Governor hears dairy concerns

Kempthorne tours Filer dairy, pledges help on odor

By Sandy Miller and Julie Pence Times-News writers

TWIN FALLS - Gov. Dirk Kempthorne took a look at some large Filer dairies Monday, and afterward he promised better safeguards for people who live nearby.

"I can't tell you this is a quick fix, but you won't have to go through another summer like you just did," he said.

Early Monday morning, Kempthorne, members of his staff, people from the state Department of Agriculture and County Commissioners Gary Grindstaff, Bill Brockman and Marvin Hempleman toured the area around Hank Haflinger's Desert Rose Farms dairy near Filer and Cedar Draw, where odor has been a problem.

After the tour, Kempthorne met with a citizens' committee, which includes people from all over Twin Falls County, for about an hour at the airport to hear their concerns about Haflinger's and other dairies. The governor gave them his word he would carry through with several initiatives to improve the quality of life in areas with dairies, said Mark Snider, the governor's press secretary.

Specifically, Kempthorne said: • The University of Idaho has hired an odor expert from North Carolina who will live in Magic Valley and be available at all

Organizers announce Twin Falls relay route

The Times-News • TWIN FALLS - The Olympic torch will blaze through the city on Jan. 26 in a route that covers both Blue Lakes Boulevard and downtown, local torch relay organizers announced Tuesday.

The heart of the Jan. 26 activities is the torch run involving 42 local people selected for the honor.

The procession will reach Twin Falls in the morning on Jan. 26. The relay begins just north of the Perrine Bridge. The procession will take a lunch break at about noon at the College of Southern Idaho.

The torch is scheduled to cross the Perrine Bridge at about 10 a.m., then follow a 10.4-mile route that includes downtown and the College of Southern Idaho before returning to the bridge at about 12:30 p.m.

With 10 days to go before the big day, the Twin Falls torch relay committee is putting the final touches on the community celebration in conjunction with the local leg of the nationwide torch run leading up to the 2002 Winter Olympics in Salt Lake City.

Here's a list of events in conjunction to date announced: • Citywide Jan. 25-26: Businesses throughout the city will showcase special displays and will stage

Idaho budget woes spark freeze on state construction

By Bob Fick Associated Press Writer

putting in a claim on April's $18.8 million tobacco settlement payment, the governor created a $121 million cushion that he believes will keep the state solvent through the worst possible circumstances this year.

"We still affirm and I still believe in our revenue projection," Kempthorne said. "But we have a contingency plan until we see evidence that the economy is turning around."

His decision was immediately supported by the chairmen of the House and Senate budget committees.

CSI Fine Arts Building plans will have to wait

By Julie Pence Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Good-naturedly feigning tears, College of Southern Idaho President Jerry Meyerhoffer took the news of a halt on an addition to the Fine Arts Building magnanimously.

He said he had been on the verge of opening bids for construction scheduled to begin in early spring. "But at the same time I understand why it's being done."

John Walker

WASHINGTON - John Walker Lindh, the 20-year-old Californian who fought with the Taliban in Afghanistan, was charged Tuesday with conspiracy to kill U.S. citizens. He will be tried in a civilian court and could face life in prison.

After weeks of deliberations, the Bush administration opted against a military trial or charges that would carry the death penalty.

Lindh, who converted to Islam at 16 and is alleged to have trained at an al-Qaida camp in Afghanistan, was charged in a criminal complaint filed in U.S. District Court in Alexandria, Va. He will be transferred from a U.S. military ship for trial in the United States.

Attorney General John Ashcroft said Lindh admitted in interviews with the FBI that he met Osama bin Laden and knew bin Laden had ordered the Sept. 11 attacks on the United States. "He chose to embrace fanatics, and his allegiance to those terrorists never faltered," said Ashcroft. "Terrorists did not compel John Walker Lindh to join them. John Walker Lindh chose terrorists."

Lindh learned in early June that bin Laden had sent people to the United States to carry out suicide operations, according to an FBI affidavit. The document described an odyssey that began with Walker's conversion to Islam in 1997, later training in Pakistan and Afghanistan and a decision last year to join the Taliban.

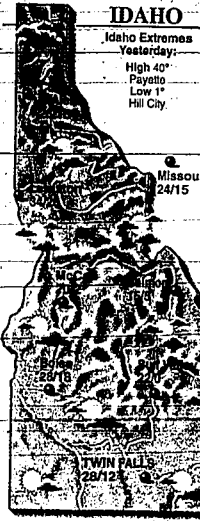

Friends have described Lindh as an intelligent young man who wore full-length robes to high school and went by the name "Suleyman" after his conversion to Islam. After his capture in December, his parents, Marilyn Walker and Frank Lindh, had asked the public to withhold judgment about their son.

James Brosnahan, a lawyer for the separated couple, could not be reached Tuesday.

A spokeswoman at his law office in San Francisco said he was "issuing no statements at this time."

The budget problems would persist into the following year but without the various caches of money. Kempthorne is tapping now to protect the tax cut.

On Tuesday, the governor put the major renovation of the century-old State Capitol in question by making that $22 million the first cash he will tap if more money is needed to make ends meet. The $5 million cleaning and repair of the building's exterior will be completed. But the dramatically more expensive interior restoration, a combination of the cash and $32 million in bonds, is on hold. If the cash is diverted, lawmakers could agree to issue another $22 million in bonds to complete the work.

Meyerhoeffer had been to Boise the day before to speak with legislators about funding, but he did not hear about Gov. Dirk Kempthorne's plans to put a temporary stay on any construction funded by the permanent building fund until after the governor made his announcement to the press.

The long-awaited addition was supposed to have been started last summer, but CSI officials had to work through some design problems and by the time they had done that, cold weather had set in.

Rep. Maxine Bell-R-Jerome, said postponing the construction was disappointing to her. He is a co-chair for the powerful Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee that ultimately approves all funding, she knows the budget constraints that Kempthorne is facing.

"I know he's doing the right thing," she said.

Senate Minority Leader Clint Stennett, D-Ketchum, was jubilant that the governor had backed away from remodeling the Capitol Building.

"This was the Democrats' stand all along," he said. "It was too big a package."

Exec warned Enron chairman of worries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even as Enron Corp. Chairman Kenneth Lay boasted to employees of the company's growth, one of them privately warned him in August of the reckless practices that eventually brought down the energy-trading giant.

"I am incredibly nervous that we will implode in a wave of accounting scandals," the employee told Lay in a letter. A "veil of secrecy" surrounded Enron's partnerships, which were keeping huge amounts of Enron debt off the company's books, she said.

es," wrote the employee, who was identified by her Houston attorney as Sherron Watkins, Enron's vice president of corporate development.

She said several senior Enron employees "consistently and constantly" questioned the corporation's accounting methods to senior Enron officials, including Jeffrey Skilling, the chief executive officer. Skilling resigned in August.

In a telephone interview

Monday night, Watkins' attorney, Philip Hilder, said Enron responded to the warning letter, but he would provide no details.

Enron's stock, which sold for $83 a year ago, was delisted by the New York Stock Exchange on Tuesday after it was announced that a Swiss investment bank would acquire Enron's energy-trading business without paying anything or assuming the failed company's debt. UBS Warburg, a division of Switzerland's UBS AG, will share a third of its profits with Enron and its creditors, under terms of the deal, which still needs federal approval.

Andersen fires lead Enron auditor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arthur Andersen LLP said Tuesday that auditors destroyed Enron Corp. documents after federal securities regulators requested information on the collapsed energy company. The lead auditor is being fired and disciplinary action is being taken against others.

Andersen said it also is replacing the management of its office in Houston, where Enron is based. Four Andersen partners in the Houston office "have been relieved of their management responsibilities," the accounting firm said.

It cited the deletion of thousands of e-mail messages and the "rushed disposal" of many paper documents.

Baggage law may lead to bigger delays

DENVER (AP) — Across the country, more airline passengers could find themselves standing in line or sitting on planes delayed at the gate when a federal law requiring the screening of all checked baggage for bombs takes effect Friday.

The law requires airlines to use any of four methods: hand searches, bomb detection machines, bomb-sniffing dogs or the matching of every piece of luggage to a passenger on board a plane.

Currently, less than 10 percent of the 1.4 billion bags flown in domestic airliners' holds annually are screened for explosives by such methods.

For security reasons, airline officials declined to comment on how they plan to comply on Friday. But airport officials around the country said most airlines apparently will use bag-matching.

The technique is checking to prevent someone from dressing a bag with a bomb and never boarding the aircraft. The approach already is used on international flights.

The precaution means that if a passenger fails to board a plane, or gets off just before takeoff, airline workers will have to climb into the hold to remove his or her luggage. That could create delays in pulling away from the gate.

The measure would also fall to stop a suicide bomber. In addition, plans call for requiring the bag match to be done when a passenger first boards a plane, and not done a second time for a connecting flight, said a government source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Suspected Taliban taunt Marines

KANDAHAR, Afghanistan (AP) — Sauntering past disguised as shepherds, hostile Afghan forces have been boldly testing Marine defenses at the allied air base in southern Afghanistan.

Concealed by scarves and robes, the men tote Kalashnikov rifles in plain view and count heads among the Marines who face them. That's when the Americans brace themselves inside their sandbagged foxholes. "It's when they start moving in and out that they're staging for an attack," Marine Cpl. Jason Gravem, 23, of San Diego, said Tuesday. "They act like sheep herders, but these sheep herders carry radios and call stuff in," said Marine Sgt. Ethan Ramsey, 22, of White Plains, Mo. "The weird part of it is, they can just appear in an instant," Ramsey said. "There's got to be tunnels."

U.S. Marines scan the northwest perimeter of the American military compound at Kandahar airport using thermal imagery equipment Tuesday. The U.S. military blew up an arms cache which they said indicated hostile forces were planning a new attack on the base.

Gunmen in the arid scrub north of the runway opened fire Thursday as a C-17 screamed into the air carrying 20 detainees bound for Guantanamo, Cuba.

A heavily guarded dirt-wall compound at the base holds more than 300 alleged Taliban and al-Qaida figures bound for a U.S. prison in Cuba for investigation.

U.S. Marine officials have said they believe the two events Thursday — the departure of the first detainees and the first fire on forces here — were unrelated. But the U.S. military is taking no chances.

Air Force, Army and Marine service members sent their second batch of detainees off Sunday, closely flanked by Cobra attack helicopters, while U.S. Humvees rigged with 50-caliber machine guns and TOW missiles sped across the runway below.

On Tuesday, debris rained down on the young Marines in their sandbag bunkers as explosives newly destroyed caches of arms newly found on the runway. It was evidence, Marines said, that hostile forces were massing for another try.

Experts used TNT and other explosives to collapse a mudwalled house and a network of tunnels recently found in the area. The house was only about 100 yards from the base perimeter, and a few dozen yards from one of the areas of fire of last week's attack.

Bulldozers leveled other mud ruins in the area on Tuesday. Foot patrols searched under cover of light-armored vehicles armed with machine guns.

The U.S. military on Monday had found mortar fuses and rocket-propelled grenades in the house — arms that weren't there on previous occasions, Marine spokesman Lt. James Jarvis said.

"They were coming in to use them for an attack of some sort," Jarvis said.

U.S. forces found the stash after seeing seven men carrying Kalashnikovs and rocket-propelled grenades across the parched dirt plain at sunset Monday.

Men had been crossing back and forth throughout the day, Marines guarding the perimeter said. The men moved slowly along the fence line, Gravem said. Some of the men even waved, Marines who saw them said.

Marine officials declined to reveal the rules of engagement for armed forces here. The officials say they don't want hostile forces to know just how far they can provoke the Americans without retaliation.

But rank-and-file Marines say the suspected Taliban out there already know.

"They know the Geneva Convention better than we do," Ramsey said. "They go back and forth, and we can't do anything."

Criscrossing ravines in the shrappnel-strewn, mined plains help intruders get in and out, Marines say. They have upped security since Thursday's shooting and may expand the base's perimeter.

Jarvis said he knew of no legitimate civilian use of the area; villagers who lived in mud homes nearby have long abandoned them. He said the U.S. military was inclined to treat anyone in the area as suspicious.

Men arrested on Sept. 12 face charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Two men taken off a train a day after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks because they were carrying box cutters and hair dye have been indicted on federal charges of credit card fraud.

The government alleges that Syed Gul Mohammed Shah and Mohammed Azmath were responsible for credit cards with an outstanding balance of approximately $414,000.

On Sept. 11, they left Newark, N.J., on a flight bound for San Antonio, Texas, but the flight terminated at St. Louis when airline flight attendants noticed the men then boarded a Texas-bound train on which they were later arrested.

Recently, investigators have said privately that they do not believe Shah, 36, and Azmath, 38, were involved in terrorism.

However, in this case and others, prosecutors decided to pursue any alleged crimes unearthed during the investigation, whether or not they were related to terrorism.

Investigators said men had two box cutters, hair dye, a knife and several thousand dollars in cash.

Shah's lawyer, Lawrence Feitell, has said it was not unusual for his client to carry a box cutter because he had recently lost his job at a newsstand where the blades are used to open boxes and bundles of newspapers. The lawyer said the dye was used to cover his client's graying hair.

U.S. forces pinpoint more hidden complexes, take prisoners

WASHINGTON (AP) — American troops captured seven new prisoners in the war in Afghanistan as they pressed ahead with the hunt for hiding al-Qaida terrorists and Taliban leaders, defense officials said Tuesday.

The prisoners were caught during one of several ongoing operations, one official said. He declined to give details, saying the efforts continue.

American-led forces have been searching caves and tunnels in various locations for scattered figures from the al-Qaida terrorist network and country's former Taliban leaders as well as for documents and other material that could provide information about their whereabouts or future plans.

It was not immediately clear if the seven captured since Monday were al-Qaida or Taliban.

Meanwhile, troops were planning to soon search several other Afghan locations where intelligence sources say al-Qaida terrorists have hidden complexes, defense sources said on condition of anonymity.

And Marines found one new hiding place Tuesday right outside the airport used by Marines for more than a month.

Warplanes for a week and a half have been hitting an extensive collection of buildings and caves in the eastern part of the country near the village of Zavar. And Pentagon spokesman Rear Adm. John Stufflebeem said Monday they'll "probably look for another complex."

The military already is aware of several specific areas it wants to begin with, a defense official said Tuesday on condition of anonymity. The Pentagon has intelligence indicating there may be Taliban or al-Qaida — or their weapons — hidden at what he called a handful of places.

He declined to name the places.

Airstrikes have flattened 60 buildings and sealed about 50 caves in the Zavar Killi area near the Pakistan border, Stufflebeem said Monday. U.S. warplanes have struck the former al-Qaida base almost daily since last Wednesday.

Dairy

subject to help Idaho find some solutions for odor problems, heavy soil concentrations of waste and the insects that accompany them.

He purposely did not cut any funding in his budget and even added $50,000 to enable the Department of Agriculture to continue making progress on the dairy odor issue. With some of that money, he expects the department to buy more air-quality monitoring equipment, Snider said.

He has instructed the Department of Environmental Quality to "work hand in glove" with the Department of Agriculture.

"This is a priority, and I'm affirming this in front of these folks," Snider quoted the governor as saying.

In July by legislative mandate, the state Department of Agriculture took steps to significantly reduce hydrogen sulfide odors from lagoons at Halliger's dairy. The dairy has several thousand cows, and because of a flawed flush system for disposing waste, it has become a lightning rod for dairy critics.

But whether the problem has been solved still remains a question. The department used monitoring equipment to measure how much hydrogen sulfide was coming off lagoons at certain times. The gas has a strong rotten-egg odor associated with it. The department's records indicated that the odor had abated somewhat. Yet residents for miles around still complained.

Rep. Doug Jones, R-Filer, helped arrange the governor's Monday visit.

"We drove all around the area and saw some small dairies and some large dairies," Jones said. "The governor got a first-hand look at the sheer magnitude and scale of the Halliger dairy."

But Snider clarified that Kemphorne "did not go down to Twin Falls to ID one dairy."

Snider said the "state" has already identified several problem dairies in Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties, and the purpose of the visit was to emphasize the governor's commitment for improving problems associated with those dairies.

Members of the citizens' committee said they were being invited to meet with Kemphorne since last summer. At the airport, they got their wish.

Dave Mead, a member of the committee, was the moderator.

"The meeting went well on both sides, and we think the governor learned some things first hand," Mead said.

Mead said the committee got a lot said in one hour.

"They say the job expands to fill the time allotted," Mead said. "If you've only got 60 minutes to do a job, you get it done in 60 minutes. If you're given two hours to do a job, it takes two hours."

Mead said the committee is not anti-dairy but that dairies should be good neighbors.

"We're for the dairies because they're good economically," Mead said. "But we're also for dairies cleaning up their pollution and not passing it on to their neighbors. We're for the dairies, but we want them to be good citizens."

Bill Chisholm, a member of the committee and the Idaho Rural Council, said he pointed out to Kemphorne that there are now 205,000 dairy cows in Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties.

"That's equivalent to a human population of 4.1 million in terms of fecal waste production," Chisholm said.

Chisholm said the governor seemed concerned that the three-county area had reached its resource capacity.

Chisholm said the committee got a chance to discuss one important issue that hasn't received a whole lot of attention — the possible health problems caused by large dairies.

"We made him aware of the concerns and the very real and serious potential of the human and animal health problems that go along with the heavy industrial concentration of animal production," Chisholm said. "We'd like the governor to get the health people to investigate this. It's the facet of this CAFO issue that hasn't seen the light of day, and it's the most critical issue. The flies and the odor are the smoke of a much more serious fire."

Chisholm said the group also pointed out how odor from dairies has affected the quality of people's lives.

The tour wasn't on the county commissioners' agenda, and media weren't notified of the trip. Brockman explained that the commissioners had only learned about the tour a day or two before.

"They called and said they were going to have a tour and would get back to us," Brockman said.

When asked why it wasn't sent out on an agenda, Brockman said, "I guess we didn't even think about it. We didn't set up the meeting."

Brockman said he thought the governor learned a lot from the tour.

"When you get out there and get your feet on the ground, you get a better understanding of the situation," Brockman said. "I think the governor is going to work with the Department of Ag and the residents of the valley for a better understanding."

Over 60 and Getting Fit

Quality of life may be your best motivation to stay active. Think about what you want to do as you age . . . travel, garden, learn something new, enjoy the outdoors, keep up with your grandchildren . . . and so much more.

Regular exercise is a vital part of healthy aging. It's not too late to start.

DEAR ABBY
Abigail VanBuren

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend, "Steve," whose wife, "Marie," died five years ago. Marie was one of the most popular and beloved ladies in town. Their child was left without a mother. Steve remarried about two years ago. Marie's mother continued to stay in close contact with Steve and her grandchild.

Recently, Steve approached me at a social function. He was beaming. He told me he was buying a new house. He said his former mother-in-law had told him in plain English to put away Marie's pictures and buy his wife a new home.

Apparently the mother-in-law is a lot like her daughter - charming, thoughtful and considerate.

-STEVE'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Marie's mother is also sensitive and practical. Orchids to her. I usually receive letters from readers complaining about their mothers-in-law. It refreshing to hear the other side of the story. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law, who is now 89, has lived with our father for more than 30 years. Her name is Collette, but everyone calls her Goldie. I don't know when people began calling her that, but I do know she is worth her weight in gold. Goldie has devoted a large portion of her life to helping my family. We have had to hire a baby sitter only twice for our three children the entire time they were growing up. Goldie cooked the majority of our evening meals. She helped to wash and iron to the point where my wife had to start hiding our clothes to stop her mother from working so hard. She watched our dogs during the day, and they preferred her company over ours.

Whenever my family needed Goldie, she was there. She is very considerate. If she feels we need our privacy, she goes to her living quarters. We often beg her to stay, but she won't change her mind. We learned early on not to impose our wills on Goldie. I feel sorry for people who don't have a Goldie in their lives. When she is no longer with us, I will forever feel the loss.

-TOM, HER SON-IN-LAW

DEAR TOM: What a glowing tribute for a son-in-law to offer. You're a lucky family to have each other. It would be wonderful if more families could enjoy the love and cooperation between generations that yours does. Perhaps the secret lies in mutual respect for each other's boundaries.

DEAR ABBY: Your wisdom is remarkable. You told "Confused in West Sacramento" that "Happiness is where you find it; age is a state of mind." I married my lovely Blanche on Sept. 15, 1951. We just celebrated our 50th anniversary at Fancy Feet Ballroom in Oregon City. We danced an exhibition ballroom cha-cha and enjoyed dancing with our many friends. Our son's band furnished two terrific hours of music. Blanche is now 74; I am 96. (I have a daughter one year older than Blanche.) Love, good nutrition, dancing, gardening and mutual intellectual interests keep us active and happy. Our first date was at the Palladium in Hollywood, Calif. We have danced together with joy ever since!

-HARRY F. BILLINGS, SALEM, ORE.

DEAR HARRY: Your letter proves that dancing not only lifts the spirits, but also provides healthy cardiovascular exercise that can add quality to a long life. The same can be said of love - which you also have in abundance. May it ever be thus. (I have a hunch your wife loves to dance to "I'm Just Wild About Harry.")

