Petty Officer 1st class Bernard Sampson Sr. holds his son, Bernard Jr., 4, and his wife, Doria, holds their 1-year-old daughter, Khadijah, as he prepares to board the aircraft carrier USS Theodore Roosevelt Wednesday in Norfolk, Va. The carrier's departure was scheduled for the Mediterranean before last week's attacks. It will join the carrier USS Carl Vinson, newly arrived in the Arabian Sea, and the USS Enterprise, which was to have returned home after the Vinson's arrival, but which has been ordered to remain in the area.

Airmen, sailors, Marines depart

WASHINGTON - The Air Force laid the groundwork Wednesday for dispatching dozens of warplanes to the Persian Gulf area, setting in motion the United States' promised battle against terrorism.

"The United States is repositioning some of its forces to support the president's goal," President Bush's national security adviser, Condoleezza Rice, said without elaborating.

The aircraft carrier USS Theodore Roosevelt also was sent toward the Mediterranean to join two aircraft carriers already in the region near Afghanistan, whose suspect No. 1, Osama bin Laden, is said to be hiding. The deployment from Norfolk includes more than 15,000 sailors and Marines, including 2,100 Marines aboard a battle-

Last week's terrorist attacks began a coast-to-coast wave of soul-searching, and now many Americans are making big changes in their personal lives, prodded by two lessons from the tragedy: Life is precious, and time is short.

Ever there was a moment to seize the day - be it by changing careers, dumping a boyfriend or joining the Army - many people have decided this is it.

"Everything was made clearer this week," Aaron Williams said Wednesday. The Atlanta resident said he'd grown dissatisfied with his public relations job over the past year, "but I never had the guts to do anything about it."

Then the terrorists struck. Among the victims, Williams says, was an old family friend: Navy Cmdr. Dan Shanower, killed in the attack on the Pentagon.

"He reminded me a lot of myself," said Williams, age 28. "He was a fun-loving guy, joked a lot, and all of a sudden he was dead."

Williams spent last weekend huddled with his wife, Mary, reassessing their own lives. On Tuesday, Williams told his boss he was quitting so he could go to graduate school and return to his real passion: journalism.

Pakistani defends decision to country

President tells people they must side with U.S. against terrorism

The Washington Post

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan - The president of Pakistan, a nation whose support is critical to any U.S. effort to strike suspected terrorist targets in Afghanistan, went on national television Wednesday night to quell increasingly vocal domestic opposition to his decision to assist the United States, saying that failing to cooperate would turn this country into a pariah state.

"Pakistan is facing a very critical time," Gen. Pervez Musharraf said in a somber address. If the country does not back a U.S.-led campaign to go after Osama bin Laden, the alleged mastermind of last week's terror attacks in New York and Washington, Pakistan risked "very grave consequences," Musharraf said.

Hours before Musharraf made his case to Pakistanis, a council of senior Islamic clerics took up the question of whether Afghanistan's ruling Taliban militia should surrender bin Laden in the hope of avoiding a U.S. attack. Taliban leader Mohammed Omar called on the council to decide bin Laden's fate after he held talks with Pakistani officials on Monday, but the 1,000 clerics took two days to gather in Kandahar and, after a day of deliberations, said no decision will be handed down until today.

Musharraf has agreed to U.S. requests to open Pakistani airspace to U.S. military aircraft, share military intelligence about Afghanistan and provide access to military facilities for logistics teams and special forces units involved in possible operations in Afghanistan.

TWIN FALLS - Local canal companies say they will stop deliveries in mid-October, two weeks ahead of schedule, to get an early start on winter water storage.

Water demand decreases daily, said Vince Alberdi, general manager of the Twin Falls Canal Co.

SEATTLE (AP) — American and United airlines announced 40,000 layoffs Wednesday as the U.S. aviation industry sank deeper into a crisis touched off by the terrorist attacks. Some people who narrowly escape death become more emotionally open, compassionate and spiritually minded," said Curtis McMillen, professor of social work at Washington University in St. Louis.

In his study of survivors of a terrorist plane crash that a nosedive shooting, McMillen found that big changes usually were reserved for those who personally experienced trauma. But last week's tragedy was different.

"We were all personally affected by this one," he said. "We were all traumatized." Suddenly it seemed as if everyone was suffering, a collective grief that stirred smoldering dissatisfaction and awakened dormant dreams.

In Los Angeles, calls flooded in this week after radio station KZLA invited listeners to offer stories of life changes they were making.

One woman said she was trying to breach an old rift in her family. A man said he wanted to move from urban California to avoid future terrorist attacks.

In Seattle, high-tech professionals assessed their contribution to society and found it lacking. "Many of my clients are questioning if the work they do really matters," said career counselor Janet Scarborough. "They're asking, do I really care if Version 3.0 ships on time?"

Now she wants to move to Ireland, a country she has visited twice. "I think I would feel safer there than I feel here," she said. "On Sept. 10, it was a lousy dream. As of Sept. 11, it's something I've been thinking about a lot more."

"I'm understanding how precious life is, and how I need to make goals happen. You never know when you're not going to get the opportunity anymore."

Administration targets big, illicit money launderers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Bush administration on Wednesday unveiled a new strategy to fight money laundering, targeting big illicit operations that could be used by terrorist groups.

The new strategy comes at a time Osama bin Laden's sophisticated financial network is looming large.

The U.S. effort, required annually by law and the first of George W. Bush's presidency, focuses more on prosecuting large, professional money-laundering organizations than did the Clinton administration policy. To dismantle them, the government said it intends to prosecute professional money launderers, including "corrupt lawyers, bankers and accountants."

As part of the strategy, the government also is setting up new law-enforcement teams in Chicago and San Francisco to investigate and prosecute money laundering by suspected terrorists.

The strategy's first goal is "to focus law enforcement's efforts on the prosecution of major money-laundering organizations and systems," the Treasury Department said in its report on the new policy.

"We will aggressively enforce our money-laundering laws with accountability and coordination at the federal, state and international levels," President Bush said in the report.

Although past law-enforcement efforts had resulted in successful investigations into money laundering, the report said, "The fact remains that money laundering is seldom the primary focus and objective of the criminal investigation. Our efforts must ensure that money laundering is not simply a 'tag-along' count added to an indictment."

The Clinton strategy tended to concentrate enforcement efforts on local money-laundering operations in areas with heavy drug crime.

Under the new strategy, the Bush administration also plans to ask Congress for legislation to expand the government's law-enforcement powers in pursuing money laundering, including easing privacy restrictions that limit the Internal Revenue Service's ability to share tax data with other agencies.

The strategy already had been drafted by Treasury other agencies when the World Trade Center towers and the Pentagon were smashed by jetliners carrying attacks Sept. 11. Its release, originally planned for the day after the attacks, was postponed until Wednesday.

AMERICA ON ALERT

Ashcroft: Foreign governments backed terrorists

WASHINGTON (AP)—The terrorists who planned and carried out last week's attacks probably were supported by foreign governments, Attorney General John Ashcroft said Wednesday.

After visiting the damaged Pentagon building, Ashcroft said of that attack and the ones on the World Trade Center, "It is pretty clear that the networks that conduct these kind of events are harbored, supported, sustained and protected by a variety of foreign governments."

"It is time for those governments to understand with crystal clarity that the United States of America will not tolerate that kind of support," he said.

Ashcroft's comments followed news that the government had received information from a foreign intelligence service that Mohamed Atta, identified by the FBI as a hijacker aboard one of the planes that slammed into the Trade Center, met earlier this year in Europe with an Iraqi intelligence agent.

Iraq has denied any involvement in the attacks. President Bush has said that Osama bin Laden, a wealthy Saudi living in Afghanistan, is the primary suspect in the hijackings.

Authorities were looking into how the plot was financed, and federal banking regulators Wednesday distributed a list of 21 people, including most of the 19 hijackers.

Banks were asked to search their customer files for accounts or financial transactions under those names.

The list suggests that one of the hijackers may have had a connection to Minnesota, where an Arab man was detained three weeks before the attacks after seeking flight training.

Banks were given three possible addresses to check for Abdulaziz Alomari, who was believed to be on an American Airlines flight out of Boston that crashed into the World Trade Center. One address was in Saudi Arabia, another in Vero Beach, Fla., and the third in St. Paul.

Authorities in Minnesota detained Zaccarias Moussaoui Aug. 17 on immigration issues after he aroused suspicions by seeking to buy time on a flight simulator for jetliners at a Minnesota flight school. Law enforcement officials said, Moussaoui had also sought flight training in Oklahoma.

Airline industry seeks $17.5 billion

WASHINGTON — Warning of impending bankruptcies, an airline executive asked Congress Wednesday for $17.5 billion to help the industry overcome the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11.

Lawmakers, citing the importance of the aviation industry to the nation's economy, appeared ready to move as early as this week on relief legislation, although several said any package should also include help for the estimated 100,000 airline workers expected to be laid off because of reduced flight schedules.

The major airlines have already announced plans to cut flights back by about 20 percent.

"Our challenge is to restore public confidence in air travel," said Rep. James Oberstar of Minnesota.

Middle East truce holds, raising expectations

JERUSALEM (AP) - Israelis and the Palestinians observed a tentative truce Wednesday, a day after pulling back forces at the prodding of the United States.

Calm in the region is seen as crucial to Washington's efforts to bring Arab and Muslim states into an anti-terror coalition that would retaliate for last week's attacks on the United States.

A senior Palestinian official said privately that the Palestinian leadership hopes to start a new chapter with Israel, and that the dramatic events of the past week might provide the opening.

However, previous cease-fire efforts have failed, most recently a U.S.-brokered deal in June.

There was also some concern that Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat might not be able to rein in Islamic militants and small bands of gunmen.

Wednesday's calm came a day after Arafat announced he had ordered his forces to prevent attacks on Israelis, and to show restraint even if fired on.

Israel responded by withdrawing tanks from Palestinian territory and promising to halt military strikes.

Despite the mutual gestures, there were several skirmishes in the West Bank and Gaza Strip late Tuesday.

The Israeli army said in all cases Palestinians opened fire, and that in all but two, Israeli troops responded.

They provide reference materials in your local area and guide you to which ones you might qualify for receiving a grant, loan or subsidy.

The company is called the National Grants Conference (NGC) and they are on a mission to educate local business people, property owners and individuals who are sincerely interested in learning how to get free money from the government.

The first step in that learning process is attendance at an Introductory Conference. Conference attendees can discover little known programs that offer free government money, low-interest loans, subsidies and great financial opportunities in their local community.

Not Just For Poor People

There's a myth going around that only poor people can take advantage of free money grants, subsidies and low-interest loans. But really, some of the most famous people that have taken advantage of them in the past are the super wealthy. People like Donald Trump, his father Fred Trump and Ross Perot, to name just a few.

Did you know that Lee Iacocca got a $1.5 Billion dollar guaranteed loan for Chrysler and Stephen Jobs got money from the Government to start Apple Computer? It's True. In fact, most of the programs that people can qualify for actually fall in an income bracket that encompasses the majority of the American people. There are grant and loan programs available in your local area for a people making as little as $1,500 a month.

Mid-Income Range

NGC specializes in helping people get government grants, low-interest loans and subsidy programs for those in the middle income range who make between $20,000 a year on the low end, and up to $300,000 a year on the high end.

Is It Really FREE Money?

If you don't have to pay the money back, it's actually free. However, you do have to meet eligibility requirements to qualify and grants are subject to conditions that vary. And in some cases, re-payment may be required if the program conditions are not met. But if you can live with all that, this really is FREE Money!

All this sounds great, but why is the government doing this?

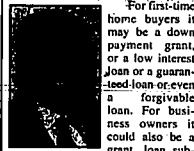

Better Life & More Taxes

Benefit number one is that as more people become home owners, they have a pride of ownership in their houses and they tend to be more productive members of society. They also pay property taxes and tend to be more stable in employment because they've got to make their house payment to maintain their investment.

Grant Money To Revitalize Communities

That's why the government also provides grant money for

"NGC puts together an awesome display of what our government can do..."

For first-time home buyers it may be a down payment grant, or a low interest loan or a guaranteed loan or even a forgivable loan. For business owners it could also be a grant, loan, subsidy or even a government "set-aside" contract to provide goods or services for your local city, state or even the Federal Government."

— Matt Orlando, NGC President

investors to revitalize communities. They offer grants and low-interest loans to property owners to take the properties that are in bad shape, that have been run down and re-build them and make them available for subsidized housing for the low to moderate income, as well as the elderly.

More Jobs & More Taxes

The government also has programs for small businesses. The reason for this is because the small businesses drive the American economy. Most of new jobs are created by small businesses. We've seen the future in big corporations. They're down-sizing. It's the small businesses that are giving the economy a big lift and providing more jobs.

Programs For Women

There are special programs for women to get into business. The facts and figures about women in businesses are growing in this country and their success rate is extraordinary.

At the Conference, many opportunities for businesses and women have been identified and various local, state and federal programs will be targeted that many people may be interested in and may be able to qualify for.

Local Free Money

NGC has a team of research specialists with offices in Rochester, New York. These specialists conduct daily research on every government grant, loan and subsidy program available in every major U.S. City as well as all programs that are nation wide.

In almost every case NGC is able to provide a wide variety of different programs that local people can take advantage of.

$100,000 For Your Business

There's one particularly loan program that's really exciting. It's called the "Low Doc Program." This is for individuals who want to grow their business. There's a simple one-page form you have to complete. With this form you may be able to qualify for up to $100,000 for your business. It's a fabulous program that cuts through the red tape.

