Judge halts Idaho's abortion law

Ruling puts parental consent requirement on hold to consider pending litigation

The Associated Press
BOISE — U.S. Magistrate Mikel Williams on Thursday approved a temporary restraining order to the state's new parental consent law, which requires girls under 18 to obtain parental or judicial permission before they can get an abortion.
The law was to take effect July 1, but appeals are keeping it on hold.

'I'm a little disappointed. But I know that I've spent literally years working on this and can't expect the judge to come to an understanding like I have.'

government identification. Judicial bypass would not allow a minor to file outside her home district for an abortion. Physician criminal liability could mean prosecution for performing an abortion on a minor.
Planned Parenthood of Idaho and the American Civil Liberties Union asked Williams last month to void the parental consent law, arguing that a number of its provisions violate the U.S.

Constitution's equal protection clause.
Planned Parenthood lawyers on Thursday said the identification, judicial bypass and medical emergency provisions are too restrictive and do not function in women's health interests.
They also took issue with allowing a physician to face criminal liability for performing an

David Howell, fire information officer for the Bureau of Land Management, does a spot check Thursday for additional fires at the origin of the 32,000-acre Bell Mare fire about 12 miles northeast of Glenns Ferry.

By Brian Haynes
Times-News writer
KING HILL — Besides a blackened hairbrush smoldering southward and a melted plastic blob that used to be a portable toilet, not much was left Thursday at the campsite where a raging wildfire began the night before.
The Bell Mare fire started with a "campfire that got away," and by the time firefighters corralled the flames more than 13,000 acres northeast of Glenns Ferry were charred black, said David Howell, fire information officer for the Bureau of Land Management.

Most of the damage came within a few hours after the fire started as winds topping 50 mph fanned the flames. The fire started around 6 p.m. and grew from 600 acres to more than 8,000 acres in four hours, Howell said.

"The strong winds pushed the flames east along the hilly countryside. At one point a cluster of ranch houses stood directly in the flames' path, but rural fire companies from Gooding, Bliss, Hagerman and Glenns Ferry arrived to protect the homes from the oncoming fire.
The BLM is not equipped to battle structure fires, so it called upon the other fire departments for help. None of the homes or nearby buildings were damaged.

The winds died down later Wednesday evening, and with more than 200 firefighters, 30 engines, two helicopters and an air-tanker battling together, the fire was nearly contained by Thursday night. Officials expected the fire to be controlled sometime today.
But with unusually dry conditions, fire officials worry that

National child immunization rates rise; Idaho's don't

By Brandon Flata
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The nation's childhood immunization rate reached the highest level on record in 1999, but Idaho's rates fell.
The federal and state numbers don't necessarily measure the same groups of toddlers. But Idaho's numbers point to a 70 percent immunization rate — which could put the Gem State at or near the bottom nationally.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported Thursday that more than 80 percent of toddlers have received at least five of six recommended vaccinations. Vermont had the highest vaccination rate at 90.5 percent in 1999, and Oregon had the lowest at 72.3 percent, for children aged 19 to 35 months, according to the CDC's report.

According to Idaho's Department of Health and Welfare, the child vaccination rate dropped from 76.4 percent in 1998 to 70 percent in 1999 for children aged 19 to 35 months, said department spokesman Bill Walker.

Utahns will vote on English-only issue

Measure would mandate state agencies to conduct most business in English

The Associated Press
SALT LAKE CITY — A proposal to make English Utah's official language will be on the November ballot — a move that supporters trumpeted Thursday at a news conference that quickly degenerated into a shouting match.
If voters approve the proposal, state agencies would be prohibited, with some exceptions, from conducting government business or printing information in any language except English.
"This is about maintaining our common language, this is not against other languages," said Mauro Mujica, a national English-only activist

Guard faces charge in man's death

Man suffocated in confrontation over shoplifting

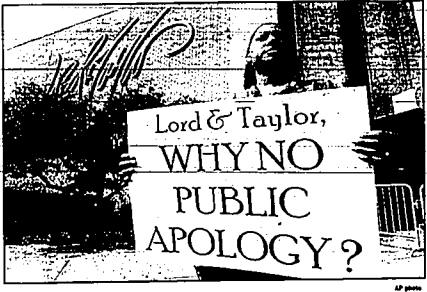

DETROIT (AP) — A private security guard was charged Thursday with involuntary manslaughter in the death of a black man last month outside a department store.

The charge against Dennis Richardson, a guard for the Lord & Taylor store at Fairlane Towne Center in Dearborn, came a day after thousands of protesters rallied outside the store. They suggested the June 22 death of Frederick Finley had racial overtones, though the suspect also is black.

Finley was in the Lord & Taylor store with friends and family when surveillance camera members of the group shoplifting.

Finley's 11-year-old stepdaughter removed a bracelet from a counter and left the store without paying for it, prosecutors said in a statement.

Outside, security workers tried to question the girl and Finley intervened, prosecutors said. During an ensuing confrontation with Finley, Richardson used a neck hold to subdue the Detroit man, ultimately causing his death, the statement reads.

Sherrita Young of Detroit protests Wednesday outside Lord & Taylor store in Dearborn, Mich.

Under all the circumstances, the duration and amount of force used by Richardson was excessive, and probable cause clearly exists for the involuntary manslaughter count, Prosecutor John D. O'Hair said in the statement.

Prosecutors and Dearborn police did not return telephone messages Thursday seeking further detail.

The manslaughter count carries a possible 15 years in prison and $7,500 fine.

Attorney Geoffrey Fieger, who represents Finley's family, said he believed a second-degree murder charge would have been more appropriate.

Firms recall bike helmets over safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the height of the summer biking season, two companies are voluntarily recalling about 79,000 bicycle helmets after government regulators found the headgear failed safety tests and would not adequately protect children or adults from serious or fatal head injuries.

A third company is recalling about 2,200 trailers that are attached to bicycles to transport children.

Rand International of Farmingdale, N.Y., is recalling about 70,000 helmets — "L.A. Cruiser" models that were sold in various child, youth and adult sizes. The youth and adult-sized helmets are white or black and the child sizes are either blue or pink.

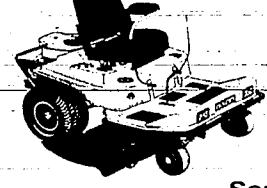

A label inside the helmet reads, "Manufactured by Rand International, and MADE IN CHINA." Writing on the packaging reads, "RANDY," "L.A. Cruiser" and "Meets CPSC & ASTM Standards 78."

Officials: Nuke scientist sought jobs elsewhere

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Federal prosecutors say a scientist accused of security breaches at one of the nation's foremost nuclear labs once sought employment in seven different countries and had contact with a Chinese nuclear institution.

In a document released Thursday, prosecutor said former Los Alamos National Laboratory scientist Wen Ho Lee sought jobs in Australia, France, Germany, Hong Kong, Singapore, Switzerland and Taiwan in 1993, "at or about the time" of the first offenses charged.

The document also says testimony at Lee's detention hearing last December "established that the defendant had made contact with representatives of the People's Republic of China's Institute of Applied Physics and Computational Mathematics, which has been involved in the design and computational simulation of nuclear weapons."

A federal judge last month ordered prosecutors to list by Wednesday any nation that might be included in their allegations. Prosecutors said in the filing that they reserved the right to name other nations in the future.

The 60-year-old scientist, who is accused of transferring restricted data from secure to unsecure computers and computer tapes, could face life in prison if convicted.

For that to happen, the government must prove Lee downloaded files with intent to harm the United States and to secure an advantage for a foreign nation. Prosecutors want to argue to the jury that Lee can be found guilty even if he had not decided on a particular foreign nation.

FDA approves Prozac for some cases of PMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The popular anti-depressant Prozac now has a new use: to treat women suffering a severe form of premenstrual syndrome.

But if you use Prozac to treat this "premenstrual dysphoric disorder," don't call it Prozac — the manufacturer has come up with a new name, Sarafem, to catch women's attention.

It's the same drug, known chemically as fluoxetine, the Food and Drug Administration stressed. But the Sarafem version of Prozac comes with a brochure explaining PMDD and in 7-day doses packs to help women track use of the pills.

Premenstrual complaints range from breast tenderness and bloating to anxiety and mood swings. Occurring in the week before ovulation and menstruation each month, they affect 3 percent to 5 percent of women of childbearing age. But doctors say some who suffer very strong symptoms including depression and irritability, actually have PMDD, a more severe premenstrual syndrome.

Airline workers battle air rage

SAN FRANCISCO — Airline employees handed out leaflets and held demonstrations at airports around the world Thursday to demand that government and the industry do more to stop the rising incidents of "air rage" among passengers.

Unions representing flight attendants and ground crews declared a "day-of-action" against passengers whose misbehavior ranges from being noisy to becoming downright violent.

As recently as Tuesday, a Continental Airlines flight returned to Anchorage, Alaska, after a passenger was accused of throwing a can of beer at a flight attendant and biting a pilot on the arm.

"Airline workers have a right to come to work and go home in the same condition," Capt. Trevor Jensen said in Sydney, Australia, where staff from Qantas and Ansett airlines called for stronger measures to counter air rage.

The Transport Workers Federation, an umbrella organization for the unions, said air rage incidents increased from 1,132 in 1994 to 5,416 in 1997. The union also said U.S. air crews have reported a huge increase in unruly passengers, with more than 500 last year after just 66 in 1997.

To change those trends, the federation wants governments to sign an international convention that would close loopholes to ensure prosecution of air-rage offenders.

It also wants airlines and airport operators to provide training and restraint equipment, and to introduce coherent security policies.

Colorado board backs God in schools

DENVER — In a meeting that began with a prayer, the Colorado Board of Education voted Thursday to urge public schools to post the motto "In God we trust" on their walls.

With a 5-1 vote, the board passed a non-binding resolution to encourage "the appropriate display in schools and other public buildings of the national motto."

"How long can we remain a free nation if our youth don't have civic virtue?" asked board chairman Clair Orr, who initiated the resolution. "The words we pass on to our young can shape our destiny."

Nation in brief

NTSB says pilot error caused Kennedy crash

WASHINGTON — John F. Kennedy Jr. probably became disoriented in the night sky on his final flight, leading to the crash that killed him, his wife and her sister, federal investigators said Thursday in their final report on the accident.

Nearly a year after the son of the late president plummeted into the sea off Martha's Vineyard, Mass., the National Transportation Safety Board confirmed preliminary reports and suspicions held since the crash by concluding that pilot error was the probable cause of the July 16, 1999 accident.

Killed were Kennedy, 38, his wife, Carolyn Bessette Kennedy, 33, and her 34-year-old sister, Lauren Bessette.

Kennedy's piloting difficulties were likely to have been caused by "spatial disorientation," a problem when pilots lose track of the position and motion of their plane relative to the earth's surface, the report said.

FBI probes Japanese deal for internet service provider

NEW YORK — The FBI is raising national security concerns about a Japanese company's attempt to acquire a U.S. Internet service provider.

Tokyo-based NTT Communications, part of Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corp., said Thursday it had been approached by the FBI and the Justice Department about its planned purchase of Englewood, Colo.-based Verio Inc.

NTT was also told last week of an inquiry by the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States, a Treasury Department panel that reviews acquisitions of American companies by foreign entities.

NTT has offered $5.5 billion for Verio, which links to the Web more than 20 percent of the companies on Standard & Poor's 500 stock index. In telecommunications deals, the FBI has asked for assurances that only U.S. facilities be used to handle U.S. traffic.

Book: Mayor's father was in a shootout in 1960s

NEW YORK — A biography of Mayor Rudolph Giuliani claims several members of his family had ties to the mob and that his father fired a gun at a man during a Brooklyn shootout.

It also says the law-and-order mayor himself once slugged a guy who ogled his date.

The book, "Rudy: An Investigative Biography of Rudolph Giuliani," was written by Village Voice reporter Wayne Barrett and portions of it were printed in this week's Voice. Those portions, released Monday, said Giuliani's father, Harold, pleaded guilty and served 18 months in prison for holding up a milkman at gunpoint in the 1930s, a decade before his son was born.

Giuliani, who was a crime-busting federal prosecutor before he ran for mayor, has refused to comment on the book, but did say Tuesday that his father, who died in 1981, "was the finest man I ever knew... the most generous and kindest and most charitable man I ever knew." He also said his father's past did him harm.

Homeowners with money worries may qualify for low-interest loans

Local lender loosens its requirements for homeowners who need money now.

Have you been turned down for a loan? Do you need more than $10,000 for any reason? Are you paying more than 10% interest on any other loans or credit cards?

If you are a homeowner and answered "yes" to any of these questions, they can tell you over the phone and without obligation if you qualify.

High credit cards don't. Less than perfect credit? Self-employed? Late house payments? Financial problems? Medical bills? IRS issues? Bankruptcy? It doesn't matter!

If you are a homeowner with sufficient equity, there's an excellent chance you will qualify for a loan—usually within 48 hours.

You can find out over the phone—and free of charge—if you qualify. Stone Castle Home Loans is licensed by the Idaho Department of Finance. 1-800-479-4455, ext. 471

A new addition to MVRMC's award-winning landscaping, the Remembrance Rose Garden is a living symbol of the many contributions loved ones gave during their lifetimes. By providing an everlasting source of beauty, tranquility, and repose, the Rose Garden symbolizes MVRMC's and the residents of southern Idaho and northern Nevada. Designed by landscape artist Martha Carlson, the garden is filled with 250 roses, arbors, water features, paved walkways, seating areas, and statuary.

Man found guilty

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A federal jury found a millionaire guilty Thursday of arranging the murder of his ex-wife, the mother of six children including a set of quadruplets.

The verdict came hours after a man pleaded guilty in Florida to fatally shooting and stabbing Sheila Bellush on Nov. 7, 1997, in Sarasota, Fla., as her 2-year-old quadruplets played nearby. After entering the plea, Luis Del Toro Jr. sang a song in court asking for forgiveness.

The quadruplets, from Bellush's second marriage, were discovered unharmed in her house, two of them crawling in her blood.

Bellush's ex-husband, Allen Blackthorne, 45, was convicted of interstate conspiracy to commit murder-for-hire and interstate domestic violence. He faces a mandatory life sentence.

Blackthorne was the last of four people suspected in her slaying to be convicted.

Besides Del Toro pleading guilty and facing a mandatory life sentence, the man who hired him, his cousin Sammy Gonzales, has been sentenced to 19 years in prison.

Daniel Rocha, Blackthorne's golfing buddy and the man who asked Gonzales to find someone to kill or harm Bellush, is serving life in prison.

Testimony in Blackthorne's case began June 12 when Steve Bellush, the daughter of Blackthorne and his ex-wife, testified she discovered her mother's body in 1997 in her Sarasota home. She found her mother dead on the kitchen floor in a pool of blood. Sheila Bellush had been shot in the cheek and her throat had been slit.

