Security tightens at hearing

By Mark Heinz
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Several extra-law officers - including at least one wearing body armor and packing an assault weapon - guarded the Twin Falls County Courthouse during a Monday arraignment of the suspect in a weekend shooting that left one man dead and his twin brother seriously injured.

Meanwhile, court records suggest that neither brother was a stranger to trouble. Uniformed officers and jail staff stopped and questioned the occupants of at least one vehicle in a parking lot near the courthouse Monday. Officers at the scene confirmed that their presence was connected with the weekend shooting death of Victor Cuellar, 19, of Twin Falls.

Cuellar's twin, Francisco Cuellar, was wounded in the shooting, which reports say was sparked by an altercation at a party in the Hansen area at about 1 a.m. Saturday.

Victor Cuellar was found dead at the scene, according to reports. Francisco Cuellar was in fair condition at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls late Monday, a hospital spokeswoman said.

A 17-year-old boy was arraigned in a closed juvenile court session on a charge of being a juvenile in possession of a firearm, said Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebbs. The boy's name wasn't being released, and there were no other suspects in the case yet, he said.

As of late Monday, no other charges had been filed in connection with the case, Loebbs said. But if more serious charges result, they will likely be filed in adult court. The firearm charge will probably not be moved into adult court, he said.

No other court dates had been set for the boy, Loebbs said. Twin Falls County Sheriff Wayne Tousey confirmed that security has been beefed up for the hearing, but he declined to say why. He said the boy remained in the county's custody Monday, but the location was being kept secret for security reasons.

District looks at staff cuts

T.F. schools may eliminate 13 teaching positions

By Robert Mayer
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The budget numbers are in, and Twin Falls School District officials are calling for the elimination of 13 teaching positions along with several classified staff jobs for the 2003 school budget.

"This is, along with the expulsions that we have to deal with, probably the worst part of the job," said board member Mike McIntyre.

Faced with a $1.1 million budget deficit, Superintendent Terrell Donicht proposed to board members Monday a list of optional staff cuts. Any combination of the following positions which adds up to 13 is available: six secondary teachers, seven elementary teachers, 6.5 counselors, five elementary physical education teachers, or 4.5 elementary music teachers, 1.5 elementary orchestra, two gifted and talented teachers, and one audiologist.

Terrell Donicht

Official talks budget - B1

The 13 positions would save between $500,000 and $600,000. Donicht recommended against touching the music or P.E. teachers, as those positions affect a greater number of students at several schools.

For the least negative impact, Donicht recommended eliminating one regular teacher from each school.

In classified staff, the elimination of 2.6 duty aides, one custodial casual, 1.5 custodians and one clerical substitute would save another $130,000.

The administrative cuts have already been made with the elimination of the community relations director position. Yet that still leaves the district $61,768 in the red, and if summer school and summer tutoring is implemented as planned, that subtracts another $160,000, bringing the total deficit to $221,768.

However, the district has $2.1 million in carryover money to cover the deficit, Donicht said.

Attrition from teachers resigning or retiring will take up the bulk of teacher eliminations. Thus, only two or three teachers will have to be laid off, Donicht said.

Officials worry about tire pile catching fire

By Lorraine Cavener
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE - A fire in the pile of tires at Idaho Tire Recovery would ignite the whole place within five minutes and would burn for weeks, officials say.

"It's not an extinguishable situation," Wood River Fire District Chief Steve Stock told Lincoln County commissioners and others at a Monday meeting. But the fire district would use every means available to keep such a fire under control if it did happen, he said.

Representatives of the Bureau of Land Management and Idaho Department of Environmental Quality met with the commissioners, Stock, previous property owner Craig Hadden and others to discuss what can be done to prevent a fire at the site and what could be done if one started.

Since ITR owner Tom Floyd went out of business and abandoned the site - where it's estimated as many as 2 million tires are piled - it has fallen to Lincoln County to clean up the tire pile.

Hadden, who sold the property in November, is taking some steps to clean up the site in response to a lawsuit against him and others by DEQ. County Commission Chairman

Jerry Nance said that without additional resources, it could take commissioners at least three years to clean up the pile. If some money to help clean it up became available, it might take less than three years, he said.

"There's no money to fund this thing now," he said. In the interim, officials are doing what they can to keep the tires from catching fire - and to prepare for such a blaze.

The BLM is planning to create at least a 200-foot buffer zone on the south and west sides of the tire pile to separate it from BLM property that could present a problem with potential brush fires. The buffer zone could be created by shredding or disking vegetation around the perimeter of the ITR property, said Andy Payne, fire manager for the BLM. "Anything you could do would help me immensely," Hadden said.

Payne said the BLM could spray herbicide to kill potentially flammable plants around the tire pile. But the agency would not use Oust, Payne said. Oust is an herbicide which was used to control weeds on burned ground in 2000 in Minidoka County, but it drifted onto neighboring farms and damaged crops.

Israeli troops withdraw from cities

The Associated Press

NABLUS, West Bank - After yet another stern warning from President Bush and under increasing world pressure, Israel began withdrawing early Tuesday from two of the West Bank cities it occupied, Palestinian security sources said.

Tanks were rumbling out of Tulkarem and Qalqilya as Israeli troops left buildings and schools after about a week's occupation, Palestinian security sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Shortly after the pullout started, troops and tanks began a fresh incursion into the southern West Bank town of Dora, witnesses said.

Tanks and armored personnel carriers rolled into the town before dawn as helicopters provided cover from the air. The sound of gunbattles could be heard, witnesses said.

Capitol Commission puts fund-raising plans on hold

The Associated Press

BOISE - The Idaho State Capitol Commission on Monday formally mothballed its fund-raising, marketing and public relations campaigns in support of the Statehouse renovation until lawmakers restore cash for the multi-million-dollar project.

"We're putting this on indefinite hold," Commission Chairman Roy Eiguren said. But Jack Lemley, the founder of one of the company's picked to manage the restoration project, said the $64 million estimate for the project is still legitimate even though the economic downturn has delayed the work at least a year.

Lawmakers last winter pulled the plug on all work but about $5 million that had already been put under contract so it could divert the cash - an estimated $28 million - back to the general fund to help ease the state's worst financial crisis in two decades.

The rest of the project was to be financed with long-term bonds. "Reconstruction of the east steps is being completed, and repairs are being made on the building's exterior stone to prevent any stones accidentally falling. The east steps to the Capitol were rebuilt last fall.

But all other work, including the extensive interior renovation, has been canceled until lawmakers reassess the economics and decide to restore the financing.

Pam Ahrens, the director of the Department of Administration, said that with more than $5 million in work currently being done and various fund balances of over $4 million more still available, lawmakers will be looking at financing $55 million when they return next winter.

Powell demands statement from Israel on withdrawal

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) — Secretary of State Colin Powell came under Arab pressure Monday to do more to halt Israeli incursions that have deepened in the West Bank despite President Bush's fresh call for a swift pull-back. "I meant what I said," the president declared in the United States.

The king of Morocco bluntly told Powell on the first stop of his peace-making mission that U.S. officials should focus on a withdrawal, saying, "Don't you think it was more important to go to Jerusalem first?"

In response, Powell demanded "a clear statement from Israel that they are beginning to withdraw" from Palestinian-held territories and "to do it now."

Later, the Israeli defense ministry announced troops were preparing to pull back from two West Bank cities, Qalqilya and

Secretary of State Colin Powell

Tulkarem early Tuesday.

"It's a start," White House press secretary Ari Fleischer said in Washington. "As the president said ... all parties in the Middle East have responsibilities and the president expects all parties to step up to them."

And yet, Israeli forces still pushed deeper into Palestinian strongholds elsewhere on Monday and Prime Minister Ariel Sharon pledged to continue the offensive.

Powell said he had spoken to Bush and "he is expecting action. He is expecting efforts on the part of the Israeli authorities to start bringing this operation to some conclusion. Powell spoke outside the king's palace in Agadir in southern Morocco.

He said he also had asked the king to counsel Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat to halt violence against Israelis. The secretary said he hopes to see Arafat later in the week.

In Casablanca, Powell was holding a critical meeting with Crown Prince Abdullah of Saudi Arabia, whose land-for-peace proposal to Israel has been overshadowed by Israel's thrust into the West Bank and by the heated Arab response.

Israel's unyielding military presence is having "a significant and severe" impact, Powell said. "We want to see this operation brought to an end as soon as possible."

Wealthy pay lion's share of taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another way the rich are different: They pay the lion's share of the nation's income tax bill. The wealthiest 5 percent pay more than half the taxes, while people in the bottom half pay just 4 percent.

The annual federal tax deadline for most of America is next Monday.

Two-income households are increasing, putting more families in the top slice of taxpayers. Millions of small businesses and partnerships are up there, too, paying personal instead of corporate income taxes. Many other people were boosted by the 1990s stock market boom.

President Bush's big tax cut will prevent the wealthy from paying an even greater share in coming years. But key provisions, such as the gradual doubling of the child tax credit, will reduce or eliminate income taxes for many middle-income people while the rich won't qualify.

"This trend is not going to reverse," said Scott Hoopes, executive director of the Tax

For 1999, the most recent year for which complete Internal Revenue Service statistics are available, 6.3 million taxpayers whose incomes were in the top 5 percent paid more than 55 percent of all income taxes. They had incomes above $120,846 a year — meaning two spouses could each earn a bit over $60,000 and be considered among the nation's richest.

"It's very easy to move into the top echelon of taxpayers," Hodge said.

The wealthiest 1 percent — those earning $293,415 and up — paid over a third of the taxes, while their share of the nation's taxable income was 19 percent.

Atlantis blasts off with new space station part

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Atlantis thundered into orbit Monday with a new part for the international space station, a 44-foot section of latticework that is equipped with a railcar and track.

Atlantis and its seven astronauts soared into a clear sky at 4:44 p.m., four days late because of a leaky fuel line on the launch pad that had to be repaired.

Gusty wind had threatened another delay, but eased by launch time.

NASA also worked around a last-minute technical problem and sent Atlantis on its way with just 11 seconds to spare in its five-minute launch window.

"You spent a few extra days in Florida, but it's time for you guys to take a ride," launch director Mike Leinbach told the astro-navts shortly before liftoff. "So we wish you luck."

"We'll see you back here in about 11 days," replied shuttle commander Michael Bloomfield.

Security at the launch site was tight, as it has been for all shuttle launches since Sept. 11, with fighter jets and attack helicopters on the lookout for intruders in no-fly and no-sail zones.

Official: U.S. has neutralized terrorist

WASHINGTON (AP) — Though U.S. forces have failed to capture Osama bin Laden, Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld says the manhunt has at least neutralized the terrorist leader. "Our goal was to try to stop terrorism to the extent that we could, and that means putting pressure on them," Rumsfeld said Monday. "And to the extent enough pressure is applied, they have to stay so busy surviving, moving from place to place" that they cannot plot more terrorist acts.

"That is not your preferred outcome, but it is a better outcome than nothing," Rumsfeld told a Pentagon news conference. President Bush has said he wants bin Laden captured, dead or alive.

Meanwhile, in a sign that the Pentagon is pacing itself for a long war on terrorism, it has decided to reduce the number of aircraft carriers committed to the war in Afghanistan from two to one.

Oil prices surge after Iraq halts crude exports

LONDON (AP) - Oil prices surged Monday in a fresh wave of anxiety after Iraqi President Saddam Hussein cut off crude exports to demonstrate support for the Palestinians in their struggle with Israel.

Saddam announced that Iraq would suspend oil exports starting Monday for 30 days or until Israel withdraws from Palestinian territories. His unilateral cutoff could put more pressure on other Arab leaders to move against Israel in retaliation for its offensive.

Iranian supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei on Friday urged Islamic nations to stop shipping oil for one month to countries with close relations with Israel. Libya announced Monday that it supported the call. Both nations are OPEC members.

Despite their earlier expressions of support for an oil boycott, Iran and Libya were unlikely to join with Iraq, said Jan Stuart, head of research for global energy futures at ABN Amro in New York.

Iran's economy is too weak to go for long without precious oil revenues, and Libya is worried about jeopardizing its slowly warming ties with the United States, Israel's main backer, Stuart said.

Although OPEC hadn't received formal notice from Iraq about its embargo, U.N. oil monitors said the transfer of oil from Iraq to the Ceyhan loading terminal in Turkey ceased at midmorning

Monday, U.N. spokesman Fred Eckhardt said in New York.

At Iraq's other loading terminal, Mina al-Baker in the Gulf, one vessel completed loading on Monday and two other vessels were waiting to be loaded. It wasn't clear if they would take on their oil cargo, Eckhardt said.

Iraq, which has a daily production capacity of 2.3 million barrels, exports about 1.8 million barrels a day under the close supervision of the United Nations.

Keyboards are not for the fingers

The Associated Press

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Every weekday morning, Joseph To wakes up and puts his thumbs to work.

A financial analyst for Lehman Bros. in San Francisco, he reaches for the BlackBerry handheld device on his night stand and uses a wireless connection to send and read e-mails and check for big news from the East Coast.

Tapping deftly like a touch-typist but with only his thumbs, To also uses the gadget while riding the bus to work or traveling on business.

Even with the tiny buttons, he never uses the abbreviations found in e-mail jargon. In a new twist on the phrase "all thumbs," a growing number of device makers that used to rely only on touch screens or screen strokes are now adding thumb-operated keyboards to their handsets.

The trend reflects a growing demand for more efficient, yet portable ways of entering data. Thumb keyboards may, if users aren't careful, lead to some serious thumb strain.

Many portable, full-size keyboards are already sold as accessories. Those keyboards are getting more compact all the time but still add considerable bulk for the mobile user.

Analysts say folks who use their handhelds for e-mail and short messaging are increasingly turning to miniature keyboards.

avid BlackBerry user Joseph To checks email on his RIM BlackBerry in San Francisco last month. A growing number of handheld device makers that used to rely on touch screens or screen strokes are adding so-called thumb keyboards.

About the size of a business card and a half-inch thick, these mini-keyboards can be easier to use than the alternatives — touch-screen keyboards and handwriting recognition software that sometimes requires learning new ministroke in Motion Ltd. of Canada helped start the thumb-input craze when it launched its first BlackBerry wireless e-mail device in 1999.

Today, most mini-keyboards are similar to the BlackBerry's. Whether built-in or sold as accessories, they are designed so users can cradle the device while using their thumbs to punch calculator-like buttons, usually arranged in the time-tested QWERTY pattern.

In the past eight months, computer accessory companies including Kensington Technology Group, Targus International Group — Inc. — and — Belkin Components have introduced a plethora of thumb-typing attachments for personal data assistants.

Seiko Instruments' Thumbboard won an innovation award at the 2002 Consumer Electronics Show. One after another, handheld device makers themselves are joining the thumb-keyboard club.

