The Rev. Greg Fadness of the Lighthouse Christian Fellowship is one outspoken critic of Planned Parenthood's plan to open a clinic in Twin Falls within six to nine months.

Planned Parenthood splits churches

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Some southern Idaho religious leaders have little faith in the mission of Planned Parenthood. Others believe. Either way, when Planned Parenthood recently confirmed its intent to open a clinic in Twin Falls within six to nine months, church people listened. And reacted.

Pastor Greg Fadness, of the Twin Falls Lighthouse Christian Fellowship, is not a proponent of the organization.

"From my understanding, Planned Parenthood, at least in general, leans toward abortion as at least a viable alternative, and sometimes the thing to do," he said. "I strongly disagree and oppose that mentality."

Fadness explained that his non-denominational church is not a political action group, though it does have people who are involved in Twin Falls' Pregnancy Crisis Center, which helps women address unwanted pregnancies and gives counseling on the virtues of abstinence among teenagers.

Down the street, at the Twin Falls First United Methodist Church, the Rev. Jim Frisbie says there are local people involved in bringing Planned Parenthood to the area.

"I think Planned Parenthood is needed and is long overdue," he said. "The statistics I've seen say we have significantly higher than average teen pregnancies, and this organization is really not an abortion referral outfit, but is more about birth control and prenatal care."

In fact, Planned Parenthood, which receives federal funding from the Title 10 Family Planning Program, is a provider of gynecological and reproductive services, sex education, and low-cost birth control. Clinicians in Twin Falls would be authorized to dispense emergency contraception (the "morning-after pill"), acknowledged Rebecca Poedy, a spokeswoman for Planned Parenthood, but not RU486 - the pill that induces abortion up to three months into a pregnancy.

Also, abortion providers would not be on the premises in Twin Falls, but women could receive referral information to other sites where abortions are performed.

Shooting results in prison for Buhl man

By Mark Heinz
Times-News writer

MOUNTAIN HOME - A Buhl man will serve at least 10 and possibly 17 years in prison in connection with the Nov. 4 shooting death of another man; Elmore County Prosecutor Aaron Bazzoli said Thursday.

The sentence is part of a plea agreement under which Fred Featherston, 51, has pleaded guilty to second-degree murder and one count of second-degree kidnapping in the death of William Kepner, 38, at Kepner's home near Glenns Ferry.

"It's made the defendant admit that what he did was murder and not manslaughter," Bazzoli said.

Featherston was initially charged with first-degree murder and two counts of second-degree kidnapping. He pleaded guilty last week to an amended charge of second-degree murder, and one of the kidnapping charges was dropped, Bazzoli said.

During a preliminary hearing for Featherston late last year, Kepner's children - Dusty, 16, and Jake, 12 - testified that Featherston on Nov. 4 came into their home with a shotgun while they were alone with their 4-year-old brother. The children testified that Featherston told them he intended to kill their father when he got home. Featherston did not directly threaten the children with the gun, according to their testimony, but did threaten to shoot them if they tried to leave.

Kepner's widow, Tina Kepner, said she and her husband had gone duck hunting that day. When they returned home to find Featherston's vehicle in front of their home, William Kepner became alarmed and retrieved his own shotgun before going into the house, she said.

Tina Kepner testified that her husband and Featherston at first had a standoff with their shotguns leveled at each other, but SINAI, N.Y. - As freed scholar Gao Zhan returned to the United States on Thursday, China's most prominent jailed dissident sat hunched in pain on a prison seat during a monthly visit from his wife.

Xu Wenli, 58, suffers from hepatitis and chronic back pain, his wife says. But Xu has been refused medical parole, which Gao was granted just two days after being sentenced to 10 years in prison on spying charges.

China's prisons hold many others who their families say are too sick to be behind bars, with ailments ranging from heart disease and tuberculosis to mental illness.

But even though "medical parole" was the reason Beijing

Eco-terrorist group releases recruitment video

The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. - In an effort to recruit clandestine cell members and explain its reasons for torching and vandalizing resorts, factories, research labs and farms across the country, the Earth Liberation Front "press office" is releasing a 20-minute promotional video.

Called "Igniting the Revolution: An Introduction to the Earth Liberation Front," the video sells for $10 a copy and was to be shown on a sidewalk in front of Portland Community College this evening.

The video features burning buildings, oil spills, hillsides stripped of trees, anti-capitalist rhetoric and an outline of the ELF's radical environmentalist ideology. Logos of corporations such as Starbucks, Nike, Taco Bell, Pepsi, McDonalds and Bank of America also flash across the screen.

"With one night's work, a few individuals can accomplish what years of legal battles and millions of dollars most likely did not," one of the video's narrators tells viewers.

Recruitment is a main goal of the video, said Craig Rosebraugh, who speaks for the short, oily group and runs its national "press office" from his Portland home, but insists he is not an ELF member.

"Take initiative. Form your own cell, and do what needs to be done to protect all life on this planet," the narrator intones.

Assistant U.S. Attorney for Oregon Stephen Peifer, based in Portland, said the video advocates the commission of serious state and federal crimes - including arson and extortion. "These are crimes that carry very stiff penalties, in some cases mandatory minimum (sentences)," he said.

The ELF and a sister organization - the Animal Liberation Front - have claimed responsibility for more than two dozen acts of vandalism since 1997 - arson

Archaeologists find graves near Dead Sea Scrolls site

QUMRAN, West Bank - Archaeologists digging close to the site where the Dead Sea Scrolls were found have discovered a mausoleum and a nearby coffin that may have held the bodies of important leaders from the early days of Christianity.

While the researchers say the new find is highly intriguing, they may never know who is buried at the site.

The mausoleum and the coffin were found in the barren hills overlooking the Dead Sea, only a few hundreds yards from caves where the Dead Sea

Scrolls were found in 1947. The archaeologists also found a previously undetected cave, where they uncovered a mat and fabric woven from goat's hair, which may shed extra light on its inhabitants, who lived there around the 1st century A.D.

Speaking at the excavation site Thursday, Hanan Eshel, a professor at Tel Aviv's Bar Ilan University, told The Associated Press the mystery grave was located a year ago using state-of-the-art radar equipment.

But grave robbers, who presumably saw the archaeologists looking around the area last year, had already plundered the site by the time the formal dig began. "We were able to take out what the robbers had left us, which was the bottom of the coffin and it was very interesting," said Eshel, a co-leader of the dig by American and Israeli archaeologists.

gave for releasing Gao and another U.S.-linked scholar, critics argue it is politics — not health — that determines who is freed and when.

Gao and Qin Guangguang — both scholars with permanent U.S. residency sentenced to 10 years in prison for espionage — were released just before Secretary of State Colin Powell arrives Saturday. Days earlier, Li Shaomin, a U.S. citizen also convicted of spying, was deported to the United States.

The scholars' fates were caught up in the intricate politics surrounding U.S.-Chinese ties. Their arrest and trials satisfy Western-style Chinese hard-liners. The releases and expulsions placate U.S. demands and those within China leaning toward better ties.

Meanwhile, other prisoners languish outside the glare of diplomatic attention.

Senior Condit aide

talks with investigators

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A senior aide to Rep. Gary Condit has been interviewed by investigators looking into the disappearance of Chandra Levy and another has offered, through his attorney, to talk to authorities, law enforcement sources said Thursday.

Michael Dayton, Condit's spokesman, was interviewed earlier this month, one source said. His chief of staff, Michael Lynch, contacted authorities through his attorney after learning that investigators were interested in talking to staff members.

USA Today reported Thursday that authorities are investigating whether Dayton urged a former female staff member who said she had an affair with Condit not to speak to law enforcement officials. The newspaper quoted Florida Argentinian McKay, 29, as saying that Dayton called her several times in May and told her to "leave the affair" in the past or it will ruin you.

McKay went to the FBI on May 16 and described her relationship with Condit after learning of the California Democrat's newspaper reported. Her account is similar to that of Anie Marie Smith, a flight attendant who had a year-long affair with Condit and has told investigators that the congressman himself repeatedly urged her not to talk to investigators. Condit has not denied having a relationship with Smith, but he has said he never discouraged anyone from cooperating.

Marina Chin, a spokeswoman for Condit, would not comment about Dayton Thursday. Abbe Lowell, Condit's attorney, did not return telephone calls.

Although the disappearance of Levy on May 3 is considered a missing persons case, which by definition means no crime has been committed, the allegations by Smith and now McKay are of interest to authorities because of possible obstruction of justice. Smith has also alleged that Condit's representatives asked her to sign a false affidavit denying the affair.

Law enforcement sources said investigators are interested in any allegations about obstruction of justice in the Levy case. But at the same time, the sources said Thursday that these allegations were not their primary focus and that they remained what one called a "back-burner" issue.

Fire spokesman Ron Steffens said the wind had died down by 7 p.m. and no homes had been lost. He said fire crews would stay near the homes through the night to monitor the situation.

He warned that weather conditions are not expected to improve today, meaning the fire would likely begin another run once afternoon winds picked up again.

Earlier in the afternoon, firefighters pulled back as the wind pushed the blaze past a natural firebreak and made forward positions too dangerous.

that Planned Parenthood offers are already available through South-Central District Health, Poedy explained, but there is a waiting list in the district.

Dr. Brad Hobbs, Twin Falls Idaho Stake president for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, said the LDS Church has no statement concerning serious providers, but it does oppose "elective abortions for personal or social convenience."

"We are pro-adoption," Hobbs said, "and the church has strong services in our area to help people with adoptions."

The LDS Church has also issued an official statement on birth control: "It is the privilege of married couples who are able to bear children to provide mortal bodies for the spirit children of God whom they are then responsible to nurture and rear. Decisions as to how many children to have and when to have them is extremely private and intimate and should be left between the couple and the Lord."

Hobbs responded to the fact that Planned Parenthood can provide teens with birth control supplies without parental notification by saying, "We think parents should be involved with their children."

That's the ideal, said Frisbie, but "if young people are going to Planned Parenthood for birth control materials, they obviously don't have parental support and

Senate votes to back tougher truck standards

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate ignored a Bush administration veto threat on Thursday and voted to back tougher safety standards than the White House wants for Mexican trucks entering the United States.

Regulating Mexican trucks

Breaking a Republican filibuster Thursday, the Senate moved closer to a vote that could tighten requirements on Mexican trucks traveling into the United States. Here are highlights from the proposed bill.

| | Presently | Proposed |
|------------------------------|---|---|
| Absence of border inspectors | Only two out of 27 border crossings are open July 24 hours a day. Trucks crossing the Mexican border during off hours are not subject to inspection. | The Department of Transportation would only allow Mexican trucks to cross at border inspection facilities. |
| Unfulfilled enforcement | Many inspectors at the border do not enforce federal registration regulations when they differ from state requirements. | State inspectors funded by the federal government would check for federal violations. |
| Unverified licenses | Most border crossing inspections do not have telephone three or computer access to confirm licenses and other documents carried by Mexican truck drivers are valid. | Appropriate communication lines would be placed at every border crossing to allow inspectors to check the status of licenses and documents. |

SOURCE: Senate report accompanying the bill

ty leader to stop a Republican filibuster. Under Senate rules, 60 votes were needed to end the delays, and all 50 Democrats, one independent and 19 Republicans voted to do so.

The House last month approved an even more restrictive plan to completely block Mexican trucks from being able to drive throughout the United States and beyond the roughly 20-mile wide commercial zone north of the Mexico-U.S. border. Bush has threatened to veto that version as well.

McCain and Gramm have said they have enough support - 34 votes - to uphold a Bush veto. But in Thursday's vote, they garnered only 30.

Bush and his GOP allies had said the proposed Senate requirements would be so expensive and time-consuming to meet that the administration would miss its goal of allowing Mexican trucks to drive throughout the United States on Jan. 1. They also said the standards were a violation of the 8-year-old North American Free Trade Agreement because they imposed tougher requirements on Mexico than exist for Canadian trucks.

"It is wrong for the Congress to discriminate against Mexican trucks," Bush said at the White House shortly before the vote.

"And I urge the Senate to reject an amendment to the transportation bill that would clearly discriminate against Mexican trucks."

But Sens. Patty Murray, D-Wash., and Richard Shelby, R-

Ala., the chief author of the tougher requirements, said their proposal did not violate NAFTA and was aimed at improving traffic safety.

A vote against their plan, Murray said, was a vote "to expose Americans to new danger on our highways."

Bush has made free trade and better relations with Mexico major goals. But in Thursday's vote, those priorities succumbed to safety concerns and the clout of the Teamsters union.

There were also worries - voiced privately by some senators - that highway projects for their states that were included in the legislation might be jeopardized if they voted to weaken the safety requirements.

Murray and Shelby are the senior members of the Senate Appropriations transportation subcommittee, giving them a major say in which home-state projects survive in the bill's final version.

GOP leaders even made a bid to win the votes of farm-state Democratic senators. They circulated a letter citing comments by a Mexican official that if the access of Mexican trucks to the United States was hindered, that country might retaliate by restricting U.S. imports of high-fructose corn syrup.

The vote came after days of negotiations failed to produce a breakthrough compromise.

Phillip Morris executive apologizes for report

NEW YORK (AP) - Tobacco giant Phillip Morris Cos. has apologized for a company-funded study that stated the early deaths of smokers is one of the "positive effects" of cigarette consumption.

"We understand that this was not only a terrible mistake, but that it was wrong," Steven Parrish, a Phillip Morris senior vice president, told The Wall Street Journal in Thursday's edition. "To say it's totally inappropriate is an understatement."

The study by research company Arthur D. Little International concluded that the financial benefits to the Czech Republic government from duties and taxes paid by consumers, importers and tobacco businesses outweighed the costs of health care, lost working days and fire caused by cigarettes.

On top of that, it said, were the "indirect positive effects" of early deaths - savings on health care, pensions, welfare and housing for the elderly. The government's net gain from the tobacco industry was $146 million, it said.

The study's conclusions were reported last week in The Wall Street Journal and since then have caused widespread publicizing response from columnists and television talk show hosts.

Idaho Sens. Larry Craig and Mike Crapo voted with the minority to weaken the regulations.

Sens. John McCain, R-Ariz., and Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who have led the effort to weaken the safety provisions, have promised additional procedural delays. Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said he hoped to complete the bill by week's end, but it was unclear how long that would take.

Even so, Thursday's vote made it clear that it was probably just a matter of time until the Senate approves the proposed requirements. They include inspections of Mexican trucks and drivers, audits of Mexican trucking companies and more inspectors and scales at the 27 U.S. border stations.

The roll call was a feather in Daschle's cap as he managed to prevail in his first effort as majori-

Lobbyists push for permanent tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) - Business lobbyists pledged Thursday to join House Republicans in an all-out effort this fall to make permanent the just-passed $1.35 trillion tax cut, which under current law would expire at the end of 2010.

The National Association of Manufacturers, National Federation of Independent Business, U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Wholesaler-

Distributors sent representatives to the Capitol to discuss strategy for the measure with GOP lawmakers. They said they were speaking on behalf of about 1,000 organizations that want to get rid of the tax cut's "sunrise" provision.

"It makes no sense, in our view," said Michael Baroody, National Association of Manufacturers' executive vice president. "We're committed to working together to finish the job."

FDA to decide safety of flu inhalant vaccine

WASHINGTON (AP) - Government scientists will recommend today whether a simple nasal spray instead of a shot could protect Americans, including very young children, from the flu.

But first, advisers to the Food and Drug Administration will debate the safety of Aviron's FluMist because the nasal vaccine is made with live flu virus instead of the killed virus in today's flu shots.

If the panel backs FluMist, and if the FDA ultimately approves the vaccine, it will not be for everyone. Aviron hopes initially to sell FluMist for healthy people, from 1-year-old toddlers up to 64-year-old adults. No one yet knows if it is safe for the elderly and people with asthma or other illnesses, those most at risk for complications from the flu. Studies in those groups are under way.

A painless flu vaccine could persuade more Americans to get the annual protection. About 70 million get today's flu vaccine, a shot in the arm, each year. Yet influenza still kills 20,000 Americans each year and hospitalizes about 100,000.

Stamp raises millions to aid in cancer fight

ASHINGTON (AP) - A special fund-raising postage stamp for breast cancer has brought in $21.5 million for research with a year left to circulate.

Under legislation passed by Congress, the breast cancer stamp will remain on sale until the summer of 2002.

The stamp, called a semipostal, sells for 40 cents and the amount of money received in excess of the 34-cent postage rate is donated to research into breast cancer. So far some $12.7 million of the stamps have been sold.

