City prepares to charge coroner

By Brian Haynes
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The Twin Falls city prosecutor said he is ready to file a criminal charge against the county's part-time coroner in connection with a Feb. 16 fight with skateboarders at the Lynwood Shopping Center.

"I haven't filed a complaint, but I'm ready to once I know I have a cooperative witness," Fritz Wonderlich said. When Wonderlich gets a promise from 17-year-old Austin Hoy to testify, he will file a misdemeanor battery charge against Gene Turley, the Twin Falls County coroner and manager of Gem State Security, Wonderlich said.

Twin Falls police were not pursuing charges against Hoy or any other skateboarder, and did not forward any reports to the juvenile prosecutor's office, Sgt. Steve Benkula said.

"I guess it's a one-sided system, isn't it?" said Mark Stubbs, Turley's lawyer and Gem State Security owner. "I just hope the system treats everybody equally.

We're certainly prepared, as a company, to defend Gene."

Wonderlich reached his decision after reviewing a recently completed investigation by Twin Falls police, which includes some conflicting accounts of what happened that day.

In a written statement included with the police report, Turley said he was going to confiscate the skateboards as part of the mall's "zero-tolerance policy" toward skateboarders. He took a board from Michael Loden and turned toward Hoy, who ran, Turley wrote.

Turley ran after Hoy, who during the chase swung his skateboard and hit Turley twice in the head, Turley wrote. Turley

ON LOCATION IN RUPERT

A 1967 Ford Fairlane 500, owned and driven by Danny Driesel of Gooding, passes by Swensen's during filming of a movie in Rupert. Feature Films for Families comes to film today in Rupert.

Movie crew films 'tomboy' story

Locals have roles in film of girl who wants to play sports

By Loraine Cavener
Times-News writer

RUPERT—It all started at 5 a.m. Tuesday, when Swensen's Magic Market in Rupert was transformed into a movie set for a story that takes place in the 1960s.

The crew brought in soda machines from the '60s, changed the magazines in the racks, stocked the shelves with 1960s-era products and moved vintage autos into the parking lot.

"It's pretty big time for Rupert," said Dale Teeter, who along with several other members of Mini-Cassia Auto

Collectors, contributed the use of vintage autos for the filming of "Jumping For Joy."

Feature Films for Families of Salt Lake City will be back on location today on the Rupert Square. The company filmed shots in Burley Monday.

The movie is about a 17-year-old girl who loves basketball. But the film's hero of the film didn't have a chance to play because there were no girls' teams in Summerville, Mo., in 1964.

But the tomboyish girl's dream to play on a team came true when she was mistaken for a boy.

"I have a feeling something like that could have happened in Rupert in 1964," said Clyde Smith, the movie's director of photography.

Part of Smith's job is to keep things looking like the '60s, he said.

"Rupert is a wonderful town for that," Smith said. "I love doing this. It is so much fun to create another world, especially

Court: FDA can't regulate cigarettes as a drug

Newsday

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court ruled 5-4 Tuesday that the federal Food and Drug Administration lacks the power to regulate tobacco products. It was a huge legal victory for the tobacco industry and a major setback for the Clinton administration's campaign to curb teen smoking.

All nine justices agreed that tobacco use poses perhaps the greatest single health hazard in the country today but sharply disagreed over what's required to combat the problem.

Congress must grant the FDA specific authority if it wants the agency to apply to tobacco products the same type of rules it enforces on drugs, said the majority opinion written by Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

And lawmakers are working to do just that. Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said, "I ask our drug stores, I ask our gas stations, other places where kids can buy cigarettes to not pull back. ... I urge this committee to keep the cigarettes behind the counter, to keep that ID check sign up" while lawmakers push for legislation allowing FDA regulation of tobacco.

Vice President Al Gore and several Democratic members of Congress called for legislation.

The dissenters contended the FDA already has the authority to carry out the anti-smoking campaign launched by the administration in 1996.

Reagan's daughter lobbies for funds

She pleads to senators for an additional $100 million to battle degenerative brain disease

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON—Eleven years ago he handed the keys to the White House to his chosen Republican successor. But now, 89-year-old Ronald Reagan may not even remember that he was the 40th president of the United States.

With Reagan's condition steadily worsening, Maureen Reagan appeared Tuesday before a Senate subcommittee to plea for more research spending to combat Alzheimer's, the disease that grips her father's brain.

Six years ago the former Republican president, who lives in Bel-Air, Calif., with his wife, Nancy, announced his diagnosis in an open letter to the public. How is he doing now?

"I am asked that question wherever I go," Maureen Reagan told the Senate appropriations subcommittee for labor, health

Bill would create drug registry

By Michael Journe
Times-News writer

BOISE—A measure unanimously approved by the Senate Tuesday aims to put drug dealers under public scrutiny, similar to what the state's sexual offenders now face.

Using a conversation with his wife, and his knowledge of the state's sexual offender registry, Sen. John Sandy, R-Hagerman, has worked since last summer ironing out the kinks in a measure that would require annual local registration of repeat felony drug offenders. The measure also provides for a central registry to allow public access of the records.

"I think this is something that will send a real message from Idaho that we won't accept this," Sandy said of the bill, which sailed through the Senate in a 35-0 vote.

The bill will now be considered by a House committee. With the committee's blessing the full House would consider whether to pass the bill on to Gov. Dirk Kempthorne for his signature.

Kempthorne's office has declined comment on the measure until the legislative process has run its course.

Standoff ends with hostages OK, man dead

The Associated Press

DUNDALK, Md.—After two hostages jumped to safety from a window in their home, police stormed their apartment, rescued a third hostage and fatally shot the man who had held them captive since Friday, police said.

Joseph Palczynski, who took the three hostages on Friday, was shot to death by police. The only shots fired at the end of the standoff came from police.

The standoff began Friday when Palczynski, 31, allegedly forced his way into a home in a Baltimore suburb and took three people hostage, including the mother of his former girlfriend. He is accused of kidnapping his ex-girlfriend of March 7, killing four people over a two-day period and leading police on a manhunt for more than a week.

Palczynski kept officers in Idaho at bay in a standoff eight years ago. After his girlfriend complained of abuse to her and her daughter, Palczynski stood off Gooding County officers for almost a full day before he was talked out. Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Gouding said.

Marshals nab former black militant

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — H. Rap Brown, the 1960s black militant, was cornered in a shed and arrested after a gun battle with U.S. marshals searching for him for the fatal shooting of Sheriff's deputy in Atlanta, authorities said. He said the actions against him were a "government conspiracy."

Brown, now known as Jamil Abdullah Al-Amin, wore handcuffs and chains on his ankles as he was led into the Montgomery courtroom Tuesday for a preliminary hearing to clear the way for his return to Georgia. Al-Amin made no comment during the court proceeding. Asked while being led out of the courtroom if he had any comment, he said, "It's a government conspiracy." He was then returned to jail and could go back to Georgia as soon as Wednesday, U.S. Attorney Redding Pitt said.

Al-Amin was arrested Monday night on a rural road west of Montgomery after he fled the shed and was pursued through woods by federal and local law officers. Al-Amin's capture came four days after he allegedly killed a Georgia deputy and wounded another while they tried to serve him with an arrest warrant in Atlanta, 160 miles northeast of Montgomery.

Stars, students push for funding of the arts

WASHINGTON — Movie stars and drama students pushed Tuesday for more federal spending on the arts. Unlike previous pleas, these were supported by hard data on how acting, painting or playing an instrument helps a schoolchild do well in all lessons. "The arts simply saved my life," said Hector Elizondo, a television and film actor who grew up in New York City's Harlem district. "I was lucky. There are so many folks from my neighborhood (who) if this institution had been a fabric of their lives, they would have flourished."

Organizers released reports that they said prove arts education deserves a place in America's classrooms.

A study from the University of California, Los Angeles, found that a national sample of students who studied the arts in grades eight to 10 made higher grades, "scored better on standardized tests and were less likely to drop out of school. Seven in 10 of the arts students made top scores in reading, history, geography and citizenship compared with the 45 percent of students who had few arts classes or activities and still did as well in reading. Just 1.4 percent of the arts-involved children left school by 10th grade, while almost 5 percent of the nonarts children did."

Nation in brief

Jamil Abdullah Al-Amin was arrested March 20 after a gun battle with federal marshals.

Study: Filling a car with teens is just asking for trouble

CHICAGO — The more young people you pack into a car with a teen-ager behind the wheel, the more likely the driver will die in a crash, a study found.

The study, conducted by researchers at Johns Hopkins School of Public Health in Baltimore, confirms what many parents have long suspected.

The problem is "general foolishness and distractions" for drivers who are just getting to know the rules of the road, said Robert Foss of the University of North Carolina Highway Safety Research Center. "They will egg one another on to try to run a stop light or say, 'Let's see if you can get it up to 70 miles an hour before the next stop sign,'" Foss said. But most often, he said, it's simpler things — animated conversation, for example.

The study, published in today's Journal of the American Medical Association, was based on federal data from 1992 through 1997.

Judge dismisses political asylum suit filed for Elian

MIAMI — A federal judge Tuesday refused to block the U.S. government from sending 5-year-old Elian Gonzalez back to his father in Cuba, saying the court has no right to second-guess the attorney general on matters of asylum.

Twelve days after hearing arguments in the case, U.S. District Judge K. Michael Moore dismissed the lawsuit filed by Elian's great-uncle in Miami. The judge said that "each passing day is another day lost between Juan Gonzalez and his son."

Elián's Miami relatives said they will appeal, while in Washington; Attorney General Janet Reno said she will consult with other Justice Department officials on how to reunite Elian with his father in a prompt and orderly way. But she did not set any deadline. Justice Department officials have made clear that they want to avoid any steps that would traumatize the boy or provoke a confrontation with Miami's large Cuban exile community.

Pentagon delays missile defense test by two months

WASHINGTON — A planned April test of the National Missile Defense system has been pushed back until late June, but the Pentagon said Tuesday that President Clinton will still get its recommendation this summer on whether the anti-missile system is technically mature enough to deploy by 2005.

It remains unclear, however, whether Clinton will make a deployment decision or leave it to his successor.

Snow-cave collapse kills two college students

STRATTON, Vt. — Two college students spending a night outdoors were killed when their snow cave collapsed, apparently after a piece of heavy machinery dumped snow on their shelter as they slept, investigators said.

Jake Shumway, 19, and Robert Carr, 19, freshmen on spring break from Plymouth State College in New Hampshire, were found buried in the collapsed cave by friends Saturday morning at the Stratton Mountain ski resort.

Dan M. Davis, Windham County state's attorney, said Monday that a bucket-loader dumped snow either on the snowbank or nearby. "It may or may not have contributed to their deaths," he said.

Bill will raise cap on working elderly

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Congress prepares to give elderly workers an election-year gift from both parties, a retiring senator reminded colleagues Tuesday that ending the Social Security earnings limit does nothing to help deal with predicted future shortfalls in the program.

Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Nebr., supports the bill to remove the earning limits, but he cautioned that the lack of comprehensive reform puts future generation at economic peril. "People under the age of 40 are going to pay a terrible price for that," he said.

The Senate was expected to pass the bill today and send it back to the House, which must agree on a technical amendment before it can be sent to President Clinton for his promised signature.

The legislation scraps a measure that penalizes about 800,000 people age 65 through 69 who continue to work. They now lose $1 in Social Security benefits for every $3 in wages they make above $17,000. Allowing them to collect full benefits will cost the Social Security account an estimated $22.7 billion over 10 years. But over the long term the program would not be adversely affected, in part because the more people who work, the more payroll taxes go into the fund.

Kerrey, who is retiring, after two terms, supported the change but claimed it does little to address the long-term solvency of the Social Security Fund. Without either an increase in the current 12.4 percent Social Security tax or a decrease in benefits, the fund will start paying out more money than it receives each year beginning in 2017, shortly after the post-World War II baby boomers begin retiring en masse, experts warn.

"It's not likely the baby boomers will come to Congress and ask for less," Kerrey said in a Senate speech. "Its likely they will ask for more."

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., on his first day back in the Senate after folding his presidential campaign, also spoke of the need for greater action to shore up Social Security. Most lawmakers were in more of a mood to put themselves on the back.

"Repealing the limit is not only good for seniors, it's good for America," said Senate Finance Committee Chairman William Roth, R-Del.

Ugandan bishops wash hands of cult deaths

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Uganda's Roman Catholic hierarchy distanced itself Tuesday from the fiery deaths of hundreds of members of a religious sect led by former Catholic clergy, saying the group's excommunicated leaders "erred and broke the discipline of the church."

led by obsessed leaders into an obnoxious form of religiosity completely rejected by the Catholic Church," the bishops said in a statement issued in the Ugandan capital, Kampala. At least 330 sect members burned to death Friday in a chapel on the sect's farm in southwestern Uganda. Authorities were still investigating the tragedy, and left open the possibility that charges might be filed in the deaths. They didn't say who might face charges. Bulldozers completed the burial, Tuesday of hundreds of charred bodies in a mass grave alongside the burned chapel. The bishops interrupted an annual retreat Tuesday to respond to suggestions they had erred in isolating the sect over disagreements about church doctrine. Leaders of the Movement for the Restoration of the Ten Commandments of God proclaimed the world would end in 2000, saying they received the message directly from God, the statement said.

Flawed, abused, ignored, Census still serves a need

Good accountants like to square their books now and then, and so does Uncle Sam: He's doing it right now, with the 2000 Census.

We encourage everyone to fill out the census forms that arrive in the mail. It's the right thing to do. Having a firm grasp on the number of people living in a given area is essential for a representative democracy.

Having said that, let's be realistic about the Census. It's an imperfect institution, with an imperfect history. Given the widening public distrust of big government and big databases, is it any wonder millions of Americans will deliberately duck under the statistical radar?

Many Japanese-Americans on the West Coast blithely filled out the forms in 1940, only to have the data used against them after Pearl Harbor. Using information from the "confidential" census, the War Department shipped Japanese-Americans to distant internment camps.

That was wartime, and few present-day Americans fear that kind of government round-up. But the 1990s brought a new kind of fear. Americans have seen how computerized databases - traded and manipulated by private as well as public institutions - have eroded their personal privacy. Lots of us have become gun-shy about divulging personal information to even the most benign agency.

