Agency: No to ATV hunts

Fish and Game tests ban in one area

By Mark Heinz
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The idea that hunters should step off of all-terrain vehicles and pursue game on foot seems to have wide approval in Idaho, according to the state Department of Fish and Game. To test the idea, the department is banning off-road vehicles for big game hunting in one of the state's southernmost hunting units. And it is considering an expansion of that ban to all types

About Unit 47
 The only open big game hunt in this unit is an archery hunt for deer running from Aug. 30 until Sept. 30.
 There are controlled rifle hunts for deer Oct. 5-31 and Nov. 10-24. There is also a special controlled muzzle-loader hunt for antelope Sept. 25-Oct. 25.
 Game birds in the area include sage grouse, chukar and gray partridge.

...of hunting. The department already decided to nix the use of ATVs or other vehicles off established roads for big game hunting in Unit 47, said Fish and Game spokesman Mike Todd. The agency has been busy recently gathering opinions about expanding the off-road vehicle ban to include bird hunters in that unit as well. Basically, the ban applies to using an ATV or other vehicle anywhere except on roads that could be navigated with a full-sized passenger vehicle, he said. If things go well in Unit 47, similar bans might be tried in other areas, Todd said. But the department has no definite plans to expand the bans yet, and any expansion would probably be driven by public opinion. Please see ATV, Page A2

Predator kill raises concern

Lawsuits urge other ways to save grouse

By Jennifer Sandmann
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The killing of ravens, red foxes, coyotes, raptors, badgers, magpies and more wild animals to see whether predator control improves the lot of the struggling sage grouse is an Idaho Fish and Game Commission plan opponents hope won't happen.

Four conservation groups are suing to stop the six-year study that otherwise would begin immediately. They and others critical of the plan question the validity of the study and point to the loss of habitat as the major issue threatening sage grouse. A Fish and Game official counters that the plan is sound and that it doesn't deny habitat loss is a significant factor. "I think it's just going to end up being of no value whatsoever," said Tom Cade, founder of The Peregrine Fund and a founder of the North American Grouse Partnership. Cade, a retired Cornell University ornithology professor living in Boise, is not a party to the lawsuit but has his own misgivings about the study.

He witnessed dwindling sage grouse numbers for himself. In 1984 he began taking falcons to hunt grouse at Crooked Creek in eastern Idaho. "The situation has gone from being able to see thousands a day to being able to see hundreds and in some cases dozens when it was really bad," Cade said. He blames habitat loss from the conversion of sagebrush lands into farms, loss of wetlands to development including cattle watering holes, and wildfires fueled by fast-burning cheat grass — a grass transplanted to the range by ranchers.

"I don't think you'll find anyone who will claim predator control is a major factor in their decline," he said. Predators can be a problem in degraded habitat that offers grouse less cover — that's the study's theory, Cade said. Biologist Katie Fite, a former Fish and Game employee now working for the Committee for Idaho's High Desert, said the study area is too large. The plan calls for killing predators spread out over more than 130 square miles in Owyhee County, Twin Falls County and eastern Idaho, she said. Conservation groups figured the total area by mapping coordinates, Fite said.

Mark Callings, director of the federal Wildlife Services used by Fish and Game to do the hunting, called that characterization misleading. Predator control would occur on three 100-square-mile areas each year of the proposed six-year study, he said.

The study isn't about science but about politics and acts to divert attention away from issues of habitat loss, Fite said. Overgrazing is a contributor to the decline of sage grouse, she said. Please see GROUSE, Page A2

Area dog owners organize rescue unit

By Loretta Burkhardt

TWIN FALLS — Aside from their love of the canine, members of a search and rescue team share some other common ground — a concern for their fellow man. Prompted by the rescue efforts on the East Coast after Sept. 11, a group of Magic Valley volunteers began working on ways to be better prepared for emergencies here. Now, in direct response to the terrorist attacks, the Snake River K-9 Rescue Unit is officially in place, preparing to assist in both local and national disasters. "After 9/11, my first thought was 'How can I help?'" said dog owner Lisa Ethridge, a veterinarian at the Addison Animal Clinic & Hospital. "I knew I couldn't be the only one to think this way.

U.S.: Pilot thought he was under attack

WASHINGTON — An American F-16 pilot in Afghanistan apparently mistook Canadian soldiers for enemy forces and thought he was acting in self-defense when he dropped a 500-pound bomb, killing four and wounding eight, U.S. officials said Thursday. As an investigation began, a key question was why the Americans didn't know the Canadians were training in the area. President Bush conveyed his nation's regret to Prime Minister Jean Chretien, and Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld said U.S. and Canadian officers at Central Command headquarters in Tampa, Fla., would work together to piece together what happened and why. Air controllers already had denied the pilot's request to fire after he first reported he was under attack, defense officials said Thursday, but on a second pass, the pilot dropped a 500-pound laser-guided bomb, believing he was acting in self-defense. Pentagon officials also said it was unclear why the American pilot and controllers apparently were not aware of the training exercise at a former al-Qaida camp about 10 miles south of Kandahar airport. The pilot's name was not released, in accordance with U.S. military procedure in the course of an incident investigation.

DEADLY DERAILMENT

Families listen to their 'heroes' on Flight 93

LOS ANGELES Times
PRINCETON, N.J. — With pride, sadness and anger, families of the passengers and crew of United Flight 93 listened Thursday to a tape of the hijacked plane's last moments, confirming their belief that their loved ones fought to the finish. Some emerged saying they had recognized their relatives' voices on the cockpit voice recorder tape. The passengers are believed to have prevented a second hijacked plane from crashing into a Washington-area landmark on Sept. 11 by crashing the cockpit. "These were the clearest people

House OKs tight farm cap

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House on Thursday overwhelmingly endorsed a $275,000-per-farm cap on agricultural subsidies in a nonbinding vote that supporters said shows growing momentum for such limits.

The payment limit is part of a Senate-passed farm bill. Under a House-passed bill, subsidies for cotton, grain and soybeans would continue essentially unlimited.

The lead House negotiator, Rep. Larry Combest, R-Texas, said Thursday's 265-158 vote would "have no bearing" on talks between the House and Senate on a compromise bill.

Some 78 of the House members who voted for the subsidy cap Thursday voted last fall against adding a similar provision to the House's farm bill, according to a count by the Environmental Working Group, which supports the measure.

The Senate's payment cap would "ease the burden on smaller family-run farms by cutting the flow-of-money-to-corporate agribusinesses and steer it to those who need it the most," said the group's Susanne Fleck.

Chuck Hassebrook of the Center for Rural Affairs said the vote indicates House might now reject a farm bill that lacks the cap. The subsidy limit would save an estimated $1.3 billion over 10 years, according to budget analysts.

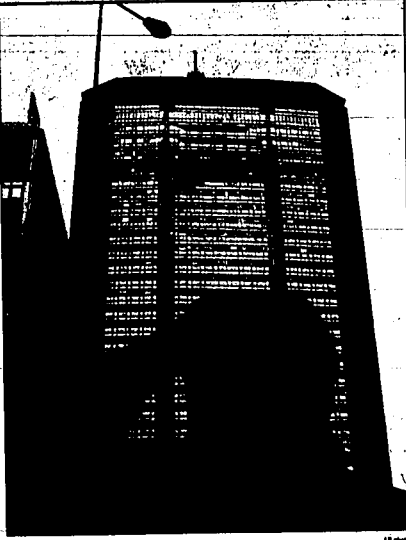

Critics of subsidy caps say they unfairly penalize efficient, highly productive farms and are especially unfair to cotton and rice, which cost much more to grow than corn, wheat and soybeans, the other major commodities the government subsidizes.

Wheat farmers donate flour to help Afghans

WASHINGTON (AP) - A German businessman and a North Dakota farmer are working together to deliver 2 million pounds of flour to widows and orphans in Afghanistan, whose food staples are badly needed.

Klaus Zumwinkel, chairman of Deutsche Post, and Robert Carlson, president of the North Dakota Farmers Union, say they were prompted to help by their own childhood memories of relief efforts. Zumwinkel recalls U.S. aid arriving in Germany just after World War II. Carlson remembers standing in the fields of his family's farm, watching his father harvest wheat that was donated to India.

Italian police discount terror tie to plane crash

MILAN, Italy (AP) - A small plane, in flames and reporting mechanical problems, smashed into the tallest skyscraper in Italy's financial capital Thursday, killing at least three people and injuring 60. The crash initially raised fears of a Sept. 11-type terror attack, but the Italian government said it was probably an accident.

The pilot reported "a little problem with the landing gear," and the control tower instructed him to move to the west of the airport until it was fixed, a statement from the association said, adding that the pilot didn't issue a distress signal as officials had previously reported. The control tower contacted the pilot again after seeing he was drifting to the north, in the wrong direction.

The pilot said he was fixing the problem, and the tower instructed him to move back into position to land. But the pilot again didn't get into the right position, it said. The control tower then lost contact.

"I heard something like the engine of a plane dying out, and then I heard a terrible explosion," said Raffaele Tacogna, who was tending bar at the nearby Atlantic Hotel. "I certainly thought of the September attacks in the United States," he said. "It really looked like the same thing."

The pilot - who was on a 20-minute flight from Locarno, Switzerland, to Milan - had started landing procedures at Milan's Linate airport when air traffic controllers alerted him that he

Government runs $133 billion deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government is running a deficit of $133.6 billion for the first half of the budget year, more than five times the shortfall for the same period a year ago.

The latest snapshot of the government's finances, released Thursday by the Treasury Department, was in line with the expectations of many budget analysts. They are predicting the United States will record a deficit for the entire fiscal year, which has not happened since 1997.

For the first six months of fiscal 2002, which started Oct. 1, government spending totaled $1.01 trillion, a 7 percent increase over the same period last year. Total revenues this budget year so far are $87.9 billion, a 4.6 percent drop from the corresponding period a year ago. In the first half of the 2001 budget year, the government recorded a $24.8 billion deficit.

The Congressional Budget Office said a drop in individual income tax payments was a big factor in the decline in government revenues.

Revenues from individual income taxes have totaled $399.2 billion this budget year, a 9 percent decrease for the same period in the previous fiscal year. The CEO estimated that much of the decline reflected last year's tax cuts. Corporate income tax receipts dipped to $78.3 billion from October through March, down from $80 billion recorded during the same period in the 2001 budget year.

The biggest spending categories so far this budget year were: Social Security, $239.8 billion; Health and Human Services Department programs, including Medicare and Medicaid, $225.5 billion; interest on the public debt, $164.4 billion; and military, $160.2 billion.

Budget experts believe annual budget deficits are likely for the next two years.

The Bush administration has blamed the return of deficits on a recession that began last March, and the costs of waging war in Afghanistan and battling terrorism at home. But Democrats said it was the 10-year, $1.35 trillion tax cut that Bush pushed through Congress in the spring for the budget's likely return to red ink.

House votes to make tax cuts permanent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pounding away at political themes for the fall elections, Republicans on Thursday pushed through the House a bill they said would bolster the economy and restore taxpayer certainty by making last year's huge tax cut permanent.

Democrats called it an unwise move to lock in the tax cut. They said it would increase government debt, but the GOP majority prevailed on a largely party-line 229-198 vote.

Since Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., is voting to block the measure in the Senate, both sides said its real impact is showing economic differences between the parties for voters.

House Minority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., called it "the definitive vote in this Congress on the future stability and security of Social Security." Republicans were just as eager to portray Democrats as advocates of higher taxes if the tax cuts expire as scheduled at the end of 2010.

"If you're looking for a fundamental debate between the parties, I think you've seen it," said Rep. Bill Thomas, R-Calif., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Horse Liniment Eases Arthritis Pain

OCALA, FL - An ingredient derived from hot peppers that decreases inflammation in rheumatoid's legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more.

Although the mechanism by which ARTH-Rx works to relieve pain is not totally clear, scientists suggest that pain is relieved because ARTH-Rx intercepts the messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain.

ARTH-Rx is available in a convenient roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, due to the overwhelming demand for ARTH-Rx, supplies are sometimes limited. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446, www.hedales.com or 800-600-0000. ARTH-Rx is available at:

Conservation measures should be offered to all

The idea behind the Idaho Public Utilities Commission's three-tiered electricity rate structure was to reward households that conserve power.

That's a good principle. Unfortunately, the rate structure doesn't always reward those who conserve.

If the PUC insists on keeping a conservation measure in place this year, it should replace its three-tiered structure with a plan that's fair to all ratepayers - including those in all-electric homes.

As commissioners continue gathering public comments, they probably will hear from many frustrated ratepayers who reduced their power use this year but saw their bills skyrocket anyway.

The biggest reason for these higher bills was last year's power-supply crisis. But another reason is the three-tiered rate structure, which locks some customers into the most expensive bracket with no practical way out.

For rising rates and a cold winter, customers have tried to cur usage. But many of them - particularly those in older, poorly insulated, electrically heated homes - can't conserve enough to escape that top tier.

An example: Let's say a family with a large, all-electric house cuts its power usage dramatically, from 3,000 kWh to 2,500 kWh. They'll still be in the punitive top tier, because they used more than 2,000 kWh.

A contrasting example: Let's say a couple in a tiny, gas-heated apartment increases power usage from 300 kWh to 700 kWh. These folks aren't conserving. Yet they still get the benefit of the cheapest rate, because their use remains below the 800 kWh threshold.

Here's a fairer alternative. The PUC and Idaho Power could compare each household's monthly power use to what that household used the same month last year. If power use declines, they could reward the customer with some type of price reduction.

(Idaho Power certainly has the means to compare usage in this way. It already prints yearly comparisons on power bills.)

The three-tiered system unfairly compares big homes against small ones, and all-electric homes against homes heated by gas or oil. Conservation should be about reducing use - not punishing people who have no options.

Of course, the three-tiered rate structure isn't the primary reason for higher power bills. For most households, PUC engineers say the tiered structure makes only a few dollars' worth of difference each month.

But in a year when customers have endured staggering power bills, every little bit of saving helps. That's true about electricity, and it's true about money.

