TWIN FALLS - A spokesman for Idaho dairymen said Monday the industry will not participate in mediation over a controversial livestock operation siting ordinance being considered by the county, effectively killing those mediation efforts.
The industry's decision, a Twin Falls County official said, leaves the county no alternative but to proceed with the approval process of the ordinance as written. To the industry's loud objections, the ordinance includes a number of environmental standards operators must meet to obtain construction or expansion permits.

permits.

After meeting with Idaho Dairymen's Association board members this weekend, Lewis Eilers, executive director of the group, told Twin Falls County commissioners Monday the county's existing livestock ordinance should be used as the basis for mediation. If not, then the industry didn't care to take part, he said.

said.

"Let's start with what we have," Eilers said. "Other than that, we don't care to mediate."

Commissioner Bill Brockman, who has been coordinating the mediation details, said public hearings on the ordinance should happen within the next three to hearings on the ordinance should happen within the next three to four weeks. After getting a final draft of the document from planning administrators, which could take a week to 10 days, Brockman said, commissioners must advertise the pending public hearings for two weeks.

At issue are the odor, files, dust and high-intensity lights associated with modern industrial-sized dairy operations, which have caused a growing countryside population to become more vocal during the past 18 menths about regulating the dairy industry. Most of the focus has been on one particular dairy near Filer owned Please see MEDIATION. Page A2

FBI issues global alert

Washington Post

Washington - The FBI issued a second global alert Monday, warning that more terrorist attacks may be carried out in the next week against U.S. targets at home or abroad. But officials said again that they did not know how or where the attacks might occur.

The warning, which came in the wake of a similarly vague FBI bulletin on Oct. 11, was prompted in part by "big and very credible" intelligence reports from Please see ALBITI, 7ase A2

WASHINGTON - Tests revealed the presence of anthrax spores in four more government buildings in downtown Washington Monday, and officials said a New Jersey women who does not work in a mailroom has contracted the skin form of the disease. In another sign of the contamination spreading from the District of Columbia's central postal processing plant to other mail facilities, tests found traces of anthrax spores in mailrooms at the Supreme Court building, the State Department and at a federal building where the Department of Health and Human Services and Voice of America have offices. Similar traces were found at a nearby building used by the Food and Prug-Administration, which joins a list of more than 20 sites th, Washington where the bacteria have been detected. Officials also announced that anthrax spores were found in a mail pouch at the U.S. Embassy in Lima, Peru, which receives correspondence through the contaminated State Department mail center in Sterling. Va.

But for federal health investigators, the new anthrax case in New Jersey seemed to be the day's most important development. Although the skin form of anthrax is not life-threatening, she may be the first person to be infected by ordinary mail delivered to a home or business.

Kempthorne: Information indicates threat of attack

BOISE - Gov. Dirk Kempthorne has instructed state agencies to "maintain the highest level of readiness" in response to U.S. Attorney General John Ashroft's announcement that the nation faces the threat of another terrorist artack. "There is a convergence of information that would indicate that a terrorist attack is possible on the United States within the next seven to 14 days," Kempthorne said in a press release Monday evening. "I believe the nature of the announcement to be based on credible information and is to be taken with utmost seriousness." Kempthorne, who attended a meeting with President Bush on Thursday, was briefed Monday on the latest threat. He said he met Monday with state Adjutant Gen. Jack Kane and with the Lt. Col. Glenn Ford, deputy director of the Idaho State Police, to talk about the new threat.

Our citizens should know that all levels of their government are working together," the governor said. "We must remain vigilant and alert."

Troops on the ground will likely be needed to capture or kill bin Laden and other leaders of his al-Qaida network, but past wars in Afghanistan – notably the former Soviet Union's failure after 10 years of fighting – have shown the high cost of a conventional large-scale ground invasion.

Rumsfeld was asked about a USA Today report that said U.S forces may soon establish a forward base in Afghanistan that would support 200 to 300 commands. The newspaper, quotien an unidentified defense official, said the base might be in north-ran Afghanistan.

"You're asking if we're considering doing something additional in various ways," Rumsfeld said. "Needless to say, that's our job-to consider much differentings, and we do." He said he had nothing to announce.

A senior defense official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said U.S. planners were considering many possibilities, including the idea of a forward operating base in Afghanistan and other ways of using ground forces. President Bush on Monday was asked whether Americans are prepared to see a large number of ground troops committed in Afghanistan. He said the public knows the administration is "steady, determined and patient." He said he appreciates device from Congress, but would not say whether grounds troops are going in. Some firearms, including three handguns, were also seized in the raid, Femling said.
The case was still under investigation, and there could be more related arrests or charges, said Femling, who declined to give any details of the investigation.
The busts started when officers served a warrant to look for a stolen shorgun in a house on Alder Street in Hailey, according

After spotting an apparent drug stash there, officers got a second warrant to search the house more thoroughly, and then a third warrant to search the house in Twin Falls, Femling said.

Investigators think the inteninvestigators think the inten-tion was to sell most of the drugs in or near the Magic and Wood River valleys, Femiling said, but there was no indication that any of them had been grown or man-ufactured locally.

U.S. official said.
Other intelligence has been gathered indicating that Osama bin Laden and some of his trop leutenants have essentially delegated authority to order and conduct new attacks down the chain of command, perhaps even to individual cells of bin Laden's al Qaida terrorist network, senior officials said.

The FBI has identified at least a half dozen such cells in the United States. Some members have been detained in the government's roundup of nearly 1,000 people since the Sept. 11 terror attacks on New York and Washington.

Washington.
Several officials said the apparent instructions from bin Laden mean that all Qalda terrorists could strike even if the group's leadership has been eliminated, further increasing the difficulty of detecting and preventing attacks. Capturing or killing bin Laden is one of the primary goals of the U.S. military action in Afghanistan, where the Saudi fugitive is believed to be hiding.

In a nation still jittery from the Sept. 11 cerror attacks, the alert came on the same day as more reports of anthrux contamination in Washington and New Jersey. It set off another round of alarms among local and state law enforcement agencies, most of which have already been on their highest state of alert since the suicide hijackings that left about 4,800 people dead seven weeks ago.

"There was a threat and it is being investigated," said Paul Malandrino, an operations manager at Dulles. "Everyone is safe. The passengers are off the airplane." No bomb was found. A recorded statement by American Airlines spokesman Gus Whitcomb said the plane was diverted because of a suspicious note, but gave few other details. A government official speaking on condition of anonymity said the note was a bomb threat.

The FBI is investigating the threat, but bureau spokesmen Chris Murray would not comment on whether it was genuine or if the plane was ever in danger.

Earlier this month, Brockman said he would resign from the commission if an ordinance wasn't in place by Jan. 1.

But, industry spokesmen say the tack taken by the proposed ordinance will put many operators out of business and that much of the $1.2 billion they claim dairies contribute to the Magic Valley economy will go with them.

Eilers and Alvin Smutny, a

Magic vancy country, a with them.

Ellers and Alvin Smutny, a milk producer who earlier this year took part in a citizen committee's attempt to write a new ordinance agreeable to both sides, said the industry will sue if the commissioners adopt the new colleance.

"We've been getting prepared for court," Ellers said. "They've known that from the start."

Smutry and other industry rep-resentatives on the citizens com-mittee say their concerns were not addressed in the proposed garage and the state of the control of the control

Twin Falls, resident David

debate and who supports the pro-posed ordinance, had stronger words of criticism for the indusposed ordinance, had stronger words of criticism for the industry.

"I'm dishearcened," Mead said.
"It shows many of us that they just don't care about their neighbors."
"The county, had arranged for a Boise-based attorney to mediate between the industry and the ordinance's supporters — mostly neighbors of hiefliger's dairy, tentative Nov. 9 meeting had been set for the session.

But Ellers and Smutny said there have already been two attempts to mediate the groups' differences — the citizens committee and another informal meeting between the two sides — and both failed. They blamed the county commission's indecision.
"They're hiding behind processes, hiding behind moratorium after moratorium, to avoid making a decision on this," Ellers said.
Since July 2000, the commission's sindexistance.

"Why can't the county commission, after a year and a half-make some kind of decision?" Ellers said.

