House budget logjam bursts

The Times-News
and the Associated Press

Magic Valley lawmakers split on education

BOISE — Budget cutters in the Idaho House were narrowly defeated in a vote that broke the Legislature's budget logjam, leaving only a negotiated compromise on tax relief standing in the way of final adjournment.

The House split down the middle, 35-35, Tuesday in rejecting an attempt to open the $236 million general tax budget for higher education to possible cuts. It then approved the measure 40-30 and forwarded it to the Senate.

Like the entire House, Magic Valley lawmakers were split on cutting the higher education budget, with five local lawmakers voting to open it to cuts and five voting to leave it alone.

Other aborted protests came later

Tuesday on the $32 million plan to renovate the Capitol and the $7.5 million Commerce Department budget, and more are expected as the House plows through dozens of backed-up spending bills. But House Speaker Bruce Newcomb, R-Burley, predicted that Idaho's first $2 billion general tax budget likely would be adopted as proposed by the Joint Finance-

Appropriations Committee.

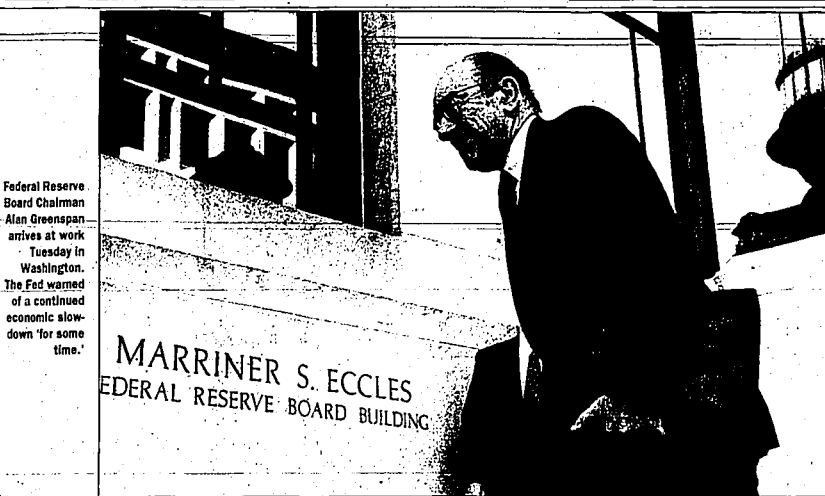

"This was a linchpin vote today," Newcomb said.

However Newcomb said other big-ticket budgets still to be approved could become the target of the budget cutters and tax cut proponents — specifically the four Health and Welfare budget bills representing about $360 million of the state budget.

Heyburn man, two members of grocery family die

The Times-News

WENDELL — Two owners of the Sweeney's grocery store group were killed Tuesday, along with another local man when the sport-utility vehicle in which they were riding hit a parked truck beside Interstate 84, according to the Idaho State Police.

The accident occurred about 2:35 p.m. on I-84 near milepost 152 near Wendell, an ISP news release said. Larry D. Yarbrough, 52, of Heyburn, was driving a Chevrolet suburban eastbound.

The vehicle hit the side of the road into the service truck.

Yarbrough and passengers, brothers Jerry H. Sweeney, 51, of Twin Falls, and Richard H. Sweeney, 58, of Paul, died at the scene, the news release said.

Barney Dean, 49, of Jerome, the driver of the service truck, had stopped to assist with a broken-down flat-bed pickup and was under the hood of the truck at the time of the collision, the news release said. The hood snapped shut on him, trapping him partially in the engine compartment, according to the ISP.

Pratt was flown to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, where he was listed in critical condition Tuesday.

The Sweeney brothers were owners of grocery stores in Twin Falls and Paul.

The accident is still under investigation, according to the ISP.

Half-point rate cut disappoints some

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve cut its target for overnight interest rates by a half-percentage point Tuesday to give the lagging U.S. economy a boost, and perhaps help put a floor under falling stock prices.

The central bank's top policymaking group, the Federal Open Market Committee, also signaled that if the economic outlook deteriorates in coming weeks it could cut rates again before its next scheduled meeting May 15.

However, the announcement disappointed many stock investors who had been hoping for a larger rate cut of at least three-quarters of a point. The Dow Jones industrial average lost 238.35 points to close at 9,720.76, its lowest level in two years. The tech-heavy Nasdaq composite index dropped 93.74 points to 1,857.44, its lowest close since November 1998.

The FOMC continued in a statement that weak conditions in the manufacturing sector of the economy, where production has fallen and thousands of workers have been laid off, "could continue for some time." Increasing economic problems abroad, particularly in Japan also pose "substantial risks" that could keep the U.S. economy soft for some time to come, the committee said.

Because of these developments, the committee said, the risks the economy faces continue to be "weighted mainly toward conditions that may generate economic weakness in the foreseeable future." In other words, a solid recovery is not yet assured and more rate cuts may be needed.

Acknowledging that the economy, corporate profits and stock investors are all suffering, the FOMC said, "In these circumstances, when the economic situation could be evolving rapidly, the Federal Reserve will need to monitor developments closely."

Idaho Power asks for largest hike ever

Utility points to high wholesale costs, dry year

The Associated Press

BOISE — Citing soaring energy costs and the current drought year, Idaho Power Co. Tuesday asked state regulators to approve the highest rate hike in its history.

The request comes on the heels of the utility's bid last month for a one-year emergency rate change.

If the Idaho Public Utilities

Commission approves both increases, the average monthly residential bill will go up by about a third. Industrial power users' bills would rise by about 63 percent.

Commission President Dennis Hansen said that he is not shocked by the request given the rising cost of electricity on the wholesale market.

"I'm concerned that it's hit Idaho this hard," Hansen said.

If approved, the .0615 cents-per-kilowatt-hour hike would be applied to all customers beginning May 1 and ending May 16, 2002. The increase is based on the projected cost of power for April of this year through March 2002. The power cost adjustment is for $66.4 million in anticipated costs.

In January, the Boise-based company reported that it had run up $121 million in unpaid power bills since last April. Last month, the company said that amount had soared to nearly $161 million.

On Tuesday, the company reported that past and projected costs combined — accounting for both hike requests — totaled $227.4 million.

The escalating amount is due to a volatile wholesale energy market and poor hydro-generation prospects for Snake River dams resulting from a low snow pack.

The power cost adjustment amount hinges on the water supply Idaho Power has available for its dam turbines.

The adjustment request is normally filed with the commission on April 15 and goes into effect May 16.

Idaho Power said it submitted this year's adjustment request early so that it can be considered by the commission at the same time as the one-year emergency rate increase.

"We're optimistic," Greg Said, the power company's director of revenue requirement, said. He added that he believes the commission will recognize the need for a rate hike.

Brazilians play down oil rig's sinking

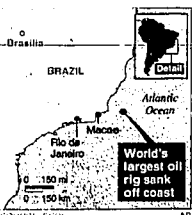

The Associated Press

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil —

The world's biggest floating oil rig sank in the South Atlantic on Tuesday, and the state oil company Petrobras said some of the 300,000 gallons of diesel fuel on board had already started to leak.

A cleanup flotilla of 11 ships with floating barriers and oil-dispersing chemicals surrounded a slick at the spot 75 miles off the coast where the 40-story-tall rig, crippled and listing after an explosion last week, went down in heavy seas.

However, scientists and the government said the environmental impact would not be great, in part because of the remote location of the sinking, 120 miles off the coast.

Workers who had been trying to save the rig were rescued to another floating platform after it "shifted suddenly" Tuesday.

The company said Divers had been in the water until only the green helipad was visible above the waves. Oil workers looked on, many sobbing for comrades who died in the disaster.

Senate votes to amend campaign funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Tuesday to ease campaign funding restrictions on candidates battling wealthy, self-financing rivals, overriding objections that the move would unravel of the Constitution and undermine an effort to reduce the role of money in politics.

Sen. John McCain said limits would be raised to all candidates before debate on campaign finance legislation was through. "The only question is how much," he said.

Supporters of the amendment relating to millionaires said it was necessary to equalize an advantage that flows to any candidate able to use a personal fortune to finance a campaign. Four Democrats did so last year — Sens. Jon Corzine of New Jersey, Mark Dayton of Minnesota and Maria Cantwell of Washington, all first-termers; and Sen. Herb Kohl, D-Wis., who was re-elected. Kohl and Corzine supported the amendment. Dayton and Cantwell opposed it.

Sen. Larry Craig and Sen. Mike Crapo, Idaho's senators, voted with the majority in raising the limits on contributions to opponents of wealthy candidates.

The vote on the provision was 70-30 and came as lawmakers plowed ahead with a two-week debate that laid bare stark philosophical differences at the core of the issue.

"Both parties are enslaved to those who give" campaign funds, said Sen. Robert C. Byrd, a West Virginia Democrat first elected to Congress nearly a half-century ago. "We're beholden to the special interests when we go around the country holding out a tin cup saying, 'Gimme, gimme, gimme.'"

A few hours later, Sen. Robert Bennett, R-Utah, said the bill would infringe on the First Amendment. "It has to do with freedom of speech. It does not have to do with getting money out of politics, because the reality is in the big picture: We never have had money out of politics, and we never will," Bennett said.

The legislation would ban "soft money," loosely regulated, unlimited donations that unions, corporations and individuals make to political parties. It also would restrict certain types of political advertising broadcast within 60 days of an election or 30 days of a primary.

Together, the Republican and Democratic parties collected more than $480 million in soft money in the last two-year election cycle. At the same time, candidates of both parties were unsettled by attack ads financed by outside groups, commercials that escaped disclosure because they did not expressly advocate the election or defeat of an individual politician.

The millionaires amendment was advanced originally by Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., and while McCain and Feingold helped kill an earlier version Monday night, it was refined in overnight negotiations to the point that they deemed it acceptable.

Other supporters of their campaign finance bill expressed unhappiness, though, and members of the Democratic leadership said that if there were many more changes like it, support for the bill itself could start to unravel.

Despite deficit, economy on track

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government recorded a deficit of $48.2 billion in February, a 15.4 percent increase from the corresponding month last year, the Treasury Department said Tuesday in its monthly budget statement.

Still, the government remained on track to post another surplus for the 2001 budget year.

In the first five months of the fiscal year, which began in October, the government posted a surplus of $25.9 billion, well above the $142 million bounty recorded for the corresponding five months in the 2000 budget year.

The Congressional Budget Office is predicting the surplus for all of this year will total a record $281 billion, up by 18.6 percent from the $236.9 billion surplus recorded in fiscal 2000.

Casinos in spotlight as Indian population rises

NORWICH, Conn. (AP) — As two American Indian-run casinos were built in eastern Connecticut during the past decade, the number of state residents claiming Indian ancestry increased 50 percent.

There may be several reasons for the jump in the latest census figures, but tribal leaders say a major factor is "Money is the greatest attraction in the world," said Ralph Sturges, longtime chief of the casino-owning Mohegan tribe. "I think that's one of the reasons. I really do. Because Indians are making money, now it's a privilege to become one."

Under federal law, the nation's tribes make their own rules about who they consider a member. Some require a certain blood quantum, or proportion of Indian lineage, while others — including Connecticut's tribes — use old census reports and other historical documents.

The Mohegan Sun opened in 1996, four years after the Mashantucket Pequot opened Foxwoods Resort Casino, one of the most profitable in the world. Last July, both casinos reported their best months ever for slot machine revenue: Foxwoods with $72.2 million, the Mohegan Sun with $52.2 million.

The Mashantuckets list some 650 members and the Mohegans about 1,600. Neither tribe will discuss how casino profits are distributed to members — but they are distributed.

The Indian population also has increased in Connecticut as members of other tribes around the country arrive to find work. The casino-owning tribes give preferential hiring treatment to fellow Indians.

Even Indians who aren't members of the two tribes agree that some people are just out to strike it rich by claiming membership. But, they said, today's diversity-celebrating culture has encouraged people to be counted as Indians.

Bush signs repeal of new workplace safety rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush on Tuesday signed a repeal of new workplace safety regulations, saying they posed "overwhelming compliance challenges" for businesses.

The measure, revoking rules issued late in the Clinton administration, was the first substantive policy that Bush signed into law.

The rules from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration were aimed at preventing carpal tunnel syndrome, tendonitis and other health problems associated with repetitive motion, awkward postures, contact stress and the like. If such injuries were reported, adjustments to work stations would have been required.

Businesses, which were given until October to comply, said the required changes would cost them as much as $100 billion a year.

Bush has asked Labor Secretary Elaine Chao to devise a cheaper way of addressing workplace safety.

The president signed the bill in the Roosevelt Room with only a few spectators on hand.

"There needs to be a balance between an understanding of the costs and benefits associated with federal regulations," Bush said in a statement. "The ergonomics rule would have cost both large and small employers billions of dollars and presented employers with overwhelming compliance challenges."

Macedonia gives rebels ultimatum

TETOVO, Macedonia - Government artillery pounded the hills outside Tetovo on Tuesday, as the military issued an ultimatum to ethnic Albanian rebels, giving them 24 hours to end their insurgency or face an all-out assault.

The army said it was joining police and special anti-terror units for the first time in a planned push to drive out the guerrillas holed up around Macedonia's second largest city. It effectively rejected a call by rebels earlier in the day for negotiations to end four weeks of fighting.

The army's entrance into the fray signaled Macedonia's intention to snuff out the insurgency that NATO has feared could destabilize the country - where ethnic Albanians make up at least a quarter of the population and lead to a wider Balkan conflict.

The rebels say they are a home-grown movement fighting for greater ethnic Albanian rights in Macedonia. But the government claims they are linked to fighters across the border in Kosovo and are bent on breaking off northern Macedonia to form an independent ethnic Albanian state.

saying sexual abuse of nuns by priests - especially in AIDS-ravaged Africa - is a serious problem.

The magazine article is based on five reports compiled by senior members of women's religious orders and a priest and dating to 1994.

The publication said the reports have been discussed at high levels in the Vatican.

Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro-Valls acknowledged there were isolated cases of priests sexually abusing nuns, but said the problem is "restricted to a limited geographic area."

Dogs attack Somalia neighborhood, killing two MOGADISHU, Somalia - Dozens of stray dogs believed to be infected with rabies attacked residents of an impoverished Mogadishu neighborhood, killing two children and injuring 24 other people, health officials said Tuesday.

Hospital officials fear many of the victims will die if infected with rabies, which is fatal unless treated with an expensive course of vaccinations that is not available in Mogadishu.

Packs of stray dogs have roamed freely in the capital throughout the decade of chaos and violence that followed the 1991 ousting of dictator Mohamed Siad Barre.

Paper performs ceremony to scare away ghosts

HONG KONG - With stories of spirits swirling through the office and some employees scared to work nights, a Hong Kong newspaper called in two Buddhist ghostbusters Tuesday to try to restore calm.

The robed monks chanted, sprinkled water and rang a bell during the traditional cleansing ceremony at the South China Morning Post, an English-language daily. The paper's editor, Robert Keatley, and some staff members bowed at a small altar set up near the reception desk.

Keatley's secretary, Winnie Tam, said the half-hour ritual - with prayers intended to pacify any restless spirits - had been organized to allay fears among staff.

Some women at the Post have been going to the lavatory in pairs since the newspaper's food editor heard a voice calling her name while she was washing her hands on March 8 - but no one was there. "I just thought that it was really weird," said Susan Jung, of Monterey Park, Calif.

Mexico looks for U.S. investment

MEXICO CITY - On his first trip to the United States as Mexico's president, Vicente Fox is seeking to strengthen ties with investors and Mexican immigrants in California, a state that has had a rocky relationship with its southern neighbor.

Fox, who leaves for his two-day tour of California today, plans to address the state legislature, meet with technology leaders, attend a rally with Mexican immigrants and talk with Gov. Gray Davis.

He also plans to meet first lady Laura Bush, a former teacher, during a trip to a school in Los Angeles.

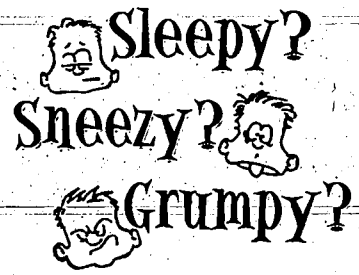

"They will speak about the importance of access to educational institutions as well as the right to receive an education of quality and equality on both sides of the border," Fox's office said in a news release Tuesday.

The visit is another sign of the warming relations between Mexico and California, which voted in 1994 to bar most state services to illegal immigrants. Then-Gov. Pete Wilson made that issue a central theme of his successful re-election campaign the same year, upsetting many Mexican leaders.

Strengthening ties in 1998, Davis has sought to strengthen ties with Mexico, which became California's largest trading partner under his leadership. He traveled to Mexico for Fox's inauguration, pledging to work with the new Mexican leader to increase trade and make sure immigrants are treated with dignity and respect.

Those will be among the central themes of this week's trip, along with how the two leaders can work together to solve their energy problems.

Prison scandal reveals need for accountability

A deepening scandal in Idaho's Division of Correctional Industries has already forced the resignation of its director as well as the state prison chief, but the question of what to do next still begs an answer.

As with many cases of prison corruption, this one appears rooted in the insatiable desire of inmates for money, drugs and companionship beyond prison walls. Left unchecked — as they apparently were in this case — inmates will wind up running the asylum and making their own rules.

The Idaho State Police began investigating the widespread mismanagement of Correctional Industries back in 1996, but a state report on the subject — dated Dec. 4, 2000 — wasn't made public until Friday. Lo and behold, it was the same day that state Correction Director James Spalding chose to resign.

Spalding's resignation doesn't take effect until June, so he's under "administrative leave" until then. But don't be fooled: He screwed up and now he's gone.

Also gone is Jung Ho "Mike" Yae, former administrator of Correctional Industries. He resigned about a month ago, "to attend law school." A Correction Department spokesman insists that Yae's departure had nothing to do with the scandal that was about to break, but again, don't be fooled: He screwed up and now he's gone.

In case you've never heard of it, Correctional Industries is a business run by the state Correction Department without any tax support. It uses labor from hundreds of inmates to produce wooden furniture and items from its metal shop.

In theory, it's a good way for prisoners to learn an honest trade so they can go straight after their release. But in this case, as an inspector for the state attorney general's office put it, "There appears to be a clear breakdown in management, communication, accountability, and — an apparent culture bent on covering up problems rather than addressing them."

The Ada County prosecutor declined to file charges, but the state report reveals plenty of wrongdoing.

• When delivering inmate-manufactured goods outside the prison, "inmates were permitted to meet with family members, engage in sexual relations with spouses and girlfriends, consume alcohol and on occasion were taken to strip clubs."

• Stolen furniture was "diverted" to friends and families of inmates and employees of Correctional Industries. Inmates eventually took control of most of the inventory and bookkeeping.

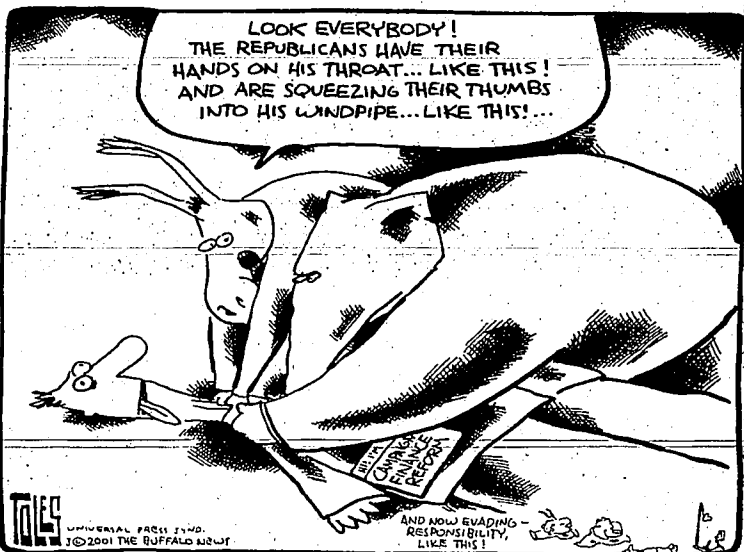

• Inmates used delivery vans to smuggle drugs back into prison. In some cases, they were alerted of pending searches by cell phone.

There also are reports that people who spoke out to correct these problems were fired. The situation eventually deteriorated to the point that the truth no longer could be concealed.

Where were the grown-ups when this was going on? Where was the oversight?

Internal controls failed, so the Idaho Legislature and Gov. Dirk Kempthorne must take firm control of the state-prison system and its offshoot industry. If that means hiring a private contractor to run Correctional Industries, so be it.

The important thing is to restore accountability and rebuild public confidence in Idaho's prison system.

Campaign finance reform requires cooperation

The Sunday television talk shows were focused on campaign finance reform, but no one was rude enough to suggest that TV itself is at the heart of the problem. The same subject is conspicuous by its absence in the campaign finance debate now under way in the Senate. For a change, the lawmakers are arguing seriously how to regulate the money coming into politics from business, labor and wealthy individuals. But they are ignoring where the money goes.

Voters I've interviewed seem to think this money goes into the coffers of the political parties or into the pockets of the politicians. In fact, the parties and the candidates are the middlemen in this process, writing checks as fast as the contributions arrive.

Many of the checks go to broadcasters for those 30-second ads that, in the final weeks of a campaign, fill the screen during the breaks in local news shows and popular prime-time series.

A report earlier this month from the Alliance for Better Campaigns, a bipartisan public interest group critical of the broadcasters, said that "stations in the top 75 media markets took in at least $771 million ... from the sale of more than 1.2 million political ads" last year. If the figures for stations in the 135 smaller markets were added, it's estimated that the total take probably reached $1 billion.

That reality is being ignored as senators debate rival measures, all of which have a common feature — reducing the flow of contributions which pay the campaign television bills. Common sense tells you that if the TV bill remains that exorbitant, politicians will continue the "money chase" under any rules that are in place. But that fact is suppressed in Senate debate for the same reason it was ignored on the TV talk shows: fear of antagonizing the station owners, who control what gets on the air.

The influence that broadcasters exercise in their home markets is reflected in the power their lobbyists wield in Washington. That is the main reason that the major proposals before the Senate — one sponsored by Sens. John McCain and Russ Feingold — have no provisions aimed at reducing the TV charges. Instead, they focus on the high-dollar "soft money" contributions to the political parties. McCain and Feingold would eliminate them. Hagel would limit their size.

The soft-money exemption from the contribution limits that apply to other gifts to candidates and parties was created in order to finance such grass-roots activity as voter registration and Election Day turnout. But now most of the soft money is converted into TV issue ads, indistinguishable for all practical purposes from the candidates' electioneering messages.

The National Association of Broadcasters denies the Alliance for Better Campaigns' charge of price "gouging" in the last campaign. But there are no discounts for issue ads; they are sold at whatever price the market will bear. And the heavy volume of issue ads drove up the cost for all TV spots in the weeks leading up to Election Day, including those placed by candidates, thus fueling the money chase.

Whether the McCain-Feingold bill, or the Hagel substitute, or some blend of the two is passed, campaign cash will continue to flow to those television stations — and they will continue to charge the candidates and parties what the traffic will bear.

For years, some reform advocates have argued that no new law will be effective unless the cost of television can be brought down. McCain, in fact, has drafted a bill that would require the broadcasters — in return for their use of the public airways — to contribute perhaps 1 percent of their earnings to finance vouchers that the parties and candidates could convert into payment for TV spots. Estimates are that it would go a long way toward eliminating the need for private funding of the TV side of campaigns.

But McCain does not plan to offer this as an amendment during the current debate, fearing that the broadcasters' lobby would turn enough votes to kill the underlying bill. It is possible that other senators may offer amendments designed to reduce the need for billion-dollar political TV budgets, but their prospects are poor.

The reality is that any measure that becomes law without such a provision is likely to be no more than a Band-Aid. As long as broadcasters can continue to treat politics as a profit center, not a public responsibility, the money will have to come from somewhere to pay those bills. The current debate focuses too much on the people who write the checks. It's time to question, as well, where the money goes.

Abortion article misses point

Jennifer Chen offered an opinion in the March 10 Times-News titled "Abortion providers risk death every day." She stated it was "National Day of Appreciation for Abortion Providers" and suggested that pro-choice Americans fail to be appropriately thankful to this "beloved group that is reviled by opponents of abortion" who face the threat of violence and death "every day going to their jobs." She states it is "a day for remembering those who have died doing so" and went so far as to commemorate the occurrence and numbers of deaths. She also, painstakingly reviewed the harassment they have endured. Surely, America's freedoms are intended that no one should face harassment or be threatened in their very life and limb as they go about their daily living. And mind you, we have the right to live! Ms. Chen did not bother to point out that more than 43 million babies' lives have been taken since Roe vs. Wade — thank you to our abortion providers.

We, as a nation, have legislated it is illegal to kill each other — that's murder. Yet we, as a nation, have the audacity to legalize killing our unborn babies and celebrate this with a day of recognition and a pat on the back to those who participate in it. Ms. Chen states we are "fortunate" that our laws protect abortion providers, protect abortion clinic workers and protect the right of a woman to choose to have an abortion. Where is the law protecting our unborn babies? It's all tangled up in debate as to whether or not it's a baby or a fetus! Check your dictionary, check a prenatal urine ultrasound, check the DNA — you will find a separate, living human killed when abortion is performed.

The people revered for a day because they provide abortions receive paychecks like anyone else, but they are deemed, outstanding because their job is special — they kill unborn babies upon demand. Because of this, abortion providers are given heroic stature by Ms. Chen, who stated they "save women's lives while risking their own." The threat to safety, the threat of violence and death against the "providers" so complained about by Ms. Chen is made most for unborn babies these same "providers" — and we celebrate this? At no time is action by anyone against another human being's life a laudable thing.

GOP ignores tax cheating

As part of the Republicans' programs to enforce all laws and to improve "family values," they severely weakened the IRS last year by holding sensationalized hearings, drastically reducing its budget and writing more restrictive laws limiting the IRS's powers. As a result, the federal government lost more than $200 billion in revenues due to additional tax cheating. This is in addition to ongoing cheating.

Has this been reported on Rush Limbaugh's propaganda radio program, Fox News (fair and balanced) Republican-biased news all the time, or in The Washington Times (the Rev. Moon's Republican rag)? Of course not, just Bill Clinton's alleged scandals 24-7 for nine weeks after he has left office with absolutely no chance he will be charged with anything.

What liberal magazine can you read all about this practically ignored scandal? Surprise — Forbes magazine, March 5 issue, with the cover reading "How to Cheat on Your Taxes," see Page 122. Incidentally, the article was written by Robert Novak's daughter.

We don't need President Bush's $1.6 billion tax cut with 43 percent going to the richest 1 percent; just finish the destruction of the IRS.

The Republicans will go to any length to help their primary owners who are the wealthiest 1 percent. As most of the Republicans always say, "We don't need campaign financing reform because money is equivalent to free speech." Why do the Republicans do everything possible to throw poor black and brown people into jail, including convicting a 12-year-old black kid for first-degree murder and sentencing him to life in prison while they only wink at multimillion-dollar crimes committed by their supporters? The answer should be obvious.

Feds should not offer tax credits

We are against any tax credit for parents of students in private schools. That is a choice they make, and if they can afford it, wonderful. But asking for a credit because they "don't have students in public schools" doesn't hold water.

My wife and I don't have students in public schools either. Our children are grown and not in any school, public or private. Following the logic of these people and legislators and, more importantly, the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution, my wife and I deserve the same tax credit as do thousands of Idahoans who are in the same circumstances.

I am not against supporting public schools and I am not against private schools, as they both have their functions, but I am against giving any kind of tax break for people who choose — of their own free will — to send their children to private schools. Their income and needs are not a legitimate concern of the Legislature. By giving these people a tax break, you are forcing others to financially support their decision. Anybody who wants to send their children to a private school has my spiritual support but not my financial support.

