"The Feel survey is a clear signal that they are not going to change policy in August," said Mark Zandi, chief economist at Economy.com, an economic consulting firm in West Chester, Pa. "It think they are pretty close to declaring victory in their campaign to achieve a soft landing." Over the past 14 months, the central bank has raised interest rates six times in an effort to slow the economy enough to keep inflation under control, achieving what economists often refer to as a "soft landing" in which growth slows enough to trigger a recession.

The Fed's latest survey said, "Economic activity in all Federal Reserve districts continued to expand in June and July but there were additional signs the expansion was moderating in some sectors and the majority of districts."

The survey said seven districts - Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, and San Francisco - reported "Slowing economic growth" in their areas.

Four or other districts - Cleveland, Kansas City, Minneapolis and Philadelphia - reported basically unchanged growth rates while St. Louis actually saw signs that economic growth was accelerating.

The evidence of weaker activity in consumer spending would indicate a slowdown in this key sector, which began in the spring, was continuing as the office.

Koch admits that's not as good as having a full-time wolf person running the program. Koch was not in the office when the issue erupted last week, but had he been, he probably would not have done anything differently, he said Wednesday.

He concurred with Wildlife Services' trapper Jeff Ashmead's decision to start trapping as soon as possible. At the time Ashmead learned about the killed sheep, he knew of only one radio-collared wolf in the area. If he acted fast, he might be able to trap it and move it before more sheep were killed.

But because the best spot to trap the wolf was along a road, Wildlife Services sought permission from the Forest Service to close the road to the public. By lambs and truck them out Saturday.

Wolf reintroduction rules allow killing wolves in a pack after two incidents of livestock depredation, Koch said. And with about 15 packs, recovery in Idaho is going well.

"We can achieve recovery without this pack," he said.

But officials would prefer not to take such drastic measures. They would rather try to trap and relocate the animals or move the sheep, he said.

Koch also is sensitive to the high visibility of the SNRA pack, and officials are trying hard to avoid being heavy-handed.

Critics have said that under the law that established the SNRA, Forest Service officials are required to give preference to fish and wildlife resources, and could force a rancher to move the sheep instead of the wolves.

Report: Missile defense will spark Chinese buildup

WASHINGTON-(AP) — U.S. Intelligence official, having informed President Clinton that China is likely to accelerate its nuclear arms buildup if the United States erects a national defense against long-range missiles, officials said Wednesday. The prediction, in a classified report known as a National Intelligence Estimate, is part of a broader assessment of how foreign countries might respond to a U.S. decision to go ahead with a national missile defense. It will be for Clinton to judge whether a faster Chinese nuclear arms buildup is an acceptable price to pay for a national missile defense that critics say is unnec-essary in the short term and unworkable. Clinton has said he would decide soon whether to authorize the initial steps toward deploying a network of missile interceptors, missile-tracking radars and battle management computers to defend all 50 states against a small-scale nuclear attack. Chia is among the few nations capable of a nuclear strike on the United States.

States.

In making his decision, Clinton has said he would take into account four main factors: the urgency of the missile threat against the United States, the cost of a missile defense, the feasibility of building a reliable defense and the implications for U.S. foreign policy, including responses from China and other nations.

China and Russia are strongly opposed to the U.S. plan, arguingthat it would underrut the deternent value of their nuclear arsenals, violate the 1972 Antibility of the United State's European allies also question the wisdom of a U.S. national missile defense.
Clinton and his national security aides have tried, with little apparent success, to convince apparent success, to convince China's leaders that a U.S. national missile defense would not be directed against China's nuclear missile capability. The defensive system, they contend, is aimed at "roque" nations like North Korea and Iran which are pursuing intercontinental ballistic missile-technologies and might not be deterred by U.S. nuclear threats. Meanwhile, the CIA released a report Wednesday that said China expanded its role in helping Pakistan develop missiles last year and also had a hand in missile development in North Korea, Iran and Libya. The CIA report said, "The Chinese have taken a very narrow interpretation of their nonproliferation commit-

U.S. officials who are familiar with the classified intelligence report, speaking on condition of anonymity, said it states that China plans to increase its nuclear areaul regardless of U.S. national missile defense plans. However, it adds that the increase likely would be sped up if a missile defense were built. "Would they probably accelerate it? Yes," one official said. The report also affirms an inteligence estimate of September 1999 that the United States most likely will face a missile threat by 2015 from North Korea, probably from Iran and possibly from Iran.

The report also predicts that Russia would continue shrinking its nuclear force, which has been eroded in recent years by a lack of money to modernize. Russian-officials have warned-that-they-would feet compelled to respond to a U.S. missile defense, possibly withdrawing from major arms control agreements.

Oil slick closes South Florida beaches

HOLLYWOOD, Fla: (AP) — The largest South Florida oil slick in at least 10 years kept about 15 miles of beach closed Wednesday, and Coast Guard officials speculated that the mess was intentional because no ships had reported accidental spills. "It would be pretty hard to come up with another reason," Coast Guard Cmdr. Richard Ferraro said. Workers rushed to clean a state recreation area where thousands of endangered sea turtles were labout to hatch. The heavy crude oil was discovered Tuesday, washing ashore in puddles, globules and clumps, and swimming was quickly, banned from Pompano Beach to Golden Beach, a stretch that includes Fort Lauderdale.

The oil could cause respiratory problems, skin rashes and eye damage in humans, and it is potentially faital to wildlife.

"I think states are missing a rremendous opportunity," Satcher said as he released his "Reducing Tobacco Use" report at the 11th World Conference on Tobacco in Chicago.

He said he would like to see states use 20 to 25 percent of the settlement money for anti-smoking campaigns.

So far, states plan to spend about 10 percent of tobacco companies first 25-year payment – SB billion in all – on smoking prevention programs, according to a report issued last month by the National Conference of State Legislatures. More than half the money has been earmarked for health care and services for the working poor. Idabo lawmakers decided to put most of the state's money in a trust fund.

Surprise researchers

Half of all extremely premature babies who survive are mentally or physically disabled, a quarter of them severely so, a new study shows.

As daunting as that sounds, it is better than most experts had thought.

The lead researcher, Dr. Neil Marlow of the University of Nottingham, England, had expected to find that about 40 percent of such premature babies wind up with severe disabilities.

He studied all 4,004 babies born before the 26th week of pregnancy over 10 months in the United Kingdom and Ireland.

