INTERIOR SHOTS

Interior Secretary-designate Gale Norton, accompanied by Sen. Wayne Allard, R-Colo., prepares to testify at her confirmation hearing Thursday on Capitol Hill.

Norton vows to strike a balance

WASHINGTON — An environmentalist scurried to stem Democrats with information on Interior Secretary-designate Gale A. Norton's political career, the former Colorado attorney general defended her views on public lands, the environment and states' rights Thursday.

Democrats, looking at her record, worry about nominee's intent

Designate John Astcroft, whose conservative views were criticized by many of the same groups that oppose Norton's nomination. Democrats, however, said they were wary of Norton's history of promoting public lands development and sought throughout the hearing to ensure that she would focus on conservation issues if confirmed.

Craig's statement reflected the belief of many Western lawmakers that the Clinton administration handed down public lands decisions without regard to local residents.

Bush promises 'fresh start,' inaugural activities begin

WASHINGTON — President-elect Bush opened his inaugural festivities on Thursday proclaiming "a fresh start" for America. He also promised to keep reaching for the broad-based support that eluded him in the election.

President-elect Bush dances with Ricky Martin during early inaugural ceremonies Thursday at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C.

white audience of RNC members gathered in a hotel ballroom. Bush spokesman Ari Fleischer hinted that Bush, who watched President Clinton issue a slew of executive orders and new rules in his final days, is eager to begin wielding his own executive power.

Witness has been a drug informant

EDEN - The eyewitness to a deadly Jan. 3-shootout has a history of criminal convictions and previously had worked as a confidential drug informant for police. Mary Ann Taylor, 36, has been identified as the eyewitness to the shootout which left Jerome County sheriff's Cpls. James Moulson, 30, and Phillip Anderson, 23, dead, along with Taylor's boyfriend, George Timothy Williams, 47.

Another drug — possession charge was dismissed in 1994, along with charges of battery and resisting or obstructing officers. Several people who know Taylor well described her as a recovering methamphetamine addict.

Clinton touts record of last eight years

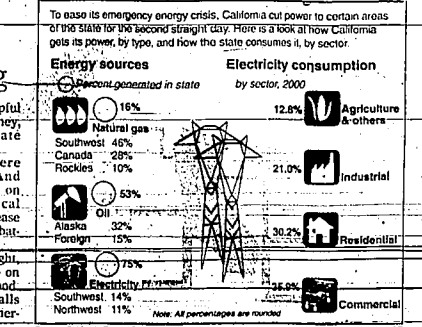

WASHINGTON — President Clinton, in a farewell from the Oval Office, told the nation Thursday night that "America has done well" during his presidency, with record-breaking prosperity and a cleaner environment.

THE LIGHTS GO OUT

California pulls plug again; lawmakers mull funding

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The lights went out on nearly 2 million California homes and businesses Thursday in the second straight day of blackouts as state lawmakers struggled to find a way out of the deepening crisis.

"It would be enormously helpful, and it would save the state money, if I could sign a bill by late tonight," Davis said. Hospitals and airports were exempt from the outages. And home-care patients who rely on electrically powered medical equipment because of lung disease or other ailments usually have batteries or backup generators.

13.3 million more votes than he did in the previous election." He was pleased as if for applause but his audience, all too cognizant that Bush lost the nation's popular vote by more than 500,000, hesitated.

Bush prodded them — "Worked hard to accomplish that. We picked up 11 million more votes — and the clipping came."

He went on to note that Republicans last year won a majority of Catholics for the first time since 1984 and the largest share of the Hispanic vote since that same year.

Bush did not remind that he got less than 9 percent of the black vote, the worst GOP showing in 36 years.

Still, he credited his victory to a new Republican philosophy. "One of the reasons I stand here today is we did set a new course for our party — what I call compassionate conservatism," Bush said.

"It's a philosophy that's generous and inclusive. It's a philosophy that understands our party must accept new faces and new voices into our ranks."

Norton

"I value the preservation of lands and the ability to use those lands in the appropriate way," Norton said. "In the West, for many people to adequately live their lives, they must have access to public lands."

One of her primary concerns, if confirmed, would be to involve local residents when handing down federal policies that could dramatically impact their communities or their livelihood.

"I am firmly committed to a process of consultation and collaboration," Norton said. "We should listen to all voices and involve all citizens in decision-making because that is fair. But we also should listen because that is wise."

Norton likewise said that Clinton and his administration had often taken on a "top-down approach" when structuring environmental policy and had failed to hear the concerns of people affected by their decisions.

"The goal of preserving public lands is an admirable goal," Norton said. "But the process in which it was done causes me alarm."

"Norton, an advocate of states' rights on most issues, including those involving the environment and public lands, said policy should be structured to fit each state."

"There are no one-size-fits-all solutions," Norton said. "We need to work with states to see what best fits each state."

Norton's commitment to states' rights concerned several Democrats, including Sen. Ron Wyden, D-Ore.

"As a Westerner, I share your view that one size does not fit all," Wyden said. "But you have to convince me that your bottom line will be unwavering. All federal and environmental laws must be complied with."

Norton, like Ashcroft, promised to uphold federal laws with which she disagreed.

Perhaps what has alarmed Norton's critics is the fact that she has her connection to Reagan administration Interior Secretary John Watt, whose focus on development of public lands over the conservation of natural resources drew sharp attacks from the environmental lobby.

"The reality of who I am is different from the characterization of who James Watt is," Norton said. "I mean him no disrespect, but I am my own person."

Still, the Sierra Club and other environmental groups will likely continue their campaign to block Norton's confirmation, pointing to her support of drilling Alaska's Arctic National Wildlife Refuge and other measures as the recipe for an anti-environmental agenda.

"Gale Norton's extremist agenda clashes with mainstream Americans who love our national parks and wild lands," said Carl Pope, executive director of the Sierra Club, in a statement.

"America needs a secretary of the interior who will fulfill the duties of protecting and maintaining our nation's public lands."

foreign affairs" and must not disentangle itself from the world," he said that at home, "the nation must treat all our people with fairness and dignity, regardless of their race, religion, gender or sexual orientation and regardless of when they arrived in this country."

It seemed to be a pointed alternative to Bush's proposal for sweeping tax cuts.

drug agents John Nunez and Don Walden, court records show. Taylor testified in the two men's highly publicized trials. Stringfield was the prosecutor in both trials.

Court records list Taylor among state witnesses for Nunez and Walden's trials, District Court records show. What Taylor said in court is unknown, because trial transcripts weren't available Thursday.

Nunez and Walden were charged with felony counts of racketeering, abuse of public money and sales-tax violations, in connection with the 1995 burglary of a drug evidence locker in Twin Falls. Walden was acquitted. Though Nunez was convicted, his conviction was overturned on appeal.

Taylor testified against both men at their trials, Stringfield said, "because they had misled her."

According to a defense motion to dismiss the indictment against Taylor, Taylor told Idaho Bureau of Narcotics investigators that "evidence was planted on her so that she could then mislead the investigating officers."

Whether Taylor was an informant in the Jerome County sheriff's investigation of Williams is unclear.

Doug Norgard, Taylor's ex-boyfriend who fathered her 3-year-old daughter, said she was working as an informant against Williams. Other sources agree.

What source close to Taylor said Taylor denied being an informant. The source requested anonymity.

Repeated Times-News phone messages to Taylor, who is staying in Twin Falls, have not been returned over the past week. She also has not replied to a letter requesting an interview.

Jerome County Sheriff Jim Weaver — who said he was one of the officers to first enter Williams' home the night of Jan. 3 — told news reporters at a recent press conference that Williams was part of "an ongoing narcotics investigation" which had lasted about a year.

Deputies had been serving a search warrant on Williams' Eden home when gunfire broke out. Officers subsequently found a trace amount of marijuana, a scale and other paraphernalia. No other drugs were found.

While not releasing much information about the shootings, Weaver said confidential informants supplied his office with information about Williams' reported drug trafficking. He did not release any names.

Lawyers have refused to release any information about Taylor or her involvement with the case.

"I can't comment on that," Capt. Clark Rollins of the Idaho State Police said Thursday.

In the days before the Jan. 3 shooting, Taylor had moved in with Williams. While Taylor did not consider Williams a boyfriend, Williams apparently thought differently.

"He said he was starting to fall in love with her," the source said.

Jerome County Prosecutor John Nicholson announced Wednesday that he would turn over his office's criminal investigation of the shooting to the Idaho attorney general's office.

Bob Cooper, spokesman for Attorney General Al Lance, said the attorney general's criminal investigation division will review the case for any criminal wrongdoing.

Stringfield said the case will likely be reviewed by the criminal division's prosecutorial assistance unit — which includes Stringfield and three other lawyers. Stringfield would not comment on the shooting case, saying only that he has "heard bits and pieces about it."

Rollins said the state police will continue their criminal investigation of the shooting, turning over their report to the attorney general's office in about a week and a half.

"If there is anything that needs to be reviewed, the attorney general's office will review it," Rollins said.

The attorney general's office will decide whether any probes need to be prosecuted, Rollins said.

As of Thursday, no one had been charged with a crime in connection with the shooting, Rollins said.

Panel recommends banning blood from some residents

WASHINGTON — As a precaution against mad cow disease, anyone who lived or traveled in France, Portugal or Ireland for a total of 10 years since 1980 should be banned from donating blood in the United States, government advisers recommended Thursday.

People can catch the human version of mad cow disease by eating infected beef, but there's no proof they can then spread the illness through blood. Still, advisers to the Food and Drug Administration called the new blood-donor ban a prudent step as Europe's crisis over the disease continues to spread.

The FDA already bans anyone who spent at least six months in Britain between 1980 and 1996 from donating blood. That's because Britain is the epicenter of the mad cow scare: Tens of thousands of British cattle were infected with the brain-destroying illness in the late 1980s and early 1990s, and 91 Britons so far have been diagnosed with a human version caught from infected beef.

Marines fire commander of Osprey aircraft squadron

WASHINGTON — A Marine Corps officer was relieved of duty as commander of the only V-22 Osprey training squadron Thursday after being accused anonymously of ordering the falsification of the aircraft's maintenance records.

In announcing the allegations and the action against Lt. Col. Odin Fred Leberman, the Marine Corps said "at this point" it believes there is no connection between the alleged falsification of records and the causes of two Osprey crashes last year that killed 23 Marines.

"There is nothing in these allegations, even if substantiated, that would have affected the safety of the aircraft," said Maj. Patrick Gibbons, a spokesman at Marine Corps headquarters in the Pentagon. Gibbons said he could not be more specific because he had not been informed of the exact allegations.

Eventually, researchers hope to harness its speedy properties in the development of more powerful computers and other technologies that store information in light particles rather than electrons.

GOP chairman tells RNC members to visit minorities

WASHINGTON — The new national GOP chairman had held office only a few minutes Thursday before issuing his first directive to members of the Republican National Committee: Go visit leaders of minority communities, and do it soon.

"How many of you have talked to leaders of the African-American community where you live?" Virginia Gov. Jim Gilmore asked Republicans at their winter meeting here. About two-thirds raised their hands. "How many of you have talked to leaders of the Hispanic community where you live?" About half raised their hands.

Gilmore, a former state attorney general who is a tax-cutting conservative and abortion foe, took over from outgoing GOP chairman Jim Nicholson. The Colorado businessman, who worked for a moderate GOP and won elections, was given a rousing ovation for his four years in charge.

Dozens contract bacterial illness in Borneo-race

ATLANTA — Dozens of people who paddled rivers and climbed mountains in Borneo as part of an adventure race contracted a sometimes-fatal bacterial illness often transmitted by rat urine, the government said Thursday.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said it has confirmed 68 cases of leptospirosis, which lurks in contaminated water and soil, among participants in the race. None of the cases was fatal.

Judge says Ashcroft distorted record; Democrats claim political motives

WASHINGTON (AP) — A black Missouri judge said Thursday that John Ashcroft "seriously distorted my record" to block the judge's appointment to a federal court in what Senate Democrats claimed was a bid for political gain.

Judge Ronnie White

"The question for the Senate is whether these misrepresentations are consistent with the fair play and justice you all would require of the U.S. attorney general," Missouri Supreme Court Judge Ronnie White told the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Now President Bush's choice for attorney general, Ashcroft was a Missouri senator seeking reelection when he engineered the party-line 1993 defeat of the federal nomination for White, the first black judge on Missouri's highest court. That week on ABC's "Good Morning America" after watching a video clip of Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., criticizing Ashcroft's efforts to make abortion illegal in pregnancies resulting from rape.

"That simply is not the case, and I knew it; and I was the only one who knew the facts of the situation that would prove it," Mrs.

Ashcroft had based his objections on legal disagreements with White, not politics or race. On the third day of the hearings, which seem likely to lead to Ashcroft's confirmation, Democrats and Republicans called character witnesses and representatives from women's, civil rights, law enforcement and crime-victim groups.

With no sign of a break in Republican support for Ashcroft and one Democrat, Georgia's Zell Miller, committed to voting for him, opponents raised the possibility of a filibuster. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., was considering that longshot move, which would force Ashcroft's backers to get 60 votes in the evenly-divided Senate to put him in charge of the Justice Department.

Meanwhile, the White episode filled the old Senate Caucus Room with drama as the jurist recounted his rise from poverty and then a former prosecutor graphically described a quadriple-murder that led to one of White's most controversial opinions.

Setting aside heated clashes of previous days, senators stepped gingerly among the emotions on display.

The child of teen-age parents, White described growing up in segregated St. Louis in an unfinished basement with no bathroom or kitchen. He was bused to a school where white children "would throw milk and food at us and tell us to go back to where we came from."

"This racism only strengthened my determination. I was not going to let the color of my skin or ignorance or the hatefulness of others hold me back," he said.

Agriculture nominee vows food safety commitment

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Ann Veneman, the first woman nominated as secretary of agriculture, told members of the Senate Agriculture Committee Thursday that she was strongly committed to food safety and raising farm incomes, but otherwise provided few clues as to what her specific policies would be. Veneman, an attorney who served as California's agriculture secretary from 1995 to 1999, has promised to take a hard line on food safety, but she has not said whether she will support the Clinton administration's plan to allow foreign producers to export their products to the United States.

Ashcroft's wife explains mention of attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Ashcroft's wife, Janet, said Thursday that the reason she revealed she was once attacked by a rapist was to demonstrate her husband's "caring sensitivity."

Janet Ashcroft

Mrs. Ashcroft was moved to discuss the attack earlier this week on ABC's "Good Morning America" after watching a video clip of Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., criticizing Ashcroft's efforts to make abortion illegal in pregnancies resulting from rape. "That simply is not the case, and I knew it; and I was the only one who knew the facts of the situation that would prove it," Mrs.

Ashcroft said. Mrs. Ashcroft has been a constant presence throughout her husband's grueling confirmation hearing for the job of attorney general.

She has been active throughout her husband's political career and, after their wedding 33 years ago, practiced law and wrote business law textbooks with him in his hometown of Springfield, Mo.

She refused to discuss details of the attack, but Mrs. Ashcroft said it happened 35 years ago while she and her future husband were attending law school at the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Ashcroft was "pressed about her husband's support of a constitutional ban on abortion, even in cases of rape or incest. Had she become pregnant from such an attack, would Ashcroft have wanted her to carry the child to term? "That's a question that he can answer," Mrs. Ashcroft said. "But his feeling for me was that no matter what happened to me, he was still going to be there for me."

Rev. Jackson acknowledges child

CHICAGO — The Rev. Jesse Jackson withdrew from public view at a potentially critical hour for the civil rights movement Thursday after disclosing that he had an extramarital affair that resulted in the birth of a daughter a year and a half ago.

A steady stream of supporters including Jackson's son, Rep. Jesse Jackson Jr., visited with him at his Chicago home, some carrying Bibles. But the only word from Jackson was a statement issued in the early morning hours revealing the affair.

"I fully accept responsibility and I am truly sorry for my actions," he said.

Jackson issued the statement to get out in front of anticipated tabloid reports. Scanlon said the child was the result of an affair Jackson had with a woman who worked in the Washington office of Jackson's civil rights group, the Rainbow/PUSH Coalition.

In his statement, Jackson said he would temporarily step aside from public life to spend time with his family.