The new wrinkle adds to the already existing list of people who won't want to be counted: welfare cheats, illegal aliens, deadbeat dads, parole violators, tax evaders. They, along with plenty of law-abiding people who simply distrust the government, are expected to drive Census compliance down to perhaps 60 percent.

Dwindling compliance is nothing new. In 1990, the compliance rate was 65 percent. That was down from 75 percent in 1980, and 78 percent in 1970.

Knowing many people won't fill out the 2000 Census forms, Uncle Sam plans to dispatch roughly half a million Census minions to visit households that don't respond.

But no matter what lengths the government goes to, it's almost inevitable that some people won't be counted.

The 1990 undercount was less than 2 percent of the total, but it could be higher this year.

Like so much else in the federal government these days, there are political overtones to this year's count. The Census Bureau, along with the Clinton administration, favors using statistical adjustments to eliminate the undercount. Congressional Republicans insist the Census should count actual people. The dispute does nothing to boost public confidence in the 2000 Census.

Such distrust is a shame, because the Census fulfills useful functions. It is used to reapportion the nation's congressional districts and to parcel out tax dollars to communities. More profoundly, information about America's population helps to inform political debate.

Despite the imperfections of the Census, filling it out still makes sense. We hope people do just that.

Given the widening public distrust of big government and big databases, is it any wonder millions of Americans will duck the Census?

LETTER

Today's politicians fall short

Notified that he had been unanimously elected America's first president, George Washington entered the following in his diary "... and with a mind oppressed with more anxious and painful situations than I have words to express set out for New York with best disposition to render service to my country in obedience to its call but with less hope of answering its expectations."

Does anyone see in our current officials such a sense of humility, duty or gratitude for the honor of serving America? Whereas Washington credited "that Almighty Being who rules the universe" for America's blessings, Bill Clinton claims the credit for today's blessings and portrays himself and Gore as the lone protectors of those blessings. And that same egotism permeates the thinking of our representatives in the House and Senate.

Two hundred years ago, a sense of sacrificial duty upheld those brave enough to represent the people, though it cost many founding fathers all they owned and cost some their lives. Today's representatives, with some outstanding exceptions, are there for self-aggrandizement, personal agendas and the prestige of being called congressman, senator or Mr. President. Sadly, the prestige of those titles, particularly after the last few years, is gone.

Adams, Jefferson, Morris and the other founders entrusted to us the responsibility to seek virtue, honor and humility in our leaders - a responsibility we've abandoned. As a nation - despite our prosperity - we've faltered, and the result is the present presidential race with its pandering rhetoric, sound bites, lies about "my greatness" and "their weaknesses" and driven by focus groups and polls.

The one thing I can't do is blame those who degrade and debate our governmental system for the state of American politics. With the ignorance and apathy that comes with not educating the people on the brilliance it took to devise our unique form of government, what else can we expect? It is that very ignorance of the responsibility we all hold which allows inept, corrupt, self-serving people to gain non-honorable positions. If you want to know whom I blame, go look in a mirror and you'll see who's at fault.

Bush, Gore wrestle for moderates

Four months ago, as the presidential year was about to begin, the editors of The New Democrat, a magazine published by a middle-road Democratic Leadership Council, addressed their article called "The Compassionate Conservative Challenge."

It was unmistakably a warning not to take the candidacy of Texas Gov. George W. Bush too lightly.

While other Democrats fretted about Bush's fund-raising prowess and wealth of endorsements, it was the intellectual-political challenge that worried the apostles of President Clinton's "New Democrat" movement. "In essence," the unsigned essay said, "Bush and the compassionate conservatives are trying to persuade the GOP to recognize that there is a growing national consensus in favor of limited but activist government - the same consensus behind the success of the New Democrat movement and the Clinton-Gore administration. It is vital for Democrats to keep fighting for this vital center."

The authors argued that Bush "is indistinguishable from old-fashioned, uncompromising conservatives on many issues," but warned that his positions on education, trade, defense and foreign policy could make him a more formidable opponent than the Republicans Clinton had defeated.

Last week, a Voter.com Battleground 2000 Poll - a bipartisan project that has achieved an excellent reputation in the political world - reinforced that warning. Like almost every other survey taken since Bush and Vice President Gore secured their party nominations, it points to an extremely close election. Bush has a nominal 47 percent to 44 percent lead, just inside the margin of error in this sample of 1,000 likely voters.

Colinda Lake, a Democratic pollster who teams up with Republican Ed Gooss on this project, pointed out that Gore has closed the gap on Bush since their previous joint survey last January. And no one who watched Gore dismantle Bill Bradley would discount his ability to give Bush the stiffest competition the governor ever has encountered.

That is especially true if the economy remains strong, and voters give credit to the people who have been in charge of government during this unprecedented run of prosperity. As Lake said at the briefing on the poll, the strong economy helps Gore and it helps congressional Republicans as well.

But almost everything else in the poll suggests that Bush is well-positioned, just as the DLC crowd feared he would, to challenge Gore for the "vital center" of American politics.

Most voters say they consider Bush "somewhat conservative," which is how most of them categorize themselves, while Gore is rated "somewhat liberal."

Contrary to much of the recent commentary, there is little evidence that Bush "went too far right" in turning back the primary-election challenge of Arizona Sen. John McCain. The Bob Jones University visit, the support Bush received from Pat Robertson and all the other debris from his war with McCain have not damaged Bush that much, the poll says. His favorable ratings are higher than Gore's. His unfavorable ratings are lower.

The so-called "soccer moms," white suburban women - whether working or at home - are going for Bush. Among all likely voters, Bush is rated almost even with Gore on his approach to improving education, and the two men tie on another favorite Democratic issue - guns. Hispanics prefer Bush over Gore by a small margin, a remarkable showing for a Republican in a constituency that gives Democrats a 15-point edge for Congress.

Lake argued that these ratings may well change as Gore and the Democrats go after Bush's Texas record and his national policies. But she also conceded that "when voters can't figure out what the election is about," because no single issue dominates the agenda, the emphasis she and Gooss found voters placing on "moral values" may prove to be a boon to Republicans.

My hunch is that Bush will be a better general-election candidate than he was in the primaries. Gore competed against other Democrats in the 1998 presidential nomination battle, and clearly learned important lessons about organization and campaigning in the course of that losing race. Bush's only previous experience in a Republican primary came a long time ago, in a west Texas congressional race, where he won the nomination but lost the election.

But Bush got an intensive course in campaigning from the hordes of suburban in his two successful races for governor of Texas, and the Battleground Poll indicates he came through the nomination fight well-positioned to run that same kind of Texas congressional race.

There's nothing in the polls - or in any serious analysis of the electoral college map - to make Bush the favorite. But the notion that he lost his chance of being elected in a west Texas congressional nomination seems far-fetched. Just as the New Democrats feared, their man is going to have to arm-wrestle Bush for supremacy in the center.

Hate isn't a family value

On March 12, my husband and I settled in to watch the Magic Valley Show, a local variety show on PAX 55. I was shocked to hear the host, Zeb Bell, declaring on the air how glad he was the state of California had not allowed same-sex marriages. He went on congratulating them, muttering about the tax load and benefits to the "rest of us" because of their actions and proceeding to laud their efforts to stop what he called the furthering of the homosexual initiative.

I was amazed that such words were actually coming out of the mouth from a local TV host on this little show that highlights the beauty of living in the Magic Valley! (I might have expected something along those lines from one of the fine specimens of society served up on the Jerry Springer show or from some fictional homophobic who is insecure with his own sexuality on a gritty cop drama. I am sure some would gallantly stand by the action of this show as PAX 55 supports family values.

I, for one, am sick at heart to hear that family values include teaching our children to hate anybody different from them and brainwashing them to join the ranks of loud-mouthed bigots. It is entirely too sad that these lessons in non-tolerance have to be handed down from generation to generation like some perverted legacy. Oh, well, what do I know? I am sure that those same people who expressed such horror at what they term the furthering of the homosexual initiative would just as likely find it very unbecoming for a mere woman to express her views in public.

Where were the parents?

I wrestled with my conscience for two days before I decided I had to write this letter.

My husband and I decided to go to a movie last Sunday afternoon and arrived at the theater just as the movie started. It was dark inside, but I could make out people in the back rows and three persons at the extreme front of the theater. The theaters are not crowded, to say the least.

The movie was R-rated with a basic story line of shoot and kill anyone that gets in your way. The plot also contained a hefty dose of nudity, vulgar and foul language, common themes for adult movies these days. This is not my concern.

Before the end of the movie, the three people at the front of the theater turned out to be three juveniles, shouting at the images on the screen and running in and out of the theater.

When we emerged into a nearly empty lobby, except for one employee, we discovered the three juveniles were three little girls with approximate ages of 5 through 10 and no adult supervision in sight.

My concern is for the kids. Parents have a responsibility to make sure their children are seeing age-appropriate movies that their immature emotions can handle. The theater has a responsibility to see that children have not been admitted to an inappropriate movie and to check the tickets occasionally to make sure no children are present.

This apparently didn't happen at the 2:50 p.m. showing of "The Whole Nine Yards" on March 12.

Economy is built on farming

Many of my farmer friends can't make enough money to survive. These are good farmers not marginal or average. These guys don't drive new pickups or new tractors. Yet they have hung on, farming the same ground their parents and grandparents have farmed, and stayed in business with lousy potato, bean and grain prices for the last 20 or so years. They never get cost-of-living increases because some bureaucrat said they needed one. They don't get new vehicles because some committee had a little extra money at the end of the year. These guys handle dangerous chemicals and equipment and do hard physical labor for long hours for lower than minimum-wage pay. They're forced to budget their entire year's income on very few checks and for uncertain prices. How many of you wage earners out there would like to have pay decreases or no pay increases for 20 years?

The government policy of cheap food will ruin this nation, which was built on the backs of efficient hard-working farmers. This country is the breadbasket of the world. With help from scientific research and ingenuity, along with the farmers to try new methods, one farmer can feed hundreds if not thousands of people. U.S. citizens spend less percentage of their incomes on food than any other nation. One bushel of wheat at today's $2.50 per bushel price equates to about 4 cents per 1-pound loaf of bread or about 24 loaves of bread for a dollar's worth of wheat. That's all the farmer gets.

Magic Valley is an agricultural-based economy. If agriculture fails, so will local car dealers, TV stations, newspapers, as well as most retail and service businesses.

There aren't enough other types of production, recreation or other service-oriented incomes to keep this desert town going.

I think that quality Idaho wheat is a much better trade than all the stuff that we import at lowered or non-existent tariffs from the "most favored nation" of China, which is most likely slave labor if not sweatshop produced. WTO reminds me of NAFTA (North American Free Trade Agreement), which reminds me that I hafta get back to work!

WILLIAM BOKMA
Twin Falls

World Trade Organization has become a cause for rejoicing among many who support "free trade" with China. Nevertheless, there is a sound national security argument against doing business with the red giant. Since China is a self-avowed enemy of the United States, it makes no sense to engage in technology transfers that enable it to modernize and enhance its military capabilities. There is also a sound moral argument. Since China is a tyrannical regime that suppresses basic rights, engaging in trade that strengthens the regime can only make the chains of despotism even heavier for the Chinese people.

Yet even if the national security and moral considerations are put aside, there is another problem. It seems that the trade we have been conducting with China has not been free but subsidized, not only by the Chinese government but by the American taxpayer as well. The U.S. taxpayer-subsidized Export-Import Bank subsidized trade with China to the tune of $5.9 billion in 1998. The U.S. taxpayer-subsidized Asian Development Bank and World Bank awarded $1.5 billion and $2.4 billion, respectively, in new loans to China that same year. Without these subsidies, it is unlikely that wealthy transnational oilists would invest in China's risky market.

Please take the time to call Rep. Mike Simpson in opposition to any legislation which would grant Red China permanent normal trade relations subsidies.

Neighborhood pets disappear

To the people living in the immediate area of the Knottingham Longbow neighborhood in Twin Falls, please be aware that we may have a cat killer as one of our neighbors.

I do not have any physical evidence to support this suspicion yet, but several of us over the past two or more years, and most recently in the last few months, have had our pets simply disappear. The circumstances surrounding these disappearances are too suspicious to be considered unrelated or without human intervention. The Humane Society also confirmed that they have received quite a few inquiries from our area by people whose pets have disappeared.

The disheartening part is that even if such persons were caught, little if anything would be done to them. There are too few laws that protect pets from cruel and inhumane treatment. However, poisoning is a felony, which is possibly why there have been no bodies.

I would like to suggest that if anyone has any suspicions, please report them to the Humane Society. As a responsible pet owner and for the safety and protection of your pet, please keep them inside or only let them out when you can keep an eye on them. Contrary to some beliefs, cats do just fine living indoors. Also, your pet will be much less likely to wander if they are spayed or neutered. Spaying or neutering will also limit the number of unwanted or abandoned cats and dogs left to the brutality of homelessness.

We cannot control the intolerance and cruelty of other people, as evidenced by Barbara Martinez' letter in the March 6 Times-News, so please protect your pets. Barbara, I wish you and the authorities luck in finding the persons responsible for killing the dogs. I will also be watching. There is no valid excuse for this or any kind of cruelty.

Senate trims tax break

BOISE (AP) — The center piece 3 percent across-the-board personal income tax credit was stripped from the House-passed election-year tax bill by the Senate on Tuesday, but a multi-million-dollar mistake in another provision will force further tinkering before the bill comes to a floor vote.

Republican Floor Leader James Risch of Boise said the technical error would be corrected on Wednesday, but that will add another day's delay to final Senate consideration of the scaled-back bill so it can finally be handed over to the House.

Senate negotiators for compromise talks. But after the Senate eliminated the $27 million break that went primarily to the wealthy who pay the most taxes, House leaders of the tax reduction campaign were in no mood to bargain.

"They've totally left the private citizen out of the equation and I don't think we can even begin to agree with that," House tax committee Chairman Dolores Crow declared.

Reducing the price tag on the $41 million House bill to the $17.25 million package the Senate tentatively agreed has been at the center of complex financial maneuvering intended to satisfy at least some tax cutters without lowering the state school aid package $15 million below the modest increase recommended by Gov. Dirk Kempthorne's.

The latest threat to that fiscal balancing act is pressure from commodity truckers for general taxpayers to cover a $27 million settlement payment to the state trucking industry after it successfully challenged the state truck tax. That would essentially leave lawmakers with the worst of both worlds — no significant individual income tax cut and a school aid budget well below Kempthorne's.