We need more Canadas in this world of ours

If we ever add another holiday, we might think about one called, "Thank-Canada-for-Being-a-Good-Neighbor Day." A country could hardly have a better neighbor than Canada has been to us over the years. Have you seen any Maginot line up along our Northern border? The Canadian border is almost twice as long as our border with Mexico but we don't spend much of anything on guards trying to keep illegal Canadians from sneaking into the United States. Morley Safer and Peter Jennings are the only two I can think of who've let slip through.

was huge. We fought a two-year war with Mexico beginning in 1916 because they were sore after Texas and California left them and joined us. We're lucky we have only two countries and two oceans for neighbors. The new president of Mexico sounds too good to be true. He is determined to rout out corruption in politics and police administration. One of the first things we have to get strengthened over is his name. He is called Vicente Fox Quesada at one point in the newspaper but further down in the same story he's referred to as simply "Mr. Fox" or "President Fox."

I have asked a few usually unrelatable sources and they tell me that "Quesada" is his mother's family name and "Fox" is his father's. It is a Mexican custom for a man to use his mother's name for his own last name but using the father's, "Fox," is also acceptable.

Mexico has a ways to go before it is as trusted and as well-liked as Canada. Too many tourists return from a trip to Mexico with stories of having been robbed or otherwise ripped off. A television reporter friend of mine based in Los Angeles says that when he has to go to Tijuana, just across the border, with a camera crew, he takes along a combination body-guard and tour guide who does the driving.

Recently, he was there and the camera car was stopped by Tijuana police. The Mexican cop demanded to see the driver's license. The driver, who grew up in Mexico, held his license up against the car window so the cop could read it but did not wind down the window.

He finally cracked it open, slipped the cop a $20 bill and they were allowed to drive on. My friend said to the driver, "You didn't even wind down the window to let him look at your license."

"If you do that," the driver said, "they can make you pay anything they want because they've got your license and you want it back."

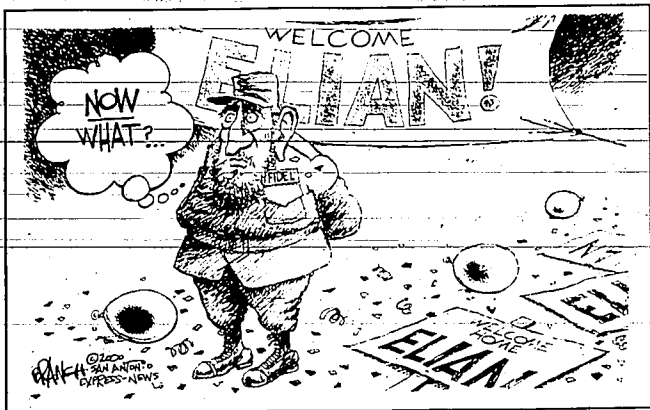

Almost everyone has a Mexican story like that. Almost no one has a Canadian story like that.

Vicente Fox - I'm going to go with that at the risk of offending Mother Quesada - is dedicated to reforming everything wrong with Mexico. The winner in the election was Mexico, us and the whole world if Fox keeps his promise.

"We have to work together to make Mexico the great country we have all dreamed of," the new president said after being elected.

The Mexican people can be proud of themselves for voting to join the world of the democracies. It would be nice for us to have another Canada to our south.

Got youths involved with park article.

Thank you for your skateboard park article. Yes, it is crucial to get the kids involved in the process of building a park. From concept, design, to fund-raising, the users of the park should be there at every step.

A skateboard park is not only a device to keep skaters off the streets, it is a means for free expression and creativity. With a place to call their own, skateboarders can practice tricks and encourage each other without being chased off by a property owner.

The skaters should step up and get involved in the process to ensure they get something that they can truly use and enjoy for a long time. I live in the Seattle area and enjoy many of the skate parks here (many of which were initiated and designed by skateboarders in cooperation with city leaders). I have seen a lot of respect for these parks with little or no vandalism. A skatepark in Twin Falls is a great chance for the local skateboarders to let their ideas blossom into an awesome spot for endless skating fun. JASON SOUTHWICK Brier, Wash.

Clinton has it coming

It is certainly fitting that finally, after serving out his term, we may truly see why the Fourth of July is so important. It took seven long years of revolution. A truly great man, a warrior, statesman and just plain super human being - George Washington. This nation rose up on today the strongest government in this world. We are ruled by laws, maybe too many, but nevertheless the only method that can endure.

Arkansas has filed suit against William Clinton to strip him of his license to practice law. In case you don't know this, no place on earth can this happen but in the United States of America. The laws of our land can and will work in spite of our Congress and politics. Our Congress impeached Bill Clinton, but our system of partisan and two-party system couldn't finish the job. Now a court of law, free of politics as it can be, should do the balance of the job. Presidents are not above the law. For future generations, conduct of personal life while president is as important. No commander-in-chief should be a draft-dodger, adulterer, lie under oath, pervert. These things are a symbol of each American voter. These are what the Fourth is - Independence Day - all men are created equal and have a right to a fair trial.

President Clinton only became our nation's leader because of laws he broke. In no other country could an individual that conducted his personal life before being elected would have gotten enough votes. He was selected by the least votes for any other in modern times. The Arkansas bar is made up of good lawyers; they surely will strip him of his license. This, for him, is trivial but for the people of America may be a new beginning. I hope so.

What you do every day is how you one day will be judged. The idea that an immoral lifestyle doesn't have a bearing on the duty of a president is asinine for sure.

AROUND THE VALLEY

Collision near TF sends four to hospital

TWIN FALLS - A Thursday afternoon crash south of Twin Falls sent four people to the hospital.

The two-vehicle collision happened at 3:30 p.m. when a Ford Explorer pulled onto Idaho Highway 74 in front of an oncoming pickup truck about 1/4 mile east of U.S. Highway 93, said Nancy Howell, a spokeswoman for the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office.

The driver of the pickup, 65-year-old James Shepard of Twin Falls, was taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, where he was listed in fair condition. Two passengers in Shepard's truck, Brian and Shirley Lane, were treated at Magic Valley Regional and released.

The driver of the Explorer, 27-year-old Tammy Adams of Twin Falls, was also treated and released from Magic Valley Regional. She was cited on a charge of inattentive driving, Howell said.

hospital establishes community health fund

TWIN FALLS - The Magic Valley Regional Medical Center has established a Community Health Improvement Fund designed to provide financial support for organizations working to improve Magic Valley residents' health.

The hospital will accept applications until July 17 for projects addressing one or more of the following community health priorities: substance abuse, cancer, disease, unintentional injuries, adolescent pregnancy, child abuse and violence prevention.

Applicants must demonstrate collaboration and coordination with other community organizations, including Magic Valley Regional. Preference will be given to projects supporting several communities.

To request an application packet call 737-2807 or write to the hospital's Marketing Office, Attn: Rhonda Bright, B.O. Box 409, Twin Falls, Idaho, 83303.

Ketchum looks for a new housing director

KETCHUM - The Ketchum Housing Commission and the Blaine County Housing Authority are looking for a new director.

Former director Steve Anspaugh resigned last month for personal reasons.

The job will pay about $40,000 plus benefits, he said.

"We're looking for somebody that is qualified in housing administration, working with developers and other government entities," Ketchum Mayor Chris Smith said.

"It takes a diversified person to fill that job in dealing with politicians, committees, people, developers and bankers."

The director would help the commission and housing authority make recommendations to the City Council on various projects and community housing.

For more information, call Coles at 726-3841 or City Administrator Jim Jaquet at 726-3841.

Twin Falls Public Library celebrates computers

TWIN FALLS - The Twin Falls Public Library is celebrating the arrival of new public computers with an open house from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. Thursday at the library.

With a grant from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, the library bought computers for a new lab, which is equipped with four new computers with Internet connections, a server, printer and various software.

Trainers from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation will be on hand to demonstrate how to use the computers.

Gooding School Board sets meeting for today

GOODING - The School Board will meet at 7 a.m. today at the school district administration office, 507 Idaho St.

The meeting is open to the public.

Something to remember

Sam Hutchins attaches a plaque to a statue in a reflecting pool at the Remembrance Rose Garden in front of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. A fun run will be held Saturday with the proceeds to be used to maintain the garden.

Rose garden will pay tribute to deceased

By Jay Howser
The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - When runners participate in the county hospital's fun run and walk this year, they'll get more than just a T-shirt, refreshments and a good workout. They'll get a garden.

The entry fees and other proceeds from the Saturday event will go toward the upkeep of a new memorial rose garden at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

The hospital's foundation will dedicate the newly completed garden Saturday with a ribbon-cutting ceremony.

Officials have been working on the project for more than a year and they say they're pleased with the way it turned out.

"It's been a very fun project. The community has been behind it since we started planning it for personal reasons."

Run for the Roses

Magic Valley Regional's Fun Run and Walk starts at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Cancer Center entrance at 650 Addison Ave. in Twin Falls. Registration begins at 9 a.m.

Entry fees on race day are $18 for adults, $10 for children 12 and under and $48 for a family pass. This fee covers entry in the race, a post-run party, refreshments and a commemorative T-shirt. Proceeds from this year's event will be used to help build and maintain the hospital's new Remembrance Rose Garden.

For more information, call Barbara Miciaik at 737-2481 or 737-2480.

and have gotten behind it," said Barbara Miciaik, the foundation's annual program coordinator. "The garden is meant as a place of respite for everyone to enjoy and it has turned out far better than any of us ever imagined." The garden features 250 roses - more than 25 varieties - as well as arbors, water fountains, paved walkways, seating areas and statues.

All the features - every rose, statue and even the bricks in the pathways - are available to memorialize loved ones who have died, Miciaik said. Family members and friends can make donations to the foundation to sponsor a specific feature of the garden and a plaque of permanent marble will be placed there in memory of the deceased.

Those who make such contributions can choose how they would like the foundation to use it or they can leave it undesignated, Miciaik said. If left undesignated, the foundation would use the funds where the need is the greatest.

Miciaik said the memorials will serve as a living reminder of the contributions loved ones have made in their lifetimes. It will also create a tranquil atmosphere where people can peacefully reflect and perhaps escape some of life's pressures.

Landscape designer Martha Carlson, the creative force behind the garden, said she wanted to create a place where people could come to get away from the often stressful hospital environment. She said she designed the garden to maximize the number and accessibility of the roses but still leave enough room for people to take a stroll.

Miciaik said the garden will look much different in coming years as the plants mature and the trellises are transformed into "living pieces of art." She said it's already a great improvement over the previous landscaping.

In keeping with the garden theme, the hospital is bringing in

Party of the future?

Candidate says political group holds potential

By Michael Journe
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The Constitution Party's candidate for president knows it's unlikely he'll be taking the oath of office in January.

But Howard Phillips said he hopes his campaign is the start of great things for his party, formally called the U.S. Taxpayers Party.

"I predict the Republican Party will come apart at the seams in the next 10 years," Phillips said Thursday morning to a group of a half dozen Twin Falls supporters and a few reporters at the Weston

Howard Phillips

Convention Center. "We're laying the groundwork for a new majority party, which we will be winning that 10 years."

With a handful of his party's candidates running for various offices in Idaho, including District 23 Idaho House candidate Chuck Chapman, Phillips said his party's conservative stances and claims of strict interpretation of the U.S. Constitution for formulating policy make it a natural heir to the GOP.

Phillips, who served as the director of the Office of Economic Opportunity during the Nixon administration, said the Democratic and Republican competition for middle of the road voters has turned them into the right and left wings of essentially the same party.

"They're in lock step," he said. "What we're looking at is who will succeed the big tent."

He said the GOP's presumptive presidential nominee George W. Bush is simply the lesser of two evils.

"The descent will be less rapid if I wish it were," Phillips said. "Democratic presidential hopeful Al Gore will take us over the cliff at 80 miles per hour. But the Republicans, respectable people that they are, will stay under the speed limit. But their driving the same direction."

A pro-life, isolationist, and gun rights advocate, Phillips attended the "Shovel Brigade" revolt against federal land management policies Monday and Tuesday in Jarbidge, Nev. Phillips said federal ownership of land is unconstitutional and should be stopped right away.

"I think God for the wall of resolve of the demonstrators at Jarbidge the other day," Phillips said.

He said the Shovel Brigade's resolve could turn the West into the Constitution Party's future political foundation.

"People here still remember freedom," he said.

Burley welcomes new call center

Business officially opens for operations

By Corren Hart
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY - Mayor Doug Manning on Thursday clipped the ribbon to the remodeled facility that will house Tele-Servicing Innovations, a new call center.

Tele-Servicing Innovations provides telemarketing services to companies nationwide. President Jeff Neiswanger said the community has given the operation a warm welcome.

"In October of 1999 we were looking at a site in Montana but Nancy Bergman of Bechtel BWXT said to hold on - we should check out Mini-Cassia," Neiswanger said. "We came out for a day to look at the community and in a half hour we knew Montana was a mistake."

"Todd (Christensen) had an incredible presentation lined up for us. He proved to us that we were making the right decision in coming to Mini-Cassia. Everything he said would happen did happen."

Neiswanger thanked Charlie Creason and Project Mutual Telephone for giving the office

Federal, local engineers agree on canyon road situation

The next step: Finding a permanent solution

BURLEY - The Federal Highway Administration agrees with local engineers about the apparent problem with Howell Canyon Road, which started deteriorating less than two years after it was paved.

The next step will be agreeing on a permanent solution.

When the $3.7 million road first showed signs of premature wear and tear last summer, federal engineers thought the problem was mainly frost heaves. J-U-B Engineers, hired by the atives. A geotechnical engineer for the highway administration, who visited the site recently, agreed with J-U-B's account, Lale said.

"So we're down to not arguing about the failure mechanism, just the extent of the repairs," said Stephen Freiburger, area manager for the Pocatello engineering firm.

Both sides have agreed on a temporary solution until an analysis determines a long-term solution. An initial chip seal need to be applied by the second week in August. That seal will prevent further deterioration over the winter, until the extent of each problem area can be determined.

The chip seal will cost $125,000 for asphalt and $34,000 for hauling and brooming, with $11,500 for an oversight team. That money goes to the Burley Highway District, which is supplying labor and materials for the project.

Lale said he was reluctant to spend $11,500 on additional manpower when a consultant would already oversee the project, but Freiburger said that money was for experts who were essential to making sure the project is done right.

Lale also questioned the degree of testing J-U-B was proposing, and whether the seal was being spent wisely.

While the condition of many sections of the road are visible, Freiburger said, other areas aren't as obvious. Extensive testing

Cassia rancher criticizes permit process

By Ruth Streeter
Times-News writer

BURLEY — An Oakley sheep rancher took issue with county procedure at Thursday night's Cassia County Planning and Zoning Commission meeting.

Don Pickett had submitted a letter to the county planning and zoning office, objecting to the commission's approval of a permit for a gravel pit on his property before deliberating on conditions for the pit.