Bush forms task force on immigration policy

WASHINGTON - As part of his effort to root out terrorists and their supporters, President Bush launched a crackdown Monday on foreign visitors who abuse on tofeign visitors who abuse their visias. Saying that the Sept. 11 terror ist attacks "taught us an interesting lesson," Bush announced the creation of a federal task force to tighten immigration policy. The inter-agency group will look for ways to screen potential terrorists and monitor visitors who violate the terms of their visas. The Bush plan calls for more immigration and customs agents to be assigned to anti-terrorism, directs federal agencies to share information about suspected ter-rorists and orders the State Department to share more infor-mation with Canada and Mexico to help nab terrorists before ney enter this country. More than 7 million for eign visitors enter the country on visas each year, and about 3 million of them overstay their entry permits. About 500,000 foreign TERROR ers are admitted on student visas. At least 13 of the 19 foreigners who were involved in the Sept. 11 attacks entered the country legal-ly on tourist, business or student visas. At least three of them over visas. At least three of them over-stayed their visas.

The administration's effort to tighten immigration policy is another example of the dramatic change in the political climate as a result of the Sept. 11 ter-rorlst attacks. Before the assaults, Bush was prod-ding Congress to ease minigration restrictions, especially with regard to Mexico. Now his proposal for a new guest-worker program has been shoved aside by the war on terrorism.

Bush instructed immigration officials to be far more diligent in tracking visa holders and deport-

One leading anti-immigration activist dismissed the White House initiative as a halfway measure that falls far short of Bush's declared goal.

"The system is dysfunctional a every point," said Dan Stein, executive director of the Federation for American Immigration Reform, an organization that favore more restrictions. Immigration Reform, an organization that favors more restrictive laws. "All the information in the world isn't going to help if you don't have the personnel and resources to enforce the law. They don't seem to realize that curtailing immigration itself is a vital part of the equation."

2001 federal surplus shrinks to $127 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) - After

WASHINGTON (AP) – After nearly a decade of an improving bottom line, the government budget surplus shrank to $127 billion for 2001, about half the previous year's record total.

The sour economy and rising spending will probably wipe out the surplus altogether in the current budget year that began Oct. 1, analysts said.

The smaller 2001 surplus, announced by the Bush administration Monday, followed the record $237 billion in 2000.

The latest snapshot of the government's finances marked the first time since 1992 that the balance sheet didn's show an improvement. At that time, the government's deficit had bloated to a record $230 billion. In subsequent years the deficit shrank and since 1998 the government has registered surpluses.

While the Congressional Budget Office's last official projection had forecast a $176 billion surplus for the current fiscal year, CBO officials had told Congress in late September that they expected a much smaller surplus of between $36 billion and $56 billion. Many economists believe that number will be revised in coming months and the government will end up posting a deficit in 2002, the first shortfall since 1997.

"Not only is the government having to ante up for the costs associated with terrorist attacks and the military response, but it is also struggling with weakening tax revenue and stronger growth in expenditures associated with the recessionary economy." said Mark Zandi, chief conomist at Economy. Com.

Bush administration officials are hoping that a strong economic rebound next year will stave off a return of budget deficits. Even with the deterioration in the government's finances, the 2001 surplus was the second-biggest in U.S. history, Government finances liave not shown so many consecutive years of surplus since before the Great perpession, an 11-year string of surpluses that ended in 1930.

Red Cross admits money will go to long-term plans

NEW YORK - The American Red Cross acknowledged Monday that some of the $550 million in donations to a special tund established for the victims of the Sept. In terrorist attacks will be used for other broadbased needs instead. "It takes a lot of money to do a lot of work. We believe very much that we are honoring donor intent," Red Cross spokesman Mitch Hibbs said. "Yes, we are helping the families, but we're also helping everyone else." Soon after the attacks, the Red Cross took the unusual step of creating a special account, the Liberty Fund, that was designated for terrorism relief efforts.

But a portion of that money will go to broad-based activities such as a blood reserve program; national outreach effort, and a telecommunications upgrade. Philamthropic watchdogs, while careful to note the Red Cross meets high standards overall, said the group has not clearly publicized its distribution plans for the Liberty Fund. They also questioned the need for a separate collection effort in the first place.

Observation deck reopens with ex-president's help

CHICAGO (AP) - Former President Bush helped reopen the observation deek of the nation's tallest building Monday, calling the move a message that "the terrorists have failed." The skydeck at the Sears Tower had been closed since the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. Now that it is reopened, visitors must pass through metal detectors and have their bags checked by X-ray machines.

Bush was joined Mayor Richard Daley and others in officially reopening the skydeck of the 110story building.

"By reopening this symbol of strength and vitality in America's heartland, you're sending a clear message that the terrorists have falled," Bush said.

The observation tleck on the 103rd floor is one of Chicago's most popular tourist attractions drawing more than 1.3 million visitors a year. It offers panoramic views of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Since the attacks, workers at the Sears Tower have had to show ID, bags are checked and concrete barricades surround the building.

New soapy solution can help decontaminate buildings

A newly developed soapy solution that can kill biological and chemical agents is one of the weapons U.S. officials plan to use to decontaminate buildings of deadly anthrax spores.

Representatives from the Environmental Protection Agency, other government agencies and private industry are planning adily how to eliminate the spores, spread by tainted letters sent to buildings here and several states.

Because this is the first time that U.S. office buildings are being decontaminated of anthrax spores, the effort is a twork in progress. Officials are trying to incorporate tried and true methods, such as common bleach preparations, with new technology, such as the solution. Coordinating opinions isn't easy.

"That certainly is part of the problem," said Larry Perrine, media relations project leader for the U.S. Department of Energy's Albuquerque, N.M.

WAR

the solution. "There is not a consensus in Washington."
There is no single coordinating agency for the various cleanup efforts in Washington, Florida, New Jersey and New York, where various organizations have received tainted letters, said David Sternberg, of the EPA office in Philadelphia, which covers the Washington region.
The EPA is helping cleanup efforts not only in Florida but also at the U.S. Postal Service's Brentwood facility and Capitol office buildings here.
The U.S. government has long had procedures to respond to toxic contamination, said Fred Stroud, coordinator of EPA efforts to clean up the American Media Inc. building in West Palm Beach, Fla. There, anthrax spores killed an editor and sickened another worker.

What is new, he said, is dealing with anthrax spores in civilian settings, and having technological advances to kill them.

The first line of defense has been an old-fashioned bleach solution, which the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has promoted for anthrax cleanup, according to Stroud. That solution was used to clean four post offices in Florida.

A bleach solution was also used in NBC offices in New York, where Massachusetts-based Clean Harbors Environmental Services Inc., was hired after a letter sent to anchor Tom Brokaw left one-employee with cutaneous anthrax and two more suspected cases.

Contamination, there was anthrax and two more cases.

Contamination there was believed to be limited to a single floor. William Geary, general counsel for Clean Harbors, said workers used bleach for decontamination. His company is investigating the Sandia-developed solution, he said.

Officials promote anthrax treatment drug

ATLANTA (AP) - Government health officials said Monday they want more people at risk for anthrax to take the drug doxyc-cline, clting fears that some common bacteria are becoming resistant to the sought-after antibiotic Cipro.

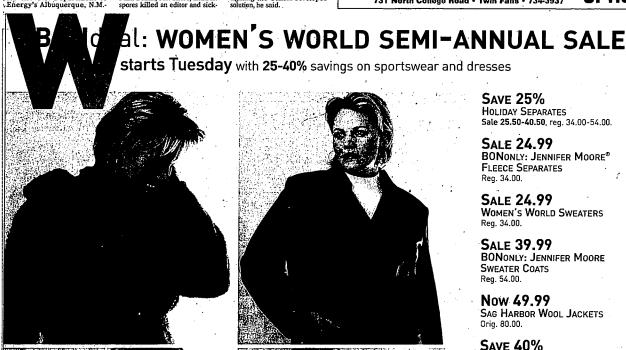

Both drugs are recommended by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to treat confirmed cases of anthrax and to protect people who may have been exposed to the bacteria.

But Cipro is part of a special class of drugs prescribed by doctors when they do not know exactly how vulnerable an organism is to particular antibiotics. Distributing those drugs too widely can weaken their effectiveness.

The widespread use of Cipro since the anthrox by-mail scare began may be hampering the drug's ability to fight bacterial diseases like pneumonia and urinary tract infections, health officials said.

