Legislature steps into fray

Leon County deputies stand guard outside the Leon County courthouse in Tallahassee, Fla., on Thursday after a rental truck carrying some 430,000 election ballots from Palm Beach County arrived.

Florida lawmakers' move dismays Gore supporters

By David S. Broder
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Florida's Republican-controlled legislature moved into position Thursday to bolster George W. Bush's claim to the state's critical electoral votes as attorneys for Vice President Al Gore urged the supreme courts in Tallahassee and Washington D.C. to allow more ballot-counting to proceed. A select committee of the legislature recommended that a special session convene next week to name a slate of 25 Bush electors, who would vote for Florida if continuing litigation does not determine who won the presidential election in the state.

"In a clear sign of Democratic dismay at the legislature's move, Gore's running-mate, Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., warned from the steps of the White House that any such action "threatens to put us into a constitutional crisis."

At 10 a.m. Friday, the nine justices of the U.S. Supreme Court will hear 90 minutes of argument from Bush and Gore lawyers on Bush's appeal of the Florida high court's decision granting Gore five days of hand-recounts of Florida ballots last week.

Although those recounts did not overturn Bush's earlier lead,

SPEAKING OUT

Marilyn Hempleman addresses about 15 Republican Party faithful on the steps of the Twin Falls County Courthouse Thursday night. Hempleman and her husband, County Commissioner Marvin Hempleman, were attending a rally calling on Democratic Vice President Al Gore to concede in the presidential election.

Local Republicans call on Gore to concede

By Michael Jounes
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The fact that their plea couldn't be heard in Washington, D.C., didn't keep them from speaking out.

Even the lack of an audience, save for a reporter and a news photographer, didn't hurt their feelings. They think Vice President Al Gore should concede the presidency to Texas Gov. George W. Bush now, and they wanted to tell him.

"Al Gore is like a spoiled little boy who has lost a game of marbles," said Marilyn Hempleman, one of 15 people who gathered at the Twin Falls County Courthouse Thursday night to call on Gore to give up his fight for the White House.

"He's throwing a temper tantrum. My children used to be spanked for that," she said of Gore.

Hempleman and the small group of GOP faithful huddled against the cold at the request of the Twin Falls County Republican Women, who put the gathering together in conjunction with similar rallies orchestrated by Republican women's groups across the nation.

Burley man faces charges of vehicular manslaughter

Three people died in automobile accident

By Ruth Streeter
Times-News writer

BURLEY - A Burley man has been charged with three misdemeanor counts of vehicular manslaughter in connection with a Nov. 13 accident that killed three people.

Donald Westfall, 71, faces prison time and a fine if convicted, and could be forced to pay child support for the two children whose parents were killed in the wreck.

Westfall was summoned Wednesday to appear at a Dec. 18 arraignment in 5th Judicial District magistrate court.

Westfall could not be reached for comment Thursday, because he was in Boise undergoing "a medical procedure," said his attorney, Richard Smith. Smith declined to comment on the charges as he had not yet talked with Westfall.

According to a sworn affidavit signed by Cassia County sheriff's deputy Don Green, Westfall drove through a stop sign at 250 E. 100 S., and collided with a Buick Regal driven by Rafael Silva-Alejos, 32, of Burley.

Silva-Alejos and his nearly 2-year-old son, Eduardo Silva, died at the scene. Silva-Alejos' wife, Esperanza Silva, 25, who was 35 weeks pregnant, died later that evening on the way to a Utah hospital.

Before Esperanza Silva was boarded on a helicopter to the Utah hospital, emergency room physicians at Cassia Regional Medical Center delivered her baby, a boy, by performing a successful Caesarian section.

The accident occurred "without gross negligence" and does not constitute a felony, according to the criminal complaint signed by Green.

If convicted on all charges, Westfall can receive up to three years in prison and a maximum $6,000 fine.

The judge could also order Westfall to pay child support for the Silvas' two children - the newborn boy and 6-year-old Alex Silva - until they are 18 years old. Failure to pay the child support is enforceable by the same laws governing traditional child support orders.

Alex Silva, a passenger in Silva-Alejos' car, was injured in the crash and hospitalized. Also injured was passenger Neopolo Rios, 32, Esperanza Silva's brother.

Idaho gets mediocre grades for higher ed.

By Jennifer Sandmann
Times-News writer and
The Associated Press

TWIN FALLS - Idaho received average and below-average grades in a national report, focusing on access to higher education and whether students are prepared for studies beyond high school.

The first-of-its-kind study by The National Center for Public Policy and Higher Education, a nonpartisan think tank in San Jose, Calif., was released Thursday in Washington, D.C.

States were not ranked or compared. Instead, each state received a grade of A through F in five areas. No state received straight A's.

The report, "Measuring Up 2000," says public colleges in Idaho are among the most affordable in the nation, with tuition costs at the public four-year schools averaged $2,200.

Idaho earned average grades for the percentage of students finishing college, and the benefits education has contributed to the state's economy and civic life.

The state scored below average in the number of secondary school students taking rigorous college preparatory courses, and

Study: Liberal arts majors have hope in job market

The Associated Press

DETROIT - Job prospects haven't been this good for liberal arts graduates in years.

Liberal arts graduates can expect to be more fervently sought after this year and to be offered better salaries, according to the 30th annual recruiting trends survey conducted by the Collegiate Employment Research Institute at Michigan State University.

Among the reasons: The earlier-than-expected retirements of the oldest baby boomers have created job openings of all kinds.

Also, with the high-tech industry booming, Tech LaMarco, associate director for employer relations at the University of Michigan, said employers in recent years have changed their attitudes about liberal arts majors.

"I think what they are seeing is that liberal arts majors can fill some of the positions that used to be considered technical," LaMarco said. For example, they can be trained to do program-

Study: School problems can signal trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mom and Dad were right: Flunking in school and hanging out with a bad crowd lead to trouble.

So says a national survey that finds all adolescents — black, white or Hispanic, rich or poor — are much more likely to drink alcohol, carry or use weapons, smoke cigarettes or have sex if they spend a lot of unsupervised time with friends and have academic problems.

"If we make predictions about kids based on the color of their skin, based on their parents' bank account or how many parents they live with, we're only going to be right a tiny percent of the time," Dr. Robert Blum, the study's principal investigator, said Thursday.

Blum said that while the amount of "risky" behavior teens engage in varies between racial and economic groups and those with different family structures, those factors have little influence on an individual teen's actions. Problems with schoolwork and hanging out excessively with friends, especially those who drink alcohol, are far greater warning signs.

The federally funded survey of about 10,000 high school students also found that in the past year more than one in four youths has carried a weapon or been exposed to violence involving a gun or knife as a witness, a victim or an attacker.

Source: Scientist tossed tapes into lab's garbage

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Scientist Wen Ho Lee says he discarded 17 computer tapes full of nuclear weapons data at Los Alamos National Laboratory, according to a source familiar with the case.

FBI agents are combing the muddy, snowy Los Alamos County landfill where the tapes were buried, saying the search could last weeks.

Agents won't confirm they're looking for the discarded tapes in the landfill, but if the pocket-sized computer cartridges Lee downloaded in the lab's top-secret X Division were thrown into the trash, the 50-acre dump is a likely place where they ended up.

Agents have said for months that they want to find the tapes Lee swore he destroyed.

A source familiar with the case, speaking on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press on Wednesday that Lee said he disposed of the tapes in a Dumpster inside the X Division fence in January 1999.

The disposal of the tape cartridges happened just days after Lee's security clearance was revoked, according to a timetable provided last summer by federal prosecutors.

Study: Bone marrow helps brain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers have discovered that transplanted bone marrow cells can migrate to the brain and turn into neurons, a dramatic laboratory finding that may offer hope of new therapies for Parkinson's disease and other brain disorders.

Two separate teams of scientists, using different methods and different strains of mice, have demonstrated that transplanted bone marrow cells can transform themselves naturally into neurons — brain cells that carry nerve impulses — and install themselves seamlessly into the brain.

However, it could take years before the researchers can prove that such transplants can be effective and safe for treating human brain disorders, they said.

Court: City remains segregated

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal appeals court Thursday refused to free the school system in Charlotte, N.C., from nearly three decades of court oversight, saying there are still vestiges of segregation in the nation's first major urban district to use busing to achieve racial balance.

A divided three-judge panel of the 4th U.S. Circuit of Appeals largely overturned a federal judge's ruling last year that held that the school system is integrated and that race should no longer be considered when assigning students to schools.

Seven white parents had sued to end federal desegregation oversight in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg County school system. Busing was first ordered by a federal judge in 1969 and was upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1971.

the Gore camp is hoping for a Supreme Court ruling that would bolster the Democrat's plea for patience while the legal contests continue. For his part, Bush wants the Supreme Court to reinforce his claim that the election has been decided. The court session will not be open to television cameras, but an audio tape will be broadcast on both radio and cable news stations.

Thursday, TV viewers were diverted by helicopter pictures of a yellow Ryder rental truck carrying hundreds of thousands of ballots from Palm Beach to Tallahassee, where Gore hopes a state court judge will order another recount that could turn up enough missed votes to reverse the apparent victory of the Texas governor.

Bush continued to act as if the political verdict were in, meeting at his Crawford, Texas, ranch with his running mate, Dick Cheney, and retired General Colin Powell, expected to be secretary of state in a possible Bush Cabinet. Powell said the job had not been offered to him, but that seemed to be a mere formality if and when Bush can firmly establish his claim to being president-elect.

Reports from the Bush entourage identified Pennsylvania Gov. Tom Ridge and former Indiana senator Dan Coats as possible choices to run the Pentagon.

The Texas governor has come close to claiming victory, and Thursday he told reporters that when the counting finally stops, we want to be prepared to lead this nation. That's what we were elected to do—the sooner the better for the good of the country.”

But the continuing legal challenges from Gore prompted a select committee of the Florida House and Senate, both with GOP majorities, to recommend Thursday a special session that could authorize selection of a slate of Republican electors.

The party-line committee vote, 8 to 5, is expected to prompt the GOP leaders of the legislature to convene such a session next Tuesday. Gore strategists said privately that they expect the legislature to certify the Bush electoral slate by Wednesday, but it is not clear whether the action will be in the form of legislation requiring a signature by Florida Gov. Jeb Bush (R), the nominee's younger brother. Jeb Bush said he is prepared to sign such a bill. “I can't recuse myself from my constitutional duties as governor of the state and I can't recuse myself, frankly, of being my brother's brother either,” he said.

The Florida Republicans are acting under a provision of federal law allowing a state legislature to adopt such a procedure if electors have not been determined by the popular vote in the normal fashion by Dec. 12, the statutory deadline for naming them.

EDITORIAL

More visitors will preserve Craters?

"We had to destroy the village in order to save it." Remember that line from the Vietnam War? It was a sublime oxymoron, and war protesters ridiculed it mercilessly.

The Clinton administration has invoked similar logic to "protect" the unique lava flows and grasslands around the Craters of the Moon National Monument. Last month, President Clinton expanded the monument from its original 80 square miles to more than 1,000 square miles.

The idea was to save the area from the ravages of human visitation. That seems a little odd, given that the land around Craters was rarely visited before Clinton - shazam! - protected it.

Now here's the real irony. The novelty of a greatly expanded Craters of the Moon National Monument is bound to lure more curious visitors. They will undoubtedly find their way into areas that had previously seen few, if any, people.

The upshot will be more boot prints and tire tracks. And more visitation will protect Craters?

A recent Times-News story explored the emerging doubts of federal officials and conservationists. The long-time Idaho director of The Nature Conservancy, Guy Bonnivier, expressed misgivings about what's ahead for Craters.

"One of the greatest things in its favor is that people don't go out there," Bonnivier said, adding that more people are likely to go there now. The sad truth is that whenever the government makes a big deal out of protecting something, people inevitably want to see it. As Nietzsche remarked, "One has watched life badly if one has not seen the hand that, considerately, kills."

The expansion of Craters illustrates a growing disconnect between conservative Westerners and environmental liberals. Few people who live and work near Craters have voiced any concern about the area's future. But environmental savers - led by Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt - appear intent on saving the intermountain West from ignorant Westerners.

For more than 75 years, Craters of the Moon has been a quaint little national monument, tucked away in the high desert of southern Idaho. Suddenly Craters is a dozen times larger, and more people than ever are bound to visit.

Now conservationists propose the same dubious salvation for the Owyhee canyonlands. They want Clinton to confer monument status to protect the area from overuse. Yet they say a monument would benefit Owyhee County by attracting more tourist dollars.

With friends like these working to save the West, the West doesn't need any enemies.

The novelty of a greatly expanded Craters of the Moon National Monument is bound to lure more curious visitors. This is protecting it?

Treat livestock humanely

On Monday, a hearing before the county commission was held in which Bill Chisholm and Mike Hiler presented a resolution on behalf of many of us. The resolution concerned the quality-of-life impact of large confined animal feeding operations on all of us. These two citizens deserve much credit.

At adjournment, the commissioners apparently agreed to take the proposals in the resolution under advisement and report back on their conclusions. Perhaps the commissioners should consider another dimension of the CAFO controversy: While the effects on humans of CAFOs in terms of air pollution (odor, etc.) and surface-groundwater pollution are and should be the primary considerations, should not a secondary consideration be for the humane treatment of the animals? Do we have an advocate-lawyer to represent their interests? Isn't the unnatural, even cruel, treatment of the animals themselves an important feature of this controversy? I refer to the traumatic confinement, forced feeding of calves, denial of natural grazing instincts, room to roam, etc. Are there no statutes or ordinances designed to control treatment of these animals? For food, we love milk and milk products, as well as the dead-animal itself. Shouldn't we, therefore, give the best treatment possible while they are alive?