Our view: PUC should use a conservation measure that doesn't punish ratepayers who have no heating options. What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Three faces of suicide bombing

Does Islam promote suicide bombing? Three answers seem to be circulating in the Muslim world. The first could be described as "yes-yes." It comes from the groups that recruit and use suicide bombers. Their argument is: Because we regard Israel as evil, we not only have a right but also a duty to fight it even in ways that are otherwise evil.

The second answer came from the meeting of the foreign ministers of the Organization of the Islamic Conference in Malaysia this month. That answer could be described as "yes-but." The ministers in effect approved of suicide bombing provided it was not used against their own governments. As for the definition of terrorism - the purpose of the gathering - they said that was a job for the United Nations. This was interesting because some participants also claimed that the U.N. was a mere tool of the United States.

The third answer could be described as "no-but" and came from Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad. Since suicide is forbidden in Islam, the argument goes, we cannot sanction such acts. At the same time we cannot condemn people who, driven to desperation, use such methods. All three answers are problematic.

It is disingenuous to claim that suicide bombers are ordinary youths who suddenly decide to sacrifice their lives to kill some of the "enemy." Organizing and implementing a suicide attack is a complex operation that requires recruitment, training, finance, logistics, surveillance and postoperation publicity. An 18-year-old girl may fancy herself a suicide bomber but, alone, would not be able to organize an operation.

Suicide bombing must, therefore, be regarded as a deliberate

The issue becomes more complicated when would-be suicide bombers are presented as martyrs. In Islam, a martyr is either one who suffers at the hands of the enemies of Islam or then at the point of death, because of faith - not politics - or someone who falls in a battle against aggressors. The martyr does not want to become one. He knows that the highest value is put to death not by his own hands but by his oppressors.

Islam celebrates life and promotes its enjoyment. There is no cult of martyrs and saints in Islam. There also are no hermits, nuns, celibates and no acquiring of merit through self-torture. Islam teaches man how to live, not how to die. "The ends justify the means" has no place in Islamic ethics or philosophy. Suicide bombing also is problematic on ethical grounds. Can we condone any suicide bombing, including the Sept. 11 attacks in New York and at the Pentagon? And what about suicide bombings conducted by opposition groups in Iran and Iraq? If not, who decides which suicide bombing is good and which bad? Can anyone decide to become a martyr? If not, who distributes martyrdom certificates?

The key ethical questions for Muslims are these: Are you prepared to practice what you preach? Can you become a suicide bomber?

Are you prepared to urge your offspring to become human bombs? Ethics can explain, even understand, evil, but can never justify it. Let alone confuse it with good.

Research confirms smaller schools are better

JANE EISNER

Sometimes it takes years of exacting, exhaustive research to prove what common sense might tell us if we only asked.

Here I refer to the results of the largest survey of its kind ever conducted in the United States, released a week ago. It found that students who attend smaller schools tend to feel more connected to their teachers and to one another - and are less likely to engage in risky behavior such as drug use, violence or early sexual activity.

The researchers carefully surveyed nearly 72,000 students in 127 representative schools across the country to confirm what anyone familiar with teenagers knows all along: They need our attention, no matter what they say. "In smaller schools, students, teachers and school administrators all have more personal relationships with each other," Robert Blum, director of the University of Minnesota's Center for Adolescent Health and Development, said in the introduction to the study he authored. "They know who you are. This is important to keeping kids engaged and a part of school." Blum's research adds to what educators already know about the academic value of smaller school environments - that test scores, attendance rates and graduation rates improve when high schools are home to several hundred, rather than several thousand, students. This is especially true for poor and minority students. Smaller schools are a well-tested academic equalizer.

Yet the average enrollment in the nation's public schools is creeping upward. For elementary schools, it has held steady for the last few years, but at the highest rate in 15 years. For regular secondary schools, average enrollment is as high as it's ever been in that time frame.

Imagine: There are high schools in this country with more than 5,000 students. That's the size of a small army. And while schools of that size are rare, the proportion of schools with 1,000 or more students is increasingly steadily - while the percent with 400 or fewer students is shrinking.

As with everything else in education, there are caveats. Small is better but it's not perfect. Size does not always predict student achievement. And educators themselves don't agree on the definition of "small."

But this much is certain: The pressure on schools to grow and consolidate is unabating - whether to realize economies of scale in distressed school districts or to absorb burgeoning populations in sprawl communities. Even Congress acknowledged the fact when it recently offered competitive grants to encourage school districts to create "small learning communities" in mega-high schools. Holly Perry has known about the benefits of smaller schools 18 years, since she became principal of A.M.Y. Northwest, a Philadelphia middle school with about 250 students and a solid academic reputation. Yes, there is a downside to her more intimate environment - which is why she was answering the office phone one afternoon this week, when there was no replacement for an absent secretary.

Still, Perry is convinced that size matters and she's focused on the long run. As an example, she has tracked how many of her graduates complete ninth grade in one year - an excellent predictor of whether they'll eventually receive a diploma. The district-wide average is about 50 percent. For A.M.Y. Northwest, it's between 85 percent and 90 percent.

That achievement might be overlooked by those focused on short-term academic and financial goals. Perry worries that "someone will come in and not understand how schools work - that connectedness is essential to community, and community is essential to learning."

It's an equation borne out by research and reinforced by common sense. Which, in the misty realm of politics and education, may be just enough to doom it.

LETTER

Sellman isn't afraid to stand up for beliefs

This is a letter of support for Rep. Sher Sellman in her primary race for the Idaho Senate. I've had the pleasure of working with Rep. Sellman during the past four years in the Idaho Legislature. She is hard-working, dedicated and committed to working for her constituents. I worked with Rep. Sellman on the House Education Committee. She is a strong supporter of public education for our children, families and teachers. She is not afraid to stand up for her beliefs and speak out for her constituents. We worked together in supporting legislation for gifted and talented programs, the Idaho Promise Scholarship and a minimum salary for public school teachers. Rep. Sellman does an excellent job in researching the issues and getting input from her constituents on all of the issues. I've also observed that Rep. Sellman is a strong agriculture and natural resources supporter. This is consistent with the makeup of the constituents in her district. She also supported legislation to strengthen our state National Guard and thereby enhance our military capability. She has consistently supported job development in Idaho's rural districts and tax-cut legislation which took farm equipment off the tax rolls. I know how important this is to Elmore County farmers. I recently talked with Rocky Trail, my nephew, in Paradise Valley, and he told me that taking farm equipment off the tax rolls was a lifesaver for many farmers and ranchers. I spent some time during the summers of my childhood with Uncle Lee and Aunt Alice Trail in Paradise Valley, and I learned to appreciate the hard, rugged work associated with irrigated agriculture.

I urge you to vote for Sher Sellman on the Republican ticket on May 28 for the Idaho Senate. She is a proven leader whose motto, "Constitution, Tradition, Trust," is reflected in her voting record. TUM TRAIL, (Editor, The Times-News) is a member of the Republican Party and lives in the Elmore County District 5 area in Paradise Valley. He is a member of the Idaho State Commission on Natural Resources and Education Committee in the House of Representatives.

Sharon Block stays active in community

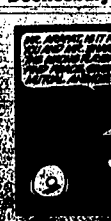

Sharon Block is running for District 24 state representative in the primary election May 28. She has served her area well and will continue to do so. She voted continuously in the people in her district. She is committed with the issues important to the citizens, she attended every community meeting and actively possible last summer. She visited every school in her district to review the problems and challenges of our educational system. Those who know her see her strong drive to serve her government she deeply respects and the people of her district. She has made her legislative duties a full-time job.

Return Sharon Block to the State Capitol. She is conservative, highly motivated and the present hard-working state representative for District 24. Sharon cares and deserves your vote. EILEEN BAINBRIDGE, Filer

Osama bin Laden no longer exists

Osama bin Laden is dead or deformed badly by shrapnel or so ill that he can't talk or show himself. No, I have not had the privilege of administering him his last rites or seen him buried or had a CIA agent whisper this information into my ear.

However, because common sense is permitted in the court of public opinion, allow me to plead my case: When I saw the excerpts from the so-called "new" bin Laden tape broadcast Monday, I knew that bin Laden didn't exist anymore. This was a desperate move to somehow fuel the hopes of his disciples that their leader is still alive.

One portion of the tape likely shows a pre-December bin Laden. His beard in the latest tape is darker than it was in a late December tape, and his skin looks much healthier. The grass is too green to represent a post-winter growth.

The fact that no one tried to camouflage or hide the background indicates that the people who sent the tape to the Al Jazeera TV station knew that the rocks and the mountains could disclose the location, but it did not matter anymore.

If bin Laden were alive and well, we would have seen an up-to-date video that included a current newspaper or magazine to confirm the date.

So why did bin Laden's friends create this charade? The fact is, you cannot be a Middle East Islamic leader without pounding on your chest in a nonstop public fashion, reminding the masses that you are there to lead them.

On Sept. 11, when the first World Trade Center tower was struck, bin Laden became the closest thing to an Islamic god to fundamentalist Muslims worldwide. He understood immediately the instant leadership options that were created for him through his murderous success. The world saw the video in which bin Laden admitted with glee to a close-knit circle that even he had not realized how big the disaster would be.

Bin Laden, the insane Islamic mini-god, then paraded around Afghanistan and its training camps, accumulating more and more disciples. He felt safe among the Taliban, and he felt admired, loved and protected by his followers.

Bin Laden didn't show his face to the world for the last 4 1/2 months. Soviet leaders could afford that disconnect from their public, but that's a very long time for the Middle East. No Arab leader, living in an area that is so assassination-prone, can be absent that long without raising suspicions.

Not making an appearance in person or at least sending another tape to a friendly TV station is tantamount to nonexistence, especially when you have to compete, nowadays, with dramatic personalities such as Yasser Arafat and Saddam Hussein.

Osama bin Laden, indeed, no longer exists.

Senate kills Bush Arctic oil drilling

Knight Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON - Striking at the heart of President Bush's energy policy, the U.S. Senate on Thursday killed an oil-drilling plan for the Alaskan wilderness that advocates said would reduce America's dependence on foreign oil but critics decried as an assault on the environment.

The largely partisan vote culminated months of debate and a furious last-ditch effort by Republican drilling supporters to entice Democrats with special interest provisions. Conservation groups countered by making the issue a key test vote on the environment. When the legislative maneuvering ended, Republicans could muster only 46 votes, denying Bush even a simple majority in favor of his plan.

Thursday's vote, coupled with the Senate's earlier rejection of tougher vehicle mileage standards, means that Congress will likely end up passing a stripped down version of energy legislation that lacks both key Republican production measures and Democratic conservation proposals.

The House last summer passed its version of an energy bill that included a provision to drill in 2,000 acres of the 19 million-acre Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. But the Senate's action left little chance that the measure would survive when the House and Senate energy bills are reconciled.

White House spokesman Ari Fleischer upbraided the Senate after the vote, saying members had "missed an opportunity to lead America to greater energy independence."

The energy legislation still contains measures aimed at conserving energy and increasing domestic production of oil and coal.

Gooding HS alum lands job with U.S. Rep.

BOISE - A longtime Idaho journalist and graduate of Gooding High School has been hired as the new communications director for U.S. Rep. C.L. "Butch" Otter, R-Idaho.

Associated Press reporter Mark Warbis will start his new job April 29. He will be based in Boise and replaces Will Hart, who has accepted a position in the office of U.S. Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho.

Warbis joins Otter's team after 20 years in the Boise office of the Associated Press. His experience there includes coverage of breaking news and issues from Sandpoint to Soda Springs, with an emphasis on politics, government and the courts.

He has reported on the Idaho Legislature for much of the past decade, developing a solid reputation with the state's leaders and members of the media who cover them, according to a press release from Otter's office.

Warbis is a Chicago native who, aside from five years in the Navy, has lived in southern Idaho most of his life. He graduated from Gooding High School and Boise State University. Warbis and his wife of 20 years, Michelle, have three children.

State seeks ruling on buried waste

The Associated Press

BOISE - The state on Thursday asked a federal judge to rule on whether buried material was included when the U.S. Energy Department promised in 1995 to remove all plutonium-contaminated waste from eastern Idaho by 2019.

Attorney General Al Lance and Gov. Dirk Kempthorne want U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge to conclude that the agency's court-enforceable agreement to remove "all transuranic waste" now located at INEEL includes buried waste.

The Energy Department contends its agreement with then-Gov. Phil Batt did not include the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory's 88-acre radioactive landfill. It contains refuse buried in the 1950s and 1960s from nuclear weapons production at the government's Rocky Flats complex in Colorado.

Specifically, the agency contends the 1995 agreement does not apply to waste buried at INEEL before 1970.

"One need only read the plain language of the agreement to conclude that this waste is included," Lance said. "We intend to take whatever further action may be necessary to ensure that DOE fully complies with the consent agreement."

An estimated 30,000 cubic meters of waste is buried in the landfill.

The area includes the infamous Pit 9 demonstration project area, where the government agreed on Wednesday that excavation would begin within two years.

A 1991 agreement mandated that Pit 9 be cleaned up by the late-1990s, and the Energy Department now will pay the state $800,000 for the delay.

Up to $5 million in additional fining may be levied if the government misses deadlines for that cleanup, which is scheduled to be complete by November 2004.

The state has agreed to put off deadlines on cleanup of the entire 88 acres until the technology used on Pit 9 is evaluated.

The Energy Department contends it may opt to stabilize some of the waste in the ground rather than digging it up and moving it to the agency's underground dump in New Mexico. Kempthorne said he has been unable to convince Energy Secretary Spencer Abraham otherwise.

"We agree to disagree with the secretary of Energy, and I have tremendous confidence in Attorney General Al Lance to affirm through the court system the state's position," Kempthorne said.

He said Abraham agreed that the legal action would have no impact on other cleanup issues or on future government missions for the INEEL.

The 1995 agreement sets a target date of Dec. 31, 2015, for removal of all the estimated 65,000 cubic meters of plutonium-contaminated waste at the site, and sets a firm Dec. 31, 2018 deadline.