"There are compelling public health reasons to consider doxycycline as a better choice in the current situation," said Dr. Bradley Perkins, a CDC anthrax specialist.
Doxycycline works just as well as Cipro against the anthrax detected so far in New York, New Jersey, Washington and Florida, and health officials are less concerned about a buildup of antibiotic resistance to doxycycline. otic resistance to doxycycline

My daughter was married and realized it was not to be. She preferred her own gender. She has a doctorate in education, and is very lovable and outgoing.

Respectability has nothing to do with it. I believe she was born this way and didn't have a choice. If that mother really cares, she would not dwell on herself and grandchildren. Kids do not "owe" heir parents grandchildren any more than they owe them a life lived to meet their preconceived

Re-elect incumbents Clow and Steele

City Council seats

Three seats are up for election on the Twin Falls City Council. Seat 1: Incumbent Lance Clow

vs. Sherry Olsen Frank Seat 5: Incumbent Elaine Steele

The future of Twin Falls will be up for a vote next week. When voters make decisions about three of the seven City Council seats, they'll be setting, the tone for policy in southern Idaho's largest ictive.

Local elections are a significant - but often undervalued - method for citizens to express their voices. These elections often have turnout far less than a general election, but their impact is in many ways much more direct.

Here's our viewpoint on the three

Challenger Sherry Olsen Frank is a also a good candidate. She has been a positive influence on the planning and zoning commission, and she has been an active backer of the Humane Society and the United Way.

.But Clow has proven himself worthy of re-election.

Retain Steele

Mayor Elaine Steele's leadership in economic development is a key element that qualifies her for another term on the council. Steele has flourished in her city leadership role, with a genial and diligent approach that has brought results.

She also deserves credit for working just as hard on other development efforts that didn't yield such dramatic results. She hasn't been a high-profile mayor, but she has an approachable nature and is a good listener.

Her challenger, Allan Howa, is making his first run at public office. Howa has gained a favorable reputation in the business community, and he is well-known for his involvement and other good qualities, he hasn't made a persuasive case for replacing Steele. We see no reason voters shouldn't retain her.

Choose Bohm

Seat 6: Incumbent Elaine Steele vs. Allan Howa Seat 6: Incumbent Chris Talkington vs. Wayne Bohm The Times-News offers its editorial endorsements as a service to readers. We welcome oppos-ing viewpoints.

As the outgoing chairman of the city's planning and zoning commission, challenger Wayne Bohrn has demonstrated the ability to articulate progressive ideas and to wield responsibility on the citizens' behalf. His command of city issues shows that his years on the P&Z commission were well-spent, making him sound more like an incumbent than a challenger.

Incumbent Chris Talkington has long been a familiar face in city politics. He has proven to be passionate, articulate and able to think for himself on the council.

Talkington recently became director of the Snake River Juvenile Detention Center in Twin Falls. That job gives him a key role in protecting the community's future, and it ties him closely to state and county agencies. The community might be best served by focusing Talkington's energies there, while employing Bohrn's talents to help lead City Hall.

Don't give in to anthrax scare

f one aim of domestic terrorism is to instill feelings of fear and haplelessness in citizens, the perpetrators of the anthrax terror hit pay do the feel with their burning of the White House, the Capitol and other government buildings in 1814—what Lee Harvey Oswald couldn't deliver in 1963—and what the Pentagon attackers sought to but couldn't provoke on Sept. 11: a sense of vulnerability and danger so great that it disables and fundamentally afters the way the nation's capital does its business. The release of virulent spores into a healthy postal system achieved that end. Anthrax caused the House of Representatives to flee town; it closed Senate office buildings: unprecedented actions. Contamination fears created an uncertainty that immobilized businesses and mailrooms. Anthrax has also done what the Cold War, Watergate, urban riots, a presidential impeachment and a slew of natural disasters never to did to this city. It severed a bond that links us together and ties us to our government.

together and ties us to our governmentthe U.S. mail:
So much for "Neither snow nor rain nor heat aor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds." Terrorism saw to that.
And yet, as my old Howard University economics professor used to remind his student, "Sometimes the action is in the reaction."
The mail will recover. The day will come when letters and packages will be sanitized to kill biological agents, and postal employees will feel safe in their jobs. And just as the flying public is coming around to accept the new way of getting through airports, businesses and residents will learn how to cope with the threat of biological agents in the mail. But that's then. What about now? The American Psychological Association has something to say about the reality of the anthrax scare and how people should handle their anxieties. First, understand that the whole idea of terrorism is to manipulate your feelings, to immobilize you with fear of another attack, to make you uneasy about going on with your daily life. Under the circumstances, the stress you may feel is normal, especially since the source of the danger is unknown.

stances, the stress you may feel is normal, especially since the source of the danger is unknown. But don't give in to the scare. Keep some perspective on the scale of the actual threat. Yes, anthrux cases are rising in the Washington area, five in the inhulation form so far. And two postal workers have died. Add to that the 6,000 people who are taking precautionary drugs, and the contaminated mail facilities throughout the region. But what does all that really mean?

For most people in this area, and certainly for folks living far beyond the Washington Beltway, the odds of getting infected with anthrax are far less than the likelihood of dying from the flu, or in a crash or while crossing the street. Sure, the mental image you might conjure up of somioone you love or yourself being on the receiving end of a terrorist attack is scary. It can make you feel vulnerable. And yes, we in the media certainly do our part in serving up those ready-made images to unnerve you. But what do you expect for a quarter? Besides, statistics are in your favor. So hold on to your rationality.

The APA offers some other suggestions that may prove helpful – though there's one I don't much care for. It's the one that says: "Limit your exposure to the news media." As they might say in my old neighborhood, "The APA has stopped preachin' and gone to meddlin." But they have a point. Wanting to keep up to date with the latest news is undergraphly But, and I beauth a while he was the proposite But, and I beauth a while he was the proposite But, and I beauth a while he was the proposite But, and I beauth a while he was the proposite But, and I beauth a while he was the proposite But, and I beauth a while he was the proposite But, and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the was the proposite But and I beauth a while he was the was the neighborhood, "Ine Arra was suppreupreachin and gone to meddilin."

But they have a point. Wanting to keep up to date with the latest news is understandable. But—and I hope the publisher isn't reading this—there is such a thing as overexposure. If you're scaring yourself to death with news reporting, take a break Listen to some music, play a game, talk out your feelings with somebody, do the consist of a book that makes you laugh. The main thing is to continue doing what you do well, so that you experience a sense of mastery and control. Anyway, that's what the APA says. But remember, there's a fine line between wanting to control events and becoming compulsive. Don't let the anthrax scare make you become a worse person to be around. Let's face it Washington has a new and harsh reality on its hands, and it's not going away anytime soon. One day brought hijacked planes and mass murder. Then came anthrax. Fear of "what's coming next?" is understandable. But it ought not be paralyzing. It's not as if federal folks in Washington are standing around twiddling their fingers. The fact is, we're safer today than we were on Sept. 11. We're going to be safer still in the weeks ahead, even if the threats of terrorism are continuing. What matters most is how you deal with it. As my oil' prof said, the action's in the reaction.

Look carefully at incumbents

Look carefully at Incumbents

Three months ago, I wrote a letter to Mayor Elaine Steele and the City Council with a copy going to city attorney Fritz Wonderlich. The letter was regarding an important issue and was signed by nearly Speople from my neighborhood. I sale specifically in the letter for a response or acknowledgment of our concern. This is an issue that has received front-page and evening news coverage, yet we who asked the questions have heard nothing from your elected officials. The only explanation I can come up with for this lack of courtesy and professionalism is that they really don't care what my neighbors and I think because we can't vote in the upcoming election in the "area of impact," so I have no vote in the governing of my neighborhood. I cannot vote for or against the representatives who will make decisions that affect my way of life. That right has been taken from me and the many people who live in the "area of impact."

While the mayor and council members may feel like the current method of governing in this area is "good for everyone," not one person that I have spoken to who lives in this area would agree with that assessment.

I cannot cast a vote on Nov. 6, but I urge those of you who can to look carefully at all of the incumbents who are willing to take away my right to government by representation and who refuse to acknowledge the concerns of the many people who have no voice. I cannot vote, but I will not walk away from this issue.

Computer coming to this area as it sounded like a wonderful opportunity for our community.

