhood prank."

FTC cites 3 makers of head lice treatments for false claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three makers of head lice treatments were cited for false claims by the Federal Trade Commission on Friday and ordered to make clear that their products are not 100 percent effective on a single application.

The companies, Del Pharmaceuticals Inc., Pfizer Inc. and Care Technologies Inc., were told to state in future advertising that effectiveness depends on a second application and removal of lice eggs with a special comb.

"With head lice infestations, parents and care givers must be able to trust the ads they see for over the counter treatments," said Jodie Bernstein, head of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection.

The proposed orders would require that for the next two years Del's "Promo" shampoo, Pfizer's "Rite" in advertising, "Clear," state in advertising. "Reapplication and egg removal are required to ensure complete effectiveness."

Television ads should include the words "Two treatments required," the FTC said.

Former Sen. Bob Dole releases book about the humor of politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Irreverence is in my blood," says Bob Dole, who has written a book aimed at proving that he's not the only politician with a sense of humor.

Dole's humor was on display in 1996, when he was running unsuccessfully for president, and among the politicians Bob Dole quotes in his book is Bob Dole.

Including his quip when former Presidents Carter, Ford and Nixon stood side by side at a White House event.

"There they are," Dole said. "See no evil, hear no evil and ... evil!"

His book, just published by Doubleday, is called "Great Political Wit" and costs $16.95. It is a little book. It measures 7 1/2 inches by 5 1/2 inches. It has big type and 190 pages. It weighs 10.3 ounces.

Dole takes much of his humor out of the mouth of others who've lost the presidency. He quotes William Howard Taft as reflecting upon his 1912 defeat for reelection in a three-way race. He says that Taft said he took some consolation in knowing that no man in American history had ever been elected ex-president by such an overwhelming majority.

He quotes what Richard Nixon

"There they are. See no evil, hear no evil and ... evil!"

— Bob Dole, speaking about former Presidents Carter, Ford and Nixon, in his new book, "Great Political Wit."

In Dole's book, some of the best humor is self-deprecating. Taft weighed over 350 pounds and when he left the White House his alma mater, Yale, offered him a chair of law. Taft replied that a sofa of law would be more appropriate.

Former Arizona Rep. Morris Udall's presidential bug was squashed in the Democratic primaries of 1976. Fourteen years later, Udall was asked if he might run again and paraphrased William T. Sherman. "If nominated," the congressman said, "I will run to Mexico; if elected, I will fight extradition."

And he says that "it's not just a coincidence that the two most successful presidents of this century — Franklin Roosevelt and Ronald Reagan — are also the two who possessed the healthiest sense of humor about themselves and their job."

America is great, says Dole, "because anyone can grow up and make fun of the president."

FDA approves new AIDS treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — AIDS patients got an easier-to-swallow drug Friday as the Food and Drug Administration approved a new once-a-day medicine that offers the first good alternative for patients who cannot take today's best AIDS treatment.

DuPont Pharmaceuticals' Sustiva appears to be about as effective as protease inhibitors, the landmark medicines that have helped thousands of HIV patients rebound from their disease, the FDA said. And because it's taken only once daily, Sustiva could significantly cut the number of pills AIDS patients now swallow.

"It really gives some flexibility and some new options for patients," said Dr. Heidi Johnson, FDA's medical chief.

But the FDA warned that patients shouldn't race to switch to Sustiva if they're doing well on other AIDS medications.

The HIV virus relentlessly mutates to overcome drug treatment, meaning patients must take a drug until it quits working — not switching on the spur of the moment — so they don't exhaust all their options too quickly, stressed AIDS expert Anthony Fauci of the National Institutes of Health.

But for newly diagnosed patients, or those whose current cocktail of AIDS medications is failing or causing too many side effects, Sustiva offers a good option, he said.

The FDA approved Sustiva, known chemically as efavirenz, for both adults and children. It is to be taken with a protease inhibitor and/or older AIDS medicines.

The Sustiva portion of the cocktail will cost almost $4,000

Students at Murray State University rest in front of Hester Hall Friday morning in Murray, Ky., after a 2:30 a.m. fire forced the evacuation of some 300 students from the residential hall. One student was killed and another critically injured in the fire.

Arson fire in dormitory at Murray State University kills 1, injures 16

MURRAY, Ky. (AP) — An arson fire broke out at a college dormitory early Friday despite the presence of extra guards because of a blaze last weekend. One student was killed and 16 people were injured, one critically.

Michael H. Minger

The fire at Murray State University sent sleepy students scrambling for safety in their nightclothes. Firefighters rescued several students from windows of the eight-story building on the western Kentucky campus.

Susan Kirnchak, a spokeswoman for the state Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet, said that the fire was set and that police were searching for a suspect. Investigators did not say how the fire was started. The blaze broke out around 2:30 a.m. on the fourth floor, in the same area where a fire Sunday caused slight damage.

Investigators have not linked the two fires and said only that the cause of the earlier blaze is under investigation.

Michael H. Minger, 19, of Niceville, Fla., was killed. Another student, Michael W. Priddy, 21, of Paducah, was in critical condition with smoke inhalation and burns on his arms and back. Fourteen other students and a firefighter were also injured.

Firefighters banged on doors and windows to alert the dorm's 300 residents. "I just feel like a little orphan," said Kayce McKinis, a sophomore who fled her sixth-floor room barefoot and in her pajamas. "I don't have anything on me at all. I woke up and people were just banging on the doors."

The fire was confined to the fourth floor.

Clinton asks three prominent ministers to help him with 'accountability circle'

The Dallas Morning News

As he begins his journey toward redemption, President Clinton has asked three prominent Christian ministers to meet with him weekly for prayer and Scripture study.

Two of the ministers — the Rev. Tony Campolo, a prominent liberal Baptist college professor from Pennsylvania, and the Rev. Gordon MacDonald, senior pastor of a large evangelical church in Massachusetts — confirmed this week they will form an "accountability circle" to help the president wrestle with his temptations. The Rev. J. Philip Wogaman, the president's pastor at Foundry United Methodist Church in Washington, is reportedly the third pastor, though he has said it is "unseemly" for him to talk about or even confirm his role.

Accountability circles have a long history among evangelicals, particularly in the Southern Baptist churches Clinton has known since childhood. In the 1990s the circles were popularized by the Christian men's group Promise Keepers.

By most accounts, these groups work.

"It's taken me from being a person who was definitely involved in areas a Christian shouldn't be involved in to overcoming those," said David Ball, acting regional director of Promise Keepers in Arlington.

At Lake Pointe Baptist Church in Rockwall, about 200 men are involved in accountability groups. The groups started seven years ago as a branch of the 5,000-member church's men's ministry but have grown to include 200 women.

U.S. reaffirms interest in dialogue, improved relations with Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iran's Muslim fundamentalist government has failed to respond to overtures from the Clinton administration for improving relations, but U.S. interest in a dialogue was reaffirmed Friday by the State Department.

And while the United States is looking for changes in Iran's policies, "we have never made a change in their behavior a prerequisite for a meeting, and we're not changing that view," spokesman James P. Rubin said.

One of those hoped-for changes would be a halt in sponsorship of terrorism, which is annually attributed to Iran in State Department reports to Congress on terrorism.

Secretary of State Madeleine Albright will sit down next Monday in New York with Foreign Minister Kamal Kharrazi as part of an eight-nation conference sponsored by U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan on tensions between Iran and Afghanistan.

BOISE (AP) — Administrators at Idaho's colleges plan to offer more high-tech training and learning opportunities, but not at the expense of the traditional liberal arts education.

Bob Houser of the University of Idaho, Charles Ruck of Boise State University and James Hottolis of Lewis-Clark State College spoke to the City Club of Boise Thursday about how the high-tech job market is influencing how colleges educate students.

Despite sex offense, loophole allows day care to remain open

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — A residential day-care center that also is home to a convicted sex offender can continue to serve children even though the City Council has revoked its license.

A loophole in city law allows Bunny Business to continue to care for children because it has a city permit for a home business as well as the child-care license.

A center with six or less children does not need a day-care license as long as the operator has the business permit, Councilwoman Diane Reid said.

"Sometimes we don't know we have a loophole until someone walks through it," she said. "The idea that anyone would try to run a home day care with a convicted sex offender living there didn't enter anybody's mind."