My hope is that humane treatment of animals will someday trump our greed for profits, etc.

To be fair, perhaps the commission has heretofore, on its own initiative, addressed and undertaken action in this area of good husbandry which is often overlooked or ignored.

Early announcements spoil voting

If everything was perfect, I believe Bush would win both popular and electoral votes.

I am partial, a lifelong Republican, but I have tried my best to think this out and believe that if the early announcement had not occurred, Bush would have won Florida by a wider margin and would have gotten many more votes across the country.

We went to vote mid-afternoon, but we usually vote late, and had I seen this announcement that Gore had won even before we went to vote, we would not have voted. I was confident our state and local elections would come out just about as they did, without our votes.

Pay money to the right causes

At long last, an editorial asking the public to pay more money. And coming from the self-professed watchdog of southern Idaho fiscal conservatism.

Are you splurging a school bond? Or just some greedy attempt by Intermountain Gas?

Just for the sake of being funny, read the editorial and replace Intermountain Gas by one of these school districts which you vilify daily. Wow, what a rationale.

Like Dracula, Gore could rise again

JAMES P. PINKERTON

Don't count Al Gore out. As his primetime speech Monday night demonstrated, he's a weak advocate for his own cause. But, fortunately for him, he has an army of far more effective advocates sitting atop the commanding heights of politics, the media and the law.

Did you notice how Gore kept smiling at odd times during his six-flags-over-Washington speech? He even seemed to chuckle outright when he said, "This is America. When votes are cast, we count them."

What's so funny about that? Lots. To start with, on Election Night, the networks announced him as the winner, and then the loser, before the real ballots were tallied in Florida. But what's funniest of all is Gore's promise that just one more count - under his terms, of course - will actually divine the true will of Sunshine State when they traveled to the polls or mailed in their absentee ballots weeks ago. Gore needs a tweak: His sense of the ridiculousness of the whole process threatens to melt his robotic veneer, undermining the gravity of his presentation.

But, for all his defects, Gore has three things going for him.

First, the Democratic tradition of hard-ball politics. Democrats always searching for a "role for government," naturally take to politics; for many, if not most, party activists, government is not only what they believe in, it's how they make their livings.

Second, the media. Reporters are not overly fond of Gore, but they are even less fond of Republicans. Expect an endless stream of articles and books on GOP "thuggery" in Florida, but don't expect many reports on the rich history of vote fraud in Democratic Miami-Dade, for example, and not much coverage of some GI in a camp in Bosnia or Okinawa whose vote was rejected.

Third, the courts. You can't see how a judge or two could give the election to Gore? Maybe you didn't notice how judges in the past conjured up school busing or federally funded pornographic "art."

Judge N. Sanders Sauls' rejection of the Gore campaign's request to start recounting about 13,000 disputed ballots right away was seen as a defeat for the vice president. But the mere fact that Sauls ordered those ballots trucked to Tallahassee gives them a special significance, separate and distinct from the other 6 million ballots cast.

Somehow, someday, they will eventually be "counted" for Gore. And, of course, zillions of the ballots are pending, swirling over the final result like chads waiting to be eaten.

Ah, but so what, you say, if the certification of the state for Bush ultimately stands? You mean the certification by Katherine Harris, that "partisan"? Never mind the fact everyone in Florida politics is a partisan, Democrats will claim that anything she does is reversible - in the courts, in the Electoral College and in Congress.

Whoa, you say. The courts, maybe. But the Electoral College? Congress? If Bush votes out of Florida, he has 271 electoral votes out of 538.

Which is to say, if the Gore-ors - citing lurid tales of voter abuse and brandishing any other kind of cajolery, can "turn" three Bush electors - they win. Longtime Democratic operative Bob Beckel says he is trying to do just that. Gore has said he would not accept the votes of "faithless" electors, but such a statement has, to coin a phrase, no controlling legal authority.

Even if all the electors stay intact for Bush, they face another hurdle. Both houses of Congress, meeting, by law Jan. 6, can join and reject electors from a given state. The new Senate will be split 50-50 between the parties. The tie-breaker, of course, is the president of the Senate and, until Jan. 20, that's Gore.

As for the new House, it will effectively be 221 Republicans and 214 Democrats. Gore & Co., apparently figure that, by mustering all their political, media, and legal muscle, they might peel away four GOPers. Indeed, Rep. Connie Morella, R-Md., whose suburban Washington district went heavily for Gore, has indicated that she would vote with the Democrats in any such showdown.

So, like Arnold Schwarzenegger in the movie "Terminator," Gore keeps grinding forward. You may not like him, but you have to take him seriously. Yes, that had robot in the movie was ultimately defeated, but he would have won if he could have demanded a recount every time he was killed.

Got milk? You should have it

Lisa Hobson posed a question on Nov. 8 about the suitability of milk for human consumption.

The simple answer is that milk is a safe and excellent source of many nutrients. The protein found in milk is of superb quality for the body's needs. Additionally, certain milk proteins may combat cancer and the AIDS virus.

Recent evidence is showing quite clearly that milk fat also possesses beneficial factors. Dairy products are the major source of conjugated linoleic acid, a fatty acid that has been shown unequivocally to inhibit cancer in laboratory animals. Further, research from Finland has demonstrated a 50 percent reduction in risk of breast cancer in women who consumed three glasses of whole milk a day, compared to those that consumed one glass of milk a day.

Milk is the best source for another important nutrient, calcium. Improved bone strength, reduced blood pressure and a lower risk of colon cancer are all well-established benefits of calcium. One needs to consume four cups of milk to meet current recommendations for calcium intake (approximately 1,200 milligrams per day). Of course, you could get your calcium by eating two pounds of cooked spinach or nearly six pounds of broccoli. Orange juice is allowed to list reduced blood pressure as a health benefit due to the presence of potassium. Milk contains nearly 30 percent more potassium than orange juice.

No reputable scientist believes consumption of milk within a normal diet to be an adverse risk for human health. It is difficult to imagine how adverse effects of milk could be true if the documented benefits of the nutrients within milk can prevent cancer, improve bone status and reduce blood pressure. True, milk does contain hormones. But these hormones exist in similar amounts in milk from beef cows as well as in human milk. Further, these hormones have no biological effects on humans other than serving as a source of protein.

Finally, the dairy industry strives for a safe product. Every tanker of milk is tested for antibiotics before it is accepted by the processor. If a load of milk is contaminated, then that milk is removed from the human food chain.

Dairy products can be a part of a healthy human diet. They provide nutrients that humans require. Alternative sources for these nutrients may exist. However, dairy products are the best sources. As parents of three children, we have complete confidence in the safety and healthfulness of dairy products.

Sheriff says escapee 'dropped out of sight'

JEROME - Law enforcement Thursday had no new leads on a man wanted in connection with an escape last week from the Jerome County Jail.

Monty Ray Boston, 23, is still on the loose. Two other inmates wanted in connection with the escape turned themselves in last week.

"Basically, he has dropped out of sight," Jerome County Sheriff Jim Weaver said Thursday afternoon of Boston. "There has been absolutely zero."

Boston might have been, and might still be, in the Boise area. Police have checked two cars Boston might have driven.

The Jerome County Sheriff's Department is distributing fliers of Boston in the Magic Valley, and is getting him listed in America's Most Wanted, Weaver said.

Boston is 5 feet, 11 inches tall and weighs 200 pounds. He has black hair and brown eyes and a tattoo across his chest that says, "Confessing a Feeling." He is considered extremely dangerous.

"Anybody with information about Boston can call 324-8845 during business hours or 735-1911.

TF clinic might decide on a buyer next week

TWIN FALLS - The Twin Falls Clinic & Hospital might decide next week on a buyer.

Clinic doctors will meet next week with the two hospitals seeking to buy or lease the hospital.

"They should have all the information needed," said clinic attorney Rahdy Stamper of Spokane, Wash. "How long they want to chew on it is up to them. This has gone on long enough. It would be healthy to make a decision."

At their last meeting, clinic doctors made a list of questions about potential relationships with the hospitals, and also wanted to talk again with hospital officials.

The hospitals got the questions Thursday, and should provide answers by next week, Stamper said.

Stamper said he will meet with the doctors next week, along with officials from both hospitals in separate meetings. No dates have been set yet.

Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise are both seeking the hospital. Their proposals are confidential.

OHV guideline release gets delayed again

TWIN FALLS - The release of new guidelines for governing motorized recreation on public lands has been delayed again.

The Bureau of Land Management had expected to release the rules in early November, and in mid-November announced that the guidelines would be released Thursday.

With that deadline missed, the new guidelines are expected today or Monday, BLM spokesman Barry Rose said Thursday.

BLM officials intend the plan to recognize the interests of high-way user groups and still protect environmentally sensitive public lands.

The plan will be available initially on the BLM's Internet site. Printed copies will then be available at state and field offices. In the Magic Valley, BLM offices are in Burley, Twin Falls and Shoshone.

The plan will be open for public comment through Jan. 19, 2001.

World AIDS Day procession to begin

TWIN FALLS - The American Red Cross, the College of Southern Idaho and the South Central Idaho AIDS Coalition will hold a candle-light procession for World AIDS Day at 5:15 p.m. this evening at City Park.

The event will feature local singer-songwriter Suzanne Just and nationally known speaker Al Chaz.

Refreshments will be served.

Lawmakers dislike mining restrictions

By Megan Scully
States News Service

WASHINGTON - New mining regulations, set to go into effect in January, have drawn the ire of Western lawmakers.

They fear the rules will pose a national security risk and significantly affect the economy of Western states, including Idaho.

The regulations on hard rock mining, released last week by the Bureau of Land Management, are the first revisions to the agency's mineral rules in 20 years.

The BLM has hailed the regulations as necessary to protect public health and the environment, and an effective measure to prevent further degradation of public land from hard rock mining.

But Western lawmakers, who urged the administration to include them in any decisions regarding the future of the mining industry, are vowing to combat the regulations with legislation designed to protect miners.

Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, "has had the door open to the administration to sit down and rewrite mining law," said Craig spokesman Will Hart. "The administration has decided not to (consult with Congress), but changed mining law through rules and regulations."

"The Western Governors' Association, chaired by Idaho Gov. Dirk Kempthorne, and several Western congressmen have expressed their concerns, and have urged the administration to weaken the restrictions."

Those rules could harm an already struggling industry that is vital to the West. Gold prices have dropped, and mines across the Rocky Mountain region are struggling to remain open, opponents of the regulations say.

With tougher regulations, legislators say more mines will fail.

Rep. Jim Gibbons, R-New Mexico, says his state stands to lose at least 3,200 jobs and face a $351 million economic shortfall because of the new regulations.

The BLM says the rules will affect only new mines.

"All current activities will continue," said Larry Finfer, a BLM spokesman. "The existing operations are grandfathered."

The economic failure of mines has little to do with federal regulations and more to do with world metals prices, he said.

But Western lawmakers are still wary about any new regulations, including rules being drafted by the U.S. Forest Service.

The BLM rules threaten national security, since they cover minerals used for military hardware, and threaten local economies.

"Mining operations provide the bulk of high-paying jobs in predominantly rural areas of the West, and they provide an important revenue to the states," Kempthorne wrote in a recent letter to Defense Secretary William Cohen. "The mining industry also continues to play an important role in the nation's economy and security."

A festive occasion

Festival to feature original trees

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY - Blame it on The Grinch.

The fuzzy green holiday spoilsport has Hailey's Festival of Trees in a dither this year. Not only has he taken captive one tree but he's turned another completely upside down.

He's trying to steal it, just as he trying to steal Christmas at movie theaters across the nation.

Patti Freestone, had the idea. Her husband Mike and daughter Erica are helping her carry it out, figuring out how to stand a six-foot artificial Christmas tree on the wrong end and mount the presents on top - the original underside of the tree.

It's complicated.

Want to know more?

The Festival of Trees will be held from noon to 9 p.m. today, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday at the National Guard Armory in Halley.

Admission is $3 for adults and $2 for children with family rates available. A Children's Holiday Wonderland and Teddy Bear Tea will be introduced to the Festival of Trees on Saturday. The wonderland will feature a full day of children's activities, such as cookie decorating and crafts. It also will feature pony-riding at 10 a.m., learning to sign "Silent Night" at 11 a.m., a miniature horse at 12:15 p.m., Santa at 1 p.m., The Amazing Juggler at 2 p.m. and The Birthday Box at 3 p.m.

Moms and daughters in grades kindergarten through sixth, are invited to the tea from 2 to 3:30 p.m. It will include entertainment, prizes, a fashion show and cookies. The cost is $5 for adults and $3 for daughters ($10 for a Mom with two daughters and $12 for a Mom with three children). For reservations, call 788-3458.

And it took the Freestone family 10 hours to figure out all the details. But you can be sure it'll be a show-stopper at the fourth annual Festival of Trees, which begins today and runs through Sunday at the Halley

Christmas carols in Spanish.

On Saturday the armory will be transformed into a Children's Holiday Wonderland with a host of activities including entertainment by Peter the Paper Hanger and The Amazing Juggler and a Teddy Bear tea for Moms and their daughters.

ACEQUIA - With the future of Acequia Elementary School uncertain, the Minidoka School Board has called a special meeting on Monday at the school.