No one gets enough water this year

Here we go again! For the second time this year, the Twin Falls Times-News is taking sides in a water dispute that has far-reaching impacts for the Magic Valley and the state, a dispute that has the potential to divide the water community by setting surface-water users against groundwater users, and a dispute that shouldn't be settled in court or the newspaper. This time The Times-News is erroneously claiming that groundwater pumping and groundwater users are causing the water shortages we're experiencing.

Let's face facts. We are experiencing a drought of historic proportions. This is the second lowest water year on record. Snow pack and rainfall have been below normal for the last two years. Some stream flows are less than 25 percent of average. Reservoirs are drying up. Canal companies and irrigation districts throughout the Snake River are being squeezed. All of which contributes to what The Times-News describes as the "diminishing amount of water flowing." Simply administering water rights by priority is not going to take the pressure off Magic Valley farmers and they know that even if The Times-News doesn't.

The Harrison Canal Co. near Ririe has a water right dating back to 1889. They normally divert 500 cubic feet per second and are now diverting 60 cubic feet per second. The Aberdeen-Springfield Canal Co. located at the American Falls springs expects to run short of water in mid-August. Yet they are not running to the Idaho Department of Water Resources saying it's the fault of groundwater users.

Two hundred thousand acres in the Twin Falls area are affected. Across the Snake River Plain, there are approximately 1.6 million acres of irrigated land.

860,000 acres is groundwater and 718,000 is surface irrigated. All these farmers on all those acres are affected. All these farmers are "entitled" to more than what they're getting. Taking over 125,000 acres (mostly groundwater acres) out of production in the electrical buyback this year didn't alleviate the water shortage.

In Twin Falls, the drought and the tensions accompanying are being used to manipulate a decision on conjunctive management. That is the real dispute. And The Times-News isn't helping when it advocates one side over the other and fans fears and tensions on both sides by suggesting that if only surface water were administered by priority and groundwater pumping were curtailed, we would not be experiencing a water shortage now or in the future.

Many members of Idaho Ground Water Appropriators Inc. are also members of irrigation districts and canal companies and vice-versa. They sit on the same boards, farm adjacent acres, live next door to each other. And whether they are surface or groundwater users, or both as is often the case, they are "on bend-knee" trying to deal with the drought, poor prices, electricity and other production costs, and water issues like conjunctive management. They are working to find viable solutions for themselves, their neighbors and their communities. What they aren't doing is wasting time on senseless accusations that will take more land out of production, put more farmers out of business and harm Idaho's economy. And they aren't taking advantage of the drought to further their own agenda on conjunctive management.

Once again, we call for The Times-News to work responsibly toward the best solution for all water users - including those 200,000 surface acres in Twin Falls - or step aside for those who will work toward that goal. The drought will eventually end. Groundwater pumping shouldn't.

Lynn Tomlinaga is the executive director of Idaho Ground Water Appropriators Inc.

Cultural understanding translates to success on Web

Efforts to make English the nation's official language may play well in some political circles but could be a death knell to commerce in the multilingual world of the Internet, where English is becoming less spoken.

English is even losing ground in the United States, where the Hispanic population alone grew 53 percent in the last decade. It's no surprise that Spanish is booming on the Web. So are other languages to the point that by 2005, 57 percent of Internet users will speak something other than English as a first language.

E-commerce sites that can't speak the language of a multicultural world and its savvy consumers will be left behind, creating a new digital divide of those that get it and those that don't. To thrive in e-commerce, companies must break the language barrier so consumers can feel comfortable and confident when doing business online.

The digital divide between rich and poor countries persists. A new U.N. report shows that developing countries with a relatively well-educated population such as India have thrived in this high-tech world but many others lag far behind. It will take more than giving people computers and modems to bridge that gap. It will take cultural understanding and respect.

For companies and e-commerce sites that want to reach new markets, that process should begin at home - with the understanding that not all Americans speak the same language. Not getting that message has a costly price.

In the United States alone, online retail grew 66 percent last year to $45 billion. That number is expected to grow to more than $26 billion in 2005, according to Forester Research Inc., a Cambridge, Mass., consultant. U.S. ethnic groups alone are expected to spend $3.1 billion on Internet access, almost equal to the $3.3 billion total U.S. Internet access market last year.

To attract that growing market, businesses need to develop specialized content targeting those consumers in their language and culture.

JAMES L. MCNEIL

Just as consumers are culturally different, so is their shopping experience. They don't all buy products and services the same way. Take the French supermarket giant Carrefour - one of the largest retailers in the world. When Carrefour opened a store in Russia, they found their founder's retailing sensibilities faced a competitor that offered a no-questions-asked return policy and competitive prices on everything from fresh-baked bread to clothing - something unheard of there.

Although Carrefour used its worldwide strategy to compete, which has worked in other countries in Europe and South America, the retailer was also wise enough to not ignore Japan's customs. Carrefour adjusted its merchandise and policies to fit the customs of the Japanese consumer - selling vegetables in packages of three rather than by weight, for example.

Understanding cultural differences is critical to success in a national or global market. Knowing that the word "sale" in French, for example, means "dirty" is critical in today's business.

Translating words will never be as easy as pushing a computer button - and it's not the answer. When an ad for the "Got milk?" campaign was translated into Spanish, it came out as "Are you lactating?" Funny, yes. But in business, who can afford to be laughed at?

Success in a global marketplace requires localization and an awareness of the targeted culture. Carrefour knows this. It also requires having the right content. If your Web site's content isn't relevant to the market being targeted, users won't return - and they'll take their money elsewhere.

Some services require a more sensitive approach. For example, when it comes to issues such as health care and finances, people are more comfortable conversing in a language that is familiar to them. That's why more Web sites such as First Union Bank and Nasdaq.com are reaching out to customers in more than one language. Nasdaq.com, for example, offers information in several languages, including Italian, German, Spanish, Finnish, Swedish and Russian.

Russian? Yes. The Russian consumer market is growing. The number of Russian Internet users has increased by more than 50 percent to about 4 million people. By 2003, there will be about 11 million Internet users in Russian - 22 million eyeballs for ads, products and services. Global businesses face other concerns.

How do you ship your products?

Do you use MasterCard, Visa or cash - and whose currency? Those issues can be solved with localization and cultural understanding.

When everyone is speaking the same language and is in a familiar setting, business runs smoothly. More than 78 million Web users don't speak English - proving that WWW does stand for World Wide Web. As the emphasis on World Wide grows, the companies that get it will benefit.

Police report armed robbery at local store

TWIN FALLS - Police were investigating a reported armed robbery at the Big Smoke Fine Tobacco store at 551 Blue Lakes Blvd. Thursday night.

A spokeswoman for the Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center said a clerk was alone in the store when the robbery occurred. There was a weapon involved, but no one was injured. The spokeswoman had no other information.

The Big Smoke store, which opened about a year ago in Twin Falls, is open until 10 p.m. on weeknights. It sells numerous tobacco products, beer, wine, soda and other beverages.

Troopers confirm identity of hit-and-run suspect

TWIN FALLS - An Idaho State Police captain said Thursday that investigators have confirmed the identity of the driver of a pickup that witnesses said struck and killed a Twin Falls man late Tuesday.

Jeffrey L. McCoy, 38, of Burley was the driver of a 2000 Dodge Dakota pickup that struck Kelly Olson, 27, while Olson was inline skating along U.S. Highway 30 about two miles east of Kimberly, Capt. David Neal said.

"He definitely was the driver of the vehicle, and the accident report lists him as such," Neal said.

Witnesses said the driver of the vehicle that struck McCoy kept going after the accident.

Neal said charges were pending in connection with the accident, but he did not say what those might be or when they would be filed. Investigators Thursday were still trying to determine exactly what McCoy had been doing in the hours before the accident and where he went and what he did afterward, Neal said.

McCoy on Wednesday contacted his attorney, who in turn contacted the ISP, Neal said.

Governor declares Twin Falls drought emergency

BOISE - Twin Falls County's request for a drought emergency declaration was approved Thursday by acting Gov. Jack Pritchard.

Pritchard made the declaration at the request of the Twin Falls County Commission "because water supplies in your county are projected to be inadequate for a full irrigation supply and because irrigators in your county have limited or no surface water storage."

Gov. Dirk Kempthorne had previously issued a declaration for the Salmon Tract service area of the Salmon River Canal Company.

The declaration allows holders of water rights in the county to apply to the Department of Water Resources for expedited processing of temporary changes in points of diversion and place or purpose of water use under existing water rights.

Twin Falls is the 27th Idaho county where Kempthorne has declared a drought emergency.

Fire burns 3,500 acres, some cattle near Wells

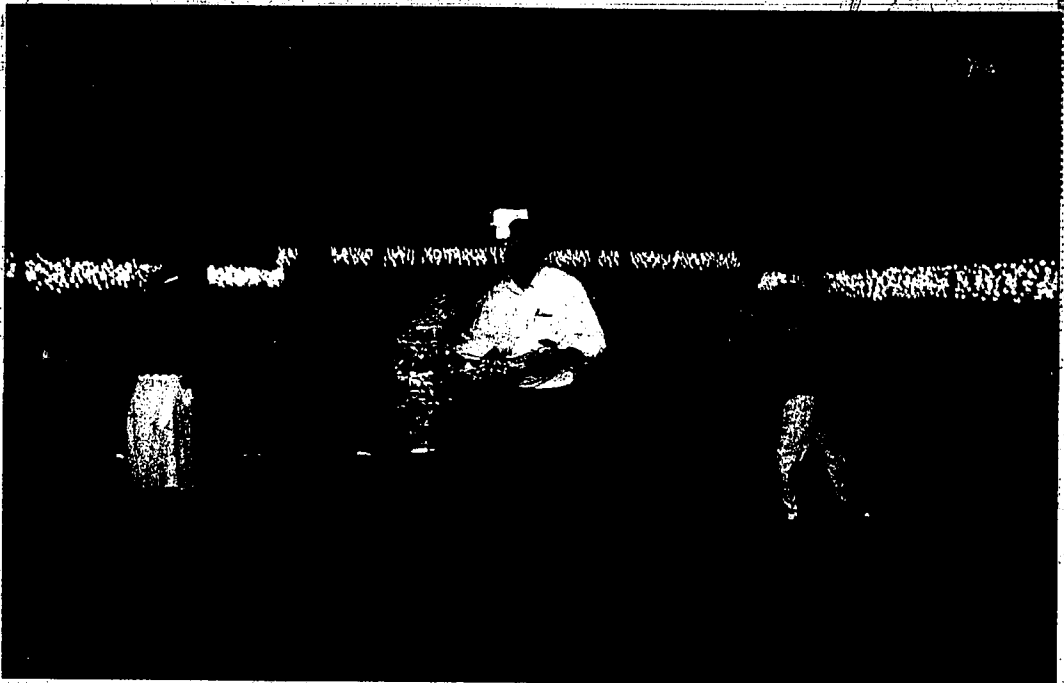

WELLS, Nev. - A 3,500-acre fire that reportedly killed 10 cattle could be contained by the weekend, the Bureau of Land Management said.

The Tabor Creek Fire, burning in sagebrush and grass west of Loomis Mountain 20 miles north of Wells, was started by lightning at 4:20 p.m. Wednesday, the agency said in a news release Thursday evening. A Type III incident management team and about 140 other firefighters had the blaze about 10 percent contained as of 11 a.m. Thursday. Crews are expected to have it fully contained by 6 p.m. today.

Early reports indicate that the fire killed 10 cattle Wednesday night, the release said. Fire crews and ranchers were working to assess the damages to accounts for cattle in the area. Threats to livestock, wildlife habitat and grazing are high, but no structures are threatened, the release said.

Spanbauers' Saturday night barn dances may be winding down

By Dixie Thomas Reale
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - Jerome County could soon see the end of a Saturday-night tradition.

John and Marie Spanbauer, both over 80 years old, are getting tired and want to retire their farm for sale. With it goes the big stone barn where the Spanbauers have hosted dances for years.

The Spanbauer Saturday night barn dances are reminiscent of the old-time Saturday night socials where the entire town turned out and the kids were welcome too. The Spanbauer dances help to recapture that friendly atmosphere.

"We're here every Saturday night unless it falls on Christmas," John Spanbauer said. "It is like throwing a party every Saturday night and all your friends come."

The Spanbauers started holding barn dances in Pocatello between 1975 and 1985. In 1985, they bought the Windy Glen Ranch in Jerome County. A classic red barn sat on that ranch. When they bought the ranch, the roof peak on the barn leaned 8 inches outward on the east side, so John Spanbauer braced the barn and gradually "lightened" the top a little each day until it was straight. He made repairs to the barn, installed rest rooms, remodeled the hayloft into a ballroom and opened for dances.

The Spanbauers held dances at the Windy Glen Barn until 1995, when they bought the three-story stone barn located just off U.S. Highway 93 in Jerome County.

The stone barn is a grand old building built in 1912. The walls are 2 feet thick. It is 110 feet long, 40 feet wide and three stories tall. An old bell is still in the roof. When the barn was new, the bell was used to call the cows in for milking.

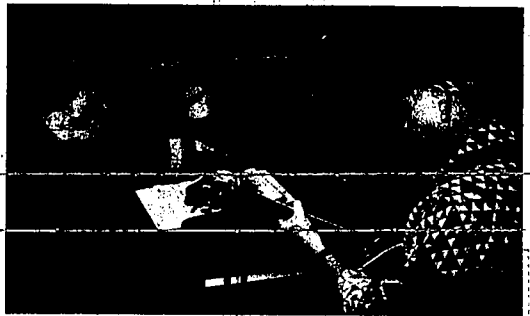

An apple storage area was located in the upstairs of the barn. The hayloft, which is now the ballroom, still has the trolley that was used to transport hay into the storage area.

Once he bought the stone barn, Spanbauer again installed restrooms and a lobby. He remodeled the second-floor hayloft into a ballroom complete with stage, dance floor and piano. The Spanbauer Saturday night dances have been held in that stone barn ever since.

The hours are 8 p.m. to midnight.

"There is no other place like this between Boise and Salt Lake City," Don Treese of Twin Falls said. Treese and wife Wynona have been attending the barn dances for 10 years.

"People come to the Spanbauer dances from as far away as Tennessee and Texas, Dusty Sheets, right, has led his band, 'The Nomads,' every Saturday night at a Spanbauer dance for several years. They take requests from the crowd, and during breaks Marie Spanbauer plays piano so the music never stops.

but most come from Magic Valley.

"Everyone gets a hug at the door. If this place closes, it will be a great loss. We will have to find somewhere else to hold our Saturday evening social events," Treese said.

The Spanbauer customers are one big family.

Alberta Courtney, 92 years old, has danced most of her life. She has attended the Spanbauer dances every Saturday night since 1985, when the first dance was held on the Windy Glen Ranch. Born in Cherryville, Kan., she moved with her parents to Idaho when she was 9 months old.

"My daddy taught me to dance. I was a daddy's girl and still dance at every opportunity," she said.

Fred and Joan Hawker have been driving up from Burley to the dances for three years. They always stay until the dance is over and generally get home about 12:45 a.m.

"The dances last 'til midnight, which puts us home before the bars let out," Hawker said.

Rachel Novak, a sophomore at Jerome High School, said she attended a high school prom at the Spanbauer barn and enjoyed it. When her dad asked if she would accompany him to one of the Spanbauer Saturday night dances, she jumped at the chance.

Country and western dancing is a lot different than the dancing Novak and her friends do at the high school dances, but Novak loves to dance.

Dean Baker of Burley said, "I've seen people meet at the dances, get married and have children. Then they bring their children to the dances."

"I hope we have enough people interested to keep the tradition going. I will miss the dances if the old barn is shut down for good. We'll have to find somewhere else to meet."

Kempthorne: Books can take you places

By Mary Lou Potts
Times-News correspondent

BUHL - Sixty children who gathered to hear a story were delighted to hear the reader was Patricia Kempthorne, Idaho's first lady and the ambassador of the Idaho State Library summer reading program.

Kempthorne was introduced by Mayor Barbara Gietzen, who explained the first lady of Idaho is Gov. Dirk Kempthorne's wife, and the governor title was likened to that of the president of the United States - but only for the state of Idaho.