The council will move as quickly as possible to change the law, she said. That would be Oct. 6 at the earliest.

The son of Bunny Business and owner Kathleen Traw has been convicted of lewd conduct with a minor, city officials learned last week. Court records show that Traw's son, now 16, had sexual contact with a 10-year-old between June and October 1997.

He pleaded guilty to the felony. Last week, Joseph Glenn Traw was sentenced to juvenile court to 180 days of detention, with all but 35 suspended, and two years of informal detention.

The court also ordered that Traw not be with children younger than 12 unless supervised by a parent.

Kathleen Traw, who has had a city day-care license since 1992, said the city unfairly is ruining her family's lives.

"I am devastated," she said. "My neighbors are all passing around the newspaper story. My son now is with a counselor, who says he's suicidal."

State honors former governor Smylie with parks and rec building dedication

BOISE (AP) — Former Gov. Robert Smylie was instrumental in creating the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation, and that agency's headquarters have been named after him.

His legacy in park development is the most outstanding of any Idahoan, Gov. Phil Batt said Friday in a surprise dedication ceremony. "Thus, it is highly appropriate that the Idaho Parks and Recreation Department headquarters be named for him."

Smylie came to Idaho as a student at the College of Idaho in Caldwell, now Albion College. He was deputy attorney general, and was appointed attorney general upon the death of Robert Altshie, and was elected to that office in 1950.

Smylie was the first and only state attorney general to become governor, in 1954. He served three consecutive terms.

In 1965, Smylie agreed to form the department as a condition of receiving the gift of land which is today's Harriman State Park. Despite initial legislative resistance, a bill was adopted setting the groundwork for Idaho's park system.

In 1965, Gen. Darrell Manning was the Democratic minority leader who introduced the parks department bill on behalf of Smylie.

Panhandle man to stand trial after shootout with deputies

SANDPOINT (AP) — A Bonner County sheriff's deputy has testified that while looking through his rifle scope, he saw Gary Crider smile as he leaned his shoulder into his own rifle to fire at him.

Crider, 47, has been ordered to stand trial on charges of attempted first-degree murder, aggravated battery and aggravated assault stemming from events in July.

Meanwhile, Crider's neighbor, 18-year-old Ricky Fisher, said he covered under a nearby bush as Crider shot round after round at the deputies.

"He didn't feel he could handle any prison time. That's why he decided to flee," testified Fisher, who helped Crider escape. "He figured he either was going to have to go to prison or have to go to war with the police."

At a Wednesday preliminary hearing, Magistrate Barbara Buchanan ordered Crider to stand trial.

He was allegedly running from officers because they tried to arrest him as a suspect in an aggravated battery and assault on July 9.

Crider is accused of slashing neighbor Dan Dunklee with a knife. Dunklee was picking berries with his family when Crider stopped and started to pick a fight with him.

"He came up to me with his right hand behind his back," Dunklee said. "Most of the time he's carrying a gun, so I thought there was a gun behind his back."

Fired Utah teacher faces rape charge

OGDEN, Utah (AP)—A Weber High School drama teacher has been fired and charged with sexually abusing several students.

David R. Weeks, 35, is charged with first-degree felony rape and second-degree felony forcible sexual abuse involving female students ages 16 and 17, unspecified.

Weeks has a pre-arrest hearing scheduled for Monday in 2nd District Court, where either a trial will be scheduled or a plea bargain announced.

The forcible sexual abuse charge is tied to a series of alleged fondling incidents last fall involving the 17-year-old girl, Weber County Sheriff's Detective Earl Cherry said.

Those incidents allegedly occurred in the teacher's car between September and December last year, Cherry said.

"He was giving her a lot of rides home," he said.

The victim in the case initially was reluctant to cooperate with authorities, having become involved romantically with Weeks, Cherry said.

"She thought she was in love with him," Cherry said.

The alleged rape of the 16-year-old girl occurred on March 31, according to court documents. The following month, Weeks was fired over the allegations.

Weber School District spokes-person said.

Weeks' criminal prosecution will be reviewed by the Professional Practices Committee in the Utah Office of Education once Weeks' criminal prosecution is completed, school district officials said.

Weeks' defense attorney, Ed Flint, said Friday that he expects his client to plead guilty to the charges Monday in a plea bargain reducing the first-degree felony to a second-degree felony.

"But he still could charge his client," Flint said, since the defense feels there is a question regarding the victim's consent in both cases.

"This is quite a tragedy for everybody. It's low on his career, he'll never teach again. And he's facing prison time."

Cherry said both victims reported getting the same overview from Weeks, who told them he was having trouble with his marriage and frequently thought about suicide.

He allegedly told both victims he'd had dreams about them in which they were married, Cherry said.

Deputy Weber County Attorney Rich Pannley said a petition of arrest was against a defendant in a forcible sexual abuse case. That crime, which is a second-degree felony, involves sexual contact that does not include rape or sodomy.

When the prosecutor has a petition of special arrest such as being a victim's school teacher, forcible sexual abuse is charged under law to be without consent, Pannley said.

Woman alleges baby switch, prepares to sue

AMERICAN FORK, Utah (AP)—An American Fork woman who contends that 23 years ago she was told her baby was stillborn and she was given the body of someone else's baby, has filed a suit of intent to sue.

Customized litigation attorney Catherine H. Hays filed the suit. Utah law requires 50 days notice be given to a health care provider before a lawsuit is filed. Then, the state Commerce Department provides a hearing panel of an attorney, health professionals and a layman to review the case. If the panel approves the case, suit may be filed.

Jess C. Jones, hospital spokesman, called Janet Johnson's filing premature because police have not concluded their investigation.

John Young, Johnson's attorney, said she learned this summer the baby she buried in 1975 was not hers after DNA testing. His body was found DNA testing.

Democrats question Republicans' commitment to INEEL

IDAHO FALLS (AP)—Idaho Democrats may use the U.S. Department of Energy's decision to not renew its contract with Lockheed Martin Idaho Technologies Co. as evidence the state's Republican delegation is not a strong supporter of the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory.

Democratic congressional candidates Richard Stallings and Bill Mark said Idaho's all-Republican delegation has burned too many bridges to get a receptive ear from the Clinton administration.

Both acknowledge they may not have been able to convince the Department of Energy to keep its contract with Lockheed Martin, but said the Republicans may be costing the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory new missions.

The Department of Energy announced Wednesday it would let two new companies compete for the multi-billion dollar contract to manage the lab.

The Republican delegation does a good enough job securing funding from Congress, but it must do more than that, said Stallings, who is running for Rep. Mike Crapo's 2nd District House seat.

"Congress is not going to be identifying new missions. DOE is, and DOE will determine where those missions are going to be located," he said.

"Virtually every national laboratory has a delegation where one or two are able to make a case for their facilities," Stallings said. But not so in Idaho, where the state's delegation is too often harshly criticizing the administration, he said.

Stallings, who served in Congress from 1985 through 1997, claims Republicans in other states, like New Mexico

Sen. Pete Domenici, work closely with the administration on some issues. The administration wants the favor by listening to Domenici when he is making the case for government jobs in New Mexico, he said.

"He's willing to work with the administration in a positive fashion," Stallings said, "but doesn't necessarily bash the administration, though he takes a shot when necessary, as expected."

Delegates say little about tapes

TWIN FALLS — The House Judiciary Committee's decision to release President Clinton's videotaped grand jury testimony generated little praise, but criticism, from Idaho's 40 Republican congressional delegation.

Specifically about the tape's release. "I know Helen's generally supportive," said Chad Hyslop, spokesman for Rep. Helen Chenoweth.

Chenoweth hopes the Judiciary Committee continues to ensure that what

Idaho's congressmen leave handling of Clinton's testimony to committee is released is pertinent and relevant to an impeachment case. Mike Tracy, Sen. Larry Craig's Boise representative, said just a handful of Democrats oppose the release. The senator, like a large majority, supports the decisions to release information. Rep. Mike Crapo hadn't talked about the committee's decision Friday with his spokeswoman Susan Wheeler. He voted last week to release special prosecutor Kenneth Starr's report, she said.

"The topic hasn't even come up in Sen. Dirk Kempthorne's Boise office. "We've been focused on other things this week," said spokesman Brian Whitlock.