At a meeting Wednesday with Kent Krohn, an architect with Leatham, Krohn, and Van Ocker Architects of Boise, the school board examined a preliminary plan in which Acequia would receive $515,000 out of the proposed $16.4 million facility improvement plan.

Of the money allotted for Acequia, $215,000 was earmarked for site work, renovation and fire alarm installation. The remaining $300,000 would go toward a handicapped ramp at the gymnasium and to install either new handicapped-accessible bathrooms or a ramp to the existing bathrooms.

Currently, the area to the west of the gymnasium, which will be

Environmental lecture to focus on global issues

By Pat Murphy
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY - Speakers at a local lecture series Saturday will offer a global view of environmental issues.

The second annual Frank Church lecture series, running from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday at the Elkhorn Resort, will expand to encompass global environmental problems and questions. The program is titled "Globalization and the Environment: What are the Tradeoffs?"

Admission is free.

Leading the lineup of speakers is Timothy Wirth, former congressman and U.S. senator from Colorado, who now heads the United Nations Foundation. The foundation - created with a $1 billion donation from broadcast mogul Ted Turner - aims to assist United Nations programs addressing women's issues, population, children's health, the environment and human rights.

Wirth will speak on the need for a combined international assault to solve global problems.

Making a return appearance is Roderick Nash, an author and professor emeritus of history and environmental studies at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

Attendees at the conference will have the opportunity to have lunch with Wirth and Nash in small groups, as well as several other speakers, to discuss environmental problems and solutions.

List names influential organizations

The Times-News

BOISE - Several organizations based in the Magic Valley, or with operations in the area, have made a list ranking the state's 100 most influential non-government organizations.

The list was compiled by Ridenbaugh Press publisher Randy Staplus, with advice from Idaho economists and others familiar with Idaho business and economics.

"This is an entirely subjective list," Staplus, a longtime Idaho journalist and political observer, said in a news release. "Contributors were encouraged to consider a variety of criteria, but they ranked the business according to their own evaluations within each category."

Criteria used to compile the list included the number of employees, the type of organization, involvement in Idaho public affairs and an estimate of how different Idaho would be if the business or organization departed.

For the first time, church organizations were included on the list.

The top 10 includes:

1. Micron Technology, not directly involved in the Magic Valley.
2. Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, a Utah-based church which counts 25 percent of Idaho residents as members.
3. Bechtel BWXT Idaho, LLC, which has no operations in the Magic Valley, but contributes a large amount of money to economic development activities.
4. Albertson's Food & Drug, the Boise-based grocery chain, with several locations in the Magic Valley, and one of the two or three largest grocery store companies in the world.
5. J.R. Simplot Co., which operates a potato processing plant in Heyburn and operates the state's largest cattle operation.
6. Idaho Power, which has operations, including a string of hydropower dams, throughout southern Idaho.
7. Roman Catholic Church (Boise Diocese), the second largest church in Idaho.

Other organizations with Magic Valley ties include:

Elko begins superintendent search

By G. Andre Begin Times-News correspondent

ELKO, Nev. - Elko School District Superintendent Marcia Bandera retiring from the top spot in June and the School Board is now searching for her replacement.

An ad hoc search committee made up of school officials and community leaders will take on the challenge of replacing Bandera, a former-deputy superintendent with the Nevada Department of Education.

As the state deputy superintendent, Bandera supervised special education, elementary and secondary education and research and testing, managed the budget and acted as the legislative liaison.

Bandera, 52, came to Elko as a director of instruction in 1992. She said she decided to leave the state office because "they are too far removed" from the classroom teaching process.

"I wanted to be where I could see where the needs came from," Bandera said in an interview in August 1992.

Bandera became the superintendent in 1994, replacing retiring Superintendent Paul Billings. She holds a bachelor's degree in nursing and a master's degree in educational administration from the University of Nevada, Reno.

Bandera makes $91,612 annually and has declined raises over the years.

Her career in education was recognized earlier this year when she was named Nevada Superintendent of the Year by the Nevada Association of School Administrators.

Prairie railroad dream loses steam

LEWISTON (AP) - What may be the last train to run on tracks connecting Lewiston and Grangeville has completed its journey.

The trip, which started Tuesday, took two days with stops in Lapwai, Craigmont, Grangeville and Cottonwood. At about 8:30 a.m. Wednesday, the train left Cottonwood, heading for Craigmont and Reubens.

The train had 28 cars, including 19 cars filled with grain and four containing cattle.

"It was an uneventful run. I don't think there were any problems with the weather," vice president and general manager of Camas Prairie Railroad, Kevin Spradlin, said about the 91-year-old line's last trip.

In September, the Surface Transportation Board in Washington, D.C., approved a request by Camas Prairie Railroad to abandon 67 miles of track. The railroad was losing money operating the line.

With its 3,000-foot climb in elevation and numerous trestles and tunnels, the line was featured in the movie "Wild, Wild West" and "Breakheart Pass."

City seeks to prevent downtown center

OGDEN, Utah (AP) - The city is seeking to prevent a church from opening a center of downtown for low-income people.

The New Day Christian Resource Life Center wants to open the facility for low-income people to "reconstruct their lives."

"It's interesting that the city would come out against something that wants to help the city," New Day director/pastor Ray Sarter said.

There are locations where they (homeless shelters and soup kitchens) are appropriate, and downtown is not one of them," said Greg Montgomery, city planning manager.

The building is in the Central Business District Zone, which does allow soup kitchens, homeless shelters, missions.

Sarter said the center is none of the above.

He said New Day requires participants to sign a six-month contract to stay in the program. It is meant to help people who are low-income, but not necessarily homeless, become productive citizens and reconstruct their lives.

"We are not going to be a slop house," Sarter said.

Sarter said participants, many of whom have government benefits, agree to pay 30 percent of their income for rent. They will also be required to attend classes for resume writing, life skills, job placement, personal finance and spirituality.

The zoning restrictions have been around since the mid 80's, Montgomery said. What is new is that in the last year, the city has "strengthened the regulations" behind the zoning after becoming concerned that "every other house was a rehab, and there was no neighborhood left."

"If you want to promote downtown, you don't do it by making it so people don't want to go down there," Montgomery said.

Elna O. Lowe

Elna O. Lowe, 79, of Twin Falls died Wednesday, Nov. 29, 2000, at SunBridge Care and Rehabilitation Center.

She was born Nov. 23, 1921, in View, Idaho, the daughter of Richard and Laverne Johnson.

She attended schools in Hazelton and Buhl. Elna married Russell Lowe on Aug. 22, 1941, in Marlaugh, and their marriage was later solemnized in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple.

She and Russell lived throughout the Magic Valley until he died on March 8, 1996. Mrs. Lowe was a member of the LDS church where she taught in Primary and was a Visiting Teacher, and was also a member of the Synrge Club in Burley. She enjoyed all types of crafts, including embroidery, ceramics, making porcelain dolls, doing beadwork, but the love of her life was spending time with her family especially her grandchildren and great grandchildren whom she adored.

She is survived by four children, Dencie (Harry) Meyer of Blackfoot, Idaho, Russell (Caryn) Lowe of Boise, Idaho, Ralph E. Lowe of Twin Falls, J. Michael (Jen) Lowe of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, 12 grandchildren, 16 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

Funeral services for Elna O. Lowe, will be conducted 3:30 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 2, 2000, at White Mortuary Chapel, with Bishop, Melvin VanNoy conducting interment will follow in the Twin Falls Cemetery.

Evelyn L. Malberg

Evelyn L. Malberg, 93, of Twin Falls, Idaho, died Wednesday, Nov. 29, 2000, at her home in Twin Falls.

She was born May 6, 1917, in Logan, Ill., the daughter of Elmer and Marie Gough Latham. She attended schools in Kimberly, where she graduated in 1935. The next year she married John Baly in Rupert, Idaho. They made their home in Burley for most of their adult lives.

After Mr. Baly died in 1983, she enjoyed many wonderful years with Judge Sherman Bellwood, until his death.

Ada was a member of the Buhl Methodist Church, Buhl Senior Citizens Center, and worked at the polling precincts during elections for many years.

She is survived by two daughters, Jean Meyer of Hot Springs Village, Ark., Judy McCroskey of Asotin, Wash., three granddaughters, Tamara Hoke of California, Wendy Bassett of Albuquerque, N.M., Amy Meyer of Little Rock, Ark., and two great-grandsons, Aidan Bassett McLaughlin, and Treva Hoke.

In addition to her husband's death, she was preceded in death by one brother, Charles Latham.

The family would like to express their appreciation to the wonderful staff at Alterra, who have become like family, for their loving care and friendship to Ada during her three years there.

Gravestone services for Ada Baly will be conducted 10 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 2, 2000, at Sunset Memorial Park, with Rev. Dale Metzger officiating. Friends may call at White Mortuary, Friday from 4-8 p.m. The family suggests memorials to the Buhl Senior Citizens Center, c/o White Mortuary, Box 845, Twin Falls, ID 83303-0845.

Tribe offers to help repaint mascot mural

LEWISTON (AP) - The Nez Perce Tribe is offering to help Salmon River High School students repaint their mascot after students decided to replace the 65-year-old Indian Savages mascot with dual mascots featuring a white woman and white man, both riding horses.

The students said they did not believe the Indian Savages portrayal was derogatory, but they wanted to have a symbol that did not offend other cultures.

Principal Marilyn Giddings said students met recently with the superintendent of the school to discuss the mural. Giddings said the mural is in the gymnasium.

Scott said he offered his assistance because he was impressed students took the initiative to change the image out of concern for others.

"They just showed a lot of class," he said.

Giddings said the students are delaying in accepting the tribe's offer in an attempt not to hurt other artists' feelings who may also be interested in painting the mural.

If the tribe's offer is accepted, as Giddings expects it will be, it will eliminate having to raise money to paint the murals, one on each end of the gymnasium.

Hospital admits Hemingway's son

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Hemingway, the Idaho conservationist and sometime writer who is the eldest son of novelist Ernest Hemingway, was hospitalized in critical condition Thursday following complications from heart surgery.

The 76-year-old, born John Hadley Nicanor Hemingway, was in "very critical condition" Thursday, said New York Weill-Cornell Medical Center spokeswoman Kathy Robinson. She said the family asked that no further information be released.

He is the father of actress

Marlee Matlin, Hemingway's actress-model daughter, who died of a drug overdose in 1996, and an older daughter, Muffet.

His sister-in-law, Bee Pierce, told The Idaho Statesman on Wednesday that he fell ill while en route to Europe, underwent surgery but went into cardiac arrest when a suture burst. She said Hemingway was on life support and family members were deciding whether to discontinue the treatment.

Hemingway's early life was recounted in his father's "A Moveable Feast."

The boy, nicknamed "Bumby," spent his toddler years in Parisian cafes frequented by writers such as F. Scott Fitzgerald, Gertrude Stein and her partner, Alice B. Toklas, were his godparents and frequently babysat for him.

As a teen-ager, he visited his father in Pamplona, Spain; Havana, and Key West, Fla., where the pair bonded by hunting, fishing and boxing together.

The elder Hemingway committed suicide in Ketchum, Idaho, where he had a home, in 1961.

"When he was with you, you were the total center of his attention. But when I left to go back to school, I was out of his mind," Hemingway told The New York Times in June 1999.

"He was my hero."

Hemingway, a big and stout man who resembled his famous father, recalled their relationship in his 1986 memoir, "The Misadventures of a Fly Fisherman: My Life With and Without Papa."

A longtime Idaho resident, he served as a member of the state's fish and game commission and is known for his conservation efforts.

Safe Kids Coalition offers car seat checks

The Times-News

RUPERT — The first of three car safety seat check programs, offered by the Magic Valley Safe Kids Coalition, will be held today.

Safety technicians will check seats to make sure they haven't been recalled, check installation, and see whether it needs to be replaced.

The checks are free.

Today's checks will be offered from 4 to 7 p.m. at Workman Pontiac Cadillac GMC Buick, Fifth and E streets, Rupert.

Future checks are slated for 4 to 7 p.m. on Dec. 8 at the Twin Falls Festival of Trees, 241 Main Ave. W. in Twin Falls; and from 4 to 7 p.m. on Dec. 15 at Bonanza Motors, 325 Overland Ave., Burley.

Babbitt: Instinct says to make recommendation

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt says he is inclined to recommend that Pompeys Pillar, the sandstone butte in south Central Montana bearing explorer William Clark's carved signature, be designated a national monument.

"My instinct listening to you is, 'Yes, I should make a recommendation to the president,'" Babbitt said during a public meeting here Wednesday. "I haven't heard anything that would dissuade me from doing that."

President Clinton can make the designation by executive order; congressional approval is not required.

The site is now a national historic landmark; national monument status would afford greater protections. Babbitt said he has discussed the change with Montana's congressional delegation, American Indian leaders and local officials.

He also heard mostly positive comments Wednesday from area residents and those interested in preserving the site, but there was some concern about future development near Pompeys Pillar, including construction of a high-speed grain elevator.

Babbitt said monument status would not restrict activities off of the Bureau of Land Management land where the butte is located.

The elevated status was a welcome prospect for officials and preservationists and those interested in promoting Montana during the upcoming bicentennial of the Lewis and Clark Expedition. A new interpretive center already is planned.

Pompeys Pillar, about 25 miles east of Billings along the Yellowstone River, is expected to attract 200,000 visitors a year during the 2004-2006 bicentennial, manager Dick Kodeski said. That compares to about 40,000 visitors over the past year.

Grinches from clay ones to hand puppet ones to Beany Baby Grinches. There's even a Grinch "star" on top, its little beady yellow eyes twinkling above its defiant smile.