I immediately applied and submitted a resume. I was contacted the following day for a telephone interview by a Dell representative. I was asked the following questions. "What is a bang in windows, what is plug-n-play, what is an LFTI, how do you install drivers, etc." As I did not know the answers to all of these rather technical questions, I was told to go pay the College of Southern Idaho for the computer class and go pay the College of Southern Idaho for the computer class and that this was no guarantee I would even be re-interviewed or

In the Pell article in this paper dated Oct. 21, it states, and I quote from Greg Rogers, "Don't be intimidated to call in, he urges anyone with home PC experience even if that's simply surfing the Internet—to make the call if he or she is interested in a tech-support job. Even people without formal computer or technical training might have the aptitude for the

This job starts at $8.25 per hour, and I find it highly unreasonable to expect the people of this community to pay for and find the time to attend a college class for this type of entry level job and entry level pay with no guarantee of employment. Is this a pley to boost eurollment at CSI?
I am very disappointed in how Dell is encouraging the people of this community to apply then tell them they are not smart enough. I will no longer support Dell or its products.

ber members and the second page brought up some concerns that I feel need to be brought to your attention. It is regarding the Veteran's Day Parade.

Somewhere along the line, I think perhaps many people have lost sight of what Veteran's Day is about. It is a day set aside for us to reflect on the people (the veterans) who have gone before us, who have sacrificed so much in order that we might have the freedoms we now enjoy. It concerns me that the focus of your banners in the Veteran's Day Parade do not fellect the true meaning of Veteran's Day, and I feel that it could be faken as disrespectful display to the very veterans that we should be honoring. The banners you mentioned seem only to promote the corporations that our veterans fought long and hard to protect.

Although we might be excited that they are coming, Veteran's Day is not about wetcoming Dell to Twin Falls, and it is not really about our freedom to be in business. We should, however, as chamber members, thank the veterans for the many opportunities that we now have because of them.

I urge you to seriously take this into consideration and rethink

Council creates traffic safety award

By Michael Journe Times News writer

TWIN FALLS — A new traffic safety ward is being established for community residents in honor of the late Jim Mildon, a 31-year Twin Falls police veteran known for love of his job and community.

City. Council members approved the establishment of the award about a year ago. After a year of planning, Sgt. Matt Hicks announced Monday that the first James A. Mildon Traffic Safety Award will be given in January.

Nominations for the award, which is to be given to a group or individual who contibutes to the awareness of traffic safety in the city, will be taken from the commuty at large. For unknown reasons, cyanobacteria will sometimes multiply explosively, creating a mass of strong-smelling scum known as a bloom.

"Blue-green algae forms in shallow, warm, slow-moving or still water," Higens said.

"Cyanobacterial bloom formations seem to be linked to nutrient rich water bodies, such as water that contains a lot of phosphates from detergents or phosphate fertilizers."

Blooms may be an early warning for water pollution. Patricia Talcott, who has doctorates in toxicology-pharmacology and bacteriology, said a cyanobacterial bloom is usually an indicator of problems with water quality.
Blooms develop where high levels of organic matter are present, such as feces or rotting vegetation, along with phosphates and sulfates.

M-C voters will decide fate of library district

By Sharl Cliancy
Times-News writes

BURLEY - What began with people from outside the city limits complaining about having to pay for a library card has turned into a complex issue that will be on the ballot Nov. 6.
Voters in both Cassia and Minidoka counties will decide whether to form a library district.
A simple majority vote in favor in both counties would form the district.

children would not happen, Hedberg said, because there are too many children without library cards. Woodford said she could not justify to city taxpayers holding programs for non-city children.

Woodford said she has hit this roadblock with the Head Start program as well. The program wants children to grow up with access to a library, but if they are outside city limits, they must buy a library card, which some can't afford, Woodford said.

afford, Woodford said.

Kent Durfee pointed out school libraries are already in place with their own programs and supplies.
He said public libraries can do very little to aid schools and the aid that is provided will be for those in Burley and Rupert, rather than schools in outlying areas.
Schools do already have libraries in place, Woodford acknowledged. However, that is the library for a student for five or six years.

Teresa Ammon, librarian at Big Valley Elementary School, said if a student, especially an avid reader, is at Big Valley from second grade through sixth, they have read everything they want in the school library.

"It is hard to get more and more books," Ammon said.
Joyce Merrill, librarian at Dworshak Elementary School, said she donates money of her own to the library, which keeps new books arriving and students never numing out of new material.

"It would be nice to not have to do that," Merrill said.

Hedberg said the library could he supollementins schools with Hedberg said the library could be supplementing schools with books, especially for the Accelerated Reader program. Schools sometimes don't have books to meet the great demand. The library could add AR books and alleviate that shortage, Hedberg said.

"I know we are supplementing schools," Woodford said.

The library district can and would support children in any measure, Woodford said, meaning the district would provide books and materials for teachers to use, even buying books to meet the needs of teachers.

A library district would supplement school libraries by being open during the summer when school libraries are closed. Hedberg said she has talked with teachers who work hard to get children reading at grade level, but then children lose those skills over the summer because they are not reading.

With money from a grant allowing a demonstration library district, summer reading programs were held in Malta, Declo and Accequia, Woodford said. Book check-outs rose by more than 1,500 per month between March and September, she added.

Reading at an early age is key to success in school and throughout life, Hedberg said. The library is trying to benefit the entire community by giving opportunities to children, Woodford said.

"How many little kids are there who have their lives changed because they can come to the library?" Hedberg saked.

"Or have the library come to them?" Woodford added.

Area school librarians agreed the potential for a library district and school libraries to collaborate is there.

David Badger, media specialist at Burley High School, said collaboration might be more effective with elementary interests, and collaboration might be more AR books as benefit. However, he said, it may be an assect for older students as well to have another place to go for books the school library might not have.

not have.

Badger said he has worked with the library in that way before, sending students to the city library for resources he does not have.

library for resources he does not have.

Ammon agreed. If an entire grade or class is working on a subject and the school library doesn't have enough books, it would be nice to be able to send them to a public library, she said.

It would increase the availability of books, Ammon said.

Kent Larson, librarian at East Minico Junior High School, said a library district could "enhance the whole system," allowing materials to be exchanged between the school libraries and the public libraries.

Larson said AR books would be a big help, as the school doesn't have as many as they'd like. Students could check them out at the public library, read them and take the test when they came to school.

"The muscles start going cray," she said. "Animals, in a short period of time, will stop breathing."

Higens said most of the dogs died in the area from two miles east of Burley to the old KOA Campground near Declo. Here, muddy slopes, like a bathtub ring, grow along the river as water drops. These muddy areas provide warm shallows, perfect for growing cyanobacteria.

"As the water drops, mud puddles form where the temperature rises, creating the right conditions for a bloom," said Idaho Department of Environmental Quality Remediation Manager Bill Allred. "The bloom on shore looks like a light red snow on the mud." Allred pointed out that dogs are most often affected because they eat the mud covered in algae. "It smells like something dead," said Allred. "something a dog would like."

Autopsies of dead dogs in past years found mud in their stomachs.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, did offer an amendment last week to extend all expiring credits for one year.

But Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-Mont,

one of wind power's leading proponents in Congress, warned hat a short-term fix would undermine confidence in wind projects and lead to a "boom and bust cycle."

"Many wind developers will not move alnead with new wind energy projects unless we provide them with assurances that if they build and purchase equipment, secure financing, obtain environmental permits and take other steps needdo to bring a new wind facility on line, that they will be able to access the production tax credit," Dorgan said in letter to Baucus that was circulating among senators.

The internment camps, operated by officials whol' run Indian reservations, were unnecessary for national security by the time they were finally built. Even War Relocation Authority head Milton Eisenhower argued against them, saying it would be more humane to filter Japanese-Americans into small communities. But the military was adamant about rounding them up, even though most had been born in the U.S. At first, the military classifier Japanese-Americans "ehen, aliens." But it eventually approved a volunteer unit that went onto become the most-deconated unit in World War II. Not only did Japanese-Americans liberate a concentration camp, but the 442nd bayanion lost more lives saving a unit of troops from Texas than were in the Texas unit, Sims said tearfully. be even worse.

Depending on how severe the economic downturn becomes,

Foltman said the administration may be forced to look at holding at least some state agency spend-ing to last year's levels. The avering to last year's levels. The average increase in general tax spending this year from last was just over 11 percent.

School districts are taking the brunt of the holdback, and some educators are blaning it as much on the Republican legislative majority's record tax cut last winter as on the economy.

