Mitch McConnell,—McCain's foot throughout long years of political sparring over the issue.

The debate marked the sixth time since 1995 that McCain, Sen. Russ Feingold, DWis, and other lawmakers have pushed a finance measure to the Senate floor. Two weeks were allotted for debate, a departure from previous years when Republican leaders set out to kill versions of the bill as quickly as possible.

The legislation would ban so-called soft rmoney, the loosely regulated, unlimited donations that unions, corporations and individuals make to the political parties. It

"Taking the Fifth" is an option open to the innocent as well as the guilty, the Supreme Courr ruled Monday.
The unanimous decision stems from the conviction of an Ohio man in the "shaken baby" death of his infant son. The Supreme Court affirmed the right of the family baby sitter to claim Fifth Amendment protection from self incrimination even if prosecutors did not accuse her of wrongdoing.

ing.
Matthew Reiner claimed the baby sitter harmed 10-week-old Alex in 1995, but Toledo prosecutors instead focused on him and planned to call the baby sitter to testify against him. They did not intend to prosecute Susan Batt, but she nevertheless refused to testify unless given a promise of immunity. Otherwise, she would exercise her Filth Amendment right not to testify, she told prosecutors.

Also on Monday, the nourt, without comment, turned down an appeal by a former Ohio high school student who says he had a free-speech right to wear Marilyn Manson T-shirts to class. School officials banned them as offensive.

The front of the shirt depicted a three-faced Jesus and the back of the shirt said "believe" with the letters "lie" highlighted.

DEAR ABBY: I just finished the letter from the emergency room nurse regarding the dangers of leaving children home alone. While she is justified in her reac-tion, she apparently has no chiltion, she apparently has no chil-dren of her own, or she wouldn't have made the comment, "How difficult would it be to find a teen-ager who would be willing to earn a few dollars to be with Amber for a few hours after

My advice to the mother who leaves her 10-year-old daughter nome alone after school - and to any other parent with a similar problem - is to contact the local YMCA. The YMCA is the largest childcare provider in the United States. We have formed collaborations with schools and churches nationwide to provide child care for any parent who needs it. We offer financial assistance for those who count afford it, and we are virtually everywhere in the world.

Before this topic is put to rest, I must correct some misinformation contained in the letter from the emergency department nurse on Feb. 8. She stated that it is against the law in Pennsylvania for children under age 12 to be left alone. Several readers have written to inform me that there is no such law in the Pennsylvania criminal code. When complaints are received about children at home alonler, they are evaluated on a case-by-case basis, depending on the maturity of the child and the preparation the parents have made for emergencies that might arise in their absence.

GOP budget allows big tax cuts

WASHINGTON (AP)
Republicans are preparing to push a fiscal 2002 budget through the House Budget Committee that would allow at least the 51.6 trillion in 10-year tax cuts that President Bush has proposed. Though the fiscal blueprint will set 51.6 trillion as the tax cut's initial size, it is likely to contain language allowing additional reductions if federal surplus projections get larger when they are updated this summer, said House aides, Many GOP congressional leaders have said they want-to-enlarge Bush's proposal, which the White House has so far resist-

Nussle's budget is expected to largely follow Bush's proposed $1.96 trillion budget for next year. But following Democratic attacks on Bush for including Medicare on Bush for including Medicare surpluses in a contingency fund, Nussles and his budget will set Medicare funds aside. Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, RNM, has no plans to include language in his budget boosting the tax cut's size if surpluses balloon. Instead, reflecting Bush's strugglet ow im majority support for his tax package in the eventy divided chamber, the Senate's budget is expected to call for up to $1.6 trillion in cuts. The Senate is likely to debate its version of the budget in early April.

In another departure, Domenici is considering placing language in the budget he writes that would let the government send rebate-checks to taxpayers this year, said Senate aides.

Domenici's idea comes dmid growing calls from both parties to speed tax reductions to Americans this year to help spark the slowing conomy.