Jacques was the jack in jackknife

Q. Where'd we get the "jack" in "jackknife"?

REVISITED

Q. In which of the lower 48 states is the largest wilderness area?

A. New York. With its six million acres in Adirondack Park. Item No. 9833C in our Love and War man's file is this observation by writer Adela Rogers St. John: "I learned that there is little difference in husbands. You might as well keep the first."

Leonardo da Vinci envisioned a wind-powered land vehicle. A Dutch boatbuilder thought Leonardo had something there, so constructed such, modeling it after a canal sail vessel, but with wheels and axles. The record shows it carried 28 people and reached downhill speeds up to 20 mph. There's no record of any uphill speeds.

Most people in the United States have never seen a bluebird. Nor will they ever. To investigate his power, the original Popeye cartoon character ate garlic, not spinach. Glad he switched.

Q. Do whales hold their breath when they mate?

A. The underwater male, yes, but not the surfaced female. The letter "e" is used five times more than any other letter in English.

Q. What kills the most mountain goats?

A. Avalanches. Q. What's the typical weight of a full-grown Mexican Chihuahua?

A. Maybe three pounds. It's possible, though, to round out an order for 100 pounds of Chihuahuas with 100 Chihuahuas.

'Lynxgate' risks public faith in federal agencies

Are the federal stewards of public lands cooking the books to justify their policies of limiting the public's use of those lands?

There are troubling indications that may be the case. A group of federal and state wildlife biologists in Washington state recently admitted faking evidence that two national parks were inhabited by a threatened wildlife species; the Canada lynx.

Had that evidence gone unchallenged, it could have resulted in the Forest Service barring the public from or at least sharply limiting access to those lands.

Three Forest Service employees, two U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service officials and two employees of the Washington State Department of Fish and Game faked samples of lynx hair on "trapping posts" used to detect the presence of lynx in the Gifford Pinchot National Forest in southwestern Washington and the Wenatchee National Forest in the north-central part of the state.

Subsequent DNA tests showed that the hair actually came from a lynx living in a nature preserve and another escaped pet lynx that had been captured by federal employees.

At the time, the Forest Service was studying whether the lynx was a threatened species.

If it were, the agency might have reduced logging and tree-thinning and limited public recreation activities on 3.5 million acres of national forest land.

Almost certainly, that would have cost the jobs of loggers, mill workers, truck drivers, guides, outfitters and other folk who depend upon tourism in the Cascades.

It's long been troubling that guardians of public lands are also gatekeepers of the science that drives public policy toward those lands. That's especially true under the Endangered Species Act, where the say-so of one or two federal agencies is sufficient to put millions of acres of the public's lands off-limits to the public.

Infamously, the science on which some of those decisions have been based in the past — the spotted-owl debate comes to mind — turned out to be shoddy.

But the lynx case is more troubling. Although the wildlife biologists involved deny any intention of getting public lands improperly locked up, it's hard to escape that conclusion.

It's also hard to help wondering how many other endangered-species decisions were driven at best by wishful thinking on the part of federal biologists and land managers, or at worst by outright fraud.

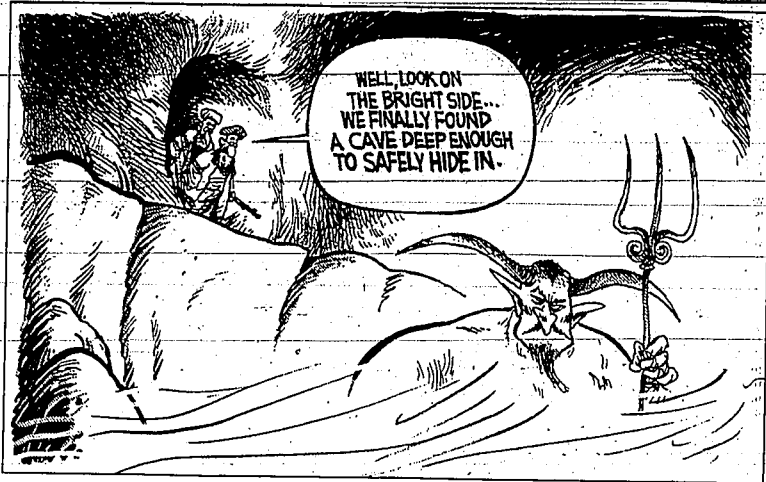

Critics of the ESA have long argued that the Fish and Wildlife Service, the U.S. Marine Fisheries Service, the Forest Service and the BLM shouldn't get to be prosecutor, judge, jury and executioner of federal policy, especially when that policy affects the livelihood of Americans in the private sector.

But "Lynxgate" takes that argument beyond the issue of fairness. Now the credibility of the agencies involved is seriously in question.

It's time for new Bush appointees to get control of federal public lands management. Under the Clintonistas, the tail wagged the lynx.

That's a bad bargain for the American people, who after all own those lands.

It's time for Bush appointees to get control of federal public lands management. Under the Clintonistas, the tail wagged the lynx.

History foretold Argentina's money woes

Were should all cry for Argentina — and not simply because it defaulted on its government debt or because it faces a host of economic problems: Unemployment exceeds 18 percent, the banking system is on the brink of collapse and things will get worse before they get better.

What makes the crisis truly disheartening is that it is merely the latest in a series stretching back over a century. Something in Argentina's history and culture seems to prevent strong and stable economic growth.

By all rights, Argentina should be one of the world's richest countries. Indeed, it once was. In 1913, average income per person (expressed in "constant" 1990 dollars) was about $3,797 and was higher than in France $3,485 and Germany ($3,648), according to the estimates by Angus Maddison of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development. This earlier prosperity summed heavily from vast investments made mainly by the British in railroads and ports to exploit Argentina's rich agricultural lands. With 37 million people, Argentina's population is 4 percent of India's, but its land area is 85 percent of India's. On the numbers, Argentina should be as rich as, say, Canada or Australia.

But it isn't. Its present income per person ($9,219 in 1998, again in 1990 "constant" dollars) is roughly half of Canada's ($20,559), Australia's ($20,330), France's ($19,558) and Germany's ($17,739). In the past 80 years, Argentina has achieved faltering economic growth with frequent episodes of hyperinflation.

The latest default is a cautionary tale for "globalization." In many respects, Argentina did the "correct" things in the 1990s: It eliminated hyperinflation (more than 1,000 percent in 1990) by creating a currency board. Under the currency board, the government couldn't issue new pesos unless it had dollars to back them on a one-to-one basis. Likewise, Argentina opened itself to foreign capital and received huge inflows of direct investment — almost $80 billion from 1991 to 2000.

But the resulting economic gains were ultimately offset by long-standing weaknesses: chronic government deficits, tax evasion; a weak entrepreneurial class; and uncompetitive wages.

"Mistrust is rife in Argentina," says Lawrence Harrison of Tufts University, co-editor of "Culture Matters: How Values Shape Human Progress." It is hard to cooperate for the common good. Tax cheating is widespread. Labor unions promote rigid work rules."

"The key thing that did (Argentina) in was that the government at the federal level and the provincial levels continued to spend more than they took in," says

Michael Mussa, the IMF's former chief economist. Politicians shrewdly benefited on favored constituencies. Relying on government borrowing to power the economy couldn't continue forever.

Argentina turned to the IMF for loans, but — to restore confidence — the IMF wanted the budget deficit cut through higher taxes or lower spending. The effect was to worsen the slump. But the critical failure was what wasn't there: a vibrant business sector that can create new companies and jobs.

Argentina's immediate prospects are dismal. Without the currency board, there's fear of rapid inflation. To frustrate bank runs — people want to get their dollar deposits out — the government has imposed a partial ban on withdrawals. Confidence has collapsed.

For Argentina, globalization has been no panacea, because greater trade and international investment don't automatically alter local attitudes and politics. Argentina's predicament applies, in some ways, to much of Latin America and may explain why the gains from rising globalization have been fairly modest.

Perhaps Argentina's crisis will harm only Argentina. But because globalization promised so much more than it has delivered, the crisis may foretell a wider political and psychological fatigue.

"I travel a lot to these 'emerging market' countries," says economist Arturo Forzescanski. "Everywhere people are disenchanted."

Parole commission acts unfairly

I am writing in regard to the Idaho State Parole Commission. I'm a inmate presently housed in the Mini-Cassia Criminal Justice Center, which is fine. I have no complaints with that. My main concern is how the Parole Commission bases its decision on who does and doesn't get parole. I've been incarcerated since 1991 because I made some bad choices in life. Before this wrong choice of mine I've only had speeding tickets and never been on probation or parole, but because of my bad choice in life, the judge gave me a sentence of 5 to 15, which, don't get me wrong, I deserve, but like anyone else, don't I deserve a chance to show society I've changed?

I've done a lot of time and seen a lot of people come and go. I've done everything the commission has asked of me and then some, and they still refuse to give me a chance on parole. I've seen them give guys chance after chance on parole that can't even manage to keep out of trouble in the system but yet they get out on parole. Yet, someone like me that's tried to do everything in their power to change, they won't give a chance to. They told me to top out my time even though I had done everything that was expected of me. I've written and asked about a year ago what I could do that might get them to consider their last decision but never got a response. If I don't know what they want of me, how am I supposed to work on it? I have family support that is willing to help me as much as possible, more than some of these guys have that I've met, but that don't seem to be good enough either.

Maybe if the Parole Commission would start giving everyone a fair chance at parole, then the system here in the state of Idaho wouldn't be so full and the taxpayers' money would be able to be spent on kids' education instead of more unneeded human warehouses which they call "correctional facilities."

The Parole Commission says if you stay out of trouble in the system, then you're playing the system. So if you cause trouble, then you must be trying to change, but I would think they would see it the other way.

They have a new system which you see a pre-board before you see the actual board now and the pre-board recommend I get a date but the board told me to do all my time! Now what's the sense of having a pre-board if the board isn't going to go by its recommendations? I close with that thought.

County jail needs improvement

I am responding to Delea Miller who feels the current Falls County Jail is "adequate." I myself have never been in jail but know people who have. Yes, I believe people should abide by the law, but sometimes people make mistakes. Maybe you never have, though. No matter what, people shouldn't be treated like animals.

Now here's the real breakdown of inmates in the Twin Falls County Jail: Inmates pay for all medication, doctor and hospital visits, food — its served cold, burnt, raw or rotten, portions that wouldn't fill up a small child's exercise equipment, yeah, right. It's not adequate and half the time they don't get recreation time. Living expenses — $500 inmates have to pay, plus buy their own shampoo, soap, deodorant and other personal things. If on work release, there's other charges, plus they still support their families. So inmates don't have to say they pay approximately $600 to $800 per month.

I guess in your eyes it's OK to make people wear dirty underclothes, go without personal hygiene products, get made fun of or served bad or cold food.

Use common sense with security

This is the first time I have written, though I've been tempted a time or two; but this time, I must speak my piece.

After reading where a mother of a young man killed in the Pentagon attack say, "Why didn't they have more security?" and then to read where Mr. Huntley is bringing a suit against Gov. Kempthorne for "not elevating plus they still support their families." If the attack on the Pentagon happened here, people would be saying, "Why didn't we have more security?"

There are times when the letter of the law has to be obeyed; there are also times when a little common sense has to be applied.

I'm sorry, Mr. Huntley, but you certainly do not have my admiration for what you are doing. I'm sorry, too, but never will I vote for you.

P&Z abandons its responsibilities

Hey, folks! Great news! Want to work at home and have a high-volume business with lots of people coming and going? Go for it! The Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission just kicked the barn door wide open and gave you the equivalent of a license to steal.

How far can you stretch the definition of "home occupation?" Oh, a country mile, at least! Want to have an entertainment troupe with a cast of 85 and rehearse in your basement, thereby avoiding rent payments? No problem! Need a permit? Don't bother.

Remember, forgiveness is always easier than permission.

Three-fourths of your curmudgeonly neighbors documented as being opposed to your enterprise, not wanting their street to look like a low-rider convention on weekday afternoons? Don't worry, the commissioners will protect you, and throw them a bone by trading your cavalcade for a couple of buses.

And Realtors: Remember not to show any houses in the neighborhood between 3:30 and 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Your customers might question the unmarked transportation system with its outpouring and in-pouring of lovely, laughing, playful young kids every hour on the half hour.

And, whatever you do, be sure to hide the subdivision Covenants, Conditions and Restrictions. You wouldn't want to be sued for misrepresentation.

Tire slasher will get payback

To the person or persons that slashed the tires on my car:

Are you proud of yourselves? What did you hope to gain by doing such a thing? You know who you are. You'll be happy to know I have filed a report with the police. I don't know why because you didn't leave any fingerprints — just a shoe print on the side of my car. Your note didn't make any sense either. Those tires were new in June. Does it make you feel better to know that? In my book, only a cruel, cold-hearted person would slash all four tires.

There are several cars in town like mine. Did you confuse my car with someone else that you have a grudge against? Whoever you are, I'm sure you don't know me. I'm not a vindictive person, but they say what goes around comes around. Someday you may get yours.

'Try to remember' a gentler time

The Fantasticks" has closed, and with it goes the longest continuing chapter of wholesome family entertainment in modern times. For this little romantic show set theatrical longevity records daily, ended its world record run on Sunday, just over halfway through its 42nd year, with performance number 17,162.

As most of the theater-going world knows, "The Fantasticks" is a romantic musical play about a boy and the girl next door who yearn for the dangerous attractions of the world outside, but come to seek fulfillment in the love of each other and the warmth and safety of home.

As one who sought the comfort of "The Fantasticks," often throughout its off-Broadway run, and was the show's spokesman for its last six anniversaries, I'm reassured that the public continues to endorse a love story that is both violence-free and profanity-free.

During its 42-year run, many of us watched the pendulum of popular culture swing far from the homeliness of the 1950s and early 1960s. Then we had a safe, grandfatherly type in the White House (Dwight Eisenhower), and families on television that were funny but basically OK. Today much of popular culture seems permeated with violence, betrayal, and social paranoia.

STEPHEN M. AGINS

Because we live in a free society, I suppose there can be books and films, rap, videos and even the electronic media that attempt to glamorize violence, promiscuity, deception and other discordant themes. But at the end of the day, I hope they are doomed to self-destruction. I can think of no enduring popular work in which hurfulness is viewed as good. It is only an unfortunate truth that deserves a hearing in a society that supports free speech.

Still, we have reason to be optimistic. Three generations of families have come to know Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt's immortal songs from "The Fantasticks" including "Try to Remember" and "Soon It's Gonna Rain." More than 10,000 productions of this romantic love story have been presented in more than 2,000 U.S. cities and towns. And around the world, more than 500 productions were mounted in 67 countries as politically and geographically far-flung as Japan, Iran, Israel and Zimbabwe.

"These scattered productions will continue, and with luck there will one day be a new

"Fantasticks" in New York City. The universal appeal of "The Fantasticks" from pre-Woodstock to post-dot-com reassures me and I hope you, that our society is OK. It reminds us that people remain fundamentally sound; that they still respond to family ties, and that at no time does the current unsettled spirit in popular culture threaten to drive out the common decencies that exist within us.

Give voters some options on term limits controversy

The Legislature is in a terrible dilemma over the term limits issue. On the one hand, many believe that it is truly a mistake to force office holders out because of strict statutory requirements, saying that the "ballot box" is the only term limits we need. On the other hand, many, including legislators, know that the power of incumbency is so great that it takes a truly phenomenal circumstance to unseat a sitting office holder.

The dilemma arises in that any attempt to repeal the citizen-imposed term limits will be seen as self-serving by the voting public.

As in any conflict of interest problem, the tension is between serving the needs of the public or serving the personal desire of the legislators to keep their seats. If the legislative leadership can guide the discussion along these lines and clear out all the rhetoric and phony arguments, perhaps the voting public will accept the final decision of the Legislature as a valid one made in good faith either pro or con.

The first one to dump is the hackneyed argument that the poor, duped public, overwhelmed by the out-of-state dollars poured into the state, does not really understand the law, thinking it applies to federal offices. Well, as they often say in the Legislature, "that dog don't hunt." Everyone knows federal term limits must be decided in Washington, D.C., by Congress. So, let's drop that one.

Next, it is asserted that the voters were indoctrinated by out-of-state money. Interestingly enough, that was the reason why, in 1998 leadership — the present speaker was then the majority leader in the House — presented an advisory vote to re-educate the unwashed masses to the truth about how they were tricked. Lobby groups poured Idaho money into the re-education process. The public, much to the dismay of those in power, voted to keep term limits.

The most recent argument is that there is already sufficient turnover in the Legislature. Indeed, there is a healthy turnover on the lower levels. However, on the leadership levels, where the absolute power lies, there is very little turnover. Next, they say the bureaucrats or the lobbyists will control the agenda, implying that the naive freshmen lawmakers will be drawn in by their wiles. This is not the case. Freshmen are fresh from the citizenry and generally have a healthy distrust and suspicion of the lobbyists and bureaucrats. The longer lawmakers stay in office, the more influenced they are by the lobbyists.

READER COMMENT
Mark D. Stubbs

Let the alternatives see the light of day. Consider options like letting the voters repeal term limits separately based on the various offices — such as, for example, local offices on one advisory vote, legislators on another, and statewide office holders on a third. If the arguments presented into the legislature are not just specious, rhetorical ones, then the Legislature should have nothing to fear.

Either keep the term limits law the public has repeatedly voted for, or allow a vote on some reasonable alternatives. Ironically, if sitting legislators repeal term limits, they have in my opinion, signaled the end of their own terms in office.

Commissioners will look at 'matrix'

They still plan to adopt their own ordinances on animal feeding, at least temporarily

By Sandy Miller, Times-News writer. TWIN FALLS - No matter what happens at tonight's public hearings on ordinances regulating animal feeding operations, people will have to wait a while longer before a permanent ordinance is on the books.

County commissioners have said they're willing to put their six draft ordinances aside to take a serious look at a "matrix" crafted by people on both sides of the dairy issue. But the commission is proceeding with its own ordinance proposals until the matrix is presented in ordinance form and undergoes legal review.

Kempthorne pledges help on odor problem - A1

Some modifications," Commissioner Marvin Kempthorne said. "We'll put that into effect for up to 90 days while we wait to see if the matrix is satisfactory. If not, what we've written will become the law." The matrix came about during meetings the last two months of a group that included dairy operators, dairy neighbors and environmental activists.

Tonight's hearings

- Twin Falls County commissioners will hold public hearings on six draft ordinances on animal feeding operations from 5:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. today inside the Shields Building at the College of Southern Idaho. County Commissioner Marvin Kempthorne said people who wish to speak can sign up at the hearing and will be limited to three to five minutes, depending on the number of people who want to speak.

size and water usage and whether they're new or expanding. The matrix is also more specific about setbacks than the county's six draft ordinances. Edmunds said the group was putting the finishing touches on the matrix Tuesday and plans to present it in ordinance form at tonight's hearings.

Get there early

Security measures at T.F. airport are strict on time

By Mark Heinz, Times-News writer. TWIN FALLS - At Twin Falls' airport, trying to shave minutes could end up costing hours. Because of new federal security measures, all passengers and bags must be checked in at least a half-hour before departure, said Kathryn Syme, the manager of the SkyWest Airlines center at Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport.

SkyWest Airlines employee Carla Leo Reinko tags bags going to Phoenix at Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport Tuesday. The "bag match" system - which does not allow unattended baggage on a plane - is the system the Twin Falls airport chose to meet new security regulations that must be in place by Friday.

Regional does not yet have the resources or apparent need for the more expensive or high-tech options, bag matching made the most sense. It's also already been in place at the airport for quite some time, Carberry said.

the busiest times, he said. Despite the security changes - which came with the formation of the national Transportation Security Administration in response to the Sept. 11 attacks - getting to the terminal should be easier than it has been in a while, Carberry said.

the ban at Magic Valley Regional because the airport is small. Private vehicles are again allowed to come up the drive next to the terminal so passengers can be dropped off or picked up at the main doors, he said.

Lawmakers back ranchers' right to shoot predators

The Associated Press. BOISE - Two lawmakers say the Legislature should clarify the right of people to defend their property against predators. Republican Sen. Robbi King-Barrutia of Glenns Ferry and Rep. Mike Moyle of Star want to clear up the law so that a person can kill predators in defense of their lives or property after taking "reasonable and necessary" measures short of deadly force.

elect Ted Hoffman of Mountain Home and Fish and Game Director Rod Sando. Hoffman said the association thought Fish and Game was using Corbus to set a new standard on cougar management that would endanger livestock and people. He asked Fish and Game to drop the charges.

Aaron Bazzoli ultimately dropped the charges, saying he doubted Corbus would be convicted. The friction arises from a law that allows ranchers to kill black bears and cougars if they molest livestock. The cattle association wants Fish and Game to educate its officers on that issue.

Gooding P&Z considers ordinance

By Almee New, Times-News correspondent. GOODING - Residents still have concerns about a proposed confined animal feeding operation ordinance in Gooding County, while a dairy representative expressed satisfaction with the ordinance at a Monday public hearing.