House passes controversial religion bill

BOISE (AP) — The lopsided vote did not reveal how divided the House was over a proposal to restore what supporters called the historical legal standard for permitting free exercise of religion.

Final legislative approval sending Gov. Dirk Kempthorne the bill on a 53-17 vote Tuesday came after more than 90 minutes of debate, appeals to sign support and a failed attempt to put the measure up for amendment.

The bill would require proof that a "compelling governmental interest" exists before any action that would "substantially burden a person's exercise of religion."

Opposition was fueled by concerns that the measure could allow discrimination, incestuous or even child abuse or neglect under the cover of exercising religious freedom, as well as the fact that a number of churches had withdrawn their support for legislation similar to that adopted by seven other states. "I feel like I'm being placed in a very awkward position, and one that I don't think is warranted," Democratic Rep. David Bieter of Boise said, warning that extremist groups "may use this bill to further some real mischief."

Bomb threat clears Filer High School

FILER - A bomb threat forced the evacuation of Filer High School Tuesday morning, but a search of the campus turned up empty.

A male caller phoned the school around 8:50 a.m. and said a bomb was placed in the school, Filer Police Chief Johnson said.

Students were immediately evacuated and taken to the nearby Filer fairgrounds while authorities scoured the school, he said.

Officers from Sub. 1, Idaho State Police and Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office helped with the search, which lasted most of the morning but didn't turn up anything, Johnson said.

Students returned to class and police were continuing to investigate, he said.

Skateboarders sue for damages

Parking lot scuffle leads to filing of lawsuit

By Brian Haynes
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Two skateboarders and their mothers are suing Twin Falls County's part-time coroner and the security company he works for, because of a scuffle in the parking lot of the Lynwood

Shopping Center.

In a lawsuit filed in Twin Falls County, skateboarders Michael Loden and Austin Hoy, and their mothers, Rosemarie Loden and Sara Hoy, seek more than $10,000 in damages from Gene Turley and Gem State Security.

The suit claims the skateboarders suffered "severe shock, and multiple contusions and abrasions" during the Feb. 16 incident that cause them "great mental, physical and nervous pain and suffering."

The lawsuit also seeks medical and legal costs, plus damages because Turley confiscated the skateboards.

"In my mind they're just trying to cash in," said Turley's lawyer and Gem State Security owner, Mark Stubbs. "It appears as though they want to exploit this to the fullest extent."

In the lawsuit the plaintiffs say Turley, who was working for Gem State Security, confronted the boys while they skateboarded at the Lynwood Mall.

After driving up to the boys Turley grabbed Michael Loden's skateboard and pushed him into a wall, the lawsuit says. Then, the suit says, Turley took Austin Hoy's skateboard, fought with the boy and sat on him before repeatedly pushing his head into the ground.

No court dates have been set for the case.

The suit was filed March 14.

Classrooms will be ready later this spring

By Jay Houser
Times-News writer

JEROME - Eight new classrooms at Jerome High School will be ready sometime after spring break, Project Supervisor Leonard Bay told the School Board on Tuesday.

Bay said setbacks have delayed the project and it will be another 3 1/2 weeks before the rooms will be available for use. Water leaked into the structure, dampening the fireproofing and causing mold to grow. He said those problems have been solved.

The construction crew is now finishing up applying the exterior or synthetic plaster and painting the interior. Next week workers will start the flooring, Bay said.

"It's now down to just putting the finishing touches on it so they can have it," Bay said Tuesday afternoon.

The new classrooms are being funded through an override levy passed last year by voters and are intended to address crowding concerns at the school.

Jerome High School will let out at 12:30 p.m. Friday to get a head start on a flooring project to be completed over spring break. No lunches will be served that day, and no busing will be provided during the noon hour. Accommodations will be provided for students who need to wait for buses at the normal hour.

Other School Board business:

- A plan to move Jerome High School's 2001 graduation ceremony to CSI campus was presented to the board. Principal

Gail Cushman said the move is necessary to provide more seating and avoid bad weather that has hampered ceremonies in the past. The cost of renting the facility would be $400, she said.

- The board heard more details on a plan to implement an extended year reading program as part of the Idaho Reading Initiative.

Gooding teacher arrested

Charge alleges sexual relationship with student

By Brian Haynes
Times-News writer

GOODING - A teacher at the Gooding Accelerated Learning Center has been charged with having sex with a student.

Julie Ann Merrick, 34, was arrested Tuesday and charged with two counts of lewd conduct with a child and sexual battery of a minor. Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Gough said.

Merrick was being held on a $50,000 cash bond, he said.

She is charged with having an ongoing sexual relationship with a student during the 1997-1998 school year, Gough said. The student was 15 and 16 years old during the school year, he said.

The Accelerated Learning Center is an alternative school for students who have children or are unable to graduate from regular high schools.

The Gooding School District was told of the relationship March 13 and immediately notified authorities, who began an investigation, Gough said.

School officials "did everything by the book," Gough said. "They handled this well."

Merrick was suspended after the allegations were made, Gough said.

Gooding Schools Superintendent Henry Kilmer wouldn't comment on the case or any discipline carried out, but he said the outcome of the case could play a major role in her future.

"If she's guilty, she won't be teaching at this school ... or anywhere else," he said.

Federal wildlife agency lists Canada lynx as threatened

The Times-News and
The Associated Press

A quick look at the Canada lynx

Lynx canadensis
Weigh 20 to 30 pounds; 49 to 24 inches tall and end up to 3 feet long.
Color: Brownish-gray.
Features: Black ear tufts; thick, soft fur; black-tipped stubby tail; long legs; larger hind legs; large, fully paws.
Prey: Primarily preys on snowshoe hares, also eats red squirrels, grouse and other small animals; it also eats larger animals that others have killed.
Habitat: Northern and high elevation forests and subarctic regions.

Range: From Alaska across Canada, and 14 northern states from New England to the Pacific Northwest and south in the Rocky Mountains in Colorado. It already is listed as threatened or endangered by five of those states. Related: Related to the bobcat, but larger and adapted for hunting in deep snow. Considered rare because of limited prey and overtrapping in the 1970s and 1980s.

A female Canadian lynx heads for the woods after being released near South Fork, Colo., in this file photo. The elusive nocturnal cat has breeding populations in only three states, it is believed: Washington, Montana, and Maine.

DENVER - U.S. Forest Service officials expect little immediate change in activities in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, after federal officials have added a rare wild cat to the federal endangered species list.

But forest officials will take up to six months to decide how to proceed, Deb Bumpus, threatened and endangered biologist in the SNRA, said Tuesday.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has declared the Canada lynx, a nocturnal, tuft-eared animal so secretive that biologists have had a tough time studying it, a threatened species under the Endangered Species Act.

Tuesday's decision will apply only to the lower 48 states, since the lynx thrives in Alaska.

Environmentalists have been pressing the agency to protect the snowshoe-pawed cat for a decade. Confirmed breeding populations remain in only three states, Washington, Montana and Maine. Its former 14-state range included Idaho.

U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo fears the listing would affect backcountry users.

"The listing of the lynx as threatened could have a serious impact on the way we in Idaho use the backcountry; for snowmobiling, snowshoeing, for land use, for any use," Crapo said. "We know very little about how this listing will affect the use of the land."

But Bumpus doesn't see any conflict in the SNRA as long as winter recreation stays at present levels, she said.

The Forest Service already has been at work on protecting lynx, its habitat and the habitat of its primary prey species - the snowshoe hare, Bumpus said. The Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management and Fish and Wildlife earlier this year signed a lynx conservation agreement.

The agreement analyzes and minimizes the effects of planned and ongoing activities and recommends lynx conservation measures. It outlines principles to manage for lynx, its habitat and the habitat of the snowshoe hare, Bumpus said.

"These proactive Forest Service conservation actions, though independent of our decision to list the lynx, will play a crucial role in our efforts to recover the lynx," said Ralph Morgenweck, the Fish and Wildlife Service's regional director.

SNRA officials are trying to determine the extent of lynx habitat and how it may be affected by other activities such as recreation, grazing, timber and roads, Bumpus said.

Weather radios stand as guards

DEAR ABBY: Again the other morning the news was about the terrible losses from a tornado striking in the middle of the night - this time in south Georgia. Could you please tell people about weather-warning radios? Sadly, they seem to be a well-kept secret.

DEAR ABBY
Abigail VanBuren

After tornadoes struck at night in other states last year, I bought weather radios for each of my children's homes and for myself. They're relatively inexpensive ($30 to $60) and can be tucked in a corner, out of the way. What they do is respond to a radio signal from the NOAA (National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration) when dangerous weather is imminent. The signal turns on the radio to alert people.

The radio in our house is in the hallway outside our bedrooms. It's tuned to the nearest weather station, with the volume up all the way. At 2:30 a.m. on the night the storm hit Georgia, we were awakened by the signal and the warning of a potentially dangerous storm. Luckily, we had only torrential rain and some tree-trimming wind. At least we know what was happening and could have made it to the basement if things had gotten worse.

We are blessed with attentive weather people on television and at NOAA who notify us of impending storms. However, at night there is no better way to learn of impending bad weather than from a weather radio. I'd rather be awakened for a storm that doesn't turn bad than chance what happened to those poor folks in Georgia.

Thanks, Abby, for giving me a forum. I hope you'll consider this letter worth printing.

-JANET H. HANNAH,
GASTONIA, N.C.

DEAR JANET: Your letter is certainly worth space in my column. I'm sure there are many other individuals like me who have never heard of weather-warning radios. After reading your letter, I made some inquiries about NOAA Weather Radios, which continually broadcast National Weather Service forecasts, warnings and other important weather information. They can be programmed to receive information specific to a certain geographic area.

The NOAA Weather Radio is the one government-operated radio system that provides direct warnings to the public for natural and manmade hazards - from floods to forest fires to oil spills.

The radios are available at many retail stores that sell electronic appliances, marine supply stores, truck stops, cable shopping networks, mail-order catalogs and the Internet. They cost from $20 to $80 depending on the model.

For people who live in areas where violent storms occur, a NOAA weather radio could be a lifesaver. However, while most areas are covered by the NOAA warning system, a few areas may not be, so ask at your local National Weather Service office before you purchase the weather radio.

Ketchum residents will have to foot part of bill for new bridge

By Karen Bosick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM - Property owners near the Broadway Bridge area will have to pony up as much as $322 each for a new bridge. And visitors to Ketchum may soon be asked to pony up a few quarters to park.

The City Council on Monday directed city staff to prepare an ordinance forming a local improvement district to help pay for the Broadway Bridge, which was closed last fall after it was deemed unsafe.

The city will pay 90 percent of the cost; each of the 90 property owners in the area will be asked to make up the difference on the bridge, which could cost up to $300,000.

The decision was made after only four property owners wrote letters protesting the formation of a local improvement district to share in the costs.

Residents at Monday's council meeting expressed support for replacing the bridge with a similar 16-foot bridge that would allow emergency vehicular use but slow regular traffic. Residents will meet with council members and engineers at noon today to talk about bridge design.

Engineer Dick Forsbury said the best time to construct the bridge is after Labor Day when the river is low and the peak tourist season is over. It will take about 60 days to erect a pre-manufactured bridge if everything goes smoothly, he said.

Also Monday, traffic consultant Darrell Wilburn told the council that two-hour parking spaces along streets in Ketchum's downtown should be converted to one-hour parking meters to maintain the current summer occupancy rate of 85 percent and accommodate growth. The area from East Avenue to Washington and Second to Fifth should be the initial area to be regulated with parking meters, he said.

Wilburn, commissioned to study parking in Ketchum last November, said that the excess on-street parking that now exists will be absorbed long before the city core is built out. The council also should consider having employers provide parking for their employees and encouraging carpools, van pools and cycle use, he said.

In other action Monday, Ketchum artist Will Caldwell suggested that the council continue a revised version of "Ketch 'em Alive" last summer's series of musical concerts which the Sun Valley/Ketchum Chamber of Commerce and Ketchum merchants decided not to continue this summer.

Caldwell suggested having 10 concerts performed by local musicians with an emphasis on youth bands at Forest Service Park.

"Young people need a place to connect," he said. "And it would be good for the tourists, too. They could bring a picnic to the park and dance, have a good time."

Charles C. Juker

Charles Clarence Juker, 92, of Buhl, died Monday, March 20, 2000, at his home in Buhl.

Mr. Juker was born September 15, 1907, in Winway, Nebraska. Clem C. Juker and Mary Trotter. He moved to Idaho in 1924, locating in the Northview area. He married Clara E. Hart on October 5, 1928, and after living and farming in different areas, they moved to the farm where George and Dorothy Juker now live. He attended the Buhl Presbyterian Church, was the Grange Master of the Northview Grange and President and member of the Buhl Rodeo Association. There are not many more "original cowboys" left among us. Charlie loved cattle and horses. He took pride in his registered Quarter Horses and Shorthorn Cattle. The work that he invested in his stock paid off in various awards and prizes in the 1930's, '40s and '50s. ### GOODING

Raymond M. Crandall

Raymond M. Crandall, 93, of Gooding, Idaho, passed away March 18, 2000.

Graveside services will be held at 3 p.m. Friday, March 24, 2000, at Driggs Cemetery in Driggs, Idaho. Attendees are invited by the family to join them for a reception in Jackson Hole, Wyo. that evening.

Ray was born September 21, 1906, at Driggs. He was one of eight children born to Frank Crandall and Emma Baxter. He grew up in Driggs and graduated from high school in Buhl. He married Nellie K. Woodward of Moran, Wyo., at Driggs on May 26, 1927. They resided in Jackson Hole, Wyo., until Dec. 1943. Ray and Nellie then acquired a ranch in Gunnison, Colo., and later a Hereford cattle. Ray missed Montana, and in 1951, they bought a cattle ranch on the Madison River near Genes, Mont. This ranch was sold in the fall of 1957. Ray and Nellie then purchased a small ranch and feedlot in Delta, Colo., that they operated until 1984. Ray then sold out in 1964, and moved back to Fairfield, Idaho, where he worked with his son on his ranch until 1968. He and Nellie wore both weary of cold winters, and headed due south in search of warmer pastures. Their car broke down in Hagorman, Idaho, and they decided to stay. They lived there for over 25 years, until declining health forced him into the rest home in Gooding, where he passed away. Ray was an outstanding cattleman and stockman. After suffering a heart attack in retirement, he decided retirement was going to kill him, so he took up fishing. He became an expert fisherman who truly loved to be outside and on the lakes of Idaho. He also loved to tie his own flies.