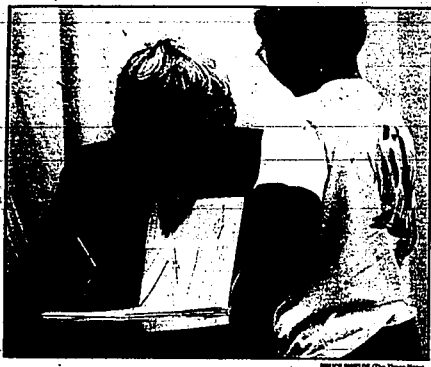

Mrs. Kempthorne asked the children to breathe deeply and relax while they talked about reading.

"We can go to many places when we read books," Kempthorne said.

"Where are some of the places we can go?" she asked the children.

"Under water," "Mexico," "spacehips" and "McDonald's," shouted the children.

Kempthorne displayed a couple of books that she donated to the library. One was from an Idaho author, and the other one was printed in Spanish and English.

Idaho first lady Patricia Kempthorne signs a book for Danny Nipper at the Buhl Public Library on Thursday. Kempthorne is the ambassador for the summer reading program in Idaho.

"Books make all kinds of things happen," she said, encouraging the children to keep reading.

"Mailing Mary" was the title of the book Kempthorne chose to read to the group. She explained that it is a true story and is about two towns in Idaho, Grangeville and Lewiston, in 1914.

During the reading of the story, several interruptions occurred, and Kempthorne stopped to answer, listen or explain the interruption. The children commented about the story, and she responded to their interest.

The 1914 date piqued some curiosity, as one boy wanted to know if there was a Snake River Canyon in 1914 and another wanted to know where Grangeville was.

Students who participated all summer in the reading program and had completed their log books were given the opportunity to win books if their names were drawn. Each book was signed by Kempthorne.

Book winners were Alex Loman, Natalie Morse, Amy Morse, Erin Quigley, Raela Mink, Mikala Lewis, Carah Quigley, Danny Nipper, Alyssa Kaster, Alex Peckham and Chelsea Alvey.

Kempthorne talked with parents, children, school and library officials about the importance of reading to children at least 20 minutes a day or letting children read to parents.

Librarian Cynthia Toppen encouraged the children to thank Kempthorne and announced that punch and cookies were being served outside on the lawn.

Kempthorne received a thunderous "thank you" and a promise to keep reading.

Wendell leaders look for irrigation pirates

By Gina Mulder
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL - Irrigation pirates, beware.

City leaders are investigating Sherwood Ringling's complaints that irrigation water on the south-east side of town is being diverted away from scheduled recipients.

Ringling said that on the three days out of the month in which he is scheduled to receive the irrigation water, he either finds his irrigation gates have been shut off, which diverts the water away from his property, or that all the gates have been opened, flooding the nearby streets, a move that can result in a $15 fine. Whatever the circumstances, Ringling said he ends up having to spend additional time trying to get the water back on track and finish his irrigation.

"But I'd like to know why these people can consistently shut my water off and overflow the pipe and not be fined," Ringling asked. "I don't take any more than anyone else."

Mayor Gwen Ross assured Ringling that the city irrigators would be apprised of the situation and the problem would stop.

"I'd like to know why these people can consistently shut my water off and overflow the pipe and not be fined?"

- Sherwood Ringling

Also Wednesday, city leaders agreed to accept a four-year lease with Caterpillar Equipment on a new backhoe. Councilman Fred McLeod, who had researched the lease agreement, said that the heavy equipment company would take the city's current backhoe in on a trade and hand the city about $42,000. In return, the city will lease a newer backhoe for $9,800 per year for four years. At the end of the lease agreement, the city would have the option to purchase the equipment for $37,500, or trade it in on a newer model. The $42,000 would remain in a dedicated, interest-bearing account and could be used for the backhoe purchase.

Times-News correspondent Gina Mulder can be reached in Wendell at 536-6637.

Janette Susan Carter Wilkes, born June 6, 1952, in Amarillo, Texas, was a distinguished physician, researcher and associate professor in the Department of Internal Medicine. She grew up in Colorado and Idaho. She attended elementary school in Colorado and attended junior high school in Buhl, graduating from Buhl High School in 1970.

She was the daughter of Rosalie Carter of Albuquerque and the late LeRoy Carter. She is survived by her oldest son, Albe Tomas Wilkes, 17, of Albuquerque.

Funeral services were held Saturday, July 21, in Albuquerque.

Evelyn Mary (Fellon) Kersen. The oldest of five children. He moved with his parents to Klamath Falls, Oregon in 1939. He was a member of the Sacred Heart Parish and attended the academy from first to eighth grade. He attended Paul High School, class of 1954. He was a construction worker in the Mini-Cassia area, born 1954 to 1958. Jay married Barbara Jean Langer and they had one daughter and were later divorced. They moved to the Reno, Nevada area, where he has since retired. Jay was employed by Swift & Co., Wells Fargo and a member of the Teamsters Union. He loved to fish, and camp. At 45 he suffered a stroke and also developing bacterial meningitis, from which he never recovered.

He is survived by his daughter, Kerry Jean Deville of Lakewood, Colorado; his mother, Evelyn M. Bob worked on the Ski Patrol in Sun Valley, Idaho, in his early years and then he joined the Air Force where he was on the U.S. Air Force Ski Team. He later attended Idaho State University in Pocatello, Idaho to become an X-ray technician. He and his family moved to Ketchum, Idaho, where Bob worked at the Moritz Community Hospital for many years. Besides his family, Bob's greatest loves were skiing on Bald Mountain or being in the "great outdoors." His other love was to fly, and he acquired his pilot's license for fixed-wing and retractable gear planes, as well as helicopters. Bob lived to the very fullest everyday until his illness. He was a friend to everyone and no one was stronger when he was around.

In 1976, Bob started Helicopter Ag-Spray and crop-dusted in the Twin Falls area. In 1978, he and his family moved to the Salt Lake City area where Bob was employed by Rocky Mountain Helicopter. In 1990, he started his own helicopter sales company and ran that company until his illness was diagnosed in 1992.

Bob is survived by his three sons, Rob J. of Los Angeles, Calif., Rebel of Las Vegas, Nev., and one daughter, Sandy Brychta of San Francisco, Calif. and Deborah Dean of Sandy, Utah. He is also survived by his former in-laws (and later guardians) for Bob; Kaye and Larry Sherber of Pocatello, Idaho and former sister-in-law, Teri Clawson of Salt Lake City, Utah. Many nieces, nephews and cousins survive him.

His parents and a half-sister, Gwen Platt, preceded him in death. Bob's strict instructions with regards to his death were that he be cremated and have his ashes sprinkled over Bald Mountain in Sun Valley. He also requested there be no funeral but that there be a celebration in his memory. This will be held on Saturday, September 22, 2001 at the St. Edward's Parish Hall in Twin Falls.

Lilyan Cody Carroll

Lilyan Cody Carroll, formerly of Atlanta, Georgia - our beloved mother and grandmother, known to her family as "G-Mom", entered Heaven on the evening of July 24, 2001.

Cody moved to Twin Falls to be closer to her daughter and family. She resided at Bridgeview Estates for the past five years, but she never forgot her favorite baseball team, the Atlanta Braves.

Cody was born in Atlanta, Georgia on October 20, 1924. She was the oldest of three daughters. Cody married her first and only love Robert G. Carroll Sr. on December 24, 1937. They moved from Atlanta to Knoxville, Tennessee where Cody resided for most of her life.

Cody is survived by her two children, Diane (Dr. Julian O.) Nicholson of Twin Falls and Robert G. (Patty) Carroll of Fayetteville, Georgia. She is also survived by four grandsons, Jon Nicholson of Jerome, Idaho, Rob Nicholson of Great Falls, Montana, Bobby Carroll III of Fayetteville, Georgia and Sean P. Carroll, also of Fayetteville and six great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her parents, her husband, her two sisters and a granddaughter.

Funeral services for Cody will be in Decatur (Atlanta), Georgia, on July 29, 2001, at 2:30 in the afternoon, under the direction of A.S. Turner & Sons Mortuary of Decatur.

Local arrangements are under the direction of Reynolds Funeral Chapel.

Burley residents learn to watch weather

By Ruth Streeter
Times-News writer

BURLEY — It wasn't only her love of lightning storms that brought Burley resident Shawn Gordon to a weather spotting workshop on Thursday.

"So that when I'm out fishing I know when to pack it in. Or when I can stay out there longer," Gordon said.

About 20 people, including police officers, emergency medical technicians, 911 dispatchers and laypersons, learned how to call when a severe storm is forming so that they can help warn their entire community.

The fledgling weather spotters learned to pinpoint gathering thunderstorms and identify downbursts and rotating clouds that form tornadoes and funnel clouds.

"If you see something where the entire cloud is rotating, it's severe. Give us a call," said Vernon Preston, the warning coordinator meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Pocatello.

The group also learned that it's as important for a spotter to report a half-mile of visibility from dust storms as it is to report a tornado that's embedded in rain showers.

Volunteer weather spotters are crucial to the weather service's ability to post advisories and warnings to the public, Preston said.

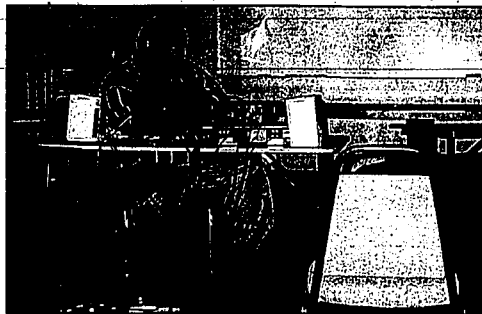

"We're sitting in our Pocatello office, and it still takes you as a weather spotter" to report the weather, Preston said.

Kevan Vogt of Rupert spent 15 months as a firefighter for the U.S. Bureau of Land Management. He became a volunteer weather spotter last summer and took Thursday's workshop as a refresher course.

"I've always had an interest in weather and lightning," Vogt said.

It's been shown that once weather spotters are able to provide news stations with weather information, the number of calls to 911 decreases, Preston said.

Preston said that tornadoes in Idaho are a rarity — the state averages three a year — but they still occur. On Feb. 14, 2000, Idaho experienced a record number of tornadoes in a single day — five.

Vernon Preston, with the National Weather Service in Pocatello, leads a weather spotting workshop Thursday. Several residents became trained and retained in severe weather spotting, which will help the NWS generate weather warnings for the area.

Also that day was Idaho's strongest recorded wind speed which was 96 mph at the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory.

More common in Idaho are thunderstorms. Idaho averages 38 per year, and averages one death and eight injuries a year as a result of thunderstorms, most of which occur in July. The state ranks 13th in the country for the number of deaths in proportion to its population.

Thursday's workshop was sponsored by the NWS and the Cassia County Sheriff's Office.

Commission splits on beet dump appeal

By Lorraine Cavener
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — Amalgamated Sugar Co. has nearly completed a new sugar beet dump, but the company won't be able to use it until some decisions are reached.

The Minidoka County Planning and Zoning Commission split 2-2 Thursday on an appeal regarding the building of the dump. County Attorney Rick Bollar said he would have to check with the state attorney general's office to learn what needs to be done to break the tie.

The chairman of the commission and one of the commissioners did not vote because of their ties to the sugar beet industry.

John Schorr, agricultural manager for Amalgamated's Minidoka-Cassia district, had asked Paul Aston, head of Minidoka County building and zoning, if a permit were necessary for the facility, which is located at Meridian Road and 650 North.

Aston said that because the facility is in agriculture zone, it did not need a special use permit.

Neighbors of the facility, who wondered why they had not been contacted for a hearing, retained an attorney.

Jason Walker represented Stanley and Daisy Hansen, who live directly across from the beet dump and are concerned about their property value and safety issues associated with operation of a beet dump.

"We didn't know this was going in until it happened," Stanley Hansen said.

P.J. Pratt also lives near the beet dump.

"I am also concerned about my property value," Pratt said. "We know the smell we will get if we have rotten beets."

Pratt is also concerned that accidents would be caused by mud on the road in the winter.

Rupert City Administrator Roger Bagley spoke in support of the Hansen and Hansens. Trucks from the beet dump would travel through Rupert, where there are two school zones, Bagley said.

Walker noted the opposition to the facility.

"What would it hurt to get people together for public comment?" he said.

Planning and Zoning Commissioner Sheryl Koyle agreed with Walker, saying that a public hearing would be in order.

Agriculture storage facilities have never required special use permits, Aston said.

The ordinance does not address the issue of the difference between a farmer's own storage and beet dumps, he said.

"Make your decision on what you feel is best for the community," Aston told commissioners.

Koyle said changes in the ordinance need to be made. There have been problems with large storage facilities in the past, she said.

For Amalgamated to keep the cost of delivery as low as possible and retain an economic base, beets need to be stored at facilities such as this one, which are close to the factory, Schorr said.

If the appeal is ultimately denied, Walker said, the Hansens said, they will take the issue to the county commissioners. If the appeal is granted, Amalgamated will likely take the same step.

Either way, the beet facility can't be used until the matter is resolved, Bollar said.

Firewood is available in lower Howell

By Dan Fields
Times-News writer

ALBION — Starting Wednesday, the Forest Service will open portions of the lower area of Howell Canyon for firewood cutting.

Roads in the area will have proper signage designating which areas are open and closed for firewood cutting. Forest Service officials, who will monitor the cutting, ask people to keep their vehicles on the roads to protect soil and water quality.

The area, located on Howell Canyon Road, about 10 miles south of Albion, and cutting will be open through Aug. 17.

Those who are interested in cutting firewood must have a valid firewood permit. And because there are very few turnouts on the old and narrow logging roads in this area, trailers will not be allowed.

"We ask that firewood cutters remember that the roads are narrow," said forestry technician Dave McClymonds. "Courtesy and safety will be appreciated by all."

McClymonds said only wood that is located in piles is available for the cutting.

"Cutting of standing, dead trees in this area is not allowed," he said. "These trees have deliberately been left for wildlife."

There is a commercial firewood cutting area in the upper portions of Howell Canyon. Those interested in buying logs can do so through a commercial firewood sale.

Those interested in the sale, or in obtaining a permit, can contact McClymonds at the Twin Falls office of the Burley-Twin Falls Ranger District at 737-3268.

Firefighters quell blaze

Sage Hill fire burned only 300 acres, but costs mount

By Pat Murphy
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — The small but stubborn Sage Hill fire that started only about 300 acres of sage and brush less than two miles from downtown Ketchum still may run up a major firefighting bill for taxpayers.

However, fire investigators from the city of Ketchum, the Bureau of Land Management and the U.S. Forest Service have the option of filing charges against the person responsible for the fire to recover all or part of the costs.

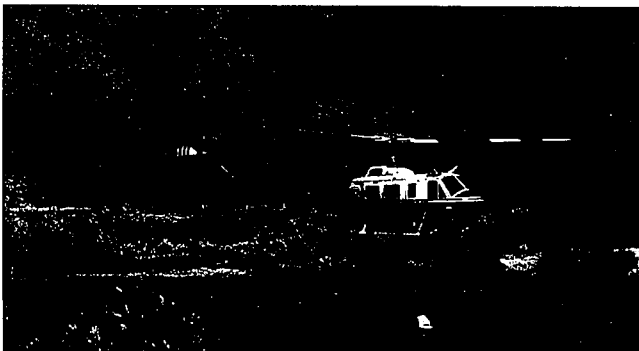

"The question is whether the fire was accidental, whether it was deliberate, whether it could have been prevented," explained Ed Waldapfel of the Sawtooth National Forest headquarters.

The hillside blaze began Wednesday morning but will not be considered officially until about 6 p.m. today, according to Michael O'Farrell, deputy ranger for the U.S. Forest Service's Ketchum district.

Waldapfel confirmed Thursday that the fire was ignited in thin-high grass by a faulty lawnmower operated by a landscaping firm, which he did not identify, and spread rapidly.

It started at 10 a.m. Wednesday, the 911 operator was notified of a small grass fire in the heavily populated area of condominiums opposite the Mt. Bald Warm Springs, whether it could have been prevented, he said.

The initial fire erupted, and flames whipped up the side of the steep 2,000-foot hill, threatening lush pine stands on the other side in the Adams Gulch area.

Within a matter of hours, firefighting manpower and equipment had been marshaled to deal with a major blaze — some 120 ground firefighters, four aerial tanker aircraft, four helicopters, more than 120 BLM and Forest Service ground firefighters from as far away as Salt Lake City, a fleet of fire engines from Ketchum, Sun Valley and Rural Fire Department.