"I believe I understand your reasons for such action, however, are you enforcing water law on all property in the county," Eilers wrote. "The dairy association believes that everyone in Idaho should comply with Idaho's water law, however this is not a county responsibility."

Kempthorne, speaker agree to disagree on term limits

By Julie Pence, Times-News writer. BOISE - Gov. Dirk Kempthorne and House Speaker Bruce Newcomb, R-Boise, have agreed to disagree about term limits. The governor came forth on Tuesday with his response to House Republicans' bill to repeal all term limits. He reaffirmed his position of two years ago, declaring he would veto a proposal to repeal all term limits for Idaho's elected officials.

Buhl council approves rezoning

By Mary Lou Potts Times-News correspondent

BUHL — The City Council approved Monday the rezoning of 20 acres of land that were recently annexed into city limits.

The property is owned by Salt Lake City resident Earl Gray. The council rezoned the property from R-1 to R-4, enabling Gray to build houses four to an acre instead of one to an acre.

The council also voted unanimously to modify its zoning codes as recommended by the planning and zoning commission.

The changes reduced the minimum lot sizes required to build a residential unit. The minimum lot size in R-4 zones — which limit four single-family dwellings to an acre — changed from 9,000 to 8,000 square feet. The minimum lot size for R-6 zones — which limit six single-family dwellings to an acre — changed from 6,200 to 6,000 square feet.

Another change allowed multi-family dwellings in R-4 and R-6 zones. Formerly, only duplexes were allowed in R-6 zones.

Before moving on to new business, city clerk Sharon Sheets swore-in office Mayor Barbara Gietzen, Councilman-elect Wilson and Councilman-elect Regie Finney.

Gietzen presented outgoing Councilman Irving Tverdy with a plaque for his services and dedication.

Chuck Geska was re-elected council president.

In other business:

• After much discussion, the council voted 3-1 in favor of leaving the left turn lane at the Main and Broadway intersection. Left-hand turns are now accessible both ways and some parallel parking will remain on Main Street at designated areas.

• The city has purchased a new ambulance for $91,650, using $50,000 from a rural development grant as a down payment and a five-year loan of $41,650 from Wells Fargo Bank at 4.6 percent.

The current ambulance will be transferred to "station two" when the facility is built, said fire chief Mark Grimes.

• The city has 176-and-one-half water shares that are leased every year. The shares were distributed at $31.50 — per share.

• Steve Kaatz, chamber of commerce president-elect, asked for the city's share of funds of $5,000 from the 2001 program nearly depleted after the chamber's account.

Gietzen said the funds were budgeted and the chamber will be receiving its money.

The council approved Kaatz's proposal that the Association of Idaho Cities visit Buhl and perform an assessment of the community. The AIC does this at no cost except for providing lunches for the evaluation crew.

• Tracy Ahrens of J-U-B Engineers gave an update of well-site status. The well is sited and has to undergo a 21-day cure time. The cold weather prolongs that time, but if no leaks appear the well should be ready to pump in four to five weeks.

• The wellhead protection plan is completed, approved by the council and is ready for the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality for certification. With certification, drinking water is protected at the well sites.

Times-News correspondent Mary Lou Potts can be reached in Buhl at 543-9854.

Richfield council will research library options

By Sandra L. Calkins Times-News correspondent

RICHFIELD — The City Council decided Monday to research the possibility of writing a grant that would help build a new library.

Recent leaks in the roof due to the weight of snow led the City Council to discuss how to solve the problem.

Local contractor Jim Wood installed a temporary fix. Two bids that came in for future work in the spring involve either a new roof or completely removing the second story of the building and installing a gable roof, Wood said.

City Council members were concerned with major expenditures because of the age and condition of the building. After some discussion, the council decided to research the feasibility of writing a grant to build a new library.

City Council members were concerned with major expenditures because of the age and condition of the building. After some discussion, the council decided to research the feasibility of writing a grant to build a new library.

• Ron Holland was sworn in for a new term as city councilman. Tim Wilson was not present to be sworn in so he will be sworn in next month. Mayor Charles Buttcane appointed Zions National Bank as the city depository along with the Idaho State Treasury. He appointed the Lincoln County Journal as the official city newspaper.

• The council re-elected Holland as City Council president. Buttcane appointed members to be in charge of the following city positions: Frank Johnson, street and alleys; Jeff Norman, parks; Holland, culinary water; Wilson, sewer; and Buttcane, irrigation and general supervision.

• Richfield's three city employees were rehired with a 7 percent salary increase.

• Lincoln County Sheriff's Deputy Josh Eggleston presented a report on deputy time spent in Richfield. It showed that 133.3 hours were spent during November and 169.62 hours were spent during December.

Eggleston reported there was still a dog problem in the city and that the stop sign was down on the corner of Main and Elmore, facing east.

The deputy will also look into ticket fines being returned from Lincoln County to Richfield. The fines would help pay for the part of the deputy's salary that the federal COFS grant does not cover.

Employees Jack Riley and Shawn West were granted permission and funds to take a wastewater class in February to keep up their certification.

• Grant Stevens was concerned about abandoned rabbits that were destroying the park on his tract. The local owners of the rabbits will be notified and the rabbits will be trapped and given away.

ELBA

Lewis Alan Hatch, 55, of Twin Falls, died Monday, January 14, 2002, at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

He was born July 6, 1946, in Soda Springs, Idaho, the son of Loren "Larry" and Louise Hatch. He was married and educated in Hagerman and Twin Falls and graduated from Twin Falls High School. Lewis enlisted in the U.S. Army and served in Germany and Vietnam. After his honorable discharge he returned and attended CSI for two years. He was married to Margaret "Maggie" Paczko in 1994 in Twin Falls. He worked for many years at Lamb Weston, and for the past nine months had worked at Franklin Building Supply in Jerome. He was a member of the LDS Church. He enjoyed hunting and fishing whenever he could.

In addition to his wife of Twin Falls he is survived by 2 children: Darcy Hatch of Texas, Slade Lewis Hatch of Twin Falls, 1 step-daughter, Stacy Vaux of Texas, his parents, Larry and Louise Hatch of Murray, Utah, 1 brother, Barrett C. Hatch of West Valley, Utah, 2 sisters: Dianne (Mac) Mayer of Twin Falls, and Phyllis Louise Hatch of West Jordan, Utah; by his dog and faithful companion, "Baby Girl."

Funeral services for Lewis Alan Hatch will be conducted at 10 a.m. Saturday, January 19, 2002, at the Park Ave. LDS Chapel. Interment will be held at 3:30 p.m. in Central Cemetery near Soda Springs, Idaho. Friends may call at White Mortuary Friday from 4-9 p.m. and at the church from 8-45-9:45 a.m. on Saturday.

Robert Kent "Unc" Rigdon, 63, of Twin Falls, died Monday, January 14, 2002, at his sister's home; survived by his wife, Norma.

He was born May 11, 1938, in Twin Falls, the son of George Alma and Thelma Amelia Rigdon. He was married and attended school at Twin Falls, served in the U.S. Army from 1960-1966. He worked at Barton's 93 for many years; and worked with his nephew Tim for 18 years until his retirement in 2000. He enjoyed hiking, spending quality time with his family, and all animals. He always carried a dog bone in his pocket for all the family's pets.

He is survived by his sister; Georgene (Murney "Bud") Masson of Twin Falls; nieces: Vickie (Phil) Boyard, Pennie (Elmar) Freeman; nephews: Tim (Dabbie) Hine, Pete (Melanie) Hine; 5 great-nephews, 3 great-nieces, 1 great-grandnephew, and 2 great-grandnieces.

Memorial graveside services will be conducted at 1 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 24, 2002, at Sunset Memorial Park Services under the direction of White Mortuary.

ELBA

Lovina C. Tuttle, 84-year-old Elba resident, died Monday, January 14, 2002, at her home.

She was the daughter of William and Eliza Louva Babbitt Chandler, born June 4, 1917, at Elba, Idaho, in the same house she has lived for most of her life.

She attended school in Elba through the tenth grade. She then transferred to Oakley, graduating from Oakley High School in 1936. She married Nathaniel Elmer Wake on November 29, 1938, in the Logan, Utah LDS Temple. Together, they had two daughters, Darlene and Valayne. During World War II, Nathaniel's ship was torpedoed on November 24, 1943, thus leaving Lovina to raise her two daughters. She decided to attend the Southern Idaho College of Education in Albion, Idaho. She obtained her Bachelor's Degree with a double Speech-English major. She married Theodore Ted Tuttle on September 29, 1951, and they had five children in the ten years of marriage. Following his death on November 17, 1951, Lovina raised her four youngsters at home and started teaching school at all levels from elementary to college. She first taught in Soda Springs and Elba, prior to teaching at the Magic Valley Christian College and Rati River High School. She kept many a student in school by coming up with art projects that caught their interest. Also known as "Mrs. Tud," to her students at Rati River High School, she championed excellence in art at all levels.

After she retired from teaching school, she never sat idle. She turned to writing music, poetry and books. Lovina was an outstanding artist. She enjoyed painting. To her, painting was "better than eating candy." She was a great cook, enjoyed fishing, hiking, picnics, homemade ice cream, teaching art to her students no matter what age and riding horses. She sewed beautiful dresses, decorated quilts and made and decorated wedding cakes. Additionally, she loved drama and participated in many plays in Elba. She loved flowers and music. She enjoyed singing, playing the piano, organ and violin, all of which were an integral part of her life. She believed in being educated, and was a lifelong student.

She was an active member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, where she served faithfully.

She would like to thank all her family, friends and associates for their kindness during her journey upon this earth. She loved the Lord and wanted to live nowhere else. Let us not weep for her, but may your heart be filled with joy at the release of her imprisoned body which now can run free.

She is survived by her children, Darlene Anderson of Elba, Valayne (Orlin) Hadley of Phoenix, Arizona, Leei Lynn Wixom of West Valley City, Utah; and Kenyon (Heidi) Tuttle of Malta; one sister, Zelma Hopworth of Elba; one brother, Eldon (Eshler) Chandler of Rupert; 27 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

In addition to her husbands, she was preceded in death by her parents; two daughters, Nadine and Carla Tuttle, who died in a drowning in the Snake River in 1958; one son, Notton; and siblings Homer, Parish, Leonard and Donald Chandler, Flossie Lloyd, Golda Giles, Lona Hopworth and Eula Franks.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, January 19, 2002, at the Elba War Chapel of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, with Bishop Bill Loughmiller officiating. Interment will follow at the Grandview Cemetery in Elba.

Friends may call at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 East 16th Street, Burley, on Friday, January 19, 2002, at 10:00 a.m., and at the church on Saturday, from 10:00 until 10:45 a.m.

GOODING

Harvey E. Wood, 54, a resident of Gooding, died Sunday, January 13, 2002, at the Gooding Community Memorial Hospital in Gooding.

Harvey was born on September, 12, 1905, in Aurora, Nebraska, the son of Ellis Stowe and Lila Wilson Stowe. He was married to Kimberly Idaho, with his parents in the spring of 1918. Harvey attended school in Kimberly, Idaho, graduating from Kimberly High School in 1924. He later attended one year at the University of Idaho and one year at Gooding College. Harvey married Carrie Lane Powell in 1930 and they farmed 80 acres in Kimberly, Idaho. In 1943 they moved to Gooding and farmed about 100 acres. His wife Carrie Lane preceded him in death in August 1967. He retired from farming in 1969 and moved to Gooding. He later married Maisie Clemons on May 1, 1971, who later preceded him in death in November of 1989.

Harvey was a member of the Gooding United Methodist Church, Gooding Grange and Gooding Lion's Club. Harvey enjoyed music and singing and was a member of the Wood-Gee Quartet, who sang throughout the area.

Harvey is survived by a daughter, Lynn (Don) Larson and two step-sons: Duane (Coral) Clemons and Richard (Aurelia) Clemons along with numerous nieces and nephews, 2 grandchildren and 7 step-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his parents, three sisters and two brothers. Harvey was the youngest member of the family.

Memorial Service will be held on Thursday, January 17, 2002, at 1 p.m. at Gooding United Methodist Church. Burial will be held at the Memorial Park in Twin Falls, Idaho.

For those who desire, contributions made to United Methodist Church or any church of choice.

Arrangements by Demaray Funeral Chapel in Gooding.

Federal study approves waste dump in Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission issued a final environmental study that sanctions a plan to store highly radioactive nuclear waste in Utah's Skull Valley.

The study cites the economic benefits of consolidated storage for spent nuclear fuel rods from eight of the nation's nuclear-power electric utilities.

It said an industry plan to store up to 40,000 tons of waste in concrete-packed steel casks had few environmental consequences for the desolate Skull Valley Indian Reservation, 45 miles southwest of Salt Lake City.

The Goshute tribe has agreed to accept the waste from the eight utilities, organized as Private Fuel Storage, that are running out of space for their own spent fuel rods.

Simplot can't shop around for power

The Times-News
HEYBURN - The J.R. Simplot Co. would be required to buy electricity from the local utility in Heyburn, regardless of whether the utility remains owned by the city of Heyburn or if another company buys it from the city.

If a proposed agreement between the J.R. Simplot Co. and the city of Heyburn advances, the city will sell its electric distribution system to a qualified utility. The buyer would set its rates at levels agreeable to Simplot officials, according to that plan.

In rural, Simplot would drop its lawsuits against the city, including one challenging the annexation of the company's food processing plant into Heyburn.

If the city is able to find a buyer which meets the needs of both Heyburn customers and Simplot, the potato processing plant must buy its power from the purchaser, said David Hawk, Simplot director of energy natural resources.

Simplot will have no reason to look for other electric suppliers because the agreement calls for a buyer which will provide rates the company considers reasonable, said Simplot spokesman Fred Zerza.

"The agreement indicates our right to review the sale and ensure we would be able to live with the prices the purchaser would charge," Zerza said.

While it is Simplot's intention to drop its lawsuits against Heyburn, lawyers for the company have filed a notice of appeal in 5th District Court, in response to the ruling of a judge which upheld action by the city of Heyburn to annex Simplot's plant.

District Judge John Melanson ruled Dec. 19 that the annexation of Simplot's Heyburn plant into the city was valid.

The appeal was filed only as a backup measure in case the new agreement between Simplot and Heyburn falls, Zerza said.

"There was a time consideration involved. We wanted it filed in the event a situation developed in which it was necessary to appeal, but we have no intent to do that under present circumstances," Zerza said.

Dennis Curtis was appointed to the Burley City Council Tuesday night.

Curtis was named to a two-year seat on the council, filling a vacancy created when Jon Anderson left the council because he was elected mayor in November.

Burley mayor, council disagree over payments

By Shelley Ridenour Times-News writer

BURLEY - Many of the 40 or so members of the audience at Tuesday's Burley City Council meeting rumbled loudly when the council voted to discontinue a monthly mileage allowance to the mayor.

And the audience clapped after the newest member of the council voted against the motion to take that money away. The motion to stop the $360 a month payment and instead pay the mayor 32 cents per mile driven for city business, as the council and city employees are paid, was approved 5-1. Councilman Dennis Curtis voted "no."

Voices were raised and some faces became flushed during the discussion placed on the agenda by Councilman Dave Ringle, who dubbed the move "fiscal responsibility."

Ringle said because Anderson has said he plans to be a part-time mayor and plans to travel out of Burley less than previous Mayor Doug Manning did, Anderson should not receive the $360 a month Manning was paid for travel.

The mayor before Manning had a city-owned car made available to him, the council agreed, but the car wasn't used. When Manning became mayor, he asked for the monthly compensation, Councilman Gordon Hansen said.

The council approved a resolution specific to Manning for that arrangement, Councilman Brent Kerbs said.

Anderson said he'd spoken council president Curt Mendenhall about the mayor's compensation before filing for office. He was told the $360 was part of the package. However, he said if the council disagreed, he'd abide by its decision.

Without the monthly compensation, and if he wasn't going to

New member

Dennis R. Curtis will serve two years on the Burley City Council, following his appointment Tuesday night. Curtis fills out the remaining term of Jon Anderson, who was elected to the mayor's post in November. Curtis is a real estate agent in Burley.

Anderson described Curtis as an "idea man," who "thinks outside of the box." The mayor said Anderson's contacts throughout the state would help the city. Curtis to the council received unanimous approval from the council.

Rupert advisory committee will get to work

By Sarah Chaney Times-News writer

RUPERT - The new Rupert Citizens Advisory Council is officially formed and ready to work.

The City Council appointed Mayor Audrey Neiwirth's appointments to the advisory council and the first meeting has been set for 7 p.m. Monday at City Hall.

Elizabeth Burr-Jones, Elton "Petey" Ford and Frank Rodriguez, Jr. will serve one-year terms, while John Cooper, Santos Garza, Bob Nevarez and Ray Skelton will serve two-year terms, Neiwirth said. This will create staggered terms for committee members.

Larry Archuleta asked the council more information on how the group would function.

Neiwirth said the council was an advisory council, placing emphasis on advisory. "We need to let it work," she added.

City administrator Roger Bagley said the administrator will be a liaison for the committee. If an issue can be dealt with by working with a city staff member, it will be fixed that way. The committee may work alongside in that process, Bagley said.

The advisory council will help the city identify residents' concerns and needs, Bagley said.

Bagley said he hopes the advisory council will also work as an educational vehicle, going back to the community and teaching residents why the city does what it does.

Members of the Minidoka County School Board attended Tuesday's meeting to discuss extending city water lines to Minico High School, but information did not reach the council early enough to be able to discuss the issue, Bagley said.

Councilmen Layne Rutschke and Steve Barras, Neiwirth, Bagley and Water

Superintendent Dennis Andrew will meet with school district officials at 1 p.m. Friday at City Hall to discuss details of the project.

School superintendent Nick Hallett said there were only two issues to discuss and deadlines were approaching on the project.

"Very soon we'll have to pick another direction," Hallett said.

Hallett said the two issues left to decide were latercomer fees and assurance of water flow that meets the school's requirements.

Rupert City Attorney Rick Bollor said he saw three issues still pending: flows, rates and financing.

In other council business:

- Neiwirth appointed two members to the Historic Preservation Commission: Joyce Barfus and Joyce Jensen are both businesswomen on Rupert Square, Neiwirth said, and are interested in the historic preservation of the city.
- Gina Sutton was also appointed to Rupert's tree committee.

The council adopted Resolution 414, supporting the formation of the H Street construction grant through the Local Highway Technical Assistance Council.

- The city agreed to receive bids on the First Street project and Lift Station No. 13 at Fifth and A streets. The project will replace the undersized lift station and deal with tree roots in the system.
- Bids will be opened on Feb. 7.
- The council approved a water source study which will look into additional water sources for the Rupert.
- Larry Duff said much of the exterior work on the Renaissance Art Center will be done by spring, including the terra cotta work. The next goal will be to complete the conference center and store fronts.
- Duff was also reappointed to the Renaissance Art Center Board for a three-year term.

Business owner gets deferred prosecution in obscenity case

By Shelley Ridenour Times-News writer

BURLEY - A Burley businessman charged in November with selling obscene materials at a convenience store received a deferred sentence in Cassia County Magistrate Court Tuesday.

Prosecution of Jim Lynch, owner of Mr. Gas at 855 Overland Ave., was deferred for one year under terms of an agreement between the prosecutor's office and Lynch. If Lynch does not sell any materials which violate obscenity statutes and if he's not convicted of any violations of any other Idaho law - with the exception of minor traffic offenses - he may apply to have the charges against him dismissed next January.

A pretrial conference had been set for Monday in magistrate court in the Lynch case, but it was rescheduled for Feb. 4 after Deputy Minidoka County Attorney Nicole Arbogast requested the change, noting in the court document a "possible revision to be discussed." In November, Arbogast was appointed to prosecute the matter.

The stipulation for deferred prosecution document was signed by Lynch on Friday and by Deputy Burley City Attorney David Shirley on Jan. 8. It was approved by Judge Monte Carlson Tuesday.

Lynch's penalty is the same handed down to another Burley businessman last summer. Steve DeRoche, owner of Little Cinders Smoke Shop, received a one-year deferred prosecution in July. He was charged with the sale or distribution of obscene matter, the distribution of sexual material in a restricted area and for violating a state statute which prohibits the amount of obscene printed materials for sale or rent in a store from exceeding 10 percent of the store's printed materials.

Both men have removed the materials from their stores.

Lynch faced three charges. One was for the sale or distribution of obscene matter, and two were for the distribution of sexual material in restricted areas. Idaho law forbids businesses from selling materials defined as obscene within 2,500 feet of a school, church or place of worship.

The charges against Lynch stemmed from an affidavit filed June 20 by Cassia County Sheriff's Office Cpl. Loyal Egbert. The affidavit states two deputies purchased sexually oriented magazines at Mr. Gas that day.

City officials say they told Lynch in October some magazines sold at his business violated the city's standards of decency and couldn't be held.

Lynch said he then contacted his magazine distributors to tell them about the city's regulations. He said those distributors assured him they would bring only magazines deemed legal for sale in Burley to his store.