Martin Fernandez, 21, consults with interpreter Paula Lynn in 5th District Court Friday. Fernandez was arraigned on first-degree murder charges with an enhanced charge for use of a deadly weapon. He faces life in prison with the possibility of parole for 10 years.

Cassia prosecutor waives death penalty

By Lorraine Cavener
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Marín Fernandez will not face the death penalty if he is convicted of the December 1997 murder of Gustavo Tafolla. Cassia County Deputy Prosecutor Howard Smyser waived the death penalty Friday when Fernandez was arraigned in District Court before Judge Lloyd Webb.

Smyser said he would not comment until after trial on why the death penalty was waived. The death penalty is often waived because of expense to the county, the defendant's prior record and age and other factors, said David Haley, Fernandez's attorney. He also would not comment on the reason for the waiver in Fernandez's case.

Fernandez, 21, of Declo, is charged with first-degree murder and an enhanced charge for use of a deadly weapon. With the death penalty off the table, Fernandez can face life in prison without the possibility of parole on the murder charge; the enhancement could add 15 years to a sentence.

Fernandez is charged with the shooting death of Tafolla, 18, of Rupert. His frozen body was found on Dec. 30, 1997, in the trunk of a car west of the Raft River store.

Webb has delayed the trial by two to three weeks to allow Fernandez to make arrangements for his family to come from Mexico. "Fernandez maintains his innocence and intends to go to trial," Haley said.

Fernandez's bond has been set at $1 million. Fernandez was bonded ever from Magistrate Court after testimony from two witnesses admitted they were involved with Fernandez because of drugs. One of the men, Michael Grissom, recently pleaded guilty and was sentenced for an obstruction of justice charge, in connection with a false statement he made to police in March. Grissom testified in Magistrate Court that he saw Fernandez shoot the victim 20 times with a rifle.

The other witness, William Lukens, testified that he helped Fernandez move Tafolla's body into the trunk of the car.

Jerome girl undergoes surgery transplant surgery

The Times-News

SALT LAKE CITY — Surgery went well for 11-year-old Eris Wiersma of Jerome Thursday evening. Eris received a bone marrow transplant in April for acute lymphocytic leukemia and has contracted a virus which attacked her bladder, liver and lungs. "The doctors found two holes in her bladder about the size of 50-cent pieces," said Pat Southfield, family representative. "They repaired the holes and also removed some inflamed areas of the bladder."

Southfield also said Eris' condition is much improved, though she's still on life support in the intensive care unit at Primary Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City. Her doctors now are focusing on congestion in her lungs. "I spoke with her family earlier this morning, and they believe in miracles," Southfield said. "The whole family — with her in the Utah hospital — pushes to pray for her a couple of times each day. Eris still receives Beanie Babies and cards in the mail every day from folks in the Magic Valley, as well as people in the Salt Lake City area, Southfield said. The mail is a highlight of Eris' day, and she shares her presents with others in the leukemia ward.

Woman sues city over accident

By William Benth
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A woman who claims she fell into a hole on a loading dock at Dierkes Lumber is suing the city for $20,000, plus medical expenses past, present and future.

The incident, said City Attorney Rita Woodruff. "Jacobs" said the accident "would possibly result in permanent impairment and/or disability; mental and physical pain and suffering; loss of sleep; loss of confidence of life; and an inability to carry out all daily personal functions."

but no signs were posted to warn Dierkes Lake patrons of the dock's dangers. The city has turned the matter over to its insurer, the Idaho Counties Risk Management Program, said Lamar Orton, the city's risk management officer. Company officials did not return phone calls Thursday. Orton said lifeguards at Dierkes Lake inspected the dock after Jacobs' accident and found a loose board but were unable to locate a hole.

State could begin cleanup at Triumph this fall

The Associated Press

BURLEY — The cleanup of tailings from an ore mining site and closure of the community of Triumph might begin this fall.

Specifically, the suit said she suffered a contusion of her right thigh and a lumber strain. The suit maintains the city was obligated to keep the dock safe, and must begin again in 1999, no later than June 1. The cleanup must be complete by Oct. 31. "When a large project comes over, there's always a lot of interest among contractors," Nichols said. "This is a significant milestone. It is confirmation that there is a light at the end of the tunnel."

Contractors interested in securing the $500,000 contract to dispose of the defunct Triumph Mine's arsenic- and lead-laced tailings were invited by the Idaho Department of Lands to submit their bids, which are due Sept. 29. Scott Nichols, the Lands Department minerals bureau chief, said the contract with the same calls for a startup date no later than Oct. 12. Work will continue as long as weather permits

Daughter

 attorney, Robert Nielsen, said in Fifth District Court Friday.
 Nielsen was seeking a reduced sentence so Johnson could attend Genesis House, a treatment facility in Seattle.
 "She would be able to comply with probation better after going through this program," Nielsen said. "Unless she gets intensive treatment, she won't be able to conquer this addiction."
 But Cassia County Deputy Prosecutor Howard Smyser said he had seen little change in Johnson's attitude, and said Johnson was simply trying to get into the drug treatment program to get out of jail.
 "She is one of the most obstinate people I have ever seen," Smyser said. "I have seen her address Nielsen and her parents in inappropriate ways."
 District Judge Lloyd Webb also noted Johnson has trouble completing things in the past. She dropped out of the College of Southern Idaho to go to beauty college, after getting a loan from her grandmother, but did not complete beauty college either.

 Nielsen argued that Johnson completed a program at the Pocatello Women's Correctional Facility to get into a community work program in Boise.
 "Why can't she complete another 60 days in the community work center and then go to Genesis House?" Smyser asked.
 Webb agreed Johnson needed to complete her 60-day term in Boise, for the sake of accountability.
 Johnson's mother, Janel Johnson, said that when her daughter first went to jail, she had a horrible attitude. Her attitude has changed since she started working, but she still needs help.

"I'm concerned about her self-esteem. She needs counseling," Janel Johnson said.
 When Smyser asked Janel Johnson if she believed her daughter also needed to be punished, she told the court her thoughts.
 "I don't believe she bargained those people," she said. "She pled guilty," Webb said. "You are not helping your daughter by letting her convince you otherwise."
 The hearing will be continued at a later date, Webb said.
 "The mother quickly teaches us quickly how children get into the predicaments they are in," Webb said. "As long as parents continue to apologize for their kids and continue to believe they are not guilty things won't change."

Western states brace for 'Asian flu'

DENVER (AP) — Buoyed by rapid growth and rising wages, Western states are healthy economically, but many of them are bracing for a bad case of Asian flu.
 The West leads the United States in economic growth, and continues to attract new residents from other parts of the nation, especially for jobs in high tech, biotech, recreation and construction.
 But Asian economies are experiencing a severe recession that is being felt especially in the West, a prime source for timber, copper, farm products, computers and manufactured goods, all of which have declined as exports.
 "This is a major bump in the road. It's going to take a long time to come back," said Paul Sommers, executive director of the Northwest Policy Center in Washington state, at a meeting of the Western Economic Roundtable.

Cattle graze in a pasture abutting condominiums in the newly built Rock Creek housing development outside the town of Superior, Colo. Business leaders from around the West met on Friday to discuss growth in the western states at the fifth annual Western Economic Roundtable.

Federal agency agrees to remove cattle

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The U.S. Bureau of Land Management has agreed to bar cattle from about 40 miles of streams in northern New Mexico, ending a 1996 lawsuit by Santa Fe-based Forest Guardians.
 Among waterways affected by the deal approved Sept. 10 by U.S. District Judge James Parker is an 8-mile stretch of the Santa Fe River south of town.
 Removing cattle would help restore overgrazed riparian areas that could provide potential habitat to the southwestern willow flycatcher, a songbird on the federal endangered species list, Forest Guardians said.
 "This is another agreement that establishes that the only way to heal badly damaged riparian habitats is to kick cows out," said

John Horning of Forest Guardians.
 Part of the Rio Puerco near Cuba also will receive protection, as will stretches of the Santa Cruz River and the Rio Cebolla north of Espanola, and the Animas and San Juan rivers in the Farmington area.
 The BLM contends it already had planned to fence cattle away from the streams.
 "The agreement calls for us to proceed with our earlier plans to fence certain livestock grazing allotments and selected riparian (riparian) areas," BLM state director Michelle Chavez said in a statement released in Albuquerque.
 "With or without the settlement," she said, "the BLM would have continued our work on riparian habitat recovery and management in New Mexico."