The statement came amid the Senate confirmation hearings for John Ashcroft, President-elect Bush's nominee for attorney general—a choice denounced by Jackson and other civil rights leaders. Jackson has demanded that Democratic senators vote against Ashcroft.

Mercy killing brings prison term for father

TORONTO (AP) — A farmer who pleaded mercy to avoid the death penalty for the murder of his 12-year-old daughter was sentenced to at least 12 years in prison, Canada's Supreme Court ruled Thursday, ending seven years of legal limbo.

Robert Latimer, 47, was admitted to the hospital in October 1986 after being found in his home with his daughter's body. He pleaded guilty to the murder and was sentenced to life in prison with a chance at parole after 10 years.

Advocacy groups for the disabled called it cold-blooded murder, contending the daughter, Tracy, was able to experience joy and appreciate life.

The Supreme Court found that Tracy's condition was not reason enough to kill her, and suggested that if Latimer wants a pardon, he should ask the prime minister's government.

Latimer was a wheat and canola farmer in Whitecourt, a central Saskatchewan town, 500 miles north of Billings, Mont. Latimer appeared bitter in speaking to reporters about the ruling. He has been living with his wife and three other children pending the decision.

Saskatchewan courts had twice convicted Latimer of second-degree murder in the case, but his attorneys had sought a new trial or a reduction in the sentence, which is set by federal guidelines at life in prison with a chance at parole after 10 years.

Reserve CSI real estate for college's main mission

It's easy to understand why former Twin Falls City Councilman Art Frantz and others see the College of Southern Idaho campus as an attractive location for a new Twin Falls Senior Citizen Center.

It would be close to the Area Agency on Aging, which is already located on the CSI campus. The agency oversees programs and services that many Magic Valley seniors use. Plus, there is - for the moment, anyway - ample room at CSI, as well as grows anywhere close to projections over the next 20 years.

It just doesn't make sense for CSI to have to go shopping for expensive off-campus real estate in the future when the campus itself is partly filled with buildings unrelated to higher education.

What's more, the campus has a burgeoning traffic load that will only become more acute if more non-academic institutions are located at CSI. Four years ago, the CSI Board of Trustees enacted a moratorium on non-collegiate construction on campus. That still makes sense, and it's worth noting that the trustees subsequently regretted permitting at least one recent non-educational project on the campus.

While it's nice for CSI to serve as a community center even for activities not directly related to education, there are plenty of attractive alternative sites and clusters of government buildings elsewhere in Twin Falls.

Boise State University and Idaho State University, which both began life as a smattering of academic buildings on largely underused campuses, have long since run up against the realities of growth in Boise and Pocatello. They're out of room at BSU and ISU, with no good, affordable alternatives for finding more.

The same will probably eventually happen to CSI. In the meantime, the college's board should make sure the school makes the most of the land that's still available.

available parking, although that is getting tighter every year. And access would be relatively easy, especially compared with the existing Senior Center at the corner of Eastland and Elizabeth. That's no small consideration for a facility that accommodates hundreds of older folks a week.

But we think the campus should be reserved to accommodate the growth that is headed CSI's way - and for buildings directly associated with the college's core mission.

As it stands, the Office on Aging, the South Central District Health Department, the Boys and Girls Club of the Magic Valley and the National Guard Armory all operate on the CSI campus. Their presence may have made some sense when the academic and vocational activities took up just a fraction of the 300-acre campus.

That's not the case anymore. Only the campus' northwest corner remains undeveloped, and it's not difficult to imagine that space disappearing fast if CSI's student body

BSU and ISU once had lots of open space. But they have long since run up against the realities of growth in Boise and Pocatello.

LETTER

Mealey brings people together

You have sharply criticized former Sen. Alan Simpson of Wyoming for supporting Steve Mealey for Forest Service chief, citing the so-called "mooning" incident as the reason Mealey should not serve. This shallow and misleading perspective ignores and discounts a very important and positive chapter in Idaho's natural resources history.

Gov. Batt has often said that widespread anger aimed at the Department of Fish and Game was a key part of the 1993 governor's race. Mealey was hired as director in late 1996 on a 3-year term by a deeply divided commission. Mealey's charge was to build new partnerships between the department and its supporters and detractors. At least three commissioners, some department employees and some wildlife groups opposed his efforts. They never missed a trick, including publicizing the innocent, if unwise, feigned "mooning" on Lake Pend Oreille.

Regardless, new and successful coalitions flourished, including the black bear planning task force, the "starting point" budget planning committee and the Clearwater elk initiative. Interestingly, the commission unanimously awarded Mealey an "exceeds acceptable" performance rating and a pay increase nine months after the incident in north Idaho.

Mealey was fired two years ago on a 4-3 vote - again by a deeply divided commission. Mealey successfully secured support in the House Resources Committee for a department fee increase. He worked mostly alone because trust in the Legislature for department representatives essentially stopped with Mealey. The full House on the verge of passing a fee increase bill the day he was fired. After his firing and the bill was dropped, both the Idaho House and Senate formally expressed strong support for Mealey. He had been too successful in building new partnerships for the department, especially with the Legislature.

A new, low-key director is in place, a new generally unified commission runs things fairly smoothly and, for that, we thank Gov. Kempthorne. Department representatives are welcome in the Legislature, and a license fee increase passed last year. Idaho folks seem to have decided that working together on wildlife issues beats fighting. They don't talk much about partnership and sharing. They don't have to. Mostly, they're doing it.

We think that's Steve Mealey's true legacy, and we thank him for it. Al Simpson recognized that quality among others in Steve long ago. Now it's time to focus that quality on fixing a broken Forest Service.

Don't disenfranchise the military

One of the most disappointing results that came out of the recent Florida absentee ballot fiasco was the disenfranchisement of the overseas military personnel vote. With the new Congress now in session, the first order of business should be to establish a procedure to ensure that this vote will never happen again. It is unconscionable that men and women who are putting their very lives on the line for our country should see this most precious civil right frittered away by a combination of happenstance and political ambition.

During the Florida recounts, I was amazed that the supporters of the vice president, while demanding a recount of every vote, had hired a phalanx of lawyers armed with a list of how to disqualify overseas military ballots who might be for the governor of Texas. A late-hour change of heart urging that all military votes be counted rang a little hollow. Still many military absentee ballots were rejected for lack of postmarks, which often are not applied to military mail, especially at sea, where pickup and delivery are sporadic. Others were disqualified for not being witnessed or signed properly.

Our military personnel should not lose the right to have their vote counted because of circumstances beyond their control. A major emphasis is placed by unit officers, equipped with manuals, setting out the various states' requirements to help the troops cast their absentee ballots. Targeting any specific group with the purpose of depriving them of a basic civil right flies in the face of what the supporters of the vice president have traditionally advocated for many years.

It falls to Congress to fashion as foolproof a plan as is humanly possible, to help the troops, come the 2004 election and years beyond, avoid personnel in uniform can, at the very least, be guaranteed that their votes will be counted. Our under-strength, over-deployed military forces face ongoing challenges as they walk that quiet, silent, lonely outpost throughout the world, without this additional heavy burden of uncertainty of this letter will go to each of our congressional delegation, and I encourage all readers who agree with me on this issue, to also do the same.

We're lucky to live in America

Things are really tough right now, but oh, what a wonder life we have in America!

These are such exciting times, but oh so very challenging. Our business sales are down and expenses are up. Not unlike many other businesses around here, I suppose. Could be a time to really start complaining, but I have so much to be thankful for, especially when I realize that:

1. About 75 percent of the people in the world are hungry, lack proper clothing and a suitable home.
2. More than 1 million people will not survive this week.

Almost 3 billion people cannot go to church without fear of harassment, arrest or death.

4. Ninety-two percent have little or no money.

5. More than 60 percent have no access to a Bible.

I am thankful for so much - for freedom, for my special loving wife and for five wonderful, healthy children, loyal customers and good, hard-working, conscientious employees. I am especially thankful for almighty God for giving to us all his most precious son and for all those that represent him, regardless of race or religious orientation. Also, special thanks to the exceptional women who gifted us with our adopted children. Also, I am so thankful to live in America; it isn't perfect but it is the very best.

I just have to remember that the way to have intellectual, psychological and spiritual health lies in my self-forgetfulness, and this comes from my involvement and commitment to others, to causes, to professions, to family, to hobbies, to God. In short, to almost anything but preoccupation with myself. I have to keep my heart free from all hate and my mind free from worry. To try to live simply, expect little, give much, sing frequently and pray often. To fill my life with love, smile more, hug some and scatter sunshine by helping others and by getting along with my neighbors better.

Basically, to live by the Golden Rule, to do as I want to be done by. And to always remember that, in the end, those things that affect my life the most are too simple to talk about. I can do a little, I'll try. Most of you are my good example, and thank so much for being my light in a sometimes dark world.

Let's all make it better in 2001. We can make a difference for the better.

Police fouled up in Eden

A radio news broadcast early this morning (Jan. 15) provided an update regarding the Jerome County triple homicide earlier this month. It is now being alleged that the unidentified woman who sought sanctuary in Mr. Williams' home actually served as an informant for the police. It was stated that security reasons prohibit divulging the public her identity or current location.

(Would that be similar to the August 1992 radio broadcast of Paul Harvey? The one where he pleaded with Mr. Weaver to go outside to the remote-controlled robot and pick up the telephone? You know the robot - the one armed with a fully automatic M-16 military assault rifle?)

Now go figure. Albeit domestic violence, robbery, assault or serving a warrant where behaviors may be volatile and unpredictable secondary to chemical abuse, the first consideration always is whether lethal weapons are present on site.

Were drugs there? Nope! Were guns there? Yup! Bummer. I trust the Jerome County sheriff's office didn't waste much tax dollar money on this female "informant." She was in error on all data that mattered.

Was she an informant now under protection by authorities or was she there seeking sanctuary? Did she have information about the real criminal element - information wanted silently?

The Jerome County sheriff's office can scarcely financially justify witness protection. It put a 23-year-old boy with two years' experience on its SWAT team.

Had the woman needed safety, then Mr. Williams gave the last full measure, and the Idaho State Police best commence dragging the riverbeds.

Cops don't take down little marijuana users. They harass them to finger the traffickers. Get a grip!

Law enforcement family mourns

In the processes of thanking all concerned for their parts in the memorial services for the two fallen members of our law enforcement family - Cpl. James Moulson and Cpl. Phillip Anderson - I have decided to also extend that appreciation to the citizens of Twin Falls and the surrounding area through its major paper.

Unlike virtually any other professional area and whether the person is in a commissioned position or just a supporter or merely a friend of law enforcement, because of the knowledge that you or your partner may be the very next person to fall, the sense of emotional attachment progresses to a much higher level than can even be said of actual blood family members. This depth of attachment prevails in the law enforcement family, whether the people involved are best buddies, get along, fight between each other constantly, serve within whatever capacity, are members of the same agency or members of some other agency clear across the nation. When a member of law enforcement falls, the entire law enforcement family mourns as a single unit.

While the citizens of Twin Falls may well have had ideas about other agencies being represented during the memorial service, I am certain that most of the citizens were unprepared for the spectacle emerging before their eyes on that day, and those who lined the streets watching cruisers pass may never forget what they have been a part of.

For their tolerance of having to "put up" with us who are members of the law enforcement family, I applaud all of them and profoundly appreciate their reactions.

May they who lined the streets watching more acute sense of what it means to be involved in law enforcement.

Controversial farm bill gets introduced

BOISE - A controversial farm worker minimum wage bill was introduced in the House Agricultural Affairs Committee Thursday.

The measure does away with the state's exemption of farm workers from minimum wage laws, by requiring farm operations that employ more than seven full-time employees annually to pay all workers at least $5.15 an hour.

Critics of the legislation, modeled on the federal Fair Labor Standards Act, say the bill does nothing for Idaho's mostly Hispanic farm workers that federal law doesn't already guarantee. Drafted this summer by an interim committee studying the issue, the bill will likely be debated on Jan. 30 in the agricultural affairs committee, chaired by Rep. Doug Jones, R-Idaho.

Other legislation completely removing the exemption from Idaho law, which would guarantee minimum wage for all farm labor, has also been introduced.

MV hospital board holds closed meeting

TWIN FALLS - The Magic Valley Regional Medical Center hospital board met Thursday morning in a closed meeting, following Tuesday's announcement that Twin Falls Clinic & Hospital would pursue a partnership with Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

Magic Valley Regional had sought the local clinic partnership but lost to Saint Al's bid.

Hospital spokesman Shawn Burger said Thursday's meeting was the first time the board had a chance to meet since Tuesday's announcement. He said the board met in closed executive session to review the hospital's strategic plan.

"We expect the health care environment in Twin Falls to get significantly more competitive," Board Chairman Terry Schultz told The Times-News.

The board is revisiting the hospital's strategic plan, which contains a range of both fiscal and program objectives, assessing what impacts it can expect from the new partnership and developing a range of comprehensive strategies, Schultz said.

Ketchum City Council reworks election system

KETCHUM - Ketchum City Council members are changing the way they're voted into office.

Each council seat will be assigned a number in future elections, requiring all candidates to file for a specific seat.

Rouffits will be held when no candidate receives a majority of the vote.

The new format precludes a candidate from running against someone whose beliefs they support, council member David Hutchinson said. Most municipalities throughout the country do it this way.

"The way we've been doing it is highly unusual," Hutchinson said. Ketchum is too small to designate seats geographically, City Administrator Jacques said.

"The one polling place is City Hall," Jaquet said.

Sawtooth Forest officials recruit employees

TWIN FALLS - Today's the first deadline to apply for Sawtooth National Forest aviation, fire and fuel management jobs.

"We are doing this in response to the severe fire season of 2000 and recent legislation signed by President Clinton," said Randy Richert, a Sawtooth forest and aviation manager, in a news release.

"Over the next several months, the Forest Service will be hiring approximately 3,500 employees in firefighting positions," Richert said.

There will be more than one round of hiring. Applications for the first round are due today, Richert said.

The Sawtooth will fill 31 jobs during the first round. Most of these are for people with specialized skills, but a small number of entry-level jobs are available. Job openings include fuel technicians, fire prevention technicians, fire engine drivers, helitack squad leaders, fire ecologists and others. Pay ranges from $7.47 to $15.52 per hour. All applicants must be U.S. citizens and at least 18 years of age or older.

Applications and information are available at Sawtooth offices in Stanley, Ketchum, Fairfield, Twin Falls and Burley.

Hog farm won't name backers

By Ruth Stroeter
Times-News writer

BURLEY - An attorney representing Big Sky Farms LLC Thursday declined to name the partners providing equity for a large-scale hog operation proposed for eastern Cassia County. In a presentation before the Cassia County Planning and Zoning Commission, Boise attorney Donald Knickrehm told about 200 people that the project is being financed with private equity, rather than by mortgage-based financing, but he is not at liberty to provide the names of partners.

Ketchum agribusinessman Ron Achi is heading up the controversial $95,000-animal operation.

The operation will be constructed as a "built to suit" project, in which the owner, a limited liability corporation, builds the facility, then leases it to Big

Hearing tonight
The hearing will start off with a 20-minute presentation from Richard Gerard, Cassia County's Extension Agent, a 15-minute presentation from the Burley Highway District and 15 minutes of questions from the Cassia County Planning and Zoning Commission. Those who favor the proposal will have 45 minutes to speak, and those who oppose the proposal will have another 45 minutes. Big Sky Farms will then have 15 minutes for rebuttal. The hearing will conclude with a 15-minute question-and-answer period.

Sky Farms, Knickrehm said. Big Sky Farms would be the operating entity.

"That's a fairly common real estate structure," Knickrehm said Thursday at the second of three public hearings this week on the proposal.

Big Sky Farms would have all the responsibilities of operating the facility and providing closure and contingency plans. If Big Sky Farms abandoned the operation, the property owner would be held to the costs, Knickrehm said.

Glen McClelland of Grand Junction, Colo., said the facility would employ 396 people, and provide competitive wages and benefits. Waged employees would need to have a high school education and speak English. Big Sky would like to recruit workers locally, McClelland said.

Cassia County Planning and Zoning Commissioner Dale Pierce, center, goes over information provided by Big Sky Farms LLC at a Thursday public hearing.