However, in November, Burley City Councilman Dave Ringle found magazines which didn't meet the standard still being sold at Mr. Gas. Charges were then filed against Lynch.

Lynch pleaded not guilty at his Dec. 3 arraignment.

get paid a per-mile fee, Anderson said, "I'm not getting paid enough."

Mendenhall and Kerbs both said they wanted to closely track the mayor's mileage expenses to make sure the payment was being handled appropriately and didn't need to be adjusted.

Burley resident Pete Snow questioned why the council would think it appropriate to offer one mayor a form of compensation and not offer the next mayor the same package.

"I would greatly object to you treating (Anderson) any differently than (Manning)," he said.

After the vote, and after the audience's clapping had subsided, Kerbs told people they were wrong if they thought that action had occurred as a form of retribution against Anderson.

"It wasn't from me," Kerbs said. "I'm ready to look at options. I'm ready to work with him. I admire him."

Ringle continued with brief discussion about a city credit card for the mayor.

Anderson declined.

"I wouldn't accept a credit card if you offered me one," Anderson said.

not go with the governor's philosophy.

"I told him, 'You can defend democracy. I'll defend the republic,'" Newcomb said, referring to a Monday night meeting in which key lawmakers and the governor discussed the subject.

Newcomb, who is in his eighth term, introduced his full-repeal bill last Friday in the House State Affairs Committee. A public hearing is scheduled for Monday on repealing the 1994 initiative that Newcomb contends was foisted on Idaho by out-of-state interests.

The governor told reporters in a press conference set to discuss the latest round of budget restraints that he would maintain his stance to veto a bill to repeal term limits also because of philosophy.

"To me, the issue is not the merits of term limits, it's the process," Kempthorne said. "I cannot in good conscience, having been elected by the people of this state, say that when they enact an initiative in that way, that we would rescind it."

Other Magic Valley legislators recognize the gravity of the battle they are about to take up.

A two-thirds majority is required to override a governor's veto, and no one was positive on Tuesday whether that many lawmakers in both the House and the Senate would vote for a full repeal.

Instead of repeal, Kempthorne said he suggested to lawmakers that they put a constitutional amendment mandating term limits on the November ballot.

"Then perhaps the people will speak out" if diminishing support for term limits has turned to opposition, he said.

Newcomb quickly rejected that idea, saying the states that had amended their constitutions for term limits were regretting it.

Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, who is in her seventh term and has worked her way up to co-chairing Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, added that many states that had voted for term limits, even if only in statute, were beginning to discover problems with it.

And though she said she believes a majority of people who voted for term limits didn't realize they would be ousting their local and even state-level lawmakers, she said she respected the governor's stance.

"I can understand perfectly his reasoning," she said. "He was forthright and sincere, and I respect that."

But Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, who has lost most consecutive years in the Senate, shook his head at the idea the governor would go against the Republican platform and predict ed the coming battle could be as costly for the governor as it will be for lawmakers.

"It's not good politics. He's inviting a nasty Republican confrontation at a time when a lot of statesmanship is required," Noh said, referring to the budget crunch.

Noh said term limits has surfaced over the past 60 days to be of more concern to his constituents than any issue he has seen in his 20-plus years of elected service.

"Overwhelmingly they're telling me that we need to take care of this thing," he said. But voters in his district seem to be split between a complete repeal and a partial repeal, he said.

Kempthorne was noncommittal on Tuesday about the possibility of supporting partial repeal of term limits, lifting the ballot restriction on local elected officials.

"It's something that we're discussing," the governor said.

Scores of county officers will be the first affected by term limits this year. The first of the veteran legislators will not be term limited until 2004.

If the governor ultimately prevails, the second-term Rep. Leon Smith, Twin Falls, said it won't be the end of the world.

"I don't think it's a catastrophe," he said.

In addition, Smith said, "John Q. Public has been bending my ear about not repealing term limits."

"Believe me, there is a large contingent out there that is very adamant about that."

Other instances of problem cats have been resolved amicably.

"The Corbus case is the only one that's gone away," he said. "I guess it's gone away because the person disagreed. I haven't agreed with every speeding ticket I've gotten."

Hoffman sees the incident as part of the larger miscommunication between government resource agencies and stockmen.

He said the cattlemen help preserve dwindling sage grouse and spotted frogs, fight noxious weeds and feed wintering game by opening up their pastures. Cattlemen's Association President Dave Nelson of Mackay even helped write the state's policy on big-game depredation.

"We've been standing toe to toe and nose to nose with Fish and Game for years, and Dave (Nelson) wants us to stand side by side," Hoffman said. "I think the potential exists - should Fish and Game choose to do it - of a tremendous synergy between us."

a county resident or property owner whose health, safety or property rights will be materially affected by the CAFO.

"Neighbors three miles away can still smell the dairies," said Flores, who said he feels that the definition of "affected" needs expansion.

Steve Wybenga, owner of the Wybenga Dairy in Jerome, wanted to know if existing CAFOs that are grandfathered can buy land and build on that land.

Milt Sonenson questioned why he had to send letters to all his neighbors five years ago when he planned on making improvements to his dairy, yet four new subdivisions were built around his property without anyone bothering to notify him.

Gooding County Planning and Zoning Administrator Judy Daubner said questions could be asked at the hearing but no answers could be given.

Proposed changes

Some of the changes in Gooding County's proposed ordinance on animal feeding operations (CAFOs) include the following:

- Maximum animal density would change from seven animal units per acre to 10 animal units per acre.
- The definition of animal units would change: a heifer would go from .7 animal units to 1.2 animal units (one month to one year); from .4 to .7 animal units; a calf (under three months) from .25 to .4 animal units; For fish, an animal unit would increase from 500 pounds to 1,000 pounds.
- Corrals would be located 75 feet away from any residence not belonging to the owner of the CAFO, compared with the current 500-foot requirement.
- Feed storage areas would retain their required 50-foot setback from a public right-of-way, but there would also be a required 300-foot setback from an existing residence not owned by the CAFO operator.
- A 3,950-foot setback from transitional zones, residential zones or existing platted subdivisions with improvements would be required. The setback is currently 2,840. Also, residential subdivisions proposed after the effective ordinance date must locate no closer than 3,950 feet from any existing CAFO with improvements.
- CAFOs in excess of 1,000 animal units would have incremental increases in setbacks per animal unit, except for setbacks from the public right-of-way and the canyon rim.
- An enforcement section has been added to the ordinance to handle violations via an authorized representative of Gooding County, selected by the county commissioners, or an agency authorized to review allegations with specific time frames for handling complaints.

approve it before the current moratorium on new animal feeding operations and expansion of existing operations expires Jan. 29.

Commissioners are unlikely to enact another moratorium, the county's sixth, especially now that they're defendants in a lawsuit that claims they hurt dairy operations and the businesses that serve them by enacting five consecutive moratoriums on animal feeding operations. Commissioners have denied the allegations.

People on both sides of the dairy issue don't like the six draft ordinances on the table right now. Dairy neighbors think the rule that only people living within one mile of a new operation can appeal a decision on a dairy permit is unfair. Still others think the six ordinances aren't clear enough and will be difficult to enforce. Dairy operators worry that their permits could be revoked due to complaints even if they haven't broken any regulations.

Smutny, who runs a 497-animal unit dairy south of Twin Falls, said there are two serious flaws in the county's proposed ordinances.

"One is the fact that we have another layer of bureaucracy by adding a hearing examiner, and the other is that we object very much to the idea that livestock people would have to get a yearly permit that could be revoked by a complainant-driven process," Smutny said. "What do we do next? Are we going to have a revocation process in other businesses? Is everyone going to have to have a permit to operate a business? Where does it stop?"

Commissioners have agreed to use the matrix as guidelines for the county planning and zoning administrator. Although the group sees that as a step in the right direction, members of the group would rather see commissioners put the old county ordinance back into effect during the interim instead of the six draft ordinances. But commissioners say that's not possible due to legal problems with the current ordinance on the books.

Flemmen said the current ordinance is unclear about giving public notice before approving a permit. He said any modification to the ordinance would also have to go through the public hearing process. So the only ordinances that could be used during the interim would be the county's six proposed ordinances.

Gooding earns honor for storm preparation

GOODING - Gooding County commissioners were presented with a StormReady road sign recognizing the county's efforts in preparation.

The voluntary program assists communities in preparing for severe weather threats from tornadoes to floods. Carl Weinbrecht, warning coordination meteorologist with the Boise National Weather Service presented the sign during Monday's regular commission meeting.

Lori Cappi, Gooding County disaster services coordinator, was congratulated for her efforts to make Gooding County, and the cities of Wendell and Gooding StormReady.

In other county business:

The School of Urban Wilderness Survival, awaiting tenancy in the old Frahm Middle School building now leased to The Brown Schools, notified sheriff Sean Gough that its plans to move to the facility when vacated by The Brown Schools have been put on hold due to the present economy. They hope to be able to consider the lease again in six months.

Gough received approval purchasing a 2002 Chevrolet Impala from D.L. Evans Bank which will be paid for in four payments of $6,888. Because there was no trailer for the older vehicle due to the 170,000 miles it has been driven, commissioner Carolyn Elexpuru said, "Maybe we can keep it as a spare."

Gough passed on information he received in a phone call from Randy Hansen that Idaho Power Co. will be installing new plastic mat ramps on the lower Salmon River.

Attorney general: It's still illegal to drive high

BOISE (AP) - Attorney General Al Lance said on Tuesday that it remains illegal to drive high in Idaho, even if you can drive straight.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled a section of Idaho Code as the basis for deciding on Monday that a Fruitland man should not have been arrested in New Plymouth for driving under the influence of marijuana in September 1998.

The appellate court said the law allows marijuana users to drive legally as long as their driving is not erratic and they can pass a field sobriety test.

But Lance said the three-judge panel did not address another section of Idaho Code that clearly makes it "unlawful for any person who is under the influence of alcohol, drugs or any other intoxicating substance... to drive or be in actual physical control of a motor vehicle within this state."

"Accordingly, the court's decision has no impact on this statute," Lance said. "There is a crime to drive while under the influence of marijuana in the state of Idaho."

Lance said the law cited by the 9th Circuit "is intended to make it clear that, driving while impaired is prohibited, even if the driver is impaired by legal use of a prescription drug."

"That section makes it illegal to operate a vehicle while under the influence of alcohol or any drug to a degree which impairs the driver's ability to safely operate a motor vehicle."

Based on that statute, the appellate court overturned the conviction of Matthew Patzer, 21, of Fruitland, who was stopped for a broken tail light in 1998 and admitted to police he had smoked marijuana, at a party.

The court said Patzer could not automatically be presumed impaired because he was not driving erratically and passed two field sobriety tests.

The charge of driving under the influence was the basis for officers to search Patzer's vehicle, where they found four illegal homemade grenades, a sawed-off shotgun and a modified rifle with a homemade silencer. But the court overturned his conviction on federal weapons charges, saying the search was illegal because there was no probable cause to arrest Patzer.

Man returns to Oregon to face murder charges

NEWPORT, Ore. (AP) - Christian Michael Longo is scheduled to be arraigned Wednesday in Oregon on charges of murdering his wife and three children and dumping their bodies into coastal waters, the Lincoln County district attorney said Tuesday.

Longo, 27, waived extradition during a brief appearance in Houston County Court in Houston on Tuesday. He was turned over to a Lincoln County sheriff's deputy and was scheduled to board a commercial flight for Portland later in the day.

"He knew eventually he would have to go back," Longo's court-appointed attorney, Jeff Ludwig, said in Houston.

Longo will appear at the Lincoln County courthouse, where he will be charged with aggravated murder, District Attorney Bernice Barnett said Tuesday. Barnett has said she already has decided whether to pursue the death penalty for Longo, but would not announce her decision until Longo appears in an Oregon court with a lawyer.

"It's extremely satisfying to have that person caught," Barnett said during a news conference Tuesday.

Longo is accused of killing his wife and three children and ditching their bodies in coastal inlets between Dec. 19 and 27. Longo fled from San Francisco International Airport to Mexico on Dec. 27, using a credit card obtained from a Newport man.

Longo was arrested at a beach camp Sunday night in Tulum, a resort town 60 miles south of Cancun. A Montreal woman noticed his picture and remembered having seen him at a hostel in Cancun between Dec. 27 and Dec. 29.

Longo is charged with aggravated murder in the deaths of his wife, Mary Jane, 34, and children, Zachary, 4, Sadie Ann, 3, and Madison, 2. The FBI placed most Wanted Fugitives' list on Friday.

Mexico abolished the death penalty in 1932, and normally does not extradite suspects to the United States if they would face execution. But after he was arrested, Longo agreed to leave Mexico voluntarily, said Charles Mathews, special agent in charge of the FBI in Oregon.

Longo had since lived in a grass hut at the Cabanas Santa Fe beach camp in Tulum with another man who did not know he was a fugitive, the FBI said. Longo made little effort to hide his identity, keeping his hair blond and using the name "Michael Longo," his middle and last names.

Longo was taken into custody by about 20 Mexican law enforcement officers and FBI agents from the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City. Longo was wearing Bermuda shorts and tennis shoes, authorities said. Inside his cabana, police found a credit card that belonged to his wife, and notes he had scribbled about local Mayan ruins.

Twin Falls man hosts annual cook-off

By Dixie Thomas Realé
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Tom Ashenbrenner has been staging an annual Dutch Oven Cook-off at his Price Hardware store every fall for about 10 years. In addition to bragging rights, winners receive gift certificates for merchandise in the store. For the price of a donation, Price Hardware customers taste the food.

"Just about the time the food is done, people flock to the store," Ashenbrenner said. "Last fall, the cook-off brought in around $300 in donations, which was donated to People for Pets."

Ashenbrenner's cook-off has grown into a contest which attracts contestants from throughout the intermountain West. Winners are eligible to enter a World Championship Dutch Oven Cook-Off held in Utah every year.

Bill and Ben Levere are a father-and-son Dutch oven cooking team. Bill Levere's wife, Nancy, bought him a Dutch oven for Father's Day about 10 years ago.

Levere, an outdoors type, found Dutch oven cooking fit his lifestyle. He's supervisor of the Twin Falls office of the United States Forest Service, in the process of transferring to the Ogden office.

When the father-and-son team decided to start cooking in the Dutch oven, Dad had to teach himself how to use the oven. Once he got the method down, he taught his 6-year-old son how to use it. Now, 10 years later, Dad does most of the cooking for competitions and 16-year-old Ben does most of the "prep work" — and helps keep watch over the cooking progress.

Bill Levere has written a cookbook called "Backyard Dutch Oven," which is available at Price Hardware, D and B Supply and the Snake River Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America office. Order the book on line for around $5 at Levere's web site — www.backyarddutchoven.com. The web site also offers Dutch oven recipes.

This Bill and Ben Levere recipe won first place in the Entree Category.

SPICY FETTUCCINE CHICKEN

- 4 to 5 boneless skinless chicken breasts
- 2 tablespoons chili powder
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cayenne pepper
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 2 garlic cloves, pressed
- 1 medium to large onion, diced
- 1 can (7 ounces) diced green chilies, undrained

- 1 can (10 1/2 ounces) chicken broth
  - 8 to 12 ounces fettuccine noodles
  - 2 tablespoons cornstarch
  - 1/2 cup water
  - 3/4 cup sour cream
- Cook from below only.
- Rinse chicken with water and rub outside with a mixture of chili, powder, cayenne, cumin and salt. Heat vegetable oil in a medium (10-inch) Dutch oven and add chicken. Brown chicken and then add garlic, onion, chilies and chicken-broth. Cover and simmer about 45 minutes. Approximately 20 to 25 minutes before the chicken has completely simmered, start to cook the fettuccine. Mix cornstarch and water together, and slowly add to the Dutch oven mixture. Cook for 5 to 10 minutes until mixture slightly thickens. Stir in sour cream and heat through, and then serve chicken and sauce over cooked fettuccine noodles.

The Levers won second place in the Side-Dish Category with this recipe.

CHAMPAGNE STUFFED MUSHROOMS

- 20 medium mushrooms (fresh)
  - 2 tablespoons butter (or margarine)
  - 4 green onions or scallions, chopped
  - 3 tablespoons chopped walnuts, crushed
  - 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt
  - 1 tablespoon parsley flakes
  - 5 tablespoons butter (or margarine), softened
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1/8 teaspoon pepper
  - 3/4 cup of champagne or white (or blush) wine
  - Parmesan cheese
- Temperature: Equivalent to 350 to 375 degrees.

Wash mushrooms, and remove stems. Chop mushroom stems into small pieces. In a medium Dutch oven (10-inch), melt the 2 tablespoons of butter and saute the stems. Halfway through cooking the stems, add the chopped scallions. Once mushroom stems and scallions are lightly cooked, remove from heat. In a

There's nothing more adventurous (and rewarding) than heading off the beaten path and sampling the local cuisine. On the East Coast, sink your teeth into luscious seafood soups and stews; the South has spicy Creole and steamy gumbo; the Midwest serves up a hearty helping of ever-popular pot pies; the Southwest sizzles with zesty Tex-Mex fare; and along the West Coast, delight in flavorful wraps and light salads.

Route 66 in 1926 — a 2,400-mile ribbon of highway that carried travelers from Chicago to Los Angeles when it was completed in 1926 — was dubbed "The Mother Road" by author John Steinbeck. Route 66 allowed motorists to catch a glimpse of small-town America and sample the local cuisine in its many kitschy roadside diners. Here's a sampling.

medium mixing bowl, combine mixed vegetables, chicken, soup and thyme; mix well. Fit one pie crust into 9-inch pie pan; pour vegetable mixture into pie crust. Top with remaining crust, crimp edges to seal and prick top with fork. Bake for 30 to 45 minutes or until crust is golden brown and filling is hot. Allow pie to cool slightly before cutting into wedges to serve. Makes 4 servings.

to 7 minutes until heated through. Makes 6 servings.

CALIFORNIA CHORIZO WRAP

- 1/2 pound chorizo sausage
- 1 can (15 ounces) black beans, drained and rinsed
- 1 can (15 ounces) Veg-All Original Mixed Vegetables, drained
- 1/4 cup sour cream
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh

- cilantro
  - 1/4 cup chipotle salsa
  - 8 large tortillas
- In skillet, brown chorizo over medium heat; drain. Stir in beans, mixed vegetables, sour cream, cilantro and salsa; cook 5 minutes or until heated through. Divide mixture between tortillas; roll up making sure sides are tucked in. Serve immediately. Makes 8 servings.

Indoor flower gardens can brighten the mood of your home

Flowers make us feel good. Their very presence cheers us; their fragrance enhances our moods. So let's do some gardening.

Right now, in the middle of winter, is the best time to think about gardening - in containers. It's easy to find blooming plants, as well as an abundance of foliage plants. Let's put some together for a stunning display.

First, the container must have a drainage hole. After that criteria is met, choose the pot after you've picked out what will go into it. I pick up plants I like, then see how they fit in a container. I almost always start out with a container that's way too small, and trade up. And remember: If you choose an unglazed clay pot, soak it in a sink of water overnight. Otherwise, it will steal water from plant roots.

I always put a coffee filter over the drainage hole to keep the potting soil from falling out before you water. Even if you don't drink coffee, a package of paper filters comes in handy.

- Buy a new, high-quality bag of potting soil. One with lots of vermiculite (that's the gray particles) for good air circulation and drainage.

Either punch in some Osmocote (a control-release fertilizer), or plan to use Peter's 20-20-20, a liquid soluble fertilizer.

- Fill the pot with moistened potting soil five inches below the rim for four-inch pots. Don't put stones or anything else, except the filter in the bottom of the pot.
- Arrange the plants and fill in spaces between the root balls with soil. Leave an inch of space below the rim of the pot.

GREEN THUMBPRINTS
Cathy Walworth

Don't know how to arrange the plants? Here are a few design tips.

- For a full, mounded shape, put three of the tallest plants in the center. Surround them with shorter and trailing plants.
- Create a focal point with bright colors or bold foliage.
- Use foliage among the flowers. Foliage plants grow easily and always look good, making up for flowering plants that aren't in bloom at the moment. Gray leaves soften and enhance other colors. Bright gold or purple adds strong contrast or interest.

- Use color echoes. Repeat colors to unify the design. White variegated foliage combines nicely with white flowers, for example. Play with combinations while you're picking out your container. You'll soon pick-out something you like.

TIP OF THE WEEK: After a hard season of exposure to dirt, rocks, moisture and other outdoor hazards, your tools are probably ready for a breather. You can prolong their life and improve their effectiveness next season by taking a little time to tune them up now. Here's a quick checklist:

- Sand and varnish wooden tool handles.
- Polish metal parts with steel wool and oil them to keep rust at bay.
- Lubricate any moving parts.
- Sharpen tools that have become dull (or take them to a sharpening shop - the off-season is the best time to take care of this chore).

