T.F. police shoot man at psychiatric hospital

By John J. Huddy
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls police officer shot a man Thursday after the man threatened the officer and staff members of a local psychiatric facility with a knife, according to the Twin Falls Police Department.

David A. Smith of Greenfield, Mass., was shot twice by the police officer — whose name was not released Thursday — at the Canyon View Psychiatric and Addiction Services facility in Twin Falls.

Smith was still in surgery at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center at press time Thursday. Twin Falls police Capt. Jim Munn described Smith's injuries as "very serious."

The officer was treated for a minor cut on one of his hands at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and released.

It was unclear how the officer sustained the injury, Twin Falls Police Chief Lee DeVore said.

Twin Falls dedicates public art in City Park

By Jennifer Sandmann
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Boston artist who spent six months in Twin Falls said Thursday that one day he noticed he was the only person here in a rush, dashing from parking lot to store.

The Magic Valley Arts Council's ceremony dedicating the millennium sculpture in City Park drew a sizable crowd, and artist Ted Clausen shared with them what he discovered about

Twin Falls. "You have reminded me that there are still places where kids build forts a 10-minute bicycle ride from home," he said.

His comments made an impression on Twin Falls native Vernon Smith and in general evoked community pride.

"These people who come from the big cities don't know the laid-back lifestyle," Smith said.

Clausen took other notes on

The basalt boulders that surround the bronze plow in City Park have quotes etched throughout the stones. The quotes came from members of the community, newspaper archives and books about the area.

What did they think?

They talked about the basalt boulders from the Snake River Canyon, bronzed gloves, the water seeping from the boulders, an Oakley stone pizza plotted to replicate the layout of Twin Falls' original township, and the quotes etched in the basalt.

Here are the quotes Magic Valley residents offered Thursday about the sculpture and what it means to them:

"We're called the Magic Valley because we can make things out of rock."

—Aric Shank

"I like how it ties in all our history. What we're all about. What the land is."

—Dixie Holloway, Twin Falls High School student

"I was impressed and feel it's important to honor the people who came before us and what they established."

—Matthew Orton

"I love the way they set the paving stones."

—Mary Hoag

"It's just more rocks in the park. ... I'm not against art, but a statue of our founding fathers would have been neat."

—Shirley Dingman

"It's a nice mixture of humanity and nature."

—Holly Colner

"I really appreciate it. My whole family is farmers. We plowed rocks a lot. It represents a lot because if the people hadn't worked, (Twin Falls) wouldn't be what we see now. It would be a bunch of rock."

—Melodee Pace

Judge stalls ban on new forest roads

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — A federal judge in Idaho blocked a new regulation Thursday that would have banned road building and logging in 58.5 million acres of remote national forests across the United States.

In issuing a preliminary injunction on the "roadless rule," U.S. District Judge Edward J. Lodge in Boise simultaneously rebuked the Clinton administration, which drafted the rule, as well as the administration of George W. Bush, which supported it in principle but planned to amend it.

The rule, which had been scheduled to go into effect Saturday, would have prohibited road construction and commercial logging in large swaths of federal forest where there currently are no roads, protecting the forests as wilderness areas. The measure was opposed by timber, oil and gas interests, as well as by a number of Western states, because it would restrict use of the lands.

In his opinion, the judge stated that the rule would "result in irreparable harm to the National Forests" by prohibiting some

Planned waste cleanup cuts worry Craig

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration's proposed cuts in nuclear weapons plant cleanup go too deep, some Senate Republicans said Thursday.

Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, said he agreed with Energy Secretary Spencer Abraham's goal of finding ways to improve the complicated, costly cleanups in the future. However, "What we cannot deal with are dramatic cuts in current programs," he said.

Lawmakers from Idaho and other states that are part of the nuclear weapons complex have been generally dissatisfied with the spending plan for cleaning the sites of chemical and radioactive waste and in some cases, spent nuclear fuel.

The proposal reduced cleanup money from the current level of more than $6.2 billion to about $5.9 billion fiscal 2002. It includes $547 million for cleanup in 2002 Idaho, down from $637 million this year.

Feds: FBI withheld evidence in McVeigh trial

Judge might have to delay execution, analysts contend

The Associated Press

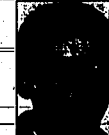

DENVER — In an astonishing disclosure just six days before Timothy McVeigh's scheduled execution, the Justice Department handed his lawyers thousands of FBI documents Thursday that it said were mistakenly withheld from his trial in the Oklahoma City bombing.

An attorney for McVeigh said the materials may prompt a request for a stay. "We're considering all our options," McVeigh lawyer Nathan Chambers said after the documents were delivered to his office in Denver.

Chambers said he had spoken to McVeigh about the development, but declined to reveal what he said. "Mr. McVeigh is going to think about it and decide how he wants to proceed," he said.

This latest in a string of FBI mis-

Timothy McVeigh

deeds, legal experts said Thursday. "Any responsible judge in a case like this, the first instinct is really to put a stay on the execution," said Michael Gerhardt, a professor of law at the College of William and Mary.

Gerhardt said any delay in the first use of the federal death penalty since 1963 would be used to let the court "make sure that whatever there isn't something that would have prejudiced his defense if he didn't have it. As they always say, death is different."

But because McVeigh has openly admitted his role in the 1995 bombing that killed 168 at the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building, the likelihood of reversal of his conviction is low, the experts cautioned.

McVeigh, 33, is to receive a lethal injection at a federal prison in Terre Haute, Ind., Wednesday. In a recently published book, he claimed sole responsibility for the April 19, 1995, bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building, which killed 168 people and injured hundreds of others. He has not shown any interest in appealing his conviction or death sentence.

House, irked at U.N., votes to withhold dues

WASHINGTON — Outraged that the United Nations organized the United States from an important human rights panel, the House voted overwhelmingly Thursday to withhold $244 million in promised back dues.

The 252-165 vote came amid rare unanimity by House leaders who rarely speak to one another, let alone agree on public policy. The vote also followed a public plea Wednesday by the environmental House and State Department spokesmen urging lawmakers not to take such retaliatory action.

Both House Speaker Dennis Hastert, R-Ill., and Democratic Leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri supported the congressional expression of disapproval. The amendment, which came as a bill to start spending for the State Department, would require the payment to be made only if the U.N. Commission on Human Rights "expresses its opinion some of the greatest perpetrators of human rights abuses in the world, and you reject the United States, who basically is one of the most stringent, strident supporters of human rights, and that needs to be addressed," Hastert said.

management techniques, such as controlled-burns-and-selective logging to thin overgrown forests. But a lawyer for the environmental group Earthjustice said the organization would appeal Judge's decision.

"You don't harm the environment by preventing it," said Doug Homold said. Earthjustice is fighting to protect the rule on behalf of several environmental groups.

The Bush administration was reviewing the judge's decision Thursday, an act he not yet announced whether it also would seek an appeal. The government has 60 days to decide.

Reacting to the ruling, Agriculture Secretary Ann M.

Veneman said her department would move forward with its efforts to revise the roadless policy to take into consideration some of the complaints of the judge and the plaintiffs, but would not abandon its commitment to the goal of protecting these backwoods areas. The amended plan is expected to be completed next month.

"The administration is committed to providing roadless protection for our national forests," she said.

Idaho Gov. Dirk Kempthorn, who was the lead plaintiff in the suit, praised the judge's decision for stopping a policy that he said "posed serious risks to both federal forest lands and neighboring state lands by restricting active management."

southern Idaho.

"You have taught me that there is a place where trucks have meaning, and red trucks have love," he said.

The City Park sculpture is five basalt boulders etched with quotes about Twin Falls. Water occasionally seeps from a few. The rocks surround a bronze plow draped with bronze work gloves. The sculpture is set on an Oakley stone plaza. A companion sculpture of a single boulder and bronze horse harness is at the corner of 23rd Avenue and Shoshone Street.

Clusen acknowledged his creation isn't everyone's idea of a sculpture.

"What I do hope is that we've created a unique experience for you — an experience created with the basic elements of your life here — rock, water, man, beast and hard work," he said.

The project leaves the city with three public artworks, said Rhonda Schaaf, director of the Magic Valley Arts Council. In addition to the two sculpture sites, a new downtown pocket park will feature ceramic tiles decorated with children's impres-

No one else was injured.

The officer was placed on paid leave pending an investigation.

Smith was taken into custody by police earlier Thursday afternoon after causing a disturbance at a local television station, DeVore said.

Police took Smith to Canyon View for psychiatric observation about 2:30 p.m. Thursday. According to DeVore, Smith became upset while at Canyon View and threatened staff members and the officer.

The officer ordered Smith to drop the knife, DeVore said. Smith refused and the officer shot him in the hand. The bullet then traveled to his stomach, he said.

The officer again ordered Smith to drop the weapon. Smith refused and the officer shot him again in the stomach, DeVore said.

The shooting occurred about 5 p.m.

DeVore, in a press conference at Twin Falls City Hall several hours after the shooting, said it was unclear why Smith was upset. He said he didn't know if Smith had a criminal history or a prior medical history or if Smith was living in the area.

DeVore said the Idaho State Police and Twin Falls Police Department are conducting separate investigations of Thursday's shooting.

Sgt. Mike Covington of the Twin Falls Police Department said it is common practice for an outside agency, such as the ISP, to be called in to do a crime scene investigation when a local police agency is involved in a shooting.

Charges against Smith had not been filed as of Thursday evening.

Calls to Canyon View representatives were not returned Thursday.

Earlier Thursday afternoon Canyon View staff members met on the hospital's front lawn. Police investigated the shooting. Yellow police tape surrounded the facility's parking lot.

Residents living across the street from the facility watched the scene from their front lawns.

"I heard cars screeching and looked out and saw a bunch of police cars going in the parking lot," said Steve Hays, who lives near the facility. "They police" jumped out with their weapons drawn."

Thursday's shooting is the third shooting involving a Twin Falls police officer since May 2000 — when there were two officer-involved shootings in 30 days.

Dairy industry needs to accept tighter standards

Earlier this year, the Idaho Legislature enacted significant new laws to regulate dairies and other confined animal feeding operations. The Twin Falls County Commission is trying to do likewise.

That's appropriate, because the dairy debate has become the most contentious issue in southern Idaho. Neighbors complain that some large dairies are unacceptably foul-smelling. Dairywomen counter that they are working to solve the problem.

Most dairies operate without complaint from their neighbors, but the industry is being tarnished by a relative handful of rogue dairies.

Now local dairymen have asked county commissioners to scuttle a proposed dairy ordinance before the public can even discuss it in a hearing. Their request is premature and, on closer inspection, plays straight into the hands of dairy critics.

Local dairymen had better get used to the idea of more government regulation — if not from the county, then from the state. After all, the proposed county ordinance mirrors the new state law. It does not seem oppressive on its face.

The key fact is that standards are rising for waste treatment and general operation of dairies. That's a sure sign of progress.

Of course, some dairymen don't like the idea. Higher standards mean higher costs. They are feeling picked on — but, to some degree, their industry has fallen behind the eight-ball of public relations.

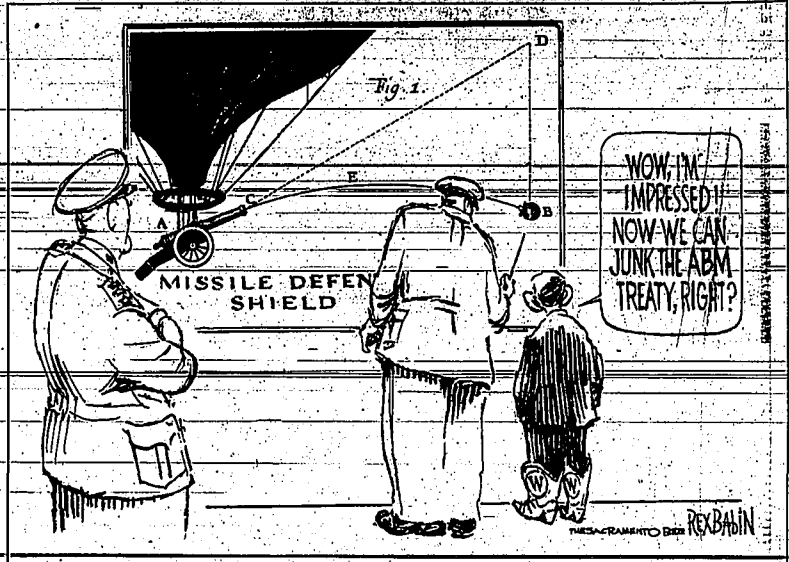

The real problem is that southern Idaho's dairy industry has allowed its critics to frame the debate.

Most dairies operate without complaint from their neighbors, but the industry is being tarnished by a few rogue dairies. The many good operators have remained silent as public perception has soured on their industry. Trying to avoid tighter regulation now smacks of intransigence.

The local dairy industry has a good story to tell, if only the dairy operators would tell it. It is the brightest segment of southern Idaho's farm economy. It employs a lot of people directly, and it employs even more people indirectly. Farmers who don't own a single cow are profiting from milk by raising alfalfa and other feed crops for local dairies.

Local dairymen should accept the fact that the good ol' — largely unregulated — days are gone. The industry failed to rein in its egregious operators, and the tide of public perception has shifted. More government regulation is inevitable. Trying to fight that tide will further smudge the industry's reputation in the eyes of the public.

The Legislature's efforts to raise dairy standards were thoughtful and warranted. The county's proposal, which was the work of many months, should be allowed to proceed to public hearings and, probably, into effect.

Execution caters to base instincts

Long ago, in the days before Jerry Springer and the World Wrestling Federation, people satisfied their baser need for entertainment with a trip to the town square to watch real-live headhunts burned at the stake, witches drowned and traitors peppered with buckshot.

Cultures chose their instruments of torture carefully. The ancient Romans devised the cross. The French brought us the guillotine. And in the Old West, cowboys were partial to hangings at dawn.

While our predecessors considered them entertaining, these practices seem barbaric today. Yet a couple of months ago, the U.S. attorney in Oklahoma City sent out 1,100 personalized invitations to Timothy J. McVeigh's execution.

Only 10 ringside seats were available in the death chamber in Terre Haute, Ind., for the invitation's recipients — survivors of the Oklahoma City bombing and victims' family members.

But U.S. Attorney General John Ashcroft approved the ultimate "reality" show for the rest: a closed-circuit telecast in Oklahoma City of McVeigh's execution.

Victims' families vary greatly in their feelings about the death penalty for the man who set up the trust bomb that gutted the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building on April 19, 1995, killing 168 people and injuring more than 500.

Doris Jones lost her daughter, Carrie, who was pregnant with what would have been Jones' first grandchild. She resents all the attention McVeigh has gotten in the press.

GABRIELLE BANKS

"Right now I'm paying for his air, for his food," she says. "My daughter no longer can eat, read a book, breathe... I don't feel it's right."