Two More Buildings With No Money Down

Marilyn Woods of Elk Grove, Illinois discovered that sometimes just one idea can turn your whole life around.

"I really got back on my feet and out of debt by going to the NGC seminar. A few days later I turned a couple of real estate deals completely around where I was able to acquire two more buildings - no money down - take equity out of the buildings, leave the closing table with over $20,000 and double my cash flow income for the next year."

— Marilyn Wood Elk Grove, Illinois

Availability, terms and amounts of grants and loans vary. You must meet eligibility requirements to qualify. Re-payment may be required if program conditions are not met. Personal Experience, Yours may vary.

$50,000 Research Grants

If you have a great idea and are thinking... "If I just had the money...?" You will be interested to know that there is a research program, which allows up to $50,000 if you have a great innovative idea on technology. The Government may give you six months of money for research.

Resources For Small Businesses

As a small business owner you can apply for government funding. You can use the money for equipment, for purchasing equipment, for getting technical help, as well as for your inventory and to even purchase the real estate too.

In a sense, by using these programs the government helps you create the American dream: owning real estate and owning your own business.

Who Should Attend?

If you are thinking that you don't want to work for a boss anymore, or you're sick and tired of your job or you don't want to commute any more, attend this conference.

Or maybe you simply don't have a sense of security working for somebody else. Take the time and effort and come to this local conference. Learn about these programs. If you have a great idea, you may be able to get the money for a new business, real estate investment and start to depend on yourself.

Look at all the examples on this page. People who've changed their lives and now have successful businesses and own their own homes and investment properties. These are examples of their own personal experience. Your experience may be different. It may be worse or it may be even better. The only way you'll ever know is if you try. Call and make your reservation today, to attend the conference in your local area.

Bad Credit Is Not A Block

Bad credit is not necessarily an obstacle any more because many lending institutions have made it easier to qualify for a loan and there are various programs for people in this situation.

If you don't have a job, a business or a regular source of income or are in the process of declaring bankruptcy, it is doubtful that this program will be able to help your situation.

Participate On Any Level

The beauty in these programs is that you can participate on any level you want. If you just want to be a home-owner, there are programs available that may be able to help you get the down payment grants and loans to provide the down payment, to buy your home.

If you want to be an investor, there are programs available to rehabilitate properties.

If you'd like to go into business for yourself, so you don't have to work nine to five, work for somebody else, depend on anybody else for an income, there are programs for small businesses. You can choose or combine many of the programs together.

Listen to the information provided at this Introductory Conference, further participation is optional. You'll learn about different ways you can take advantage of the unique programs the National Grants Conference (NGC) offers.

Whether it's the government grants and loan systems for buying your first home, for investing in real estate, as well as going into business. You may be able to build a future for yourself, a future that you can feel good about with your children and show them a way forward.

Learn how you can apply for government grant money that you may not have to pay back. Come

Patients may shed tears when two hospitals wed

Last week's move by two Twin Falls hospitals toward exclusive purchase negotiations looks like a rosy wedding engagement. The bride, the privately owned Twin Falls Clinic & Hospital, is getting the dowry it wants, in the form of a higher bid than what Boise's St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center offered. The bridegroom, county-owned Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, is eliminating its local competition.

A single hospital would dominate medical care in the Twin Falls area — without competition, and without significant public scrutiny.

Everybody loves a good wedding. But as with all nuptials, someone will have to say the preacher. The bill probably will land in the laps of Magic Valley patients.

Oddly, Magic Valley Regional's leaders say the negotiations won't change their intention to reorganize Twin Falls County's taxpayer-owned hospital as a "community-based nonprofit," known as a 501(c)(3). Magic Valley Regional leaders previously have said a 501(c)(3) would let them sidestep the public oversight rules that they say hamper their ability to compete. The prospect of Boise-based competition is evaporating — yet the hospital continues to press the 501(c)(3) issue. Its leaders still say the nonprofit structure would let them respond more nimbly in today's competitive health-care market.

Who wonder: Against whom will this more agile county hospital need to compete? If Magic Valley Regional buys the Clinic — at a price said to be $13 million — both major medical facilities will be in the same hands.

A picture is emerging of the hospital leaders' vision for the future: A single hospital would dominate medical care in the Twin Falls area. Reorganized as a 501(c)(3), this monopoly hospital would be able to set its rates without fear of cheaper competition, while operating without significant public scrutiny.

Hospital officials describe the potential merger as a way to hold costs down through efficiencies of scale — especially in medical technology. Duplication of services will end, they say.

Such efficiencies may be good news for patients — if reduced costs are passed along in the form of lower rates, rather than being kept by the hospital as retained revenue. (Such revenue is the source of the hospital's reserve fund, from which the purchase presumably will be financed.)

Some hospital employees may come to regret the merger, if eliminating duplication means eliminating jobs. And, over the longer term, hospital workers will find themselves with one employment option instead of two.

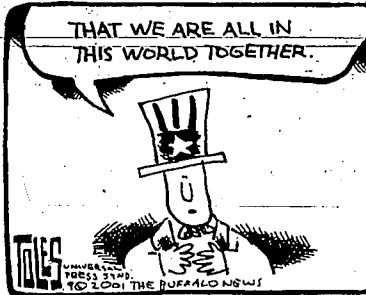

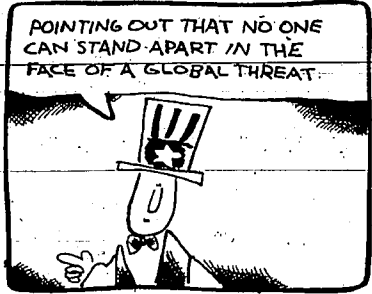

In our view, a continuation of health-care competition would be good for the community. But if competition must be replaced by a publicly owned monopoly, then continued public oversight of the hospital is crucial.

The county Hospital Board's single-minded pursuit of 501(c)(3) status seems driven primarily by a desire to free hospital operations from public scrutiny. Without public oversight of this publicly owned hospital, patients and taxpayers will have to accept hospital policies and hospital rate hikes on blind faith.

Twin Falls County commissioners should continue their review of various options for the county hospital's future — including the possibility of a lease that might generate significant revenue for the county. The commissioners' inquiry has gained even more importance in light of the prospective marriage.

Regardless of the hospital's future structure, the county should make sure the hospital's finances remain as open as possible to public scrutiny. A monopoly public hospital, like a public utility, needs openness and oversight.

Saying good-bye to medical competition may be as painful for this community as giving away a bride. If the union between Magic Valley Regional and the Clinic becomes a reality, county officials should do all they can to avoid giving away anything else.

U.S. faces various problems in conflict

There are several problems facing the United States as it formulates a response to last week's terrorist attack. Among them is knowing who should be a part of the anti-terror coalition the Bush administration is seeking to create. Another is the hatred for America taught throughout much of the Arab world, including in some of those nations Secretary of State Colin Powell has suggested might be welcomed into the coalition.

Yasser Arafat, whom the State Department has suggested might be part of the battle against terrorism, heads an organization that has spewed hate in the United States and bullets and bombs at Israel for decades. The Mufti of Jerusalem, appointed by Arafat, has called on Allah to destroy America, which he says, "is controlled by Zionist Jews." Sheik Hamed Al-Bitawi, head of the Palestine Association of Religious Scholars has said, "The U.S. and Israel are the source of terrorism in the world."

Only days prior to the September 11 attacks, suicide bombers were exalted in the official Palestinian Authority daily, Al Haya Al Jadida. On August 30, Omar Helm Ghul wrote in Al-Ayyam: "The Palestinians must harm American interests in the Arab world, with all possible means, in all places, at all levels, because the United States does not understand the language of logic and wisdom, but only the language of interests and force."

Most Arab newspapers are either controlled by, or supportive of their respective dictatorial governments. One wonders how serious these governments are about fighting terrorism when inflammatory editorials appear. Columnist

Mahmoud Abd Al-Mun'im Murad, of the Egyptian-government sponsored daily, Al-Akhar, wrote recently: "The Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor must be destroyed." He further announced that "the age of the American collapse has begun," and that Colin Powell "has the brain of a bird," is "stupid" and "a liar." Al-Akhar has also carried blatantly racist statements about Powell, which forced Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak to apologize. This venom comes from a supposedly "moderate" Arab country. There is much worse in other media throughout the Arab world.

In many Arab schools, hatred for Jews and the United States is drummed into children from the earliest grades. A 7th grade Palestinian Authority textbook says: "Islam will defeat all other religions and it will be disseminated by Allah's will, through the Muslim Jihad fighters." An 11th grade text in a PA school portrays Western civilization as corrupt, predicting it will end eventually, if not immediately, "in a pile of rubble."

How does the United States combat this indoctrination of children? Where are the voices of "moderate" Muslims denouncing such sentiments?

Other problems in need of examination include the training of pilots from Arab nations within our borders and at U.S. military bases overseas. The State Department's policy has been that training Arab pilots would make them like us and they would become a modifying influence on their governments when they returned home.

Our intelligence system needs a complete overhaul. A proper budget, which was evicted by people who thought no threats to America existed or that spying was distasteful, must be restored. According to the London Sunday Telegraph, the CIA and FBI ignored a warning from the Israeli intelligence agency, Mossad, whose representatives traveled to Washington last month with an urgent warning that a cell of up to 200 terrorists in the U.S. was planning a major operation here. We should obliterate such cells wherever they exist.

Our government should also consider using the Voice of America, or some other source, to broadcast to Islamic nations. Responsible Islamic clerics could teach from the Koran how terrorist leaders have misinterpreted that book. When others have acted heretically in the name of their religions, responsible leaders within those faiths have condemned the acts and read relevant portions from their religious books to enlighten even their followers. One thinks of "Christians" who have shot abortionists or Jewish extremists who have assassinated Palestinians. Their violent and ungodly acts were rightly condemned by leaders within their own faiths.

While the administration considers a military response to the terrorism on U.S. soil, there are some of the nonmilitary challenges that must be met if security is to be maintained in our land.

Allens deserve benefit of doubt

In response to citizens who criticize illegal aliens, the following is offered as part of educating the public, something we are working on this year.

"Many people make statements that aliens are taking over the country, quote outdated material and have no concept of what is going on in the immigration world, but repeat these misstatements like parrots. Just because we don't agree with what someone says or does should not cause us to be narrow-minded. We can overcome these problems in immigration issues. We need to come to the 21st century on our information, our education and our views."

"The illegal alien who has been here for an extended period of time usually has been working and paying taxes. They get nothing in return because of lack of a Social Security number. Any benefits go to those who are longtime residents or citizens of the United States. They get no benefits; it goes to our welfare recipients. In fact, under the new laws, each applicant must have a notarized Affidavit of Support from a sponsor who states that person will not be a problem to the states. For the most part, these people lead a sheltered life."

The cost of each applicant is approximately $1,200 to $4,500 per person with no guarantee that it will be accepted and no refunds. Each person must take a physical, which is close to $300, while we pay $75 to $100. The standard form 1485, which is what follows after approval was $220 to all applicants until the end of August; now that same form's fee is $330 for those who recently filed under the Life Act.

The information source of the American Patrol is not accurate. Trying directly to the immigration office at ins.gov — check out the time it takes for the work to process and the lack of protection. The protection I am concerned about is not for the aliens but for those of us who have accidents, need to collect debts, etc. We are the losers.

Before a statement is made, I suggest it is researched. In fact, both the State Labor Department and the Immigration and Naturalization Service will participate in a conference in Jerome on Oct. 27 at the Jerome Library. The conference is an open forum, and I especially invite those who throw stones and live in glass houses to come. Learn the facts firsthand. —LUPE CISNEROS

Feelings return following attacks

Last week's terrorist attacks at the World Trade Center buildings, the Pentagon in D.C. and in Pennsylvania have brought back a flood of memories that those of us of a more seasoned generation experienced on and following Dec. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor bombing and World War II.

At that time, we felt shock, fear and uncertainty of the future. These are the same feelings we of our age and older whom we have talked with have once again. These same feelings seem to be those of everyone today — and why not, when our homeland is attacked?

We received meaningful overseas calls Thursday from two of our foreign friends: one a Muslim from Turkey (who had been through their huge earthquakes of several years ago) and one from England (A World War II Royal Air Force veteran who had been through the many bombings of that war). Our distress was comforted by their deep concerns and compassion for our country.

THE PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation

GUIDELINES FOR DISPLAYING THE FLAG

- The flag should not be displayed on days when the weather is bad, except when an all-weather flag is used. The flag should always be flown on national and state holidays - and on these occasions proclaimed by the President. On Memorial Day, the flag should be half staffed until noon.
- The flag should be hoisted briskly and lowered ceremoniously. It should never be dipped to any person nor should it ever be displayed with the union down, except as a signal of dire distress.
- The flag should never touch anything beneath it, nor should it ever be carried flat or horizontally.
- It should never be used as wearing apparel, bedding, drapery, or decoration, nor for carrying or holding anything. The flag should never be fastened, displayed, used, or stored in such a manner as to be easily torn, soiled, or damaged. It should never be used as a covering for a ceiling.

YOU'RE A GRAND OLD FLAG

George M. Cohen, © 1911

You're a grand old flag, You're a high flying flag,
And forever in peace may you wave,
You're the emblem of, the land I love,
The home of the free and the brave.

