Bills await lawmakers

Mostly agency-generated legislation filed week before session

By Gregory Hahn
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho House of Representatives doesn't meet for a week, but it already has 76 bills and two concurrent resolutions filed and waiting at the Statehouse. The number rests squarely in the range of years past — pre-session filings have ranged from 62 to 100 since 1994. The early filings are almost exclusively agency-generated, said Legislative Services Director Carl Bianchi. The process is a courtesy for the governor to implement, discuss, measure he supports to be introduced without a floor sponsor.

In this session's plans were laid by outgoing Gov. Phil Batt. Each proposal had to be in House Speaker Bruce Newcomb's hands by Dec. 4, 1998, too soon to go through Gov-elect Dirk Kempthorne, who took office Monday.

"I don't think anybody was in a place to look at those by the deadline," said Kempthorne spokesman Brian Whitlock. Members of Kempthorne's transition team have been examining the proposals since then, though.

If anything, Bianchi said, agencies probably withheld some ideas because they hadn't had a chance to rally Kempthorne's support.

So far, proposals include a plan to make driving a sunbather under the influence of

CSI reviews plans for 1999

Administrators set sights on expansion

By Jennifer Sandmann
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — While students registered for spring semester Monday at the College of Southern Idaho, college administrators explained to faculty and staff where the fastest growing college in the state is headed in the next several years.

This year the college will seek money from the legislature in three areas, said Jerry Stock, vice president of instruction. $400,000 in matching funds for the estimated $1.5 million expansion of classrooms and office space in the Aspen Building — the main occupational building rededicated by students as the "Aspirin Building." A portion of the money needed to finance the expansion of the Fine Arts Center is estimated to cost about $6 million. Money to raise faculty salaries to the mean earned by faculty in western colleges is also being sought. "It will be interesting to watch this year how changes in state leadership play out for CSI," said Jeff Brown, assistant to CSI President Jerry Sandmann. "Dirk Kempthorne is a very good friend to CSI," he said. Matt Bero, Deputy Business Officer, is a member of the proposed Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, Department of Education, and the House Education Committee. The college will benefit beginning this year from a $1.7 million federal grant from the Department of Education, a grant administrator. College staff will see professional development opportunities in the state. Students will find the use of technology enhanced in the classroom and have greater access to campus resources. The college is advancing in its efforts to offer a seamless education, said Police Glenn, dean of CSI's technical division. The rift between academic and technical divisions is closing. Starting in Fall 1999, all technical students will be required to take 15 credits of core academic courses to better prepare them for the demands in the new economy. "It's a major philosophical change," he said. "Times-News staff writer Jennifer Sandmann can be reached at 733-0931, Ext. 241."

Sniper's bullets close interstate

The Associated Press

RENO, Nev. — A man was shot in the chest Monday by a sniper targeting traffic on Interstate 80. Three other vehicles were hit by gunfire, forcing the closure of the highway from the outskirts of Reno to the California state line. The wounded man was able to drive several miles to a fire station. He was hospitalized with a wound that police said wasn't life-threatening. Two other people were hurt by flying glass from gunfire. Dozens of law officers, a SWAT team and two helicopters from the Nevada Highway Patrol were searching the area as the interstate remained closed in both directions Monday afternoon for about 10 miles. "We're looking for somebody that likes to shoot at cars," Washoe County sheriff's Sgt. Bob Towery said. Officers were having trouble pinpointing where the shots came from because the vehicles struck by gunfire all kept moving the various distances before pulling off the highway, Towery said. All the shootings came between 9 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. In two cases, bullets traveled "right through the center of the windshield between the seats," Towery said.

Elizabeth Dole considers run at presidency; Ashcroft to bow out

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Elizabeth Dole, a Cabinet member in two GOP administrations whose husband lost to President Clinton in 1996, said Monday she will leave her job with the American Red Cross to pursue a potential White House bid of her own. Mrs. Dole, 62, made her plans known as Sen. John Ashcroft privately told surprised supporters that he will announce Tuesday that he has decided not to run for president. The Missouri lawmaker had spent the last year laying the groundwork for a presidential bid, and was considered one of the strongest prospects among social conservatives. Addressing 500 cheering, sometimes teary-eyed employees, Mrs. Dole announced plans to leave in two weeks, after nearly eight years as head of the nonprofit group. "There may be another way for me to serve our country," she said at the organization's biennial headquarters two blocks from the White House. "In an interview last week, Mrs. Dole said she plans to decide by March whether to run. "The going to give serious consideration," she said. Yet friends and allies say Mrs. Dole is determined to run the president if her financial and political support is as strong as she suspects. "I'm sure she's preparing to commit herself," said business lawyer E. J. Feltman, who worked for former Sen. Bob Judd's 1996 presidential campaign.

"She's beyond soul-searching," said one longtime friend, speaking on condition of anonymity. "She's down to finding out whether the money is there are whether the supporters are there. Her entry would add a compelling wrinkle to a GOP presidential field that is still taking shape. Ashcroft was said to be concerned that running for president would put his seat in jeopardy in 2001, when the GOP are at risk of losing control of the Senate.

NATION

Several U.S. senators took more time among themselves in the Grand Foyer of the White House Monday. They were waiting for President Clinton to speak on care for the elderly. Soon, each will be involved in probably the most important biggest vote of their political careers.

Impeachment trial brings rare proceedings to Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate trial of President Clinton, with the chief justice presiding, would bring about a rare convergence of the three branches of government — a proceeding envisioned by the Founding Fathers but never before used for an elected president.

Soon after 55 Republican and 45 Democratic senators arrive on Capitol Hill Tuesday for the start of the new Congress, they are expected to take an oath as jurors in the nation's second impeachment trial of a president.

The first, in 1868, was for Andrew Johnson, the vice president who succeeded Abraham Lincoln after Lincoln's assassination. The impeachment arose primarily from political divisions over Reconstruction after the civil war. Senators took 74 days to acquit Johnson by a one-vote margin.

Fast forward to Dec. 19, when a raucous House vote resulted in charges of perjury and obstruction of justice against the nation's 42nd president. The impeachment articles, similar to an indictment, referred to Clinton's efforts to conceal his affair with former White House intern Monica Lewinsky.

Now comes the trial — and new territory for the Senate. With a two-thirds vote for conviction appearing unlikely, leaders could broker a compromise to bring a quick end to a trial and allow senators to consider an alternative punishment, such as censure.

Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., last week proposed holding an early vote — perhaps next week — that would require a two-thirds majority to proceed with a full trial, opening the door to censure if the vote failed.

Some conservatives oppose such a plan, which is generally endorsed by Democrats. Lott also has said he believes a trial could be held without witnesses. House managers — members of the House acting as prosecutors — say they want to call witnesses.

There are few precedents to follow. The House has voted articles of impeachment in only 15 cases — against Johnson, the only president; a Supreme Court justice; a secretary of war; a senator and 11 federal judges. The Senate has convicted seven officials, all judges. Six other officials were acquitted and two resigned.

President Nixon resigned in 1974 before an impeachment vote in the House on proposed charges of obstruction of justice, abuse of his presidential powers and contempt of Congress.

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist would preside over a presidential trial. Managers from the House would present the case before the senators. In Clinton's case, the House has approved 13 managers, all Republican members of the Judiciary Committee, led by Chairman Henry Hyde of Illinois.

Once the Senate organizes to consider the articles, it issues a writ-of-summmons to the president, setting a date for him to appear and answer the charges. But instead of appearing in person, the president can be represented by his legal team — for this appearance and throughout the trial.

The full Senate may issue subpoenas for witnesses and documents or appoint a committee to receive evidence and take testimony.

Also, at any point, a majority of senators could vote to end the trial.

Rehnquist has authority to rule on all questions of evidence. But he can't say anything such as to a vote before the Senate. Or any senator can ask for a formal vote.