But Welch's wife, daughter, Julie, died in the blast, felt similar outrage. "I didn't even want trials for Tim McVeigh and Terry Nichols after they'd been arrested and charged for the bombing; I simply wanted them tried," he says.

Some moments, such as the one leading to the bomb site every day: He smoked up to three packs of cigarettes a day for his nerves and downed several cocktails so he could sleep at night. Then one day, watching the steady stream of tourists at the bomb site, Welch realized that anger was destroying him.

"Vengeance and rage motivated McVeigh and Nichols — rage against the United States government for what happened at Waco, Texas, and Ruby Ridge, Idaho," he says. "I realized that to execute either one of them was an act of vengeance and rage."

Welch now speaks against the death penalty.

In 1998, while on tour in western New York, Welch had a private reconciliation with McVeigh's father, Bill.

"What I found that morning was a bigger victim of the Oklahoma City bombing than myself," Welch says. "I can travel all over the country, to Europe and to Africa, talking about Julie and bragging on her, but when Bill McVeigh meets a stranger he probably doesn't even tell them he has a son."

When the invitation arrived in the mail this February, Welch did not respond. He wishes he had entered the lottery for seats; if he'd won, he would leave a seat empty in Terre Haute to represent his opposition to the execution and the spectacle surrounding it.

Six years ago, Timothy McVeigh committed the worst act of terrorism in U.S. soil, an act further compounded in the American psyche because its perpetrator — a high school track runner, a decorated Gulf War veteran, a quintessentially American kid — struck in the heartland of America.

His execution will be in large part symbolic because no death can make up for the innocent lives lost in Oklahoma City.

Perhaps we have come far since the days of town-square hangings. But I'm willing to bet if we brought execution out of high-security lock-down and started offering brown-bag executions in the park, public policy would swiftly shift toward abolishing the death penalty.

No matter how "uncruel and usual" we wish to be if we brought execution out of this contested school-board refuge. So often, we merely have the same people run for the same position over and over again because no one else cares to obligate themselves to the time, trouble and temper that often accompany a campaign. We now have a clear choice, and we need to get out and discover the difference.

County fair needs tight security

The recent threat by the Twin Falls County sheriff to reduce security at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds during the annual fair is ill-conceived and will not generate sympathy from the taxpayers for the sheriff's budget problem. The annual fair is a premier family event deserving the continued sheriff support to assure a safe and enjoyable experience for all the fair attendees.

The success of the annual Twin Falls County Fair is largely due to the many volunteers that donate their time, money and skills to park cars, prepare food, support 4-H programs and many other tasks necessary to make the fair a great experience. Perhaps the Sheriff's department should take note.

P&Z made right decision on factory

I wish to applaud the decision made by the Gooding County Planning and Zoning Committee concerning Jerome Cheese. It seems, in this area of southern Idaho, the idea is "I'll make the money, you take the disagreeable smell and my waste."

It happened at Bliss — a dairy operator spoiled the domestic water source that a family had been using for many years. At Filer, longtime residents now have to contend with the stench generated by someone else's money-makers. Hollister School children had to contend with the aroma of cow manure, and now Jerome Cheese wants to ship its waste to Gooding County.

The owners of Jerome Cheese chose to locate in Jerome, Jerome County receives the tax dollars from the operation, so keep the operation there. Find a place in Jerome County to dump your waste. Gooding County doesn't need your waste. The aquifer that supplies domestic water for Gooding County residents doesn't need your pollution.

You make the money there. You create the waste there. Keep it there. It's your creation, you benefit from it, so enjoy all of it — even the waste, the odors and pollution.

Redman boasts dedication to schools

I have had the opportunity to sit on the school board with Vera Redman. Her experience and dedication to teachers, administrators and students in Twin Falls was more than obvious.

Vera is dedicated to quality education. She is willing to devote her time and energy for the people she represents. She is available to them, cares for them and takes their concerns seriously. I came away with a greater understanding and appreciation for the work involved to keep our schools working efficiently and safely.

Vera was a key player, and I strongly urge voters to take her experience seriously and keep her where she belongs — working for our children's education.

Herring is right choice for board

Your editorial on Tuesday was on the mark! The bullets you emphasized are exactly what voters should use as their benchmark for evaluating each candidate's ability to serve on local school boards. Carleen Herring hits every point on the head!

You mentioned that "independence of spirit and a willingness to ask tough questions" should be taken into account. Mrs. Herring is extremely concerned about the current status of our schools and will have no problem asking tough questions of the administration concerning curriculum, standards and accountability, rather than accepting "filtered" reports at board meetings.

Her concept of "accountability" centers on the idea that every child in the system should be given the best opportunity to learn while also being taught social responsibility that teachers should care enough about their pupils to obtain and utilize the best training techniques available; and that administrators are obligated to provide the leadership and character necessary to make these first two things happen through example and professional abilities.

Mrs. Herring has a broad background in civic and local school participation. She knows how important and precious taxpayer dollars are and the fiscal responsibility public officials have to be good stewards of those monies. Her interest in the local school system comes from having a daughter in the system and participating as a room parent, as a member of the Quality School Committee for the district and as a parent-teacher organization member. She knows what is happening in the schools currently, not from times past.

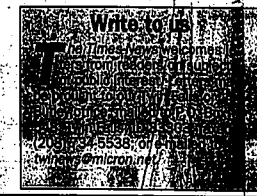

Mrs. Herring would bring a wonderful background of seasoned budget oversight, extensive and successful grant-writing and a fervent desire to see our community thrive and develop to its maximum potential. Her innate sense of honesty and integrity are of the highest magnitude. Her personal interest in the district, by having a child in the elementary level, is something that is currently missing in our board and would be a fantastic complement to its composition.

Most importantly, the citizenry of Twin Falls needs to get out and vote in this contested school-board race. So often, we merely have the same people run for the same position over and over again because no one else cares to obligate themselves to the time, trouble and temper that often accompany a campaign. We now have a clear choice, and we need to get out and discover the difference.

Bush defends choice for drug chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush chose John P. Walters, a get-tough figure from the drug wars of his father's presidency, to lead a renewed narcotics battle that he promised would be sensitive to the "human tragedy" of drug addiction.

Bush's announcement Thursday drew immediate objections from several groups who contended Walters cares little about drug treatment and will return to lock-up policies of the 1980s.

And that, in turn, annoyed Health and Human Services Secretary Tommy Thompson, who said Bush fully intends "a total frontal assault against drug abuse" through a combination of rehabilitation, education and interdiction.

Bush announced his selection of Walters as director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy during a Rose Garden ceremony, and said he would keep the post Cabinet-level. In a tacit rebuke of his predecessor, Bill Clinton, the president said too little had been done lately to curb the drug use that had been declining among high school students in the 1980s and early 1990s.

Bush, 650 others undergo drug tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney were first in line when 650 new White House employees took a required drug test last January.

"They were tested as a condition of employment here," White House press secretary Ari Fleischer said Thursday. He discussed internal White House drug policies on the same day. Bush named a new director to the Office of National Drug Control Policy.

Fleischer said 127 White House employees took a required drug test last January.

House staffers have been tested. "There are no problems that have been brought to anybody's attention," he said.

County hospital lease draws concern

Snake River flows to rise for next few days

MURTAUGH - It won't be raining, but it won't be raining, but the Snake River will be running significantly higher for the next few days. Starting today, the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation will increase flows past Milner Dam from 220 cubic feet per second to 1,500 cfs. The higher flows are expected to last for about six days. The upshot is that Shoshone Falls won't be washed, but it will be wet. Whitewater kayakers - some from as far away as Wyoming and Utah - are expected to run the demanding 13-mile "Murtaugh Stretch" which ends at Twin Falls Reservoir. The additional water is being used to augment flows in the Columbia River for salmon migration.

Deputies to work on local 'Survivor' island

TWIN FALLS - Twin Falls and Gooding County sheriff's deputies will be paid to stay on a Snake River island during a homespun version of "Survivor." Kevin Andrus, general sales manager for KIXX radio said deputies with the Twin Falls and Gooding County sheriff's departments will be on hand with boats during the two-day competition. KIXX spearheaded the contest, with help from local CBS affiliate KMVT. It is a promotional gimmick based on the "Survivor" television series on CBS. Ten people will be taken to the island the night of May 18 to compete for a two-person Caribbean cruise. A winner will be declared May 20. Contest representatives have not disclosed the island's location. "We expect some people to once they find out where to come and check it out," Andrus said. Andrus said KIXX expects to pay a total of about $1,200 to $1,500 for island costs. The deputies will work on their own time off. Twin Falls County Sheriff Wayne Tousey said the sheriff's department can't afford to pay for the deputies to work on the island during the competition. Andrus said the "Survivor" competition is the first ever one of its type locally. "We want it to be a big community thing," Andrus said.

Art on Tour tickets might be available

TWIN FALLS - Monday night's Art on Tour tickets for the Glenn Miller Orchestra is officially a sell-out, but there may still be tickets available, organizers say. Season ticket-holders are asked to be in line by 7 p.m. for the 7:30 performance in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Center so if there are empty seats, tickets can be sold at the door. Doors open at 6:45 p.m. If available, tickets will be $12 for adults and $8 for students and children.

SNRA's Harriman Trail to open today

HAILEY - Blaine County Recreation District and the Sawtooth National Recreation Area are opening the south 14 kilometers of the Harriman Trail today. From Baker Creek north, the trail will remain closed. During May, equipment work on the Harriman will be ongoing, and the public needs to use caution. Toilet installation Tuesday through Thursday at Wood River campground will involve heavy equipment. Those using the area should be asked to walk their bikes around the construction area. Landscaping is scheduled to begin Wednesday at the Baker Creek Bridge site, and benches will be installed beginning Monday. This work crew may be encountered along the trail at any time. Finally, contractors will be finishing work left undone last fall at Murphy-Bridgman and Easley Campground. "We hope the public can find some patience with the interruptions this month," said Cathy Bauer, Harriman project coordinator. Given the magnitude of the trail work, everyone will need to keep a "heads up" approach to using the trail this month. But the inconvenience will be well worth the result, Bauer said. The trail north of Baker Creek will remain closed while surface stabilization work is completed. It is anticipated that the entire trail length will be ready for use by Memorial Day weekend.

Meeting set
Monday's meeting will be at 8:30 a.m. on the fourth floor of the Twin Falls County Courthouse.

TWIN FALLS - Magic Valley residents so far have heard numerous reasons from hospital lease supporters about why the county-owned Magic Valley Regional Medical Center should be leased to a nonprofit, tax exempt organization. Monday a group of individuals will meet with Twin Falls County commissioners to talk about the concerns. Several of the people planning to attend, including former county commissioners Dennis Maughan, are affiliated with the Twin Falls Clinic & Hospital. There are concerns about whether taxpayers are being shortchanged, Maughan said. Taxpayers supported the hospital from 1918 until 1979 when it became self-sufficient, he said. "Should they not get something in return for providing the facility for a number of years?" Maughan asked. The county and hospital are moving forward with a lease agreement that would incorporate the hospital into a 501(c)3 organization - a tax exempt nonprofit. There has not been consensus on whether a lease-payment should be taken only or help the county cover its indigent care costs. The county has a nearly $2 million annual indigent care budget. "Taxpayers should get relief from the burden," Maughan said. The hospital is worth up to $100 million. A citizens advisory committee that helped guide parameters for the lease said that if a payment is made, it should be used only for county health care costs and not be used to subsidize other county programs. Retired dentist and former Twin Falls City Councilman Art Frantz plans to attend Monday's meeting with commissioners. "I just don't understand the rationale in what they are doing," said Frantz, who had privileges at the hospital when he was a practicing dentist. "I can't see where we would be able to acquire any better services than we have now," he said. Frantz said he hopes the visit with commissioners will provide him with more information about the proposal. Magic Valley Regional Medical Center says conversion of the county hospital into a nonprofit, tax exempt organization is a necessary move to remain competitive. The argument for conversion suggests that sunshine laws and procedures that dictate how public agencies operate inhibit and slow the hospital's business moves. But it's not clear how public access to financial information would change were it converted into a 501(c)3 organization. Judge clears principal of abuse charges

PAYETTE - Child-abuse charges have been dismissed against a Shoshone native who is former principal at Westside Elementary School. Dan Pagaoga was accused in December of grabbing and causing bruises on a child's arm and of choking another student. But Payette County Magistrate William Dillor dismissed an injury-to-a-child charge, and a jury found Pagaoga innocent on a battery charge. "I didn't do it," said Pagaoga, who has been reassigned as assistant principal at Payette Primary School. "I did reach down and pick one child up with both hands, marched him across the hall and sat him in a chair." Pagaoga said the student was in the hall for disciplinary reasons and was lying on the floor rather than sitting where he was supposed to. "I've been through every emotion possible," he said. "You second-guess yourself a lot. All I know is the two hours I went for the jury to come back was the longest two hours of my life." Before going to Payette, Pagaoga was principal of Lincoln Elementary School - now called the Shoshone Elementary School - for two years in 1984-86, Shoshone Joint District Superintendent Max Excell said. "We've worried about him," said Excell, who said Thursday he would lead the outcome of the allegations against Pagaoga. "Things like this, even if someone's innocent, they plague you," Excell said. "I need to hear he's been cleared."

GOP leaders name commission members

The Associated Press
POCATELLO, (AP) - A Twin Falls lawyer and a Chubbuck woman with experience drawing school boundaries are the first two appointees to the commission that will realign Idaho's congressional and legislative districts. House Speaker Bruce Newcomb of Burley appointed attorney John Hepworth and Senate President Pro Tem Robert Geddes of Soda Springs named Krist Sellers to what will be a six-member Commission on

Redistricting. Idaho Republican Party Chairman Trent Clark, Idaho Democratic Party Chairman Carolyn Boyce, House Democratic Floor Leader Wendy Jaquet and Senate Democratic Floor Leader Clint Stennett also must appoint members. The Democrats plan to announce their choices before the commission's first meeting on June 1. The panel then will have 90 days to use 2000 Census data in redrawing Idaho's political boundaries in a plan subject to approval by a simple majority of the commission. Hepworth, 73, has practiced law in Twin Falls for 49 years. He has served on the board of trustees at the College of Southern Idaho and is a close friend to Newcomb and his wife, Rep. Celia Gould of Buhl. "I'm not nervous. I don't know enough to be nervous," Hepworth said. "It is challenging, I'll meet the challenge." "I think it is going to be wonderful, educational and challenging and an excellent process for everyone," Sellers said. "I am anxious to get to know the program - it's not an opportunity a lot of people get and it is very often." Sellers, who has lived in Chubbuck two years and in Pocatello for 13 years, has worked on drawing boundaries for Pocatello's elementary and junior high schools. She led one of those committees, has had experience as a precinct worker and managed her husband's chiropractic office until the couple retired.