Poo Wright-Pulliam, the bird-woman of the Wood River Valley, decked a live pine with "ornaments" — black sunflower seeds couched in half-orange holders, cranberry strings and pine cones smeared with peanut butter and bird seed. The tree is designed to be left outside for the birds to munch on, she said. T h e

Rotary Club put together a Vintage Fifties tree featuring some of the best loved toys of all time — Slinkys, Tinker Toys, pin-wheels and yo-yos.

Judy Whitmyre lassooed a cowboy Christmas tree, complete with clay cowboy boots, call ropers, saddles, steer riders and a tree-topping Santa Claus sheriff, augmented by lariat ornaments, straw bows and rusted tin stars she found at Joann's Fabrics in Twin Falls.

It was one of four trees Whitmyre, a design major in chillege, put together for the festival.

"Christmas has always been an exciting time of the year for me. It's a time when I can express my creativity," she said. "The only problem is that by the time I'm finished here I have no interest in decorating my own tree."

Last year's festival raised $21,000 for the Blaine County Senior Citizen Center, said coordinator Marcia Mode-Stavros.

This year's proceeds will help with remodeling the dining room in the senior center and subsidizing Meals for Wheels. It also will be used to provide nutritious snacks for KidShop, a before-and-after school program.

Plan

Superintendent Nick Hallett described the decision to only allocate $515,000 to Acequia in an analogy using an old car.

"You wouldn't put enough money in a 10-to-12-year-old car to make it brand new," he said. "But if it is reliable, you might put enough money in it to keep it going."

Comments from the community will be considered in the final plan.

"I think the board meeting will be interesting," Acequia Principal Terry Garner said. "We need people to come and bring positive ideas, not just criticisms."

Ideas, both from the staff and administration at the school and from parents and residents of Acequia, will be considered, Hallett said. He added that Garner had already approached him with other suggestions about how that money might be spent.

While the facility is outdated, it is still very serviceable; board member George MacDonald said.

"There is some substantial amount of classroom space that is in good condition," MacDonald said.

But school officials said all talk about spending the money is contingent on voters approving a plant facility levy. A vote on the levy would likely take place on Feb. 6, 2001.

Lecture

The Environmental Resource Center of Ketchum is sponsoring the program, with grants from the Idaho Humanities Council and Base Mountain Properties.

Since Idaho industry and agriculture increasingly are becoming major exporters to international markets, the ERC is expanding the theme to include global perspectives on the environment, center executive director Molly Goodyear said.

As more Americans understand the importance of the environment on a society, they believe good environmental habits around the world will benefit everyone, Goodyear said.

The annual lectures are named after the late U.S. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

INS deports family after 10 years

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A family of illegal immigrants from Poland who had lived in Spokane the past 10 years were deported Thursday by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Friends of Bogdan and Miro Babinski were outraged at the government's insistence that the couple and daughter Martyna leave the United States.

"They're a hardworking couple who just wanted to be citizens," said Linda Green, a friend and neighbor. "We let every Tom, Dick and Harry in here. We let people in here who are on welfare. Here you have hardworking people."

INS officials said the couple lost their court challenges to deportation orders, and later staged fraudulent marriages in an effort to remain here. "They came as visitors and never went home," Irene Mortensen, INS spokeswoman in Seattle, said Thursday. "Their claims were denied by the courts and they're going home."

The family boarded a plane Thursday morning, Mortensen said. They did not have to pay for 'Their claims were denied by the courts and they're going home.'

— Irene Mortensen, INS spokeswoman the flight to Poland.

The INS has no leeway in such matters, she said. Bogdan Babinski worked as a meat cutter for S&P Meats Inc. His wife worked at the Colonial Care nursing home. Their daughter was a middle school student. The family's fight to remain in the United States effectively ended Sept. 29, 1997, when the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused to review their case.

They were ordered to report for deportation on Jan. 30, 1998, but did not respond.

On Nov. 20 of this year, INS agents arrested the family in the home they built four years ago on Spokane's South Hill.

The parents were sent to a Seattle detention facility. Their daughter was kept at Martin Hall, a juvenile detention facility in Medical Lake that contracts with the INS.

Teachers and some friends were allowed to visit Martyna.

Green called INS officials, politicians and attorneys in a futile search for help. Their daughters were best friends and were on the swim team together. "She doesn't know Polish, so she won't know how to go back to school there," Green said of Martyna. "We want to help, we just don't know who to call."

The Babinskis arrived in the United States in April 1990. When Miro Babinski began working a few months later, she hardily spoke English, Sarff said, but she became a favorite of residents of the home.

Residents have been asking where she went, Sarff said.

Co-worker Penny Clarke said the family arrived here with all their possessions in one suitcase. "They wanted to come to the United States to better themselves and make a good home life for Martyna," Clarke said.

Man gets life for Yosemite killing

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — A motel handyman was sentenced to life without parole Thursday for beheading a Yosemite National Park naturalist, clearing the way for his trial in the grisly slayings of three tourists.

Under a plea bargain that spared him the possibility of a death sentence, Cary Stayner, 39, admitted he killed 26-year-old Joie Armstrong last year after kidnapping and trying to sexually assault her.

"I gave in to the terrible dark dreams that I tried to subdue," a sobbing Stayner, shackled and wearing a yellow prison jumpsuit, said in federal court. "The craziness that lurked in my mind for as long as I can remember became a reality in this terrible crime, and I am sorry, and ashamed."

Stayner is also accused of killing Yosemite tourist Carole Sund, 42, her daughter Juli, 15, and their Argentine friend Silvana Pelosso, 16. Prosecutors have not said whether they will seek the death penalty.

The three were last seen alive in February 1999 at a motel outside the park where Stayner lived and worked. More than a month later, a burned rental car was found abandoned along logging road. In the trunk were the bodies of Mrs. Sund and Pelosso. Juli Sund's body was found later in a thick forest.

Armstrong's headless body was found in the woods near where she lived in the park. Stayner was arrested three days later, after a sweeping investigation and manhunt that began five months earlier when the three tourists disappeared.

In court, Armstrong's mother, Leslie, wept as he addressed her.

"I wish I could take it back, but I can't," Stayner told her. "I wish I could tell you why I did such a thing, but I don't even know myself."

Leslie Armstrong said she can foresee forgiving her daughter's killer someday.

Fire destroys school's oldest building

REXBURG (AP) — The oldest building at Ricks College was destroyed by fire Wednesday as it was being demolished.

The Jacob Spori building, built in 1903, was being demolished by a bulldozer Wednesday, school spokesman Don Sparhawk said.

"A cable accidentally sparked the fire after 3 a.m., Sparhawk said. Fire and school officials allowed the blaze to finish the job the demolition crew had begun.

Officials of the Mormon church-owned school plan to build a new Spori building to once again house the school's communication and arts departments.

In June, the church announced plans to expand Ricks College to a four-year institution and eventually rename it Brigham Young University-Idaho.

Letter says representative's report on cleanup had errors

COEUR D'ALENE - The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency calls Rep. Helen Chenoweth-Hage's hefty critique about its cleanup operations in the Silver Valley either in error or a mischaracterization.

Chenoweth-Hage last month published a 60-page report accusing the agency of wasting millions of taxpayer dollars with "questionable results."

"But the department in a written response defends its cleanup efforts with the state and mining companies, citing dramatic decreases in the average blood-lead level of children at Bunker Hill.

"We are absolutely confident that the cleanup of yards, public areas, rights of way and commercial properties has resulted in a healthier place for the children of the Silver Valley to live," an enclosure with the letter states.

Cleanup activities included removing lead-laced soil from more than 1,700 residential and commercial properties and 2.5 million cubic yards of mine tailings from the South Fork of the Coeur d'Alene River and tributary gulches, agency officials said.

The average blood-lead level in Bunker Hill children dropped from 40 to 4 micrograms per deciliter over the past 15 to 20 years, the letter states.

Accusations from Chenoweth-Hage and other critics that buried waste is leaching toxic metals into the South Fork are unproven, the letter continues. It labels the lawmaker's claims "either factually in error or a mischaracterization of our work in the Silver Valley.

Opening arguments begin in 25-year-old Idaho murder

RIGBY (AP) - Opening arguments in the murder trial of a Mexican national who had been living in Cassia County in recent months saw lawyers tell witnesses in two languages about events leading to the grisly discovery of Juan Huizar's body 25 years ago.

Ramirio Resendez, 47, is charged with second-degree murder for Huizar's stabbing death. The two men, both in their mid-20s at the time, worked together at the Linden Butkoff Ranch near Roberts until Huizar was killed on June 15, 1975.

Resendez contends he killed his former roommate and friend in self defense. He faces up to life in prison if convicted. Authorities say Resendez fled to Mexico after the slaying, then returned and had been living near Burley with relatives.

Prosecutor Stephen Clark referred to wounds on Huizar's back as evidence that Huizar was not attacking Resendez when the two got into an alcohol-charged argument about who was responsible for moving some irrigation pipe.

"That body tells a story - there were cuts on his right wrist, on his right temple down to the bone, stabs in the back, a stab in the buttocks and, when he was turned over they found a cut on the right side of his chest and the left side of his chest," Clark said on Wednesday. "Within minutes of being stabbed, Juan was bleeding to death."

But defense attorney R. Keith Roark told jurors the fight started with punches being thrown before the two men fell to the ground "wrestling, grappling."

Once on the ground, Roark said, Huizar hit Resendez with a metal sprinkler head, opening a deep gash in Resendez's head before choking the wounded Resendez with a piece of irrigation pipe. Fearing for his life, Resendez reached for the 6-inch dagger he had in his waistband, the lawyer said.

"He began to stab Huizar in the back, flailing with the knife in his right hand," Roark said. "He never had any intention of killing anyone, or even getting into a fight. He feared for his life so he struck back as hard as he could."

Resendez fled to Arizona before being deported to Mexico and returning to the United States a few years later. He worked in California and Idaho before being arrested in Boise last May.

"Ramirio knew there would be an investigation, but he didn't know how seriously he had hurt Juan Huizar," Roark said.

High court overturns campaign finance fine

BOISE (AP) - The Idaho Supreme Court, in its first review of the state's 26-year-old Sunshine Law on campaign finance disclosure, overturned a $100 fine imposed on a failed Democratic legislative candidate and his treasurer.

But both sides said the 4-1 opinion issued Thursday, with Justice Wayne-Kidwell dissenting, sidestepped the central issue on appeal: whether money spent on a candidate's behalf amounts to a reportable contribution.

And Chief Deputy Secretary of State Ben Ysursa said the damage the ruling could do to the principle of requiring that political contributions be reported before an election goes far beyond the size of the fine.

"This is really, in our opinion, contrary to the spirit of the Sunshine Law, which is public disclosure," Ysursa said.

The decision reversed a ruling against Lewiston attorney John Bradbury and campaign treasurer Susan Cook by former 2nd District Judge Ida Rudolph Leggett.

In late October 1998, Leggett upheld a magistrate's ruling that Bradbury and Cook failed to disclose a contribution from the state Democratic Party within 48 hours of its receipt, as required by the Sunshine Law.

The $2,861 contribution consisted of brochures sent out on Bradbury's behalf before he lost his 1996 general election contest to Republican Rep. Dan Mader of Genesee.

Former zoo manager files grievance over firing

BOISE (AP) - Former Zoo Boise manager David Wayne has filed a grievance with the city over his firing in the wake of an August tiger mauling at the zoo.

Wayne, the zoo's manager for 24 years, was terminated on Tuesday by Mayor Brent Coles. The mayor would say only that he was disturbed by information on Wayne's role in the tiger attack compiled by Community Ombudsman Pierce Murphy. Meanwhile, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has fined the zoo $950 and issued a warning after conducting an investigation into the tiger attack.

Until a new zoo manager can be hired, Jim Dumont, Boise's superintendent of recreation, and Greg Callahan, the lead zookeeper, will do the job on an interim basis. They have been running the zoo since Wayne was put on administrative leave several days after the attack, city officials said.

"The city has 10 days to set a hearing in response to Wayne's grievance, said Tammy Rice, city human resources director. A grievance process can take up to 15 days before a finding is reached, she said.

Panhandle motel refuses to let Aryan leader preach

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) - A Sandpoint-based racist organization vowed to pursue legal action after a northern Idaho motel canceled a room rental agreement.

Vincent Bertolini, who calls himself an evangelist with the 24 Hour Remnant Messenger, said he rented the conference room to give Aryan Nations leader Richard Butler a pulpit for Sunday services.

Butler, 82, lost his 20-acre church and compound north of Hayden Lake in October, a month after a Kootenai County jury returned a $6.3 million civil damages award.

Butler has conducted small group services in a $107,000 home in Hayden that Bertolini bought after the Aryan leader moved out of his compound.

"Pastor Butler is preaching again!" Bertolini said in an e-mail announcement this week after renting the conference room at the Silver Lake Motel in Hayden.

"Let's fill it up," he said.

Court upholds refusal to divulge information about tax liens

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - The Utah Tax Commission's refusal to publicly divulge information about tax liens against politicians or residents has been upheld by the state Records Committee.

The committee voted 4-3 Wednesday to deny an appeal of the tax agency's confidentiality decision by the Deseret News.

"The Tax Commission does have an obligation to protect the taxpayer information," said Max Evans, a records committee member and director of the state Division of History.

Evans said state law prohibits the tax agency from releasing tax liens and other information dealing with delinquent payment or nonpayment of individual income or corporate income taxes. Committee Chairwoman Betsy Ross, a government attorney, agreed.