Slowing economy leads to uncharted territory

We will soon learn whether the economy operates by the textbook. As the stock market falters, Washington is making the standard anti-recessionary moves. Just Tuesday, the Federal Reserve cut interest rates for the third time this year, reducing the Federal Funds rate to 5 percent.

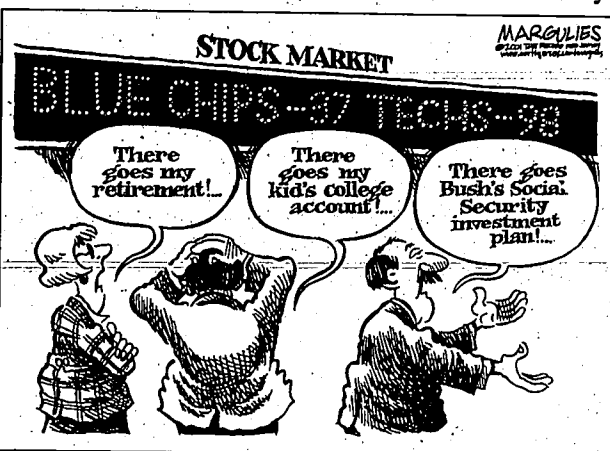

Meanwhile, Congress is pondering a tax cut to increase people's purchasing power. By the textbook, these steps ought to pep up the economy. But the textbooks could be wrong.

Remember, we've never been here before. This longest U.S. economic expansion - beginning in early 1991 - has been exceptional in many ways. Stock ownership soared: from 32 percent of families in 1989 to 49 percent in 1998, says the Fed. Stock wealth quintupled: from $32 trillion at year-end 1989 to $171 trillion on March 24, 2000, according to Wilshire Associates. And business investment surged, driven by computer, software and communications technologies: almost 60 percent of all equipment investment in 2000, up from 33 percent in 1990, estimates the Commerce Department. None of this was predicted.

Just as the boom surprised, its unraveling may also surprise. For the moment, faith in the Federal Reserve verges on religious dogma. By the convention forecast, the economy will perk up by late summer or early fall. The Fed lowers interest rates by injecting money into the banking system. Banks then cut short-term interest rates to spur lending of their extra reserves. Once started, this process supposedly feeds on itself.

Long-term interest rates on mortgages and bonds also decline. People and businesses borrow more. Spending increases. Lower rates permit mortgages to be refinanced, reducing monthly payments. This, too, encourages households' spending power. As rates drop on money-market funds and bonds, people may look for better returns by shifting into stocks. The market could rise. Finally, lower interest rates might make the dollar depreciate on foreign exchange markets. American exports would become more competitive, aiding manufacturers.

Great. Unfortunately, not all these good things may happen. One problem is existing debt. After a decade of expansion, businesses and consumers may have borrowed so much that - even with lower interest rates - they'll hesitate to borrow more. In 1990 all household debts (including mortgages) equaled 85 percent of personal disposable income, says Mark Zandi of Econocom. Last year that figure hit 105 percent of disposable income. Likewise, many businesses have borrowed heavily.

ROBERT J. SAMUELSON

Elsewhere, gains from the Fed's easing might also disappoint. Mortgage refinancing? In 2000 the average rate on mortgages was 7.4 percent - not much above today's rate of around 7 percent, say economists at Goldman Sachs. They estimate that refinancing might cut monthly payments by $6 billion a year: a puny 0.1 percent of disposable income. How about the stock market? Well, if the market is dropping, a 5 percent money-market fund looks attractive. Finally, lower interest rates haven't yet led to much dollar depreciation, in part because the Japanese and European economies aren't that healthy.

A tax cut is the other textbook weapon against recession. It might help - if the president and Congress matched their anti-recession rhetoric with action. For 2001 the tax cut recently passed by the House of Representatives would total $5.6 billion. "Your share of that is $20. Have a good time," says economist David Wyss of Standard & Poor's. If economic news worsens, immediate tax relief might increase. How much of a tax cut consumers would spend is unclear: Wyss thinks most. A $50 billion cut would equal about 0.5 percent of gross domestic product.

Some high-tech investment has been wasted - and now comes the backlash. "You can shut off orders for (computer) networking equipment faster than for equipment for a chemical plant," says economist Richard Berner of Morgan Stanley Dean Witter. Could this mean a deep drop in investment?

It might, especially if dropping stocks depress consumer spending through the "wealth effect."

Feeling poorer, people spend less. Since last March's peak, the market has lost about $4.9 trillion in value. Economists think that for every $1 of lost market value, consumer spending may slip between 2.5 cents and 5 cents. Well, that's a bit of $12.5 billion to $24.5 billion (though the larger losses would occur over a few years).

Of course, all the slump talk could be hype. Unemployment remains near 4 percent. A Gallup Poll last week asked respondents whether lower stock prices made them more worried about their personal finances: 29 percent were, but 69 percent weren't. What we know about the economy today is that, well, we really don't know. Remember, we've never been here before.

AROUND
THE VALLEYKidnapping case will go before grand jury

GOODING - A federal grand jury this month will decide whether a man will face a first-degree kidnapping charge stemming from allegations of an abduction at a knifepoint in Wendell. Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Gough said Tuesday.

Gooding County also has an aggravated assault charge pending against 19-year-old Ricardo Lara-Gonzales, Gooding said.

Authorities say Gloria Lemus, 17, was driving home from high school in Wendell March 14 when Lara-Gonzales forced her car of the road and kidnapped her at knifepoint. Some of Lemus' friends, who claim they witnessed the abduction, called police, according to reports.

Lara-Gonzales, who apparently was Lemus' ex-boyfriend, was known to have friends in the Salt Lake City area, Gough said.

Acting on a tip, police in Midvale, Utah, found Lemus and Lara-Gonzales and arrested Lara-Gonzales. Lemus, who was physically unharmed, was questioned and taken back to Idaho, according to reports.

Gough said a grand jury is expected to convene in Pocatello later this month to consider the kidnapping charge. Gooding County is holding off on filing the assault charge until the grand jury makes its decision, he said.

Mom protests treatment of daughter in county jail

TWIN FALLS - A Twin Falls woman and a handful of others picketed outside the Twin Falls County Courthouse Tuesday, saying the woman's daughter had been mistreated in the Twin Falls County jail.

But Twin Falls County Sheriff Wayne Tousey said he had no reason to believe that Kim Crowley's daughter, 19-year-old Tyra Crowley, had been mistreated or neglected.

Tyra Crowley was jailed on forgery charges, according to court records.

Kim Crowley said her daughter - who is addicted to methamphetamine and suffers from bipolar disorder - had been denied medication and had managed to injure herself while on suicide watch in the jail.

Tousey said he can't discuss the specifics of inmates' medical conditions. He did say Tyra Crowley had been taken by jail staff to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, but not because of injury or trauma. He also said it is standard procedure to take any medication from inmates as they enter the jail. Inmates are provided with prescription medication with a doctor's confirmation of a medical condition, Tousey said.

Tousey said he had spoken to Kim Crowley on the phone Tuesday and tried to answer all her concerns. He said he had not seen the protesters who began picketing Tuesday afternoon.

"(Kim Crowley) has a right to be out there," Tousey said. "But I'm not really sure what her problem is."

The outage will affect customers in and around 3600 North and 2700 East.

"In order to complete the work safely, we need to have the power shut off," Idaho Power delivery services representative Jim Mason said.

School Board to hear

TWIN FALLS - The Twin Falls School Board today will hear annual reports from more school principals.

Principals Beth Olmstead of Lincoln Elementary School, Gordon Armstrong of Bickel Elementary School, and Jack Altmeppen of the alternative junior high, high school, and juvenile detention education programs will give their reports to the board. Principals from each school will continue updating the board on progress toward school improvement goals throughout the rest of the school year.

The board will meet at 7 p.m. in the district administration office at 201 Main Ave. W.

Committee OKs park idea

By Michael Journee
Times-News writer

BOISE - A Senate committee Tuesday wasted little time endorsing the idea of creating a state park near Hagerman, with other facilities possible later.

The Senate Resources and Environment Committee approved Senate Concurrent Resolution 116. The unanimous vote came during a brief meeting that authorized the state to acquire the necessary land for the venture. Committee members have heard at least two presentations on the idea, which include buying 300 acres of ranchland and a small-scale commercial fish hatchery along Billingsley Creek. The committee Monday heard Sandy's final presentation, but could not vote on the measure because of a late-session administrative hangup.

The measure, and related

Senate Bill 1250, are both sponsored by Sen. John Sandy, R-Hagerman.

The resolution authorizes the Department of Parks and Recreation to enter into negotiations with the State Building Authority to purchase two parcels along the creek, totaling about 300 acres. The park would be less than two miles north of Hagerman.

The bill would appropriate $1.8 million from the state's general fund as a first installment toward the land, estimated to cost about $6.4 million.

Sandy says the properties have the potential for being a significant recreational, scientific and historical asset. They should be purchased before a Nature Conservancy of Idaho option on the land runs out this summer, putting them on the open market.

Sandy is worried the property would be too tempting for high-end land developers who have been building in the area.

The two parcels - which include what's left of the home stead of Idaho author Vardis Fisher, a fish driving ranch, and an indoor equestrian arena - are estimated to be worth $7 million to $8 million. The owners are willing to sell to the state at the discounted price.

The property also includes a small commercial fish hatchery, which Sandy and others said could become the center of a water quality research facility for

CSI refugee center moves to new office

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - The College of Southern Idaho Refugee Center is moving from Blue Lakes Boulevard to Addison Avenue this week.

The new office offers more space for the center to operate a computer lab and classroom for refugees, said Ron Black, the center's director.

The center teaches English classes, helps with job skills advancement, and this year is holding six-week refugee orientation sessions about life in the United States thanks to a one-year, $62,000 federal grant.

The new classes cover topics including civics, gender and finance issues. All classes are aimed at helping refugees function independently in the United States.

CSI acts as the Refugee Center's fiscal agent but does not fund the center. The Refugee

Center is funded by the federal government. The U.S. State Department provides $576 for every refugee who arrives in Twin Falls to pay for their first 30 days here. The center this year will operate on a $370,000 annual grant from the U.S. Health and Human Services Department to pay for refugee support services such as job counseling.

The Refugee Center has been fixing up its new office for the past few weeks and plans to be moved in by the end of this week.

Center statistics show that nearly 2,000 refugees arrived in Twin Falls between 1990 and the end of 2000. Some have moved to other parts of the country while others have remained here, but the numbers aren't formally tracked. The Refugee Center says it can comfortably serve about 200 refugees a year in Twin Falls.

Groups propose using irrigation water for fish

By N.S. Nokkented
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Water stored in federal reservoirs in southern Idaho may be worth more for generating electricity and helping endangered salmon to survive than for irrigating crops, say some environmental groups.

The groups have asked federal agencies to provide 1 million acre-feet of water from southern and eastern Idaho to help salmon.

The proposal that could dry up more than 200,000 acres in southern Idaho.

Twin Falls area farmers typically use about 4.5 acre-feet of water per acre during an irrigation season. One acre-foot is enough to cover one acre with one foot of water or 43,560 cubic feet.

The effort would help save endangered salmon, and the water could be used to generate electricity along the way - and the revenue from the extra power generated could be used to compensate the eastern Idaho farmers who would lose their irrigation water, said Scott Bosse of Idaho Rivers United.

The issue has a power crisis in the Northwest, but there's also a salmon crisis, Bosse said.

"We shouldn't be trading smelts for volts," he said.

The National Marine Fisheries Service, responsible for salmon recovery, has the obligation to ensure the Bureau of Reclamation provides sufficient water to ensure the survival of the endangered fish - even if the water is acquired in a non-voluntary manner, Bosse said.

Norm Semanko, executive director of the Idaho Water Users Association Inc. called the proposal absurd.

It contradicts state water law and a commitment by the federal agencies to use water only from willing sellers.

"There's no way we're going to go for a program that's not based on willing sellers," Semanko said.

Bosse maintains that the current crisis that appears to pit salmon against power needs is the cost of leaving four federal dams in place on the lower Snake River that the number of vehicles entering Ketchum from the south exceeds the stated goal, said City Administrator Jim Jaquet.

Various studies have estimated the number of vehicles entering Ketchum on a given day at between 11,000 and 14,000.

The issue has raised the specter of a gate being erected across the road with motorists bound for doctor's appointments and skiers bound for Baldy barred if the vehicle limit has been surpassed.

But that's not the idea, Jaquet said. If an annual count finds that the number of vehicles entering Ketchum from the south exceeds the stated goal, the council can tweak incentives and disincentives, such as parking fees, to try to reduce the number of cars entering the city.

If nothing is done, the number of vehicles entering Ketchum in 20 years could reach 28,900, according to Idaho Transportation Department projections.

The count is being done to vehicles from the south, not from the north, because the south is where the growth is occurring. Jaquet said he believes it's counterproductive, causing the problem," he added.

That said, parking fees in Ketchum's downtown core will encourage tourists and residents of Sun Valley and Ketchum to leave their cars at home or at the condo and take advantage of free public transportation, noted Beth Callister, director of the valley's fledgling Red Share carpool program. We don't want to

Gooding to extend city water line

By Almee Metcalf
Times-News correspondent

GOODING - The city will work with Magic Valley Bank to extend a city water and sewer line that would serve a new bank branch. The City Council Monday approved city workers to extend a city water and sewer line 200 feet if the bank pays for the materials.

Construction on the new bank branch on Main Street is expected to begin in May. Magic Valley Bank representative Mike Buhler said the bank would like to go ahead and place a temporary trailer on the old Frahm property recently purchased by the bank from the school district.

"The bank would like to put the trailer on the property as soon as next week," Buhler said. City Superintendent Todd Bunn said there is an ordinance that requires mobile homes or trailers to be placed on permanent foundations and that the council can issue a 60-day permit.

Jaquet said Ketchum's new resolution will be included in the National Environmental Policy Act environmental analysis the Transportation Department is currently conducting.