Waldapfel said preliminary costs for some of the aerial operations could be estimated.

During Wednesday's operations, for example, Waldapfel said two large four-engine air tankers dumped more than 30,250 gallons of fire retardant during 11 sorties for a total cost of $60,834, which includes cost of the liquid and aircraft time.

Two smaller firefighting aircraft dropped 16,800 gallons of retardant during 21 attacks on the fire for a total cost of $30,400.

The air tanker costs for one day totaled nearly $100,000.

On Thursday, a giant two-rotor Chinook helicopter, familiar during the Vietnam War for carrying troops into front lines, was brought into operation to drop out a few remaining hot spots. The large water bucket suspended under the Chinook has a 1,100-gallon capacity but had been taking on only about 800 gallons for each mission.

Under contract to the government, the Chinook costs $2,292 per hour to operate.

Other costs for firefighting crews and fire equipment from Ketchum, Sun Valley and Rural have not been computed, nor have all of the air operations for Thursday, Waldapfel said. But the costs will total more than several hundred thousand dollars.

Final hours of controlling the fire were made easier because helicopters dousing lingering flames at the top of the ridge took on loads of water from Penny Lake, a small, spring-fed pond at the base of the hill where the fire was being fought.

The Chinook hovers while the bucket sinks into the lake and is filled. The smaller helicopters have devices called "snorkels" dangling from fuselages that dip into the water while the 'copter hovers and suck up water into a belly storage tank.

The round trip from the lake to the ridge took only a matter of minutes.

County mulls controversial livestock ordinance

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County commissioners and Planning and Zoning Administrator Bill Crafton will meet today to discuss a controversial proposed livestock ordinance.

The meeting will begin at 9 a.m. in the commission's chambers at the courthouse.

The 24-page ordinance is a result of seven months of work by a citizens committee and review by the commissioners and Crafton.

Today's meeting is expected to be the commissioners' last look at the document before it goes to the coun-

Gooding teachers say no to health plan offered by district

By Sharon Metcalf and Aimee New Times-News correspondents

GOODING — Area teacher representatives of the Idaho Education Association Tuesday said no to the health plan offered by the school district.

Superintendent Darrell Hatfield and the School Board are still ironing out the 2001-2002 budget. The district has already cut two positions and doesn't plan to fill several others that opened up due to resignations.

Now the district wants to reduce employee health benefits to help make up for a reported $170,000 budget shortfall.

The district wants to reduce employee health benefits to help make up for a reported $170,000 budget shortfall.

Hatfield blamed the shortfall on "overspending and under-budgeting" and "increases in utilities and transportation costs."

Several teachers in the district say they had been led to believe the shortage was the fault of the previous administrator, Henry Kilmer, who left the district in June 2000 to take a position in Nevada. However, Kilmer left a carry-over of close to $200,000 in the budget.

Those involved in the negotiation process would not comment while negotiations are still in progress.

"Negotiations will continue," said School Board Clerk Kathryn Thompson.

Other School Board business: • The board heard from representatives of Idaho Financial Group, Inc. on a buy-down health insurance program, essentially a self-insured program that would make the district responsible for health care expenses above the amount paid. The premiums should be a catastrophic illness cover.

• The board approved holding meetings the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month.

A helicopter dumps water on the Green Knoll fire near Jackson, Wyo. Thursday. Firefighters, scrambling to save themselves, abandoned firebreaks Thursday as a wildfire spread quickly toward a group of 400 homes outside Jackson. "My gut feeling is that we are probably in a very serious situation," said fire incident commander Joe Carvelho.

Blaze forces about 400 from their homes

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP) — Her friends tried to keep the mood light as they packed Kay Jones' furniture, lamps and other valuables into their vehicles. But the emotional toll of the task — fleeing her home under threat of a wildfire — showed on her face. "I'm praying they let us come back tonight," she said, before closing her garage doors and driving away.

Evacuated residents, like Jones, were allowed three hours Thursday morning to gather belongings from upscale homes, many of which are surrounded by trees, grasses and flowers. They posted notes on their doors, telling firefighters the home was empty. Sprinklers or hoses were left running on roofs.

"Gregg Goodyear, who helped Jones move, said the threat of wildfire is as much a part of life here as cold winters. "It's the cost

"We have pictures out, and the boat," she said, after asking fire officials in nearby Wilson about the track of the blaze. "We have the dogs with us and we know where the kids are 24 hours a day."

Neighbor of bikini-wearer gets fine

FARMINGTON, Utah (AP) — A Farr West man who was among neighbors complaining to police about a woman who wore a bikini while gardening has been fined $100 and ordered to stop harassing the woman.

Landon Flint, 21, was charged with disorderly conduct for using obscenities at Dee Dee Derian in May.

At the sentencing Wednesday, 2nd District Justice Court Judge Jerald Jensen told Flint, "The days of vigilantism are long gone. There's a method by which you can file such complaints. That's the difference between this country and most other countries."

Flint said he yelled at Derian only after she screamed obscenities at his 6-year-old sister for no reason. Derian, 40, denied it.

A Davis County sheriff's report said Flint and several friends began antagonizing two dogs owned by Derian on May 24. Derian admits she "flipped off" the group, prompting an argument.

Then, "Flint started yelling stuff about a topless business," the report states. Derian runs a topless male service.

On other occasions, the report says, Flint asked Derian to "take it all off."

Derian received news media attention from around the world after her neighbors called police July 13 because she was gardening in a bikini. Davis County prosecutors declined to file lewdness charges against her, saying the bikini was not illegal.

Crash with semi

WELLINGTON, Utah (AP) — Three people were killed when their car was hit by a semitrailer truck after swerving to avoid a vehicle that was trying to pass another truck, the highway patrol said.

Irene Apodaca, 51, Brigham City, was killed when she crossed the double lines to pass the semi, CHP Sgt. Doug McCleave said.

When Apodaca crossed the lines in the no-passing zone, a Lincoln Towncar carrying three men from California swerved off the side of the road to avoid a collision, McCleave said.

When the driver of the towncar brought the car back on the road, he lost control and crashed into a second semi, which was behind the one Apodaca passed, McCleave said.

All three men in the Towncar were killed. Their families had not been contacted and their names had not been released.

Party buys newspaper ads seeking donations

LEWISTON (AP) — Latah County Democrats took out daily in the Moscow-Pullman Daily News and Lewiston Morning Tribune this week asking people to donate their federal tax rebate checks to Idaho's perennial minority party.

"Some of the members of the Latah Democrats were chatting and some of them decided amongst themselves that they would take that tax return and donate it to the party," said Shirley Ringo, a former Democratic state representative from Moscow.

"We don't think it's really accurate to say that there's a surplus," Ringo said. "And this idea of returning money to the people when Security is in trouble, and those sort of things, isn't going to help at all."

The business card-sized ad printed in Monday's Tribune, features a man with a big grin jumping up and down on a pile of money.

Ringo said she and a handful of other Latah Democrats agreed to donate their rebate checks.

"It's a political statement," she said. "I'm not expecting money to come rolling in. I do hope we get enough back to pay for our ads."

The said the idea was to express general dissatisfaction with the tax cut championed by President Bush and for people to make an investment in political change.

District to discipline for students

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Ten Coeur d'Alene High School students who videotaped a sexual encounter with a 16-year-old girl will face charges in a closed Kootenai County Juvenile Court on Monday.

Idaho law makes it a felony to possess "photographic representations of sexual conduct which involves children." The boys could land in state custody until they are 21 years old.

The case is sealed and prosecutors have declined comment.

Coeur d'Alene School District Assistant Superintendent Mazel Bauman said Wednesday that the district has yet to decide its punishment for the students, though she expects a decision in early August.

Bush OKs radiation exposure funding

WASHINGTON (AP) - Forms were already in the mail as President Bush signed legislation this week to make good on hundreds of IOUs issued to ailing uranium miners and others exposed to fallout from Cold War-era nuclear weapons tests.

The checks to the victims or their survivors could be received as early as next month.

The president's signature helps mitigate the embarrassment of Congress and the Justice Department for letting the trust fund "run dry," Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., who worked to secure the funding, said in a statement.

The Radiation Exposure Compensation Act was passed in 1990 to compensate victims of the Cold War nuclear weapons program or their survivors for illnesses caused by radiation. The act provides $100,000 to uranium miners and $50,000 to "downwinders" - residents sickened by their exposure to radioactive fallout caused by nuclear weapons tests in Nevada.

Through last week, there were 191 claimants - either miners, downwinders or their survivors - holding IOUs worth $10 million in Utah, alone, according to the Justice Department. In Colorado, 71 claimants are owed $6.5 million. Sixty-eight claimants are owed $3.5 million in Nevada, 47 are owed $3 million in Arizona, 42 are owed $4 million in New Mexico, and 13 are owed $1 million in California.

Other claimants are scattered across the country.

Last year, the act was expanded to cover more people, but no new money was added. Since May 2000, qualifying claimants received letters informing them the program was out of money.

Many have died while awaiting payments.

The legislation signed by Bush will cover outstanding IOUs worth an estimated $84 million. The House had resisted the funding, but struck a deal with Senate negotiators last week to approve the money.

Senators and representatives from several southwestern states had lobbied aggressively for the funding.

"I think I speak for all Americans when I say that we are grateful to these miners for their important contributions and they have our most profound sympathy for the heavy toll their work took on their lives," said Sen. Ben Nighthorse Campbell, R-Colo.

The Justice Department, which administers the program, sent forms to the claimants who had been issued IOUs on Monday, in anticipation of Bush's action, said Charles Miller, a spokesman for the department.

A claimant requesting a direct deposit could receive the money two weeks after the Justice Department receives the completed form, Miller said. A check will take at least six weeks to process.

Former miner Kenneth Randolph, 72, is seen at his home near Cortez, Colo., in this recent photo. Randolph said he can name 40 uranium workers who died in their 40s of lung diseases such as silicosis, fibrosis and various cancers. He said he has had spots on his lungs for 20 years and has trouble breathing.

Bush's review of Hawaiian reef raises ire

Environmentalists fear administration will weaken status of Clinton-created reserve

HONOLULU (AP) - Environmentalists are on edge over the Bush administration's review of a Hawaiian coral reef reserve created during former President Clinton's final month in office.

A spokeswoman for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration confirmed Tuesday the Department of Commerce has begun a legal review of the reserve, but said such studies are standard procedure for a new presidential administration.

"They're not specifically targeting Hawaiian Islands," said the Maryland-based spokeswoman, Stephanie Balian. "It's part of a review process for a lot of programs."

In December, Clinton set aside 64 million acres of ocean around the 10 mostly uninhabited islets and atolls extending 1,200 miles northwest of the main Hawaiian chain, creating the largest U.S. nature preserve.

The new Northwestern Hawaiian Islands National Ecosystem Reserve is home to more than 70 percent of the United States' coral reefs, as well as endangered Hawaiian monk seals, sea turtles, albatrosses and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration employee Stephanie Hotzwarth surveys a coral reef within a quadrant on Pearl & Hermes Reef between Lisianski Island and Midway Atoll near the western end of the Hawaiian Islands.

Tuesday, NOAA is part of the Commerce Department.

Smith said it is the Western Pacific Regional Fishery Management Council that wants Clinton's executive order overturned or weakened. The council is the policy-making organization for the management of fisheries around Hawaii, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, American Samoa, and other U.S. possessions in the Pacific.

Mitsuyasu said the executive order, which allows bottomfishing in more than 95 percent of the reserve area, may not appear at first glance to be harmful to Hawaii's fishing industry. But he said most of the fishing for the popular snapper varieties of onaga and opakapaka has occurred in the closed area.

"The Northwestern Hawaiian Islands provides between 40 and 50 percent of the bottom fish in the state of Hawaii," he said. "It's basic economics. It's true that some fish may be imported, but then you're talking about quality."

If President Bush reverses the executive order or severely limits its scope, it will be against the wishes of the vast majority of Hawaii residents who testified during public meetings on the proposal last year, Smith said.

"People do see this area as a marine Yellowstone. And if it's lost, it will be lost forever."

Homeowner receives penalty for obstructing neighbors' views

PARK CITY, Utah (AP) - A Deer Valley homeowner has been ordered to pay almost $1 million in damages and attorney fees for obstructing his neighbors' views.

Third District Judge Robert K. Hilder ruled Wednesday that William Jeffrey Mann, a retired Holiday Inn executive, violated building covenants in the American Flag subdivision when he erected a multimillion dollar, 7,200-square-foot house on the lower portion of a lot two years ago.

The judge declined to order the home demolished, as sought by the neighbors.

"We were hoping the court would enforce the covenants and require the house be torn down," said attorney Jeffrey L. Silvestrini, who took the case on behalf of homeowners on either side of the Mann property.

The site has panoramic vistas of ski slopes and Park City's Old Town.

David G. Dvorak and Susan and Christopher Lockwood had argued that Mann broke American Flag's construction rules by putting his house downhill from others.

That position was supported by the American Flag Homeowners' Association, which for almost three years fought Mann's building plans.

Yellowstone River draws efforts from diverse groups

LIVINGSTON, Mont. (AP) - Eighteen environmental and sportsmen's groups are renewing efforts to save what they believe is a national treasure, the Yellowstone River.

Groups from the Sierra Club to the Billings Rod and Gun Club announced a seven-point plan to protect the free-flowing river.

The issued the plan at the famous rock outcropping where Capt. William Clark carved his name 200 years ago on the Corps of Discovery's return trip from the Pacific Ocean.

Scott Bosse, rivers coordinator for the Greater Yellowstone Coalition, said there is broad concern about dangers facing the river.

"It's very difficult to get 18 groups of such diverging views to agree," said Bosse, who was hired two months ago to focus primarily on issues involving the Yellowstone.

"Not all 18 will be sticking together on every action, but we all support this conservation blueprint."

It would promote sound floodplain management, establish scientific definition of the river watershed, ensure adequate stream flows in the river and its tributaries, control noxious weeds in the river corridor, protect native cottonwood forests and riparian vegetation, improve fish passage at irrigation dams and diversions and revitalize community riverfronts.

Bosse said the 18 groups hope to work closely with government agencies and local landowners.

"We want this to be a bottom-up call for action from the people who live here," he said.

Jeanne Marie Souvigney of Livingston, who works for American Rivers, said the river still is in an amazingly untouched state when compared with others.

"What this plan acknowledges more than anything is that we've learned from our past mistakes on other great rivers like the Columbia, Colorado and Missouri," Souvigney said. "We're at a crossroads with the Yellowstone. We can work together to stop this damage from occurring."

Opponents reject state conclusions on generator

MIDDLETON (AP) - Supporters contend a natural gas-fired generator will have no discernible effect on air quality, but foes of the Garnet Energy plant reject all those arguments.

Ida-West Energy Co. is pursuing a state Department of Environmental Quality air permit for the plant about a mile southeast of Middleton.

Under the permit, the corporate affiliate of Idaho Power Co. could build a plant with two turbines to generate up to 535 megawatts of electricity. Initial plans would involve 273 megawatts, enough to serve Caldwell, Meridian and Nampa.

Environmental Quality officials said their analysis showed the plant would not cause any regional air-quality problems or violate government-issued limits. The volume, the amount of pollutants released daily would be minor.

"The Garnet power plant will be among the cleanest combustion-based electrical-generating facilities in the United States of America," Ida-West President Randy Hill testified during Wednesday's hearing.

New cease-fire between sides in Macedonia raises hopes

The Washington Post

SKOPJE, Macedonia - A new cease-fire between rebel and government troops was holding in Macedonia Thursday night despite several complications in implementing the truce, raising hopes that political leaders will soon return to serious negotiations to seal a permanent peace. The cease-fire officially began at 6 a.m. and as the day progressed, there were no reports of fighting between Macedonian security forces and ethnic Albanian rebels of the National Liberation Army. The two sides engaged in fierce gun and mortar exchanges earlier this week, killing at least 30 people and threatening to plunge Macedonia into civil war.

The truce was holding even though rebel forces apparently did not fully vacate all of the areas they had agreed to leave by the 1 p.m. deadline.

NATO envoy Pieter Feith and several top Macedonian officials escorted home a convoy of refugees headed toward villages abandoned due to the rebels' advance, according to reports. Other refugees' convoys were reported to be delayed.

Abiding by the fine print of the new accord is important, analysts said, because hard-liners on either side could use any violation as a pretext to renew fighting, which could cause the entire deal to collapse.