Only 308 survived after being sent home, Marlow wrote in today's edition of the New England Journal of Medicine.

surgery on newborns

If a baby needs surgery immediately after birth, doctors can plan for it by using MRIs to produce detailed 3-D images that let them look inside the womb, according to new report in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Doctors in Boston used MRIs to get images of twins joined from chest to belly and see details unavailable by ultra-sound - details needed to separate them quickly and save the one who had a chance at life.

Doctors say the use of the MRI, or magnetic resonance imaging, could prove effective not only in preparing for successful twin separations in the future, but for other operations immediately after birth.

"It's all a recipe for potential conflict," Berg says.

And he is usually in the middle of it, besieged by environmental groups demanding that the federal government take tougher and faster steps to preserve wildlife, by developers worried the agency is going too far and by local governments desperate for guidance about how and where to grow.

This past spring, for instance, the Fish and Wildlife Service proposed making 800,000 acres in the region protected habitat for the California gnateatcher, a move that gives it broad power to regulate certain kinds of development, including a proposed 16-mile toll road. Some environmental groups have derided the decision as too little, too late, and say the regional office under Berg is interpreting the Endangered Species Act too narrowly, But wither activists content that the office is finally beginning to move more quickly oprotect species after vears of delay.

Some wise decisions from Twin Falls council

No, the council's vote was about the integrity of the city's zoning laws. The area where Wal-Mart wanted to build, at the corner of Pole Line and Bridgeview Boulevard, was already subject to the terms of a planned unit development. Neighbors of the site bought or built their homes with the reasonable assurance their investments would be protected by that 1994 PUD agreement.

At the heart of the agreement was a clause limiting new commercial development to no more than 20,000 square feet. Wal-Mart wanted to build a store more than 10 times that size.

Aye, there was a rub.

Reasonable people can disagree on whether a 20,000-square-foot building is adequate for a commercial venture in that area of town. Perhaps the PUD was too restrictive. But that want the question the council had to decide.

The Twin Falls City Council was listening when it rejected a development force long before Wal-Mart sat its eye on Twin Falls. That agreement was in orce long before Wal-Mart sat its eye on Twin Falls. That agreement was on of the foundations on which dozens on the foundations on which dozens on the foundations on which dozens of the foundations on which dozens on the foundations on which dozens on the foundations on which dozens on which dozens on which dozens of the foundations on which dozens on th

and another thing

... and another thing

The City Council also deserves credit for requiring organizers of major events in municipal parks to pay for trash removal and other services. Beginning on New Year's Day, organizers of events that draw more than 500 people, last more than three hours and feature food or drink vendors will have to arrange for trash removal – or pay the city $15 an hour to get the job done. Fees also will be collected for the use of electrical outlets and the band shell at City Park.

That's only fair.

People who organize heavily attended events in city parks should pay their own way. They shouldn't expect free janitorial service from the city.

We all know that when the prass doesn't grow and it is been grazed down to the dirt, it is they not take they are the press of the first it is they further trampling damages the thousand and may even tell the plant. In numerous letters in the paper and personal interviews, the public land ranchers have stated many times that they are the original conservationists and caretakers of the land, Are these caretakers of the land, Are these caretakers of the land ging to voluntarily take the livestock off the parched public land to protect the environment and leave just a trace of vegetation forwiddife? I you believe this would happen, you still believe in the Easter Bunny.

What you will hear now is whining from the ranchers, and the Forest Service and Bureau of Land-Management-will-tell us that this is just a dry year and it may rain next year and make up for the drought, of course, this only makes sense to weak land managers and welfare ranchers.

Rural Twin Falls county is zoned agriculture. Idaho has a right-to-farm law and, in the United States, there is what is called the free enterprise system. Doesn't any of this apply? Things are in a sad state of affairs when out-of-staters, activists and non-farmers try to dictate agriculture in Twin Falls County.

When it costs you complainers as much to fill your bellies with foreign food as it does to fill your gas tanks with foreign oil, maybe you'll get the picture.

Generational conflict is at the heart of new politics

he future of American politics has quietly arrived in Washington, but the custodianos on of the conventional wisdom – the press and hordes of commentators – haven't noticed. Their attention remains riveted on the presidential campaign and familiar themes of old politics: liberals vs. conservatives; rich against poor, "special interest" campaign contributors against everyone. Virtually overlooked is the new politics: a legislative agenda increasingly crowded with issues that pit rotirees against workers and that, if enacted, would transfer hundreds of billions of dollars across generational lines. Everyone knows that the federal government already operates as a massive transfer mechanism between workers and retirees. Workers' taxes pay retirement benefits, mainly through Social Security and Medicare. These benefits now account for a third of the federal budget and average $17,700 for each person over 65, says the Congressional Budget Office. This year's news is the explosion of proposals that would vastly enlarge that transfer:

• President Clinton urges a Medicare prescription drug benefit with a cost estimated somewhere between $250 hillion and $538 billion from 2001

• Congressional Republicans want to reduce income taxes paid by Social Sociality recipients on their benefits, cutting tax revenues by more than $100 – billion over a decade.

• The House of Representatives has you'de to eliminate gardwally theestane billion over-a decade.

• The House of Representatives has voted to eliminate gradually theestate tax "the death tax") treating, in some ways, the ultimate retiree benefit. The projected revenue loss is $105 billion for the decade.

• Clinton' and Republicans have both proposed long-term care tax credits for people in nursing homes or needing help at home. The initial costs are fairly modest (527 billion over a decade for Clinton's) but would surely grow. Politics, like America, is graying. There's no static "Social Security problem" or "Medicare problem." As people age, they discovernew needs and makenew political demands. Similarly, politicals construct new programs to appeal to an expanding constituency of retirees and near-retirees. Increasingly, this includes baby boomers who can glimpse their own mortality.

Our political culture stubbornly evades the central issues posed by this unavoidable transition. If you raise benefits for retirees or cut their taxes, you increase the burden on workers - or comple cutbacks in the rest of government. How much should government. How much should government (meaning, in practice, workers) subsidize wealthier retirees? Should Americans, living longer and healthier than ever, work longer?

In the presidential race, George W. Bush gives faint (and inconsistent) signals that he might raise these questions. As yet, Al Gore gives none. Generally, we have a consensus for avoidance. We depict political conflicts in party, ideological or class terms. We minimize generational issues.