The highway department could plan highway construction differently if it knows Ketchum intends to keep traffic at present levels, he said.

The policy drew applause from Ketchum resident Peter Ripsom, who said he was glad to see the city take the first step toward addressing what could be a problem years from now.

Former County Commissioner Len Harlig wryly wondered if there would also be a moratorium on new construction unless it can prove no net gain in vehicles.

Ketchum resident John McDonald said he hoped the city would consider all the facts involving public transportation programs - both positive and negative - as they embark on setting feet to the policy.

Ketchum resident Mickey Garcia noted that the policy most affected residents of Hailey and Bellevue who can't vote Ketchum council members out of office. Leaving your own cars at home before requiring others to do it, he challenged council members and city workers.

Rupert approves second district

By Aaron Brock
Times-News writer

RUPERT - As ground is broken on one local improvement district, a second one is getting under way in Rupert.

Local improvement district No. 22, targeting First St. from Oneida St. to between F and G streets, was approved by the City Council Tuesday. Storm drains, curbs, gutters and sidewalks will all be repaired during the construction.

Gabe Mantova spoke in favor of the district. "I live in that area," he said. "We have quite a drainage problem."

No protests were filed at the city office. It is the second local improvement district created in the last few months. Work on a district in the Neptune Park area began Monday. The estimated cost of the new district is $47,511.40, said attorney Rick Bollar. The cost will be split between the city and residents of the property bordering the targeted streets.

"That number may vary," said City Administrator Roger Bagley. "But it won't change significantly from that."

In other council action:

• A proposed drug task force operating in Minidoka and Cassia counties has the approval and financial backing of Rupert. An application for a five-year grant to cover most of the costs in the works but matching funds are required.

Marching funds will come from the Minidoka and Cassia sheriff's departments, and from the cities of Rupert and Heyburn. Rupert's cost will be about $3,557 per year for the first three years, with that number possibly rising in years four and five, said city Police Chief Ken Fedders.

Money forfeited from a drug bust could also be used, Bollar said, noting that there are restrictions on how such money is spent, but that this would be a good use of such funds.

Burley tries to save sewage plant money

By Ruth Streeter
Times-News writer

BURLEY - The Burley City Council Tuesday approved a $25,000 feasibility study that officials say could cut lower the price tag on the construction of a new multimillion dollar sewage plant.

New Earth Systems will conduct the study that will examine how to best utilize the city's existing waste treatment facilities, said City Administrator Mark Mitton.

Mitton said the company's findings may save the city money when it comes time to build a new sewage treatment plant which is expected to cost between $16 and $22 million. Officials say the current facility is outdated and inadequate for handling the waste of new industry.

The new study is "in conjunction with" other studies the city has done in the past, said Kirk Bradley with New Earth Systems. Last year the city allocated $10,000 for a study whose purpose was, in part, to examine how to integrate existing features with new ones.

The contract includes a provision to spend no more than an additional $5,000 on possible laboratory costs.

In other business, the council:

- Voiced its support for National Library Awareness Week, which will be the first for the first three years, with that number possibly rising in years four and five, said city Police Chief Ken Fedders.

Residents will vote on the district in April. Proponents of the

Buhl board gets program update

By Mary Lou Potts
Times-News correspondent

BUHL - Poppewell Elementary School teachers and parents are even more enthusiastic about the 90 Percent Reading Program, after visiting Kennesaw, Wash., schools to see the program in action.

Five parents, four teachers and Principal Henry Brown spent a few days learning what will be expected of the school and students, with a goal of getting 90 percent of third-graders reading at grade level.

Topping the goal list was teaching parents to spend 20 minutes a day reading to children and learning how to raise a reader.

Poppewell already has in place some of the programs used in the Kennesaw program.

"After seeing the program in place, the old adage of 'You must read to succeed' is true," Leslie Hamilton said.

Coupled with the level-testing program, which Buhl will use to replace the Iowa Test of Basic Skills and Test of Achievement and Proficiency, the district will compile tests using the local curriculum. Student results will show where the student is weak or strong. Test scores will not be compared to state results.

"We are going to stop testing for the sake of just testing, level testing will mean something to our students and teachers," Superintendent Rick Hill said.

In other business:

- Maintenance Supervisor

Larry Finstad asked the board for a direction on a plan concerning the lack of space for classrooms and storage at Poppewell. Finstad outlined a plan to accommodate the needs

Finstad said the plan shows a long-range solution and recommends the board consider it, rather than Band-Aids that provide a temporary solution.

- The board adopted an updated traffic policy which gives local police permission to cite drivers who park on school grounds. The handicapped parking code will be strictly enforced.

- Trustee elections will be held May 15. Seats in zones 3 and 4, now held by Audrey Ross and Mike Baughman, will be on the ballot.

Water

in southwestern Washington. Most fisheries biologists say that breaching those dams would give the salmon their best chance at recovery.

"This is the train wreck we warned would occur if we left the dams in and had a severe drought," Bosse said.

But water users also question whether the additional water would really benefit the fish. Fish advocates say evidence shows that more water in the river helps fish migrate and that it is especially important during dry years.

The groups' proposal to increase the flow in the Snake River would improve salmon survival, but it would not decrease hydropower production. The proposal calls for using water in Bureau of Reclamation reservoirs for salmon instead of irrigation. The water also could be used to generate electricity at Idaho Power Co. and federal dams, the groups say.

With the high prices on the energy market, the economic benefit to the region by generating power with the water would be greater than using the water to grow crops. And part of the revenue from the power generated with this water could be used to compensate southern Idaho irrigators.

"The real choice we face is this: Do we grow subsidized potatoes that have no market value or water in the river to save salmon and generate power?" Bosse asks.

Semanko notes that the state water bank provides a vehicle to get more water in the river by renting water from farmers who don't need it that season. Power companies already are bidding for more water to generate hydropower, and they may be outbidding the irrigators.

still are working on the wording. "We'll have something on the Sawtooth this year," LeVere said.

LeVere and SNRA manager Deb Cooper noted the often conflicting directions from the Endangered Species Act, the wolf recovery plan, the Sawtooth forest and the law that created the SNRA.

Some people Tuesday questioned the focus on wolves, as opposed to maintain lions.

In Idaho, about 200 wolves kill a total of about 1,500 to 1,600 elk a year of a statewide herd of about 126,000, Mack said. But the state also has about 4,000 mountain lions, and a mountain lion eats twice as much as a wolf, said Suzanne Laverty, northwest regional representative of Defenders of Wildlife.

While wolf kills are visible to people passing by - typically lion kills are not, Mack said.

Lions are solitary, hunt in cover and feed alone on the carcass. They cover the carcass until it is consumed. "When a wolf kills something, you know something's been killed. It really impresses people," said Ralph Maughan, a political science professor at Idaho State University in Pocatello.

"Maughan is not opposed to controlling wolves that kill livestock, but he wants it kept in perspective, he said.

And if wolves and people are to coexist in Idaho, it's going to take give and take, one official said.

"If we're going to work out the problem, we're going to have to work together," said George Graves, assistant state director of Wildlife Services, the organization that carries out wolf control in Idaho.

California regulators order rolling blackouts for second day

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Rolling blackouts hit California for a second straight day Tuesday, closing souvenir shops in San Francisco's Chinatown, snarling traffic and plunging schools and offices around the state into darkness.

Hundreds of thousands of homes and businesses from San Diego to the Oregon border faced power outages, blamed on the same factors that collided to force blackouts Monday.

Those include unseasonably warm weather, reduced electricity imports from the Pacific Northwest, numerous power plants offline for repairs and less power provided by cash-strapped alternative-energy plants.

Man receives sentence for 25-year-old murder

RIGBY — Ramiro Resendez will serve at least three years in prison for stabbing his friend to death over 25 years ago.

In Judge Brent Moss's Jefferson County courtroom, Resendez was sentenced to three to 10 years in prison for the 1975 stabbing death of Juan Huizar.

A jury in December convicted him of voluntary manslaughter for the death of his coworker and friend.

Resendez's attorney, R. Keith Roark, said he was pleased. "I think it was a fair sentence," he said. "This started out as a second-degree murder case, so I'm happy. I would have been happier if the jury had acquitted him, but I think it's a fair sentence."

Cancer researchers request funding to relocate to Idaho

IDAHO FALLS — A company that has been developing an experimental brain cancer therapy in collaboration with the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory is seeking millions of dollars in hopes of setting up shop in Idaho Falls.

Neutron Therapies LLC has applied for $3.8 million from the Eastern Idaho Regional Alliance. The alliance is charged with distributing $30 million in economic development funds from a 1995 agreement between Idaho, the U.S. Department of Energy and the U.S. Navy over spent fuel shipments to the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory.

The company has been working on Boron Neutron Capture Therapy since the mid-1990s, developing compounds to be used in treating brain and lung cancer. In the next 60 to 90 days, clinical trials are due to start at the University of Washington, said Neutron Therapies' cofounder Bill Sewell.

The therapy involves saturating a tumor with a boron compound, then exposing it to a neutron beam from an accelerator or reactor. In theory, neutrons will react with the boron compound, splitting the atoms and destroying the cancer tissue while leaving the surrounding healthy tissue intact.

Police think fatal crash was alcohol-related

IDAHO FALLS — Joshua K. Johnson was slated to lose his driver's license in April, two weeks too late for 20-year-old Nicole Lee McClure, Bonneville County Sheriff's deputies say.

Officials say McClure, of Grant, died Sunday after Johnson, 18, crashed the car they were traveling in. Johnson, who was out of jail on a $500 bond for driving under the influence earlier this month, had been drinking alcohol at a party before the crash, said Sgt. Karl Casperson.

A warrant with a $25,000 bond was issued Monday for Johnson, of Shelley, charging him with felony vehicular manslaughter. The charge carries a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Meatpacker reaches plea bargain agreement

BLACKFOOT — Wesley Austin will no longer receive his mail care of the Bingham County Jail.

The Austin Farms meatpacking CEO pleaded guilty on Monday to 10 felony charges related to writing bad checks.

Austin had been charged with 55 counts but reached a plea agreement with prosecutors.

His attorney, David Parmenter, asked 7th District Judge Jon Shinduring to release his client from jail so he could get a job to pay off his debts.

Shinduring agreed and canceled the $100,000 bail set when Austin was arrested four months ago.

Ski underwear emblazoned with mountain trail maps

VAIL, Colo. — For those who left the trail map at the bottom of the hill there may be a solution.

Silk Trails, an Aurora, Colo.-based company is selling boxer shorts bearing ski area trail maps.

The No. 1 seller is Vail, usually the nation's busiest ski resort, followed by Park City, Utah, said

Rachel Zacher Himel, founder and owner of Silk Trails.

She started the company in 1995, selling silk scarves with trail maps.

Commissioners deny AT&T cell-tower permit

COEUR D'ALENE — Kootenai County commissioners have voted unanimously against a 300-foot cellular tower proposed for rural farmland near Rockford Bay.

In motioning against the proposal by AT&T Wireless Services of Idaho, Commissioner Ron Rankin on Monday cited the Kootenai County Comprehensive Plan's goal of maintaining areas of scenic beauty, especially around Coeur d'Alene Lake.

Truly personalized healthcare seems to be a thing of the past as medical conglomerates play a larger role in our lives. These days, it seems as if providers no longer connect with patients on an individual basis. That's what makes Cassia Regional Medical Center different. For more than 40 years, they've been providing residents throughout Mini-Cassia with top quality healthcare by placing the emphasis of healing on the individual. From 24-hour on-staff emergency physicians to home and hospice care, Cassia Regional Medical Center wants to make a difference. And because they're a part of Intermountain Health Care, they'll make sure you get the treatment you need, no matter what it takes. After all, their roots are deep in Mini-Cassia. And they understand, better than anyone, that your life is here.

Reviving vinyl floors is a snap

QUESTION: What is the proper way to clean a no-wax floor?

-DANIELLE GOODWIN, LANCASTER, CALIF.

ANSWER: Vinyl floors that are marketed as no-wax can be a source of frustration to their owners, who are under the mistaken impression that they require no regular maintenance.

In truth, while these floors are quite effortless to care for at first (since they are treated with products to help them maintain a shine without waxing), the effect isn't permanent. With time and regular cleaning, the finish will wear away, eventually giving the floor a dull appearance. When that happens, many manufacturers recommend applying a special "restoring" product, available at many housewares and hardware stores, to revive the shine.

You can slow the wearing-away process by using only cleaning and polishing products made especially for no-wax floors.

An even better approach, though one that requires more vigilance, is protecting the floor's top layer by caring for it as you would any vinyl floor—with routine waxing, damp mopping and occasional stripping. Waxing should be done about every six months, depending on how much traffic your floor gets.

Apply acrylic wax sparingly, directly onto the floor, and spread it into a thin coat using long, straight strokes with a damp sponge mop or wax applicator. Do this on a clear day, so you can open the windows and allow the circulating air to help dry the wax to a shine. This may take anywhere from 30 minutes to an hour, depending on the humidity in the air.

Between waxings, clean the floor with a damp mop and warm water, and a bit of vinyl floor cleaner, if there is substantial dirt and grime. About once a year, or after two or three waxings, you'll need to strip away the old wax buildup. Dilute the stripper (try 1 cup of stripper to a gallon of water at first, and increase the amount of stripper if necessary), then apply to 3-foot-square sections with a sponge mop. Allow about 3 minutes for the wax to soften, then mop again with a clean, damp mop to remove both the stripper and old wax. Rinse with clean water and then continue the process, section by section.

QUESTION: I planted some herbs in small clay pots, and now they are starting to grow white mold. What can I do about this?

-JANELLE PINOSKI, EDMONTON, ALBERTA

ANSWER: A whitish substance appearing up the sides of clay pots, whether they contain herbs or other plants, is unlikely to be a reason for concern. Terra cotta is porous, and whenever you water your plants, liquid seeps into the pores of the pot. Some of this water evaporates into the air, some stays in the clay and, over time, is drawn back into the soil where the plant can use it.