What's bugging your garden? Write to Cathy in care of this newspaper or e-mail her at: caw20@mt.net small bowl, combine cooked stems and scallions with the walnuts (crushed), garlic salt, parsley flakes, remaining butter, salt and pepper. Mix thoroughly and then stuff each mushroom with the mixture. Arrange the stuffed mushrooms in the bottom of the small 10-inch Dutch oven and add champagne or wine to the bottom. Cover and bake for approximately 30 to 40 minutes. Do not let the liquid boil away in the bottom of the Dutch oven. In the last five minutes of cooking, liberally sprinkle the tops of the mushrooms with Parmesan Cheese and cover once again.

Carol and Brian Cunningham are a husband-and-wife Dutch oven cooking team. Her father got them interested in Dutch oven cooking several years ago when he gave Dutch ovens to family members for Christmas. Now there is a family competition cooked every summer, with six or eight teams gathered around, all cooking in back yards of various relatives.

The Cunninghams enjoy competition cooking so much that they enter every contest they can find from Jackson to Twin Falls. They have a son and a daughter ages 5 and 8. The Cunninghams plan to share their Dutch-oven cooking skills with the Boy and Girl Scouts very soon. Both Cunningham children are also anxious to get involved in the Dutch-oven cooking fun.

The Cunninghams won first place in the Side Dish Category with this recipe.

THREE CHEESE BREAD
2 cups warm water, divided
1 package active dry yeast
1/3 cup plus 2 tablespoons olive

- 2 tablespoons salt
- 6 to 6 1/2 cups flour
- 1 cup finely chopped parsley
- 1 egg white, beaten with 1 tablespoon water
- 2/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 cup mild cheddar cheese
- 1/2 cup mozzarella cheese
- 2 tablespoons sweet basil
- 1 to 2 cloves garlic, minced

Crust:
Place 1/4 cup warm water in large bowl. Sprinkle in yeast; stir until dissolved. Add remaining water, 2 tablespoons oil, salt and 2 cups flour; blend well. Stir in enough remaining flour to make soft dough. Knead on lightly floured surface until smooth and elastic (about 6 to 8 minutes). Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise until doubled in size (about 45 to 60 minutes). In small bowl, combine remaining oil, parsley, Parmesan cheese, cheddar cheese, mozzarella cheese, basil, and garlic. Set aside. Punch down dough. Remove dough to lightly floured surface; roll to 20-by-12-inch rectangle. Spread basil mixture in within a half inch of edges. Beginning at long end, roll up tightly; pinch seam to seal. Place seam side down, in the bottom of a 14-inch Dutch oven sprinkled with cornmeal. Form an "S" shape with the roll. Tuck both ends under center of the "S" to form a "figure 8"; pinch dough to join. With a sharp knife, cut lengthwise down center of roll, about an inch deep to within a half inch of the ends. Cover; let rise in a warm Dutch oven, with two coals on the bottom and two coals on the lid. Let rise until double in size. Brush egg white mixture on the loaf. Bake in the Dutch oven with eight coals under the oven and 16 on the lid for 30 to 45 minutes.

Supermodel Campbell leases Beverly Hills home

By Ruth Ryan
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Supermodel-actress Naomi Campbell is leasing a Beverly Hills home at $2,000 a month with an option to buy at just under $3 million.

The house, behind gates, has four bedrooms in about 5,000 square feet. The home also has a pool.

Campbell has been keeping an apartment in the Tribeca area of New York City, and in December she also rented a two-bedroom flat overlooking the Thames in London, sources said. The high-rise complex, with gym and tennis courts, was completed last year, according to the British press.

Campbell, 31, was born and raised in London.

She appeared in such films as "Quest for Fire" (1981) and on such TV series as "The Cosby Show" (1988) and "Fresh Prince of Bel-Air" (1990), but she became a supermodel in 1989 after posing as the first black woman on the cover of French Vogue.

Since then her acting career has largely taken a back seat to modeling, although she has been called a black Marilyn Monroe or Brigitte Bardot. Campbell appeared on stage for the first time in the fall, starring in "The Vagina Monologues" in San Francisco.

She is also known for her support of Nelson Mandela and his Children's Fund, and the Dalai Lama in his efforts toward building kindergartens for poor children around the world, including those in Jamaica, where Campbell's mother, a ballet dancer, was born. Campbell studied ballet in London.

Dress up a teen's bedroom so you both like it

By Kathy Van Mellekom
Daily Press

If you're tired of fighting with your teen about the way they decorate their room, step back and take a deep breath. Stop fretting and start planning an environment you both can live with.

Paint is the most economical way to change the appearance and ambience of any room. Let your soccer-playing son or computer-savvy daughter paint cool sayings, scenes, school name or favorite song on the walls — no foul language, of course.

"Yes, it's graffiti but you can paint over it later," says Darla Hornberger, owner of Pat Scher Interiors in Newport News, Va.

Dedicate a section of wall and use magnetic paint under the wall color, says designer Tricia Turk of A Better Home Interior Arrangement in Hampton, Va., who explained, "This gives the teen a space to display photos, letters, any memorabilia without damaging the wall surface. Chalk paint can be used to give the very creative teen a place to express themselves."

If you feel a little more adventurous, suggest your teen paint their room to look like a geometric puzzle.

"I did it one time, painting each wall a different color, then letting each wall color overlap in a puzzle-like, haphazard way," says Hornberger.

Use whatever bright color your teen prefers. Yellow, bright orange and purple are bright color designers Andrea Fitzgerald used to spruce up the room of her 13-year-old niece. A bed comforter with dust ruffle and sham picked up these colors, while the walls offered a backdrop of light lavender. Posters are framed in silver metal. Berber carpet with flecks of color help tie it all together in a V-shaped print valance hangs from a wooden pole faux finished in similar colors.

"It leans toward the Euro look," says Fitzgerald of Unusual Designs in York County, Va.

The hand-painted look of cutouts also is a quick way to live up to any room of the house, says Hornberger. Found in wallpaper books at stores such as Home Depot and Lowes, cutouts are simply pasted onto any wall. You can have a tree growing up the middle of a wall, a monkey climbing vines running along a corner or a bench waiting to comfort the tired.

The window cutout is real looking. Plus you can add things — such as a shelf under the window cutout — for a 3-D effect.

Here are more room-enhancement ideas:

- Furniture. Oak and maple are durable hard woods, able to stand use and abuse for years. Furniture manufacturers are responding to today's technology-skilled young people with armoires, cabinets and stands to house computers, TVs, sound systems and game units. A sleeping unit that has the bed above and a futon below gives young people lots of flexible use in their room; trundle beds also accommodate friends for sleepovers.
- Storage. Control clutter by using attractive storage boxes, wicker baskets or galvanized bins on shelves or under beds. Use a swivel bracket to get the TV up and out of the way in a convenient corner near the ceiling. Modular furniture offers desks, shelving and drawer units where stuff can be stashed; knobs on modular pieces can be replaced with colorful, decorative ones found at home-improvement stores.

• Fabrics. Two-person sofas often fit nicely into small bedrooms. The key is to upholster them with a tough-use fabric. The new 100 percent polyester suedes cope with ketchup, mustard and other unwanted spills; just wash off the messes with no leftover stain. Denim always stands up to hard use, plus it comes in fun colors such as red, blue, green and even stripes.

• Accessories. Lamps, artwork, area rugs, throw pillows and picture frames are affordable ways for young people to make a personal statement. Scrapbooking is an excellent way to display memorable events; frame large "memory pages" highlighting the ring dance, homecoming football game or prom and group them on a wall.

• Lighting. Play up lots of lighting, using alternative sources such as Christmas lights or rope lighting for special effects. Illuminate corners with up-style lighting.

• Window treatments. Use unconventional rods to drape fabric — baseball bats, twigs, anything to add a touch of whimsy or mystique.

Oven cooking makes home cozy

By Carol Mighton Haddix
Chicago Tribune

Let us pause and praise the oven meal. Meat, vegetables, seasonings and sometimes a grain — all nestled together like so many peas in a pod. Happily heating away, mingling their essences until the whole takes on new flavors and textures not possible in stovetop or microwave cooking. It is miracle cooking.

"Oven dishes are typically what we do at home in the winter," said cooking teacher and chef Peggy Ryan of Evanston, Ill.

And oven meals often mean fond memories: "When I was a child, I remember my mother, who is Pennsylvania Dutch, would make white beans with ham hocks, with onion, celery, carrot," Ryan said. "It would take all day to bake."

For vegetarians or for meat lovers, oven meals mean freedom for the cook. You can mix and match ingredients in one or two pots: rice or pasta for the grain; pork, beef, lamb, chicken or duck for the protein; potatoes, carrots or any green vegetables; herbs and spices; and water, wine or broth.

For long, slow oven cooking, you'll need hefty pots — roasters,

Dutch ovens, casseroles.

CHICKEN WITH POTATOES, ARTICHOKE, OLIVES AND GARLIC
Yield: 4 servings

2 tablespoons olive oil
1 chicken, about 3 pounds, cut up, or 3 pounds chicken pieces
2 pounds russet potatoes, peeled, cut into wedges
1 red onion, halved, sliced
1 package (10 ounces) frozen artichoke hearts
1 jar (8 ounces) pitted kalamata olives, drained
2 cloves garlic
1 teaspoon each: dried oregano, salt
Freshly ground pepper to taste
2 lemons

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Heat olive oil in large Dutch oven over medium-high heat. Brown chicken in batches on all sides, about 5 minutes a batch. Add potatoes, onion, artichoke hearts, olives, garlic cloves, oregano, salt and pepper. Cut 1 of the lemons into wedges; add to pan. Squeeze juice from the other lemon over all.

Test. Cover; cook in oven 1 hour. Remove lid. Cook until chicken is browned and vegetables are tender, stirring vegetables and turning chicken pieces occasionally, about 30 minutes.

Tyndale suits families with young children

Keystone Arches meld harmoniously with Art Deco-style window treatments to give the Tyndale an intriguing front facade.

This compact home is well suited to the needs of families with young children, or empty nesters wishing to downsize and still accommodate overnight guests. One of the bedrooms could also double as a home office. All on one level, the open floor plan is easily adapted for wheelchair accessibility.

Light spills into the foyer through the decorative glass that fills both the arched transom and the door's upper section. Entering, you step into a foyer that opens into a comfortably large and open vaulted family living area. Windows line the rear wall, and a gas fireplace stands ready to provide a warm, colorful focal point when skies are dark.

A well-placed wall section puts the temporary clutter of food preparation and clean-up out of visual range of the dining/living room. At the same time, the kitchen is open to the sunny nook, with a view of the patio and the landscape beyond. Potted plants, as well as family and friends, will thrive in this bright, airy space. They'll also enjoy snacking and/or conversing with the kitchen workers while perched on stools at the raised eating bar that fronts the sink and peninsula counter.

Laundry appliances are mere steps away, yet out of sight. Garage access is equally close, convenient for unloading groceries in safety and comfort.

Bedrooms cluster together on the left. Amenities in the Tyndale's master suite include a deep walk-in closet and a private bathroom with dual vanity, a spa or soaking tub, and a separate share the main bathroom.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $25 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Drive, Department W, Eugene, OR 97402. ## Fill your belly with these doughnuts made of jelly

By Elaine Magee
 Knight Ridder News Service

QUESTION: I know I'm asking for the moon here but could you come up with a light alternative to jelly doughnuts?

ANSWER: I used a lower-fat, yeast doughnut dough to form jelly-filled balls. I placed them in muffin cups that had been coated with canola oil. I then rolled each of the doughnut balls around to coat the entire doughnut surface with a little bit of the oil. I gave them time to rise and baked them in the oven to cook and brown. Everyone loved them — some liked them better than jelly doughnuts. I think the trick is to expect a muffin rather than a doughnut. Then you'll be pleasantly surprised.

JELLY-FILLED DOUGHNUT-MUFFINS
 (Makes 16)
 1 cup milk
 2 tablespoons canola oil (plus more for coating)
 1/4 cup light cream cheese
 1/2 cup sugar
 1 teaspoon salt
 2 large eggs
 3 cups flour (plus more for kneading)
 1 package active dry yeast

1/2 cup jelly of your choice (raspberry and cherry work well)

FOR GLAZE:
 1 cup powdered sugar
 2 teaspoons water
 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
 Microwave milk on high until fairly hot to the touch (about 1 minute). Combine 2 tablespoons canola oil, cream cheese, sugar and salt in a large mixing bowl and beat on low until well blended. Slowly pour hot milk into the mixture, beating all the while. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Combine 2 cups flour and yeast in a large bowl. Add the flour mixture slowly to the milk mixture and beat on low speed until smooth. Beat in the remaining flour to make a soft dough. Turn dough onto a well-floured surface and knead until smooth and elastic. Place dough in a large mixing bowl that has been lightly coated with canola oil. Turn the dough over to coat the entire surface.

Let rise in a warm place until doubled (about 1 1/2 hours). Add about 1/2 teaspoon of canola oil to the bottom of each of the 16 muffin cups. Punch down dough and split the dough into 16 equal-sized balls (about the size of golf balls). Using your hands, press each ball into a somewhat flatter circle, then spoon about 1 1/2 teaspoon jelly in the middle of each one.

Bring up all the sides of the dough to wrap up the jelly and squeeze the dough ends together well to seal. Place each ball in a muffin cup and roll the ball around to cover the entire surface with oil.

Let rise in a warm place until almost double in size (about an hour). Preheat oven to 375 degrees.

Bake for 15-18 minutes or until top is nicely browned. For the glaze, combine powdered sugar, water and vanilla extract together in a small bowl and stir until smooth.

Roll each warm doughnut-muffin into the glaze, let cool briefly on a rack, and enjoy.

The right wood door can last a lifetime

DEAR JIM: My wood front door is warped, leaky and just plain ugly. I want to replace it with an efficient one with decorative glass, but I am worried it will warp too. Are there any durable, long-lasting wood doors made?
 —ANN R.

DEAR ANN: There are many wood entry doors made that can last a lifetime. The key is starting out with a high-quality wood door and — then maintaining it properly throughout its life. The best wood entry doors don't require much care, but regular inspections to repair any nicks or scratches are wise.

Although wood doors do not have the high insulation level of steel or fiberglass doors with foam cores, their beauty and elegance cannot be matched. With so much decorative glass in many front doors today, the insulation value of the door material is not as important for efficiency. All wood doors, even high-quality ones sealed at the factory, grow and shrink throughout the year as the temperature and humidity change. They are designed with features such as floating panels so that the manufacturers can offer warranties (some for a lifetime) against warping, splitting or peeling.

Be prepared to pay more for a high-quality wood door than for most insulated steel doors. The most attractive and efficient ones are often made by craftsmen with hand-crafted mortise and tenon joints. Variations in grain and how it accepts stain makes each wood door unique.

For most homes, the airtightness of a new wood door improves efficiency and comfort (less outdoor noise, drafts, dust, etc.). If you want the greatest energy savings, several wood door manufacturers offer styles with foam insulation cores.

Typical components of a solid wood stile and rail entry door

Simple style with optional sidelight

You have many new efficient options for the decorative glass. In addition to standard rectangular and oval windows, there are other unique shapes available. Beveled, etched and leaded are most commonly used, but other attractive styles are wrought iron, granite-look and glue chip. Super-efficient triple-pane glass is a good choice for all climates. The decorative pane of glass is usually sandwiched in between two other clear panes. This type of glass is also difficult to break through. For even more security, select a door with optional multipoint latches along its length.

For new construction or remodeling, wood doors with matching ornate transoms and sidelights are becoming very popular. The additional glass in these allows more natural light indoors and reduces the need to switch on lamps.

For a truly unique-looking door, you can have personalized patterns hand-carved into the wood. Wood doors with decorative, deeply embossed copper, pewter or brass skins look distinctive and are low-maintenance.

Advice for hopeless

Philadelphia Daily News

Here are some experts' alternatives for the nutritionally challenged.

• Fast food can slow you down but if you must order, stay away from hamburgers and choose a chicken or fish that's not fried, with a salad and low-fat dressing. Skip the dessert unless it's fruit — apple pies don't count.

• Pizza can be good, if you forgo the meat lover's special and top it with mushrooms, broccoli, spinach and plenty of extra garlic and tomatoes.

• Processed foods are made, and most likely contain more sugar or more complex carbs, which are hard to digest and can turn to fat.

• Try disguising fruit. Avocados are vitamin-rich and make mean guacamole dips; bananas with milk and cocoa powder in a blender are heaven; and coconut tastes good shaved atop ice cream.

Enchiladas have appetite appeal

Taste of Home

This prize-winning dish was contributed by Jennifer Standridge, of Dallas, Ga. It was among the winners in the Ground Beef Roundup contest in Taste of Home magazine. Prepared with flour tortillas instead of the traditional corn variety, this saucy casserole has irresistible home-cooked flavor and a subtle kick.

CLASSIC BEEF ENCHILADAS

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1/4 teaspoon rubbed sage
- 1 can (14 1/2 ounces) stewed tomatoes

Sauce:

- 4 to 6 garlic cloves, minced
- 1/3 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 can (14 1/2 ounces) beef broth
- 1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1 to 2 tablespoons chili powder
- 1 to 2 teaspoons ground cumin
- 1 to 2 teaspoons rubbed sage
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 10 flour tortillas (7 inch)
- 2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

In a saucepan over medium heat, cook beef and onion until meat is no longer pink. Drain. Add flour and seasonings; mix well. Stir in tomatoes; bring to boil. Reduce heat; cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, in another saucepan, saute garlic in butter until tender. Stir in flour until blended. Gradually stir in broth. Bring to boil. Cook 5 minutes or until bubbly. Stir in tomato sauce and seasonings. Heat through. Pour about 1 1/2 cups sauce into an ungreased 13-by-9-by-2-inch baking dish. Spread about 1/4 cup beef mixture down the center of each tortilla. Top with 1 to 2 tablespoons cheese. Roll up tightly. Place, seam side down, over sauce. Top with the remaining sauce. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake, uncovered, 10 to 15 minutes longer or until the cheese is melted. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Rhubarb crumb-pie swells with flavor

RHUBARB STRAWBERRY CRUMB PIE

Filling:

- 1 egg
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 3 cups fresh rhubarb, chopped into 1/2-inch cubes
- 1 pint fresh strawberries, cut into halves
- 1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell

Topping:

- 3/4 cup flour
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 cup rolled oats or quick-cooking oats
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- Beat the egg in a large bowl. Add the sugar, flour and vanilla. Mix well. Fold in the rhubarb and strawberries. Pour into the pie shell. To make the topping, combine the flour, brown sugar and oats in a small bowl. Cut in the butter-till-it-is-crumbly.

Sprinkle over the top of the filling. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes. Then turn the temperature down to 350 and bake for another 35 minutes, till the crust is golden brown and the filling is bubbly.

Tomato soup spices up cake

By RaeAnne S. Sarazan
Chicago Tribune

This recipe first appeared in one of Campbell's cookbooks in the late 1920s or early 1930s, said Jeff Bedard, a spokesman for Campbell Soup Co. Classic Tomato Soup Spice Cake is one of the top-five requested recipes, along with the now-legendary green bean casserole made with cream mushroom soup. The cake is easy to make and tastes delicious — and no one will know a can of tomato soup is used, unless you tell them.

CLASSIC TOMATO SOUP-SPICE CAKE

Cake:

- 2 cups flour
- 1 1/3 cups sugar
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 1/2 teaspoons ground allspice
- 1 teaspoon each: baking soda, cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1 can (10.75 ounces) condensed tomato soup
- 1/2 cup vegetable shortening
- 2 eggs
- 1/4 cup water

Frosting:

- 2 sticks (1 cup) butter, softened
- 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
- 1 tablespoon milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 package (16 ounces) confectioners' sugar

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Combine flour, sugar, baking powder, allspice, baking soda, cinnamon and cloves together in large bowl of electric mixer. Mix in soup, shortening, eggs and water on low speed until well combined. Increase mixer speed to high beat 4 minutes. Four batter into two 8-inch round greased and floured cake pans. Bake until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean, about 35 minutes. Cool in pans on wire rack 10 minutes. Remove from pans. Cool completely before frosting.

For frosting, beat butter, cream cheese, milk and vanilla in bowl of electric mixer until light and fluffy. Slowly beat in sugar until smooth and of spreading consistency. Add more milk, 1 teaspoon at a time, if needed.

Minimalist cook offers recipes to ease the frazzled mind

By Cathy Thomas
The Orange County Register

Almost every week at my house, ground turkey is the star of a dinner-dash special. Quick cooking makes it an alluring weeknight choice. But my ground-turkey repertoire could use a little upgrading. Too often, ground gobbler ends up in one of the big three: Italian-style pasta sauce, meat-loaf or tacos. Good, but repetitive.

So when I heard that Mark Bittman, best-selling cookbook author and New York Times Minimalist cooking columnist, was in town, I invited him to my house to work some ground-turkey magic.

Bittman is a culinary hero to many. Frazzled short-on-time cooks turn to his no-nonsense style to help them get delectable-but-doable dinners on the table.