Old Time Fiddlers prepare to compete

By Pat Murphy
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY - A violin and a fiddle may look alike, but how different they sound when in the hands of different people.

The difference is in how they're played.

The music from one way will fill the air in Hailey for the next two days with the sounds of "old time" fiddlin' as several hundred fiddlers from throughout Idaho converge for the annual Old Time Fiddlers Association jamboree and competition to pick the best in eight divisions.

There's not a Stradivarius in the whole bunch. Ironically, guitars and mandolins also will be much in evidence: Old time fiddlers usually have guitars as backup instruments for strumming rhythm chords.

"To whet the appetite of locals on Thursday, groups of fiddlers popped up in Hailey and Ketchum - in restaurants and stores - to stage impromptu toe-tapping, knee-slapping fiddlin' performances."

At Shorty's restaurant on Hailey's Main Street, two fiddlers - 75-year-old Archie Turner, a retired Twin Falls bus driver, and 88-year-old Dolly Daniels - furiously worked bows on their fiddles through dozens of familiar fiddlin' standards while a mandolin player and five guitarists added robust rhythm chords.

These roving performances will continue today around downtown Hailey. Then tonight, the "gamblers' contest" will begin at 7 p.m. at Wood River High School - a competition in which fiddlers pick slips of paper out of a hat with names of tunes they must play impromptu and without warning.

Preliminary competition for the finals begins at 8 o'clock Saturday morning at the high school, and continues all day, with the finals commencing at 7 p.m.

All events are open to the public and free. The event coordinator, fiddler Ken Worthington, 66, of Bellevue, a retired school Archie Turner of Twin Falls performs with members of the Old Time Fiddlers Association Thursday at Atkinson's Market in Hailey. The group met up with performers from all over the state for a practice performance all over town before the Old Time Fiddlers' State Contest begins today. The competition will run through Saturday.

Jive Nights '02 updates venerable tradition

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - It's been three years since Twin Falls High School's marquee vocal group jettisoned the name Madrigals and adopted the title Jive, and the repertoire at this weekend's Jive 2002 concerts reflects the update.

"A little bit of everything,"

director Joe Casperson said of the shows tonight and Saturday night in the Department will present five Jive Nights 2002.

"A lot of pop, swing tunes, rock 'n roll, show tunes. We're going to open the show with the kids dancing. Just a lot of fun."

The fare ranges from Abba ("S.O.S." "Dancing Queen") to Gershwin ("They Can't Take That Away from Me"), featuring solos by seniors Corinne Casperson, Stacie Wallin, Jason Bevan, Stephanie Hansen, Liz Stuart and Greg Wilcox and sophomore Tom Patterson.

Jive Nights is a venerable tradition that dates from the tenure of Casperson's predecessor, Richard Smpek, who started the Madrigals at Twin Falls High in 1968 and started an annual spring showcase event soon after. Thousands of THS students have sung at the event.

There are 30 members of this current edition of Jive.

Parties continue to address water rights

By Nate Johnson
Times-News writer

BURLEY - There is still no permit in place to allow artificial snow to be made at Pomerelle Mountain Resort, but the parties involved in a dispute about that issue may be closer to a resolution.

The parties agreed on a direction to a possible consensus at what Allen Merritt, southern regional manager of the Idaho Department of Water Resources, called the most heavily attended pre-hearing conference he has facilitated.

Thursday's conference in Burley could have led to a settlement or a hearing. Instead, hydrologists and lawyers from both sides agreed to work to find if the water rights will negatively affect people who hold water rights downstream. They will also attempt to find whether the proposed manner of snowmaking would amount to a consumptive use of water. The parties will meet again before June 5 to try to reach an agreement acceptable to all.

"We want to exhaust all possibilities for settlement before we go to a hearing," said Randy Bramer, attorney for the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Events mark internment camp anniversary

TWIN FALLS - It's a celebration of the human spirit and of spring's arrival.

But it's also an educational remembrance of humanity's darker moments.

In commemorating the 60th anniversary of Japanese-American relocation and internment camps, events ranging from a baseball game to a cherry blossom festival will be offered in Twin Falls Friday and Saturday.

The idea is to both entertain and to raise awareness of what took place in the Magic Valley 60 years ago, said organizer Maya Lemmon.

Minidoka ordinance moves to commission, councils

By Shari Chaney
Times-News writer

RUPERT - Just one person made comments at Thursday's public hearing regarding a proposed Minidoka County ordinance that would set up countywide standards in planning and zoning.

And both the Rupert city and Minidoka County planning and zoning boards recommended approval of the ordinance and the official zoning maps.

The 200-page ordinance and maps now go to the Rupert City Council and Minidoka County Commission for approval.

County Planning and Zoning Administrator Paul Aston said officials began updating the county's comprehensive plan more than two years ago; the proposed ordinance will be compatible with the updated comprehensive plan.

If all cities adopt the ordinance, along with the county, the ordinance will set up countywide standards, Aston said. Even the cities of Aqueala and Minidoka, which have not previously had zoning laws, can adopt the ordinance easily.

The ordinance also addresses recent court rulings which say cities cannot enforce planning and zoning issues outside city limits, such as in the areas of impact. The county will make decisions in the areas of impact, but the ordinance allows cities to review plans and have some say, Aston said.

Madelyn Player, the only person from the public to speak at the hearing, said she has issues with parking in planned unit development areas and in the non-conforming livestock project

Aston said the commission did not change anything in the chapter on PUD areas, but it is something that could be looked at in the future. As for non-conforming livestock projects, the existing ordinance was also not changed. If a project is not operated in three years, the permit may be revoked.

Before hearing public comment, Aston outlined the major changes in the revised ordinance. Those changes include:

- The number of zone designations increased to allow multiple agricultural zoning districts in the county and additional commercial and industrial zoning districts in some of the cities, Aston said.
- Manufactured homes are defined in four different classes.
- A new chapter addresses telecommunication towers.

Another new chapter regulates sexually oriented businesses, Aston said.

• A chapter on confined animal feeding operations was revised to "make it compatible with newer industry and state standards," Aston said. The ordinance encourages larger operations to locate in less-populated areas.

The Heburn Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a public hearing on the ordinance on May 13, the Paul Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a public hearing on April 25. Each city council and the county commission will then make a decision on whether to approve the ordinance.

Blaine motor oil recycling program starts Monday

The Times-News

HAILEY - The Southern Idaho Solid Waste District will celebrate Earth Day this year with a new recycling program at the Ohio Gulch Transfer Station aimed at recovering used motor oil in Blaine County.

The solid waste transfer station located on Ohio Gulch Road between Ketchum and Hailey will begin accepting used oil for recycling on Monday. The service is free, but there's a limit of two one-gallon containers of oil per visit.

Visitors to the transfer station should stop at the scale house near the entrance and ask for directions to the oil recycling location.

Fliers explaining the new service are being distributed this week.

Recycling motor oil prevents accidental spills, leaks or deliberate dumping that contaminates water supplies, and it reduces the nation's dependence on foreign oil, said a district press release.

A single gallon of used motor oil can be refined to produce as much fresh motor oil as can be extracted from 42 gallons of crude oil, the press release said.

For more details on used-oil recycling in Blaine County, call the Ohio Gulch Transfer Station at 788-2351, visit the district Web site at www.sisw.org or send e-mail to lundille@sisw.org.

A CHIP OFF THE OL' BLOCK

Malta farmer Ron Harper and his 3-year-old son, Malta, try to divert runoff from Cassia Creek in a field along Idaho Highway 81 Wednesday. Recent snow and rain in Malta has filled ditches, causing flooding at several places around the Cassia County community.

Energy secretary defends Yucca Mountain to panel

WASHINGTON (AP) - Energy Secretary Spencer Abraham said Thursday that killing the Yucca Mountain project would leave the federal government without a plan for solving the nation's radioactive waste problem.

"There is no alternative at that point," Abraham told a congressional panel. "We go back to square one to see what comes next."

Urging congress to move ahead with the Nevada burial site for nuclear waste, Abraham warned that energy companies would develop their own plans for transporting and disposing of waste from nuclear power plants.

"Do we want to do it in a coordinated national plan or on more of an ad hoc basis?" he said at a hearing of the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on energy and air quality.

Abraham's first public defense of the Bush administration's recommendation that the Nevada desert site become the long-term home for nuclear waste also included a plea to skeptical members of Congress to move the project ahead in spite of their reservations.

Approving the Yucca Mountain depository would allow the Energy Department to apply to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for a license to operate the facility beginning in 2010. Up to 77,000 tons of highly radioactive material generated by commercial nuclear power plants and the government's weapons program would be stored 900 feet beneath the desert. Some of the material would be sent to 131 sites around the country.

Water

make that expansion profitable, Pomerelle needs to have the capability to make snow early in the season, said Woody Anderson, one of the owners of the resort.

To allow Pomerelle to make snow, the Forest Service applied for a water right and asked that an existing water right be transferred from domestic to commercial use. Some of the water from the transferred right would go to snowmaking and some would be used at a new lodge.

Two Cassia County men, Fred Hawker and Earl Warthen, objected to the applications, warning concerns the new permits would decrease the amount of water that flows onto their lands. Another man with water rights on Howell Creek, Leo Bell, filed a motion of intervention against the applications.

Based on the information the Forest Service had gathered, Pomerelle's owners have determined the new water rights would cause an injury to the rights of those downstream and the snowmaking will not consume water, said Roger Ling, attorney for Anderson, the company that owns Pomerelle Mountain Resort. Rather, snowmaking would store the water on the mountain to flow downstream later.

When Bogus Basin and Sun Valley ski resorts applied for permits to make snow, Water Resources granted those applications because it determined snowmaking was not a consumptive use of water, Ling said.

The proposed snowmaking equipment would spray 19 acre feet of water onto the mountain-side using water from an existing diversion at Howell Spring and two or three new storage reservoirs, said Chuck Brockway, an engineer who has worked on the project. The snow would later melt and flow back down the creek.

"There's a lot more gory details, but if you do the water balance - all the plusses and minuses - you come out to a little bit of a net benefit to Howell Creek," Brockway said.

Brockway and Forest Service personnel have not calculated the amount of water that will evaporate off the reservoirs, said Pat Brown, an attorney representing Bell, Sun Valley and Bogus Basin. Bell did not have ponds in their snowmaking plans, Brown said.

If evaporation and other water losses resulting from the permits amount to a consumptive use of water, the Forest Service must provide some sort of mitigation or the applications cannot go forward, said Norm Semanko, Warthen's attorney. Water Resources has a moratorium on all new consumptive uses of

The water rights dispute

❑ The plan - The owners of Pomerelle Mountain Resort have received permission from the U.S. Forest Service to expand the ski area. They're asking for a new water right which will allow them to create artificial snow, which they say is needed as part of the expansion plan.

❑ The water right - A new water right would actually be assigned to the Forest Service. The agency has also asked that an existing water right be transferred from domestic to commercial use.

Some of the water from the transferred right would be used for snowmaking and some would be used to supply water to a new ski lodge.

❑ The protests - Three men, Fred Hawker, Leo Bell and Earl Warthen, are concerned the changes in water rights and uses may decrease the water coming off the mountain and onto their lands.

Craig edges Blinken in first-quarter fund-raising

BOISE (AP) - Republican Sen. Larry Craig picked up the fund-raising pace last winter, collecting another $366,000 from January through March in his bid for a third six-year term, new campaign finance disclosure reports showed.

And Democratic challenger Alan Blinken left little doubt he intends to make Craig every single. His disclosure report showed nearly as much in contributions augmented with $245,000 from his own fortune.

The Wall Street investment banker and former ambassador to Belgium during the Clinton administration attracted nearly as much from individuals as Craig. In both cases the vast majority of those donors lived outside Idaho.

Craig got $269,000 from 396 contributors, or 25, or 64 percent, were not Idaho residents. Blinken received $261,000 from 472 contributors, and 387, 82 percent, were not Idaho residents.

"In a democracy, politics never stop," Craig wrote in his latest fund-raising letter postmarked April 3. "With that reality fully in mind, it is clear that if I ignore the probability of a strong and well-financed Democrat candidate - it will be at my own peril."

Craig had to write off maximum $2,000 contributions from three contributors, Anthony Burges of New York and D.H. and Marjorie Overmyer of Linden, Ala., because their checks bounced. He also turned back a $2,000 contribution from the Coeur d'Alene Tribe.

Craig raised another $97,000 from special interest political action committees to average $122,000 a month from January through March. Last year when he began his re-election effort in earnest, Craig raised just over $1 million, an average of about $85,000 a month.

Blinken, who faces Dave Sneddon of Boise in the May primary, got another $45,000 from political and special interest committees, making his total $306,000.

Sneddon has filed no information with the Federal Election Commission.

The cash cushion built up last year by Craig with $845,000 in the bank on April 1. Blinken had $145,000 and only because of his personal loan.

Still, his allies offered the financial report as evidence that his campaign has broad support and was not a self-financed political bid by a wealthy businessman, who now lives in Sun Valley.

His list of financial supporters is studded with political and other stars. Among them are: Vernon Jordan, former president of the National Urban League and adviser to former Presidents Clinton and Carter; Lloyd Cutler, former White House counsel in the Clinton administration; former Seagram's chief executive Edgar Bronfman; Teresa Heinz, widow of the former Republican senator from Pennsylvania who is now married to Democratic Sen. John Kerry of Massachusetts and has a home in Sun Valley; former Republican state Rep. M. Reed Hansen of Idaho Falls; RCA entertainment director William Sarnoff, entertainer Barbra Streisand and actors Ben Stiller, Edward Norton and Timothy Dalton.

Blinken has already paid $123,000 to Democratic consultant Bob Beckel, who worked in the Carter administration and was Walter Mondale's campaign manager in 1984. He has also spent $85,000 on the television advertisement that has been airing recently and another $21,000 on a poll.

Craig has spent over $145,000 on direct mail solicitations like the one sent out earlier this month and another $18,000 on other fund-raising strategies. He spent nearly $300,000 on direct mail last year.