The white buildup that results is probably not mold, but more likely an accumulation of salts from the soil or from fertilizer that seeped through the clay with the water. It is harmless, and many people actually like it, finding that it gives their pots a desirable soft, aged look. If you are bothered by the appearance, just wipe the pot with a damp cloth. The buildup should clean up easily.

Herbs thrive in containers, and most will grow well with little effort from you, as long as they have plenty of sunlight and good, well-drained soil. You can mix several of your favorites into one large container, or give each variety its own pot, labeling the containers for easy identification.

Spicing up family life

Local cook tries out her experimental cooking on family and coworkers

By Dixie Thomas Reale
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS: Conni Walker's favorite TV station is the Food Network, and she plans her meals on line.

Once she got satellite television and discovered the Food Network, she was hooked. She particularly likes the Saturday morning cooking shows, she said. She downloads interesting recipes and has quite a collection. Recently, the stack of printouts got so big that Walker's husband decided to organize them into binders for her.

The family knows when Walker has been watching the Food Network. She disappears into the kitchen with that inspired look on her face, and everyone waits for the experimental dishes.

If Walker is stuck for a recipe, she goes to a search engine on line and types in the name of a dish, she explained. Often, she gets hundreds of variations of a particular recipe, and she takes what she likes from each recipe and combines them to make her own version of the dish. She keeps the recipes from the successful dishes and discards those that are not so good.

It wasn't always that way.

Walker was born in Ohio and reared in Wisconsin, where most folks like meat-and-potatoes cooking. When she wanted to learn to cook as a kid, her mother told her to clean up after herself and have at it.

Walker experimented and discovered she loved to bake. She baked cookies and cakes. Then in college, she created a great recipe for Duck A L'Orange.

She married 22 years ago. Hubby, Biff, was always a meat-and-potatoes sort of fellow. About 20 years ago, the Walkers moved to southern California; five years ago, they moved to the Magic Valley.

Walker said her cooking was rather tame when the children were little, because, like most kids, hers didn't like to eat anything different. But now that the daughter is 19 and the son is 15, Walker is having fun in the kitchen again.

She works at D.L. Evans Bank as a mortgage underwriter and does lots of cooking and baking for bank parties, open houses and other celebrations. Once, a customer at the bank ate some of her food and indicated that the mortgage underwriting job had to be her hobby and the cooking had to be her career.

Connie Walker prepares Marinated Grilled Salmon at her home in Twin Falls.

CREAM PUFFS
Cream Puff Pastry: 1/2 cup butter
1 cup water

Pinch of salt
1 cup flour
4 eggs

In a saucepan, bring butter and water to a boil. Add flour and salt; mix well. Stir constantly over medium heat until mixture leaves the sides of the saucepan. Remove from heat and let cool. When mixture is cool, add eggs one at a time, blending mixture well after adding each egg. Drop by large teaspoons or tablespoons (depending on size desired) onto cookie sheet. Bake in a 350-degree oven until a deep golden brown is achieved. Make sure not to underbake. (If puffs are underbaked, they will fall after being removed from oven.)

Cream filling:
2 pints whipping cream
2 to 3 tablespoons sugar

1 small box vanilla instant pudding
Whip all ingredients together in mixer until whipped and thick. Slice puffs in half when cool and fill with cream filling. At this point, cream puffs can be dusted with powdered sugar and served, or you can make a chocolate glaze to pour over the top.

MARINATED GRILLED SALMON

Marinated:
1 cup teriyaki sauce
1/2 cup sherry
1/3 to 1/2 cup sliced green onion
1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon red pepper flakes to taste
1/4 teaspoon dried ginger or 1 teaspoon fresh grated ginger

Marinate four individual-size salmon filets four hours or overnight. Grill on barbecue or in grill pan until desired done-ness.

SWISS MUSHROOM BREAD

1 loaf Italian or sourdough bread
12 to 14 ounces Swiss cheese, shredded
1 cup sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons sesame seeds
1/2 cup chopped onion
Garlic to taste
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon seasoned salt

Slice bread diagonally, not quite through bottom crust. Turn bread and slice diagonally the other way, forming diamond-shaped pieces. Mix 2 sticks melted butter or margarine with the dry mustard, lemon juice, garlic and seasoned salt. Mix together remaining ingredients and then stuff this cheese mixture in the bread between the "diamonds." When all the cheese mixture is stuffed in the bread, place it in a large piece of heavy-duty foil and crinkle.

Spring into Easter

Try these variations on classic holiday fare

It's time to celebrate spring with friends and family. Pick the flowers, set the table, get the camera out and capture the memories. After you serve this dinner, you can use some of the leftovers for more meals.

One option is an Eggs Benedict breakfast featuring the following: Top a toasted English muffin with the ham, a poached egg and a lemony hollandaise sauce. For a great appetizer, make Deviled Eggs. Peel and split eggs and mash the yolks with mayonnaise, Dijon mustard, salt and pepper to taste. Spoon into the egg white halves. Any leftover cooked asparagus can be used to fill an omelet or frittata. Top with shredded cheese and you have a great brunch. Chopped ham can also be added. Cut-up fresh extra sweet pineapple chunks make a great breakfast smoothie. Place in a blender with some yogurt or frozen yogurt and puree until smooth.

White and Wild Rice Pilaf makes a delicious cold salad with leftovers. Stir in some oil and lemon juice, sprinkle with some chopped parsley or green onions and serve on lettuce leaves.

WHITE AND WILD RICE PILAF

1/3 cup chopped celery
1/3 cup chopped carrot
2 tablespoons olive oil
1/2 cup wild rice
2 1/2 cups water
1/3 cup Grey Poupon Dijon Mustard
1/4 cup RealLemon Lemon Juice
From Concentrate
1 cup long-grain white rice
1/3 cup lightly toasted pignoli nuts (pine nuts)
1/4 cup chopped green onion
1 cup chopped parsley
Cook and stir celery and carrot in oil in large saucepan until softened. Add wild rice; stir to coat. Please see EASTER, Page C8

Celebrate Easter with, clockwise from top left: Lemon-Dijon Glazed Ham and Pineapple, Pineapple Foster and White and Wild Rice Pilaf.

Deliciously simple sidekicks

To round out your holiday meal, why not try something a bit different this Easter. Instead of the typical Shrimp and Cocktail Sauce appetizer, prepare these Shrimp and Pineapple Appetizer Kabobs. Alternate appetizer large shrimp, chunks of Del Monte Gold Extra Sweet Pineapple and blanched snow peas on wooden skewers. Brush with a mixture of 1/4 cup Grey Poupon Dijon Mustard, 1 tablespoon each teriyaki sauce, sherry and chopped cilantro. Grill or broil until done, basting occasionally.

Culinary crustaceans

LobsterChops are three grilled skewers, each with a split Maine lobster tail wrapped around a jumbo sea scallop.

LobsterChops make for savory vittals

Red Lobster

The Red Lobster restaurants have a new signature entree, and the company is sharing the recipe.

LOBSTERCHOPS

(Serves 4)
6 to 8 ounce North American or Maine lobster tails on the shell
12 jumbo sea scallops with the side muscle removed
1 1/4 cups lemon-garlic butter (see attached recipe)
1 tablespoon McCormick Seasoned Salt
6 cups cooked rice to lightly seasoned pilaf
4 lemon wedges
1/4 cup parsley, fresh chopped
1/2 cup butter, melted (for dipping)
12 8-inch metal skewers
Prepare oven or grill to 450 degrees. Cut each lobster tail completely in half (lengthwise) and remove the vein; gently lift the lobster meat from the shell, leaving meat attached at tail end, and place meat back into shell. This makes it easier to eat the lobster after it's cooked. Wrap each lobster tail, including the shell, around one scallop (similar to wrapping bacon around a filet mignon). To skewer, gently pierce the base of the tail fin, passing

Eating lobster: The ultimate how-to guide

Red Lobster

Step 1: Break off the lobster claws and arms where they join at the body. Using a nutcracker, crack the claws and dig out the meat with lobster fork. Try dipping the meat in melted butter for a savory taste.
Step 2: Twist the tail to open, and break it off from the lobster body. Put the tail aside and use the body to crack open the tail, exposing the meat. Using the nutcracker by cracking it apart lengthwise, and begin pulling out the tasty meat with a pick. Steer clear of the sand sac near the lobster's head, but be daring, and try to eat the red coral found in the sand sac, and the green tomalley, which is the liver.
Step 3: Pull off the legs individually and suck them like a straw. The meat found here is sweet and delicious.
Step 4: Last, but not least, take the tail and twist the tipper off the tailpiece. Pull the meat out of the tail with a lobster fork, and it will come out in a neat, round ball. Remove it. Dip the moist meat in drawn butter and enjoy.

Sharpen the shovel: Lilies are ready for planting

The first thing on the agenda is an apology to you. Last week I said "alkaline" when I meant to say "acid" and confused us all. I'm sorry.

"Anxious," wrote in to ask about her lemon tree and I meant to say that citrus would like its soil slightly more acid. If the soil is more acid, bringing it closer to the neutral pH zone, her lemon tree would be able to use nitrogen.

Now to the business at hand. My wildflower garden has worked through the various types of seeds. Now all that is left is a strong stand of blue flax. Which is gorgeous in bloom, but the area needs to be redone. I've got 16 new daylilies that are going in as soon as my hunny sharpens my shovel.

When I plant bulbs, I don't dig one hole at a time. I dig up a big space (about a shovel's depth) and place the bulbs randomly. Digging up everything around the planting area loosens up all the soil, offering extra soil to work with. That's important with daylilies.

Look carefully at daylily roots. There will be six or seven good-sized roots, splayed out much like the roots of a rose. Like bare-root roses, daylilies will need something to sit on. Form a small volcano with some of the "loose soil" on the daylily on that. The top of the bulb should just come to or slightly below the soil surface when you cover everything up.

Water everything thoroughly.

DEAR CATHY: I know this request isn't seasonally timely, but I would like to know how to get an avocado seed to sprout and how to take care of it. I'd also like to know about growing sweet potatoes as houseplants. I'd also like to know how to care for my grapefruit trees that sprouted from seeds. Thank you for all the good news and hints in your garden column.

—INDOOR GARDENER
DEAR INDOOR: My mother used to wash off the avocado seeds and stick three toothpicks around the middle. It looked a little like Sputnik.

Then she'd suspend the avocado seed on the rim of a water glass, letting the toothpicks hold it up. She put just enough water in the glass to reach the lower third of the avocado seed. Since the glass sat in the bright window sill, the water had to be replaced often. In no time, the thing sprouted.

Pot avocados up in a good, light-potting soil. They like good drainage. Keep moist, but not wet. Avocados will grow for you, but probably won't flower.

When your sweet potato has sprouted, you can grow it as a vine. Set the little sprouts so that only the stem tips and leaves are exposed. They, too, want light potting soil.

Grapefruit, like all citrus in containers, will need an 18-inch-wide container when they've grown some. Use a light potting soil that drains well. Fertilize them with high nitrogen liquid soluble plant food containing chelated zinc, iron and manganese. Most citrus in containers need their roots pruned every four or five years and repotted in fresh soil. Thanks for writing.

Grandview's hexagonal floor-plan provides plenty of windows and a wrap-around deck and patio.

Grandview homes offer panoramic views

The Grandview is aptly named. A wealth of windows, occasionally interrupted by stone veneer columns and shingled walls, sparkles across the back three sections. Designed to be built on a fear-sloping view lot, this hexagonal home offers panoramic views from all of the interior rooms as well as the wide upper deck and covered lower patio.

Entering, you are at ground level, facing into the vaulted living room. Stride across that room, walk through sliding doors and out onto the deck, and you see that the outdoor living space is one flight up from the rear ground level. Wooden posts and railings rim the entire deck, which is wide enough for outdoor dining, sunbathing and just plain relaxing and enjoying the view.

A handsome double-wide stone chimney, two fireplaces, a two-sided fireplace on the main floor, and a standard fireplace in the spacious family room below. The two-sided version can be enjoyed from the living room, dining room and kitchen. Vaulted ceilings expand the volume in all of these naturally bright, interconnected areas.

Kitchen counters are in ample supply, wrapping around four sides of the kitchen. The raised eating bar is handy for snacking or conversation. Lazy Susan shelving is built into one corner of the lower cabinets to provide easy access to all those little items at the back.

The Grandview has two bedroom suites, one on each floor, plus a third bedroom on the lower level. All have wide windows, and the upper bedroom has a vaulted ceiling. Each suite has direct access to a bathroom shared by others on the same floor.

Utilities are downstairs, with storage tucked under the stairs.

Decorative windows provide a portal to cheery, customized looks

DEAR JIM: I went on a recent new home tour and I saw some very attractive decorative windows. Some were exterior windows and others between rooms. Is it possible to get replacement windows with the decorative glass?

-KAREN A.
DEAR KAREN: Adding just a few decorative windows can significantly enhance the appearance of your house from both outdoors and indoors as well as provide some privacy. Although you can stand near the glass and look outdoors clearly, the view looking in from a distance will be obscured.

Many replacement and new window manufacturers now offer a nearly endless array of efficient decorative glass types: beveled, leading (caming), stained, sandblasted, multifaceted, jewel, carved, glue chip, hammered, granite and many colored contemporary and natural outdoor scenes.

Replacement windows with decorative glass are as, and often more, efficient than regular replacement windows. Many use the same low-emissivity coatings and inert gas in the gaps between the panes. Some sandwich the decorative pane between two outer protective panes, creating an extra insulating air gap.

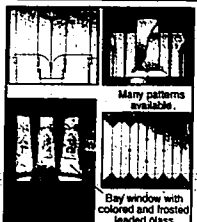

Since decorative glass obviously costs more than standard glass, you may only want to use it in several key areas of a house. A very efficient and attractive option for a wide replacement window is to have a fixed center section with decorative glass in casement sections on each end.