Nature Conservancy to give tour of preserves

WENDELL - The Nature Conservancy of Idaho will host a historical tour Saturday of its two preserves in the Middle Snake River region: Thousand Springs and Box Canyon. Robert Davenport, steward of the Thousand Springs Preserve, will lead the tour, which includes lunch. Davenport's tour will focus on the history of the two conservation areas. It will start at 11 a.m. at Thousand Springs Preserve. Davenport will discuss the history of the island since 1906 and take the group through the buildings that were once a Guernsey dairy. The morning also will include a trip to Mhinie Miller Falls, one of the last remaining free-flowing springs in the Middle Snake River region. After lunch, the tour will continue to Box Canyon, Idaho's newest state park. Acquired by the Nature Conservancy and the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation in 1999, Box Canyon provides a glimpse of what this stretch of the Snake River looked like 100 years ago, the SUN VALLEY - Ketchum and Sun Valley chipped in for a new water conservation tool even before Gov. Dirk Kempthorne declared Blaine County a drought emergency area. Last winter, the towns teamed up with Webb Landscaping, investing $5,000 each, to help purchase a weather station that will be part of a computerized irrigation regulation system. The system - called MAXI-COM - will be available to residents who own automatic sprinkler systems. Homeowners must purchase a control module for their property. The module is connected via modem to a central computer at Webb's Ketchum office. The weather station will feed temperatures, precipitation and winds to the computer. "Basically, if it's raining, it won't water your lawn," Ketchum City Councilman Randy Hall said. "That will help us to be good users of our resources." The system monitors weather, soil moisture, irrigation flows and system errors. If an irrigation system develops a leak, if soils are saturated, if it is raining or windy, MAXI-COM will automatically turn irrigation off.

Business holds benefit for injured snowmobiler
BELLEVUE - Injured snowmobile racer Cody Swanson will gain support for medical expenses through a benefit dinner and auction Saturday at Sam's Club. In March the 25-year-old professional cross-country and snowcross sled racer severely injured his knee in an accident during the qualifying race in West Yellowstone. Monty Swanson has faced several surgeries to repair the knee and adjoining tissue. A complete recovery is anticipated, but to help defray the costs not covered by Swanson's medical insurance, Swanson's aunt Barb Patterson and her husband, Kelly Wardell, have organized the benefit. A $5 potluck dinner begins at 4 p.m., followed by a raffle and auction. For those who cannot attend and wish to donate, an account has been set up at Wells Fargo Bank in Hailey. Auction items may be dropped off at Wells Fargo Motor Sports in Bellevue. - compiled from staff reports

Idaho agrees to become owner of Burns-Yak property

OSBURN (AP) - The state has agreed to take ownership of an 80-acre site that has been proposed as a dumping ground for mine waste. The EPA had proposed its use as a dump as part of a Superfund cleanup settlement, triggering local outcry. "We fully recognize that we have to work with local residents to try to figure out the best uses," Rob Hanson, manager of the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality's mine waste program, said Wednesday. "We do have an interest to find a repository. We really need it with a doubt. But it doesn't mean that this has to be the place." A land exchange, sale of the property to allow purchase of a different waste site or some other plan might work, Hanson said, but establishing a dump remains a possibility. Environmental Quality's announcement came a week after the Osburn City Council unanimously passed an emergency ordinance forbidding a waste dump on the site. "There really wasn't much debate," Councilwoman Sandra Lockhart said. "We looked at the human health issues, we looked at the location - it's close to a residential section - and we just felt that maybe other places should be looked at." The property is being deeded over by Coeur d'Alene Mines Corp. as part of a settlement of its portion of the giant Coeur d'Alene Basin Superfund cleanup. The settlement, which also covers Coeur subsidiary Callahan Mining, is still being finalized. Under settlement terms filed with U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge in April, Coeur d'Alene Mines will pay $3.9 million in cash; pay an annual percentage of its mining revenues; clean up a defunct mine and mill site in McCarran Gulch, also known as the Mineral Point property; and deed the Burns-Yak property to the federal government for use as a waste dump during cleanup efforts. "But Hanson said the only part of the site's future that has been finalized is that the state has agreed to take ownership - which is required, because the EPA cannot take ownership of land after cleanup. The same procedure is being followed with the Bunker Hill Superfund site. There, once EPA has finalized cleanup of mine wastes, ownership of the property will pass to the state, which can then sell or lease it for new development.

Today marks start of burn permit season

SHOSHONE - Today starts the summer season when state of Idaho burn permits are required in southern Idaho for all trash or agricultural burning outside established city limits. The Bureau of Land Management, in partnership with the U.S. Forest Service and the Idaho Department of Lands, reminds everyone that burning permits are now in effect until late October. Fire agencies in southern Idaho are gearing up for an active season. In the Magic Valley, the Southern Idaho Intergency Fire Center located in Shoshone has already responded this year to five human-caused fires. Idaho Department of Lands Acting Director Winston Wigington says "special attention" will be given to fires this summer. The BLM also suggests caution as this year's drier conditions will mean higher fire danger earlier in the season and offerings the following safe burning tips:

- Make certain you have a valid burning permit
• Burn only natural material - no garbage
• Stay with your fire until it is completely out
• If it becomes windy, put your fire out immediately
• No fires after dark
• Make burn piles small

Valley in brief
• Have a charged garden-hose ready, and
• Clear an area 15 feet around your fire. Permits are free and may be obtained from the Southern Idaho Intergency Fire Center at 885 273 7775 and free educational material on safe-burning practices also are available at the above numbers.

Anglers call for tighter limits on Idaho streams

IDAHO FALLS (AP) - Anglers want the Idaho Department of Fish and Game to limit the number of fish that are caught and killed on two popular eastern Idaho rivers. The proposed changes would be on the Mack's Inn stretch of the Henry's Fork and the Big Lost River downstream of Mackay Reservoir, fisheries manager Mark Gamblin said. Biologists will listen to those and any other suggestions at three public meetings next week as the agency begins the process of developing fishing rules for the 2002 and 2003 seasons. The Big Lost River below Mackay Reservoir now is regulated under general rules that allow anglers to keep six fish of any size. Area anglers say that is too much pressure on the small stream. "People take lots of large fish from the river. They can just clean it out; no protection at all," said Greg Webster of the Bent Rod Fly Shop in Mackay. Webster wants a so-called "slot limit" that would protect fish of certain sizes. "They need to have a few trophy places around, and the Big Lost could definitely be one," he said. But Gamblin said tighter regulations may not be necessary. Most of the Big Lost is difficult to reach, which keeps many anglers away. And he said many of the anglers who do reach the river already practice catch-and-release. "We don't see any indication that the general regulations and that reach are jeopardizing fishing," he said. "If anything, we think harvest is probably declining." Fish and Game wants to gather more information on that stretch and is planning creel surveys and population estimates, Gamblin said. At Mack's Inn, some anglers believe fishing would be better if limits were more strict. Anglers can keep six fish on the Mack's Inn reach of the Henry's Fork. "There is a lot of be learned about the Mack's Inn stretch, but our assessment is that we're seeing more fish harvested than we would like," said Charlie Sperry of the Henry's Fork Foundation.

California governor authorizes bonds for power

SACRAMENTO (AP) - Gov. Gray Davis signed a law authorizing the state to issue $1.4 billion to pay for electricity for three cash-strapped utilities. Davis couldn't guarantee the 15-year bond will be enough to cover the state's electricity purchases. But he said the $1.4 billion price tag represents "the best thinking of our financial analysts" and includes a reserve in case electricity prices remain higher than expected. The state spent $1,900 per megawatt hour Wednesday as state grid operators narrowly avoided a third consecutive day of blackouts, Davis said, reiterating his call for federal price controls. The weather helped the state avoid blackouts Thursday. Wednesday's costs were a record or near-record since the state purchases began in January, said Oscar Hidalgo, a spokesman at the power-buying Department of Water Resources. Davis said he hopes the state can stop buying power for Pacific Gas and Electric, Southern California Edison and San Diego Gas and Electric by the end of next year. Davis accused Assembly Republicans of putting their political opposition above the state's welfare by refusing to support the bond bill. That means the bonds can't be issued for three months, which Davis said will drive up the interest rate payers will be charged for the bond. "This measure is a lifeline that allows us to stay afloat," he said. In a statement, Assembly GOP leader Dave Cox called the bond bill "a dangerous gamble for California - a gamble Republicans couldn't support without a clear endgame." The governor obviously believes that history will judge that his was the right decision. He had better be right. "After Thursday, a federal bankruptcy judge considered ordering PG&E to make billions of dollars in back payments to small power plant owners that provide nearly a third of California's electricity. And California power regulators continued struggling over how to divide record electric rate increases among the 9 million customers of the state's two largest utilities, Edison and PG&E. The Public Utilities Commission is rushing to adopt the higher rates Monday.

Lawyer hands over belongings of actor's slain wife

LOS ANGELES - Robert Blake's lawyer on Thursday gave Los Angeles police trunks, suitcases and boxes brimming with material that once belonged to the actor's slain wife. Lawyer Harold W. Braun, who delivered the material to Los Angeles Police Department headquarters, said Benny Lee Bakley's belongings, which police did not seize during searches of the actor's property, show Bakley was involved in business scams that could have created numerous enemies for her. Braun provided the material in response to a letter he received Wednesday from LAPD Robbery/Homicide Capt. Jim Fatareu asking him for Bakley's belongings. Blake's relatives said they can't afford to pay for a funeral and have asked Blake for $20,000, but he has not responded, said Cary Goldstein, a lawyer speaking for Bakley's family. "We are appalled," Goldstein said. "Bakley's body remains unclaimed (from the county coroner), and the family finds it extremely distressing that Mr. Blake has not agreed to pay reasonable funeral expenses." Braun said Bakley's body has not been claimed because he has been unable to obtain an autopsy report. Depending on what report says, a private autopsy might be needed, he said. "Of course Robert's going to pay for his wife's funeral," Braun said. "He's just not going to allow them to take it to him what's going to be done." The delivery of Bakley's personal belongings to police came hours after detectives descended upon "Blake's" home - late Sunday, searching it for a second time. Police would not comment on what they found. Braun produced four suitcases, three black trunks and several boxes - some closed, others stuffed with three-ring binders and video tapes.

Caldwell judge sends message to young criminals

CALDWELL (AP) - Third District Judge Gerald Weston put would-be drive-by shooters on notice when he rejected a recommendation to send a young repeat offender to boot camp and order him to serve four years in prison. Simon Hernandez, 16, pleaded guilty in March to aggravated assault and illegal discharge of a firearm into an occupied building.

On Sept. 29 Hernandez fired several shots at a person standing in a gas station. "He will serve at least 14 months before being considered for parole," Weston said. Weston said courts send the wrong message by not putting convicted offenders in prison. He added that Hernandez was already given several chances at rehabilitation in the juvenile system.

Biologists are expecting up to 21,000 wild chinook - which are protected by the Endangered Species Act - to return to the Snake River basin. More than 108,000 chinook have been counted passing Lower Granite Dam this spring. "This year's extraordinary returns to Idaho remind all of us that restoring healthy, harvestable levels of salmon will benefit the local economy in our local communities in the Northwest," Samuel N. Penney, chairman of the tribe's executive committee, said. According to preseason projections, $5,400 to $3,400 should be chinook that were initially raised in hatcheries before being released to migrate to the ocean.

Prescribed fire burns out of control in Sierra Nevadas

RENO, Nev. (AP) - A controlled burn the Forest Service lit to reduce fuel loads in the Sierra Nevada was burning out of control Thursday through 50 to 100 acres of national forest 30 miles west of Reno. Crews of 60 firefighters and a helicopter were battling the flames, which jumped the controlled boundaries in unexpected ways, strong winds in the Tahoe National Forest about 11 miles east of Loyalton, Calif.

No structures were immediately threatened by the blaze, but the blaze was expected to continue into Friday with no projection of when it would be contained, Forest Service spokesman Michael Baldrica said. "The winds unexpectedly kicked up in a way we hadn't anticipated and the controlled burn got away," Baldrica said from Sierra Vista, Calif. "It was sometime between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. that they realized things were getting really bad," he said. Additional Chinook helicopters with 2,000-gallon water buckets were on standby in Stead, Nev., north of Reno and air tankers were being considered if necessary to help fight the fire on Friday, he said. The prescribed burn began Wednesday. It was to cover about 50 acres. But by Thursday evening it had burned another 50 to 100 acres outside the controlled area, he said. It was burning north of the Stampede Reservoir, from east to west, toward an area where the Cottonwood fire burned nearly 47,000 acres in 1994. The rugged, mountainous area is about 20 miles north of Truckee, Calif. In addition to the high winds, a record heat wave blanketed the area over the past few days. Record high temperatures of 88 degrees and 87 degrees were recorded in Reno on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Nez Perce Tribe to sell hatchery chinook this spring

LEWISTON (AP) - Members of the Nez Perce Tribe will be selling hatchery chinook harvested this spring due to a surplus returning to the Snake River. More than 108,000 chinook have been counted passing Lower Granite Dam this spring. "This year's extraordinary returns to Idaho remind all of us that restoring healthy, harvestable levels of salmon will benefit the local economy in our local communities in the Northwest," Samuel N. Penney, chairman of the tribe's executive committee, said. According to preseason projections, $5,400 to $3,400 should be chinook that were initially raised in hatcheries before being released to migrate to the ocean.

stay out of the news, but said she preferred not to instate a formal gag order on Green - and that it was probably too late to do so this close to the trial. Of particular concern, Burningham said, is finding an impartial jury. The judge already moved the case from Nephi to Provo over the objections of Green's lawyer, John Bucher, citing security concerns.

Both the state and tribe agree that wild runs are far from recovered. Historically, an average of 60,000 wild spring chinook returned to the Snake River basin. "The state and tribe agree that wild runs are far from recovered."

Judge chastises polygamist for speaking to the media

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - A judge has chastised avowed polygamist Tom Green for speaking to the media and possibly tampering the jury pool for his trial. Green, who lives with his five wives and 29 children in Utah's West Desert, faces charges of felony and criminal nonsupport in the trial, which starts Tuesday. He is also charged separately with child rape stemming from his relationship with one of his wives, but no trial date has been set for that case. At a hearing Tuesday, 4th District Judge Guy Burningham told Green, who has repeatedly appearing on national television and held a news conference the day before that he was potentially harming his case by speaking so freely to reporters. "I'm not sure how the media would handle it if a self-avowed polygamist is acquitted of bigamy under the Utah state bigamy statute," Burningham said. "But I believe it could happen because of the way the statute was written. What I'm suggesting and what I suggested to you before was back off with the media. They're not your friend. They're hurting you." Burningham had asked the parties involved in the case to

England has a 'Castleford' too

By Mary Lou Potts
Times-News correspondent

CASTLEFORD — This city isn't the only place in the world christened "Castleford."

There's also a Castleford, England.

On Wednesday, Castleford City Clerk Patsy Kinyon shared a letter with the City Council, she'd received from a man named Alan Turner of Castleford, England.

Turner usually travels to the United States twice a year for business or pleasure and while he was planning his upcoming trip to the Pacific Northwest he happened to spot a place called Castleford, Idaho on the map.