The money available for the rebates could be as much as about 5100 billion – the federal surplus the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office has projected for this year, excluding Social Security and Medicare.

There's a standoff brewing between softening economy. House members are incensed that their Senate colleagues have ignored the need for significant income tax relief, and when the Senate does discuss tax relief, its GOP caucus does so in closed session.

As a result of these shenanigans, the House is holding all Senate bills until the Senate produces an acceptable tax

If the current dispute ends in a stalemate, then budget deliberations must begin anew. Any new approach should put the need for individual and corporate income tax relief ahead of increased state spending.

Remember, the Senate's proposed budget is 10 percent greater than actual expenses in the current budget year. That's not conservative leadership, it's liberal spending.

The next budget should be trimmed tree up more money for tax relief. Here are the placey to start cutting:

Ear better to let citizens keep more of their own money in the first place, in the form of permanent tax relief. When money isn't fed to the voracious beast of government, taxpayers can invest it or spend it to improve their standard of living. That's why permanent tax relief is worth fighting for. That 's why the Idaho House should stand firm and lead on this issue, even if it takes more time.

Don't force dairles on US

Judging from The Times/News article on March is the attitude of some of the large industrial dairy owners is that they have the drive right to subject amybody that we, the people who don't make the

for his stock to begin with, so he's still ahead in terms of real money. But when individual investors see their stock port-folios plummer, it's real.

The truth is, little investors never stood a chance, because they simply don't have the same access, both to key information and to early deals, as big investors. One reason is the "quiet period" mandated by the Securities and Exchange Commission, which requires a startup company to shun any publicity regarding its finances for at least three months before its initial public offering. The law was intended to keep a company from hyping its stock, but in reality its main effect is to keep small investors in the dark. Rig institutional investors such as "Fidelity and Vanguard are never in the-dark. They're treated to what's known as a "road show" just days before an IPO. In this private meeting with company executives, institutional investors are updated on the startup's financial situation. Thus the big investors know if a stock has recently become more risky and can pass on it. Or they may decide to buy it anyway, knowing they can resell the stock on the first day of trading before any bad news about the company is reported. This-practice, known as "flipping," became-common in a rea when Internet stocks were routinely tripling in value on their first day of trading.

Institutional investors weren't the only ones flipping stock during the banks would routinely give hot new IPO stocks – free

And while the investment banks were giving out free stock to their favored clients, they were also giving our bad advice to their mom and pop customers. In a recent study of high-tech stocks, Ron, Michaely of Cornell University and Kent Womack of Dartmouth College found that investment banks rarely downgrade a company, Stock to a "sell" rating if they have a business relationship with the company, There is a bias in brokers' recommendations when they have an underwriting affiliation with a company, "says Michaely, "But the public doesn't recommendation with the company," says Michaely, "But the public doesn't recommendation on a stock—that the bank's own fund managers were betting would drop.

Stand up for workers' rights

On March 6 and 7, Congress voted to repeal the ergonomics standard, thereby continuing to deny workers the human right to a safe workplace.

The first regulation of the standard would have been "distributing information" to employees and beginning the process of receiving and responding to injury reports. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration first requested standards in 1982, which means those who have sustained injuries from repetitive, forceful or prolonged exertion of the hands; frequent or heavy lifting, pushing, pulling or carrying of heavy objects, and sustaining awkward postures might not have been injured. There are 600,000 such injuries every year, all preventable.

Corporate interests wan out over the health of the nation's workforce once again. The absence of ergonomic standards has allowed denials of these injuries during the worker's comp process. If there are no repetitive strain injury rules and information, that means they can continue to deny these injuries exist. They can play the blame game, psychiatrically assault and accuse, to deny the injured employee's credibility and legal rights, Job termination is the ultimate weapon for retailation.

Spy game loses relevance

here's nothing like a good spy story. That's why I've always been an inveterate fan of the spionage novelist. John le Carre, even in these recent post-Cold War years when he has had to go out of his way to find intrigue and beray-like Sport to the Middest, to al. Or, at least, we didn't think they were at each other's throats.