A conditional-use hearing for Kloepper Concrete of Paul to develop a gravel pit near Oakley was held June 1. At their most recent meeting, commissioners approved a permit for the pit, at 500 W. 1600 S., on land owned by the Pickett Ranch and Sheep Co., and zoned for agricultural use.

Commission chairman David Gerratt said it's common procedure for the commission to approve a permit before establishing conditions. "If an application isn't going to be approved, there is no point in discussing conditions."

"That's how we see it and that's how we'll proceed tonight," Gerratt said.

Pickett asked whether that meant there was no room for comment.

Because the public hearing had already been held, Pickett could not comment. He did make occasional interjections and shake his head several times during the commissioners' deliberations.

At one point, commissioner Dale Pierce asked whether he could ask Pickett a question.

"Supposedly you're supposed to have all the evidence in front of you to be able to make a decision," county attorney Stephen Bywater said.

Pierce decided against asking Pickett any questions.

Commissioners approved conditions, with three exceptions, and modified the language in one condition, so Kloepper Concrete will not be required to put a fence up to protect against dumping solid waste or dead animals on the site.

In other county business, commissioners had not made a decision on Roger Crane's dairy application by The Times-News deadline. Crane is proposing an 800-milking cow dairy for a site 21 miles east of Burley.

Times-News writer Ruth Streeter can be reached at the Mini-Cassia Bureau at 677-4042.

Jerome scales back training for police

By Dixie Thomas Reale
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — In an effort to hold down spending, the Jerome City Council Wednesday decided against sending school resource officer Jay Gardner to training in Taho, Nev., on July 17-21.

The training, "Creating Safer Schools in the 21st Century," would have cost $1,247. It was the second half of a training program which Gardner attended in Oregon last year.

Money was available in the police department budget for training, but "there would not be much money left for anything else afterward," police commander Dean Larsen said.

The council considered the training request June 20, but decided to ask the school district to help pay for it. Gardner was told the district had used all its training money for the Drug Abuse Resistance Education program.

"The training seems expensive but it is being held at Taho at the height of the tourist season," Councilman Joe Skaug said. "That probably accounts for a lot of the cost."

City Administrator Jon Cecil said the Idaho Bureau of Disaster Services offers similar training in Twin Falls in August, covering many of the same topics, for free.

Mayor Dennis Moore said he preferred bringing less expensive training to the Magic Valley and having "opportunities shelve the expenses. He said Jerome should send six police officers as possible to the Twin Falls training.

In other business:

- The council hired Jamie Crozier as a library page at a rate of $6.28 per hour for 14 hours per week. Jamie Crozier is the niece of City Council member Jerry Crozier. The hire was delayed for two weeks so the city could consult with legal counsel concerning the legality of the hire.

The council deadlocked on a 2-2 vote on hiring Jamie Crozier, Charles Correll and Jerry Crozier voted yes, and Skaug and Marjorie Schmidt voted no. Moore broke the tie with a "yes" vote and said Jerry Crozier should abstain from voting on any issue related to Jamie Crozier's employment or supervision.

Skaug said he "liked to avoid hiring relatives or fellow church members if possible."

In a telephone interview Wednesday, Moore said legal counsel considered the relationship between Moore and niece a "third-level relationship" and the city could hire Jamie Crozier without a problem legally.

Jamie Crozier will be working in the summer reading program and will perform other library duties as needed.

The council will begin reviewing applications for the city administrator position. On July 19, Cecil is leaving the $45,000-per-year job to take a research position with Boise State University's Environmental Planning Center. Cecil, hired in December 1996, will step down July 31.

Group offers reward in slaying investigation

SPOKANE (AP) — A private organization that rewards citizens who aid crime investigators has offered $1,000 for information about a missing recreational vehicle believed to have been owned by serial killings defendant Robert L. Yates Jr.

The group Secret Witness is offering the reward for information that leads to contact with unidentified persons in Idaho, couple who reportedly sold Yates the RV a few years ago.

Secret Witness also will pay $1,000 to whoever owned the RV prior to Yates, provided they can correctly identify the vehicle.

Shortly after Yates' arrest April 18, Yates' neighbors told investigators that he had kept a 28-foot RV parked outside his home in Spokane's South Hill for about two months beginning in January 1999.

Investigators believe Yates sold or traded the RV to someone, and it eventually was towed to a lake north of Spokane. The RV remains missing.

Yates reportedly told one private investigator that he had purchased the RV from a Coeur d'Alene couple, police say.

Spokane County sheriff's detectives believe the previous owners could provide the RV's vehicle identification number.

The RV has a cab-over design, is light tan or white in color, and has stripes on each side. It was described as having dual rear wheels and a brown interior.

HAILEY — Blaine County commissioners will hear several property tax appeals when they meet at 8:45 a.m. Monday at the courthouse.

Commissioners will hear property tax appeals from William Prosch, Wells Fargo Bank and Greg and Cindy Mann. Equalization hearings will also be held.

The meeting is open to the public.

Colorado hantavirus cases set record

DENVER (AP) — A 49-year-old Grand County woman was being treated for hantavirus Tuesday, the sixth reported case of the disease in the state this year.

The six victims, including two who died, represent the state's highest annual total since the first cases were reported in 1985.

The Grand County victim, whose name was not released, had direct contact with mice and had been in and out of her barn, said Dr. Richard Hoffman, the state's chief medical officer.

Hantavirus is transmitted when humans inhale mist or dust from contaminated deer mouse feces, urine or saliva.

The latest victim was hospitalized in Kremmling and then moved to St. Anthony Central Hospital in Denver on July 1. She was later moved to University Hospital in Denver.

Hantavirus victims usually experience flu-like symptoms and can require hospitalization and ventilation within 24 hours.

The highest previous number of cases was five, in 1993 and 1998. Four died in 1993 and three died in 1998.

Since 1985, the state has recorded 26 hantavirus cases, 13 of them fatal.

Hoffman warned people to be careful to air out rural buildings before cleaning them if evidence of mice is present.

Law officers will assist each other

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Weber County and Missoula, Mont., have agreed to help each other with law enforcement.

In exchange for Weber sheriff's officers helping out Missoula, which expects about 400 members of the Hell's Angels Motorcycle Club to be in town for the annual convention the last week of July, Missoula officers will help out in Utah during the 2002 Olympics.

Weber County commissioners approved a mutual aid agreement between its sheriff's department and Missoula's police force, allowing 10 Ogden officers to assist with security at the convention in Missoula.

Law enforcement agencies from Boise, Salt Lake City and Seattle also have agreed to help Missoula police.

"The Hell's Angels convention is not something you'd want to take your family to," said Weber County Sheriff Brad Slater.

"Even with the size of the convention area is a little sketchy because they're loosely organized and don't communicate those details to local law enforcement in advance. We've asked (Missoula) for a 12-hour notice if they find they need us sooner than anticipated."

ing might not be necessary, but it was better to overestimate than underestimate. "Anything this testing does is give us the assurance we're getting the right fix," Burley Highway District Commissioner Gaylon Smoyer said.

Freiburger said his plan could save up to $500,000 in asphalt down the road.

Lale said he supported attempts to save money in the long run, but he said he was not convinced the extensive testing was necessary.

Freiburger agreed, however, to look for ways to bring the cost down.

Once the highway administration gets the proposal on Monday, it will be another week before it can authorize the Burley Highway District to spend money on the chip seal. The highway district will be reimbursed for the work.

Lale said the highway administration typically has a 30-day turnaround for distributing money, and he said he was "fairly confident" a reimbursement would work the same way.

Dick Smith, the attorney representing the Burley Highway District, asked Lale to verify that.

Other concerns about the road — such as drainage, sloping, and effects on the watershed — had been brought up at a previous meeting with county and federal officials.

Those issues will be a part of this project, but J-U-B has been focusing on the pavement issue because that was what the firm was hired for, Freiburger said.

The call center is expected to employ about 100 people by the end of September.

Idaho hunting logs of the rich and famous goes on auction block

KAMIAH (AP) — One of the state's most highly acclaimed hunting preserves, more widely known to hunting enthusiasts on the East Coast than in the West, soon will sell to the highest bidder.

The secluded Flying B Ranch, a 4,200-acre hunting preserve six miles south of Kamiah, and its 120-acre bird firm and executive jet hangar will go to "absolute" auction Tuesday at noon.

"An absolute auction means the seller will accept the highest bid, no matter what the final dollar amount."

The Flying B Ranch, a hunting and outdoor resort endorsed by the trendy outdoor retailer Crvis, has developed a national reputation for its mixed bag of upland wingshooting and trout fishing since its 1987 inception.

The permanent staff of six to eight employees includes an Olympic gold medal shooting instructor and a trained European-style chef.

Guests also can learn a few tips in the ranch's wingshooting and fly-fishing schools, which are designed for all skill levels.

Every facet of the resort's operation will auction. The selling price includes 4,200 acres, the main lodge and all of its furnishings, the bird farm, the airport hangar, more than 25 trained German short-hair and English pointers and kennels, seven specially equipped hunting vehicles, an 11-station sporting clay range, a big-game outfitters business, 50 head of horses and mules, game trailers and a number of outbuildings.

The three main properties — the ranch, the bird farm and the aircraft hangar — will be offered separately, but could be sold as a whole.

The Flying B opened in 1982 when Bob Burlingame, 66, a California industrialist, bought the Robinson Ranch. Burlingame began establishing the ranch as a preserve in 1987. His investment now totals more than $7 million.

He operates Burlingame Industries, based in southern California. The company's most prominent division is Eagle Roofing Products.

Kevin Burlingame, 34, is the elder Burlingame's son and runs the ranch. He said the family decided sell the Flying B in order to focus on other businesses.

"There is just too much to do at home and we just don't use it enough," he said.

Burlingame said the auction will provide a definite selling date, rather than waiting months or years for a real-estate agent to find the right buyer.

"We want to make sure there can be a seamless transition before the bird hunting season," he said.

The National Auction Group Inc. of Gadsden, Ala., already has set up an office on the ranch to prepare for Tuesday's bidding.

Wildfire continues to burn in Utah

Crews gain control of two, while a third rages on Thursday

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Three thousand acres have burned in Tooele County and fire officials were not predicting containment of the fire that started Wednesday afternoon.

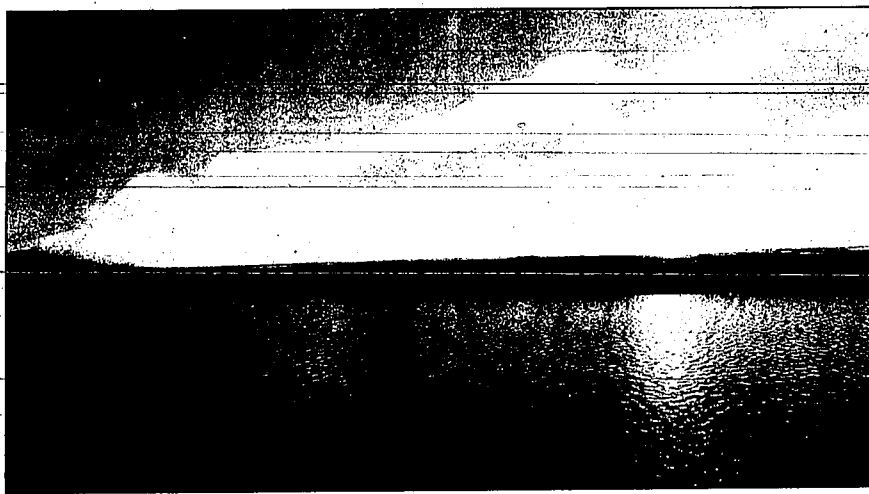

About 120 firefighters were working the blaze Thursday and more engines were ordered, according to Kathy Jo Pollock, spokeswoman for the Emergency Fire Center.

Pollock said the fire was still very active and because of its complexity an incident command team was being called in.

The fire had threatened a number of television relay towers on the ridgeline of the Oquirrh Mountains and crews focused efforts on saving those towers.

Fires in Logan and Millcreek Canyon east of Salt Lake City were contained early Thursday morning. Both fires started after midnight. Families were evacuated in both cases but allowed back in their homes Thursday. The cause of the fires is unknown.

Two houses in the Salt Lake suburb of Sandy were destroyed when a fire started in a nearby field. The fire was reported about 4 p.m. Wednesday. Crews had controlled the fire by Wednesday evening. It was believed to be started by a discarded cigarette.

Smoke from Tooele County, Utah, drifts across a pond in Bountiful late Wednesday. The fire was burning out of control Thursday.

A three-acre brush fire briefly threatened some homes in Bountiful north of Salt Lake City. The fire was controlled in about an hour.

A 200-acre timber fire was also burning east of Hardwar Ranch in Rock Canyon, 60 miles north of Salt Lake City. The fire threatened a number of cabins in the Wasatch National Forest.

Firefighters on the blaze included crews who had fought the Red Butte Canyon fire east of Salt Lake City on Monday and Tuesday.

Idaho youths face charges following fire

POCATELLO (AP) — Three youths have been charged following a 385-acre blaze that threatened more than 12 homes last week.

The blaze burned Thursday along Pocatello Creek Road but was controlled the same day.

Bannock County sheriff's deputies on Wednesday charged two juveniles and 19-year-old Robert Ellis with damage to public lands by use of fireworks.

"They were playing down in a pit," Detective Andy Thomas said. "Probably the safest place they could be playing, considering the circumstances. One of them threw a highest firework into the air and the wind caught it."

The charge is a misdemeanor and carries the usual penalty of six months in jail and a $300 fine.

The three boys and their parents could be held responsible for fire suppression costs.

With two air tankers, a helicopter, bulldozer, 20 support vehicles and more than 100 firefighters called in, the price tag is estimated at more than $50,000.

"These planes cost $5,000 to $6,000 every time they take off," Bureau of Land Management spokesman David Howell said. "But if we hadn't called them in, the fire would have gotten worse. The air tankers cost us about $26,000 alone, but it was worth it to save people's homes."

Blazes continue to vex firefighters in Colorado; winds whip up flames

CRAIG, Colo. (AP) — Western Colorado was under a "red flag" warning Thursday, meaning fire danger remained high as three fires continued burning in tinder-dry conditions.

Nearly 16,000 acres have been scorched by the fires in Western Colorado.

About 9,500 acres have burned in and around the Dinosaur National Monument near the Green River, about 175 miles from the Utah border and 110 miles north of Grand Junction.

Another fire was burning on 1,100 acres near Rangely, about 55 miles northwest of Grand Junction, and a third was burning on 4,100 acres near the town of Gateway, about 35 miles southwest of Grand Junction.

All three fires are in remote areas and the only known home threatened was a vacation cabin in the northeast corner of the Rangely fire. It was being protected by slurry drops Wednesday, Rocky Mountain Incident Management Team spokesman Dennis Seville said.