For 'ty heart beats true' 'neath the Red, White and Blue,
Where there's never a boast or brag,
But should our acquaintance be forgot,
Keep your eye on the grand old flag.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER

(our National Anthem)
written by Francis Scott Key on September 14, 1814

Oh say! Can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro' the perilous fight
O'er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming?
And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there.
Oh, say does that Star-spangled Banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

On the shore, dimly seen thro' the mists of the deep,
Where the foes haughty host in dread silence reposes,
What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,
As it fitfully blows, half conceals, half discloses?
Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,
In full glory reflected now shines on the stream,
Tis the Star-spangled Banner, oh, long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

Oh, thus be it ever when free men shall stand
Between their lov'd homes and the wars desolation!
Blest with vict'ry and peace, may the heav'n-rescued-land
Praise the Pow'r that hath made and preserved us a nation!
Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto, "in God is our trust!"
And the Star-spangled Banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

GOD BLESS AMERICA

by Irving Berlin

While the storm clouds gather far across the sea,
Let us swear allegiance to a land that's free,
Let us all be grateful for a land so fair,
As we raise our voices in a solemn prayer.
God-bless-America, land that I love,
Stand beside her, and guide her,
Through the night, with the light from above,
From the mountains, to the prairies
To the oceans, white with foam
God bless America, my home sweet home,
God bless America! My Home Sweet Home!

AMERICA (MY COUNTRY TIS OF THEE)

Words: Samuel Francis Smith, c 1832

- My country tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing,
Land where my fathers died,
Lana of the Pilgrim's pride! del
From every mountain side,
Let freedom ring!
- My native country thee,
Land of the noble free,
Thy name I love,
I love thy rocks and rills I I
Thy woods and templed hills;
My heart with rapture fills
Like that above.
- Let music swell the breeze,
And ring from all the trees
Sweet freedom's song,
Let mortal tongues awake;
Let all that breathe partake;
Let rocks their silence break,
The sound prolong.
- Our father's God to, Thee,
Author of liberty,
To Thee we sing,
Long may our land be bright
With freedom's holy light;
Protect us by Thy might,
Great God, our King!

America the Beautiful

Words: Katharine Lee Bates, 1893

Ms. Bates was inspired to write these words when she first saw the view from the top of Pikes Peak while on a vacation in Colorado. Her song was almost chosen as the National Anthem instead of the Star Spangled Banner.

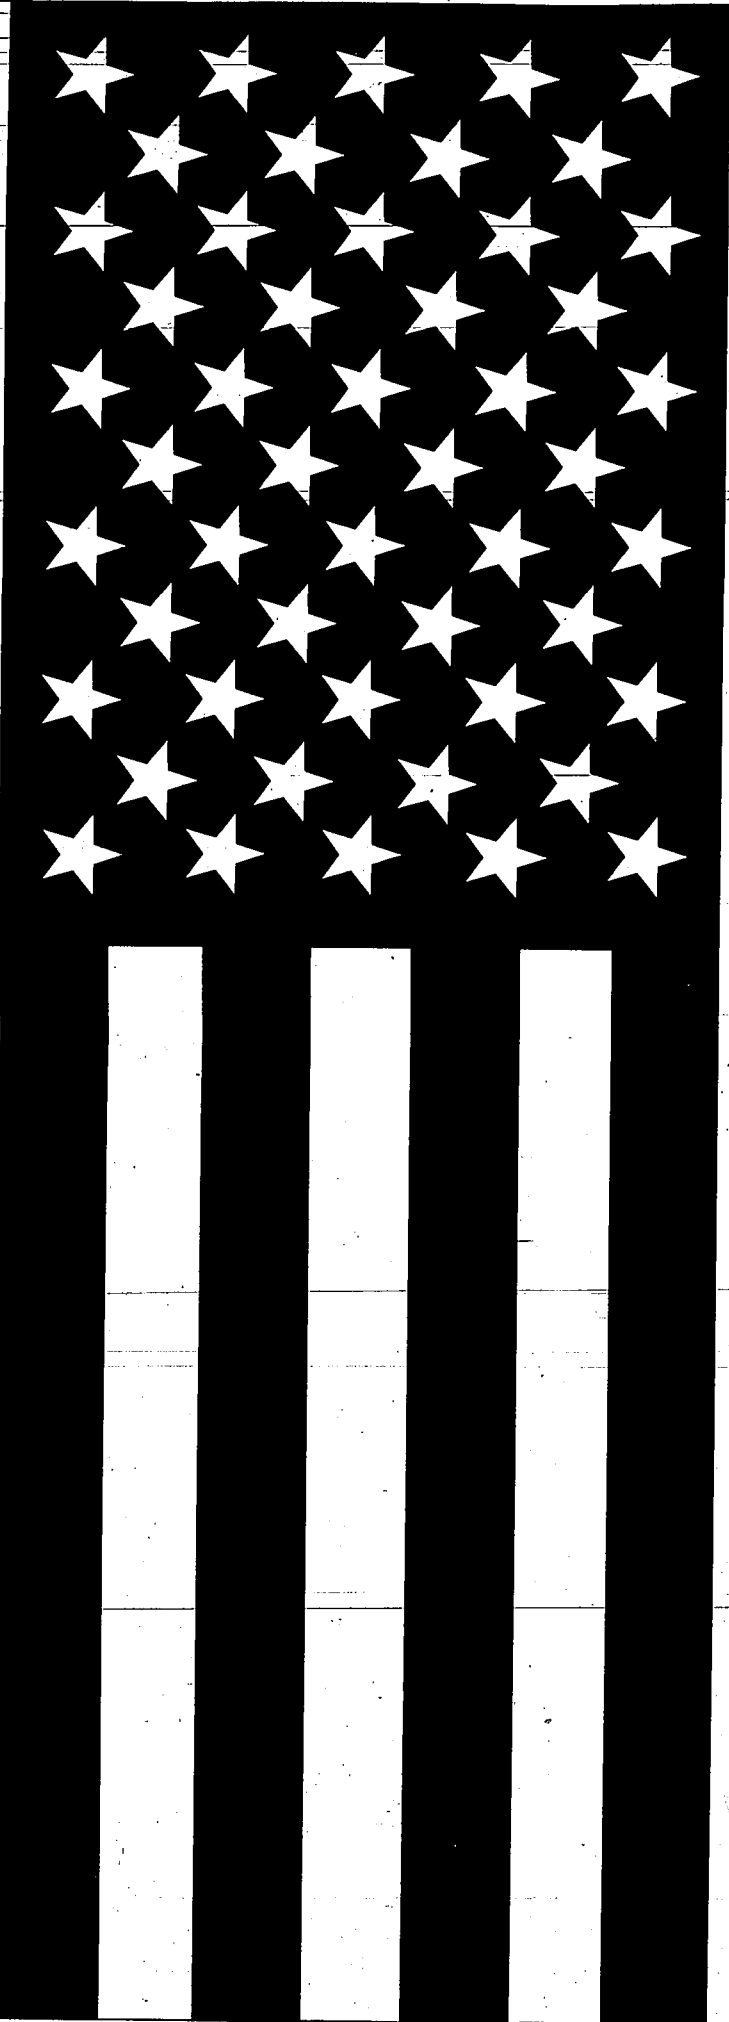

O beautiful for spacious skies, for amber waves of grain
For purple mountain majesties above the fruited plain!
America, America, God shed his grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood, from sea to shining sea.

O beautiful for pilgrim feet, whose stern, impassioned stress
A thoroughfare for freedom beat across the wilderness!
America, America, God mend thine ev'ry flaw,
Confirm thy soul in self control, thy liberty in law.

O the ones proved in liberating strife,
Who to the height their country loved and mercy more than life.

And whose divine

RIISING High School Sports STARS

Amber Wade Jerome cross country

Most runners and themselves... Wade finished in third place...

Last week, Wade finished in third place out of a field of 27 runners at the annual Tiger-Griz Invitational...

It wasn't the first time the senior tasted success at a big meet. She finished 16th at state last year.

It didn't hurt that the Tiger-Griz course is her favorite. "I like the course," Wade said.

We bonded. And it's a good thing since the state meet is going to be there this year.

"My confidence and my attitude are great," she said. "And in this sport, which is mostly mental, think that's why I've done better."

Wade, who is all smiles and enthusiasm, isn't concerned with specific goals or places or times.

"I just want to be able to say that I have nothing left when I'm done," she said.

Wade also competes in track, running the 2-mile, mile and occasionally, the 800 meters. But her favorite sport is cross country.

"The terrain is different and it's the most difficult challenge both to the mind and body," she said.

Wade hopes to continue running in college, where she endeavors to become a registered nurse.

"I've always liked the medical field and helping people," she said.

Wade carries a 3.89 grade-point average. Outside of the athletic arena, Wade enjoys "average teenage stuff like making cookies and going to dances," she said.

Maverick Mitton Oakley football

Oakley running back... Mitton is long on short answers and talent, preferring let his results do the talking.

The junior running back, who is in his first year as a full-time starter, has scored four touchdowns and rushed for a team-high 394 yards in the Hornets' first three games. He is one of many reasons the Hornets are off to a 2-1 start.

Oakley is also coming off a 33-0 victory over Rimrock last week.

"We don't have the size or talent that we had last year but I think we're a better team," Mitton said. "We have to rely on each other more."

Although Mitton also participates in track and field and wrestling, his favorite sport is football because "it's exciting."

Hitting is his favorite part of the sport, he said, adding that he doesn't have a preference for either offense or defense because "you have to have them both."

The no-nonsense star's teammates started calling him "Buck" because "they were probably making fun of me for something."

Interestingly, his best and worst moments on a football field may have come only moments apart when he fumbled a punt against Carlin (New) High before turning a kickoff into a touchdown in the Hornets' only loss on the season.

"I redeemed myself and ran the punt back," Mitton said. "Running back a kickoff is pretty nice."

Mitton's favorite class is "P.E. weights," he said, even though he sports a 3.5 grade-point average.

He's also smart enough to know where his bread is buttered. "You've got to give it up to the offensive line," he said. "They're small but they get the job done."

EAGLES LOOK TO FLEX MUSCLES

By Joe Sunnen Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - For whatever reason, the members of the top-ranked College of Southern Idaho volleyball team are always pushing up their sleeves during matches.

And whether the biceps on display are about comfort or style, the Golden Eagles (21-1) will have a chance to flex their muscles this week at the annual Valley of the Sun Tournament in Scottsdale, Ariz.

"We know we'll have three or four good matches," Southern Idaho coach Ben Stroud said. "You just go in and hope you're in good enough shape to withstand it. It's a war."

Several national contenders are expected to attend the tournament, including No. 2 Miami-Dade Community College, and

Valley of the Sun is a marquee tournament possibly Florida Community College, of Jacksonville, Fla. Their presence remained contingent on flight schedules after terrorist attacks last Tuesday crippled much of the airline industry around the nation.

But as of Wednesday, Scottsdale Community College coach Regina Mannix said Miami-Dade was confirmed.

CSI also flew to the tournament, something Stroud wasn't worried about. "Certainly security will be tighter," Stroud said of the airports. "I don't know if we'll be able to take carry-ons, but it shouldn't be a problem. I don't think we'll be nervous about that."

The Valley of the Sun Tournament is fast becoming the premier mid-season junior college volleyball tournament in the nation.

Thirty teams will attend this year's tournament, and in the Sharks and CSI, the tournament sports the two teams that have participated in the National Junior College Athletic Association national championship match five of the last six seasons. Many of the teams attending also finished in the top 20 in the NJCAA final poll last season.

Last year, the Eagles dropped two matches at the event, falling to Miami-Dade and Golden West College of Huntington Beach, Calif. This season it should be another tough three days of competition, said Stroud.

"The good thing about playing some of those tough schools," Stroud said, "is that it really does help you when you get to nationals. You have those two quarterfinals and semifinals in one day and it helps you prepare for that."

Along with CSI, seven teams from the Scenic West Athletic Conference will also be in attendance, including rival Utah Valley State College.

The Eagles defeated the Wolverines on Saturday to remain undefeated in the conference. CSI's only loss this season came at UVSC in the Utah-Valley State Invitational and the two could meet again this weekend.

ALBION - Jerome's Craig Paulin and Amber Wade both took first place Wednesday at the Declo Invitational cross-country meet on the campus of the former Albion teacher's college.

The wins helped guide the third-ranked Tigers to second-place finishes in both boys' and girls' team events.

Malad teams took first place in both the boys' and girls' races. The Lady Dragons are ranked No. 1 in Class 2A/1A in the latest state poll, which was released Wednesday.

Wade's 37-second victory over runner-up Bobbi Wangsgard of Malad, lacked any drama as the senior pulled away from the pack early and continued to stretch her lead throughout the race. Wade finished in 19 minutes, 52 seconds.

Paulin's victory wanted no drama as the junior posted a time of 16:45 to just nip Declo's Trae Jones by a second after a battle that lasted all the way down the homestretch.

"It's more fun for me if there is someone there to push me," Wade said. "But I just tell myself that I'm running against the clock and keep pushing hard."

The senior had all the competition she wanted last week, finishing third out of a field of 177 runners in the 40-team Tiger-Griz Invitational in Idaho Falls. Paulin never had trouble finding motivation, sitting right behind the leaders for much of the race before making his final kick at the end.

"I've been working hard all year," Paulin said. "And it's

NFL officials ratify contract, will take the field Sunday

The Associated Press

NEW YORK - The locked-out NFL officials voted Wednesday to accept the league's new contract and will return to the field this weekend.