Attorney general might seek order to help schools

BOISE (AP) - The state's attorney general is expected to seek a court order in two weeks to require some school districts to redirect spending from educating students to solving health and safety problems posed by crumbling buildings.

The disclosure came as the third week of testimony began Tuesday in the trial on the suit by 15 school districts that the state has not fulfilled its constitutional responsibility to provide all students a safe environment conducive to learning.

State lawmakers continued looking for a plan to respond to the changes in hopes of heading off court judgment that could hold the state directly liable for backlogged school building needs.

Canal road access causes some concern

By Ruth Stroeter
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Landlocked county residents, whose only access to main thoroughfares are canal roads, are finding out the hard way that canal companies have no obligation to keep those routes open.

R. E. Higgins, who lives just west of 550 E. 200 S., had his access to the closest main road blocked Friday when the Burley Irrigation District temporarily deposited gravel along the road while working on the canal.

In the presence of BID officials, Higgins met with county commissioners this week to question the situation, and whether it poses a problem for emergency access.

Canal companies have no obligation to keep these roads accessible to the public, said Roger Ling, the attorney representing the BID. The roads' primary purpose is canal maintenance, with all other uses "subsequent," Ling said.

That means an area property owner cannot be guaranteed access. The BID also has the authority to close the road or fence off cattle if the need arises, Ling said.

The situation arises from a little-known law affecting people who see a prime piece of land for a home.

"I don't think there's an understanding among people in the county about what they're getting into," Commissioner Paul Christensen said.

A 1993 county ordinance was intended to address the problem.

It prohibits building projects that don't have built-in access to a public or private road.

A couple of problems with new subdivisions in the past have made the county more alert to the potential for future problems, building inspector Dan Barker said.

"Hopefully we won't have any new situations created, but we do have an awful lot of old situations," said Randy Bingham, the BID manager.

A property owner can force a right-of-way on the canal road, but such a right cannot make the BID's rights subservient to the property owner's rights, county attorney Stephen Bywater said.

Widening the canal road outside Higgins' property would be one solution, Ling said. Other landowners along the canal would need to grant that right, however, and the highway district would be responsible for maintaining that half of the road, he said.

Unfortunately, there is not enough room alongside the canal road outside Higgins' property for another lane, he said.

Christensen said he hoped people would learn from the situation now that the law has been brought into the open.

"The BID is doing business on that road, and there are going to be some inconveniences," he said.

Burley farmer takes part in national rally

By Thomas Mohrlang
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — A Burley farmer has been rallying for his county. Specifically, Gary Turner has been in Washington, D.C., as part of a local delegation of farmers and ranchers participating in this week's "Rally for Rural America."

Turner, president of the Idaho Farmers Union, is one of 1,500 farmers and ranchers from around the country gathering in the nation's capital. Turner says the rally was held to bring politicians' attention to "rising fuel prices, falling farm prices and farm family ranching issues."

Rally organizers include nearly 40 farm, religious, labor and rural development organizations, who are concerned that rural America has been behind in a time of record prosperity.

Turner says rally participants urged Congress to open the Freedom to Farm law to revamp federal farm and rural policies.

Tuesday, Turner and other members of the Idaho delegation met with Sens. Larry Craig and Mike Crapo and Rep. Mike Simpson.

At the main rally Tuesday, speakers urged Congress to open up the farm bill and reform rural policies to alleviate the price crisis, ensure fair and open markets and pursue fair trade.

"The purpose of the rally (was) to show Congress that we can no longer stay the course," Turner said. "While most of America has reaped the benefits of the strong economy, rural Americans are facing their toughest times in recent memory."

Plans for a Health Net Assets celebration will also be presented to the board. As part of the program, a coalition of teens will be meeting April 28 at SSCU to discuss health issues affecting them.

Today's meeting will start at 1:30 p.m. inside the conference room at Minidoka Regional Medical Center. The meeting is open to the public.

Cassia County commissioners oppose dam breaching in letter

The Times-News

BURLEY — In a letter to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Cassia County commissioners Monday voiced their official opposition to dam breaching, an option being considered among efforts to restore declining salmon runs.

The letter says the commission does not believe scientific evidence has proven the measure would save the salmon. In the meantime, breaching would be a "severe detriment to Idaho workers and Idaho's economy."

"It would be a risky and radical solution," the letter said.

Some scientists maintain dam breaching gives rare Idaho salmon their best chance at recovery. Some Idahoans, including the state's political leadership, oppose breaching, saying federal agencies should pursue other salmon recovery options.

Federal officials are considering a range of salmon recovery options, including breaching four lower Snake River dams.

Couple ends tree-planting odyssey in Oregon town

The Times-News

JACKSONVILLE, Ore. (AP) — It was only fitting that John and Joyce Jackson ended their long journey on the first day of spring. The Texas residents have spent the last 10 years planting trees in towns bearing the family name. Oregon was the final stop in their cross-country tour, and they finished in style. The couple planted five trees in Jacksonville, which is in Jackson County. And Jackson Creek flows through this picturesque hamlet.

"The idea was to leave something behind that will survive into the next century," said John Jackson, 58, an executive with a trucking firm in Houston. "We also like to travel. This gave us a reason to visit some places we wouldn't ordinarily get to."

Besides getting the chance to tour America, the couple hopes their efforts encourage others to plant more trees.

"We're not tree-planting experts, or environmentalists perse," he said. "This is just a way to express ourselves. We believe in trees."

The Jacksons started the project in 1991, annually planting five trees in five states. In the 11 states that have no Jackson towns, they used a family member's first name. That led them to places like Joyce, Wash.; Stevens Village, Alaska; Roberts, Idaho; and Christine River, Del.

The latter three were selected for their tree-growth children.

Not knowing the layout of the various towns, the couple relied on townsfolk to decide where the trees would be planted.

In Pennsylvania, the town of Jackson was so small they had to plant the trees in someone's backyard.

The five trees planted Monday included a grand fir, a white hemlock, mountain huckleberry, red alder and white alder. During the ceremony, a flock of white homing pigeons was released.

Road construction crews are having trouble paving the new bridge being built near the Minidoka County Fairgrounds. Weather permitting, the bridge could be completed this week.

Bridge project nears completion

By Lorraine Cavener
Times-News writer

RUPERT — After numerous delays and missed deadlines because of bad weather and water in the canal, it appears the bridge construction project on Idaho Highway 25 by the Minidoka County fairgrounds is near completion.

The $1.58 million federally funded project will be completed as soon as weather permits, said Lupe Gonzales, project inspector for the Rupert Division of Highways.

The paving crew was hoping to work Monday, but moisture over the weekend once again prevented work, he said.

The project was started more than a year ago. The new bridge was built because the old bridge was narrow and had a steep approach. That posed a safety hazard because people could not see traffic coming in the other direction, said Robert Hansen, job superintendent for Gordon Paving, the project contractor.

More delays occurred last year because the contractor had to wait to resume work until water was out of the canal, Gonzales said. The contractor could not restrict the flow of irrigation water, he said.

"The contractor has made every effort to complete the job as fast as they could," Gonzales said.

The crew waited out the winter for decent paving weather and this past week was finally able to complete paving, Hansen said. But windows of opportunity to work are short. It can't be done during the summer when water is in the canal — from April 15 to November — and it can't be done during the winter when weather is bad.

"It's been a nightmare for weather," he said. "It was miserable."

Filling the roadway to grade was one problem because moisture and freezing slowed down the work.

"To get the proper compaction you have to have the proper moisture in the material," he said. "We would just get it wet enough and then it would freeze on us."

Although the bridge has taken a long time to build, the project has not gone over budget, Gonzales said. No additional contract items were added and the bridge was finished within the time the contract allowed, he said.

The crew will work this week to install guardrail and place pavement markings, Gonzales said.

The new bridge has an eight-foot-wide bike path on each side, a westbound travel lane, a turn lane in the center and an east-bound travel lane, Hansen said. Irrigation structures on both sides are being improved.

Cassia County commissioner to run again

By Ruth Stroeter
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Cassia County Commissioner Dennis Crane said he will continue to play an instrumental role in important local issues if chosen for the next four-year term.

Crane, 50, announced Tuesday his Republican bid for the county's District 3 seat. Crane will wrap up his first two-year term this year.

"It is a job that has been challenging, educational and demanding," Crane said in a written statement.

The Mini-Cassia native and farmer has five children. He said his accomplishments as commissioner include helping create the county's Planning and Zoning Commission, maintaining good relationships with regional officials on behalf of local permittees, improving roads through his involvement with the Unorganized Road District Board and helping launch a local advisory committee for a project to pave the road between Connor Creek Store and Almo.

Crane said the most important issues facing Cassia County are confined animal feeding operations, economic development and urban renewal. He said although urban renewal is Burley city project, it is an issue that nonetheless affects the county and needs that representation.

"We have some very important decisions in the near future and I feel I have the abilities and understanding to help make those decisions for the benefit of the county," Crane said.

In addition, Crane said his ability to facilitate productive discussion makes him a good candidate.

"The biggest obstacle in making county decisions is the ability people have to communicate and see the other side of a particular issue," he said. "I feel my ability to facilitate understanding helps to make right decisions."

Here is a rundown of who has filed for Cassia County offices as of Tuesday afternoon:

- Prosecutor: Alfred E. Barrus (Republican), Stephen A. Bywater (Republican, Incumbent).
- Sheriff: George Warrell (Republican).
- District 1 Commissioner: Paul Christensen (Republican, Incumbent).
- District 3 Commissioner: Dennis Crane (Republican, Incumbent).

Lynx

Some biologists say that any winter activity that compacts snow allows coyotes and bobcats to compete with the lynx in areas of deep snow. Some studies have shown that fewer lynx kittens survive when other predators are in the area, Bumpus said.

But Fish and Wildlife says it has no evidence that shows competition with other predators has affected lynx populations.

Crapo, however, thinks the consequences of the listing could rival that of listing Idaho salmon — a battle that has raged in the Northwest for eight years and has some officials talking seriously about breaching four federal dams in the lower Snake River.

"In fact, absent the listing of the salmon, the listing of the lynx may have broader consequences than any of the other endangered species issues that we have faced in the Northwest, and that's because of the broad range of territory that the lynx cover," Crapo said.

Four species of Snake River salmon are listed as endangered. The lynx is listed as threatened, which means it is likely to become endangered through a significant portion of its range in the foreseeable future.

Environmentalists had hoped the lynx would be declared endangered, which would have offered even greater protections.

The open trapping of lynx in Idaho ended in 1996. But it is unclear yet how the listing may affect hunters and trappers who inadvertently kill or trap lynx, said Chuck Harris, wildlife research biologist with Idaho Department of Fish and Game's Boise office.

Idaho budget writers earmark funds for Medicaid analysis

BOISE (AP) - As criticism mounts against its Medicaid containment strategy, legislative budget writers on Tuesday earmarked $600,000 for an independent analysis of the program providing health care to the poor and how to check its skyrocketing price tag.

Freak windstorm derails freight train

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Winds gusting up to 102 mph ripped off building roofs, tipped over trucks and derailed 19 cars from a moving freight train.

"We got our first call at 4:30 a.m., and our estimators were out by 6 a.m., assessing damage and writing checks," he said.

Tuesday. The train was moving at 20 mph. Only a conductor and engineer were on the train and no injuries were reported.

Census workers look for migrant farm laborers

MADERA, Calif. (AP) - Shouting to be heard over the brass rhythms of a traditional Mexican Indian band, census workers in this small California farm town worked the crowd, urging wary festival-goers to give detailed descriptions of their lives to the federal government.

administering some of the funds. Nearly 480,000 Californians went uncounted in the last census and nearly half of them were Hispanic. It cost the state one congressional seat and $2.2 billion over ten years in federal funds that would have been used for things like highway maintenance and school, hospital and low-income housing construction.

HUD secretary brings large grants

BOISE - The federal government cannot afford to provide homes for every American, said Housing and Urban Development Secretary Andrew Cuomo, although he still brought grants worth millions to help meet the need in southwestern Idaho.

Cuomo met with Mayor Brent Coles in a roundtable discussion Tuesday morning, then viewed efforts to improve the blighted River Street neighborhood near downtown Boise. Cuomo's assistants also reported what they glimpsed of housing during a day tour.

He said he came to listen to the locals' comments, not to announce edicts.

More than 70 million American families own their homes, more than any other time in the nation's history, HUD officials said. A revitalized Federal Housing Administration allows many lower-income Americans to own a house.

The FHA does not make home loans directly but insures those made by private lenders.

The Clinton administration official announced a funding package to help the booming Boise valley. It includes a $1.3 million action plan grant for Boise to fund housing, homeless assistance, economic development and infrastructure improvements to serve low- and moderate-income families.

A $357,000 grant goes to the Women's and Children's Alliance which provides transition housing for women escaping domestic violence at home.

Proposal to even out student population concerns parents

COEUR D'ALENE - Several parents dislike a proposal to create new attendance boundaries for elementary and middle school students because of the opening of the Coeur d'Alene School District's new elementary school in the fall.

More than 100 parents crowded Woodland Middle School's auditorium, concerned their children would be removed from their favorite schools. "We're solidly in the Sorenson family," said Tracie Sinclair, who has a son at Sorenson Elementary School. "Why does it have to be broken in two?"

Cassie Bray is the parent of a Bryan Elementary student. She presented a petition Monday signed by 115 parents who also do not want their children removed from Bryan.

A committee formed by the school district is proposing the new attendance boundaries. Skyway Elementary's opening has the district planning to shift populations at other schools to even out class size.

Bingham County deputy clerks settle tort claims

BLACKFOOT - Two of three Bingham County deputy clerks have settled tort claims against the county and County Clerk Judge Hampton.

Cheryl Robertson and Pat Freeman dropped $10,000 damage claims that Hampton had harassed them and created a hostile work environment.

In a statement, Hampton said the settlement includes reasonable attorney's fees and job transfers. She said it "settles all disputes and claims against each other and is not to be construed as an admission of liability on the part of either party."