But there was a clear sense of optimism among a high-level group of international officials - including NATO Secretary General George Robertson and European Union security affairs chief Javier Solana - that arrived Thursday morning to encourage a resumption of peace negotiations to end the six-month insurgency.

"The political process is back on track; the cease-fire is back on track," Solana said after a day of meeting with the country's top political leaders. "Ninety-five percent of those things that were to be negotiated are already agreed" to by the four political parties in the talks.

They are negotiating among themselves over a program to increase the political, economic and cultural rights of the country's ethnic Albanians, who western observers say account for roughly a third of the country's 2 million people. With such a deal in hand, Albanian politicians are meant to persuade the rebels to end their fight.

The key issue separating the sides is whether Albanian should be made a second official language in Macedonia.

Although all of the principles from the peace negotiations gathered briefly in one room

Thursday, no substantive issues were discussed, a western official said.

Macedonian President Boris Trajkovski said that political leaders had agreed to continue peace talks soon in Tetovo, the Albanian-majority city that was the focus of fierce fighting earlier this week. He said the location was chosen because of its symbolic importance as "the melting pot of Macedonia." No agreement has been reached on when the talks will be held, officials said.

An unnamed technician works at the control panel of the nuclear reactor TRIGA-Mark II, July 8 in Kinshasa, Congo.

With pride, Congo nurses along an old nuclear reactor

KINSHASA, Congo (AP) - A hand-held Geiger counter tapped out a steady beat as Patrick Kanyinda - looking decidedly uneasy about having a visitor in his small, windowless workroom - stood at the edge of a circular pool and pointed into the water.

Above him, fluorescent lights buzzed and flickered, casting a faded light onto moldy walls. Below, submerged in the brackish water, beneath a pockmarked metal grate and splashes of floating scum, about two dozen metal rods were lined up in neat rows.

"It's safe," insisted Kanyinda, chief technician in this all-but-forgotten facility on the fringes of the University of Kinshasa.

The water, he explains, cools the rods; heavy locks keep burglars at bay; armed guards keep watch outside, just in case.

He paused, then added, "But I wouldn't suggest staying here long."

Few would disagree. The rods, about 2 feet long and triangular in cross-section, contain dangerous substances on the planet: uranium.

In a crumbling concrete building on the edge of one of the world's most dysfunctional cities, in a program that traces its roots to a Belgian priest and America's Cold War "Atoms for Peace" program, a few Congolese scientist nurse along Africa's oldest nuclear reactor.

In Congo - a nation savaged by decades of inept, deeply corrupt rule, poverty and a long stream of wars - the reactor is a point of pride, proof that, for all its problems, this Central African nation can also harness the atom.

But elsewhere, the reactor is a concern. The reasons are evident. The reactor sits on an erosion-prone hill, the electricity gives out regularly and the decades-old control panel looks as if it was stolen from the set of a 1950s Buck Rogers movie. Gardens are sprouting out back, right next to a garbage pit.

The front entrance is marked only by a poster taped to the door advising: "How to Recognize and Quickly Treat Accidental Radioactive Burns."

And all this is in Kinshasa, a city famed for its sprawling slums, car-swallowing potholes and paucity of regular services, from fire departments to telephone wiring. The past decade has seen the city engulfed twice by military pillaging. The facility's budget is confidential, but cannot be very large. The Congolese government is broke and ensnared, yet again, in war.

The reactor is small, capable of producing less than 1 percent of the energy of a nuclear power plant, and the uranium is not believed to be sufficiently refined for weapons manufacturing. But an accident could spray radioactivity across a good part of the university, or poison the water supply for much of the city.

The International Atomic Energy Agency, the U.N. organization that monitors nuclear facilities, won't discuss specifics, but makes clear the Kinshasa facility is in trouble.

American officials have repeatedly tried to get the fuel, both used and unused, shipped to the United States for storage.

The scientists who run it, though, have no intention of stopping their work. They insist they are doing important peaceful research: creating nuclear isotopes and looking at atomic uses tied to agriculture and mining.

Korean leader begins trip across Russia

VLADIVOSTOK, Russia (AP) - North Korea's secretive leader started a 10-day train journey across Russia on Thursday, heading for Moscow on the Trans-Siberian Railway, only his third foreign trip as leader of his impoverished and isolated country.

Kim Jong Il's train - he is rumored to be afraid to fly - arrived in Russia's Far East, crossing the border at the town of Khasan near the Pacific coast, and headed north through Russia's Primorye region.

Russian television showed Kim wearing a dark gray leisure suit, after the 21-car train crossed the border. Through a translator, Kim inquired after President Vladimir Putin's health.

A woman from the Russian welcoming delegation handed him a bouquet of roses. ORT television said the woman, Khasan resident Larisa Denezhko, had welcomed Kim's father, Kim Il Sung, to Russia 13 years ago. Kim Il Sung led North Korea until his death in 1994.

Preparations for the trip were surrounded by the secrecy characteristic of Kim's rule. His impending arrival was confirmed only the day before by a Russian customs official, while the Kremlin and Foreign Ministry said they had no information on any trip. Since taking power, the 59-year-old Kim has twice visited China. His trip there in May 2000 - also by train - remained secret until he returned home.

The ITAR-Tass news agency, without naming a source, said Kim was expected in Moscow on Aug. 4 - which would make a 10-day journey of some 5,800 miles across Siberia's vast forests and the European part of Russia.

Kim's train went north from the border through Ussurisk. It was due in the city of Khabarovsk at 12:30 a.m. Friday. No public appearances by Kim were scheduled, Russian officials said.

U.N. tribunal indicts second Croat general

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) - The U.N. war crimes tribunal announced Thursday that it has indicted a Croat general, the second one in as many days. Both men are considered heroes in Croatia for defending the country during the Serbo-Croat war of the early 1990s.

As the arrest warrant for retired Gen. Ante Gotovina was being unsealed, Gen. Rahim Ademi pleaded innocent to charges of crimes against humanity. Ademi, whose indictment was made public Wednesday, was the first Croat to come before the court for crimes against Serbs.

The arrest warrant for Gotovina charged him with eight counts of war crimes linked to alleged atrocities in 1995.

Gotovina is still at-large and has refused to surrender, but he has appointed an American attorney to defend him.

Ademi, an ethnic Kosovar Albanian, surrendered to the court Wednesday to face accusations in the murder of dozens of Serb civilians, including disabled elderly women, during an eight-day rampage in a Serb community in Croatia in September 1993.

Changing into a civilian suit from the military uniform he wore for his surrender, Ademi stood before presiding U.N. Judge Almino Simoes Rodrigues of Portugal and entered a plea "not guilty" to each of five counts of crimes against humanity and violating the rules of war as they were read aloud by a court clerk.

"Your honor, I feel completely innocent. I am not guilty," Ademi told the court.

Beginning in June 1991, the Croats fought a six-month war for independence from Yugoslavia, with rebel Serbs capturing more than one-third of the territory. In 1993, the Croatian army took some territory and in 1995 it won back the bulk of lost land, ending the fighting.

Will it soon be bedtime for Bongo?

TORONTO (AP) - The 54-year-old actor who was too busy making films, television shows and commercials to learn the ways of love.

Now terminally ill, he is trying to get his life in order for lost time by making time.

If that sounds implausible, consider that the thespian is Bongo, a 14-year-old lion who starred in films such as "George of the Jungle" and "The Ghost and the Darkness."

His trainer, Michael Hackenberger, said Wednesday that Bongo has lung cancer and probably will die in the next few months. To give him a chance at that most lion-like passion - mating - Bongo has been paired in his enclosure at the Bowmanville, Ontario, zoo with Greshi, a 4-year-old lioness from a zoo in Quebec.

While Hackenberger would welcome any offspring, he said the chances of Bongo fathering a cub are fairly small. More important is the final opportunity for Bongo, who was born in captivity, to spend his life only with male lions, to experience female companionship.

Ex-official's standoff ends in Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) - Indonesia's ousted president, Abdurrahman Wahid, vacated the palace and left the country Thursday after days of refusing to step aside, ending a standoff and clearing the way for his successor.

Heading to Baltimore for medical treatment, the 61-year-old deposed leader vowed to return to push for democracy in what he warns will be a more authoritarian nation under his successor, Megawati Sukarnoputri.

He said he had refused an offer by Megawati to see him off at the airport.

Woman gives birth while in coma

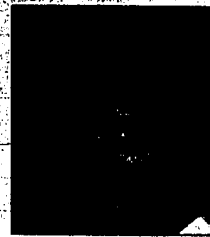

CINCINNATI (AP) — A woman who has been in a coma since a car crash eight months ago gave birth to a healthy, full-term girl.

It is one of few known cases in the United States in which a woman was in a coma virtually throughout the gestation period and still carried the pregnancy to term, Dr. Michael Hnat, a neonatologist at University Hospital, said Wednesday.

Chastity Cooper, 24, of Warsaw, Ky., gave birth at the hospital on Monday to Alexis Michelle with the help of labor-inducing medications but no strong pain relievers, doctors said.

Doctors had considered a Caesarean section but said it would have posed more hazards because of the risks of anesthesia and the potential difficulties of healing after the surgery.

Cooper was about two weeks pregnant last November when she suffered severe head injuries in the car crash and went into a

With a Ferris wheel in the background, fairgoers pass by brightly-lit attractions at the Orange County Fairgrounds, July 25, in Costa Mesa, Calif. Vendors are grappling with higher labor costs due to a rise in the minimum wage and higher prices for propane, which is used to grill burgers and hot dogs.

California's electricity troubles mean costlier dogs at county fairs

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Reno Pignotti stands over a blender at the Orange County Fair adding ingredients to his pesto sauce: fresh basil, olive oil, Romano cheese, walnuts and finally, the most expensive — electricity.

With unpredictable power prices that hit record highs across the state this year, the costs of county fair staples such as corn dogs, cotton candy and funnel cakes are going up.

The first jolt was felt a few weeks ago at the Del Mar Fair in San Diego County, the state's first big fair.

With some fairs expecting their power prices to jump as much as $1 million this year, Del Mar had its vendors pay thousands of dollars in surcharges to cover the anticipated bills. The actual bills won't arrive until August.

Pignotti's surcharge was $2,600. Chuck Dugan's was $5,500 — on top of the 25 percent of sales he pays to park his Chuck's Wagon barbecue stand at the Del Mar Fair. He raised the price of a brisket dinner by $1 and a sandwich by 75 cents to help cover the cost.

"It's forcing us to raise prices to compensate for it, which the public isn't paying," Dugan said. Fair organizers across the state started planning early this year for high electricity costs and the possibility of rolling blackouts. Many rented expensive diesel generators to power their rides and came up with evacuation plans in case the power goes out.

At the Del Mar Fair, where electricity prices rose sharply a year earlier due to San Diego Gas & Electric early emergence from deregulation, organizers ordered 13 diesel generators to power the midway. "They cost about $2,000 a day more than it would have cost," said fair spokesman Steve Fiebing. "We also wanted to be good neighbors and we didn't want to be accused of sucking away people's power while they were subject to rolling blackouts."

Don Crutchfield, right, owner of a corn dog stand at the Orange County Fairgrounds talks, July 18, with fellow business owner Chuck Dugan of Chuck's Wagon barbecue stand, about the hike in their electricity bills in Costa Mesa, Calif.

Federal energy regulators capped wholesale prices in June, and a combination of mild weather, conservation and new power plants has given California a reprieve in recent weeks. And there was more good news Wednesday: The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission agreed California had been overcharged by power producers, though it put off deciding the amount to be refunded until fall.

Last year, the Los Angeles County Fair's power costs jumped by $1 million, and organizers are expecting a similar increase this year. As a result, adult admission will be up 20 percent on weekends to $12. The fair is offering evening and opening day discounts to soften the blow, spokeswoman Wendy Talario said.

So far, officials say attendance at county fairs has been lower than last year. Stephen Chambers, executive director of the Western Fairs Association, said that wasn't a surprise. "Our customers are working class families and for them, increases in their home power bill come right out of their discretionary income," Chambers said.

Judge orders NYPD to reinstate black officer

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York City Police Department must reinstate a black officer who was fired for publicly criticizing the department after the fatal shooting of an unarmed African immigrant, a federal judge ruled.

U.S. District Judge Alvin Hellerstein also ordered the department Wednesday to pay Yvette Walton, 39, $55,000 in back wages and remove any documents from her employment record related to her "wrongful dismissal."

Hellerstein concluded in November that Walton's First Amendment rights had been violated and that she would not have been fired if she had not criticized the department after Feb. 4, 1999, shooting of Amadou Diallo. Diallo died after being shot at 41 times by police officers who said they mistakenly thought he had a gun.

Walton had worn disguises or had her voice electronically altered as she criticized the department at a news conference, on a national television program and at a City Council meeting in early 1999. She was fired soon after.

Walton had been the only black woman assigned to street patrols when she joined the newly created Street Crime Unit in 1993. She transferred out in 1995 after concluding that the unit targeted minorities in illegal searches and seizures.

The Police Department had no comment on the judge's decision and may appeal the case, police spokesman Thomas Antenen said. The department has said it fired Walton because of insubordination and violating departmental orders regulating sick leave.

Walton's lawyer, Christopher Dunn, told the Daily News his client looks forward to returning to the job "she loves."

Four officers assigned to the Street Crime Unit were tried last year and acquitted of all charges in the shooting of Diallo.

Ceremony commemorates Navajo Code Talkers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly six decades after they went to war, 29 Navajo Indians were honored Thursday for creating the unbreakable code used by the Marines during World War II's fiercest battles.

The Code Talkers were a group of Navajo Indians who used their native language to develop code that was never broken and used by Marines throughout the Pacific.

On Thursday, President Bush awarded June and three other surviving Navajo Code Talkers with the Congressional Gold Medal, the highest civilian award Congress can bestow.

"Today, we honor 29 Native Americans who, in a desperate hour, gave their country a service only they could give," Bush said in a ceremony held in the packed rotunda of the Capitol. "Today, we give these exceptional Marines the recognition they earned so long ago."

The Code Talkers were sworn to secrecy and returned home without fanfare. Even after the project was declassified in 1968, there was no official recognition.

Only five of the 29 original Code Talkers are still living, and only four were well enough to travel to Washington for the honor.

Teen who kills teacher apologizes, seeks mercy

NEA offers teachers $150,000 'unlawful homicide' insurance

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A 14-year-old boy who could get up to life in prison for shooting his teacher to death told a judge Thursday. "Words cannot really express how sorry I am, but they're all I have."

Nathaniel Brazill took the stand during a sentencing hearing at which the teacher's mother and brother testified the boy would be a danger to society if he ever got out of prison.

Brazill insisted, as he did during his trial, that he didn't mean to hurt his teacher, Barry Grunow.

"As I look back on that day I wish it had not happened and that I could bring Mr. Grunow back," he said, reading from a statement. "I would like to say to every one that I am very, very sorry. And to Mr. Grunow's family, I am sorry."

"If I had thought about what I was doing none of this would have happened. ... Regardless of what Defense attorney Lance Richard and Nathaniel Brazill laugh during Brazill's sentencing hearing Thursday in West Palm Beach, Fla. "great man and a great teacher. ... I've been thinking about Mrs. Grunow and how lonely she is."

Circuit Judge Richard Wemmer said he will decide today whether the teen-ager can be rehabilitated. Brazill faces 25 years to life in prison.

Brazill was tried as an adult and convicted in May of second-degree murder in the killing of Grunow, 35, at Lake Worth Middle School on the last day of the 2000 school year.

Brazill had returned to school after being suspended by a counselor earlier that day for throwing water balloons. He shot Grunow after the teacher refused to let the seventh-grader talk to two girls in his class.

At his trial, Brazill had insisted that he only meant to scare the teacher and that the gun went off accidentally.

On Thursday, Brazill's mother, Polly Powell, sobbed as she asked the Grunow family for forgiveness and begged the judge for leniency.

WASHINGTON (AP) — High-profile killings of teachers in the past several years have prompted the nation's largest teachers' union to offer a $150,000 benefit for the families of members slain on the job at school.

The National Education Association has offered life insurance to members since the 1980s, but the new "unlawful homicide" benefit was approved only this year. It will be announced to the union's 2.6 million members in a September newsletter.

Under the benefit, families of slain teachers, aides and other NEA member employees are eligible to collect three times as much as if the worker were killed accidentally.

Randy Martin, who handles risk management for NEA Member Benefits, said the new coverage was not the result of any single incident. "It was just the knowledge that these incidents were occurring," Martin said.