Facing Democratic business Wally Minnick in 1996, Craig went into debt spending $2.8 million to win a second term with 57 percent of the vote. Minnick spent over $2 million - half from his own pocket - to get just under 40 percent.

Interior tries to speed oil and gas drilling in Rockies

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Bush administration is encouraging agencies to study the feasibility of oil and gas drilling in five public areas of the Rocky Mountains where developers have expressed the most interest.

The Interior Department has given the BLM and other agencies until the end of this month to gather data on the potential oil and natural gas reserves in the five basins, and until November to study the impact of developing them.

Kathleen Clarke, BLM's director, said her agency will consider opening areas only where drilling won't interfere with other uses of the land and "appropriate environmental protection" can be provided.

"These are standards to which the BLM is completely committed," Clarke told a House subcommittee Thursday as the Senate was voting on the other side of the Capitol to reject President Bush's plan to open a wildlife refuge in Alaska to oil drilling.

Clarke said the Interior Department has consulted with oil and gas industry representatives, environmentalists and congressional staffers. "These areas then are characterized according to the degree to which the restrictions and impediments may affect development," Clarke said.

Rep. Barbara Cubbin, R-Wyo., who chairs the House Resources energy and mineral resources subcommittee, called the Rockies

Senate deals blow to Arctic drilling, Bush - AB

"a frontier gas province" that ought to be opened more to entrepreneurs. "Government must allow dry holes to be drilled by risk-takers searching for the next giant field to replace our declining domestic production."

The subcommittee's senior Democrat, Rep. Ron Kind of Wisconsin, suggested that independent estimates of the potential reserves and environmental effects might be superior to the inventory being taken by the government.

In earlier estimates, the U.S. Geological Survey said there are 137 trillion cubic feet of natural gas and several billion barrels of oil under federal lands in the Rockies.

The RAND Corp., which takes no position on whether oil and gas drilling should proceed on currently restricted federal lands, believes estimates of resources must take into account the economics of exploration, said Debra Knopman, associate director for science and technology.

If that were done, said Peter Morton, a Wilderness Society resource economist, policy makers would have to conclude "we have already discovered the best reserves America had to offer" and focus instead on alternative energy sources, efficiency and conservation measures.

Some southern Utah residents oppose idea of new monument

CASTLE DALE, Utah (AP) — Many residents in this central Utah town don't want to see the San Rafael Swell turned into a national monument despite the plan's backing from state and local leaders.

Most of the 150 residents who attended a town meeting with Gov. Mike Leavitt on Wednesday opposed creating the 620,000-acre San Rafael Western Heritage National Monument. It's an idea Leavitt announced in this year's State of the State Address and forwarded in a letter to President Bush two weeks ago.

"This is not from the community," said Ferron resident Wade Allinson. "You said if it's the will of the people, we'll do it. Well, this is not the will of the people."

The governor's speech blindsided some locals. And several were infuriated by his April 4 letter that tells Bush a monument "has the full support of Utah's congressional delegation" and follows "seven years of public debate, public meetings and input from a broad spectrum of the local community and other interested groups."

"You want to know what the people think? Take a vote before you dump it on us," said Kim Orndorf, who lives in Utah County but plans to move to the San Rafael area. Leavitt said the community will have a year or more to help flesh out a proposal in the area, about 40 percent of which includes wilderness study areas. "I feel by the time action is taken, there will be broad support for this," he said.

Leavitt says the monument would give locals, rather than the federal government, more input on the land's future use.

"This is an idea, not a proposal," Leavitt said. "Whether a monument happens or not, we can set a standard for the way public discussion ought to take place."

In fact, he told residents the real issue isn't the monument,

A nature photographer takes photos in Little Wild Horse Canyon in the San Rafael Swell in central Utah, near the town of Castle Dale, in this undated file photo. Many residents in Castle Dale don't want to see the San Rafael Swell turned into a national monument, despite the plan being backed by state and local leaders.

but the Bureau of Land Management's environmental assessment of 1,000 miles of roads within the swell.

One proposal could restrict use of 300 miles of roads. Public input time ends next week.

Leavitt urged residents to address the proposals before the deadline, rather than worry about a monument that may not be.

Leavitt and his staff went to central Utah to listen to the concerns of Emery County's 11,000 residents for a day, anticipating an emotional reaction to the monument proposal.

The administration also visited the San Rafael Swell, a huge and scenic geological formation cut by canyons and bisected by Interstate 70 west of Green River.

Lincoln County approves dairy expansion

SHOSHONE — Devan and Kris Hubert of Dietrich are on the road to expanding their dairy.

The Lincoln County Planning and Zoning Commission approved last week the Huberts' permit application for expanding their dairy. The permit is necessary when an expansion of more than 50 percent is desired.

No neighbors spoke at the April 11 meeting in opposition to the dairy, all testimony that was given favored expansion.

"Devan is doing a nice job with his facilities. He is a good operator. We don't get any runoff. Plus it is good for the economy," said Jim Whittaker, a neighbor of the dairy. Another neighbor, John Powers, said, "I'd be glad to get some of the manure."

The dairy is at 602 E. 570 S. The Huberts are now milking between 300-500 dairy cows and have asked for an expansion of up to 1,000 cows and 500 animal units in assorted sizes. The expansion will happen gradually.

The commission unanimously approved the expansion permit with some stipulations. Those include having signed agreements from farmers who want manure; a letter from the highway department saying whether a new approach to the land will be needed; state and federal copies of dairy permits; a copy of well or other water permits necessary; and a copy of the nutrient plan. Expansion can go forth as soon as these stipulations have been met.

Other planning and zoning business included a discussion on confined animal feeding operations. There is a need to come up with a new number for the overlay plan.

Some concerns include how many CAFOs should be inside city limits, how many should be outside city limits, and how new CAFOs will be affected versus existing CAFOs.

Lt. governor candidate questions opponent

BOISE — Republican lieutenant governor candidate Larry Eastland wants Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa to determine whether Boise lawyer Karl Shurtliff is qualified to serve as lieutenant governor.

A Democratic candidate for the office, Shurtliff was a member of the state's six-member bipartisan redistricting commission that redrew the state's political boundaries based on the 2000 census results. The Idaho Constitution prohibits a member of the commission from serving in the Legislature for five years.

Eastland contends the lieutenant governor serves in the Legislature by virtue of presiding over the Senate. Shurtliff disagrees, and Cenarrusa has asked Attorney General Al Lance for a legal opinion.

Cenarrusa on Thursday asked for Lance's opinion on whether a member of the Idaho Redistricting Commission can run for lieutenant governor and what authority the secretary of state has to declare candidates ineligible and remove them from the ballot.

Eastland, an Eagle businessman and former Idaho Republican Party treasurer, faces incumbent Lt. Gov. Jack Riggs of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho Senate Republican Floor Leader James Risch of Boise, House Judiciary Chairman Celia Gould of Buhl and long-shots Darrell Bobbitt of Boise and Jim Pratt of Melba in the May 28 GOP primary election.

Shurtliff's only Democratic primary opponent is Bruce Perry of Boise. The winners of those two races will face Libertarian Michael Kempf of Coeur d'Alene in the November general election.

Former ITA director faces embezzlement charges

BOISE — A former Idaho Thoroughbred Association director alleged to have embezzled more than $100,000 will be arraigned on April 24.

James K. Timms, 53, of Boise is charged with grand theft by unauthorized control. She is accused of taking money from the association between January 1999 and December 2001. The amount believed to be missing is about $113,000, Boise police said.

Timms worked for the group for almost 15 years, association president Jim Rigby said. The group promotes the breeding of thoroughbreds and provides financial incentives for owners to run their horses for purses at Idaho tracks. Its funding comes from dues, corporate sponsorships and some state money from racing simulcast fees.

Judge dismisses charges against colleague

COEUR D'ALENE — Two felony charges against 1st District Judge James Michael were abruptly dismissed this month, and the case was sealed by a fellow judge.

Bonner County Magistrate Barbara Buchanan initially signed a complaint against Michael on March 29 alleging perjury and attempting to obtain false payments. She dismissed the charges and ordered the file removed from public view April 10.

Her dismissal said no criminal intent had been proved. Buchanan and Michael both refused to comment about the case Wednesday.

The matter began in 1998 when Coeur d'Alene attorney Starr Kelso filed a complaint with the Idaho Judicial Council alleging ing Michael lied in an affidavit claiming the judge had cleared his cases in 30 days when he had not. Idaho law requires judges to make a decision on cases they have a record within 30 days. Judges must swear under oath they have cleared their docket to receive their salary.

West in brief

BYU-Idaho names new academic vice president

REXBURG — Former agriculture teacher and current associate academic vice president Max Checketts has been named the new academic vice president at Brigham Young University-Idaho. Checketts will replace Donald Bird, who will step down after seven years as academic vice president to teach religion classes for a year before retiring.

The announcement was made by President David A. Bednar on Wednesday.

Prosecutor drops trespassing charges against evangelists

SALT LAKE CITY —

Trespassing charges against two people caught distributing evangelical literature on the Mormon church's Main Street Plaza have been dismissed pending outcome of a suit over-plaza restrictions.

The Rev. Kurt Van Gorden appeared before a judge Wednesday to face the charge, but city Prosecutor Sim Gill dismissed the charges against Van Gorden and Melvin Heath pending the outcome of the civil case.

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver is weighing constitutionality of rules of conduct for the plaza, which was part of the city's Main Street before The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints bought it.

The American Civil Liberties Union contends in the suit that the church's restrictions on public use of the property are unconstitutional because the city retains an easement across the block for pedestrian access.

Teen shoots friend, turns gun on himself

BOISE — Two teen-age boys were hospitalized with gunshot wounds Thursday after what police are calling an accidental shooting and suicide attempt.

Two boys, 15 and 16, were at a home when the older boy fired three shots from a small caliber handgun, police spokesman Rich Wright said.

The first shot hit a bedroom door and the second hit the 15-year-old in the neck. The last shot came when the 16-year-old pointed the gun at his own head.

Despite his wound, the 15-year-old called 9-1-1. Both boys were taken to St. Alphonsus Medical Center.

The names of the boys have not been released, and a hospital spokeswoman wouldn't release the conditions of either boy. Wright said emergency personnel at the scene reported that the prognosis for the 15-year-old victim was good because the bullet missed major arteries.

"The prospect is not as good for the 16-year-old," who was in extremely critical condition as he was taken to the hospital, Wright said.

United Nations envoy calls Jenin devastation unjustifiable

JENIN, West Bank — Braving the stench of death, Palestinian refugees searched for loved ones and possessions Thursday as the devastation left by the Israeli incursion. A U.N. envoy said the attack caused "colossal suffering" and was unjustified.

Near Nablus, the Israeli military said it captured 14 Hamas fighters, including a leader of the Hamas militant organization who the army said was responsible for the deaths of more than 100 Israelis in some of the worst suicide bombings in the last year. He reportedly had a hand in the March 27 Passover suicide bombing in Netanya that triggered the Israeli drive into Palestinian cities and towns. An army statement said his capture "is a significant blow" to Hamas. Witnesses said he was captured and three others were killed in a raid by helicopters firing rockets and machine guns outside the village of Beit Hassan.

Terje Larsen, the U.N. envoy, said 500 buildings were destroyed and 2,000 people were left homeless in the Jenin refugee camp, scene of the bloodiest fighting of Israel's three-week campaign to capture or kill armed militants in the West Bank.

British Royal Marines and Afghanistan mission

BAGRAM, Afghanistan — The British Royal Marines ended their first large-scale combat mission in Afghanistan on Thursday, finding what their commander said were "terrorist facilities," documents and anti-aircraft ammunition.

During the five-day mission, some 400 mostly British troops — as well as smaller U.S. and Afghan troop contingents — dug in along a rugged area of high desert near the Pakistani border where Operation Anaconda took place last month. U.S. soldiers went through the area during that mission, but allied intelligence said some al-Qaida and Taliban fighters may have returned.

British Brig. Roger Lane said there was "evidence to suggest some terrorist facilities remained undiscovered and that (al-Qaida) forces had re-infiltrated." Allies said the area has been a key supply route for al-Qaida and Taliban soldiers. He would not offer details on what that evidence was.

Lane did say the marines found new cave complexes, including one containing thousands of large-caliber ammunition usually associated with anti-aircraft artillery. After dumping out the ammunition and documents, the troops destroyed the caves.

Afghans rejoice as former king returns to homeland

KABUL, Afghanistan — Afghanistan's former king stepped off a plane Thursday and into his homeland 23 years after being overthrown in a palace coup. The bitter rivalries that have marred modern Afghan history were suspended as people took to the streets in jubilation.

Smiling and waving, Mohammad Zahir Shah walked onto a red carpet where an honor guard saluted him and dignitaries applauded. Women and children in brightly colored costumes held up his photograph. The frail ex-king shook hands with tribal elders, diplomats and even a few warlords before boarding a black Mercedes-Benz.

The outpouring of emotion for Zahir Shah — who ruled Afghanistan from 1933 to 1973 in what many remember as their nation's last period of peace — laid bare the high hopes Afghans are placing on him as the country struggles to overcome decades of unfathomable violence.

Malaysia arrests 14 suspected of al-Qaida ties

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia — Malaysian authorities arrested 14 suspected members of an al-Qaida-linked group in raids that turned up a map of the country's largest port, officials said Thursday.

Also Thursday, the Australian government announced the U.S. military is holding a second Australian who may have fought for al-Qaida, and France continued to question three suspects in connection with an alleged shoe-bomber.

As investigations began immediately after Sept. 11, continued arrests in Europe and the Swiss police carried out a series of searches into the financing behind the terrorist attacks. The Swiss Prosecutors Office said more than 60 officers had seized documents from several banks and the homes of three individuals suspected of terror links. No one was arrested during the operation in Switzerland's eastern Graubunden and southern Ticino regions, the office said in a statement.