Winds gusting up to 40 miles per hour caused the fires to spread Wednesday. Fire crews at the Dinosaur fire had to be pulled off the north side of the fire after it made strong runs down steep terrain.

The Gateway fire made a mile-and-a-half run at one point, said spokesman Justin Dombrowski.

Communication problems also slowed the fight. Some crews fighting the Dinosaur fire were removed after their radios failed in the hilly terrain. Cell phones do not work in the area and new radio repeaters were expected to be in place by Thursday to solve the problem, Seville said.

"The terrain out there is extremely steep and canyon-like. We're actually having to ferry some of the crew to their destination by helicopter," said Lynn Barclay, spokeswoman with the Craig Interagency Dispatch center.

A few families near the Rangely fire were evacuated Wednesday just in case the fire reached nearby, above-ground oil pipes and a pump station.

Meanwhile the Canyon of Lodore campground, separated from the Dinosaur fire by the Green River, has reopened, Seville said.

Dry drought-like conditions were expected to continue in the corner of Colorado that borders Wyoming and Utah.

Bigfoot tracker checks coastal prints

PORT ANGELES, Wash. (AP) — Two researchers looking into reports of curious tracks on the Lower Hoh Indian Reservation have come to different conclusions about whether they might have been caused by Bigfoot.

Dr. Jeffrey Meldrum, assistant professor of anatomy and biology at Idaho State University, concluded there was not enough factual evidence to continue an investigation. The other, self-proclaimed Bigfoot tracker Cliff Crook, believes the evidence is so great he is headed back to gather more data.

Crook, who was on the scene a day before Meldrum, said he found many clues leading him to believe the tracks were created by a Bigfoot, or Sasquatch, a large, hairy creature that has been reported around the world but is most closely identified with the Pacific Northwest.

"I went expecting to find bear tracks, but on June 30, my initial investigation led me to believe this was not a bear or a human prankster. This was for sure a Bigfoot," Crook told the Peninsula Daily News.

On June 30, he added one more track from the Lower Hoh Reservation, along the Pacific Coast in extreme northwest Washington state.

Yugoslavia moves to prolong Milosevic rule

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Yugoslavia's parliament approved constitutional changes Thursday that will let President Slobodan Milosevic seek re-election when his term expires next year — a move designed to perpetuate the strongman's hold on power.

The parliament also passed changes in how its upper house is elected. Those changes appear likely to downgrade the position of Montenegro, Serbia's smaller, pro-Western partner in the two-republic Yugoslav federation, by making it harder for Montenegrin deputies to be elected.

Montenegro's reformist leadership has already taken several steps toward independence from Yugoslavia, and soon after Thursday's vote, Montenegrin leader indicating that the amendments could quicken the pace.

Although Milosevic's popularity is believed to have plummeted since last year's NATO bombing of Yugoslavia, he is still in full control of the media and state institutions, diminishing opposition chances for a fair election race.

Milosevic has been indicted by an international war crimes tribunal for atrocities committed during his crackdown in Serbia's Kosovo province, which triggered last year's 78-day NATO bombing campaign. Staying in power would be Milosevic's best guarantee against prosecution.

Sierra Leone government embraces diamond ban

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone — Sierra Leone's government on Thursday welcomed a U.N. Security Council-imposed ban on the sale of diamonds mined by a rebel group that has killed tens of thousands of civilians and mutilated many more.

The rebels, who control lucrative diamond fields in northeastern Sierra Leone, reignited the West African nation's eight-year civil war in early May, just as U.N. peacekeepers began deploying near the diamond fields.

Minister of Mineral Resources, Mohammed Swarray-Deen, called the Security Council's ban a "two-pronged happiness" that would both limit the rebels' ability to finance arms purchases and help stem smuggling that has depleted government coffers for years.

While the rebels of the Revolutionary United Front are profiting from the war, President Ahmed Tejan Kabbah's government reeters on the verge of collapse in a country the United Nations says has the world's worst average income, life expectancy and overall quality of life. In some cases, smuggling takes place openly in the streets.

Vatican reaffirms ban on communion for some

VATICAN CITY — Seeking to end debate on the issue, the Vatican on Thursday strongly reaffirmed its prohibition on divorced-and-remarried Roman Catholics receiving communion.

The authoritative declaration restated that the only exception would be couples who refrain from sexual relations.

Catholics in the United States,

World in brief

Germany and elsewhere have been praising the Vatican to loosen the restriction.

The Vatican said it issued the declaration because some theologians "using a variety of arguments" had claimed there were loopholes in church rules that would allow those who divorce and remarry to receive communion.

But the statement said the restriction is based on "divine law" and cannot be modified.

Polish woman rides nude through city in tax protest

WARSAW, Poland — A self-styled Lady Godiva was arrested for public lewdness Thursday in Krakow after she rode nude on horseback through the city's scenic Old Town district to protest high taxes.

Three other people also were arrested for organizing a demonstration at the tax office in Krakow under the slogan "Lady Godiva is back," police spokesman Robert Szyllo said.

The protest marked the seventh anniversary of the introduction of a value-added tax in Poland.

According to legend, the original Lady Godiva rode naked through the English town of Coventry in the 11th century to persuade her husband, the earl of Mercia, to reduce heavy taxes.

Longer pub opening hours go into effect in Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland — They were celebrating Thursday in Ireland — and doing it even longer.

Extended pub opening hours that went into effect mean alcohol can be served until 12:30 a.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays and up to 11:30 p.m. Mondays to Wednesdays. Previously, all pubs had to stop serving at 11 p.m.

The Sunday closing time remains 11 p.m., but the so-called "holy hour," when pubs shut from 2-4 p.m. Sundays, will be abolished.

The act also includes a crackdown on under-age drinking by abolishing the "reasonable grounds" defense that allowed pub operators to avoid prosecution.

British prime minister's son arrested for drunkenness

LONDON — Police arrested Prime Minister Tony Blair's 16-year-old son after finding him drunk and vomiting in central London — a major embarrassment for Blair, who just days earlier vowed to toughen laws against drunken hooligans.

Euan Blair was celebrating the end of school exams when he was arrested Wednesday night, according to the prime minister's spokesman, Alastair Campbell.

Though police did not suggest Euan's behavior constituted any form of hooliganism, the thing was unfortunate, coming on the heels of his father's unpopular proposal to issue on-the-spot fines to violent drunks.

Anxiety grips workers at Chernobyl

CHERNOBYL, Ukraine (AP) — Andriy Shauman angrily pointed to a switch hidden under a sealed metal lid on the reactor control panel at Chernobyl, the atomic plant whose name is synonymous with nuclear disaster.

"This is the one that will shut down the reactor. For $2,000, I'll let anyone push it when the time comes," Shauman, Chernobyl's deputy chief engineer, joked bitterly.

When that time comes on Dec. 15, environmental activists, governments and ordinary people the world over will be relieved. But for the 5,800 workers at Chernobyl, it will be a day of mourning. "Who would be glad to see his piece of bread snatched away?" Shauman snapped.

On Dec. 15, it will take only a few seconds for graphite rods to slide into the core of Chernobyl's only functioning reactor and stop its work — nearly 15 years after the 1986 explosion that contaminated broad swaths of Ukraine, Russia and Belarus and spewed a radioactive cloud across Europe.

Chernobyl sits inside a badly contaminated "exclusion zone," with a radius of 19 miles, where

A Ukrainian nuclear operator checks readings last month at the Chernobyl nuclear power station. He and another 5,800 workers will be out of a job in December when the plant is shut down.

Many of the workers came here from Moscow and Soviet nuclear research centers when Chernobyl was built in the 1970s. It was a time of optimism for the nuclear energy industry, and Chernobyl became a place of pride.

But the 1986 accident changed all that. The disaster is believed to have killed at least 8,000 people, most from radiation-related diseases, and damaged the health of an estimated 3.4 million people in Ukraine alone.

But it didn't convince the Soviet Union to close the plant. Nor has independent Ukraine been eager to shut it down; it has closed only one reactor so far. Another was disabled by a fire in 1991, and now only reactor No. 3 is operating.

Only after years of high-level international pressure did Ukrainian President Leonid Kuchma announce last month that the plant would close for good in December.

On Wednesday, representatives of 40 donor nations meeting in Berlin drummed up enough pledges to cover almost the entire cost of repairing the shelter, estimated at $768 million.

road signs point to abandoned villages overgrown with grass. In Pripjat, the town that housed plant workers before the explosion, thieves have emptied the desolate high-rises of everything, including wall-plugs and faucets. A visit to the plant feels like stepping back a decade or two.

In the control room, white-coated operators with radiation counters pinned to their breast pockets watch flickering light displays that look like something from an old science fiction film.

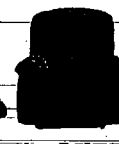

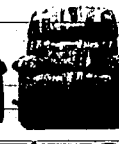

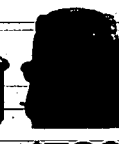

Outside, workers flock to the dining room, past a large bust of Soviet founder Vladimir Lenin.

TWIN FALLS — Think Whitney Houston.

The pop diva's 1997 TV musical version of "Cinderella" put the venerable moral tale of redemption back on the A-list for theater companies worldwide, and Twin Falls' Junior Musical Playhouse will pick up the story next week.

The production is scheduled for Tuesday through July 15 in the College of Southern Idaho auditorium, featuring the classic ballad "My Little Corner" and seven other R&H tunes.

"Annie" is the stepmother. Twin Falls High School student Amy Chandler, while Jackie Baxter, who was Miss Hannigan in last summer's JUMP Company production of "Annie," is the stepmother.

The director is Kate McNamara, an officer and board member with both the Dilettantes of Magic Valley and the Magic Valley Little Theater, who has been active acting and directing in local community and church theater. Lori Henson, long a fixture in musical theater locally, is the musical director for the production.

Vaughn Harris is the Prince, Tahiri Sitcock the stepsister Portia, Charisse Strader the stepsister Joy, Brandon Hunt is the King, Jill Vaughn the Queen, Collette Clark is the Fairy Godmother, Ryan Jones the Steward, Jason Bevan the Chef, Lance Cox the Herald and Kris Norton the Minister.

Social climber

Cinderella is arguably the most persistent lady in modern literature.

Charles Perrault, the 17th century Parisian lawyer who conjured her up along with Little Red Riding Hood, Sleeping Beauty, Puss in Boots and Bluebeard in his first Mother Goose compendium of fairy tales, actually borrowed the character. More than 200 versions of the story have been recorded in Europe alone, and the first showed up in China in the 10th century.

In all these tales, Cinderella (actually a corruption of the German words for "cinder maiden"), is the youngest daughter treated badly by her jealous stepmother and older stepsisters, but there's one twist — father in some versions of the yarn. There's always supernatural intervention, although sometimes it's the girl's dead mother or an animal agent sent by her, and there's always a breathtaking reversal of fortune brought about by a prince who rescues and marries her.

Perrault, though, added the trade mark touches: the fairy godmother and the glass slipper, props on which Walt Disney built his classic 1950 animated film, Disney's "Cinderella," replete with beautiful prince, Jackosus and Gus-Gus, and the malleable cat, Lucifer, has been seen, by conservative estimate, by a billion people in 50 years.

Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein got into the act with a 1957 TV musical, their first, starring 21-year-old Julie Andrews, and Rodgers did it again in 1965 with Leslie Ann Warren in the title role.

Kids Arts in the Park turns 10 on Saturday

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — More than 500 kids from preschool through ninth grade will spend Saturday in visual and performing arts classes at the 10th annual Kids Art in the Park in City Park.

Forty local artists will provide the instruction. Mark Farmer will help kids create bent-willow animals based on archeological finds of the Fremont people. Chris Erasier will teach contemporary painting with watercolors, and Barb Hurlbut will introduce students to basic calligraphy.

Performing arts will include rope tricks by Dan Mink, pantomime and theater with Jesse Williams, and band instruments with Dennis Bortz, who teaches music at O'Leary Junior High School.

If you go ...

What: The Magic Valley Arts Council will present the 10th annual Kids Art in the Park.
Where: Twin Falls City Park.
When: Saturday, 8:45 a.m.-1 p.m.
How much: The cost for kids' registration is $1, although all spots were full as of Thursday. The music and entertainment, scheduled for noon in the bandshell, is free, and there will be food for sale.

Everybody will attend a performance by Will Hornyak, a professional storyteller, at the nearby Twin Falls Public Library. Myths, fables, fairy and folktales from around the world will be presented to local youngsters.

"For some kids, this is their first exploration of fine art," said Karen Fothergill, who is organizing the event and founded it a decade ago.

The classes for Saturday were all filled by pre-registration, but youngsters who haven't signed up already can turn up between 8:30 a.m. to see whether there are any cancellations.

At noon, there will be a show in the bandshell featuring rope tricks, singing and theater. Disk jockey Amber Gold will once the entertainment, featuring Mink; Music Express, a local children's singing group, and scenes from next week's Junior Musical Playhouse production of "Cinderella." Hot dogs, soft drinks and a variety of snack foods will be available for those who want to have lunch and watch the show.

Kimberly celebrates Good Neighbor Days this weekend

The Times-News

KIMBERLY — If you can't find something to amuse you at Good Neighbor Days, you're exceptionally drumpy.

Kimberlites organize lawn-mower racing, baby-crawling contests — even the odd cowpie toss — at the beginning of every summer. Mixed in with food and crafts and parades, it's like River City, Iowa, with a sense of humor.

Take the mower racing — the riding kind, not your push mower. Organized by a group of ministers, it's becoming easily the most anticipated attraction of GND.

Please see KIMBERLY, Page C2

Bruce Willis, as successful image consultant, takes stock in 'The Kid'

Combined wire services

Movies playing in south-central Idaho this weekend. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times and Knight Ridder Newspapers reviewers. Ratings by the Motion Picture Association of America are: (G) for general audiences; (PG) parental guidance urged, because of material possibly unsuitable for children; (PG-13) parents are strongly cautioned to give guidance for attendance of children younger than 13; (R) restricted, younger than 17, admitted only with parent or adult guardian; (NC-17) no one younger than 17 admitted.

'The Adventures of Rocky and Bullwinkle'
 • Once the cartoon prologue is over, things become painfully funny in Frostbite Falls, as this live-action-meets-animation comedy of the ridiculous. PG-13 Starts with a flying squirrel and a talking mouse devolves into self-conscious campiness and thuddingly awful gags. PG (cartoon violence)

'Big Momma's House'
 Flip Wilson may be dead, but the comic's spirit is hanging out in this new Martin Lawrence comedy. Mostly, you're going to laugh, even while the movie lades on the lard. The pretend plot puts an FBI agent (Lawrence) undercover in hefty-billed PG-13 language, violence, sexual situations. 1 hour, 39 minutes.