"This statute does hamstring us," Ross said.

Joel Campbell, a Deseret News associate editor, argued that the Tax Commission's claimed cloak of confidentiality threatens the concept of open and accountable government.

"Taken to its conclusion, it could mean that everything to do with tax returns or anything the Tax Commission does is secret," said Campbell.

Crusading congressman

Lawmaker targets 'blood diamonds' in latest cause

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Tony Hall once fasted for 22 days to draw attention to U.S. hunger and endured a torrent of hate mail for suggesting Congress apologize for slavery.

Now he has a new cause: Trying to get holiday shoppers to avoid buying "blood diamonds" - gems whose sales fund African wars in which many civilians are victims of atrocities.

Working with Amnesty International, Physicians for Human Rights and others, the Ohio Democrat is organizing a protest Saturday outside a Tiffany & Co. store in a Washington suburb. The groups previously demonstrated at a Cartier's in New York City and may hold other protests elsewhere.

"Americans see images of starving people, death and calamity and they turn the television off. They don't know what to do about it," Hall said. "There is something they can do about this. They don't have to buy a diamond without knowing the country of origin."

So, at a time when many Americans are focused on cookie recipes, decorations and holiday discounts, Hall will be describing a Sierra Leone girl who was 2.5 when rebels hacked off her hand. And he'll tell of the teen rape victim left pregnant and armless in a savage campaign to punish villagers for voting in Sierra Leone's first free election.

Diamonds are a $6 billion-a-year industry worldwide, with Americans making two-thirds of all diamond purchases. Industry officials estimate that "conflict diamonds" account for about 4 percent world diamond trade; human rights organizations say the number is closer to 15 percent.

Responding to pressure from governments, human rights groups and Hall, the World Diamond Council last summer approved measures to track diamonds from the mine to the jewelry store. The industry has promised to levy severe penalties on dealers who break the rules.

On Friday in New York, the U.N. General Assembly is expected to take up a draft resolution calling for the creation of an international certification scheme for rough, uncut diamonds to ensure they aren't coming from rebel-held mines in war zones. Already, there are national certification systems in Angola and Sierra Leone to allow those governments to continue exporting diamonds while a ban on rebel diamond exports is enacted.

Rep. Tony Hall, D-Ohio, testifies on African Diamonds Sept. 13 on Capitol Hill.

Tiffany & Co. says it does not do business with known suppliers of conflict diamonds, saying in a written statement it is "at the forefront of efforts to eradicate the tiny percentage of illicit stones at issue."

Matthew Runci, executive director of the World Diamond Council, said the problem "isn't something that can be solved with a demonstration in front of a store."

Though Hall said he is not calling for a diamond boycott because it could hurt diamond-producing democracies such as Australia and South Africa, Runci said those countries still could be affected.

Hall responded, "All we're going to say is, you know where your shirt comes from, where your shoes come from. Find out where the diamond comes from before you buy it."

School bus accident claims boy, 5

HERNDON, Ky. (AP) - A school bus overturned Thursday morning, killing a 5-year-old kindergartner student and sending more than 30 other children to area hospitals. State Police Trooper Chuck Robertson said the bus carrying 47 children apparently ran off the shoulder of the road and the driver overcorrected, sending the bus across both lanes before it overturned. The kindergartner, a boy, apparently was ejected from the bus, Christian County Coroner Dorris Lamb said.

Hamlet, left, played by Beau Davidson, and King Claudius, played by Jud Harmon, perform a scene in the College of Southern Idaho Theater Department's updated performance of William Shakespeare's 'Hamlet.'

CSI drama department updates 'Hamlet'

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Now a word from the original Backstreet Boys...

"We decided to modernize 'Hamlet,' set it in a back alley," said College of Southern Idaho Theater Department instructor Laine Steel. "And to cut some of the dialogue and characters. I don't think people here would sit still for a three-and-half-hour 'Hamlet.'"

Though Shakespeare has been updated and moved to a bad neighborhood before ("West Side Story" and Baz Luhrman's 1996 movie version of "Romeo and Juliet," to name two), this production remains faithful to the essential themes of power,

What: The College of Southern Idaho Theater Department will present William Shakespeare's "Hamlet."

Where: Room 115, College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Center auditorium, Twin Falls.

When: Wednesday, Thursday and Dec. 8, 9, 13-14, 15-16, 8 p.m.

How much: Tickets, which are $5 for general admission and $3 for students and senior citizens, may be purchased at the Fine Arts box office between 3-4 p.m. Monday through Friday or by calling 733-9554, Ext. 2625. Due to limited seating, reservations should be made early.

revenge and existentialism. And it comes on the heels of

William Shakespeare

CSI's season-opening production of Paul Rudnick's "I Hate Hamlet," though that's a coincidence, Steel said. "That just happened to be the first play scheduled," he said. "They're not related."

It's the first time that Steel has directed "Hamlet" in his many years of teaching drama - and Shakespeare - at CSI. But it's a project he's looked forward to with anticipation.

"It's a great learning play for (drama students)," he said. "We can involve a lot of people (there are 20 members of the cast) and it's popular with audiences."

CSI sophomore Beau Davidson, who played Proteus in last spring's production of "Two Gentlemen of Verona," gets the title role.

"It's very demanding because Hamlet is on the stage for so much of the time," Steel said. "But Beau has worked hard and he does it well."

Light up the town Company of Fools gussies up 'A Christmas Carol'

Expanded downtown holiday Festival of Lights Parade rolls

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - In its eighth year, downtown's Festival of Lights Parade is taking a new turn.

The route of tonight's parade has been expanded to include more of downtown Twin Falls and Old Towne, according to Tim Jones, the executive director of the Historic Old Towne Twin Falls Business Improvement District.

Lighted floats, sponsored by merchants and civic organizations, will highlight the event. Businesses throughout the downtown area will be open after the parade.

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY - Company of Fools is about to launch into "A Christmas Carole," the best-known Christmas tale in the world after that of the Baby Jesus and " 'Twas the Night Before Christmas."

But you can bet the presents under your Christmas tree that you've never seen it presented the way this innovative company from Hailey is about to present it.

The story, set against a backdrop that resembles a pop-out Victorian Christmas card, will be dramatized as if it were a ghost story being told to a little boy.

All the actors and actresses, save for the one playing Ebenezer Scrooge, will zip in and out of three roles as speedily as Santa gets sucked down a chimney.

Chad Smith stars as Ebenezer Scrooge in Company of Fools production of 'A Christmas Carol' tonight through Dec. 30 at the Liberty Theater in Hailey.

Compliments of the season
What: The Company of Fools will present Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carole."
Where: Liberty Theater, Hailey.
When: Tonight, Saturday, Dec. 8, 15-16, 27-30, 7 p.m.; Sunday, Dec.

10 and Dec. 17, 3 p.m.
How much: Tickets, which are $10 for adults and $7 for children ages 4-12, may be reserved by a credit card by calling 788-6520 or purchased at Read Al! About It Bookstore in Hailey and Chapter One Bookstore in Ketchum.

show's performances, adding yet another artistic dimension to the production. "The show, of course, is based on Charles Dickens' story about a crochety old miser who receives a visit from the ghosts of Christmas

Past, Present and Future. The last gives him a chilling glimpse of what his own death will be like unless he mends his ways. The story, written in 1843, made Dickens' name so synonymous with Christmas that a small girl in London asked upon hearing of Dickens' death: "Mr. Dickens dead? Then will I ather Christmas die, too?"

"Dickens was a great storyteller. He took themes that never change - like our humanity - and was able to get to the nut of the tale," said Denise Simone, associate artistic director of Company of Fools.

"It doesn't matter that it was written more than 160 years ago. People recognize little things going on in themselves or in the world when they see this play."

This particular version is a 50-minute adaptation by Douglas Jones, the playwright who wrote "Jack and the Beanstalk" and "The Twinkl Mouse and the Country Mouse."

Company of Fools staged both of these during its four-year run in the valley.

"It's not the two-hour extravaganza replete with a fog machine and ghosts coming out of the floor that Simone and Director John Glenn were involved in years ago in Richmond, Va. Rather, this is a Reader's Digest condensed version with the focus on the storytelling."

It opens simply with Simone telling a little boy, "I'm going to tell you a ghost story."

"In theater vernacular it's known as 'story theater' - a type

Festival of Trees returns

The Times-News
TWIN FALLS - The Festival of Trees returns downtown for the first time in seven years when the annual Magic Valley Regional Medical Center fundraising event opens Wednesday.
 The old Calvary Chapel building at 241 Main Ave. E. will be the site of the event. Last year's festival, held at the old Warumani building on Kimberly Road, attracted 10,000 people and raised $65,000.

This year the proceeds go to the Valley Heart Fund and area medical facilities.
 It opens Wednesday night with the traditional gala, at which trees and decorations are sold by silent auction. The event starts at 7 p.m., with a live auction at 8 p.m. Tickets are $30 per person. Are available by phoning 737-2481. Complimentary hors d'oeuvres and wine will be available.
 The public display of the trees and seasonal finery starts on Thursday and runs through Dec.

'Site-Extraction' comes to Herrett Center; reception honors guest speaker

The Times-News
TWIN FALLS - The art show coming Tuesday to the Jean B. King Gallery at the Herrett Center on the College of Southern Idaho campus may indeed separate those who love to ponder art from those who glance quickly and walk away.
 Based on the reviews of West Coast art critics and writers, the Herrett Center is fortunate to have James B. Thompson's works, which will be on display until Jan. 27. CSI art professor Russell Hepworth, who is organizing the show, says Thompson's work is fresh and exciting. Though it may not seem obvious at first, Hepworth says a great deal of study and history are built into Thompson's intaglio prints.

Thompson is a painter, printmaker and a professor of art at Willamette University in Salem, Ore. Each of his three endeavors is apparent in his art. When he paints, he blends the colors with his finger, a rag or brush. He often dabs, wipes or smears paint with the flat of his hand, concentrating on where each color should go. This technique, for most of us, would undoubtedly result in a muddy gray. But Thompson is able to coax vibrant, seemingly impossible shades of color from the mix.
 He adds the figures that combine his admiration of classical artists with his own interest in landscape and older dwellings. His art begins to take on abstract forms like the angles of lines and odd, small images of people, animals and things.

Hepworth said the Herrett show title "Site Extraction" is his own play on the artistic words "sight abstraction." "Site," referring to a location of work, is an intentional misspelling of "sight," which is the first step in abstracting. "Extraction" is the second key step in abstract art.
 Thompson will be at the CSI art complex for a guest lecture Tuesday afternoon. He will be honored with an artist's reception from 7-9 p.m. Tuesday in the Jean B. King Gallery. Admission is free. The Herrett Center's hours are 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and Fridays, 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays, and 1-9 p.m. Saturdays. For more information, call 733-9554, Ext. 2655.

 of theater that uses a minimal set and costume pieces and relies on old radio sound effects, such as coconut shells to create the sound of hoofbeats. It asks audience members to use their imagination, to suspend disbelief and live in the moment that the actors are creating.
 "It's a very simple, loving telling of the story," Glenn said. "The heart of this one shines through."
 "It becomes a shared gift between the actors and audience," added Simone. "We're saying, 'Will you come with us on this journey?'"
 Wood River Valley carpenter-theatpian Chad Smith will portray Scrooge - a role already played by countless others, including the Muppets and Mr. Magoo.

 "It's made me realize that a lot of the little areas in our lives are really defense mechanisms," he said. "Scrooge was hurt by things in his youth. He's lost his compassion, for instance, and now he's got to regain it."
 Every actor but Scrooge plays three characters. Simone, who played Tracy Lord in "The Philadelphia Story," will metamorphose from the storyteller who opens the play to the Ghost of Christmas Past to Mrs. Cratchit with the donning of a red cape and the turning of the cape into an apron.

"I'm a big kid at heart and this is my chance to play, to pretend," she said.
 "Royal Shakespeare Company did something similar with "Nicholas Nickleby" and it literally felt like we were turning the pages of a book as we watched the play unfold."
 Evan Sorenson and Nate Theobald share the roles of the little boy, Tiny Tim and Mrs. Fezziwig. Nick Harman plays Bob Cratchit, among others; Devin Kearns, Belle; Robias Wilson, Christmas Present, and R.L. Rowsey and Russell Simone Wilson, musicians.
 The play is sponsored by Tully's Coffee, Viking Components and The Pappoose Club.

Most college athletes spend the summer staying in shape by playing in summer leagues, swimming or running.

Trisha Gardiner fights forest fires.

"It was (the most fun) I've ever had on a job," said the College of Southern Idaho sophomore. "I got to drive the engine and I ran a chain saw. I was the only girl who got to do that."

Focus on

Trisha Gardiner

Gardiner, 19, is also the only girl from Utah on this season's Southern Idaho women's basketball team.

Hailing from Vernal, which she termed "the armpit of Utah," Gardiner said she initially came to CSI because of high school coach Kristi Putnam, a former Lady Golden Eagle.

But she eventually sees herself heading back home, where she'll probably transfer to the University of Utah or Utah State next year to finish her bachelor's degree in child psychology.

As for continuing to play basketball, the former Utah High all-state player isn't so certain about the role the game will play in her future.

"I love basketball," she said. "I just don't know if I want to play it anymore. I probably will because I can't imagine not playing basketball."

On the court, the 6-foot-0 Gardiner likes to post down in the paint and scrap.

"I like to get in and battle with people," she said.