NFL spokesman Joe Browne said the league was told by Bill Carroll, the union's executive director, that a majority of the 119 officials ratified the contract. Browne wasn't given the vote totals.

The original deadline for the union's response was noon Wednesday, but Browne said it had been moved to the "close of business."

The deal is the same in total monetary value as the package proposed by the league on Sept. 4, although the specifics are different. It would double salaries in the first year and increase them by 100 percent in the fourth year of a six-year deal.

The replacement officials, who are guaranteed four weeks' salary at $2,000 a week, worried the final week of the pre-season and the first games of the regular season.

Both sides acknowledged the move toward an agreement was precipitated by the terrorist attacks in New York and Washington that caused commissioner Paul Tagliabue to call off last week's games.

A basic package was put in place Sunday night in Pittsburgh. Carroll and Jeff Bergman represented the union and Steelers owner Dan Rooney and lead negotiator Jeff Fash represented the NFL.

Two union sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Carroll and Bergman were chosen because they were considered less confrontational than Ed Hochuli, who had done the bulk of the negotiating. But the sources emphasized that Carroll and Bergman were in touch with Hochuli throughout the negotiations.

Mariners clinch AL West title

The Associated Press

SEATTLE - The record-setting Seattle Mariners added another accomplishment to their long list Wednesday night: the American League West title.

Seattle won its third division title when Texas beat second-place Oakland 1-0 behind a star night from former Mariners' star Alex Rodriguez.

Oakland's game ended when the Mariners won in the fourth inning, leading the Angels 1-1. Manager Lou Piniella shook hands with players and offered hugs in the dugout, while others slapped high-fives.

The sellout crowd gave the Mariners a standing ovation and cheered madly for several minutes when "2001 AL West champions" flashed across every scoreboard between the fourth and fifth innings.

Rodriguez, who played on Seattle's two previous division winners, hit a two-run home run in the first inning that gave Texas the lead for good.

Rodriguez left the Mariners after leading them to the AL championship series last season to sign a $252 million, 10-year contract with the Texas Rangers.

Still, despite a season highlighted by new stars Ichiro Suzuki and Bret Boone, a sterling pitching staff and the selection of a franchise-best eight players to the All-Star game at Safeco Field, the Mariners were planning a toned-down clubhouse celebration.

Seattle players said it didn't seem right to plan a wild party in the wake of a national tragedy.

Mariners fans have been talking about the playoffs - and even World Series - from the beginning of the season.

Way back in April, Suzuki gave them a glimpse of what was coming. His bunt single in the eighth inning of his major league debut sparked the game-winning rally as Seattle defeated Oakland 5-4 on opening night.

It was the start of something special in Seattle. The Mariners have been in first place every day since.

Mini-Cassia Youth Football teams Banner Dentistry takes on D.L. Evans Sept. 8.

Mini-Cassia Youth Contact Football starts up

By Don Rock
Times-News correspondent

Most Saturday mornings, you can find the average child parked in front of the television watching cartoons or playing video games.

But for 215 fifth-, sixth- and seventh-graders, football was king at the second annual Mini-Cassia Youth Contact Football league jamboree on Sept. 8 in Burley.

Eleven teams sponsored by local businesses took to Budge Field, ready to strut their stuff.

The teams were divided into two divisions: one for fifth- and sixth-graders, the other for seventh-grade children. Supervising each group of youngsters were at least three volunteer coaches, generally all fathers of some of the players.

Teams lined up on each side of the field. As each player's name boomed over the loud speaker, courtesy of Gary Bartolome of Donnelley Sports, he or she tore across the field, arms raised, bumping chests with the rest of his teammates. Like the nip in the fall air you could feel the excitement.

The two-year-old league is the brainchild of Jim Johnson.

"I've been dreaming about this for five years," Johnson said. "But I got serious about it three years ago."

Johnson formed the league to promote youth football in the area. The league exists to teach basic fundamentals and to educate area youth about the sport of football.

Coaches are instructed to promote proper fundamentals, teamwork, and commitment to excellence.

On the field, the cadence of calls rises from the tiny quarterbacks, who hand off to the running back who breaks around left end, skips through two tackles and into the end zone.

The whole team mobs the ball carrier as if they'd just won the league championship.

"The success of this rides on the shoulders of a host of individuals," said Johnson, who is the current league president. "The coaches, parents, officials, equipment managers, and the sponsors, without them, we wouldn't have a program."

Teams play six league games, and each week a Twin Falls team is invited to rotate through the schedule.

Jim Pelton, whose son plays for Paul Seed, said it's a good learning experience. "It's worth it. Maybe this will generate more interest when the kids get to junior high and high school."

For more information about the league, call 878-0281.

Chappell to enter Idaho Hall

Eddie Chappell will be inducted into the Idaho Bowling Council Hall of Fame Saturday night. Born in Lyman, Utah, Chappell graduated from Wayne High School in Bicknell, Utah, before attending Brigham Young University, where he studied biology and physical education.

Chappell married the former Connie Jensen in 1958 and have two daughters: Renee Shippey and Lisa Allen. Lisa and husband Dan have two children, Josh and Danielle, and Renee and husband Craig, also have two children, Samuel and Alexander.

Chappell began his bowling career working for Fundale Lanes in Richfield, Utah, before coming to Twin Falls in 1964. During college, he worked at Regal Lanes in Provo, Utah. When he first moved to Twin Falls, he took a job as mechanic for the Brunswick Corporation (then located on Main Avenue West).

He later was promoted to manager where the fortunes of the once insolvent business began to change. Through his promotional efforts, the Bowldrome became one of the most profitable centers in Brunswick's history by the time the company sold the business to Matt Devine, who hired Chappell.

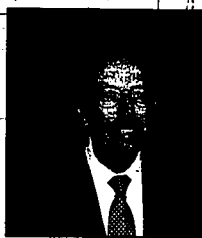

Lynn Baird, who is president of the Twin Falls Men's Bowling Association said he's known Chappell as a competent businessman, friend and associate for over 20 years.

"In 1971 and 1978, I owned half of Sunset Bowl in Buhl," Baird said. "We were members of the Magic Valley Bowling Proprietors Association and Eddie was its local leader. He made an unselfish effort at all times to help all our businesses and bowling in all areas of the Magic Valley. It is my opinion that Eddie has contributed more to bowling in Twin Falls than any other individual."

Larrie Hash, who is the former president of the Twin Falls Women's Bowling Association said Chappell, however busy, has always made time for people.

Thelma Tucker

Eddie Chappell

"As one of the owners of the Bowldrome, he is a very busy man. However, when you need to visit with him about an upcoming event or just need advice, he is there and always willing to assist in any way he can."

Another bowling community member, Maury Miller, said there's no denying Chappell's influence in the sport. "I believe one of Mr. Chappell's foremost accomplishments is his never-ending time and involvement with the (Young American Bowling Alliance). He has always been there for the group or for each young adult on a personal basis. There is no way to measure what or how he has influenced their lives."

"I have personally known Mr. Chappell since the early 60s and have worked with him in a lot of different aspects of life from church to sports to everyday life. If you talk bowling in the Magic Valley, you are talking Mr. Chappell."

As an employee of the Bowldrome, I have been at my desk when Chappell has taken telephone calls from people out of state as well as in-state asking for advice.

Yes, I've seen him head over heels in paperwork when someone drops by, and they are treated with dignity and respect, as he helps them anyway he can. He is known in the bowling world as "Mr. Bowling," and is currently a member of the Utah, Richfield and Twin Falls Men's Bowling Association Hall of Fame. In 1982, he was awarded the YABA Meritorious Service Award for Idaho. To top it off, he was honored as the Brunswick Corporation Bowling Center Operations Manager of the Year and Executive Award recipient the same year.

Congratulations, Eddie. You are so deserving and it will be a great pleasure to watch you receive the honor you so deserve.

TF man dies when pickup misses curve

TWIN FALLS — A 35-year-old man died late Tuesday night at the scene of a single-vehicle crash near Twin Falls, according to the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office.

Charles Troy Shenk of Twin Falls was alone in his Ford F-150 pickup when he apparently drove too fast into a curve near the intersection of Highway 74 and 2425 East in Twin Falls County about at 10:21 p.m.

The truck missed the curve, went off the road and rolled several times. Shenk, who was not wearing a seat belt, was killed instantly, according to the sheriff's department.

ISP headquarters will move to Jerome

JEROME — The Idaho State Police's Region 4 headquarters will move from several offices in Twin Falls to a new building in Jerome.

Lawmakers approved a $1.7 million appropriation for the new headquarters during the 2000 budget process and an additional $200,000 last winter.

The additional money was to update six-year-old building problems and fix foundation problems with the Jerome site, said Idaho Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, and state Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert.

Cameron and Bell co-chair the state's powerful joint budget committee.

Property owners along S. Lincoln in Jerome have confirmed that the new regional headquarters will be between S. Lincoln and 200 South, near I-84.

Jerome Development Corporation representatives and an Idaho State Police spokesperson could not be reached for comment Wednesday evening.

The group will return via the Hansen Bridge and end the ride with a chili feed at Eddie's Bar in Kimberly. Participants are asked to donate a toy for the drive.

A kick-off gathering that will include a raffle and auction will be held at the Shuffle Inn at 7 p.m. Friday.

Those interested in donating toys or money for the drive or items for the auction may drop them off at the Shuffle Inn.

Hospital sees dawn after dark skies

By Jennifer Sandmann
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Things are looking up for the county hospital. A Hospital Board representative told the Twin Falls Rotary Club Wednesday.

"It's always darkest just before dawn," said Terry Schultz, a member and former chairman of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center's board.

The doctor-owned Twin Falls Clinic & Hospital's decision to consider selling the clinic to the county hospital is the reason for the upswing.

In February, the clinic had decided to pursue affiliation with Boise-based Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center rather than Magic Valley. Last week the clinic changed its mind.

"Our perspective is, competition really doesn't work in health care," Schultz said.

He cited the open MRI joint venture between the clinic and Magic Valley as an example of how, he thinks, cooperation not competition buoys local health care.

In 1999, the two hospitals agreed to split the MRI's cost of $700,000 to $1 million and equally share its revenue.

The local health care market isn't large enough to support paying off two of the machines, Schultz said.

If a clinic sales agreement is reached, whether the purchase will require Twin Falls County commissioners' approval depends on how it is financed, County Prosecutor Grant Loebis said in an interview later Wednesday. If the hospital uses cash on hand to buy the clinic, commissioners do not need to approve the purchase. If the hospital borrows money to buy the clinic, the finance structure will determine whether the commissioners must approve the purchase, he said.

Hospital Board Chairwoman Vesta Maughan said in an interview last week that purchase details are being worked out in sales negotiations with the clinic. Buying the clinic without having to borrow the money is a possibility, she said.

The purchase price has not

Rallying 'round

TWIN FALLS — Individuals and organizations across the Magic Valley are rallying in support of victims of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks in New York City, Washington, D.C. and Pennsylvania.

Here are some of the efforts:

- Rock Creek Fire District firefighters and the International Association of Fire Fighters are starting a fund drive for the support of the children and spouses left behind by the firefighters and the emergency medical personnel who perished in the World Trade Center tragedy. The firefighters are asking Kimberly school children and school staff for their support.

Contributions may be sent to school with a student, or leave a check or money order at the school offices. All money donated will go to the victims, and checks should be made out to the N.Y.F.F. 911 disaster relief fund, Fire Capt. Toddie Morton said.

- The Sept. 29 "Walk for America" in Twin Falls City Park, sponsored by Magic Valley merchants, is intended to raise money for the American Red Cross. Donation registration of $10 includes a T-shirt. The event begins at 10 a.m.
- For more information, call Holly at 733-8968.

- Four days of fund-raising for the American Red Cross by radio station KHX 103 and the Con Poulos auto dealership produced a total of $34,000 in donations, said radio personality Brandon Rafter.
- A collaboration of United Way, the New York Community Trust and the Council on Foundations has established a single philanthropic fund, "The September 11th Fund." The purpose of the fund is to help vic-ims and their families.

"Like all Americans, people in south-central Idaho are asking, 'What can I do?' In fact, they're helping already," said Jim Porzo, local United Way executive director. "Through our annual campaign which is currently under way, donors make possible the programs and services that strengthen lives, families and communities year-round."

Now these same services will help heal the lives shattered by the recent tragedies.

To contribute to the September 11th Fund, call 1-800-710-8002 or log on to www.unitedway.org. Checks and money orders are also being accepted by mail at: The September 11th Fund, c/o United Way, 2 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y., 10016; or The United Way, P.O. Box 65, Twin Falls, 83303-0065. All contributions will be used to help victims and their families, the United Way says.

- Zions Bank has established a donation account to accept contributions to the American Red Cross. Donations to the American Red Cross can be made at any of Zions Bank's 147 branch locations throughout Utah and Idaho. "The American Red Cross is working around the clock to ensure that those affected by the recent tragedies have comfort and care," said Rick Mitchell, chief executive officer of the American Red Cross of Greater Idaho. "We are grateful for the kindness demonstrated by businesses and the public to help support the Red Cross and the victims around the country."

- Idaho Credit Union League President Alan Cameron urged credit unions and their members to donate to the New York State Credit Union Foundation to assist those affected by the attacks.