'Chicken Run'
 After experiencing this amazing animated adventure come from England's Aardman

In the live-action comedy, Disney's 'The Kid,' Bruce Willis stars as Russ Durlitz, a successful image consultant whose life is suddenly turned upside down when he magically meets Rusty, played by Spencer Breslin — Russ as an 8-year-old kid.

Animation, you'll not only believe chickens can fly, you'll believe they can cry and be shy. Inspired by "The Great Escape" and some biblical stories ("Let my chickens go!"), it has the plucky Ginger (voice of Julia Sawalha) hatching a plot to fly the coop with help from a cocky Rhode Island Red (Mel Gibson). Beautifully designed and animated in the style called stop-motion, it's an instant classic. Rated G; one chicken evocation, 1 hour, 25 minutes.

'Fantasia 2000'
 It's taken almost 60 years to fulfill Walt Disney's wish that his experimental marriage of animation and classical music themes be an ongoing, evolving project. But, technological evolution doesn't always make for improvement. Of the seven new segments ("Sorcerer's Apprentice" is the lone holdover), three are wonderful, two are entertaining, one forgettable, and one, featuring whales flying to 'Pines of Rome,' looks like an expensive screensaver. The original run was in the supersized IMAX format; now it's moved to regular theaters. Rated G; nothing objectionable; 1 hour, 15 minutes.

'Frequency'
 Depressed Queens cop Jim Caviezel ("The Thin Red Line") hooks up his long-dead dad's old ham radio, and gets the old man himself (Dennis Quaid) on the line. After preventing the elder's impending demise, they hook up to catch a serial killer who has done them both serious damage. A good script and economical direction, along with old-fashioned wish fulfillment — what if we could again take a dead parent? — help overcome a lingering feeling we've thus far on "The Twilight Zone." Rated PG-13; violence. 1 hour, 57 minutes.

WEEKEND Movies

'Boys and Girls'
A romantic comedy with more complexity and depth than we might expect from a summer release: A spontaneous Claire Forlani and a serious Freddie Prinze Jr. students at the University of California, Berkeley, fall into such a deep friendship it imperils the possibility of love. The couple's neurotic tendencies are underlined by their even more neurotic suitcases, Jason Biggs and Amanda Detmer, respectively. Self-consciousness threatens to escalate into emotional paralysis in this very modern romance. (134. PG for sexual content.)

'Gladiator'
We march back into the Colosseum for the first sword-and-sandal ep in nearly 40 years, and it looks like nothing has changed. We do get a better class of fighter; Russell Crowe actually does some acting as a Roman general who runs afoul of a power-hungry emperor (Joaquin Phoenix) and ends up enslaved and fighting for his life. But there are no Spartacus-style epiphanies in director Ridley Scott's genre revival, just time-tested conventions and the arena action we came for, now digitalized and in Dolby. Rated R; 2 hours, 34 minutes.

'One In 60 Seconds'
The annual summer fireworks display from producer Jerry Bruckheimer ("Armageddon," "Con Air") is 1974 drive-in movie and puts Nicolas Cage in the driver's seat. He's a retired car thief who takes on one last job, stealing 50 cars in 12 hours, to save his recently estranged brother (Giovanni Ribisi). Leaving aside anything like logic, the film is competently made and forgotten in less than 60 seconds. The big chase, saved until the end, is so conventional it's hard to watch it as anything more than a gloriously demented and exuberant. Rated PG-13; violence, language. 1 hour, 56 minutes.

'Me, Myself & Irene'
The Brothers Farrelly, Peter and Bobby, attempt to top their own "There's Something About Mary" tastelessness in this interminably funny comedy about a traumatized state trooper named Charlie (Jim Carrey) whose inner rage erupts into a second personality called Hank, as nasty as Charlie is nice. Renee Zellweger is a victim on the run who finds herself coping with his mood swings, but she's not very funny, and most of the gags strain to achieve the desired gas-snort level. At this point, if elding a deadly dildo probably isn't enough to shock a cloistered nun. Rated R; language, nudity, offensiveness for the fun of it. 1 hour, 57 minutes.

'Misson Impossible 2'
The sequel to the 1996 action film, based on the popular 1960s television series, dispenises with the core idea of a spy team whose members all have a special talent. All it needs is a grinning Tom Cruise, who, does it all, from donning remarkable disguises to high-rise breaking and entering to martial arts fighting. The signature action sequences and shootouts of director John Woo remind us we're watching a movie, all the rest is superior marketing. Rated PG-13; violence. 2 hours, 4 minutes.

'My Dog Skip'
An appealingly old-fashioned memoir of a boy and his dog, set in the early 1940s, benefits from a believable, funny performance by Frankie Muniz, star of TV's

'Malcolm in the Middle.' Kids will love the warm, funny, while parents will find it difficult to choke back tears — in a way they probably thought died with 'Old Yeller.' Rated PG; mild profanity, pet in peril. 1 hour, 35 minutes.

'The Patriot'
An epic look at America's war for independence that is more serious than skilful than might be expected from the team that gave the world 'Independence Day.' But the benefits of star Mel Gibson's charisma aside, its attempt to follow a broad canvas with an intimate family story is not completely successful. (238. R, for strong war violence.)

'The Perfect Storm'
George Clooney stars as a desperate, driven swordfisherman who takes his boat into the middle of the century's most infamous storm, Wolfgang Petersen's visually impressive, vertiginous extravaganza based on the 1997 best-seller. Alas, the screenplay doesn't match the special effects, and it takes a whole long while to sail out to that really crummy weather. PG-13 (violence at sea, profanity, adult themes)

'Road Trip'
A blatant attempt to replicate the gross-out goofiness of 'American Pie,' sending fresh-faced Brocke Meyer and three pals on a mission to retrieve an incriminating videotape before his lifelong girlfriend sees it. Disgusting and depraved behavior ensues, but none of it inspires us to set comic standards aside and go with it. Prominently advertised Tom Green, MTV's provocateur of poo-poo, is the film's narrator, but he barely appears on-screen. Plus, along with the gratuitous nudity, qualifies it as an actual exploitation movie. Rated R; sexual situations, nudity, language. 1 hour, 35 minutes.

'Scary Movie'
Director Keenan Ivory Wayans brings his satiric touch to this spoof of the thriller genre. Carmen Electra heads the cast.

'Shaft'
The theme music, the black leather coats, the take-no-crap attitude. It's all back, and better, in John Singleton's tough, entertaining resurrection of the black private dick who's a hit with all the chicks, played, as he should be, by Samuel L. Jackson. Unlike the first movie, whose racial politics were restricted to the idea of a black hero who didn't kowtow to whites, this film is all about race, with Shaft society's police force to go vigilante on a smug racist (Christian Bale) who wantonly beats a black man to death. Rated R; violence, language. 1 hour, 37 minutes.

'Shanghai Noon'
It turns out all the West really needed to get wild with Jackie Chan, who, with co-star Owen Wilson, turns this by-the-numbers action comedy into a lighthearted delight. Chan is a member of the Imperial Guard sent to Nevada to rescue a kidnapped princess. Wilson is an innert outlaw with whom he reluctantly, and comically, teams Chan's self-choreographed fights and stunts are only part of the attraction: his charm, coupled with his real chemistry with the verbose Wilson, makes this one of the summer's more pleasant surprises. Rated PG-13; language.

'The Skulls'
As part of the initiation rite of a secret college society that will stop at nothing to preserve its privileges, pledges are locked in a cage and compelled to tell their deepest secrets: 'What's the worse thing you've ever done?' demands confided to Joshua Jackson of sneaky rich kid Paul Walker. 'Be in this awful movie!' we expect him to answer, but he lies, of course. If George W. Bush, a member of the teen thriller, worried this movie could raise unpleasant questions, he can breathe easy: It's so stupid, no one could take it seriously. Rated PG-13; violence, language. 1 hour, 51 minutes.

'Tina!' E'
Don Bluth and Gary Goldman ('The Secret of NIMH,' 'Anastasia') aim for an audience that can not exist with this animated sci-fi adventure that is too overwhelming for little kids, too silly for grown-ups and too cartoony for the teenage boys who are the primary audience for space junk. Matt Damon provides the voice of a reluctant and dashing young hero who is mankind's last hope, but the more the movie tries to be hip the more desperate it seems. Rated PG; violence. 1 hour, 35 minutes.

'The Virgin Suicides'
Though Jeffrey Eugenides' acclaimed, dreamlike novel exploring the myth-like mystery of five teenage Catholic sisters who commit suicide in 1970s Grosse Pointe, Mich., would seem an unlikely candidate to become a movie, it has been successfully brought to screen by first-time director Sofia Coppola, daughter of Francis. At the center of the story is Lux (Kristen Dunst), sultriest of the Lisbon girls, who have been effectively rendered unattainable by their strict, frightened parents (James Woods and Kathleen Turner). That makes the object of every teenage boy's affections, with unthinkable results. Rated R; violence.

Weight-loss scheme brings response downpour

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to ask you what you thought of the idea of a weight-loss shower for someone who had just shed 30 pounds. The "catch" to this shower was that the guests bringing monetary gifts so the hostess could buy a new wardrobe to fit her smaller figure.

At first glance the idea seemed tacky to me. Just us with any other type of shower, it is inappropriate to specify a monetary gift in the invitation. Should someone inquire about gift ideas, the host could indicate that the honoree is trying to save up for a new wardrobe. However, there are many other suitable gifts for someone who has just lost weight. For example, guests could be asked to bring a copy of their favorite low-calorie recipes to be compiled into a scrapbook. Losing unwanted pounds is no easy feat. If it were so easy, we would not have the obesity problems that we have in our society. I see it as an accomplishment to be proud of. Throwing someone a shower for this reason is certainly

DEAR ABBY: I have gained about 50 pounds in the past four years. Should I throw a party to give my friends the "opportunity" to "shower" me with money to buy new fit clothes? It would be an amount to exactly the same thing. There are already too many forced gift-giving occasions thrust upon us. My answer is: "No way. Boycott the shower!"

PAT AND SASSY
IN OKLAHOMA CITY

DEAR ABBY: "Twiggy" doesn't need new clothes wet. Fifteen pounds isn't enough. Her letter takes the cake! I know she said she lost 30 pounds, but isn't it pretty clear that the other 15 pounds were her muscles?

With Weight Watchers, I've lost 23, but all my new clothes were paid for by me.

"Pat" in our group lost 75, and didn't ask for a "clothing drive." But have a shower? That depends - I'd forget the shower and keep my friends.

- DOT PETERSON,
MILLSBORO, DELE.

DEAR DOT: Congrats on a message very well said. I think you've hit the nail on the head!

DEAR ABBY: I'd tell the person who was throwing the weight-loss shower that for each 30 pounds

It hardly ever rains in Costa Rica in the summertime - not

If you believe one should try to marry someone of higher social standing, you're "hypergamous." To so believe is a common convention in the western world. At least in part. Mostly, people have thought well of women who try to marry up, not so well of men who make that effort.

Human bread bakery say a good place to put the rising dough is on the TV.

Q. In what army do all the soldiers sleep with their arms around one another?

A. If you mean Army ants, make that legs. If you don't mean Army ants, send more details.

"Pandemonium," if you go back to the Latin, means "a place for all demons."

Skywatchers say most of the good stuff is best seen in the southern hemisphere. In itemizing galaxies of clusters, nebulae and galaxias, astronomers list 46 fascinating sights in skies from below the equator and 24 from above.

Q. Have you noticed all the tapes for tape players are the color of rain?

A. Indeed, tapes are just plastic strips embedded with metallic particles. Most widely used metallic particle is iron oxide. Otherwise known as rust.

Q. What's wrong with Costa Rica?

A. Hardly anything, if you don't mind a little rain. Annual averages, 70 inches in the highlands, up to 200 inches along the coasts. Locals measure it in feet, not inches. Say 15 feet of rain per year.

The mother of Chief Justice John Marshall was buried under a headstone with this inscription: "Marry Randolph Keith, born 1737, so good, not brilliant, useful, not ornamental, and the mother of fifteen children."

Scorpio - time to adjust

IF JULY 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are introspective, sensitive, loyal, at times display remarkable psychic ability. You have been disappointed more than once in love life. The future in this area will be brighter. Pisces, Virgo persons play major roles in your life - could have the letters, initials in names; G, Y. Possible change of residence, marital status in August. October your money month.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Move into the game of life, your game. Focus on promotion, production, ways of increasing income potential. Capricorn, Cancer persons play roles.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Recent universal appeal. See situations in their entirety. Avoid anything that is narrow, including narrow-mindedness. Plan ahead your journey.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Question answered. Make fresh start in new direction. A new kind of love is on the way - be receptive. Leo, Aquarius persons will be leading roles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Focus on cooperative efforts, possible involvement in city hall politics. If single, you could encounter future soul mate. Home activities build dominate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Versatility, emphasis on versatility, humor. Some people comment, "You should do a stand-up comedy act." Take this under advisement. Be willing to take chance romance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You'll be tested, challenged. Collect and organize facts, figures. Scorpio wants to become a...if you so permit. You'll deal with world-traveler Sagittarius.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be ready for change, variety of experiences. Take note of impressions, dreams. Get into rhythm of your own life, despite jealous comments by others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Attention revolves around domestic issues, money, ability to make adjustment to your life as it is. Taurus individual claims to have all the answers. Sibil.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Return from journey will prove exciting. Don't prejudge people. Aries individual is drawn to you, will make no secret of it. Protect self in emotional clinches.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get down to business at hand. Set example for those who wonder, "What am I doing here?" Some will view you as role model. Libran encourages, "Stick to it."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Look beyond the immediate. Predict your future and make it come true. Focus on love relationship, travel, advertising, publishing. Your unorthodox methods will catch on.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Review accounting methods. Unless careful, you could come up short. New love will be part of scenario. Make fresh start in different direction. Leo plays role.

BCI basketball: West is on the move, tournament may be next

By Kevin Hall Times-News writer TWIN FALLS - In its first dash against the South, the West showed its best. Capital High teammates Michelle Hensing and Rebecca Fales combined for 25 points, and a tenacious double team of Jerome post Kendra West limited the Boise Valley team run away with a stunning 61-45 win. "They've got a great team," said Jerome High School and South coach Michelle Skyles. "They're really well-balanced. They've got great height, quickness and outside shooters... for that game, they had the complete package. It was the first loss in two summers for the two-time defending champion, South squad at the annual Idaho Girls' BCI Basketball Tournament, held Thursday through Saturday at the College of Southern Idaho campus. In other first-round action Thursday, the West capped a perfect first day at 30 with a 83-34 rout of the North and a 78-48 whipping of the East. The South finished Day 1 at 2-1 with a late 68-57 win over the East after opening with a 58-52 victory over the North. The East, meanwhile, enters today's action at 1-2 after beating the winless North 70-57. Considered the teams to beat at this year's tournament, which features 48 of the state's best girls' high school basketball players, both clubs will scrum again today at 6:30 p.m. If the West wins the rematch and Saturday's championship, the BCI trophy would return to Boise after a two-year absence. "We'd like to get it back," said West coach Kier Strickler, who also coaches at Boise High School. "I think these girls have a little pride in it. It'll be an interesting run." This weekend could also mark the end of the tournament at CSI, which has hosted the summer all-star classic since 1998, said state BCI director Jim Pankratz. "Albertson College has put a bid in for it," said Pankratz, who's from the Boise area. "That's attractive simply because of its proximity, and I can keep my finger on things. They also have a wonderful facility up there." After long being staged in Boise, the tournament moved to the Southern Idaho gymnasium as a result of Pankratz's long relationship with former CSI women's basketball coach Joel Bate, who formerly coached at Bishop Kelly High School. Venus aligns with finals berth Venus Williams, left, is congratulated by her sister, Serena, after their women's singles semifinal showdown on Centre Court at Wimbledon Thursday. Venus won the match 6-4, 7-6 (7-3) to reach the finals.