After its research showed users preferred thumb keyboards over the "Graffiti" handwriting software used with Palm operating systems, Handspring Inc. included a keyboard option with its Treo communicator, a combination cell phone-PDA unveiled last fall. Handspring was the first Palm OS licensee to integrate a keyboard — an ironic move since the Treo designers, who came from Palm Inc., had developed Graffiti to replace the keyboard.

Not long after, Sharp Electronics Corp. introduced a Linux PDA with an integrated thumb keyboard. Nokia's new 5510 cell phone, which has advanced messaging features, includes one, too.

Hewlett-Packard, deciding that third-party models were too clunky for its taste, started shipping in December its own Pocket Keyboard, which hooks onto its Jornada PDAs, replacing the lid.

one wants on the computer screen and they hold enough text, pictures and other data to serve as powerful reminders and productivity tools.

In fact, I'd venture to say that there are more bells and whistles in 3M's free product for PCs than one gets in the sticky notes program Apple built into recent Mac OS versions at the expense of the superb Notepad program that once shipped with Macs.

Engineer urges antitrust penalties

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Antitrust penalties sought by nine states would protect emerging Internet communications products from interference by Microsoft, an employee of telephone giant SBC Communications testified Monday.

SBC software engineer Larry Pearson told a federal judge that under the federal settlement, Microsoft still can withhold technical information or stop competitors from promoting non-Microsoft products in the Windows operating system.

But Microsoft lawyers challenged SBC's motives, saying the company's call for stiff antitrust penalties came only after partnership talks between SBC and Microsoft broke down.

In early 2003, SBC plans to start its "Unified Messaging Service," which will allow customers to get voicemail, e-mail, faxes and other messages from a single mailbox using a telephone or any Internet-connected device.

For an annual fee ranging from $12 to $24, depending on the level of service, people can create up to 60 individual e-mails that can each go to as many as 25 recipients upon the client's death. The e-mails are filed away, waiting for the client to be called to the great beyond. The account stays alive as long as the client is

(and as long as you keep up your subscription); once the client passes on, the messages are sent and the account is closed. The messages can be updated by the client at any time and can include a photo or a video file of up to 15 minutes.

Timelessmail.com's message seems to have struck a chord — its Web site (www.timelessmail.com) had 102,714 hits in January alone (the latest data available). But it hasn't translated into a huge number of subscribers — there have been about only three dozen signups. Company officials suspect that's because customers are reluctant to provide their Social Security numbers, on which the service hinges.

One of the clients, a mother of three from Canton, Ohio, who asked that her name not be used, says she recently had some health problems that got her to thinking, what would happen if she were to die. She heard about the service and liked the idea, which she says fits her style of communication.

"I do a lot of e-mailing," she said. "I'm not a strong speaker, and I'm not a person to speak on the phone. I'd rather type things out and look at it before I send it."

Another customer said she was prompted to sign up by the combination of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks and the holidays.

"Especially after what happened in New York," says the woman, from Steubenville, Ohio, who also asked not to be identified. "I have three little children. I wonder, what happened in New York could happen to you; you're a stay-at-home mom. But you never know. No one knows."

"I signed up right after Christmas. . . I think, after the holidays and being around family, you realize how important that is. It doesn't matter what you have — a big house, a car, whatever — your family is what means the most. And if anything ever happened, you'd want your family to know you were thinking about them."

It pays to upgrade your PC's memory

By Phillip Robinson
Knight Ridder News Service

I can't remember the last time I bought memory.

I usually stick with what comes in my computer. In fact, I think most computer upgrades are inefficient. You get a much better deal by simply waiting a little longer and then buying an entire new computer, which will have better everything all neatly installed and debugged.

Not this time, though. I bought the cheapest computer I could find a year ago, and now find that it's memory is just beginning to strain. The processor is fast enough, the hard drive holds enough, but that 64MB of memory won't let me open all the programs and windows I want. 256MB is the ideal, as I explained last week. 64MB is OK for the tightest budget, 128MB is pretty good, 256MB makes any computer run a little faster, with more programs running at once, and with fewer crashes. There's nothing wrong with 512MB, but for most people the extra memory is wasted money; you won't see any faster or more reliable performance than with 256MB. (The exception is if you're editing photos and videos all day. Then 512MB can be worth the freight.)

But just what do you want to move up from: 32, 64, or 128MB to 256?

The easy answer is: write down your computer's make and model, then take that note with you to your neighborhood computer store.

Yeah, you can save a little by purchasing memory online, searching a site such as Dealtime.com for the lowest price. But anyone savvy enough to buy memory online, from reading the online specs alone, doesn't need the advice of a column such as this. If you're at all unsure, go with the local store.

There you'll be shown little strips of memory chips. Each chip is a rectangular, flat, black bug the size of a thumbnail. I call them "bugs" because they have dozens of little metal legs sticking out of each long side. These memory chips are soldered to a long, thin green circuit board. Typically there are eight bugs along the length of the board, though some boards have only half that number. Along one edge of the circuit board are golden "pins" — tiny rectangles of plated metal that will touch the circuit board to the electrical connectors in the memory slot of your computer.

You'll need a board the right size to fit into your computer. And you'll want chips on it of the correct speed, measured in MHz. The chips need to synchronize with the processor and bus (electrical lines in the computer) speeds, or you won't get full performance from the system.

Again, the best way to pick it to tell the store's expert — sometimes the salespeople are OK, but it's better to talk to the real guy behind the counter — which computer you have.

A real relic of a computer — from the mid-'90s — might need a DIMM (Single Inline Memory Module) with FPM (Fast Page Mode) and EDO (Extended Data Out) chips aren't for you — that's mid-'90s stuff. I advise buying a newer computer instead.

A computer made between 1998 and now will probably call for an SDRAM DIMM, a Synchronous Dynamic Random Access Memory Dual Inline Memory Module. In fact, it's so standard that you can easily snap these RAM strips into and out of most of today's computers, moving them from your older system to any newer computer you buy.

There are limits, of course, including that many computers can only fit two strips at once, and that computers have a maximum memory limit. Your 1998 machine might only recognize 256MB of memory, no matter how much is on the strips you feed it.

SDRAM DIMMs come in three speeds: 60MHz (also called PC66), 100MHz (PC100), and 133MHz (PC133). A 66MHz is in a 133 computer. And you can't just opt for the fastest memory because some 133 DIMMs don't know how to synchronize to a lower speed system. Oddly, the newer PC133 RAM can run at less than 133MHz, but the PC66 or PC100, perhaps because it has been overproduced. So your store's computer expert needs to know or look up what speed memory your computer takes, and then sell you the right speed DIMM or a faster DIMM that can clock down. 128MB DIMMs are currently running $32 to $50 or so. Add one to a 128MB computer and you have 256MB. Add one to a 64MB system and you have 192MB (that's what I did). You can simply remove a 32MB or 64MB system's memory, and put in two DIMMs to get 256MB.

Only high-priced computers demand the more-expensive DDR (Double Data Rate) SDRAM DIMMs at 200MHz and 266MHz or the yet-more-expensive RDRAM (Rambus Dynamic RAM) at 700MHz to 800MHz. Get more advice and shop more carefully if you have this kind of computer. The memory you buy must be just right, will cost you more, and will not transfer easily to other computers.

With your DIMM or two in hand, you can go home, unplug your computer, slide the case off, find the one or two DIMMs standing in their slots, ground yourself by touching the computer case (static electricity you wouldn't notice can be enough to kill memory chips), push the little white handles away from the current DIMMs, snap your new DIMMs in (they only go in one way, you'll know when the little handles fully fit against the sides of the DIMMs), plug in and start your system. Watch the screen to see how much memory is recognized.

Or if that's too complicated — and don't feel badly if so, for first timers this is open-brain surgery on the computer — ask a guru friend to help, or pop for the computer store's installation fee (should only be $25 to $40 or so). Portable computer memory is a pain. Check your portable manual for details on upgrades and installation.

Luna's ideas challenge a complacent system

Some public-education advocates will look at Republican Tom Luna's resume and dismiss his chances as a candidate for state school superintendent. They'll be making a big mistake.

Luna is unopposed in the May GOP primary, but he knows he'll have an uphill battle against Democrat incumbent Marilyn Howard in the fall. So he started getting his message out months ago.

That message includes some sound principles that have been missing from Idaho's top educational brass.

Though Luna is a successful entrepreneur, he only recently completed his bachelor's degree - a legal requirement for the superintendent's job. But he has been involved in public education since 1995, when he was elected to the Nappa School Board.

His early involvement was intensely personal: He helped pass a bond issue to fix his daughter's school, which had been condemned. Luna remains committed to fixing Idaho's dilapidated schools, but he says that it's a job best done at the local level. Campaigning for the required two-thirds "supermajority" forces school leaders to rally all segments of a community.

Luna also says school districts need to maintain local rainy-day funds. He rightly asserts that local control of schools means not expecting the state to always bail you out.

As an advocate for accountability and measurement of student achievement, Luna was appointed to the Idaho Achievement Standards Commission in 1998. He was influential in helping the Legislature pass achievement standards.

He now serves on the Idaho Assessment and Accountability Commission and makes a strong case for improvements in test performance. Luna notes the number of children in Idaho public schools has jumped by only 1,000 kids (less than half a percent) in three years. Meanwhile, funding has increased by $130 million (more than 16 percent). Yet scores for basic skills have remained flat. Idaho taxpayers aren't getting what they pay for.

Luna brings other insight to the table that can help Idaho's children. As a Hispanic who relates to Idaho's migrant and immigrant schoolchildren, he's disinclined to accept what President Bush has branded "the bigotry of low expectations." It's not a fair to excuse a school's low performance because of its racial makeup.

One measure of Luna's merit is the vehemence of those who already oppose him. Some members of the education think a superintendent's top priority is to lobby uncasingly for more money. They argue that Luna won't do that.

They're right. Luna recognizes that money is not the solution to every problem. He supports increasing state aid to local districts based on performance, and paying teachers more when they gain national or board certification.

But Luna says it's a poor reflection on education when educators mostly measure two things: how much money they get from the Legislature, and how many students attend class. Spending should be linked to how much students learn.

Luna's most refreshing comment is that getting elected will be the easiest part of his job. The tougher tests will come afterward. He knows he doesn't have all the right answers, but he has the courage to challenge a complacent system. That's a good first step.

Many hide their wealth abroad

The Internal Revenue Service last week suggested that between 1 million and 2 million Americans have overseas bank accounts that issued their credit or debit cards - the apparent purpose being to evade U.S. taxes. What we have (the IRS implies) are executives, lawyers and entrepreneurs all hiding their wealth abroad and being able to spend it instantly through the convenience of plastic. Gulp.

Let's admit: the IRS estimates are probably exaggerated. Based on MasterCard records - provided under court order - the IRS said there were 230,000 card accounts in Antigua, Barbuda, the Bahamas and the Cayman Islands alone. Well, there are dozens of other tax havens and MasterCard (with about 37 percent of cards issued) lags well behind Visa (about 51 percent). In making its estimates, the IRS tried to cover all havens and all cards.

Be skeptical. In 1999, about 2.4 million tax returns reported adjusted gross income exceeding $200,000. These are the people most likely to shift significant money abroad. If 2 million evade taxes through foreign accounts, four out of five would be cheaters. If a million do, two out of five would cheat. These are huge numbers, especially because getting caught could mean jail time.

Still, even if the numbers are soft, the tax evasion is real and disturbing. Tax havens are not just for multimillionaires anymore. They're being democratized - shipped to the upper middle class by financial advisers, books, seminars and Web sites. Every money haven has two features. The first is bank secrecy.

cy. Banks and brokers aren't required to disclose account holders. The second is low or no taxes on foreigners. Instead, governments make money through annual fees on accounts. As for how U.S. tax law applies to money havens, there's a critical difference between corporations Society, a group promoting offshore accounts.

But Web sites confirm that tax evasion is a big come-on. One boasts: "You will... be able to trade U.S. stocks, options and bonds through an offshore brokerage account, hold assets secretly and conduct your business in a tax-free country."

The danger of a flight to tax havens - like any major evasion - is that it will erode trust and reduce compliance. One reason that tax evasion is so widely regarded as toothless. In 1979, the IRS added 2.11 percent of individual returns; in 2000, the audit rate was only 0.49 percent.

A successful tax system depends on trust. People must believe that most others obey the rules. The perception of evasion will stimulate more evasion. No one wants to be the last paty. The danger of a flight to tax havens - like any major evasion - is that it will erode trust and reduce compliance.

of offshore card accounts. Pressure is also growing on tax havens. "The worst thing to happen to them was Sept. 11," says Tom Field of Tax Analysts, a non-partisan group, because secret accounts also finance terrorist groups. The U.S. Treasury is demanding more openness. The Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development in Paris is negotiating to curb secrecy in more than 40 havens.

What we now have is a struggle between financial promoters (who want to expand tax havens) and government bureaucrats (who want to shrink them). This is one contest the bureaucrats ought to win.

Letter criticizing America was outrageous

To Mr. Russell L. Foren, in response to your outrageous letter to The Times-News titled "America murders people all over the world" published in the April 1 edition:

Of course America has fought aggression by despots in the past.

How would you have had us respond to the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor or the terrorist attack on New York last fall? Send them a thank you card?

As for the atom bombs dropped on Japan that ended the war (and remember, this was a war Japan wanted), anyone with an ounce of brains realizes this probably saved thousands, maybe hundreds of thousands of lives on both sides. It's too bad you didn't live in one of the countries Japan invaded during World War II.

I'm not sure you even deserve to live in America where many thousands of heroes have given their lives to protect and preserve the freedoms you enjoy - among them the freedom to spout such garbage as your letter to The Times-News, which was not only pathetic but downright disgusting.

If I felt about America the same way as you do, I would move to some other country. Maybe you should consider this.

Sending a check if you're undertaxed

Even with the economic recovery underway, state lawmakers nationwide are finding it tough to balance their budgets. As a result, many have been lobbying for - you guessed it - higher taxes.

They haven't made much headway in Arkansas, though. Gov. Mike Huckabee has refused to sign off on tax hikes, provoking howls of protest from those who warn of cutbacks in "vital" state programs.

Gov. Huckabee prefers to do what recovery people do when faced with tight budgets: Cut spending. (It's not as if the average citizen has the option of taxing someone when it looks as if he or she won't make this month's mortgage payment.)

But the governor doesn't want to stand in the way of those who want to pay more. "There's nothing in the law that prohibits those who believe they aren't paying enough in taxes from writing a check to the state of Arkansas," he said.

So in December, Gov. Huckabee created the "Tax Me More Fund," so people who consider themselves undertaxed can donate more to the state government.

Sounds reasonable. Surely those who derided the governor for his opposition to tax hikes would open their wallets for the sake of the "vital" programs they hold dear.