The facility would employ a team devoted strictly to waste management, said Big Sky's chief engineer, Rick Anderson. Group, Anderson said the team would be highly trained and very highly paid and that he

About 650 people attend funeral of Burley philanthropist

BURLEY - Remembered by friends Thursday as a man who exhibited honesty, consistency and a great sense of humor, about 650 people attended Hermon King's funeral in the fine arts center that bears his name.

"But I failed to mention why Hermon always kept his eye on the ball. He didn't play golf," said James Roper, eliciting laughter from the crowd during a ceremony at which many tears were shed.

King and his wife, Jean, were known as philanthropists, who donated more than $1 million for the King Fine Arts Center. But, some speakers said the Kings quietly gave time and encouragement to various projects.

Jean King, 84, died in September 2000, and Hermon King died on Jan. 9 at 87.

The Kings ran more than 30 variety stores under their name throughout six states. The stores were inherited by Hermon King from his father, M.H., and a charitable organization was formed not too many years before M.H. King's death in 1951.

"Their concern and support was critical to a lot of organizations. Their interest, both in the visual and performing arts ... is a lasting heritage," said Roper, a fellow Burley businessman and friend of Hermon King's. Roper ran the Roper's department stores throughout Idaho, before the stores closed in 1999.

Longtime friend Glen Kumau said the King family has a large task ahead, but should have no problem picking up the legacy their father has left behind.

"The gauntlet has been thrown down," Kumau said. "Now it is up to the King family ... to pick it up and work toward future accomplishments. I have full confidence the King family will succeed."

The Rev. Al Trachsel - pastor of Burley's United Methodist Church - described King as a parishioner who always thought of others before himself.

"He was devoted to his community, to his church," Trachsel said. "He gave himself without reservation."

Roper said Jean and Hermon King both loved to travel, and the two are now united to embark on another adventure.

"They are on another of their wonderful trips," Roper said. "Jean had to leave a little early, but now Hermon has caught up."

Ketchum could hold developer accountable

By Karen Bostalk
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM - A Ketchum man has asked the city to hold a developer accountable for an excavation project on a hill within view of the Baldy ski runs.

A construction contractor said it plans to remedy the situation, and Ketchum's city attorney said the problem is a hillside excavation project on a hill within view of the Baldy ski runs.

"This is a multimillion dollar project and a simple $300 fine is like junch money to these guys,"

Meeting Monday

Hillside Ventures, a Wood River Valley developer, will go before the Ketchum Planning and Zoning Commission at 8:30 p.m. Monday at Ketchum City Hall. The developer wants to build a second duplex near the site of the first.

he said. "It's a terrible eyesore from Greyhawk (ski run). It can never be erased."

Representatives for the developer, Hillside Ventures, had told the city's Planning and Zoning Commission that they intended to remove about 2,000 yards of material for a large retaining wall at the rear foundation of a duplex on Sage Road in the Warm Springs area. Critics have suggested five to 10 times as much material might have been removed, with hundreds of trucks carting dirt away.

Fritz Hoffman, of Hoffman Construction, said his company had a permit to remove 3,500 cubic yards of material, not just the 2,000-cubic-foot figure cited by Hillside Ventures. The company did wind up removing 11,200 cubic yards of dirt.

Hoffman, who is developing the project, said he plans to return 3,000 cubic yards of dirt to the site. City Administrator Jim Jaquet said the city plans to set up a meeting with Hoffman to determine what to do next.

The matter could come under discussion Monday when Hillside Ventures goes before the Ketchum Planning and Zoning Commission to propose a project on a neighboring lot.

Idaho code allows a maximum fine of $300 in situations like this, said City Attorney Margaret Simms.

But Ketchum City Councilman David Hutchinson said the city could hike the developer in the pocketbook by withholding approval.

Jaquet said the city may be able to prevent problems in the future by having the contractor stake out visual boundaries and then have the city inspect them to make sure work doesn't exceed permits.

Airman contracts hantavirus

By Jennifer Sandmann
Times-News writer

MOUNTAIN HOME - A Mountain Home Air Force Base airman has been diagnosed with hantavirus, base officials reported Thursday.

The first Class Delvin McMillan was hospitalized at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise Jan. 12 in intensive care and his condition is critical, an air base news release said. Lab tests Wednesday confirmed the hantavirus. Citing privacy issues, the air base said it could not disclose McMillan's hometown.

Dr. Christine Hahn, the state's epidemiologist, said there is no specific cure for hantavirus, which causes respiratory illness and pneumonia.

"About 40 percent of the cases reported in the United States are fatal," she said.

The virus is spread through the air when fresh rodent saliva, urine, droppings or nesting material are stirred up. It is not spread from person to person.

The air base, which has its own public health office, says McMillan could have picked up the virus anywhere, so wing officials are investigating his whereabouts over the past 45 days. Medical personnel believe it is unlikely he was exposed to the virus in his dormitory or workplace, but investigation of those areas and other areas on and off the base continue, the air base reported.

"We don't think there is much danger to the rest of the base or surrounding communities," said Col. Jeff Eberhart, 366th Wing commander, in an air base statement. "While we're serious, this is a very rare occurrence and the first here at the Mountain Home Air Force Base."

In 1996, a Buhl man survived the hantavirus.

More information

Hantavirus symptoms: Early symptoms include fever, fatigue, and muscle aches. About half of hantavirus cases also include early symptoms of headaches, dizziness, chills and abdominal problems. Late symptoms are coughing and shortness of breath. Preventing hantavirus: Recent research shows that many people who became ill with the virus do so after having been in frequent contact with rodents or their droppings around a home or workplace. But many people who became ill reported that they had not seen rodents or rodent droppings at all. The best advice is to avoid inadvertently providing ideal nesting conditions and easy food access, whether it's at home or camping. Source: Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

Engineers follow proposed resort lien with suit

BOISE (AP) - A Utah engineering firm which filed a $13-million lien against the proposed WestRock resort on Lake Cascade followed through with a lawsuit in federal court to back it up.

now is owed that money. "We provided not only engineering but land-planning services and environmental studies," said Jack Johnson, the company principal. "I really don't want to file a suit, but the reason is to collect the money owed to them."

The firm with about 80 employees alleges WestRock broke a contract and profited from their services without paying the bill. It also contends claims against WestRock by Capital Salvage and Gold Mountain Financial Institution of California are junior to its interests.

Jean-Pierre Boespflug, chief executive officer of WestRock Associates LLC, earlier said the firm has everything to do with the value of work Jack Johnson Co. provided and nothing to do with the project's ability to pay.

RUPERT

Milton Leigh Ingersoll

Together Again: Milton Leigh Ingersoll, 88-year-old, passed peacefully away Jan. 17, 2001, at Mindoka Memorial Hospital surrounded by his daughter, her husband and two granddaughters. Leigh was born on May 18, 1912, to Milton Henry and Nora Bishop Ingersoll. Leigh graduated from American Fork High School and went to BYU and Utah State and graduated with a MA from the University of Idaho. He taught and did chemistry at Gooding High School and later became superintendent of Gooding District Schools.

After a major stroke slowed her down in 1995, she struggled to learn how to accept the service of others instead of always giving. Roberta and Latham moved to Burley in August of 1998, to live near their oldest daughter and family. While living in Highland Falls she broadened her scope of friends and amazed all her ability to play the piano still with just her right hand and sing the words to any song or hymn played.

Roberta is survived by her husband, Latham of Burley; her daughters, Kathleen (Mitt) Banner of Burley, Elizabeth (Steve) Schoenfeld of Bellevue, Wash. and Cheryl (Michael) Fitzgerald of Tampa, Fla. and five grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her parents; one brother, Bill; and one sister, Mary Jane.

BURLEY

Shirley Mae Summerlin

Shirley Mae Summerlin, 72, a Twin Falls resident and formerly of Wendell, died Wednesday, Jan. 17, 2001, at St. Benedict's Long Term Care Center in Jerome.

OBITUARIES

For obituary rates and information, call 733-0933, Ext. 278, between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Deadline is 4:30 p.m. for next-day publication. Death notices are a free service and can be placed until 8 p.m. every day.

Roberta was born in Pyeung Yang, Korea on Nov. 17, 1925, to William Earl Shaw and Mirnie Adeline Hamilton, who were serving a life sentence in the Missouri State Penitentiary. She attended schools there until she was evacuated to the United States at the age of 15 due to the approaching hostilities of World War II. She attended school in the Washington and Ohio Wesleyan University in Delaware, Ohio, and then obtained a masters degree in sacred music and organ at Union Theological Seminary in New York City, in June of 1949. On July 23, 1949, she married the love of her life, Latham Ephraim Wright Jr., son of Presbyterian missionaries to Brazil. After his graduation from McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, they embarked on a life of service traveling first to Lisbon, Portugal, where both served as professors at the seminary there. The first two of three daughters were born in Lisbon. They added their third daughter to the family in Brazil. After his graduation from McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, they embarked on a life of service traveling first to Lisbon, Portugal, where both served as professors at the seminary there.

Tri-Chem. She became a fairly successful Tri-Chem rep. Her love for the mountains and the outdoors are reflected in her paintings. She loved camping and the outdoors, talking about the beauty of the mountain colors in fall.

Shirley went to work for her brother Ed Mason, using her creativity to make and design notions and make sales calls to Twin Falls and Blaine county customers, with whom she became close friends. Shirley took care of her mother Grace in her later years, until her mother's passing in 1989. Shirley was badly burned in fire in the summer of 2000 and put up a courageous fight to stay alive when the odds were against her. She spent many months in Salt Lake City trying to recover from her accident, succumbing only after she returned to the valley she loved. We hope we can all have the courage and fight she has displayed these past months.

Shirley had many friends and family in Idaho, Nevada, Montana and Washington. We will all miss her greatly and mourn her passing. The family would like to thank this time to thank Shirley's niece, Mari, Mason for all her help and advice these past difficult months.

Shirley is survived by three brothers, Dean Mason of Jerome, Elaine Mason of Twin Falls and Ed Mason of Twin Falls.

The family would like to thank everyone for their kind words and condolences.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 20, 2001, at Demaray's Wendell Chapel. Interment will follow at the Wendell Cemetery. At the family's request there will be no public viewing.

Jason Paul Kelley

Jason Paul Kelley, 34, of Filer died Jan. 17, 2001, at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise, of injuries sustained in an automobile accident north of Filer.

Jason was born Dec. 14, 1966, in Moscow, the son of Richard Kelley and Susan (Buyny) Kelley. Jason graduated from Buhl High School in 1985 after participating in student government, football, marching band, and many other student activities. He graduated in 1990 with an engineering degree from the University of Idaho, where he was a member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity, President of Interfraternity Council and a member of the Student-Athlete Relations Board. Jason lived briefly in Portland, Ore., before moving to Boise to work for Albertson's in the Corporate Office.

Jason married Sherry Louise Barclay Sept. 1996. Jason and Sherry moved from Boise to Filer in the fall of 1997 to participate in the family business, Kelley Garden Center, and to start their own business, Kelley Sod. Jason was a member of the Blue Lakes Rotary Club, the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors, the area Vandal Posters, the Small Business Education Advisory Board, and the Twin Falls Tree Commission. Jason's hobbies included snow and water skiing, white water rafting, camping, fishing, and especially spending time with his dog, Zak.

Jason is survived by his wife, Sherry; his parents Susan Kelley of Twin Falls and Richard and Carolyn Kelley of Buhl; his sister, Gretchen (Forest) Blotz of Reno, Robin Kelley of Denver, Katharyn and Amanda Munn of Buhl; his brother Craig (Gall) Kelley of Twin Falls; his grandfather, OC (Virginia) Kelley of Twin Falls; family-in-law Pat and Sharon Barclay of Twin Falls; Miles Barclay of Twin Falls; and Shelly (Steve) Shockey of Idaho Falls; and nephews Nicholas Blotz, and Sean and Noah Shockey, and niece Shelby Blotz.

Jason was a beloved husband, son, brother, cousin, uncle and friend and will be missed by all who knew and loved him. Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 20, 2001, at the Twin Falls Presbyterian Church.

Burial will follow at the Filer Cemetery. A time of celebration will be held in Jason's honor following the services.

Jason's family requests that in lieu of flowers, donations be made to the Jason Kelley Scholarship Fund. Contributions will be used to help local high school students continue their education at the University of Idaho. Contributions may be given to funeral chapel staff or mailed to the Magic Valley Bank, 222 Shoshone St. East, Twin Falls, ID. Services are under the direction of Reynolds Funeral Chapel, Twin Falls.

GOODING

Peggy Ann Gabriel

Peggy Ann Gabriel, 66, a Gooding resident, died Tuesday, Jan. 16, 2001, at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls after a long illness.

Peggy was born on June 16, 1934, in Gooding, the daughter of Jesse and Deloris Salcom Curtis. She was raised and educated in Gooding. Peggy married Lloyd Gabriel on Dec. 8, 1951, in Elko, Nev.

She worked for nine years as a cook in dietary services for the Magic Valley Manor in Wendell. Peggy was a member of the Solid Rock Baptist Church in Gooding, and prior she was a member of the Bible Baptist Church in Jerome for 13 years.

Peggy is survived by her husband, nearly 50 years; Lloyd Gabriel of Gooding; three sisters, Helen Spurgeon and Lucy Fortesque, both of Hood River, Ore.; and Lorraine Gonzales of Sacramento, Calif., and numerous nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her parents; six brothers and three sisters.

Funeral services will be held on Friday, Jan. 19, 2001 at 2 p.m. at Demaray's Gooding Chapel with Pastor Bobby Sianchfield officiating. Interment will be in the Greenwood Cemetery in Gooding. In lieu of flowers memorial contributions may be made in Peggy's name to: Solid Rock Baptist Church, P.O. Box 472, Gooding, Idaho, 83303.

Mother faces charges of attempted homicide

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The woman who gave birth in a bathroom stall at the Salt Lake International Airport last month has been charged with attempted homicide.

Prosecutors allege Julienne Kaye Brunette, 35, of Spokane, Wash., intended to leave her baby to die in the toilet of the airport restroom.

The boy has been placed with adoptive parents.

Brunette, traveling with a female friend, was on a flight from Spokane to Las Vegas on Dec. 20. It had a 50-minute layover in Salt Lake City. During that time

Brunette went into a bathroom in the lounge, where she gave birth to the child.

Two teen-age girls saw blood hitting the floor of the stall and heard a "sound like a kitten meowing," according to documents filed in 3rd District Court Wednesday.

One girl told police she saw Brunette trying to mop up the blood with toilet paper.

Summoned by one of the teens, bystander Carli Whitaker rushed into the bathroom and attempted to crawl beneath the stall divider before Brunette unlocked the door, the charges allege. Whitaker retrieved the baby from the toilet.

Rupert creates infrastructure committees

By Aaron Brock
Times-News writer

RUPERT — The infrastructure in Rupert is a high priority, and needs to be addressed before the city can make serious efforts to bring in new industry.

New businesses have a lot to offer, said city administrator Roger Bagley, but the city doesn't have much to offer in return.

"The businesses fit," he said. "But we don't have any place to fit them."

Several new committees will be created to upgrade infrastructure and to help decide on a direction for the city's growth, city leaders agreed at a Thursday planning workshop.

The first part of this endeavor is forming a group to coordinate maintenance efforts. If a street is getting torn apart to accommodate electric upgrades, then any sewer or water work should be done simultaneously.

City streets department head Bob Russmann, water department head Dennis Andrew, sewer department head David Joyce and electric department head Jim Bowers and several other officials will meet periodically to make sure efforts are coordinated when possible.

"It will not be easy to get everyone on the same page, Andrew said.

"It's hard to hold to a long-range plan," he said, because unexpected problems keep coming up. In the past, department heads have had to "take it one day at a time" to keep from overextending the department.

But even if it must be flexible, a long-term plan will help, planning committee members agreed.

A few of the projects already demand attention, said councilman Layne Rutschke.

"Right now, we've got a water project," he said. "We need to get that handled."

Because of budget restraints and unforeseen projects, however, deadlines are often pushed back, department heads said.

For instance, an electrical line upgrade, in the works for the better part of a decade, might not be completed for at least another 10 years, Bowers told the committee.

And it's unreasonable to raise electric rates to get the project done more quickly, with a 15 to 30 percent rate hike from the Bonneville Power Administration coming in October.

The purpose of this improvement is to attract new business and high power rates are not going to help that effort, said retiring Fire Chief Thyne Taylor.