 The agreement does not force ranchers to reduce the number of cattle they can have on BLM grazing allotments, but a livestock industry advocate said depriving ranchers access to the rivers will hurt.
 "They will be fencing off some of the most productive land ranchers have," said Bud Eppers of the New Mexico Public Lands Council, which represents about 4,500 ranchers statewide. "What's beneficial to wildlife is also beneficial to livestock."
 The BLM settlement came five months after an agreement between environmentalists and the Forest Service calling for that agency to pull cows off 300-miles of riverside areas in the Apache-Sitgreaves and Gila national forests of Arizona and New Mexico.

 The BLM agreement grew out of a 1996 Forest Guardians lawsuit that accused the agency of proceeding with grazing plans without consulting with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.
 The consultations, which concluded last year, resulted in a Fish and Wildlife determination that grazing levels allowed under BLM planning documents were likely to jeopardize the flycatcher.
 The agreement requires the BLM to develop "riparian management plans" for more than 7 million acres in northern, northwestern and southwestern New Mexico.

Cecil Andrus details life in the spotlight

BOISE (AP) — Former Gov. Cecil Andrus has unveiled his autobiography, detailing the road from his Orofino logging days to President Jimmy Carter's Cabinet and back to Idaho.
 He agreed to do "Cecil Andrus: Politics Western Style," a considerable nudging from former aides and friends.
 "I always said there wasn't enough sex and violence in my life to sell a book," Andrus said this week. "I got into it and I decided I still had something to say."
 The four-term governor and Interior secretary spent three years talking into a tape recorder, writing and editing with journalist Joel Connelly. Andrus focuses on stories demonstrating how a political leader can get things done, even in polarized issues like conservation, abortion and nuclear waste.
 "This is the primer for how you can have moderate, sensible conservation-minded government in the West," said Connelly, a reporter with the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.
 Andrus doesn't mind ruffling feathers, such as poking fun at former New York Gov. Mario Cuomo and other politicians who had large entourages and became alienated from the people who elected them.
 As Interior secretary, Andrus tried to fire a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologist who had warned the owner of his favorite Washington, D.C., restaurant for serving an endangered rattlesnake. The agency started leaking stories on how Andrus was firing a federal worker for doing his job.

 Congress began investigating Andrus as crowd and backed off.
 "Andrus takes the blame when he has done something he considered a boo boo," Connelly said.
 The Idaho executive also tells why he went on a pack trip to the Bitterroot Mountains instead of the Democratic National Convention that would nominate Bill Clinton as presidential candidate.
 "I had premonitions that Clinton's character would rub Idaho voters the wrong way, with disastrous consequences for a Democratic Party striving to grow in harsh habitat," Andrus said.
 He tells how he turned his love for hunting and fishing into a conservation reputation that catapulted him to the governorship in 1970 when he called for the protection of the White Cloud Mountains from mining.
 Perhaps his most controversial decision as governor came in 1990 when Andrus vetoed legislation that would have given Idaho the most restrictive abortion law in the nation. A pro-life Democrat, he expected to sign the measure until he read it.
 Andrus stretched out the decision-making process, he said, to help educate the public of the shortcomings of the bill.
 Connelly said he got involved in the book to thank Andrus for the legacy he has left for protecting public lands.
 Here, this makes Cecil Andrus a sage on the national stage so commentators turn him to comment on the American West instead of Bo Griz."

Harvard brews hangovers

Among Harvard's finest Swarthmore students... A 17th century Swedish scholar, who specialized in classical language studies, wrote off his contract to the Queen of Spain, Gail Spang, Swedish, Adam spelled Danish, and the spelling of Swedish. Spang was asked if she'd like to be a long-term seasonal sea captain. She was, according to the story, and was the first to be a sea captain. Her husband's ability to regard her as a sea captain was a sign of his respect for her as a woman.

LOOKING TO BUILD BUHL'S FUTURE

Member of the Building Buhl's Future team, Cheryl Kuntz, displays a piece of Buhl-area planning explaining the city's project at the Twin Falls County Fair in Flax. City leaders hope the venture will attract new residents and more visitors to Buhl.

SOMEBODY NEEDS YOU

Volunteers 55 and older are needed to work with children. The "America Reads Program" works with kindergarten through third-grade students in different school districts. A minimum of four hours per week, excluding training time, is all that is needed. For more information, call 736-2122, Ext. 325.

Volunteers are needed to work with the Hospice Division of Magic Valley Staffing Services in providing acts of kindness to people who are experiencing a life-limiting illness.

Duties may encompass a variety of jobs such as support for the patient and/or caregiver, clerical assistance, helping prepare a newsletter, copying, mass mailings and assisting with fundraising activities. Volunteers are needed in all areas of the Magic Valley. Hospice and Occupational Safety and Health Administration training is offered once a month for new volunteers. Also, a Junior Hospice Program has just begun.

For more information or to volunteer, call Susan Harris at 734-0600 or (800) 303-0602.

The College of Southern Idaho Refugee Center currently needs toys in good condition, clothes in good condition for school children, a sewing machine, twin beds or double beds in good shape, and kitchen table and chair sets. The Center assists families and individuals in transition. Anyone who can be of any assistance is asked to call Shannon at 736-2156.

The South Central Community Action Agency is in need of one refrigerator for a family of five in the Buhl area. If you are able to donate please call 733-9351.

The College of Southern Idaho Adult Basic Education program is in need of volunteer tutors for adult students in reading, English, math and English as a second language. Volunteer tutors and adult students study three or four hours a week, at a time and place that is convenient to both of them. Murray High school students are welcome to volunteer and document the tutoring hours for future references. For more information, call Ruth Scott at 733-9554, Ext. 2536 or 1-800-680-0274, Ext. 2536.

Guardian ad Litem needs volunteer guardians to conduct independent investigations of children's circumstances, act as an advocate for the child at each stage of the proceedings and give his or her recommendations in the best interests of the child to the court. Requires approximately 20 hours per month. For more information or to sign up for training, call Tina Bolduc at 324-6890.

The Boys and Girls Club of Magic Valley strives to provide snacks to the children at no cost during the after-school program. To keep costs low, the club is asking for the donation of a commercial popcorn machine. Other items in good repair, such as games, books, crumblers and craft supplies are needed, too.

Volunteers are needed to help work with the children from 3 to 6 p.m. each day.

To donate or volunteer or for more information, call Karlan Toobson at 736-7011.

This public service column is designed to match needs in the communities of the eight counties in the Magic Valley with volunteer help. If you need a volunteer, call Judy Tipton, director of the Revised Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), at 736-2122, Ext. 312. RSVP is a United Way-sponsored agency at the College of Southern Idaho. All have your request appear in this column. Please submit it before 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday for Saturday publication. Please call weekly to retain request.

COMMUNITY EVENTS

Weich will celebrate 91 years

TWIN FALLS - An open house to honor Hazel Weich for her 91st birthday is planned for 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Harmony Care Center, 1210 Harmony Road. Hazel Satterwhite was born Sept. 18, 1907, in Sedalia, Mo., and has lived in the Magic Valley area for 81 years. She married Robert Lee Weich, and they have three children, Paul R. Weich of Twin Falls, Dolores (deceased) and Dale Welch of Jerome; 10 grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandchildren. She has been involved in War Mothers and Women of the Moose.

The event is being hosted by the Harmony Care Center.

MS support group plans meeting

TWIN FALLS - The Magic Valley Multiple Sclerosis support group will meet at 2 p.m. Sunday at the KMVT Community Room, 1100 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. (use north entrance).

An open discussion on new developments, MS news and future speakers is planned.

Anyone with MS and relatives and friends is encouraged to attend. For more information, call Shelly at 655-4355 or Sue at 736-7233.

Stokes plans birthday party

GOODING - Ethel Stokes will celebrate her 80th birthday during an open house set for 2 to 4 p.m. Sept. 26 at the Old Fellows Lodge, 138 Third Ave. W.

The event is hosted by her son and daughter-in-law, Mel and Joyce Stokes of Gooding, and grandchildren, Chris Funk, Tina Caschke, Sara Warner and Ted Nalley. No gifts, please.