That's the theory, anyway. But things have worked out differently. At last report, the fund had raised about $1,900.

The Arkansas state illustrates what we already know: We're not undertaxed. In fact, we're overtaxed. And it costs us: According to the National Taxpayers Union (NTU), Americans shell out an average of 35 to 40 percent of their earnings each year in taxes. A relentless array of federal, state and local taxes chip away at our paychecks, while sales taxes and registration fees siphon off even more. The mortgage, utilities, food, etc., come out of what's left.

Most financial planners say it's smart to create a "rainy day" fund equivalent to six-months' worth of expenses. But most people have little disposable income, so the government takes its share, so saving that much money could take years. Meanwhile, the car needs new tires. The washing machine breaks down. The roof starts leaking.

Now it's clear why the government takes its share, so saving that much money could take years. Meanwhile, the car needs new tires. The washing machine breaks down. The roof starts leaking.

Huckabee didn't expect his "Tax Me More Fund" to do more than highlight the hypocrisy so prevalent among the tax-hiking elite. It seems that was the goal in Kansas, too, where state legislators opposed to Gov. Bill Graves' plan to raise taxes - rather than cut unnecessary spending - set up a "Tax Me More Fund," too.

It's an attractive idea. Lawmakers in Arizona, California, Massachusetts and Virginia also have considered creating "Tax Me More" funds. We encourage more.

The lesson these funds teach is simple: Americans don't want to pay more taxes. An NTU poll found that, by a margin of 63 percent to 26 percent, Americans prefer to accelerate the tax-rate reductions President Bush signed last year or enact additional cuts.

But tax-hikers don't see it that way. While most families and individuals peg their spending to their income, tax-hikers do the opposite. They figure out how much they want to spend and then find creative new ways to gouge it out of us. It stems from a flawed belief that taxpayers exist to serve government.

Deep down, though, most Americans know it's really the other way around. Otherwise, Little Rock's "Tax Me More Fund" would be overflowing.

Hurray for Honest Holly from the Hub!

Last week when traveling through your state, I left my purse at the Hub gas station in Burley after eating a delicious pineapple pizza there. Three hours down the road, I discovered the purse was missing and returned. When the ladies of the Hub returned my purse, everything - including my money and credit cards - was still in it. Holly had put my purse in safekeeping after I had left it there.

"M.C. Democrats seek leaders" was the headline on the paper I bought so I could write the editor about these wonderful, trustworthy people. If the Democrats need hard-working, honest people to run for office, they should ask Holly or any of the other women at the Hub. These women can be trusted with your money!

If anyone else in your community can help me reward the ladies of the Hub for their honesty, I would appreciate it.

Immigrant, squeegee handle saved men on Sept. 11

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — It sits like a precious gemstone on a black cloth, the object of lengthy stares and clicking cameras. The curator hovers over it with white gloves, guarding it jealously. It took him four months and a trip to the donor's house in Jersey City, N.J., to procure this item.

"I popped the question as we sat there with my wife and daughter," curator David Shayt says of that first meeting with the donor. He said, "Wait a minute." He goes into the bedroom and brings it out. He says, "I thought I would sleep with this under my pillow because it saved my life."

Shayt glances nervously over his shoulder now. "I just have to keep an eye on the object," Shayt says, excusing himself.

The Object. It is neither art nor weapon nor precious substance. It is not as glamorous as the sort of thing you'd expect the National Museum of American History to covet. It is a hardy tool, a triumph of pragmatism, made of brass so it will not rust, an object whose purpose is derived from a use utterly different from its intended purpose. It is a squeegee handle, and on Sept. 11, it — and the coolheaded thinking of a 48-year-old window washer — saved the lives of six men.

"It's collected not as a squeegee handle itself," Shayt says, "but as evidence of life's affirmation."

With the help of his squeegee handle, the metal fixture that connects blade to broomstick, Polish immigrant Jan Demczur and five others escaped from a smoke-filled elevator by tearing through drywall and punching a hole in a bathroom wall on the 50th floor, then racing down flight after interminable flight of stairs and out of the World Trade Center's north tower within five minutes of the building's collapse.

The 48-year-old window washer, who came to the United States in 1980, is a short, chubby-cheeked man with a serene smile. For months, he kept that squeegee handle in his closet, plastic bag still stuck to it — evidence of his harrowing escape. That handle is now the embodiment of a 14-year career that ever since that fateful day he has been unable to return to. After Shayt contacted him, Demczur agreed to donate the tool to the Smithsonian's collection of Sept. 11 artifacts, some of which will go on display on the first anniversary of the attacks.

At first, Demczur (pronounced DEM-shur) had difficulty telling of that day. But by now, at this media conference announcing his donation, he speaks of Sept. 11 at length, stopping to describe the details of his 95-minute ordeal in 40 minutes. He is calm, patient and meticulous, and perhaps that is part of why he is alive. Panic would not have aided his escape.

It was just before 9 a.m. and Demczur had stopped to take a coffee break. Now he boarded an express elevator with his squeegee and bucket and was riding up with five other men when the car suddenly rocked from side to side. Then it began to fall. One man pressed an emergency stop button, then a voice came over the intercom speaker inside the elevator car.

"We have a problem, 91st floor," Demczur recalls the voice saying. Then the intercom failed.

Smoke began to fill the cab. They had to get out. The men pried open the elevator doors to find: A wall.

This was, after all, the express elevator, designed to stop only on certain floors. And since Floor 50 was not on the route, there was simply this barrier with the number 50 on it, a claustrophobic's nightmare.

Demczur propped the doors open with the long stick of his squeegee. And then the window washer, who'd once been a plumber and once done construction work, poked at the wall and realized it was drywall. Not so bad. Breakable. The men began to kick at the wall, but Demczur knew they needed something sharp to carve through the three sheets, each an inch thick.

"I turned to my bucket. I said, 'Eh, let me use the squeegee,'" Demczur says. "It's like, not so smart person but the instinct: What you have left to try."

He took the blade out of his squeegee and began to saw at the wall. He sawed and sawed. He passed the squeegee blade around, and the men took turns cutting a hole. At one point, when Demczur had the blade, he lost his grip and it dropped down the elevator shaft.

He looked around: What did he

have left? The squeegee handle. He began to scratch at the drywall with that.

"It's like, you know, you put dog or cat in some box and put smoke there, how he gonna fight for life? Same we did."

By scratching and kicking and kicking and scratching, the men got through the first, the second, the third layer of drywall. They pushed at the wall and heard tiles falling on the other side. They stepped through the hole and into a bathroom. From there, firefighters directed them down the stairs.

They kept wet rags over their noses and mouths and choked through the smoke. On the 12th floor, they heard "a loud explosion. I said, 'Oh, that's probably electrical transformer or something.'" It was the south tower collapsing.

Demczur is humble to the last. He says of those six lives saved: "I don't say I did myself. We all was working, but this tool save our life."

When he finishes his speech, the crowd moves in. Shayt, the curator, puts the squeegee handle in a plastic bag and takes charge of Demczur's other donations: the uniform, and work shoes Demczur was wearing that day. Assorted dignitaries of the window-washing world have their pictures taken with the man of the hour. They are people like Diane Smahlik, chairwoman of Ettore Products of Oakland, Calif., which made the tools Demczur was using that day. After she heard Demczur's story, Smahlik flew him to the International Window Cleaning Association convention in Reno, Nev., in February, and gave him a small 14-karat gold squeegee pin with three sapphires in it.

They say it's smart to leave really important decisions to those with the coolest heads. If that's the case, you may want to stop by Swensons or Swenson's Market this week for some advice - since we have literally thousands of cool heads (of fresh iceberg lettuce) sitting in our stores right now. And although we can't promise you that these particular cool heads are qualified to make important decisions about your future, we can guarantee that they'll taste great in any green salad. Albion woman finds mock explosives

ALBION - Rummaging around in the shed can lead to nasty surprises. Pick up a box and you might uncover spikes, snakes or explosives.

Elaune Asher of Albion was looking for a hose in her shed Thursday when she noticed a wooden crate. Bushing away some dust, she found the words "Japanese mine kit" scrawled on the box. Inside were what appeared to be hand grenades and explosives.

"I got quite a shock," Asher said. Bomb technicians later determined the objects were not live bombs but mock explosives intended for use in training.

Asher called the Cassia County Sheriff's Office. A deputy, after seeing the crate, called Hill Air Force Base in Utah and asked for the help of an ordnance disposal unit, Asher said.

When the bomb technicians arrived around 9:15 p.m., they carefully brushed the dust from the box and found the acronym "FASC," which indicated to them the crate was a destructive, rather than a destructive tool. The technicians took the box back to Hill Air Force Base with them, a report from the Cassia County Sheriff's Office said.

The crate was a piece of World War II training equipment from 1945, Asher said.

"It must have been a souvenir," Asher said.

Asher moved into the house in August. The previous occupant, Charles Symes, died about a year ago, she said.

Traffic stop nets Arizona murder suspect, ISP says

TWIN FALLS - A man wanted for murder and attempted murder in Pima County, Ariz., was arrested by Idaho State Police troopers after a traffic stop Sunday on U.S. Highway 93, according to an ISP report.

David Deleon has apparently been staying in Twin Falls, according to the ISP.

Trooper Scott Dye stopped a car being driven by Deleon and decided to check on him after he failed to produce proper identification, according to the report.

A search warrant was later issued for Deleon's house in Twin Falls, and officers found more than four pounds of marijuana, some assault rifles and thousands of dollars in cash there, according to the report.

A passenger in the car, Cherie Marois, was arrested on a charge of giving false information to an officer.

Deleon was held Monday in the Twin Falls County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Wreck in Jerome County kills one, injures four

JEROME - Nobody involved in a three-car accident Sunday which left a Jerome woman dead was wearing a seat belt, according to the Idaho State Police.

Sylvia Ramirez, 31, was pronounced dead at the scene of the wreck, which happened at about 8:30 p.m. near the intersection of 100 West and 300 South, according to an ISP report.

Richard J. Jimenez, 17, of Jerome was listed in critical condition Monday at Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center. A hospital spokeswoman said Michael Deveries, 18, of Jerome was listed in fair condition at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls, and Earl M. Holton, 53, of Jerome was released from that hospital Monday, a spokeswoman said. A child - whose name and age were not released - was riding in Ramirez's vehicle and was taken to Magic Valley Regional after the wreck, according to the ISP. It wasn't known if the child had been in a safety seat, the report says.

Jimenez was a passenger in a 1987 GMC Jimmy driven north on 100 West by Deveries, when Deveries apparently ran a stop sign at 300 South, according to the report. The Jimmy hit Holton's 1993 Ford pickup, and the impact spun the truck into the path of a 1991 Isuzu Rodeo driven by Ramirez's husband, Armando Ramirez, 33, of Jerome. The crash was still under investigation Monday.

Budget issue looms over school talks

By Robert Mayor Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The lesson was how to do more with less.

As part of a statewide post-legislative session tour, state Superintendent of Public Instruction Marilyn Howard and her associates from the Department of Education were at the College of Southern Idaho Monday to inform Magic Valley educators of what lawmakers' action means for the region's schools.

The all-day event focused on standards implementation and highlights of school-related legislation passed this year. But it was coping with the $920 million 2003 education budget that flavored nearly every topic and conversation.

"The picture is pretty bleak," Howard said. "We're still trying to convince ourselves that $920 million is an increase over $933 million."

"The picture is pretty bleak. We're still trying to convince ourselves that $920 million is an increase over $933 million."

- Marilyn Howard, state superintendent of public instruction

The debate whether schools received more or less for the 2003 budget remains unsettled. It hinges on which measuring stick should be used - the original $933 million upon which school districts based their budgets for the current year, or the post-holdback figure of $910 million.

Regardless, Howard said that in the coming months, as districts start making adjustments to accommodate the budget, it's important to keep everyone informed. "I encourage you to be open and candid and vocal about what effects - good and bad - you can trace to your district's financial situation," Howard said. "The more people know, the less inclined they are to make up their own version of what's happening."

Drawing up the state's education budget is an inexact science, said Tim Hill, bureau chief of the Department of Education's Bureau of Finance and Transportation. The appropriations made by lawmakers in February are based on property market values which aren't available until April.

"I have discovered no effective way of estimating what support units are going to be," he said, referring to the formulaic basis of school funding.

That makes it difficult for Hill, who is caught in the middle of lawmakers who complain if the budget estimates run too high and school officials who grumble when the budget numbers come in too low.

"I'm in a situation where districts want to spend every dollar they can get their hands on," he said. "In order for that to happen, I've got to be good on my estimate."

MAKING ROOM FOR WAL-MART

John Hurst and Shawn Weener carry materials out of the former Times-News and Burley Construction office building on East Fifth North Monday afternoon. The two men work for I.D. Day's construction, which has a demolition contract to remove some buildings next to Wal-Mart. The buildings are being torn down to accommodate the expansion of the discount store into a super center. Supervisor Ted Dayley said the building will be down by the end of the day Wednesday.

St. Benedicts plan comes as no surprise

By Sandy Miller Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - It's going to be a few years before a new St. Benedicts Family Medical Center opens its doors on the northwest corner of the intersection where Interstate 84 meets U.S. Highway 93.

But the hospital's announcement Friday that it will build a new 25-bed hospital on 30 acres of the Crossroads Ranch property didn't surprise many familiar with the local health care market.

"I think we always assumed when Saint Al's took over the leadership of St. Bens, they would upgrade that facility," said Magic Valley Regional Medical Center Hospital Board Chairwoman Vesta Maughan. "I don't think that means anything negative for Magic Valley at all."

Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise is the parent organization of St. Benedicts in Jerome.

But having another hospital so close to Twin Falls could mean competition for Magic

"In larger markets competition has proved to be productive, but not in a rural market our size."

- Vesta Maughan, MVRMC Hospital Board chairwoman

Valley Regional. "It's definitely going to bring in some competition," said Twin Falls County Commissioner Gary Grundstaf. "It's going to give people a choice."

But the current philosophy among Magic Valley Regional administrators and board members, as well as more than a few others in the health care community, is that competition is not such a good thing when it comes to health care.

Why? Because medical technology is expensive, and duplicating that technology makes health care more expensive for both hospitals and their patients and makes it difficult to recruit enough skilled health care personnel, health care officials have said.

"In larger markets competition has proved to be productive, but not in a rural market our size," said Maughan. "We get a lot of referrals from St. Bens. They have their market niche and patient base, and we have ours. They'll be well served in a new building. They've always been a good neighbor, and we wouldn't expect that to change."

St. Bens officials announced the land deal between Saint Al's and ABC Agra LLC, a real estate developer, on Friday. The land will be acquired from Crossroads Ranch owner Arlen Crouch, who is also one of the managers of ABC Agra LLC. Crouch said he plans to donate most of the 30-acre parcel for construction of the new hospital complex.