The Senate conducts the trial in open session, according to its rules. Senators also may hold their deliberations in a public session. But the internal rules allow the Senate to close its doors during deliberations, allowing each senator 15 minutes of debate.

Transcripts are kept of all impeachment trial activities, even secret deliberations. At the end, senators may vote to release transcripts of any confidential sessions.

Senators vote in open session on each article.

Clinton recommends family aid

Elderly caregivers would benefit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton proposed tax breaks and other steps Monday to ease the financial burden on families that care for a chronically ill or disabled relative.

The proposal, carrying a price tag of $2.2 billion over five years, drew praise from many Republican members of Congress, who said Clinton was reversing a GOP idea he once opposed.

"I'm delighted he has changed his tune," said Rep. Bill Thomas, a Calif. chairman of the House Ways and Means subcommittee on health.

He said House Republicans made a similar proposal in their 1994 "Contract With America." Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, chairman of the Senate Special Committee on Aging, applauded Clinton and said the plan to introduce two bills this year to make long-term care more affordable.

President Clinton sees the nation a great service by educating Americans about long-term care," Grassley said. He called the main elements of Clinton's plan "small but helpful steps" in the right direction.

Man involved in car wreck faces trial

TWIN FALLS - A Seattle man charged in connection with a non-motorable accident on U.S. Highway 93 that left a passenger dead - is closer to trial.

Douglas Wallick, 29, is charged with vehicular manslaughter in the death of Kristin Hanes, 24, who was ejected from the car on Nov. 25, 1998, about three miles north of Jackpot, Nev.

After Monday's preliminary hearing, Magistrate Judge John Melanson bound the case over to District Court, where the case would go to trial.

Wallick told Idaho State Police officers that he had been drinking alcohol before the wreck, a police affidavit said.

Wallick's lawyer, Jeff Stoker, argued, there was no connection made between alcohol and the wreck, and that Hanes might have caused the accident by grabbing the steering wheel.

"Those points were valid, but they would have to be decided by a jury," Melanson said.

Man faces trial on lewd conduct charge

TWIN FALLS - The case of a Twin Falls man charged with having sex with a 14-year-old girl was bound over to District Court Monday.

Allan George Parker, 24, is charged with lewd conduct with a minor under 16.

The girl testified at Monday's preliminary hearing that she and Parker had sex numerous times in October and November at his apartment, where she stayed after running away from home.

At the hearing, Judge John Melanson ruled probable cause existed and sent the case to District Court, where it will head toward trial.

Parker was arrested on Nov. 12, 1998, when police found him in bed with the girl. Authorities went to Parker's apartment because he failed to report to his probation and parole officer, a police statement said.

Parker could get life imprisonment if found guilty.

County seeks help on groundwater study

TWIN FALLS - Twin Falls County is hoping to get some help to study its groundwater.

County commissioners met with Magic Valley Soil Conservation Districts and legislators Monday to discuss the study.

County commissioners are looking for some help financing a groundwater study to help determine drinking water sources in Twin Falls County, commissioner Marvin Hempleman said.

"With proposals for hog farms and other agricultural operations and subdivisions that require water by the county officials need to know more about water sources and what type of soils lie over them."

"We need to know what the water sources are," Hempleman said.

Legislators at the meeting included Sen. Laird, Rep. John A. "Bert" Stevenson, R-Rupert; Doug Jones, R-Filer; Maxine Bell, R-Jerome; and Randy Hansen, R-Twin Falls.

State of the State Address to be broadcast

BOISE - Gov. Dirk Kempthorne's State of the State address will be broadcast at 1 p.m. Monday on Idaho Public Television.

Kempthorne plans to outline his plans as governor and give long-awaited specific goals. Afterwards, the station's Joan Cartan-Hansen will be joined by two Idaho newspaper editorial writers to discuss the speech.

The show will be broadcast at 7 Monday evening. On Jan. 13, Kempthorne's budget address will be aired, starting at 11 a.m.

City approves parking lot

By Mark Helzer
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - After listening for the third time to backers and opponents of a plan to expand a bank parking lot in an old Twin Falls neighborhood, the City Council Monday approved the expansion of the lot.

Mayor Gale Kleinkopf and Councilman Tom Mikesell were on the short end of a vote favoring Farmers National Bank's request to rezone two lots the bank owns along 8th Avenue East. The bank must now apply for a special use permit allowing empty houses on the lots to be torn down so a parking lot can be built there.

During three public hearings on the matter, residents have raised concerns about the parking lot spilling the neighborhood's vintage feel and increasing traffic in the area.

Neighbor Robin Kirby said some worry that the bank's expansion would hurt the value of restored historic homes along 8th Avenue and other nearby streets.

The bank's board of directors decided not to make the parking lot accessible from 8th Avenue, said Paul Smith, the bank's attorney. Because of neighbors' concerns over the lot spilling the view, the bank has agreed to fence off and landscape the side of the parking lot facing the avenue, he said.

Council votes to locate skate park

In other business, the council settled another long-standing question by voting unanimously to locate a proposed skate board park at a new city water storage tank in southeast Twin Falls. The partially-buried tank will be built this spring or summer near the intersecting of Hankins Boulevard and Kimberly Road, City Manager Tom Courtney said.

Harmon Park was the other possible location for the skate park.

The city will pitch in $12,300 to help pay design cost for the skate board park. It is not known when construction would start, Courtney said.

The council also held a public hearing regarding a request by Canyon Properties, L.L.C. to subdivide and develop about 160 acres along Pale Line Road and Blake Street North in the city's area of impact.

Developers hope to start residential, light commercial and professional lots on the land, said company spokesman Gary Nelson. It might take as long as 20 years to develop the area fully, he said.

Educators to develop regional technical high school

By Jennifer Sandmann
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Educators worked Monday on the nitty-gritty details required to form a regional high school that would offer technical education courses.

Seventeen school districts in south-central Idaho have joined the Advanced - Regional Technical Education Coalition, ARTEC, to pool resources and offer Magic Valley students more educational options.

Monday's work session was part of a three-day presentation ARTEC organizers planned for business people and educators.

Two directors from the nation's largest vocational school district - The Great Oaks Institute of Technology and Career Development in Cincinnati, Ohio - are in town to offer guidance.

Key to making ARTEC a reality will be support from business and industry and commitment from school boards, said Dave Sass, interim ARTEC director.

Is your district a member?

Member school districts of the Advanced Regional Technical Education Coalition are: Burli, Castletown, Filer, Gooding, Kimberly, Murtaugh, Richland, Shoshone, Twin Falls, Valley, Jerome, Minidoka, Hagerman, Wendell, Blaine, Hansen and Glenns Ferry.

Steve Jackson, vice president of program design and development at Great Oaks, and Jon Quatman, dean of instruction at one of the seven Great Oaks campuses, encourage Magic Valley to dream.

"Don't be constrained by what you're already doing," Quatman said.

The Great Oaks Institute serves 36 school districts of varying sizes that are spread over 2,200 square miles.

Educators and business representatives will tour the Ohio district on Jan. 12 in a four-day trip that first will take them to schools in Virginia.

Educators' work on Monday served to design ARTEC and prepare a grant application to the J.A. & Kathryn Albertson Foundation, Sass said. The foundation is offering a pool of $6 million in grant money a year for three years for technical academies in six regions around the state.

The Magic Valley's only program is Cassia County's technical school, which, now, serves only Cassia County.

New Anderson Camp owners plan to expand

By Pat Marcantonio
Times-News writer

EDEN - Gerry and Carleen Miller of Burli own the Anderson Camp, but want to rename it anytime soon.

"It's too well-known as Anderson Camp to change it right now," Carleen Miller said.

Former owner Retha Anderson had tried to give away the 26-acre recreational vehicle park as a prize in essay contests in 1996 and 1997 so she and her husband, Larry, could retire. She hoped to raise $1.5 million from the $500 entry fee but didn't receive enough entries and returned the money.