As it runs out, the great Le Carre might have made a bit of a misjudgment. It seems that the Americans and the Russians never stopped spying on each other. Indeed, it appears as if the last 15 years have been the Super Bowl of counterespionage. This has all come to light in the last few weeks with the arrest of Robert Philip Hansen, an FBI agent at the very heart of the nation's counterintelligence program. Since 1985 he had been working for the Russians. Combined with the shocking revelation in 1994 that the CIA's top counterintelligence official, Aldrich Ames, was also working for the Russians scored the equivalent of a grand slam when it comes to the espinoage game. cially the part about Washington spending multimillions on a tunnel under the new Soviet consulate only to have Hanssen give it away.

But one question lingers: What difference does all this make?
When you stop and analyze what they are doing, it all comes down to one big, spectracular, expensive, hermetically sealed circular game. Most of our effort went into trying to find out who their spies were and they were trying to find out who our spies were. But has anybody – especially the blowhard members of congress who have a field day with hearings on these matters – ever asked whether any useful information came from any of this?

information came from any of this?

It's being a spoilsport to point this out to the Russians, but at the very height of their spectacular intelligence coups, the pencration of the inner sanctum of both the FBI and CIA, their entire system was coming apart. Former Russian President Mikhail Gorbachev had some inkling that things weren't going great, but he had no idea how rotted out the Marxist-Leninist system had become. Now that's an intelligence failure.

And even while the United States was spending those multimillions on the tunnel under the Soviet consulate, apparently—

States was spending those multi-millions on the tunnel under the— Soviet consulate, apparently— removing the dirt for the super-secret enclave a spoonful at a time so the massive dirt removal in the middle of Washington would not make anyhody suspi-cious, the CLA's analysts failed to detect that the Soviet system was headed for the ast heap of history. Indeed, the Reagan administration was doubling U.S. defense spending because of fears the United States couldn't keep up with the Soviets. Nobody in Washington pre-dicted the demise of the Red Menace. As late as the spring and summer of 1989, senior Bush administration officials were still not certain that Gorbachev was really a reformer. That the Cold War was about to come to an end wasn't even on their radar screens although before the year was out the Berlin Wall was being dismantled by the East Germans. That is an intelligence failure.

Apparently nobody has bothered to tell the intelligence agencies that the world has changed, that Washington and Moscow are no longer bitter, ideological enemies. They have gone to Herculean efforts to keep spying on each othersespies – without bothering to indice that jhe Big Game ended at least a decade ago.

Ames and Hanssen – are still playing, of course. But there's something pathetic about them. What they do just doesn't make, much of a difference anymore – if it ever did.

I suppose that's why Le Carre is off writing about Africa. And lower on the best-seller lists.

The Israelis and Palestinians in recent days resumed high-level security contacts that had broken down during nearly six months of lighting. But the latest violence, combined with the sharp recriminations, has again raised tensions.

After a six-day, trial in December 1998, a jury found Elison guilty of involuntary manalaughter in connection with the death of Zachary, who died of head wounds in a Bois hospital on Sept. 29, 1997.

"In spite of the fact that the—jury instructions and the charging language in this case did not utilize the phrase, great bodily injury, Elison could not have produced the death of or killed Zachary Nolan without indicting great bodily injury consequently; it would be incongruous to hold that serious bodily injury is not an element of involuntary manslaughter," Justice Wayne Kidwell wrote.

He added that the wording of state law "indicates that the Legislature did not intend for the elements constituting a crime to be used a second time to impose a harsher sentence on a defendant."

The council unanimously awarded the contract to PMF Inc.
This was the second time the council took bids for the project.
Bids were opened on Feb. 16.
The low bid, $596,615, was dismissed on a technical flaw.
Other bids were $681,055 and $684,378.