There's a growing disconnect between what's happening and what we say is happening. The estate tux is a perfect example, fow could there be so much what's happening and what we say is happening. The estate tax is a perfect example. How could there be so much support for something that would ben fit only the wealthy few? In 1997, the government collected $21 billion from, 47,596 estates, about 2 percent of the people who died. Yet, repeal passed die House 279-136. The pat theory is that Republicans are pawns of the rich. That's old politics. It does at explain the 65 Democratic votes or Democratic leaders' willingness to cut the tax.

A better answer is that millions of upper middle classy. Americans see the tax as unjustified. In 2000, only estates above 5675,000 are taxed. By 2006, the threshold already rises to $1 million. Still, many families with mortage-free homes and fattened stock portfolios can envision piercing the floor. Between 1998 and 2052, between 7 percent and 15 percent of people who die may have estates exceeding $1 million without taking account of inflation, estimates the Social Welfare Institute at Boston College. Many more may think they'll-make it.

College. Many more may think they'll College. Many more may think they'll make it.

So perceptions change. By the old politics, the estate tax was an obstade to a hereditary aristocracy. By the new politics, it's a hurden on middle-class-success—a penalty on families trying to sawe for their children.

The best policy now would be a moratorium on all these proposals. Some have merit, some don't. But all need to be considered in a broader social context that's missing. Someone needs to calculate and communicate the generational burdens. We need to develop at more sensible consciousness about the process. We need a new language to discuss generational fairness.

The climate needs to be less lopsided in favor of retirees and more sensitive to the needs of workers, their families and the rest of government.

pay for a location downtown or Old Towne (as stated by Howard Allen, Times-News, June 8), Mabel Lamb stat-ed in the same article, "For one thing, the bullding is getting old." Yes, it is old; also on the National Historic Register.

What the museum really needs are signs on the highway to inform visitors of this museum. Several are working with the state highway department to place signs one-half mile east and west of the building to allow visitors time to slow down and turn in.

For those not attending Union School, this "old" building means nothing to them; but to those that did, it means a lot to keep the museum where it belongs.

Dems' convention won't be like GOP's n Monday night, Bill Clinton will take centrage for perhaps the last time in his national political career when he gives his valedictory to the opening session of the Democratic National Convention.

It is a moment that many Democrats - and some neutral observers such as polister John 20gby - think could be crucial in determining whether Al Gore can overcome the lead built up by George W. Bush. Mr. Clinton's appearance will underscore the contrast between the Republican convention, where the president was one of the prime villains, and the Democratic convention, where he remains, if not a hero, where the remains, if not a hero, an extremely popular figure who an extremely popular figure who led the party to two national vican extremely popular figure who led the party to two national victories.

Republicans believe that Mr.
Clinton, by virtue of his moral shortcomings exemplified by the Monica Lewinsky matter, has become a GOP asset. It is no accident that Mr. Bush, Dick Cheney and other GOP speakers seek continually to link Mr. Gore with Mr. Clinton. Democrats believe that the president, thanks to the economic boom that has marked his White House tenure, is one of their main assets, though they would like him to fade some into the woodwork after Monday's speech. Differing viewpoints about Mr. Clinton won't be the only contrast that viewers will see if they compare next week's doings in Los Angeles with last week's Republican National Convention in Philadelphia.

Like the GOP, the Democrats will use their prime-time sessions for relating their policy positions to the life experiences of ordinary citizens. But they plan to feature their elected officials a lot more than Republicans did. The convention's first night, besides hearing from Mr. Clinton, will showcase women Democratic sonators, plus the president's wife, New York Senue candidate Hillary Roy Senue Senue Hillary Roy Senue Senue Republication of the Senue Repub cent for each at the COP conven-tion.

The oratorical tone of the two conventions is likely to be differ-ent, too. Republicans, confident they are headed back to the White House, sought to down-play their differences and bask in the glow of the Bush personal-ity, Mr. McCain was his only pri-mary-season rival to be given a speaking slot, platform dissi-dents weren't on the program, and the subject of the only open-ty gay speaker's address was international trade. As a result, the GOP convention bore relatively little resemblance to a traditional political convention.

Aside fine for criticating GOP taxcut proposals and making some sarcastic digs, speakers made little effort to detail the differences between the parties on issues. The agenda also eliminated or revised a lot of traditional features, including fulsome nominating speeches, and spread the roll call nominating Mr. Bush over four nights, ending it a night after he actually had been nominated.

over four nights, ending it a night after he actually had been nominated. The Democrats are planning a more traditional convention. It won't have a lot of suspense, since the only way to achieve that would have been to delay the vice-presidential announcement until convention week. But viewers are likely to hear more efforts to compare positions on the issues, since Democrats believe they benefit from a cleailed delineation of those differences. There may well be lead of a monolithic facade, in part because Democrats are more prone to resist authority. That will mean more of what the Republicans will deery as a negative tone and the Democrats will say is a requisite amount of issue-based comparison. Like the Democrats of 1992, the Republicans sought to mute differences between the parties. Next week, the Democrats will try to highlight them.

Since then, the stacks of papers, video tapes and boxes cluttering yet another Thew Office for the first-year coach confirm he's had enything but time, as he and assistant Shelly Wright have doggedly beaten the recruiting rail. CHICAGO – Hold on there, Seattle Mariners. The Chicago White Sox aren't ready to give up their claim to the best record in the AL.

With their lead in the AL down to a half-game over the Mariners and braggin rights at stake Wednesday night, Frank Thomas led an offensive explosion, homering in his first two at bats as the White Sox routed Seattle 19-3.

Thomas came close to homering a third time, doubling off the center-field wall. He drove in live runs, one shy of his career high, and finished 3-for-4 with a walk.

The 19 runs were the most for the White Sox this year. Their previous high was 18 against - guess who? - the Mariners. Chicago also had a season-high 24 hits. The White Sox battered Jamie Moyer (11-5), who'd won eight of his last 11 starts, or a career-high 11 earned runs and 13 hits in 3 2-3 innings. His ERA ballooned from 4.50 to 5-30.

It was his shortest outing for baseball reasons since he went 3 1-3 on June 21, 1997, against Texas. Moyer went one inning on July 4, 1998, against the Rangers, but that was because of a rain delay.

That's mostly because of the bandages, ice packs, Band-Aids and other medical supplies constantly stuck to his right arm. After just three weeks of camp, Pavre's body is showing the strain of throwing 235 touchdown passes in the 1990s, more than any other quarterback. The latest affliction is elbow tendinitis, which sidelined him for part of the Packers' morning practice on Wednesday. He is quick to point out that none of the problems would keep him out of a regular season game, but the frustration remains.