The Associated Press WIMBLEDON, England - Advantage, big sister Venus Williams won the battle for family supremacy Thursday, beating kid sister Serena 6-2, 7-6 (3) to reach her first Wimbledon final. Williams will face defending champion Lindsay Davenport on Saturday's all-American championship match. Davenport swept unseeded 17-year-old Jelena Dokic of Australia 6-4, 6-2 in just 51 minutes. The men's semifinals are set for today, with top-seeded and six-time champion Pete Sampras facing qualifier Vladimir Volchokov, and No. 2 Andre Agassi playing No. 12 Patrick Rafter. It will be the first women's final between two Americans since 1990, when Martina Navratilova beat Zina Garrison for her record-breaking ninth singles title. The Williams vs. Williams encounter was one of the most eagerly anticipated Wimbledon matches in recent years, and the first time since 1984 that two sisters had played each other so late in a Grand Slam tournament. --But it failed to live up to expectations, turning into a straight-set affair dominated by errors rather than spectacular winners. It even led to questions about a possible family plan to make sure Venus won, an idea quickly denied by the winner-and-her father-coach. The fifth-seeded Venus appeared much less tentative than No. 8 Serena, who made repeated mistakes off her forehand, lost the last six points of the tiebreaker and finished the match with her sixth double fault. She cried on the sideline. After Serena plunked her second serve into the net on match point, Venus showed no sign of happiness. With a glum expression on her face, she walked slowly to the net, shook hands with Serena, then put her right arm around her sister's shoulder. As the sisters walked off court, Venus gave a brief, halfhearted wave-to-the-crowd. They left without doing the traditional curtsy to the Royal Box. The 18-year-old Serena was in

Thursday at Wimbledon Seeded winners: Women: No. 2 Lindsay Davenport, No. 5 Venus Williams. Unseeded losers: Women: No. 8 Serena Williams to No. 5 Venus Williams. Stat of the Day: Serena Williams won only 2 of 11 break points. In the sixth, the Cowboys broke open a 55 tied game off clutch hitting. Scott Spritzer led off the inning with a double, Shaun Pohlman arrived at first on a bunt and Kelsey McInnis came up with a huge single to drive two runs home. Sean Bernhard relieved Tyler Warburton in the seventh, earning the save retiring three straight batters. Warburton, who held Bingham to just four hits through six innings, got the win. "Tyler threw a great game for us," Federico said. Twin Falls 27, Bingham 2 Twin Falls jumped out early with a 19-run first inning and Please see COWBOYS, Page D2

Armstrong begins to fall behind

The Associated Press TOURS, France - Defending champion Lance Armstrong dropped almost six minutes behind the leaders at the Tour de France in Thursday's sprint finish, but he's not worried. He's saving his energy for the mountains. "The race has changed a little, but I think the favorites stay the same and I'm feeling good," Armstrong said. "Tomorrow will be even harder. But I'm trying to conserve and wait for the mountains." Dutch champion Leon van Bon won Thursday's sixth stage as the race again was settled by a furious sprint, while the favorites chose not to push hard. France's Laurent Jalabert, who like Armstrong finished almost eight minutes behind the breakaway sprinters, lost his overall leader's yellow jersey. Italy's Alberto Elli of Deutsche Telekom Thursday's stage: A 123-mile race from the medieval town of Vittel to the city of Tours. Stage winner: Dutch champion Leon van Bon won the race with a sprint finish in 4 hours, 28 minutes, 6 seconds. Armstrong watch: Defending champion Lance Armstrong finished 7:49 behind the leaders in 33rd place. Today's stage: Stage 7 covers 126 miles from Tours to Limoges.

Thursday at the Tour The Pyrenees. The riders then head toward the Alps. Thursday's mostly flat stage, with only one slow climb, covered 123 miles, rolling through Brittany toward Tours, passing by medieval fortress towns and two 15th-century castles. After 87 miles, 12 riders made an audacious breakaway, which they maintained the rest of the way. At one stage, they led by nearly 13 minutes. Armstrong said the early attack was a surprise. "The attack wasn't something we'd planned for," he said. "I don't think Once had either. It was a hard day with heavy roads and a little wind."

Colts' Lane found dead

The Associated Press CHARLOTTE, N.C. - Indianapolis Colts running back Fred Lane, whose brushtush with the law increased as his once solid career faded, was found shot to death Thursday in his Charlotte home. Lane's wife, Deidra, was being questioned and "it does appear to be a case of domestic violence," police spokesman Keith Bridges said. "Nothing should be read into it at this time," Bridges said. "What now we're looking into what took place prior to the shooting." Lane, 24, was pronounced dead at 3:15 p.m. at the house in a never neighborhood south of town, Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police Capt. Chuck Johnson said. "The shooting was a homicide," Johnson said. "At this point there's no arrest, there's no nothing. It's just an investigation." A 7-day-old infant was with Deidra Lane at the police station. Their house was decorated with pink balloons and a pink stork. The Lane's also have a 5-year-old son. Lane was traded by Carolina to Indianapolis in April. The Colts released a statement that said the team was "shocked and saddened" by news of Lane's death. Lane's father, Fred Lane Sr., said his son and daughter-in-law had been having difficulties recently. Lane had spent the past couple of weeks at the family home in Nashville, Tenn., but visited Charlotte briefly a week ago, his father said. He had left Tennessee on a flight Charlotte about two hours before he was shot, the elder Lane said. Deidra Lane filed a complaint against her husband in March, one source said. A necktie argument, causing her to fall. She did not press charges. Lane also had a case pending against him related to his Feb. 3 arrest in Tennessee. A grand jury in Jackson, Tenn., indicted him Monday on the misdemeanor drug charges, but prosecutors dropped weapons charges against him, saying there wasn't enough evidence to support it.

close behind. Sterling had a 81-79-160, as did Jenn Robinson. First flight net winner was Pamela Cole with a 63-66-129, followed by Rockne (65-67-132). Jeanette Johnson took the second flight gross with an 87-88-175, and Judy Culler was second with a 85-89-177. Val Wardle was low net in the second flight (65-71-136), with runner-up honors going to Kiki Tidwell and her 64-75-139.

In the third flight it was Louisa Munsee (81-96-177) over Marilyn Lees (95-94-189) on the gross side, and Margaret Hunter (68-62-130) edging Debbie Hunter (66-67-133) for low net.

Young golfers play five holes at Candleridge

TWIN FALLS — Austin McRoberts and Blake Fischer tied with matching 25s and Jaci Lancaster's 30 led the golfing on Wednesday as local 8- and 9-year-olds played five-hole rounds of golf in an Idaho Junior Golf Association event at Candleridge Golf Course.

Conner Lee had a 28, good for third in the boys' 8-year-old competition, while Erick Bean recorded a 29. Hannah McNeely fired a 35 for second place among the girls' 8-9, with Jill Feldhusen third with a 40.

The next JGA tournament locally is Monday at Pleasant Valley Golf Course in Kimberly.

American Legion Baseball

BUHL — Buhl and Twin Falls split a pair of Class A American Legion "Baseball" games on Thursday, but the Tribe took the game that counted.

Jeff Walker was 3-for-3 with three RBIs, Seth Mathews was 2-for-3 with three RBIs and Josh Prince had a three-run double in the second to blow the doors open in a 13-0 rout. Nolan Rietkirk got the win throwing into the fourth frame.

In the nightcap, Keegan Sievers homered in the second inning and Carl Blackwood was 2-for-4 as the Cowboys capitalized on eight walks by Buhl pitchers to grind out some revenge. Sonny Thornbrow was 3-for-4 and Prince homered for Buhl.

The game was managed by Buhl's Wood River on Wednesday and by Wood River on Cowboys starter Gabe Hurt.

"Hurt threw really well. He threw hard and mixed his pitches," said Buhl coach Les Cline. "I was really impressed with the way Coach (Matt) Rusmussen got his kids ready to play after that thumping they took."

Buhl (18-6 overall, 9-2 in conference) plays at Wood River on Saturday, and hosts Idaho Falls Monday in a doubleheader starting at 6 p.m. Only the first game of the Wood River twin bill counts toward conference standings; both Monday games do.

Bertman leaving LSU — if 'Smoke' gets job

BATON ROUGE, La. — LSU baseball coach Skip Bertman will retire after the 2001 season if the school can get Louisiana-Monroe coach Ray "Smoke" Laval to replace him.

Bertman met Wednesday with Laval and LSU athletic director Joe Dean about Laval's possible interest in the job.

"We're trying to hire Smoke as an administrative assistant for next season, then have him take over as coach in 2001," Bertman said. Laval said he wants the job, but declined additional comment.

Bertman's record at LSU is 826-308-2 since 1984 with five national championships since 1991, including the 2000 College World Series title over Stanford last month.

Laval, an assistant to Bertman from 1984-1993, has a 241-159 record at Louisiana-Monroe, with three NCAA regional appearances, including this year.

Phillis's friend guilty of reckless driving

CHARLOTTE — Charlotte Hornets guard David Wesley was convicted of reckless driving, but acquitted Thursday of racing with teammate Bobby Phillis in the moments before Phillis was killed in a head-on collision six months ago.

Mecklenburg County District Judge Fritz Mercer said enough reasons exist to doubt the existence of the reckless driving charge against Phillis. Phillis died July 12 that he had to find Wesley innocent of misdemeanor "spontaneous" speed competition.

Wesley, 29, was given a 30-day suspended sentence for reckless driving, fined $250 plus court costs and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service within the next 60 days. Wesley's attorneys said he would be willing to make a public service announcement about safe driving.

Clark hired as Miami's basketball coach

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — Perry Clark, who led Tulane to seven postseason tournaments in 11 years, was picked Thursday as the new coach at Miami, where a renewed program is just getting used to NCAA berth.

Miami athletic director Paul Dee and the school's Board of Trustees gave final approval Tuesday to hiring Clark as Leonard Hamilton's successor. Hamilton left Miami last month to join the NBA's Washington Wizards. Clark, 48, was expected to sign a five-year contract worth $750,000 a year, but school officials didn't release the contract terms.

Civil rights leaders question boxing bribes

NEWARK, N.J. — Two civil rights leaders on Thursday questioned why charges have not been brought against boxing promoters who testified they paid bribes for favors from the IBF.

Martin Luther King III and the Rev. Al Sharpton spoke outside the federal courthouse where IBF founder Robert W. Lee has been on trial on racketeering charges since mid-April. Sharpton acknowledged they were concerned about statements made by two major promoters, Bob Arum and Cedric Kushner, who testified last month about their roles in $100,000 payoffs to the IBF.

Unlike other key witnesses, they testified without immunity. Arum said he did not seek it; Kushner said prosecutors refused his request.

NCAA reprimands Cyclones hoops coach

INDIANAPOLIS — The NCAA reprimanded Iowa State coach Larry Eustachy on Thursday for his temper tantrum at the end of the Cyclones' Midwest Region Final loss to Michigan State.

The Division I Men's Basketball Committee also recommended additional sanctions against Eustachy if he violates rules of conduct in the future. Players tried to hold Eustachy back in the game, but he tore past them to confront officials Curtis Shaw, Frank Basone and Lamie Dixon.

Dixon called a technical on the coach, who grew angry, pushing players away and approaching Basone. A second technical was called, sending Eustachy to the locker room.

'Bulldog' cut by Dodgers, calls it quits

LOS ANGELES — Orel Hershiser, waived by the Los Angeles Dodgers last week after one of the worst outings of his career, announced Thursday that he is retiring.

The 1986 NL Cy Young winner won World Series MVP with the Dodgers. Hershiser struggled after rejoining the club as a free agent last winter. His ERA was 13.14 in 10 appearances, including six starts, but totaled just 24 2/3 innings.

Utah's coach denies next year will be his last behind bench of Jazz

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah Jazz coach Jerry Sloan, the longest tenured coach in the NBA, denied he is planning to retire after next season.

But I'm healthy and I still feel good — to retire at this stage would be pretty blunt. Last season, Jazz forward Karl Malone said that both Sloan and John Stockton were planning to retire after the 2000-01 NBA season.

owner Larry Miller immediately said they knew nothing of Sloan retiring, and they expressed confidence Sloan would keep coaching beyond next season.

time, however, Sloan elected not to sign an extension. "They were going to renew it, but I thought it would be hard for both of us to be in position to say 'yes' or 'no'."

year-old point guard John Stockton has decided to retire after the coming season.

Sloan said: "I mean, that's about as exciting as it gets, isn't it? To play basketball and be competitive every day. I can't think of anything better."

Super Stocks make second tour stop

The Times News

TWIN FALLS — Declo Super Stock driver Clint Kidd will try to repeat his main event victory of May 20 when the Intermountain Super Stocks make their second of three season appearances Saturday at Magic Valley Speedway.

Also on the schedule will be the Grand National Sportsman class — racing for the seventh of eight consecutive weekends — and the NAPA Auto Parts Pony Stocks.

A field of 19 cars showed up for the late model class of racers in May, and promoter Steve York said he expects about the same number for Saturday, with possibly a few surprises.

"It appears that Rick Lynch is going to take a shot, and rumor has it that three-time track champion Eddy McKean will be taking a shot," York said. "Otherwise, I think we'll have 18 or 19 cars. And it's the last tuneup for the NAPA 150."

York added that Kidd will be racing as will Brett Thompson and Boise's Kenny Rich.

"It ought to be a really good group of cars," York said.

One wild card in the field may be Pocatello's Jeff Flynn. The hot-headed Flynn could make his season debut Saturday for the Super Stocks after serving a five-race suspension for unsportsmanlike conduct.

Zan Sharp, president of the Southern Auto Racing Association, the governing body for the class, said Flynn will probably be in the pits.

"He's served his suspension, and he was fined $1,000," Sharp said.

The Budweiser Grand National Sportsman class returns once again with seven separate drivers having taken home wins. Vying for his first-ever track title, season-long points leader Jeffrey Meads continues his stronghold for first with a 34-point lead over defending class champion Dale Miles.