The governor had warned administration officials last sumer to expect nothing more than as 5 percent lower.

Agencies were told to include programs or services required by state law that might have to be repealed to accommodate the kind of spending cuts that are looming.

kind of spending cuts that are looming.

Kempthome has been adamant about making permanent his $35 million reduction in this year's $2 billion general tax budget, and a number of legislators have agreed that trying to cover this year's reductions with cash from the state reserve only delays the problem and depletes the reserve.

But included in the across theory dependent cuts is $14 million from state aid to education, and a solid block of lawmakers appeared convinced that following the governor's directive, especially in an election; year, would undermine this galant the state has made in public whools in recent years.

Some have suggested tapping the $35 million set aside last winter to cover half the cost of renovating the state Capitol as the way to protect school districts.

Police urge Halloween safety measures

BURLEY - Halloween means candy, costumes, and candles glimmering in jack-o'-lanterns. And it can be characterized by mischief: The trick in "trick or treat."

With children out collecting candy door to door, local law enforcement officials urge everyone to be safe, this year more than ever

"Due to the events of the past few weeks regarding anthrax, we are requesting that people avoid giving out any Halloween treats that are in the form of a powder, what has nowder on it." said or that has powder on it," said Cassia County Sheriff Jim Higens. Besides powders, any homemade or unpackaged sweets should not be distributed, he should not be distributed, he said.

"I know that some little of dades like to make popcorn balls or cookies for the children, and it's too bad that our society has gotten to the point that we can't accept that, "Higens said." Feople should also be aware of the dangers of being out at night. "If you are going to take you, children tick or reating; go'to, people you know," said Robeits. Vasquer, Mindoka Counny sheriff's deputy, "Wear reflectie clothing and carry glow sitcks if you are out after dark. For drivers, Td just stress the need to be extra careful on the road, to drive slowly-because of the children."

For their part, law enforcement officers will step up coverage on Halloween.

"We're going to have our reserve unit out on foot parol and bikes," said Cpl. Juan Martinez of the Rupert Police Department. "We will also have couple of extra cars out, and the citizens on parrol will be looking futifier anything strange."

Although extra precautions can't hurt, Martinez said he'doesn't expect this Halloween to be any different from previous Halloween nights. "Mostly we have problems with people throwing eggs or pumpkins," he said, "and they usually snend the next day out wasting cars" behind the police station.

Police chase Washington bank robber

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — A Spokane, Wash., bank robber who escaped during a doctor's appointment over a month ago, was believed to be in the woods near Thompson Falls in north-western Montana Sunday venning.

FBI agents, deputy U.S marshals, Montana Highway Patrol officers, Missoula SWAT team members and search dogs fanned out in thick timber west of Thompson Falls to search for Dale Demont Reed.

The ground search for Reed ended at nightfall gad was scheduled to resume, Monday morning, officials said: (A) — (A)

Reed pleaded guilty to the 1998 robbery of a Wells Fargo Bank in Spokane, Wash., and faced a 25-year prison term when he was sentenced Nov. 26.

Reed, 32, who has a history of felony convictions including bank robbery and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, is considered armed and dangerous, said Montuna Highway Patrol Capt. Mike Frellick.
Reed is described as an American Indian, 5 foot, 9 inches Iul, 185 pounds, with black hair, brown eyes and may be wearing glasses.

Terry Kramer was in charge of the fishing derby, where children through to the sixth grade had one hour to catch the first fish, the most fish and the smallest fish. The Idaho Fish and Game stocked the stream with about 500 fish, including golden trout.

The first golden trout snagged was worth $20 to the angler. Whitmey Blick wasted little time in snagging it and collected her $20 from Kramer.

A horseshoe tournament was also held for the adults, while the children enjoyed sack races and $82 toss.

ICAN feeds the hungry through program

By Dixle Thomas Reale Times News correspondent

BURLEY - The Idaho Community Action Network has set a lofty goal. "To educate, advocate, to eliminate poverty and work to make our state a better place to live."

eliminate poverty and work to make our state a better place to live."

The nonprofit network is involved with child care, health care, housing needs and helping to feed the hungry. For the latter, they have a program where needy families help themselves and each other.

The network works with food warehouses in Bolse and Pocatello. Once a month, the Burley office receives a list of what is available from the grocery warehouse.

Between 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. on the first Thursday of the month, network participants meet at St. Nicholas Catholic Church at 802. F Street in Rupert. The participants have a listing of available food, order what they want and pay. Network staff members rent a truck go to the warehouse in Pocatello and pick up as much food as they can buy – at discount prices. They not only have the participants' money, but kinds from donations.

Want more information? Call the Burley Idaho Citizens Network office at 678-1708 or stop by at 1151 Oakley Avo. In Burley.

There is a charge of $10 per unit for families, which is one defined as one share of the total amount of food ordered from the warehouse. A person can order up to three units, depending on the size of their family. Cash or money orders only are accepted. In return, the recipient receives around $30 to $60 worth of food per unit, but may only pay about $10 per unit, for example.

Back in Rupert, the food is districted up according to how many units of food each family has paid for. The second Tuesday of the month, the food bank is open and food is distributed at $1. Nicholas between 4.7 p.m. Participants are urged to bring boxes to take home their food.

Members nay an annual fee of frang boxes to take home their food.

Members pay an annual fee of $12, which is prorated. The person who joins in January pays $12 for the whole year but the person who joins in October pays $3.

Adam Ramirez, a network volunteer, said participants must be low income, need food and be willing to participate as a volunteer to keep the program going.

"We have both Spanish speaking participants," he said. "People can come to the Rupert distribution center from anywhere in Magic Valley.

Members are also asked to attend hurting negarans about

Magic valiey.

Members are also asked to attend nutrition programs, about two hours a month, and contribute three hours of volunteer service to the network program each month.

Volunteers pack food boxes, deliver food to the elderly and disabled, provide child care for other working volunteers, do fund-raising for the Citizen's Network and assist with membership drives and lobbying.

"We had a distribution center in Jerome for a couple of months, but ICAN is staffed totally by volunteers and the time involved proved to be too much. They couldn't keep up. We had to close the center. If a group of volunteers want to start after the county of the control of the we nat to close the center. If a group of volunteers want to start a distribution center in Jerome we will train them and help them get it going again. A distribution center requires a minimum of five volunteers." now in American homes Microsoft recommends that machines have at least a 300 MHz Pentium-class processor and 128 megabytes of RAM. Just two years ago such PCs were the absolute top of the line and even this time last year, a 300 MHz chip speed was considered more than adequate.

Also, if you only have 64 megabytes of RAM, you absolute Jy must buy at least 64 megabytes more or the machine will bog down. This is because XP is designed to accommodate multiple users and therefore uses a fat that wash the essay in which so so so so so so feet MP high points on properly powerful PCs, as it permits one user to log of and store whatever that user was doing in RAM while a new usel logs on and goes to work.

For example, if I were writing this column in Word and you came along and told me you needed to log on and get something dane quickly, my work would be saved in RAM when I logged off and you logged on. All the code for running Word would be in RAM along with my documents.

If you chose to run Word yourself, XP would not reload Word for you, but it would keep me from seeing your documents and keep you from seeing mine.

This is sleek stuff, but it also is the worst thing to happen to memory since ISD.

Chip speed becomes a make-orbreak issue because XP does most of its stuff using the Web browser to handle the display.

Thus, the first thing that happens when you insert the XP upgrade CD is that the software detects your RAM and chip speed and lets you know if you should continue. Then begins the process best described as upgrade hell.

For more than an hour the CD drive whirs and the screen display changes, offering blatant Microsoft pitches and periodic updates about what stage the upgrade has reached.

machine had hardware not compliant with Windows XP and suggesting that I consider stopping the upgrade and contacting the manufacturer. Like most upgraders, I just bit the bullet and continued the process.

In my case, I got error messages because of a Linksys USB networking card and a USB Logitech video camera. These messages are quite unsettling, of course, because they imply that you might wind up with a brain-dead PC at the end of the upgrade. Anecdotal reports from upgrading pioneers indicate that these warning messages are quite common and that XP winds up handling the hardware just fine. I am pretty confident in predicting that you too will get this kind of a scare and that if you just hunker down and get past it like I did, there will be no problems down the line.