Bittman's demeanor is relaxed. His smile is confident as he thumbs through his latest book, "The Minimalist Cook Dinner," and finds recipes that feature ground meat and would work nicely with turkey.

and keep warm. Cook noodles, stirring, until tender, 3-5 minutes. Drain and toss with turkey mixture.

Garnish with remaining green onions and drizzle with sesame oil. Serve.

Yield: 4 servings

NOTE: Ground bean sauce is sold at Asian markets. Koon Chun is one brand; it contains ground soybeans, salt, flour, sesame oil, sugar and spices.

GROUND TURKEY POT STICKERS

3/4 pound ground turkey
1 cup finely minced cabbage
2 tablespoons minced fresh ginger

1 tablespoon minced garlic
6 green onions, white and green parts separated, both finely minced
1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons soy sauce, divided use
48 dumpling wrappers (see note)

1 egg, lightly beaten
Peanut or vegetable oil
1/4 cup rice OR white vinegar
Combine turkey, cabbage, ginger, garlic, white parts of green onions and 2 tablespoons soy sauce in bowl with 1/4 cup water. Lay wrapper on clean, dry surface and, using finger or brush, spread a bit of egg along half of circumference. Place a rounded teaspoon or so of filling in center of wrapper, fold over and seal by pinching edges together. Lay each dumpling on plate until you're ready to cook. If you want to wait a few hours, keep plate covered with plastic wrap and refrigerate until mealtime, or freeze for a few days. To cook, pour about 2 tablespoons oil into large nonstick skillet, turn heat to medium-high and heat for 1 minute. Add dumplings, 1 at a time, to oil. They can touch, but should sit flat in 1 layer. Cook about 2 minutes, or until bottoms of dumplings are lightly browned. Add 1/4 cup water per dozen dumplings to skillet (in other words, if you're cooking 2 dozen dumplings at a time, add 1/2 cup water and cover; lower heat to medium and cook 3 minutes. Meanwhile, make dipping sauce with .5 cup soy sauce, green parts of green onions and vinegar; stir.

After 3 minutes, uncover dumplings; raise heat again and cook 1-2 minutes until bottoms are dark brown and crisp (and water has evaporated). Use another 2 tablespoons oil to repeat process if necessary.

Serve hot with dipping sauce. Yield: About 48 pot stickers (4 main-course servings, or about 8 appetizer servings)

NOTE: Dumpling wrappers are often labeled gyoza wrappers (Japanese name for pot stickers). They are round, about 2 inches across. Many supermarkets sell them; look in the refrigerated deli.

Nutritional information (per pot sticker): 45 calories, 2.6 grams protein, 3.2 grams carbohydrates, 1.5 grams fat, 30 percent calories from fat, 11 milligrams cholesterol, 267 milligrams sodium

TURKEY-MUSHROOM 'CUT-LETS' WITH PARMESAN

1 ounce dried porcini OR shiitake mushrooms
4 ounces grated Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese, about 1 cup
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
Pinch salt

Directions:

1. Chop mushrooms, 3 tablespoons chopped Italian parsley
2. 1/2 pounds ground turkey
3. 2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil

Put dried mushrooms in bowl and cover with hot water; let rest 10 minutes. In large bowl, combine cheese, garlic, pepper, salt, parsley (if using) and turkey. Squeeze excess water from mushrooms, but do not wring dry. Add to turkey mixture. Toss to combine. Put olive oil in 12-inch nonstick skillet and turn heat to medium. Shape turkey mixture into 8 burger-shaped cakes.

Cook about 3 minutes per side, or until nicely browned and cooked through. Do not overcook; when burger feels firm to touch, it's done. Serve hot with any condiment you like. Yield: 8 "cutlets"

Nutritional information (per cutlet): 257 calories, 23.8 grams protein, 3.6 grams carbohydrates, 16.1 grams fat, 56 percent calories from fat, 76 milligrams cholesterol, 333 milligrams sodium

Roast beef warms a winter night

By Jimmy Schmidt
Detroit Free Press

ROAST BEEF TENDERLOIN WITH SMOKY SPICE CRUST
1 trimmed beef tenderloin, 5 to 6 pounds

Canola oil to moisten tenderloin
Coarse salt, such as sea salt or kosher

1/4 cup freshly ground Tellicherry or favorite black pepper

1/2 cup freshly ground espresso beans
1/2 cup premium cocoa powder

2 tablespoons New Mexican chili powder
4 cups dry red wine, preferably cabernet sauvignon or merlot

1/4 cup honey
2 tablespoons rosemary leaves
1/4 cup snipped fresh chives

1/2 cup white wine
2 tablespoons olive oil
1/4 cup melted extra bitter-sweet chocolate with 1 tablespoon unsalted butter

Rosemary for garnish
Preheat oven to 400 to 425 degrees. On a baking sheet, place the trimmed tenderloin. Dry the surface, if necessary, with paper towels. Rub the entire surface with oil, salt and black pepper. In a small bowl, combine the coffee, cocoa and chili powder. Rub the spice mixture over the surface and add more oil if dry. Transfer the tenderloin to the center of a roasting pan. Place the roast on the lower rack of the oven. After 15 minutes, reduce the temperature to 375 degrees for medium-well to well. Meanwhile, in a large saucepan, combine the red wine and the honey. Bring to a simmer over medium-high heat and cook until reduced to coat the back of a spoon, about 15 minutes. Strain through a fine sieve into a clean saucepan and reserve until the roast is done. In a small blender, combine the rosemary, chives and white wine. Puree while adding the olive oil until smooth. Add a little water if too thick. Season with salt and pepper. Insert an instant thermometer into the middle of the tenderloin to measure doneness, removing when just below the desired temperature is reached (about 145 degrees for medium-rare, 160 for medium).

To serve: Return the sauce to a simmer. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Add a pat of butter for a little extra holiday luxury. Transfer to a sauce boat for serving. Place the tenderloin on a warm serving platter. Glaze the surface of the tenderloin with the melted chocolate. Remove and cut the beef into slices about 1 to 1.5 inches thick. Place a couple of slices slightly overlapping on warmed serving plates. Spoon the red wine sauce over the slices. Drizzle the chive oil around the plate. Garnish with the rosemary sprigs. Serve immediately. Makes 8 servings.

Let burritos fill your void

By Carol Mighton Haddix
Chicago Tribune

One of the most versatile meats around has to be ground turkey. The mild flesh picks up whatever seasonings or sauces you care to throw its way. It is perfect for chilies or stir-fries, spaghetti sauce or the following burritos.
These burritos can be varied according to the items you may have on hand. Mushrooms would be a good addition, for example, as would cooked corn. Although the burritos are almost a meal in a wrapper, you may want to add a sliced tomato or sliced and sautéed zucchini to the menu. For dessert, crumbled oatmeal cookies make an easy parfait, layered with coffee or vanilla ice cream.

Look for Spanish and Hungarian paprikas in specialty food stores or spice shops. Regular paprika can be used, but will lack the punch. Chili powder also can be a substitute. Heat the tortillas wrapped in a clean kitchen towel in the microwave.
TURKEY BURRITOS WITH AVOCADO AND CILANTRO
Yield: 6 servings
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 red bell pepper, diced
1 yellow onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper

1 teaspoon smoked Spanish or hot Hungarian paprika
1 teaspoon cumin
1 pound ground turkey
1/2 cup chopped cilantro
1/2 small corn or flour tortillas, heated

1 avocado, peeled, diced
1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese, optional
Salsa, lime wedges, optional
Heat olive oil in large, heavy skillet. Add red pepper and onion; cook 3 minutes until softened. Add garlic; cook 1 minute. Add paprika and cumin, salt and pepper. Cook, stirring, 1 minute. Add turkey; cook, stirring to break up into small pieces, until cooked through, about 10 minutes. Stir in cilantro. Spoon turkey filling on each warm tortilla; top with avocado and cheese. Roll up. Serve with salsa and lime wedges for squeezing, if you like.

Internet provides substitute for secret hash brown recipe

By Linda Cicero
The Miami Herald

QUESTION: I am addicted to the hash brown casserole they serve at the Cracker Barrel restaurants.

I asked the waitress if they gave out the recipe and she said it was a secret.

-FRED,
BOYNTON BEACH, FLA.

ANSWER: I was unable to pry the recipe from the restaurant,

Cook's corner

but this is a version that has been passed around the Internet. It comes close, I think, to the restaurant's version. Using frozen hash browns cuts down on the effort, but I would recommend boiling 2 pounds of small red new potatoes until they are almost tender, then dicing them with the skins on, instead.

COULD BE CRACKER BARREL HASH BROWN CASSEROLE

Vegetable oil cooking spray
1 can condensed cream of mushroom, chicken or celery soup
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter or margarine, melted
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 medium onion, finely chopped
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
1 (32-ounce) bag frozen hash brown potatoes, partly thawed, or

2 pounds small, unpeeled red new potatoes, cooked and diced
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Lightly coat a 9-by-13-inch baking pan with vegetable oil spray. In a bowl combine the undrained soup, butter, salt, pepper, onions and cheese. Gently fold in the potatoes and pat into prepared dish. Bake, uncovered, for 40 minutes, or until heated through and lightly browned. Makes four breakfast-entree servings or eight side servings.

Cheers and jeers for high school spirit leaders

Statistically, the sport they play is the most dangerous of them all.

These student-athletes are constantly battling injuries and playing in pain to honor their schools. They practice hours a week and perform hours more.

Still, nobody but their moms and their coaches say "nice game."

They are cheerleaders. Instead of accolades, this is what they hear in the halls:

"If you spoke your mind, you'd be speechless."

"At the bottom of your college application where it said 'Sign here,' you put 'Sagittarius.'"

"You spent 20 minutes looking at the orange juice container because it said 'concentrate.'"

It's dead wrong.

Minico cheerleaders Katie Wrigley and Aubrey Schut are proof positive of that.

The pair of juniors has been named two of the best 100 cheerleaders in the nation by Camp USA Cheer Hawaii.

Both carry 3.8 grade-point averages.

"I don't know how we get the stereotype," Wrigley said. "At Minico, we always have the highest GPA of all the teams."

In addition to the school conduct form that other athletes must sign at Minico, the cheerleaders have another that goes far beyond the standard issue: It's how they must conduct themselves while representing the school.

"It takes a lot to be a basketball player," Wrigley said. "But it takes a lot to be a cheerleader, too."

Fourth hour of every school day, the cheerleaders practice under the direction of coach Vanessa Harper, perfecting their routines to excite the crowds and in preparation for their own state championship competition in early March in Boise.

"It takes 100 percent dedication," Schut said.

At the camp, they hope to only get better and improve their skills.

Both would like to lead cheers in college and they see the camp and the recognition that goes with it as a step in the right direction.

"This looks awesome on your application," Wrigley said.

But it's not all fun and games. Despite the injuries, which are prevalent in a sport as physically demanding as cheerleading with its constant jumps, twists and air acrobatics, neither Schut nor Wrigley has missed any time this year.

"Doctors never want us to cheer again, but we'll never give it up," Wrigley said.

Schut is the "flyer," who is thrown in the air. "I go as high as eye-level to the top bleachers," she said.

And it's her favorite part of cheerleading.

Wrigley said she likes it all equally.

"I would say I love stunting," she said. "But I couldn't live without tumbling."

Every coach should be so lucky to have such dedication from their teams.

Still want to poke fun?

"It's not about saying anything," said Wrigley, who like Schut, just laughs off the jokes without a trace of bitterness. "It's all about proving it wrong on the floor."

And in the classroom. And in the community. And in Hawaii as two of the elite 100 cheerleaders in the nation.

Can you top that? Then shut up.

NJCAA polls - D3

TWIN FALLS - Just mentioning the word Dixie brought smiles from the College of Southern Idaho's men's basketball team on Tuesday.

Saturday's roller-coaster 100-91 win over the archrival Rebels kept Southern Idaho the only remaining undefeated team in the Scenic West Athletic Conference after three weeks of league action.

"I thought it was a great basketball game to watch," Beach said. "I thought, in my opinion, by far, it was the two best teams in the league and probably two of the top five teams in the country. We had a great crowd, biggest in a long time, and they got to see some great basketball."

And for their hard work, the Golden Eagles (16-2, 6-0 SWAC) were rewarded with a ninth-place ranking in the latest National Junior College Athletic Association Division I men's basketball poll, released Tuesday. The Rebels (15-2, 4-1) dropped four spots to seventh.

When asked to choose between the two: beating Dixie or entering the top 10, it was no contest. "Dixie dropped from second to seventh," CSI coach Guy Beach said. "They're still in front of us even though we beat them, but we beat them here. I think that's fair. It's a paper thing and I don't think it dictates that we're the ninth best team in the country right now, but it's good for the kids, it's good for the program."

they've earned it," Sophomore point guard Ricky Clemons followed up his school-record 51-point performance Jan. 5 in an overtime win at Utah Valley State College with a game-high 30 points vs. Dixie State.

He said Saturday's win will go a long way toward the rest of the season.

"That was a big-time game," Clemons said. "We wanted to win the game as bad as anybody else

Spartans hold off Bruins

By Scott Thompson
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - As in any duel, the first to flinch loses.

And when Twin Falls gunslinger Kim Strunk missed a pair of free throws to break a 55-55 tie with 124 remaining in the game Tuesday and Minico sharpshooter Clare Bodensteiner followed by swishing a pair of free throws 30 seconds later, you had the feeling the game was Minico's.

And it was as the visiting Spartans (10-7, 4-2 Region III, ) went on to put away the conference game 60-55 and earn a regular-season sweep of the Bruins (7-9, 2-4).

But it wasn't without a fight. Especially from Strunk, who was back for her first game after suffering a knee injury.

The lone Bruin senior scored 24 points, including 12 points and four rebounds, even though she didn't start to get Twin Falls out front 20:14 after the first period.

"She's such a competitor," Spartan coach Clint Straatman said. "Bad knee and all she just refused to give up and kept battling."

Strunk hit on her first eight free throw attempts but seemed to run out of gas down the stretch as she carried the Bruins.

"She's missed some games and she's one of the people who we want the ball in their hands down the stretch," Bruin coach Lawrence Pfeiffer said. "I thought we battled hard. Unfortunately, we've been in this situation a lot this year."

Strunk wasn't the only one to come up big or battle hard.

She didn't miss from the stripe until 10 seconds left and the game was essentially over.

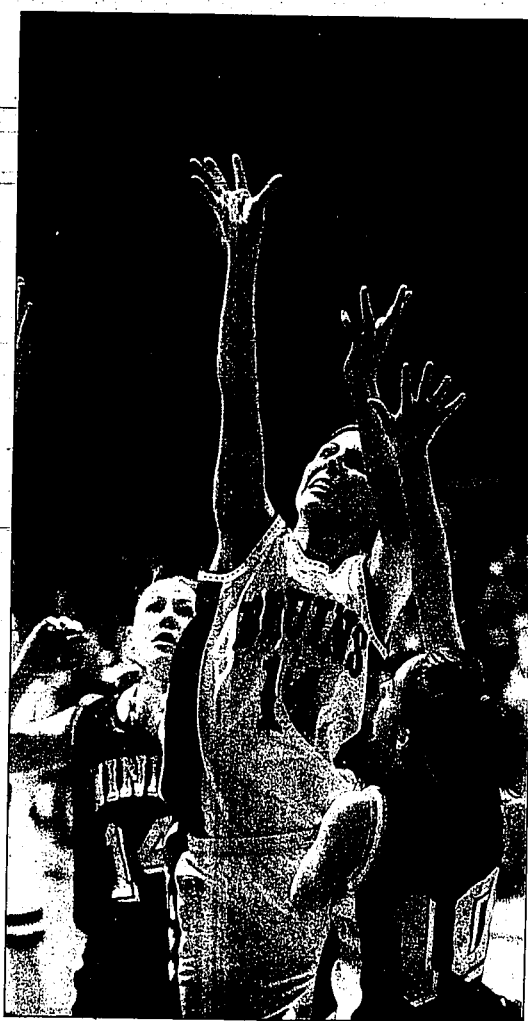

Bodensteiner also had a lot of help.

Particularly from junior Whitney Martin, who hit for 14 points and came up big in the second quarter after Twin Falls jumped out to the early lead.

Martin started a 10-0 Minico run with the Spartans trailing 24-19 when she hit a pair of buckets and forced a turnover by taking a charge.

Snake River girls coach resigns after striking parent

The Associated Press

THOMAS - The winning coach of Snake River High School's girls basketball team resigned following a post-game altercation with a team member's father.

Scott Rogers said Monday he was taking a leave of absence for the remainder of the season and will resign.

Witnesses said Rogers and Jay Van Orden exchanged words after the Saturday game before Rogers twice struck Van Orden, whose daughter, Britni, plays on the team.

"I think it is in the best interests of the girls and the program in stepping aside right now," Rogers said, commending his team.

The Panther's last at home Saturday night to the Bear Lake Bears, 63-59.

Rogers' resignation comes as his 12-4 team approaches the end of its regular season with four games left. He also is principal at Snake River Middle School and has coached boys baseball.

Assistant coach Cass Baldwin said Rogers' resignation will make it tough for the girls team as it approaches district tournaments.

"I won't say anything about the altercation because that's been taken care of," Baldwin said. "I feel bad it happened this time of year."

Braves pull off trade for Sheffield

The Associated Press

ATLANTA - Gary Sheffield got his wish Tuesday when the Los Angeles Dodgers traded him to the Atlanta Braves for Brian Jordan, Odalis Perez and a minor league pitcher.

The Braves struggled to find an offensive complement to Chipper Jones the past two seasons, while the Dodgers dealt with repeated complaints from Sheffield, who wanted a trade or a promise they'd keep him through the end of his contract in 2004.

"We've been looking for a hitter of this caliber for quite some time," Braves general manager John Schuerholz said. "We've been talking periodically with the Dodgers about Gary for the past year and were delighted we were able to get it done."

The demand by Sheffield, who hit .311 with 36 home runs and 100 RBIs last season, didn't lead to the trade, Los Angeles GM Dan Evans insisted.

"We didn't get rid of Gary Sheffield," Evans said. "We made the trade because we felt it was a lot of sense for us."

Jordan, often the subject of trade rumors, hit .295 with 25 home runs and 97 RBIs in 2001.

"I'm still in shock," said Jordan, who makes his home in the Atlanta area. "This is going to take me away from my family. You get used to being home, and then you have to tell your kids we're going to be apart."

Spurrier admits he has a lot to learn in NFL

The Associated Press

ASHBURN, Va. - Steve Spurrier will still wear the Steve. He'll still yell at players, even though they're older. He's still going to run the "Fun N' Gun" system, and he'll keep running up the score when he has a chance.

On most everything else, Spurrier pleaded ignorance Tuesday on his first full day in the NFL.

"I need to learn a lot," said Spurrier, who joined the Washington Redskins with a record five-year, $25 million contract.

"I need to learn who all the players are, and the organization, all part of it. The playbook? I've got a playbook. We've got plays we can run up the middle all day or we can scatter out and throw it. We got plenty of plays. That won't be a problem. Learning about the NFL is something I'm looking forward to."

The former University of Florida coach was his usual colorful, comical and candid self during a 40-minute news conference Tuesday at Redskins Park. He spoke of the tedium he felt after 12 years of coaching the Gators, his desire to emulate former Redskins coach Joe Gibbs, and his policy of having practices that are less physical - a point so well taken that defensive end Bruce Smith declared on the spot that he'll return for another season.

"He's a coach that believes you should burn it on the game field instead of the practice field," said the 38-year-old Smith, who said he was considering retirement had Marty Schottenheimer returned.

Hailey resident Willander will enter tennis hall

NEWPORT, Rhode Island - Tennis great Mats Wilander and Pam Shriver will be inducted into the International Tennis Hall of Fame on July 13, hall officials announced Tuesday.

Wilander, born in Vaxjo, Sweden, but now residing in Hailey, captured eight Grand Slam titles, including seven singles championships, during his career. He was a member of Sweden's championship Davis Cup teams in 1984, '85 and '87 and became the youngest man to win a Grand Slam when he won the 1982 French Open at 17 years, 9 months. That record has since been broken by Boris Becker and Michael Chang.

Wilander still plays on the Champions Senior Tour and coaches former No. 1 player Marat Safin.

Idaho State assistant golf coach dies

POCATELLO - Ron Peterson, Idaho State University's assistant golf coach, died Monday night in an apparent suicide. He was 47.

Peterson served as the head men's golf coach from 1996 to 2001. His team finished second in the Big Sky Conference in 2000. Also under his leadership, Idaho State captured its first individual Big Sky title, won by Brett Woods, in 2001.

Peterson also was the university's director of housing since 1991. Before coming to Idaho, he worked as director of Housing and Student Activities at Northwest College in Powell, Wyo.

NCAA president will retire at end of year

INDIANAPOLIS - Cedric Dempsey is retiring as NCAA president, ending a nearly nine-year run with the college sports governing body that included the signing of two major television contracts.

Dempsey played an instrumental role in the NCAA's contracts with ESPN and CBS that will generate $6.2 billion over 11 years, beginning in 2003. He also led the restructuring of the organization's governing body, and presided over the NCAA's move from Overland Park, Kan., to Indianapolis in 1999.