Gardiner's vocal leadership has become a staple in the team's 6 a.m. practices, where she takes teammates aside for a rallying cry.

First-year coach Kendall Grant calls Gardiner "a rock."

"She is stepping up and taking a strong leadership role," Grant noted in the team's media guide.

Through an eight-game winning streak and a No. 6 national ranking this season, Gardiner is averaging 3.9 ppg and 5.4 rpg in just over 13 minutes a night. But her tough and stable presence often goes overlooked.

"She is paying the price to become a great player," Grant said.

Gardiner credits Grant and her teammates for helping her game.

"We're just more team-oriented this year," she said. "We're working well together. I look up to all of my teammates. I think we're going to do really well this season."

With a coach who analyzes every minute detail, Gardiner learned that she dribbled the ball too much and wasn't setting before shooting.

But it's the sport's life-lessons that have taught her the most, she said.

"I've just grown up a lot," she said. "I've learned a lot about myself through the game. It teaches so many lessons."

Reports have Boise State coach taking Oklahoma State job

The Associated Press

Dirk Koetter

OKLAHOMA CITY - Boise State football coach Dirk Koetter, who last week announced he had taken himself out of the running for the job, has been named to replace Bob Simmons at Oklahoma State, according to local broadcast reports Thursday.

Television station KFOR and KWTW and radio station WWLS reported that Koetter, 41, had gotten the job.

Rodeo's 10-day run hits Vegas

The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS - Fred Whitfield is still the best calf roper on the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association circuit. He'll need a big National Finals Rodeo, though, to repeat as the country's best overall cowboy.

Whitfield begins defense of his all-around title tonight when the lucrative NFR opens a 10-day run at a UNLV campus arena where the basketball floor has been replaced with tons of dirt.

By the time competition in eight events ends a week from Sunday, some $4.5 million in prize money will have been won in the world's richest rodeo.

Whitfield, the first black cowboy to win the all-around championship, comes into the finals as the leading money winner in calf roping.

But the Hockley, Texas, cowboy is fourth in the overall standings with about $30,000 behind saddle bronc rider Scott Johnston.

Johnston, of Gustine, Texas, leads the saddle bronc riders in earnings and has also won money in bareback riding, giving him $164,150 for the season.

"I've always thought of winning the saddle bronc title," Johnston said. "But I felt I had a shot at the all-around if I ever had a lucky year. So I kind of planned on it, but I just never got around to it until this year. I've been healthy all year."

The 27-year-old Johnston, an Australian native who came to the United States to compete in rodeo, was nearly killed in a plane accident a month before the 1998 NFR. He broke two vertebrae in his back in the crash that killed pilot Johnny Morris and injured traveling partners Mark and Marvin Garrett and Thad Bothwell.

Johnston stuck with his specialty of saddle broncs for most of 1999 to help heal his back, but this year also rode bareback, though he did not qualify among the top 15 to compete in the event in the NFR.

Johnston will be pressed for the all-around by Trevor Brazile of Decatur, Texas, who won $152,852 during the season. Brazile has an advantage because he qualified for the finals in both steer and calf roping.

This year's final is the 17th consecutive in Las Vegas, which lured the rodeo here from Oklahoma City in the 1980s with promises of big purses for the competitors.

This year's purse is the biggest ever for the finals, which attracted a record 174,912 fans for 10 performances last year.

A pair of animal rights groups have promised protests during the rodeo, claiming animals used in the events are abused.

CSI eagles squeeze Citrus by 63

By Kevin Hall
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The College of Southern Idaho unleashed its high-flying offense early and often with a highlight reel of slam dunks, but it was the Golden Eagles' defense that stole the show.

Trapping, pressing, blocking shots and generally making a nuisance of itself, the Southern Idaho men's basketball team blew out California's Citrus College 116-53 on the first night of the Arctic Circle Classic.

Outplaying Citrus in every aspect, CSI shot 60 percent for the game on 47-of-78 shooting. Citrus hit a lowly 34.5 percent on 20-of-58. The Eagles outrebounded Owls 49-30.

Thursday's early game, it was No. 20 Hagerstown Community College (7-0) all over winless Snead State College (0-10), 103-88.

"I was so proud of our guys defensively," said CSI coach Derek Zeck, whose team produced 28 turnovers. "Our guys have really bought in to what we need to do - the little things."

New York Yankees snatch up Mike Mussina

The Associated Press

NEW YORK - After beating the rest of baseball on the field, the New York Yankees beat everyone to Mike Mussina.

"It just came down to who really seemed to want me on their team the most," Mussina said Thursday after agreeing to an $88.5 million, six-year contract.

The deal gives the three-time defending World Series champion's starting rotation that includes Roger Clemens, Andy Pettitte, Orlando Hernandez and Mussina. With just 13 players signed, New York's payroll is $77.5 million.

"It probably isn't fair," Yankees manager Joe Torre said.

"But, again, George Steinbrenner has had winners here in New York and he probably thinks about how to keep doing it."

Mussina, who turns 32 on Dec. 8, compiled a 147-81 record with a 3.53 ERA in 10 seasons with the Baltimore Orioles. He gets a $12 million signing bonus payable over six years; $6 million in 2000, $9 million in 2001, $10 million in 2002, $14 million in 2004 and $17 million in each of the final three years.

New York has a $17 million option for 2007 with a $1.5 million buyout, and Mussina gets a complete no-trade clause.

And he's not even the ace. "It's been a long time since I wasn't considered the No. 1 starter from the first game of spring training," he said. "We might go to the playoffs next year and I might not even get a chance to pitch. That's how strong they are."

The rest of baseball took notice.

"It makes it very difficult," Seattle general manager Pat Gillick said. "They've got two or three No. 1s now."

"New York was the best fit for me," Mussina said. "It came down to who I was most impressed with, and I was most impressed with the Yankees. Joe Torre called me not even a week after the World Series, before he went on vacation. To me, that was a pretty big gesture."

Former Baltimore pitcher Mike Mussina, center, receives his New York Yankees jersey from Yankees Hall of Famer Yogi Berra, left, and Yankees manager Joe Torre, after announcing that he and the Yankees have agreed to an $88.5 million, six-year contract.

Twin Falls boys win season opener against Burley

Burley had one last chance. With three seconds remaining, junior Jonathon Barker threw up a 3-pointer. The ball bounced on the rim, but didn't fall as the buzzer sounded.

"We just threw it up," said Bobcat coach Matt Harr. "It was a good one of those ESPN shots."

The game was close all the way through. Burley senior David Riedel hit a short jumper to start the game while the Bruins had some turnover trouble. Riedel had four more points while Josh

Tiger tops PGA Tour awards list

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Tiger Woods was voted by his peers as the PGA Tour player of the year Thursday after setting new standards in major championships and money, and earning unforgettable shots along the way.

It was the third time in the past four years that Woods won the Jack Nicklaus Award, the most of any player since the award began in 1990. He earlier won the PGA of America player of the year award, which is based on points.

Tour members selected Paul Azinger for comeback player of the year for a season that included six official victories, and two great finishes in Spain to win the money title and end the seven-year reign of Colin Montgomerie.

Tiger Woods

Clark, who won the John Deere Classic, was voted rookie of the year.

On the European tour, Lee Westwood was voted player of the year for a season that included six official victories, and two great finishes in Spain to win the money title and end the seven-year reign of Colin Montgomerie.

Woods, 24, had what arguably was the greatest season ever in golf. He won nine PGA Tour events, the most since Sam Snead won 11 times in 1950, and earned a record $9,188,321 to win his third money title in only his fourth full season on tour.

He also shattered Byron Nelson's scoring average with 68.17, and won the tour's Byron Nelson Award with an adjusted scoring average of 67.75.

Woods became only the fifth player, and the youngest, to complete the Grand Slam when he won the British Open at St. Andrews. He also joined Ben Hogan as the only players to win three consecutive professional majors with his thrilling PGA playoff victory over Bob May.

Other nominees were Phil Mickelson, a four-time winner this year, and Ernie Els, who won the International and became the first player to finish runner-up in three straight majors.

Garcia paces Williams World Challenge

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Sergio Garcia is getting a jump on the 2001 season.

Garcia, who failed to win in 16 PGA Tour starts this year but has played extremely well in made-for-TV events, shot a 7-under-65 Thursday to take the lead in the Williams World Challenge.

"I'm really, really looking forward to next season," said Garcia, who had an eagle, six birdies and a lone bogey to forge a one-stroke lead over playing partner Vijay Singh.

The 20-year-old Spaniard was particularly accurate with his irons, leaving himself close birdie chances most of the round.

"I still missed a couple of very good birdie putts. I'm hitting it so close that I expect to get birdie opportunities, and when I don't make them, I don't get frustrated," Garcia said.

His week in the Skins Game, he birdied nine of 18 holes in regulation. And he beat Tiger Woods in their "Battle of Bighorn" duel in late August. Singh birdied the final three holes on the way to his 66. Davis Love III was another shot back with a 67.

Woods, host of the 12-player tournament, was tied with Fred Couples at 68.

Garcia rolled in putts of 3, 10, 5 and 4 feet during his birdie streak as he finished the back nine with a 4-under-32.

"My dad has been working with me on my putting," he said. "I've been trying to keep from closing the face when I take it back."

Garcia also credited his recent improvement to a change in the driver and the balls he is using, saying he is getting more length and accuracy off the tee, leaving him in better position to hit his irons.

Tolles shoots 65 at PGA Q-school

LA QUINTA, Calif. — Tommy Tolles shot a 7-under-par 65 on Thursday to take a one-stroke lead over Perry Moss after the second round of the PGA Tour qualifying tournament.

Tolles, a four-time runner-up in six seasons on the PGA Tour, had a 16-under 128 total. He played PGA West's Jack Nicklaus Private Course on Thursday after opening with a 63 on the Nicklaus Tournament Course. Moss shot a 62 on the Private Course.

The low 35 players and ties will earn 2001 PGA Tour cards, with the winner getting a full exemption. The next 50 — or the nearest to 50 with ties — will be exempt on the Buy.com Tour.

Gilder takes lead in senior Q-school

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — Bob Gilder shot a 6-under-par 66 on Thursday to take an eight-stroke lead after the third round of the Senior PGA Tour qualifying tournament.

Gilder, a six-time winner on the PGA Tour who turns 50 on Dec. 31, had an 18-under 198 total on the Eagles Pines course. He opened the 72-hole tournament with a 69 and shot a 63 on Wednesday.

Ferry Mauney (67), Jim Holtgrieve (68), Tony Peterson (71) and Bill Holstead (75) were tied for second at 206, and Mark Hayes (60), Doug Johnson (67), Jim White (68), Bobby Walzel (70), Tom McGinnis (71) and Kurt Cox (74) followed.

The low 16 finishers in the 72-hole event will receive 2001 tour cards, with the top eight getting full exemptions.

This 1968 file photo shows Browns' place kicker Lou Groza as he warms up in preparation for an NFL playoff game with the Los Angeles Rams.

Friend, foe remembers 'The Toe' for kicking feats BEREA, Ohio (AP) — Lou Groza was more than a football player to Cleveland Browns fans.

"He was a special guy," said Browns Hall of Fame tackle Mike McCormack. "He was the spirit of the Cleveland Browns."

Today's Browns are reminded of Groza every day as they arrive at work. Upon the team's return to the NFL last season, the new Browns honored him by renaming the street in front of their Berea training facility "Lou Groza Boulevard."

The facility's address: 76 Lou Groza Blvd.

Flags were lowered to half-staff on Thursday at the site and the Browns will wear No. 76 on the back left side of their helmets for the rest of the season.

Groza played with the Browns from 1946-67. He retired as the franchise's career scoring leader — a distinction he still holds — with 1,395 points. He was an All-Pro tackle six times and was selected the NFL's Player of the Year in 1954.

Using a straight-ahead kicking method that's rare in today's game, Groza, who also wore No. 46, transformed the art of place-kicking and helped make kickers more of a offensive weapon.

College football's top kicker each year is given the Lou Groza Award.

In 1950, Groza kicked a 16-yard field goal with 28 seconds left in the NFL championship game to help the Browns beat the Los Angeles Rams and win the title in their first season in the league.

"Pressure didn't bother him at all," said Browns Hall of Fame quarterback Otto Graham, Groza's teammate for 10 years.

Groza, the last of the "original" Browns to retire, played in 216 games and nine NFL championship games with the Browns who won three titles during the 1950s and another in 1964.

Coach

Corbett said the Idaho school had no information on the matter.

Koetter, 41, has been named Big West Conference coach of the year the past two seasons. The Broncos went '92 this year, won their second straight league championship and are set to play in the Humanitarian Bowl on Dec. 28.

Broadcast and newspaper reports earlier in the week said Koetter had been offered the job, but that he had not made a decision. He had been mentioned as a possible candidate for other openings, including Arizona State, Arizona and Southern Cal.

In addition to Koetter, Phillips interviewed Western Michigan coach Gary Darnell, Dallas Cowboys assistant and former OSU assistant Les Miles, and former Oklahoma State quarterback

No. 1 Sooners need one more win for title

Kansas State could end Oklahoma's run with upset

By Richard Rosenblatt AP Football Writer

Once again, the Big 12 Conference title game can crush the national championship hopes of the best team in the league.

No. 8 Kansas State (10-2) beats No. 1 Oklahoma (11-0) Saturday night, it will be the third time in the league's five years that the title game robbed the Big 12 of a national title shot.

And there's a bunch of Big 12 coaches who aren't happy about it, including Nebraska's Frank Solich.