Upgrading operating systems never was for the faint of heart, and that remains the case with Windows XP.

More women join the ranks of computer hackers

Say the word "hacker," and most people still think of an antisocial teenage boy running amok in government computer systems, concocting nasty viruses and defacing Web sires.

But during the past few years as computers have become commonplace in conventional homes and businesses, hackers have bed and expose a remarkable transformation. Not only have hackers become friendlier and more Jaw-abiding, they are also more frequently female.

Scientists exhume remains of supposed 'Boston Strangler'

Supposed 'Bos
York, Pa. (AP) - Scientists examining the newly exhumed remains of the man long believed to be the Boston Strangler are promising "blockbuster" findings.
Albert DeSalvo confessed to murdering 11 Boston women, between 1962 and 1964, but was stabled to death in prison, while serving a sentence for rape, without ever being charged in the skillings. He recanted his confession before he died.
His body arrived Saturday at York College, where scientists hope modern technology, including DNA typing, can help them identify DeSalvo's murderer and shed more light on whether or not he was the strangler.
A few investigators and the DeSalvo's family, which requested the new study, are convinced that DeSalvo's confession was bogus and that he was not the real Boston Strangler.
Even though the investigation has just begun, project leader and George Washington University professor James Starrs, a forensics specialist, said Sunday that he already wants to expand the size of his team as a result of unexpected findings.

Starrs would not discuss what the team had found but promised a "blockbuster" report when the research is complete.
"More than you ever antidpated," said Starrs, who has participated in other historical inquests including examinations of the deaths of explorer James Meriweather Lewis and Jesse James.

James.
The team hopes to unveil more information about how. DeSalvo was killed, including the number and type of weapons used.
A retired Massachusetts prose-and type or weapons used.

A retired Massachusetts prosecutor, George Burke, says he has no doubt that three fellow inmates stabbed DeSalvo more than 70 times because they wanted him to stay out of the prison drug trade.

Some of the remains will be sent to Starrs' lab at George Washington University, Evidence will also be reviewed by researchers in Alabama, Colorado and Florida, Starrs is funding the project himself. York College was chosen for the main investigation because its fieldlites were convenient to all the investigators.

VANCOUVER, Wash: - The slow economy, showing little sign of picking up and further impacted by the Super 11 terrorist attacks, continued to the super 11 terrorist attacks, continued to the super 12 terrorist attacks. The Vencouverbased mipany-which has a Twin Falls shipping location - had a net loss of $29.9 million during the third quarter and a $26.1 million operating loss, Consolidated Freightways said. This is the second consecutive quarter CP has posted losses. The company would have lost money in the first quarter, too, except for a one-time gain from a property sale.

As of Sept. 30, CP had a net loss of $66.8 million for 2001.

By comparison, CP posted a $1.3 million profit in the third quarter last year and $5.6 million in operating income. As of Sept. 30, 2000, the company was showing a year-to-date loss of $1.6 million.

Patrick Blake, CP's chief executive officer, said a downurn in trade show business, lower yields, too many shipments under 500 pounds and fewer capital gains contributed to this year's loss figures. That CF lost money during the quarter was not unexpected, but is turther evidence the company is having a tougher time returning to profitability than originally expected.

NEW YORK NEW YORK — The stock marker's monthlong recovery stalled Monday as investors cashed in their winnings ahead of three key economic reports due out this week. The unsurprising pullback sent the Dow Jones industrials down more than 270 points.

of three key economic reposits due out this week. The unsurprising pullback sent the Dow Jones industrials down more than 270 points.

Analysts weren't alarmed, noting that stock prices have moved considerably higher during October and that a good portion of the Dow's decline was related to bad news specific to Boeing rather than a blanket selloff. "Considering the type of strong move we've had in stock prices since Oct. 1, this is really no stryrise," said Brian Belski, fundamental market strategist at US Bancorp Piper Jaffray. "A part of this is locking in some gains, the end of month is also approaching and the end of fiscal year for many mutual funds is approaching.

following the terrorist attacks.
Broader stock indicators also tumbled. The Standard & Poor's 500 index dropped 26.31 to 1,078.30, while the Nasdaq composite index fell 69.44 to 1,699.52.
The losses came during a month that has seen significant gains by all three major indexes. Since Oct. 1, the Dow has risen 4.8 percent, while the Nasdaq has gained 13.4 percent declines that followed the assaults.
With more third-quarter reports expected this week and the middle of the fourth quarter approaching, analysts say selling pressure remains considerable. They also believe worries about more terrorism or fallout from the U.S. air strikes against Afghanistan is making some investors reductant to hold big positions in the market.

deal faces 'long, hard road'

Merger would give EchoStar 91 percent of U.S. satellite TV market

U.S. satellite TV market

DENVER (AP) - The $25.8 billion merget that would make EchoStar Communications the nation's biggest provider of satellite television is expected to face tough scrutiny from federal regulators.

On Sunday, EchoStar announced plans to buy Hughes Electronics and its DirectTV unit from General Motors. If the deal is approved, EchoStar will control 91 percent of the U.S. digital satellite TV market and 17 percent of the pay-television market.

EchoStar will control 91 percent of the pay-television market.

EchoStar will do what it takes to ensure the deal wins approval.

The companies plan to argue to regulators that they are forming a company to compete against cube instead of creating a near-monopoly in the satellite TV market.

The government in 1980 set up the direct broadcast spectrum to compete with cable, "Ergen said. "Finally, for the first time, the government can see that vision come to fruition with the combination of these companies."

With 10 million subscribers, DirectTV is the largest provider of home satellite television service in the United States. EchoStar's District of ATRG, the leading cable TV provider.

The National Rural Telecommunications Cooperative, which resells DirectTV programming and equipment through a company called Pegasus, has the remaining 9 percent of the home satellite television market.

Ergen said the sate of the subscribers of the home satellite television market.

Government in 1985 birectTV programming and equipment through a company called perhaps twice that to win regulatory approval. EchoStar shareholders have approved the deal. Garret Rasmussen, an antitrust specialist with the Washington law firm of Fatton, Boggs, gave the merger a 25 percent chance of gaining approved from antitrust regulators.

Ergen said the new company would drive down costs by sharing satellite spectrum, bargaining for lower programming costs and adopting one standard for set-top boxes. It also would expand services, including accelerated delivery of high-speed Internet access, and consider flat-rate national pricing.
Analyst John Stone of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. said flat-rate pricing could ensure that the merged company would be able to compete against cable in urban areas while avoiding huge price increases in rural areas where satellite TV holds the edge.
Still, Stone said, "It's probably still going to be a long, hard road toward approval."
Ergen and DirecTV chairman Eddy Hartenstein planned to meet Today with House Energy and Commerce Committee chairman Billy Tauzin, R-La, to discuss the merger.

monopoly in 1984.

The Telecommunications Act of 1996 now allows Baby Bell companies like Quest to provide long-distance in their local service areas if they can prove their local phone service market does not shut out competitors. Qwest says the ability to offer long-distance in its 14-state local phone area will cut prices and increase choice for consumers. "We think it will stimulate competition in the state," spokesman Leo Baca said. He said rival phone companies will benefit because, during testing, Owest has developed procedures that ensure it treats competitors fairly. He said it will maintain the standards after it gets federal approval. Consumer groups fear that if Owest can offer long-distance, it will create a monopoly that will harm consumers.

The American Association of Retired Presons maintains consumers could suffer in what it called "an acceleration to dergulate markets too fast." And Rebecca Saltman of WorldCom called for Owest "of the the mastive price squeeze that's barring competition."

Idaho spud harvest exceeds expectations

IDAHO FALLS (AP)—Prices are up, demand is up, quality is good and the potato yield is better in eastern Idaho than most people expected.
"They look pretty good this year," Fremont County grower Neal Hughes said. "We've got more rough spuds than last year."

more rough spuds than last year."

The rough spots in the season – a scorching summer and show that water supply – made for strong demand and a good situation for growers. Many in the industry also credit the growers and the USDA's potato diversion programs for the price improvement over last year.

"It helped get the prices where they are now," Gale Harding, Madison County cooperative extension coordinator, said.

What growers are being paid for fresh spuds is still holding at around $6 per hundred pounds despite a typical sag at harvest when spuds are most plentiful, Harding said.

Bruce Huffaker, editor of Morth American Potato Market News, said growers should benefit nicely from the market.