Turner said Castleford, Idaho and Castleford, England were the only two Castlefords he could find on the Wide World Web. He said he plans to take a little side-trip to Castleford, Idaho and will take pictures for an editor-friend who wants to publish them in a Castleford, England publication. The publication has a website at www.pontefractandcastleford-press.co.uk.

Also Wednesday, the council declared May 19 "Beautification Day."

Council members will each take a section of the city and help residents clean up debris. Trash bins will be available and appliances will be hauled away.

Fliers about "Beautification Day" will be distributed to city residents and those wishing to participate are asked to call the city clerk at 537-6688. Volunteers will meet at 8:30 a.m. that morning at J&D Printing for assignments. Hot dogs, chips and soda will be provided.

Twin Falls County Deputy Mike Cooper has made arrangements for county crews to clean the public alleys and parks.

In other business Wednesday: The council accepted the resignation of Councilwoman Linda Calhoun because of a time conflict. Mayor Mary Pinkston will appoint her replacement.

The council decided action will be taken to disconnect water service to residents with delinquent accounts.

Boy Scout Jody Hurley of Troop 9 attended the meeting to help him earn his community merit badge.

Twin Falls sheriff's deputy Mike Cooper said juvenile activity has increased in the area as the weather has gotten warmer and schools are getting ready to let out for the summer. Cooper said he would patrol the school and parks closely.

Times-News correspondent Mary Lou Potts can be reached in Bull at 533-0854.

Fund-raising scheme gets mashed

ARCO (AP) — The Boy Scouts of Troop 90 made the same mistake as too many of their adult counterparts in eastern Idaho — expecting to make money growing potatoes.

With a record glut of spuds depressing prices to the lowest level in decades, the boys wound up dumping 2.7 million pounds of cussats this week that they raised in hopes of paying for a trip to July's National Boy Scout Jamboree in Virginia.

They still hope to recoup some of their investment from a U.S. Department of Agriculture crop diversion program. But the boys first must pay off a $35,000 loan they obtained through a Farm Service Agency youth program.

A 30-day sign-up period began April 30 for the $10.25 million diversion program in which the government will pay farmers up to a penny a pound for the russet potatoes they give to charity or ethanol processors, feed to cattle or bury in the ground. The troop's nine boys could get $27,000 from the program.

The ill-fated project was undertaken at the suggestion of the Scouts' adviser, farmer Todd Perkes, who said he had a verbal commitment from a Blackfoot processor to buy what the boys produced.

With the federal loan in hand, the boys found 100 acres of land to lease and a supplier of potato seed. Unfortunately, last fall's spud crop was the biggest in history and drove prices down sharply.

There were just no buyers, and the potatoes started to sprout and go bad," Perkes said on Wednesday.

The troop decided last Saturday to empty the cellar. On Monday and Tuesday, with help from the members of a Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints congregation, the boys spread their spuds on a rancher's fields north of Arco. When the potatoes dry out, most will be fed to cattle.

The Dalai Lama arrives Thursday at Salt Lake International Airport.

Buddhist leader starts three-day visit to Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Dalai Lama said Thursday he could support China's bid for the 2008 Olympics despite its record of human rights violations.

"This is a very complicated issue because China is the most populous nation in the world and deserves the Olympics," he said. The Tibetan Buddhist leader minutes after his plane arrived in Salt Lake City, the site of the 2002 Winter Games. He said if democracy supporters in China favor the Olympics he would not stand in the way.

He spoke to reporters at the Salt Lake International Airport at the start of three days of speeches and teaching sessions in the state. His three week tour also includes stops in Portland, Ore.; San Francisco; San Jose, Calif.; Madison, Wis.; Washington D.C. and Los Angeles. He visited Minneapolis earlier this week.

Each city has Tibetan residents settled by the 10-year-old Tibetan Resettlement Project.

The first group of eight Tibetans arrived in Salt Lake City in 1992. Now there are 150 in the resettlement project, many of them living in houses in the Avenue neighborhood.

The leader of 6 million Tibetan

Buddhists, the Dalai Lama said at the news conference he was baffled by his popularity around the world. "I believe my views are nothing special," he said. He encouraged people of different religions to stay in their faith and not to dabble in other religions or convert.

"Each nation has their own faith and it's better for Westerners to keep their traditions," he said, as he answered questions with the help of an interpreter. "It's not easy to change religions."

On Thursday afternoon the Dalai Lama met with leaders of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Utah's dominant religion. He said Mormonism and Buddhism have much in common. "I appreciate the Christian tradition," he said.

The Dalai Lama expressed hope for relations with China in the future, especially on human rights issues. "China should not be isolated," he said. "Friendship with China is essential."

China distrusts the Dalai Lama because since the spiritual leader fled Tibet in 1959 following a failed uprising against Chinese rule, he has opposed the way Beijing governs the Himalayan territory.

Court rejects appeal in wildlife case

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Constitution provides no protection from criminal charges for three Ada County residents convicted of illegally killing a deer that had been eating vegetables in a woman's backyard garden.

The Idaho Court of Appeals, in a unanimous opinion issued Thursday and punctuated by a lively concurrence from Judge Alan Schwartzman, upheld the misdemeanor convictions of Laura Thompson, her son, Wendall Thompson, and their neighbor, Eldon C. Palmer.

The three-judge panel rejected claims that the Idaho law against killing wildlife out-of-season unconstitutionally limited the right to protect one's property, violated their rights to equal protection and allowed an unconstitutional government "taking" without just compensation or due process.

It was four days before the archery hunting season was to open in 1998 when Laura Thompson found a buck lying under a tree in her backyard. Troubled by losses to her garden, Thompson asked her son to shoot the deer. Afterward, they gutted and skinned the animal and gave the head, hide and hooves to Palmer.

He called the Department of Fish and Game to ask for a depredation permit that would authorize the taking of a deer out of season. When he was told it was too close to the opening of hunting season for such a permit, Palmer disclosed that the deer already had been killed.

That led to charges of unlawful taking of wildlife against Wendall Thompson, criminal solicitation of a crime against his mother and aiding in the commission of a misdemeanor, against Palmer.

The Court of Appeals found the prohibition against killing deer out of season reasonable, especially considering the fact that Laura Thompson had been advised on several occasions how to keep the deer away.

Tribe: Poll shows Idahoans back gambling

WORLEY (AP) — The head of the Coeur d'Alene Tribe's gambling operation says a decision will be made by June on whether to launch an initiative drive to legalize electronic gambling machines in reservation casinos.

Tribal Gaming Chief-Executive David Matheson said a statewide campaign to win voter support would likely cost between $4 million and $8 million, pointing out that costs of initiative drivers can spiral out of control. If the tribes' campaign hits those figures, it would be the most expensive initiative in state history.

While the Coeur d'Alene have been working with the Nez Perce and Kootenai tribes on the issue since revision of the existing gambling compacts with the state was killed by lawmakers in March, Matheson said it is unclear whether eastern Idaho's Shoshone-Bannock Tribes would get involved.

Judge condemns convicted killer to death for prison beating

BOISE — Twice-convicted killer Michael Allen Jauhola has been condemned for the 1998 beating-death of a fellow prison inmate. Fourth District Judge Deborah Bahl ordered the 28-year-old former-gang member executed for what she said was the cold-blooded murder of John Alfred Williams, 38, Williams, who was black, was beaten repeatedly with a baseball bat while he and Jauhola were in the exercise yard at the maximum-security prison. He died a day later.

Bahl said Jauhola "killed coldly, mercilessly, deliberately and for no reason other than the victim's race or the fact that he may have annoyed him in the distant past. ... The defendant has forfeited his right to life and merits the most severe penalty available." At the time he killed Williams, Jauhola was serving sentences for voluntary manslaughter and escape in the 1993 slaying of rival Canyon County gang member, Carlos Matias. Carlos Matias was repeatedly stabbed.

Man gets 25 years for murder of Caldwell man
CALDWELL — A San Diego man will spend at least 12 years in prison for his role in a Caldwell man's death.
 Jerry Sparks, convicted of second-degree murder in the June 11 death of Christopher Cory, was sentenced Wednesday to 25 years in prison, with 12 years fixed.
 She allegedly coerced Sparks into plotting her husband's death. Christopher Cory was shot in the front yard of his sister's Caldwell home.

Officials relocate calf-killing grizzly bear
CODY, Wyo. — A grizzly bear that killed a calf was being relocated. The call was killed earlier this month on the TE Ranch, which is about 30 miles southwest of Cody, according to ranch manager Curt Baker. The calf's death was confirmed to be a bear kill and a trap was set May 3, said Gary Brown, state Game and Fish regional wildlife supervisor. A male grizzly was trapped last Saturday and relocated near Dubois, about 75 miles southwest of Cody, Brown said.

Fire destroys luxury home under construction
LINDON, Utah — Fire of unknown cause has destroyed a luxury home under construction on an east Lindon hillside.
 "As I stood there watching the fire, it felt like there was a death in the family," said Wayne Luck, the contractor who has been working on the home since October. The fire at 5:55 a.m. Wednesday gutted the $650,000, 81,060-square-foot home being built for Truman and Caroline Child. Fire Chief Mark Hale said the fire appeared to have started near the front entry, but he did not know a cause.
 "There was no (electrical) power and no propane being used by subcontractors," Hale said.

Appeals court doesn't buy too-sleepy-to-confess claim
SALT LAKE CITY — A man who claimed he was so sleepy police were able to trick him into confessing to the rape of a 13-year-old girl lost an appeal asking to have his confession tossed out. William Bryce Vanaustral was convicted of raping the child in 1992. He appealed the case to the Utah Court of Appeals, claiming that when police interviewed him about the crime, he was so exhausted and stressed that investigators were able to lure him into saying things he otherwise wouldn't have.

WASHINGTON — Mitsubishi Corp. has agreed to pay a $134 million fine to settle its conviction for aiding an international price fixing cartel.

AFL-CIO chief warns

Dems who abandon labor

WASHINGTON — AFL-CIO President John Sweeney has a warning: for moderate Democrats who abandon organized labor in favor of the Bush administration on trade and other key issues. Be prepared for primary fights.

"We will certainly encourage our membership to be taking hard looks at their individual congressional situation," Sweeney said Thursday in an interview with Associated Press reporters and editors. Those members, "I am sure ... will be involved in primary fights against representatives who have not supported them on their issues."

With an unfriendly White House, and with a sometimes-chaotic Democratic Party struggling for political footing without a chief executive, unions are feeling the pain these days.

They lost a battle to save new federal ergonomics rules, failed to deflate campaign finance legislation they oppose and watched almost helpless as President Bush issued order after order to roll back the rules he favored. It remains to be seen how unions fare in the upcoming trade agreements debate, in which they are pressing for labor and environmental restrictions.

Woman gets conviction for killing seven in collision

MARTINSVILLE, Ind. — A woman who prosecutors say was bent on suicide when she drove the wrong way on a highway was convicted of murder Thursday for killing seven people in a head-on collision.

Judy Kirby, 32, was guilty of seven counts of murder and could get up to life in prison.

Prosecutor Terry Jacoli said Kirby was depressed and suicidal when she drove into oncoming traffic and collided with a minivan in March 2000.

Florida HMO drops two doctors from health plan

MANATEE, Fla. — At least two area physicians have been dropped from Blue Cross Blue Shield of Florida Health Options network of health care providers, forcing hundreds of families to transfer to new doctors.

They are among an estimated 40 Florida physicians dropped from Blue Cross Blue Shield's network in recent months, many of them from small practices.

Barry B. Schwartz, MD and vice president of care and quality management for Blue Cross Blue Shield, defended the terminations as strictly business decisions.

The Florida Medical Association, in an alert to members, described the terminations as an orchestrated statewide effort to "intimidate Florida physicians and the FMA for strongly advocating patient rights legislation that will hold HMOs accountable for failing to exercise ordinary care when making health care decisions."

Former cops auction items from police evidence lockers

LOS ANGELES — Megan Panzer wasn't looking for anything in particular the first time she poked around the online auction site she had heard about from her friends. She just liked the name: StealItBack.com.

Now she owns three bicycles, two of which cost only $30 each. But she could have just as easily wound up with traffic light or a pair of gold pumps for $24, or a Sprint cellular phone for $24, or five pairs of silver earrings for $13.

This eclectic collection of items has a common thread — chances are they were either swiped, seized or recovered from the scene of a crime.

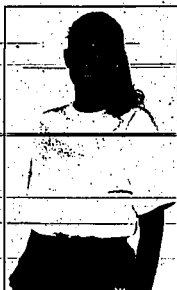

A group of former police officers, among them former Los Angeles chief Daryl Gates, recently launched StealItBack.com, also known as propertyroom.com, as a site for law enforcement agencies to auction merchandise that's dogging up their evidence lockers.

"It was fun to see what's out there," said Panzer, a freelance writer based in Los Angeles. "It's stuff you would never think of looking at."

Rescue workers prepare for McVeigh's execution

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — As the families of the dead wailed and collapsed in the street, rescue workers climbed over the carnage inside the federal building, looking for anyone still breathing.

Many of them did not think hard about what they were seeing as they searched for survivors of the Oklahoma City bombing.

"Our hands were working, but a higher power was in control," recalled Mark Damon, an Oklahoma City paramedic. "You were operating on adrenaline, falling back on instinct."

Only later did it sink in. The rescuers would recall the terrified eyes pleading for help from under piles of concrete and reinforcing bar. When they closed their eyes at night, they would see the babies covered in dust and soot. They would think of the people who did not make it out of the Alfred P. Murrah Building alive.

For many of those rescue workers, the memories will come back when Timothy McVeigh is executed for the crime Wednesday morning.

Damon woke up screaming last week, more than six years after the April 19, 1995, blast that killed 168 people. He sought counseling a year after the bombing when he realized his rent-up emotions were wrecking his family life.

Damon, who works for Emergency Medical Service Authority, has no desire to see McVeigh's lethal injection. He has seen enough death.

"Are we ever going to stop the killing?" he said. "This is just causing bloodlust. Here we are in the buckle of the Bible Belt and people want to see him die. When they walk to church on Sunday with a Bible under their arm, they're forgetting things like nothing to do but think. Before, I could have easily choked the life out of him with my own hands. Now I have no purpose to see him die."

Griffith stayed with one survivor for five hours until she was removed. The worst memory he has is of finding a tiny shoe and a little carton of milk that was still cold.

The children in the day-care center were having breakfast when McVeigh parked a Ryder truck containing a fertilizer bomb just below their second-floor window.

"I went through a period after that where I couldn't be around little kids," Griffith said. "I would just start crying."

Griffith won the right to see the closed-circuit broadcasts of the federal trials of McVeigh and Terry Nichols. He did not ask to see the execution.

Six years after the bombing, counseling for rescue workers still goes on monthly in Stillwater, and still draws people coming for the first time, said the Rev. Joe Williams, chaplain for the FBI.