Research: Parents smoking could affect baby's sex

LONDON — Couples are more likely to have a girl than a boy if either of the partners smoked heavily while they were trying to conceive, new research suggests. Some scientists consider the ratio of male to female births to be an indicator of a population's health, because male sperm and embryos are more fragile than their female counterparts.

The study published this week in The Lancet medical journal is the first to propose that smoking may play a role.

Dr. Henrik Moller, who has conducted extensive research on sex ratios but was not connected with the latest study, said the findings "fit with what is already known about certain exposures, certainly in the male."

'Kon-Tiki' adventurer dies after bout with brain cancer

OSLO, Norway — Thor Heyerdahl, the Norwegian adventurer who crossed the Pacific on a balsa log raft and detailed his harrowing 101-day voyage in the book "Kon-Tiki," died Thursday night. He was 87.

Heyerdahl stopped taking food, water or medication in early April after being diagnosed with a terminal brain tumor.

"Norway has lost an original and spectacular researcher, explorer and adventurer," Prime Minister Kjell Magne Bondevik said.

Experts scoffed at Heyerdahl when he set off to cross the Pacific aboard a balsa raft in 1947, saying it would get waterlogged and sink within days. After 101 days and 4,900 miles, he proved them wrong by reaching Polynesia from Peru in a bid to prove his theories of human migration.

CSI students present farcical 'Nurse Jane'

TWIN FALLS - Normally, the College of Southern Idaho Theater Department's spring production is an unequal race between stagecraft and nice weather.

But this year, nature lent a hand. Theater-goers are considerably more enthusiastic when the weather is lousy outside. "If it stays like this, I'm golden," said Tony Mannen, who will direct playwright Allan Stratton's farce "Nurse Jane Goes to week rehearsal schedule," Mannen said. "Bright and hilarious. The (students) are into it because it's so much fun."

It's about the husband of a newspaper advice columnist plotting to cheat on his wife with a flaky Harlequin Romance novelist. Suddenly, his house is full of people who were vague acquaintances before the many coincidences and gigantic revelations that suffuse the play, involving lost children, mistaken identities and non-sequiturs. Every time the doorbell rings, disaster walks in.

"Comedy needs no justification," wrote Stratton, a 50-year-old Canadian. "Laughter is its own reward. It is cathartic... I love the outrageous carnival instincts of farce, the excitement of juggling bright characters and situations."

Jud Harmon plays Edgar, the would-be philanderer, and Shandala Griffin is Vivian, the object of his affections. Charisse Strader is Doris, Edgar's spouse. Other actors are David Anderson, A.J. Hoffman, Dustan Birrell and Melanie Fisk.

Rupert singer will perform with orchestra

By Anie Thompson
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY - Alan Hale may not have been able to get Robert Newman's voice into his Minico High School choir years ago, but he's had better luck enticing him to the Magic Philharmonic.

"I tried and tried to get him to sing in the choir, but he didn't think he had any talent," said Hale, who will be the guest conductor when the Magic Philharmonic performs its final concert of the season tonight. Newman will be the soloist. "He's still mad at me," Newman joked.

"For any singer, singing with a full orchestra is a total bonus - a dream come true," he said. Because of the power of the orchestra, Newman feels he has to sing his best.

Newman, who lives in Rupert, began studying voice at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music more than 25 years ago. His talent and voice have taken him through more than 35 opera roles, dozens of musical comedies and numerous recitals and concertos throughout the Pacific Northwest. He'll perform three selections tonight, including "Serenade" from "The Student Prince"; a special arrangement of Cole Porter's "Night and Day," arranged locally by Roger Turner, and a selection from Rossini's opera "The Barber of Seville."

"I'm singing three of the best songs I could sing," he said. Newman and Hale have worked together in the past and have performed some of the same pieces with Hale accompanying Newman on the piano. Newman didn't start singing until he was in college. "I didn't think I had any musical talent," he said.

Home on summer break, he worked as a janitor for the United Methodist Church in Rupert, where his two sisters were organists. He would clean while they practiced, and Newman started singing the songs as his sisters played. Finally one of them urged him to take voice lessons.

Hale, a veteran of the Philharmonic's brass section, has been active in Mini-Cassia music circles throughout the community in church, civic and the educational system. In his 17 years at Minico, he directed nine Broadway shows and the Dorian Choir.

Tonight the Philharmonic will perform "The Great Escape" by Elmer Bernstein; "Wedding Day at Troldhaugen" by Edvard Grieg; "Finlandia" by Jan Sibelius, and the third movement of Howard Hanson's Second Symphony.

"It's a great opportunity to do this great music and interpret it the way I like to hear it," Hale said.

TWIN FALLS - A few dozen vintage auto restorers and 5,000 to 10,000 other folks who'd like to be expected at the Magic Valley Early Iron's 26th annual show Saturday and Sunday at the College of Southern Idaho Expo Center.

"Depends on the weather," said Jerry Wilson, a Twin Falls insurance agent who's long been an organizer of the show. "We're hoping it rains like the dickens Friday and during the day Saturday, and then the sun comes out. Then we'll have a good turnout."

One hundred fifteen exhibitors - both local and from throughout the Intermountain West - will display their craft, which includes street rods, antiques and race cars and a lot of painstaking handiwork on iconic American automobiles.

Proceeds go to CSI's auto programs - both body-and-fender and mechanical - and to the

"Our club is one of the largest cash contributors to CSI," Wilson said. Most of the thousands of people who attend the show each spring aren't old-car restorers themselves, Wilson says: They just enjoy the craftsmanship. When it comes to cancer, KNOWLEDGE is good medicine. Just ask Jay Lynn.

"I have the best job in the world—knowing I make a difference by helping people navigate through this journey called cancer."
— Jay Lynn Wheeler, Clinical Supervisor, Radiation Oncology

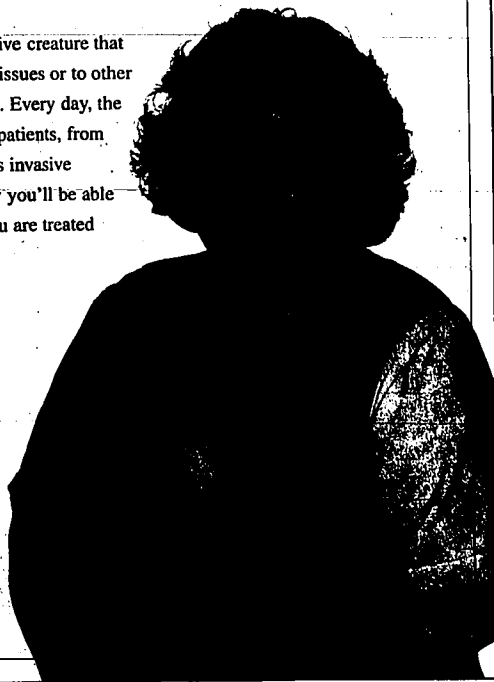

Cancer gets its name from the Latin word for crab, an elusive creature that darts and scuttles. Cancer can quickly spread to surrounding tissues or to other areas of the body through the lymphatic or circulatory system. Every day, the staff and physicians at St. Luke's MSTI care for hundreds of patients, from babies to grandparents, whose lives have been touched by this invasive disease. But the more you know about cancer, the more likely you'll be able to recognize it early, and seek the right care. Because how you are treated is as important as your cancer treatment.

T.F. native's novel is now available in area bookstores

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - Copies of "Daister Don't Tell," an autobiographical novel by Lorraine O. Smith of Twin Falls, are now available at several local bookstores.

They include Barnes & Noble Booksellers, Waldenbooks, Bell's Family Books and Crowley's The Quad in the Magic Valley Mall. Book signings are planned around Mother's Day at Barnes & Noble and Waldenbooks.

The story, based on the life of the author's mother in Minnesota, tells about a school-teacher who gave up her cultured life in St. Paul to care for her motherless nieces and nephews on a farm without electricity or plumbing. Persevering through drought, the Depression, social isolation and poor health, she raised a successful family.

WEEKEND

'The Scorpion King' hits area theaters

Combined wire services

Movies playing in south-central Idaho this weekend:

'A Beautiful Mind'
This is likely the most successfully serious film director Ron Howard has ever done, but at the end of the day it's still too much a too-tidy Ron Howard project. Russell Crowe stars as mathematician John Forbes Nash Jr., who battled schizophrenia and later won a Nobel Prize, with Jennifer Connelly in a career-best performance as his wife. Ed Harris co-stars. (2.0). PG-13 for intense thematic material, sexual content and a scene of violence.)

'Big Trouble'
A pleasant diversion, a lightly amusing criminal comedy with a plot so complicated even the people in it can't quite believe what's happening to them. It's based on a novel by Dave Barry, one of America's truly funny columnists, and it's directed by Barry Sonnenfeld. With Tim Allen, Rene Russo, Omar Epps, Dennis Farina, Ben Foster, Janeane Garofalo, Jason Lee, Rene Russo, Tom Sizemore and Stanley Tucci. (1.2). PG-13, for language, crude humor and sex-related material.)

'Blade 2'
Wesley Snipes returns in the title role as a Daywalker, half-human, half-vampire in a bloody, action-filled but far less sadistic sequel to the 1998 original. Also returning is Kris Kristofferson as Blade's human mentor, a brilliant scientist whose inventions aid in the war on vampires. This time the duo strike a truce with the vampire overlord to defeat the Reapers, a super race of vampires intent on annihilating all other vampires before taking the same to all humans. With Ron Perlman, Leonor V. Arela. (1.25). R, for strong pervasive violence, language, some drug use and sexual content.)

'Changing Lanes'
Compelling yet off-putting, quietly realistic as well as completely contrived, shameless in the name of social responsibility, this is a frustrating yet deeply watchable melodrama that makes you think it's a tougher picture than it is. Ben Affleck and Samuel L. Jackson star as a pair of Manhattan motorists who have a bump and run collision on the FDR Drive and then take road rage to apocalyptic heights as they systematically attempt to ruin each other's lives. Adeptly written by Chap Taylor and Michael Tolkin and impressively directed by Roger Michell ('Notting Hill'). With Sydney Pollack, Toni Collette, Kim Staunton and Amanda Peet. (1.3). R, for language.)

'Clockstoppers'
A watch that enables the wearer to stop everyone and everything in their tracks. Imagine the possibilities if this jaunty little gadget does the same to the world, it's still a fleet-footed and pleasingly upbeat family diversion. Jesse Bradford, Paula Garcés, Robin Thomas and Julia Sweeney lead an appealing cast. Directed by Jonathan Frakes. (1.3). PG for action violence and mild language.)

'Dragonfly'
Kevin Costner stars as a doctor haunted by the disappearance and apparent death of his wife, in this sappy new age ghost story that mixes 'The Sixth Sense' with 'The Emerald Forrest' without being able to conjure up a single moment of real suspense. With Kathy Bates, Linda Hunt and Joe Morton. PG-13 (spooky kids, chanting parrots, adult themes, mushy flashbacks)

'Fratly'
The directing debut of star Bill Paxton is a well-crafted, disturbing Texas Gothic thriller, a completely 'pooky' piece of business that mixes 'The Exorcist' and some plot blips aside, stays there for the duration. Though it's finally too tricky for its own good, Brent Hanley's persuasive, well-written screenplay provides both a strong rule for Paxton the actor and a showcase for the talents of Paxton the director. With Powers Boothe and Matthew McConaughey. (1.4). R for violence and some language.)

'High Crimes'
The many recent films about women in a whole lot of trouble don't all star Ashley Judd, but it's starting to seem that way. It's not that Judd, who has a knack for spunky vulnerability, hasn't done good work in these films. Or that Morgan Freeman, her co-star here and in 'Kiss the Girls,' isn't one of the acting wonders of our world. Or that director Carl Franklin, whose films include 'One False Move' and 'Devil in a Blue Dress,' doesn't have a gift for involving character-driven thrillers. The problem with the film, acceptable though it is, is that it's not close to anyone's best work. With Jim Caviezel. (1.5). PG-13, for violence, sexual content and language.)

'Ice Age'
It's regrettable that the film's conception, plot and dialogue are so formulaic, because director Chris Wedge has done nicely, amusing things on the visual side, joining bright new technology to an old story. Though its forced glibness often makes you wish you could turn down the sound, the film's sense of physical adventure and its gift for creating wild rides is considerably more entertaining. With the voices of Ray Romano, John Leguizamo and Denis Leary. (1.2). PG, for mild peril.)

'The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring'
Made with intelligence, imagination, passion and skill, propulsively paced and shot through with an aged-in-oak sense of wonder by director Peter Jackson, the J.R.R. Tolkien trilogy's first film so thrillingly catches us up in its sweeping story that nothing matters but the vivid and compelling events unfolding on the screen. What a story it is, overflowing with invention, character and event, with hairbreadth escapes and heroism in the face of terrifying evil and violent battles. Elijah Wood, Ian McKellen, Liv Ullmann, Viggo Mortensen, Sean Astin, Cate Blanchett, Sean Bean and Ian Holm. (2.5). PG-13, for epic battle sequences and some scary images.)

'Monster's Ball'
Enigmatic, ambiguous and mesmerizing, this Marc Forster-directed picture unleashes a series of calamities to bring together an equally named Georgia corrections officer (Billy Bob Thornton) and an impoverished black woman (Halle Berry) to discover whether they might find the strength to put the burdens of the immediate and distant past behind them. Superb portrayals not only from the stars but also Please see MOVIES, Page C8

College of Southern Idaho

By Joe Sonnen
Times-News writer

The transition has been a little rough for the College of Southern Idaho's softball operator.

But when you set your goals as high as freshman outfielder Nick Connor does, there's bound to be some disappointment.

"This is really the first time I've ever been frustrated," Connor said.

"Even if I was having a mediocre year but putting up some numbers, I would feel a little bit better. It's just been really, kind of, deflating."

There aren't too many freshman that would consider hitting .294 and starting 25 games in their first season in the Scenic West Athletic Conference frustrating. But then, how many set their sights on .350?