"The markets are much better than they were a year ago," he said. "Shippers have to pay growers some fairly decent prices for spuds. With the diversion and a 10 percent smaller crop than last year, shippers don't have quite the oversupply of last year."

Hughes said he hopes growers will take note of how their own planting reductions and diversion efforts have improved the market.

Patterson predicted that if the market stays strong, growers will increase acreage next year. But, he said, finding a good supply and demand balance will be key to keeping prices profitable.

Financial district may change for good |

NEW YORK (AP) - In the wake of the World Trade Center attack, some are wondering whether the very idea of a finan-cial district concentrated downcollapsed along with the win towers.

"The financial district is dispersed, post 9-11," said M. Myers Mermel, a former real estate adviser with Morgan Stanley who now runs TenantWise.com, an online commercial real-estate firm. "The question remains whether it can be reassembled. Tenants are indicating that there is little enthusiasm for returning downtown."

Technology is making it less compelling to return. Computers, teleconferencing and other electronic means of doing business have made it much less important for brokers and others to work within walking distance of each other in one concentrated area of skyscrapare.

"The days of exchanging papers and running the stock certificates around certainly are long gone," said John Cefaly, vice chairman of Cushman & Wakefield, one of downtown's major real estate firms. "Do all functions need to be in the same location? I think people are going to reassess that."

Most financial firms weighing whether to return are not concerned with future terrorist attacks as much as with damage from the recent one. Mermel said companies' main worries are possible environmental hazards and the problems of bringing employees into an area ringed with crushed subway tunnels.

"All credibility, all good con-science, all evidence of truth come only from the senses." — Nietzsche

In a recent duplicate game, all pairs reached the heart game. Some played it from the North side; most from the South side. From either side, declarer received a club lead, giving the same problem to every declarer. Where does he find his itoh winner?

Some declarers took West's club Jack with the ace, drew trumps, and exited with a club, looking for help from the defense. It never came. West won South's club exit and shifted to the diamond nine, South won his ace and, too late now, led a spade toward dummy. Alertly, West took his king to lead another diamond, and South could not avoid losing four tricks.

Other declarers didn't bother with the black suits. They merely drew trumps, took the diamond incesse, and went down quickly.

The winning declarers sensed an obscure way to avoid the risk of a losing diamond finesse. After drawing trumps, they led a spade toward dummy, finessing the eight! This ost to East's ace, but South was now in control. With no hetter lead, East returned a spade to West's king, and South no longer needed a diamond finesse. South discarded two of dummy's diamonds on his high spades and claimed 10 winners.

Note that the obscure spade finesse is a free shot. Should dummy's eight lose to the nine, South loses no more than the two spades he was destined to lose anyway. And if the extra shot doesn't materialize, he can still fall back on a diamond finesse to try to save the game.

It's just another version of "heads I wit, tails you lose."

IN BRIEF

Vashington's Michael Jordan will be the center of attention when the Wizards tip off the NBA season

Life behind a desk didn't suit him, didn't satisfy him. Nor in a chaise lounge. Nor on a golf chaise lounge. Nor on a golf course.

Michael Jordan missed life in the arena. Wheeling and dealing in the boardroom or driving on the fairway just didn't compare to flying over the hardwood.

So here he was, the once and future king of basketball, holding court again on a recent Saturday night in the visitors' locker room at AmericanAirlines Arena before a preseason game against the Miami Heat.

The scene was surreal and per-

The scene was surreal and per-fect at the same time. Jordan, 38, wearing the blue uniform of the woeful Washington Wizards, sat in a chair with an ice pack on his stiff right knee and headphones over his ears. The most sublime athlete of the late 20th century chatted and chuckled with his heretofore unknown teammates about mundane things, such as the color of his new Nikes (they decided upon mustard) or the shape of Sam Cassell's bald head (pumpkin-like) as a Bucks-Heat game tape played on a TV monitor.

Across from Jordan sat Kwame Brown, the No. 1 draft pick out of a Georgia high school who is half Jordan's age. Two generations, the legend and a legend-in-themaking, playing on the same team. Jordan had supposedly stepped aside three years ago to allow his potential heirs a chance to usurp him. The challenge-addict's final challenge was "Beat that!" with his title-winning farewell shot against the Utah-Jaz in 1998.

Jordan remains focus of NBA season

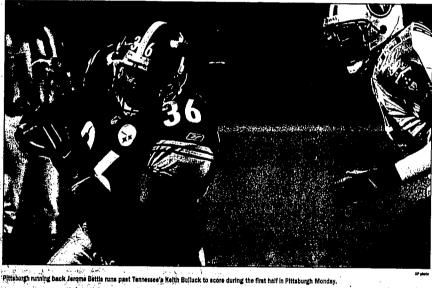

Jazzin 1998.
But he couldn't stay away. He found a new challenge – beating time, an opponent no one has subdued before.
To do so, he will have to bent the NBA stars who followed in his footsteps. He will have to prove he can still outplay Allen Iverson, Kobe Bryant, Vince Carter. He will have to upset the new league order.
How will fans' perceptions of Jordan's successors be molded by Jordan's performance against them? Dallas Mavericks owner Mark Cuban wonders whether Jordan's return might set the NBA back when he retires again in a couple years.

Jordan can't wait to see how the whole grand risk plays out.
Can't wait to silence the doubters who immediately began tsk-tsk-ing when he passed up an alley-oop dunk for a simple layup in his first preseason game. He said he had an itch to scratch and he can't wait to see if he can reach it.

That's why he was grinning as he sat in the AmericanAirlines Arena locker room and contemplated another interminable NBA season. As the Wizards prepared to take the court, Jordan looked into the eyes of the teenaged Brown and laughed.

Bus leaves Titans in dust

Bettis, Steelers rumble past Tennessee

PITTSBURGH - A whole lot of Jerome Bettis and Plaxico Burress and a new-found bag of tricks kept the surprising Fittsburgh Steelers in first place - and put the Tennessee Titans in bigs big rouble.

Bettis, nicknamed Bus, ran for two short-range touchdowns and the Steelers, helped by two grievous errors by Tennessee reserve defensive back Perry Phenix, ended a nearly four-year losing streak against the Titans with an unexpectedly one-sided 34-7 victory Monday night.

one-sided 34-7 victory Monday night. A Pittsburgh offense that was Bettis, Bettis and more Bettis until Monday showed off some surprising new wrinkles as the Steelers (5:1) stayed atop the AFC Central by beating the defending champion Tennessee (2-4) for the first time in eight games since 1997.

(2-4) for the mass and games since 1997.

The Steelers ran kicker Kris Brown, a former high school quarterback, for a first down on a fake field goal, and had wide receiver lines Ward – also a dormer QB – throw a pass into the end zone that fell just beyond Rurress.

and zone that fell just beyond Burress.
But their best trick was getting the long-missing Burresh, their 2000 first-round draft choice and a huge disappointment until now, heavily involved in an offense in which Kordell Stewart picked on the NFL's next-to-worst pass defense for only his second 200yard game in two years. Stewart was 13-of-22 for 232 yards, threw for a touchdown and ran for another.

Bettis didn't get to 100 yards—he got 62 yards as Tennesse—held him below 100 yards for the ninth straight time—but Burress did, making six carches for 151 yards in his first career 100-yard game.
He punctuated every catch by dropping to his knee and signaling a first down as the Steelers improved to 9-0 in Monday night home games under coach Bill Cowher.
Burress' best catch, a 43-

Cowher.
Burress' best catch, a 43yarder early in the third quarter that set up Bettis' second touchdown run, was a ball he stole out of Phenix's hands as the Titans safety appeared to make an interception, only to juggle the ball away.

It was the second big mistake by Phenix, who is on his second tour of duty with Tennessee this season after being cut by Carolina and Cleveland Phenix was playing only because Blaine Bishop has a left foot in jury-and, judging from Titans coach Jeff Fisher's look of disgust and angry words when Phenix gave the ball away, he might not be playing for them by next week. Phenix's biggest mistake, Phenix's biggest mistake, Phenix's came when he was called for a drive-extending personal foul penalty on a third-and-9 play in the second quarter Please see STELIER, Page D2

Directors have competing proposals

INDIANAPOLIS - An NCAA oversight panel endorsed a proposal to require football teams to win six games in an 11-game season or severe in a 12-game season to be eligible for possesson bowls.