St. Benedicts plans to break ground on the hospital in two years, and the project is expected to cost between $16 million and $18 million, according to Mike Cooper, administrator at St. Benedicts. He said future plans include the addition of a long-term care center, outpatient center and medical office complex.

It's not the first time Saint Alphonsus has looked at the Twin Falls health care market. Last year, the private, nonprofit hospital was looking into buying the doctor-owned Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital, but negotiations fell through. Both sides said price was an issue but wouldn't disclose the prices they discussed in their negotiations.

Magic Valley Regional Medical Center later bought the clinic for $16.1 million.

members and decreasing wait times. And when one patient said the room was too cold, the emergency room bought a blanket warmer. Now all patients get heated blankets.

But by far the most impressive thing was the emergency room's "door-to-needle time" - the amount of time between when a heart attack patient arrives at the emergency room door to the time the patient is given "clot-busting" medication that reduces the risk of death from a heart attack.

Magic Valley Regional's emergency room door-to-needle time is consistently less than 30 minutes, and its average time is 22 minutes - the fastest in Idaho and one of the fastest in the country, Johnson said.

"I think they're doing a great job," Johnson said.

MVRMC Hospital Board approves auxiliary bylaws

By Sandy Miller Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Magic Valley Regional Medical Center volunteers provided reassuring smiles and warm greetings to patients and their visitors at the hospital.

They answer phones and escort visitors to their destinations. They take the book cart around and make sure each new patient gets a silk rose, which they have carefully tied with a bright ribbon.

And they do it all out of the goodness of their hearts - not for a paycheck.

The Hospital Board Monday approved the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center Auxiliary's constitution and bylaws. Not much changed in the document except to add the center's new downtown location - for merly the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital - and Canyon View and Home Health and Hospice to the definition of "medical center."

The revised document also allows Magic Valley Regional employees to be eligible for membership as long as they don't volunteer in the areas where they are employed.

There are about 125 active auxiliary members of all ages, and the number increases to about 145 when school lets-out in the summer, said Lorraine Devey, director of volunteer services.

"They just have to be willing to give and to share their time and talents with others," Devey said. "And to have a big smile. There are rewards for volunteers, too."

"The best thing is the appreciation we get from the families for taking care of their loved ones," said Rosie Stover, president of the auxiliary.

In other action Monday, board member David Johnson, president of the hospital's Quality Council, said a recent independent survey by Press Ganey showed Magic Valley Regional's emergency room rated in the top 4 percent compared to 728 other emergency rooms across the country.

He said emergency room patient satisfaction scores were at the 96th percentile, up from the 37th percentile in a survey done in 2000.

How did they do it? In order to improve their ratings, emergency room staff members made changes such as taking time to explain what was happening to patients, listening to their concerns, taking care of their family

Ranchers don't give up Will continue fight for compensation

The Times-News and The Associated Press

MURTAUGH - The Idaho Cattle Association has not been deterred by the Legislature's rejection of financial compensation for agricultural plans thwarted by local zoning regulations.

The association intends to renew its push next winter for the proposed constitutional amendment that would require governments to compensate private landowners for any legal action that would reduce the economic value of their property.

It would take two-thirds in both the House and Senate to put the proposal on the November 2004 ballot and then a majority of voters to enact it.

Local government officials say that kind of compensation would cost taxpayers untold millions. Ranchers contend a few landowners should not have to bear the financial burden.

Please see RANCHERS, Page B3

What's a 'taking'? The Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution states, "nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation." When the government condemns a piece of private land for something such as a road, it must pay the land's owner (or the value of the property). But some say that when government regulates the use of private land - with no compensation to the landowner - it is also "taking" at least some value from the property.

Local government officials say that kind of compensation would cost taxpayers untold millions. Ranchers contend a few landowners should not have to bear the financial burden.

TWIN FALLS - Money to stage the annual July 4 fireworks display is close to being collected, but raising someone's interest to sponsor the yearly project over the long haul remains a challenge.

Minidoka County fights meth

By Shari Chaney
Times-News writer

RUPERT - Minidoka County commissioners are taking a stand against methamphetamine.

The commissioners Monday discussed implementing an ordinance which would require retail outlets which sell iodine in concentrations of 7 percent or higher to report the sale of that iodine.

The proposed ordinance says the production and use of methamphetamine has risen dramatically in the Mini-Cassa area, and iodine in concentrations of 7 percent or greater is being purchased as an ingredient to manufacture meth.

Commissioner Larry Harper wondered how the ordinance would affect local businesses.

"I'm not opposed to doing it, but I'd hate to drive a business out of town," Harper said.

Commission Chairman Don Handy said the proposed ordinance will be sent to distributors who sell iodine at that concentration to get their feedback. Handy estimated there are 10 to 12 retailers in the area, naming Cenex and CAL stores as examples.

Commissioners consider requiring iodine sale reporting

In another matter, the commissioners took action on a memorandum of understanding with the Idaho Transportation Department. Minidoka Planning and Zoning Administrator Paul Aston explained the county may get back as much as $10,000 from LTD for the cost of fiber optic lines related to the move of the assessor's office out of the courthouse.

The memo, which commissioners agreed to sign, says three pairs of fiber optic lines will be dedicated for ITD use and the assessor's office will not be moved for three years. After that time, the county must notify the Transportation Department before it moves the assessor's office. Aston does not anticipate moving the assessor's office in the near future.

Other commission business included:
• School levy - The commission heard a presentation from Dan

Lloyd, a member of the citizen committee working in the Minidoka County school levy, about the April 23 election.

The biggest concern, Lloyd said, is educating people that this levy is different than the levy passed last year. Last year's levy paid for remodeling and construction within the schools - the biggest project being at Minico High School - and safety measures at schools within the district.

The levy which voters will look at April 23 is a supplemental mill levy which comes up every two years and will pay to maintain facilities within the district, Lloyd said. Projects include painting, asphalt upkeep, updating schools to comply with the American with Disabilities Act and replacing buses.

"All of this is just maintenance," Lloyd said.
Ten years ago, the district was behind in maintaining buildings,

Lloyd said. The district is working to make things look better with the money it has.

"The school district has done a good job to get the most for their money without raising taxes," Lloyd said. "If this ever failed, we could fall behind fast."

The amount of the levy is a 3 percent increase from the current levy, but taxes will not increase, Lloyd said. School district officials have been working with Minidoka County Assessor Max Vaughn to ensure taxes will not increase.

Having schools which look nice aids in economic development, Lloyd said. People thinking of moving to the area want to see the schools; it is hard to convince them a less-than-ideal exterior may hold students with great test scores inside.

• Weed board - Carl Bailey and Pat O'Donnell were reappointed to the Weed Advisory Committee for two-year terms. The terms of Bailey and O'Donnell expired in January, along with the term of committee member Mike Larsen. Commissioners hadn't reached Larsen to see if he was willing to serve another term.

Cassia County takes permit authority in impact area

By Nate Johnson
Times-News writer

BURLEY - Cassia County will be responsible for issuing permits for development on all county land, even within the impact area for the city of Burley.

The Burley City Council has designated a strip of land around the city as an impact area, land which the council may someday annex into the city limits.

People who want to develop within that impact area will still have to meet with the Burley Planning and Zoning Commission, but the city will have no authority to make findings about those development requests, Burley City Attorney Randy Stone said.

After meeting with the city planning commission, developers must participate in a public hearing before the Cassia County Planning and Zoning Commission.

City officials will consider recommendations from the city planning commission, but the final decision rests with the county. Likewise, Cassia County, not the city of Burley, will issue building permits in the impact area, Stone said in a meeting Monday between the Cassia County commission and city officials.

Cassia County has already adopted city building regulations for the impact area, County Administrator Tim Hurst said.

The city of Burley will amend its ordinances to give control of the impact area to the county, Stone said.

A lawsuit filed in February 2001 by Magic Valley and Gravel against the city of Burley and Cassia County prompted the change.

When the company applied to the county for a special use permit to operate a gravel pit in the city impact area, the county returned the application, saying that Burley city officials had authority to grant or deny a permit.

City officials subsequently denied the request, arguing the property was zoned for residential use and the city had no special use permit process, court documents state.

Through the lawsuit, Magic Valley Sand and Gravel asked 5th District Judge Monte Carlson to decide whether the city and county violated state law and the state's constitution and whether the county, not the city, had jurisdiction to process the application.

Carlson ruled Nov. 2 that Cassia County, not the city of Burley, had authority over the impact area, County Attorney Al Barrus said.

Giving Cassia County Building Inspector Dan Barker responsibility for development in the impact area increases his work load. If Barker and Burley City Building Inspector Keith Bryan could work together, they might accomplish more, Commissioner Dennis Crane said. It would be easier for builders if both building departments were in the same place, he said.

Commissioners asked Bryan, Barker, Hurst and Burley City Administrator Mark Mitton to look into the possibility of combining the city and county building departments.

The city and county need to look over ordinances regarding development, Hurst said. The county's comprehensive plan calls for most development to occur in city impact areas. The ordinances have not done enough to encourage growth in and around the cities while preserving agricultural areas and limiting rural subdivisions, he said.

Other commission business included:
• Inspection policy protest - No builder should have to schedule an inspection six hours before pouring concrete, builder Dean Hansen told commissioners.

"I don't know of anybody in the construction business who knows what they're going to do in six hours," he said.

Hansen said he understood Barker could have called for inspections on either side of the county at any given time, but it happens infrequently, he said.

Commissioners passed the responsibility for drafting a building inspection scheduling policy over to the county's building code advisory committee.
• Substance abuse grant - Commissioners gave their support to an application made by the South Central Idaho Regional Substance Abuse Authority of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare for a grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

The federal grant would be for $500,000 a year for three years, said Marlene Yurdley, community resource development specialist for the substance abuse authority. The money would go to reduce the current waiting list of 30 to 35 people waiting for treatment and to open treatment programs to Hispanics.

"Hispanics are not receiving treatment. You can't even say they are an underserved population. They are an unserved population," Yurdley said.

• Equipment - Commissioners agreed to accept, at no cost, several pieces of equipment from the City of Rocks National Reserve, including a 1980 Dodge water truck tanking, a Michigan 5-year loader, a GMC semi tractor trailer and a 1975 half-ton Dodge pickup.

Police investigate governor's son in operation of a fight club

Fights allegedly took place at Mormon church

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Gov. Mike Leavitt's 18-year-old son Chase is being investigated in the operation of a fight club at a Mormon church.

Police said 50 to 80 people were involved in the Dec. 14 event and they did not have permission to use the building.

Investigators told KSTU that Leavitt's son, a senior at East High, was identified from videotape of the event.

Gov. Leavitt said Monday, "I have confidence in the process. He's a great young man, his life is on track in every way, he has the love and affection of his father and mother and we'll work through this."

raised so far for this year's event, said Kent Just, executive of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce.

And with veteran fund-raisers Mike and Cyd Dillon joining in as members of the non-official year-round Twin Falls Fireworks Coordinating Committee, Just said Monday that this year's event is almost in the bag.

The fundraising must be completed by the end of April. Mike Dillon said he doesn't anticipate that Twin Falls residents will resist requests for donations.

"If there is a legitimate need, the community just backs it 100 percent," Dillon said.

However, a permanent standing committee signifies a turn of events. Members aim to reinvent the program that is held at the College of Southern Idaho annually. It had been funded by Universal Frozen Foods until five years ago. Then a group of four businessmen organized the fund-raising and promotions.

"We want to make the event a bigger fundraiser for the community," Just said, adding that he'd like to see perhaps a children's parade as well as activities for them.

But before that can happen, the committee needs a sponsor who can make a function will be to organize the event on an annual basis.

CSI spokesman Doug Maughan, who is a committee member, suggested checking with radio and television stations in the area.

In addition, committee members are looking toward July 4, 2004, when Twin Falls celebrates its centennial. Twin Falls was incorporated as the village of Twin Falls April 15, 1905, by the order of the county commissioners of Cassia County. It became a second-class city in 1907 and a first-class city in 1952.

Just pointed out that the 2004 date occurs on a Sunday and that the day before - on July 3 - Idaho celebrates its 114th birthday.

Ranchers

brunt of policy decisions made to benefit an entire community.

The common example has been impact zones around cities that impose restrictions on development of farm and ranch land. But proposed restrictions on development of the Snake River Canyon rim in Jerome County has become a focal point of the debate. Covered are about 700 acres within 300 feet of the north rim. No development would be allowed in the first 100 feet, and activity on the other 200 would be restricted.

Greg Garatea, a Murtaugh rancher, says the cattle association is not opposed to land-use planning but believes the cost of those kinds of decisions should be spread around.

"What we're asking for is when the land restriction is for the public good, to amortize that cost over the public and not just a few individuals," Garatea said.

This past winter's proposal did insurance and maintenance.

Or districts can pass supplemental levies, good for two years and requiring a simple majority to pass. Larger districts have more financial leeway in discretionary funds than do smaller districts.

Filer School District, with 1,300 students, has tried to keep its staff numbers as precise as possible, said Superintendent Bill Fowlers.

"We have been very conservative as far as making sure that the number of personnel we hire is commensurate with the state funding," he said.

Twin Falls School District, with 6,800 students on the other hand, can provide from its own $8 million discretionary fund 20 more teachers than the state's minimum.

But using discretionary funds for teacher salaries isn't the ideal solution, he said, because it leaves little room for increases in overhead costs. Furthermore, people can grow to depend on discretionary funds to pay teachers when that isn't the state's primary purpose, she said.

Despite the challenging task at hand, remaining focused is essential, Howard said.

"The people who are here today are trying to organize the districts for maximum benefits for the kids. They have to do that on a budget," she said. "My plea to them is, 'Keep your eye on the kids.'" in large part because of the heavy opposition from local government. House Speaker Bruce Newcomb, Burley, has said he wants the opposing sides to see if they can find some common ground this summer. Dan Chadwick of the Idaho Association of Counties says anything near last winter's proposal is unacceptable.

"It would totally overturn over 100 years of settled law with regard to the authority of local governments and the ability to engage in land-use planning, and it also will be very costly to the local taxpayers," Chadwick said.

The passage of time since the session ended, Chadwick said, will not change that.

"Quite frankly, there's sufficient laws on the books protecting people's property rights," he said. "It seems to me these people want to be compensated for any action with regard to their property, and that's just not realistic, nor is it fair to other property taxpayers."

Restored bell will ring at Normal School again

By Mary Lynne Bristol
Times-News correspondent

ALBION - A restored bell from Swanger Hall at the Normal School in Albion will be placed in a replica of its original tower as soon as Normal School alumni association members can finish the project.

Keith Amende, president of the Normal School alumni association, received permission from the Albion City Council Friday to create a structure which will house the bell and possibly the cornerstone from Swanger Hall. Swanger Hall was one of the first buildings constructed at the Normal School. It housed classrooms and administrative offices.