Be 'WorkSmart' with course

TWIN FALLS - A "WorkSmart: Self-Management Skills" course is being offered in Twin Falls and Burley by the College of Southern Idaho Center for New Directions.

Productive workers manage time, stress and emotions both on and off the job. "WorkSmart: High Performance Self-Management" will help employees set goals for improvement in these areas and teach them techniques for self-control, dependability and efficiency.

Classes will be held from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, Sept. 29 ### through Oct. 13, at the Center for New Directions in Twin Falls and from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays, Sept. 30 through Oct. 19 at the Mini-Casita CSI Outreach Center. One credit is offered. Financial aid and scholarships are available, and gold cards are accepted.

For more information or to register, call (800) 680-0274, Ext. 2680, or 733-9554, Ext. 2680.

Wal-Mart Craft Fair has space

BURLEY - Booth space registration for the annual Wal-Mart Craft Fair from Oct. 1-3 will be accepted at the store's service desk.

The fair is held in the parking lot, tables, canopies or power will not be provided. Participants need to pay when registering. The first booth will cost $10 and additional spaces are $5 each.

Join Hospice for Harvestfest

TWIN FALLS - The Magic Valley Staffing Service Inc. Hospice Division has planned its third annual Harvestfest Dinner and Auction for Oct. 8 at the Turf Club.

The evening begins with a no-host bar at 6:30 p.m. Dinner starts at 7 p.m., and the auction with Henry's Auction Service follows. Door prizes and raffle items will be drawn throughout the evening.

Entertainment will be provided by a Magichords quartet, "Good to Go," featuring Ben Pratt, T. J. Eldridge, Kendall Irish and Lance Cox, and Emily Pratt with her karaoke machine.

Cost is $17 per person and $30 per couple. Tickets are available at Magic Valley Staffing Service Inc. in Twin Falls and Hospice in Buhl, Rupert and Twin Falls, Kurt's Pharmacy, Dick's Pharmacy and Fox Floral, all in Twin Falls, and Jerome Floral in Jerome.

Anyone who is unable to attend but would like to make a monetary donation send a check to Friends of Hospice, 2002 Second Ave. N., Twin Falls, ID 83301.

Friends of Hospice is a nonprofit organization dedicated to providing assistance to families who need financial assistance during a life-limiting illness. All money raised will be used to support families in the Magic Valley. Grants have been given to assist families with special needs for groceries, utilities, caregiver relief, medical expenses, transportation for out-of-area family members and special equipment needed to maintain an individual in their own home. Money also is used to provide additional volunteer education and extra bereavement materials for clients served under the hospice benefit.

For more information, call 734-0600 or (800) 303-0602.

Minidoka screens children

RUPERT - Minidoka County Schools and the Child Development Center recently held the biannual Child Find.

Area professionals screened 35 children from birth to 5 years old to check for delays in hearing, vision, motor skills, learning abilities, health, speech or language. Parents of children with hearing and vision concerns were referred to doctors or specialists.

Local businesses supporting the event included the Methodist Church for the use of the building, Ridley's in Rupert supplying cookies and Smith's in Burley providing sandwiches.

Parents suspecting delayed development may make an appointment by calling the Rupert Child Development Center (ages 0-3) at 436-7111 and Memorial School (ages 3-5) at 436-4240 for the Rupert area or Paul Elementary (ages 3-5) at 438-2211 for the Paul and Heyburn.

Hosteurs host Italian dinner

TWIN FALLS - The College of Southern Idaho Hosteurs Club is having a "Little Piece of Italy" pasta dinner from 5 to 8 p.m. Thursday in the Desert Building at CSI.

Dinner will be prepared by the CSI hotel and restaurant management and culinary art students. Cost is $18 for a family, $6 for adults and $3 for children ages 12 and under. Proceeds will be used for educational trips, scholarships and equipment.

For more information, call the school at 733-9554.

Students may apply for funds

JEROME - Applications are now available for five college scholarships to be awarded to students currently enrolled at the University of Idaho, Idaho State University, College of Southern Idaho, Ricks College, Lewis and Clark College or North Idaho College.

To be eligible, students must be studying in an agricultural-related field, foods and/or nutrition. Winners will be allowed to win one scholarship one time.

The five scholarships are the Idaho Cattlewomen Memorial Scholarship for $500, Idaho Cattlewomen/Farm Credit Services Scholarship (two) for $500 each, Charlene Roth Lickley Memorial Scholarship for $500 and the Lyle Caldwell Scholarship, amount to be determined.

Applications will be weighted and judged on student activities, awards and achievements, beef cattle involvement, future plans and a 250-word essay question.

For more information or an application, call 324-7978 or check with your college's agriculture department or financial aid office.

Oakley prepares for Christmas

OAKLEY - The Oakley Valley Arts Council will begin practice sessions for the annual Christmas concert at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Howell Theater in Oakley.

No special talents is required, just an enjoyment of singing.

For more information, call Connie Elston at 862-9270, Kent Severe at 862-3266 or Lori Emery at 862-3437.

BIG WIND

Ben Dye reported that heavy winds the night of Tuesday, Sept. 8, picked up this 15-foot high and 30-foot-long Quonset hut at his home near the Magic Valley Regional Airport outside Twin Falls. Strong winds carried the structure more than 1,000 feet and lifted it over two fences - before it finally came to rest.

the top five football teams, and we probably not.

"We really didn't have confidence going in," Neumann said. "With that first drive, we got a lot of confidence."

With its running game stopped, the Bruins collected a few highlights by passing. Quarterback Dana DeBoer threw for 207 yards, completing 13 of 24 passes. Wide receiver Jake Robertson caught seven of those throws for 156 yards and a touchdown.

De La Hoya repeats beating of Chavez

midway through the first quarter. The Trojans answered with their only sustained drive of the evening - an 65-yard, 11-play drive capped by a perfect throw and catch from Gunter to wide-out Nelson King who jumped off the ball in the back of the end zone.

of LAS VEGAS (AP) - This time Oscar De La Hoya made sure there would be no excuses. De La Hoya beat and bloodied Julio Cesar Chavez once again Friday night before Chavez's corner signaled his fighter wanted no more while sitting on a stool.

The Trojan conversion attempt failed and Wendell threw it. The Pilots then proceeded to dominate. Farris scored two successive touchdowns on fifty runs of 29 and 14 yards and the half ran from the 5-yard line with three minutes left in the 1st to give the Pilots a 29-6 lead. Uhl connected with wideout Alan Mars after the eighth round of their WBC welterweight title fight. Chavez was bleeding from the mouth and nose and had cuts over both eyes, and had just taken a beating in the final minute of the eighth round when his corner signaled to referee

Richard Streele that Chavez would fight no more. It was the second time De La Hoya stopped Chavez, but this time took twice as long as when they met two years ago for the junior welterweight title and Chavez was stopped on cuts in the fourth round.

Shoshone

Rivers for the two-point play, Carey's Edwards sacked Heath on the resulting Shoshone drive and the Panthers rested at halftime on a 24-0 lead.

"We worked hard this week on executing our offense," Carey coach Heber Kirkland said. "And it was better tonight. Our blocking improved."

While things continued to fall apart for the Indians in the second half, the Panthers evened a night of legend. Even when Carey slipped up, as Simpson did when he fumbled at the tail end of a 17-yard run to Shoshone's one-yard home, opportunity guided the team home.

Rivers was close by as Simpson lost the handle and fell on the ball at the Indians' 1. Simpson made good from there, busting up the middle for yet another score. Cenarrusa found Edwards wide open for the two-point endgame point to put the Panthers up 32-0. Shoshone put together a solid drive following Carey's kickoff, but shot itself in the foot with a penalty on third down. The Indians were unable to convert in two attempts.

Simpson scored again for the Panthers moments later on a 14-yard jaunt. This time the Panthers' two-point attempt failed, but Carey had all it needed at that point, up 38-0. Joe Myers added another on a run up the gut from one yard out as time wound down in the third quarter to make it final at 44-0.

Solouga broke out for a 33-yard gain to end the third quarter and Matt Zech chalked up 34 yards on four quarter receptions, but the Indians never becoming a threat.

Entering homecoming week - the Indians host Clark County next Friday - Shoshone hasn't won since their opener, when they pounded visiting Hanson 40-6.