The Football Study Oversight Committee's endorsement Monday, puts it at odds with the NCAA Division I Mainagement Council, which last week approved a measure that would permit a team with just six wins in a 12-game season to go to a bowl.

The NCAA's Board of Directors is scheduled to consider that proposal stare this week.

The Football Study Oversight Committee includes eight college presidents, a representative from the Bowl Championship Series and other college and conference representatives.

The panel said it did not concur with the proposal approved by the Management Council, Instead, it endorsed a recommendation from the NCAA's Division I Football Certification Subcommittee.

High school QB verbally commits to BYU

FROVO, Utah - California quaterback Ben Olson, considered by some recruiting analysts as the nation's top high school player, reportedly told BYU coach Gary Crowton last weekend that he plass to play for the Cougars.

Olson, a Mormon church member from Thousand Oaks, Califa, attended BYU's game at San Diego State on Saturday and gave his word to Crowton before kickoff.

'I felt in my heart this was the best place for me," said Olson, a 6-foot.5, 210-pound left-hander. "I have family there. It's my church school and from a football standpoint I really like the direction of the program."

INNSBRUCK, Austria - Super-G World Cup champion RegineCavagnoud was hospitalized in life-threatening condition Monday after colliding with a German coach while training on a glacier.

"The patient suffered serious head injuries a serious injury of the brain and several fractures in the face," Dr. Michael Blauthhead of the actident surgery ward of Innsbruck University Clinic, told the Austria Press Agency.

Other injuries included broken ribs and damage to the liver, Blauth said.

"The treet of all thirty accounts."

Rauth said.

"The total of all injuries amounts to an acute danger to the life," the doctor was quoted as saying. The coach, identified as Maricas Anwander, also was in life steaming condition, with head, facial and internal injuries, he said.

Cavagnoud underwent several hours of surgery before being transferred to the trauma intensive-care ward of Innsbruck's Culviersty Clinic Doctors said that details of the surgery and Cavagnoud's condition would be released today.

INDIANAPOLIS - Derrick McKey, a 14-year NBA veteran, was waived Monday by the Indiana Pacers.
"This was a very difficult decision to make because Derrick has been one of the best players we've had here and has been respondble for many of our successes," team president Donnie Walsh said. McKey played the past eight years with Indiana, averaging 8.5 points a game.

Denver's Davis readies for Raiders

DENVER (AP) – A road game against the Oakland Raiders sounds like a dream vacation for Denver Broncos running back ferrell Davis.

Davis, nearly six weeks removed from arthroscopic knee surgery, insisted Monday that he is pain free and said he plans to play next Monday when the Broncos visit the AFC West-leading Raiders.

"You can never think of a better stage than that," Davis said. "The Raiders are an excellent team right now. It's a nationally televised game. It's a game that we have to have. You look forward to big games like his." Davis, hampered by injuries since his 1998 MVP, season, ran for 101 yards in Denver's season-opener Sept. 10 but has missed six games since having arthroscopic surgery on his right knee Sept. 20.

Rangers beat Dallas 4-2

NEW YORK (AP) - Theo Fleury and Mark Messier earned milestones with second-period assists as the New York Rangers scored three goals within five minutes to beat the Dallas Stars 4-2 on Monday mish.

night.

Dallas dominated in the first Dallas dominated in the first period and much of the second until late goals by Mike York – his second of the game – Sandy McCarthy and Darren Van Impe put the Rangers up 4-2. Fleury got his 1,000th career point, when York followed up his rebounded shot to the iz 2-2 at 12-49.

Messier helped set up on McCarthy's go-ahead goal at 15:19, tying him with Paul Coffey for fourth place on the NHL's career assist list with 1,135.

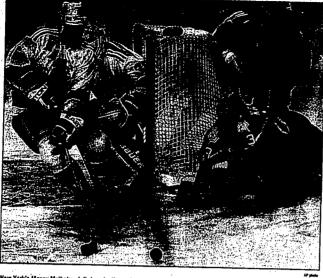

MHL's career assist list with 1,135.

Messier's assist was vintage as he fought off a defender behind the net and made a sharp-angle pass to the front of the net where McCarthy dumped it in for his first of the season.

Van Impe scored on a power play at 17.41 to pad the lead.

Brenden Morrow and Pierre Turgeon scored for the Stars.

The Stars, who outsnot the Rangers 29-13 in the first two periods, took a 2-1 lead on a power play at 3:15 of the second. Sergei Zubov fired a slap shot from the point and Mike Modano stuffed it through the legs of goalle Mike Richter - the second time the puck found is way between Richter's pads.

With the puck sliding slowly toward the goal line, Turgeon swept it into the open net.

The Rangers saved some face in the first period when they tied the game at 1 after an embarrassing; several-minute sequence in their zone.

The Stars, as they had all period, toyed with the Rangers' defense, keeping possession of the puck and passing with ease. Eric Lindros, whose 16 takeaways are second best in the league, finally chipped the puck toward the red line and Fleury, who crossed it to York, York, barely keeping control as he flew into Dallas' zone, spun completely around in front of goalie Ed Belfour and backhanded the puck in at 13:37.

The assist gave Fleury point No. 999.

LOS ANGELES (AP) – Now that it's time to get started, Los Angeles Lakers coach Phil Jackson is cutting Shaquille O'Neal some slack.

Admittedly not in the best shape of his career after surged on his left little toe two months ago, and even worse than usual from the foul line this month, O'Neal said recently he's entering the new season at about 80 percent efficiency.

"I think I play better (hurt) anyway," said O'Neal, who still figures to play at least 35 minutes tonight when the two-time defending NBA champions open the season against the revamped Portland Trail Blazers. "You have to suck it up more, think about what's at hand."

Jackson was on O'Neal pretty good last week about his free throw shooting, even giving the NBA's dominant big man a hard time at the Lakers' annual Tip-Off Luncheon.

The afternoon after calling O'Neal's foul shooting "scary," the coach told the audience: "He's been in a bad mood ever since that toe operation. But first of all, people would like to know about your health. And, finally, Laker fans would like to know could you relieve some of the anxiety from us by (making) your free throws."

O'Neal made 18 of 51 free throws (35.3 percent) in the exhibition season.

Jackson has since backed off, and said over the weekend he's feeling much better about ('O'Neal's present condition." "I was worried," Jackson said. "Going in this week, I thought he was suffering the pangs and the muscle aches that you get from not being in great shape."

Over the summer, O'Neal was furious about the new MBA rules that allow zone defenses. Now, he has a different take.

The NBA might resemble college basketball more than ever with sone defenses being allowed for the first time. But that doesn't mean players won't be able to display their individual talents or that coaches won't find ways to manipulate the most drastic rules changes in years.

"I just think with Michael (Jordan) coming back, the new rules hopefully will help our game and these young kids like Allen Iverson, and (Tracy) McGrady and Vince (Carter), and (Antonio) McDyess and (Kevin) Garnet, Tim Duncan," Philadelphia 76ers Coach Larry Frown said.

Besides letting teams play any defense, the most noticeable differences will be a defensive three-second rule thay prohibits defenders from staying in the lane for more than three seconds, and the eight-second rule, which has shaved two seconds off the amount of time teams have to cross midcour.

The new rules were put in place to try to create more offensive fluidity, which had gotten lost over the past few years, NBA Commissioner David Stem said.

Players such as Iverson, who is the main offensive threat for the Philadelphia 76ers, could routinely see box-and-one zones. Los Angeles Lakers center Shaquille O'Neal is bound to see more double-teams as opponents try to deny him the ball. Jordan also will be double- and triple-teamed, which would be nothing new.

There are so many subplots to keep the story suspenseful. How will Jordan look? What new moves will he unwell? How will the famously demanding superstar interact with his young teammates? Will he carry the Wizards into the playoffs? Will he get hurt and sit on the bench? And how will he do one-on-one against the cream of the crop?

"I am not saying that I can take Kobe or Tracy (McGrady). Reporters are the only ones saying that," Jordan said. "I'm pretty sure they are sitting back welcoming the challenge. Guess what? I'm sitting back welcoming the challenge, too. Everyone was motivated to play against me when I left and that hasn't changed."

Jordan is also tired of the crititism that he's making a mistake, that he's solling the legacy of his titles in Chicago.

Jordan suys he decided to return to the MBA for one simple reason: He loves the game.