City Engineer Gary Young said before any construction can begin, new signal equipment must be delivered. Signal poles with longer arms are needed. But that could take three to four months, he said Monday.

That could mean more than 50 one-actre residential properties, with individual water and septic-tank systems – a sore point with several City Council members Mandae.

"This is starting to get out of hand all over the city, I believe,"

Councilman Trip Craig said.
Gloria Wilson said the property is not longer used for agriculture and would be beneficial for residential uses.
Several of her family members are interested in building homes in Twin Falls, she said. The zone change would allow them to do this.
"We didn't see any other way to do this," Wilson said.
The council will have a second public hearing, in two weeks.

"It is clear that my name will be associated with this event for the rest of my life," Lt. jg. Michael Coen, the USS Greeneville's officer of the dock, rold a fusible courtroom. "Nevertheless, I would like ... to continue my service as a submarine officer."

Coen, his voice choked with emotion, apologized to the families of nine Japanese who were killed in the Feb. 9 collision between the submarine and the Ehime Maru, Several relatives sat in the second row of the court as Coen spoke. "I want you to know that you are in my thoughts and prayers at all times," he said, "and you will be for the rest of my life." He called his service aboard the Greeneville "as rewarding an experience as any man could hope for" and implored the court to allow him to continue serving his country.

state-sponsored reception last month for visiting journalists.
Representatives from other faiths were not invised under.

Jaiths were nat invited, under-scoring the dominance in Utah of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. It also has raised prickly questions for orga-nizers trying to fight the percep-tion that the 2002 Winter Games will be "The Mormon Olympics." The latest image battle came over a series of stories in the Salt Lake Tribune on Sunday that had organizers hastily convening a preemptory news conference Friday and issuing a 6-point "clarification" Monday.

But for now_SLOC_has-stopped referring visiting jour-nalists to the state's travel counnalists to the state's travel council.

SLOC communications chiic Caroline Shaw said it was inappropriate for the council to let two Mormon publicity volunteers bearing gifts of church calendars confrom 17 journalists an the Feb. 5 reception.

Shaw planned to work out religion-free rules before re-establishing ties with the travel council.

Continued from B1 istrator Travis Rothweiler to attend Greater Open Spaces City Management Association training in Green River, Wyo., from April 4 through April 6 at a cost of 5364.

The training is for city man-agers and city administrators in Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, North Dakota and South Dakota. The training is aimed at helping administrators learn innovative methods of service delivery.

The council will consider a training request for Jerome City Police Officer Richard Pendleton to go to a law enforcement tactical handgun instructor course in Ada County from April 9 through April 13-at-a cost-of 5820.

This training, sponsored by the Ada County Sheriif's Office, will provide a National Rifle Association-certified range mas-ter for the police department.

High School, an issue that caused committee members to reconsider.

"That was the unanimous thing in the whole committee," committee co-chairman Max Twiss said. "They wanted that media center, and we cought't do it for $9.3 million."

So the committee elected to bump it up to $10.5 million, an amount that would cover the cost of the media center, Lloyd said. "It's not enough money."

Even with the jump, there is legislation pending that could give the district substantial aid from the state. If everything goes right, there is a chance that a levy of $10.5 million could be passed with no tax increase. However, is a small tax increase, Lloyd said. "It comes to the point of having to convince the taxpayers that we need to spend a little bit more." he said.

A majority of the funding, if received, is tabbed to be spent at Minico High School. All the schools in the district have needs, Hoyd said, but the committee felt that the biggest needs were at the high school. More money should be spent elsewhere, board member George McDonald said. The only improvement scheduled for West Minico Junior High is the replacement of faccia panels on the outside of the faccility, an improvement that he called cosmetic.

"I think we should be looking at improving the educational caspects first," he said. "Those educational elements need to be addressed."

addressed."
The science lab at West Minico badly needs to be upgraded, McDonald said.