- WinCo Foods has donated $100,000 to the American Red Cross, through the American Red Cross of Greater Idaho, to aid in the relief efforts. "This contribution is made on behalf of our over 6,000 shareholder employees and our loyal customers, reflecting our collective desire to do something that will make a positive difference as the nation heals," said Bill Long, WinCo's chairman and chief executive officer. WinCo operates 36 stores in the Pacific Northwest, including one in Twin Falls.

- Flying J Inc., North America's largest retail diesel marketer with operations in the Magic Valley, is donating $150,000 of fuel for relief vehicles traveling across the country. "We are eager to provide assistance to the victims of this terrible tragedy and to those organizations dedicated to giving relief," President L. Phillip Adams said.

MV residents feel impact personally

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Since former Twin Falls resident Sheila Gerber witnessed the chaos of last week's terrorist attacks in Manhattan, she and her fellow New Yorkers have been working to get their lives back to a semblance of normalcy.

"It's been a rough week," said Gerber, who walked out of the subway tunnel near her office at the World Trade Center complex just minutes before the infamous second passenger jet crashed into one of the nearby twin towers.

Gerber, a computer programmer for Solomon Smith Barney investment firm, has been able to work at home since her office building, Seven World Trade Center, collapsed the day of the attacks. She is one of a number of people with ties to the Magic Valley whose lives have been disrupted by last week's attack.

Gerber said New York's trademark traffic has resumed to some extent, and residents are going about their business again, albeit with some apprehension and revised schedules reflecting the city's emphasis on security, Gerber said. People are leaving for work earlier to give themselves time to negotiate checkpoints and still-disrupted transportation systems.

☐ "Things are slowly creeping back to normal," Gerber said. "There's definitely an effort to make sure people know this is what New York stands for."

But the void left in the city's famous skyline when the twin towers collapsed last Tuesday and the smoky haze that settled over the city in its aftermath are stark reminders of the reality that New York will never be the same.

"I think a real innocence has been lost," she said. "I don't think we'll ever be what we were. But perhaps we can be better."

☐ Filer High School graduate James Mills, 33, feels fortunate that he wasn't in his office at the Pentagon when a passenger jet crashed into the vast building the morning of Sept. 11, his mother says.

Mills — a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy who serves as flag aide to the director of information warfare, command and control — had been at the Pentagon earlier that morning, but he had left the building on business before the airplane hit, Deloris Mills said.

"His office was demolished," she said. "There was one chief petty officer in the office who managed to get out, but who knows what could have happened."

Luke Wilson Spohn

Luke Wilson Spohn was still born at 39 weeks gestation on the 16th of September at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. He was with us for only a short time while he was in his mother's womb. Luke weighed 5 pounds, 8 ounces, was 21 inches long and had dark curly hair. We never looked into Luke's eyes while he was still living, but we are comforted in knowing that he will recognize our voices when we are reunited with him in God's kingdom.

Ranchers remove diversions on Sawtooth rec area creek

The Associated Press

KETCHUM — Environmentalists and a lawsuit filed by the National Recreation Area has been removed in response to a lawsuit filed by the Western Watersheds Project and the Committee for Idaho's High Desert.

The groups sued earlier this month, alleging that attorney-ranchers Jack Furey and Louis Racine were illegally diverting water from Fourth of July Creek.

Marvel said he received a letter from Furey on Monday, saying the water that had been diverted for the Thousand Springs Ranch had been returned to the creek. Marvel said he personally inspected the site this week and verified the removal of the dam.

The groups contended that the diversion and ditch killed federally protected spring and summer chinook salmon, steelhead, and bull trout.

The environmental groups said they sent notices to Fourth of July Creek diversions last October and received responses and cooperation from most ranchers, but Furey and Racine — a former Idaho Fish and Game commissioner — took no action.

The lawsuit is one of several filed by the groups to restore fish populations in the Salmon River Basin. They are represented by Laird Lucas and Judi Brauer of the Land and Water Fund of the Rockies.

Large numbers of salmon and steelhead once migrated to the upper basin each year. Fourth of July Creek provided spawning habitat.

through the close of 2001, this will be the second of the needed three years.

Wolves move closer to delisting

BOISE (AP) — A new pair of breeding gray wolves have been confirmed in western Idaho, putting the animals about two-thirds of the way toward qualifying for removal from the endangered species list, a federal wolf recovery official said Tuesday.

The 30th pair was the last needed to eventually justify removing the species from federal protection in Montana, Idaho and Wyoming, said Ed Balgus, wolf recovery coordinator for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Helena, Mont.

The federal government's wolf recovery plan for the northern

Rocky Mountains calls for 30 breeding pairs of wolves distributed throughout western Montana, central Idaho and the Yellowstone area for three successive years.

With the newly discovered Gold Fork pack and its two yearlings, the region had 30 breeding pairs in the year 2000. If 30 packs again successfully rear pups through the close of 2001, this will be the second of the needed three years.

Jerome prepares to grow

By Dixie Thomas Reale
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - The city could grow by 200 acres by Oct. 16.

Tuesday evening the City Council heard an ordinance which started the annexation process for seven blocks of land scattered around the city.

Land targeted for annexation includes: the parcel of land off Tiger Drive beside the high school where the LDS Church stands; a parcel of land bordered by Birch Street on the east, Ninth Avenue on the south, Fir Street on the west and 10th Avenue on the north; a city-owned parcel located at the very north end of the city wastewater treatment plant and another city-owned parcel where the animal shelter sits; a parcel bordered by Main Street West on the north, running southward along West Boulevard to D Avenue, east to Fir Street, then south again to H Street, west to West Boulevard and south to Avenue J, then west to Iron Wood and north again to Main Street West; and land bordered on the east by 100 East Road, H Street on the north and J Avenue East on the south.

City Administrator Travis Rothwell said the city is mailing notices concerning the annexation to affected landowners. A public information meeting is scheduled for the Oct. 2 City Council meeting.

Councilman Joe Skaug said he was glad to see the city was "finally getting around" to these annexations. In some areas it (annexation) should have happened 30 years ago.

In other business, City Engineer Steve Bybee told the council that the new spotlight located at the intersection of Lincoln Street South and 100 South Road was "up and running. All that is left to do is to the cleanup."

The Jerome Urban Renewal Agency teamed up with the Idaho Transportation Department to install the light. The price of a simple spotlight was originally estimated at $150,000, however, in October 1999 ITD requested the light include right turn lanes, yield lanes, pedestrian lights, islands, left turn lanes and signals, and a video system for controlling traffic flow. The expanded project bid price was $330,243. ITD agreed to pay 60 percent or $185,000 of the bill, and the urban renewal agency will pay the balance of $145,243.

Other actions at Tuesday's meeting:

- The council approved the inoculation of city employees for influenza by St. Benedict's Medical Center at a cost of $10 per employee. The city will pay the cost of the employees' vaccinations as part of the city's employee wellness program. Employees' dependents can also be inoculated at the same time for $5 per shot. The employees would cover the cost of their dependents' vaccinations.

- The council passed an ordinance that allows bed and breakfast businesses in all residential zones and the central business district zone in the city with a special use permit. A bed and breakfast is defined as having five or fewer rooms in which lodging, and meals associated with lodging, are offered to the public on a temporary, per-night basis, for compensation.

- Irrigation water to city residents was shut off early this year due to drought conditions. The water, which normally runs in the city irrigation ditches until Oct. 1, was shut off on Sept. 13 this year.

Buhl waits on budget

By Mary Lou Potts
Times-News correspondent

BUHL - The school district will have to wait until January to see if its budget will need trimming.

That's when the Idaho Legislature will decide whether or not to cut school funding statewide by 1.5 percent as part of Gov. Dirk Kempthorne's cut-backs.

If the Legislature approves the plan, the Buhl School District will have to get by with $75,400 less than expected.

"We will have to make a cut-back in the materials and supplies account," Superintendent Rick Hill told the School Board Tuesday.

Also Tuesday, the board heard an update on the district's Gifted and Talented Program from Program Director Sue Brown.

Brown said the program, funded by a grant from the State Department of Education, works directly with kindergarten through eighth-grade students and indirectly with high school students.

Brown, along with art teachers Lynn Poppelwell and Joe Greif, attended a National Art Educational Foundation workshop last March in New York City. About 7,000 teachers, professors, art gallery owners and museum directors attended the four-day conference.

Brown said art students tend to score better on scholastic aptitude tests because art improves their problem-solving skills.

Other School Board business:

- The board approved the high school's improvement plan and will forward the plan to the State Department of Education.

- The board approved FFA students and their instructor Shane Stockham to attend the annual FFA Convention in Louisville, Ky. in October.

- The board accepted the resignation of high school social studies teacher Christi Burwell who is moving from the area.

- The board approved Jayna Higginson and Marcia Johnson as high school special education aides.

Hagerman will pay SIRCOMM bill

By Gina Mulder
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN - The city's check to the Southern Idaho Communication Center is in the mail.

The City Council Tuesday approved sending SIRCOMM an annual payment of $5,140.

Earlier in the year, city leaders opted to hold off sending the payment until after SIRCOMM's service improved, namely working out the glitches in the communication system.

"With the new frequency on line ... SIRCOMM has been working very well," said Hagerman Police Chief Steve Lawerson. "I would suggest that it (the bill) be paid. They have come through."

In other action Tuesday, City Council members approved two resolutions increasing water and sewer rates by 5 percent. The rate increases were proposed last month because the costs of the systems were outweighing the revenue collected from user fees.

In other city business, Gene Behunin will take over the duties of city building inspector. Behunin will replace Howard Winegar who retired this month after nearly 30 years as Hagerman's building inspector.

Behunin will work on a percentage basis, collecting 50 percent of the amount of the building permits he writes.

Behunin said he recently earned his building inspector's certification and is currently the building inspector for the cities of Gooding and Bliss.

Council members tabled Councilman Tim Scott's proposed tree ordinance for the city of Hagerman until after some insurance questions have been resolved. The ordinance creates the framework to set up a three-member tree committee that would be charged with the management, planting and removal of trees on city property and in the city park.

Hispanic Heritage Fiesta awards scholarships

By Heather Abel
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS - In addition to the music, food and culture, the Hispanic Heritage Fiesta also awarded three scholarships to area students.

The College of Southern Idaho sponsored two scholarships and one was sponsored by Furniture and Appliance Outlet in Twin Falls.

The recipients are Maria Iliana Rizo, Sergio Larios and Marino Perea.

Ruiz and Larios of Twin Falls received full tuition for fall and spring. Perea received a $500 scholarship.

Larry Scantlin, manager of Furniture and Appliance Outlet, awards a Hispanic Heritage Fiesta scholarship to Marino Perea. The business was one of the scholarship sponsors. Rosalinda Larios is the fiesta secretary.

All three are grade-point average above 3.0 and all must maintain a good standing in order to receive the scholarship next semester.

"The Spanish people are really making a difference in business in the area," says Leroy Scantlin, manager of Furniture and Appliance Outlet, who presented the $500 scholarship to Perea on Aug. 30.

This spring, members of the Hispanic Heritage Fiesta committee will be visiting area high schools to let them know of these scholarships.

"The goal is to award more than we did this year," says Rosalinda Larios, secretary for Hispanic Heritage Fiesta. This year, there were six applicants.

"We want to see that increase," she says. The fiesta was started more than 10 years ago by Gloria Galan, who is now Twin Falls City councilman. Galan said she created the day for Hispanics and others to immerse themselves in the Hispanic culture.

The event has grown over the years to become a multi-day event drawing hundreds of people to the Twin Falls City Park for music, food, dance and other cultural displays and activities.

A new nation: Residents living and working along the U.S.-Mexico are blurring cultural lines

By Julie Watson
Associated Press Writer

LAREDO, Texas - It would seem nothing could be more American - a baseball game at Veterans Field on a sweaty summer evening.

Yet little is that simple along the U.S.-Mexico border. Here the game opens to two national anthems: the United States' and Mexico's. The home team has home fields on both sides of the Rio Grande - in Laredo, Texas, and Nuevo Laredo, Mexico.

Sisters Agnes, left, and Antonia Lopez chase their goats down the road back toward their mobile home in Parjito Mesa, N.M. The two live atop Parjito Mesa, a rural and undeveloped community of about 350 families in southwest Bernalillo County.

On the world's only binational professional baseball team, the manager's instructions are given in English and Spanish to players who come from as far afield as Guadalajara, Mexico, and Sioux Falls, S.D. Fans pay for their snacks in dollars or pesos. They down their hot dogs with horchata, a traditional Mexican rice-based drink, and they do the wave to "Rock the Casbah" and "Juana La Cubana."

'A new nation is being built here that is neither American nor Mexican, where the language is not English or Spanish, but a mix of both, and where the food is more like Tex-Mex than anything else.'

- Marcos Ramirez, Tijuana sculptor that the border strip has mutated into a sort of country of its own with more than 10 million inhabitants spanning both sides of the line.

"We sew the border up every day, weaving from one side to the other," says Marcos Ramirez, a

As part of the nearly daily ritual of hauling water, brothers Joel, left, and Lorenzo Gonzalez wait for their 500-gallon water tank to fill to take back to their families on Pajarito Mesa. The story of Pajarito Mesa is as American as it gets - one of people forging a homeland out of next to nothing.

sculptor in Tijuana, across from San Diego, who like many along the border has lived and worked on both sides.

"A new nation is being built here that is neither American nor Mexican, where the language is not English or Spanish, but a mix of both, and where the food is more like Tex-Mex than anything else," Ramirez says.