The Millers had entered both times and later called, asking about a sale, Anderson said.

"They bought the camp Dec. 9 for an undisclosed amount."

Carleen Miller said they wanted the money for something to do when they retire.

"We'd like to keep it family oriented," she said.

The couple is adding 442-square feet to the camp grocery store to offer homemade pizza and video rentals. The new business should be open the first of February for camp customers and area residents who can take out pizza or eat in and rent from among 4,000 video selections, she said.

The property includes a four-bedroom home, miniature golf course, water slide, gas station and 125 campsites. The camp has one full-time employee but will probably add more during the summer, they said.

The Millers have been longtime business people in the Burli area.

Gerry Miller, 47, has operated Snake River Logging and Salvage in Heyburn for almost 10 years and will continue the business, along with his son, Kyle, she said. Their daughter, Valerie, owns the Bookkeeper. That business employs five people.

Carleen Miller, 43, had worked for Smith's Food and Drug for 21 years, most recently as scanning coordinator over pricing.

They purchased the Silver Screen Video and Pizza store in Paul last year and are moving that operation to Anderson Camp to consolidate their business interests, she said. She and her husband also will move to the camp.

Other plans call for promotion of the hotel which seats 150 people for more events, she said.

"We have some big ideas and we'd like to add another (owner) slide, but I don't think it will be this first year," Carleen Miller said.

"They seem real enthused," Anderson said. "They remind us of us when we were younger. They are hard workers."

The Andersons built up the camp from an alfalfa field in 1971.

Doctor facing drug charges continues to work

By David Lee
Times-News writer

BURLEY - The doctor charged last week with possession of methamphetamine and passing an illegal prescription is under investigation by the hospital where he leases office space.

Charles Suits can still see patients on his own, but he cannot assist patients who are under hospital care.

Suits, 43, a doctor of internal medicine who leases office space at Cassia Regional Medical Center, was arrested Thursday in the hospital parking lot.

Cassia County Sheriff Billy

Crystal said Suits gave an illegal prescription of the painkiller Vicodin to an undercover officer. In exchange for 1.5 grams of methamphetamine worth about $150.

Suits will be arraigned Monday in Magistrate Court in Cassia County.

Suits' arrest was the result of a two-year investigation by the sheriff's department. Crystal said he does not believe anyone else is involved with the case.

The hospital is conducting an internal investigation, said hospital administrator Richard Packer.

"We have a no-tolerance drug policy," Packer said. The main priority of the investigation, Packer said, is to "look to make sure there is a safe environment for patients."

This investigation could last from a few days to two weeks, Packer said.

Until then, Suits cannot work with patients who are admitted to the hospital. He also cannot examine patients who are in the hospital's intensive care unit.

Suits can still see patients who are scheduled to visit his office, Packer said.

The shoot will cost $5 for adults and $4 for children with tickets such as turkey, turkey legs and a fundraising turkey shoot Saturday, beginning at noon.

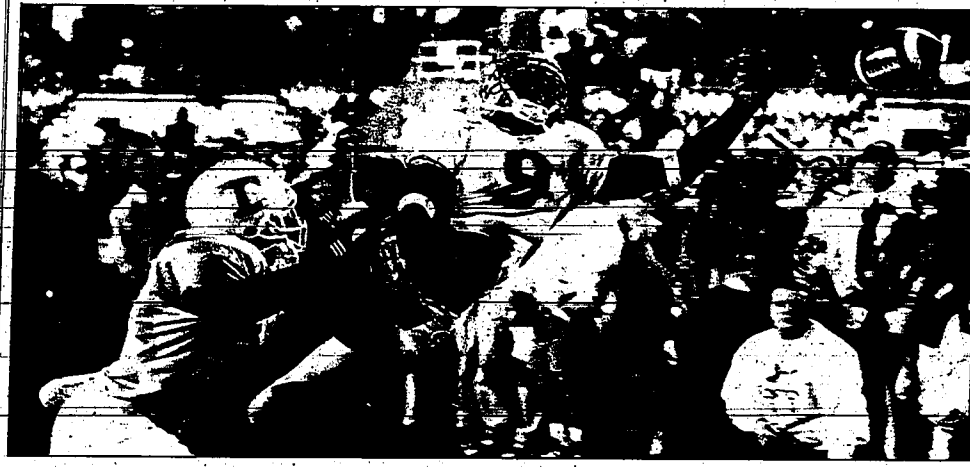

Elks hoop shoot takes place Saturday in Burley

BURLEY—The 27th Annual Elks Hoop Shoot will be Saturday, beginning with registration at 8 a.m. and competition at 9 a.m. at the Burley Junior High School Gym.

All participants will be accompanied by a parent or guardian and have verification of age by birth certificate, baptismal certificate or passport.

Over 3 million boys and girls from throughout the country entered competitors last year in three age divisions: 8-9, 10-11, and 12-13.

JUST OUT OF REACH ...

Florida State wide receiver Peter Warrick (9) stretches but can't catch a pass from quarterback Marcus Outen as he is defended by Tennessee's Deondre Goodrich late in the second quarter of Florida's Florida State at Sun Bowl Stadium in Tempe, Ariz. Tennessee won the game and college football's national championship.

Rocky Top perfects season

Vols' perfect season wins national title

The Associated Press

TEMPE, Ariz.—Tennessee is undefeated, and almost certainly undisputed, as the national champion. The Volunteers clinched one piece of the national championship Monday night, capping a perfect season with a victory over No. 2 Florida State in the Fiesta Bowl.

They were messy and rocky, but under coach Phillip Fulmer, the Volunteers won the national championship in the USA Today/ESPN coaches' poll, their first national title since 1957. The Associated Press media poll was to be announced Monday.

The Vols pulled together in the second half and held off the Seminoles — but it wasn't easy.

Martin threw two touchdown passes, including a 79-yarder to Peerless Price with 9:17 to go to put the Vols ahead 20-9. But the Seminoles, despite their own turnover and penalty problems, kept coming back.

Florida State cut the lead to 23-16 on Marcus Outen's 79-yard TD run with 3:42 left. The play was set up by his 39-yard pass to Ron Dugans on a third-and-seven.

And just when it looked like the Vols would score again to put the game out of reach, linebacker Brian Allen recovered Travis Henry's fumble at the 10 to give Florida State one more chance.

Outen, though, was overmatched in just his third start. On Florida State's first play after the recovery, his long pass intended for Peter Warrick was tipped by Deon Grant and intercepted by Steve Johnson, who returned it 20 yards to the Florida State 45.

The Vols ran out the clock and the sideline erupted as coach Phillip Fulmer ran to midfield to cheer his charges in time. "It was not one or two guys," he said.

"It was a whole football team believing they could get it done, working hard and finally getting it done."

The Vols (13-0) completed their best season in school history, while the Seminoles (11-2) fell to 1-2 in national championship standings.

Martin made the most of his opportunity to do what Peyton Manning couldn't get a national title. The 6-foot-2, 226-pounder from Mobile, Ala., was 11-0-15 for 278 and two TDs, while Price caught four passes for 129 yards.

"We knew as a football team that we had to come out and prove we were the No. 1 team in the nation," Martin said.

Florida State clearly lacked offensive punch with Outen at quarterback. He may have been able to beat Florida two months ago, but he was no match for the linebacker Al Wilson and the Vols' defense. He was 9-of-22 for 145 yards with two interceptions and was sacked four times. He also ran 18 times for minus 1 yard.

Florida State was penalized 32 times for 110 yards, while Tennessee was penalized nine times for 55 yards.

Tee time!

The Associated Press

TEMPE, Ariz.—Peyton Manning set all the records. Tee Martin got a national title by completing six touchdown passes.

Martin, who spent the previous two seasons in the shadow of top NFL draft pick Manning, was the star Monday night as No. 1 Tennessee defeated Florida State 23-16 in the Sun Bowl.