"At the beginning of year I wanted to bat .300 during the fall and I did that," Connor said. "I raised that goal up and wanted to bat .350 during the season. I also wanted to start most games out in center field. At the end of the weekend when you've gone 1-for-5 or started two out four games, it's tough."

Splitting time with three other players in the outfield isn't having to compete for playing time. It's been new for the former Caldwell High standout that his teammates call "Smooth."

"All of the freshman coming into the outfield were used to being the main guy," Connor said. "Now, for the first time, we have somebody behind us pushing us. If we don't get our job done we won't play. I think it's good to face that adversity."

Connor has also decided to stay close to campus during the summer to work on his swing and put some more muscle on his 6-foot-1 frame.

"I don't want to come back next year and have the same feeling that I do this year," Connor said. "I want to improve with the wood bat and get a little bit stronger. I had the option to play on a couple summer ball teams, but I just think I need to get stronger and progress that way."

The move is an unconventional one. He'll probably be the only player that stays through the summer, shirking a summer league for time in the batting cage.

"Playing summer ball you'll see a lot of pitches and get a lot of at-bats," Connor said. "But at the same time, if you have a chance to lift and to work on the things in the cage and have somebody instruct you, I just felt it was the best thing I could do this summer."

And Connor hopes staying close will help move him into the top four of the batting order next season and turn him into a run producer. This season he's managed five RBIs batting mostly in the bottom of the order.

He also hopes it helps nail down the position in center field.

"Being in center field you get more opportunities to get to balls in the gap, make diving catches and throw guys out," Connor said. "But mostly the reason I like center field is because you have great vision of the field. It like shortstop, you're kind of in command out there."

With a summer of hard work, Connor could be in command of his future as well.

Utah limps into playoffs against Kings

Sacramento attack is hindered by injuries

The Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif. - With the best record and perhaps the most exciting team in the NBA, the Sacramento Kings thought they might have earned a little preferential treatment from the league's playoff schedule-makers.

That's one honor that will have to wait until next year. Much to their dismay, the Pacific Division champions will open the post-season Saturday afternoon against the Utah Jazz. With three key players nursing injuries, Sacramento hoped to postpone its first playoff game until Sunday.

But the two-time champion Los Angeles Lakers, who beat the short-handed Kings in Wednesday night's season finale, got the prime spot in the NBA's television-dictated schedule.

"I was surprised, but we don't get any respect," said Chris Webber, whose sprained thumb kept him out of Sacramento's last two games. "We'll have to earn it. When you've got the best record and don't get to play on Sunday, you have to earn it in the playoffs."

Webber will be in the Kings' lineup on Saturday, as will Hedo Turkoglu, who also missed Wednesday's game with a sprained left wrist. Their most significant injury is thought to be Bobby Jackson's sprained thumb, which has bothered him for more than a week.

While the Kings steamed into the playoffs with a franchise-best 61-21 record and their first division title in 23 seasons, the Jazz (44-38) limped to their 19th straight playoff berth with just four wins in their final 10 games.

With consecutive losses to Dallas and San Antonio to end the season, Utah blew the chance to move up to the Western Conference's seventh seed and avoid the Kings, who beat the Jazz soundly four times this season.

Playoff bracket - D4

But that was typical of Utah's season, in which Karl Malone and John Stockton still performed well, but were unable to lift their teammates above NBA mediocrity. "I don't think there's anything we can exploit," a typically dour Utah coach Jerry Sloan said. "Everyone knows how good they are and how easily they walked through us. It depends on whether we want to compete against them or just get it over with."

Regardless of Utah's aging body parts, the series presents a definite contrast in styles. Sacramento's up-tempo, high-flying artistry looks nothing like Utah's controlled, deliberate attack, though Adelman said the Jazz don't get enough credit for their efficient fast break.

"They're a lot more athletic, but athleticism doesn't play as much of a role in the playoffs," Utah's Bryon Russell said. "It's still part of it, but in the playoffs, it's more about execution and running your game."

Utah Jazz forward Karl Malone talks with teammate Jerome Collins April 8 in Salt Lake City. Malone and the aging Jazz will hope to hold down the high-octane Sacramento attack in the first round of the playoffs.

Bruins rally past Minico

Minico's Kody Cole can't hang on to a pickoff throw to get Luke Hawkins out on Thursday at Bruin Field. The Bruins survived an error-laden game to win 3-2.

T.F. pitcher Andy Coats tosses one-hitter

By Scott Thompson
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A leaky Twin Falls defense nearly let a one-hitter by pitcher Andy Coats get away for a loss in its Region III baseball game with Minico Thursday.

But the Bruins, who allowed just two unearned runs on five errors in the third inning, rallied for a 3-2 victory at Bruin Field.

"Anytime you get a win against Minico - if you're here or there - you take it," Bruin coach Matt Rasmussen said.

The Bruins (11-4, 2-1 Region III) jumped ahead 1-0 in the first inning when lead-off hitter Brett Miller scored on a single by Brandon Salinas. Twin Falls then got back on top in the sixth inning when Tyler Maxfield's triple to center field scored Jake Asher to knot the score at 2-2. Pinch hitter Kevin Jussell's sacrifice fly to right field brought Maxfield home for the game-winning run.

But the bottom line for the Bruins was the pitching of Coats. "You can't say enough about how Andy Coats pitched," Rasmussen said.

After the five-error disaster in the third inning in which Spartans Nate Tracy and Kreg Schow both came home after the first three Minico batters reached base on Bruin errors in the infield, it would have been understandable for Coats to let down, Rasmussen said.

"It would've been really easy to feel sorry for yourself after that," he said. "But he didn't. We gave them eight outs but he hung tough."

It didn't rattle Coats, who put the Spartans (8-5, 2-1) down in order the rest of the game.

Holmgren: Seahawks might move up

The Associated Press

KIRKLAND, Wash. - The Seattle Seahawks might do something dramatic on draft day.

Mike Holmgren, the team's general manager and coach, said this week he's exploring the possibility of moving up from No. 20 in the first round of Saturday's NFL draft.

Holmgren said the Hawks might move all the way to the second pick, now owned by Carolina.

"I'll move up in there," he said. "Whatever it takes. The whole trick is to get someone who is willing to get out of there. We're at 20. So I'd have to throw in a lot of stuff."

Holmgren wouldn't say what player or players he covets in the first round, but he's believed to be looking for a premium lineman to fit into his defensive line.

package to move up, but did say, "I'm not sure I would do the Mike Ditka thing."

He was referring to the 1999 NFL draft, when then-New Orleans coach Ditka traded all his team's draft picks in order to select running back Ricky Williams with the No. 5 pick.

The Seahawks, who missed the playoffs for the second consecutive season in 2001, will move into a new $430 million outdoor stadium at the site of the former Kingdome this season.

Holmgren said he likes the depth of his team, which he took over in 1995, and is willing to sacrifice numbers for a quality player. The Seahawks were 9-7 last season.

"It's a combination of need and I think there are some special players in the draft," Holmgren said.

If the Seahawks had to start their season tomorrow, they would go with a defensive line of John Randle and Chad Eaton at

Lopes is out in Milwaukee

The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE - General manager Dean Taylor had his very own turn-back-the-clock night at Miller Park on Thursday.

With the Milwaukee Brewers off to their worst start in franchise history, Taylor fired manager Davey Lopes and replaced him with bench coach Jerry Royster on an interim basis.

Taylor told the slumping Brewers they had a clean slate now. "You can take your batting average, your earned run average, whatever it is prior to today, it's gone. It's history, it's done," Taylor said. "Today is Opening Day II. We're turning a new page and starting a new chapter in the book."

"And I believe that's the message that we send to the fans, as well. We are committed to winning, regardless of the economic circumstances that's out there."

Taylor said the Brewers should be a .500 ballclub even though the franchise hasn't had a winning season in a decade and owns the 21st highest payroll in baseball, about $50 million. Instead, they lost 12 of their first 15 games and crowds were beginning to dwindle at the $400 million Miller Park, site of this summer's All-Star game.

But Taylor said what really sealed Lopes' fate was the club's 33-72 mark since last June 24.

Earlier this week, Lopes said not even New York Yankees manager Joe Torre could have done a better job with the Brewers. But on Thursday, he refused to criticize the club or characterize himself as a scapegoat.

"I came into this job and into professional baseball and I always carried myself a certain way, with a lot of pride and a lot of dignity," Lopes said.

While the mood in the clubhouse wasn't melancholy, several players said they felt they had let down Lopes.

"I'm frustrated for Davey because we really didn't give him a fighting chance with the start we had," outfielder Geoff Jenkins said.

Stubbs, an all-Scenic West Athletic first team member this season and honorable mention last season, led the Golden Eagles in scoring (13.4 ppg), rebounding (6.0 rpg) and free throw shooting (80.1 percent) this season.

She also led the Eagles in scoring 11 times this year with a season-high 25 points against Phoenix College on Nov. 11 and led CSI 10 times in rebounding on the year with a game-high 17 rebounds against Arizona's Yavapai College on Nov. 22.

Montreal, Chicago steal home ice advantage

BOSTON (AP) - Donald Audette scored three goals and Saku Koivu, assisted most of the season by coach, led on all of them as the Montreal Canadiens returned to the playoffs with a 5-2 victory over the Boston Bruins on Thursday night.

The Bruins, who finished first in the Eastern Conference, lost the home ice advantage in the Eastern Conference quarterfinal despite outshooting the eighth-seeded Canadiens 32-27.

Montreal, whose 23 Stanley Cups are the most in NHL history, missed the playoffs for the third time in three seasons and Boston fell short the last two.

The best-of-seven series resumes Sunday night in Boston. Doug Gilmour and Gino Odjick also scored for Montreal. Odjick goal completed the scoring with 2:44 left.

Bill Guerin and Joe Thornton scored for Boston.

Blackhawks 2, Blues 1

ST. LOUIS - Alexander Karpovtsev scored with 3:10 to go as Chicago beat St. Louis in the opening game of their first round Western Conference playoff series.

The defenseman had only one goal in the regular season, Oct. 11 against the Coyotes, and missed the last seven games after undergoing arthroscopic knee surgery April 3.

Kyle Calder, who hadn't scored in 23 games, also scored for the Blackhawks.

Game 2 is Saturday in St. Louis. Pavel Demitra scored in the second period for the Blues.

Jocelyn Thibault, a game-day decision in goal for the Blackhawks over Steve Passmore, had a strong game, making 34 saves.

Maple Leafs 3, Islanders 1

TORONTO - Tie Domi scored the go-ahead goal in the third period as Toronto rallied to beat New York Islanders in Game 1 of their first-round series Thursday night.

Dom's, playing on Toronto's top line with Mats Sundin and Mikael Renberg, scored just his fourth career playoff goal.

The Toronto forward played his first playoff game since being suspended for elbowing New Jersey's Scott Niedermayer in the head in the second round of last year's playoffs.

Darcy Tucker scored the tying goal, and Sundin added an empty-netter for the Maple Leafs, who outshot New York 31-14.

Kenny Jonsson scored a power-play goal in the first period for the Islanders, who made the playoffs for the first time in eight years.

Montreal's Donald Audette celebrates what proved to be the winning goal of the Canadiens' playoff win over Boston Bruins Thursday in Boston.

Despite critics, Avalanche expect to win

By John Branch The Gazette

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. - There's a skinny, blond kid dressing where Ray Bourque used to stand, there in the corner to the left, just inside the Colorado Avalanche locker room.

Six others, all Stanley Cup champions, are gone, their lockers filled with someone else's stuff, their namesplates, like their memories, stashed away somewhere.

This is a new year, a different time. Twenty-four men, ages 20-36, gather at their lockers. Some sit quietly, straightening when the coach walks in. The door closes. It's the playoffs.

Their goal is to win the best of the NHL to play. It is the eve of the first game.

Every year is a different team. "Every year is a different team," defenseman Adam Foote said. "We've always had a chance, we've always been there, and we always go into the playoffs thinking the same thing - that we can contend. It's no different every year."

The last time the Avalanche was here, in the postseason, players were caked in sweat and emotion, taking turns toting the Stanley Cup around the Pepsi Center ice.

The Cup was returned long ago. The Avalanche carry nothing but ambition and a fancy title into the postseason. "Defending champions" is a nice tag line, but useless when it comes to trying to beat the Los Angeles Kings.

"I don't believe in defending something," said Colorado coach Bob Hartley, who sometimes speaks like he's using cue cards cut from those executive motivational posters, the ones with the pictures of soaring eagles or charging rams.

"When you defend, usually you're not on your toes, you're on your heels. I want to be on my toes. I want to be active, I want to be positive, and let's win it again. One more time."

That's the thing. This club is not that club. A year has gone by. "I will not make the mistake to compare teams," said goalie Patrick Roy, talking about last year's team as if he wasn't on it.

"It's an unfair statement. Last year, they won the Stanley Cup. They were the best in the business. Let's not compare them."

But comparison offers a starting point for expectations. That team went where this team wants to go.

First, there are the tangible differences. The loss of Bourque, Jon Klemm, Dave Reid, Chris DiMarzio and others. The addition of Mike Keane, Darius Kasparaitis, Radim Vrbata, part of a new group most fans wouldn't recognize even if the players wore jerseys to the mall. The regular-season record, built on a mix of talent, pride and occasional lethargy. The goal totals, much lower than a year ago, great for the defense, frustrating for the offense.

There are intangible differences. A year ago, the expectations hung on Colorado like wet clothing. Bourque needed his championship to retire complete.

The President's Trophy proved the Avs were the best for 82 games. "That just added to the pressure," defenseman Rob Blake said. "You're the best team during the regular season, you're supposed to win the Cup. Guys feed off that."

Detroit is supposed to win the Cup this year. But the eight Western Conference teams have been called dead even by anyone with access to a microphone.

Chances are, Colorado won't win again. Two of the past 13 Stanley Cup champions have managed to repeat. Hunger is the great unknown. It can't be measured, only evaluated, and only after a team wins or is eliminated.

Los Angeles takes mental edge into NBA playoffs

By Chris Sheridan The Associated Press

Let's sum up the NBA playoffs with a five-word question: Can anybody beat the Lakers?