But replacing the panels is more than just cosmetic, district Superintendent Nick Hallett said. Instead, it is a safety issue The existing panels are rusting and weakening, and pose a threat to students and teachers, he said.

And, Hallett said, he had spoken with teachers at West Minico, who confirmed that they don't want a temporary fix at the science labs. Instead, they would rather wait for a time when more money is available, and do the upgrades correctly.

Cheese plant expansion, Blaine project boost numbers

By Virginia S. Hutchins

TWIN FALLS - With less help from the home builders, Magic Valley's construction sector still posted improvement in its first test of 2001.

posted improvement in its first test of 2001.

A Rupert cheese plant's expansion, a million-dollar project in Blaine County and some new Twin Falls apartments helped produce a 5.5 percentrise in estimated construction values valleywide in January compared with a year earlier. Selected areas of the valley finished the month with $4.95 million in building activity. The value of projects receiving building permits in January beat January 2000's total by a slight $250,165 for combined building types in surveyed areas of the Magic Valley, according to data compiled in Eirst Security Bank's eccently released statewide report.

report.

Even a small improvement beats last year's average perforbeats last year's average performance - but not last January's gains. The year 2000 racked up just 5247.4 million in construction valleywide – 5.5 percent below 1999's total building values. It was a disappointment after 1999 posted construction values that were a nice 7 percent above 1998's totals in the valley. In January, Gooding, Hailey, Ketchum, Shoshone, Twin Falls, Ruipert and rural Blaine County all improved on their year-arti-er values for combined construction types. Just Jerome, all of Cassia County and rural Twin Falls and Mindioka counties lost ground in January. Sun Valley's activity fell to zero.

A few parts of the valley are not included in the bank's survey.

not included in the bank's survey.
Without much help from Twin Falls, Magic Valley a year ago saw 9.1 percent higher total construction values than in January 1999. Those gains were thanks in part to a couple of spendy Blaine County homes, a communications tower in Cassia County and a spurt of home building in rural Twin Falls County subdivisions.

Investors await rate decision

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Dazed investors are hoping that Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, who once famously worried about "irrational exuberance," is now concerned about too much pessimism.

Wall Street's fervent wish is that the central-bank will provide a sizable 0.75 percentage point cut in interest rates when Fed policy-makers, meet today-as-a way of breathing new life into a moribund economy and halting the steep slide in stock prices.

Such a reduction would be the biggest Fed move in a key interest rate in nearly a decade, since it cut its largely symbolic discount rate by a Stocks rally full percentage point on Dec. — C4 20, 1991, as it—1999.1 recession.

Many economists believe that strong interest rate relief is needed now, given the huge sell-off that has been occuring on Wall Street, where the Dow Jones industrial average last week suffered its biggest weekly drop in 11 years.

"The perception is that the sky is falling because of the stock market," said Sung Won Sohn, chief economists at Wells Fargo in Minneapolis. "The stock market is the canary in the coal min Minneapolis." The stock market is the canary in the coal mor of a big Fed rate cut, with the Dow Jones industrial average is the conomist stock.

In the view of Sohn and other economists, the Fed will act bidly to send a strong signal that it is ready to do whatever is necesary to get the faltering U.S. economy back on track.

The concern is that the weak in the concern is that the weak in financial markets could trigger a chain reaction in which consumers, who account for two—hirds of sotal-economics activity—will become so fearfull that they thirds of total economic activity.

will become so fearful that they stop spending and end up spelling an end to the record 10 year long economic expansion.
But other economics are not so certain that Greenspan and company will ride to Wall Street's rescue, in part because they believe the Fed does not want to give the perception that it is coming to the aid of wealthy investors who have taken a hit to their portfolios.

End of import quotas may doom Idaho mills

The Associated Press

BOISE - A declining supply of timber from federal lands has closed more than 30 mills in Idaho in the past decade. Now a flood of lumber rolling south from Canada threatens to shut down the survivors.

Quotas set by a '1996 agreement between the United States and Canada end March 31. When that happens, experts. expect, chaos in the timber market and further imports of cheaper Canadian lumber.