"After 10 years of playing, the way I look at it, I'm entitled to a little tendinitis," Favre said. "It hasn't got any worse, and I don't want it to get any worse. I'm going to throw every day, and if

The Packers, mindful of the preseason thumb injury that hindered Favre throughout last season, are trying to take extra care of his arm this year. But it's difficult to rein in Favre, who hasn't missed a regular season game-since 1992, and feels the need to atone for a subpar 1999 season. Favre wore a protective sleeve on the arm during Tuesday's workouts and again on Wednesday before he sat out. He'll throw only sparingly over the next week of camp, and there's a chance he could be held out of Sunday's preseason game at Denver-though Favre said out of Sunday's preseason game at Denver-- though Favre said he'll ask to play.

mound, allowing three runs and allowing eight hits over seven innings. He pitched four shutout innings before giving up a leadoff homer to Chris Widger in the fifth.
A victory over Houston on June 2 gave the White Sox the best record in the AL, and they've held it ever since. But losses in 12 of their first 25 games since the All-Star Game and a surge by the Mariners - they've won 16 since -the-break, including -a -sweep-of-Tuesday's doubleheader - whittled Chicago's lead to .005 percentage points.
And with the Mariners in town for another two games, that lead was looking very precarious, indeed.

"Wake up! Wake up! Let's win some ball games around here!" pitcher James Baldwin yelled as he walked in the clubbouse before the game, snacking a bar on the metal picnic table.

The particular particular and the picnic table.

The particular particular at roworun homer to the practically one-banded in the first funing. It was his 75th career first-inning home run, and third in the last five games.

And Thomas wasn't done. With two runners on, he homered into the pitcher's backdrop in the second inning to give Chicago a 70 lead. He hit another solid ball to center in the fifth, but settled for a double instead when it dropped at the wall.

Durham hit a solo homer off Moyer in the third. Moyer gave up three more runs in the fourth on Herbert Perry's RBI single and Chris-Singleton's two-run single before manager Lou Piniella finally took him out.

But his replacement, Robert Ramsay, didn't fare much better, giving up seven runs - four earned - in the sixth inning alone. He walked Durham to load the bases and then gave up the grand slam to Graffanino.

After Paul. Konerko, Carlos Lee and Singleton drove in runs to give Chicago a 19-2 lead, Piniella had enough, replacing Ramsay with Jose Panlagua. Charles Johnson popped up to third, finally ending the inning.

"She is dynamic and will score no mat-ter who is guarding her," Grant said. "If a team tries to defend her inside with a big girl, she will step outside and make

Crystal Hardcastle, of Bear Lake, as in-state signees.

Along with Booth, Grant inked Californian Holly Armstrong, a 5-8 point guard out of Westminster High.

Armstrong, "is going to be a pleasant surprise for us," Grant said. "She is big for a point guard and stronger physically than any of the other guards in the league."

Armstrong was the most valuable player of the Golden West League and an Al-Orange County selection.

Finally, Grant added his second Seattle, Wash., recruit in Nicolette Dresback. Projected to play small forward, the 5-10 Dresback, out of Shorewood High, brings athleticism and a good shooting touch to the team.

"Nicolette is the quickest 5-10 girl I have ever seen in our league," Grant said. "She is exciting, athletic and an instinctive player." CSI men's assistant coach Brian Hancock had a hand in Dresback's recruiment, having seen her play at an all-star tournament over the summer. Erin Zabukovec, a 5-11 post from Seattle's Shorecrest High and an acquaintance of Dresback's, is the other Seatle-area player Grant signed this the summer. The final two recruits added for the upcoming season are Aubrey Guastalli, a 5-8 guard from Westwood,

Michael Irvin catches more trouble over drugs

Former Cowboys wideout picked up for possession

PLANO, Texas (AP) - Former Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Michael Irvin was arrested Wednesday on a misdemeanor drug charge.

Irvin was taken into custody on a charge of possession of less than 2 ounces of marijuana, a task force went to the apartment to arrest a woman for heroin traf-ficking-as-part-of-a-regional sweep, said Lori Bailey, an FBI spokeswoman.

The woman named in the warrant had not been located and Irvin was not a target of the probe.

"This is total happenstance. We had no prior knowledge hewas going to be in there," Bailey said.

The woman named in the warrant was not home, but another woman at the apartment was taken into custody, Hunt said.

Irvin appeared "very cooperative," Hunt said at a news conference.

"He just asked what he needed to do next," Hunt said.

Maximum punishment on a Class B misdemeanor is a $2,000 fine and 180 days in jail.

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said he would reserve comment until he knew more details, noting that in late 1996 Irvin was falsely accused of sexual assault.

That claim came five months after Livin pleaded no contest to felony drug charges.

"I would remind us all that Michael has been a victim of false allegations before," Jones said from training camp in Wichita Falls. "I know this: I'm going to be very sensitive, very careful how I come to any conclusions."

ions."

Irvin, who won three Super Bowls with the Cowboys, retired in July after seriously injuring his neck last Oct. 10 in a game at Philadelphia. He was hired to work on the Sunday pregame show on Fox Sports Net.

"We don't yet have all the facts and until we do we have no comment," said Fox spokesnan Lou D'Ermillo in New York.
Four days before he announced his retirement, Irvin completed his probation on a 1998 felony drug charge, to which he had pleaded no contest. The terms included 800 hours of community service. The NFL also suspended him for five games.

Filer residents hope to invalidate dairies

TWIN FALLS - Several Filer residents are suing Twin Falls county to invalidate two west-end dairies. Len Miracle, Earl Miracle, Larry McKnight and Laurie War-

Larry McKingin and Laurie war-ren, along with nine other Filer residents, filed suit in Fifth District Court Wednesday against the county's commissioners, plan-ning and zoning director and planning and zoning administra-tor.

The Filer residents have long omplained about strong odors from Hank Halliger's large dairy in western Twin Falls County. They also claim Hafliger's dairy and Pete DeGroot's neighboring dairy operation were unlawfully approved several years ago and no public hearings were held before the two dairy operations were approved.

The lawsuit is asking that the county revoke Hafliger and DeGroot's dairy permits and DeGroot's dairy permits and make them reapply.

"The community wants to give their input on how they are developed and whether or not hey should be developed," said Rich Carlson, the attorney representing the residents. "We want public hearings and we want the county to enforce the laws that exist. We're asking that the county to enforce the laws that void and stop work and construction on these places and allow these places to reapply."

But county officials, including county Planning and Zoning Director Bill Crafton, have said the diaries were approved properly under rules in effect at the time.