City Council members also approved Amende's request that the alumni association be allowed to build a sidewalk running straight south from the museum to the new monument.

Council members discussed a $44,000 estimate Councilman Darren Smyer had obtained for chip sealing the city streets. It was noted the estimate was only for streets which were paved four years ago. Smyer was asked to get an estimate for the other paved streets, and City Clerk

Mary Yeaman was asked to find out how much money is in the highway fund.

Council members also discussed paving some of the gravel streets in Albion.

Upon a suggestion from Yeaman, the council agreed to review the city's utility rate structure.

A discussion was held about what the reorganized Planning and Zoning Commission needs to address. City Attorney Kerry McMurray said the commission needs to review the city ordinances in light of changes being made to county ordinances, particularly in the areas of impact zones. McMurray said county officials want input from various city officials about development in those impact zones.

Trans IV asks Twin Falls for budget increase

By Julie Pence
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - With a new fiscal year beginning on Oct. 1, City Council members say now is the time for requests for money from the 2002-03 budget.

And so, armed with statistics that show the need for public transportation continues to grow, Trans IV officials went before the City Council Monday to get their bid in for more money next year.

Jim Vining, who directs the program, said between 300 and 500 school children use the system each day to get home or to the Twin Falls Boys and Girls Club. But with the club's plans to expand into the South Park area of town, Vining said the need for after-school transportation will increase dramatically.

He also said the number of elderly as well as handicapped people using public transportation is growing.

"We're experiencing a great deficit," he said.

Part of that has to do with losing out on a state grant that Trans IV has traditionally relied on. Instead, an entity that is willing to provide 24-hour-a-day transportation services got the grant. But meantime, Trans IV continues to provide the services without the extra funding because the other entity has not started yet, despite being scheduled to begin services on April 1, he said.

For the past few years the city has given about $18,000 to Trans IV. Vining asked for $25,000. He said ridership for the summer youth program the city runs has increased from 5,000 to 27,000 over the past six years.

Bus Councilwoman Elaine Steele said she is reluctant to give more money, explaining she thinks there is too much overlap in the kinds of services that Trans IV delivers. She said there should be more emphasis on coordinating services with other transportation agencies instead of duplicating them.

Also at Monday's meeting:

Airport project - Bill Carberry, airport manager at Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport, explained that the Bureau of Land Management will pay the city $655,366 to build a tanker base at the airport. The BLM will get free rent for the first five years, then pay a yearly lease payment for the next 15 years. Then at the end of 20 years, the city will own the base, and the BLM will renegotiate a rental agreement.

Air show - Phil Hafer, chairman of the Air Magic Valley Committee, gave a rundown of the air show to be held on June 29. He verified that Steve Appleton of Micron Technologies Inc. will be among those performing in the air show. Expected attendance is 17,000. Hafer said included in the program is a pyrotechnic show that will be seen all the way to Timmerman Hill.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission will hold a workshop and public hearing to answer questions and obtain comments on four issues concerning Idaho Power and customer rates.

Issues to be discussed include:

- ◆ The 2002-2003 Power Cost Adjustment (PCA), which adjusts customer rates annually either up or down depending upon stream flow conditions and Idaho Power's cost of purchasing power.
- ◆ Alternatives for power supply cost recovery including Idaho Power's request for authorization to issue $172 million in revenue bonds to pay a portion of the company's excess power supply costs.
- ◆ The current three-tiered rate structure paid by residential customers.
- ◆ How to fund Commission-mandated conservation programs.

At each workshop, Idaho Power and Commission staff will outline the proposals and alternatives being considered and be available to answer questions. Public testimony will be taken during the public hearing following each workshop. A technical hearing also will be held at 9:30 a.m. on April 26 at the Commission offices, 472 W. # Anti-abortion exhibit sparks dialogue

Display includes graphic pictures

BOISE (AP) — Thousands of college students streamed past it Monday. Some paused to look closer at the images of bloody, dismembered fetuses. Some struck up discussions, and they were civil — if passionate — in their opinions.

A five-day outdoor exhibit of graphic, disturbing anti-abortion messages opened Monday at Boise State University, the latest of more than two dozen campuses across the country to host a "Genocide Awareness Project" display.

It includes 12 photographic murals, each 8 feet wide by 4 feet high. Several of the panels feature images of body parts from tiny aborted fetuses. One places them alongside corpses in Nazi death camps and a black man lynched by white supremacists. Its caption makes the analogy:

Students look at several small billboards of photographs depicting genocide and aborted fetuses Monday at Boise State University.

"Ungentle, Unwhite, Unborn." Another compares abortion to the massacre of American Indians at Wounded Knee, with the caption: "Genocide: Everyone gets a choice but the victim."

Brad Christensen, 22, of Idaho Falls, a candidate for student body president, saw it as an opportunity to campaign.

"It's basically unavoidable for students," he said. "Displays like this are simple exercises of First Amendment rights, even if they're done in poor taste."

Signs posted on the lawn about 20 yards on each side of the exhibit gave notice: "Warning... Graphic Photos... Generation Life."

And while university officials made sure students were told where to walk to avoid viewing it, there was no letup in the class-to-class foot traffic through the busiest common areas on campus.

Three other children were able to escape and ran to a house about 200 yards away to summon help. More than two dozen people and two backhoes worked to remove the dirt burying Sjostrand and Thurston, but they were declared dead at the scene soon after being uncovered.

that's incredible. That's exactly what we hoped to see."

St. Paul's Catholic Student Group, Campus Crusade for Christ, InterVarsity Christian Fellowship and Baptist Campus Ministries helped sponsor the "Generation Life: Right, Wrong or Justified" display, which was produced by The Center for Bio-Ethical Reform in Anaheim, Calif.

The display will be taken down each night to avoid potential vandalism. The Ada County Sheriff's Office, which normally has two deputies posted on campus, assigned three additional uniformed officers at the school's request. There had been no trouble and only one heated debate by midday Monday.

About 100 students and community activists, including Rabbi Daniel Fink of Congregation Ahavath Beth Israel, staged a rally at the site of the display on Sunday. And a loose-knit coalition of student groups that support abortion rights posted signs across the broad walkway from the exhibit on Monday.

Feds kill last members of Idaho wolf pack

BOISE — The last five members of the Whitehawk Pack of gray wolves were killed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service after the predators killed a domestic calf on private land near Clayton.

It was the third instance of depredation in a week along the East Fork of the Salmon River by wolves considered part of an "experimental, nonessential" population.

The three yearling wolves and the pack's "alpha pair" were killed by federal officers after the livestock death was confirmed as a wolf kill by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Wildlife Services.

Carter Niemeyer, the Fish and Wildlife Service's Idaho wolf recovery coordinator, said the Whitehawk Pack had been involved in chronic livestock depredations in the East Fork drainage.

The "lethal control action" was ordered after other means of controlling the wolves failed.

Two Payette children die when embankment collapses

PAYETTE — Two children were killed in the collapse of a dirt embankment in southern Payette County.

Authorities on Monday identified the victims of Sunday evening's accident as Julie Sjostrand, 15, and Alec Thurston, 6.

Both apparently suffocated when the embankment gave way shortly after 7:30 p.m. Sunday. The children had been digging into the dirt with shovels and trowels to create benches, the Payette County Sheriff's Office said.

Three other children were able to escape and ran to a house about 200 yards away to summon help. More than two dozen people and two backhoes worked to remove the dirt burying Sjostrand and Thurston, but they were declared dead at the scene soon after being uncovered.

Official takes veto to D.C. to kill nuclear dump

LAS VEGAS — Nevada stepped up its campaign against burying nuclear waste under one of its mountains on Monday, with Gov. Kenny Guinn vetoing a presidential order and activists readying a national lobbying campaign.

"Let me make one thing clear, crystal clear in fact," Guinn said. "Yucca Mountain is not inevitable."

A crowd of more than 200, including Las Vegas school students and elected officials, gave the Republican governor a standing ovation as he delivered brief comments at UNLV before boarding a plane to Washington.

While en route, copies of the veto were delivered to the House and Senate, said aides to House Speaker Dennis Hastert and Senate President Pro Tem Robert Byrd. Congress will have the final say, however, and a vote on whether to override Guinn is expected before August.

Workers find partly clad body in Boise drainage ditch

BOISE — Authorities were trying to identify the woman whose body was found on Monday in a south city business park.

A lawn crew cutting grass in the park discovered the body in a drainage ditch full of tall reeds.

Police said the partially clad body apparently had been in the ditch for at least several weeks.

Judge orders man held without bond in murder case

BOISE — A Mexican citizen believed to be living illegally in Idaho was ordered held without bond on Monday on a first-degree murder charge in the death of his stepdaughter.

Luis M. Mejia, 29, made his initial court appearance by video from the Ada County Jail. No date has been set for his preliminary hearing.

Authorities say Mejia killed 2-year-old Lorena Herrera last Tuesday. Authorities said witnesses indicated the child was hit several times before she fell to the floor and stopped breathing. They said Mejia was upset because the girl would not stop crying.

Bomb explodes near Afghan defense minister's convoy

KABUL, Afghanistan — A bomb tore through a crowd lining a road to welcome Afghanistan's defense minister on Monday, killing at least four people and injuring 18 in what officials said was another attempt to destabilize the interim government.

Defense Minister Mohammed Fahim was not hurt in the bombing in the eastern city of Jalalabad. An aide called it an assassination attempt aimed at destabilizing the country.

In a day of stark reminders of the country's tumultuous struggle for stability, at least one person was killed and four were wounded when poppy farmers in eastern Afghanistan fired on government officials beginning an ambitious campaign to eradicate the opium-producing flowers.

Meanwhile, international peacekeepers said Kabul police had discovered four more Chinese-made rockets aimed toward a camp housing German and Danish troops at the site used to launch two missiles over the weekend.

No one was injured in the weekend attack, but peacekeepers said they believed it was part of a campaign to damage the interim administration of Hamid Karzai ahead of the loya jirga, a national grand council that meets in June to select a new government.

Fahim had traveled to Jalalabad on Monday to meet with local commanders and tribal leaders and discuss, among other issues, poppy eradication.

As he made his way to the governor's house, a bomb exploded in front of his convoy, killing and wounding townspeople who had turned out to greet him, officials said.

U.N. officers suffer wounds as they try to quell riot

KOSOVSKA MITROVICA, Yugoslavia — Fourteen U.N. police officers were wounded Monday as they tried to quell a riot by hundreds of Serbs, a U.N. spokesman said.

The clash was the most serious incident in months in Kosovska Mitrovica, a troubled, ethnically divided town in northern Kosovo. With the angry crowd throwing stones at the U.N. police, it all escalated into a riot with gunfire and explosions directed at U.N. police officers," said Barry Fletcher, a spokesman for U.N. police.

The rioting began when U.N. police arrested Slavoljub Jovicic, a leader of a hardline group known as the "bridge guards," said Marko Jaksic, a leader in the Mitrovica Serb community.

The guards, a group of armed men, have in the past tried to prevent ethnic Albanians and Serbs from crossing a bridge that divides the city between the two rival ethnic communities.

U.S., Yemen reach deal to allow warships to refuel

SANA'A, Yemen — The United States and Yemen have reached a deal to allow U.S. warships to resume refueling in the Yemeni port where the USS Cole was attacked nearly 19 months ago, officials said Monday.

Under the agreement, U.S. Marines will participate in security at the Aden port where 17 American sailors were killed and 37 wounded when a small boat, laden with explosives, was detonated beside the Cole in October 2000.

It was not clear when refueling would resume at Aden. The port is strategically located near the Arabian Sea, the Indian Ocean and international waters.

Georgia expects U.S. troops for anti-terrorist training

TBILISI, Georgia — U.S. troops will come to this former Soviet republic later in the month to train Georgian forces to fight terrorists, President Eduard Shevardnadze said Monday.

The United States announced plans in February to expand its anti-terrorist campaign to Georgia by sending in 200 special forces to train Georgian troops. U.S. officials have said they suspect fighters linked to Osama bin Laden's al-Qaida network are hiding in Georgia's Pankisi Gorge.

Georgian officials initially said the U.S. forces would arrive in March, but did not give a date. "They may come in 10 or 15 days, or a bit later," Shevardnadze told reporters in the capital, Tbilisi. "They will definitely come."

He said the reason for the delay was that some U.S. troops are studying Georgian.

Annual report predicts increase of anti-Semitism

JERUSALEM — Anti-Semitic acts rose sharply worldwide after the Sept. 11 attacks and jumped again after Israel began its offensive in the West Bank last month, according to a report published Monday.

There were 228 violent acts committed against Jews or Jewish property in the world in 2001, 50 of them major attacks involving weapons, a Tel Aviv university team said in its annual report on worldwide anti-Semitism.

The report said there was a significant increase in attacks in Europe after the Sept. 11 terror assaults in the United States and noted a recent spate of anti-Semitic attacks in western Europe on Jewish schools, synagogues and cemeteries.

It didn't give numbers for the anti-Semitic incidents after Sept. 11.

Queen Elizabeth II thanks public for their sympathy

LONDON — Queen Elizabeth II gave thanks in a nationwide broadcast Monday for the outpouring of public affection following her mother's death, and for the love the country gave the Queen Mother during her life.

"I have drawn great comfort from so many individual acts of kindness and respect," the queen said in a message filmed at Windsor, where the Queen Mother Elizabethon March 30.

"I have been deeply moved by the outpouring of affection which has accompanied her death," the queen said in an unusually relaxed broadcast.

Detroit Tigers fire Garner and Smith

The Associated Press

DETROIT — The Detroit Tigers, baseball’s lone winless team, fired manager Phil Garner and general manager Randy Smith on Monday. Luis Pujols, the Tigers’ bench coach, will take over as manager on an interim basis, said team president Dave Dombrowski, who will assume the GM’s job. “It’s a sad day for me and also a happy day,” Pujols said. Felipe Alou, fired last year as Montreal’s manager, was considered a top candidate to wind up

Phil Garner

Although among the earliest firings in major league history, the dismissals of Garner and Smith were not the first this season. The Boston Red Sox replaced manager Joe Kerrigan and general manager Dan Duquette during spring training. Detroit, which had a winning record or a winning April since 1993, sputtered in the first week of the season, dropping three games each to Tampa Bay and Cleveland. The Tigers hired Garner in October 1999. He was considered a well-respected manager despite a losing record with Milwaukee. At the time, Garner also was a candidate for an opening with the Chicago Cubs.