"We were just outmanned," Chapman said. "Our kids played hard the whole time, but you've got to give credit to Carey. They're solid every year."

less than two minutes later on a perfectly thrown ball and the Pilots had the game in hand by halftime.

The Pilots concluded their scoring in the third when fullback Bernabe Ortiz rumbled in from the 3-yard line.

The Trojans added a late score on a 5-yard fumble recovery by beat. But the seniors, I expect that, of them."

Kirkland said his players might also expect to clinch the title spot in the state next week. That depends primarily upon Idaho's sportswriters and broadcasters fete looked equally impressive beating Troy 40-0. Friday night.

"I think the kids played with a lot of emotion," Carey coach Kirkland said. "That's hard to # Tampa Bay Buccaneers get to play in their new stadium — at last!

The Associated Press

Home at last, even if the Tampa Bay Buccaneers never have played there.

The place is Raymond James Stadium, a state-of-the-art facility featuring everything from luxurious club seats to a $3 million pirate ship with cannons that will be fired whenever the home team scores.

The Buc hope that is often on Sunday when they play the Chicago Bears in a matchup of 0-2 teams.

While the finishing touches were being put on the stadium, the Bucs played all five exhibition games and their first two regular-season games on the road. That can't be a bad thing, although they had Tampa Bay opened at Minnesota and Green Bay, two top rivals in the NFC Central.

Coach Tony Danzy has played down the effect of all the travel, but others haven't.

"Seven weeks is a lot of traveling, and I think it's worn on all of us," quarterback Trent Diller said. "It's not an excuse. It's just why we've played poorly. But you know it wears on you, and I think it'll be refreshing to be at home."

It also should be refreshing to see the struggling Bucs on the other side of the ball, although Chicago was competitive in losses to Jacksonville and Pittsburgh. The Bucs fell by a total of six points.

"It's still an L," linebacker Kimo McDonald said. "For us, we've got to look at it and say, 'How can we improve? How can we get better?'"

"We can't hurry on. Well, we were close. Close isn't good enough. We got paid to win football games, and we haven't done that in the first two games."

Now have nine other teams. Something will give at the Meadowlands, where the Colts and Jets meet. Same thing in Buffalo, where the Bills play host to the Rams. And in Arizona, where the Cardinals face the Eagles.

The Colts, rebuilding after posting the worst record in the league (9-13) last season, have played behind an inconsistent Peyton Manning. Of course, that can be expected from a rookie quarterback.

The Indianapolis has dominated the series with the Jets recently, winning eight of nine in New Jersey.

"Is that how many it is," Jets cornerback Aaron Glenn said. "That's not good. I wish you hadn't told me that."

The Jets rarely are able to control Marshall Faulk, who leads the AFC in total yards this season. In eight games with New York, Faulk has 550 yards rushing, more than against anyone else. And he has five touchdowns on the ground.

He's hurt the Jets as a receiver, too, with 29 catches for 264 yards and a touchdown.

Like the Bucs, the Bills opened with a pair of away games and lost both, at San Diego and at Miami. The team hadn't started the year with two straight road losses since 1972.

"I think there's only three teams (Buffalo, Tampa Bay, and Arizona) that played the first two games on the road and all of them have one thing in common," Bills coach Wade Phillips said. "They're all 0-2. It's tough to go out on the road, especially when it's the other team's first home game."

Tyson faces fight from Nevada panel

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Nearly broke and with his future in the ring at stake, Mike Tyson will plead for his license before the same panel that tossed him out of boxing.

The man who once terrorized the heavyweight ranks will seek reinstatement today from the Nevada commissioners who've stripped him of his license for biting Evander Holyfield's ear.

Tyson's adviser says the former heavyweight champion may be forced to fight outside the country if he doesn't get a license.

"I have loads of offers and I've turned them all down so far," adviser Shelly Finkel said. "I don't know what I'm going to do if he isn't licensed, though. His financial situation is very bad and he needs to fight."

Tyson earned more than $100 million in the ring in the two years before his last bout with Holyfield in 1997.

Approval means Tyson could fight again before the end of the year. Rejection would mean another year on the sidelines — at least in Nevada and the states that honor its suspension — and threaten a career that was fading even before he snapped in the ring and bit Holyfield in their title fight.

"Mike Tyson will have to rise to the occasion during his licensing because it's going to be a test of what kind of person he is," said Dr. Elias Ghanem, chairman of the Nevada Athletic Commission. "They call him Mike, but we're going to have to wait and see."

Last year, in the wake of the aborted ending of the fight in boxing history, the commission banned Tyson from the sport and fined him $3 million.

This time, though, the decision is complicated by another matter, and the timing couldn't be worse for Tyson. He is accused of attacking two men after a car accident last month in a suburban Washington. He faces criminal charges that threaten his Indiana probation on a rape conviction.

"The whole issue is his temper and self-control," Ghanem said. "Everything that has happened since we revoked his license we have to find out about."

Tyson, who at the last moment pulled out of an ill-fated attempt to get licensed in New Jersey in August, will personally plead his case. He needs at least three votes from the five-member commission, and the burden of proof is on him alone.

Tyson has been seeing a Denver psychologist who will speak on his behalf.

The boxer tried to help his case Thursday by appearing at a luncheon honoring Ghanem and Nevada Gov. Bob Miller, shaking the hands of commission members.

"I believe we'll have a fair chance at it," Finkel said. "You never know until it's over, but hopefully it will happen."

If Tyson is turned down, he will have to wait until Sept. 19, 1999 to reapply. The restriction applies to Nevada alone, but other states have so far abided by it and are likely to do so again.

What would Boy Scouts be without these ideals?

I've made an important decision: I'm going to enter the Miss America Pageant.

No, really, I am. I've thought about it for a long time, and I'm going for it. I can use the scholarship money to finally finish that college degree. I'm sure the exposure (if you'll pardon the expression) will give my career a boost. And who knows? I might even get to meet Maria Montessori.

Qualifications? I'm as patriotic as the next girl, or girl, as the case may be. I had a decent grade-point average in college. I've involved in a lot of community service. I have talent (tears have been shed over my harmonica rendition of "Foolish Things"). And I think I can safely predict that my appearance in the pageant will be a triumph. The judges will be high heels - will be, at the very least, memorable.

VALUESPEAK
Joseph Walker

OK, OK - so maybe I am, at age 41, a little older than most Miss America contestants. I just think it's about time that a 6-foot-4-inch, 250-pounder like me is completed with all those young, gorgeous females for the Miss America title, don't you?

Of course, I'm not naive. I'm anticipating reluctance on the part of pageant officials to accept my application. That's why my next phone call is going to be to the American Civil Liberties Union. No way are they going to let the Miss America people get away with dragging up my age, sex and marital status to prevent me from strutting my stuff in Atlantic City. I mean, if they can lead the attack against the Boy Scouts of America, they can help me take on Miss America. Go to speak.

And if you think I'm being silly - well, maybe I am. But my campaign for Miss America isn't any sillier than the current litigation against the Boy Scouts for being precisely what it is intended to be: a private organization that teaches traditional values to young people - mostly boys.

The Boy Scouts are accused of refusing to accept a homosexual man as a troop leader and declining admission to young men who didn't want to swear "to my duty to God." So-called officials don't deny the charges. They simply claim the privilege of being who and what they are. When Lord Baden-Powell founded Scouting 86 years ago, he wanted to meet specific needs in the lives of young men. Traditional values in the heart of the scouting spirit, which carries members of every race, religion and nationality regardless of mental, physical or financial capability.

It is grossly disturbing to some people that these boys going off into the world like, camp and learn to be "independent, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, God-fearing, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent" and to keep themselves "physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight." Taking these values away from the Boy Scouts would be like taking feminism away from the National Organization for Women or asking the Advancement of Colored People to quit their civil rights campaign. It's grossly disturbing so much about racism, that's their reason for being. Demper with the ideals at the heart of scouting and you'd get as well dismantle the organization and stop it cold.

Which is precisely what some folks seem anxious to do, and I can't figure out why. Why would you even consider affiliating with a group built on values you don't share? And wouldn't you worry that if you force a change in values, maybe it'll change the very reason why the group is special in the first place? And who said every organization has to be all things to all people anyway?

So I'm waiting for one of the litigants to step up with Baden-Powell-like wisdom and say, "Let's create something to address these issues." Scouting doesn't have to be altered; something new and innovative should be created to fill in the gaps scouting wasn't intended to address. It should be exciting - so exciting, in fact, that it'd probably forget all about the Miss America Pageant.