"It feels great, it feels great," Martin said in the middle of a wild celebration at midfield. "We had to prove to everybody we were the No. 1 team in the nation. All the adversity we faced — all the guys that went to the NFL, but now all the shows we had to go through."

Martin, who was 11-0-15 for 278 yards and touchdown passes of 79 yards to Peerless Price and 4 yards to Shawn Brown, had thrown just 16 passes in his first two seasons at Tennessee.

"It was like we didn't exist at the university for a couple of years," Martin said last week, recalling how tough it was to be in Manning's shadow for two seasons.

But patience is something Martin learned during a tough childhood in which he changed addresses 22 times and lost a dozen friends to violence or illness. His Volunteers teammates shared

Tennessee survives ugly-fest

MONTREY, Calif.—Tennessee celebrated its first national championship in the 1998-99 season by winning the National Championship of All College Football at the Sun Bowl of the Tullahoma Campus.

Coming in, this Fiesta Bowl, you'd have thought unimpaired Florida State and Tennessee were playing for little more than a bowl of Tostitos. As the much-ballyhooed first showdown of the new Bowl of Confusion Series unfolded into the final period — Tennessee clinching the lead — the Seminoles seemed most confused by it all.

Coming in, this Fiesta Bowl was a happening. It was the first of a festive, electric event with all the trappings of a Super Bowl and almost as much commotion as a Super Bowl: a pep assembly to be a grand last act for commentator Keith Jackson. Keith may feel the need to call summer's spring scrimmage to cap off his glorious career.

Much of this game was a clinic. A roughing-the-kicker clinic by FSU. A late-strike clinic by Tennessee. You half wonder if elite kicker Bobby Bowden and Phil Fulmer shouldn't have spent less time hugging the last few days and more time coaching. With all the mistakes before intermission, it was a game that only John Cooper could love.

Two more procedure penalties and one more 27-yard shanked punt and Cooper's once-beaten Ohio State team might have been declared champs by halftime. What Cooper needed was an ugly FSU win. Tennessee's Tee Martin and Peerless Price foiled the plan: They hooked up on 76- and 79-yard connections that were the longest plays of the year against FSU's top-ranked defense and enough to prevent any kind of FSU victory, ugly or otherwise.

The second bomb was for a touchdown that assured the two Holy Grails of college football — a perfect season (13-0) and national title — for the SEC champion Vols who were given so little chance last summer after the departure of golden boy quarterback

Peyton Manning.

The 216 yards were abetted by incessant FSU penalties that had Bowden scolding his players at halftime. But the Seminoles conspired to bury themselves in yellow flags. By the end, FSU had 108 yards rushing against Tennessee while the refs had 110 yards walking against FSU.

Bowden had accurately predicted the game would be decided by a big mistake or a big play. They both might have come on the same snap. Sophomore backup quarterback Marcus "Booster" Outen underthrew centerback Peter Warrick deep on the sideline right in front of the Tennessee bench. Big Mistake. Vol corner Dwayne Goodrich knifed in from to make the pick and 54-yard touchdown return. Big Play.

And, Big Hole. 0-14, for FSU, there are 80 seconds into the second period. The Seminoles would spend the remainder of the evening futilely chasing what may have been a Tennessee team of destiny.

BYU offensive tackle to forego senior season for NFL

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY—John Tait, a junior offensive tackle at Brigham Young, announced Monday he will enter the NFL draft.

Tait was widely regarded as the Western Athletic Conference's best lineman during the past two seasons. A three-year starter for the Cougars, the 6-foot-7, 307-pound Tait had been projected as a high first-round pick in the April 17 draft.

"After much thought and deliberation, I made the decision to enter the draft," Tait said in a statement. "I am grateful to coach LaVell Edwards and offensive line) coach Roger French for supporting me and preparing me for the next step in my football career."

Tait, a left tackle, ranks with Outland Trophy winner Mo Elewoutsi as the best offensive linemen in BYU's history. His departure, while expected by those close to the program, is another blow to the Cougars' football fortunes in the past three weeks.

On Dec. 16, running back Ronnie Jenkins, the team's leading rusher during his two seasons at BYU, was suspended for violating the school's honor code. Jenkins was expelled from Brigham Young eight days later, and Tait joined several of his teammates in questioning the fairness of the school's disciplinary methods.

The Cougars lost the Liberty Bowl 43-27 to Tulane on Thursday in a sloppy performance. The next day, backup quarterback Drew Miller announced that Montana would be the destination of his long-rumored transfer.

Tait, who was prize money to the All-WAC first team, broke the news to Edwards on the team's flight home from the Liberty Bowl.

"John has been one of our most outstanding players at BYU," Edwards said. "He has been a great player, and also an inspiring leader. We will miss him not coming back next season. However, he has our full support, and we wish him the very best."

Tait had said that his decision to turn pro would depend on his projected draft position. Draft expert Mel Kiper Jr. expects Tait to be the 10th overall selection, while Sports Illustrated projects him to be picked 12th.

After a scoreless first quarter that featured two fumbles, shanked punts, a missed field goal by the Vols' normally reliable Hall and 59 yards in penalties, Tennessee struck for two touchdowns in 25 seconds.

First, the Vols took three points off the board after the Seminoles' Dexter Jackson was penalized for roughing the kicker on Hall's 24-yard field goal.

Woodson wins defensive rookie award

How can Charles Woodson top his selection as Defensive Rookie of the Year? Well, maybe by having some offensive awards too.

After making five interceptions and playing a key role in transforming the Oakland Raiders from the NFL's worst defense in 1997 to one of its best this season, the cornerback is eager to add offense and special teams to his resume.

Most from the moment he was drafted fourth overall by the Raiders, Woodson made it clear he wanted to see action as a defensive receiver in addition to his defensive responsibilities.

At Michigan, where he became the first primarily defensive player to win the Heisman Trophy, Woodson was a star at receiver and also returned punts.

Gruden then virtually promised to use Woodson on offense in the season finale against Kansas City. But when Woodson reacted coolly, saying he had heard it all before, Gruden rescinded his offer.

UConn stays atop poll; Duke creeps closer

The Associated Press

Connecticut was No. 1 in the Associated Press' college basketball poll for the sixth straight week Monday, but the Huskies' lead over No. 2 Duke was sliced by 15 first-place votes.

Connecticut (11-0) was No. 1 on 55 ballots and received 1,756 points from the national media-panel after decisive wins last week over Villanova and Georgetown.

The Blue Devils (13-1), who convincingly beat then-No. 4 Maryland on the road Sunday, received 13 first-place votes and 1,698 points.

In last week's poll, the Huskies had 63 first-place votes and 1,763 points, while Duke had six and 1,682.

Cincinnati (12-0), the only team to beat Duke this season, remained third after losing North Carolina-Wilmington in its only game last week.

The moments-received, three-first-place votes, one more than the previous poll.

Georgia and Maryland switched places at Nos. 4 and 5, while Kentucky moved up one spot to No. 6. UCLA, which handed Arizona its first loss of the season last weekend, moved from 10th to No. 7 and was followed by Arizona, Purdue and St. John's.

The Top Ten ranking was St. John's first since Dec. 16, 1991, while Kentucky extended its streak of being in the Top Ten to 85, a run that started Feb. 14, 1994.

Duke has the second-longest Top Ten streak at 33 weeks, while Connecticut, at 17, and Stanford, at 10, are the only others in double figures.

North Carolina, which holds the longest current streak of being ranked at 343 weeks, dropped from ninth to No. 11 after losing to California and beating Clemson.

The Tar Heels earned their run of consecutive rankings with the preseason poll of 1990-91, two polls longer than Kentucky's current streak and 10 longer than Kansas.

Michigan State was 12th and was followed by Indiana, Auburn, New Mexico, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Arkansas and Syracuse.