The third employee, Donna Capson returned as a courthouse switchboard operator this week after being on paid leave since filing her claim in late February. She has declined to settle with Hampton and the county.

Caldwell woman accuses Nampa police of brutality

NAMPA - The mother of a man arrested by police officers has filed a formal complaint that excessive force was used against her son. Police maintain the suspect resisted arrest when they tracked him down after responding to a report that he was brandishing a shotgun in a grocery store parking lot.

Mary Simms of Caldwell alleged that officers repeatedly kicked and hit her son Ronald Simms, 23, when he was arrested last Friday night.

Nampa Police Chief Alan Creech said the department will investigate the complaint but it appears the officers struck blows designed to hit nerve endings in Simms' legs and upper chest in an effort to subdue him.

Simms says the officers should be fired.

Garden requires planning

What Are Your Tips for Planning a Vegetable Garden?
To ensure productive growth, a vegetable garden requires careful planning.

CHOOSING THE SITE
First, soil should be fertile, deep and well-drained. Request a soil analysis by a local agricultural agency or extension service. There is usually a modest fee for this service.

Soil lacking in organic content should be augmented with manure or rich compost. You can add depth and aerate the soil by double-digging - the soil is dug to a depth of two spades in preparation for cultivation. If necessary, build raised beds to encourage drainage.

Hillsides are best avoided, because the slope will cause water and rich topsoil to run off. If you have nothing but hilly property to work with, the best solution is to hire a landscaper to terrace the garden. This means using digging and filling techniques to create a level grade.

Try to choose a spot near a water source. Above all, pick a sunny location. If your garden doesn't get at least six hours of full sun a day, your harvest will be minimal.

PLANNING THE DESIGN
For inspiration, study photos of classic French kitchen gardens, called potagers. The philosophy behind these gardens is to make them beautiful as well as functional, with a symmetrical pattern of beds divided by pathways. Divided beds emphasize the beauty of the individual plants and help you keep your crops separate so you can give each the attention it needs.

Take photos of the garden site from all angles, and enlarge them so the details are clear. You can tape pictures together to create a panoramic view of the site, then lay tracing paper over the images and sketch out your ideas. Think in three-dimensional terms, and decide where you want to place all features, such as fences, gates and pole-bean trellises, as well as the planting rows, beds and pathways. Make notes about where and when sunlight hits your property at what times of day and year. When you're happy with the design, draw it to scale on graph paper.

Then translate your design to the actual garden. To do this, you'll need wooden stakes, string and a tape measure. You can also plot out the design with garden lines, which makes the lines easier to see from a distance. A carpenter's square will help with corners, for circular beds, use a string tied to a center stake as a makeshift compass.

Before planting, fence off the entire garden area; this creates a tidy, enclosed feeling and keeps animals from eating the produce. Chicken wire works well.

WHAT TO PLANT?

Pore over seed catalogs, and choose varieties based on what you like to eat as well as how well they will perform in your garden. Look for vegetables that are readily available in your local market. Experiment with a few unfamiliar varieties, and consider aesthetics as well.

Colorful ruby chard is a bright complement to lush green foliage, as are edible flowers, such as nasturtiums and calendula.

Timing is vital. Keep a garden notebook, complete with dates for when each variety should be planted and harvested.

Depending on your climate, you may need to start some seeds indoors; others can be sown directly in the garden. If you get a late start, buy seedlings from your local nursery and catch up.

As you harvest your first crops, a few disappointments will be inevitable. You may find that some plants were overcrowded, some suffered in the heat or others didn't get enough sun. Note the mistakes, and adjust for the following season.

Woman will look for new recipes at homemaker school

By Dixie Thomas Reale
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS - A longtime fan of Taste of Home magazine, Barbara Higgins is going to the "Taste of Home" homemaker school on March 28 in the Roper Auditorium.

Like other good cooks, she's always looking for new recipes. Higgins grew up on a large dry land wheat farm in Eastern Oregon during the 1940s.

Although the farm employed a full-time cook, Higgins, the oldest of five children, helped with the chores on the farm. That included feeding 35 hired hands all summer.

There was a cook shack and a dining hall. The work crew was fed hot meals in the dining hall for breakfast and dinner, but lunch was delivered in the fields. Lunch usually consisted of a hot dish, homemade bread, cookies, pie and a drink.

Higgins' grandfather, a "stern taskmaster," insisted the food served on his farm, be the best in the state. Apple pie and oatmeal cookies were on the table every meal.

Higgins has lived in Twin Falls for 35 years and has four grown children and a grown grandson. She said she loves to cook and enjoys hosting family dinners at holidays.

She wishes her family lived closer - two of her children are in California, one is in Salt Lake City and one is in Boise. Her mother lives in Portland and visits a couple of times a year.

Higgins is a retired insurance agent. Her husband, Jim, also retired, was owner/operator of Standard Printing for many years.

Higgins particularly likes this spaghetti recipe that she gleaned from Taste of Home, because it can be made up to a day ahead. Like most spaghetti dishes, she said, it tastes better when warmed over.

CONFETTI SPAGHETTI
(12 servings)
1 package (12 ounces) spaghetti

- 1 1/2 pounds ground beef
- 1 medium onion, pepper, chopped
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 can (14 1/2 ounce) diced tomatoes, undrained
- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon chili pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 3/4 cup shredded cheddar cheese

Cook spaghetti according to package directions. Meanwhile, in a large skillet, cook beef, green pepper and onion over medium heat until meat is no longer pink; drain. Stir in tomatoes, tomato sauce, brown sugar, salt, chili powder, pepper, garlic powder and cayenne. Drain spaghetti; add to the beef mixture. Transfer to a greased 13-by-9-by-2-inch baking dish. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Bake 5 minutes longer or until cheese is melted.

This recipe is also from Taste of Home.

HERBED OATMEAL PAN BREAD
(Serves 10)
1 1/2 cups boiling water
1 cup old-fashioned oats
2 packages (1/4 ounce each) active dry yeast
1/2 cup warm water (110 to 125 degrees)
1/4 cup sugar

What's new in flower-arranging trends?

Styles have a way of changing

Netherlands Flower Bulb Information Center

Flower trends can come and go almost as fast as trends in the fashion world. Different "looks" go in and out of style. Particular colors get hot - while others cool down.

To find out what's new in floral and flower-arranging trends, the Dutch are a good place to start. More flowers come from - or pass through - Holland than any other country in the world.

"Trends start in many pockets of the world - but the best ones tend to sweep the globe," says Mieke Stap, a floral design expert at the International Flower Bulb Center in Hillegom, the Netherlands.

Following is Stap's list of top floral style trends to watch for during the spring-blooming season when bulb flowers such as tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, lilies, Star of Bethlehem (ornithogalum), Persian buttercup (ranunculus) and grape hyacinths (muscaria) are at peak availability.

Single color concepts - A hot trend in Europe and espoused here by such lifestyle arbiters as Martha Stewart: the monochromatic look achieves a special lush-

Just for fun, try arranging parrot tulips inside a clear glass vase. With their exotic ruffled petals, parrot tulips look exquisite displayed 'under glass' in these 'outside-in' arrangements - as if in a jeweler's case. The design looks best with just a little water, but add more water daily, as tulips are thirsty flowers.

ness by repeating one color in mixes of all-the-same kind of flowers or various types of flowers in closely related hues.

Arrangements are often densely packed with flowers.

• Outside-in arrangements - Here, both the stems and the flowers appear totally inside clear vases, so the flowers appear "under glass" as if in a jeweler's or museum case. The vase envelops the flowers completely, with the flower tops aligned near the upper rim of the vase. Water is kept low and topped off regularly.

• Repeat performances - This is a style designed to show off the singular shapes of particular flowers. Groups of identical containers are featured, each holding one perfect flower. How many containers? Anything goes - more than three and as many as you choose. Continuity creates unity.

• Low-slung and topsy-turvy - With appealing results, trend-setting designers are choosing to flip-top the traditional design formula of one-third vase topped by two-thirds stems and flowers. The new topsy-turvy look is bottom heavy, with the vase occupying the lower two-thirds of the arrangement, and the flower just cresting over the top.

• Unearthed for all to see - One fun trend in Europe now making its way "across the pond" is to display spring-blooming bulb flowers such as tulips, hyacinths or amaryllis as complete units with the flower and stem still attached to the bulb and roots. The effect is reminiscent of historic botanical drawings. The bulbs and flowers can be displayed inside a vase balanced among stones and moss (using the outside-in technique).

Another design idea groups the bulb flowers standing upright in a small circle, with the stems tied just below the flowers. In either case, water is provided at the root level. To do this at home, purchase potted bulb plants, gently remove the pot, rinse off the soil and arrange.

• A different twist - Designers with deft hands have adapted hand-tied bouquets, in which stems are carefully angled in a spiraling fashion, to create free-standing arrangements that stand on their stems in plates or bowls of water. While it appears that the flowers are standing upright without support, the water and tied stems provide just enough oomph to hold the flowers up.

• Sticks and stones - Adding structural elements from nature to floral arrangements is a continuing trend. The seashells of three years ago are waning, but sticks continue to fascinate. Fruits, berries and intertwining leaves of all sorts are favorite ways to augment flowers with character-building color and texture.

Flowers can easily adopt multiple personalities. How we arrange them can be as simple as trimming the stems and dropping them into a vase or as adventurous as threading them through a screen to make a wall divider or hanging display. With flowers, whatever one likes is just the right style.

Nature keeps weather watchers on their toes

Nothing crashes the party quite like the first day of spring. We've been romanced by mild days and cool nights, even got a light sunburn or two in the last couple of weeks. The ground is thawed and dried out enough to dig most places. Some of the farmers were seen zipping around on tractors. Then it snowed. And blew.

And the worst part is that Mother Nature will keep us guessing for at least another six weeks.

Is it time to prune the roses? I can't predict the weather any better than you, but I can pass along what the old timers say: "Prune the roses when the forsythia blooms."

DEAR CATHY: We are new to the area and have a lot to learn about gardening. I don't want to jump the gun and have to do everything over again. What do the seed packets mean when they say "plant when the soil can be worked?" Does that mean whenever it is not frozen and is dry enough to handle? Or does it mean when it is warm and ready to be worked?

GREEN THUMBPRINTS
Cathy Walworth

—NEWSPROUT

DEAR SPROUT: You are not the only ones confused by seed packet advice. It does sound like you're reading from a cool season crop, such as peas, so I'll say they mean now. For a lot of people that means if you have the predominantly sandy/silt soil that dries out quickly, you just have to poke around between storms to see if your soil can be worked without it sticking to the shovel. The soil is too wet if you pick up a handful and squeeze, then open your hand to a perfect imprint of your fist. If the soil falls away from your fingers, it's dry enough.

Until you learn when your soil is warm, you can do one of two things: Watch your neighbor, or get a soil thermometer. Neighbors who have been planting in the area for a long time are walking libraries of information. And most are flattered to be asked their advice. Soil thermometers will tell you when the soil is 55 degrees and it's time to plant anything you want! Good luck, and thanks for writing.

TIP OF THE WEEK: Are you itching to get your annual flower garden underway? Pick the flowers that bloom latest: cosmos, gazania Daybreak, French marigolds (such as Bonanza and Jamie), sweet alyssum and zinnias (Dasher and Dreamland are good choices). And, to help them sprout faster, try soaking the seeds in warm water for a day or two. That sounds good on paper, but the warm water cools off, Think about how you normally keep hot liquids hot and cold liquids cold — a thermos! Put the seeds in a thermos bottle and add the warm water. (A wide-mouth thermos will make it easier to retrieve all the seeds.) After a day or so, slowly pour out the sprouted seeds onto a paper towel. Handle them gently while you transfer them to the potting soil. Happy gardening.

NOTE: An alert reader said she was told that dryer lint kills baby birds because once it gets wet, it stays wet — and cold. Makes sense. Thanks to Joanne from Pocatello for that tip!

What's bugging your garden? Write to Cathy in care of this newspaper or e-mail her at: cathy@bchrightway.net.

At home with Italian cooking

By Raeanne Sarazan
Chicago Tribune

In the rush of daily living, many of us have given up on life's simple pleasures. The comfort of homemade soup. The smell of garlic sauteing in olive oil. The way a just-peeled orange can take you someplace warm.

But how, you ask, can these simple pleasures be, well, simple? My Italian-American mother-in-law has a solution. She can make a delicious something from nothing in less than an hour — while carrying on a conversation with several people.

Her secrets: a well-stocked pantry, easy recipes and exceptional organization.

Her pantry holds the basics: olive oil, garlic, dried pasta, jars of plain or marinated vegetables, canned beans and canned broth. When several of her recipes use the same ingredient, such as garlic, she chops it all at once and then portions the amount she needs for each dish.

SPAGHETTI WITH GARLIC AND OLIVE OIL
Yield: 6 servings
1 pound spaghetti

1/3 cup extra-virgin olive oil
6 garlic cloves, minced
1/2 teaspoon red pepper flakes or hot sauce
1/2 cup chopped Italian flat-leaf parsley
Grated Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese

Heat large pot of salted water to boil; add spaghetti. Cook until al dente, about 10 minutes. Heat oil over medium-low heat in large saucpan. Add garlic and red pepper flakes; cook gently just until garlic colors, about 6 minutes. Do not let garlic brown. Stir in 1/2 cup of the spaghetti cooking water. Let simmer while spaghetti finishes cooking. Drain spaghetti; add to saucpan. Toss until strands are well coated. Add parsley; toss again. Serve with cheese.

ESCAROLE AND BEAN SOUP

Yield: 4 servings
3 tablespoons olive oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 medium head escarole, coarsely chopped
2 cans (14.5 ounces each) vegetable or chicken broth
1 can (19 ounces) cannellini beans, drained
1/4 teaspoon salt or to taste

3 tablespoons grated Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese
Heat oil in medium saucpan over medium-low heat. Add garlic; cook, stirring, about 1 minute. Add escarole; saute just until leaves are wilted, 3-4 minutes. Add broth, beans and salt; simmer, covered, about 10 minutes. Stir in cheese. Ladle soup into bowls.