"The rescue community are secondary victims," he said. "They've taken it upon themselves like a sponge."

Lipizzaners to perform in Eiler tonight

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

EILER—For all their majestic grace, Lipizzaner horses seem to attract trouble like spare Balkan princes.

Five years ago, in the wake of wars that tore apart from former Yugoslavia, there were even fears that the breed—long associated with Austria but largely bred in Slovenia, Croatia and Bosnia—might not survive.

That's no longer a possibility since the main stud farm at Lipica, in southern Slovenia, survived that country's successful war intact, but the horses are in worse shape in the rest of the Balkans.

The most famous Lipizzans in the United States—the World Famous Lipizzaner Stallions—will perform at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds tonight.

There are only about 2,000 Lipizzans worldwide, the largest single population, about 600, in Slovenia, so it doesn't take much of a threat to cast a shadow over the breed.

But then they've been in trouble for centuries. Famously rescued by the U.S. 2nd Cavalry Division under Gen. George Patton and by Yugoslavian partisan leader Marshal Tito at the end of World War II, the Lipizzans have been in the eye of various storms since the Carthaginians bred the first white stallion in the 2nd century B.C.

The Carthaginian stock was in turn bred to the Vihano, a sturdy horse from the Pyrenees, and with Arab and Barbary strains to produce the white Andalusian horses of Spain.

During Spain's 700 years of Moorish domination, the breed remained essentially the same, but after the Arabs were driven off the Iberian Peninsula in the 15th century, the Spanish began to export the horses to stud farms in Italy and Denmark. Archduke Maximilian, later emperor of Austria, began breeding Spanish horses near the stud farm at Lipica, then part of the Austro-Hungarian empire. They became almost exclusively the property of the nobility and the military aristocracy, and the stallions were bred for battle. The gentle, intelligent white mares became the coach horses of the elite.

Fresh Spanish stock was systematically added to the blood line to maintain the strength of the breed, and Oriental stallions were occasionally used for the same purpose.

In the 17th and 18th century, the Lipizzans were bred with a Neapolitan strain.

The Lipizzans were repeatedly moved between 1781 and 1815 as invading armies overran Lipica, and suffered badly in the process. By the time they were returned to Slovenia at the end of the Napoleonic War, the breed was in trouble.

Peace eventually restored the vitality of the line, but after the defeat of Austria-Hungary in World War I, Lipica was split between Italy and Austria.

The Austrian horses ended up part of the famous Spanish Riding School in Vienna; Lipica, then in Italy, eventually became part of an independent Yugoslavia.

The Lipizzans are long-lived horses—30 to 35 years, on average. Usually born black, they change slowly through a period of silver to bays to their final, pure white color.

High school students imagine Anne Frank's world

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY—The pampered Wood River Valley seems a million miles away from the atrocities of the World War II concentration camps.

But eight Wood River High School teenagers have been spending the past few months immersing themselves in what it might have felt like to be a Jewish or Nazi youth who had his or her life cut short or otherwise tragically marked by the Holocaust.

They'll share a glimpse of what they've internalized Thursday through May 26 when they present the multimedia play "And Then They Came for Me: Remembering the World of Anne Frank" at the Liberty Theater.

Eva SchLOSS, a childhood friend of Frank's, will journey from her London home to discuss the play and her life with the audience immediately following each performance.

The play is the first offering of Blaine County School District's new Academy for the Arts and Sciences. The program gives selected youngsters a year's worth of in-depth experience in creative writing, voice, set design, movements, theater history, improvisation, lighting and acting under diary, an account of hiding from the Nazis in war-torn Amsterdam, has been translated into 55 languages and served as an inspiration for more contemporary victims of persecution such as South African leader Nelson Mandela and Czech President Václav Havel.

The play, which will be staged for junior high and high school matinees, starting Thursday and for general audiences beginning May 18, attempts to tell the whole story—both the joyous and the painful moments of youngsters who kept expecting things to get better in the midst of making so many sacrifices.

It opens in Europe in 1938 as Anne and Eva try to re-establish normal lives after being uprooted from their homes, friends and schools. It takes audiences through 1942, when Eva's and Anne's families go into hiding and 1944, when they are arrested and transported to concentration camps. In the early going, they were part of a lucky few who had a place to hide. They weren't separated from family members or moved from place to place like so many others.

But, by the time Hitler was silenced, four of the six youngsters portrayed in the play Please see FRANK, Page C6

The Jerome musician, who played a big part in organizing the first Idaho Open Fiddle Fest four years ago, expects see about a hundred competitors from throughout Idaho and the West turn up for this weekend's competition, complete with support from the Jerome Chamber of Commerce and local businesses.

Apart from the two days of competition at Jerome High School, the chamber plans a barbecue in Jerome's south park from noon to 3 p.m. on Saturday. Tickets are $6.

The business of music starts at 5 p.m. today with registration in the high school auditorium. Competition in three junior divisions and the twin-fiddling, starts at 5:30. NEW! The Waiting Is Over... ThermoGenics Plus® Quick Start

RAPID Weight Loss Formula

Proven In Clinical Trials!

"Quick Start™ Formula Six Times Stronger and We've Got The Studies To Prove It!"

In a well-controlled double-blind clinical trial, reported in the October 1997 edition of the Journal of the American College of Nutrition, Vol. 16, No. 5, p. 501 (1116), overweight patients who took the active ThermoGenics Plus® Quick Start™ formula for 6 weeks lost six times more body weight (613% to be exact) than an identical group of overweight patients who didn't. But that's not all! More than two thirds of the weight loss consisted of pure, unsightly excess body fat! And there's more! The significant rapid loss of excess body fat occurred just by taking the "Quick Start™ formula" - without following a calorie restricted diet or exercise program! That's right! The study concludes that the active "Quick Start™" compound "appears to be a safe and effective intervention for weight loss and positive body composition changes over a 6-week period in non-exercising or calorie control conditions!"

GOODING — For some, it took magic shoes, for others just plain hard work.

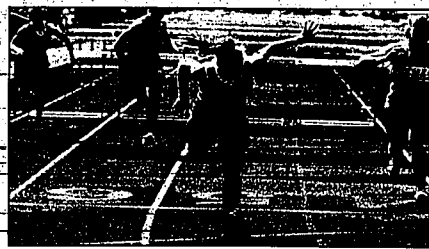

But whatever it was, the best of the Magic Valley's Class A-3 and A-4 track athletes guaranteed themselves spots in the state meet next week by placing in the top of the field at the District IV meet on Thursday.

Sixteen teams — three Class A-3 and 13 Class A-4 — met at the Idaho School for the Deaf and Blind track Thursday, with dreams of the state meet held in Bronco Stadium at Boise State University May 17-19.

On the A-3 side, Wendell High's girls' team finished with 61 points, to top Valley (80) and Glenns Ferry (14). The Lady Trojans had 11 individual athletes and three relay teams qualify.

EAGLES FACE ELIMINATION

Heavy-hitting Utah Valley upends CSI in second round

By Joe Sunnen
Times-News writer

ST. GEORGE, Utah — The College of Southern Idaho's Region XVIII title hopes changed from sweet to sour with the flick of a wrist Thursday.

The Eagles took a step in the right direction in the first round, defeating Treasure Valley Community College 3-2 on a pair of walks in the eighth inning, but fell 9-1 in their second-round matchup with second-seeded Utah Valley State College.

CSI now faces a loser-out game against Ricks College at 1 p.m. today. The winner of that game then meets the Salt Lake Community College-TVCC winner at 4 p.m.

Other games Thursday, Ricks shocked SLCC 5-2 in the tournament opener but the Vikings fell to top-seeded and host Dixie State College 12-1.

"We depended on our sophomore and they didn't do much," CSI coach Jim Walker said. "And our freshmen struggled against Utah Valley. We'll come back tomorrow. We really will. I just want to come out of this with a little respect."

Freshman Brad Burrow worked 8.1 innings for the Eagles in the first game, scattering eight hits and allowing two runs for his first season victory. Sophomore Nick Parker collected the final two outs for the save.

Freshman Andy Myette took the loss in the second round, lasting just one inning while giving up four runs on four hits with two home runs and double.

"Utah Valley's players are great two-strike hitters," CSI coach Jim Walker said. "They don't over-swing and they try to take the ball the other way. We did just the opposite. We swung at a lot of bad pitches in wrong situations."

Wolverine sophomore Ben Saylor hit a two-run home run in the bottom of the first for a 2-1 lead and sophomore Aaron Lancaster delivered another two run homer in the second, which went away to go ahead 4-1 before Myette was pulled.

"We know Parker can throw strikes, we know Toby Barnett can throw strikes and we know Burrow can throw it," Walker said. "But that's it. It's like flipping a coin after that. And if we can't throw location to Utah Valley, they're just swinging the bat way too well."

The Wolverines added three more in the fifth to take a 7-1 lead and added two in the bottom of the seventh to run-rule CSI. The SWAC plays with a mercy rule of 10 runs in seven innings or eight runs in eight innings in tournament play.

College of Southern Idaho freshman Brad Burrow delivers a pitch against Treasure Valley Community College Thursday at Bruce Hurst Field in St. George, Utah. Burrow pitched 8.1 innings, allowing eight hits in two runs, as CSI won its Region XVIII first round game with the Chukars 3-2.

Minico High graduate James Dayley pitched seven innings with five strikeouts for the complete game win. Saylor finished 3-for-4 with two RBIs.

Freshman Matt Gunning led CSI, going 2-for-2 with a walk. Jeremy Barnes singled in the Eagles only run in the first.

UVC wasn't the only team to take advantage of a bad-pitching performance. CSI also benefited from a shaky hurler in the first round against Treasure Valley.

The Eagles didn't have to take the bats-off their shoulder-to-beat the Chukars, as TVCC closer Billy Gorrell.

Woods didn't disappoint, following up disapper and disgust on No. 8 with enough good iron shots and timely puts to carve out a 66 at Cottonwood Valley, which played nearly two strokes easier than the TPC at Las Colinas.

Hurst shoots bogey-free 64 for two-stroke lead

FRANKLIN, Tenn. — Pat Hurst finally got her putter going Thursday as she set a course record with an 8-under-par 64 and held a one-stroke lead after the first round of the Electrolux USA Championship.

Hurst ultimately likes the course at the Legends Club. This is where she shot an opening 65 a year ago and led wire-to-wire, winning this tournament in its debut. She did herself one stroke.

entered the game, but the usually reliable right-hander couldn't throw a strike and left with TVCC trailing 3-2.

"That was Gorrell's second blown save of the season, but it magnifies in this situation," Treasure Valley coach Gary Van Tol said. "He's been our guy and he's the guy we wanted on the mound. For some reason he just couldn't throw a fast ball for strikes."

Burrow and Parker combined to hold the Chukars to just a single in the top of the ninth to end the game.

"I wanted to go all nine," Burrow said. "I've never gone all nine in my life, but they were starting to get some good hacks off me

Verplank makes big splash in homecoming

IRVING, Texas — One bad swing cost Tiger Woods his first double bogey in 117 holes. Four weeks away from the game didn't cost him hardly anything at all.

In his first tournament since winning the Masters, Woods showed little rust Thursday in a round of 4-under 66 in the Byron Nelson Classic that left him four strokes behind Scott Verplank but in much better shape than he was after last year's hiatus.

"Usually, you come out with low expectations knowing the fact that generally you're not going to always hit every putt where you're looking," Woods said. "I was able to do that most of the day, which is definitely pretty good."

Verplank, who grew up in Dallas and doveed his name in the hot Texas wind, was bogey-free in blustery conditions and matched the best score of his career with a 62 that gave him a two-stroke lead.

TWIN FALLS — Just as the ink was drying from signing his renewed one-year contract, Derek Zock had another reason to smile.

The College of Southern Idaho men's basketball coach, who enters his third year at the post, announced the program had received national letters of intent from two more players on Thursday.

Kevin Williams, a 6-foot, 172, 300-pound power forward out of Yakima, Wash., and 6-3 guard Sakrij Dent, of Elizabethtown, N.C., will join the team this fall.

Second-year team assistant Jay Coriac confirmed the Golden Eagles have also received a verbal commitment from 6-7 swingman Yakhoubia Diawara, a Senegalese forward who played in Paris last year.

Williams, also an all-state football defensive end out of Davis High, had already committed to the University of Washington on a football scholarship last summer. But his football status remains up in the air due to non-qualifying SAT scores.

Third-year CSI assistant Brian Hancock, who helped recruit Williams, said the All-Big Nine selection has filed for an academic waiver with the NCAA.

But both Hancock and Zock said Williams, who averaged 22.1 points and 13.3 rebounds per game last season, is determined to play basketball this winter.

"Basketball is his first love," Hancock said. "He has good quickness and he jumps really well. He's very athletic and very strong, obviously. He's a kid that really hasn't tapped the resources he has."

Hancock said Williams is one of only 18 players to score over 2,000 points in Washington state high school basketball history. Williams was also a Nike All-American in 1995.

Dent is a combo guard who was named State 2A Co-Tournament Most Valuable Player along with brother Aking Eling in East Bladen (N.C.) High's state championship win this past March.

Coriac said Dent, who averaged 25 points and 10 rebounds and just assists in high school, is a versatile, playmaking guard who can also shoot.

"The additions bring to six the number of players who have returned letters of intent for next season. Williams and Dent join incoming freshmen Dominique Leake (6-4, 175, Jefferson City, Mo.), Andre Watson (6-7, 215, Sugar Land, Texas), Darnell Williams (6-3, 175, Moscow, Idaho) and Clinton Deas (6-8, 220, Gamber, N.C.).

The recruits take some of the sting out of the loss of sophomore-to-be Benji Eze, who had left school to pursue a possible career in the NBA. The CSI staff had no comment on Eze's departure, which took place last week.

homes. Launching a new football league in such a short time period was a daunting and exciting challenge, but we gave it our best shot," said NBC Sports chairman Dick Ebersol, who had hoped to renew his network work with football after it lost its NFL rights contract after the 1997 season.

The NFL, though, didn't seem to be able to decide whether it wanted to be more about sport or spectacle.

"Early games had lascivious cheerleader shots, and NFL bluster from WWF types, sophomoric double entendres and screaming announcers who sounded more like shills than analysts."

By the end, most of that nonsense was gone. Although the quality of the football might have improved during the season, it was still clear that the league's MVP—Randy Marino—was there more than twice as many interceptions as touchdowns during a brief NFL career.

NBC, WWF disband XFL after one season

NEW YORK — X-fl, stage left. The XFL, founded by the World Wrestling Federation and jointly owned by NBC, folded Thursday after one season that was a critical and TV ratings disappointment.

"We're discontinuing the XFL," WWF spokesman Judd Everhart said.

Despite many adjustments during the season, very little worked for the XFL between the much-hyped and well-rated season opener and the April 21 championship game, which was watched by about 75 percent fewer people on NBC.