"If they didn't have to play another game, they would automatically be in the national championship game," Solich said. "We'd have a representative there. If they end up losing the game, they are not in the national championship bowl.

Neither is Kansas State." In 1996, the first year of the Big 12, Texas upset No. 3 Nebraska 37-27 and prevented the Cornhuskers from playing Fiesta Bowl in the Sugar Bowl. In '98, No. 2 Kansas State lost its perfect season in a double-overtime loss to Texas A&M and fell from a title shot to the Alamogordo Bowl.

The Wildcats would like nothing more than to beat the Sooners, who defeated Kansas State 41-31 Oct. 22 at Manhattan, Kan. But first, Oklahoma quarterback Josh Heupel must be stopped.

"Obviously, we're going to have to play much better than we did in the initial game," Kansas State coach Bill Snyder said. "I don't think we could make a lot of wholesale changes defensively. We have to do what we do."

In the first game, Heupel threw for 374 yards and two touchdowns and ran for a score. Kansas State quarterback Jonathan Bleasley, meanwhile, scored three TDs but was only 14-of-36 for 211 yards with two interceptions.

Since then, the Wildcats scrambled to run for a score. Kansas State coach Bill Snyder said. "I don't think we could make a lot of wholesale changes defensively. We have to do what we do."

The Sooners followed their win over Kansas State with a dominating 31-14 victory over Nebraska, the best Baylor, Texas A&M, Texas Tech and closed with a shaky 12-7 win over Oklahoma State.

The stakes couldn't be higher in this rematch: Oklahoma plays for a chance at its first AP national title since 1985 with a win, while Kansas State will clinch its first Bowl Championship Series game with an upset.

Should the Wildcats win, they would likely play in the Fiesta Bowl, leaving the Sooners to play in the Sugar Bowl.

The game will be played outdoors for the first time, with a sellout crowd of 80,000 expected at Kansas City's Arrowhead Stadium.

Philadelphia's Hugh Douglas sacks Cardinals' quarterback Jake Plummer Nov. 19 in Philadelphia. Plummer was knocked out of the game with a thumb injury.

Cardinals' Plummer lauds new coach

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Idaho native Jake Plummer, who will be back at starting quarterback Sunday for the Arizona Cardinals after missing a game with bruised ribs, says he wants the interim tag removed from coach Dave McGinnis' title.

"I'd like to see it happen," Plummer said after Thursday's practice. "I think it will. I'm hoping it will. You can see the respect we all have for coach McGinnis. I like him as a head coach."

"It would be nice if he could get it done now and have the offseason to work on a lot of things and get ready for it."

McGinnis was promoted from defensive coordinator to interim coach when Vince Tobin was fired seven games into the season. Since then, Arizona has sputtered to a 1-4 record and is 3-9 overall. But the fiery McGinnis has had to field a team decimated by injuries and short on talent to begin with.

McGinnis said Plummer, who practiced for the second day in a row, will start at Cincinnati on Sunday.

"Jake's practiced both days, taken every rep when his turn came up," McGinnis said.

Plummer's backup, Dave Brown, ineffective in his start in last week's 31-7 loss to the New York Giants, remains questionable with a sore left shoulder. If Brown can't play, Chris Greisen will be Plummer's backup. Greisen played briefly last week, his first NFL action.

Plummer said he can still feel a twinge in his ribs when he throws on the run or twists his hips. He said he won't let it keep him from scrambling.

NFL fines Sapp $2,500 for taunting Bills Sunday

TAMPA, Fla. — Tampa Bay defensive tackle Warren Sapp was fined $2,500 by the NFL on Thursday for entering Buffalo's bench area for a drink of water and taunting the Bills during the Buccaneers' 31-17 victory Sunday.

The 1999 defensive player of the year, who leads the Bucs with 135 sacks, drew a penalty for the fourth-quarter incident that occurred after Derrick Brooks tackled Buffalo's Shawn Byson on the Bills sideline.

Brooks, who nearly sacked Rob Johnson before getting up and running down Byson after a shovel pass gained 17 yards, was penalized on the play for unnecessary roughness. Sapp went over to a table to grab a cup of water while officials were discussing the penalty on Brooks.

Report: Salary cap fines system set

NEW YORK — An agreement between the NFL and the players union reportedly will allow the league to fine teams up to $3.5 million and two first-round draft picks for violating the salary cap.

USA Today reported Thursday that the agreement was reached last week to increase the maximum fine for cap violations from $2 million. The newspaper also said commissioner Paul Tagliabue has been empowered to suspend a club executive for up to one year for violating the cap, currently $62.5 million.

"The level of sanctions needs to be strengthened," said Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFLPA.

Ravens' Lewis faces new allegations

BALTIMORE — Two women are suing Baltimore Ravens linebacker Ray Lewis for $6 million, claiming he struck them during a brawl in a crowded bar last year.

The women,atrice Parker and Ericka Ury, accused Lewis of assault and battery and inflicting emotional distress and are seeking $2 million on each count. The lawsuit was filed Wednesday in Baltimore County Circuit Court, according to Dwight Pettit, the women's attorney.

Adults hold up juniors in no-tap

Thirty-eight teams showed up for the "Shot The Turkey - A Te The Whole Thing - Adult/Junior No Tap Tournament" last Saturday at the Bowldrome.

This month it was the adults' turn to roll 300 on top while the juniors rolled 9 pin. The adults were to hold up the juniors this time, and that they did.

Nine adults rolled 300 games and two others had two 300 games. Those who had two perfect scores were Skip Cristobal and Leslie Wheeler. The other 300 rollers included: Jerry Cribbins, Kristy Rodriguez, Sam Wormshaker, Judy Bryant, Art Brown, Eddie Chappell, Dirk McCullister, Bob Leazer and Stan Kerr.

Division A, where the junior bowlers were eight years of age and younger, the "Alley Katz," DoAnne Masse teamed up with her son, Cole, and they rolled 1,377 to win the place spot. The Moses and daughter, Koi Jo, rolled 1,310 for second place.

In Division B for juniors age 9 through 11, the "K e a n S r i k e r s," Jerry Skegan and son, Guy, were first with 1,552. "Rod in a Rack," Kristy Rodriguez and daughter, Heather Rackham, were second at 1,539.

Last month's champions in this television finished third, the "Lazy A's", Lisa and daughter Danielle Allen at 1,541.

The C Division, 12 through 14, winners are "The Moros", Nick Moravec and mom, Karen Morano at 1,732. Shane Rackham and Auntie April Leason were second with their 1,716.

Their team name was "Shap". In Division D, 15 and older was won by the "Oh, Bob" team of Skip and son, Bob Cristobal with 1,629. The "High Octane" team of Jim Boehm and Matt Olson took the second place spot with 1,605.

Plans are under way for the format of the next Adult/Junior Tournament Dec. 16. Entry forms will soon be out. There's an update on a couple of our past junior bowlers.

Cielita Lopez is in her third year of studies pursuing a medical career at Washington State University. She is a substitute on a men's bowling league, carrying a 202 average. She is also a member of the university bowling team.

Lacey McElliot is in his first year at DeVry University in Phoenix, Ariz. So far this season his average is 207, high series 732, and he's rolled a high game of 266.

Here are more results from the Idaho State Senior No Tap Satellite Tournament. It was a record breaking year with 89 entries.

First place went to Ginger Smith and James Hanson from Boise with 1,719. Second was Ken Courtney and Pat Haze, both Twin Falls, with 1,703. Third went to Mirya Messner and Ken Richardson, Nampa, 1,645. Jyng for third place was the Twin Falls team of Jessie Biggerstaff and Mary Miller. Sam and Mary Goodrich, Grandview with 1,633 finished fifth.

The team that finished third with 1,623 probably might have had most fun while bowling. Judy Brennan teamed up with Pete Mulkey, both Twin Falls. Judy entered the tournament with a 190 average.

"A little further explanation on the contest between Jim and Judy. These two are part of a group that you can find every Sunday morning at the Bowldrome, with quarters out and challenges abounding. I understand that Jim was prepared to get his money back last Sunday. Did you, Jim?"

Seventh place was Jim DeVries and Jim Kruse, local bowlers, 1,617. Eighth was Chuck and Thalia Nighthaling, Kamiah, 1,597. Dave and Durren Allen, Nampa, captured ninth with 1,610. Dean Lewis and Bill Echo, Idaho Falls, teamed up for tenth place, 1,586. The local team of Con Mosser and Mandy Miller walked away with eleventh place at 1,569.

A 1,567 for Carla and Kent Hanson, Montpelier, was twelfth. Also in twelfth place was Pat McCannog and Bruce Whitson from Salmon. The Boise team of John and Zora Logan with 1,564 finished fourth. Rounding out the prize winners were the Twin Falls team of Bud Wismore and Con Mosser with 1,563. The total prize fund for the No-Tap was $1,068.

Homes for the holidays

Jerome chamber fund-raiser starts today

The Times-News

JEROME - This is the business community's weekend to play host for the holidays - and hopefully gather a nice budget boost.

Jerome's 2000 holiday home tour - now in its third year - will feature six country homes dressed up for the holidays around Jerome County on Saturday.

The tour and tonight's auction will help fund Jerome Chamber of Commerce operations throughout the year. Last year's event netted more than $5,000, and chamber leaders hope to exceed that amount in 2000.

Here's a preview of the tour:

- Wes and Leslie Martin's home at 803 15th Ave. E. will be ablaze with thousands of lights and candles. Leslie Martin plans to display three Nativity scenes. She uses candles and greenery lavishly all around her house. This year, she will have a large artificial tree in the living room beside a crackling fire in the fireplace.

- Mike and Annalisa Thomas' two-story brick at 400 E. Ave. A has a flat roof and balcony and is reminiscent of an urban condo. Annalisa Thomas was raised in the Philippine Islands, and decorations reflect the customs of her native land. She is from the southern provinces, where it is too warm for fir trees so other trees are used for Christmas - and decorated with green and white paper.

Jerome's 3rd Annual Traditional Holiday Home Tour and Auction

The home tour is set for 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday. Tickets may be purchased for $8 each at Arlene's Flower Garden, Farmers National Bank, Jerome Floral, Rosebud's Florist, Jerome Public Library or the Jerome Chamber of Commerce office.

Tickets will show a map of the tour's route, which for the first time will feature festive exterior lighting, as well.

To kick off the tour, downtown Jerome merchants will put on an auction and wine tasting today at El Sombrero Restaurant, 143 W. Main in Jerome. Music and food will be at 5 p.m. The live auction starts at 7 p.m.

For information, call the chamber at 324-2711.

- Jim and Rhonda Arbaugh's big farmhouse with wraparound porch and deck, at 17 N. 200 W. will have greenery and colorful lights draped around the railing. The Arbaughs go all out at Christmas with several trees. There is a large one in the living room, which the children decorate with traditional decorations

- rope, fabric, cranberry beads, popcorn strings. Other smaller trees are in other rooms, one featuring Indian life.
- Todd and Jeannie McKay's house, at 135 N. 200 E., is a child-centered home. The McKays include their children in the decorating as much as possible. The youngsters decorate the tree, and "where the decorations end up on the tree is where they stay," Jeannie McKay said.

- Leonard and Rosemary Perry, at 35 Canyon View Road, built their large, two-story home on the canyon rim recently. The main feature is the breathtaking view of the canyon and Auger Falls.

- Tim and Debi Hunt bought the historic stone Falls City School building at 295 E. 500 W. The school closed its doors in 1970 and sat abandoned until about eight years ago, when the Hunts bought it and started renovations. Although they have made the school into a home with four bedrooms and two baths, they have tried to keep the historic feeling. They retain the original distressed doors, wood and all 24 8-foot windows.

U.S. Cellular moves, donates to charity

TWIN FALLS - The U.S. Cellular retail store in Twin Falls will celebrate its move to a larger location with a grand opening, ribbon cutting, food, prizes and a donation to The Salvation Army today.

The ribbon cutting is set for 11 a.m. today at 799 Cheney, Suite B, in Twin Falls. The ceremonial ribbon will be made of $20 bills, which will be donated to The Salvation Army in Twin Falls following the event, the company said.

U.S. Cellular also will collect nonperishable food and new toys during December for The Salvation Army's Christmas gifts to underprivileged families. Those who bring in 10 cans or boxes of food or a new, unwrapped toy to the retail store in Twin Falls or Burley may also request a free activation on cellular service, the company said.

New Jersey company buys Snake River Cheese

BLACKFOOT - The Snake River Cheese Plant is joining a consortium of factories that make Italian cheeses for a New Jersey company called Suprema Specialties.

Suprema bought the plant Wednesday from Idaho Falls businessman Frank VanderSloot, a day before Beatrice Cheese, which had been operating the plant, was scheduled to leave.

VanderSloot, who also owns Melaleuca, sold all of his interest in the plant to Suprema.

"My business is Melaleuca, and that's what I need to pay attention to," he said.

VanderSloot took over the cheese plant in 1994 when local dairymen asked him to take control after Kraft-Foods vacated the building. They had operated in the factory since the early 1980s.

Kraft manufactured its brand of Parmesan cheese there but moved that into another facility out of state. After trying to produce on their own, dairy farmers asked VanderSloot to take over the plant in 1994.

He later brought in Beatrice Cheese, a subsidiary of ConAgra. Beatrice manufactured its line of Healthy Choice Cheese in the plant for one year, before renewing on its three-year lease with VanderSloot in August.