The number of people who cross the border daily and who have friends and family on both sides is growing at such a rate that the day is nearing when Mexicans and Americans working on either side "will seem like nothing out of the ordinary," says Ernesto Ruffo, Mexico's border commissioner.

Along the Arizona border, residents on opposite sides play a binational game of volleyball across the frontier wall. In Laredo, couples marry on the U.S. side and hold their reception on the Mexican side to keep costs down. Down the Rio Grande, Mexican women make their way to midwives in Brownsville, Texas, to give their children U.S. citizenship - then return to Mexico to raise them.

Despite pockets of vocal anti-immigrant sentiment on the U.S. side, a recent poll conducted by the California-based Tomas Rivera Policy Center and Mexico's University of Tamaulipas said Americans and Mexicans living in the region favor a more open border where people can work and study on either side. The poll questioned 2,002 residents in 20 communities along the border - from Brownsville to San Diego in the United States, from Matamoros to Tijuana in Mexico.

Even if that doesn't happen on the books, border residents already are making it a reality by living a life that straddles the line.

"Integration has happened despite Mexico City and Washington," says Jorge Santibanez, director of El Colegio de La Frontera Norte in Tijuana.

Quintuplets' mothers gain 75+ pounds

Q. How much weight does a mother of quintuplets gain during pregnancy?

A. From 75 to 100 pounds, the records indicate.

Most common physical ailment of moose is arthritis.

Item No. 611A in our Love and War man's files on divorce reads: "More women than men report they're happier after their recent divorces. Surveyed women who so say, 85 percent. Men, 58 percent."

Medical researchers continue to puzzle over precisely why rats don't get infections in open wounds.

Earliest of what historians call "civilized laws" were in Babylon's ancient Code of Hammurabi. Example: "If a married woman shall be caught lying with another man, both shall be bound and thrown into the river."

Magazines put somber colors, images on covers

NEW YORK (AP) - The usual colors were absent from newstands this week.

Hot pink, racy red and beacon green gave way to funeral black as magazines ripped out their regular covers to make way for somber artwork to mark the terrorist attacks.

All three U.S. newsweeklies rushed out special editions that were free of advertising. Time magazine ran a black border around its cover. The first time it has dropped its trademark red frame since adopting it in 1927, spokeswoman Diana Pearson said.

Other weeklies not usually devoted to hard news coverage scrapped their original plans for cover art. Business Week, also running a black border, declared the attacks an "Act of War," the city guide magazine New York ran a photo of the twin towers burning, and People canceled a cover on shark attacks in favor of a grainy news picture of the disaster.

Perhaps the most stark artwork of all appeared on the cover of the New Yorker, where illustrations of dogs with cocked heads and sinister, whimsical faces are more common. The all-black artwork by Art Spiegelman, a frequent contributor to the magazine, depicted a barely discernible black-on-black image of the twin towers.

"To me it's a memorial and an image that will, I hope, stand for our sense of loss and our love of the city," New Yorker editor David Remnick said. "It's also important that the cover image not reflect the ego of the particular artist. In a way, by just having two shapes of black, it's a withdrawal of ego and a sign of humility."

Bush administration seeks lower spending in big grain, cotton farming

WASHINGTON - The Bush administration, departing from traditional GOP policy, said Wednesday the government was pouring too much money into supporting big grain and cotton farmers and should spend more on conservation, food safety and other programs that provide broader benefits to the country.

The report made few specific proposals but instead was intended to provide guidance for Congress as it revises programs scheduled to expire a year from now.

Surgeon in U.S. uses robot to operate on patient in France

PARIS - A surgical team in New York has performed a gallbladder operation on a patient in France by sending high-speed signals to robots - an advance made possible by improvements in telecommunications, doctors announced Wednesday.

The operation's success raises the possibility of remote robot surgery on wounded soldiers on battlefields or astronauts in space. It also means patients may have access to top surgeons without having to travel.

Blood pressure pills delay kidney failure in diabetics

BOSTON - A type of drug already widely used to lower blood pressure can substantially delay and perhaps prevent kidney failure in diabetics, a discovery that could eliminate tens of thousands of new dialysis and transplant cases each year.

Doctors found that the medicines, called angiotensin II receptor blockers, forestall complete kidney failure by about two years in diabetics with advanced kidney disease. They predict that effects will be even more dramatic in those with less severe kidney damage, potentially protecting them from ever reaching end-stage disease.

DNA evidence clears man after 13 years in prison

CLEVELAND - DNA evidence has cleared a man who has spent 13 years in prison after being convicted of rape.

Nation/World In brief

However, tests showed that DNA on a washcloth used by the attacker to clean up and found at the crime scene in 1998 didn't match Green's DNA.

Mexican lawmakers revoke law reducing rape penalties

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico - Women in this tough border city came together after dozens of their daughters, sisters and friends were raped and killed, their bodies thrown in the desert. Years later, most of the 60 murders remain unsolved.

Three dozen women's groups formed in the wake of the killings in Ciudad Juarez, across from El Paso, Texas. The groups won a legal victory Tuesday when state legislators reversed a law that would have shortened sentences for rapists judged to have been provoked by their victims.

The Chihuahua legislature overturned the law - which gave some rapists lighter sentences than cattle thieves - after coming under pressure from the public and outraged women's groups.

"We know for sure they are changing it because the pressure was humongous," said Victoria Carveo, director of Women for Justice.

Mexico's Congress had threatened to intervene if the Chihuahua state congress did not revamp the recently approved penal code, which cut the minimum sentence from four years to one if the offender could prove that the victim had provoked the attack. Those caught rustling cattle in this northern ranching state face six to 12 years in jail.

Fossil finds show whales may be related to hippos, cows

New fossil discoveries added weight to the conclusion that whales are related to land-based plant-eaters such as cows and hippopotamuses rather than to an extinct group of carnivores, two groups of researchers report.

Scientists have known that whales evolved from four-legged land animals million of years ago. However, which branch of the animal kingdom whales split from has been a matter of debate.

Immunological tests have shown a relationship to plant-eating artiodactyls - hoofed mammals having an even number of toes, such as pigs, cows and hippopotamuses. Authors of two new studies say their fossil finds, in separate areas of Pakistan, have convinced them that the tests are correct.

Good-bye to places I've come to love

The time has come to say farewell.

After editing this section for more than seven years, I'm leaving The Times-News next week to pursue new adventures. I'm moving to Washington state. I'm going back to school. And I'm scheming toward a month-long, paddling-and-hiking vacation in Tasmania.

There's a lot to look forward to, but it's also time to look back.

When I arrived in this valley, I was a single guy loaded down with boats, bikes and other outdoor equipment. I'm leaving with even more gear. But, for the first time in my adult life, I won't be traveling alone.

I'll be accompanied by my wife of one year, her loopy dog, and several other Idaho's most famous cats - Murtaugh and Mute. I could write a whole column about them, but the important thing is that for the first time in my life, it's not just about me.

Yes, southern Idaho has been good to me. I'll leave behind a piece of my heart, two wisdom teeth and a whole lot of hide.

I never thought I'd stay so long, but this valley fit like a comfortable old shoe. After years of knocking around in places such as Borneo, Zanzibar and the Amazon, this is where I finally came to rest. It's where I took my clothes out of a rucksack and hung them in a closet.

Southern Idaho seduced me less than a week after I arrived. On New Year's Day, 1994, I paddled an open canoe down the Hagerman stretch of the Snake River. I was terrified. I was elated. And I was hooked.

It was the start of a deep and abiding love affair with the Snake.

I've been back to Hagerman, but my favorite stretch of the Snake is the 14-mile section from Murtaugh to the Twin Falls reservoir. I've probably paddled it 80 times. It has 80 percent as much whitewater fun as the Grand Canyon, compressed into a 20th of the length.

I could write a whole column about the Murtaugh stretch, but the important thing is that it's there - just a few miles east of Twin Falls.

I've also come to know the Snake in its quieter moods, spreading ripples across still water with my canoe. Tailing muskrats downstream of the Twin Falls sewer plant. Peering into the clear waters of Vinyard Creek. Or watching the ducks, geese, pelicans, herons and lively kingfishers downstream of Kanaka Rapids. There's a whole column in that, too.

Any mention of the Snake River Canyon brings to mind countless follow-your-nose hikes to nowhere in particular. There were whole days devoted to scrambling, exploring and wondering, "Can I really get there from here?" That, too, is worth a column.

The City of Rocks could inspire a dozen columns. I've been there many times and I've only scratched the surface. I've scraped off a lot of skin at The City, yet it remains one of the most compelling, evocative places I've ever been.

The Sawtooth, White Cloud, Pioneer, Boulder and Smoky mountains could inspire still more columns. Cutting turns in deep snow on Galena Pass. Skiing to backcountry huts. Swooping down the Fisher Creek trail on a mountain bike. Pulling over Crater Divide from the south and seeing The Arrowhead for the first time.

These are memories I will cherish forever. To the many friends with whom I shared these adventures, please accept my thanks. There are too many of you list by name, but you know who you are. Your companionship made the hard times bearable and the good times even better.

I'll end with the words of Sir Stanley Matthews, a British soccer star of the '30s, '40s and '50s: "I am neither a rich man, nor a poor one - but I've never been too concerned about money. However, in terms of the experiences I've had, I feel I'm the richest man alive."
"I've led a full life and had my share of setbacks and successes."

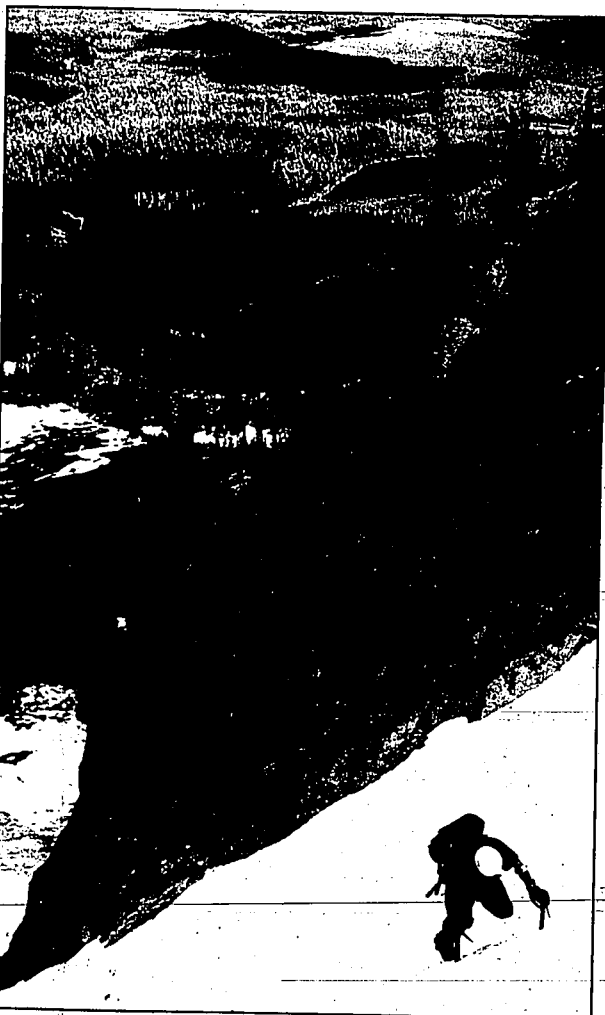

Outdoors Editor William Brock will sign off The Times-News on Sept. 28. Until then, he can be reached at 733-3264, or at wbrock@magicalvalley.com.

Years of adventure

Hansen resident Mark Weber picks his way up the North Couloir of Mount Heyburn. Several of the Bench Lakes, as well as Redfish Lake, are visible in the background.

Matt Perkins, of Twin Falls, works on his strength while climbing at Bierkes Lake. Perkins later went on to claim a spot on the U.S. Disabled Ski Team.

Story and photos by William Brock
Times-News outdoors editor

It's rock. It's water. It's mountains and valleys. It's 100 degrees in summer and 3 feet of snow in winter.

Southern Idaho is many things, but it is never boring. Regular readers of this page have tagged along on some remarkable outdoors adventures over the years. There have been climbing trips to the highest peaks in the Sawtooth Mountains. There have been whitewater trips in deep, red canyons. There's been bird hunting, backcountry skiing, mountain biking, canoeing and hiking.

Man, it's been fun. Today's Outdoor page celebrates some of those adventures. All of these pictures have been published before, but here's one last dance through the archives.

North Couloir of Mount Heyburn

Mark Weber convinced me to do this one back in July 1997. It had been a huge snow year, so the couloir was full of snow that was slowly morphing into ice.

I couldn't have asked for a better partner than Mark. He is experienced, determined and extremely capable in the mountains.

With ice axes in each hand and crampons on each foot, we began climbing above the highest of the Bench Lakes. It was easy ground, so we were unroped. Mark went first and I followed.

The angle steepened near the top and, with less than 100 feet to go, I came unstuck. I started to slide, but I dug in with my points and halted the slide after a few feet.

I was shaking like a leaf when I finally pulled over the top.

South Fork of the Snake River

This has become my favorite canoe trip in Idaho. The launch site is at Swan Valley, about 40 miles east of Idaho Falls.

It was September 1994 and I was paddling the South Fork for the first time. The cottonwood trees were just beginning to change color. The sky was full of eagles. Several people in my party saw moose.

The river itself was captivating. It braided around countless islands offering narrow side channels for adventurous paddlers. I paddled as many of Twin Falls resident Pat Brown cuts it up on Galena Pass.