There are new replacement windows for old sliders that both slide open and rotate in like a casement. Decorative glass can be used in any or all of the glass panes. Rotating them in provides better ventilation in the summer, easy cleaning and extra room for emergency escape during a fire.

Some window manufacturers offer add-on decorative glass panel kits that snap over existing windows. These kits come with all the components including wooden trim strips to hide the clip fasteners. When it is time to clean the windows, the decorative panel easily snaps off for access to the window glass.

Many styles of decorative window panes are available.

Decorative windows are also often used between rooms in a house. At night, enough light will pass through from the lighted room to act as a beautiful night light for the other room without using additional lights. In most cases, these are small fixed windows that do not open. Many of the arch styles (Gothic, full, equal-leg and unequal-leg) are small and simple to install in an interior wall. Octagonal windows are also attractive.

These small windows are also available in efficient venting models for use in an exterior wall. Located high on a wall, they can be opened to vent out hot air in the summer. They are beautiful when the sun shines through them.

Write for (instantly download - www.duley.com). Update Bulletin No. 754 - buyer's guide of 11 manufacturers of windows with decorative glass listing window styles, frame materials/colors, descriptions of decorative glass options and features. Please include $3 and a business-size SASE. Write to James Duley, 6906 Royalgreen Drive, Cincinnati, OH 45244.

Macaroni and cheese can be pleasure or penance during lent

By Jane Snow
Akron Beacon Journal

Macaroni and cheese was true penance in my family. Although as Protestants, we weren't required to eat it on Fridays during Lent, we suffered nonetheless.

Our macaroni and cheese was hard and dry. It was made — so help me God — by interspersing cooked elbow macaroni in a casserole with a few small slices of Colby cheese. A half-cup or so of milk was poured over the top before it went into the oven. It must have been a Presbyterian thing.

In adulthood, I have learned that macaroni and cheese is both penance and pleasure. It is still penance to the many Catholics who abstain from meat on Fridays during Lent. But it is a celebration food for many African-Americans, who serve it at holiday feasts.

Don't overcook macaroni or you'll end up with a mushy casserole. On the other hand, if you undercook pasta, it will absorb so much sauce during baking that the casserole will be dry.

Elaine Hampton of Akron, who is known for her terrific macaroni and cheese, says that though the dish is eaten year-round now in African-American homes, it still has a place on honor at Sunday dinners and holiday feasts.

EUNICE'S MACARONI AND CHEESE

1 pound elbow macaroni
2 cans (12 ounces each) evaporated milk
4 tablespoons butter
1/2 pound Cheddar cheese, grated
1/2 pound Colby cheese, grated
1 pound (half of a box) Velveeta cheese, cut in small cubes
4 ounces cream cheese, cut in small cubes

Salt, pepper
Cook macaroni in a large kettle in boiling, salted water until al dente — pliable but not mushy. Drain well and return to pot. Add milk and butter and place over medium-low heat. When butter has melted, add cheese a little at a time until the cheeses have melted into a smooth sauce. Remove from heat and stir in egg. Season with salt and pepper. Pour into a 9-by-13-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes, until edges begin to set and casserole is bubbly. Serves 10 to 12 as a side dish.

This is a lush grain of macaroni and fontina cheese with a peppery bite. The heat comes from the fontina cheese sauce. The dish is based on the flavors of spicy arrabiata, a classic Italian spaghetti sauce.

MACARONI AND CHEESE ARRABIATA

1/2 pound penne pasta
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 can (16 ounces) whole tomatoes, drained and chopped fine
1/4 teaspoon coarse-ground black pepper
1 teaspoon crushed red pepper
3/4 cup pitted kalamata olives, chopped
1/2 teaspoon dried basil
3 tablespoons butter

3 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 cups milk
3/4 cup grated fontina cheese
1/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Salt
Cook pasta in boiling, salted water until al dente. Meanwhile, in a medium skillet heat olive oil. Sauté garlic until golden. Add the tomatoes and the peppers. Simmer uncovered over medium heat for 5 minutes, until tomatoes are almost mushy. Stir in olives and basil and set aside. Melt butter in a heavy saucepan. Stir in flour. Cook and whisk over medium heat for 1 minute. Add milk all at once, whisking vigorously until smooth. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Stir in fontina and 1/4 cup Parmesan cheese and remove from heat. Stir until cheese melts. Add salt to taste. Stir in tomato mixture and stir well. Drain macaroni very well. Return to pasta pot and shake over low heat until any remaining moisture evaporates. Sauce, stirring well to coat all of the pasta. Pour into a buttered, 9-by-13-inch baking pan or an oval gratin pan. Sprinkle with remaining 2 tablespoons Parmesan. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes.

until golden brown. Serves 5 to 6 as a main dish.

This is made with feta cheese instead of the standard Cheddar.

GREEK MAC AND CHEESE

1/2 pound (2 cups) elbow macaroni
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 clove garlic, minced
1 and 1/4 cup seeded, diced fresh plum tomatoes (about 1/2 pound)
3/4 cup pitted kalamata olives, cut in halves
3/4 teaspoon dried oregano
Salt, pepper
4 tablespoons butter

4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
6 ounces crumbled feta cheese
Cook pasta in boiling, salted water until al dente. Meanwhile, in a medium skillet heat olive oil. Sauté garlic until golden. Remove pan from heat and add tomatoes, olives and oregano; toss to coat with garlic oil. Season with salt and pepper. Set aside. Melt butter in a heavy saucepan. Stir in flour. Cook and whisk over medium heat for 1 minute. Add milk all at once, whisking vigorously until smooth. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Season with salt. Stir in 4 ounces of the cheese until melted. Remove from heat. Stir in tomato-olive mixture. Drain pasta and return to pot. Place over low heat and shake until remaining moisture evaporates. Stir in the sauce. Pour macaroni mixture into a buttered, 9-by-13-inch baking pan or an oval gratin dish. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes, until edges begin to turn golden. Serves 5 to 6 as a main dish.

Q: How can I get my paint job to look more professional? What kind of paint is best?
A: Wash surfaces well and remove old paint. Use caulking or putty on cracks. Use primer, and then two coats of paint. Flat paint masks flaws, but is hard to clean. Semigloss is washable, good for bedrooms and children's rooms. High-gloss is washable, and perfect for windows and doors.

Q: What is compost, and how can I get it?
A: Compost is a mixture of biodegradable materials from the kitchen and garden, such as coffee grounds, grass clippings, leaves, and eggshells, that has ripened in a special bin for about 3 to 12 months. When it has become soft and crumbly, you can use it to fertilize and enrich your garden.

March brings fun recipes with peanuts

By Carol J.G. Ward
Knight Ridder News Service

It seems that every food has its day, or week or month. Dreamed up by public relations firms, these "celebrations" to honor a particular food usually are just marketing plays. But every once in a while, one will stand out - sometimes because it comes with good recipes, sometimes because it's unusual, and sometimes just because it's fun.

National Peanut Month (March) is fun, and it has good recipes.

Here are a few, from the National Peanut Board. For sampling of more recipes, send an e-mail to peanutboard@aol.com or send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Recipes, National Peanut Board, 50 Hurt Plaza, Suite 1220, Atlanta, GA 30303.

ORIENTAL PEANUTS

9 servings
3 cups dry-roasted, unsalted peanuts
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons toasted sesame oil
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
1 tablespoon ground ginger
1 tablespoon garlic powder
Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
In a medium bowl, toss peanuts with soy sauce and sesame oil. Combine remaining ingredients in a resealable plastic bag; mix well. Add peanuts and toss gently to coat evenly. Spread peanuts in single layer on a non-stick baking sheet. Bake at 350 degrees in center of oven for 7-10 minutes. Remove peanuts from the oven and loosen with a spatula. Cool in pan. Store in tightly covered container.

MOROCCAN PEANUTS

9 servings
1 large egg white
3 cups roasted, unsalted peanuts

1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon ground cinnamon
2 teaspoon ground cumin
2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper
Preheat oven to 300 degrees.
In a medium bowl, beat egg white with 1 tablespoon water until frothy. Add peanuts; toss to coat well. If necessary, pour peanuts into a strainer and let any excess liquid drain off. Combine remaining ingredients in a resealable plastic bag; mix well. Add peanuts and toss gently to coat evenly. Spread peanuts in a single layer on a non-stick baking sheet. Bake at 300 degrees in center of oven for 15 minutes. Stir peanuts, reduce heat to 275 degrees and bake 45 minutes. Remove peanuts from the oven and loosen with spatula. Cool in pan 30 minutes. Store in tightly covered container.

CRUNCHY HONEY PEANUT CHICKEN

4 servings
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1/4 teaspoon dried tarragon
1/4 cup prepared mustard
2 tablespoons honey
1 cup finely chopped dry-roasted, unsalted peanuts
4 boneless, skinless chicken breasts
2 tablespoon butter
In a pie pan or shallow bowl, combine flour, seasoned salt, garlic powder and tarragon; mix well. In second pie pan, combine mustard and honey. Place peanuts in third pie pan. Dip each chicken breast in flour mixture, then honey mustard, and finally in peanuts to coat. Heat butter in 10- to 12-inch skillet; add chicken and cook over medium-low heat until cooked through and golden, 4-5 minutes per side.

Cook gives Eastertime recipe for coconut eggs

By Linda Cicero
The Miami Herald

QUESTION: When I was growing up in Philadelphia in the 1950s, at Eastertime you could buy 2-cent coconut eggs. I don't remember there being any other flavor. These were the best and I was wondering if there is a recipe.

-CLAIRE CLARK, EASTON, PA.

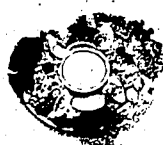

ANSWER: I don't know what made those eggs so special, but here is a very easy recipe I made for my mother, who coincidentally grew up just across the Delaware from Philadelphia and also is a coconut egg fan. I found the recipe in "Gifts in Good Taste" by Helen Hecht and Lina LaBate Mushlin.

COCONUT EASTER EGGS
4 ounces cream cheese
1 1/2 cups confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 teaspoon almond extract
2/3 cup shredded coconut
Coating:
4 ounces unsweetened chocolate
3 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon unsalted butter
Mix the cream cheese and the sugar in a bowl with a wooden spoon. Stir in the vanilla and almond extracts. When completely blended, stir in the coconut. Chill until firm.
To make the coating: Melt the chocolate and the sugar. Stir and when almost completely melted, add the butter and stir until smooth. Remove from heat and stir 2 to 3 minutes as the chocolate cools slightly.

Cook's Corner

Take a spoonful of filling and shape it into an egg shape. (The filling is somewhat sticky.) Dip the shaped filling into the chocolate. Turn it gently with a fork. Let the excess drip off, then place the egg on waxed paper. Repeat with remaining candy. Allow the eggs to harden 4 hours before serving. Store in a cool, dry place. Makes about 24.

the skewer through the scallop, and piercing through the other end of the tail. (Leave approximately 1 to 2 inches at the end of the skewer to prevent LobsterChops from sliding off during cooking.) Lightly brush the topside of the LobsterChops with the lemon-garlic butter (just a light coating to avoid "butter flairs" when grilling). Sprinkle the chops with Season-all; place on a wax-paper-lined tray and refrigerate until ready to grill. Place LobsterChops, meat side down, on preheated grill. Cook for 4 to 5 minutes, rotating chops 90 degrees after two minutes; turn over and cook for another 4 to 5 minutes, or until the lobster and the scallop have reached an internal temperature of 150 degrees. Lightly brush the meat side with lemon-garlic butter just before removing from the grill. For each plate, place three chops on a bed of your favorite rice, accompanied by a small cup of melted butter and a lemon wedge. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve.

Lemon-garlic butter sauce:
1 pound butter, unsalted (softened)
3 ounces white wine
2 tablespoons lemon juice, freshly squeezed
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon kosher salt
2 tablespoons garlic, freshly minced
2 teaspoons black pepper, freshly ground
2 tablespoons parsley, fresh chopped

Soften butter and place in a five-quart mixer. Combine wine, lemon juice, and Worcestershire. Gradually add wine mixture to butter. Add salt and garlic. Mix well. Add black pepper and chopped parsley. Refrigerate until ready to use.

CHICKEN PUFF

APPETIZERS

4 ounces cream cheese
2 tablespoons butter
2 cups chicken (cooked and diced)

1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon green onion
3 teaspoons melted butter
1 beaten egg
1 package frozen puff pastry
Thaw frozen pastry according to package directions. Blend cream cheese and the 2 tablespoons butter until smooth. Add chicken, green onion and pepper. Roll out thawed pastry dough to about 1/16-inch thickness. Cut into squares about 3-1/2 inches. Spoon 1 teaspoon of chicken mixture on each square. Using pastry brush, brush beaten egg on all four edges of square and fold toward the center, pinching edges together to seal. Brush on the melted butter. Place on a cookie sheet. Bake in preheated 400-degree oven about 15 minutes or until golden. (If the weather is warm, place the puffs in freezer for 15 minutes before baking.)

Vandals tab one of their own

Iowa Sate assistant Perry becomes 27th basketball coach

By Kevin Hall
Times-News sports editor

MOSCOW — The University of Idaho welcomed back one of its own Tuesday when Leonard Perry was introduced as the school’s 27th men’s basketball head coach.

Perry, 32, played for Idaho from 1989-1991 and was the team’s starting point guard on the 1990 NCAA Tournament team. He comes to Moscow after serving as an assistant coach at Iowa State (1998-01) and Utah State (1995-98) universities with former Vandal head coach Larry Eustachy. Perry was also a student assistant at Idaho from 1993 to 1995. “I’m glad to be back,” Perry said, during a teleconference with reporters around the state. “I’ve got a good feeling about the way things are going here.” University President Bob Hoover said Perry’s strong ties to the school and the community made him the prohibitive choice to replace David Farrar, who was fired March 9 after five seasons. “He brings a number of things we find attractive,” Hoover said. “He is a Vandal. He has worked extraordinarily hard since leaving the Palouse. He has built up a network with coaches across the country. He is extremely good with students and he is excited about the prospect of returning to the Palouse.”