Bill would require police to monitor racial profiling

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Racial profiling does exist in Utah, Rep. Duane Bourdeaux contends.

Now the Salt Lake City Democrat wants to find out how deep it goes.

Bourdeaux is sponsoring legislation that would require police departments to compile statistics on the race of those stopped by police.

"This has been a dark cloud for some time in the eyes of many," said Bourdeaux. "It must go."

Bourdeaux's bill was approved by the House Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice Committee on Thursday with one dissenting vote and will go to the House for consideration.

Last year, the House passed the bill, but it was not acted on by the Senate.

Sgt. Ron Stallworth, a 15-year veteran with the Department of Public Safety and a gang investigator, said he has seen profiling occur.

It got me very clear: Profiling based on racial and ethnic factors) has occurred in the state of Utah," he said. "We must acknowledge that. A: It has occurred; B: How do we move forward to address it?"

Stallworth said better police training could reduce the problem.

If Bourdeaux's proposal passes, drivers would be asked to check a racial category when they get their license. The Drivers' License Division's central database would then track the race of motorists who are stopped.

The Commission on Criminal and Juvenile Justice would analyze the statistics to determine if police officers or sheriffs deputies are stopping extraordinary numbers of minorities.

Bourdeaux's bill would also require police departments to adopt a policy prohibiting profiling.

The Salt Lake City Police Department has been keeping traffic stop statistics for nearly a year, and those figures don't indicate that profiling is a problem, said Police Chief Rick Dinsie.

Terrarium might get federal recognition

ORACLE, Ariz. (AP) — Biosphere 2, the unique ecological laboratory once billed as a miniature version of Earth, may become a federal research facility.

Energy Secretary Bill Richardson signed an agreement with Columbia University Thursday to evaluate whether the 3-acre, glass-domed terrarium that 3 miles northeast of Tucson should be designated as a "national user facility."

That designation would mean that scientists from throughout the country could do research at the center, where eight people were once sealed in for two years in the search for a self-sustaining ecosystem.

"It is critically important to the future of the Earth that we better understand and begin to solve the major ecological problems confronting us," said Columbia University President George Rupp, who also signed the agreement.

Columbia, which took over operation of Biosphere 2 five years ago following questions about its function, administration and scientific legitimacy, would continue to manage the center built by Texas financier Ed Bass.

However, much of the research would be federally funded, said

John Mutter, professor of earth and environmental sciences at Columbia. Mutter also is vice provost for Columbia's Earth Institute.

The designation also would provide a major credit line boost to a facility that opened in 1991 as a private experiment featuring its own small ocean, rain forest, savannah and other typical forms of Earth ecology. Intended to be self-sustaining, it originally was touted as a step toward space colonization.

Researchers who were sealed inside were to grow their own food and recycle water and wastes while the enclosed "citizens" and vegetation renewed the sphere's oxygen supply.

Problems required feeding some replacement oxygen in from outside, though the eight remained under virtual seal for the two years. Nonetheless, many viewed the whole affair as a stunt.

"If DOE signs off on it, nothing else needs to be said to the (scientific) community about its viability as a true research instrument," Mutter said.

The Department of Energy would be giving its stamp of recognition that a glass enclosure has been transformed into a fully functional research facility."

Avalanche kills snowmobiler

JACKSON, Mont. (AP) — A competitive snowmobiler was killed in an avalanche while riding with friends.

The body of David Shepherd, 37, was found Wednesday under 6 feet of snow.

Shepherd and the other riders were equipped with emergency rescue locators, but he was dead before his friends could dig him out, Beaverhead County Coroner Ken Brunkhorst said.

Shepherd was a widely known competitive hill climber who had won numerous titles.

Brunkhorst said Shepherd was the last of three riders trying to crest a steep ridge. The other riders failed to make it to the top.

Witnesses said Shepherd was nearly to the crest when it appeared his machine stalled, and the snow — let loose, Brunkhorst said.

No one else was injured.

School to continue managing nuke labs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The University of California reached an agreement Thursday extending an agreement to manage the nation's nuclear labs, but the government demanded changes to prevent future security lapses.

The renegotiated contract, signed by university regents and Energy Department officials, leaves the university in control of managing the two facilities until 2005 but gives the federal government new powers over who can work at the labs.

The regents unanimous vote to approve the changes Thursday was less than 48 hours before Richardson's term expired.

"I think we've turned a corner in our management challenges, and I'm very comfortable turning this over to a new administration," Richardson said.

The university had sometimes appeared in recent months to be in danger of losing the Los Alamos

National Laboratory in New Mexico and Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory near San Francisco.

It has managed both since their creation half a century ago.

At one point, Energy Secretary Bill Richardson announced he had not ruled out putting the management contract out to competitive bid.

The problems at the labs began in 1999 when Los Alamos scientist Wen Ho Lee was fired, charged with mishandling classified information and jailed.

Lee was set free after pleading guilty to one of the 39 charges, and the other 38 were dropped. He was never charged with espionage and denied passing secrets to anyone.

The other problems included the nearly two-month disappearance of the Los Alamos hard drive, and Richardson's discovery that Livermore — billion laser project was hundreds of millions of dollars over budget and faced substantial delays.

The agreement reached Thursday includes provisions allowing the government to financially penalize the university for safety or security violations at the labs and to order the removal, but not the firing, of any lab employee.

The university can be paid up to $14.4 million for managing both labs through 2002 and up to $15.8 million after that. It also gets a base management fee, which brings the fee total to about $25 million a year. The school manages the labs on a nonprofit basis.

The modified contracts do not include the third lab the school manages for the Energy Department, Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory.

The lab does not conduct classified research and remains on its five-year contract signed in 1997.

Secretary sees no espionage evidence

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP) — An FBI investigation of two missing hard drives at Los Alamos National Laboratory found no evidence of espionage, Energy Secretary Bill Richardson said Thursday.

The FBI ended its investigation without determining who was responsible for the disappearance, Richardson said in a statement. The agency also found no evidence that top-secret information about nuclear weapons contained on the drives had been stolen, he said.

Workers noticed the drives were missing from a vault in the lab's top-secret X Division as a wildfire moved onto lab property in early May, and the lab and surrounding area were evacuated.

The drives, each slightly larger than a deck of cards, still could not be found when workers were able to re-enter the vault May 22.

The drives were discovered June 16 behind a copy machine in an area that had been searched previously.

Richardson said Thursday that with the close of the investigation the Energy Department would refer the matter to the department's Albuquerque operations office and the University of California, which manages the lab, so that they could take any appropriate personnel action.

In November, the university said it had disciplined some lab workers for the disappearance. No one was fired, and the university would not give other details.

University spokesman Jeff Garberson of San Francisco said at the time that upper-level managers and rank-and-file employees had been disciplined, and some were temporarily suspended.

John Gordon, head of the DOE nuclear weapons program, said the investigation's end means Los Alamos can now fully focus on its vitally important national security mission."

expects well-trained employees to fill those jobs.

Big Sky is projecting the need for 400,000 tons of grain annually, most of which Big Sky would like to buy from local growers, McClellan said.

Commissioner Bruce Beck questioned whether Big Sky has tested the quality of local wheat-bixley mixes that Big Sky will use as feed to see if it's up to snuff.

Knickrehm said he wasn't aware of any testing, but that he was aware of the fact that high-quality grain is being produced in the area.

Questioned about the odor the facility will produce, Anderson said monitoring stations would be put up around the operation, but the state Department of Environmental Quality would refine its odor-management plan to identify distance and elevation standards.

Anderson told commissioners the proposed anaerobic digesters which are part of the waste management system would operate properly in fluctuating temperatures, an assertion opponents contest.

A group opposed to the operation, the Cassia County Coalition, pinned its technical opposition Thursday night to water-rights concerns.

Twin Falls attorney Gary Slette, speaking on behalf of the group, said 16 water rights are in place for the proposed Big Sky Farms site — 15 earmarked for irrigation, and the 16th for a small dairy. None have been transferred, he said.

The developer has the burden of proof to resolve the water-rights problem and all other unanswered questions in the application, said Slette, to the applause of audience members.

Earlier, commissioners posed technical questions to the developers.

Beck questioned whether the person responsible for monitoring the digesters would be a Big Sky Farms employee.

Anderson said Big Sky would hire monitoring personnel, but they would be trained at state levels.

Commissioner Randy Robins questioned whether Big Sky has a contingency plan for rendering its dead animals in case of an emergency when a large number of animals die at once.

Anderson said Big Sky would take care of the dead animals one way or another, to comply with its permit.

"They will not be allowed to accumulate on site," Anderson said.

Prison workers might face discipline after escape

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Six weeks after seven inmates escaped from a Texas prison, at least one worker has been suspended and some guards may be fired, a union official said.

Several guards named in a Texas Department of Criminal Justice report issued last week are expected to face disciplinary hearings, where the warden will make recommendations based on an investigative committee's findings.

Brian Olsen, executive director of a prison employee council within the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said prison officials should take into account institutional problems.

"There were some mistakes made by these officers... but poor training and other problems should be taken into consideration," Olsen said.

The convicts escaped Dec. 13 from the maximum-security Conally Unit, 60 miles southeast of San Antonio. They have since been charged with the Christmas Eve murder of a Dallas-area police officer, and are still at large.

The department will announce disciplinary actions against the guards as soon as the actions are carried out, agency spokesman Glen Castlebury said.

Virus

mice at the base's horse stable. Base personnel cleaned up those areas using appropriate precautions, the air base reported.

Capt. Kirk Winger, the 36th Wing's public health officer, said the deer mouse carries the virus. It is found in living and work areas, but most commonly in sheds, storage areas or barns. Its coloring ranges from reddish brown to gray with a white underbelly. Its tail has sharply defined white sides. Winger cautions people to be careful when cleaning areas where mouse feces are found. Household disinfectants or a bleach-water solution should be used when cleaning such areas.

"In Idaho there is a one-in-650,000 risk of contracting the disease so it's very unlikely anyone else here on the base has contracted hantavirus. But it's important to me and to the rest of the 36th Wing to put all fears to rest and make the effort to reassure our folks that their risk is low," Winger said.

Council holds off on paying contractor bill

By Loraine Caverer Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE - The City Council has decided to not pay off a bill from AWS Engineering Inc., the Logan, Utah, contractor that dredged Shoshone's sewer lagoon, until the city does more research. That decision comes one week after a special meeting in which the council voted to reduce the $33,000 balance on the $103,000 bill. And the news came as an unpleasant surprise to Mark Leyda, president of AWS.

"I called our attorneys and set the wheels in motion," he said. "We are proceeding with all legal action."

Leyda said his attorneys advised him to make no additional comments on the issue.

Under the contract, the city agreed to pay AWS $53,500 to remove 150 dry tons of sludge. However, AWS billed the city for 300 dry tons.

William Benko, engineer for the project, said the sludge turned out to be more dense than estimated.

"The city had not paid part of the bill because council members questioned whether the contractor removed as much sludge as the bill stated."

City officials decided last week to pay the bill, but council members J.R. Churchman and Dale Sluder said Tuesday they were still not satisfied.

Churchman said he spent a lot of time on the phone with sewer project engineers.

"I'm not happy with their answers," he said. "I spent all day researching this."

Churchman said he calculated the amount of sludge removed from the pond and his figures were different than those on the AWS billing sheets.

Mayor Kenneth Haught Tuesday asked Churchman how he would explain to Leyda that the city was not going to pay the bill.

"I will call him and tell him I changed my mind," Churchman said.

Sluder agreed the bill should not be paid.

Breakdown says salmon aid cost billions

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Northwest electricity ratepayers have paid nearly $3.5 billion since 1978 to help restore salmon and other wildlife in the Columbia River Basin, according to a breakdown of spending by the Northwest Power Planning Council.

The spending figures exclude tax money spent by Northwest states and other federal agencies, but the figures could be as much as $3.5 billion or more, federal officials estimate.

According to the study, ratepayers contribute $435 million a year to restoration efforts.

Police arrest baby sitter in connection with child's injury

SOUTH SALT LAKE, Utah (AP) - A South Salt Lake baby sitter who allegedly contacted various members of the Kingston polygamous clan before summoning emergency workers for a critically injured child has been arrested for investigation of negligent child abuse.

The baby-sitter told police she left the child sitting on a stool while she went into another room to change a baby's diaper. She said she heard a thud and then screaming and found the girl and the stool on the floor. Police say the 26-year-old woman first called her sister, then Paul Kingston, an attorney for the polygamous Kingston family, and then the child's mother. Kingston joined the baby sitter and others at the apartment and attempted to administer first aid.

For 45 minutes, the group tried to stop bleeding from the child's head, mouth and nose. Not until the 18-month-old girl's heart stopped beating and she turned blue did the group seek medical assistance, police allege. Emergency crews were called to the sitter's apartment about 11:20 a.m. Tuesday and the girl was flown to Primary Children's Medical Center, where she remained in critical condition. Detectives believe the family did not call for help because they feared their family relationships would be exposed, said South Salt Lake officer Daren Sweeten. The Kingston family has faced several legal problems in the past.

In 1999, John Daniel Kingston, a prominent member of the 1,000-member clan, was convicted of a second-degree felony child abuse after beating his 16-year-old daughter for running away from a polygamous marriage to his brother, the girl's uncle.

The governors of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana requested the study in July 1999. "We've been in a pattern of crisis management," said council chairman Larry Cassidy of Washington. "This report will help us get out of that pattern and looking at the long term."

A PETITION IN OPPOSITION TO THE PROPOSED MILLION HEAD HOG FACTORY IN THE RAFT RIVER VALLEY

We support our friends & neighbors in the Raft River Valley in opposition to the issuance of a Special Use Permit by the Cassia County Planning and Zoning Committee and the Cassia County Commissioners to allow Big Sky Farms and Mr. Ach of Ketchum, Idaho to build a Million Head Hog Factory in the Raft River Valley of Cassia County. A facility of this size would pollute our clean air, pollute our pure water, ruin our valley soil; swamp our public school systems of Declo and Raft River with too many additional children, and thus cause our public school taxes to increase; place heavy additional burdens on Cassia County's law enforcement agency, the health, welfare and social service systems, and the increased truck traffic will seriously damage our county roads and place additional road taxes on our farms, ranches, and residences.

Judge removes anti-nudity measure

BOISE — A judge has ruled the city's nudity ordinance that bans anything more revealing than short shorts and modest halter tops unconstitutional.

U.S. District Judge Lynn Winnmill on Wednesday found that the ordinance infringes on the First Amendment freedom of expression.

In his ruling, Winnmill wrote: "Indeed many of the swimsuits and gowns sold in Boise department stores could not be worn in public without violating the Boise ordinance's ban on public nudity."

The owners of Erotic City, a nude dance club, and Night Moves, which opened recently, sued the city to block the ordinance. Attorney Deb Kristensen said the ruling pleased her clients.

City Attorney Kevin Berger, who defended the ordinance in court, said he had not seen the decision as of Wednesday evening and could not comment on it or speculate whether the city will take the matter to the appeals court.

Former court services chief faces harassment charges

LEWISTON — The former chief of Nez Perce County Juvenile Court Services is being sued by some female co-workers at a New Mexico boys school for alleged intimidation and sexual harassment.

Martin E. Bochenek, who was chief of the juvenile department in Lewiston until he was fired in 1998, is a correctional administrator at New Mexico Boys' School in Springer.

Bochenek is one of eight defendants named in the lawsuit.

The director and deputy director of the school, the secretary of the New Mexico Children Youth and Families Department, and the state of New Mexico also are named.

The defendants have denied the charges.

The suit, which seeks an unspecified amount of damages, claims the women were subjected to sexual innuendoes, staring, stalking and physical violence.

Nampa School Board member, GOP leader dies

NAMPA — Don Taylor, a Nampa School Board member, Republican Party official and insurance agent, died on Tuesday after battling lung cancer. He was 77.

"He was the type of individual who took a good look at things and said what he thought about it," said retired state Sen. Atwell

Parry of Melba, a friend of Taylor's for more than 50 years. "He was outspoken that way. He was never afraid to express his feelings."

After retiring from his insurance agency and work as a precinct committeeman for the Canyon County Republican Party, Taylor won election to the Nampa School Board in May 1999.