The final game's national rating was a 2.7, tying for 93rd place among prime-time shows that week and lower than anything else on the four major networks. Each rating point represents a little more than 1 million TV

RUPERT — The Minico Spartan baseball team did the unthinkable on Thursday...

The win puts the Spartans (19-8) into an interdistrict play-in game against Hillcrest on Saturday at 1 p.m. in Pocatello.

Minico began the bottom of the seventh down 10-5 but rallied for six runs for the win.

A Cody Cole RBI single to right field scored Tyson Dietz making it 10-7. Two batters later, John Pennell was banded with two outs and the bases loaded to bring in Josh Barlowe.

Jordan Brinks looked at ball fourth in the bases still loaded to score Adam King and make the score 10-9.

Finally, it was Andy Coats who tapped one into shallow left field good enough for a two-run RBI single when the throw to first base went long.

"Maybe this is what this team needed," coach Russ Wright said. "It showed them that it's never over as long as you're in striking distance."

The Spartans gave up four runs on two hits and two errors in the fifth.

Declo dominates A-2 district track

By Nathan Jerke Times-News writer

BUHL — In their first year in the A-2 ranks the Declo Hornets have taken over the sports arena, which included a district track title that was added to their resume Thursday night in Buhl.

The Lady Hornets team demolished all competition, winning by over a 100 time points. The boys' teams were a little closer, but Declo still managed to come out on top, beating Filer by 10 points.

Competition heated up as the afternoon cooled with the attention focusing on the sprinters and runners.

Filer showed a solid performance, picking up both girls' and boys' 100-meter races and a boys' 200-meter win.

The Wildcats showed speed in the boys' 100-meter dash, picking up the top three finishers including winner Caleb Lammers, Doug Roehm and Craig Gaus.

Lammers came back later to take the 200- and 400-meter titles as well.

Christina Brown of Filer and Annie McCauley of Buhl fought it out in the sprints with Brown edging out McCauley for the 100-meter crown by only 5 one-hundredths of a second.

But McCauley came back to take the 400-meter win over Wood River's Ashley Howe.

Declo's team held together strong in the relays to finish off the night. In the 4x400-meter relay the Hornets girls picked up the stagger after just one lap, but still gave back slot of the track to Wood River. The Hornets picked up the ground needed by the third lap and passed on the final lap for the win.

The boys were just as fortunate taking the lead in the first lap before beating the fast Filer team.

Gooding showed off their distance running ability as Steve Anderson and Carin Patterson took titles for the Senators in both the 1,600- and 3,200-meter runs.

All top three finishers in each event earned a spot in the A-2 State Track Meet next week at Boise State University. But only the top relay teams earned spots to state. All second-place teams are given an opportunity to qualify only if they have one of the top three times of second-place teams in the state.

Burnitz is the fifth player this season to hit three home runs, and the second Brewer slugger — to homer three times in one game.

The fans gave Burnitz a standing ovation after his third home run, a solo shot in the sixth inning. He didn't get another at-bat and a chance for a fourth homer.

Burnitz is the eighth Brewer player to homer three times in one game. Teammate Geoff Jenkins did it on April 28, hitting three against Montreal.

Royals' Chris Delgado, Pittsburgh's Aramis Ramirez and Colorado's Todd Hollandsworth are the other players with three-homer games this year. Delgado has done it twice.

Cardinals 11, Pirates 5

ST. LOUIS — Another shaky outing from Rick Ankiel couldn't prevent the St. Louis Cardinals from completing a four-game sweep of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Pinch-hitter Edgar Renteria had a two-run, tiebreaking single in the sixth inning and Jim Edmonds homered and had two RBIs for St. Louis.

Ankiel left in the top of the fourth trailing 3-2. He threw five pitches to the backstop, including his fourth and fifth wild pitches of the season.

Mashburn hits 36; Hornets beat Milwaukee, trail 2-1

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Charlotte Hornets finally found their spark — and figured out how to slow Ray Allen — just in time to climb back into their playoff series against the Milwaukee Bucks.

Jamal Mashburn scored a career-high 36 points and the Hornets held Allen to just six points in the second half.

The Bucks overcame the Hornets in Game 3 of the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal series Thursday night.

Milwaukee still has a 2-1 lead in the series, but the victory showed that the Hornets, who were listless in the first two games, aren't going down without a fight. Game 4 is Sunday in Charlotte.

The Hornets were much more aggressive than they had been in the first two games, especially on the glass and in their drives to the basket. They outrebounded Milwaukee 57-35 and scored 44 points in the paint.

And after falling into deep holes in the first two games, the Hornets started even with the Bucks until the second half. Then Charlotte shut down Allen and slowly pulled away.

Allen, who averaged 27 in the first two games, finished with 20 points on 7-of-18 shooting.

Mashburn, whose previous high in a playoff game was 29, finished 3-for-5 from 3-point range.

F.J. Brown had a career-playoff high 15 rebounds, and Edmon Gamble scored 17.

Mashburn twice hit consecutive turnaround jumpers to give the Hornets a 96-87 lead with 2:20 to play.

But the Bucks came back, getting a 3-pointer from Tim Thomas that made it 96-90. Thomas had a chance to cut the lead when he stole the ball from Mashburn and was fouled attempting to dunk.

Glenn Robinson led Milwaukee with 23 points, Scott Williams had 13 points and 10 rebounds.

David Wesley scored 16 for Charlotte.

Charlotte's Jamal Mashburn (24) dives to the basket against Milwaukee's Glenn Robinson during the fourth quarter of their Eastern Conference second-round playoff game Thursday in Charlotte. M. Mashburn scored a game-high 36 points as the Hornets defeated the Bucks 102-92.

But Thomas missed both free throws, Charlotte got the rebound and made it 98-90 on a pair of free throws by Brown at the other end.

Allen finally hit a jumper to cut it to 98-92, but the Hornets answered with a slam dunk by Eddie Robinson that made it 100-92 with 42 seconds to play.

Glenn Robinson led Milwaukee with 23 points, Scott Williams had 13 points and 10 rebounds.

David Wesley scored 16 for Charlotte.

Baron Davis, who averaged 20.3 points in the first round of the playoffs but tailed off against Milwaukee and was held without a field goal in Game 2, got off to another slow start. He missed his first four shots and his first four free throws and had only two points at the half.

But Davis snapped out of his scoring slump near the end of the third quarter, scoring six of Charlotte's points in a 10-0 run. And he got more aggressive, lunging for a steal off Robinson and converting it into a fast-break rebound dunk that capped the Hornets.

Iverson finds the fire within

COMMENTARY
Jim Litke

To hear Charles Barkley tell it, any remaining objections to a scoring stalling him and close pal Michael Jordan are melting faster than Swiss cheese.

According to the latest plan, Barkley, who recently tipped the scales at 292 pounds, will be moving in with Jordan for a month of serious training. This will be followed by an announcement sometime in June. Assuming Jordan's refrigerator can bear the increased load, it's an almost certain go.

Far be it from us to mess with anyone's motivation. But even now, the question making the rounds at NBA headquarters is: "What's the rush, Chuck?"

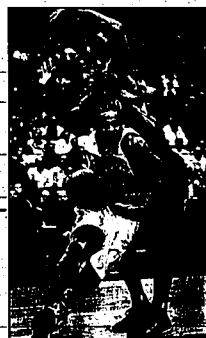

It's not that the higher-ups, beginning with commissioner David Stern, wouldn't appreciate having Jordan and Barkley back. It's just that the party line has become the NBA doesn't NEED them. After putting out the word for years that the kids who replaced them are going to be all right, there is finally evidence a few of them are coming around.

What's changed about these youngsters, much more than their attitude, is their winning percentage. Look at the old-guard teams, with their old ways of playing, that have been left behind: the Knicks, Heat, Jazz and Pistons. Indiana meant to be. Allen Iverson, Vince Carter, Ray Allen and Chris Webber have been saying all the right things about hard work, sacrifice and team for years. But it's no longer being scripted by copywriters and spoken only on commercials.

Funny what a first-round win in the playoffs will do for a guy's image. These days, Iverson's emotions are every bit as raw as the lyrics on his rap albums, but they already boast a credibility his music never will.

The last two years, the Pacers sent Iverson and the 76ers on vacation early. To know how much beating Indiana meant at the time around, one only had to watch Iverson pressing his young son, Deuce, fiercely to his chest at the news conference afterward.

The last look of weary self-satisfaction is with him all the time. Iverson looks the same — cornrows, tattoos, baggy clothes, jewelry. But when he turns up of stage after each second-round confrontation with Carter and Philadelphia's Allen Iverson drives around Toronto's Alvin Williams in the second half of their second-round NBA playoff game Wednesday.

The Raptors, the smugness is gone

It's almost as if he's feeling real accomplishment for the first time, discovering along with the rest of us how brightly the fire in his gut burns.

"I always feel the only person who can stop me is myself," Iverson said. "The only thing I care about is getting a win. If I shoot terrible, and we win, that's all that matters."

For once, it didn't sound like a boast. Iverson had just scored 54 points to even the series with Toronto at a game apiece.

"He was doing it all," Carter marveled.

Imagine scoring 28 points, the way Carter did in the Game 2 loss, and knowing it wasn't nearly enough. But that's the lesson Vinsanity has learned this season — the hard way.

First, teammate Charles Oakley called him out, dared

Carter to put the Raptors on his back and carry them past New York. Then Barkley, who is wise, keeping his TV commentator's job — in one, added his own weighty opinion. He said Carter was playing like "a girl." Carter's response was to stomp the Knicks and steal the first one from Iverson & Co.

Now, the ante has been upped. "We might get some hockey fans supporting us now," Carter said Thursday at practice, as the series shifted to Toronto.

The hockey mad town was still in mourning over the NHL's Maple Leafs' loss in Game 7 of their second-round series to the New Jersey Devils on Wednesday night. Raptors center Antonio Davis' noed that one team's flop might be another's good fortune — at least as far as fans were concerned.

"Maybe they'll be flipping channels and happen to see the game, and they'll stop and say, 'Let's see what the madness is all about.'"

Unfortunately, too many state-side fans flip on the NBA, see the madness, and keep flipping.

Four short years ago, when Jordan was nearing his second retirement, the league celebrated its 50th anniversary by naming its "50 Greatest Players" during halftime of the All-Star game.

One by one, the men who changed the NBA from a roadshow featuring freaks of nature into the hottest property in sports walked into the spotlight. The deep lines etched into many of those faces spoke times so hard, you wondered if the kids who inherited quick fame and easy fortune would ever produce a future worthy of the past.

The question arises every time there is change in the way the game is played. Some people thought Magic Johnson and Larry Bird were too radical. Others were sure the Jordan Era wouldn't last longer than his name.

What validated each of them was winning. There are no shortcuts to becoming a champion. It's a long, tough journey down a path that changes them every bit as much as the way we perceive them.

NFL chief remains upbeat about new NFL

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue sounded more like a coach preparing for a big game when asked if he thought league owners can meet a June 1 deadline for agreeing on a new realignment plan.

"I don't see any reason why it won't happen," he told reporters after making a luncheon speech Thursday to members of the Charlotte Touchdown Club. "I'm going out there with the intention of voting."

Denver Broncos linebacker Lee Woodall, front, adjusts his helmet as he prepares to take part in drills with safety George Coghill, back, during the team's minicamp in Englewood, Colo., Saturday.

Owners will vote on realignment at the end of this month, setting up the format of eight four-team divisions when Houston re-enters the league in 2002 as the 32nd team.

Instead of calling a special meeting for early May, the league has extended the meetings scheduled for May 22-23 in Chicago for an extra day to take care of realignment, which must be done by June 1.

Last month, the owners looked at a dozen realignment plans, most of which keep the current division lineups relatively intact. Seven of the proposals are being given the most consideration.

"Then there are some people in the crowd who believe there might be some dark horse candidates," Tagliabue said.

Tagliabue will come out in favor of any particular plan, but he might make the final decision. The commissioner owns four proxy votes; three surrendered by the Rams, Oilers (now Titans) and Browns (now Ravens) when they moved, plus the expansion Houston Texans, who join the league next year.

He's unsure how he might use them — or whether he will use them at all. They could be abstentions, with 28 teams actually voting. That would make 21 votes necessary for a plan to be approved.

Either way, the NFL commissioner said fans will be the biggest winners. The team's winning formula is revised. The system that favors teams with losing records is out of date, he said, because of league parity.

"Our competition is so even that the weighted system isn't needed," he said. "For the fans, this is a big plus."

Under realignment, great players like quarterbacks John Elway and Dan Marino, who never played against each other in their 15 years together in the NFL, would have had the opportunity to square off during the regular season.

"For fans of the Carolina Panthers, that means (Daunte) Culpepper and (Steve) McNair could come to Ericsson Stadium," the commissioner said, referring to the star quarterback of the Minnesota Vikings and Tennessee Titans, respectively.

'Bullet' Bob Hayes to join Cowboys' Ring of Honor

IRVING, Texas — Imagine if the world's fastest runner had the hands of an NFL receiver. He'd average 20 yards a catch. Fifty-yard touchdowns would be an annual event. And he'd be great at returning punts.

That was the case with Bob Hayes, who took the speed that won two gold medals at the 1960 Olympics and became a rookie sensation with the Dallas Cowboys in 1965.

Hayes' career lasted 11 years, and his impact is still evident. Zone defenses were created to stop him and NFL offenses all crave a breakout threat of his caliber.

Problems with drugs and alcohol after his playing days have likely kept Hayes from being in the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Now 58 and fighting a variety of serious ailments, Hayes is getting a chance to have his career celebrated.

The Cowboys announced Wednesday that Hayes will be inducted into their Ring of Honor this season. No date was picked, but team owner Jerry Jones said he'd like a nationally televised game for added exposure.

Hayes becomes the 11th member of the Ring of Honor, the first since Tony Dorsett and Randy White in 1994, the year they also went into the Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio. Six of the 10 Ring honorees are Hall of Famers.

Dorsett, Roger Staubach and Mel Renfro were among the members of both exclusive groups who attended a news conference-turned-reunion at Texas Stadium.

It's definitely a Hall of Fame football player," Staubach said. "He deserves to be recognized."

McKenzie stays as Packers personnel chief

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Mike Sherman continued shaping his scouting department Thursday by signing Reggie McKenzie, the Green Bay Packers' top personnel director, to a three-year contract extension.

The move came a day after Sherman signed John Dorsey to a three-year extension as the team's college scouting director.

Sherman, the Packers' second-year coach, is assuming the title and duties of general manager with Ron Wolf's retirement, effective June 1.

McKenzie, 38, and Dorsey, 40, are considered two up-and-coming personnel men in the NFL who could be especially important to the Packers with Wolf's departure. Both will have expanded responsibilities, Sherman said. He didn't elaborate.

Taylor fined, loses driver's license in case

TEANECK, N.J. — Hall of Fame linebacker Lawrence Taylor was convicted of possessing drug paraphernalia in a hotel room more than two years ago.

Taylor was fined $1,100 on Wednesday and had his New Jersey driver's license revoked for six months.