Discrimination verdict against Re/Max stands

DENVER - Re/Max has again lost its bid to overturn a $300,000 race discrimination verdict in favor of a Colorado Springs man who says he was denied a franchise because he is black.

A three-judge panel in the U.S. 10th Circuit Court of Appeals unanimously sided with Edward Tyler, who won a $100,000 judgment, plus attorneys' fees, which may total as much as $200,000.

In February 1998, a jury agreed Re/Max had intentionally discriminated against Tyler on the basis of race. Englewood-based Re/Max International Inc. - one of the nation's largest real estate franchise companies and with operations in the Magic Valley - appealed the decision but was denied a new trial in August 1999.

The court of appeals recently upheld that decision.

Re/Max had argued in court that it denied Tyler's application because the Colorado Springs market was glutted with Re/Max franchises.

Income drops for first time in nearly two years

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Consumer spending rose in October at the weakest pace in six months while Americans' incomes actually declined for the first time in nearly two years, the government reported Thursday, providing fresh evidence that the economy is shifting into a lower gear.

The Commerce Department said that personal incomes fell by 0.2 percent last month, reflecting a big swing in federal payments to farmers, while consumer spending edged up just 0.2 percent.

Economists worried that the weakness in the consumer sector could intensify if Americans suddenly become more cautious in their spending habits because of the volatility on Wall Street.

Stock prices fell sharply on Thursday, reflecting continued investor worries that the slowing economy will further erode corporate profits.

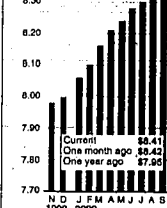

The Dow Jones industrial average finished the day down 214.62 at 10,419.49 after having been down more than 300 points in afternoon trading. The technol-

VIP Pass goes on sale today

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - The state says it has a gift idea for the outdoor recreationist on your shopping list.

The Visit Idaho Playgrounds Pass goes on sale today.

The VIP Pass covers day-use fees at about 100 recreation sites in Idaho. It's available as an annual pass for $69 or as a five-consecutive-day pass for $10.

Purchase online at www.idahorec.org, or call 1-800-847-4843.

"The VIP Pass is a convenient option for paying day-use fees at a variety of recreation sites throughout Idaho," said Celeste Bevia, tourism specialist with the Idaho Department of Commerce. "If you hike, Nordic ski, visit state parks or participate in water sports, you'll want to consider purchasing this pass."

Sites honoring the VIP Pass include all state parks, Craters of the Moon National Monument, Park in Sky areas and select U.S. Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management and Bureau of Reclamation day-use areas. A complete list is available at www.idahorec.org.

Several state and federal agencies participate in the pass program.

Region cools, but economy remains good

The Associated Press

SPOKANE, Wash. - Idaho is hot. Washington is lukewarm and Oregon is a laggard when it comes to economic growth, bankers on a panel forecasting the region's economic future said Thursday.

The forecasters think 2001 will bring a slowing of the economy - both regionally and nationally - with employment growth occurring below the surprising rates of the past three years.

Jack Beebe, senior vice president and director of research at the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco, and John W. Mitchell, a U.S. Bancorp economist, were featured speakers at the annual economic forecast sponsored by Inland Northwest Partners, a nonprofit Spokane-area economic development organization.

Their conclusion: The region's economy, reflecting a national trend, probably will slow next year, but still will be good.

Generally, semiconductor manufacturing and computer-related manufacturing continue to lead economic growth in the region, which has experienced declines in natural resources-based sectors, Mitchell said.

Foreign competition and bumper crops have hurt farm-

Insurer offers discount for best safety records

CHICAGO (AP) - The nation's leading automobile insurer is revising its pricing policies and giving the biggest price breaks to drivers of what it considers the safest cars - primarily luxury cars, vans or SUVs.

State Farm has the new system, which will replace its across-the-board discount for all vehicles with air bags, will result in no more than a 550-year difference in insurance costs.

But announcement of the change still provoked immediate criticism from consumer safety experts, who said it's unfair to drivers of smaller vehicles who may not be able to afford large ones and are more likely to be hurt in a crash.

Imani Khayyut, a Chicago motorist who drives a sedan that wouldn't qualify for the biggest discount, also was displeased when informed of the plan.

"I shouldn't be penalized for driving a sensible car," he said. Bloomington, Ill.-based State Farm said its new pricing program, which also includes a medical portion of coverage by 40 percent, accurately reflects its safety data. It will cut rates for vehicles that generate the fewest injury claims for occupants.

Along with some larger models, including SUVs and minivans, trucks, big autos such as some Accuras, BMWs, Mercedes-Benzes and Jaguars also fall under that category.

"This is not about big cars and little cars, it's about safer cars," company spokesman Dick Luedke said. "Cars that produce the fewest injuries are the type of car you shouldn't pay as much to insure."

Experts said other insurance companies are likely to follow State Farm's lead. Mike Tompkins, a spokesman for Allstate, the second-biggest U.S. insurer, said it already has a rate structure about a year ago.

But because the medical portion of coverage typically accounts for only 10 percent to 20 percent of the total premium, the change isn't likely to have a huge impact on policyholders.

"We're talking about a discreet and limited aspect of the overall coverage," said Christopher Guidette of Insurance Services Office, a private risk company that provides actuarial and statistical information to insurers.

Insurers already consider the likelihood of a crash or theft when setting comprehensive and collision premiums.

Now a related but different consideration is being applied to medical payments coverage, Luedke said.

State Farm has for years given discounts of up to 30 percent for vehicles with both driver and passenger air bags. The discount is offered to owners of the portion of their premium covering personal injuries to occupants.

Since all new cars now have air bags, State Farm decided to base the rate discount on which makes and models generated the fewest injury claims from accidents. Those vehicles will receive the biggest discount, 40 percent. Vehicles with air bags that offer the least protection to occupants will receive 20 percent discounts. These vehicles tend to be smaller, like the Ford Contour, Chevrolet Cavalier and many popular Japanese models.

Those in between will receive a 30 percent discount. J. Robert Hunter, director of Insurance for the Consumer Federation of America, called the new pricing plan unfair to most drivers.

"If I have a tank, I'll get the biggest discount," he told The New York Times. "But I'll be smashing into people, killing and maiming them at a much higher rate than if I were in a smaller car."

Research has shown that light trucks, including SUVs and pickups, are more likely than cars to kill the other driver in a crash. Trucks tend to weigh more, sit higher and have stiffer frames than cars.

State Farm sees no reason to increase its insurance fees for the liability portion of coverage, however, because its database shows that large vehicles are involved in fewer crashes than cars.

While it is generally true that when a big car hits a little car it is going to inflict more damage, what we have found is that accidents involving bigger cars tend to be less frequent," Luedke said. "So the increased severity offset by the decreased frequency of accidents."

The discounts, which go into effect Jan. 1, will be applied to about half the 37 million cars insured by State Farm - 1994 and later models, according to Luedke. The air bag discount will be phased out for 1988 to 1993 models.

Israel's prime minister outlines peace plan; election campaign starts

TEL AVIV, Israel - Prime Minister Ehud Barak offered the most detailed description yet of his peace plan, saying Thursday he would recognize an independent Palestinian state but would put off the explosive issue of control over Jerusalem.

Two months of violence has derailed peace talks, and Barak is now facing early elections, probably in the spring. The prime minister said he was prepared to work toward a political settlement as soon as the violence subsides, but his proposals did not appear to contain any new offers.

The Palestinians said they were not interested in partial solutions, and showed no enthusiasm for Barak's proposals. Barak said the looming election would not change his approach to peace negotiations, though many analysts say he's unlikely to win re-election unless he can negotiate some sort of peace deal before the ballot.

Bethlehem cancels plans for Christmas celebrations

BETHLEHEM, West Bank - Bethlehem's city fathers have called off ambitious plans for Christmas 2000, saying a time of Palestinian-Israeli conflict is no time for merrymaking.

The town of Jesus' birth will be dark and deserted this Christmas - without festive street lights, craft fairs and choirs in Manger Square.

"In view of the very bad situation we are living in, it doesn't make sense that we celebrate while there are still closures, and so many people have been killed," said Tony Marcos, a spokesman for the municipality.

Festive street lights still hanging from last year's celebrations, when thousands of visitors crowded Manger Square, will remain unlit.

Russia will raise sub due to radiation worry

MOSCOW - The sunken Russian nuclear submarine Kursk will be raised from the Barents Sea next summer to lessen concerns over a possible mishap from its two reactors, officials said Thursday.

Deputy Prime Minister Ilya Klebanov, who heads a government commission on the Kursk tragedy, said the reactors pose no immediate danger and will remain safe for at least 10 years. "But we need to raise the submarine, because nuclear reactors lying on the seabed ... in a busy fishing area, would be a constant source of international tension," he said at a news conference.

Haiti declares winner in presidential elections

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti - Former President Jean-Bertrand

Aristide was re-elected with an overwhelming 92-percent of the vote, the electoral council announced Wednesday, giving the final tally for a contest boycotted by all major opposition parties.

Runner-up, Arnold Dumas, had just 2.4 percent of the vote in Sunday's elections and the other five candidates garnered even less. Candidates have three days to contest the results.

Push lowers consent law for homosexual age

LONDON - After three defeats in the House of Lords, Britain's Labor government resorted to rarely used powers Thursday to pass legislation lowering the age of consent for homosexuals from 18 to 16.

House of Commons speaker Michael Martin said he was invoking the Parliament Act to force through a Sexual Offences Bill that makes the age of consent the same for both homosexuals and heterosexuals.

It gave Royal Assent by Queen Elizabeth II.

Lawmakers in the House of Commons overwhelmingly approved the bill earlier this year, but the House of Lords this month rejected it for the third time.

The bill brings Britain in line with most other European Union nations.

Museum to honor civil rights hero

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — It was a cold evening 45 years ago Friday when a Montgomery city bus stopped in front of the Empire Theater. The driver got up and told black seamstress Rosa Parks she would have to give up her seat for white passengers.

That event — which touched off the Montgomery bus boycott and began the modern civil rights movement — is recreated inside a new museum honoring Parks. The museum opens today on the site of the old theater.

Parks, now 87, will be in Montgomery when Troy State University Montgomery dedicates the Rosa Parks Library and Museum.

Joining Parks will be such civil rights figures as Martin Luther King III, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

TREASURE HUNT

Roger Mathis, also known as 'The Pack Rat,' pokes through a pile of leaves Wednesday in Portland, Ore. Mathis said his job is like being paid full time to go on a treasure hunt. He's spent much of the past six years pulling noncompost materials out of leaf piles; this day he found an evening dress.

Definition of 'mortgage' should spark discussion

The word "mortgage" traces back into Norman French to something very nearly like "death pledge," but no doubt you suspected as much.

According to an insurance researcher, the worst drivers among women are those taught by their husbands.

Movie disclaimer might help separate fact, fiction

DEAR ABBY: Everyone seems to complain about violence in movies and television. Perhaps filmmakers would agree to put a disclaimer in the credits (similar to "No animals were injured in the making of this film"). It could read:

"In this film, the bullets were blanks, the blood was fake, the wounds were makeup, the car crashes were stunts, the explosions were special effects, the fights were rehearsed, and the sex was simulated. Do not try any of these things at home."

— EDDY HILL, SHERMAN OAKS, CALIF.

DEAR EDDY: Your clever disclaimer might serve as a helpful reminder to audiences who forget that what they see on screen is entertainment and not reality. Some people, children in particular, have difficulty differentiating between the two — and I can sympathize with them. After sitting

Abby's cheesecake
CRUST:
1 1/2 cups graham cracker crumbs
1/2 cup butter, melted (1 stick)
1/3 cup powdered sugar

CHEESECAKE:
3 (8-ounce) packages cream cheese, softened
4 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 pint dairy sour cream, at room temperature
1 (21-ounce) can prepared cherry, blueberry or strawberry pie filling

- Heat oven to 350 degrees.
- Combine graham cracker crumbs, powdered sugar and melted butter. Press into bottom of 8-inch springform pan.
- In a large bowl, beat cream cheese, eggs, sugar and vanilla until smooth. Pour mixture over prepared crust.
- Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes (until center is set).
- Remove from oven and allow to cool. Spread desired topping on cheesecake.
- Chill overnight. Before serving, carefully remove slides from pan. Serve 16.
- Tip: To minimize cracking, place shallow pan half full of hot water on lower rack of oven during baking. And be sure the sour cream is at room temperature when you spread it on.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Bobby Wolff

"When I'm not thanked at all, I'm thanked enough; I've done my duty, and I've done no more."
— Henry Fielding

"Did you make the right guess on board 19?" asked an unhappy West player.
"I didn't have to guess," replied his friend. "Thanks to my partner's illuminating spade plays, I had no trouble finding the setting trick."

The first West player led his diamond 10 to East's ace, and East cashed the spade ace and continued with the 10. South's queen was West's king. With three defensive tricks home, West had to decide whether the setting trick was in spades or in clubs. He made the wrong choice. Assuming his club winner could not disappear, he tried to cash his spade ruff, but it didn't survive. South ruffed, cashed his trump ace, and discarded all of dummy's clubs on his high diamonds to make his game.

"It wasn't your fault," consoled his friend. "You made the correct theoretical choice. When East returned the spade 10, you had every reason to believe he had no more than three spades."

How did the other East player defend to make things easier for the thankful West? Instead of returning the spade 10 at trick three, he returned the deuce. The deuce promised either four spades or two, making the club ace the odds-on play. Cashing the club ace loses only when South has a 4-4-4 distribution with solid diamonds—less than a 1 percent probability.