Taylor was preceded in death by his wife, Charlotte. He is survived by three children, a brother, eight grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Station to pay repair costs after gas, diesel mix-up

POST FALLS — A gas station said it will pay repair costs for several drivers who accidentally filled their cars with diesel fuel last weekend.

Drivers who stopped at the Flying J Travel Plaza off Interstate 90 filled their tanks with what they thought was unleaded gasoline on Sunday afternoon.

However, a driver of a fuel delivery truck had accidentally dumped diesel fuel into the station's unleaded gas tanks. Store managers discovered the problem after a customer complained that his car's engine was running roughly.

Officials tie leukemia cases to town

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — State and federal health officials are investigating at least 10 and possibly 11 cases of childhood leukemia linked to Fallon, a farming and Navy town 60 miles east of here. The cancer rate is about 40 times greater than normal.

State health officials plan to conduct interviews with the family of a 2.5-year-old Fallon child who was reported to be the 11th victim. State health officer Mary Guinan said that case has not been confirmed.

The 10th case was reported last week, involving a child diagnosed with acute lymphocytic leukemia, or ALL, several years after the child's family moved from Fallon to Pennsylvania. The family contacted Fallon's hospital and a local newspaper after reading a report on the health investigation.

The state Health Division last year began investigating several cases of ALL, the most common childhood form of the blood cancer, in children who had lived in whose parents had lived in Fallon for varying lengths of time. A computer analysis found one link among the first seven cancer cases: each child lived in Fallon for a period between 1996 and 1998.

Health officials and Fallon residents have speculated about a wide range of potential causes, including agricultural chemicals, jet fuel dumping by planes at the nearby Fallon Naval Air Station and the high levels of arsenic in area groundwater.

Farm workers wage bill will be introduced

BOISE (AP) - The House Agricultural Affairs Committee voted unanimously on Thursday to introduce Chairman Doug Jones' bill replacing agriculture's blanket exemption from Idaho's minimum wage law with a more narrow exemption.

Jones, a Filer Republican, said he would schedule a Jan. 30 public hearing on the legislation recommended by an interim study committee on the issue.

Sometime after that the panel will consider an alternative bill from Democratic Reps. David Bieter and Ken Robison of Boise and Republican Rep. Tom Trail of Moscow.

That bill goes beyond Jones' measure, which essentially would adopt the agriculture exemptions to Idaho's $5.15 minimum wage that are embodied in the federal Fair Labor Standards Act. Still excluded would be people working on smaller farms and some paid by piece rate.

House delays tax-cut package

BOISE (AP) - The House Revenue and Taxation Committee has delayed consideration of Gov. Dirk Kempthorne's $136.6 million tax-cut package until next Thursday. Plans initially called for a committee hearing on the plan Monday.

Revenue and Taxation Chairman Dolores Crow of Nampa said some legislators were having trouble digesting the complicated 23-page bill introduced through her committee on Wednesday, so she decided to give them more time.

Report: Resources are adequate, but may be costly

BOISE (AP) - Representatives of Idaho's largest electric utilities told legislators their companies can generate and buy enough power to meet customer demands for the near future, but they warned that the price may be steep.

Officials for Idaho Power Co., PacifiCorp and Avista Corp. appeared on Thursday before the Legislature's joint committee on Electric Utilities Restructuring.

On lawmakers' minds was the energy crisis in California, where power was cut for the second day in a row to hundreds of thousands of people. They questioned the utility spokesmen on the potential for power shortages and what the companies were doing to avoid them.

The spokesmen said California lacks the stability of the energy market in Idaho, which has actually taken steps to make deregulation more difficult.

"California today is paying the price for being pioneers with what we consider a faulty compass," said Russ Westerberg, a spokesman for PacifiCorp, which owns Utah Power & Light Co. that serves tens of thousands of eastern Idaho customers.

Gov. Dirk Kempthorne and the Idaho Public Utilities Commission last month directed regulated utilities in the state not to divert any additional water for generation of extra hydropower that could help cover California's shortfall.

On Thursday, company representatives said poor water conditions and spiraling natural gas rates mean supplying power to their own customers likely would be more costly even if those ratepayers observe conservation measures during peak demand periods and hydropower generation improves.

Inmates likely to be moved out of state again by late summer

BOISE (AP) - Although Idaho's inmate population has been growing significantly faster than refined projections had indicated, Correction Director James Spalding told legislative budget writers on Thursday that the administration is sticking with the forecast for slower overall growth through June.

But he also said that even at a slower rate, the steadily increasing inmate count will eventually claim every empty cell bed in state and county facilities so that "we're going to make a decision to send people out of state in the near future."

Spalding said that it could only be a matter of weeks before capacity in the prison system and county jails is reached, but analysts said later it more than likely would not occur before late summer.

The growth projections will be re-evaluated in March.

The stage for sending inmates out of state again was set last week when Gov. Dirk Kempthorne rejected a recommendation to build over $50 million more in new prison cells for men and proposed nearly $4 million for inmate drug abuse treatment and education in a bid to dramatically reduce recidivism.

"This is the first budget request I've seen that offers some promise for significant change," Democratic Rep. Ken Robison of Boise said.

Kempthorne said he believed expanding drug treatment so that 80 percent of the inmates needing it get it - only 30 percent do now - combined with education to prepare felons for life on the outside could reduce recidivism by a third.

Based on Spalding's figures, that would have reduced new commitments to the prison system by 127 last year - not enough in the minds of some lawmakers to head off the need for new prison cells.

The new inmate population forecasting model projected growth from mid-2000 to mid-2001 at 28 a month, or 336 for the year. But the growth was 270 during the first six months of the period.

Analysts, however, pointed out that the number of paroles picked up significantly during 2000. The parole board released more than 900 inmates last year compared to 737 in 1999.

In addition, the governor believes that the extension of so-called drug courts statewide can further reduce parole commitments. Drug court participants can avoid prison by agreeing to strict regimen of drug testing and treatment while remaining employed. Kempthorne wants $1.5 million for that initiative.

The existing system is giving itself some additional breathing room at the end of the month when it begins moving 120 women inmates to the McKinley County Adult Detention Center in Gallup, N.M. The female inmate population has dramatically outgrown state facilities to the point that Kempthorne has called for a 400-bed expansion of the Pocatello prison for $1.6 million.

Mount Harrison Heritage Foundation reprises 'Man of La Mancha'

By Loraine Cavener
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY - The musical is 36 years old, the novel on which it is based was published in 1605. But the story is ageless. Burley's Mount Harrison Heritage Foundation, with the cooperation of the Oakley Valley Arts Council, will reprise the timeless fable of romance for its own sake with "Man of La Mancha," the musical version of "Don Quixote."

There's a banker playing the squire, a high school cheerleader adviser as the tavern girl, a trucking company owner as the barber, and a high school music director as the Countenance. But unlike the original Broadway show, which originally reached 2,328 performances - the third-longest-running

If you go ...
• What: The Mount Harrison Heritage Foundation will present "The Man of La Mancha" by Dale Wasserman, music by Mitch Leigh, lyrics by Joe Darjon and directed by Steve Mitton.
• Where: King Fine Arts Center at Burley High School.

• When: 8 p.m., tonight; 2 p.m., Saturday and 8 p.m., Monday and Jan. 26-27.

• How much: Tickets, which are $5 and $8, can be reserved by phoning 678-6868, with art from burleymain.net. Adventures of the dreamersubbed: Mount Harrison Heritage Foundation reprises "Man of La Mancha."

musical of the 1960s - audiences only have a few chances to see the local production. There are two performances this weekend, another Monday night, and two more Jan. 26-27.

"Man of La Mancha" - set during the Spanish Inquisition 400 years ago - begins with the imprisonment of novelist Miguel de Cervantes, played by Steve Floyd. The musical is a play set within the history of the author, Miguel de Cervantes, who has fallen into the "clutches" of the Spanish Inquisition. "Then Spain was not a nice place to live," said Floyd, who plays Cervantes. "Cervantes wrote of rejecting the world as it was and looking at it a different way."

"Cervantes and his faithful servant, Sancho (played by John Craner), soon find themselves set upon by the other inmates - a bloodthirsty horde of thieves and murderers who organize an underworld trial.

"He defends himself against the other prisoners by telling a story and chooses various prisoners to play other parts," Floyd said. As Cervantes spins his tale, he has put aside his sanity and sets out into the world as a knight errant, dubbing himself Don Quixote of La Mancha, champion of the oppressed and fighter of wrongs. "Maddest of all is to see the world as it is, not as it ought to be,"

Floyd says of the title character. After a misguided attempt to do battle with a windmill, the two men eventually stumble upon a great castle - or a small inn, depending upon which of them you ask.

"He (Sancho) is a riot as he tries to keep Don Quixote out of trouble," Floyd said. The inn is populated by a band of rough drinkers and several women of easy virtue, one of whom is played by Julene Thurston.

"She's a tavern girl - not a nice lady," Floyd said. But in Quixote's mind, she is the fair maiden Dulcinea, and through his kind words and attention she begins to believe in a better way of life.

'The Wild Guys' to open in Ketchum

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM - Pssst. Want a guy thing that has nothing to do with all the Super Bowl hype?

Something that will appeal to guys and gals? "You might want to check out 'The Wild Guys,'" a rollicking clever play about four guys who go on a men's sensitivity movement weekend in the wilderness and get lost.

Hey! I can't help it if they didn't bring a gal along to ask directions. The play will take stage at Ketchum's nextStage Theater right smack dab on Super Bowl Weekend. True to that weekend's festivities, and will come complete with promotional giveaways and other things designed to make the whole thing a party as much as a playgoing experience.

I'm in it for the laughs, and I think people up here want to laugh, as well," said director and former "Dynasty" star Pamela Sue Martin, a Blaine County resident who saw the play while touring Canada several years ago and has had it in her back pocket ever since.

Los Angeles actor and Sun Valley part-timer Michael Lanzarone plays an Albertson's executive who puts the men's weekend together. He's joined by a fellow Los Angeles actor Larry Kelley who manages the produce

Brad Pitt arrives at theaters in 'Snatch'

Combined wire services

Movies playing in south-central Idaho this weekend. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times, Knight Ridder Newspapers and Associated Press reviewers. Ratings by the Motion Picture Association of America are: (G) for general audiences; (PG) parental guidance urged because of material possibly unsuitable for children; (PG-13) parents are strongly cautioned to give guidance for attendance of children younger than 13; (R) restricted, younger than 17 admitted only with parent or adult guardian; (NC-17) no one younger than 17 admitted.

'All the Pretty Horses'

Billy Bob Thornton's respectful version of the Cormac McCarthy novel stars a well-cast Matt Damon and Penelope Cruz, and even with the benefit of a careful Ted Talley adaptation that leans heavily on the dialogue of the book, this film inevitably has to do without the glow of the original language provides. What's left is by definition stripped down, a reduction of the book to its acceptable but not necessarily thrilling core plot and themes. The film is handsomely mounted, with no end of heroic vistas shot by Barry Markowitz. But what makes for a great novel does not necessarily make for a great film. With a very steady Henry Thomas and Lucas Black, the star of Thornton's 'Sling Blade.' (1:57, PG-13 for violence and some sexuality.)

'AntiTrust'

This sleek suspense thriller set in the world of computers casts

Last weekend's top-grossing movies:

1. 'Save the Last Dance,' Paramount.
2. 'Cast Away,' Fox.
3. 'Traffic,' USA.
4. 'Double Take,' Disney.
5. 'What Women Want,' Paramount.

Source: Exhibitor Relations Co.

Tim Robbins in a malevolent parody of Microsoft's Bill Gates by plays out in such sober conventional fashion that it is no more disturbing than a James Bond adventure. What might have been a satire as dark and outrageous as 'Dr. Strangelove' ends up a not-bad diversion. Ryan Phillippe is the stalwart hero; with Claire Forlani and Rachael Leigh Cook. (2:00, PG-13, for some violence and brief language.)

'Best in Show'

This is one mockumentary that lives up to the name; unlike director Christopher Guest's previous improvised ensemble experiment, 'Waiting For Guffman,' we're laughing at the dog owners who descend on Philadelphia for a big competition, not with them. Nevertheless, there's plenty here to howl at, including Parker Posey and Michael Hitchcock as neurotics who have made their dogs as crazy as they are; Michael McKean and John Michael Higgins as gay shih tzu owners; and Guest himself as a good ol' boy with a good ol' bloodhound. Fred Willard almost steals the show as a clueless sports-channel announcer. Rated PG-13; language, sex gags. 1 hour, 30 minutes.

'Cast Away'

The high-minded picture implied in the title is only sporadically in front of us. Something unfortunate happened on the way to making it: The filmmakers - director Robert Zemeckis, writer William Broyles Jr. and producer/star Tom Hanks - got waylaid by what feels like a boyish enthusiasm for the survivalist aspects of a Robinson Crusoe tale of a man shipwrecked on an island; an enthusiasm that does not translate to the viewer. With Helen Hunt and Nick Searcy. (2:23, PG-13, for some intense images and action sequences.)

'Chocolate'

Lasse Hallstrom's beguiling film of the Joanne Harris novel is one of the year's best, in which a fairy tale embraces the human comedy, observed by Hallstrom with his usual warmth and humor, extending inclusiveness to outsiders as always. A ravishing and brave Juliette Binoche

Movies

...stands upon an ancient French village, ruled by a plots assistant (Alfred Molina) in a photo a choo-choo-shop. With splendid support roles for Todd Field and Lena Dunham, and John Turturro as a mildly romantic rebel. (2001 PG-13) for a scene of sexuality and some violence.

An even-handed mixture of suspense and comedy that does not play fair with the audience on both fronts. Although the movie's mismatched elements never gel, it's worth noting that this isn't just a convoluted farce with a few allusions to chess and detective work, but a gloriously throw-in, of a violent, crime picture decorated with lame wise cracks. Written and directed by George Gallo. With Orlando Jones and Eddie Griffin. (128, PG-13)

102 Dalmatians
'Scream' director, Wes Craven lends his name and little else to this dumb, gory vampire tale in which the bloodsucker (Gerard Butler) continues his century-long battle with Dr. Van Helsing (Christopher Plummer). Nothing works here, especially when Dr. Van Helsing (I never drink coffee) or wallows in the decadence that the carnivorous Mord (Great Rex) sex, violence. 1 hour, 39 minutes.

Mad, Where's My Car?
A relentlessly idiotic but entertaining teen comedy that is a pastiche of such psychedelic proportions that the carnivorous Mord (Great Rex) sex, violence. 1 hour, 39 minutes.

The Emperor's New Groove
Disney's Christmas gift is a holiday treat for the entire family, a light-hearted animated adventure/morality tale ideal for youngsters yet conceived with a wit and imagination that will be appreciated by their parents. This story of how a spoiled, petulant Incan ruler (voice of David Spade) who gets turned into a llama also features also splendidly cast voices of John Goodman, Earl a Kinn, Patrick Warburton and Wendie Malick. (121, G.)

The Family Man
Nicolas Cage makes a heroic effort to induce us to go along with the fantasy about a New York City street tycoon who gets a chance to see what his life would have been like had he married his college sweetheart (Tea Leon) and sold shares for his father-in-law. (2:05, PG-13 for sensuality and some language.)

Finding Forrester
It's Good Will Hunting in the Bronx, and whether that is good news or not depends on how you feel about that Bostoner film. A well-oiled piece of Hollywood machinery, pat and overly familiar but tolerably entertaining until it piles on the contrivances at the close. Sean Connery is the film's soul as well as one of its producers. For his performance, Connery's performance, though glib and overbearing, feels like a rehash of a lifetime of greatest hits. More affecting, and more surprising, is the debut work done by a 16-year-old actor named Rob Brown. (2:15, PG-13, for brief strong language and some sexual references.)

Madadayo
Acclaimed director Akira Kurosawa's last film, a minor masterpiece about the life and times of a much-beloved teacher. Rated R. Foreign Film Festival 2001, Thursday.

Meet the Parents
Ben Stiller is a nice Jewish male who wants to marry his nice WASP girlfriend, but there's an intimidating obstacle: her domineering dad, Robert De Niro. Just the idea of the unpleasable De Niro and the anything-to-please father in Freudian conflict is funny, but this comedy from director Jay Roach, who directed Austin Powers, takes that idea to hilarious places. It's the first mainstream comedy in a long time to generate a funny from beginning to end. Rated PG-13, language: 1 hour, 48 minutes.