State wildlife officials ease fishing restrictions as streamflows improve

TWIN BRIDGES, Mont. (AP) — State wildlife officials are easing fishing restrictions in southwestern Montana as cooler temperatures and better streamflows reduce the threat to fisheries.

The Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks said the full length of the Jefferson River, which has been closed to fishing since Aug. 28, was being reopened to anglers on Friday.

The state has also eased advisories requesting anglers to voluntarily limit fishing to mornings only on nine different rivers.

The drought continues, however, and not all problems are easing.

Red Rock River and the Shields River prompted the wildlife department to request full voluntary fishing closure earlier this week.

"These rivers are very low," Fisheries Division Administrator Larry Peterman said. "There are virtually no fishing opportunities on the Shields and Red Rocks rivers, but to ensure a safe harbor for fish living in isolated pools, we're requesting that anglers fish elsewhere."

The department also wants to reduce catch limits next season to three trout per day, only one over 18 inches, on the Beaverhead River from Clark Canyon Dam to Anderson

Lane, the Jefferson River, and Red Rock River from Lima Dam to Clark Canyon Reservoir. The Jefferson will remain catch-and-release for rainbow trout, and the Beaverhead will continue to have a one rainbow limit.

The tentative regulations will be accepted in October.

The Jefferson is still very low, but above the critical stage, and water temperatures are no longer placing the river's wild fish in the danger zone," Peterman said.

Paddling trip to Shoshone Falls pushes off Saturday

TWIN FALLS — Anyone who wants to paddle a canoe or a kayak up the Snake River from Centennial Park to Shoshone Falls will have a golden opportunity on Saturday.

those side channels as possible.

The party was a large group, so there was a lot of revelry in camp that night. Things were still when dawn came the following morning. There wasn't a breath of wind. A heavy mist hung over the river.

I took out my camera and took a picture of Orvil Atkinson — the friend I ever had in Idaho — pouring a cup of coffee for my Times-News colleague, Niels Rikkenvent. For me, it is a scene that defines companionship in adventure.

Rock climbing at Dierkes Lake

I was taking pictures of climbers one day in 1995 when I happened across a young man who was born with one leg much shorter than the other. It didn't seem to slow him down, so I clicked off a few frames of him climbing a route on the left side of The Amphitheater.

I was deeply impressed by his grace and power. I introduced myself.

He was Matt Perkins, and he was on the verge of claiming a spot on the U.S. Disabled Ski Team. Matt later became a fixture on the team and sent me postcards from ski races as far away as the Paralympic Games at Nagano, Japan.

His is a wonderful example of triumph over adversity.

Telemark skiing on Galena Pass

It was February 1997 and the snow on Galena Pass was as deep as anybody could remember. I'm not a very confident skier, so I founded the Brown brothers — Pat and Tim — into taking me to Galena Pass.

Conditions were amazing. There was fresh powder up to our thighs, but only a handful of people were skiing on our side of the mountain.

The Brown boys went bananas. They grew up in Ketchum, so they knew the area well. They set the pace for a memorable day of free-heel skiing.

Time after time, we skied down the road below the Sawtooth overlook and thumbed rides back up to the top. Some people were giving rides, others were getting rides and everyone was smiling that day.

Paddling the Murtaugh

Uwe Bergmann, an accomplished climber and kayaker from Cologne, Germany, was here in 1996 to romance a local girl, Cynthia Rieke. He eventually got her to the altar, but he took a day off during the Labor Day weekend to paddle the Murtaugh stretch of the Snake.

The river was running low, so Uwe, Al Trease and I were on our best behavior. The Murtaugh is best known for big water, but it requires much more precision to navigate when it's low.

I can't remember if Uwe had ever paddled it before, but I do remember his dramatic plunge over the Murtaugh's most-feared rapid — Pair-a-Dice. The ledge on the river right forms a deadly hydraulic hole at flows of more than 2,000 cubic feet per second, so the No. 1 rule at Pair-a-Dice is to avoid the right side at all costs.

The river was only flowing at 1,200 cfs the day we paddled it, so the ledge hole wasn't bad. We aimed straight for it, took our hits, then paddled away.

It was just another Murtaugh run for Al and me, but it was a day Uwe will never forget.

Mountain biking at Adams Gulch

Some friends and I spent a weekend mountain biking in October 1996. We rode the Fisher Creek trail the first day, then camped near Smiley Creek. The next day, we cracked off a long loop in Adams Gulch, just north of Ketchum.

One member of our party dropped out early, but Al Trease, Charlene Vullo and I kept going. It was hot, the trail was steep, and we were ready for the ride to end by the time we were on the downhill leg. There was no stopping us as we swooped back to the trailhead.

I got ahead of my companions, then snapped this picture of Charlene as she blazed through one of the final creek crossings. She was tough as nails that day.

News of terror attacks takes days to reach the backcountry

By Kim Murphy
Los Angeles Times

SEATTLE — In an age of 24-hour-a-day TV broadcasts and satellite communications, this news dropped out of a small plane, tied to a rock.

Bob Mottram and his hunting buddies were out on the tundra near Iliamna, Alaska, and for two days the skies had been strangely quiet. Normally the Alaskan air is abuzz this time of year with bush planes ferrying hunters out to camp. But starting last Tuesday morning, Mottram had not seen a single plane. Same thing Wednesday.

By Thursday, they were starting to wonder. Bad weather coming? Did the caribou herd move somewhere else? Was anyone going to come get them? That afternoon, the plane circled low overhead, finally dropping the weighted-down note before flying away.

"Dear hunters," it said. "Terrorists hijacked four airliners yesterday morning and destroyed the World Trade Center and part of the Pentagon. They crashed the airliners into these buildings, killing thousands. The Federal Aviation Administration stopped all air travel, even our planes. Obviously, we are behind schedule due to this. We will begin getting out the parties which were due to depart first. We appreciate your cooperation."

It was almost too much to comprehend, said Mottram, an outdoor writer from Tacoma, Wash. "I refused to believe it, at first."

News of last week's terrorist attacks reached India and China within moments. But in Montana's Bitterroot Mountains, at least one party of backpackers didn't hear about it for two days — some not until they arrived at the airport in Missoula to find their flights had been canceled.

Hiker Brian Robinson didn't realize what had happened until he walked into Silverthorne, Colo., Wednesday afternoon and saw a newsstand with a picture of a burning World Trade Center tower. "I didn't even know the building had collapsed until somebody walked up next to me," he said.

And if you still believe the world is a small place, consider this: 10 college-age students enrolled in a National Outdoor

Ron Rogers of El Dorado, Kan., who was caribou hunting at the time airspace restrictions were imposed after the terrorist attacks in New York, helps unload his gear after Rust's Flying Service picked up his hunting party and brought them back to Lake Hood, Alaska.

Leadership School program in northeastern Washington state still might not have heard the news. School managers are scheduled to meet up with the party Thursday to inform them.

In the 21st century, when it takes a major effort just to get away from telephones and cable news, amazingly there are still some Rip Van Winkle moments.

Only in Alaska — where much of the state lives off the network of roads and where wilderness most often is accessed by plane — did a substantial number of people find themselves cut off from a defining national moment.

The ban on air travel hit the state particularly hard because so many bush communities were without critical food, medical and mail shipments until flights resumed Thursday morning.

"We're very, very dependent on air travel here," said Keith Fiedorowicz, chief pilot for Alpine Air, based in Greenwood, Alaska. "A funny thing is, people up here talk about how glad they are (that) they'd be isolated from the Lower 48 if anything terrible ever happened. But the truth of the matter is, that's where all of our food, all of our supplies come from. We're not as self-sufficient as we like to think."

Fiedorowicz had several parties of fishermen stranded in southern Alaska when the flight ban was imposed, and was particularly worried about one group of four men, all of them in their 60s and on medication. Fiedorowicz was two days late picking them up. None of the men had a clue what had happened, he said.

"I waited till they were all together there, and I told them the world I was taking them back to was going to be a changed place. And then I told them what happened," he said.

"It was kind of quiet in the plane on the way back. And then one of them said: 'Maybe something good can come out of this. Maybe the world can actually work together.'"

In Alaska's Denali National Park, six mountaineering students and two instructors on the Pika Glacier waited all day last Tuesday for a plane to pick them up. The instructors hiked up to the top of a ridge line, got a cell phone call out and heard the news: But by the time the flight ban was lifted two days later, a snowstorm had set in. They built an igloo and hunkered down in 20-degree weather and blowing snow until Saturday, instructor Jerod Vilhauer said.

Las Vegas reels from drop in tourism

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The New York-New York hotel-casino usually draws in lots of high-rollers and tourists with its Big Apple-style skyscrapers, its replica Brooklyn Bridge and its Coney Island-style roller coaster.

But after last week's terrorist attacks, its blackjack tables have emptied out and many slot machines have fallen silent. Big-screen televisions used in the sports book have been tuned to news channels. And the casino's 450-foot model of the Statue of Liberty has become a shrine crowded with candles, flowers and cards.

"We're cutting our trip short by three days," said guest Norma Adams of Los Angeles. "It doesn't feel like the time to have fun right now."

The scene is repeated along the Las Vegas Strip. Tourists and their gambling dollars are staying home in the aftermath of the terrorist attacks, whether out of fear, grief or a sense of the nation's air travel system. Hundreds of Las Vegas conventions have been canceled.

Norma Mendoza of Los Angeles stops to read messages left at an impromptu memorial for terrorism victims at the fence at the New York-New York Hotel Casino Tuesday in Las Vegas. Las Vegas has seen a drop in tourism since the attacks last week.

Quick weddings are way down. At New York-New York, there are reminders of the tragedy all over. The place is built to memorialize all the most memorable pieces of the New York skyline, with a Statue of Liberty and a 529-foot, 47-story replica of the Empire State Building. (The World Trade Center is not part of the skyline, which is supposed to represent the Big Apple of the 1940s.)

After the terrorist attacks, the hotel's shows were canceled, security was increased and piles of T-shirts, hats and coffee mugs bearing emblems of the New York fire and police departments filled kiosks and shops.

"It has humbled all of us that visitors to Las Vegas have created a memorial at New York-New York to honor the victims and offer support for the inspired efforts of the rescuers," Felix Rappaport, president of the hotel, said in a statement.

Around Las Vegas, more than 50,000 conventioners have canceled or postponed events this week alone, a $61.3 billion hit in gaming revenue, according to industry officials Tuesday by the Las Vegas Visitors and Convention Authority.

So far more than 240 conventions planned for September, October and November have canceled. Last year the city drew 11 percent of its estimated 36 million visitors from conventions. With a little more than half of the 75,000 rooms on the Strip empty, hotels were forced to slash room rates this week.

Normally, weekend visitors fill about 84 percent of the city's 126,083 hotel rooms. "The trouble with having a one-industry town is that if that industry is in trouble, everything else is in trouble," said Keith Schwier, director of UNLV's Center for Business and Economic Research.

Wilma Haley, a slot floor person who has worked at the Stardust hotel-casino for 30 years, said she could not recall a time when casinos were so deserted. "The impact has been felt by the whole city," she said.

The self-proclaimed "marriage capital of the world" that averages more than 300 weddings a day saw license applications immediately drop about 40 percent last week.

"We're all shook up," said Cathy Carlson, a wedding planner who lost half her 10 daily bookings last week at the Elvis-themed Graceland Wedding Chapel.

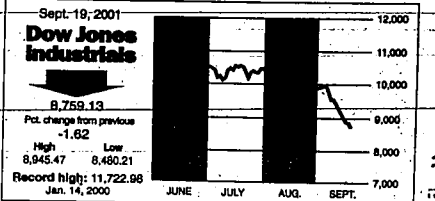

"First it was new people who can't get here. Now it's people who are afraid to fly."

of safety that comes with knowing everyone on a flight.

The nation's 3,000 charter companies rarely search passengers or their luggage.

"You know who is flying with who the pilots are, since you hired them," said Cliff Stroud, spokesman for the National Air Transportation Association industry group.

Markets roundup

Dow stages partial recovery after seeing sharp fall-off

NEW YORK (AP) — Economic fallout from last week's terrorist attacks sent stocks spiraling for the second time in three days Wednesday. Only a late burst of buying saved the Dow Jones from being among the worst three-day point loss ever.

The Dow, down 423 points in mid-afternoon, recovered to a loss of 144 following reports that the Pentagon had ordered fighters and bombers to begin moving to the Persian Gulf area, the first concrete sign of preparations to retaliate for last week's terrorist attacks.

Rauscher. "There's no reason to buy as long as the future, both economically and politically, is still uncertain."

The Dow closed down 144.27, or 1.6 percent, at 8,759.13. So far this week, the Dow is down 746.81, or 8.8 percent.

At its low, the Dow had accumulated a three-day loss of more than 1,100 points. Its worst three-day loss was 984 points in August 1998. The Dow's trading showed how unpredictable the market is likely to be in the coming days. The Dow had appeared to steady Tuesday, falling a mere 17 points, after a record 684-point plunge Monday.

Investors had been pushing stocks lower all year on worries about when business would improve, although before last week's attack analysts had predicted that the worst of the economic slump might be over soon.

Demand for chartered flights jumps after terrorist attacks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Demand for chartered flights jumped sharply around the country as deep-pocketed travelers try to avoid new security delays at major airports.

Charter service in Southern California reported a 110 percent increase in customer calls. A Wisconsin custom calls customers are booking longer interstate flights normally handled by commercial airlines.

And in Brunswick, Maine, Adam Webster's charter flight referral service has been swamped for a week.