The NAPA Auto Parts Pony Stocks will return after being away for a week from the 1/3-mile oval.

Currently, seven points separate four drivers — David Caldwell Jr., Mike Prara, Alan Larson and Gene Goodfellow — for first place in the class.

ON THE SCHEDULE

PROFILE

Jeff Burton

Jeff Burton won his first career restrictor-plate race Saturday at Daytona International Speedway. It was Burton's 13th career victory and second this season.

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

At Daytona International Speedway on July 1, Jeff Burton broke through another barrier on his way to superstardom. Before the Pepsi 400, Burton, one of two racing brothers, had never won at either of NASCAR's "restrictor-plate tracks," Daytona and Talladega.

By so doing, Burton became the season's fifth two-time winner, having won the rain-shortened event at Las Vegas in March. He also became the first driver from Jack Roush's five-car team to win twice this year.

Hometown: South Boston, Va.
Car: No. 99 Exide Batteries Ford Taurus, owned by Jack Roush
Crew chief: Frank Stoddard
Career statistics: 206 starts, 13 wins, 65 top-five finishes, 91 top-10 finishes, 1 pole, $16,276,877 in earnings
First: Start (July 11, 1993, at New Hampshire), Pole (Aug. 16, 1996, at Michigan), Victory (April 6, 1997, at Texas)

Is experience more important at restrictor-plate races? "I think it is and, unfortunately, the only way to get experience is to get beat a lot, and I sure have made more wrong moves in restrictor-plate races than I've made right moves. The best I've ever done in a restrictor-plate race from start to finish was tonight, and I believe that's because I've done a lot of wrong things. That's the only way I know how to learn, unfortunately. Is do it the wrong way first and learn from that or watch somebody else do it wrong and learn from that."

What does it take to win a championship?
"We put every bit of effort we know how to put into winning the championship. The best way we know to do that is to win as many races as possible. We have not done a good job this year and we have not been as reliable as we need to be at times, and we haven't been as competitive as we need to be at times. The last six weeks have been a tremendous struggle for us. We care about points. We want to win the championship. I don't question the point structure because you have to build and position your team around the point structure, and if we aren't as competitive as we need to be, or reliable as we need to be, or if I'm getting us in too many wrecks to win the championship, then we need to fix those things."

Aqua Vie increases domestic presence

KETCHUM - Aqua Vie Beverage Corp. Thursday issued an update of its domestic and international marketing and distribution during the past two weeks.

"The last 14 days have witnessed a broadening of our base of operations and the establishment of a critical foundation in several markets," said Thomas Gillespie, president and chief executive officer. He reported these highlights:

- In New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, Aqua Vie has expanded to more than 3,000 accounts, recently becoming a beverage of choice at Rockaway Beach, a heavily populated summer resort and recreation area.
- Advertising of Aqua Vie continues in New York on The Howard Stern Show, as well as on Hispanic Radio 105.9 FM - to coincide with expansion of distribution to ethnic markets - throughout July and August.

- In the Midwest, Aqua Vie said it is working with distributor Harris Brands to expand retail availability of the product in eastern Oklahoma through a major C-store chain, slated for the week of July 23.

- In Texas, Aqua Vie will be available the week of July 17 throughout about 150 Randalls Food Markets. Albertson's has committed to carry the product initially in about 50 stores in north Texas also beginning in late July, Aqua Vie said.

- With four new distributors this month in California and Nevada, Aqua Vie has made inroads into the California market, which historically represents nearly 30 percent of the domestic new-age beverage market, Aqua Vie said. The company is negotiating with more major distributors in the San Francisco area and is hiring a California regional manager.

- Aqua Vie's distributor in Bermuda gave an initial order this week. The company's distributor in Curacao reports product is moving exceptionally well, and reorders are anticipated within the next 10 days following an initial order placed last week. Additional shipments of Aqua Vie Hydrators are anticipated within the next 30 days to Aruba, Martinique, Guadalupe and the Dominican Republic, with shipments of Aqua Vie to Puerto Rico slated for August.

- In Europe, Aqua Vie will be introduced into London and Paris in August in its shrink-labeled version, currently bottled in California. Installation of shrink-label equipment at Aqua Vie bottler Delfrims, in Valence, France, will be this fall, Aqua Vie said.

Restaurant claims Utah Jazz owner is a copycat

DENVER - A Lakewood restaurant that entertains diners with a 30-foot waterfall, cliff divers and staged gunfights is suing a Salt Lake City-area establishment it says is a close copy.

In a lawsuit filed in federal court, the owners and operators of Casa Bonita claim Utah Jazz owner Larry H. Miller "brazenly copied" them when he opened a restaurant in Murch called The Mayan.

The suit, which alleges violations of intellectual property, copyright law and unfair competition, seeks an injunction that would force The Mayan to shut down or remodel. It claims each restaurant has 30-foot waterfalls and a stage for divers as well as a children's puppet theater, animated characters, a video arcade and hidden trails and caves.

"We want the waterfall out and cliff divers out and the other stuff that makes The Mayan confusingly similar to ours," said Thomas Kirby, a Washington, D.C., attorney representing Casa Bonita. The restaurants also have identical ordering systems, similar menus and a number of other features, according to the suit, which claims Miller and his wife visited Casa Bonita before opening the Salt Lake restaurant.

"If Miller can take how we have identified ourselves and use it, then tourists will be confused and the distinctiveness of our identification will be blurred. That is what trademark law is all about," he said.

A message left for a Miller spokesman Thursday was not immediately returned. He reports

TF chamber honors florist, nurseryman

By Virginia S. Hutchins
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The greens have it.

A florist and a nurseryman will be in the spotlight today, as the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce honors its Small Business People of the Year.

Fox Floral co-owner Nona Mock won in the division for businesses with fewer than 10 employees, and Kimberly Nurseries - President - Dave Wright in the more-than-10 category.

The two were among 10 businesses nominated for their longevity, profitability and community involvement, among other factors.

Both of the winners have plenty of competition in town, chamber executive Kent Just said.

"They just thrive on competition. They meet it head-on and do real well," he said.

And both business people this week praised their employees as one of the keys to success.

"We've seen steady growth over the past several years," said Wright, giving credit to "an awful lot of hard work, and empowerment of good people as part of our team. We really push teamwork."

"Every single person has an opportunity every day to speak up about issues concerning them or ideas, as well as in regularly scheduled meetings," he said. And every day, some employee's idea improves Kimberly Nurseries' operation.

"Faith and trust in God, that's probably the single biggest thing in the success of the business, he added.

Wright is the fourth generation of leadership of the company his great-grandfather started in 1907.

Kimberly Nurseries, now on Twin Falls Addison Avenue East, was in Kimberly until 1967. Wright became president in 1993.

"Dave just continued right on with the traditions they've had as a family business and has continued to grow the company, provide employment," Just said.

"He personally and many other members of his staff are very active in the community. And he's just a good example of what a successful generational family business is all about."

That kind of business, Just said, is about being involved in the community, and about giving

Gas prices hamper retail sales

The Associated Press

NEW YORK - Soaring gas prices soaked up consumers' spare cash, while unseasonably cool weather dampened their enthusiasm for shorts and T-shirts, leaving many retailers with weaker-than-expected sales for the fourth month in a row.

The sluggish sales figures, released Thursday, also hinted at some slowing in consumer spending, resulting from the Federal Reserve's six interest-rate increases over the past year.

The disappointing June sales forced a number of retailers to revise their expectations for second-quarter earnings. Gap Inc. warned Thursday that its quarterly results would miss analysts' forecasts.

"When you fill up a tank of gas and you are out $30 or $40, it takes cash out of people's pockets that they would have spent at stores," said Kurt Barnard, who runs the consulting firm Barnard's Retail Trend Report in Upper Montclair, N.J.

The average cost of a gallon of regular unleaded gasoline is up nearly 70 cents from a year ago.

Demand for summer clothing was also down because of cooler-than-normal weather in some parts of the country.

Analysts said that spending was also somewhat tempered by the Fed's interest-rate hikes, which have started to slow overall economic growth as borrowing costs are increased.

For the second straight month, some less-seasonal stores, such as the discount chains Kmart and Target that sell an array of goods and don't rely heavily on clothing — reported disappointing numbers.

Even discount retailer Wal-Mart, which has outperformed much of the retail marketplace in recent years, turned in more modest numbers than expected.

Wal-Mart said its sales from stores open at least a year, so-called same-store sales, rose 4.8 percent in June compared with a year ago, while total sales rose 20.9 percent.

Sales of "hard goods" such as televisions and computers remain strong. Any slowdown in such purchases would indicate that the Fed's actions were really taking hold.

Sears, Roebuck & Co., for instance, said the sales of appliances and electronics were strong. RadioShack Corp., which sells electronic goods and accessories, reported stunning sales gains, as did home furnishings retailer Pier 1 Imports.

With sales generally disappointing in June, many merchants were forced to slash prices as they tried to clear out excess supply. Tom Ichniowski, an analyst at Bank of America Securities, estimates that inventories are running 2 to 3 percent above desired levels.

The discounts cut into profit margins, which will likely hurt earnings for the second quarter, which ends for most retailers in late July.

Head of investment unit to aim for higher profits

Knight Ridder News Service

CHARLOTTE, N.C. - The new head of global corporate and investment banking operations at Bank of America Corp. said the unit is well positioned to pump up profits at the Charlotte-based bank.

Ed Brown, who will take over Bank of America's global corporate and investment bank July 31, said the unit hasn't sold enough of its huge corporate client base services such as merger and acquisition advice, initial public offering underwriting and cash management.

"The key to our success is that we've got the clients, we've got the capital we need and we've got the breadth of capability," said Brown, 52.

Bank of America - which has bank branches in the Magic Valley - serves 30 million households and 2 million businesses in the United States, but it has yet to crack the big leagues of investment banking. Certain areas of the unit are lagging, but Brown plans to focus on improving all of the operation.

Brown has set such goals for himself less than a week after his predecessor, Michael Murray, resigned. Murray, a 31-year banking veteran, was a sur-

SUN VALLEY - Horizon Airlines representatives visited Sun Valley Thursday, reestablishing a visiting uncle bond with gifts.

A just-installed summer route between Boise and Sun Valley, provided connections to cities in California and elsewhere.

The promise of a Sun Valley-Boise connection for the upcoming winter - similar to the one tried last winter but without a request that Sun Valley Co. and others cover losses.

And the promise of faster, roomier,

24-seat planes - 11 h cheaper rates - to replace the 12 passenger ones that now fly into the valley.

It was an upbeat meeting compared with the meeting SkyWest Airlines officials held two months ago, which left locals wondering whether the airline would even be serving Sun Valley a few years down the road.

"We're not quitters," Horizon's director of marketing, Dan Russo, told a few dozen people representing Sun Valley Co., the Ketchum City Council, Sun Valley Stages, real estate companies and other businesses.

The summer route between Sun Valley and Boise was established following the success of a similar route that Horizon agreed to try last ski season. Horizon attempted the route provided that Sun Valley Resort and others cover any losses up to $100,000.

The route between Sun Valley and Boise actually lost money, but the airline recouped its losses and then some from passengers going on to Sun Jose, Calif., and other cities, Russo said.

Amtrak rolls out guarantee program

Unhappy riders will be compensated

WASHINGTON (AP) - Amtrak introduced a new logo and a new commitment to customer satisfaction Thursday, promising to compensate riders unhappy with their experience on America's national railway.

Amtrak President George Warrington said the company recognizes the need to counter its reputation for poor service.

"We're not tired, we're not worn out, we are not complacent," he said.

Amtrak also unveiled a new logo. Gone is the "pointless arrow" design that represented Amtrak since its inception in 1971.

The new design depicts three parallel lines winding their way to a horizon.

"There's a new look to Amtrak that allows Americans to take a new look at Amtrak," Schulz said.

Earlier this year, in a departure from past practices, Amtrak officials announced plans to add new passenger routes and expand into package delivery rather than make cuts to balance the books.

Amtrak also began a full-scale promotional campaign for new high-speed service beginning in the Northeast and spreading to other busy corridors throughout the nation.

But the much-awaited "Acela Express" high-speed service between Washington and Boston, originally scheduled to begin at the end of 1999, still is not rolling. Federal watchdogs warn continuing delays - the latest target is August - threaten Amtrak's ability to reach self-sufficiency by the end of 2002, as ordered by Congress.

The watchdogs also question how Amtrak is using the money it has. Phyllis Schaefer, associate director for transportation issues at the General Accounting Office, told a congressional panel in March that Amtrak is spending most of the federal tax dollars it gets to maintain equipment rather than invest in new equipment or better tracks.

Amtrak officials remain relentlessly upbeat about their ability to reach self-sufficiency and the prospect of attracting travelers frustrated with congestion on highways and in the air.

"This satisfaction guarantee represents our promise to travelers that Amtrak will treat you like a guest and make service excellence the central focus of everything we do," said Wisconsin Gov. Tommy Thompson, chairman of Amtrak's governing board.

Schulz said Amtrak prepared for the new guarantee program by training its 25,000 employees to take personal initiative and do what is necessary to solve guests' problems.

Stocks end mixed amid profit worries

NEW YORK (AP) - Stocks ended flat but mixed with mixed results Thursday. Most technology shares bounced back from a steep sell-off in the previous session, although worries about corporate earnings blued chips, including IBM.

self-off on Wednesday was overdone. The sector suffered after Saudi Arabia said it would begin pumping an additional 500,000 barrels of crude oil per day.

But concerns about corporate earnings lingered. With interest rates rising, investors have become worried that corporate profits will suffer, and in Wednesday's session, a flurry of profit warnings sent technology stocks dramatically lower.

Some weakness persisted on Thursday.

But a sell-off for a fourth straight session as investors worried that their second-quarter results will miss expectations. Merrill Lynch analyst Steve Milnovich noted those fears with a research note indicating that companies that do business with IBM are struggling, and may cut back on orders.

He thought the second quarter would be difficult for IBM but it appears there may be further risk to our numbers, though we are making no changes," Milnovich told clients. IBM fell $2.18 to $101.563.

Chamber

Kimberly Nurseries' biggest community project is the Nighttime Sky chili feed and fireworks display - held the day after Thanksgiving each year - to benefit local charity. Wright himself is a member of the Falls City Fire Commission and of the chamber's beautification committee, and the business sponsors or donates to "thousands of other non-profit activities throughout the year," Wright said.

Fox Floral, likewise, is a decades-old name with a solid reputation. Just said. The Main Avenue East flower and gift shop is one of the stronger businesses in the downtown core, he said.

Mock and her husband, Jerry, are the third owners of Fox Floral, established in 1947. They bought the business a decade ago and moved it to the present location nine years ago, she said. Every year, profits have grown.

"We've been very fortunate," Mock said. She credits her own "merciful client base" and her employees, five of whom have worked for the Mocks for the full decade of their ownership.