"I think it's very good that we're doing this," said Wayne Johnson, president of the California Teachers Association. "I think that it's sad that we need to do it."

The benefit is free to NEA members.

Jemile Horwitz, spokesman for the American Federation of Teachers union, said its members have not requested such a benefit, but the AFT's benefits historically have mirrored those offered by the NEA. Horwitz said the union probably would consider the homicide benefit.

While recent high-profile school shootings have focused media attention on school violence, few teachers or staff have been slain on the job over the past decade.

WEEKEND

Demolition derby wraps up fair on Sunday

BRATION

Today, Saturday and Sunday
The Jerome County Fair concludes at the Jerome County Fairgrounds in Jerome. Highlights include the ICA/IMPRA Rodeo tonight and Saturday at 7:30 p.m., the 4-H/FFA Market Animal Sale Saturday at 10 a.m., and a demolition derby on Sunday at 7 p.m. Admission to the fair is free, but the rodeo and demolition derby is $6 for adults and $4 for youth. The carnival opens daily at 4 p.m.

Today and Saturday
Oakley will celebrate Pioneer Days. Highlights include the Clark's Deep-Pit Barbecue Saturday at 12:30 p.m., a parade that afternoon at 5 from the high school to the retirement center on Main Street, rodeos tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m., followed by a dance in the park tonight and fireworks at the rodeo grounds on Saturday. Tickets to the barbecue at $6 for adults and $3 for children.

Monday through Aug. 4

The Minidoka County Fair will be held at the Minidoka County Fairgrounds in Rupert. The fair kicks off Monday with the lawn-mower races. On Tuesday, fairgoers can vie for cash prizes in the annual talent contest or watch younger cowboys and cowgirls compete in the Tiny Tot Horse Show and there will be a teen dance put on by the 4-H. On Wednesday, the Rupert Lions Club will serve up its famous barbecue at the Grassy Arena. After dinner, there will be a Horse Gymkhana and plenty of entertainment on the free stage. Admission to the fair is free.

Wednesday

The Junior Club will present its 14th annual Bite of Twin Falls, 5-9 p.m., Twin Falls City Park.

Thursday through Aug. 5

The Camas County Fair will be held in Fairfield. It won't have a rodeo — but there will be lots of down-home cooking, music and fun. The theme this year is 'Keepin' It Country and it gets started with a horse show and other 4-H events. Thursday is carnival night on the school lawn with lots of family fun games and prizes. On Aug. 3, the community gets together for a potluck dinner at the 4-H Park, followed by the legendary Prairie Dog contest — which you have seen to believe. Hint: it has nothing to do with the desert-dwelling rodent. There will also be a buckaroo rodeo later in the evening. On Aug. 4, a parade starts at 1 p.m. and later that night is a street dance on main street. The festivities wrap up Aug. 5 with 'Music in the Park' featuring local entertainment.

Aug. 16-18

The Blaine County Fair will be held at the Blaine County Fairgrounds in Carey. It features archery shoots on Aug. 16 and 4-H bingo and a benefit barbecue Aug. 17. Also on Aug. 17, kids 2-12 years old are invited to show off their favorite pets in the Pets on Parade. The fair will wind down Aug. 18 with the crowning of the Blaine County Princess and a rodeo.

Aug. 13-18

The Cassia County Fair will be held at the Cassia County Fairgrounds in Burley. It kicks off Aug. 13 with team branding in the arena at 7:30 p.m. On Aug. 15, a parade will be held starting at 10:30 a.m., team sorting will be held at the arena starting at 7 p.m. and the carnival will run through Aug. 18. The ERCA rodeo starts Aug. 16. On Aug. 17 and 18, the Fair will host a pari-mutuel horse race. There will be plenty of entertainment on the free stage almost every night. Don't miss the Dutch oven cook-off.

Aug. 16-18

The Gooding County Fair will be held at the county fairgrounds in Gooding. It boasts one of the largest ICA rodeos in southern Idaho and will include world champion goat roping, the Pepsi Wild Ride and the Farmer X Games along with the miniature bucking bull competition. There will be a championship goat roping contest every afternoon for kids 5-14 years old. There will be musical entertainment each night at the free stage. Admission to the fair is $6 for adults and $4 for youths 6-12 years; 5 years and under is free.

Aug. 29-Sept. 3

The Twin Falls County Fair will be held at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in Filer. Music, Magic & Motion is the theme and organizers expect more than 95,000 people will come to see three nights of ERCA rodeo, a demolition derby, musical concerts, food and vendor booths, a petting zoo, carnival rides, arts and crafts, and 4-H and livestock competitions. Performing on the free stage throughout the week will be hypnotist, Marc Savard and Jeff Martin, The Blond Curly Haired Magician. Children curious about farm life can visit the Day-on-the-Farm tent or visit the Luv and Hugs petting zoo. A trophy mule deer display will also be available. Fair admission is $6 for adults and $4 for children, and that includes general admission to all arena events.

City property owners and tenants are responsible to keep their property clean from the center of the street to the center of the alley. When you keep your property clean it makes Twin Falls a clean and safe place in which to live.

So...

- Sweep your sidewalk.
- Clean up the loose debris around your garbage area.
- Prune your trees so they are not causing any obstructions or overhanging the sidewalk.
- Think about weeds control.
- Clean your dog pen area.
- We can all help keep Twin Falls a clean and safe community.

Water Department
736-2275

LET'S ALL DO OUR PART...
...to conserve water. This is the time of year when the most water is consumed in the community. Whether watering the lawn, washing the car, hosing the kids down, or cleaning off the driveway, we don't stop to think of how much extra water we are using and often wasting.

How can we conserve water?

We can do it by:

- Never use your toilet as a wastebasket.
- Do not let the water run while shaving or brushing teeth.
- Take short showers instead of tub baths. Turn off the water flow while soaping or shampooing.
- If you use a tub, fill the tub only half full.
- Never pour water down the drain when there may be another use for it — such as watering plants or a garden.

WEEKEND

'Planet of the Apes' invades theaters

Combined wire services

Movies playing in south-central Idaho this weekend. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times; Knight Ridder Newspapers and Associated Press reviewers.

'A.I. Artificial Intelligence'

'A.I.' is technically accomplished and beautifully acted by Haley Joel Osment as a robot child programmed to love. But the heralded convergence of Stanley Kubrick and Steven Spielberg is more of a conflict. A fascinating but flawed film, which is by turns involving and exasperating. PG-13 (profanity, sex).

'America's Sweethearts'

Julia Roberts, John Cusack and Catherine Zeta-Jones star in this mildly amusing romantic comedy set in the inside-Hollywood world of a big studio press junket. Billy Crystal, who co-wrote the not-funny-enough script, appears as a scheming publicist. PG-13 (sexual situations, profanity, screwball romance)

'Atlantis: the Lost Empire'

Its gift for wide-screen spectacle notwithstanding, this gee-whiz story of a turn-of-the-century search for the fabled lost continent has the look and feel of the Disney animated film of 1981, not 2001. (1.35. PG, for action violence.)

'Cats & Dogs'

For its first hour it's a delightful cloak-and-dagger comedy starring a brave Beagle, James Bond and a depraved Persian Dr. Evil. But in its final third, the cat - the improbably named Mr. Tinkles, hilariously voiced by Sean Hayes in high-hissyfit - grows increasingly power-mad and the film increasingly incoherent. Catnip bombs! Mouse holocausts! Kamikaze kittens! PG (menacing cats, explosions, house fires)

'Crazy/beautiful'

An intelligent romance that cuts against the grain of the youth-genre, 'crazy/beautiful' boasts a scarily good performance from Kirsten Dunst as Nicole Olinsky, a self-destructive rich kid whose favorite pastime is getting wasted. PG-13 (drugs, drinking, sexual situations, profanity)

'Evolution'

This would-be comedy about an alien life form that crashes to earth and spawns mutants with enormous spincters is quite the devolution from director Ivan Reitman's Ghostbusters. Starring David Duchovny, Owen Wilson, Julianne Moore and the improbably funny Seann William Scott. PG-13 (gross aliens, gross sexual humor, language)

'The Fast and the Furious'

Set in the world of L.A. street racing, this bravura presentation not only has jaw-dropping races and chases but characters of unexpected depth and complexity; the result is as intensely involving as it is exciting. Paul Walker and Vin Diesel are well-matched as racers as daring as they are reflective. With Michelle Rodriguez, Jordana Brewster, Ted Levine. (1.46. PG-13 for violence, sexual content and language.)

'Final Fantasy: The Spirits Within'

A visually audacious photorealistic animated feature, based on the video game series and set in an apocalyptic future, this is solid sci-fi with digitally rendered actors eerily close to real humans. With the voices of Ming-Na, Alec Baldwin, Donald Sutherland and James Woods. PG-13 (violence, scares)

'Jurassic Park III'

Despite the filmmaking talents of director Joe Johnston ('October Sky); despite the writing gifts of Alexander Payne and Jim Taylor ('Election), two of the reported dozen scribes it took to genetically engineer a sequel from the original 'Jurassic Park's DNA, and sadly, despite the lively presences of Tom Leclair and Sam Neill, 'Jurassic Park III' has to be the sorriest excuse for a reprise since 'Highlander - The Final Dimension.' PG-13 (intense sci-fi terror, carnage, violence)

'Kiss of the Dragon'

The latest example of the mainstreaming of Asian action stars is a vehicle tailored to the talents of Jet Li, who produced the film and came up with its story of a Chinese secret agent trapped in Paris in addition to taking the lead role. Li's hands have the speed and power of lethal weapons, his legs can direct pool balls with total accuracy, and his fight scenes completely capture our attention. Which is a good thing, because the non-fighting parts are, despite the presence of co-star Bridget Fonda, completely non-compelling. With Tchky Karyo. (1.38 R, for strong violence, language, some sexuality and drug content.)

lar of video games as source material, a sought-after star as its marriage attraction and one of the longest and most convoluted writing credits in recent history, but what it has really got is, as the old song would have it, plenty of nothing. Almost completely lacking in genuine thrills, even the attractive presence of star Angelina Jolie can't keep this leaden, plodding, completely underwhelming film from playing like 'Lara Croft: Yawn Inducer.' (1.41. PG-13 for action violence and some sensuality.)

'Last Resort'

This is a simple tale told with economy and intimacy. Its heroine is Tanya, a vulnerable Russian woman (Dina Korzun) left in the limbo of an English seaside resort for refugees when her fiancé disappears. She has no odd traits or melodramatic impulses - just a headstrong young son (Artiom Strelnikov) and an overwhelming sense of dislocation in a strange, none-too-welcoming land. With its mix of handheld verite style and long static shots, 'Last Resort' balances gritty naturalism and compelling drama. Not rated.

'Legally Blonde'

Reese Witherspoon shines in this smart, spirited girl-power comedy about a fashion-obsessed sorority sister who gains entry to Harvard Law to prove herself to the boyfriend of just dumped her. PG-13 (sexual references, language)

'The Mummy Returns'

Although the sequel retains its predecessor's breezy (verging on airheaded) retro spirit, 'The Mummy Returns' is a mite darker and scarier, and the effects a little spiffier. The movie doesn't know how to end, though one cliffhanging climactic faceoff follows another, and the Mummy mumbojumbo rumbles on. PG-13 (violence, scary stuff)

'Pearl Harbor'

Director Michael Bay's visually rich, narratively undermoulted spectacle of the event that catapulted the isolationist U.S. to declare war. It sells American patriotism as hollow as souvenir plastic Liberty Bells. Starring Ben Affleck, Josh Hartnett and Kate Beckinsale. PG-13 (war sequences, implied sex, profanity)

'Planet of the Apes'

Give an infinite number of chimpanzees an infinite number of film crews, and odds are none will make a movie that looks as cool as Tim Burton's revival of the apes franchise. A few chimps might come up with something more interesting, though. While Burton gives a great, gloomy look to his ape planet, the movie mostly brackets wearily in the wake of the original film. The main plot points are disappointingly familiar and impressive ape makeup and visual effects cannot elevate the film above retreat status. Mark Wahlberg plays the stranded astronaut, with Tim Roth and Helena Bonham Carter headlining the cast of apes. The story is so simple it's downright dumb in places. There's a few twists, but the big surprise ending is none too surprising. PG-13 for some sequences of action-violence. 120 min.

'Scary Movie 2'

Supernatural frightfests like. Please see MOVIES, Page C8

'Blazing Guns' hits Paul

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

PAUL - In the Snidely Whiplash genre, "Blazing Guns at Roaring Gulch, or the Perumed Badge" is a minor classic.

"Oakley (Valley Arts Council) did it a few years ago," said Joyce Merrill, the director of the Mount Harrison Heritage Foundation production that opens a three-week run Thursday night as a dinner show at West Minico Junior High. "It's a wonderful story with a lady sheriff who's tough yet feminine and a hero and a villain played by the same actor."

The play takes place in the lobby of the Roaring Gulch Hotel, where the hero, Harry Heartstone, is in hot pursuit of the villain, Snipe Vermin, his

Coverage of illness torments ex-Beatle

The Dallas Morning News

LONDON - Like Greta Garbo, George Harrison just wants to be left alone. But the most reclusive of the former Beatles, who is fighting cancer, is being hounded by the British press as he enters perhaps the most difficult phase of his turbulent life.

"Little information has been released publicly about his medical situation, but Harrison's representatives have confirmed that he was treated for throat cancer in 1998 and for lung cancer and a brain tumor this year.

Screaming tabloid reports this week placed him at death's door, prompting a wave of nostalgia and sadness across Britain even as Harrison, 58, and former band mate Ringo Starr said the news reports about Harrison's imminent demise were cruel and untrue.

The singer, guitarist and songwriter has sought for decades to distance himself from the fame of the Beatles era only to have what may be his final years dominated by unwanted publicity and intrusions, including an assault by a deranged fan who nearly stabbed him to death in 1999.

"He is completely fed up with it by now," said Hunter Davies, a former confidant of the Beatles who has written several popular books about the band.

Charles Schaar-Murray, a prominent British music journalist and author who has interviewed the surviving former Beatles, said it has become virtually impossible for someone of Harrison's stature to enjoy any privacy.

"I have immense sympathy for George Harrison. He deserves his privacy, but his chances of getting it are nil in today's predatory media culture," Murray said. "Basically the culture at the moment is that celebrities are fair game. A couple of years ago he survived an assassination attempt. "I'd say, 'People, leave him alone.'"

Movies

'Poltergeist,' 'The Exorcist' and 'The House on Haunted Hill' are parodied in this crude, but not particularly funny follow-up to last year's surprise hit. Tim Curry and Chris Elliott are among the new folk. Joining four original castmembers in this sequel shot sequel. 1 hr. 27 m. (raunchy sex jokes, toilet humor, crude language, monster marijuana plant)

'The Score'

Jazzy thriller about two master safecrackers and a cocky apprentice scheming to break open a vault in the Montreal Customs House without breaking open each other's heads. That acting guru is Marion Brandt, Robert DeNiro and Edward Norton play the retired champ, the current titleholder and the contender gives Frank Oz's film dimensions and resonance rare in a heist drama. R (violence, profanity, sexual candor)

'Shrek'

A gleeful piece of wisenheimer computer animation, this new version of William Steig's fractured fairy tale about an ogre who rescues a princess is all comic attitude, all the time. It especially benefits from its superb voice talent, including Mike Myers, Cameron Diaz, John Lithgow and an unstoppable Eddie Murphy as a donkey sidekick named, well, Donkey. (1:29. PG for mild language and some crude humor)

'With a Friend Like Harry'

A polished gem of a Hitchcock homage from France that understands the truly terrifying is not in the ordinary. An innocent couple on a vacation meet someone who can't do enough for or to them. R (sex, violence) in Ketchum. The Big Easy Concert House is located at 416 S. Ninth St.

Tonight

A teen dance for ages 13-18 will be held from 9 p.m. to midnight at the Boys and Girls Club, located on the College of Southern Idaho campus. Music will be provided by KJXC 104.7. Cost is $2. For more information, call Mike at 736-7011.

IN BRIEF

Idaho rodeo remains sixth at NHSFR

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's high school rodeo team was tied with New Mexico for sixth place with 1,070 points after Thursday morning's seventh performance at the National High School Finals Rodeo in Springfield, Ill. Individually, Almo's Mac Eason is tied for third in overall average for buckskin with 128 points after rides of 71 and 53 points late Wednesday and early Thursday. J.D. and Ike Folsom of Salmon timed in at a low 7.22 seconds for first place in team roping on Thursday. They stand fifth overall after the one head.