In two-plus seasons with Detroit, Garner had a 145-185 record and a 708-802 record overall, including nine straight losing seasons before the current campaign. “When you become a manager, you realize you’re going to be judged by what you do on the field,” Garner said after the announcement. Many had questioned Smith’s future when Dombrowski, one of baseball’s most respected executives, was fired away from the Florida Marlins in November to be team president and, in turn,

Smith’s boss. Smith was in his seventh year as GM of the Tigers. Both men’s contracts were set to expire after the 2003 season. “I think that whenever you start off 0-6 is not pleasant,” Dombrowski said. “You sit back and you evaluate and there’s never a great time to make a change like this. I think we’re a better club than we performed. ... I also don’t want to look you in the eye and say we’re a championship caliber club.” Smith was often criticized in Please see F.I.R.E.D., Page C2

One big dream

Charles Howell III hits a tee shot on the third hole at Augusta National Golf Club during the first practice round for the 2002 Masters on Monday in Augusta, Ga.

Howell gets his wish to play in the Masters

The Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Charles Howell III has been dreaming about playing in the Masters since he first picked up a club. What makes him different from other rookies at Augusta National is that he never dreamed of anything else. He didn’t have other hobbies. Once his father joined Augusta Country Club, the course next door to the Masters and just five miles from his house, Howell went to school, played golf and worked out. On weekends, he played golf and worked out. “I’ve always said I was a dork, but I guarantee you I was one of the happiest kids ever,” Howell said. “All I did was play golf and work out, but that’s all I wanted to do.” Girls? His parents made him go to the senior prom. “One of the girls in his class wanted to go, and somehow word got back to his mom and I,” said Charles Howell Jr., a pediatric surgeon in Augusta. “We thought that he ought to go out of respect for the school. We beat him into submission, and he went. His class was so shocked that they voted him prom king.” At Oklahoma State, where Howell won the 2000 NCAA championship as a junior, he married the first girl he kissed, Heather Myers of Kingfisher,

Okla. Howell brought his bride to Augusta National last April, but they stayed for only an hour. Howell was upset he was on the wrong side of the ropes, and he vowed never to return until he had an invitation to play. The formal invitation arrived in the mail shortly before Christmas, capping an amazing run for a 22-year-old player touted as the best young star on the PGA Tour. Please see MASTERS, Page C2

Kenseth races to his second victory of the season in Texas

The Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Texas — Maybe practice is overrated. Matt Kenseth won the Samsung/Radio Shack 500 on Monday despite running only five laps in practice at Texas Motor Speedway. His few laps came Friday, before he blew an engine. Saturday’s practice was rained out, and more wet weather Sunday postponed the race, leaving everyone guessing about chassis set-ups on the repaved 1.5-mile oval. Kenseth found the answer, holding the lead with a late-race, two-tire stop and driving to an easy victory in his No. 17 Roush Racing Ford. “When you have a fast car, sometimes you don’t want to practice too much and start making changes that might slow you down,” Kenseth said. “Really, we had kind of decided on our own what we were going to run on our car and it was pretty close to the setup I ran on my Busch car Saturday.” Kenseth finished fifth in the Busch race. The key moment in Monday’s race was the two-tire pit stop near the end. “We lost a race like that in California in my rookie year by taking four tires,” Kenseth said. “We didn’t want to do that again, and we knew if some of those other guys got out ahead of us, we probably wouldn’t be able to get past them.” It was the second win of the season and the third of his career for the former NASCAR Winston Cup rookie of the year, who solidified his hold on second place — behind Sterling Marlin — in the season points. ## Crashes knock out Earnhardt, Ward Burton

The Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Texas — Dale Earnhardt Jr. was knocked out of the NASCAR Samsung/Radio Shack 500 on Monday after he was clipped by the lapped car of Shawna Robinson. The rear of Earnhardt’s car slammed hard into the outside wall in the first turn on lap 184. Earnhardt’s accident came just 13 laps after Ward Burton blew a tire and crashed his Dodge into the same wall. Burton, the Daytona 500 winner, had precautionary X-rays taken on his neck but was later released. The 334-lap race at Texas Motor Speedway was postponed from Sunday because of rain. Earnhardt returned 74 laps later, his Chevrolet sporting a rear spoiler but not much else on the back after the mangled sheet metal was stripped away. He ran only eight more laps before a blown engine ended his day. Earnhardt was trying to pass Robinson, who appeared to drift high in the corner. As Earnhardt tried the complete pass, he made contact and the back of his car slammed hard into the wall. “It wasn’t that bad,” said Earnhardt, even though he appeared to favor his left arm after climbing out of the car. “I think Shawna got into me a little bit. She’s a good race car driver. They need to get her in a better race car. It’s hard trying to dodge her every 15 laps.” Earnhardt was 6th and the last car on the lead lap before the wreck. It was at Texas where Earnhardt won his first Winston Cup race in 2000, and got his first Busch victory in 1998.

Pilots fly over Wood River, 17-7

GLENN'S FERRY - The Glenns Ferry Pilots jumped out quick, scoring 11 runs in the first two innings, on their way to a 17-7

Local sports run lead victory over the Wood River Junior varsity in non-conference softball action Monday.

Jessica Simons picked up the victory, recording five strikeouts. She also contributed at the plate, going 2-4 with a run batted in. Catcher Gisela Arevalo went 2-3 while chipping in an RBI.

"The girls played pretty well, hit the ball and were aggressive. We need to cut down on the errors," said Glenns Ferry coach Kelli Hone.

The Pilots improve to 7-8 overall. They host Wendell in a conference doubleheader Saturday.

GLENN'S FERRY - A bases

loaded throwing error gave the Glenns Ferry Pilots a victory over the Wood River Junior varsity in non-conference baseball Monday.

A difference in how many games were scheduled led to a compromise of one nine inning game.

The Pilots were up by three after four innings only to see the Wolverines rally. An RBI sent by Wood River's Drew Detweiler tied the game at 7-7 after nine innings as the teams headed to extra innings.

With two outs and the bases loaded in the bottom of the eleventh, the exchange between the pitcher and catcher got loose and the winning run crossed the plate.

Zach Simons went 3-6 at the plate and brought home a pair of runs for the Pilots. Scott Uhl went 2-4 and chipped in three RBIs.

The Pilots (2-0, 9-3) host Wendell in a conference doubleheader Saturday morning.

Indians take home opener against Twins

CLEVELAND (AP) - Travis Fryman hit a grand slam, Ellis Burks and Matt Lawton homered as the Cleveland Indians won their 2002 home opener, 9-5 victory Monday over the Minnesota Twins.

The Indians, sporting new uniforms and featuring a lineup radically altered by trades

MLB and free agency, won their fifth straight game and sent an early season message to the Twins.

Fryman hit his sixth career slam in the third inning off Eric Milton (1-1), and Lawton connected against his former teammates in the fourth, thrilling a sellout crowd of 42,444.

Milton, who didn't give up more than seven runs in any of his 34 starts last season and shut out the Indians on Sept. 28, was tagged for nine runs - including a career-high - and eight hits in four innings.

Yankees 16, Blue Jays 3

TORONTO - Robin Ventura had six RBIs and Alfonso Soriano had a career-high five hits as the defending AL champions won their sixth straight since an opening-day loss, a 16-3 rout of the Toronto Blue Jays on Monday night.

Soriano and Ventura both hit three-run homers and rookie Nick Johnson added a two-run shot for the Yankees, who had 22 hits, including nine in an eight-run sixth inning. David Wells won his second straight start, breezing past the team the Yankees traded him to three years ago.

New York sent 13 men to the plate in the sixth, its biggest inning since a nine-inning, two-run game of Boston on June 19, 2000.

Ventura, acquired from the Mets in December, went 3-for-4 with the homer and a three-run double. Soriano went 5-for-7.

Every Yankee starter had at least one hit as New York improved to 6-1 for the first time since 1999. Jason Giambi, who entered at .21, went 2-for-3 with an RBI to raise his average to .208.

National League

Astros 8, Rockies 4

DENVER - Craig Biggio hit for the cycle and drove four runs leading the Houston Astros over Colorado 8-4 Monday in the Rockies' home opener.

Lance Berkman hit his fourth home run of the season, a two-run drive off Denny Neagle (1-1) in the third, and Roy Oswalt (2-2) led the Rockies to their fourth consecutive loss, allowing three runs and 10 hits in seven innings.

Biggio, who went 4-for-3 with a team-low .174 (4-for-23) with no RBIs, went 4-for-4 with a two-run homer, triple, two-run double and single to raise his average to .296.

Expos 10, Marlins 2

MIAMI - Michael Barrett hit a three-run homer and drove in a career-high five runs in Florida's home opener.

Umpires reversed a call to take a three-run homer away from Florida's Mike Lowell in the fourth, correctly ruling the ball was foul. The game was halted for 7 minutes when fans upset about the reversal threw magnetic schedules - a giveaway gift - and other items onto the field. Tony Armas (1-1) allowed both runs and four hits in 8 1-3 innings. A.J. Burnett (1-1), who hit Armas last week, struck out eight but allowed six runs and 10 hits in five innings.

Braves 2, Phillies 1

PHILADELPHIA - Kevin Millwood (1-1) improved to 5-0 at center field, allowing four hits and one run in 7 1-3 innings with eight strikeouts. Last Wednesday, he lost to the Phillies 3-1.

Marlon Anderson started the ninth with a double to right-center off John Smoltz and moved to third on Bobby Abreu's infield single. But Smoltz got Scott Rolen to pop out to second, before fanning Travis Lee and Pat Burrell for his first save.

B.J. Surhoff and Chipper Jones each had RBIs off Vincenzo Padilla (1-1) as the Braves won their second straight. Philadelphia, which finished two games behind Atlanta in the NL East last season, has lost three of four to the Braves and has scored just 20 runs in seven games, an average of 2.9.

Padres 8, Diamondbacks 0

SAN DIEGO - Phil Nevin and D'Angelo Jimenez hit two-run homers in San Diego's home opener, and the Padres took advantage of four Arizona errors.

Brian Lawrence (1-0) pitched a four-hitter for his first career shutout and second complete game. The Padres tied the GI Joe link for the third straight year, wearing white uniforms and olive green caps to honor the area's many servicemen.

Pirates 1, Reds 0

PITTSBURGH - Ron Villone (1-1) expanded Pittsburgh's unexpectedly good run of early pitching, doubling with one out, and the Pirates improved to 5-1 for the first time since 1983.

Brian Giles' first hit of the season, a one-out double in the sixth off Elmer Dessens (0-2), created the only run as the Pirates won their fifth in a row overall - and their first home opener since 1993.

Giles, who sat out the first five games with a strained rib cage muscle, doubled with one out, moved up on Dessens' balk and scored on Aramis Ramirez's sacrifice fly. Mike Williams got three outs for his fourth save.

Pistons beat Hawks, grab Central Division title

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) - The Detroit Pistons clinched their first division title since their championship era 12 years ago, beating the Atlanta Hawks 105-99 Monday night.

Zeljko Rebraca had career highs with 18 points, 13 rebounds and seven blocks. The Yugoslavian rookie replaced injured Ben Wallace (ankle), who leads the league in blocks and rebounds, and helped Detroit (47-30) win its first Central Division title since the 1989-90 NBA champs. Detroit is two games behind New Jersey for the best record in the Eastern Conference.

Magie 83, Rockets 74

ORLANDO, Fla. - Tracy McGrady had 22 points, 14 in the fourth quarter, 10 rebounds and six assists as the Magic moved within one victory or another Indiana loss of clinching a postseason berth.

Troy Hudson scored 19 points, and his 3-pointer - with 1:04 remaining capped a 16-1 run that sealed the Magic's 10th straight win over Houston.

Cavaliers 111, Pacers 99

INDIANAPOLIS - Ricky Davis had 32 points, while the Cavaliers limited Indiana to just five baskets in the final 18 minutes and ended a seven-game road losing streak.

Indiana has lost three straight and seven of nine as its playoff hopes took another big hit. The Pacers are 1-5 games behind Toronto for the eighth and final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

The Raptors, who have won all three games in the series, and the Pacers face off for the final time in Indianapolis on Wednesday night.

Magie 83, Rockets 74

ORLANDO, Fla. - Tracy McGrady scored eight of his 22 points in the final 4:55 as the Magic beat Houston 83-74 Monday night.

Troy Hudson scored 19 points, and his 3-pointer - with 1:04 remaining capped a 16-1 run that sealed the Magic's 10th straight home win over Houston.

The Magic's victory, paired with Indiana's 111-99 loss to Cleveland, dropped Orlando's magic number for clinching a playoff berth to one. Orlando can lock up a postseason berth with a win at New York on Tuesday night.

Mavericks 105, Jazz 96

SALT LAKE CITY - Nick Van Exel and Michael Finley each heated up in the fourth quarter and finished with 20 points, leading the Dallas Mavericks to a 105-96 victory over the Utah Jazz on Monday night.

Van Exel had 12 points in the final period and Finley had 10 as the Mavericks remained a half-game ahead of San Antonio for the Midwest Division lead and the No. 2 playoff position in the Western Conference.

Dallas did it without leading scorer and rebounder Dirk Nowitzki, who rolled his left ankle with 5:4 before halftime and didn't return for the second half.

Karl Malone scored 10 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter. He also had eight rebounds, returning to the Utah lineup after missing Friday's loss to Sacramento with a swollen right knee.

Steve Nash, who went scoreless against the Spurs on Sunday, had 17. Eduardo Najera added 10.

John Stockton scored 17 points and had eight assists, while Bryon Russell and Andrei Kirilenko each had 14 for the Jazz.

Bulls 105, Celtics 100

CHICAGO - Trenton Hassell made a key 3-pointer and Jalen Rose converted a pair of free throws, all in the final minute, to lead Chicago to a 105-100 victory over the Boston Celtics on Monday night, snapping the Bulls' nine-game losing streak.

Antoine Walker, who finished with 33 points, missed an off-balanced jumper with 3 seconds left, and Rose made two free throws with less than one second remaining to clinch the victory for the Bulls.

Marcus Fizer led Chicago with 21 points. Jamal Crawford scored 18 points in his first start of the season. Hassell scored 16 points on 7-for-8 shooting.

Fired

Detroit for moves that didn't work. He has seen players such as Juan Gonzalez, Luis Gonzalez and Hideo Nomo go on to success with other teams after leaving Detroit.

Owner Mike Hirsch hoped Comerica Park, the Tigers' home since 2000, would provide the financial boost that would translate to a higher payroll and a better team. However, Detroit finished 66-96 a year ago and 79-83 in 2000.

In Garner's first season in Detroit, the team reflected the competitive spirit that Tigers executives hoped would be instilled by the man who as a player was nicknamed "Scrap Iron." However, last year's payroll was cut, stunting any momentum the franchise gained in 2000.

The 2001 season was marred by cliques and clashes among the team members and squabbling between Garner and some of the players, including outfielder Roger Cedeno, who departed via free agency to the New York Mets.

Garner replaced Larry Parrish as the Tigers' manager. Garner came to Detroit after being fired in August 1999 after eight years at Milwaukee.