ROASTED RED PEPPER AND MOZZARELLA SALAD

Yield: 4 servings
8 large lettuce leaves
1 jar (7 ounces) roasted-red peppers, cut into strips
1/2 pound fresh, small mozzarella balls
Balsamic vinegar, extra-virgin olive oil
Salt, freshly ground pepper
Arrange 2 lettuce leaves on each of 4 plates. Arrange peppers and mozzarella on top of lettuce. Drizzle with balsamic vinegar and olive oil to taste. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Block houses are efficient, strong

DEAR JIM: We are planning a new house and we want to do some of the work ourselves to lower costs. It must be super-efficient and strong to resist tornadoes. What do you think of Legos-type concrete/foam block houses?

-PAUL K

DEAR PAUL: Concrete/foam block house construction is one of the best new house construction methods available. It produces super-efficient airtight walls with insulation values up to R-38 and can resist tornado- and hurricane-force winds up to 150 mph. The finished house looks like any other.

Not only will you get up to 50 percent savings on utility bills over typical stick-built houses, but you will notice very little outdoor noise. Since it is so efficient, you can buy a smaller, less expensive furnace. Also, there will be virtually no settling, sticking or leaking windows and doors, etc.

In the summer, the heavy concrete structure inside the walls acts as a thermal mass. This improves comfort and lowers cooling costs by moderating the varying air-conditioning needs throughout the day and night.

The "Legos-type" construction is only one of many concrete/foam block methods. In all the variations of this construction method, the resulting wall is a monolithic concrete network integrated with rigid foam insulation. The reinforced concrete provides its superstrength.

Basically, the wall is constructed of large hollow lightweight (5 to 10 pounds) foam blocks, similar to common foam coolers. You just stack up the interlocking foam blocks to make the wall. Since the blocks are so easy to handle and assemble, you can help with this portion to lower labor costs.

Once the walls are completely stacked, reinforcing steel rods are slipped inside the hollow block cavities. A concrete truck, with a pump attachment, pumps the concrete into the openings at the top of the wall.

SENSIBLE HOME James Duley

The concrete flows throughout the wall cavities. You finish the interior and exterior later.

To reduce transportation costs of the large hollow blocks to your building site, many manufacturers are now using half blocks. Using various methods, often a metal or plastic web, the two block halves are assembled at your site. The webs also help position the reinforcing steel rods.

The exterior of the house can be finished with any traditional finishing material - brick, siding, stone, stucco, etc. When using the half block design, the exposed end surfaces of the connecting web provide a strong attachment point for interior drywall and exterior material.

Another earth-friendly design uses ground recycled insulating foam mixed with cement to make the insulating blocks. The blocks are stronger and heavier, but still easy to handle. The walls are assembled in the same way.

Write for Update Bulletin No. 507 - list of 18 manufacturers of concrete/foam blocks, sizes, R-values, prices and description details. Please include $3 and a business-size SASE.

Remember Joe when going light

The Seattle Times

The following is a light recipe.

JOE'S SPECIAL

- 4 servings
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach, thawed
- 1 teaspoon canola oil
- 1 pound lean ground chicken or turkey
- 1 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 medium clove garlic, peeled and minced
- 5 medium-size white or cremini mushrooms, wiped clean, thinly sliced
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon chili powder
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1 cup egg substitute

1 plum tomato, cored, seeded and finely diced

3/4 to 1 teaspoon hot sauce
1/3 cup coarsely shredded low-fat mozzarella

When the spinach has thawed, press it between your hands and squeeze out the excess moisture. Break it up with your fingers and put onto a paper towel-lined plate.

In a 9 to 10-inch nonstick skillet, heat the oil over medium heat. When the pan is hot, add the ground chicken, breaking it up with a spatula. Continue to break it up as it's cooking. When the chicken is almost done, add the onion and garlic. Cook 5 minutes. Then add the mushrooms, oregano, chili powder, cumin, salt and pepper. Stir until the mushrooms have softened and cooked, about 3 to 4 minutes.

Stir in the spinach and egg substitute. Turn the mixture with a spatula until the eggs start to set up. Stir in the tomato and season with hot sauce. Let the tomato warm through, about 1 minute. Sprinkle with mozzarella and serve.

Easter Bunny bread makes a nice gift

By Linda Cicero
The Miami Herald

Doris Betz asked if anyone could help her find a recipe for Easter Bunny bread, which she remembered as "nice breads to serve at home or to give as gifts." Miami Herald Food Editor Kathy Martin remembered making these once when her children were small, and found the recipe in her recipe box. These are fun and delicious; being cinnamon lovers, we added a teaspoon of ground cinnamon to the honey glaze.

HONEY BUNNIES

- 4 1/2 to 5 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 envelopes dry yeast
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2/3 cup evaporated milk
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 cup honey or margarine
- 2 eggs at room temperature
- Vegetable oil spray
- Raisins
- Honey Glaze:
- 1/2 cup honey
- 1/4 cup butter
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon (optional)

In a large bowl, combine 1 1/2 cups of the flour, undissolved yeast and salt. Heat evaporated milk, water, honey and butter until very warm (about 120 degrees). Butter does not need to melt completely. Gradually add to the dry ingredients, beating on low speed. Increase speed to medium and beat 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs and 1/2 cup flour. Beat 2 minutes at high speed, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff batter that pulls away from the sides of the bowl. Place in bowl coated with vegetable oil; turn, then spray top of dough. Cover tightly with plastic wrap and refrigerate 2 to 24 hours.

On a lightly floured surface, divide dough into 15 pieces. Roll each to a 20-inch rope. To make bunnies, divide each rope into one 12-inch, one 5-inch and three 3-inch strips. Coil 12-inch strip to make body; coil 5-inch strip to make head; shape remaining 3 strips into ears and tail and attach to body and head. Place bunnies on baking sheets coated with vegetable oil spray. Cover and let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled in size, 20 to 25 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes, until golden brown. Make honey glaze by stirring the 1/2 cup honey with the 1/4 cup butter over low heat until melted. Stir in cinnamon. Brush bunnies with honey glaze while still warm. Decorate with raisins for eyes. Brush again with glaze before serving, if desired. Makes 15 bunnies.

QUESTION: I would appreciate it if you readers could supply me with the recipe for strawberry pie that was served at Tyler's Restaurant sometime in the 1950s or '60s. I believe the restaurant was in Alapattah in Miami.

ANSWER: We'll hope someone with ties to the old Tyler's can provide the recipe. In the meantime, here's my absolute favorite strawberry pie, from Testa's in Palm Beach. The recipe is 70-plus years old, and for strawberry lovers is a double dose of intense flavor. Keep in mind that this will not produce perfect slices that stand up neatly. The filling oozes in a delicious, enticing mass that swirls with the cold whipped cream. And yes, you must serve it immediately or you lose the contrast of hot and cold.

TESTA'S FAMOUS STRAWBERRY PIE

- 1 quart of fresh strawberries, sliced and hulled
- 3 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter

1 drop red food coloring
1 baked 9- or 10-inch pie shell, cooled

Freshly whipped cream

Reserve half the berries in the refrigerator. Cook the other half with 1 cup water for 5 minutes over medium-high heat. Stir the sugar and cornstarch together and add to the boiled berries. Reduce heat to low. Stir in the butter and food coloring. Cook 25 minutes more. Arrange the cold berries in the baked pie shell. Pour the warm mixture over the raw berries. Top with fresh whipped cream and serve immediately. Do not refrigerate the pie. Makes 8 servings.

QUESTION: Many years ago I had a recipe for a chicken dish that called for chunky peanut butter, possibly lemon juice and some type of spicy seasoning, possibly crushed red pepper. The chicken was split, coated with the peanut butter mixture and broiled. I would love to make this dish again.

A: I was unable to come up with a recipe exactly as you describe, but perhaps one of our readers will. In the meantime, here's an interesting dish on the same theme, from my much-used "Family Circle Great Chicken Recipes." To make the recipe more like the one you describe, add crushed red pepper to taste along with the curry powder, and instead of plain water, add diluted lemon juice to the sauce.

AFRICAN CHICKEN

- 2 broiler fryers, about 2 pounds each, cut into serving size pieces
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
- 2 teaspoons salt

1 teaspoon curry powder
1 large onion, peeled and sliced
1 large sweet red bell pepper, halved, seeded and cut in strips
1 large tomato, sliced thin
1 1/2 cups uncooked rice
1/4 cup crunchy peanut butter
1/4 cup warm water

Brown the chicken in batches in vegetable oil in a Dutch oven or large frying pan; set aside. Stir salt and curry powder into drippings; cook 1 minute. Stir in onion, red pepper and tomato; cover. Simmer

5 minutes. Return chicken to Dutch oven; cover again. Simmer 30 minutes, or until chicken is tender and cooked through. While chicken cooks, cook rice following label directions. Spoon onto a large deep serving platter; arrange chicken on top; keep warm. Blend peanut butter with warm water in a cup; stir into vegetable mixture in Dutch oven; heat to boiling. Spoon over chicken and rice and serve. Makes 6 servings.

A dozen picky women choose bake-off winner

By Sylvia Rector
Twin Falls Free Press

We had no idea what we would eat or who would be cooking it. All we knew was that one of the appetizers, vegetables, main dishes or desserts we would be served would earn its creator $1 million.

Being a judge at the 50th Anniversary Pillsbury Bake-Off in San Francisco recently was a rare chance to go behind the scenes of America's richest and best-known cooking contest.

In a guarded room around the corner from the Bake-Off kitchens in the San Francisco Marriott Hotel, 12 women — newspaper, magazine and Internet food journalists and grocery-chain consumer specialists — would examine, sniff, nibble, rate, debate, anguish and finally pick one dish.

Making such a decision isn't easy, and neither is tasting 25 "Yummy Vegetables" or 26 "Fast & Fabulous Desserts & Treats" in less than five hours. Especially since the competition starts at 8 a.m.

In the end, we choose the Cream Cheese Brownie Pie, a combination of brownies and cheesecake. People will love it, we agree. It's easy to make, it tastes great and it looks like ... well, a million bucks.

CREAM CHEESE BROWNIE PIE

1 refrigerated pie crust (from a 3.5-ounce package), softened as directed on package

1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened

3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 eggs, divided

1 (15.1 ounce) package Pillsbury Thick 'n' Fudgy Hot Fudge Swirl Deluxe Brownie Mix (or equivalent brand)

1/4 cup vegetable oil
2 tablespoons water, divided
1/2 cup chopped pecans

Prepare the pie crust as directed on the package for a single crust-filled pie using a 9-inch pie pan. Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. In a medium bowl, combine the cream cheese, sugar, vanilla and 1 of the eggs. Beat until smooth and set aside.

Reserve the hot fudge packer from the brownie mix for the topping. In a large bowl, combine the brownie mix, vegetable oil, 1 tablespoon of the water and remaining 2 eggs; beat 50 strokes with a spoon.

Spread 1/2 cup of the brownie mixture in the bottom and to the sides of the crust-lined pan. Spoon and carefully spread the cream cheese mixture in an even layer over the brownie layer and to the sides. Spoon the remaining brownie mixture over the cream cheese layer and spread evenly, being careful not to disturb the cream cheese layer.

Sprinkle the top with the pecans. Bake for 40 to 50 minutes or until the center is puffed and the crust is golden. If necessary, cover the edges of the crust with strips of foil after 15 or 20 minutes of baking to prevent excess browning. The pie may have cracks on the surface when done baking. Remove the pie from the oven and cool.

When cool, place the hot fudge from the reserved packet in a small microwave-safe bowl. Microwave on high power for 30 seconds. Stir in the remaining 1 tablespoon of water and mix until smooth. Drizzle the fudge over the top of the cooled pie. Let stand 3 hours or until completely cooled. Store in the refrigerator. Makes 8 servings.

HAM AND SWISS CRESCENT BRAID

Nonstick cooking spray

Filling:

3/4 pound cooked ham, chopped (2 1/4 cups)
1 cup frozen broccoli florets, thawed (see note)
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Swiss cheese

1 (4.5-ounce) jar sliced mushrooms, drained
1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing

1 tablespoon honey mustard

Dough:

2 cans (8 ounces each) refrigerated reduced-fat or regular crescent dinner rolls
1 egg white, beaten
2 tablespoons slivered almonds

Use an ungreased large rectangular baking stone or spray a large baking cookie sheet with nonstick cooking spray. Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. In a large bowl, combine all of the filling ingredients and mix well. Unroll both cans of crescent dough. Place the dough with long sides together on an ungreased baking stone, forming a 15-by-12-inch rectangle. Press the edges and perforations to seal.

Spoon and spread the filling mixture in a 6-inch strip lengthwise down the center of the dough. With scissors or a sharp knife, make cuts 1 1/2 inches apart along the long sides of dough to within 1/2 inch of filling. Twisting each strip once, alternately cross strips over the filling to make a braid. Tuck short ends under; press to seal. Brush the dough with beaten egg white and sprinkle with the almonds. Bake for 28 to 33 minutes or until deep golden brown. Remove from the oven and let cool 5 minutes. Slice crosswise and serve. Makes 8 servings.

NOTE: To quickly thaw broccoli, place in a colander or strainer and rinse with warm water until thawed. Drain well. —From Lorraine Maggio, Manlius, N.Y., $10,000 winner in the Pillsbury 50th Anniversary Bake-Off's Easy Weeknight Meals category.

ISLAND PARADISE SALAD

Dressing:

1 teaspoon grated lime peel
3 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons fresh lime juice
1 tablespoon canola or vegetable oil

Salad:

2 cups frozen sugar snap peas
3 cups torn romaine lettuce
3 cups torn Bibb lettuce
1 avocado, peeled, pitted and cut into 1/2-inch cubes
1 large ripe mango, peeled, seed removed and cut into 1/2-inch cubes
1 small red onion, thinly sliced and separated into rings
1/2 cup unsweetened or regular shredded coconut

To prepare the dressing: In a small bowl, combine all of the dressing ingredients and mix well.

To prepare the salad: Cook sugar snap peas according to package directions. Drain and rinse with cold water to cool. Drain well.

In a large bowl, toss together the cooked peas, romaine and Bibb lettuces, avocado, mango and red onion. Drizzle the dressing over the salad and toss gently to coat. Sprinkle with coconut and serve.

Makes 8 servings. —From Judith Mettlin Snyder, New York, $10,000 winner in the Pillsbury 50th Anniversary Bake-Off's Yummy Vegetables category.

Ellington's appeal lies in openness

Four gables, each accented by a decorative corbel, give an open, friendly look to the Ellington. Gentle arches, Craftsman-style windows and stone veneer wainscoting all add to the exterior appeal. With the exception of the bonus room (or bedroom) over the garage, this is a single level plan.