Perry said the decision was easy. “I had some overtures from some other schools, but I never thought twice of it,” he said. “It was a no-brainer because it’s a special, special situation. It’s a family affair.”

Lady Utes enter uncharted territory

School makes its first trip to round of 16

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Welcome to the big time, Utah. The Utes are in the NCAA tournament’s round of 16 for the first time ever, thanks to a 78-69 victory over Iowa on Monday. With a school-record 28 wins, not even a looming matchup with powerful Notre Dame can spoil the party.

“If we’d lost tonight, I wouldn’t feel a failure,” coach Elaine Elliott said late Monday. “Winning or losing wouldn’t change how I feel about what I do here, but this is great for our kids.”

It’s great for the program, too. Elliott has coached the Utes 18 seasons, one year longer than John Stockton has run the floor for the Utah Jazz, and this year’s NCAA tournament marked two major milestones for Utah (28-3).

First, Utah landed a four-team NCAA subregional. Although fourth-seeded Iowa was rated higher than the fifth-seeded Utes, the games went to Salt Lake City because Iowa City was playing host to the NCAA wrestling tournament.

Second, Utah won twice in the NCAA’s for the first time. The Utes have been in the tournament before, but usually only long enough to lose. By beating Iowa, Utah improved to 3-10 all-time in the NCAA’s.

All season, Utah has relied on unselfish scoring and intense defense. The Utes are the nation’s top defensive team, holding opponents to an average 50.5 points and 33.7 shooting percentage.

Of Utah’s 31 opponents, all but one has been held under its season scoring average. The exception was still a victory for the Utes, a 78-73 win at New Mexico on Jan. 7.

“Utah plays such great defense that when you do get open looks you start worrying about getting a shove instead of concentrating on the shot,” Iowa coach Lisa Bender said. “It plays mind games with you and makes it hard to get any rhythm.”

Next up is Notre Dame (30-2), the top-seeded team in the Midwest Regional. The Irish spent much of the season ranked No. 1 nationally, and it will be interesting to see how Utah’s tough defense performs against a topflight opponent.

Braves’ Millwood has shaky outing

The Associated Press

Kevin Millwood’s difficult spring run into more trouble.

Millwood, who went from an 18-game winner to an under .500 pitcher last season, gave up a grand slam to Orlando Cabrera in the Atlanta Braves’ 10-8 loss to the Montreal Expos on Tuesday. Millwood allowed six runs and nine hits in four innings against the Expos and has given up 18 earned runs in 9 1/3 innings this spring.

“It’s the best he’s thrown this spring,” Braves manager Bobby Cox said. “I thought both starters threw great, but the wind caught them.”

Millwood was 18-7 with a 2.68 ERA in 1999, before slipping to 10-13 with a 4.66 ERA last season.

In Peoria, Ariz., Japanese import Ichiro Suzuki hit his first homer of the spring, connecting for a two-run shot off Oakland’s Erik Hiljus in Seattle’s 7-4 loss.

At Tampa, Fla., Chuck Knoblauch, his career as a second baseman for the Yankees cut short because he can no longer accurately throw to first, worked out in left field.

Bobcats claw out 7-6 victory over Jerome

By Jeff Behlman
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Nothing like a rally to fuel the early season.

After absorbing a painful, four-run second inning by Jerome to fall behind 6-2, the Burley Bobcats put together six runs over the final four frames to shock the Tigers 7-6 in a conference matchup Tuesday at Burley.

Trailing 6-5 heading to the bottom of the seventh, Bobcat Dallas Bristol got the late-inning heroics started by knocking a deep shot to center field for a triple. Bristol came across for the tying run just two batters later on a Kam Redder RBI single.

Redder then stole second base before a Joe Peterson line drive to center field brought him home for the win.

“It was good to see the kids come back,” Burley head coach Matt Harr said. “Bristol has been struggling with the bat recently so that triple was a big hit for him.”

Both teams came out looking solid early putting runs across in the first for the 1-1 tie. But the torrid-tiding Tigers exploded for four runs on only Kiel Thibault’s two-RBI double to right field. Up 4-1 the Tigers brought in another run off an error for the 5-1 advantage.

Burley winner Joe Peterson said he was out of sync early in the game.

“I was all upper body in the first couple of innings,” Peterson said. “I was using way too much arm and not pushing off enough with my foot. I started pushing off more and got comfortable.”

Burley had chances to score with the bases loaded in the fourth and again in the sixth, but the Bobcats couldn’t get the key hit it needed.

“I’m still not satisfied with our hitting,” Harr said. “We’re still just trying to survive in these and aren’t really owning the bat.”

But Harr will still take the wins. “The last two games are games we lost last year,” he said. “So these are good wins for us.”

The Bobcats (2-0 conference) play at Century on Thursday.

Perry said he met his wife at the Idaho campus, and the couple's daughters were both born in Idaho.

Perry said he wants to sit down with Eustachy and athletic director Mike Bohn to map out a plan for hiring a staff, recruiting players and keeping the current players on campus.

"I had a chance to visit with four of the guys and explained to them that I was in a coaching transition myself," he said. "I would hope they would give me an opportunity. Obviously we want to build a base with high school players, but there is a place for junior-college guys in this program."

Perry added that he feels no immediate pressure to turn around the program, which finished a dismal 6-21 this year. "It's a good time to take over this program and take it in the right direction," he said. "It's going to take some time (but) I don't feel any pressure to get this thing turned around overnight."

"We're going to run a classy program and the kids are going to respect the community and the school."

Perry signed a three-year contract worth $100,000 a year with bonuses and roll-over options.

Coaches

The Big Ten had one of its two interim situations settled Monday when Wisconsin fired Brad Soderberg. He moved into the head job when Dick Bennett suddenly retired early in the season.

Less than a week after the Badgers were beaten by Georgia State in the first round of the NCAA tournament, athletic director Pat Richter fired Soderberg and said he hopes to attract a coach with a "national reputation." Richter acknowledged that Utah's Rick Majerus, a Wisconsin alumnus, would be a prime candidate if interested.

At Tennessee, Green resigned Tuesday following a 22-11 season and the team's fourth straight trip to the NCAA tournament.

Also Tuesday, Rutgers fired Kevin Bannon after he failed to lead the team to the NCAA tournament in his four years; Towson fired Mike Jaskulski, who was 37-76 over four years; and Southern reassigned Tommy Green, who was 74-64 in five seasons.

Mike Davis, who succeeded Knight at Indiana, was waiting to hear about his future after the Hoosiers lost to Kent State in the opening round of the NCAA tournament.

A seven-member committee appointed by Indiana president Myles Brand met for the first time Monday without making a decision.

One conference could hold its own job fair - the Atlantic 10, La Salle, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

At UMass, St. Bonaventure coach Jim Baron interviewed for the job left vacant after Business Film was forced to resign. North Carolina-Greensboro coach Fran McCaffery was also expected to interview for the job.

Idaho filled its vacancy Tuesday night by hiring Leonard Perry, a former star guard at the school, was an assistant at Iowa State for three years and replaces David Farrar.

Islanders down Blues 4-3

ST. LOUIS - Roman Hamrik scored 23 seconds into overtime as the New York Islanders spoiled Al MacInnis' return to the St. Louis Blues' lineup with a 4-3 victory Tuesday night.

MacInnis, who missed 23 games after his left eye was hit by a stick blade Jan. 27, assisted on the Blues' first goal.

The game was also the home debut for newly acquired Keith Tkachuk. St. Louis has won only once (1-5-1) in 10 games.

Kenny Jonsson, Mariusz Czerkawski and Claude Lapointe scored for the Islanders, who won for the ninth time all season (9-19-5-2) on the road.

Bruins 2, Penguins 2

PITTSBURGH - Boston shut down Mario Lemieux and Jaromir Jagr and held on to tie Pittsburgh despite wasting a two-goal lead.

Lemieux, who scored at least one goal in five consecutive games, was held scoreless for the first time in 13 games.

Boston's tie clinched a playoff spot for Ottawa, the Northeast Division leaders. Bill Guerin had a goal, and then set up one by Joe Thornton to give the Bruins a 2-0 lead.

Hans Jonsson and Jan Hirdina scored for the Penguins.

Sabres 3, Maple Leafs 0

BUFFALO, N.Y. - Dominik Hasek stopped 16 shots to earn his 54th career shutout as Buffalo beat Toronto. Steve Heinze scored his fifth goal in four games with Buffalo, and Dmitri Kalinin and Remy Warren also tallied as the Sabres won their fourth straight game in 16 games. Heinze also had an assist, giving him eight points since the Sabres acquired him from Columbus last week.

Panthers 3, Canadiens 3

MONTREAL - Jim Campbell had a goal and two assists as Montreal overcame Pavel Bure's league-leading 55th goal to tie Florida.

Campbell set up Craig Darby's game-tying goal with 8:47 left in the third period as the Canadiens overcame a two-goal deficit.

Bure, who assisted on Andrei Podkonny's first-period goal, extended his goal-scoring streak to five games when he scored his 18th power-play goal with eight seconds left in the second.

Avalanche 4, Sharks 1

DENVER - Defenseman Ray Bourque, Jon Klemm and Craig de Vries scored as streaking Colorado beat San Jose.

The victory might have been costly for Colorado, however, as All-Star defenseman Rob Blake (sprained knee) and goalie Patrick Roy (knee tendinitis) both left the game.

HAILEY - Kalispell, Mont.-based Glacier Bancorp Inc. this week announced the completion of its acquisition of two Idaho and two Utah branches of Wells Fargo Bank, with total deposits of about $92 million.

Glacier's new Idaho stores are at 491 Sun Valley Road E. in Ketchum and 205 N. Main in Hailey.

Glacier Bancorp's subsidiary, Mountain West Bank of Coeur d'Alene, will operate the branches.

Housing manufacturer expects first-quarter loss

TWIN FALLS - Auburn Hills, Mich.-based housing manufacturer Champion Enterprises Inc. on Tuesday said sales for the first quarter will be off about 40 percent to an estimated $320 million.

"Our loss for the quarter, even before charges related to closed operations, will be in the range of $0.40 to $0.45 per share. In addition, closures will cost us about $7.7 million pre-tax, or about $0.10 per share including $0.07 per share for non-cash fixed asset impairment charges," said a statement from Walter R. Young, chairman, president and chief executive.

Champion's website says the company has retailers Homes America and Oakland Homes in Twin Falls and Westwood Homes in Elmer.

For the past five months, Champion said, the industry had to deal with a seasonal downturn, slowing economy and consequences of prior years' over-expansion all at the same time. During this period, it said, industry retail sales appear to be down about 30 percent, while industry production is off about 40 percent.

During this quarter, Champion closed two manufacturing facilities and 40 sales centers. It now has 51 plants operating, having closed 17 facilities since mid-1999. In the past nine months, it has closed 83 retail locations and now has 230 sales centers. Inventories in its overall distribution have dropped about 22 percent in the past 12 months.

"With the increased retail traffic in January and February and our current national advertising campaign, we're excited for the spring selling season," Young's statement said. "After seven consecutive quarterly sales declines, we finally expect improvement in the second quarter. Even with a sales upturn, we'll probably have a slight loss in the quarter."

"We're still concerned about the economy, which makes the last half of the year impossible to predict."

RIB Committee sponsors
small-business info fair

TWIN FALLS - The Small Business Information Fair at the College of Southern Idaho on March 29 will have all the information a small-business owner needs to know but didn't know whom to ask, event promoters say.

The program is billed as a one-stop source of information for start-up businesses. It's sponsored by the statewide RIB Committee, which stands for Reducing Idaho's Bureaucracy.

The event is meant to help those who are interested in starting a small business, have questions about an existing business or want to hire new employees. Topics include when to pay sales tax, how to avoid penalties, how to get Small Business Administration assistance, employer responsibilities, which forms to file and when, and services provided by state and local agencies.

Representatives from the Idaho State Tax Commission, Idaho Department of Labor, Internal Revenue Service, the secretary of state's office and others will be available throughout the fair.

The event will be from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. March 29 in room A05 of CSI's Evergreen building. The $10-per-person fee may be paid at the door, but CSI prefers preregistration.

For information or to sign up, call the Idaho Small Business Development Center at 733-9554, Ext. 2450.

Greenspan loses some fans

Doubts fracture Federal Reserve chairman's reputation as an economic mastermind

By Tom Raum
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - When George W. Bush was asked during a campaign debate last October how he would handle a stock market crash or other major financial crisis, his answer was straightforward: first call Alan Greenspan.

The Fed chairman has long been a favorite of investors and a steady hand under four presidents at the helm of the nation's central bank. He has been hailed as the maestro of one of the nation's longest economic expansions and often characterized as the second-most powerful leader in the United States - even the world.

But now, more than any time in his 14 years at the Fed, Greenspan has been coming under criticism. His detractors in the financial community and on Capitol Hill suggest he was late in recognizing the storm clouds gathering over the economy - and then acted too slowly.

Investors hoping he would play the role of stock market savior were generally disappointed on Tuesday when the Fed lowered key short-term rates half a percentage point, not the three-quarters they desired to help prop up a faltering market. Both the Dow and NASDAQ fell sharply after the announcement.

"If this economy tanks, he's going to get a lot of the blame for it. And he should," said economist Lawrence Chimerine, president of Radnor Consulting of Philadelphia. "I've known Alan a long time. But, let's face it, he's made many mistakes. His forecasting record leaves a lot to be desired."

While the Fed's mission is not to bail out financial markets, roughly half of all American families own stock, much of it in 401(k)-style retirement plans. When they feel financial pain, there is an impact.

"If ever anyone was a day late and a dollar short, it was Alan Greenspan today," said Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., an early Greenspan critic.

A bit more gentle, former Fed Governor Lytle Gramley said, "There really isn't anything standing in the way of continued aggressive moves by the Fed."

The main case against Greenspan is this: Critics say he raised interest rates last year when he should have been lowering them, continuing the tight-money stance through November. By the time he started slashing rates in January, the economy was already tottering on the brink of a recession and the tech-stock bubble had burst. Now, U.S. policy-makers face an ugly combination of a depressed stock market and an economy on the edge of a recession.