"At the time there was no requirement for public hearings," Crafton said Wednesday.

A public hearing was only necessary if either operation wanted to build closer than the required 1,320-foot setback from the Cedar Draw.

Crafton said Haffiger is about a quarter-andle from the draw.
But Crafton and Planning and Zoning Administrator Lee Taylor determined recently that DeGroot's dairy was too close to the draw.

That problem wasn't recognized when it was approved, Crafton said.

DeGroot is reconstructing his lagoon to set it further back from the draw, Crafton said. The dairy is expected to be completed in November.

is expected to be completed in November.

As far as strong odors from Haftiger's dairy, county officials and even Haftiger have agreed there is a problem. Haftiger said in an earlier interview that he is getting better odor control equipment. But residents said that's not enough.

"From our perspective it's nothing personal against these people," Carlson said. "The people that live out here just can't tolerate the odors and they want some results."

Twin Falls County Commission Chairman Bill Brockman said he hadn't seen the lawsuit and was not prepared to comment about it Wednesday.
Crafton said the county's likely argument will be that it was following the rules at the time.
"Tean't speak for the county commissioners, but my speculation is that we'll come in and say 'Hey this is how our ordinance was set up," Crafton said.

Court upholds ruling in prison sex scandal

BOISE (AP) - The Court of Appeals on Wednesday ordered the reinstatement of a prison system manager fired for allegedly helping, cover up instances of female immates being sexually molested by a guard.

The unanimous three-judge court, in a point-by-point refutation, ruled that the Department of Correction failed to show that Rick Anderson improperly handled an inmate complaint against guard John Pribble and obstructed the subsequent investigation into the scandal.

"Given the lack of evidence in the record that Anderson violated a written policy," Judge Karen-Lansing wrote for the court, the department "did not meet its burden to prove a violation of department ordered issued by the state Personnel Commission after Anderson challenged his dismissal. Lottery winner turns himself in BURLINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A man who won a $65.4 million Powerball lottery jackpot surrendered to authorities Wednesday, avoiding an arrest for failing to appear in court.

Mack Metcalf, 42, a forklift operator from Florence, did not show up in court Tuesday to face charges of drunken driving, driving without a license and leaving the scene of an accident. Police said Metcalf hit a parked car several times in a mall parking lot on June 19.

After he surrendered Wednesday, a judge withdrew a warrant for Metcall's arrest, allowing him to remain free, sheriff's department spokesman Daren Harris said.

Metcalf won the July 22 Powerball drawing. He chose the July 23 Homelon lump-sum cash option.

State lottery officials were about to clear him to receive his winnings when the Kenton County attorney's office informed them that Metcalf had been behind on child support payments since 1986.

Tests for captain to fill this vacancy will be given in the near future. Vawser started riding in the fire truck at the age of five, with his father Dale, who was fire chief for the Kimberly volunteer group. He was an unofficial department mascot until old enough to become a full-fledged firefighter. Duncan said the Kimberly fire department had answered two-calls and the Rock Creek fire district 12 calls during the month of July. A budget plaaning meeting scheduled for 6 p.m. Monday, and a budget hearing will be held during the Aug. 29 council meeting.

It's not so easy to change providers, Bagley said. The problem is there is little competition among insurance providers in the state with Idaho's major providers being Blue Cross and Blue Shield, Bagley said.

Councilman Robert Christensen warned about adjusting employees' benefits or increasing employees' benefits or increasing employees' cost share because people consider benefits a part of their salary.

The new recreation director, Ron Dietz, is asking for an increase of $17,000 to go toward

T-shirts, medals and awards for year-round youth recreation programs.

To help fund the expenses, Rupert will charge $15 per participant in the recreation programs and seek sponsors to support teams. Heyburn and Paul already implement the fee system and bletz anticipates $50,000 in revenue from all three cities if Rupert jumps on board.

The revenue is based on an anticipated growth in participation this next year, Dietz said, There are currently between 700 to 820 participants in various sports throughout the entire county, he said. He anticipates that number will more than double to about 2,000.

Dietz also anticipated a $20,000 increase in salaries for sports officials, a figure that corresponds with the expected increase in participation.

"Anytime you put more money into a recreation mecaning its a

"Anytime you put more money into a recreation program, it's a plus more than a minus," said Mayor Audrey Neiwerth.

Several new capital expenses are being requested by the Rupert Police Department. The department is asking for $72,000 for three new vehicles to be used by the three new officers the city recently hired.

This is the first time the police department has been fully staffed in a long time, said Chief Ken Fedders. Now that the officers have been hired, there's the need to equip them, he said. About $8,000 would go toward equipment, including video cameras and 14 new shotguns.

The department currently has three shotguns and officers carry side arm pistols, Bagley said.

The Rupert Fire Department is seeking a $94,775 increase in capital expenses. Just under $30,000 will go toward payment on fire trucks and $20,000 will replace a 1985 Ford automobile.

Youngs to sell Ford dealership

BURLEY-The owners of Young Ford said they are retiring next week and selling the business to Goode Motor Inc. of Rupert.

Jack Young and his wife. Ethel, purchased Haight Motor Sales Inc. in 1972 from Ludwig Haight. Since then, the Youngs have operated the Ford and Mercury dealership. In 1978, the Youngs purchased the property from Bunting Tractor Company at 1096 E. Main St., where they have been ever since. The Youngs moved their dealership from the corner of Oakley Avenue and West Main Street.

"It's been good. We've been here a long time." Jack Young said. "We've been here 28 years and have had some customers that have bought 25 to 28 mins."

He said the business will be sold Tuesday, his 73rd birthday.

Jack Young said he got into the automobile business in 1946, after returning from the military.

He served as-sales manager for Barnard Auto Pontiae-Cadillac in Twin Falls and served in management while at Miller-Stephen Pontiae-Cadillac in Boise.

Before buying Haight Motor, Jack Young was a co-owner of Workman Ford in Twin Falls in the late 60s and early 70s.

"I will really miss working with a great team of employees and the loyal customers we have had the pleasure of serving," he said in a news release. "Now it's time to go fishing."

There was no immediate reaction from tribal leaders. Shanstrom's decision was another in a series of cases nar-rowing the scope of tribal juris-diction over non tribal members. Shanstrom found that while tribes retain the power to tax, "as a general rule, the inherent sovereign powers of an Indian tribe do not extend to the activi-ties of nonmembers of the tribe."