The last five teams in the poll were Clemson, Texas Christian, Oklahoma State, Wisconsin and California.

California entered the rankings with a 9-2 record and having lost its last game, 71-69 in overtime to Oregon at home.

That ended a seven-game winning streak that included the 78-71 victory over North Carolina in the Pete Newell Challenge.

The Golden Bears were last ranked during the 1996-97 season when they made a one-week appearance at No. 25.

Pittsburgh (8-5) dropped out of the rankings from No. 23 after losing four of its last five games.

The Panthers had been ranked for five straight weeks, reaching as high as No. 20, after beating Xavier and Kentucky on consecutive nights in the Puerto Rico Shootout.

This week was Kentucky's 600th appearance in the poll, a number second only to North Carolina's 608. UCLA, at 528, is the only other school to appear more than 500 times in the AP rankings which started Jan. 20, 1948.

San Francisco's comeback victory over Green Bay one of the greatest games of all time. It was for the network, which drew TV's highest viewership since the 1998 Winter Olympics.

Whether it is the excitement of the games or the snow and ice scores that left much of the country in their homes, the Packers' game was just one of four wild-card games over the week and they drew increased viewership from last season.

The San Francisco game posted a 24.2 overnight rating, the highest NFL wild-card game since the Chicago Bears' 15-6 defeat of New Orleans in 1991.

It surpassed last season's NFC wild-card game between Detroit and Tampa Bay on Fox by 27 percent.

"The Christmas gifts were spread around all of the networks who have the NFL," Fox Sports executive producer Ed Green said. "ABC had a great day, then CBS and we wrapped it up with the game of the week."

"We really felt if Cal and Paula and Whitney played the same, we'd be fine," Inglese said.

"The key is Alisha coming in and stepping it up. She's probably been our most consistent player. When you throw Becky into the mix and Nicole Conway, we've been able to develop that depth we need."

BC's next task is to stay in the Top 25, and the Eagles will be challenged immediately.

They have games this week with Syracuse, Seton Hall and Georgetown, all at home.

San Francisco's Eugene Edmons (33) scores against California forward Sam Chesny during that quarter action in Los Angeles Monday. The Packers, who fill two spots to No. 8 this week, won the game 67-7.

BC breaks new ground in poll

The Associated Press

Talk about coming out of nowhere.

Last week, Boston College didn't receive a single vote in The Associated Press women's basketball poll.

On Monday, thanks to its upset of Notre Dame, Boston College received enough votes to be ranked 25th — its first appearance ever in the poll.

"We've worked hard for what we've done this year, but this has been something we've been working hard at for the last two years, especially the junior and senior class," BC coach Cathy Inglese said.

"We've talked as a team about going to the NCAA," Inglese said. "We've talked about beating top teams," she said.

"It's nice when you can see all that hard work pay off. It's pretty exciting for us."

Boston College (10-1) and No. 23 Ohio State (9-3) were the first newcomers in the poll in four years.

But there was no change at the top. Connecticut remained No. 1 for the seventh straight week, while No. 2 Tennessee and No. 3 Purdue have held those spots for five consecutive weeks.

Connecticut (11-0) received 37 of 40 first-place votes from a national media panel after posting two more lopsided victories, 74-43 over Villanova and 116-71 over West Virginia.

The Wildcats are averaging 101.1 points and have an average victory margin of 39.

UConn had 997 points in the voting, Tennessee (11-1) had 963 and Purdue (9-1) 915. Tennessee, which has won 10 straight since its loss to Purdue, received the three other first-place votes.

Georgia (12-0) remained fourth, Louisiana Tech (10-2) was fifth and North Carolina (16-1) held at No. 6. Texas Tech moved up one spot to seventh and was followed by the Ohio State, Notre Dame and UCLA.

Old Dominion jumped three places to lead the second and Clemson fell two spots to 12th after suffering its first loss, 67-66 in overtime to Virginia. Duke climbed four places to 13th and was followed by Virginia Tech, Rutgers, Iowa State, Penn State, Alabama, Florida and Nebraska.

Kansas, Virginia, Ohio State, Memphis and Boston College held the final five spots.

Santa Clara and George Washington dropped out.

Ohio State (9-3), which has won eight of its last nine, broke into the Top 25 after a 72-54 victory at Penn State.

It's the first national ranking for Ohio State since the week of Jan. 3, 1995, when the Buckeyes were 22nd — the only time that season they were ranked.

Though Boston College won 35 games the past two years, the 78-65 victory over then-No. 7 Notre Dame last week was its first over a Top 10 team.

The Eagles are led by veterans Cal Bouchard, a first-team All-Big East pick last season, Whitney Steele and Paula Bacon.

They're also getting solid play from junior Alisha Murphy and freshman Becky Gottschick and Nicole Conway.

"We really felt if Cal and Paula and Whitney played the same, we'd be fine," Inglese said.

"The key is Alisha coming in and stepping it up. She's probably been our most consistent player. When you throw Becky into the mix and Nicole Conway, we've been able to develop that depth we need."

Vikes set school record with win over Weber

The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Brian Towne scored 20 points as Portland State defeated Weber State Monday night for the Vikings' school-record 15th straight home win.

Towne connected on 6-of-8 3-pointers, and Jason Hartman added 16 points for the Vikings (8-3 overall, 1-0 Big Sky Conference).

Portland State, which dropped back to .500 in 1991 and brought it back for the 1995-96 season, broke its record of 14 straight home victories set between December 1970 and December 1971. The Vikings also have won nine straight conference games.

Harold Arceaus scored 12 points, all in the first half, for Weber State (10-5, 1-1). The Wildcats beat Sacramento State 81-76 Saturday in their Big Sky opener.

Owners return union's rejection of proposal

NEW YORK (AP) — NBA owners rejected the union's latest collective bargaining proposal Monday night and recommended canceling the rest of the 1998-99 season.

Commissioner David Stern left the door open for more talks, but said a settlement before Thursday — the owners' deadline for saving the season — "does not seem likely at all."

"I needed to see a proposal that reached for ours. Instead, I saw that went backward," Stern said.

Union director Billy Hunter and union president Patrick Ewing delivered the proposal to Stern and deputy commissioner Russ Granik at a hotel across the street from NBA headquarters. A few hours later, Granik said the owners' labor relations committee had turned it down in a 9-0 vote and recommended canceling the rest of the season.

The union later said the players will meet Wednesday in New York to vote on the owners' latest offer, with the union's negotiating committee recommending it be rejected.

"There's always hope, but right now we don't have any meetings scheduled," Granik said. "Based upon how far apart we are, there's a lot more needed to be done than simply tweaking the offers."

News of an upcoming player vote came as a surprise, since the union had insisted it would not present any proposal for a vote unless its negotiating committee recommended it.

"The reason for the vote, the union said, was 'to assure that the owners understand the level of player resolve and the degree of opposition to the NBA's onerous demands.'"

Stern had been calling for a player vote for more than a week.

"The majority has a right to control the destiny of an organization, and that's between them and their own representatives," Stern said.

Stern said Granik also said the owners' negotiating committee would meet in New York, perhaps Wednesday night. But it is uncertain if there will be a meeting with the players' committee.

If no deal is reached, the

Everyone wins as state pays $5 million for Box Canyon

It was a classy final touch. In his last official act in office, Gov. Phil Batt announced the purchase of Box Canyon, about 10 miles north of Buhl. For $5 million, the state gets about 350 acres and control of North America's 11th largest spring.

Anyone who has been there knows the short canyon and its cold, clear creek will make a stunning state park. A subtle side-benefit is continuation of the creek's beneficial effect on the sluggish, polluted Snake River.

Box Canyon's longtime owner, Boise developer Earl Hardy, knew his land and water rights were valuable. For 30 years, he's wanted to divert the tumbling Box Canyon, about 10 miles north of Buhl, for $5 million, the state gets about 350 acres and control of North America's 11th largest spring.