"Since Tuesday, we have been totally slammed in a way that I never imagined," said Webster, who serves business and travel agents. "My old customers are calling back, begging for availability."

Charter companies call the new business a sad result of last week's attacks, in which hijackers crashed commercial airliners into the Pentagon and the World Trade Center. A fourth jetliner went down in Pennsylvania.

Charter companies — whose planes range from single-engine four-seaters to Boeing 737s with two smoothie bars and bedrooms — boast of smoother check-ins than larger carriers and a feeling of safety that comes with knowing everyone on a flight.

The nation's 3,000 charter companies rarely search passengers or their luggage.

"You know who is flying with who the pilots are, since you hired them," said Cliff Stroud, spokesman for the National Air Transportation Association industry group.

during this tragic time," said IRS Commissioner Charles O. Rossotti. "Our information lets people keep their attention focused on helping those in need - rather than being distracted by tax issues."
The publication, still in production, will be available later in printed form.
It discusses the legal requirements for tax-exempt status. For example, an organization that seeks to assist a particular, pre-selected person would not qualify as a charity. However, one that helps a large group of people affected by disaster would benefit the public as a whole and therefore qualify as a tax-exempt charity.
The IRS said it also has established an expedited review and approval process for new organizations seeking tax-exempt status to provide relief to the victims. New organizations should apply by filing IRS Form 1023, available at www.irs.gov. You can write at the top of the form "Disaster Relief, Sept. 11, 2001." The IRS said it will give such applications immediate attention.
Form 1023 and its instructions contain the address for submitting the application for regular mail and another for express mail or a delivery service. In addition, those seeking more information about applying for charitable tax-exempt status can call the IRS toll-free phone number, 1-877-829-5500.

Officials at Boeing's chief rival in commercial aircraft manufacturing, Airbus Industrie, said Wednesday they had not decided whether to cut their work force and offered no predictions.
"Airbus continues to monitor the situation very closely in order to assess the consequences," Airbus spokesman Barbara Kracht said. "I'm not aware of any customers asking for deferrals or cancellations."
However, German carrier Lufthansa said it would cut an unspecified number of jobs, and British Airways was meeting Wednesday to decide whether it can still afford to buy 15 Airbus A330 superjumbo jets.
Two other major Airbus customers, Virgin Atlantic and Air France Group, already have announced hiring freezes or layoffs and flight curtailments.
Roughly 93,000 people work for Boeing's commercial airline sector, including about 60,000 around the company's former headquarters in Seattle. Boeing's corporate headquarters is now in Chicago.

AROUND THE NATION

Blair says Great Britain stands beside America

LONDON - The week before the terrorist attacks on the United States, the British press pounced on a remark by President Bush that his country "has no more important relationship in the world than our relationship with Mexico" - as a sign that Britain had been cast aside.

Not any more. Prime Minister Tony Blair, who heads to Washington today at Bush's invitation, has quickly emerged as America's strongest international ally in the newly declared war against terrorism, re-igniting talk of the special relationship between the two English-speaking countries.

Blair immediately declared that Britain stood "shoulder to shoulder" with America after the Sept. 11 attacks on the World Trade Center and Pentagon, brushing aside fears that his strong support could make cities like London a target. He has used the same "war" terminology as Bush, and has worked nonstop to build international support for action against the perpetrators.

Russian foreign minister promises support to U.S.

WASHINGTON - Russian Foreign Minister Igor Ivanov pledged Wednesday to work "cooperatively and in solidarity" with a U.S. counterterrorism campaign, promising Secretary of State Colin Powell to lend his nation's support unlinked to more contentious issues.

The leaders of Indonesia and Sudan, meanwhile, gave much more qualified support.

Russia is telling U.S. officials what it knows about different terrorist groups and maintaining "continuous contact" between Russian and U.S. foreign and special intelligence services.

Indonesian President Megawati Sukarnoputri on Wednesday assured President Bush that her predominantly Muslim nation opposes the terrorist attacks. She did not say, however, whether she promised to crack down on Islamic hardliners within her country. Bush was expected to press her on that issue.

Sudan, which once gave refuge to Osama bin Laden and was bombed by the United States for alleged terrorism links, will cooperate in the fight against those behind last week's attacks, its president said Wednesday, but cautioned against retaliatory military action.

"We are against any attack in Afghanistan or any other countries in the world that can be victims," he told The Associated Press.

Fighter jets flew nearby when plane hit tower

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. - Fighter jets were only 10 minutes away from one of the hijacked airliners when it crashed into the World Trade Center, the North American Aerospace Defense Command said in newly released data.

Two other military jets were 12 minutes away when an airliner hit the Pentagon, according to NORAD's official timeline, released Tuesday.

President Bush had not authorized military pilots to shoot down any civilian planes until after the crash at the Pentagon, and military officials have questioned what fighters would have been able to do even if they had been in time.

German government OKs anti-terrorism measures

BERLIN - The German government approved anti-terrorism measures Wednesday that are designed to prevent terrorists from using the country as a base, and promised to spend an extra $1.4 billion on the fight against terror groups.

The money, which would be added to the 2002 budget, is to strengthen the country's intelligence, security and prosecution efforts in the wake of last week's attacks on the United States. Under the measures approved Wednesday, officials will be allowed to outlaw any Islamic organization in Germany that abuses its religious status to engage in criminal activities. Until now, authorities have been unable to ban religious organizations.

Airborne assault might be key

Defense experts say United States military can handle air invasion

By Michael Kilian
Chicago Tribune

WASHINGTON - As the United States considers military action against Osama bin Laden's terrorist organization, military observers say an assault in Afghanistan by paratroopers, supporting air power and ground troops is a main option.

Defense experts agree the U.S. military is fully capable of such a risky and difficult mission and is ready to move fast.

Speaking at the Pentagon this week, Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld said only that the U.S. is considering a wide range of actions.

"It's not a matter of a single event," he said. "We're talking about a very broadly based campaign to go after the terrorist problem where it exists, and it exists in countries across the globe."

But Rumsfeld said the U.S. response would be of a different nature than in the past. "We were used to dealing with armies and navies and air forces and ships and guns and tanks and planes," he said. "This adversary is different. It does not have any of those things. It does not have high-value targets that we can go after. But those countries that support them and give sanctuary do have such targets."

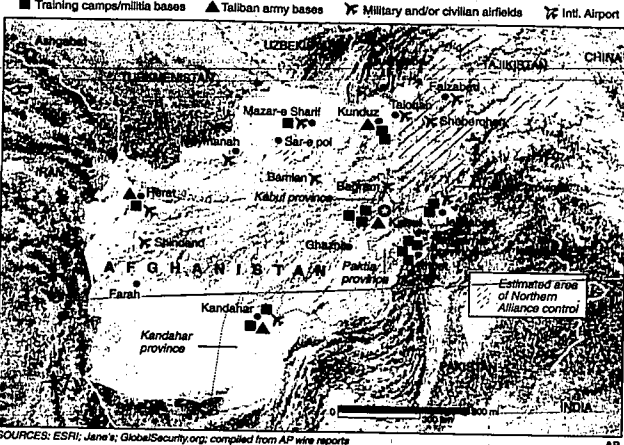

A U.S. air and missile attack against targets in Afghanistan is a possibility. But unlike in the Gulf war and in Kosovo, such air power would be only a preliminary step toward an on-the-ground mission and future punitive actions - not a response in itself, experts say.

Such a mission would have to be relatively brief - a month or two in-country deployment at most, even for a unit as large as the 82nd Airborne Division, the spearpoint of America's ground force rapid military response. "Any sort of indefinite base in Afghanistan is fraught with every danger under the sun," said British Royal Army Maj. Charles Heyman, editor of Jane's World Armies. "You've got a time window of around two months. After that, you're bogged down in a guerrilla war, and it's certain they will grind you down."

To succeed, an airborne assault would not necessarily have to bring about the capture of bin Laden, as long as some damage was done to his organization and Afghanistan's ruling Taliban, Heyman said.

"The U.S. and its allies will be

Afghanistan is mountainous and filled with many places to hide. Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in last week's attacks, is thought to be harbored there by the Taliban regime. As a result, the country fears reprisals.

satisfied with the destruction of certain Taliban assets and the humbling of the Taliban in the eyes of the Afghan people," Heyman said. "The people loathe the Taliban by and large. They just want to be left alone. So I think your chances of getting hold of some of the Taliban movers and shakers who've probably been supporting bin Laden are good.

The chances of a successful U.S. operation have been bolstered by having three British commando regiments totaling 20,000 troops just finishing an exercise in Oman.

But experts said the most important element is having the best possible intelligence concerning the location of bin Laden terrorist cells and Taliban leadership.

"Intelligence is key to everything we're doing," said retired Army Col. Bill Taylor, former director of international security affairs for the Center for Strategic and International Studies and one of Secretary of State Colin Powell's teachers at the National War College. "If we don't have intelligence, forget military options."

Another requirement would be the seizure or creation of a large-scale military ground and air base within or near Afghanistan, from which to dispatch combat teams to seek out and destroy bin Laden and Taliban targets. One or two abandoned Russian airfields in northeast Afghanistan offer that opportunity.

Americas at its disposal a powerful fighting force in the form of the XVIII Airborne Corps, which includes the 82nd Airborne Division; the 101st Airborne Division, which flies in helicopters; the 3rd Infantry Division, Mechanized; and the 10th Mountain Division.

Soviet vets warn U.S. of stiff foe

The Associated Press

MOSCOW - The prospect of a U.S. attack on Afghanistan brings an ominous message from veterans of the Soviet Union's decade-long war with Afghan guerrillas: You'll never win.

"You can occupy it, you can put troops there and keep bombing, but you cannot win," said Lt. Gen. Ruslan Aushev, who was decorated for bravery during the 1979-89 war.

The Soviet Union's brutal conflict in the mountains and helped bring about the superpower's collapse. The Soviet Union said it lost 15,000 troops in Afghanistan, and unofficial estimates are much higher.

Moscow sent troops to Afghanistan to back a fledgling leftist government against Islamic rebels supported by the United States. The Taliban militia who now rule most of the country have sheltered Osama bin Laden, whom the United States suspects of masterminding last week's terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon.

It may be impossible to find bin Laden there, Aushev said in a telephone interview Tuesday from the Russian region of Ingushetia, of which he is president. "It's as easy to lose yourself in the mountains as in the jungle," he said. "They'll find him only if they're ready to go over 500,000 square kilometers (200,000 square miles) rock by rock."

at Ft. Bragg, N.C. is the most mobile and can be deployed in 48 to 96 hours. Totaling 14,338 troops, the 82nd includes a "Ready Brigade" and battalions that can be moved out at once.

Also available to the president are 13,000 to 14,000 Special Forces units, all of them airborne qualified, and another 1,800 to 1,900 U.S. Army Rangers. They possess a large array of high-tech weaponry and mobile artillery and, once an air base is established, could be supported by attack helicopters brought in by cargo jets as well as tactical fixed-wing aircraft.

Afghanistan academies rear Taliban supporters

By Tina Susman
Newsday

PESHAWAR, Pakistan - Two rows of young men sit cross-legged on a stone floor, place their opened books on battered blue benches serving as desks and begin rocking back and forth and chanting in unison, filling the cavernous room with a chorus of religious-verse that floats through the windows to the mosque outside.

This is the afternoon Quran class at Markaz Uloom Islamia, one of hundreds of Islamic academies in this city near the Afghan border. These academies teach the strict version of Islam embraced by the ruling Taliban movement in neighboring Afghanistan, and their graduates are devoted Taliban supporters.

According to the principal, teacher and students, most graduates will become teachers of the Quran or will start small businesses. "Just like good Muslims," said the soft-spoken principal, Maulana Syed ul-Arifien.

But the Bush administration is threatening to attack the Taliban, and as long as some hand over Osama bin Laden, the chief suspect in last week's terrorist strikes in the United States. With that in mind, many here are considering a far different future.

They say they are ready to go to war not only against the Americans, but also against Pakistan if it lets the United States use Pakistani territory or airspace to attack Afghanistan.

"We'll go to those airports, and we'll kill these Americans if the Pakistanis give assistance," said Arifien. Asked what weapons they would use, he replied without hesitation: "Stones."

While the Islamic academies around Peshawar say they conduct no military training, there is little doubt that they are prime recruiting grounds for the Taliban and associated Islamic militant forces.

The academies - called madrassas - have multiplied in the 22 years since the Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan. This Pakistani border region became a front line in an Islamic holy war that drew thousands of deeply conservative Muslims from around the world and billions of dollars in aid from Islamic governments and foundations.

After the Soviets retreated, in 1989, many hard-line Islamic institutions continued to flourish here. Rasool Baksh Rais, a political science professor at Islamabad's Quaid-i-Azam University, estimates that 5,000 madrassas dot Pakistan, most of them here in the North-West Frontier Provinces.

Madrassas have long rejected Western-style education and the teaching of subjects such as science, math or English. The narrow, religious curriculum offers students little preparation for professional lives and few choices for the future but to teach the Quran in other madrassas or mosques.

Even if the schools offer students limited chances for eventual jobs, they provide escape from lives of poverty: three meals a day and a dormitory in which to sleep.

Funding for the schools comes from donations - including from people and institutions in the oil-rich Arab nations of the Persian Gulf - and from Pakistan and Afghan parents of their graduates, who contribute anything from a few cents to a large portion of their salaries. A major benefactor is Osama bin Laden.