The rodeo continues through Sunday.

TF Cal Ripken team opens regional with wins

HELENA, Mont. — The Twin Falls 11-12-year-old Nationals opened with two wins at the Pacific Northwest Cal Ripken Jr. Regional Championships in Helena, Mont. on Thursday. The Nationals defeated host Helena, Mont. 4-3 as Tyler Knigge and Nathan Robertson each had a pair of hits to lead the Nationals. Robertson ripped two homers. Nathan Ramirez picked up the win.

Robertson hit a home run and Josh Barnes hit a three-run triple as Twin Falls defeated Evanston, Wyo., 10-0 later Thursday to go 2-0.

Knigge took the win. "We're feeling good," head coach Kent Knigge said. "Everybody is putting out a good effort."

Knigge also cited the outstanding defense of rightfielder Luke Wathie in the win over Wyoming.

Twin Falls faces Ferndale, Wash., today at 4:30 p.m. before playing Western Montana at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday to close pool play. The top two teams from both pools will advance to the championship round on Sunday. The winner advances to the Cal Ripken Jr. World Series Aug. 18-25 in Vincennes, Ind.

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Idaho and Middle Tennessee have been the talk of the Sun Belt Conference since the league announced its inaugural football season.

Preseason polls were announced at the conference's first media day on Wednesday in New Orleans with Middle Tennessee the top pick among

Spudman Triathlon sports largest field ever

By Joe Sunnen

RUPERT — It sounds more like a science fiction movie than a triathlon. And the Spudman is mutating. Well over 500 participants — by far the largest field ever — are expected to swim, bike and run in the 15th annual Lions Spudman Triathlon in Burley on Saturday.

"I wish I knew why so many people have signed up this year," race chairman Scott Bloxham said. "We're real excited but we're also a little concerned. We expected around 450 people, now all of our logistics change."

The race officially gets under way at 7:30 a.m. Saturday when a majority of the athletes plunge into the Snake River for a 1.5-kilometer swim, the first leg of the three-stage race. Billed as "the fastest swim in the country," the athletes are aided by a 4-mph current that can produce very fast times.

"A lot of people tell us they finish the mile swim in a personal best time," Bloxham said. "It's downstream and people can really get moving."

Once the athletes are out of the river, they move to a 40-kilometer bicycle ride before finishing with a 10-kilometer run. Two-time defending champion Jason Crompton, of Evanston, Wyo., finished last year's race in 1 hour, 54 minutes and 59 seconds.

While the larger field should present a greater challenge and level of competition for the participants, it's also presented some problems for Bloxham and the rest of the organizers.

"We're concerned about safety," Bloxham said. "The men and women will be hitting the water at the same time and that could be a problem. If we would have known that many people were going to sign up we would have sent them out at different times." The low-key event, which started as a way to raise funds for the Burley Lions Club, has steadily grown into an activity in which

Cowboys, Spartans set for showdown

Jake Asher steals second base in the fourth inning of the Twin Falls Cowboys' 10-7 victory over the Bingham Bulls. Asher went 2-for-4 with a double and an RBI.

Twin Falls creeps by Bingham in thriller

RUPERT — Passed ball. Wild pitch. Passed ball. It's not the prettiest way to win a ballgame. But right now the Twin Falls Cowboys aren't about to throw back their 10-7 victory over the Bingham Bulls. The Cowboys scored three runs on three pitches that bounced to the backstop in the bottom of the eighth inning to secure the win in their opening round game of the Area C AA American Legion District Tournament Thursday at Warburton Field.

The victory pits the second-seeded Cowboys (28-15) in the semifinals against host Minico, who downed the Idaho Falls Reds 14-3. Today's game is at 1:30 p.m.

The No. 7 Bulls (23-31) will face the Idaho Falls Reds at 10:30 a.m.

"We've got our rival tomorrow and we're looking forward to that," said Twin Falls coach Matt Rasmussen. "But we need to get squared away if we're going to make a run at this thing." The teams entered the eighth inning knotted at 7-7. But all that changed when Brandon Salinas, Ben Mueller and Brett Miller all scored for the Cowboys without the ball leaving the infield. In fact, Salinas' infield chopper to short was the only hit of the inning for Twin Falls.

Bulls reliever Anthony Jones and his catcher Stephen Adams never could get on the same page after Jones came in to relieve starter David Vassas one batter into the inning.

What resulted was a Cowboy victory and a parade of balls finding their way past Adams.

"We feel lucky to get away from this thing with a victory," Rasmussen said. "But it feels nice to get one in the win column."

"At first, it didn't look that way at all as the Cowboys jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning on an RBI double from Jake Asher and a two-run single from Mueller. Defensively, starting pitcher Sean Bernhard mowed Bingham down, recording three strikeouts in the second inning.

But that is when the wheels fell off for Bernhard and the rest of the Bulls.

"I think Bernhard was cruising and relaxed," Rasmussen said. "And then he paid the price for losing your focus."

And the Bulls capitalized. Bobby Earley pounded an RBI triple and Craig Christensen solo homered as part of a Bingham three-run third that tied the game at 3-3.

The teams then traded runs with the Cowboys collecting two runs in each of the fourth and fifth innings and the Bulls scoring four in the fifth inning to make it 7-7 and set up the wild eighth.

Although both teams had chances to take a lead before then, the Cowboys blew one in the fifth when they loaded the bases and Andy Coats hit into an inning-ending double play.

But in the sixth, the Cowboys' defense made a brilliant play when Mueller relayed the ball home to get Chase Wren out at the plate on a double from Christensen.

"That was a big play," Rasmussen said. "I think that took some momentum from them and put a little spirit into our team. And that had been missing."

The Cowboys managed just six hits, with Derrick Tenney and Asher leading the way. Both went 2-for-4, with Tenney scoring twice and collecting two RBIs. Asher had a double with an RBI.

Memory remains for Armstrong

MONTLUCON, France — Relaxing in the garden of a chateau while son Luke and wife Kristin played nearby, soon-to-be triple Tour de France champion Lance Armstrong seemed to have it all.

Bit memories of less happy times still abound. The Texan, about to claim his third consecutive title in the world's toughest cycling race, also is the survivor of advanced testicular cancer that left him forever aware of life's frailty.

"I'm still a cancer survivor. I always will be one," he said Thursday outside the chateau where he was staying with his U.S. Postal Service team. It's a fact that has gotten less attention this year than during his previous Tour triumphs,

Twins beat A's, regain AL Central lead

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Tom Prince hit two homers and Torii Hunter added an inside-the-park home run as the Minnesota Twins beat the Oakland Athletics 7-4 Thursday.

MLB

Adam Johnson (1-1) earned his first major league victory, pitching five innings. Minnesota moved one game ahead of Cleveland for the AL Central lead. The Indians lost to Chicago 5-4.

Hasselbeck: Reports of stalled negotiations untrue

CHENEY, Wash. (AP) — Reports that Matt Hasselbeck had fired his agent and intended to play for the Seattle Seahawks under terms of his current contract were "close to being completely false," the quarterback said Thursday.

"Don't believe what you read," Hasselbeck said at training camp in Eastern Washington University.

Around the NFL

Hasselbeck declined to go into detail, saying he'll make a statement about his contract status this weekend when training camp begins.

The Seattle Times reported this week that negotiations between the Seahawks and Hasselbeck were suspended because the quarterback had released his agent, Yann McElroy, and intended to play for $440,000 next season. That deal expires after the season, making Hasselbeck a restricted free agent.

Hasselbeck spent three years with Bay, the last two as a backup to Brett Favre. He hired McElroy a year ago.

He is expected to be Seattle's starting quarterback this season. One of Seattle's two first-round draft picks, Steve Hutchinson, also reported to camp Thursday after signing with the team Wednesday.

"It's just a big relief for me," Hutchinson said. "It's just getting suited on the right foot."

Hutchinson, 17th pick overall, signed a five-year contract worth about $6.7 million, including a $3.3 million signing bonus and a $1.3 million option bonus that can be paid next spring, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer reported.

Although the team has reportedly reached an agreement with its top draft choice, wide receiver Koren Robinson, Seahawks officials would not confirm the deal Thursday. Robinson was not at camp Thursday with other rookies.

The Seahawks announced Thursday they had signed their second-round pick, cornerback Ken Lucas, and third-round selection, fullback Heath Evans.

Releasings
Three words printed in capital letters at the top of the LEAGUE BASEBALL — have painted Deion Sanders into a corner.

world's flashiest corner-back-outfielder was still on the roster of minor league baseball's Syracuse SkyChiefs.

His options are running out. And it's his move.

"It will all unfold in due time, whatever transpires," coach Marty Schottenheimer said. "And I have no idea what will happen."

Talk of Sanders nearly overshadowed the other absences at Redskins Park, even though he doesn't have to report until the start of training camp Sunday.

Panthers

Kicker John Kasay's recovery from a fractured kneecap that kept him out all of last season is ahead of schedule and he should play in Carolina's preseason opener Aug. 10 against Jacksonville.

Kasay participated in his first organized practice since shattering his left knee last year. He converted all five attempts ranging from between 30 and 35 yards.

Jaguars

With an assist from linebacker Kevin Hardy, the Jaguars signed first-round draft pick Marcus Stroud the day before two-a-day practices begin.

Hardy restructured his contract to give Jacksonville room under the salary cap to sign Stroud, a defensive lineman from Georgia, to a five-year, $8.4 million contract.

Buccaneers

First-round pick Kenyatta

Walker signed a five-year, $8 million contract with Tampa Bay. Walker, the Buccaneers' projected starting left tackle, was the 14th player chosen overall. He was the last of the club's nine selections to agree to terms.

Colts

Wide receiver Reggie Wayne, the team's first-round choice, signed a contract and reported to training camp with the rest of the players.

"My whole plan was to get to camp on time, especially with this offense," said Wayne, the 30th pick overall. "I want to get my timing down with Peyton (Manning) and that sort of thing."

All of the Colts players are now under contract, although team president Bill Polian said negotiations on a long-term deal with tight end Marcus Pollard were continuing.

Eagles

First-round pick Freddie Mitchell signed a five-year deal worth more than $5 million hours before the wide receiver and other Eagles rookies were due to report.

Mitchell, the 25th pick out of UCLA, is the type of playmaking wideout Philadelphia has sought to pair with quarterback Donovan McNabb.

Rams

As St. Louis opened training camp, star quarterback Kurt Warner said he felt no effects from the concussion he sustained late last season.

"I don't have anything new to say," said Warner, the NFL's MVP when the Rams won the Super Bowl two years ago. "All I can say is I feel great and the doctors say don't worry about it."

49ers

Defensive end Andre Carter, the team's top draft pick out of California, agreed to a five-year, $11.6 million contract.

San Francisco traded up on draft day to get Carter with the seventh overall selection. He missed the first day of workouts, but the team said he planned to report Thursday night and be in uniform today.

San Francisco's draft picks are all under contract except for seventh-round choice Alex Lincoln.

Cardinals

The NFL suspended Arizona running back Michael Pittman for one game Thursday, hours after he was sentenced to five days in jail for arguing with his estranged wife.

Pittman pleaded guilty in Tempe City Court to misdemeanor counts of criminal trespass and criminal damage.

Chargers

San Diego agreed to a one-year contract with former Buffalo inside linebacker John Holecck.

Holecck is expected to arrive in San Diego on Monday to sign his contract and begin practicing. The Chargers' first full-squad workout is this morning.

Baldwin trade to Dodgers for three pitchers

CLEVELAND — Pitcher James Baldwin, on the trading block since signing a one-year contract this winter, was sent from the Chicago White Sox to the Los Angeles Dodgers on Thursday for three minor leaguers.

The Dodgers, desperate for starting pitching, gave up left-handers Onan Masoaka and right-handers Gary Majewski and Jonathan Berry as well as cash considerations for Baldwin. Baldwin was informed of the deal about three hours before he was scheduled to start against the Cleveland Indians.

"It really hasn't hit me yet," Baldwin said. "It's kind of sad because I've been with the White Sox my whole career. I'll miss everything about Chicago, the fans, the front office, the pizza, everything."

Trucks, Hornets invade Speedway

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - Five classes of racers headlined by the Hornets run on Saturday at Magic Valley Speedway.

Joining the yellow-and-black buzzers will be the fiercely competitive American Race Trucks, the Mountain Dew Modifieds, the Budweiser Grand National Sportsman and the NAPA Auto Parts Pony Stocks.

It's the third showing of the Hornets, and it's anybody's guess how many of the diminutive racers will be on hand. Thirteen of the cars made the inaugural run at the track on June 2. That was topped by the 21 cars, which made the 1/3-mile circuit on July 3.

Currently, the No. 17 of Tyler Corn leads the way with 27 points. In hot pursuit is the No. 5 of Jim Peterson with 26 points, while current Pony Stocks points leader Alan Larson is third with 19 points.

In the American Race Trucks series, 2000 class track champion Nick Lynch dominated the first three events and still holds the points lead with a second-, third- and fifth-place finish in the last three races.

The Burley teenager holds an 80-point margin over runner-up John Newhouse. Newhouse has yet to take a win in the 2001 season but has finished in the top 5 for all six races.

John Wong took his first series win Saturday night, while Jason Newhouse secured the victory on June 30 at Rocky Mountain Raceways in Salt Lake City.

For the Modifieds, 1999 class champion Bruce Quale regained his previous championship form on Saturday by qualifying first and finishing second in the main event to reigning champion Steve Jones. The two drivers have ran neck-and-neck all season with Quale opening up a 32-point lead. The margin had dwindled to just 20 points after racing July 7.

Grand National Sportsman

rookie Ray Van Holland is threatening to run away with the class title. He holds a 68-point lead over second-place Mitchell Meads. Van Holland has 12 top-5 finishes to go along with a pair of wins. Meads is right behind with two wins and 10 top-5 finishes.

Larson continues his march to his first-ever Pony Stocks crown. The season-long points leader tops the field with four main event wins, 11 top-5 finishes and 13 top-10 finishes. He holds a 353-point lead over reigning class champion Mike Pratt.

McDonald's time trials begin at 6 p.m. with heat and main event races following at 7 p.m.

Rudd plans few changes for Pocono

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) - With things going so well in his unexpected run for the Winston Cup championship, Ricky Rudd likes making as few changes as necessary.

So, he's very happy to be back this week at Pocono International Raceway, where virtually no major adjustments are needed the second time. Most of the tracks on which NASCAR drivers compete twice each year change dramatically from race to race.

"Going back to Pocono so close to the last race probably helps our situation," Rudd said. "A lot of times we race at tracks six months apart, and there are a lot of changes."

He'll settle for none Sunday, when he tries to win the Pennsylvania 500 just six weeks after taking the Pocono 500. That victory, his first in two seasons with Robert Yates Racing, broke an 88-race losing streak dating to 1998.

It also propelled Rudd into what has become a three-way battle for the title with teammate Dale Jarrett and Jeff Gordon. By winning in June, Rudd closed the gap from Gordon to 130 points after being twice as far back early in the season.

Ricky Rudd celebrates in Victory Lane after winning the NASCAR Pocono 500 at Pocono International Raceway in Long Pond, Pa., June 17.

Now, after a third-place finish behind winner Jarrett and Gordon last Sunday in New Hampshire, Rudd is only 28 points behind the co-leaders in a bid for his first championship.

But Rudd isn't counting points and doesn't plan to change his driving style even with every pass now so critical.

"We haven't let that affect us too much," he said. "We're looking more at what got us to this point in the season. We're being very aggressive, charging hard to win races."

Three-time series champion, Gordon knows plenty about that. With 51 career victories, he's the leader among active drivers. Gordon also has three victories at Pocono, where he finished second last month with Jarrett third.

Gordon would like to win his third Pocono pole because the track favors front-runners. He led 86 of 200 laps in June, but probably lost because of a late caution flag.

Jarrett and Rudd combined to lead the last 79 laps, but Gordon got up for second at the end. That's more than a footnote in a championship race that probably won't be decided until the season's final race Nov. 18.

The winner should be one of the three, because Tony Stewart, Sterling Marlin and defending Pennsylvania 500 champion Rusty Wallace - the next three in the points - are not within striking distance.

Your Turn

Letters From Our Readers

Dear NASCAR This Week,
I've noticed there are two cars on the track that basically have the same number, Rusty Wallace's No. 2 and Ryan Newman's No. 02. How can two cars on the same circuit run the same race with the same numbers?
Eric N. Daw
Petat, Miss.