Not everyone shared Hardy's vision. Environmentalists opposed the idea, as did neighbors who thought Box Canyon deserved protection - not development.

Opponents fought Hardy to a standstill, but he continued to own the land and claim the water. It was a classic standoff, the likes of which are becoming common in the West: Yet another would-be developer was unable to sue for property, and environmentalists had big plans for someone else's land - but no money to pay for it.

Fortunately, Hardy was willing to negotiate. State Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, helped broker the deal for what he described as a "100-carat environmental gem."

Noh got the ball rolling in 1996, when he wrote to Batt suggesting the state pay for an appraisal with an eye toward acquiring the land. Noh's letter was co-signed by a dozen southern Idaho legislators ranging from Burley to Ketchum to Glenns Ferry.

The state couldn't afford to buy Box Canyon, so the money will come from The Nature Conservancy, from state-level fines against the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory, and from the Idaho Power Co., which is seeking to relocate its dams along the Middle Snake.

In the end, Hardy, Noh and others reached a thoughtful public-private compromise that's fair to everyone. Hardy gets fair value for his assets, and the people of Idaho get a spectacular place to hike and picnic.

Phil Batt deserves a bow of his own. He has proven to be much more of an environmental steward than his any of his critics predicted four years ago. Bringing Box Canyon into public ownership was a fitting final act.

Anyone who has seen it knows Box Canyon and its cold, clear creek will make a stunning state park.

City shoots economic par at Muni

Your Dec. 23 editorial on the golf course makes a very valid point. The city should not subsidize the operation of the golf course. A closer look at the numbers shows the city is not subsidizing the operation of the golf course.

Current year: First of all, the editorial states the golf course will have a deficit of more than $63,000 in the current fiscal year.

While a cursory review of the budget indicates this, a further understanding of the budget process with appropriate adjustments to determine true accounting income shows the current year will break even, if not have a small profit.

State law requires a city to appropriate (budget) every dollar to be expended in the coming year, including the purchase of equipment and improvements that are not an expense of the year in which they are incurred.

We try to run the golf course as a business and believe we are. In a business, when you buy a piece of equipment, it is considered an asset, not an expense. The expense for that asset is recognized over a period of years - the estimated life of the asset - as depreciation.

So while the city's golf course budget for expenditures for the current year totals $426,795, this amount includes the expenditures of $69,000 for new equipment (including $2,000 for new mowers) and $35,500 for course improvements. Furthermore, the budget does not include depreciation expense, which will be around $35,000.

To determine expense, you reduce the expenditures for the equipment and im-improvements ($104,500), recognizing them as an asset, as a business would do, and increase the expenditures for depreciation expense ($35,000). Thus, the total golf course expense for the year total only $357,295.

Revenue from the golf course last year was $357,411 and is expected to be the same in the current year. Therefore, we project the golf course to at least "break even" in this year. The recent changes in golf course rates are projected to be "revenue neutral."

Cumulative deficit: Second, the editorial indicates the golf course has a history of "running in the red" - where five of the past 10 years have been financial bogys.

This is true; however, four of the other five of the past 10 years were financial "birds in the hand" as they were not an "expense," since the combined income from the good years is $91,049 and the combined loss from the bad years is only $32,423 for the overall profit for the 10 years of $58,626. (The detail of these 10 years was published in The Times-News on Dec. 17, 1998.)

Furthermore, the cumulative deficit pointed out, of $158,000, included the current budget deficit of $63,000. Since that deficit really isn't going to occur, as explained above, the cumulative deficit is more like $100,000.

Additionally, since the last 10 years had an overall profit, the cumulative deficit is less now than 10 years ago. Our handicap seems to be improving, not getting worse.

The fluctuations in net income from year to year are inevitable due to varying weather patterns and their effect on course play.

Over the years, the city has spent more time studying the management of other golf courses, including those from Weiser to Idaho Falls, plus Lewiston. One interesting fact here - there are nearly twice as many golf courses per capita in Magic Valley as in other areas of the state. This is why rounds played per course are lower here than in other areas.

The subject of golf, while a small part of the city budget, always seems to elicit a high level of interest from the public. The golfers want improvements and lower fees, the non-golfing public wants the golf course to pay for itself and the owners of private courses are concerned - when our fees are less than theirs - drawing people away from their courses.

The city tries to be responsible to the public and the taxpayers by setting golf fees at a level that covers operating expenses. Our history shows that we have and are. But it also must be recognized the course is an asset of the citizens of the city, so rates do not need to include any return on the investment in the course itself. The return on the investment is realized through lower fees.

Isn't this economic par at Muni? We think it is.

How much longer can America's luck prevail?

Thomas Jefferson said that the price of liberty is eternal vigilance. Much as I hate to argue with a failed founder, I'm not sure the assertion applies any longer.

The events of 1998, and the American public's relaxed reaction to them, would suggest the price was being paid in full and we can - gulp - afford to drop our guard.

Americans have been able to count on such individual freedom and political stability for so long that we needn't slow down to consider how our president's impeachment might threaten our way of life even when the impeachment, as in our case, coincided with our bombing of another nation.

Real possibilities elsewhere in the world are so remote as to be unthinkable here. Our dollars aren't going to plummet in value overnight. Store shelves and gas pumps aren't going to empty out and remain that way. We can walk a sidewalk or go to sleep without fearing that some authority figure is going to rob us or a loved one of either life or liberty.

How extraordinarily lucky we are. This lit me as President Clinton was being impeached by the House of Representatives. During the voting on the second article of impeachment, I was having soup with my kids at a restaurant. Later, as the House voted on the third and fourth articles, I was reminiscing the miles at a department store.

The stores, restaurants and streets were just as crowded as you'd expect them to be on a normal Saturday before Christmas. There was nothing in anyone's demeanor to indicate that our country was on a national precipice.

There was none of the national stillness that I recall following the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy. The average adult, according to one study, spent 10 hours in front of a television the day after JFK's death - in those halcyon days before cable.

The groggy country would later remember it as a gap between days - between William Manchester, "between the shock of Friday's assassination and the murder of the assassin on Sunday." We came together in a similarly somber posture during the 1974 resignation of President Richard Nixon and the 1991 opening of the Persian Gulf War.

This time, though, as our twice-elected leader was impeached for perjury and obstructing justice, the blissful din in which we live roared on. We didn't pay attention because we didn't have to pay attention.

It's comforting to interpret the prevailing apathy about the tumult in Washington, D.C., as evidence of the nation's strength. The same reasoning could be used to excuse last month's voter turnout, which was the lowest nationally since 1942.

For a born worrier, though, it's still cause for long-term concern. Before someone tells me to "just watch and learn from it and be inspired to participate in the process. Given that it's estimated that voter turnout among 18- to 24-year-olds last year was only below the record 20 percent of 1994, what sort of calamity - or miracle - will it take to inspire young people to claim their rightful roles as leaders?

Respect designated-use areas

We've noticed a disturbing trend in the South Hills this winter. Perhaps people have the mistaken impression that since the South Hills don't warrant any mention in The Times-News Winter Guide that inappropriate behavior is tolerated. Whatever the reason, some people are just plain rude this year.

Although often overlooked, the South Hills boasts more than 20 miles of cross-country ski trails.

These trails are maintained and groomed by volunteers from the High Desert Nordic Association.

It's disheartening to spend an afternoon grooming the trail only to come back to discover that sleds have walked through the trail or someone has snowed out the trail or someone has snowboarded down the trail. A little bit of courtesy goes a long way. If you're on snowshoes, please stay to the side of the ski tracks.

If you're sledding, avoid walking on the trail or sledding over it. And to be honest, there's no reason for snowboarders to be on the Rock Creek Trail, even though it skirts the side of Magic Mountain.