"If the Canadians are allowed five acress into our market, we won't have to worry about timber supply. we won't be around to cut it." - Dick Bennet.

sawmill owner Idaho mill owners are divided about whether new quotas are needed to stem the tide. But for many small mills that have survived the sharp cuts in federal timber, increased Canadian competition could deliver the death blow.

"If the Canadians are allowed free access into our market, we won't have to worry about timber supply, we won't be around to cut it," said Dick Bennett, whose family owns two mills in north-central Idahio. Last month Roise Cascade announced it will close mills in Cascade and Emmett, eliminating 375 jobs.

Once lost, economists say, the state's timber industry will be hard to rebuild. Still, many believe that enough timber remains in the woods to support a healthy timber industry even if the goal is ecological restoration. Idaho Republican Sens. Mike Crapo and Larry Craig joined a bipartisan group of 51 senators earlier this month, asking President George W. Bush to negotiate a new timber agreement with the Canadians.

In the valley's major city this

January climbed a respectable 2.4 percent from Twin Falls' year-earlier total, which was Valley's home-building scene contracted in two ways in January.

The areas of the valley surveyed issued permits for just 18 new single-family homes in the month, down substantially – 38 perfent - from the 29 of January 2000.
At the same time, the average

At the same time, the average estimated value of those Magic Valley homes plummeted to 578,679 in January - a noteworthy 22 percent drop from the 5101,249 of a year earlier, when a cuple of Blaine County homes had boosted the average.

The most recent January's performance also fell short of both the 27 such permits and the 585,968 average value in January 1999.

The reporting areas of the Magic Valley in January issued permits for just four new multi-family-dwelling units; allf of them in Twin Falls, where Twin Springs LLC is building a new $202,801 four-plex apartment house at 348 Lenore St. But that's four more than a year earlier.

Jerome, Twin Falls, rural Baine County and rural Twin Falls County and traral Twin Falls County each permitted one mobile home in January. Gooding, Ketchum, Sun Valley, Rupert and the rest of Minidoka County had no new residential building of any kind for the month.

County had no new resumments building of any kind for the month.

But Rupert's number got a boost on the commercial side from a 558-500 addition at Kraft Foods' Rupert plant, Minidoka County's building department said.

Kraft Foods in January said ithad purchased the adjacent Thompson Cash Yard – a long-closed combination lumberyard, surplus business and antique store – and started construction on a new milk-receiving building. The two-bay, drive-through building will accommodate more than 20 trucks per day when it is completed in late spring, project rengineer Mark Rosenquelt's rald in January. A finished product cooler also will be built on the property, with completion slated for early summer.

"As we continue to play a key role – in production of Philadelphia Cream Cheese, our plant needs to increase its capacity to cool and store cream cheese before it is shipped to our customers," plant manager Tim Gregersen told The Times-News

Gregersen told The Times-News at January's announcement. On the statewide scene, permits for new apartment construction skyrocketed during the first month of the year, First Security chief economist Kelly K. Matthews said. Most of that activity was in Boise and Rexburg.

Aided by declining mortgage rates and sustained, solid employment gains, Idaho single-family home construction rose 2.8 percent during January compared with a year earlier, Matthews said.

Across all construction types.

Matthews said.

Across all construction types, he said, the total value for authorized building-permit construction in 57 major Idaho locations during January was $120.3 million, an increase of 15.8 percent from $103.9 million during January 2000.

Stocks rise ahead of meeting

NEW YORK (AP) - Investors hoping for a big interest rate cut sent blue chip stocks higher Monday, helping Wall Street's Monday, neiping Wall Street's major indexes recover after last week's beating. But analysts warned that the market's mood will likely sour again if the Federal Reserve doesn't deliver the aggressive action the market wants.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 135.70, or 1.4 percent, to 9,959.11. The Dow haddrifted lower during the day, and most of its gains came in the last two hours of trading.