Scott's honor.

Local health educator takes skills to faraway orphanage

By M.R. Walden
Twin Falls correspondent

TWIN FALLS - Babies in a Romanian orphanage cry out for tender loving care.

Susan Beck witnessed the scene - just to have someone pick these babies up and cuddle them brings the children relief of some thing in themselves with mothers that prevent them from rolling over. Little limbs hang out between the slats of small cribs. Except for obvious emergencies, crying goes on as it is because the small orphanage staff cannot adequately reach out to the 200 infants they are caring for.

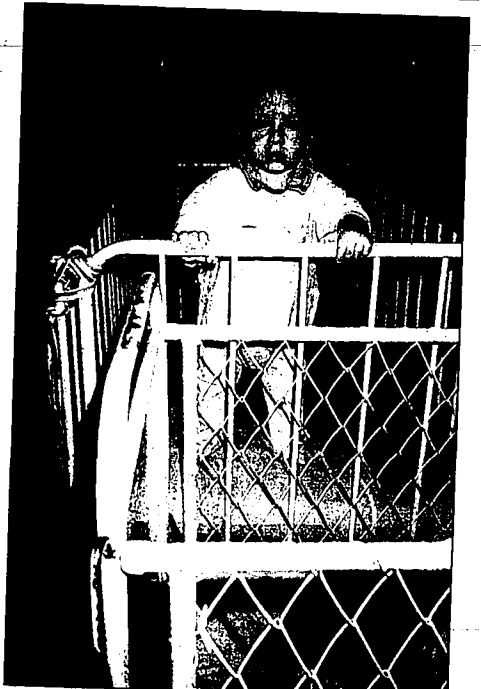

Susan Beck thought it important to bring over the baby who had come to her as an adopted baby in the United States.

Into the middle of this venture Susan Beck, owner and operator of the Massage Clinic in Twin Falls, took a five-month-old child to Romania August and spent 18 days working in the orphanages there.

Beck specializes in therapeutic massage and has been a holistic health educator in Valley for 20 years. She has been teaching parents infant massage classes in Twin Falls for 15 years.

It started as a hunch, so when Diana Wallace, owner of the International Healing Touch Foundation, called her to see if Beck would be what it should be, Beck said, "There are children all over the world needing help, so I had to do something." Beck said, "But she was another case as God instructed." Beck said, "This was the

This baby lives in the Campagna (pronounced Coop-a-long) State Orphanage for children with to age 3. When Susan Beck was in Romania, she said, this orphanage was completely full of kids.

How to help and more information on the ways to help in Romania please call Susan Beck at 733-2708.

"I found an average of a three-and-a-half month delay in the infants' development," she said. "In other words, a 9-month old infant had only developed to that of a 5 1/2-month old child."

Beck attributed the poor development to poor cribs, mattresses and diapering methods. The metal cribs had paint that was chipping off, and they were too small for many of the chil-

ren. The mattresses were deteriorated.

Diapers were made of mud, held on the babies with ties connected to a little T-shirt. The ties were put under the crotch and around the waist, preventing proper upper leg and abdominal movement.

Beck taught the staff some infant massage techniques to help relieve the movement problems.

With the large number of children to care for, the orphanage staff couldn't pick up the babies to feed them, Beck explained, nor could they routinely turn the infants in their beds.

Beck decided that the use of crib toys would give the children something to provide exercise on their own, so she and other members of her team installed toys they had brought along. They also put mirrors in many of the cribs and assembled six indoor infant swings.

In Sibiu, Beck purchased four toddler swings she found in the one department store that serves the more than 100,000 people in the city.

The Sibiu orphanage physiologist, who spoke English, asked Beck, "How do you dispose 200 babies and give 200 individual care?"

A witch walks through the lobby of a hotel in Las Vegas Beach, Calif., and no one even notices. Wisconsin high priestess Phyllis Christ, a sleek blonde with full set of teeth, has none of the stereotypical traits.

Hair, wrinkles, hair, small nose though large complexion, come pick-these-gangs-over, Christ, whose suspicion grew for the decline on a coast that hangs around her neck.

Her life story, though, is a bit off-center. Christ is a New York native, graduate of Brown University and New York University law school, civil liberties lawyer and president emerita of the Government of the Galeside, an international association of practicing witches. That was before she switched to small estate law and added "witch" to her credits.

Clamor over Clinton's indiscretions divides Baptists

The Rev. Paige Patterson, the recently elected president of the Southern Baptist Convention, has raised the bar of religious conservatism calling for the resignation of President Clinton.

That's not surprising. Neither is it surprising that other, less conservative Baptists disagree with Patterson.

Clinton's own minister, the Rev. J. Lee Stiles, pastor of Imperial Baptist Church in Little Rock, Ark., called the president's admission scandal

"Here is a man whose personal life and home and spiritual life are in disarray."

-Rev. Paige Patterson

indiscretions with former White House intern Monica Lewinsky "indiscreet and inexcusable."

But those actions, he added, are not un-American.

"I pray the president will find the grace of God which comes upon confession of sin and the peace which comes from a restored relationship with our Lord," he said.

Patterson, the former Texan who spearheaded a conservative revolution among Baptists and now is president of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Wake Forest, N.C., said Clinton should resign for his own good and the good of the nation he serves.

"Here is a man whose personal life and home and spiritual life are in disarray," he told Baptist Press, the denomination's news service. "And no man walking through these kinds of things is in a position to lead anything."

President Clinton, who used to sing in the choir and play the saxophone at the Little Rock church where he is a member, has been increasingly asking for forgiveness for his admitted wrongdoing.

His pleas even extended to a group

Robertson: Resignation is too good for Clinton

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Pat Robertson on Friday demanded that Congress impeach President Clinton, saying resignation is too good for a "defamed, debased and" leader.

Pat Robertson

"While resignation might be easier for America, it's not best for America," Robertson told 300 members of the Christian Coalition during a two-day conference of the nation's most active religious conservatives.

Four of five members of the crowd held up yellow signs that read, "Impeach Clinton." Christian Coalition leaders have long called for Clinton's ouster, but the rhetoric was more timely and stronger than ever. It is the organization's first gathering since the president admitted to an affair with Monica Lewinsky and House began work that could lead to impeachment proceedings.

Democratic Party will emerge stronger. How can we truly say the party of (former Sen. Bob) Packwood and (former President Richard) Nixon has reached perfection while the party of Kennedy and ... (Clinton) is hopelessly beyond redemption?"

Ralph Reed, former director of the Christian Coalition, later told the group that there are Republicans in "the upper reaches" of the GOP leadership who want to move timidly against Clinton.

Not wanting to be considered among the timid, Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott and House Speaker Newt Gingrich followed Reed to the stage and promised to take impeachment proceedings seriously.

"I don't know if ... (Clinton) will do the right thing, but we will do the right thing," Lott said. Said Gingrich: "We won't rush to judgment and we won't refrain from judgment."

Reed said Democrats will pay in Nov. 3 elections for supporting Clinton.

Robertson, a failed 1988 GOP presidential candidate, expressed disgust with the revelations of Clinton's affair with Ms. Lewinsky, calling them "our worst nightmare" and saying that the Oval office has become "the playpen for the sexual freedom of the poster child of the 1960s."

Gay Mormons hope to change church's views

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — To many, the concept of a gay Mormon is an oxymoron. For a religion that bans cigarettes, coffee and alcohol, homosexual practices are a definite sin.

"Sometimes it pushes the boundary to tell them you're a gay Mormon," said Rick Fernandez, speaking of the reaction of other members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The 40-year-old Portland lawyer added, "They think you must be confused."

But he said being Mormon is part of your identity, regardless of sexual orientation.

Nearly 300 gay Mormons met in Portland earlier this month for the 20th annual conference of Affirmation, a gay Mormon support group. Among their topics: gay marriage; gay youth in the church; and parenting gays.

Mormon spokesman Don LeVeine in Salt Lake City said the church believes, "It's the behavior that's wrong."

He added in a telephone interview: "The church has never taken a stance on the cause of homosexuality. The church believes we have choices and we make them ourselves. Those who want to change homosexual practices are encouraged to do so, and we will work with them."