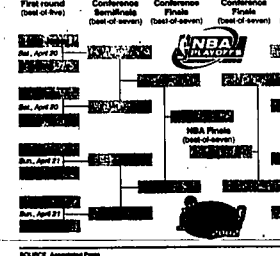

Wait a minute, here's a better question: Can anybody in the West beat 'em once?

Let's we all forget, nobody beat the last year until Game 1 of the finals. And we all remember how the Lakers responded to that, right? They won the next four, finishing with a 15-1 postseason record that was the best in NBA history.

The regular season begins this weekend, and a good way to start it by throwing out everything that happened during the regular season. OK, not everything.

The point here is that the proposition of beating the Lakers in a five- or seven-game series is more formidable than the optimist in other Western Conference cities would have people believe.

The two-time defending champions bring a mental edge into this postseason, a unique sense of confidence in themselves, that no other NBA team - East or West - comes close to matching.

Alamodome and took Games 1 and 2 of the Western Conference final.

The Dallas Mavericks also check into the postseason with a most interesting team, a Don Nelson Glimnick Special run by everyone's favorite Dairy Queen clerk, Mark Cuban.

Lots of folks out West think the Mavericks just might be crazy enough to confront the mighty Lakers with wave after wave of offense from a phalanx of outside-shooting 7-footers, the league's best pair of shoot-first point guards and a pair of would-be Kobe-stoppers in Greg Buckner and Adrian Griffin. And we didn't even mention Michael Finley.

Problem is, the Mavericks need to get past the Minnesota Timberwolves and then the winner of the Sacramento-Utah series.

Perhaps Karl Malone said it best Wednesday night: "No one expects us to do anything, of course."

That's right, Karl, because as they set down in a stadium, you'll get whipped. Sacramento swept the season series against Utah 4-0, winning by an average margin of almost 23 points.

That's not there's a high probability that there'll be a Western Conference semifinal here.

driver in his latest commercial. Derek Fisher wears his headband over his ears as a symbol of concentration. Slava's a hunk. Shaq prefers the Whopper to the Big Mac.

Yes, it's all about the Lakers, folks, like it or not.

Nobody beat them last year in the conference playoffs, and nobody's beaten them yet this year, either. Not yet, anyway.

"Opponents when they play us think they can beat us, which is fine by us," Bryant said. "We're a different team this year than it was last year, and our strengths this year aren't our strengths this year. Our weaknesses are different too, so I think that the perception is that we're definitely better."

We'll see. The Lakers open their first-round series against the Portland Trail Blazers on Sunday at 3:30 p.m. MDT.

The playoffs begin Saturday with Indiana-New Jersey at 10:30 a.m., Utah-Sacramento at 1 p.m., Seattle-San Antonio at 3:30 p.m. and Orlando-Charlotte at 6:30 p.m.

Sunday's slate includes Philadelphia-Boston at 10:30 a.m., Minnesota-Dallas at 1 p.m. and Toronto-Detroit at 6:30 p.m.

NBC will televise the first three games each day, with the later games on TNT.

The second games of each series are spread out over next week, two every night Monday through Thursday. Game 3 of the Nets-Pacers series is Friday night, with the other seven Games 3s set for next Saturday and Sunday.

Workshops explain housing issues

BURLEY — Property owners, managers and landlords in south-central Idaho are invited to free workshops in Burley and Twin Falls regarding housing issues May 1, sponsored by the Idaho Housing and Finance Association.

New guidelines governing lead-based paint will be discussed by IHFA's Rental Assistance Program manager, Lisa Stevens. The Twin Falls branch office will conduct a session on calculating rent rates. The first workshop will be held 10-11:30 a.m. at Burley City Hall, at 1401 Overland Ave. The second will be 2-3:30 p.m. at 264 Main Ave. S., the Obenchain Insurance Inc. community room in Twin Falls.

Seating is limited; reserve space for either workshop by calling IHFA's Twin Falls office at 734-8531. IHFA administrators. Section 8 Rental Assistance on behalf of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in 34 of Idaho's 4 counties. In 2001, IHFA administered almost $3.9 million in Housing Assistance Payments to participating south-central Idaho landlords in the Section 8 tenant-based and project-based programs, benefiting more than 1,485 low-income households.

To be eligible for rental assistance, households must qualify under HUD income limits and pay 30 percent of their adjusted gross monthly income for rent and utilities.

IHFA's four branch offices, including the one in Twin Falls, administer the Section 8 program. Each regularly conducts landlord workshops.

Qwest revises financial outlook for the year

TWIN FALLS — Qwest Communications International Inc. on Thursday revised its financial guidance for the year, reflecting continuing weakness in both the telecommunications sector and the regional economy in Qwest's 14-state area, as well as increased competitive pressure.

Qwest is the dominant provider of local phone service in Magic Valley. For 2002, Qwest now expects total revenue in the range of $18 billion to $18.4 billion, adjusted EBITDA in the range of $6.4 billion to $6.6 billion, and capital expenditures of $3.1 billion to $3.3 billion. The company continues to expect to be cash flow positive in the second quarter and beyond.

Qwest expects to reduce its work force by an additional 2,900 employees through attrition, continued business process improvements and layoffs, bringing the total employee count to 53,000 by Sept. 30.

"While we remain optimistic about Qwest's longer-term performance based on the platforms we have built, we want to make our investors aware that current trends will affect our results in 2002," Qwest Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Joseph P. Nacchio said. "We believe this guidance is realistic, assuming no further deterioration in the regional economy or industry outlook."

Qwest will announce its first-quarter results April 30.

Economic index rises, but jobless claims rise, too

NEW YORK — A key gauge of U.S. economic activity edged up last week but a second consecutive increase in new claims for unemployment ticked higher, suggesting an economy struggling to make its way out of recession.

The New York-based Conference Board reported on Wednesday that the Economic Indicators Index edged up 0.1 percent last month to 112.3 after holding steady in February. Analysts had forecast a 0.3 percent gain.

"Seasonable" new claims for jobless benefits edged up by a seasonally adjusted 14,000 to 445,000 for the week ending April 13, the Labor Dept. said.

Jackpot casino struggles to fill jobs

By Lorraine Cavener
Times-News correspondent

JACKPOT, Nev. — A place described with available jobs, clean air, an indoor heated municipal pool, an affordable golf course, low property taxes and good schools with scholarship programs might sound like an ideal place to live.

But people aren't flocking to Jackpot to fill the large number of jobs available at Cactus Petes Resort Casino.

changes with constant hiring, Paul Austin said there were 72 job openings at the resort Wednesday morning.

Cactus Petes is unquestionably the largest employer in Jackpot, said Austin, the casino's human resource coordinator.

"It is close to the largest employer in Magic Valley, depending on the time of year," he said.

Now there are about 800 to 900 employees, but the number rises as high as 1,200 at peak times, Austin said. And it's hard for Jackpot's top employer to keep its staff filled.

Turnover rate at Cactus Petes is about 75 percent per year.

"That is considered very good in our industry," Austin said. "At one time turnover rate in casinos in Nevada was between 54 and 205 percent."

But Cactus Petes is working hard to retain employees, he said. The casino offers benefits including health and life insurance, vacation, sick time and a 401(k) program for full-time employees.

as any company in Magic Valley," Austin said.

Entry-level pay ranges from $6 to $8.50 per hour, Austin said.

The company believes in promoting from within, he said. While many of the jobs start out part-time, employees can work into full-time positions.

Jobs include food and beverage service, hotel, money handling, security and more. Management and supervisory positions are also available and are normally salaried.

Higher-paying jobs often require some training such as the free dealer's school classes. Employees are eligible for Magic Valley's school after 90 days of working at Cactus Petes.

"We are constantly on the go looking for employees for Cactus Petes," said Austin of himself and his assistant, Krisann Brown.

Recruiting includes trips to places such as Burley, where a Kmart store will soon close. Austin made three trips to Burley and talked to human resources personnel at Kmart.

RadioShack counts on wireless for its future

Knight Ridder News Service

FORT WORTH, Texas — Batteries? Cables? Come on. Wireless? Woo-hoo.

OK. How about the number 607 As in 60 percent. That's the average gross profit margin built into those products at RadioShack, the Fort Worth consumer electronics retailer that wants to accessorize America with everything it needs to make its electronic gadgets, wireless phones and stereo systems work.

Will the strategy work? RadioShack executives are betting it will.

"They wish only that they had figured it out a little earlier."

"I wish, if anything, we had made the decision in 1999," says Leonard Roberts, the company's chief executive. The decision: "Along with everything else we're doing, let's accessorize the industry. As sales were going down, margins would have been going up."

Of course, hindsight is always perfect. Two years ago, RadioShack — which has Magic Valley operations — was on the end of a seven-year tear in the sweet spot of a booming economy and digital electronics cycle. Profits nearly quadrupled, and the company's stock shot up.

RadioShack had always been a major source of batteries and other electronic parts and accessories. But it moved into other arenas, stocking brand-name televisions and Compaq computers, and becoming the leading wireless-phone merchant and the top seller of satellite TV systems.

As it turns out, strong sales in hot categories masked flaws in RadioShack's strategy, the company's executives now say.

Competitors started gaining ground, the economy took a dip, and RadioShack wavered. Last year, sales started falling.

Earnings per share dropped 18 percent. The company had to admit its winning growth strategy had lost its luster.

"Sometimes, success can lead you to believe you're good at some things that you're not so good at," says David Edmondson, RadioShack's president and chief operating officer.

Barry Sosnick, a research analyst with Fehnestock & Co. in New York, said RadioShack was "too obsessed with sales."

"It pursued a strategy of growing sales through big-ticket commodity items," he says. "What they ignored were their own competitive advantages: convenience and service."

Today, RadioShack is trying to regain momentum and, in turn, restore Wall Street's confidence. It cut more than 300 jobs last year to save millions in annual salaries.

Then RadioShack yanked car stereos, security systems, pagers and televisions with screens larger than 27 inches, deciding it could not be a dominant player in those sectors. It wasn't selling enough of them to justify the floor space in the company's stores.

The company also narrowed its in-store selection of personal computers, which have much lower profit margins than other product categories.

Meanwhile, RadioShack redoubled its focus on higher-profit wireless phones and parts, batteries and accessories. It beefed up marketing and changed store layouts to make it easier to get around.

Roberts says he is confident the company's strategy will generate 13 percent to 15 percent annual growth in earnings per share for the next several years.

Over five years, that could push the company's stock price up significantly, he says. The stock. Please see WIRELESS, Page D7

Seattle-based Washington Federal announces record $36M earnings

The Three News

JEROME — Seattle-based Washington Federal Inc. — parent company of Washington Federal Savings, which has branches in Jerome and Twin Falls — announced earnings of $35.759 million, or 56 cents per diluted share, for the quarter that ended March 31.

That compares with $27.324 million, or 43 cents per diluted share, a year earlier — a 30 percent per-share increase. Net income and earnings per share both set quarterly performance records for Washington Federal.

For the six months, earnings were $71.144 million, or $1.15 per diluted share, compared with $51.876 million, or 81 cents, for the year-ago period — a 37 percent per-share increase. Year-ago earnings were $50.4 million, or 81 cents per diluted share, for the 10 percent stockholders.

'With nearly $600 million in cash and short-term investments... we are well positioned to prosper.'

— CEO Roy M. Whitehead

"A favorable interest rate environment enabled core operations to produce the fourth consecutive quarter of record net income and earnings per share," Chief Executive Officer Roy M. Whitehead said in a statement. "Our emphasis on expanding efficiency coupled with a strong belief sheet continues to provide outstanding results. With assets of $600 million in cash and short-term investments, and net worth almost double the industry average, we are well positioned to prosper going forward."

Washington Federal's second quarter produced a return on assets of 2.05 percent, while return on equity amounted to 17.05 percent for the quarter. As of March 31, the company's net worth was $899 million or 12.76 percent of assets.

Quarterly dividend year-to-date results also reflect a change in accounting rules which requires discontinuance of goodwill amortization. Other expenses were accordingly reduced by $1.4 million and $2.8 million for the most recent quarter and six months, respectively.

April 25, Washington Federal will pay a cash dividend of 22 cents per share to common stockholders of record April 5. Seattle-based Washington Federal Savings has 115 offices in Washington, Idaho, Oregon, Utah, Arizona, Nevada and Texas.

Natural gas prices should decline

The Associated Press

BOISE — Natural gas rates for southern Idaho customers are heading for a significant drop this summer.

"Our numbers aren't finalized yet, but we're expecting in the area of a 20 percent reduction in rates on July 1," said Bill Glynn, president of Intermountain Industries, the holding company for Intermountain Gas.

The lower rates would be welcome news for 250,000 customers throughout Magic Valley and the rest of southern Idaho. Last year, they suffered three separate rate increases that drove up bills by nearly 50 percent.

This summer's rate reduction could cut the monthly bill for the average customer with a gas furnace and gas water heater from about $65 to $52, said Michael Huntington, Intermountain Gas vice president of marketing and external affairs.

Customers with only a gas furnace could see average monthly bills drop from $50 to $40, he said.

Glynn this week said the low gas inventory that caused huge price spikes in fall 2000 has been replaced, and prices are leveling off again.

Prices started to climb in late 2000, culminating in what Glynn and other energy experts called the "perfect storm."

There was low inventory of natural gas coupled with an increasing demand for electricity in California, which had not built any new generation facilities in the past decade.

The demand for gas that winter, coupled with the supply. Electricity companies also competed for natural gas to power turbine plants, that were rushed into service to provide energy.

The crisis, however, did not last as long as expected because the rapid rise in gas prices spawned more drilling, which soon replenished the supply.

The challenge now is to keep drilling activity and prices at a level where the supply can meet the demand, Glynn said.

Potato cooperative signs deal with food processors

The Associated Press

POCATELLO — Potato farmers have a place to sell their potatoes this fall, but their profit margin is going to be thin.

The Southern Idaho Potato Cooperative Inc. announced agreements this week with Lamb Weston, J.R. Simplot, McCain Foods USA and Heinz Frozen Food companies for the frozen fry potato contracts.