Players, who spent last season as manager of the Tigers' Double-A affiliate in Erie, Pa., served as a coach in Montreal from 1992-2000. He spent his last two seasons with the Expos as bench coach.

Comeback

"The support I got throughout these seven months here was huge, and now I have the chance to give something back," Koivu said. "I can't wait to see how it will be tomorrow night."

Hopes for a Canadiens' revival this season were dashed when Koivu took ill on the flight from his home in Finland to Detroit in September. The cause turned out to be non-Hodgkin's lymphoma.

With Koivu believed out for the year, and perhaps forever, the team considered a long shot for the playoffs - a comeback. Instead, the players adopted the team concept of coach Michel Therrien and have received exceptional goaltending from Jose Theodore.

With help from acquisitions such as veteran center Dany Heatley, Montreal has stayed in contention all season.

Perhaps buoyed by Koivu's return to practice in recent weeks, the team has won six straight games for a strong grip on the eighth and final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference, with another victory Tuesday clinching the berth.

His comeback is similar to the return last season of Mario Lemieux, the Pittsburgh Penguins' great who resumed his NHL career after coming down with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma. Lemieux captured Canada to the Olympic gold medal, then quit for the season due to a hip injury.

Koivu, who has struggled through various injuries in six seasons with the Canadiens, had 17 goals and 30 assists in 54 games last season.

The 37-year-old Nelson joined Ottawa as an assistant coach after undergoing chemotherapy and a stem cell transplant to treat the multiple myeloma that was diagnosed in 1999, when he was head coach of the Philadelphia Flyers.

The Senators said Monday that Nelson would be head coach for the last two games of the regular season to make him the ninth in league history to coach 1,000 games. He also would be at the helm of his eighth team, leading the record he shares with Mike Keenan.

A lifetime coach with the lined face to prove it, Nelson called the opportunity to make history an honor.

"It's been almost 25 years since my first game as head coach with the Toronto Maple Leafs (on Oct. 13, 1977, when Toronto tied Detroit 3-3) and it's still as exciting as ever," he said.

In addition to Toronto and Philadelphia, Nelson coached Buffalo, Vancouver, Los Angeles, the New York Rangers, and Florida.

Masters

At this time last year, Howell made it even more special. "I had to rely on sponsors' exemptions to get into tournaments. He still managed to win more than $1.5 million to earn his card and finish No. 45 in the world ranking.

Players who spent last season as manager of the Tigers' Double-A affiliate in Erie, Pa., served as a coach in Montreal from 1992-2000. He spent his last two seasons with the Expos as bench coach.

Howell figures the Masters is his best chance to win but not just because he was born and raised in the city of golf's most famous date-line.

His grandfather used to get four tickets to the Masters, and Howell went for the first time in 1987. "I was a member of the club and Larry Mize beat Greg Norman in a playoff with a 140-foot chip for birdie on No. 11.

Rangers edge past Penguins 3-2 to win fifth straight game

NEW YORK (AP) — Pavel Bure scored two goals and Eric Lindros added another as the New York Rangers beat the Pittsburgh Penguins 3-2 Monday night to win their fifth straight game, one day after being eliminated from the playoffs.

With the game tied at 1, Bure scored on a lightning-quick break-around with 5:01 remaining. Lindros added his team-leading 36th goal with 3:21 to go, but the Rangers will still miss the postseason for the fifth straight season.

Pittsburgh's Andrew Ference scored a power-play goal with 21.1 seconds left to draw the Penguins within one.

Jan Hrdina added a goal and an assist for the Penguins, who have known for weeks that they'll miss the playoffs for the first time since 1994. Hrdina played just 24 minutes this season in Pittsburgh, the chief reason the team won't be playing after this week.

The Rangers were eliminated Sunday night when Montreal beat Ottawa for the sixth straight victory, tightening its hold on the eighth and final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

Panthers 4, Flyers 4

the third period to give the Florida Panthers a 4-4 tie with the Philadelphia Flyers on Monday night.

Philadelphia pulled within three points of the Eastern Conference-leading Boston Bruins. Each team has three games left.

The Flyers led the Atlantic Division by five points over the New York Islanders. Philadelphia needs just two points to clinch the division title.

Dagenais' shot from between the circles bounced off the glove of Philadelphia goalie Roman Cechmanek and in. Simon Gagne tied it for the Flyers at 15:33 of the third when he converted a 2-on-1.

leading 3:30 goal.

Mark Recchi had a goal and two assists, John LeClair added a goal and an assist, and Kim Johnson scored the other goal for the Flyers.

Maple Leafs 4, Blue Jackets 1
TORONTO — Alexander Mogilny had a goal and an assist as the Toronto Maple Leafs defeated the Columbus Blue Jackets in their final regular-season home game Monday night.

Jyrki Lumme, Robert Reichel and Bryan McCabe also scored for Toronto, which moved into sole possession of fourth place in the Eastern Conference, two points ahead of idle Ottawa. Both teams have three games left.

The Leafs-chased goalie Ron Tugnutt hit three goals in his first period to halt a four-game winless skid at the Air Canada Centre. Toronto finished 24-11-6 with one, best in the East.

Cory Schrab had 29 saves for Toronto. Marc Denis replaced Tugnutt in the second period and allowed one goal on 26 shots. Tugnutt faced 11 shots.

Hurricanes 2, Islanders 1
UNIONDALE, N.Y. — Rod Brind'Amour scored early in the third period to lift the Carolina Hurricanes to a 2-1 victory over the New York Islanders on Monday night.

The Hurricanes need one point to clinch the Southeast Division title, and win it, the third seed in the Eastern Conference playoffs.

Sami Kapanen also scored for Carolina, which got 23 saves from Arturs Ibarra.

The Hurricanes are six points ahead of Washington. Both teams have three games left.

Roman Hamrik scored New York's only goal, and Chris Osgood stopped 21 shots as the Islanders moved to first place Philadelphia in the Atlantic Division. The Flyers are five points ahead, and both teams have three games remaining, including a matchup on the final day of the season on Long Island.

Shades of Seuss

Gooding Elementary students celebrate reading

GOODING - Students in Gooding joined millions of their peers across the country to celebrate the joy of reading on March 1 - the birthday of Dr. Seuss.

painting a Seuss character, making egg carton animals, a funny fish and making hats.

Craig Maki, Gooding Elementary School principal, joined Cat in the Hat (Sally Walker) passing out cake to all of the classes. Individual grades also participated in activities in their classrooms with read-ins.

This nationwide reading party is part of Read Across America, sponsored by the National Education Association and several of America's leading literacy, youth and civic groups, said Sally Walker, a school Idaho Reads! VISTA volunteer.

Gooding High School Reading Club participated in activities with the third grade classes.

Since the NEA suggested "Get caught reading" as a theme, "Seuss" sheriffs visited several times during the day and "caught" students reading. Walker said. Students' names were dropped in a hat for a drawing with prizes of books at the end of the day.

Students also were divided into groups and rotated through

Greenhouse project grows at school

Want more information about the Shoshone greenhouse?

Call Shoshone High School at 888-2381.

SHOSHONE - A greenhouse entrepreneurial project is blooming at Shoshone High School. The year-round student run greenhouse began three years ago with research and planning. The second year embraced production. This is the third year and eager students display green thumbs.

The program is run-by-grants, student effort and teacher Victor Gumbert's expertise as the agriculture, plant science and welding teacher, as well as the FFA adviser.

The students learn how to grow plants from seeds and how to keep plant life healthy. They gain knowledge of what type of plant life is around them and whether it helps or hinders the environment, school representatives say.

Along with this scientific knowledge, they gain the experience of being part of a team and a moneymaking business, Gumbert said.

"Each year, we regenerate funds for the next year and the student's work on new projects. Right now the students are building a cold frame to expand our limited greenhouse space," he said.

The frame project will be funded by a grant.

The students offer for sale hanging baskets, lilies, pansies and other plants.

Shoshone students Kyla Astle, Chelsea Queenches and Dani Bozotto work inside the high school greenhouse.

Buhl science, math students show skills

By Mary Lou Potts
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Buhl High School students went through a rigorous competition that made them think critically, and demonstrate knowledge of math, chemistry, physics, biology and computer applications.

The senior varsity team placed fourth at Boise State University on Feb. 9 for the Tests of Engineering Aptitude, Mathematics and Science (TEAMS) competition. Fifteen-student teams participated from eight schools.

The questions in the contest represented college freshman-level engineering courses. Students also had the opportunity to see how engineering touches every aspect of their lives, with subjects such as air transportation, bridge design, food analysis, solar-powered vehicles and food preservation, organizers say.

Student teams worked in an open book, note and discussion format. The test had two parts — multiple choice related to engineering situations, and describing and defending their solutions to open-ended, subjective questions relating to problems in part one.

Susie Jones, high school librarian, is the coach of the varsity and junior varsity teams. The junior varsity members come from ninth, 10th and 11th grades.

Notes on the economy

Hotels, motels, campgrounds, recreational-vehicle parks and other lodging facilities in Magic Valley's eight counties reported these lodging sales from March 1 through March 31:

County	March '02	Change from same month - March '01
Blaine	$2,196,889	down 4.2%
Camas	$92,130	0 in Mar '01
Cassia	$181,154	up 17.0%
Gooding	$41,485	up 75.4%
Jerome	$83,812	down 8.1%

Twin Falls	$889,222	up 11.0%
Magic Valley	$3,529,067	down 81.4%

The State Tax Commission tracks lodging sales monthly. But because of the normal reporting lag, the March sales totals - for the most part - reflect activity that happened in February. Lodging totals include nontaxable sales, such as those to federal or state government employees, in addition to taxable sales. Source: Idaho State Tax Commission

Sonic Corp. will attend conference

TWIN FALLS - Oklahoma City-based Sonic Corp., a restaurant chain with a franchised location in Twin Falls, said its management is participating in the Banc of America Securities Consumer Conference this week in New York City.

Sonic's presentation, at 2:30 p.m. today, will be available to investors via a live audio webcast. A link can be found at the investor section of the company's Web site, www.sonicdrivein.com, and the event will be available there for replay through April 25.

Sonic's investor presentation will focus on the current rollout of its new breakfast program and how that initiative is driving higher same-store sales and drive-in profits, the company said.

"By the end of April, this program will be operational in more than 1,000 drive-ins, or about 40 percent of our system," said Clifford Hudson, Sonic's chairman and chief executive. "That represents an expansion of more than 600 drive-ins since mid-February...."

"The success we have seen with the new breakfast program has been very encouraging, and its positive impact on our sales has more than compensated for the incremental drive-in level expenses, including the promotional costs, associated with the rollout," he said. "As a result, we believe that we remain well-positioned to achieve our targeted same-store sales growth of 2 percent to 4 percent over the balance of the year." Hudson forecast 18 percent to 20 percent earnings growth for the fiscal year.

BlueShield launches new program on its Web site

TWIN FALLS - Regence BlueShield of Idaho said it launched personalized cancer treatment assistance on its Web site to help customers better understand their treatment options, outcomes and side effects.

Regence implemented the Cancer Profilers program in partnership with NexCure Inc. NexCure's technology covers 20 of the most common cancers, including breast, prostate, lung, colorectal, melanoma and ovarian. Each cancer-specific tool generates treatment and outcomes reports relevant to a patient's individual diagnosis, test results and medical history, all based on clinical research published in medical journals, the Lewiston-based insurer said.

"The research has proven that patient education tools like this help inform patients to make better personal treatment choices with higher levels of satisfaction. We want our members and their doctors to have the best information available," said Dr. John Rusche, senior vice president and chief medical officer of Regence BlueShield of Idaho.

To use the Cancer Profilers, visit the insurer's Web site at www.id.regence.com.

Canyon Park will open in May

By Virginia S. Hutchins
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The four retailers in a new canyon-rim shopping center plan store openings this month, and developer Neilsen & Co. will celebrate Canyon Park's grand opening in May.

Twin Falls' retail sector added almost 200 full- and part-time retail jobs with the arrival of San Francisco-based Old Navy; Irving, Texas-based Michaels; Madison, Wis.-based Famous Footwear; and Framingham, Mass.-based T.J. Maxx.

They share a newly erected building on the south rim of the Snake River Canyon, on the east side of Canyon Park. The 40-acre Canyon Park straddles Blue Lakes Boulevard North along the canyon rim. It's also home to three restaurants and a bank, all in free-standing structures.

The development will include all its merchants and restaurants in a May 25 Canyon Park grand opening, with festivities: a two-hour radio remote and a trail opening, Neilsen & Co. spokeswoman Gillian Silver said.

Neilsen & Co. owner Craig H. Neilsen, a former Twin Falls resident, set aside a swath through Canyon Park to extend the city's canyon-rim trail. The developer plans to open that stretch of trail May 25, and it is working with the city to try to set up trail-related activities on that day, Silver said.

Neilsen & Co. continues to market the rest of Canyon Park but isn't close to announcing. Please see CANYON, Page D4

Developer names property administrator

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - Developer Neilsen & Co. named employee Tina Luper property administrator for the Canyon Park commercial development in north Twin Falls.

Luper will be responsible for maintaining the facility and supporting its restaurant and retail tenants, while continuing an active role with other Neilsen projects, the developer said.

Luper has held a number of positions with Neilsen & Co., including property manager of the Lynwood Shopping Center before Neilsen & Co. sold the Lynwood in 1999. For a time she was responsible for property management of the company's Breckenridge residential development just west of Canyon Park. Luper also has worked as the company's accountant for several privately held ventures managed by Neilsen & Co.

As project administrator and cost accountant for Canyon Park, Luper played a key role in tenant lease negotiations, construction administration and overall project coordination, the company said in a statement.

"Tina is a highly valued and accomplished member of our team," JD Sparks, Neilsen & Co. controller, said in the statement. "Since first joining our organization in 1994, she has continued to display professional growth, versatility and excellence."

Qwest says contracts are worth $15.6M

Knight Ridder News Service

DENVER - Qwest Communications International would pay its two top executives a combined $15.6 million were they to be fired without cause or elect to leave the company "for good reason."

Employment contracts for the two, disclosed in the Denver company's annual report to the Securities and Exchange Commission, mandate that each would receive double the sum of his base salary and annual bonus if he departs under those circumstances.

For chief executive officer Joe Nacchio, that would amount to $10.5 million - twice the sum of his $3.5 million salary and maximum $3.75 million annual bonus.

For chief operating officer Afshir Mohebbi, that would bring $5.1 million - twice his $850,000 salary and maximum annual bonus of $1.7 million. Qwest is the dominant provider of local telephone service in Magic Valley.

The basic terms of the employment contracts were revised and announced last year. Additional details, such as the severance terms, were disclosed last week.