Miss Congeniality
Sandra Bullock plays a drab, dedicated FBI agent who undergoes a makeover by suave expert Michael Caine so that she can go undercover as Miss New Jersey in a beauty pageant menaced by a terrorist threat. Brash and broadly humorous, the film fits Bullock's one-liner-baiting style; it's a lot of fun since she's teamed up with Ben Affleck, Barry Corbin, Robert Duvall and William Shatner. (1:50, PG-13, for sexual references and a scene of violence.)

loan Gruffudd and Ma Roberts in Sony Pictures Classics' 'Solomon & Gaeon' which is the opening movie for the Foreign Film Festival 2001 at the Lamphospe Theatre.

102 Dalmatians
'Diellard' (and) of '101 Dalmatians' may be pleased by this sequel, which is actually done a reworking of the 1996 release, with Glenn Close's ferocious

Cruella De Vil up to her old tricks, eager as ever, despite temporary setbacks, to create a cloak made of the skins of Dalmatian puppies. Gerard Depardieu is her side de camp (in all senses of the word), with loan Gruffudd and Alice

Evans providing the love interest. Still, it's mainly a fancy-turkey Disney is serving for Thanksgiving, with some scenes of violence that strain its G-rating. (1:40, G.)

'Remember the Titans'
Denzel Washington stars as a football coach grappling with racial prejudice among his players and staff - and a whole town - in this true story set in 1971 Virginia, when court-ordered desegregation rocked the public schools and school sports. It's another Oscar-worthy performance in a film that's slickly packaged but moving nonetheless. PG (racial epithets, violence, mild profanity)

'The Rugrats in Paris'
This worthy follow-up to 1998's $100-million-grossing 'The Rugrats Movie' finds TV's famed baby battalion wreaking havoc on the City of Light. For a movie whose biggest laughs come from boogers and dirty diapers, it's also remarkably smart, spoofing everything from Godzilla to 'The Godfather.' Rated G; potty humor. 1 hour, 20 minutes.

'Solomon & Gaeon'
While handsomely produced and movingly performed, Paul Morrison's 1999 Oscar nominee for best foreign-language film bogs down in a deep muck of inevitability. As the characters in this star-crossed love story set in a Welsh-mining village at the turn of the last century trudge the sodden lanes, the only mystery is what form the tragedy will take. (1:40, R. (Foreign Film Festival 2001, tonight, Saturday and Sunday only).

'Save the Last Dance'
A twist of fate sends a 17-year-old aspiring ballerina (Julia Stiles) from a Norman Rockwell small town to inner-city Chicago and an interracial romance with a bright youth (Sean Patrick Thomas) hoping to land a pre-med scholarship. There's lots of dancing and heart-rugging but a gritty edge of urban realism as well. The film's talented young actors includes Kerry Washington, Fredro Starr and Bianca Lawson. (1:53, PG-13, for violence, sexual content, language and a brief drug reference.)

'Snatch'
Sadism and psychosis figure large in Guy Ritchie's comic gangster film, but so does the prevailing sense that none of it really matters anyway. So what if writer-director Ritchie's script embraced numerous maimings, beatings, and one ghostly conflagration, while chronicling attempts to retrieve a large jewel that has disappeared from its Antwerp home? Retaining for the first time since their far more likable maiden effort 'Lock, Stock & Two Smoking Barrels' two years ago, Ritchie and his producer, Matthew Vaughn, might well argue that to dislike 'Snatch' is to take it far too seriously. Far better not to fuss over the fact that a dog is treated with more concern than any of the low-lives, who are in turn played by a motley cast encompassing Dennis Farina, Jason Statham, Benicio Del Toro, and an impenetrably accented, but game, Brad Pitt. R. for violence, strong language and some nudity. 103 minutes.

WEEKEND

Sundance lineup reflects age of independent eclecticism

PARK CITY, Utah, (AP) — Some entries in the Sundance Film Festival may sound familiar.

There's a movie about a middle-aged man's relationship with a teen-age girl, but it's not "American Beauty." There's a war story about cracking the German U-boat code, only it's not "U-571." There's a tale of a rock journalist profiling a difficult subject, and it's not "Almost Famous." And there's Samuel L. Jackson as a trash-talking New Yorker investigating a murder, but his name's not John Shaft.

This year's lineup at Sundance, the industry's premiere showcase for independent film, reflects a growing convergence between studio pictures and shoestring moviemaking.

Just as hits such as "Pulp Fiction" taught studios that indie could turn a big buck, so independent filmmakers have become less snooty, branching beyond the artsy and edgy to incorporate more commercial, mainstream elements in their movies.

"We're seeing a different range of influences. It's not just Bergman and Fellini and Kurosawa," said festival co-director Geoffrey Gilmore. "The work we have in the festival is all over the place. If you look at the films, they seem to be coming from so many different directions."

The 11-day festival opened Thursday with director Christine Lahti's "My First Mister," starring Albert Brooks and Lelee Sobieski in an unusual romance about an upright store manager and a teen-age clerk.

In the wake of "U-571" comes "Enigma," director Michael Apted's spy caper about Allied efforts to crack the U-boat code. Kate Winslet and Dougray Scott star.

Jackson stars as a bellowing, mentally unbalanced man who lives in a cave in New York City and sets out to solve a murder when a body turns up outside his home in "The Caveman's Valentine."

Studio and independent flicks have become harder to differentiate.

DreamWorks, Steven Spielberg's blockbuster-minded studio, made "American Beauty," which had a relatively modest budget and had the risqué feel of an indie feature.

The current hit "Traffic" started as a big-studio film that was dropped by 20th Century Fox and rescued by independent distributor USA Films. The finished product was a hybrid, with big-name talent (Michael Douglas and Catherine Zeta-Jones) but a smaller budget and a gritty feel more akin to the art house than the mall megaplex.

"For the past eight or nine years, there's been a blurring of how we would define independent films and major studio films," said Amir Malin, president of Arctian Entertainment, which picked up "The Blair Witch Project" at Sundance two years ago.

Like "Almost Famous," director Allison Anders' Sundance entry "Things Behind the Sun" follows a music writer on a rock assignment.

Anders said the indie film world had veered into overdone territory a few years back, middle-class boys making films about gangsters, things they don't anything about, or soft date movies about twentysomethings, nameless idiots and their dating problems.

of whether to save him or turn him in. No MPAA rating DVD available.

'Disney's The Kid,' 'Coyote Ugly' reach local video stores this week

New videos in Twin Falls-area stores this week:

'Disney's The Kid'
104 minutes. Bruce Willis, Lily Tomlin, Emily Mortimer, Jean Smart. Willis discovers his inner child — who becomes his outer child — in this flatfooted comedy about a Type-A jerk in midlife crisis who meets up with his time-traveled boyhood incarnation. Despite its Disney brand, this painfully unfunny affair is hardly a warm-hearted family movie. PG. Middle-class, childhood trauma, mild profanity DVD available. (CC)

'Coyote Ugly'
Don't believe the female empowerment hype. Contrary to the ad tagline, 'Coyote Ugly' is not about women 'calling the shots,' but about chicks in stretch leather and python-print leggings stomping their lives away on one of a downtown New York City nightclub. OK, so a number of them, played by Tyra Banks, goes away to law school (puh-lease), but the rest (bar owner Maria Bello, Russian tramp Izabella Miko, spicire Bragat Moynihan and a starry-eyed singer songwriter played by Piper Perabo) shake it like cheap fizzes while spritzing their leering male clientele with seltzer. Call it '42nd Street' in Spandex, but don't call it a post-feminist victory lap dance. Contains sex fighting, sexually suggestive dialogue and innuendo, skimpy underwear, lewd dancing and partial nudity. Rated R.

'Battlefield Earth'
Forget the issues in this movie, i.e., that Super Scientist John Travolta made this to extol Scientology founder and sci-fi novelist L. Ron Hubbard, who wrote the original book. Let's cut to the chase: We're talking 'Ishtar of the Apes.' Set in the year 3000, this sci-flick about big tall Psycho aliens who have turned earthlings into slave miners, goes among the "all-time" worsts. Contains some violence and really icky prison food. PG-13.

'Tie Me Up! Tie Me Down!'
101 minutes. Antonio Banderas, Victoria Abril. If flamboyant Spanish director Pedro Almodóvar had been content to have a few loose ends at the conclusion of his controversial movie, it might not be such a case of crossed wires. The conflicting singles caught in the result are mental patient and the porn star he kidnaps in a successful effort to make her fall in love with him. Spanish with English subtitles. No MPAA rating (sex, violence, adult themes) DVD available.

'A Better Tomorrow'
'A Better Tomorrow II'
97 minutes each. Chow Yun-Fat, Ti Lung. The first two in director John Woo's series of action crime dramas focus on two

Dad appears to be shifting allegiance

DEAR ABBY
Algal VanBuren

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago my mother died. A year after that, our father met a lady, "Alice," who made him very happy. My sister and I loved her from the start. Our brother did not. Father has been engaged to this lovely lady for three years with our blessing.

Our brother decided that Dad had no right to happiness and has disowned the family over "that woman." We have all accepted our brother's decision not to be a part of the family.

The problem is, as time has gone on, our father spends less and less time with his children and grandchildren - who all live in the same town - and more and more time with her children and grandchildren. Dad now knows her granddaughter better than his own great-grandchildren.

During the past two years, he has spent both Thanksgiving and Christmas with her children. Dad and Alice show up to spend an hour or two with our side of the family for these holidays; and then leave for her children's home to celebrate. We had mentioned very early in the year that our family would like them to join us for at least one of the holiday dinners.

In short, this is my and my sister's dilemma: We lost our mother, we have lost our brother, and now we feel we are losing our father. We don't know how to broach the subject without causing hard feelings on the part of Dad's fiancée. We do love Alice; she has made our dad very happy. But this is beginning to cause resentment from my sister, our children, grandchildren and me.

How do we get them to understand that they need to give our family equal time without causing a rift? We love both Dad and Alice, and don't want our family splintered any more than it is.

- FAMILY TIES, TUCSON, ARIZ.

DEAR FAMILY TIES: I think you've said it very well. Tell your dad and his fiancée exactly what you have told me. (If you feel unable to honestly express your feelings, then clip this column and give it to them.) You and your sister are not asking too much. In fairness to all concerned, an adjustment needs to be made.

Invite Alice's family to join your family for one, warm, blended family event. Life is too short to feel resentful.

DEAR ABBY: I can top "Mystified in Fort Worth," who was shocked at an offering basket put out to defray the cost of an anniversary party.

Last year, a neighbor went door-to-door inviting people to a "Millennium New Year's Eve party."

She and her husband were charging $230 per couple. She said that was a fair price to ask, since it was less than some of the fancy hotels were charging for a New Year's Eve party.

As it turned out, they had a dozen guests or so, some inexpensive entertainment and decor, and a catered meal. But nothing could top the look on those paying "guests'" faces when in walked a bride and groom - and those poor souls realized they had been duped into paying for a wedding reception for the host's son! While it's the rudest thing I've ever heard of, it's so outrageous we're still laughing about it. I swear this is a true story.

- ALMOST SCAMMED IN SCOTTSDALE

DEAR SCAMMED: Your letter qualifies for Ripley's Believe It or Not. I applaud you for laughing at the outrageous situation.

Leo: Imprint your own style, don't follow others

IF JAN. 19 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY... you are independent, an original thinker, feel that you cannot live without love. You can be determined to degree of being stubborn. Leo, Aquarius persons play a major role in your life, could have these letters initials in their names: A, S, J. Before January is finished, there could be change of residence, marital status. Memorable months this year: March and December.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Focus on home, family, marital status. Partial financial burden removed; you'll receive gift, luxury item, which helps make home beautiful.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Low cycle ends; you might be saying, "About time." Avoid self-deception, see relationships as they actually exist. Pisces represented.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Power play! Be positive concerning legal rights, permissions. Focus on relationship that is serious, relates to marriage. Capricorn plays role.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on personality, affair of the heart. Dramatic reunion takes place in foreign land. Aries, Libra individuals play unusual roles.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Fresh start proves beneficial. Don't follow others, imprint your own style. Within 24 hours you could be madly in love. Aquarian will figure prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on living quarters, partnership, marriage. Decide on direction, recognize motivation, value of meditation. Cancer, Capricorn are in picture.

LIBRA (Se. 23-Oct. 22): Diversify, accept role as social arbiter. Give full rein to intellectual curiosity without scattering forces. Gemini, Sagittarius play meaningful roles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Deal gingerly with another Scorpio who displays temperamental outburst. Cycle high, you will be at right place at crucial moment. Taurus also in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Within 24 hours what had been rejected will be accepted. Spotlight on change, travel, variety. Excellent for writing, perhaps starting a diary.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be discreet, you could be dealing with classified information. People talk about you; you are on edge of fame, fortune, change of residence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Define terms, see people, relationships in realistic light. Be wary about giving love. Element of deception involved; Virgo represented.

HOROSCOPE Sydney Omarr

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): What begins as adversity will boomerang in your favor. Money required is made available. Emerge from emotional shell. You have leading role. Capricorn involved.

Bobcats bounce Jerome 54-39, end losing streak
Jerome's Bobcats bounced back to a 54-39 win over Jerome's Bobcats Wednesday night.

Prior to the tipoff, Jerome's Brian Walter said the Tigers would have to rebound and play defense if they were to win.

"If we can rebound and stop their transition game, I think we have a pretty good chance," he said.

But the Tigers did neither. What they did do was create numerous opportunities to capitalize off of forced turnovers, but could not finish them off inside the paint. In the third period alone, Jerome created five turnovers but got an empty on

Josh Gam, Elliot McMillan and 6-foot-6 Brian Waymatt all had excellent games defensively for Burley, as they outscored the Tigers, 36-23. McMillan also had six points offensively to balance out a terrific performance on the

Burley point guard Jonathan Barker pushed the tempo
Burley's point guard Jonathan Barker pushed the tempo with his scoring and rebounding. He had 13 points and 10 rebounds in the win.

Jerome looked good at the start of the second period, fighting back from a 16-7 first period deficit to close within three and a half points. But Redder proved deadly beyond the 3-point arc as night starting in the second period, he pushed the lead back to eight with a 3-point conversion.

Redder finished the night with 29 of Burley's 54 points, 21 coming off the long ball. Jerome could pull no closer than four after that.

The third period turned ugly for the Tigers, when some early squabbling between Tiger Brad Stoen and Redder's Tom Stokes on the free throw line left the technical. A Jerome turnover led to a Redder 3-pointer followed by a stolen inbound pass for an easy two for Barker, which stretched the lead to 12.

Dawgs nip Ducks in upset win
The Ducks were undone by poor outside shooting. They lead the conference in 3-pointers per game at 8.5, but made just three of 22 from outside, Anthony Norwood, Luke Ridnour and Freddie Jones were 3-for-16.

Washington led from the start of the game until the final minute when a pair of free throws by Bracey put the Ducks ahead 62-61 with 47.5 seconds left. Another free throw by Bracey with 18 seconds left gave the Ducks a two-point lead. But a layup by Allen with 11 seconds left tied the game and sent the game into overtime.

Kim takes one-stroke lead over Doolan at Subaru
NAPLES, Fla. - South Korea's Mi Hyun Kim shot an 8-under-par 64 on Thursday to take a one-stroke lead over Australia's Wendy Doolan in the Subaru Memorial of Golf.

Kim, the 1998 LPGA Rookie of the Year, birdied eight of the first 12 holes in the opening round to finish a stroke off Australian star Karrie Webb's tournament record.

Kell Kaufman and Eva Dahlhoff opened with 66s, and Brandie Burton, Betsy King, Laura Diaz, Jean Bartholomew, Heather Bowie, Dawn Coe-Jones, Helen Dobson, Cathy Gerring and Vicki Goetze-Ackerman shot 67s.

Chatterine Cartwright, the 17-year-old star playing in her first event as a pro, had a 70. She is AUCKLAND, New Zealand - Australian Paul Sheehan and Scott Hend shot 5-under-par 65s to share lead in the New Zealand Open.

New Zealand's David Small and Australia's Nathan Gatehouse opened with 66s, and American Dave Gossett topped a four-player group at 67.

Notes
Cardell Butler missed Saturday's game at Treasure Valley. He had been expected for a week due to a hamstring injury.