The same is true for the snow machine trails. Those groomed trails are set for snow machines, not cross-country skis or snowshoes. If you're under your own power, you have no business on the groomed snow machine trails.

Vehicle drivers are not exempt from this rash of rudeness. In addition to the glaring examples of four-wheel truck drivers trying to drive up the groomed trails, common sense seems in short supply.

If you do drive Rock Creek Road, make sure your tires aren't bald and throw a pair of chains in.

If you spin out on the road, it can cause a chain reaction accident. We saw this happen twice on a recent weekend. If it wasn't for the defensive driving of others, these accidents could have been much worse.

One more thing: If you come upon someone who has slid off the road and is trying to get back on, pull over to the side, stop and turn on your flashers. Forcing your way through an accident scene on a slick, windy mountain road is inviting a worse accident.

There's plenty of room in the South Hills for those who want to downhill ski, ride snow machines, snowboard, snowshoe, cross-country ski or take a dog-sled ride.

Show a little respect and courtesy for your fellow enthusiasts by respecting designated-use areas.

Traffic Woes will worsen Pole Line Road has been more or less neglected in the last 20 or 30 years. Now we are in the process of wanting to build a new alternate route or widen Pole Line Road. Pole Line should have been widened or improved before they started to develop the north end of Twin Falls.

And just before they built the Perrine Bridge. Now we have these traffic problems which we are dealing with now.

It has taken 20 years to improve the 93-30 junction near Filer. It looks like it will take another 10 or 20 years to build another Snake River crossing bridge and another two to three years to build an alternate route or widen Pole Line.

The people who oppose the bridge improvements to our roads or roads. We just want to be sure we are making the right choices in regard to an alternate route or another Snake River crossing bridge. We don't want to put up with the traffic problems that we have now.

Stocks rattle investors, give up big gains to end slightly higher

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Blue-chip stocks erased substantial early gains to close Monday's session slightly higher as investors, nervous that the economy could not continue to grow at its current pace, sold their holdings to bank profits.

Meanwhile, technology stocks carried their strong run into the new year, pushing the Nasdaq composite to its fourth record in five trading sessions.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which gained 16.1 percent last year, closed the first trading session of this year up 2.84 at 9,374.27. The Dow was up as much as 168.64 at 9:30 a.m. during the late morning, threatening to challenge the record closing high of 9,393.84 set last Friday.

The Nasdaq, the leading technology stock composite, which is heavily weighted in technology stocks, rose 15.35 to 2,208.04.

But other broad stock indexes fell. The Standard & Poor's 500 fell 4.39 to 1,224.84, the NYSE composite index fell 1.69 to 594.12, and the American Stock Exchange composite index fell 5.38 to 683.61. The Russell 2000 index of smaller companies eased 0.70 to 421.26.

Advancing issues outnumbered decliners by a 5-to-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume was strong at a revised 1.07 billion shares as of a p.m., up from Thursday's session. The stock market was closed last Friday in observance of the New Year holiday.

Buyers descended at the opening bell in the hopes of profiting from investors putting year-end bonuses and cash reserves to work in the new year. But they retreated in the afternoon following a speech by Adam P. Finkelstein, Federal Reserve Bank President Jack Gwynn.

Euro starts strong

But long-term effects remain uncertain

The Associated Press

FRANKFURT, Germany — Europe's currency got off to a strong start Monday, rising against the dollar on world currency markets. But analysts said it will take time to determine whether the currency will challenge the dollar's international dominance.

Some suggested if the euro is too strong, it could hurt both the U.S. and European economies.

With the euro trading above expectations, European officials were delighted at the successful launch of their ambitious economic and monetary union, rightly thinking 11 nations and their 292 million residents.

After starting off at $1.1668 early in the trading day, the euro hit a high of $1.1886 in Tokyo, and slipped slightly to $1.1830 in late European trading. In New York, the euro cost $1.1830 in late trading.

French central banker Jean-Claude Trichet welcomed the euro's growth as "the best possible omen."

The euro was launched Jan. 1, a day after conversion rates.

An unidentified trader checks the euro exchange rate of the Madrid Stock Exchange Monday. Europe's new currency, the euro, made a strong debut Monday, in a sign that markets welcomed the single currency as an alternative to the dollar.

It's tax time again

IRS offers help to taxpayers as filing season begins

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A new round-the-clock telephone helpline and Saturday office hours are among new tax filing services Clinton administration officials announced Monday to mark the beginning of the annual tax-filing season.

"We hope that by doing our job better, people will understand that the IRS is not an enemy of the taxpayers at all," Charles Rossetti, commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service, told reporters. "Our job is to be an agent to help the taxpayer meet the obligations."

The tax filing season that ends April 15 marks the first test of the 1996 reform law intended in part to transform the much-maligned IRS into a "friendlier, more service-oriented agency."

Some of these changes will take years to complete. But Rossetti said.

Local sculptor brings bronze to life

By Moriah Ray
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS - Danny Edwards is fast becoming a legend in his own time. He has gone from "starving artist" to working for the rich and famous, in just 15 years.

Edwards ran a furniture store in Twin Falls at the Lynwood Shopping Center where he sold water beds and bedroom furniture, some of which he made with the help of his father.

Then one day, Edwards met bronze sculptor Earl McAdams who was showing him a park in Twin Falls.

"McAdams explained his work to me," Edwards said. "He was very open about it, and he stimulated my thinking. I turned to my wife Lynda and said, 'I think I could do that.'"

Two years later, Edwards approached his wife about his desire to embark on a career change.

"I told my wife Lynda I wanted to be a sculptor and she supported me," Edward said. "She said she would work in the store for a while, until I got established. My first year I sold a lot of pieces to a company in California called Laguna. As my own unique style started to come forth, I got more creative."

"I'm self-taught," Edwards explained.

"I learned on my own, from experience and reading books. It took me several years to work out the technique."

Edwards took his work to various foundries to have them cast in bronze.

Two years ago he opened his own foundry called The Renditions Bronze Foundry and his business is called Danny Edwards Bronzes. He runs it with the help of his wife, Lynda, and his daughter Holly Byner, who are the chief mold makers. His son-in-law, Josh Byner, is his right hand man.

"You never know where your market might be," Edwards said. "I met my best client at a motel in Lander, Wyo. We started talking, and I found out he was an art collector. He has commissioned me to do several monumental pieces, and he has a large collection of artwork."

Edwards does enlargements, which is a specialized process not offered by many foundries. He was commissioned by a foundry doing work for Kevin Cosner, to enlarge six buffalo which stand about 7-feet high.

There are 32 major processes, and several smaller ones, involved from the start of the work until the end product is reached. Edwards says that his business is demanding and is often challenging but he says that he loves his work.

"I did what my heart lead me to do," Edwards said, "and my life is peaceful and fulfilling."

DeMary Library claims first Scholastic Book Fair as success

RUPERT - The DeMary Library "blasted off" on a Scholastic Book Fair adventure in October and the first-time experience was a success.

A volunteer committee spearheaded the "Travel to the Planet Book Fair" for the first time this year. Carol Mammos acted as the event chairman and directed the dedicated group on the project to provide money for children's books at the library.

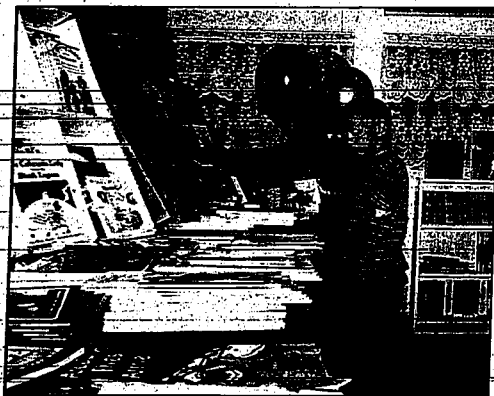

The kick-off evening drew a diverse crowd of library patrons, children, parents, teachers, adults and grandparents. Entertainment included Greg Lowe reading to the crowd and Jaime Ford dressed as a witch acting out a memorized book.