Nacchio, Qwest's CEO since 1997, received a 75 percent salary increase and his bonus jumped to 250 percent of his salary. Mohebbi, a top Qwest executive since 1995, received a 51.5 percent salary boost and his bonus rose to 200 percent of his salary. Nacchio also received 725 million stock options with a strike price of $16.81. Mohebbi received 1 million options with the same strike price.

The executives' raises have yet to take effect due to a wage freeze at the company. Nacchio's pact spans four years. Mohebbi's will last until either side ends it.

Qwest called the pay packages comparable to those of executives at similar companies. The company consulted a compensation firm before granting the pay increases in October, a Qwest spokesman said. Also, the company often has said its executives' pay reflects the risks they accepted in joining what was an entrepreneurial venture before Qwest's 2000 merger with Bell South.

Even so, the severance terms might draw more attention this year than in others because of Qwest's troubles with the financial and investment markets. Qwest's stock sits about 82 percent below its 52-week high. The company is selling assets to pare its hefty $25 billion debt load and faces three SEC inquiries about its accounting.

Some analysts have said Qwest's stock price recovery hinges on its long-awaited changes to management team.

To receive the payouts, a departure of Nacchio or Mohebbi would need to meet certain criteria. That would include termination without cause or leaving for "good reason" such as a demotion, failure of timely payment of wages or bonuses or a change in control of the company.

A MOO-VING EXPERIENCE

Dairy farmer Arle Jongeneel stands atop a cow water bed at his dairy near Mount Angel, Ore., late last month. Jongeneel began experimenting with 18 of the specially made water beds in January and says he is ordering 80 more for the 1,600 cows on his Willamette Valley dairy farm.

Dairy farmer gives cows water bed treatment

The Associated Press

MOUNT ANGEL, Ore. - They say happy cows are more productive cows. Arle Jongeneel is hoping his herd of Holsteins, resilient on their water beds, will bring forth a dairy deluge.

Cow water beds redefine the concept "creature comfort." Some farmers say their charges are so eager to bed down on them they will actually stand in line.

"I grew up among cows in Holland," said the 64-year-old Jongeneel. "When my cows are happy I'm happy. It's just that way."

Eight or nine Holsteins lounged in a row on water beds at Jongeneel's farm on a recent afternoon, looking thoughtful as they chewed their cud.

The water beds - rubber bladders filled with 18 gallons of water and covered with thick rubber mats - undulated when the 1,400-pound cows shifted their weight.

The beds form to the shape of the cow and theoretically give the animals a more comfortable rest.

Jongeneel, who began experimenting with 15 of the specially made water beds in January, said he is ordering 80 more for his 1,600 black-and-white cows on a dairy farm in Oregon's lush Willamette Valley.

"It is better for the cows it will increase milk production, there's no doubt about that," said Jongeneel, who has been in the business here 32 years.

The Dutch- and British-made water beds have been in use in Europe for seven or eight years. Three years ago, the London Free Press reported about 15,000 cow water beds in use in Europe, mostly for dairy cattle.

Cow water beds began appearing in the New York-Pennsylvania area and the Midwest about three years ago, and are catching on in the West.

"The cows liked it right away," said Jongeneel. "They laid right down and were comfortable."

The water beds - which go for about $150 each - are easier to clean than mucking out stalls, said Jongeneel.

Those who distribute the water beds claim they reduce wear and

Eastern Idaho works to get money for technology sector

The Associated Press

POCATELLO - Eastern Idaho's economic development leaders want to attract private investors to put money into the area's growing technology sector.

Jim Bowman, president of the Economic Development Council, said venture capital is essential to the development of the technology corridor from St. Anthony to Pocatello.

"We have to demonstrate to VCs that we can provide good projects," he said.

Small, emerging businesses can succeed in eastern Idaho, Bowman said, but they are starving for capital resources.

"They don't finance any old operation," said Jay Engstrom, administrator of the Idaho Commerce Department's Economic Development Division. "They want fast growth potential and huge market potential, and it's all got to come together in a certain amount of time."

Venture capital investors look for a company with experienced business management, said Lyman Frost, the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory's director of technology transfer and commercialization.

"They'll look at 50 or 60 business plans before they pick one they like," Frost said.

Because eastern Idaho is isolated and has a small population, it does not have a lot of companies for venture capitalists to choose from. Frost said that does not mean that when a good idea emerges, the money cannot be found to help it grow.

"But at this point, we have to focus on quality instead of quantity," said Frost, who has done venture-capital investing for San Francisco-based Bechtel.

He and other economic development officials continue to talk to companies such as SAIC Ventures in Las Vegas; and Highway 12, Sawtooth Ventures and Akers Venture Capital in Boise, trying to interest them in investing in eastern Idaho companies.

"If we can show some success, I think we will get an audience with the venture capitalists," Frost said.

The Tax Court routinely fines protesters $5,000 to $25,000

Question: I have a friend who is caught up in this ridiculous tax-protester business. I want to help him before he gets into real trouble. His main contention is that only income from foreign sources is taxable. Would you be so kind as to send me some of the court cases that have rejected these arguments? He says there aren't any such cases.

Answer: An Internet-savvy 10-year-old could find many of the cases your friend pretends don't exist. A nice list of them, which

MONEY TALK
Liz Pulliam Weston

are all variations on the "my income isn't taxable" argument, can be found at the Internal Revenue Service's Web site www.irs.gov, in the IRS Criminal Investigation section. The IRS also has a pamphlet - "Why Do I Have To Pay Taxes?" - available on its Web site or by calling (800) 829-1040.

The Tax Court, which has reviewed many of these cases, now routinely fines tax protesters $5,000 to $25,000 for making what it rightly terms "frivolous arguments" that have long been discredited.

Your friend isn't about to be discovered by the fact he's here. He's got too much invested in rationalizing his position. He'd rather risk audits, fines and a possible prison term than admit he's wrong.

Of course, he's still willing to use the highways, enjoy the police and fire protection and be defended by the armed services, as long as it's all paid for with someone else's money.

And if he were ever to give up his bogus arguments, he'd face a real dilemma. Because he obviously doesn't like the tax system the way it is, he might face an ethical imperative to try to change it. But that would require real time and effort, which your buddy apparently isn't willing to expend.

My husband will retire next year. In the last year, he has fallen for many "get rich quick" schemes against my wishes. (I find out about these scams only after he's signed up for them.) We have lost a lot of money, but he still thinks he was "right" in his work, and of course nothing ever does. How can I put an end to

Arthur Andersen will lay off 7,000

CHICAGO (AP) - Staggered by a rapid loss of clients because of its role in the Enron scandal, Arthur Andersen announced Monday it is laying off about 7,000 employees, or more than a quarter of its U.S. workforce.

The layoffs, which Andersen had warned it would be inevitable, came after the Big Five accounting firm was indicted on charges of shredding documents and deleting computer files related to Enron.

Andersen's reputation is in tatters, its overseas network is disintegrating and dozens of its companies are dropping it as their auditor.

In a statement, the 89-year-old firm said it had to restructure its administrative services while bearing the brunt of the cuts. Heavy layoffs are expected at the firm's downtown Chicago headquarters, where about 5,300 people are employed.

"No one can believe this is happening," said Melissa Unno, 22, who works in the audit division in Chicago.

The firm has a total U.S. workforce of 26,000. The company said no breakdown of the cuts was immediately available.

Some employees in Chicago were told in an e-mail to check their voice mail Monday night to learn if they should report to work Tuesday.

Andersen said cutbacks were "one of the many consequences of the events of the last month."

"Of all the issues we have confronted recently, none compare to the actions we are now forced to take," Andersen said. "We are now forced to take our employees' trust away from them, and we are now forced to take away their jobs."

First, you might talk to your husband about what compels him to keep trying these schemes, even though he knows deep down that they won't work.

One reason people play losers' games, such as the lottery, is that they feel that they have no other way to succeed, said Meir Statman, an expert in behavioral finance at Santa Clara University.

Others believe that they have not achieved as much as they should financially during their lifetime. You may be able to make changes in your financial life to help your husband feel less desperate about the future.

You may need to guide him to a therapist or a 12-step group that deals with gambling addictions.

of Andersen's U.S. operations. "This decision is even more painful in light of the loyalty, commitment and hard work that our employees have demonstrated during this difficult time."

Andersen has been accused in a federal indictment of obstructing justice in destroying documents related to Enron while the Houston energy trader was under federal investigation. Andersen denies the charge.

Since Enron went bankrupt in December, Andersen has been hit by a barrage of lawsuits by Enron shareholders and creditors. It also has lost dozens of blue chip corporations as clients and nearly a dozen overseas affiliates have bolted to rival firms - the latest being its Norwegian partners, who announced Monday they are merging with Ernst & Young.

Olivia Mellon's book "Overcoming Overspending: A Winning Plan for Spenders and Their Partners" (Walker & Co., 1997), also may provide some insights.

If your husband refuses to stop, you have some pretty drastic measures available to you, including divorce, a legal separation of your financial assets or a conservatorship, in which a court would appoint you to handle his affairs. You would need to discuss your situation with a lawyer to determine the best course.

Continued from D3 additional tenants, she said. "Here are the basics on this month's store openings in Canyon Park East:

T.J. Maxx

The off-price retailer of brand-name and designer clothing and home products will open in Twin Falls Sunday with a grand opening from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Thereafter, T.J. Maxx's normal store hours will be 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Monday to Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. The 22,964-square-foot store will carry apparel for women, men and children; gifts; domestic women's shoes; accessories; and fine jewelry. An educational toy and book department will sell arts and crafts, games, science kits and puzzles, the company said in a statement.

It promotes prices as "up to 60 percent less" than department and specialty store charge.

"Each week the store will receive more than 10,000 new items, ensuring a continual flow of fresh merchandise," it said. Less than 5 percent of merchandise is slightly flawed, and less than 15 percent is out of season.

The store employs about 75 full- and part-time workers. Each T.J. Maxx store nationwide sponsors a child through Save the Children, a not-for-profit organization dedicated to changing the lives of disadvantaged children. The Twin Falls store's employees will send care packages and gifts to their child throughout the year, the company said.

Michaels

Arts-and-crafts retailer Michaels opens for business at 9 a.m. April 25 but plans a grand opening May 5, said Jim Buckley, store manager. Store hours will be 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday to Saturday, and 10 a.m.

to 7 p.m. Sunday. The store already has hired its staff of about 30 employees - 10 full-time and 20 part-time - filling the positions mostly with people who have retail and crafting experience, Buckley said. Though it has no open positions now, Michaels still is accepting applications.

"Expected to be Buckley said, "I don't know why they didn't come."

He accepted about 400 applications," he said, adding that would-be workers came from all across Magic Valley. But he didn't notice any of the displaced Burley Kmart workers among Michaels' applicants.

The 18,000-square-foot store will offer custom framing and custom silk flower arrangements. On Saturdays it will teach arts and crafts-to-children.

The children's classes, from 10 a.m. to noon, start May 4 and run every Saturday thereafter. The fee varies with the supplies used in each Saturday's project.

"Normal fee is around $2, I think," Buckley said.

Famous Footwear

National shoe chain Famous Footwear's 8,000-square-foot store opens in Canyon Park's spokesman Beth Fagan said Monday.

"This is our seventh store in Idaho, and our first in your market," she said. The store will employ 12 to 15 people, some part- and some full-time, and is still accepting applications, she said.

But just one position, for an assistant manager, is still open, said Jennifer Stelce, a public relations specialist for Famous Footwear. Would-be assistant managers may go to the Twin Falls store and ask to speak with sales manager Fernando Rodriguez. An extended grand opening starts May 2, with main attractions scheduled for three week-ends in May: On May 4, 5, 11-12 and 25-26, Famous Footwear plans downs, prizes, costumed mascots and free T-shirts.

"We always have a lot of fun on our grand openings. Kids should come - they will really love it," Fagan said.

The store, which markets its offerings as "brand shoes for less" will carry up to 20,000 pairs.

"We will have all the popular brands," she said. Fagan said Famous Footwear does a high-volume business in junior fashion shoes and in athletic for all ages, and that fits well with Twin Falls neighbors Old Navy and T.J. Maxx.

"Those customers are our customers - quality-conscious shoppers who look for brand names. They also look for great value in their apparel," she said.

Hours will be 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday to Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, Stelce said.

Old Navy

Casual clothing chain Old Navy plans to open its 17,160-square-foot store Monday.

Its whole staff - 75 people, mostly part-time employees - has been hired, but Old Navy is accepting applications for future store managers and assistant store managers for the Twin Falls location.

The store's general manager is Kristin Durbin. Hours will be 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. six days a week, with shorter hours on Sundays, Burleson said.

Old Navy will hold its grand opening in conjunction with Canyon Park's May 25 festivities, she said.

Investors shake off IBM warnings. NEW YORK (AP) - Wall Street shook off a profit and revenue warning from IBM Monday, bouncing back from a sharp early drop as investors regained their confidence about a business turnaround.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed down 22.56, or 0.2 percent, at 10,249.08, recovering from an earlier loss of 150.01. The bulk of the Dow's decline was due to IBM. The broader market finished higher. The tech-dominated Nasdaq composite index rose 15.84, or 0.3 percent, to 1,785.87, recovering from a loss of 36.19 earlier in the day. Analysts said buyers attracted by lower prices for Nasdaq issues accounted for the modest uptick. The Nasdaq fell 1.8 percent last week, to a year-to-date loss of 9.2 percent.

Cows

Continued from D3. Garthoff said some cattle still seem to prefer a deep bedding system, "but you have to (change) it almost every day." At Fisher Farms in Lenox, in upstate New York, cows will lie in line to use the stalls that have water beds. "Sometimes they'll stand there waiting for a cow to leave the bed," said Doug Dorf, a sales representative for the farm, which also sells the beds. "When they come back from the room, they'll use the stalls they fill first."

"The stalls with the water beds fill up faster than the other stalls," said Marshman, who purchased 150 of the beds and is pleased with them he plans to buy another 100 for his 370 cows. "Cows are just like everybody else," said Marshman. "When they figure out something is more comfortable, that's where they will go."

NEW YORK (AP) - Wall Street shook off a profit and revenue warning from IBM Monday, bouncing back from a sharp early drop as investors regained their confidence about a business turnaround.

Blue chips declined modestly while IBM managed a solid gain. The Dow Jones industrial average closed down 22.56, or 0.2 percent, at 10,249.08, recovering from an earlier loss of 150.01. The bulk of the Dow's decline was due to IBM. The broader market finished higher. The tech-dominated Nasdaq composite index rose 15.84, or 0.3 percent, to 1,785.87, recovering from a loss of 36.19 earlier in the day. Analysts said buyers attracted by lower prices for Nasdaq issues accounted for the modest uptick. The Nasdaq fell 1.8 percent last week, to a year-to-date loss of 9.2 percent.

Cows

Continued from D3. Garthoff said some cattle still seem to prefer a deep bedding system, "but you have to (change) it almost every day."