The Mormon Church was founded in 1830 by Joseph Smith. Some credit the church's emphasis on traditional family values with its quick growth to a current worldwide membership of 10 million.

Affirmation estimates that thousands of gay Mormons remain in the closet, reluctant to reveal their sexual identity because of the church's hardline stance. When gays do step outside, local bishops can enlist various disciplinary actions, including probation, disfellowship and excommunication from the church.

Believer Drew Smith straddles the line. "My involvement in the church is important enough to me that I haven't decided to partake in sexual activities because I know that would jeopardize my role with the church."

The 32-year-old came out to his Seattle ward church two years ago and stays active as the bishop's administrative assistant. He swears off alcohol and cigarettes, believes the divine revelations of Christ founder Joseph Smith, and tries his best to live by the "Book of Mormon."

Fire brings reflections

NEW YORK (AP) — Central Synagogue lost its roof but not its grandeur after fire broke out last month. Light streams into a courtyard of charred columns of faded blue, sienna and gold in the 126-year-old Moorish revival temple sanctuary of the oldest Jewish Reform congregation in New York City.

Still, the Holy Ark that holds the Torah scrolls, the Five Books of Moses handwritten on parchment, escaped harm as did the lamp symbolizing God's presence. And as the Jewish High Holy Days approached, Central Synagogue's senior rabbi, Peter Rubinstein, could not help marveling at the light amidst the loss.

"There's a mystery about the things that were protected," said Rubinstein, who noted that enough of the midtown Manhattan structure survived to allow rebuilding.

It was just before sundown on Friday, Aug. 28, when a workman's torch apparently set the temple on fire. Rubinstein saw smoke encircling the 112-foot minarets and raced into the synagogue, where he broke a glass display case and carried out two Torah scrolls, the only two in the temple that had not been stored during a renovation.

While firefighters battled the five-alarm blaze, synagogue members who had gathered for Friday services prayed and comforted one another at the synagogue's community house across the street.

The High Holy Days, beginning at sundown Sunday with Rosh Hashana, are traditionally a time for Jews to think about their own mortality and renewal in the face of death.

This year, services will be held at a state armory. Rubinstein repeatedly reminds his congregants that their fire was a trauma, not a tragedy that took human life, that Jews have a history of rebuilding, and before long they will be carrying their Torah scrolls joyously into the synagogue.

Smoke billows from a fire as it rips through the Central Synagogue in New York on Aug. 28. The Moorish-style synagogue, built between 1870 and 1872, is a city and national landmark.

Explorer uses Bible as guide to find Sinai

Night Rider News Service

GRAPEVINE, Texas — Colorado adventurer Bob Cornuke and his partner, Larry Williams, were stumped by what they saw on the Saudi Arabian mountain that they believe is the true Mount Sinai.

The duo had forged a letter, crawled under wire fences in the scorching desert and eluded soldiers at a nearby Saudi military outpost — all for this moment.

They were awed by what Cornuke said was the "unnaturally scorched" peak of Jabal al Lawz. According to the Bible, fire rained down when God delivered to Moses the two stone tablets containing the Ten Commandments.

The two also found what was left of a 30-foot-high stone altar with renderings of a cow, which Cornuke believes is the altar where Israelites worshipped the image of the golden calf in rebellion.

"What blew me away was that everything was there that the Bible talked about, and I didn't expect that," Cornuke, 47, told members of First Baptist Church of Grapevine on a recent Sunday.

Cornuke also talked about the discovery of an underwater land bridge, or reef, in the Red Sea that he and Williams theorize the Israelites might have used to cross the water during their exodus from Egypt 3,400 years ago.

The trek to Saudi Arabia in 1988 is the subject of the book "The Gold of Exodus: The Discovery of the True Mount Sinai," by Howard Blum. Rob Reiner has optioned the book for a film. Cornuke is writing a book describing the "Christian, inspirational" side of the story.

Cornuke, who was a police officer and SWAT team member for nine years in Costa Mesa, Calif., moved to Colorado in the early 1980s to escape the congestion and pressures. It was there that this married father of four children met his mentor, former astronaut Jim Irwin.

At the time, Irwin was preparing for a trip to Turkey to search for Noah's Ark on Mount Ararat, but he had gotten word that Kurdish terrorists knew of his plans and were going to kidnap him to advance their cause, Cornuke said.

So Irwin asked Cornuke to come along to provide protection.

The only thing I knew about Moses at that time was that he looked like Charlton Heston," Cornuke said. "I didn't know that much about the Bible. I was a kind of now-and-then churchgoer."

But Irwin's enthusiasm was contagious, and Cornuke went on to found the Bible Archaeology, Search and Exploration Institute in Colorado Springs, Colo. He has followed the Exodus route of Moses, dived into the Red Sea in search of the pharaoh's chariots and searched for the Lost Ark of the Covenant — which carried the Ten Commandments.

Cornuke and Williams, a two-time Republican congressional candidate in Montana, left for Saudi Arabia on the assumption that Mount Sinai was not in the Sinai peninsula, as tradition holds, but in the ancient land of Midian, in Saudi Arabia. Williams backed the trip.

When the two reached their goal — the Jabal al Lawz mountain — they learned that it is the site of a top-secret Saudi military operation, with armed guards and missile launch areas. So for their nighttime excursion up the mountain, they used night-vision binoculars. They crawled under a fence, eluded guards and scaled up the mountain.

ASAP list showcases wealthiest people

The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Youngful entrepreneurs are finding more than just virtual success on the Internet, which is proving to be a cash cow for more people than ever.

Nearly a third of the 100 wealthiest members of the high-tech industry are involved in Internet-related businesses, according to the annual list by Forbes ASAP, a technology supplement to Forbes magazine.

Also, much of the more than $150 billion in estimated wealth was amassed by people under 45 during the last six years, as Internet businesses grew exponentially.

"These guys have really scored," said Gary Arlen, president of Arlen Communications, Inc. in Bethesda, Md., a technology research firm.

"So much of this is a reflection of the times," Arlen said. "The Internet clearly materialized in the midst of this economic bull market. These young guys have been able to get in on this phenomenal economy."

Twenty-eight people on the Forbes ASAP list work for Internet-related endeavors, compared with just seven last year; 44 people are under age 45 and 4 are under age 30.

Arlen said the wealth amassed by young stockbrokers in the 1980s could not even compare to today's boom for young Internet entrepreneurs.

making a lot of money from Wall Street never reached the level (of today)," Arlen said.
The upper third of the list is comprised largely of software businessmen, the only group larger than those working in the Internet. Microsoft CEO Bill Gates heads the list with $58.7 billion in estimated wealth, followed by colleagues Paul Allen and Steve Ballmer.

Between Aug. 3, when the figures were calculated, and Thursday's market close, however, Gates had lost $1.9 billion, said Scott Lajoie, a reporter at the magazine. He said others who had seen significant losses include

Stocks edge back up after Thursday's selloff

NEW YORK (AP) - Stocks edged higher Friday as the market steadied after Thursday's sharp drop, though it was far from shaking its being done to prevent the economic crisis.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed 21.89 higher at 7,855.66 after a volatile session. The Dow never rose more than 57 points during the day and never fell more than 46.

The gain left the Dow 12 points below where it began the year, 7,908.25, and 15.4 percent beneath its July 17 peak of 9,337.57. For the week, the barometer of 30 big companies gained 100.16.

Broad stock indicators also posted modest gains as Friday led by smaller-company shares, despite another sloppy day on foreign markets.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed 21.89 higher at 7,855.66 after a volatile session. The Dow never rose more than 57 points during the day and never fell more than 46.

Wealth

Confused Ken C. Allen, Ballmer, Amazon.com CEO Jeff Bezos and America's CEO Rick Warren.

The Redwood City, Calif.-based publication said it will not accept the Oct. 5 issue because it has driven the frenzy with overvalued stock, Allen said.

Christophers Klaus, 25, is the youngest on the list, at No. 51 with an estimated fortune of $167.5 million. The Georgia Tech dropout owns 26 percent of his Internet Security Systems, a software company that went public in 1992.

And with Amazon stock skyrocketing, Bezos, 34, saw his fortune leap from $85 million last year to more than $2.1 billion. The Internet giant is set to put a company together in some cases make it very where the technology is less important than the marketing and a good idea," he said.