A bright and spacious vaulted living area fills the entire center of this home. Sunlight spills into the living room from the rear through two windows and atrium glass doors, and when skies darken, the gas fireplace serves as a warm, colorful focal point.

The doors access a patio or deck, and provide plenty of air circulation when needed.

Dining room and kitchen are next to each other, partially separated by a raised eating bar. Family and friends will enjoy sitting here, especially while food is being prepared. Standing at the sink, you've got a panoramic view of the gathering spaces as well as the patio and landscape outside.

Utilities are nearby, hidden behind a pocket door. Because this large space connects to the garage, it also doubles as a mudroom and is handy for unloading groceries in safety, out of the rain, snow, or what have you. Families with muddy-pawed dogs will particularly appreciate this space.

Double doors next to a charming arched display cove open into the Ellington's luxurious master suite. In addition to direct patio access, notable features include: a huge walk-in closet, twin vanity, a spa tub awash in the soft light filtered through glass blocks, and separately enclosed shower and toilet.

Stairs from the kitchen lead up to a skylit bonus room with a half bath.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $20 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Drive, Department W, Eugene, Ore. 97402. Please specify the Ellington 30-242 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring 300 home plans is available for $12. For more information call (800) 634-0123.

It might be best to leave asbestos siding on

Q. Our house has asbestos-cement siding, and we want to have vinyl siding installed. Is it better to leave the asbestos shingles in place or have them removed? I have heard many different opinions and want to do the correct thing, regardless of cost.

A. There are good arguments on both sides of this issue. The general policy of the Environmental Protection Agency about asbestos in the home is that it is best left alone if it is in good condition, because asbestos is a health hazard only if particles are inhaled. The asbestos in siding shingles is locked in place unless the shingles are crumbling or are broken up by removal or other disturbances such as drilling or sawing.

The Vinyl Siding Institute, a trade group in Washington, recommends that asbestos siding be left in place when re-siding, but says the siding should be covered with sheathing such as plywood or rigid insulation panels (check with local building-code officials for any special requirements). The vinyl siding is then installed over the sheathing, which serves to smooth the wall and keep any broken asbestos shingles from marring the flatness of the surface. This system is a form of encapsulation, which is one of the methods of protecting against asbestos without removing it.

On the other side of the issue is the widespread fear of asbestos. If the asbestos is left in place and you try to sell the house, you might have to disclose its presence to would-be buyers under today's full-disclosure policies covering housing sales. Even though the asbestos would be harmless if left alone, it could be a negative factor in the sale.

If you decide to have the siding removed, be sure to select a contractor who is skilled in the safe removal and disposal of asbestos. Again, you should check with building-code officials to see whether there are special requirements.

I also recommend reading "Asbestos in Your Home - A Homeowner's Guide," prepared by the American Lung Association, EPA, and Consumer Product Safety Commission. You can read it online changes. Normally, these gaps are filled with a flexible material that is much like fiberboard. If the original material is becoming unsightly, here's what to do:

Q. Our concrete driveway has gaps between the sections that are filled with a black material. The black stuff is drying up and the gaps are filling with weeds. I'd like to replace the filler, but what will and how do I do it?

Full all the weeds you can and kill the rest with one of the weed-killing herbicides sold at garden centers and home centers. Use a chisel to cut back the old filler to a depth of at least 1/2 inch. Refill the gap with one of the asphalt crack fillers sold at most home centers. These fillers are sold in jugs, caulking-gun cartridges, and cans. You will be able to do the nestest job with a jug (make sure it has a nozzle for precise pouring) or a caulk. Try to avoid getting any of the crack filler on the concrete, because the stains are extremely difficult to remove.

You will need to do the work on a warm day, because asphalt crack filler does not flow well when it is cold. Consult the directions on the container for more information.

Visionaries hail channel streaming

Knightrider News Service
A stream of good TV shows: Forget channel surfing. Channel streaming is the answer to 200-channel TV with nothing on that you want to watch, high-tech visionaries say. "In the future, everybody is thinking about streaming," said the head of a Japanese film distribution and production company. Streaming, or digital video transmission, lets you download TV-like video from the Internet and watch it on your home computer.

Industry watchers say a world with thousands of movies waiting in cyberspace to be downloaded at lightning speed could be here in three to five years.

3 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
2 teaspoons salt
1 egg, lightly beaten
4 to 4 3/4 cups all purpose flour
Topping:
1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted, divided
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

1 teaspoon dried basil
1/2 teaspoon dried oregano
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
In a small bowl, combine boiling water and oats cool to 110 to 115 degrees. In a mixing bowl, dissolve yeast in warm water. Add sugar, butter, salt, egg, oat mixture and 2 cups flour; beat until smooth. Add enough remaining flour to form a soft dough. Turn onto a floured board; knead until smooth and elastic. About 6 to 8 minutes. Place in a greased bowl, turning once to grease the top. Cover and let rise in a warm place until double, about 30 minutes. Punch dough down and press evenly into a greased 13-by-9-by-2-inch baking pan. With a very sharp knife cut diagonal lines 1 1/2 inches apart completely through the dough. Repeat in opposite direction, creating a diamond pattern. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled, about 1 hour. Redefine pattern by gently poking along the cut lines with knife tip. Brush with 2 tablespoons melted butter. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, combine Parmesan cheese, basil, oregano, and garlic powder. Brush bread with remaining butter; sprinkle with cheese mixture. Bake for 5 minutes. Loosely cover with foil and bake 5 minutes longer. Serve warm.

Add cornstarch paste and cook over direct heat until mixture begins to thicken; return to double boiler and continue cooking till thick and smooth (about 15 minutes). Pour over slightly beaten egg yolks, return to double boiler and cook one minute longer. Add lemon rind and juice and butter and blend well. Cool and pour into pie shell.

Top with meringue made of 3 egg whites, 9 tablespoons sugar, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla and 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar. Bake at 350 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes.

NCAA tournaments are twice as nice for five schools

The Associated Press

The sound of "Rocky Top" once again is blaring at Tennessee games in the NCAA tournament. Except this year, it's being played twice as often — because the men are finally keeping up with the women.

It's all the more reason to celebrate in Knoxville, where the men's basketball program long has labored in the shadow of coach Pat Summitt's wildly successful Lady Vols.

Tennessee is one of five schools for which the round of 16 is twice as sweet because both the men's and women's teams are still playing. Duke, North Carolina, Louisiana State and Iowa State are the other members of the fortunate five.

The joint appearances are a boon for the schools in terms of exposure and revenue, though it doubles the workload for athletic department officials who must deal with tickets, the media and travel. And it forces fans to make a choice: which regional to attend?

Or maybe, they just stay home and watch both teams on television.

For some, it's happened before.

Both Duke teams made the Final Four last year. For others, it's a moment to savor.

"I think it's truly amazing," Iowa State women's coach Bill Fennelly said. "They say this is a once-in-a-lifetime thing. This is a never-in-a-lifetime thing; the year we both had, and the success of both teams."

That's also true at Tennessee, where the men's team made the regional semifinals for the first time since 1981, the year before the first NCAA women's tournament. The women have been in the round of 16 every year — and have won six national champi-

Bruins stop Century cold

By Holly Keyt
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It was just another blowout match for the Twin Falls High School tennis team Tuesday afternoon.

Hosting Century, the Bruins improved their overall record to 8-0 with an 11-1 defeat of the Diamondbacks.

In one of the most heated matches of the day, Twin Falls seniors Zach Thompson and Bryan Harbut claimed a straight set victory, 6-4, 6-3, over Diamondbacks Andreas Duhnke and Corey Spicer in the No. 1 boys' doubles.

"It was the closest match that we've had so far," Thompson said.

"I'm always happy with the first boys' doubles," Bruin coach Jason Leforge said. "It was a good match, which is good to see."

In girls' No. 1 singles, Bruin junior Jessica Koutnik battled through a one-set tie to defeat Heidi Gentry 6-4, 2-6, 6-3. After Koutnik won the first set, Gentry squared the match but Koutnik finally came out on top with her lobs and service game.

"She (Koutnik) got down in the second set and came back in the third," Leforge said. "I think it was a gut-check and she pulled it out."

In No. 1 girls' doubles, Bruins Lacey Van Engelen and Bryony Barton easily defeated the team of Valerie Southworth and Tara Towlesley 6-1 in the first set of the match. The second set was not so comfortably attained, but Engelen and Barton pulled out the 7-5 win.

NHL lays the stick on Niedermayer

The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. —

The NHL issued a zero-tolerance policy against irresponsible use of the stick on Tuesday, suspending New Jersey Devils defenseman Scott Niedermayer for 10 games for hitting Florida's Peter Worrell over the helmet with his stick.

The ruling, which will sideline Niedermayer through the Devils' first playoff game, comes a month after Boston defenseman Marty McSorley was suspended for the final 23 games of the regular season for hitting Vancouver's Donald Brashear on the side of the head with a two-handed swing.

McSorley's punishment was the harshest in NHL history but even that could not repair the embarrassment the league suffered from the attack in which Brashear received a serious concussion that sidelined him for the season.

While Niedermayer's attack against Worrell late in Sunday's game against the Panthers didn't seem as vicious as McSorley's blindsided hit on Brashear, he was assessed a match penalty for attempting to injure. The league then showed on Tuesday it was not going to tolerate it, even from a usually mild-mannered player.

"Mr. Niedermayer is a first-time offender, a factor that was considered — as were all the elements of the incident," said Colin Campbell, the NHL's executive vice president and director of hockey operations. "That consideration does not change the essential point here: A player has to be held accountable for striking an opponent on the head with his stick. We are determined to eliminate the irresponsible use of the stick from our game."

The suspension will cost Niedermayer $152,343.74, with the money going to the Players' Emergency Assistance Fund. He will miss the final nine games of the regular season and the opening playoff game.

Nearly half of all MLB players topped $1 million

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Nearly four in 10 major league baseball players made $1 million or more last season, topped by Baltimore's Albert Belle at $11,949,794.

Of 916 players on Aug. 31 rosters, 342 players made $1 million or more, according to a study of all major league contracts by The Associated Press. That comes out to a record 37.3 percent, up from 36.5 percent in 1998 and 34.5 percent in 1997.

In 1998, there were just 326 players at $1 million or more, and that was up from 285 in 1997.

Belle was followed in the top 10 list by Boston pitcher Pedro Martinez ($11.25 million), Los Angeles pitcher Kevin Brown ($10,714,286), Atlanta pitcher Greg Maddux ($10.6 million), Los Angeles outfielder Gary Sheffield ($9,936,667), New York Yankees outfielder Bernie Williams ($9,857,143), Arizona pitcher Randy Johnson ($9.65 million), Yankees pitcher David Cone ($9.5 million), San Francisco outfielder Barry Bonds ($9,381,057) and St. Louis first baseman Mark McGwire

Figures include all salaries and earned bonuses, plus prorated shares of signing bonuses and other guaranteed income. Figures usually are finalized in December, but calculations were delayed this year, primarily due to players who signed extensions during the 1999 season.

At the other end, 15.3 percent of players, 145 in all, made the minimum $200,000, up from 14.1 percent in 1998 and 13.0 percent in 1997. The Minnesota Twins had nine, the most of any team.

The salary escalation seems assured on continuing this year, but exact calculations can't be made until the week of April 3, after teams set their opening-day rosters.

Until then, many teams kept several veterans on minor league rosters. Once a player is added to the major-league roster, his salary for the season becomes guaranteed.

Figures were obtained by the AP from management and player sources. For some players, parts of salaries deferred without interest are discounted to reflect current values.

Who wants to be a millionaire?

According to a study by The Associated Press, 37.3 percent of all major league baseball players made $1 million or more in 1999. Here is a look at last season's highest-paid players.

Top of the heap

Albertson's selects new president, COO

BOISE - Albertson's Inc. Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Gary Michael and the grocery chain's board named Peter Lynch, 48, as president and chief operating officer, effective immediately.

Lynch began his retail career in 1967 and most recently was executive vice president of operations. The position of president and COO has been vacant since June.

"The new Albertson's will benefit greatly from Peter's dynamic leadership and his passionate commitment to our associates and our customers," Michael said.

Micron mulls splitting off Web-hosting operations

NAMPA - Micron Electronics Inc. executives indicated the company may spin off its Web-hosting operations into a separate publicly traded business.

CEO Joel Kocher said the company is "in the process of engaging an investment banker" to help unlock the value of the Internet services business.

Kocher would not say what the options could be for Micron's Internet segment, but analysts speculated company leadership wants the promising Web-hosting business to separate from the PC operations. Micron Electronics' primary product has been PCs - almost all of them sold directly to consumers.

Last year, the company moved into a variety of Internet ventures, including hosting Web pages and applications for corporate clients. The company moved deeper into Web-hosting endeavors Monday with Kocher's announcement of the purchase of another Web-hosting company. The company also said it will open a high-capacity Web and application hosting data center in Boise.

J.C. Penney to open first college catalog center

DENTON, Texas - J.C. Penney is going to school.

The giant Plano, Texas, retailer with a couple of Magic Valley stores opened its first catalog center on a college campus at the University of North Texas.

UNT will own and operate the Campus Catalog operation, a small store in the university's student union. It will give Penney exposure to a 26,000-student market - the younger consumers the chain so desperately needs.

Penney views the North Texas store both as a way to help the retail program and to introduce J.C. Penney catalog shopping to students, said Edward Trujillo, Penney's director of catalog store programs. Penney is also looking forward to feedback it expects to get from students about company products, Trujillo said.

Penney has been talking with universities nationwide for more than a year about catalog decks. And if the North Texas store succeeds, Penney could use the Campus Catalog as a model to set up other stores on college campuses nationally.

TF thrift store seeks new home

Discussions with the city prompt search

By Virginia S. Hutchins
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - It wants to be a good neighbor and help Twin Falls, so The Salvation Army is searching out a new location for its Second Avenue South thrift store, the Salvation Army's Maj. Ed Patterson said.

City representatives recently approached an organization about selling the former Krenz's True Value Hardware building at 210 Second Ave. S., which The Salvation Army bought in early 1993, and moving the thrift store out, he said.

Patterson said he isn't free to divulge the reason, but it was a good enough cause to send The Salvation Army on an active search.