The basic price is going to be up about 10 cents over last year's basic contract price of $4.10 per hundredweight.

"I'm disappointed that we didn't get a little more money," said Jim Tiede, an American Falls grower. "But the fact is, it's a global market and we are competing with the cheaper Canadian dollar. I figure it is the best we could do."

Idaho is one of the latest regions to reach an agreement for fry spuds. Washington and Maine had the first month-reached agreements for their fry potatoes.

Washington's contract was much the same as Idaho's, with Maine's contract going for 40 cents more per hundredweight than southern Idaho farmers will get.

"Our people put the contract right near where it needed to be to remain competitive worldwide," Harmon said. "If the contract had been too high, the processors would just go to Canada."

Fry potatoes represent only one aspect of the Idaho potato market. Farmers in the region also grow for the fresh, dehydrated and seed potato markets. Fresh market potatoes are the top earners, averaging $8 to $10 per hundredweight. Dehydrated potatoes are averaging $2.50 per hundredweight. Seed potato prices fluctuate with the other three markets.

which finished 2000 at more than $40, is now trading at about $30.

case for us, and that's very defensible.
Wall Street is waiting for results.
A company's lofty long-range program "creates a sense of disbelief" among shareholders when not paired with tangible results, Sosnick cautions. But he also says the outlook for RadioShack is positive.

Casino

"They know we have these openings," he said.
He met with Chet Jeppesen, a Burley Job Service consultant, who lists the openings.
The listings are updated weekly, Jeppesen said. But Jeppesen said those Cactus Petes jobs are hard to fill.
"Is our Burley and Rupert area there is not necessarily a lot of applicants," he said.
While pay rates are similar to pay for jobs in Burley, there is a major drawback.
"Most don't want to drive and commute that far," Jeppesen said. Employees would have to drive to Twin Falls, then ride the bus provided by Cactus Petes.
Austin said he does not think the casino plans to offer a commuter bus from Burley. But people don't necessarily have to commute, he said.
"Jackpot has rather economical housing available, and it is probably no more expensive than living in Burley," he said.
Sam Feltnan, a real estate saleswoman in Jackpot, agreed with Austin that living in Jackpot isn't a bad idea.
"I couldn't visualize living anywhere else," Feltnan said.

Homes in Jackpot are sometimes hard to sell because of its reputation as a low-income town, she said.
But for people willing call Jackpot home, a new subdivision comes with the easier. The subdivision is listed as affordable housing, she said. Homes there will start at $79,500.
"I have a waiting list of interested people," she said. "It will be a nice addition to the community."
While the housing project could be a drawing card for Jackpot jobs, one drawback is still present, Feltnan said. The casino lifestyle is often too enticing to those who work there.
"They forget to go home after work," she said. "When they get done with their job they need to leave."
While the housing project might entice some to live and work in Jackpot, another factor will keep them away.
"We are 47 miles down the road from Twin Falls," he said. "They will work for us until they can find work closer to home. I can't fault them for that."

AMD, Nokia send stocks into decline

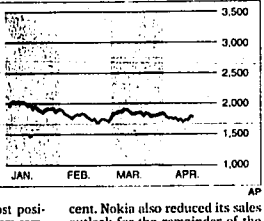

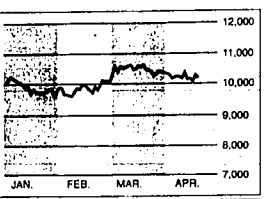

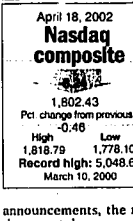

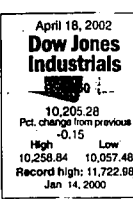

NEW YORK (AP) - Frustrated by a still elusive business recovery, investors sold stocks lower Thursday when Nokia reported a drop in profits and sales and Advanced Micro Devices offered a weak outlook for the second quarter.
"The majority of companies are coming out with shaky news. One day they say they see signs of a turnaround, then they say, 'We were premature.' The turnaround is not coming as quickly as people thought," said Al Mirman, strategist at V Finance in Sarasota, Fla.

After the market closed Thursday, Microsoft became the latest big company to warn of lower profits, giving investors another reason to trade cautiously in the coming weeks. Microsoft also reported fiscal third-quarter earnings that missed analysts' expectations by 2 cents.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed down 15.50, or 0.2 percent, at 10,205.28. The broader market also retreated. The Nasdaq composite index fell 0.46, or 0.5 percent, to 1,802.43, and the Standard & Poor's 500 index slipped 1.60, or 0.1 percent, to 1,124.47.

Wall Street rebounded Thursday from sharper losses suffered at midday - the Dow dropping as much as 163.06 - when a small plane hit a skyscraper in Milan, Italy that houses local regional government offices. Later reports indicated the crash was an accident, and that the pilot had sent out a distress call.

But overall the session was lackluster, reflecting the market's disappointment with first-quarter results, which so far have been tepid at best. Aside from a handful of very upbeat earnings announcements, the most positive reports have come from companies that had previously reduced expectations and are cautiously optimistic about the future.

A lukewarm economic report failed to trigger an upturn. The Conference Board said its Index of Leading Economic Indicators - a key gauge of the direction of the U.S. economy - inched up 0.1 percent last month after holding steady in February.

"The economy is not deteriorating, but at the same time, we are not getting the momentum people had hoped for," Mirman said.

Chip maker AMD recorded a smaller-than-expected loss for the first quarter, but fell $2.22, or 15 percent, to $12.60 after saying it still faces tough business conditions. Analysts also don't expect AMD to be profitable until the third quarter.

Microsoft, a Dow stock, declined 26 cents to $56.37. After its profit warning, the software maker tumbled $1.48 in extended-hours trading.

The market shouldn't be surprised to see the tech and telecom sectors stumble, analysts said. After all, these areas are still suffering from demand and inventory gluts. Because tech and telecom firms mostly sell to other businesses, they also don't benefit as much from consumer spending, which remains relatively strong.

"We have been down this road so many times before... I am skeptical. They all have very substantial areas of oversupply," said Richard A. Dickson, technical analyst for Hilliard Lyons.

There were also earnings-related winners Thursday. Dow Industrial American Express rose $1.24 to $42.39 after reporting Thursday its profits beat projections by 3 cents a share.

And, McDonald's, also a Dow stock, climbed $1.45 to $28.61 after beating earnings expectations by 2 cents a share and saying it will surpass Wall Street's forecast for 2002.

Declining issues were nearly even with advances on the New York Stock Exchange. Consolidated volume totaled 1.65 billion shares, below Wednesday's 1.67 billion.

The Russell 2000 index, which tracks the performance of small or company stocks, slipped 0.2, or 0.04 percent, to 518.57.

Overseas, Japan's Nikkei stock average finished Thursday up 0.3 percent. In Europe, France's CAC-40 slipped 0.2 percent, Britain's FTSE 100 declined 0.7 percent, Germany's DAX index fell 1.1 percent.

Wood products firm drops Arthur Andersen

BOISE (AP) - Boise Cascade Corp. dropped the embattled accounting firm Arthur Andersen from its list of auditors after the company's annual shareholder meeting.

KMPG LLP replaces the Big Five accounting firm for the Boise-based company. Boise Cascade, which has a plant in Burley, joins a growing number of public companies that have dropped Andersen in the wake of the Enron Corp. scandal.

Boise Cascade executives did not give a specific reason for their decision, announced just hours after the close of their annual shareholders' meeting in Boise.

For almost half a century, we have enjoyed the benefit of an extraordinary level of service from Arthur Andersen," George J. Harad, chairman and chief executive officer, said in a prepared statement.

"The board is seriously out of touch, jeopardizing the good name and reputation of Boise Cascade," Harad said.

"The resolution was passed the last two years, but the board did not act to implement it," Harad said.

"We have already said that we intend to phase out the use of old growth timber in our operation," Harad said in response to a question from a member of the Board of Action Network.

"The meeting was held under tight security away from the company's downtown corporate headquarters. Those attending had to check their bags and pass through

NASCAR INSIDER 'Bama bound

The Winston Cup and Busch Series head to Talladega Superspeedway this week, one of the world's fastest race tracks. Famous for its long "trains" of drafting cars, the track lends itself to thrilling finishes.

Ever the enigma

POST-RACE NOTES

A hard day behind wheel for Gordon

By ROCK MINTNER
c. 2002 Cox News Service

A bump on lap 207 broke the power steering pump on Jeff Gordon's No. 24 Chevrolet, and he was left to wrestle it around the track for the remaining 203 circuits. He finished 23rd, two laps down.

His crew had his teammate Jerry Busch, who had dropped out earlier with an overheat problem, stand by to take over. But Gordon stuck it out to keep from losing even more time.

"(Busch) had already had a bad enough day as it was," Gordon said. "I didn't want him to have to get out there and tag on that wheel like I was."

Gordon said he had to grip the wheel with both hands together to get the car to turn.

"That was one of the hardest things I've ever had to do in a race car," he said.

No on traction control

NASCAR president Mike Helton put teams on notice that the use of traction-control devices will not be tolerated. During the drivers meeting Sunday, Helton held up two of the electronic devices, which alter the engine speed to keep the rear wheels of a car from spinning whenever a driver steps on the gas pedal.

Use of the devices allows drivers to get the maximum acceleration possible without having to worry about losing speed or control.

"Traction control will not be a part of this sport," Helton said. "Don't make us react."

Misfortune hits Waltrip

A spin with Morgan Shepherd and a broken rear end riddled Darrell Waltrip of a chance to shine in Saturday's Craftsman Truck Series race.

Waltrip spun on lap 4 but was working his way back toward the front of the field when the rear end failed in his No. 17 Dodge.

The race was won by Dennis Setzer, who has to use a provisional starting position after his qualifying time was thrown out because a spring failed inspection. He passed Terry Cook on lap 206, then held off Mike Sims and Rick Crawford to get his seventh career truck win.

The race was slowed 14 times for a series-record 10 caution laps.

Controversy follows Kevin Harvick

By Bill Fleischman
Knight Rider News Service

PHILADELPHIA — A year ago, Kevin Harvick was one of the best drivers in NASCAR.

Now, Harvick is one of the most perplexing. Rushed into the Richard Childress-owned Chevrolet following Dale Earnhardt's death in last year's Daytona 500, Harvick won at Atlanta in just his third Winston Cup start.

Harvick won again at Chicago, finished ninth in the points standings and also won the Busch Grand National series title. His talent, enthusiasm and outta-my-way attitude were refreshing.

Harvick's sophomore season, however, has been disappointing. His best finish is third at Darlington. His next best finish is 10th at Bristol. He is a distant 29th in the points standings.

Last month at Bristol, Tenn., Harvick confronted Greg Biffle after the Busch race. NASCAR placed Harvick on probation until after the next race at the track on Aug. 24.

During Saturday's Craftsman Truck Series race at Martinsville, Va., Harvick spun out Coy Gibbs. ESPN reported during its telecast that Harvick told his crew that he would "get" Gibbs. Harvick denied making the threat.

NASCAR got Harvick's attention by parking him for Sunday's Winston Cup race at Martinsville. On Monday, Harvick was fined $35,000 and warned that he would be suspended indefinitely if he misbehaves again.

Harvick is the first NASCAR driver to be barred from a race, since D.K. Ulrich in 1978.

On Tuesday morning, rookie Jimmie Johnson said he hadn't heard about the fine and extended probation. Informed on a conference call about the significant levy and severe probation, Johnson was impressed.

"Wow! That's a big fine and harsh punishment," said Johnson, seventh in the points standings. "Evidently, NASCAR feels that they need to do something about the rough driving. He'll have to watch himself throughout the season."

NASCAR has effectively put a tight leash on Harvick, 26. As Andy Petree, owner of Bobby Hamilton's Chevrolet, said, "There's a lot of drivers who are going to take advantage of him. These guys might rub on him a little and try to aggravate him, knowing he can't do anything about it."

Hamilton, winner of last year's

April race at Talladega, was involved in an incident with Harvick last year at Martinsville. Hamilton interprets Harvick's punishment as "pouring the foundation (for future discipline)."

"So many times, NASCAR has told us not to let them make judgment calls," he said. "(They say) don't make us have to make your decisions. I think it will help Kevin in the long run."

Hamilton, 44, advises drivers wanting to issue paybacks for on-track incidents to move away from the track.

"We don't need to carry any grudges when we walk through the gates at Talladega," he said. "If you've got a problem with a guy and NASCAR won't like this — you need to go out the gate and go to a store or somewhere, punch him in the nose. We need to quit wrecking these race cars."

Petree, 43, has seen NASCAR justice before.

"Jack Ingram was leading the points in the Busch series and ran a late-model race in Asheville (N.C.)," Petree recalled. "He and another guy got into a wreck and he got mad and rammed the guy coming into the pits. NASCAR suspended Jack for four or five races, which cost him the Busch championship."

Petree thinks Harvick will learn a lesson. "To get in a shoving match with Coy Gibbs in truck race and jeopardize a great career is kind of foolish," Petree said. "I think he'll realize that. I think you'll see a more restrained Kevin Harvick."

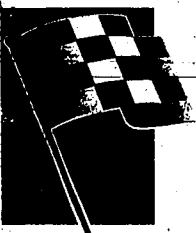

Petree added: "That's almost not good. His competitiveness and spirit are good for the sport." Harvick seems to have gotten the message NASCAR wants delivered. In a statement, he said: "Having to miss the Martinsville race definitely got my attention. I'm still learning how NASCAR works and what is involved in the decisions they make. In reality, you make and control your own destiny in this sport."

Now we'll see if Harvick practices better self-control. For the sake of his NASCAR career, he'd better.

Pit Stop: NASCAR pioneer Baker passes away

NASCAR fans are mourning the loss of Buck Baker, one of the sport's pioneers. Baker, 83, died Sunday in Charlotte, N.C.

Baker was the first driver to win consecutive Winston Cup titles (1956 and '57). His 46 victories place him 13th on the all-time list.