"I think that's phenomenal, and I would trust them with my life," she said.

Fox Floral Mock said puts a lot of effort into quality workmanship and top-notch service.

Many florists take phone orders - as Fox does - but some won't promise specific delivery times which Fox does - and some can't turn around the order as quickly as Mock's crew can, she said. Usually, her workers need an hour from the call to the delivery for small to medium orders.

"You don't even have to come into our business to get your product ordered and delivered," she said.

The business keeps Mock from attending many community functions herself, but she donates flowers to local schools and Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

"I try to work a lot with the chamber and donate a lot of things when they need something," she said.

Better salaries keep delinquencies down

WASHINGTON (AP) - The percentage of Americans behind on home mortgage payments during the first three months of the year declined to the lowest level in 28 years, an industry group reported Thursday.

Surging income and employment, combined with low interest rates, have helped consumers keep up with payments.

The delinquency rate in the January-March quarter, down from 3.82 percent in the fourth quarter of 1999 and 4.06 percent in the first three months of 1999, is the lowest since 1972, when it was 4.99 percent.

Delinquencies declined in all three categories - home mortgage loans that are 30 days, 60 days and 90 days or more past due - and for all three home mortgage types, conventional, insured by the Federal Housing Administration and insured by the Veterans Administration.

Delinquencies in the first quarter declined in three regions and increased in one. The fourth quarter of 1999 saw the seasonally adjusted rates fell to 1.45 percent from 3.48 percent in the Northeast - to 3.40 percent from 3.38 percent in the Midwest, and to 4.14 percent from 4.71 percent in the South. The delinquency rate in the West rose to 4.05 percent from 3.82 percent.

The delinquency survey covers 25 million home mortgage loans made by about 200 lenders, including banks, savings and loans, finance companies and insurance companies. No margin of error is given on the survey.

Horizon

Continued from E1. Waller said other destination ski resorts, such as Aspen, Vail, Telluride, Steamboat and Crested Butte in Colorado, have had revenue guarantee agreements of up to $1 million with airlines.

What is unusual is for the Sun Valley area to demonstrate such strong market demand in just one season, she said. "I'm thrilled. Other resort areas typically have had to spend many years offering and marketing a new service before enough market demand has been generated to run without revenue guarantees."

Russo said Horizon Airlines had planned to replace the 37-seat turboprops that it currently flies between Seattle and Sun Valley with 40-seat Dash Q400 planes this winter. But that won't happen until the 2001-02 ski season, due to manufacturer delays. Through turboprops, the new Dash Q400 planes are "very reliable" inside, thanks to constant cabin vibration and noise, he said. The new planes use less fuel and are faster, cutting the Seattle-to-Sun Valley route to 1 1/2 hours.

They also use a microwave landing system that should allow the aircraft to land in Sun Valley during snow more safely than the past, reducing the number of flights diverted to Twin Falls.

Last winter up to a fourth of the flights were diverted to Twin Falls during one storm.

The new planes are configured to hold 76 seats, so they'll have plenty of leg room with only 70 seats. The additional seats should simulate more comfortable pricing, Russo said.

Gore seeks to energize teachers, gain their vote

CHICAGO (AP) — Al Gore appealed to the nation's teachers Thursday to make his election fight their own, saying his race with George W. Bush boils down to a simple question: "Whose side are you on?"

Gore was given a rousing reception by thousands of delegates at a convention of the National Education Association, as he had been a day earlier at a meeting of the American Federation of Teachers in Philadelphia. "We are the mainstream majority," Gore declared as he sought to energize the teachers to play a big role in battleground states that could decide the presidential election in November.

Employing populist rhetoric for a second straight day, he said of the Republicans: "They have the powerful interests, but I wouldn't swap places."

Vice president leads pep rally conventions; union could hold key to battleground states

"I sense a little enthusiasm out there. Are you ready to fight and win for public education this year?" he called out to the teachers.

Yes, they yelled back. The NEA has 2.5 million members and that means two out of every hundred voters belong to the NEA, said the union's government relations director Mary Elizabeth Tensley.

"In a close election, which we believe this to be, 2 percent can make the difference."

Teacher unions' importance also could be magnified if they campaign hard since they are strong in a number of battleground states, including Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Michigan. In California, an all-out union effort to defeat a school voucher initiative could draw a big turnout of teachers for Gore.

While both Gore and Bush say education is at the top of their agendas, Gore clearly has the inside track at the union level.

Eighty-nine percent of the NEA delegates voted to endorse the Democratic vice president, and the AFT also endorsed him. Gore's union appearances the past two days were virtual campaign rallies, with sign-waving delegates interrupting him with cries of support. In Philadelphia, two delegates waved life-sized cutouts of Elvis Presley declaring "public education lives" and in Chicago the delegates chanted his name.

"I'm overwhelmed and so grateful to you," Gore said as he bounded onto the stage on Thursday.

In his speeches, Gore ticked off his backing for the education establishment's wish list, including smaller classes, higher pay and rejection of school vouchers to pay for children to go to private schools.

On the other side, Bush aides said the Republican has nothing to apologize for on his education record.

"If anybody takes a close look at Governor Bush's record in Texas they would see a record supportive of teachers and education," said spokesman Dan Bartlett.

"He signed a law increasing teacher pay."

Bush, Gore campaigns reflect personalities

One is informal, while the other is all business

By G. Robert Hillman
The Dallas Morning News

LEXINGTON, Ky. — In this campaign for the White House, there's a big difference on touch-down.

Vice President Al Gore, bearing all the trappings of incumbency, arrives here aboard Air Force Two — a nearly new, gleaming blue-and-white jet, jammed with all the latest communications links and creature comforts. United States of America is emblazoned in black on the sides, a pair of U.S. flags on the tail.

Gov. George W. Bush, who can still save a buck even after raising $90 million, lands in a 19-year-old Miami Air charter named Miami. There's no airborne phone, but you can get a baloney sandwich for lunch. Green palm trees are painted on the sides, and lime green and purple stripes on the tail.

For months now, Bush and Gore have been crisscrossing the country — first to capture the Republican and Democratic presidential nominations, then as the presumptive nominees in an early battle for support in the general election.

For the most part, they live on the road. Their airplanes are their castles. And they reflect their jobs and their personalities.

Listen up, Bush beckons reporters in the back of the plane who have been grousing about the food.

"I know something about politics," he warns. "Don't bite the hand that feeds you."

"If you trash the people that feed you food, you're going to get trash for food," he explains. "So I would suggest you all be kind to the people, the cooks, the people slaving away in the galleys of the airplane."

Welcome aboard.

As vice president, Gore travels on Air Force Two, usually one of the newest. Air Force jets have the executive fleet, its seats are first class or better. There's a blue and gold vice presidential seal on the wall outside the front cabin and another on the front door when it opens.

Gore usually flies up front, where he can confer privately with his aides, in person or on the telephone, relax or even take a nap during one of the coast-to-coast flights that come all too often in his hectic campaign.

Occasionally, he'll venture to the back cabin, where 20 seats have been set aside for reporters and television crews who pay their own way in both campaigns. Usually in his shirtsleeves, sometimes with a cup in hand, he'll stand in the aisle and smile.

But there's not much in the way of small talk. Invariably, the conversation turns quickly serious and directly to the issues of the day.

Why is the price of gasoline so high?

"My effort is to bring the prices down," he says one afternoon, heading from Des Moines, Iowa, to Minneapolis. "I think it's outrageous."

What about your Retirement Savings Plus plan?

"The nation has a problem with a very low national savings rate," he says. "And this proposal is designed to lift that national savings rate by addressing the part of the challenge that most needs to be addressed, the low-middle-income and middle-income families."

He talks carefully, in measured tones, determined not to veer off the day's script.

His press secretary, Chris Lehane, is always perched nearby during these airplane encounters and is not shy about cutting them off, lest the vice president venture too far afield.

On the Bush plane, which the governor christened "Great Expectations" on his announcement tour a year ago, his communications director, Karen Hughes — or another press aide — hovers nearby, too. But since his loss in the New Hampshire primary in February, Bush regularly wanders back to visit with reporters.

Mostly, it's just small talk: sports, music, television.

The other day, in a running dialogue, he quickly conceded that his "big little brother," Jeb, the governor of Florida, is the better golfer.

Both Bush and Gore move about the country in a bubble. Tightly scheduled and scripted, they're protected by the Secret Service and guided nearly minute-by-minute by a cadre of aides and advisers.

They ride at the front of motorcades that can stretch for several blocks, particularly Gore's because of the extra staff that travels with him as vice president — medical and communications personnel and a military at the front with the nuclear codes; should they be needed.

But Gore's press secretary is quick to note, "as with anything, there are positives and there are negatives" with all these vice presidential trappings.

On one hand, Lehane says, it's a big deal when Air Force Two touches down "in Wilkes-Barre, Pa." On the other, he says, "You're still vice president."

Stung by criticism that he's stiff and much too scripted, a more casual Al Gore has sought out forums that offer at least the possibility of some give-and-take with voters.

His latest record for a town meeting is five hours.

Gore, though, is no fan of the more formal news conferences, or "press avail" as they're known on the road. In the last two weeks, he's had one each week, but that's a record, too. Earlier, he had gone nearly two months without one.

Bush, traveling another trail, has several a week, sometimes nearly every day of a trip. And they are just as unpredictable as his airborne band.

"By the way, I love you in yellow," he told CNN correspondent Candy Crowley in the middle of an Ohio news conference carried live on her network.

Offering no explanation, he moved on. There were still plenty of questions — on taxes, the high price of gasoline and his search for a running mate, which he dutifully addressed in one fashion or another.

Off camera, Bush is forever teasing reporters, too. An in-your-face, backslapping kind of guy, he does out nicknames, sometimes with cross-cultural flair. One reporter is "Pancho," another "Dulce," and the list goes on.

Gore plays it straight, though he can have some fun, too, as he did the other day in Minnesota.

Finding one of his irregular news conferences interrupted by several ringing cell phones, he began taking them from reporters and answering them one by one.

"Hello, Gore news conference,"

Buchanan wound up with a narrow and ideological campaign." Fulani, a left-wing activist, had forged a bizarre political alliance with the socially conservative Buchanan before withdrawing her support. She endorsed Hagelin last month.

"It's a referendum on what the character of the Reform Party will be," said Lenora Fulani, a leader of the New York Independence Party, the state affiliate of the national Reform Party. "Pat

Candidates tussle in pamphlets

New York Daily News

MASSENA, N.Y. — The battle for Senate took a harsh turn Thursday when it was revealed Rep. Rick Lazio sent a fundraising letter that charges Hillary Clinton and her husband have embarrassed our country and disgraced their powerful posts.

The Suffolk congressman downplayed the letter's importance and said there was no contradiction between the letter and his repeated promises to run a positive race.

"Frankly, these letters are written, you know, not by me," he said. "I'm not disavowing it, but they're not written by me."

"It's not what you send to some donor list that matters," he said. "What matters here is ... how you are conducting yourself when you are speaking and what your commercials are conveying."

Rep. Rick Lazio

Hillary Rodham Clinton

He charged that his one fund-raising pamphlet pales next to the first lady's "negative" ads: Clinton and her supporters have aired six TV spots attacking Lazio's record and his positions.

Clinton aide Howard Wolfson responded, "We are confident that New Yorkers will reject Rick Lazio's campaign of personal insults in favor of Hillary's campaign of issue differences and real ideas."

In upstate Plattsburgh, N.Y., Wednesday, minutes before the letter surfaced, Lazio vowed to "sail above" the nasty tactics he continually accuses the first lady of waging.

The letter took the focus off a five-day Lazio swing through the state. He boarded the reporters' bus and spent most of his 23 minutes there talking about the letter — sent to out-of-state prospects. He declined to say how he felt about the Clintons' ad campaign, but under that was a lengthy and questionable conduct, saying only that "they have got pretty significant liabilities that are well-known."

In an ABC-TV appearance May 21, Lazio said he would not make the president's scandals an issue. But attacking the president in fund-raising letters is almost guaranteed to strike Republican gold.

N.Y. Reform Party backs rival candidate

Some Bush policies raise the question: What's new?

By Calvin Woodward
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — George W. Bush's presidential campaign presents him as "a different kind of Republican," yet there's a ring of the familiar in his plans for the country.

Health-insurance tax credits for the working poor? His father doing similar ones as president. Partial privatization of Social Security? The idea is a longtime favorite on Capitol Hill. On education, Bush's voucher plan is a limited edition of what conservatives have chafed for years and brother Jeb is experimenting with as Florida governor.

One his latest proposals, to split the federal immigration department to make enforcement against illegal aliens more effective and treat some of the problems that immigrants face, was already raised and shot down in Congress.

Gore doesn't break much new ground either, but he's not pushing 'new' image

To be sure, Democrat Al Gore isn't reinventing his party, either, but largely seeking to expand — sometimes greatly expand — what President Clinton has done or tried to do.

But much is being made of Bush's outreach to constituencies normally ceded to Democrats. And his appeals to the political center appear to be having an effect.

It's a source of frustration in the Gore campaign that Bush is being seen as a new Republican despite a program that Democrats contend is shopworn in its substance and conservative to its core.

governor's slogan — "compassionate conservative" — as the starting point in arguing that he represents a change both in substance and style from the way Republicans in Washington have been operating.

"It's a philosophy that the best solutions are conservative solutions but that Republicans need to be concerned with compassionate results," said Bush spokesman Ari Fleischer. "It's the approach of 'someone who comes from outside the Beltway and makes his living forging bipartisan agreements.'"

The results are a synthesis of Republican approaches and some bipartisan ideas favored both inside and outside the circuitous highway that symbolically divides Washington from "real" America. Bush adds some new twists and overlays everything with a tone Fleischer says is "different from a lot of the sights and sounds heard from Washington."

While Bush supports school vouchers — under another name — his plan to let parents use tax money to help pay for private schooling or other choices is limited to the relatively small proportion of public schools that are judged chronic failures.

At the same time, he favors a stronger federal role in public education than conservatives have wanted. He has insisted the GOP platform lose its plank urging the federal Education Department to be shut.

Hattaway argues any plan embracing vouchers belies Bush's claims to being a different Republican on education. "He may have other bureaucratic layers on top of it but the crux of the idea is to take money away from public schools."

Policy watcher Kathleen Hall Jamieson of the Annenberg School for Communication at the University of Pennsylvania says Bush is retreating party policy in a few areas but keeping the usual principles while giving the rhetoric a centrist but cosmetic makeover.

That's precisely what Clinton did in two elections, she said. "There were some signals of a new Democrat," she said, "but under that was a very traditional Democratic social agenda."

So, too, with Bush, who talks more than Republicans normally do about poverty and social programs but would have the market or state solve some of the problems that Democrats would assign to the federal government.

"This is an artful rhetoric," Jamieson said, "but it is an artful rhetoric pioneered by Bill Clinton."