On Tuesday, Dempsey said he would retire at the end of this year after holding the organization's top job since 1994.

Iverson nets career-best 58 for Sixers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Allen Iverson led a career-high 58 points, the most in an NBA game in almost two years and the fourth-highest total in team history, as the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Houston Rockets 112-106 in overtime Tuesday night.

Iverson shot 21-of-42 and made all 14 of his free throws for his team's record 20-point game, including two games in the playoffs. It was the fifth 50-point game in the NBA this season, coming one night after Kobe Bryant scored 56 in just three quarters for the Los Angeles Lakers.

Iverson's previous career-high was 54, accomplished twice. The franchise record is 68 points by Wilt Chamberlain in 1968.

Bucks 106, Pacers 102

INDIANAPOLIS - Tim Thomas scored 25 points and Sam Cassell and Ray Allen each had 23 as Milwaukee held off a late rally.

The Bucks led by as many as 20 in the second half and by 15 early in the fourth before going nearly 4.5 minutes without a basket. That allowed the Pacers, playing without Reggie Miller (ejected) and Jermaine O'Neal (injured), to climb back.

Raptors 92, Pistons 90

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. - Vince Carter scored 24 points, including a game-winning dunk with 2:26 remaining and two go-ahead free throws with 13:4 seconds left for Toronto.

Jerry Stackhouse scored a season-high 38 for Detroit, which has lost 13 of 16.

Mavericks 116, Hawks 107

ATLANTA - Dirk Nowitzki scored 40 points as Dallas topped Atlanta 116-107.

Atlanta got a career-best 46 points from Jason Terry, but it wasn't enough to prevent the Hawks' fourth straight loss.

T'wolves 97, Clippers 83

MINNEAPOLIS - Wally Sczerbiak scored 21 points, and Minnesota won its ninth straight game.

Spurs 96, Wizards 91

WASHINGTON - Tim Duncan came back from a 4-of-22 start to score 16 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter as the San Antonio Spurs held off the Washington Wizards 96-91 Tuesday night.

Hibert Davis led Washington with a season-high 22 points on 10-for-14 shooting. Chris Whitley added season-highs of 20 points and four steals. Jai'el White finished with a career-high 19 rebounds and 15 points.

Hornets 94, Bulls 86

CHICAGO - David Wesley tied his season-high with 26 points and Baron Davis added 16 points and 11 assists Tuesday night as the Charlotte Hornets beat the Chicago Bulls 94-86.

Marcus Fizer made things interesting in the last minute, hitting back-to-back 3-pointers to pull Chicago to 90-86 with 17 seconds left. But Wesley, who had 11 points in the fourth quarter, made four free throws to seal the victory.

Ron Artest led the Bulls with 22, and Fizer added 16 points and 10 rebounds.

Bruians

Continued from D1 break following Spartan steals. "I felt that we needed a momentum change there," Streamant said. "We have some quick players who see the court well."

Martin also came up big late when she hit a pair of free throws to knot the score at 55-55 after Strunk hit from the post to give meeting between the schools as they figure to match up in the first round of the district tournament.

And that was when Bodenstiner came up with the two big free throws to give the Spartans the lead for good.

Amanda Hoyer didn't play for Twin Falls because of a hand kneecap. Pfeifferle said. She'll be evaluated on a day-to-day basis. It will likely not be the last meeting between the schools as they figure to match up in the first round of the district tournament.

Spurrer

Continued from D1 Spurrer made it clear that he doesn't want to run the whole operation. A general manager will be hired in the next couple of weeks, and owner Dan Snyder will have the last word.

"I'm in complete agreement with the way Dan Snyder wants to run this team," Spurrer said. "If there's a disagreement, Mr. Snyder will make the call."

Snyder gave Schottenheimer that authority a year ago, and it was Snyder's desire to regain that power - along with Spurrer's sudden availability - that led to Schottenheimer's dismissal Sunday night.

Spurrer is Snyder's fourth coach since the owner bought the team in 1999. The last two seasons have proved that 8-8 isn't good enough for the impatient owner, but Spurrer is an impatient man's dream.

Before going to Florida, he turned Duke into an instant winner - a rarity at a school that's nearly all basketball. He was also an assistant at Duke in the early 1980s.

"Someone asked if I could survive Dan Snyder's Spurrer said. 'I said I survived Duke twice.'"

Spurrer's contract surpasses the previous NFL high of $4 million a year Mike Holmgren receives as Seattle's coach and general manager.

Rookie Ilya Kovalchuk and Lubos Bartek also scored for the Thrashers, who extended their unbeaten streak to four games (3-0-1).

Lightning 5, Devils 4, OT
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Zdeno Ciger scored his third goal of the game at 12:55 of overtime to lift the Lightning.

Vincent Lecavalier had a goal and three assists and Nikolai Khabibulin came off the bench in the third period and stopped 20 of 21 shots to keep Tampa Bay in the game.

Hurricanes 2, Wild 0
RALEIGH, N.C. — Aaron Ward and Bates Battaglia scored and Arturs Iisums recorded his 32nd career shutout as Carolina snapped a three-game home losing streak.

Blues 3, Oilers 2
ST. LOUIS — Chris Pronger and Keith Tkachuk scored power-play goals as St. Louis extended its winning streak to six games.

The Blues, who rank second in the league with 27 home power-play goals, scored on the man advantage for the fifth time in six games.

Islanders 3, Flames 1
CALGARY, Alberta — Adrian Aounsoo scored two goals, snapping a 40-game scoreless streak, as the New York Islanders beat the Calgary Flames 3-1 on Tuesday night.

Sharks 1, Avalanche 0, OT
DENVER — Teemu Selanne scored with three seconds left in overtime to lift the San Jose Sharks to a 1-0 victory over the Colorado Avalanche on Tuesday night.

With time running out, Colorado defenseman Rob Blake lost the puck in the corner to Marco Sturm, who passed to Selanne in the left circle for the game-winner.

Sharks goalie Evgeni Nabokov stopped 38 shots.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — With his rivals hobbling and aching, Pat Sampras' chances for another Grand Slam title are looking better.

The second round of the Australian Open starts with the first three seeded men missing — the first time that has happened in any Grand Slam event.

Lleyton Hewitt, who rose to No. 1 last year after beating Sampras for the U.S. Open title and then winning the Masters Cup, lost Tuesday to Spain's Alberto Martin 1-6, 6-1, 6-4, 7-6 (4).

Still drained from his bout with chicken pox, the 20-year-old Aussie said he would not have played if this had been anything but a Grand Slam.

was 1990, when Alexander Volkov beat Stefan Edberg.

No. 2 Gustavo Kuerten lost Monday to France's Julien Boutter and said a long-standing hip injury hobbled him in the late sets. No. 3 Andre Agassi, the champion in 2000 and 2001 and holder of seven Grand-Slam titles, withdrew before the start to avoid further hurting his wrist.

Sampras, who has a men's record 13 Grand Slam singles titles, is seeded No. 8 after a year in which he didn't win any tournaments, something that last happened in 1989.

But he has been training hard, feeling fresh and playing well in his last two matches — an exhibition victory over Agassi on Saturday and a 6-3, 6-4 win over Finland's Jarkko Nieminen in his Australian Open on Tuesday.

Professor's class gets seniors exercising

By Amie Thompson
Times-News correspondent

It started with a handful of elderly women doing yoga in a local warehouse more than 20 years ago.

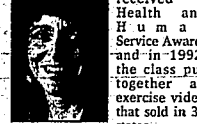

Today, Jan Mittleider's Over 60 and Getting Fit aerobics class has grown to a gym-full of seniors around the Magic Valley dedicated to getting stronger.

"The gymnasium is wall-to-wall people," she said. The class walks, does resistance training, stretching, balance and flexibility exercises. Students range in age from 60 to mid-90s.

More than 75 letters of recommendation were submitted to the Olympic torch relay nominating committee on Mittleider's behalf. "It's a wonderful honor for a teacher to have that kind of recognition from students," Mittleider said.

But that's not the first recognition the Twin Falls woman has received. In fact, she has a hard time remembering all the awards the class has won.

About 15 years ago, she received a Health and Human Services Award, and in 1992, the class put together an exercise video that sold in 35 states.

Jan Mittleider, 55, is a health education professor at the College of Southern Idaho. She teaches about five to seven classes each semester, but it is the Over 60 class for which she is known.

Similar classes are popping up all over the nation, but she has been teaching hers for more than two decades.

Mittleider received a bachelor's and master's degree in physical education from Idaho State University. CSI was her first job out of college and she's been there 32 years.

"I came here to be here only

The 2002 Olympic torch will be carried through Twin Falls between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Jan. 26, followed by a city-wide celebration. An area selection committee chose 42 people to be among the 11,500 inspiring Americans who will carry the torch along a path that begins Dec. 4 in Atlanta and ends Feb. 8 in Salt Lake City, with the opening of the games. Leading up to the games, The Times-News will profile local Olympic torch runners.

one year and I ended up staying," she said.

Mittleider married Twin Falls lawyer, Leon Smith and they have three young children.

RED CROSS DONORS

MARGARET KINGS/The Times-News

Annie Thomson presents a $4,275.85 check to Red Cross representative Marty Buss. The presentation was made in Cheryl Day's fourth-grade class at Hansen Elementary on Day and Ute Thomson watch. The students wanted to help the victims of the Sept. 11 tragedy and decided to donate nickels for the Red Cross disaster fund. The nickels were deposited in the bank and a check given to the Red Cross.

Shooting injures two students

NEW YORK (AP) — A teenager opened fire in the hallway at a high school near Lincoln Center on Tuesday, seriously wounding two fellow students in what may have been a gang-related shooting, authorities say.

The shooting on Manhattan's Upper West Side occurred at Martin Luther King Jr. High School on what would have been the 73rd birthday of the apostle of nonviolence. The public school has 3,000 students.

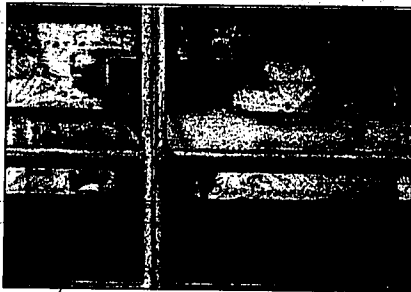

Authorities did not immediately give a motive, but schools Chancellor Harold Levy said the shooting may have been gang-related. He said the suspect was an 18-year-old who had not been attending school.

Police spokesman Lt. Brian Burke said a young man outside the school was questioned, but no one had been arrested by Tuesday evening.

"We were in school and we heard two gunshots," said senior Romain Morrison, 17. "They were telling everyone to get out of the hallways."

Authorities said Andre Napper, 17, and Andre Wilkins, 18, were shot from behind in a fourth-floor hallway. One was shot in the back and the other in the buttocks, and both were listed in serious condition.

with three shell casings, authorities said.

"The school was swiftly locked down and students kept in their classrooms as police in riot gear swept the building on Amsterdam Avenue between 65th and 66th streets.

"They wanted us to be in the room, locked up until they had things under control," said senior Gladys Alvarez, 17, who was locked in a classroom for more than an hour.

and X-ray machines were working Tuesday. Police Commissioner Ray Kelly said.

Teacher Octavia Mellan said the school had previous problems with students breaching security.

She said students would pass through the metal detectors, then open side doors for their friends to smuggle guns and other items inside.

"It's been a constant concern with the faculty and the student body," she said.

Bush urges more trade authority

NEW ORLEANS — President Bush pressed the Senate on Tuesday to grant him trade promotion authority, saying those who would withhold that power don't believe American goods can generate enough demand overseas to create jobs at home.

With the Port of New Orleans as a backdrop, Bush fretted about persistent unemployment and accused the Democratic-controlled Senate of stalling trade legislation in order to thwart his efforts to address the problem.

The Senate is to vote this year on granting Bush authority to negotiate "fast-track" trade agreements, which Congress could reject but not amend. Bush says he wants to use this authority to put more U.S. goods into world markets and hasten the nation's economic recovery.

Many Democrats and labor and conservation groups oppose fast-track because they fear it would threaten American jobs and make it easier for polluters to challenge environmental-protection laws. Bush said they simply want to "shut down trade."

OMAHA, Neb. — A federal jury deliberated for just 15 minutes Tuesday before acquitting a Colorado businessman of trying to board an airplane with a handgun packed in his briefcase.

Douglas E. Miller, 65, of Highlands Ranch, Colo., said he packed the .38-caliber revolver months before and had forgotten about it when he went to board a flight at Omaha's Eppley Airfield on Nov. 10.

Miller was arrested after security workers found the gun buried beneath paperwork. He said he started carrying the gun last year after he was harassed while trying to change a flat tire.

Prosecutors said heightened security at airports after the Sept. 11 attacks should have triggered Miller's memory about the gun. Defense attorney Bill Gallup said prosecutors were pressured to charge Miller because of the attacks.

"This is a political case," Gallup said. "Do you know anybody in his right mind who's going to go through an airport with a gun?"

Lawyer: Man charged with killing was given drug

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A fast-food worker accused of killing two colleagues and wounding a third was high on an illegal drug that someone slipped into his drink without his knowledge, his lawyer said.

Braheem Nichols, 22, believes one of the victims slipped some form of Ecstasy into his drink while they were working Dec. 10 at a KFC/Taco Bell in suburban Malvern, attorney Charles Peruto Jr. said.

"He believes it was Ecstasy because the victims often spoke of doing it and offered it to him and wanted him to do it with them," Peruto said. He said Nichols' defense would be "involuntary intoxication."

CNN agrees to contract extension with Larry King

PASADENA, Calif. — CNN has agreed to a four-year contract extension with talk show host Larry King that keeps him as the cable network's highest-paid personality.

The contract pays King nearly $7-million a year in base salary, but stock options and other incentives could make it worth much more, according to an executive close to the negotiations who asked for anonymity. The New York Post said the deal was worth $56 million.

"For the viewers, for Larry, for us, for everybody, it's a great decision to know that Larry will be there in that position for years to come," said Jamie Kellner, chairman of CNN parent Turner Broadcasting.

Schools chief faces criticism

BOISE (AP) — State schools Superintendent Marilyn Howard was chastised on Tuesday for seeking more money to implement new education standards — an effort some lawmakers thought they fully funded last year.

An angry House Education Chairman Fred Tilman told Howard his understanding last winter was that the $8 million request he supported before legislative budget writers would be a one-time request.

"To come back now and tell us that we need another $8 million, I'm shocked and a little bit concerned about the way this thing was handled," the Boise Republican said. "I'm just very frustrated that we're not getting accurate information on the decisions you want us to make."

House Appropriations Chairman Maxine Bell agreed with Tilman that legislators believed they were approving all the money the Department of Education would need to help public schools implement standards for student knowledge and ability.

Howard said she would check her records, and her office later provided transcripts of her remarks to House Education and Joint Finance Appropriations committees during the 2001 session.

Those documents backed her position that lawmakers were told implementing kindergarten-through-high school standards for science, social studies, language arts and communications, mathematics and health would be a multiyear effort.

"Will we ask for more money next year and beyond? Yes," according to Howard's Feb. 1, 2001, comments to the Education Committee. "Every bit of research I've read suggests that it will take a sustained effort of support over at least six years."

She also told legislative budget writers, including Bell, "This is not a one-year process. At the least, we expect three years to make this enormous transition."

Gov. Dirk Kempthorne is seeking $4 million in his budget request to pay for standards assessments. But Howard said on Tuesday that testing before schools have a chance to develop curriculum and train teachers to the standards would be like demanding satisfaction with a product before it is delivered.

"We see teaching and testing as a continuum," she said. "We're trying to do it right. We don't want a backslash."

The graduating class of 2005 will be the first held accountable for meeting the standards.

Group works toward renaming streets

TWIN FALLS - Business people have made some headway on a proposal to rename the streets in the original section of Twin Falls.

Evan Horsley, co-chairman of the Historic Old Towne Business Improvement District's design committee, said committee members have come to a consensus to propose naming the streets alphabetically, skipping Shoshone.

Under the proposal, he added, the first letter of the name would be significantly larger than the rest of the name so directions could go by the alphabet or by names and be clear to residents and out-of-towners. So far, the committee is talking only about the streets, and not the avenues.

He said the street renaming would start, as previously suggested, at the corner of Washington and Addison.

Also, BID members are interested in where the Idaho Transportation Department is on a BID proposal to have the state turn over the one-way Second Avenue to the city of Twin Falls. Horsley said design committee members will meet with the ITD Friday on that topic.

The BID already has turned over to the city a number of letters supporting the change, and the city has supported the project in concept. Horsley said a letter sent to the BID said the support is based on the assumption the city can come to a reasonable conclusion with ITD on an alternate route for U.S. Highway 30.

Kmart stock plunges nearly 14 percent

DETROIT - Shares of Kmart Corp. plunged close to 14 percent Tuesday, fueled by concerns over a possible bankruptcy filing amid a series of downgrades by analysts and investment rating agencies.

Shares were down 39 cents to $2.45 each on the New York Stock Exchange.

Kmart's Magic Valley stores are in Burley and Twin Falls.

Kmart spokesman Jack Ferry confirmed the company's board of directors was holding a previously scheduled meeting Tuesday and also held committee meetings Monday.

Ferry declined to say what the board was discussing, but sources close to the company said board members were discussing the retailer's financial choices, including a bankruptcy filing.

Analysts expect that Kmart, the nation's third largest discounter behind Wal-Mart Stores Inc. and Target Corp., could close as many as 200 to 400 of its approximately 2,100 stores.

Deep resentment

Enron Corp. retiree Charles Prestwood talks about his disappointment in his former employer Friday at his home in Conroe, Texas. After working 33 years in the energy industry, Prestwood watched as his retirement account was almost completely obliterated when Enron stock plummeted last fall. The peak value of Prestwood's account was about $1.3 million.

Treatment during Enron's collapse angers former employees

The Associated Press

HOUSTON (AP) - Losing his retirement investment in Enron Corp. was one thing. What really hurt, says Charles Prestwood, was realizing that his unwavering corporate loyalty ran only one direction.

"We had great trust, great loyalty," said Prestwood, 63, who retired as a plant operator in 2000. "We were trained loyalty above everything. And we were loyal. When you have that type of indoctrination for many years, it's going to get in the way of your life eventually."

More than a month after Enron shed more than 5,000 worldwide jobs and its stock bottomed out, retirees and laid-off workers from all walks of life are still facing up to the ways the enormous debacle has stung them.

Enron employees whose 401(k) accounts were filled with company stock watched helplessly as countless bad news obliterated their value last fall, while a book-keeping mechanism barred them from cashing out.

"I'll never trust my employer quite the same again," said Tim Dalton, a corporate security specialist who was among the 4,500 Houston workers laid off in December.

Enron chairman Kenneth Lay

"was like the Pied Piper. We followed him like lemmings into the sea," said Deborah DeForge, who might have to leave Houston for the West Coast to find work.

Congressional committees as well as the Justice and Labor departments want to know why many senior Enron executives and board members sold their stock when it was still valuable, while workers were barred from selling stock in their 401(k) funds.

Enron says its stock price, which stood at about $80 a year ago, already was down to $13.88 when a coincidental 10-day freeze on 401(k) transactions was implemented because the plan changed administrators. By the time transactions could resume, the price was $9.98. It now sells for about 68 cents.

The peak value of Prestwood's retirement account, about $1.3 million, might sound lavish. But he had intended to live simply off the dividends, plus Social Security and a small pension, withdrawing money only for things like "replacing the lawn mower or refrigerator if they break."

What so hurts about the whole deal is that something you devote your whole life to, you see it destroyed right in front of your eyes," he said in his home on a quiet wooded country lot 40 miles north of Houston.

Prestwood is one of a number of former Enron workers who have filed lawsuits over their 401(k)s.

Dalton has funded some of his energies into a Web site, <http://www.thecrookede.com>, where he sells Enron-bashing T-shirts. Some of the proceeds go to a fund he's established to help fellow Enron exes.

"We told someone we hope to sell some T-shirts for two to five months until it dies down," Dalton said. "Die down?" he said. "You'll be selling T-shirts all year as all the dishonesty and crookedness is exposed."

The anger also hasn't diminished for DeForge, who is a plaintiff in "every suit I can get my hands on" and doesn't want to rest "until they're behind bars."

Astaris will fight PUC authority in power deal

The Associated Press

BOISE - Astaris will fight the Idaho Public Utilities Commission's authority to intervene in an energy buyback contract between the St. Louis-based company and Idaho Power Co.

Astaris attorney Robert Pomeroy, with Holland and Hart in Boise, told the commission that the company believes the investigation into the price Astaris is being paid for power is unfair to the company.

Last week the commission agreed to investigate the rates Idaho Power Co. is paying for power it is buying back from Astaris over a two-year period that expires in March 2003.

The buyback contract, signed in April 2001, pays Astaris nearly $200,000 a day to not use electricity at its Pocatello-based phosphorus plant. The contract was approved by the commission at a time when power rates were skyrocketing and Idaho Power was looking at affordable ways to save electricity.