Broader indexes also rose. The Masdaq composite index was up 60.27 or 3.2 percent, at 1,951.18 and the Standard & Poor's 500 index rose 20.28, or 1.9 percent, to 1,170.81.

Much of the gains came in the tech sector, which suffered heavy damage last week.

imports. About 37 percent of the U.S. timber supply comes from Canada, nearly 10 percent more-than-a-decade-ago.-Half-of-that-comes from British Columbia.

comes from British Columbia.
Some Canadians do not like the agreement either. They want free access to the U.S. market and to have the support of the National Association of Homebuilders.
Several American timber companies with operations in Canada support free trade.

"We do not believe the indus-try's woes are the result of any kind of subsidies in Canada," said -Ward-Hubbell, director-of-corpo-rate affairs for LP, a $3 billion wood products company based in Portland, Ore, with 63 manufac-turing plants, mostly in the United States and Canada, "We do not believe the solution is more quotas and more tariffs." But small mill owners like Bennett think otherwise. The Idahu does not have any cases ot or toot-and-mouth disease," Hillman said in a prepared statement.

He said the Idahu Department of Agriculture had received two calls describing symptoms of the disease, one involving calves and the other a horse. Both displayed signs of mouth lesions, a symptom associated with the disease devastating cattle in Europe. However, the Idaho calves tested negative for the disease and thorses are not susceptible because they do not have cloven hoofs. The disease and stream of the disease only strikes "split" or cloven-hoofed animals. Security and precautions in the United States have been stepped up because of the spread of the disease in the European Union, whitch has resulted in the stategies of hundreds of thousands of hundreds of thousands of

decline in enrollment likely will prompt the Madison School District to eliminate three teaching positions in the 2001-2002 school year.
The jobs will probably be eliminated through attrition, said Superintendent Brent Orr.
The district expects about 40 to $45 fewer students next year, or about 3958.

Administrators will year over

Administrators will work over the next few days to figure out how many classroom units they will need based on the new enroll-ment projections. The number of classroom units, determines the amount of state funding the dis-trict receives.

amount of state funding the dis-trict receives.

This year, the district will grad-uate a class of 306 seniors. Next year, it will radd abour 262 kinder-gartners.

Over the last few years, the dis-trict has refused to exhibit park

Over the last teavyears, the dis-trict has reduced teaching posi-tions to keep up with the decline in enrollment, Orr said. The dis-trict now has 250 teachers. In Resburg, enrollment is declining because smaller, younger families with fewer children are replacing the area's traditional large fami-lies, and the population is general-ly getting older, Orr said.

Big Hom Basin Irrigators fear a dry South Fork
CODY, Wyo... Big Horn Basin irrigators are worried that the dry winter followed by another dry summer could severely deplete or even dry up the South Fork of the Shoshone River in western Wyoming.

The South Fork dried up during the first week of July 1977. Many dramers decided not to, plant seed. that year, recalled Dale Sims, manager of the Lake View Irrigation District. "We have no storage capabilities," said Cody Canal Irrigation District Manager Jerry Bales of the area upstream of Buffalo Bill Reservoir. "If it dries up, we are done. But a person tries not to get to pessimistic."

The North Fork, on the other hand, is not expected to run dry even though snowpack in the sur-rounding mountains is at its low-est point for this time of year since 1980.

Senate panel endorses Medicaid funding ban of 'health' abortions

BOISE (AP) - The Senate leadership committee endorsed House-passed legislation on Monday to preclude taxpayer financing of abortions to protect the health of poor women.

Advocates rejected claims that the ban puis a poor woman at risk or discriminates in the medical procedures she can obtain. "There is nothing proscribing that woman from having an abortion at all," Sen. Bart Davis of Idaho Falls maintained. "House Bill 309 does not preclude her from having an abortion. House Bill 309 just says that I, as a taxpayer, should not have to pay for it."