Last year, the former New York Giants star was given five years of federal probation for filing false tax returns and for tax evasion. Taylor's lawyer said the conviction should not affect his probation status because the arrest in Teaneck occurred before the federal sentence was imposed.

The drug conviction stems from the September 1998 discovery in a hotel room of a butane torch and other materials commonly used to smoke crack. The room was co-registered to Taylor. A hotel housekeeper notified police of the paraphernalia.

The 41-year-old Taylor, formerly of Saddle River and now living in Florida, was not in court for the judge's decision Wednesday.

Mark A. Bergman, Taylor's Newark-based attorney, said he would immediately appeal.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Former Utah standout moves back to BYU

PROVO, Utah — Ali Bills, a former Utah player and assistant, was hired Thursday as an assistant at BYU by Cougars coach Jeff Judkins.

It's the second stint for Bills as a BYU assistant. She worked on Trent Shippen's staff during the 1999-2000 season, before returning to Utah as an assistant to Elaine Elliott last year.

Bills, who played for the Utes from 1996-98, replaces Tom Gnetling, who resigned last month after completing a graduate degree.

Forsberg undergoes surgery, out for playoffs

DENVER — Within hours of helping the Colorado Avalanche advance to the Western Conference finals, Peter Forsberg walked into his favorite postgame hangout intent on enjoying a subdued celebration.

As he strode through the trendy red-brick restaurant, Forsberg spotted Avalanche general manager Pierre Larocq and team owner Stan Kroenke and told them he had a strange feeling in his stomach. "I don't know what I've got," the six-time All-Star told Larocq.

"I've got too much pain in my stomach. Maybe I drank too much water after the game."

About 30 minutes later, Forsberg's late-night plans changed drastically. He was heading for the emergency room, where tests revealed a ruptured spleen and internal bleeding that required surgery.

While Colorado's Stanley Cup bid marches on, Forsberg's possession is finished following a two-hour operation Thursday morning to remove his spleen. He was listed in good condition and should be able to return next season.

It's Magic: Miller wins NBA rookie award

ORLANDO, Fla. — A year removed from one of the toughest decisions of his life, Mike Miller stood on the podium and accepted the trophy as NBA Rookie of the Year.

"Everybody's going to have their own opinion, and maybe their opinions were right. Maybe I would have been better next year," the Orlando Magic swingman said Thursday. "But it was going to be a transition regardless."

Filling in for injured All-Star Grant Hill, Miller was the only rookie to appear in all of his team's games and beat out New Jersey's Kenyon Martin and Golden State's Marc Jackson for the league's top newcomer award.

The fifth overall pick out of the University of Florida in the 2000 draft averaged 11.9 points, 4 rebounds, 1.7 assists and 29.1 minutes.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — North Carolina All-America guard Joseph Forte will announce he's leaving the Tar Heels for the NBA today, a university official said.

Forte was expected to make the official announcement after finishing an exam Friday morning, the official said on condition of anonymity.

Forte joins a long list of North Carolina players to leave school early for the NBA. Since Michael Jordan did it after his junior year in 1984, the list includes Jerry Stackhouse, Rashad Wallace, Vince Carter, Antawn Jamison, Jeff McInnis and J.R. Reid, all of whom are still in the NBA.

Forte, a 6-foot-4, 185-pound sophomore, averaged 21.6 points, 6.0 rebounds, 3.6 assists and 20 steals this season. North Carolina finished 26-7 and was upset by Penn State in the second round of the NCAA tournament.

Forte was third behind Duke's Shane Barrier and Jason Williams in voting for both The Associated Press All-America team and the Wooden Award, which is given to the national player of the year.

Underclassmen must apply to the NBA by Sunday to be eligible for the league's June 27 draft. Underclassmen can withdraw from the draft by June 20 if they don't sign with an agent.

Fans fought for lives in soccer disaster

ACCRA, Ghana — Trapped under a crush of dead and dying soccer fans in a stadium smoldering, Thomas Akkara gasped for air and began reaching for his wife.

Finally, he stuck his head through a railing and was able to breathe.

"It was so bad, we couldn't stand it. We just thought we were doomed," the 39-year-old Akkara said from his mattress on a hospital floor Thursday, the day after 126 people were killed in Africa's worst sports disaster.

It was the fourth soccer tragedy to strike Africa in a month. Ghana's government declared three days of national mourning.

Accra Hearts of Oak was leading Asante Kotoko of Kumasi 2-1 with five minutes left in the game when Asante supporters began throwing bottles and chairs onto the field Wednesday night at the 45,000-capacity Accra Stadium.

Survivors said police then fired tear gas at the unruly fans, sending a panicked crowd stampeding to the main gates — only to find them locked.

In a televised address to the nation Thursday night, President John Kufuor said six police officers in charge of stadium security had been suspended. He said anyone found negligent would be dealt with severely.

Cameron national soccer coach resigns

YAOUNDE, Cameroon — Jean-Paul Okonko resigned Thursday as coach of Cameroon's soccer team, four days after his nation's first loss in qualifying for the 2002 World Cup.

Okonko (51) could have become the first nation in qualifying to clinch a berth, but lost 2-0 at Angola on Sunday. Security forces were called in to protect Okonko's residence in Yaounde from angry fans who threatened to burn it down.

Former coach Georges-Pierre Lechantre took over as interim coach.

Idaho drivers struggle; Ray runs fastest time

Special to The Times News

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana native Davey Hamilton continued to search for more speed while Haley's Johnny Unser began looking for another ride at the fifth day of practice for the 85th running of the Indianapolis 500 on Thursday.

And with only one day of practice remaining before pole day Saturday, Unser and Hamilton took the track in his assigned ride with the Truescell Racing Team.

Unser began searching for another team to be able to race in his sixth 500 — the Indiana's best finish in the "500" was 22nd in 1997.

Hamilton's fastest lap Thursday was a disappointing 218.510 mph in the Sam Schmidt Motorsports Dallara/Oldsmobile — 27th fastest among 34 drivers.

"The (closing) gun went off before we could finish the run (Wednesday) but we couldn't back it up," Hamilton said. "We need to find about three-miles-an-hour. We've got a long ways to go."

Hamilton said the team has been at a loss with the car to this point.

"We're going all over the map," he said. "Once we get the balance and begin to feel pretty good, we go to trimming it and we lose the balance. We need to settle down and get the primary car out here so we can compare one car to the other."

Hamilton turned his quickest lap of the month Wednesday at 219.132 mph.

Defending race pole winner Greg Ray turned the fastest lap Thursday at 224.542 mph in the Team Menard G-Force/Oldsmobile with Gil de Ferran at 223.597 in the Team Penske Dallara/Oldsmobile at 223.597 and Jeff Ward at 223.432 in the Heritage Motorsports G-Force/Oldsmobile. Thirty-four drivers were on the track Thursday.

Practice continues today with the first qualifying rounds set for Saturday and Sunday.

Sherri Turner also had eight birdies, but a lone bogey kept her from sharing the lead. Carriem Mathew, Jill McGill and Mhairi McKay all had 66s and five more were another stroke back.

Annika Sorenstam, looking for her sixth victory in seven tournaments, was five strokes back after a 69. Two-time player of the year Karris Webb was among a group of six at 68 in her first LPGA tournament since the Nabisco Championship in March.

McGinley and Stenson tied; Olazabai is one shot behind

SUTTON COLDFIELD, England — Irishman Paul McGinley and Henrik Stenson of Sweden shot 6-under-par 66s at The Belfry Thursday to share the first-round lead in the Benson and Hedges International.

Jose Maria Olazabai, winner of the French Open on Sunday and going after successive titles for the first time in his career, was right behind with a 67.

A large group at 68 included European Ryder Cup captain Sam Torrance and Irishman Padraig Harrington, who birdied the last four holes.

Rent-A-Car Match Play Championship

The tournament, formerly known as the Boone Valley Classic, has a new sponsor and a new name. The unique setup calls for two rounds of stroke play followed by match play over the weekend for the top-16 golfers.

The old Boone Valley Classic was 54 holes; the usual length of a Senior PGA Tour event. The new format could be twice as long.

"Fortunately, on the senior tour, we don't use carts," Tom Watson said.

It could take up to six full rounds to win the tournament. Depending on how the head-to-head matches over the weekend unfold, the winner's weekend could end up covering 36 holes each day to determine a winner.

Add in the prospect of a playoff tonight to break ties at the cut line, and the event could go even longer.

Two-time Boone Valley Classic champion Hale Irwin, a St. Louis native, was one shot back with a 68 on the 6,728-yard Boone Valley course, located in the Missouri wine country about an hour west of downtown St. Louis.

Determined Payton builds successful golf program

JACKSON, Miss. — For years, the names Payton and Jackson State University made people think of football.

And for good reason: The late Walter Payton was a star at JSU in the early 1970s before moving on to the NFL and becoming the league's career rushing leader.

These days, Jackson State and the Payton name are getting attention for another sport.

Eddie Payton, Walter's older brother, has built a top golf program at Jackson State and brought national prominence to his men's and women's teams.

On Thursday, the Lady Tigers did history when they tied for in the NCAA East Regional in Chapel Hill, N.C. — the first women's team from a historically black college to advance to the regional championships.

Tony Stewart

Winston Cup Series

A notoriously slow starter, Pontiac driver Tony Stewart is catching fire at the right time. He won Saturday's race at Martinsville, Va., and is seventh in points.

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

Beginning with his first victory at Richmond, Va., in 1999, to the present, Tony Stewart has won more races than any other Winston Cup driver.

Stewart won three races during his rookie season, added six more in 2000 and, once again at Richmond, won for the first time in 2001. What's more, Stewart has announced he'll once again compete in the Indianapolis 500 and the Coca-Cola 600 on the same day, May 27. He also completed the feat in 1999.

Stewart's Richmond victory was the first by a Pontiac driver this season.

Hometown: Columbus, Ind.
Age: 29
Career statistics: 79 starts, four poles, 10 wins, 28 top-five finishes, 49 top-10s. Just over $8 million in earnings.

First: Start (Feb. 14, 1999, at Daytona) pole (April 18, 1999, at Martinsville); win (Sept. 11, 1999, at Richmond)

Car: No. 14 Home Depot Pontiac Grand Prix, owned by Joe Gibbs

Did you expect to win this race once it got started? "This is probably the most competitive Richmond race I've ever been a part of. So many cars and so many drivers were so fast all night long that, on any given run, there were five or six guys that had potential to lead the run. We really didn't know at the end. At the beginning of that run, on low air pressures and on stickers (new tires), we were really bad. I was hoping that as the pressures came up and we got some laps on the tires that our car would come back into it, and it did."

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Jeff Gordon vs. Rusty Wallace

These two have a history, and both were in an awful hurry to take a stab at leader Tony Stewart when NASCAR's red flag gave them one last chance. The result? Bumping during and after the race, and an angry man-to-man confrontation on pit road.

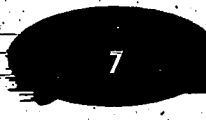

NASCAR This Week's Monte Dutton gives his opinion: "On short tracks, Gordon and Wallace are two of the best. The sight of them racing wheel to wheel at Richmond, Bristol and Martinsville is a familiar one. They were irritated with each other after the race, but by the time the post-race press conferences were over, both had settled down. It's over... for now... or at least until the next time one occupies ground the other wants."

FROM LAST WEEK

Winston Cup	Busch Grand National	Craftsman Truck
RICHMOND, Va. — Rusty Wallace led the most laps in the Pontiac Excitement 400, but true to the race's name, the suspicion was that Pontiac driver Tony Stewart would come to the front. In fact, a look at the results of the past two seasons suggests that notoriety slow starter Tony Stewart keeps coming to the front earlier and earlier. In 1999, as a rookie, Stewart threatened to win several times before finally winning for the first time at Richmond International Raceway on Sept. 11. He went on to win twice more. In 2000, Stewart's first victory occurred on June 4 at Dover, Del. He won five more times afterward. Stewart emerged from an almost race-long battle royal with Wallace to win the aptly named Pontiac Excitement 400 on Saturday night. It was the 10th victory of Stewart's three-year career in NASCAR's highest division.	MADISON, Ill. — Teammates Ted Musgrave and Scott Riggs put together a 1-2 Dodge sweep at Gateway International Raceway in the Ram Tough 200. Owner Jimmy Smith had told his two drivers he would give them brand-new Harley Davidson cycles if they finished 1-2. The runner-up finish helped Riggs move 75 points ahead of Joe Ruttman.

Allen charges former producer of cheating him

NEW YORK (AP)—Woody Allen, the Oscar-winning comic and filmmaker, has sued former friend and producer Jenni Doumanian, charging that she cheated him out of profits from the last eight movies they made together.

Allen says in papers filed late Wednesday in Manhattan's State Supreme Court that Doumanian and her production company have refused to give him regular and accurate financial information about his films' earnings.

Doumanian heads Sweetland Films, which financed the eight movies. Only the production agreement for their first three movies, dated Aug. 1, 1993, is in writing, court papers say. Agreements for the other five were oral and based on the contract for the first three, court papers say.

The movies are: "Bullets Over Broadway," 1994; "Mighty Aphrodite," 1995; "Everyone Says I Love You," 1996; "Deconstructing Harry," 1997; "Wild Man Blues," 1997; "Celebrity," 1998; "Sweet and Lowdown," 1999; and "Small Time Crooks," 2000.

Despite Sam Goldwyn's cautionary dictum that an oral agreement isn't worth the paper it's written on, oral agreements are enforceable if their existence can be proved to a judge's satisfaction. The agreements, court papers

Family reaps reward by gardening together

DEAR ABBY: Mother's Day is approaching, and I'm feeling sentimental. I'd like to tell you what our family used to do on Mother's Day. Mom didn't need any more clothes or jewelry. So for years, all the adult children, grandchildren and in-laws put on our work clothes and showed up at Mom's home on Mother's Day.

I brought the makings for a potluck dinner and plenty of beverages. We would then proceed to till and plant my mother's garden. Mom loved to garden and did so into her 80s, but getting it planted became too much for her. This was not only the perfect time to get the job done for her, but she loved seeing the family working together.

Often what older people enjoy the most is the gift of time and family. They want their independence, but some things can be done much more easily by the children. (Just don't forget to do it the way THEY want it done, and you'll see the joy in their eyes.)

—REMEMBERING IN WISCONSIN
How sweet of you to want to share your family's tradition. I'm sure your efforts pleased your mother mightily, and that every time she looked out her window, she was reminded of the happy memories of Mother's Day and of the gifts of a close family.

There are usually any number of chores to be done around a house, from painting to washing windows, fixing a fence, clearing out a garage, and miscellaneous household repairs too numerous to list. All it takes to get them done is a willing heart and some elbow grease. Of course, it also takes time — and time is the most precious gift of all.

Macedonia, Serbia pledge to work together against militants

Ambassador's wife ruffles Swiss feathers

(GENEVA (AP)) — A woman from the Alps, the most irresistible Swiss export since chocolate, or an affront to decent people?