Both opponents were searching for their first conference wins and have a combined record of 10-23 going into Friday night.

First-year CNCC Spartans coach Scott Hunt is also the school's baseball coach. Hunt, coached Utah high school state-championship teams in both baseball and basketball in 1995, his baseball team finished 18-3 and played for the state championship two years in a row, and his basketball team finished 24-1 and won 23 consecutive games.

"I think we're finally starting to turn the corner," he said. A sweep this weekend puts CSPS at 5-2 in the SWAC and ready to make the charge back to the top.

All four teams above Southern Idaho face each other this weekend, with undefeated Richfield visiting both N. D. and S. D. Snow, while 4-2 Utah Valley State hosts nemesis Salt Lake Community College.

"We're at a point right now where we're looking at the road that we need to not lose at home, and we need to sweep at road trip," Zeck said. "That's about where we are."

up 24-16. Junior Leigh Castillo hit a couple of inside shots, giving the Bruins the lead by 12 points. But Century's Nic McAteer hit a long jumper as the clock ran down, ending the half at 29-19.

Twin Falls extended its lead to 13 in the third quarter, with Nielsen tallying seven of the Bruins' 13 points.

Jones started the period with an inside bucket and Castillo knocked down a jumper. Nielsen swished his fourth 3-pointer to give the Bruins their biggest lead of the night at 40-24.

Steed Nelson put up an inside shot for Century and Jordan Coffin added a 3-pointer, cutting the Bruins' lead to 42-29 at the end of the third.

"We executed well on offense and we executed well on defense," Vogt said. "We didn't have the dry spell that we've been having every game."

Diamondbacks led in the fourth, but Jones was on fire. He scored 11 points for the Bruins in the final period, including a three-point play midway through the quarter.

"That's what we needed," Vogt said. "Someone to get going on the 3-point line," he said. Five-foot-6 Angie Cook (13.7 ppg), 5-7 Alicia Ankole (12.2 ppg), and the 5-8 Gallegos (10.3 ppg) lead the Spartans.

Though Colorado NW is mired at the bottom of the league, the Eagles can still afford to look past CNCC. The teams have split their last eight meetings, with CNCC winning four of the last five.

Grant said practice this week has focused on scoring against the zone, which both teams utilize, while hustling back on defense and stopping dribble-drive penetration.

"CEU will throw quite a bit of the 2-3 (zone) and then they've got a 1-1-3 trap," Grant said. "I defensively, I don't see a huge change in what we'll do. We'll try to mix the defenses up, keep them off-balance."

And top Eastern's talented trio of sophomore guards in Sara Marks (14.2 ppg), Gemel Oldham (13.1 ppg) and Amber White (12.0 ppg) had all three scored double figures for CNCC.

"That's the credit of the girls, they've had a lot of mixups the entire year," Grant said. "We haven't zone probably more than three or four games without something changing fairly drastically for us. They're finding a

Sonics sit Payton for one game

SEATTLE—(AP)—Gary Payton, the Seattle SuperSonics' All-Star guard, was suspended Thursday for at least one game after a sideline confrontation with a teammate, his latest clash in a tempestuous season.

Team president and general manager Wally Walker said Payton was suspended for "conduct detrimental to the team" but gave no details.

Payton and teammate Ruben Patterson had an angry confrontation during a fourth-quarter timeout in Wednesday night's 89-80 home loss against Phoenix. "To fight amongst ourselves is the wrong thing to do," The Seattle Times quoted coach Nate McMillan as saying after the game. "Tempers did fly. That can't happen."

Patterson declined to discuss the problem after the game and Payton was not available.

Payton was suspended earlier this season after a confrontation with then-coach Paul Westphal in the middle Nov. 21 at Dallas. "You play, I'll coach," Westphal told Payton.

The emotional Payton had to be separated from his coach on the court. Afterward, he criticized Westphal to reporters.

Walker announced the next day that Payton was suspended for the Sonics' game that night at San Antonio.

Payton met with Westphal, apologized and got the suspension lifted.

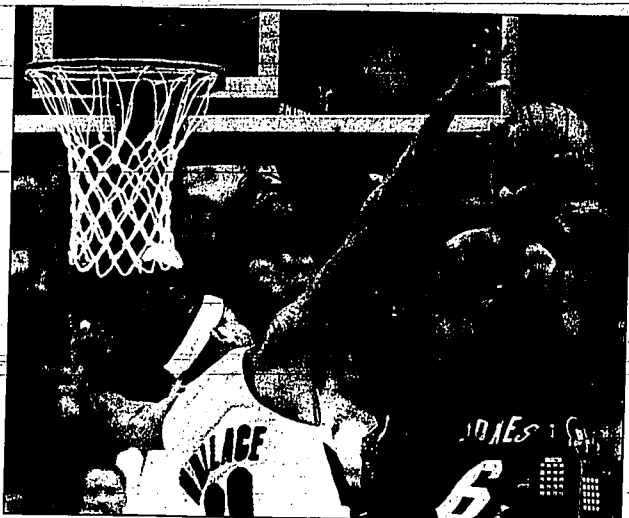

Five days later, the Sonics fired Westphal and replaced him with the popular McMillan, a former Seattle player and assistant.

Payton is an 11-year veteran and six-time All-Star who is the team's career scoring leader. He often has clashed with teammates and coaches.

He was involved in a much-publicized weight-room brawl last season with former teammate Vernon Maxwell.

Horace Grant was injured in that scuffle, reportedly by a thrown weight.

The Sonics' next game is at home against Minnesota tonight.

Portland's Rasheed Wallace, left, goes high in the air as he blocks a shot by Miami's Eddie Jones during their NBA game Thursday night.

Bonzi goes banzai in Blazers' 85-74 over Heat in Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Bonzi Wells scored 13 of his 22 points in a sensational first quarter and Rasheed Wallace added 18 points as Portland defeated Miami 85-74.

Portland has won 13 of 14 and leads the Western Conference with a 30-11 record at the midway point of the season. That's the Blazers' mark at the same time last year, when they won 59 games.

Eddie Jones had 20 points to lead Miami, which lost its fourth straight on the road. The Heat, last in the NBA in rebounding, were beaten 49-29 on the boards.

Wells had 10 rebounds and Stacey Augmon, starting for the injured Scottie Pippen, had eight.

Brian Grant, playing in Portland for the first time since the Blazers traded him to the Heat in a three-way deal last summer, was held to 11 points.

Pacers 84, Hawks 76
INDIANAPOLIS—Jalen Rose scored 29 points and Reggie Miller added 15 to lead the Indiana Pacers to an 84-76 victory over the Atlanta Hawks on Thursday night.

Rose led the Pacers' fourth-quarter charge with 14 points as the Pacers pulled away for their third straight victory. Miller also hit a key 3-pointer that gave Indiana an eight-point lead with 3:29 remaining.

But Indiana struggled offensively much of the game. The Pacers shot just 27 percent from the floor in the first half and trailed 36-33 at halftime, their second-lowest scoring half of the season.

Still, Atlanta, which got 19 points from Lorenzen Wright and 17 from Jason Terry, wasn't much better. It shot only 30.6 percent from the floor in the first half and failed to take advantage of the Pacers' problems on offense.

Pistons 116, Bulls 110
CHICAGO—Jerry Stackhouse won a shootout with Ron Mercer, and the Detroit Pistons ended their six-game losing streak with a 116-110 victory over the Chicago Bulls on Thursday night.

Stackhouse, the NBA's leading scorer, scored 36 points, making 9-of-25 field goals and hitting all 16 of his free throws, while dishing off 11 assists.

Mercer shot better from the field, hitting 15-of-23 attempts to score 33, but couldn't prevent Chicago from its seventh straight loss.

Joe Smith added 23 points for the Pistons. Elton Brand had 25 points and 14 rebounds for the Bulls.

Mavs 115, Magic 106, 01.
DALLAS—Dirk Nowitzki had a career high with 38 points, including a running slam at the start of overtime that put Dallas ahead for the first time, as the Mavericks overcame a 22-point deficit and beat the Orlando Magic 115-106 Thursday night.

Orlando led 37-15 after the first quarter and was up 93-82 with 2:46 left. Darrell Armstrong could have secured the victory with 5.8 seconds to play, but missed two free throws.

Michael Finley's buzzer-beating 3-pointer tied it at 99 and forced overtime. Finley, who scored 21 points, also banked in a long 3-pointer with 10 seconds to play.

No. 15 Vanderbilt 85, S. Carolina 56
NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Zuzana Klimesova scored a career-high 32 points to lead No. 15 Vanderbilt to an 85-56 victory over South Carolina on Thursday night.

Vanderbilt (15-2, 4-0 Southeastern Conference) led throughout.

Ashtley McEithney had 16 points for the Commodores and Chantelle Anderson added 10. Shaun Gortman led the Lady Gamecocks (7-10, 3-2) with 14 points, and Nihari Anaz had 13.

No. 20 Clemson 72, Georgia Tech 64
ATLANTA—Erin Bath scored 18 points to lead No. 20 Clemson to a 72-64 victory over Georgia Tech on Thursday night.

Neisha Butler led the Yellow Jackets (10-5, 2-4) with 19 points.

Arkansas 72, No. 21 Mississippi St. 45

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—Schuy LaRue had 21 points and 18 rebounds and No. 25 Virginia pulled away with a 16-3 run to start the second half Thursday night en route to an 83-76 victory against Richmond.

Men's Games

Idaho St. 97, Montana 69
POCATELLO.—Jordie McTavish scored 25 points to lead Idaho State to a 97-69 victory over Montana Thursday night.

McTavish had five 3-pointers, part of a school record 15. ISU (6-8 overall, 2-1 Big Sky) actually shot better from 3-point range (16-29) than from 2-point distance (30-61).

Jared Buckmaster led Montana (6-9, 1-3) with 17 points.

After a 3-3 tie, ISU led the rest of the game.

A 20-11 run gave the Bengals a nine-point lead, but the Grizzlies came within 30-29 after six straight points by Ryan Peterson.

Idaho State capped off the first half on a 66-foot basket by the buzzer by Danny Boticki to lead 39-33 at the break.

In the second half, Idaho State made a 2-9 run.

It was ISU's first victory over Montana since the 1996-97 season.

Injury takes another bite out of the Florida Gators

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—The bleak reality sank in as soon as Florida hit the practice floor Thursday.

One of the eight remaining healthy players had the knees of a 70-year-old. Another is a walk-on who has played 20 minutes in his career. Yet another is a 6-foot-10 freshman who barely weighs 200 pounds.

Indeed, the seventh-ranked Gators are hardly recognizable as they deal with losing their third player in as many weeks to a major injury.

As expected, sophomore guard Justin Hamilton's MRI showed a torn anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee, along with two cartilage tears and bone chips.

Lost for the season, joining Teddy Dupuy (back) and Brent Wright (foot) on the bench with long-term injuries.

"Our big challenge is how to approach the guys as a coaching staff the next couple of days, the next couple of weeks," coach Billy Donovan said. "We've got guys who are extremely young and fragile. They're going to have to step up and play above their heads."

Even that might not be enough. Hamilton was in the lineup for most of Wednesday's game before he got hurt, and the Gators (11-3, 1-2 Southeastern Conference) still lost 75-72 to Georgia, snapping a 13-game league win streak.

Among the seven scholarship players remaining are tall-and-skinny center Bonell Colas, a highly touted freshman who had trouble cracking the lineup because Donovan doesn't think he can withstand the pounding of the SEC's big men.

Another is LaDarius Halton, who took a medical redshirt year last year because of a degenerative condition in his knees. He has often sat out of practices this season to avoid knee pain.

Donovan is described as that of a 70-year-old man.

Donovan says he'll have to give walk-on David Kliever playing time at guard, because he has only two other healthy guards in Brett Nelson and freshman Orlan Greene. Kliever, a junior, has played 20 minutes and scored four points in his career.

"Teams around the SEC are going to look at us like an easy win," Nelson said. "So we just have to come out and play hard and prove we're still a good team. It's tough right now, but we've got to keep our spirits up."

Including two other walk-ons who are ineligible to play, the Gators have a total of 10 players, just barely enough to practice.

Even assistant coach John Pelphrey, a former Kentucky star, had to suit up in practice because he was needed for Thursday's workout.

Lady Bengals take over first place after win

MISSOULA, Mont.—Mandi Carver scored 24 points and grabbed 14 rebounds and Burley High graduate Ashley Turner posted in 17 points as visiting Idaho State beat Montana 67-62.

With the win, the Lady Bengals took over first place in the Big Sky Conference at 3-0 while improving to 10-4 on the season.

Montana (11-3, 3-1) was led by the 19 points of Cheryl Keller.

No. 1 Connecticut 80, Old Dominion 51

She started with the boards. Abrosimova had a team-high 12 rebounds and 19 points and UConn cruised by Old Dominion 80-51 Thursday. The Huskies were coming off a 92-76 loss to No. 3 Notre Dame, which dominated them from wire-to-wire on Monday.

Carruth jurors can't agree; judge tells them to go on CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Deadlocked jurors in Rae Carruth's murder trial were ordered Thursday to keep trying to reach a verdict on whether the former NFL player masterminded the killing of his pregnant girlfriend.

"We voted on all four charges, and we are split on all four charges," said a note from the jurors, which was read in court by Judge Charles Lamm. "We are at impasse and need instruction on what to do at this point."

After a lunch break, Lamm told the jurors to resume deliberations and keep a record of the numerical split of any vote they might take. The jury must vote unanimously to convict.

"I'm now in my discretion going to return you to the jury room and ask you to continue deliberating to see if you can make progress toward reaching a verdict in this matter," he said.

Court recesses for the day at 4:30 p.m., bridging the total length of deliberations to about 14.5 hours since jurors got the case Tuesday.

Carruth, 26, is charged with

first-degree murder in the fatal shooting of Cherica Adams, who was eight months pregnant when she was shot. He could be sentenced to death if convicted.

Adams, 24, was shot four times Nov. 16, 1999, while driving down a Charlotte street. She died a month later. Her son, fathered by Carruth, was delivered by emergency Caesarean section and is now in the custody of Adams' mother.

Carruth is also charged with conspiracy to commit murder, shooting into an occupied vehicle and using an instrument to destroy an unborn child.

"I think there's still a lot of deliberating they can do," defense lawyer David Rudolf said. "I'm sure the judge is not going to allow them to stop deliberating."

Bucs breed Super Bowl quarterbacks

The Associated Press

If you play quarterback for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, chances are reasonably good that you'll get to the Super Bowl ... with another NFL team.

Trent Dilfer will become the fourth former Bucs quarterback in the last 14 Super Bowls when the Baltimore Ravens play the New York Giants on Jan. 28 at Tampa.

Two of the other three ex-Bucs — Doug Williams and Steve Young — wear Super Bowl rings. Chris Chandler fell short.

Of the four, Dilfer is the quickest to reach the Super Bowl after his change of scenery. He was the Bucs starter in 1999 until he broke his collarbone and was replaced by Shaun King, who led the team to the AFC championship game.

Bucs fans were not sorry to see Dilfer leave town, but he has no hard feelings.

"I have no bitterness whatsoever. I know it was the right decision for them and it was the right decision for me," Dilfer was quoted as saying after the Ravens beat the Oakland Raiders for the AFC championship.

Larry Webster, right, and Michael McCrary chase Tennessee quarterback Steve McNair in a playoff game Jan. 7.

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. — Herman Edwards made his mark as a player in one game against the New York Giants. Now he has a chance to pull off another Miracle of the Meadowlands as coach of the New York Jets.

Until he was hired Thursday to replace Al Groh, Edwards was best known for returning Joe Pisarcik's fumble 26 yards for the winning touchdown in the Philadelphia Eagles' 19-17 win over the Giants in 1978. The play, with 31 seconds left in the game, was dubbed the Miracle of the Meadowlands.

"At one time, I thought Giants Stadium held about 70-something thousand," Edwards said during his news conference at the Jets complex at Hofstra University, "but the longer this thing goes, the more people that have been at that football game ... every time I talk to someone, 'Hey, I was there!'"

Edwards also noted the significance of the play.

"We were floundering that year, losing games at the end and all of a sudden that play comes about," Edwards said. "There's something about plays like that turning around your fortunes. From that point on we had a four-year playoff run. A play like that makes players believe they can win."