Twin Falls' Urban Renewal Agency is in conversations with The Salvation Army about potentially moving the thrift store, said Dave McAlindin, Urban Renewal's executive director and the city's economic development director. But he's not talking publicly about the reason either.

Urban Renewal paid for a property appraisal, he said, declining to give results of the appraisal.

The agency initiated meetings with The Salvation Army because it is looking at acquiring that property and others nearby, McAlindin said.

"At this point, I can't tell you exactly what we might do," he said.

Urban Renewal might buy the thrift store property outright, buy another building and make a trade, arrange a sale of the thrift store building to some other entity - or none of the above, McAlindin said.

"We might not even end up being a part of it, I don't know," he said.

But there is reason to proceed with negotiations.

A bare lot stands behind the thrift store, and the parcels could be assembled under single ownership, McAlindin said. But he's not talking publicly about any development possibilities.

"At this point it's just preliminary," he said.

The Salvation Army's thrift store, at 210 Second Ave. S., is a piece of property the city's Urban Renewal Agency has its eye on - for itself or for another party. So The Salvation Army is looking for a new home for the store.

Urban Renewal has talked with only one other property owner in the area about buying land, McAlindin said. He declined to name that owner.

And the agency hasn't sent anyone out looking for a new Salvation Army location, he added.

But The Salvation Army is searching with city help - so far unsuccessfully, Patterson said.

"We're trying to work together and find a property that's conducive so that we can still stay in operation," he said.

Some properties The Salvation Army looked at weren't for sale, and others wouldn't work for one reason or another, Patterson said, declining to name any of the eliminated options.

"We've just looked at quite a few places," he said.

With no promising possibilities in sight now, Patterson is optimistic about the proposed move.

"When the good Lord really gets ready, there'll be a place available," he said.

The organization has received no solid offer for the property, he said, but it has a guarantee the store will have plenty of time to make the move.

Patterson doesn't have his eye on any particular area of town. He just wants a location with plenty of shopping traffic.

All of the profit from thrift store sales - $60,000 to $82,000 annually - goes directly back into this community, Patterson said. Every weekday, 200-210 people come for help - through offerings such as emergency welfare for living expenses; a program that feeds an average of 40 or 50 people per day; or after-school programs that average 25-35 attendees. A new weekend program is open for ages 14-19 on Friday and Saturday nights, and church services are on Sunday.

Even if the thrift store moves, The Salvation Army still will run all programs out of its Fourth Avenue North office.

Home Depot considers more stock

Proxy voting will address proposed 'old growth' forest products list

Knight Ridder News Service

ATLANTA - Home Depot, which within weeks will open a Twin Falls store, wants to double the number of its authorized common shares to 10 billion, possibly setting the stage for more stock splits and dividend increases.

The proposal is one of several investors will decide on May 31 at the home improvement retailer's annual shareholder meeting, according to a preliminary proxy.

The company, whose stock has risen sharply in the past year, said the additional shares would be used for potential splits and dividends, as well as to "meet future business and financial needs," said the filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

As of Dec. 1, the company had about 1.5 billion shares outstanding.

Shareholders voted last year to double the number of authorized shares from 2.5 billion to 5 billion. Home Depot's board later approved a 3-for-2 stock split, which was effective last December. The retailer also increased its quarterly dividend by 50 percent, to 6 cents a pre-split share, from 4 cents.

Other voting matters on this year's proxy include:

• A proposal to expand Home Depot's annual report on minority and female employment.

Certain institutional investors have been asking Home Depot for employment data since 1998, after the retailer settled a class-action sex discrimination lawsuit for $104 million. The resolutions were voted down, but last year Home Depot voluntarily published a summary of minority and female employment.

The report breaks down employment by officers, managers, sales associates and office workers. It also includes the employment growth in each of those categories. But the authors of the proposal want more details, including data beginning in 1997 for each of the nine job categories defined by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The proposal also calls for a report on "material" litigation involving Home Depot for matters concerning race, gender or physical disabilities. Recently, racial discrimination lawsuits have been filed against the company by employees at two stores. Home Depot denies it discriminates against employees.

The company's board has said it would be difficult to publish an accurate, current report because the retailer hires about 1,000 to 2,000 people a week.

• A proposal to issue a report that lists products derived from "old growth" forests and the location of those forests. The proposal also asks for a time line for phasing out the sales of "old growth" wood.

Last August, Home Depot announced it would stop selling wood products made from "endangered forests" by 2002. The company said it has been meeting with vendors and advisers since then to carry out its plan. The proposal is calling for documentation on how Home Depot is executing its new policy.

According to the proxy, Home Depot's board is resisting such a report, saying it would take company resources away from implementing environmental policies.

• A proposal to change the classification of board members to make them eligible for re-election annually. The board typically has 11 members, who serve three-year terms in one of three classes. If stockholders vote to get rid of the classification system, each board member will stand for reelection every year beginning next year.

Business districts discuss executive director's contract

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - The Historic Downtown and Old Towne business improvement districts will meet Thursday behind closed doors to discuss Executive Director Randy Bombardier's contract, as well as proposed unification of the two groups.

Bombardier's contract has operated on a month-to-month basis since the expiration of his one-year contract in May 1999, Bombardier said in a recent Times-News interview.

In December, the Historic Downtown BID decided, after two executive-committee sessions, that a few more things needed to be done before a contract could be drawn up between Bombardier and the BID, Bombardier said.

In an executive session Thursday, the downtown BID discussed renewal and valuation of Bombardier's contract; this week, both downtown and Old Towne will discuss the contract in a Thursday executive session, Downtown BID Chairman Ron Thompson said. No decision can be made in an executive session.

REGIONAL SMALL BUSINESS WEEK

Range of events fills local celebration slate

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - This is the week to celebrate small businesses around the Magic Valley.

The College of Southern Idaho's Idaho Small Business Development Center and the Twin Falls and Jerome chambers of commerce have invited the public to a Regional Small Business Week Celebration today.

The teleconference event will be held in conjunction with the Small Business Administration's National Small Business Week.

The event begins at 9 a.m. with a marketing and planning presentation by Amber Powers of the CSI business department. At 10 a.m., Region IV Development Corp. loan officer Ray Parrish and Good Credit's Michael Heflinger will discuss some of the basics of e-commerce that he has discovered.

The seminars will originate from CSI's Evergreen Building and be transmitted via opportunities to the CSI Hailey Center, CSI

Burley Center and Jerome High School.

Regional awards for Small Business Week will be presented by Tom Bergdoll, SBA regional director, during the Jerome and Twin Falls chambers' Business After Hours social event from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Thursday at El Sombro Restaurant in Jerome. That event also includes a business trade show at El Sombro, sponsored jointly by the two chambers.

On the east side of the valley, the three-day Mini-Cassia Small Business Celebration is in its second day today, featuring participation in the teleconference. Sponsored by the Mini-Cassia Chamber of Commerce, the celebration highlights a wide range of businesses and will focus on business issues.

The climax of the Mini-Cassia celebration will be the Mini-Cassia Business Expo from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday at the Snake River Plaza in Burley. At least 28 exhibitors will display products, the networking event to promote their businesses. The Job Service office of Burley will have a computer terminal available for people to check out job opportunities with Mini-Cassia businesses.

Fed bumps up rates a quarter-point

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan arrives at work in Washington Tuesday before the announcement of the rate hike.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Reserve raised a key interest rate Tuesday by a quarter-point - the fifth increase since June - in an effort to slow the speeding economy and keep inflation from escalating.

The announcement came after a closed-door meeting of the Federal Reserve's Federal Open Market Committee, the officials who set interest rate policies. The Fed said it was increasing its target for the federal funds rate - the interest that banks charge each other on overnight loans - to 6 percent from 5.75 percent.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up by more than 100 points before the Fed action, soared higher following the mid-afternoon announcement, finishing the day up 227.10 points at 10,907.34.

Other indexes were up as well. In a statement explaining its decision, the Fed said it continues to remain concerned that the rapidly growing economy "could foster inflationary imbalances that would undermine the economy's record economic expansion."

David Jones, an economist with Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., said: "What the Fed is trying to do here - first and most importantly - is to cool off the domestic demand growth. That is consumers."

The Fed's quarter-point increase in the funds rate was quickly followed by an announcement from Bank of America that it was boosting its prime lending rate by a similar quarter-point, from the current 8.75 percent to 9 percent, effective Wednesday. Other commercial banks were expected to follow suit.

Dow, Nasdaq soar despite interest rate hike

NEW YORK (AP) - Stocks bounced higher Tuesday after the Federal Reserve met Wall Street's expectations of a modest increase in interest rates, a move that convinced investors that the battle against inflation is nearing a successful end.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 227.10 to close at 10,907.34.

The technology stocks that dominate the Nasdaq composite index benefited most from the Fed's announcement of a quarter-percentage point increase in short-term rates. The Nasdaq rebounded from an early loss of as much as 100 points to close up 101.68 at 4,193.68.

The Standard & Poor's 500 rose 37.24 to 1,493.87. The market gathered momentum after the Fed confirmed Wall Street's expectation of a quarter-point rate hike. Tuesday's increase is the fifth since last June. The Fed also said it still sees a risk of rising inflation for the foreseeable future. The statement put financial markets on notice that the Fed remains worried about inflation. Still, market analysts said that with a smattering of evidence that has shown a slight slowdown in the economy, investors are becoming increasingly confident that the Fed's long cycle of rate increases is almost over. "The central bank's credibility is very high right now," said Chris Conkey, chief investment officer at Evergreen Investment Management in Boston. "The news of an increase was already factored in, and there's a strong sense that the Fed is on top of things."

Financial stocks that are most sensitive to the Fed's rate push the Dow higher. American Express rose 3 7/8 to 145 7/8 and J.P. Morgan rose 5/16 to 129. Cyclical companies, which fare best when the economy is strong, also rose. "There's been a real resurgence in the more cyclical parts of the market, and that's a strong statement in favor of what the Fed is doing," Conkey said.

Micron Tech earnings fall short of estimates

Bridge News NEW YORK - Micron Technology Inc. on Tuesday posted earnings well below Wall Street estimates for its second quarter to the second, cutting its margin on semiconductor operations by 58 percent compared with the first three months of the previous year.

Micron said memory prices declined 20 percent from the first quarter to the second, cutting its margin on semiconductor operations by 58 percent compared with the first three months of the previous year. Semiconductor sales decreased 14 percent to $1.2 billion from the first fiscal quarter as a result of the decline in prices for D-Ram products.

Shipments of the company's PC systems decreased 17 percent from the first fiscal quarter of 2000 chiefly owing to a 19 percent decline in desktop unit shipments caused by lower government sales.

Trade deficit balloons with foreign oil prices

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. trade deficit shot up to a billion in January as Americans' demand for foreign oil hit an all-time high while exports slipped.

The Commerce Department said the deficit widened by 13 percent in January compared to a $24.6 billion December deficit, stark evidence that the country began the trade war it exhibited throughout 1999.

For all of last year, the deficit soared to an all-time high of $26.6 billion, 62.9 percent above the previous record, an imbalance of $164.3 billion in 1998.

The widening trade deficit has been the biggest adverse effect on the U.S. economy from the 1997-98 Asian currency crisis, which cut sharply into American exports because of widespread economic weakness overseas.

While many crisis countries are now enjoying strong economic rebounds, the U.S. trade deficit is expected to worsen further this year, reflecting continuing consumer demand in this country and a rising foreign oil bill.

"Our spending continues to outpace our production," said William E. Brock, chief economist at John Hancock in Boston. "This could result in inflation, but instead we simply make up the difference by importing even more from overseas."

For January, imports of foreign petroleum climbed to a record high of $7.87 billion, more than double the level of a year ago when the country was enjoying a big slide in petroleum prices.

The price of crude oil hit $23.18 per barrel in January, the highest level since a $25.75 price in December 1990 on the eve of the Persian Gulf War.

The Clinton administration, concerned about the political fallout of steeply rising prices for gasoline and home-heating oil, has been lobbying the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to step up production.

The widening trade deficit is presenting the administration, with political problems as it tries to sell Congress with a landmark trade agreement with China.

Saxophonists earn spots at national music competition

FILER - Two young saxophonists from the Magic Valley were selected as finalists for the Music Teachers National Association Foundation woodwind competition Sunday in Minneapolis, Minn.

Sarah Lincoln, 17, daughter of Doug and Mary Ann Lincoln of Filer, is one of seven students from the nation who will compete. She won the northwest division of the foundation high school woodwind competition, earning a spot at the national competition. A junior at Magic Valley Christian High School, Lincoln has been studying saxophone for four years with Linda Aufferheide.

Randall Brown, 15, son of Dennis and Valerie Brown of Twin Falls, won the northwest division of the foundation junior high school woodwind competition. A ninth-grader at O'Leary Junior High School, Brown also has been studying saxophone for four years with Aufferheide.

The competition will take place during the Music Teachers National Association national convention. The winner of the competition receives $1,000 and will perform Monday at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Minneapolis, the association says.

Competition competitors begin at the state level. First-place winners of each state's competition compete at the division level. Division winners receive monetary awards and travel assistance to national competition finals.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE Bobby Wolf

Have an open face, but conceal your thoughts. — Italian proverb

At a recent tournament, most pairs reached today's spade game, but not all teams. The few who did had to develop a game plan, using care to keep the opponents from finding the winning defense.

Dummy's diamond ace captured West's king, and most declared their trumps with the ace and 10. This gave East an opportunity to signal. He did so by dropping his nine of clubs.

After this signal, South had little chance for success. When trumps were drawn, South ran dummy's heart 10 to West's jack. West had an easy shot to club. This brought the declarer to total four tricks and one down.

When Jack Kennedy of Shreveport, La., played the game, he was eager about providing opportunities for defense. He drew trumps, stepped drawing two rounds of trumps, he cashed only his ace. Then he played low to heart to dummy's 10.

West took his jack and naively tried to cash his diamond queen. Kennedy ruffed, drew the other trump and then led his heart 10 to ruff out West's ace. Another diamond ruff allowed him to discard two of dummy's clubs on his queen and nine of hearts. The defenders could win only two tricks.

After winning his heart jack, should West have cashed his club ace in spite of Kennedy's deceptive play? Probably not. It was the mark of a winning player is to give his opponents every possible opportunity for error. Kennedy's result was well deserved.