Runaway wagon kills Idaho man

IDAHO FALLS. (AP) — A farmer has died after a hay bale wagon he was steering went out of control, Bonneville County authorities say.

Kent J. Smith, 57, of Idaho Falls was riding on a bale wagon Tuesday as it was towed by a truck driven by Smith's friend, Stan Brighton, Sheriff's Sgt. Karl Casperson said.

The wagon started going faster than the truck, and Smith ended up underneath the wagon.

The accident brings Bonneville County's number of fatalities this year to 17, tying it with the number of people killed in accidents in all of 1999. That figure itself was an all-time record for the county.

We love this tradition and get along great.

My problem is the past few years we have gone to a casino.
My sisters and mom love to gam-ble, but I don't enjoy it as much as they do. I get headaches when I'm in the casino for any length of time, and find myself spending money just to be around them.

Eve told them how I feel about Five told them how I feel about the casino atmosphere, but it hasn't made a difference. This year I suggested we go somewhere that doesn't have gamble, so the most of the summer of the

DEAR ABBY Abigail VanBuren

DEAR MIFFED: An official vote DEAR MIFFED: An official vote is in order. State your case clearly, as you have for me. If you're out-numbered and the gang wants to plan next year's trip to another casino, ask them to at least make some compromise on the amount of time spent gambling and mixing in some other entertainment dur-ing the weekend.

Keep in mind you needn't spend every minute with them. Find other things to do that will be of more interest to you – and then join them for meals away from the able activities.

If it's any comfort, I'm with you all the way. Gambling has never appealed much to me. I prefer a sure thing!

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I recently discovered that my sen and his girlfriend, "Lois," are sen ually active. They have been seeing each other about nine months and both of them will be 18 in a few months. When her parents found out, they called us and the six of us had a discussion at our home.

Lois father suggested – and I agreed – that they should stay apart for a time and think about their relationship, and the consequences of sexual activity. At the time, I presumed that they would be allowed to see each other again at some point.

Abby, these are basically

Do you buy the claim that lots people enjoy anxiety? Some psych scholars insist it's true, and say the roller coaster proves it. A tortoise drinks water through its nose. That's not easy. You choke, and cough, and wheeze, cnoke, and cough, and wheeze, and your eyes water, and you think you're going to the Wheel Believe me, you're better off nor trying to prove this one yourself. Q. What's the difference between an emerald and an aqua-marine?

A. Only the color. Both are beryl. A trace of chromium makes it an emerald—green-A-trace of-iron makes it an aquamarine - blue-

Montana fires close state land

State restricts public access to more than six million acres

HAMILTON, Mont. (AP) – More than 6 million acres of southwestern Montana were ordered closed to public use Wednesday, as wildlires burned across 300,000 acres of the state, destroying houses and driving hundreds of people from their homes.

destroying houses and driving hundreds of people from their homes.

Gov. Marc Racicot ordered the closures on state land, and said similar closures were being, ordered on national forest and tribal land. The combined state and federal closures affect between 6 million and 8 million acres, he said.

"We would not do this if it were not absolutely essential," Racicot said. "This is devastating."

Montana's 19 largest fires

Wednesday had scorched

300,000 acres, about two-thirds of them in the Bitterroot Yalley, where at least 52 homes have burned, Racicot said 971 people have been confirmed as evacuated in the valley.

Nationally, 70 large wildfires were burning across 992,000 acres in the West. More than 20,000 firefighters are on the lines. The National Interagency Fire Center in Idaho said up to 80 people from New Zealand and Australia will join fire crews that already include firefighters from Canada and Mexico.

Oregon Gov. John Kitzhaber declared a state of emergency in his state Wednesday allowing National Guard troops to be called up for firefighting duty.
As many as 400 troops were expected to be called to duty over the next two weeks.

"It's vital we be ready with additional firefighters should the need arise," Kitzhaber said.

In Montana, Racicot's announcement forbids all activities by the public unless a permit is obtained. Homeowners can obtain permits to reach their homes. The closure, which includes the fire-ravaged Bitterroot National Forest, is necessary to help limit the chance of additional fires and because people using forested lands could become trapped if fires broke out.

ever since.
"Each day it's been getting progressively a little bit hotter, a little bit drier, and today the kicker is the winds are shifting direction," said Bob Kitchens, information officer for the 80,000-acre Valley fires in the Bitterroot.

The Valley fires deputy commander, Bob Sandman, said he has less than half of the firefighters and equipment needed to battle those blazes. Resources are stretched thin as tires rage throughout the West.

On Wednesday in the Bitterroot Valley, fire managers were faced with a recipe for more flareups: hotter weather, lower humbidty, wind and dry lightning.

South of Helena, wind fanned the High Ore Road fire to 6,700 acres as buldozer operators prepared to dig lines around at least two dozen homes in the Jefferson City area. Evacuation orders were in place for some 400 homes vacated in the Jefferson City area Tuesday in the face of an advancing 6,700 acre fire.

Information officer Dale Warriner described the fire, seven miles southwest of Jefferson City, as "continued terrible" said the bulldozer lines were a precaution.

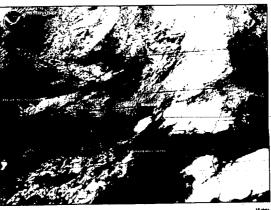

"Should the fire go out there, we want to have something to defend those structures," warriner said.

Colorado fires reveal secrets of cliff dwellings nitely hours after respening. Officials are considering partially respening the park, but plans and a date have not been finalized, said park spokesman Will Morris. Initial plans call for leaving Wetherill Mesa, where the fire burned over several pout ar, cliff dwellings and destroyed a bus paylion that housed a snack bar, a ranger station and small bookstore, closed. Archaeologists, continued to travel with fire crews Wednesday, marking the location of artifacts found. The fire line was being built around those sites. Towle estimated earlier that the two fires this summer could ditimately lead to the discovery of 2,000 new archaeological sites inside the park.

"That's probably the reason why these sites were built in the alcoves," said park archaeologist Linda Towle. "It provides protection from heat in the summer, cold in the winter, and now, we know, protection from fire."

Fireflighters were hoping to capitalize on high humidity Wednesday to make more gains in the fire which has sourched $1000 krees on Ute Mountain Ute. Reservation and park land.

RESERVOIR BECOMES HAVEN

Anglers can find kokanee galore at Anderson Ranch Dam

Kokanee salmon are hitting at Anderson Ranch Reservoir for anglers who use good technique. Downriggers fare the ticket for hooking up with 15- to 16-inch kökanee.