And that will be Edwards' job with the Jets, although he said former coach and director of player operations Bill Parcells left a solid structure.

"These guys know how to win," Edwards said.

For the fourth time in five years, the Yankees won the World Series — but this time with the cross-town rival Mets as the rest of the country sat out the World Series for the first time since 1956.

Across the river, the New Jersey Devils brought home the Stanley Cup — their second in five years — after whipping the Dallas Stars. Back in Manhattan, the Knicks have the second-best record in the Eastern Conference as they look to reach the NBA finals for the second time in three years.

"Although they share success with their neighbors, the Giants and their fans are historically a bit different.

The Yankees have the scary "bleacher creatures," the Knicks fill celebrity row with Spike Lee and Woody Allen. But the Giants' fans — a group that for years carried the modifier "long-suffering" — remain a breed apart.

"It's a very friendly group," says Giants fan Andy Rooney, the acerbic "60 Minutes" commentator and veteran season ticket-holder. "I have 10 people sitting around me. I can run to them casually with a question, and somebody always knows the answer."

"I don't know all their names, but they're all my friends."

Typically, Rooney starting attending the games with his father. Back then, the Rooneys would sit in Yankee Stadium to cheer for greats like Hall of Famer Mel Hein.

Family ties run deep with the Giants. Go up to Section 301, where Steve Kania once sat with his dad, Nip, and now brings his son, Ryan, or downstairs in Section 139, where three generations of Donohues have filled the seats in Row 18.

Over in Section 134, Chris Tallman sits with his father and his two brothers. They are part of a large group whose originators first started hitting the games back in 1958 — the year of the Giants' overtime loss to the Baltimore Colts in the NFL championship.

"You plan births around the games," says Tallman, 32, whose wife is due to deliver their second child this offseason. "You plan weddings around it. Eight games a year, and you don't miss any."

The Giants, alone among the local sports teams, have kept their business all in the family. Co-owner Wellington Mara's father, Tim, founded the franchise in 1925. His own son, John, is currently executive vice president.

The talent pool for the next generation already runs deep; Wellington Mara has 33 grandchildren.

The players regard the Giants as a family, too. Running back-turned-broadcaster Frank Gifford was in the winning locker room after the NFC title game with his son, Cody. Eight players from the '86 and '90 championship teams turned out to boost the current Giants for that game.

"To be a Giant is very special and very dear to us," explained Hall of Fame linebacker Lawrence Taylor.

Sheppard and his family, obviously, will root for the Giants against the Baltimore Ravens in the Super Bowl. But son Paul, a Wall Street broker, harbors a special interest for this game.

"If they win, I might have a shot at my father's Super Bowl ring," he said, hopefully. "He's already got one from 1986."

Qwest tries to re-enter long-distance market

BOISE - Qwest Communications International wants to be in the Idaho long-distance market again.

"Whether Idaho consumers choose to use Qwest as their long-distance provider or not - everyone will benefit as a result of the increased competition," Barbara Wilson, Qwest vice president, said in a statement.

A Boise workshop - the third of its kind in the West - is being held to determine whether Qwest has met the federal requirements to return to the long-distance business in Idaho and other Western states, the company reports.

Qwest and other communications companies are negotiating "a statement of generally available terms," a spokesman said, which would outline a price list and other services available to long-distance companies that want to make use of Qwest's local operations.

In turn, Qwest wants to provide long-distance service.

"Our customers want one-stop shopping," Qwest spokesman Mike Reynolds said. "But the federal government has put restrictions on us."

The Telecommunications Act of 1996 sets guidelines for a local communications company to get into the long-distance business.

In order to get permission to provide long-distance service, the company must get approval from the Idaho Public Utilities and the Federal Communications Commission.

IDACORP declares stock dividend payable Feb. 28

BOISE - IDACORP Inc. Thursday declared a common stock dividend of 26.5 cents per share, payable Feb. 28 to holders of record at the close of business Feb. 5.

Directors of subsidiary Idaho Power Co. declared quarterly dividend on 4 percent preferred stock of $1 per share, payable May 1 to holders of record April 16.

Directors also declared dividend on 7.68 percent serial preferred stock, first series, $100 par value, of $1.32 per share, payable May 15 to holders of record April 25, and dividend on 7.07 percent serial preferred stock, without par value, of $1.76750 per share, payable May 21 to holders of record April 25.

Union Pacific Corp. blames drop on slowing economy

OMAHA, Neb. - Union Pacific Corp. blamed growing signs of an economic downturn and rising fuel costs for a 5 percent drop in its quarterly earnings released Thursday.

The corporation overseeing the nation's largest railroad announced its net income was $229 million, or 90 cents per diluted share, for the fourth quarter ended Dec. 31, compared with $242 million, or 95 cents per diluted share, during the same period in 1999.

Those figures exclude an after-tax charge of $72 million in employee severance costs because of thousands of recent job cuts.

Union Pacific announced a month ago it planned to cut 2,000 jobs by the end of February because of a slowing economy, high fuel prices and harsh winter weather. At the time, the company said it was going to miss its fourth-quarter earnings expectations of more than 93 cents per share.

The planned job cuts were in addition to 4,638 seasonal winter layoffs and 1,600 jobs eliminated since August as a result of the railroad's 1995 merger with Southern Pacific Rail Corp.

Bank earnings add concern to industry's profit outlook

CHICAGO - The latest earnings reports from U.S. banks Thursday reinforced concerns over credit quality in the industry, as First Union Corp. warned its profit outlook for 2001 and regional banks reported a constant stream of higher loan losses.

One Thursday report came from U.S. Bancorp, soon to be acquired by Firststar Corp., which said fourth-quarter earnings rose 11 percent as corporate and consumer banking businesses' profits soared after a year in which results were tempered by heavy investment spending. Payment services income was essentially flat.

Minneapolis-based U.S. Bancorp - which has Magic Valley branches - earned $429.9 million, or 57 cents a share, the fourth quarter, compared with $386.4 million, or 52 cents per share, in the previous year. The results, U.S. Bancorp's last as an independent company, matched First Call's average analyst estimate.

Net income rose 13 percent to $418.6 million, including one-time merger-related charges of $11.3 million in the most recent period and $17.4 million in the year-ago quarter.

Idaho taxpayers could lose millions in 1997 refunds

By Virginia S. Hutchins
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A regional job-creation effort getting started on both sides of the Snake River Canyon is an excellent candidate for a new spending item the governor endorsed this month, said Con Paulos of Jerome.

Paulos was co-chairman of the recent task force that recommended the state share the cost of local economic-development staff in rural communities. And he said Thursday the new Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization in Jerome and Twin Falls counties

Task force member says new organization should share in proposed state funding should get a share of matching money if the Legislature signs off on the governor's plan.

"I suspect we'll be championing that cause someday soon," Paulos, who also serves on the state's Economic Advisory Council, told Kiwanis Club members.

Under the College of Southern Idaho's leadership, the southern Idaho development group is preparing to hire its first executive director.

Paulos said he and other

Economic Advisory Council members will meet with Gov. Dirk Kempthorne next week, and he promised to present a concern raised by a couple of Kiwanis members Thursday: a state tax that said is a disincentive for Idaho businesses to keep inventory on hand or to locate warehousing operations within the state.

But it was unclear to Paulos Thursday whether Idaho actually has a tax affecting inventory.

Until the early 1970s, Idaho assessed a property tax on items in inventory, as on any other property, said Alan Dorfneft, tax policy supervisor for the Idaho State Tax Commission.

"That was phased out beginning in 1968 and was gone from the books beginning in 1971," Dorfneft told The Times-News later in the day.

"It's held for sale, it's business inventory. And business inventory is clearly exempt" from Idaho property tax, he said.

TWIN FALLS - The Internal Revenue Service estimates $300 million in tax returns filed in 1997 that are eligible to lose their shares of $10.10 million in potential refunds if they don't act soon.

To collect the money, file a return with the IRS by April 16. Some folks have too little income for tax returns to be required, but they may have had taxes withheld from their wages. Others may not have had any tax withheld but would be eligible for the refundable Earned Income Tax Credit.

"I strongly urge these individuals to take steps to claim this money," IRS Commissioner Charles O. Rossotti said in a statement. "Money that is not refunded within three years generally becomes the property of the U.S. Treasury."

Where a return was not filed, the law never lets taxpayers with a three-year window of opportunity to claim a refund. For 1997 returns, the window closes April 16, the date by which returns must be properly addressed, postmarked and mailed. The IRS assesses no penalty for filing a late return qualifying for a refund.

The IRS tells taxpayers seeking a 1997 refund that their checks will be held if they have not filed tax returns for 1998 or 1999. In addition, the refunds will be applied to any amounts still owed to the IRS and may be used to satisfy unpaid child support or past-due federal debts such as student loans.

For 1997, individuals qualified for the Earned Income Tax Credit for the lower income $29,290 and had more than one qualifying child living with them; less than $25,760 with one qualifying child; or less than $9,770 with no qualifying child.

Current and prior-year tax returns are needed to file a tax website at www.irs.gov or at 1-800-TAX-FORM. Taxpayers who need help preparing prior-year returns or gathering income records may call the IRS help line at 1-800-829-1040.

Request forms for processing refund forms may be help by mid-March, the IRS advised.

California businesses cope with blackouts

Knight Ridder News Service

SAN JOSE, Calif. - Richard Willis believes the power would really go off at his Fremont manufacturing plant until it did, at noon Wednesday.

Willis, owner of D & H Manufacturing Co., knew his area was on high alert for blackouts. He said his precision parts company, whose customer list includes tech heavyweights Applied Materials and Novellus Systems, had been warned all week there might be outages anytime, but no one knew when.

"Then, just like that, everything shut down for 90 minutes.

"We cleaned machines, wiped things down, we had a shop meeting, did basically nothing, killing time," Willis said. "Probably 30 or 40 percent of my crew went home." Willis employees 120 people making a variety of parts for high-tech machinery.

Willis said the monthly power bill at his energy-dependent business runs about $20,000. He estimates the outage cost him nearly $100,000 in lost productivity.

Stories like Willis' abounded in Northern and Central California Wednesday, as the state felt the practical effects of a concept that has until now been little more than mumbo-jumbo: the rolling blackout.

The California Independent System Operator ordered power cut to thousands of homes and businesses throughout Wednesday and Thursday, operating on the premise that planned inconveniences for thousands are better than rendering the whole power grid unreliable.

It's a strategy of biding time until legislators settle on a longer-term plan to bail out California's electric utilities, which have been leveled by a cocktail of high wholesale energy prices, uncooperative weather and utility deregulation.

The blackouts darkened enterprises from the corner deli and dry cleaner to major corporations. Many of the area's biggest tech plants have backup systems for emergency power. But smaller firms are forced to rely on the power grid for their

Sears profits dip after sluggish holidays

BridgeNews

CHICAGO - Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s quarterly earnings fell for the first time in more than a year as sluggish holiday sales and higher costs at its credit-division offset strong demand for goods such as tires, appliances and sporting goods, the largest U.S. department store company said Thursday.

Profit from operations fell 14 percent to $630 million, or $1.91 a share, but still beat the $1.87 a share expected by analysts surveyed by First Call/Thomson Financial. In the last quarter of 1999, the Hoffman Estates, Ill.-based retailer with three Magic Valley stores earned $740 million, or $1.98 a share.

Revenue rose 2.4 percent to $12.4 billion. Credit revenue suffered as customers cut their interest bills by reducing the amount of money they owed to Sears. Lower introductory interest rates the company offered to promote its new Sears Gold MasterCard also hurt credit revenue.

The decline was partially offset by strong sales in the Sears The Group and Sears' full-line department stores in the United States, which posted solid sales increases in appliances, sporting goods, electronics and lawn and garden items. Sales at U.S. stores open at least a year rose 0.9 percent.

Sears took charges of $197 million, or 59 cents a share, related to store closings and losses at its pest-control business. The charge left Sears with net income of $442 million, or $1.32 a share. The company had no charges or gains in the year-earlier quarter.

Sears has 860 department stores and more than 2,100 specialty stores. Its stock has lost almost half its value since reaching a high of $65.50 in August 1997. The company has struggled to compete with discounters such as Wal-Mart Stores Inc. and clothing chains including Gap Inc.

Prices, energy costs sap Boise Cascade earnings

The Associated Press

BOISE - Low lumber prices, eroded margins in office products and high energy costs for paper production sapped fourth-quarter profits for Boise Cascade Corp. but not as badly as Wall Street expected.

The Boise-based wood products company - whose Corrugated Container Operations plant in Burley is a major Mini-Cassia employer - on Thursday reported net income of $23.4 million, or 54 cents per diluted share, of common stock, during the October-December quarter, down dramatically from $57.3 million, or $1.18 per share, a year earlier.

That included a nonrecurring adjustment for corporate taxes and a pretax charge for implementing strategic realignment in the office products segment. But even without out those gains, net income totaled $20.7 million, 29 cents a share, when Wall Street expected earnings of just 21 cents a share, according to First-Call/Thomson Financial.

Chairman George Harad predicted that if the economy continues slumping as sharply as it has, results during the current winter quarter will match those of the fall.

"However," Harad said, "if the economy simply slows but does not decline, our business should improve as the year progresses."

Fourth-quarter sales at just under $1.9 billion were off $72 million from a year earlier, but sales for the year at $7.8 billion were up 9 percent from 1999.

Net income for the year was $178.6 million, or $2.73 a share, compared with $195.8 million, $3.06 a share, in 1999. Excluding nonrecurring items per share earnings were $1.80 in 2000, 13 cents higher than Wall Street anticipated.

Operating income from office product sales, which accounted for half the fourth quarter revenue, suffered from a decline in operating margins to under 3 percent.

Sales growth over 1999 reflected not only higher sales to existing customers but an expansion of the customer base, and Harad said further growth will come as Boise Cascade enters new markets, segments and new geographic areas.

Colorado firm to open call center in north Idaho

The Times-News
and Knight Ridder News Service

COEUR D'ALENE - Call centers are the silver lining to North Idaho's high unemployment rate.

Center Partners of Fort Collins, Colo., is the third company-in-as-many-years-to announce plans to open a large call center here.

The company expects to employ 300 people in a 40,000-square-foot building on Ironwood Drive by the end of March. Employment will increase to 500 by the end of June.

"Primarily, it's the available work force" that attracts call centers to the area, said David Darrow, senior consultant with the Idaho Department of Labor's Job Service.

Kootenai County's unemployment rate was 8.5 percent last month, compared with a national rate of 4 percent. The large number of retail outlets here is also a factor in bringing in call centers, Darrow said. New companies know "there's a lot of customer service skills in the work force."

Available workers was the "overwhelming" factor in the company's decision to locate there, said Richard Keitch, CEO of Center Partners.

At least once recently, the southern end of Idaho experienced the opposite. A low unemployment rate is exactly the reason a potential employer gave last year for deciding against Twin Falls.

Bargain hunting moves stocks higher amid earnings reports

NEW YORK (AP) Investors, pleased by a lack of unpleasant earnings surprises and lured by the discounted prices of many stocks, gave high-tech and blue chip shares a boost Thursday.

What appears to be less selling on stocks than last week, Alan Ackerman, executive vice president of PaineWebber & Co. "In other words, there is a bit more bargain hunting going on."

Profits are largely meeting lowered expectations, which has many investors feeling relieved. But, analysts said, Wall Street is concerned with what companies are saying about the future.

Delta blames weather, pilots for dip in profits

ATLANTA - Financially stung by poor weather, expensive fuel and unavailable pilots, Delta Air Lines said Thursday its quarterly net income plunged 53 percent from the same period a year earlier to $79 million, or 60 cents per share.

Blackouts

Small manufacturers are squeezed in a financial vice. On one side, the inevitability of higher power bills. On the other, rolling blackouts cost them not only lost productivity but damaged goods.

David Godreau, chairman of the 1,000-member Small Manufacturers Association of California, said if the power crisis is not resolved soon, small businesses could feel the effects long after the lights come back on.

For many small manufacturers, the electricity plan is simple. The power goes off, the day is over. For small California employees start feeling the power crunch in their bank accounts.

"Ninety people go home without pay" if the power goes out, said Thomas Coss, owner of a little hardware company. "Our business is electricity, and it's absolutely dependent on having electricity."