NASCAR counts those as different numbers. Try to think of Newman as "zero 2." There are also Nos. 1 (Steve Park) and 01 (Jason Leffler).

Dear NASCAR This Week,
I am writing in response to the letter saying Jeff Gordon needs to start using his fists instead of his mouth. I think he is showing how a true man handles a situation. Violence does not deserve respect. He is being a true gentleman handling the situations in this manner. He is also a very good role model for his young fans.
Diane Wheeler
Elwood, Ind.

Thanks for taking up the cause of gentlemanly behavior.

Why doesn't NASCAR take a special week off for the fans where they make the cars make all right turns by going the opposite direction?
Jarod Wince
Freetown, Ind.

That's the first time we've heard that suggested. The best answer is probably "because they've never done it before" and the oval tracks are designed with counterclockwise racing in mind.

Benson cheers decision to drop plates at Loudon, N.H.

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

LOUDON, N.H. - Johnny Benson spoke for most all the drivers when he said that the decision to drop restrictor plates would not be used at New Hampshire International Speedway this year.

"I'm glad there is no plate this weekend," said Benson. "I think all of you know how drivers feel about restrictor plates. We don't need restrictor plate racing on short tracks. It's good to go back there in a normal atmosphere and let us deal with all the horsepower."

NEW TAKING APPLICATIONS: Tommy Baldwin Jr., who is Winston Cup crew chief for Ward Burton, and Eddie D'Hondt, a longtime friend, have announced the formation of a new Busch Grand National team.
Baldwin, while continuing to work with Burton, will begin his BGN team at Daytona in February. D'Hondt has worked in the past at Bill Elliott Racing and Everharm Motorsports.

FUMINY-BALDWIN RACING is expected to set up shop in the new Talbert Point Motorsports Complex in Mooresville, N.C.

DEAN OF SPORTSWRITERS: America's most well-known motorsports writer, Chris Economaki, was the Grand Marshal for the New England 300 at New Hampshire International Speedway.

Economaki is the editor and publisher emeritus of the racing weekly National Speed Sport News. Economaki was also a longtime fixture at the series' season-opening events. Chris was a member of the broadcast team when CBS Sports presented the first flag-to-flag coverage of a NASCAR event at the 1975 Daytona 500.

Chamber welcomes business to Jerome

JEROME - The Jerome Chamber of Commerce will celebrate a new downtown Jerome business today. A grand-opening ribbon cutting is set for 11:30 a.m. at Signed, Sealed & Delivered on East Main Street, the chamber said.

A light lunch will be served. Genev Spaulding and Sandra Siebert ventured into business together, opening Signed, Sealed & Delivered in April.

After nine months of renovating the former Ross' hardware store building, they now provide complete mailroom services to their customers. Signed, Sealed & Delivered will ship anywhere in the United States and accepts international mailings.

The business is a service provider for United Parcel Service, FedEx and the U.S. Postal Service. Besides mailing and packaging, money orders, phone cards and stamps are available.

Bank announces grants for affordable housing

HAMMETT - The Federal Home Loan Bank of Seattle announced Thursday it will invest $6.5 million in 29 housing projects, including two in Idaho.

The money comes from the bank's Affordable Housing Program, which is awarded twice annually and is funded with 10 percent of the company's annual profits. Another $6 million will be awarded to housing initiatives in December.

In southern Idaho, Comunitad Juan Mayoral in Hammett will benefit from one of the grants. A $239,967 grant will help the Idaho Migrant Council rehabilitate 33 apartments for a migrant farm-worker labor camp, the bank said.

SkyWest Airlines reports increase in passengers

ST. GEORGE, Utah - SkyWest Airlines passenger miles in June soared to more than 153 million miles, a 33 percent jump from last year.

The airline flew more than 573,000 passengers in June, an increase of 15 percent. Its load factor also increased to 65.5 percent, 5.2 points higher than June 2000.

For the first six months of 2001, SkyWest made available 2.2 billion miles and carried nearly 3 million passengers to its 72 destinations. It flew 727 million revenue passenger miles in 2001.

It's a different story at Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport, where the number of passenger boardings for SkyWest fell 11 percent in June from year-earlier totals, airport officials said recently. For the first half of 2001, SkyWest boardings were down 6 percent from a year earlier.

Call center expands in Pocatello with 250 jobs

POCATELLO - After a three-year parade of corporate layoffs in the Pocatello area, Convergys Corp. is opening up 250 entry-level jobs. The company is hiring service representatives, said Judy Lewis, senior director for the Pocatello and Salt Lake City Convergys offices.

The increased staffing "will start right away," Lewis said. The new jobs will pay about $7.50 an hour, plus a $250 in bonuses.

"We need these people right now," Lewis said.

Convergys' Pocatello office employs 560 people and serves its corporate client, Direct TV. The Cincinnati-based corporation provides customer management services and information systems management to domestic and international clients.

"Any time a company or organization brings new jobs into the economy it's going to make an impact," said Polly Gorley, director of marketing for the Greater Pocatello Chamber of Commerce. "But that many new jobs in Pocatello is going to give a boost to an economy that's had more than its fair share of layoffs."

Over the past three years, local employers have imposed layoffs or cut hundreds of jobs - 203 jobs by Asteris LLC, 90 by J.R. Sprock Co., about 400 by Union Pacific Railroad, up to 171 by the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory and an unknown number of workers by American Microsystems Inc.

Regional development group gets off the ground, picks first set of leaders

By Virginia S. Hutchins
Times-News writer

JEROME - Call it official. Business and civic leaders from both sides of the Perrine Bridge Thursday confirmed the first governing board and executive committee for their joint job-creation effort, distributed bills to the new organization's backers and set a meeting schedule.

That paperwork isn't particularly spectacular. But it marks the birth of the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization - for now a two-county effort to attract new employers and retain existing ones - which could grow to include more of the Magic Valley.

"I think this meeting is one of the most exciting things I've been involved with in the Magic Valley," Jerome Mayor Dennis Moore said.

He and other participants apparently looked past the paperwork. "It's nice to see both sides of the river aligning for a common cause," Idaho Power Co.'s Jim Mason said.

Who's on the board - D7

Dave McAllindin, Twin Falls' economic development director, had more lofty words of praise for the Twin Falls-Jerome collaboration: "This is pretty historical stuff."

On the College of Southern Idaho's dime, SIEDO's first executive director, Jan Rogers, started work in June. But CSI made that hire - and has started advertising for a second SIEDO office employee - with the understanding that other entities would pitch in, too.

Thursday, CSI Vice President of Instruction Jerry Beck outlined a preliminary budget of $100,000 from CSI, $50,000 from the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce's Business Plus II economic-development campaign; $7,500 from the city of Twin Falls; $5,000 from the city of Jerome; $5,000 each from Twin Falls and Jerome counties; and $10,000 from Region IV Development.

SIEDO leaders also hope for a large contribution from Bechtel BWXT Idaho, the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory contractor, which has supported local economic-development efforts; and for small contributions from other entities.

Protests against Boise Cascade lead to arrests

The Associated Press

BOISE - Two environmental groups have wrapped up a protest against Boise Cascade Corp. with simultaneous demonstrations at its offices in Boise and suburban Chicago, where blues diva Bonnie Raitt was arrested.

Environmentalists at both locations criticized what they said were Boise Cascade's practices of cutting old growth timber.

The company's Corrugated Container Operations plant in Burley is a major Mini-Cassia employer.

Boise Cascade spokesman Doug Bartels defended his company's environmental record.

"We're very proud of the work our foresters have done over the years," he said, maintaining that Boise Cascade's harvest of old growth timber amounted to only 3 percent of all harvests last year.

More than 60 supporters and members of the Rainforest Action Network protested at Boise Cascade's office-products division headquarters in Itasca, Ill., Wednesday.

Twenty were arrested there, including Raitt and the former drummer for The Doors, John Densmore. They were charged with illegally conducting a demonstration, the Itasca Police Department said.

At company headquarters in Boise, Wednesday's protest included about 40 members of Earth First.

One was arrested for attaching himself to the axle of a company delivery truck. It took police and fire officials about an hour to persuade the man to remove himself. He faces charges of solicitation to halt or impeding lawful forestry, mining, or agricultural practices.

The Rainforest Action Network launched its campaign against Boise Cascade last October. Michael Brune, a spokesman for the group, said members will increase pressure on the company until it moves away from its dependence on old growth timber.

Boise Cascade spokesman Mike Moser said the company anticipates the percentage of its old growth harvests will continue to decline, but he said harvests from old growth stands will occur when appropriate and needed to protect the health of the forest.

Earth First criticized Boise Cascade for genetic engineering to create faster-growing trees and for moving logging jobs to other countries at the expense of local workers.

Bartels said the protesters are ill-informed because the company is not involved in genetic engineering.

Computer maker HP will shed 6,000 jobs

The Association Press

SAN JOSE, Calif. - High-tech giant Hewlett-Packard Co. - a major Idaho employer - lowered its sales forecasts yet again Thursday and said it is slashing 6,000 jobs, more than 6 percent of its work force, because consumers are spending even less on technology than expected.

Its stock price fell more than 5 percent. The job cuts come on top of 4,700 already announced this year and also follow several warnings that results would be worse than previously thought.

HP's chairman, president and chief executive, Carly Fiorina, said she now expects revenues in the third quarter, which ends July 31, to decline 14 percent to 16 percent from the same time last year.

In May, she had said sales were probably going to be flat to down 5 percent in the quarter.

"Economies around the world continue to weaken and our consumer business is being hit particularly hard," Fiorina said on a conference call with financial analysts before the stock market opened.

Troubled times for Hewlett-Packard

A worldwide slump in consumer spending has hit Hewlett-Packard Co. hard. The high-tech giant cut its revenue targets Thursday and is slashing 6 percent of its work force.

Sales to consumers are expected to fall 24 percent, she said. "I do not expect a second-half recovery in 2001," she added. "I have not expected that for some time."

The Palo Alto-based computer and printer maker didn't address its third-quarter earnings estimates; analysts surveyed by Thomson Financial/First Call were expecting 19 cents per share.

Bank supports WestRock resort development

The Associated Press

BOISE - Banc of America Securities will work with developers to find investors for the four-season WestRock resort on Lake Cascade.

Developers and a state official called the commitment a significant boost to the proposed $1.2-billion project. The financial institution earlier loaned $9.2 million for the project.

"As part of one of the world's largest financial institutions, BAS is able to provide you with a full array of capabilities," wrote Hal Vazifdar, managing director of corporate and investment banking, in a July 17 letter to WestRock.

Vazifdar and other company officials toured the site before making their commitment. Because the resort as planned would need to lease 2,124 acres of state endowment land, Idaho Land Board approval is required before the project.

Hepburn returns home after hospital visit

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Actress Katharine Hepburn was discharged from Hartford Hospital on Thursday after a week's stay for a minor infection. Hepburn was released just after 10 a.m. and returned to her home in Old Saybrook, hospital spokesman James Battaglio said. The four-time Academy Award winner was admitted July 18 for a urinary tract infection. Doctors said the 84-year-old Hepburn responded well to treatment soon after she was admitted, but needed a few days to regain her strength and mobility. Past health problems included arthritis, pneumonia and Parkinson's-like tremors. During her 60-year career, Hepburn was nominated for a record-tying 12 Academy Awards and won for "Morning Glory," 1933; "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," 1967; "The Lion in Winter," 1968; and "On Golden Pond," 1981.

Stepmother fights bad behavior with positive focus

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "No Name, No Address, No Phone," about the way a stepmother treated her husband's children, brought tears to my eyes. It was a real eye-opener. My fiance and I have chosen to blend our families. I have an 8-year-old daughter and a 12-year-old son. My fiance has a 5-year-old son, "Benny," whom we are trying to get custody of. The battle has been ugly and is not over yet.

The stress of being jostled back and forth between his mother and his fiance has made Benny oppositional, defiant and difficult to live with. He got so bad that I refused to deal with him any longer. I regarded him as an ungrateful, rotten child. My fiance was always disciplining him to appease me. He also cut back on visitations with Benny to keep peace in the household. I felt guilty about this, but was so stressed out, I didn't oppose it. Then I read your column. It made me realize I was so focused on Benny's bad behavior. Just waiting to "catch" him doing something wrong, that I had failed to recognize all the good things he was doing — and that really, all he wanted was for someone to love him unconditionally. I had to expect him to be "perfect." This is every child's right, after all. I also realized we were more strict with Benny than my own children. My kids don't upset me because they're older, but they're certainly not perfect. All three children should be treated equally. Yesterday, Benny helped me clean the living room without being asked. I scooped him up in my arms and told him how much I appreciated it and what a good helper he was. His face lit up and he hugged me back. From now on, I will not see Benny as his mother's son. I will see Benny as the individual he is and focus on the positive. Thank you for waking me up, Abby. Our blended family will be a lot happier because of your column. If you print this, please sign me, —AWAKENED

DEAR ABBY

DEAR AWAKENED: You are to be applauded for your awakening. All I did was write the column. You were the one perceptive enough to read between the lines, apply it to your own situation and begin to make the necessary changes. I congratulate you.

DEAR ABBY: One of the letters you printed suggested that when people visit their doctor, they take a list of all their medications. I work in a medical office and would like to offer a better idea: Bring all your medicine containers with you. That way, the medical staff can take all the information directly from the bottle labels, and there will be no misunderstandings. (It's easy to forget important information, such as dosage and strength.)

It's also a smart idea to use only one pharmacy to use prescriptions filled, particularly for people seeing more than one doctor. Pharmacists are trained to spot possible drug interactions, but they can't pinpoint potential problems if they don't have all the information.

If people would use their pharmacist in partnership with their physicians and other health-care providers, they'd be better off. That's my advice for the day, Abby.

—SOUTH CAROLINA MEDICAL WORKER

DEAR MEDICAL WORKER: That's excellent advice. Readers, take heed.

P.S. Doctors should also be informed about any vitamins, supplements and over-the-counter medicines you are taking.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Feeling of restriction is temporary. You will soon enter areas previously prohibited. Once you do, there will be a newfound freedom. Scorpio involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Property you have been holding at a loss will be taken off your hands. Read and write. Don't affix signature to just any document. Virgo represented.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Search for "solid foundation" is being completed. Focus on domestic tranquility, where you live and marital status. Music will play, dance to your own tune.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be careful, think with your head as well as your heart. Within 24 hours financial pressure relieved. You will be dealing with relative who seems to "know it all."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Power play Lunar position will favor financial deal. Good news: What was lost, missing or stolen will be retrieved. Show gratitude without being obsequious.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Long-range prospects become crystal clear. Circumstances turn in your favor as you read these lines. Love relationship torrid. Aries represented.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Much that occurs is "behind the scenes." Someone attempts to "tell you something." Resolve to make first start. Leo, Aquarius involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You will be asked to give up some authority. Do so without rancor. Focus on "comforts of home." Financial opportunity exists; be aware of it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Diversity, experiment and make inquiries. Insist on answers, not evasions. Long-distance communication will not be exactly to your liking. Sagittarius involved.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Check details in connection with long journey. Be positive concerning reservations. Be sure people are expecting you. Published material adds to prestige.

A decade of laughs gone forever

Night Rider News Service

PASADENA, Calif. — As it pulls together a September special about its half century of late-night TV, NBC is struggling with a decade of television.

A decade of "Tonight Show" tapes from 1962 to 1972 were erased in the mid-'70s, a decision now recognized as devastating to the historical record of television.

Over 95 percent of the first 10 years is no longer in existence," said Andrew Solt, producer of "50 Years of NBC Late Night."

The tapes were dumped when a mid-level network accounting executive noticed that it was costing hundreds of dollars a month for space to store them.

"And he said, 'Get rid of them,' and they were all destroyed," said Conan O'Brien, who will host the two-hour special Sept. 23.

Among the tapes lost was the Oct. 1, 1962, debut of a promising comedian named Johnny Carson as permanent host after Jack Paar quit the show.

Solt said that he's obtained an audience of about 75,000 for the only existing electronic recording.

When Carson eventually learned that NBC had dumped the videotapes, he demanded that the remaining "Tonight Show" tapes be given to him. They reside today in an old salt mine in the Midwest, where humidity levels are excellent for preservation.

NBC News, for example, maintains an archive of old news broadcasts that it copies and sells, as do other networks.