Downriggers feature a lead ball on a winch that lowers the attached fishing line to a particular depth. At Anderson Ranch Reservoir, that depth is currently around 55 feet. When a fish strikes, the line is pulled away from the lead ball and a fisherman can play the fish unimpeded by the additional weight.

Those who prefer more conventional fishing techniques can use leaded line that is marked with a different color every 10 yards. When trolling for kokainee, anglers generally have three to five colors in the water.

For some reason, the kokanee at Anderson Rapple Beservoir frame is the second of the colors in the water.

Historically, they were found in a number of lakes throughout Idaho that could be reached by migrating salmon from the ocean. For example, they were located in Pend Oreille Lake in the Panhanole, Payette Lake near McCall' and the large mountain lakes near Stanley.

Kokanee feed on plankton, which lyies their flesh the characteristic falmon color. They have special strain-ters on their gills that enable them to fil-ter out these microscopic animals.

Kokanee have extremely delicate mouths, so anglers must reel them in without deliberately setting the hook. Even with careful handling, any angler will lose some fish.
Proper care of kokanee is critical to good eating because they tend to spoil rapidly. The best method is to field clean them immediately, then place them on ice in a cooler. They are delicious when cooked fresh, or smoked for a snack.

Fish & Game hosts open house

JEROME - Anyone with an opinion about proposed changes to Idaho's hunting regulations can peak their mind at an open house meeting today. Make-a-Wish says no to hunting

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) - The Make-a-Wish Foundation has quiedly reversed a policy that had allowed the organization to send ill children on hunting trips. "Make-a-Wish is obviously caving in to pressure from the animal-rights organizations," said Dan Treb, of Delano, regional representative for the Safari Club International.

The policy change is the latest chapter involving Make-a-Wish's decision to grant Erik Ness, of White Bear Township, a chance to hunt brown bears in Alaska in 1996.

The hunt was condemned by animal-rights groups around the world. Ness died last July at age 21 of brain cancer, but not before he fulfilled his Alaskan dream hunt.

Make-a-Wish officials defended their funting policy at the time, saying they wouldn't give in to animal-rights "terrorists." Death and bomb threats were received by foundation staff and the Ness family.

But last January, the Makea-Wish board of directors reversed the policy and prohibited its chapters from granting wishes involving hunting, shooting or sport-shooting equipment, including archery gear.

Petri Darby, brand manager for the Pheenix-based charity, said the decision was made for safety reasons – not because of pressure from animal-rights groups.

Drought sends bears on food raids

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) - The dry weather has hungry bears raiding cabins, camp trailers and Dumpsters in search of food in many parts of the Northern Rockies, according to the Wyoming Game and Fish Department. The agency was urging anyone in black bear country to make sure no food is left where bears can find it.

can find it.
"Not only will leaving food out where a bear can get it cause damage to tents and other property, it conditions the animal to seek human food again and lose its fear of humans," Laramie wildlife supervisor Gregg Arthur said.

From the Snowy Range to Cheyenne, there have been numerous nuisance reports this summer, all caused by bears seeking human food, he said.

According to the department, cabin owners and campers should invest in bear-proof trash containers, and barbeeue grills should be returned to vehicles and other secured places after use.

Campers should also refrain from cooking aromatic foods outside such as bacon and fish, officials said.
"Keeping food away from bears not only is for human protection but also for the bears' well-being." Arthur said.
"Once a bear repeatedly exhibits no fear of humans from getting food rewards, it may be shot in self-defense or have to be killed to prevent an attack."

F&G suspends catch limits

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Department of Fish and Game has removed size and possession limits from the Mountain Home Reservoir because drought conditions, could leave a number of fish dead by summer's end. The Mountain Home Irrigation District recently rold Fish and Game that the increased demand for irrigation water could drain the reservoir. "Faced with that decision, it was an easy decision to remove limits on the reservoir and allow anglers to take these fish home rather than let them go to waste," said Dale Allen, fisheries manager.

Today, anglers are no longer restricted to wading or stelling out cash for a guide. Today, they can be their own guides. And they don't need a big driftboat to do it.

"The (personal pontoon) has really changed the way some people fish," said Sally Davis, a veteran fly angler and employee of Outcast Sporting Cear in Boise.

"They're a lot of-fun, they're very-portable, and you can really fish from them," she said during a recent float trip down the Boise River.

recent float trip down the Boise Yes, Davis is a bit biased. She doos, after all, work for a company-which is on the cutting edge of personal-pontoon technology. But she's certainly not alone in her feelings for the miniature craft. Just take a weekend trip to the South Fork of the Boise – or Henrys Fork, Silver Creek, the Yellowstone or virtually any other big water. You'll see them. Dozens and dozens of anglers floating-along in-their-own-personal ponand dozens or angiers moating-along in their own personal pon-toon complete with oars, footrests, rod holders and enough storage space to hold even the most gear-laden angier's stuff.

Personal pontoons, often called kick-boats, are not extravagant versions of the time-tested float-tube. No, kick-boats are a fairly new tool for the angler. And they just keep getting better and better. Unlike float-tubes, which are meant for still-water only – ponds and lakes – personal pontoon: are capable of carrying an angler safely and comfortably down all but the gnarliest of falls and rapids. Davis agreed. "The first consideration you have to consider when buying a boat is the type of water you'll be fishing, If it's still water you can get into a six or seven-foot boat. But any whitewater requires at least an eight-foot model."

As popular as personal pontoons have become, Davis said it's just the beginning. "We've got a two-main model now, and we just introduced a 3-person boat," she said. "Those are going to be really popular. I think they're definitely the wave of the future."

Call them what you want: ickeboats, pontoons, rafts, personal pontoon craft are hot items for anglers. Here's a few tips to buy ing the right one:

CHICAGO - Wal-Mart Stores Inc., the world's biggest retailer, on Wednesday said carnings climbed 28 percent to meet analysts' expectations in its second quarter but predicted third-quarter carnings will be less than forecast because of a change in its accounting methods.

The Bentonville, Ark, -based company, which operates 2,562 discount stores and supercenters and 466 San's Club wholesale warehouse stores in the United States, posted net income of 51.6 billion, or 36 cents a share, up-from-$12-5 billion, or 36 cents a share, up-from-$12-5 billion, or 36 cents a share, up-gravago.

Sales jumped 20 percent to $46,1 billion from $38.5 billion from $38.5 billion from $38.5 billion hast time.

Wal-Mart has a Burley store and will open a Jerome one this month, and it aims to build one in Twin Falls.