The library will receive 40 percent of the total $1,377.97 in sales after redeem the money as books and it reduces to 30 percent if cash is redeemed.

Six hundred dollars in free books were received for reaching $1,000 in sales, including lots of advertising and for the number of schools represented. Approximately forty teachers attended the fair.

Several contests and drawings were held during the fair. Winners of the "Welcome to Our Planet" creative contest won $10 in books and a poster.

Winners were: Kayla Nytor, 2001 grade; and Jordan Lujanquist, fourth grade. Jerick Staker guessed 207 rocks in the jar, the actual number was 209. Hannah Hull was the guessing winner for the "Pages in Dictionary" contest. Teachers winning free books at the drawing were Helen Almanza, $25; Harriet Roberts, $15; Amy Bingham, $10; and Jolene Hunsaker, $10.

Woodman of America honor Rupert woman

RUPERT - Norma Plughoeff recently received a "Community Service Recognition" award from the Modern Woodmen of America Camp 15534.

Plughoeff was chosen for her outstanding service to the community. She has been the American Red Cross Rupert blood drive chairman for over 30 years and active as a volunteer with the Minidoka Memorial Hospital volunteer guild.

Plughoeff was unable to attend an honorary dinner held at Doc's Pizza in Rupert on Dec. 21. Jerry Voss, camp secretary, George Fullmer and Ann Dewald made the plaque presentation at Norma's home on Dec. 26.

The award coincides with the fraternal life insurance society's community service recognition month. The organization emphasizes the importance of community and individuals contributing to the community. The society has nearly 700,000 members nationwide.

Idaho painters help create White House winter wonderland

WICHITA, Kan. - For the past several months, members of the Society of Decorative Painters (SDP) have been busy painting Christmas tree ornaments for the Blue Room tree at the White House.

First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton has announced the 1998 holiday theme at the White House, "Winter Wonderland," and society members have been able to tour the White House and set their ornaments on display.

Society members from Idaho who participated in the project included Betty Joyce of Twin Falls, Kathleen Lumeir-Buhl, Marie Harber of Twin Falls, Patty Lincoln of Twin Falls, Peggy Jardine of Twin Falls, Peggy McBride of Twin Falls, Sandy Cope of Twin Falls and Shirley McCoy of Buhl.

Members of the society were invited in June to paint wooden ornaments with items found in winter scenes, such as sleds, skates, ice fishing poles, robots, guns, sleds and sleighs.

To help decorate the tree, the White House also invited the governors of each state to supply a stuffed snowman, and the Knitting Guild of America was asked to provide knitted mittens and caps.

In all, more than 400 Society ornaments were sent to the White House from 47 states and four foreign countries, including Japan, Australia, the Netherlands and Bahrain. All the ornaments were sent to Mary Ann Spinhauer, SDP President, of Pinnacled.

North Carolina.

Society members who contributed an ornament to the project have received their official invitations from the White House to view the 1998 holiday decorations, including the Blue Room Tree.

This is the second time society members have been invited to paint ornaments for the White House. Four years ago, members ornaments were used to help decorate for the "Twelve Days of Christmas," the 1994 holiday theme.

Idaho members of the Society of Decorative Painters decorated some of the ornaments used to fill the Blue Room at the White House with holiday cheer.

The Society also has painted ornaments for Vice President Al Gore's home, Blair House, the Smithsonian Institution, and most recently the Library of Congress.

The Society of Decorative Painters, whose headquarters is located in Wichita, Kan., is a volunteer membership organization with members throughout the United States, Canada and 45 foreign countries. It has 253 affiliated chapters that actively promote the art-form through community service projects and other painting-related activities.

The Society publishes the industry's leading decorative painting magazine, The Decorative Painter, houses the world's most extensive collection of decorative painted artwork, and hosts the largest annual decorative painting extravaganza in the world.

Kidwell assumes high court bench

BOISE (AP) — Wayne Kidwell was sworn in as the new justice of the Idaho Supreme Court on Monday, pledging to confirm the confidence of Idaho voters who filed an open high court seat for the first time in 30 years.

"I will work as hard as I can and as conscientiously as I can to uphold this faith in the judicial system that allows free elections," Kidwell said after taking the oath from Chief Justice Linda Copple Trout in a Supreme Court hearing room packed with state, officials and his friends.

Gov. Dirk Kempthorne attended the ceremony less than two hours after he and the other statewide elected officials were sworn in.

"We are simply doing our job, working on behalf of our fellow citizens," the new governor said. "We are here as a sign of respect to our coequal branch of government and the marketplace that exists."

Kidwell became the 49th person to serve on the state's highest court after easily defeating Boise attorney

Wayne Kidwell

Michael Wetherell in November to succeed Byron Johnson. Johnson served nearly nine years on the court.

A former Republican state senator, Kidwell, 60, also became only the second man in state history to be elected to serve in all three branches of government. The late Allan Shepherd was a Republican state representative and attorney general before assuming his position on the Supreme Court in 1963.

Republican Herman Taylor also served all three branches of government — as a legislator, state senator and judge — but he was initially appointed rather than elected to the Supreme Court in 1925.

Typically, justices as other members of the judiciary are appointed by the governor from a list of up to four candidates nominated by the Idaho Judicial Commission. Those who choose to stand for election after appointment normally are not opposed.

The traditionally nonpartisan election to succeed Johnson took on a partisan tone as Kidwell campaigned like the old-time politician he is, touting his GOP credentials in heavily Republican Idaho and unabashedly declaring his opinions on issues including abortion, gun control and capital punishment.

Wetherell, the former state Democratic Party chairman, took pains to avoid even the appearance of having made up his mind on any issue and was less than subtle in suggesting anyone doing otherwise was violating judicial ethics.

But while Wetherell spent $100,000 on the race compared to the $62,000 Kidwell invested, he lost with less than 43 percent of the vote.

Judge grants venue change

CALDWELL (AP) — Third District Judge Gerald Weston has granted a change of venue for the trial of a Nampa man charged with felony injury to a child.

A site for the trial has not been selected, but it will not be in Canyon County, Trial Court Administrator Dan Kessler said Monday. That decision will be made soon.

Steven Young faces up to 10 years in prison if he is convicted of placing his blind, developmentally disabled son in scalding water last summer.

The trial, scheduled to begin Monday with opening arguments, will be delayed until a jury is seated.

Young pleaded guilty to the charge in November, but changed his plea before he was sentenced and asked for a jury trial. He is accused of causing second- and third-degree burns to his son's feet and buttocks July 7, when he placed the child in too-hot bath water.

Senator wants meth 'cooks' to pay for cleanup

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Residents whose property is contaminated by illegal methamphetamine labs may soon have a chance to collect restitution to cover the costs of cleanup.

Sen. Pete Szabo, D-Salt Lake City, plans to introduce a bill in the 1999 legislative session that would more clearly define property owners as victims of meth labs.

Leader wants Internet sales tax

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — House Majority Leader Kevin Garn hopes state and congressional officials can work quickly to develop a plan to tap into sales tax revenue from Internet sales.

Garn said sales from this holiday season to $2.3 billion, and revenues were up 230 percent compared to the previous year.

"This problem is getting bigger every year," Garn said. "It's starting to have an impact on state budgets."

State officials have not yet developed a plan, he said, although the National Conference of State Legislatures and the National Governors' Association have been drafting proposals to present to Congress and the states.

MY FAMILY AND I would like to thank Ralph Hopwood for his help, kindness and everyone involved with remembering to me at the 1998 Freeze On Skis and for providing for my children with trust funds. Helping people was always important to Joe and it is comforting to know that his wishes meant so much to everyone.

We cannot express how much it means to know that Joe was as special to others as he was to us. We will be glad to help again for honoring his memory.

Christina & Alyce W.