The $159-a-megawatt-hour price negotiated in the contract seemed appropriate at the time, but commission staff said prices now are back to $20 to $30 a megawatt hour. Officials said if the buyback price were adjusted to current market rates it could save Idaho Power rate payers nearly $35 million.

In a response filed with the commission this week, Astaris officials said they had made company decisions based on the overall value of the two-year contract.

The company said the costs associated with shutting down two electric furnaces at its Pocatello operations to provide the energy to Idaho Power can only be recovered through the buyback contract.

The commission contends it has the authority to intervene in a contract if it is not serving the best interests of rate payers.

Idaho Power Co. must prove need before making purchase

The Associated Press

BOISE - Idaho Power Co. must prove it still needs the power it wants to buy from the proposed Astaris power plant near Middleton.

In a unanimous decision this week, the Idaho Public Utilities Commission denied the company's request to expedite the buying process that would require rate payers to help pay for electricity purchased from the utility's sister company.

Idaho Power is the publicly regulated subsidiary of Ida Corp., the Boise holding company which also owns Garnet LLC and its parent company, Ida-West Energy Co. Garnet is building the power plant.

identified, several things have changed," said commissioner Dennis Hansen.

Among the changes are the loss of Idaho Power's largest electric customer, Pocatello-based phosphorus company Astaris, and a rapid drop in wholesale energy prices.

In the spring, one megawatt of power sold for $300 or more on the wholesale market. Now that megawatt goes for about $30.

"We're not suggesting that you don't need the extra power," Hansen said. "We'd just like you to reassess the numbers and make sure the commission that the need still exists."

Agency criticizes Qwest

The Association Press

DENVER - A recent notice sent by Qwest to its customers about the planned use of customers' information was "inadequate," according to a state utility watchdog group in Colorado.

"We think the notice is not clear to consumers about what they need to do to preserve their information from being shared and what protection" they would have, said Ken Reif, director of the Colorado Office of Consumer Counsel.

"The bottom line is that we think consumers ought to have the right to knowingly control the use of their information," Reif said.

He said the counsel is studying whether it should, or how it would, challenge Qwest.

The Denver-based Qwest Communications International Inc., which provides local phone service in a 14-state Western region, including much of Magic Valley, told customers in recent bills that it may share customer information with certain companies unless the customer specifically asks Qwest not to do that.

In Arizona, regulators are so concerned about the plan they have set up an open meeting today on the issue.

Colorado's Public Utilities Commission said it has gotten 25 complaints so far, but that would not be enough to prompt any action. "So far it's not on the agenda," said PUC spokeswoman Barbara Fernandez.

Information that could be used by the company could include telephone services used, billing information and places called.

Qwest spokesman Steve Hammack said the sharing would be with related companies and the notice and plan conform with rules and are "similar and consistent with notices sent out by the rest of the telecom industry or about to be sent out."

Dian Callaghan of the Colorado Office of Consumer Counsel said that state's PUC disclosure rules clearly require a customer to give his or her permission before personal information is disclosed to a third party. In fact, "Qwest could not disclose to a third party unless a third party has signed approval by the customer."

Hammack said Qwest shares information "only to our family of companies and others authorized to help customers get Qwest services."

The telephone number for consumers to call is 1-877-628-3732.

Having many credit cards has pros and cons

Question: I have obtained quite a few credit cards over the years. Most of the records have zero balances and I don't use them. There are two opinions about owning too many credit cards. One says your credit rating will be affected by having so many credit cards. The other says you have a better rating because you have a very high total credit line combined from all the accounts and you use only a small portion. Which is correct? Should I close all these unused accounts?

Answer: Your question is common enough, and the answer complicated enough, that the rest of this column will be devoted to answering it.

But if you're in a hurry, here's the short version: Both opinions may be correct, and you may not want to close those extra accounts.

Your ability to get credit is based on many factors, some of which are used to compute a three-digit figure known as your credit score. Your credit score incorporates information such as how long you've had credit, the total credit available to you, how much of that credit you use and whether you've had trouble making payments, among other factors, said Craig Watts, head of consumer affairs for Fair, Isaac & Co., the leading credit scoring company.

If your balances are small and your total credit limit is high, that indeed could help your score.

But that's not the whole picture. Your credit score does not include information about your

MONEY TALK Liz Pulliam Walk

Income. Many lenders, however, ask much more when you apply for a loan so they can determine your ability to repay.

A lender who has access to your income and financial statements might well decide that all that plastic is a menace, because you could suddenly decide to max out all your credit limits and be unable to pay back your obligations.

Also, if you applied for a number of credit cards in a short period and you haven't had credit for a long time, lenders probably will see you as a bigger risk than if you had fewer cards, Watts said.

Fair Isaac advises consumers to protect their credit score by applying for credit sparingly. (That's good advice for protecting your financial health, as well.)

Once a credit line is open, however, closing it really won't improve your credit score, Watts said.

In fact, if you carry a balance on any of your credit cards, closing accounts can hurt your score. That's because the credit score formula looks at the difference between the amount of credit you've been granted and the amount you're actually using, Watts said. Suddenly closing off a bunch of credit lines can make the balance on every loan larger, and take points off your score.

You also can do damage by losing an account you've had for a long time. A lengthy history of credit helps your score, so you may want to hang on to that credit card you had in college, even if you never use it.

That doesn't mean you should never close a credit card account, however. Having too many cards can be an invitation to disaster in other ways.

For one thing, it's hard to keep track of more than two or three credit card accounts. Credit card companies are constantly changing their terms, and a moment's inattention could lead you into paying more in interest charges or fees.

More accounts mean more of your financial information is floating around in the mail as well. Credit thieves love to steal statements and those pesky "convenience checks" from mailboxes and use them to run up charges in your name.

Having a lot of department store charge cards may not help your score much either. These cards tend to be easier to get, which is why they're a good starter card for people who are building or rebuilding credit. But they don't help your credit rating as much as hard-to-get credit cards do.

As finally having a lot of credit cards could be catastrophic for someone who has trouble controlling his or her spending. Shutting those accounts could be the best solution in the long run, even if it does temporarily ding your credit score.

Here are some things to keep in mind when closing accounts:

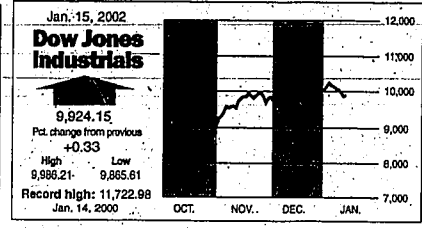

Your best strategy, both for your credit and your financial health, is not to carry a balance on any of your credit cards. If you don't carry a balance on any card, you can close as many accounts as you'd like without hurting your score.

If you do carry a balance on any of your cards, make sure you don't start closing accounts right before you want to apply for a major loan such as a mortgage or car financing. Wait until after you're approved.

Don't cancel an account that still has a balance. Pay it off first, or transfer it to another card. Wait a month or two to make sure you get a statement that reports a zero balance to the interest charges and fees.

Don't shut off longtime accounts. Opt to close department store cards and more recent unused lines of credit first.

Wall Street rebounds after six straight losing sessions

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street rebounded Tuesday, lured by cheaper stock prices after six straight losing sessions but still anxious about impending earnings reports.

With fourth-quarter results imminent — including Intel's, out after the close of trading — investors were wary of taking many gains. Stocks gave up solid, early gains and fluctuated sharply throughout the afternoon.

Everyone is a little cautious here. They don't need any surprises," said Larry Rice, chief investment officer at Josephthal & Co.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed up 32.73, or 0.3 percent, at 9,924.15 after swinging between a 9.94-point gain and 26-point loss.

The Dow also ended a six-session losing streak during which it dropped 368.32, or 3.6 percent, to $19.75. That's the steepest decline since the Sept. 11 terror attacks, and then five more attacks, and then five more attacks.

Poor's 500 index advanced 7.78, or 0.7 percent, to 1,146.19.

Analysts were predicted choppy trading for the remainder of the month, saying individual earnings reports could move the market in either direction.

"As the market tries to digest each report, there is going to be some volatility," said Brian Beltski, fundamental market strategist for US Bancorp Piper Jaffray.

Stocks are also vulnerable to profit taking as investors evaluate how far prices have risen since the lows following the Sept. 11 attacks. As of Monday, the Dow was 20 percent above its Sept. 21 low of 8,235.81. The Nasdaq was nearly 40 percent above its low, and the S&P 500, up almost 18 percent.

"Even though the market has come down recently, it's still on the overvalued side. That's what the technology sector has done. The investor sector has digested," Rice said.

The broader market also finished higher after a day of wide fluctuations. The Nasdaq composite index rose 10.17, or 0.5 percent, to 2,009.91. The Standard &

Holiday shopping keeps on even keel

WASHINGTON (AP) - Consumers, defying predictions they would turn into Scrooges, spent on clothes, electronics and home furnishings in December and prevented the sharp drop in retail sales that many analysts were forecasting.

The Commerce Department reports Tuesday that sales at the nation's retailers edged up 0.1 percent in December from the previous month, a much better decline many economists were predicting. In November, sales fell by a steep 3 percent.

As the year ends, the holiday season thinking has to be disassembled. In fact, consumers held up fairly well, said Carl Tannenbaum, chief economist with LaSalle Bank/ABN-AMRO.

"People are feeling more confident in the economy and they are expressing that with their dollars," Consumer confidence, as measured by the Conference Board, rebounded strongly in December after three months of steep declines.

On Wall-Street, stocks moved higher. The Dow Jones industrial average closed up 27.73 points at 9,924.15.

But whether that timetable is accurate depends in part on whether consumers - whose spending accounts for about 70 percent of all economic activity - reduce spending in the coming months.

Some economists are concerned that a worsening employment picture could jolt Americans' confidence, causing consumers to sharply pull back spending, which could mean a rebound or make for a weak year.

"Consumers aren't buckling," says economist Clifford Waldman of Wall Street Analysts. "They are spending selectively."

Economists said consumers have shown resilience amid economic gloom and rising unemployment. The country tipped into recession in March and was clearly a terror, with national unemployment rate hit a six-year high of 5.8 percent in December.

For all of 2001, retail sales rose by 3.4 percent. While that was a big moderation from the 7.6 percent increase in 2000, it showed that consumer spending didn't collapse. Still, the 3.4 percent increase was the weakest showing since the government began tracking retail sales using the current classification system in 1993.

Economists said lower energy prices, heavy discounting by merchants, low interest rates and a continuing boom in housing has left people with extra cash in their pockets - a helping support consumer spending.

To revive the economy, the Federal Reserve cut interest rates 11 times last year. That pushed the prime rate to a benchmark for many consumers and business loans to the lowest level since November 1965.

Some analysts are predicting the Fed's action will set the stage for a recovery in the first half of this year. But that's a long way from predicting the Fed's action will set the stage for a recovery in the first half of this year.

My view is that the economy is in the process of bottoming out and that consumers will be able to hold their own and help this economy rebound in the first half of the year. My view is that the economy is in the process of bottoming out and that consumers will be able to hold their own and help this economy rebound in the first half of the year.

Argentine rioters hit banks

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentines angry over a banking freeze ransacked banks and torched ATMs on Tuesday as President Eduardo Duhalde vowed to eventually relax curbs that have brought the financial system to a standstill.

Rage over the 6-week-old restrictions shutting off Argentines' access to their savings boiled over around the country, mixing with the rising anger of unemployed workers who took to the streets demanding jobs.

In three cities in Argentina's interior, hundreds of Argentines stormed banks, ripping out computers and smashing window fronts. Several international banks, including Citibank and BankBoston, were among branches that were targeted.

Duhalde defended the restrictions on cash withdrawals, saying it was the only way to protect Argentine savings and preserve an increasingly wobbly banking system.

"This time bomb will explode if we don't carefully dismantle it," he warned. "And millions of depositors won't see their savings."

Duhalde, in his first meeting with foreign reporters, said the financial problems and social unrest have paralyzed the economy, plunging Argentina on the brink of "anarchy and chaos."

But he pledged to put the country's finances back in order before he leaves office in 2003.

"As he spoke, thousands of unemployed Argentines living government subsidies of less than who lost his job as a steakhouse cook five months ago. Unemployment is now a near-record 18.3 percent.

But it was the banks that felt the brunt of the social discontent. The banking freeze, first imposed Dec. 1 to stem a run on the banks after Argentines pulled $2 billion from the banking system in a day, triggered deadly street riots last month that forced Fernando de la Rúa to resign.

After taking office as Argentina's fifth president in a month, Duhalde further tightened access to dollar accounts. Argentines hold $46 billion, or 72 percent of all deposits, in such accounts.

The limits mean Argentines who have their wages directly deposited in banks can only withdraw 1,500 pesos — now about $1,070 dollars at the official rate. Those with ordinary checking accounts can withdraw 1,200 pesos monthly, or about $850.

In the central province of Santa Fe, some 7,000 demonstrators took to the streets of the city of Casilda on Tuesday, hurling eggs at banks. Riot police responded with tear gas and rubber bullets. A small core of violent protesters threw rocks at bank windows and vandalized ATM machines.

Argentines also unleashed their anger at banks in the cities of La Plata, where they set fire to ATM machines, and in Salvador de Jujuy, where they ripped out computers, trashed offices and smashed windows in three bank branches, including Citibank and BankBoston outlets.

Palestinian factions will stick to cease-fire

World in brief

TULKAREM, West Bank — Two Israelis were killed in gun attacks in the West Bank on Tuesday, including one with American citizenship, even as the two largest Palestinian factions, Fatah and Hamas, said they would stick by a truce despite the death of a militia leader.

The body of a 72-year-old Israeli-American man was found in a bullet-riddled car in the Palestinian town of Beit Sahour, Palestinian security officials said.

Israeli officials identified the man as engineer Avi Boaz, an Israeli who also holds American citizenship, who entered the town to buy materials for a house he was building in a settlement.

Raanan Gissin, a spokesman for Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon, said gunmen riddled the car with 13 bullets.

Palestinians detain leader of group that killed minister

RAMALLAH, West Bank — Palestinian law enforcement detained the leader of a faction that claimed responsibility for the assassination of an Israeli cabinet minister, Palestinian security sources said.

Officials from the Palestinian Front for the Liberation of Palestine confirmed that Ahmed Sandat has been detained.

The PFLP claimed responsibility for the October assassination of Israeli cabinet minister Rehavam Zeevi and Israel has said it would not lift its travel restrictions on Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat until those responsible for his death were in detention.

"There was no immediate comment from Israel."

Putin criticizes weak efforts to combat homelessness

MOSCOW — President Vladimir Putin told his government on Tuesday that it was not doing enough to end homelessness among children — a problem he says has reached alarming proportions.

His comments, during a meeting with Deputy Prime Minister Valentina Matvienko, came a day after he ordered new proposals for dealing with what is a growing concern.

"People are raising this issue," Putin said. "If people are drawing the attention of the head of state to this problem, that means the measures haven't been effective."

Snow car designed to cross icy waters falls on Thames

LONDON — Two adventurers, who hope to cross the freezing ice floes between Alaska and Siberia in their new amphibious ice crawler, were embarrassed Tuesday when it sank in a test run on the Thames.

Steve Brooks and Graham Stratford, hoping to become the first to travel the 56 miles across the Bering Strait, managed to get the sinking vessel to a bank before it fully submerged in the tame waterway.

Rescued from their SnowBird, the humiliated duo said they still plan to launch their adventure in early March. "Stuff goes wrong. It's a crazy thing we are trying to do," Brooks admitted.

Powell seeks 'complete halt' to India-Pakistan conflict

SHANNON, Ireland — Secretary of State Colin Powell said Tuesday he hopes his talks this week in Pakistan and India can build on a recent easing of tensions and lead to a "complete halt" to the nations' monthlong confrontation.

Speaking to reporters before a retelling stop in Ireland, Powell said a conciliatory speech by Pakistani President Pervez Musharraf showed that "the rush toward conflict has slowed quite a bit."

In efforts to avoid a war, Powell said, "There has been an excessive focus on achieving a pullback of the large number of troops that the two sides have arrayed against each other in recent weeks."

"It's more important to make sure that the political and diplomatic situation stabilizes," he said. "If that is stabilized then the armies can move back in due course."

Norway's finance minister marries his gay partner

OSLO, Norway — In a breakthrough for gay rights and a show of tolerance by Norway's political right, the country's Conservative finance minister has married his longtime companion.

The union, first reported Tuesday, came a year after Per Kristian Foss announced he was gay — and won a standing ovation from his party's Oslo chapter.

Foss married Jan Erik Knarbak earlier this month, becoming the first member of a Norwegian government to enter a legally binding gay partnership.

The Finance Ministry confirmed the wedding took place at the Norwegian Embassy in Sweden, but said Foss declined further comment.

"Yes, we entered a partnership at the embassy in Stockholm on Friday, Jan. 4," Foss was quoted as telling the Norwegian business newspaper Dagens Næringsliv.

Agency: Japanese banks can't cover liabilities

Knight Ridder News Service

TOKYO — Japan's major banks are "technically insolvent," the Asia director of the Standard & Poor's rating agency said Tuesday.

Michael Pettit, the managing director of S&P's Asia Pacific office, said the country's banks have insufficient assets to cover their liabilities — including ordinary savings deposits — and require a giant infusion of public money just to stay in business.

He expected a government bailout of the nation's banking system to come before the Japanese fiscal year ends March 31, and S&P has decided not to downgrade Japan's government debt again.

His comments highlighted the deepening crisis in Japan's financial system and the failure of previous reform and bailout efforts to rescue the economy from stagnation and deflation, or falling prices. Past bailout efforts have protected bank depositors, but have not rooted out the underlying problem: corporate borrowers that are unable to generate enough cash to pay off their debts and are kept on life support by continuing credit from the banks.

An insolvent bank in the United States generally would be taken over by the Federal Reserve and closed. Widespread insolvency among U.S. banks occurred during the Great Depression.

Exec appeals $103,000 traffic fine

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — At 46 miles an hour, he didn't set any land-speed records. But Nokia executive Anssi Vanjoki could set the record for the costliest ever speeding ticket — a $103,000 fine.

Vanjoki, a 45-year-old executive vice president of Nokia's mobile phones division, is fighting to get the fine reduced.

He was slapped with the ticket for speeding on a motorcycle in a 31-mph zone on an island near Helsinki last October, chief police inspector Olli Yliskoski said.

But in Finland, traffic fines are not just based on the seriousness of the infringement, they're also tied to the offender's income, and there's no limit.

Worse for Vanjoki, his fine was based on his net income in 1999, when he reportedly made $5.2 million because of option sales.

He has appealed for the fine to be based on his income in 2000, when his gross income dropped from more than $12.4 million to about $970,000, according to tax authorities.

Officials focus on Chechnya again

MOSCOW (AP) — After slipping off the international agenda after the Sept. 11 terror attacks, Russia's war in Chechnya is again receiving attention — and criticism — amid visits by senior international officials.

The latest visitor, U.N. refugee chief Ruud Lubbers, arrived in Moscow late Tuesday for high-level talks before heading to the region around Chechnya. He plans to tour camps where refugees are spending their third winter in tents, afraid to return to their homes.

"One of the reasons he's going to the region is to put Chechnya back on the map," UNHCR spokesman Kris Janowski said in Geneva.

For two years after the Russian military launched a new campaign against guerrillas in Chechnya in 1999, Western officials severely criticized Moscow's conduct and pressed for human rights improvements.

The criticism was toned down significantly after Russia's enthusiastic support of the U.S.-led anti-terrorist campaign.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE Bobby Wolff

"Tis not knowing much, but what is useful, that makes a wise man."

— Thomas Fuller

"It was a coin toss," offered South. "It trumps ace-2, the game is virtually cold. If they are 3-1, my only chance is to guess who has a singleton ace. How was I to know which defender held it?"

"You might have made an effort to locate the ace," replied an unhappy North. "Was North suggesting that South peek?"

With no reason to duck the first trick, South took West's diamond king with his ace. A trump to dummy's queen came next. When East took his singleton ace, South's chances disappeared. He could not avoid the loss of another trump trick and a trick in each minor, sending the game one down.

What did North see that escaped South? There was little reason for South to rush his play in trumps. Although he recognized the dangers in losing an honor to a singleton trump ace, he didn't have to guess which way to play the suit.

After winning his diamond ace, South should have considered his club king. Sometimes this bold play may hold the trick, but the true objective is to locate the club ace. When West wins his ace, South knows West dealt the K-Q of diamonds and the club ace. Would West have passed throughout if he also held the heart ace?

With that useful knowledge to guide him, South leads the first trump from dummy when he gains the lead. East's singleton ace falls "on air," and South holds his losses to only three tricks.

Bridge hand diagram showing North and South hands with cards and suits.

Vulnerable: Both Dealer: West The bidding: West North East South

Opening lead: Diamond king BID WITH THE ACES South holds: 9 4 1 1 0 9 K Q 10 6 A 5 3

ANSWER: One no-trump. The one-no-trump response is slightly more constructive than a preference to two clubs.