Shavne Fielding, a former American beauty queen turned Swiss ambassador's wife, has created a furor since a magazine published provocative photos of her last week, posing in the new Swiss Embassy in Berlin.

The 31-year-old career model appears clad in a strapless evening dress atop a horse on the embassy steps in a picture taken in front of the Swiss flag on the embassy roof and wearing the American flag as a necktie — a bejeweled dollar sign above her plunging cleavage.

Titled "Covergirl from the Alps," the spread in the glossy German magazine Max was denounced by Swiss Foreign Minister Joseph Deiss, who ordered an inquiry.

On Thursday, Fielding's husband, Swiss Ambassador Thomas Borer, sought to portray his wife as a committed diplomatic spouse ready to perform her duties at this week's opening of the refurbished embassy.

"My wife loves Switzerland, she loves this building and she will be there in her role as the ambassador's wife," Borer asserted in a statement.

Fielding had offered to stay away from the embassy's opening — which is expected to draw up to 200 people and cost $200,000 — to avoid being photographed.

Some Swiss and the establishment press have expressed outrage over the perceived abuse of diplomatic privilege.

The Borer couple are a scandal and insult to Switzerland and every decent Swiss," exploded Paul Händschlin in a letter printed in the Swiss daily Blick.

Stunned by the outcry, Fielding at first vocally defended the photographs as "neither inappropriate nor unusual" for a career model and decried what she called a campaign to destroy her marriage and her 43-year-old husband's career.

SKOPJE, Macedonia — Macedonia and Serbia leaders pledged to work together to fight ethnic Albanian rebels on both sides of the border with Kosovo, as the army pressed its assault Thursday against the insurgents in northern villages.

Troops sporadically shelled targets in the village of Slupcane, 15 miles north of the capital, Skopje. Col. Blagoja Markovski, an army spokesman, said troops destroyed a rebel bunker. Markovski said the rebels had stopped fighting to bury comrades who had been killed.

The government again urged civilians to leave Slupcane and two other villages believed to be guerrilla strongholds, but no one was seen leaving the area. The army claims the rebels are forcing civilians to stay as human shields, a charge the rebels deny.

Thousands of frightened villagers have been streaming from the area of the fighting and into Kosovo on the Yugoslav side of the border. About 6,000 people, mostly ethnic Albanian women, children and old men, have fled across the border since Monday, the U.N. refugee agency said Thursday.

Israelis rocket Palestinian targets in Gaza Strip

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip — Israeli rockets pounded the offices of Yasser Arafat's Fatah movement and Palestinian police headquarters Thursday in retaliation for a roadside bomb that killed two Romanian workers who were fortifying Israel's border fence with the Gaza Strip.

Twenty Palestinians were wounded in the rocket attack, Palestinian doctors said. The renewed violence was accompanied by bitter verbal exchanges, and neither the Israelis nor Palestinians expressed any optimism that recent diplomatic initiatives would end more than seven months of fighting.

Since the violence erupted last September, Israel has closed off the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, preventing tens of thousands of Palestinians from reaching their jobs inside Israel.

Passenger tries to open emergency exit in flight

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands — A passenger on board a KLM flight from Amsterdam to Newark spat on a flight attendant, threatened passengers with a cane and tried to open the emergency exit while in flight, an official said Thursday.

The 28-year-old Dutchman, whom KLM spokesman Hugo

Bas described as "clearly unstable," ignored orders from flight crew to turn off his mobile phone.

He ripped up his passport and said he would hit passengers and flight attendants. He then took a seat in business class, claiming he suffered from claustrophobia.

At 37,000 feet, he decided it was time to go and tried to open the emergency exit. Bas said, however, due to the cabin pressure, it was impossible to open the aircraft's emergency door.

Company considers plant expansion

RATHDRUM — A North Carolina company building a natural gas plant here may be expanding the project.

North Idaho Power LLC, a subsidiary of Cogentrix Energy, has applied for a water permit that would supply an 800-megawatt natural gas plant. Cogentrix currently is building a 270-megawatt plant scheduled to open in July.

Jeff Freeman, a spokesman at Cogentrix Energy in Charlotte, N.C., Wednesday confirmed the company is considering expansion, but emphasized it has not committed to the project.

"We have made no decision as of yet," Freeman said. "I think it's unfair at this point to make it appear like an absolute."

If built, it would become the fourth power plant in the Rathdrum area.

The proposal follows the announcement last month by Newport Northwest LLC that it would build a 1,300-megawatt plant adjacent to the existing Cogentrix site.

Avista Corp. operates a gas-turbine plant northeast of the Cogentrix site on the Rathdrum Prairie.

Energy analysts say dozens of companies around the Northwest are proposing plants as energy supplies dwindle.

The region will need an additional 3,000 megawatts by 2003, according to figures compiled by the Northwest Power Planning Council.

Plants accounting for 2,800 megawatts currently are under construction, said Jeff King, senior resource analyst for the federal planning agency based in Portland, Ore.

Subsidiary sales help boost mining firm's profits

COEUR D'ALENE — The sale of industrial minerals subsidiaries and record gold production and lower per-ounce costs at the La Camorra gold mine in Venezuela led Hecla Mining Co. to first-quarter earnings of $7.5 million, or 11 cents a share, Hecla said Thursday.

That compares with a loss applicable to common shareholders of $9.3 million, or 14 cents a share, in first quarter 2000.

Hecla recognized a gain of $13 million on the sale of the Kentucky-Tennessee Clay Co. group during the first quarter. The loss from continuing operations before the gain on the sale and before a $2 million charge for deferred dividends to holders of the preferred stock was $3.6 million, or 5 cents a share, compared with $7 million, or 11 cents a share, in first quarter 2000.

March 28, Hecla announced it had closed the sale of wholly owned subsidiaries Kentucky-Tennessee Clay-K-T-Clay de Mexico and K-T Feldspar to the Ingers Group in a cash transaction for $62.5 million.

Following the sale, Hecla paid off its $55 million term loan facility with Standard Bank of London, ahead of the scheduled due date April 10. The payoff improved Hecla's balance sheet and leaves the company with just $13.3 million in long-term debt.

Competition braces for return of Lou Dobbs to CNN

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The arrival of Rupert-bred Lou Dobbs back on the set of CNN's "Moneyline" next Monday is being treated like the return of an emperor. But not everyone is being so welcoming.

CNBC is responding by expanding its rival "Business Center" to two hours, instituting format changes and scheduling an exclusive interview with one of the world's richest men on the same day Dobbs starts.

The veteran anchor should take that as a compliment, and evidence of the outsized importance of these two nightly business wrap-up programs to their cable networks given their relatively small audiences.

Dobbs, a 1963 graduate of Minico High School, certainly isn't worrying about high expectations, fueled in part by some tongue-in-cheek promotions airing incessantly on his network.

"I suppose I've never been accused of a lack of confidence," he said. "I've been brought back to do a job that I was very comfortable doing for 19 years. I'm very comfortable with my audience and very comfortable with the material."

Dobbs, 56, left the program he started nearly two years ago after feuding with since-departed manager and joined a start-up Internet firm. His return was negotiated this spring by

Meat, milk prices may rise

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Shoppers take note: Don't look for meat bargains on don't and milk this year. The government expects U.S. livestock, poultry and dairy producers to charge more, even as they pay less to grain farmers.

Fluctuations in grain prices generally have little impact on consumer costs, since the price of raw ingredients generally accounts for only a small part of the cost of processed foods.

"That isn't true of meat, but prices are expected to rise for beef as well because of a combination of reduced supplies and the continued demand for the high quality beef cuts," USDA economist Annette Clauson said.

The Agriculture Department forecast Thursday that cattle prices to average $74 to $78 per hundred pounds this year, up from $69.65 last year. Hog prices are expected to remain steady this year at about $44 to $46 per hundred pounds.

"We're entering a bullish cycle on cattle," said Don Roose, an analyst with U.S. Commodities Inc. "There's no reason to see we're not going to continue that direction."

Prices for broiler chickens, eggs and milk are expected to be higher as well.

The department expects retail beef prices to rise 3 to 4 percent this year. Overall, food prices are expected to increase by nearly 2.5 percent, less than the expected cost of living, Clauson said.

Vegetables are likely to cost 4 percent more this year because growers have cut back on acreage, but fruit prices are likely to be down because of over-production of apples and other crops.

"The department had good news Thursday for when farmers plant corn that the price will climb about $2.05 per bushel this year, up from $2.63 last year, because of shrinking U.S. production and tighter world supplies.

Because of a drought on the southern Plains, this year's harvest of winter wheat is forecast at 1.34 billion bushels, down 14 percent from last year. It would be the lowest crop in 23 years. Winter wheat is planted in the fall and harvested the next spring.

Corn prices are expected to fluctuate, at about $1.85 a bushel, as farmers are still recovering from last year's crop. Soybean prices are expected to decline to $4.20 a bushel, down from $4.40 in 2000.

Soybean production is expected to set a record of 1 billion bushels this year, an increase of nearly 8 percent over last year. Farmers have been planting more soybeans, partly to take advantage of favorable federal subsidies.

The lower prices will be absorbed by taxpayers — not farmers — because of government price supports that guarantee grain farmers a minimum price for their crops. The floor for soybeans is $5.26 a bushel. For corn, it's $1.89.

"It's almost nonsensical, but we could keep sending soybean prices down, down, down, but farmers are still guaranteed that they're going to get over $5," said Bill Nelson, an analyst with A.C. Edwards & Sons.

Rice prices are expected to drop to $5.50 per hundred pounds, down about 10 cents from last year.

The projected price declines likely will increase pressure on Congress to approve a fourth straight year of supplemental farm assistance. Congress has given farmers $25 billion in emergency aid over the last three years, mostly to compensate for a steep drop in grain prices.

Farmers have been cutting back on wheat plantings for several years and switching to more lucrative crops such as soybeans. This year, much of the nation's winter wheat crop is in relatively poor condition.

Boeing picks Chicago

Aircraft maker finds central location for new headquarters

The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Boeing Co. on Thursday landed its world headquarters in Chicago, the winner of an intense three-way sweepstakes that still leaves tens of thousands of Boeing workers behind in jilted Seattle.

Passing over runners-up Dallas-Eort Worth and Denver, the aerospace giant ended two months of suspense and made final its decision to move its corporate office from the city where it was founded 85 years ago.

In a flashy, finish to an unusual competition marked by clank and clangier in Boeing executives informed the cities of the verdict after their corporate jet took off from Seattle for a secret destination that turned out to be Chicago's Midway Airport.

Hours later, their jet rolled up in front of a crowd of applauding state and city officials. A red carpet was unfurled to the foot of the plane.

Boeing Chairman Philip Condit said he made the final decision after examining all the data, citing the "ability to get anywhere in the world" easily from Chicago. But he insisted no single factor made the difference.

"We are here not because we wanted to leave Seattle, but because we wanted to build a bigger, more capable Boeing Co.," Condit said. "We believe that having our world headquarters separate from any one of our major businesses will help us to achieve our goals of growing this company."

Rather, Boeing has fewer than 500 employees in Chicago but immediately becomes Illinois' biggest company, its $51.3 billion in 2000 revenues ranking it ahead of Sears, Motorola, McDonald's and United Airlines.

Jubilant state and local officials cited not only the prestige of luring a world-class corporation but the economic and civic benefits they expect to follow.

The Illinois House burst into applause when the news was announced, and Gov. George Ryan and Chicago Mayor Richard Daley greeted Boeing executives at Midway.

"This is a great day for the state."

Qwest chairman could net $30 million from stock sales

The Associated Press

DENVER — Qwest Communications International Inc. Chairman Joseph Nacchio stands to net more than $30 million from three stock sales filed in the past week.

Nacchio made $93.7 million cashing out options last year and is on his way to beating that number this year.

Nacchio netted around $40 million in the first quarter of this year.

The sales are part of a previously announced program in which Nacchio will cash out millions of stock options by June 2003. He still has about 5 million options that can be optioned by then, and 19 million options overall.

Qwest, which now offers local telephone service in much of the Magie Valley, granted Nacchio the options when he joined the company several years ago.

Nacchio briefly went to a daily stock-selling program earlier this year. That was netting him about $350,000 a day in pretax profit.

The daily stock-sales program was halted after just a few weeks in early March because the Qwest stock was undervalued, Nacchio said.

Nacchio has said he is selling quarterly to avoid market disruption.

"I know these are big numbers," Nacchio said last week. But he said he was not embarrassed and would not apologize for them, citing Qwest's growth and success.

"I'm not at the top even though Qwest outperforms other companies," he said.

Qwest acquired U.S. West last June.

The stock-selling program became a point of contention for U.S. West retirees who complained about Qwest's executive compensation and severance packages.

Shareholders resisted a proposal by the retirees that would have required shareholder approval of executive severance packages.

Surprise: Many retailers see better-than-expected profits

Combined wire reports

NEW YORK — Many of the nation's retailers reported an increase in sales for April, but Wall Street analysts don't see this as a reassuring sign that consumer spending is on the rebound.

Rather, consumers are continuing to struggle with rising energy prices as well as a deepening economic malaise that are making them less confident about spending, analysts said.

Department stores fared the worst, according to results announced Thursday.

However, J.C. Penney Co., which has been struggling, posted sales that beat Wall Street expectations.

Discounters, particularly Wal-Mart Stores Inc., appeared to be the clear winners. Wal-Mart, the world's largest retailer, turned in a better-than-expected 5.5 percent increase in sales at stores open at least a year, known as same-store sales. That was above

Developers find four-year-old corpse in his home

Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO — For the past four years, many of Adolph Stec's elderly neighbors figured the reclusive man had abandoned his small, neatly trimmed bungalow to the growing weeds and bushes.

Over time, work crews came by to shut off his water, his gas, his electricity. For years, the mailman bypassed his residence at 5339 N. Central Ave., thinking it was vacant. Once in a while, a neighbor would mow the lawn or knock on the door and receive no answer.

But it wasn't until Tuesday morning that the developers who bought Stec's home at a tax auction three years ago finally stepped inside to find a man's body almost completely decomposed in his living room chair. A newspaper from 1997 was at his side.

Police described the remains as "mummified."

It may take weeks for the Cook County medical examiner's office to identify the body, because little is left beyond skeleton and teeth. But neighbors on Wednesday couldn't help but come to the conclusion that it was Stec.

"One day about four years ago he said hello from across the yard, and I never saw him again," said next-door neighbor Peter Vella, 66, as he was cutting his front lawn Wednesday afternoon. The grass in his yard got as high as 2 feet, so for two or three years I mowed his too. I didn't want the neighborhood to go to pot."

Ronald Ohr had been searching for Stec for months, even questioning his former landlords and looking for relatives with no success, said his wife, Jeanne.

Ohr had assumed Stec's unpaid property taxes at auction in 1998 after Stec had failed to pay since 1996. Only recently had the property been officially turned over to