Greenspan, 75, served as President Ford's top economic adviser in the 1970s and was first appointed as Fed chairman by President Reagan in 1987. A Republican, he was reappointed by both Bush's father and Bill Clinton.

During the first debate with Vice President Al Gore in Boston on Oct. 3, the younger Bush was asked how he would handle "a stock market tumble" or "a failure of a major financial institution."

"What I would do, first and foremost, is I would get in touch with the Federal Reserve chairman, Alan Greenspan, and find out all the facts and the circumstances," Bush responded.

Since taking office, Bush has wooed Greenspan - and the Fed chairman, always politically savvy, has returned the overtures, including signaling support for Bush's centerpiece $1.6 trillion tax cut.

Bush named a longtime Greenspan friend, Paul O'Neill, as treasury secretary, and bowed to Greenspan's wishes and renominated ally Roger W. Ferguson Jr. for a full 14-year Fed term, helping to assure Greenspan's continued domination of the board.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, joined a chorus of lawmakers expressing disappointment with the size of the Fed move on Tuesday. He said the state of the economy and lack of inflation would have permitted "a lowering of interest rates to a greater extent."

But others indicated they still had faith in Greenspan's touch. "If it needs to be lowered again, I feel comfortable that he will," said Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas.

Idaho introduces college savings program today

By Virginia S. Hutchins
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Ready to mail that state income-tax return this morning? It might pay to wait a day.

Idaho today will roll out a new college savings program that can give savers a break on their 2000 taxes.

Dubbed "IDeal," the state-sponsored savings option lets Idaho families earn an annual state-tax deduction of up to $8,000 while saving for children's college expenses and watching the investments grow tax-deferred.

Contributions to Idaho's 529 plan - named for the section of federal tax law that authorized such programs - are eligible for a state income-tax deduction of up to $4,000 per account owner. That's $8,000 for joint filers each year.

And this spring only, applications received by April 16 can be applied retroactively if the saver chooses, potentially reducing either the 2000 or 2001 tax bill.

"It's a one-time window that the state of Idaho is allowing for this deduction for 2000," State Treasurer Ron G. Crane said.

Idaho lawmakers last year sponsored the enabling legislation that created a committee to select a vendor

merger moves closer to reality

Bridgetown

KANSAS CITY - Meatpacking giant IBP - which has ties to the Magic Valley - took a significant step toward completing its planned sale to Tyson Foods by finally releasing its fourth-quarter financial results Tuesday, essentially resolving an accounting inquiry by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Meanwhile, Tyson told investors that severe winter weather and higher grain and energy costs would wipe out its second-quarter profits, leaving it to just break even. Analysts had expected the company to earn 6 to 10 cents per share.

Charges related to a recall of poorly processed chicken and the sale of a hog-raising business will reduce earnings by 2 to 3 cents per share.

Food industry analysts said IBP's report increases the likelihood that Tyson, the world's largest chicken marketer, will complete the acquisition it announced New Year's Day.

"The deal is more likely today than it was yesterday," Berry Summerour, an analyst with Stephens Inc., a Little Rock, Ark.-based investment bank, said of the Tyson-IBP deal.

However, analysts said Tyson

Starbucks Corp. declares stock split for April 27

NEW YORK - Ubiquitous coffee retailer Starbucks Corp. announced Tuesday a two-for-one stock split of its shares effective April 27.

The split is the corporation's fourth since going public in 1992.

Starbucks Coffee Co. has more than 4,000 retail locations in North America, Europe, the Pacific Rim and the Middle East, including one in Ketchum. In addition to its coffee and tea products, Starbucks produces and sells the bottled Frappuccino coffee drink and a line of premium ice creams through joint venture partnerships.

In January the coffee house titan said its fiscal first-quarter earnings grew 41 percent, exceeding Wall Street's expectations.

The Seattle-based chain said its net income rose to $49 million, or 25 cents a share, compared with $34.7 million, or 18 cents a share a year earlier. Analysts surveyed by First Call/Thomson Financial had predicted the company would earn 23 cents a share.

The strong results spurred the company to adjust its fiscal 2001 per-share profit projection to 91-93 cents, up a penny from the previous range.

State gives preliminary OK to power conservation plan

BOISE - State utility regulators this week tentatively accepted Idaho Power Co.'s bid to conserve enough electricity to supply power to 32,440 homes for a year.

Under the proposal, the utility is altering its contract with Astoria LLC - which runs a phosphorous-producing plant in Pocatello - to reduce the amount of electricity the facility uses.

The plan calls for Astoria to use 50 megawatts less than it normally would during a two-year period.

The utility plans to pay Astoria about $140 million over two years for the electricity, said Gene Fadness, a spokesman for the Idaho Public Utilities Commission.

Public comments on the plan are being considered by the commission until noon Tuesday.

Fadness said it would cost about $161 million to buy the same electricity on the open market, saving the utility about $21 million.

He said that the savings will be passed on to consumers if the plan is given final approval during a commission meeting on March 28.

The Boise-based utility proposes that the plan's savings be calculated into the company's annual power cost adjustment. Power price increases or decreases are passed on to consumers in May.

Snow mold concerns Northwest wheat growers

LEWISTON - Farmers in the region's lower elevations have started planting the first spring seeds, but some are concerned that snow mold on wheat and Kentucky bluegrass may harm rising wheat prices.

"This time of year we always have freezing and thawing cycles," said Ken Hart, University of Idaho extension agent in Lewis County. "On the days where it can jump from 25 degrees to 55, then you have pulling, or heaving, and you can get root damage. It can either kill the plants or give them an opportunity to get soil-borne fungus infections in those damaged roots."

Soil moisture may be one of the more serious problems growers face this year and spring rains could make or break the success of the crops now being sown.

Wheat is selling for more, now, after two years of poor prices, and farmers hope to capitalize on that.

"The export business has been fairly firm for white wheat this last year," said Keith Schumacher of Lewiston Grain

Jackson, Simon highlight rock entries

NEW YORK (AP) — The hobbled Michael Jackson and a sweetly nostalgic Paul Simon made their second entries into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame on Monday, joined by fellow inductees Aerosmith, Queen and Steely Dan.

Fifties' soul group The Flamingos, soul singer Solomon Burke and "La Bamba" singer Richie Valens were also honored at a New York ceremony. Jackson, already in the Hall of Fame with his brothers as a member of the Jackson 5, was honored for a solo career that includes "Thriller," which Sony estimates has sold more than 47 million copies worldwide.

He wore a white suit with gold buttons and leaned on a cane as he accepted his trophy. Jackson broke his foot falling down the stairs while dancing recently, and, despite members of the audience pleading with him to sing, he didn't oblige.

He was inducted by members 'N Sync, whose Lance Bass said Jackson was always a man who inspired more questions than answers.

"To me, the gift of music has been a great blessing, from the time I was a child," Jackson said. Simon is also a Hall of Fame member for his work with Art Garfunkel. His solo career has included hits such as "Still Crazy After All These Years" and "Graceland," both of which he sang Monday.

Simon took 10 minutes to read a list of inspirations, from the first record he bought by the singer Johnnie Ace, to his band-leader father and "those two girls in Covington, Ky."

Of his former partner, Garfunkel, Simon said, "I regret the ending of our friendship, and I hope that one day before I die we will make peace with each other."

After the audience applauded warmly, Simon deapanned, "No rush."

Aerosmith, called "the greatest rock band in American history" by Detroit rock KISS, thanked their families for supporting a career that included stardom, a steep fall and surprising resurrection.

The band's new album debuted this week at No. 2 on the Billboard charts, but they were honored for work that unflattering early comparison of Aerosmith to the Rolling Stones and his own resemblance to their singer.

Paul Simon performs on stage during the 16th Annual Rock and Roll Hall of Fame induction ceremony Monday in New York.

"I wonder if this will put an end to, 'Hey, aren't you Mick Jagger?'" he said.

Queen, whose lead singer

Freddie Mercury died of AIDS in 1991, performed "We Will Rock You" as a trio and invited Foo Fighters Dave Grohl to sing an incendiary version of "Tie Your Mother Down." It opened a ceremony that started an hour late.

Mercury's mother, Jer Bulsara, attended her son's induction. Steely Dan was inducted by the techno-artist Moby, who said, "They always seemed different somehow. On the one hand, their music is warm and beautiful, but on the other hand it is so unsettling."

The exclusive duo of Donald Fagen and Walter Becker, before performing "Black Friday," asked the audience if it had any questions, then ridiculed the only one shouted at them. Steely Dan's first album after nearly two decades off, "Two Against Nature," won the Grammy for album of the year last month.

Soul king Burke, rising to the stage in a regal robe, said before performing, "To all of my 21 children, 58 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren, 'Let's get it on.'"

Ricky Martin inducted Valens, the most prominent Latin rocker of the rock's early days, who died in the same 1959 plane crash.

The Flamingos were best-known for their lush, romantic ballad "I Only Have Eyes for You." Chris Blackwell, founder of Island Records, was inducted in the non-performing category.

The Rolling Stones' Keith Richards inducted Johnnie Johnson, piano player for Chuck Berry, into the hall in the "sidemen" category. Elvis Presley guitarist James Burton also was given that honor.

Richards said he identified with sidemen, who have to "watch this bunch of a-holes" to make sure he doesn't make a fool of himself.

He chided the irascible Berry, absent from the ceremony honoring his 28-year musical partner, by noting his own story history with Stones' partner, Jagger.

"All I knew was he was working with and he probably had a harder time than I had with mine," Richards said.

The ceremony, at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, was being taped for telecast Wednesday on VH1. The names of nominees are on exhibit at the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame Museum in Cleveland.

Cow-tongue 'threat' brings fine

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles County has agreed to pay two employees a total of $85,000 because someone wrote their names on pieces of paper stuck to a cow tongue hung up at the office.

The two social service workers claimed that was a Sateria ritual meant as a death threat. Sateria is a Caribbean religion that combines elements of Roman Catholicism and West African spiritualism and sometimes uses animal sacrifices. The $85,000 will settle claims by Julie Scheuer and Kathryn Sierra that they suffered religious harassment and workplace death threats in 1997.

Scheuer has been off the job and receiving workers' compensation since 1997. Sierra was off work for three months on a stress leave of absence.

'Listening' parents foster kids willing to talk

DEAR ABBY: I read your column daily and have found the questions concerning when to talk to children about sex very interesting.

I feel up to the children to bring up the subject first. If you have made them comfortable talking to you, they will expect their questions to be answered honestly.

"I was working in the kitchen one day when my daughter, age 8, broadsided me with, 'Mommy, how old do I have to be before I can have sex?'"

I took a deep breath and told her until she found a man she really loved and wanted to be her baby's daddy, because when you have sex you get pregnant and have a baby.

She responded matter-of-factly, "You could always use the pill." I told her there were other ways, and she said, "You could just say no." I praised her and thought the exchange was over when she asked if, when her daddy and I were dating, did I ever tell him no? Here I copped out and told her that was something she needed to ask her daddy.

My husband was outside and unaware of what was taking place in the kitchen, so he was unprepared when his 8-year-old daughter approached him and pointedly asked if, when he was dating Mommy, did she ever say no to having sex? He and I are on the same page when it comes to parenting. Without hesitating he answered, "Yes, repeatedly." She said OK and walked away, discussion over.

My daughter did wait for the man she truly loved to come along. They now have two beautiful sons.

I'm relating this story so that young parents will know the importance of listening to their children and answering their questions honestly.

his holds true throughout their lives. You may not always like what you hear, but if you have always been willing to listen, they will continue to talk to you.

DEAR HAPPY GRANNY: Thanks for a letter that's sure to promote discussion among people of all ages. It addresses the importance of responding to children's questions in an age-appropriate way. It reminds me of a story I heard years ago: A young mother was asked by her 7-year-old son, "Mommy, where did I come from?"

The mother had prepared herself well in advance for that question and was ready with the answers, in all their anatomical detail. When she finished her lecture, her son replied, "Oh, My friend Jimmy said he came from St. Louis."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 79-year-old grandmother of 17 and great-grandmother of eight. I am writing about the grandchild who wrote your column. I was shocked at how some of them talk about their "terrible" grandchildren. I love all my grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

They come with their pink and blue suitcases that say "Going to Grandma's" and spend the week-end with us. I have had as many as seven stay overnight at one time. In the morning, I ask what they want for breakfast. They all want something different: waffles, pancakes, biscuits and gravy, eggs, bacon and toast.

Guess what? I fix it all. I live for the times when they visit. I always have five days to get my house back in order. I do laundry, clean and make beds until Friday — when they come back again.

I love it!

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Bobby Wolff

"It is better that some should be unhappy than that none should be happy, which would be the case in a general state of equality."

— Samuel Johnson

Is there such a thing as a "bad card holder"? Although luck runs in streaks, every player gets his share of high cards in the long run. Maybe less fortunate players feel shortchanged because their strong hands are stymied by an opponent's distributional hands with fewer high cards.

In a duplicate game, a notorious bad-card holder opened two no-trump with today's East hand. However, a nonvulnerable South had the audacity to enter the auction against East's powerhouse. Even worse for East-West, South's weird distribution allowed him to steal the play at six-levels doubled, denying East-West a good duplicate score.

If East continues to slam, South cashes his two aces, giving his opponents a zero score. When East doubles six clubs (today's case), it takes an accurate defense to beat South three tricks, giving East-West 150 points less than they would get for making five hearts.

When South ruffs the first spade and leads a diamond, if West switches to hearts, South wins and leads another diamond to foil the defense. South can ruff a diamond and run dummy's club queen, holding his losses to two diamonds and one trump for a paltry 300 points for East-West.

If West leads a trump after he wins his diamond jack, the defense will collect 500 points. When South leads a second diamond, East will overtake to remove dummy's trumps. This prevents a diamond ruff, and South loses one trump and three diamonds.

The great equalizer? If you can't hold high cards, settle for good distribution.