Chief Executive II. Lee Scott said consumer spending has remained "solid" even thought be federal Reserve has raised interest rates six times since June 1999. Still, store traffic in the third quarter slowed from the first half of 2000.

"The average licket stayed strong," he said. There is 'no significant change in the composition between discretionary items."

That indicates shoppers aren't cutting back on the goods they wait in order to buy the items they need, analysts said.

Wal-Mart executives moted, however, that analysts have not changed ther company, and analysts should adjust their third-quarter crimings to 31 cents a share. The accounting change added an estimated $400 million to total inventory, which Wal-Mart and it aims to reduce by more changed. The comesnous estimate of janlysts polled by First Call/Thomoson Financial for the year is $1.47 a share.

"We believe the consumer has taken a short pause and the traffic will increase as the back-to-school season begins," Scott said. The retailer forecasts same-store sales to rise 4 to 6 percent in the next quarter, versus a rise of $4 percent tink quarter.

Hospital honors nurse who gave gift of life

TWIN FALLS - Magic Valley Regional Medical Center honored medical technologist Ardele Hanson for her unusual and generous gift to a co-worker. When Vern Taylor, a registered nurse in MVRMC's operation of the medical waiting room, found out he needed a kidney transplant, the national waiting list was long and the expected wait was one to two years. In passing, he mentioned to Hanson, an acquaintance in the MVRMC blood bank, that if she knew anyone willing to give up a kidney, please let him know.

"Vern came in one day and I noticed that he looked really tired," Hanson said "I said Why don't you get some sleep?" He said it wasn't sleep he needed, it was a kidney. I said I would give him one of mine if I were a match. A week later I passed him in the hall and said, "So

Vern, when are we going to do

Blue-chips fall on drug-sector selloff

NEW YORK (AP) - A selloff in shares of big drug companies-dragged down blue-chip stocks Wednesday after a court ruling that could speed up the sale of a generic version of the antidepressant drug Prozac in the United-States. The Dow Jones industrial raverage closed down 71.05 at 10,905.83.

Broader stock indicators were mixed. The Nasdaq composite Index was up 4.95 at 3,853.50, after rising more than 70 points early in the session. The Standard & Poor's 500 index was atter rising more than 70 points early in the session. The Standard & Poor's 500 index was down 9.93 at 1,472.87. Shares of drug company Eli Lilly fell 29 percent, or 531.859 to 576.688; on news that a federal appeals court had overturned an earlier ruling that kept Eli Lillys.

Proze patent in place until 2003

The patent is now set to expire in February 2001; generic versions of Proze may appear on the market as early as August 2001.

The news sent other bigname drug stocks lower, including Pfizer, down $2.188 to $42.75, and Schering Plough, down $1.547 to $41.438

Cisco's quarterly revenues surged 61 percent as the Internet networking giant beat Wallstreet's carmings expectations by a penny. The solid earnings report helped lift the technology focused Nasdaq into positive tertory. Shares of Cisco see 52.313

President Jerry-Meyerhoeffer's thanks for the birth of an educational exchange.
Back in May, Hamilton hosted a small bunch gathering in Twin Falls for Ma Yun An, deputy magistrate of Shanghai's Lu Wan District, Wu Yonghua, general menager of Shanghai's Lu Wan District, Wu Yonghua, general manda handful of the two men's associates. Meyerhoeffer was invited, and his conversations over lunch touched off a flurry of correspondence – and gift giving—with Yongye.
"After our return, we reported all of the interesting and exciting activities in this trip to Idaho to the government," Wu wrote to Meyerhoeffer later in May. "All of the officials thought highly of this visit. The magistrate, Mr. Zhang Zaiyang, asked each department of the government to support the programs that will be developed by Shanghal Lu Wan District and Idaho Department of Commerce. And the programs include the education exchange."

magistrate in charge of education magistrate in charge of education showed great-interest in coopera-tion with Idaho and would discuss the prospect with leaders of several schools. Wu promised CSI his own support and help-to develop an education program with Shanghai schools, and he invited. Meyerhoeffer to Gherethai.

with Shanghai schools, and ne invited Meyerhoeffer to Shanghai.
Details emerged quickly.
In late June, a letter from Cao Guoli, Yongye's senior manager of research and development, proposed sending both young students and Yongye employees to CSI.

quickly."
Cao asked for details on fees, courses and visa applications. Meyerhoeffer sent them and is-waiting for a response. For more than a year, Hamilton has courted Yongye as a hydroseeding-mulch and cellulose-insulation customer, and Idaho officials have credited some of Wu's interest in other Idaho construction products to Hamilton-Harney's persistence. Now Yongye has formed a new subsidiary to promote Idaho hydroseeding and building products, Hamilton-Harney sind, Representatives – including Cao –will be in Twin Falis Sept. 7.
Hamilton-Marney plans to ask Cao what America has that Chinese consumers and businesses want. And perhaps Magic Valley can supply some of those markets.

735-3900 THE BOW EVAL ACCOUNTACTOR AND ACCOUNTS OF THE PROPERTY WHEN IN THE PROPERTY WHEN A WAY A WAY A THE PROPERTY WHEN A WAY A Trifles make the sum of human

things,
And half our misery from our foibles springs."
— Hannah More

Today's South was a whit with percentages. He could quote the odds on almost any combination. He gave a recitation regarding the odds at today's slam. Unfortunately, he overlooked a cinch to land the slam. South won dummy's spadequeen and eashed the ace and ding of clubs, hoping to drop the queen. Had it dropped doubleton, he could have claimed. all. 13. tricks. Even if it didn't drop, any 3-2 break would give him 12 tricks. And lacking that, a successful heart finesse would produce 12 winners.

How did he calculate his How did he calculate his chances? He advised all that his chances for dropping a doubleton queen were about 27 percent. If it didn't drop, he estimated that his overall chance for 12 tricks was close to 84 percent 68 percent for 32 tricks was close to 84 percent 68 percent of 32 close his solid part of 54 percent. Good chances, but not the best.

What trille did South, piece 76.

What trifle did South miss? To improve his chances immensely for 12 tricks, South should have cashed only one top club honor. And after crossing to his spade jack, he leads a club toward dummy. When West plays low, South inserts dummy's nine. If the nine loses, the clubs will run and South will have his 12 winners. will have his 12 winners

In a small slam, it is folly to jeopardize a game and slam bonus in search of a 30-point overtrick. Those are extremely long odds to lay on the hope that a 27 percent chance will succeed.