." Medicaid, the state-federal ealth care subsidy, would still 2001 cover abortions in cases of rape, incest and to save the life of the woman.

But critics warned that the bill would be found unconstitutional just as a similar Health and Welfare regulation was in 1994,

Welfare regulation was in 1994, promising another court chal-lenge if it is enacted as expected. "This bill is about the funda-mental access to medical atten-tion for women on public assis-tance," Rebecca Poedy of Planned Parenthood of Idaho told the State Affairs Committee. "The real issue we need to focus on in this state is unintended pregnancy."

She said Idaho is meeting only 50 percent of the demand for family planning services and is among just five states that do not use general tax revenue to augment federal family planning money. But the committee wote 63 to send the measure to the full Senate for a final vote. It is expected to be signed by Gov. Dirk Kempthorne.

The Medicaid program paid for 61 health-related abortions for poor women in 1999, the last year for which complete statistics were available. In the four prior years, they ranged between 20 and 37 a year. There were only four the first year after McKeeruled. The cost of an abortion is just under $500.

"There's one way to find out if a man is honest — ask him. If he says, 'Yes,' you know he is a crook."

- Groucho Marx

In bridge, each side is entitled to know about the opponents' partnership agreements. Nevertheless, barring prior secret understandings, a player may legitimately deceive his opponents with bids or plays contrary to his announced agreements.

In a team match, both West players led a heart to East's acc. South refused the heart returnand won the third round, dummy discarding a diamond and a club. When South's spade king dropped West's jack, both declarers cashed the spade queen, inviting West to sign.

At one table, West craftily discarded the club deuce, attempting to persuade South to take the club finesse. However, South knew West's tendencies, so he cashed his diamond ade and led another diamond to East's king. A club shift went to South's acce, and—west stendencies, so he cashed his diamond are and led another diamond to East's king. A club shift went to South's ace, and South could claim nine winners (three diamonds, four spades, a heart and a club).

heart and a club!

In the replay, a cagey West discarded the diamond nine on the spade queen: Again the aim was to persuade South to take a club finesse. Nevertheless, South prevailed, making his game in a different way. He cashed two more spades, discarding a club, noting West's discarding of two minor-suit-deuces.

deuces.—
Distrusting West's deceptive signals, he took a diamond finesse and cashed his diamond acc. Triumphantly, he exited with his carefully preserved heart nine to efully preserved heart nine to st's jack and claimed his game en West had to concede a free when West had to conceue a nechub finesse.

PEORIA, Ariz. - The magnitude-6.8 Nisqually earthquake that pocked the Puget Sound region on Feb. 28 caused about $400,000 amage to Safeco Field, the Seattle Mariners said Monday. The Mariners have used the $517.6 million studium for the past 1.5

The Mariners have used the $517.6 million stadium for the past 1.5 seasons.

Mariners Chairman and CEO Howard Lincoln said Safeco's antiearthquake devices worked as the engineers designed them and the stadium did not sustain any structural damage.

"But we have had quite a bit of cosmetic damage, probably close to $400,000," Lincoln said.

"All sorts of stuff. TVs falling down. Cracks. Falling bookcases. The list goes on for two pages. With a property that big with that many things going on, you're bound to have that kind of size of damage," he said.

Nevada panel opposes outlawing bets on college sports

Nevada panel opposes outlawing bets on college sports

CARSON CITY, Nev.—A state Senate panel voiced Monday to urge Congress not to outlaw bets on college sports, a major part of Nevada's legal sports gambling industry.

"We don't need any more dumb laws that we aren't going to be able to enforce," Senate Judiciary Chairman Mark James, R.Las.

Vegas, said after his committee unanimously passed the measure.

"By outlawing sports betting, it'll be making criminals out of people who are otherwise law-abiding citizens. It's a silly notion that they're not going to (bett)."

The NCAA has been lobbying Congress to pass a law banning all betting on college and amateur sports on grounds that legal and illegal wagering threaten the integrity of games.
