Man charged after intruder shot-

Glenns Ferry man says he caught man inside motor home

By Mark Heinz Times-News writer

GLENNS FERRY – A Glenns Ferry man who police say shot and wounded an intruder was charged with aggravated assault, but the case might take more turns before everything is settled, authorities said Tuesday.

Benjamin C. Caler, 50, shot Joshua L. Stritesky, 20, with a large caliber revolver during a conformation near a motor home Caler was keeping on properly he owns away from his house, said Elmore County Sheriff Rick Layher.

Caler caught Stritesky and three juveniles - ages 12 to 14 - entering the motor home, Layher said.

According to statements Caler made to investigators, he was trying to fire a "warning shot," but the bullet struck Stritesky in his arm and severed a major artery, Layher said.

Stritesky was taken by air ambulance after the shooting late Sunday to Saint Alphonsus, Regional Medical Center in Boise, Layher said. A hospital spokes-woman said Stritesky had been discharged late Monday.

The case was still being active-

Grain help grows in farm bill

WASHINGTON - Subsidy rates for some grain crops will jump more than 10 percent this year, lawmakers disclosed Tuesday in releasing new details of their proposed overhaul of agriculture programs.

The legislation is expected to go to the House and Senate-by next week for final approval.

In the next 10 years, the bill would boost agriculture spending by 70 percent, or 573.5 billion, over the cost of existing programs.

Serious side effects often appear with new drugs, study suggests

CHICAGO - One in five new drugs has serious side effects that do not show up until well after - the medicine has received government approval, according to new study.

The r. searchers went so far as to suggest that doctors should prescribe older drugs when possible unless the new one is truly superior.

preserine once was a many preserine of the triply superior.

"It's like playing Russian roulette when a doctor prescribes a newly approved drug that doesn't have a big break-through," said Dr. Sidney Wolfe of Public Citizen Health Research Group, one of the researchers who worked on the study.

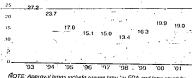

Pressure from pharmaceutical companies and doctors' failure to closely read warning labels are partly to blame, the researchers said. They said the findings should prompt the Food and Drug Administration to consider raising its threshold for approven.

public works projects that are not yet under construction. Griffin said any project with a pre-1999 economic analysis will need a new analysis before it can proceed. The Corps will also review newer projects where questions about economics, engineering or the environment "may have resulted in significant changes in project justification or support."

The Corps will not provide a list of affected projects until the end of the week, but sources said they will include scores of the agency's most controversial efforts to build

Environmentalists and fiscal conservatives hailed the move, saying the Corps finally seems to be acknowledging the problems they have complained about for years. In December 2000, even an internal Pentagon investigation concluded that Corps studies were tainted by a deep institutional bias toward approving large-scale construction projects the agency would then get to build itself.

When it comes to cancer, DETECTION is good medicine. Just ask Dr. Beck.

"Cancer screening saves lives. With the advanced therapies available today, many people survive cancer if it is diagnosed early and treated appropriately."

- Thomas M. Beck, MD, Medical Director, St. Luke's Mountain States Tumor Institute

Cancer is an equal opportunity disease. It touches people of all ages and races—nobody is immune. Recent medical advances, however, have greatly increased your chances for early detection, which can mean more effective treatment.

From blood tests to computer-aided devices to new scanning technology. detection of breast, ovarian, prostate, colon and other cancers is now simpler and even more reliable.

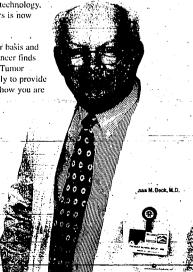

Protect your health. See your health care provider on a regular basis and follow his or her recommendations for cancer screening. If cancer finds you or someone you love, turn to St. Luke's Mountain States Tumor Institute. We work with you, your doctor and your entire family to provide the best care, from the moment a diagnosis is made. Because how you are treated-is-as-important-as your cancer treatment.

secret court approved 934 wiretaps, searches in '02 WASH/NGTON - The government requested and won approval of fewer warrants last year for secret wiretaps and searches of suspected terrorists and spies, attributing a slight decline to streamlined procedures that became law after the Sept. 11 terror attacks.

The government received court approval for 934 of the secret warrants, down from 1,003 in 2000.

Experts puzzled over the slight decline in a measure of the war on terrorism inside the United States. They said it probably reflected warrants that covered many surveillance requests under a single investigation – plus increased use by the FBI of tools other than these warrants, such as subpoenas for a suspect's financial records.

Referendum petition can lead to no good

Our view: Term limits would

Here in Magic Valley, local roters realize that term limits would be a severe setback to round representation in the state Legislature. Rural areas exert power in Boise by retaining sentors and representatives which lave seniority.

Local voters also see how term limits will harm small communities that often have a shortage of qualified candidates to fill local councils and school boards.

Make no mistake. The term limits fight is city vs. country. Urban outrage is directed at your rural representatives—the ones that have earned powerful positions in state leadership.

It's not fair for Boise voters to block Magic Valley voters from re-electing good leaders. That is what will happen if the term limits referendum succeeds.

It's interesting to note that term limit advocates have been joined in their cause by Democrats. The Democrats seem eager to embrace-as chance, however small, to unseat GOP legislators over the issue.

Meanwhile, term limits backers have mounted a legal challenge in the state Supreme Court to over turn the repeal

The best scholars and educators from across the United States will assist the National slavery Museum in its telling of this history. When the museum opens in 2007, visitors will encounter galleries rioh with artifacts, maps, the ugraphs and documents. They will see the defense of slavery – that perverse logic that poured forth from Southern plantation owners, cleryymen, educators and from Southern phantation own-ers, clerymen, educators and politicians. They also will see the vigorous rebuttal presented on moral grounds by abolitionists, pulpits in the North, most of the political leaders in the free states and, after 1861, by Lincoln and the leaders of the embattled Union.

The museum will be some 37 miles from Washington, on top of the bluffs that form the south-ern bank of the Rappahannock River, We have received as a

Idaho Power should review the three-tiered billing system

Our 1970's all-electric farm home was in dire need of retro-fit.

We planned and saved for years. We read extensively to determine the best way to accomplish this, keeping in mind our retirement funds and future needs. Idaho Power Co. sent us a consultant. With his advice, we chose to remain all electric, but in truth, there were no good alternatives. There is no natural gas hook-up in the country. Due to concern over rising fuel costs, oil or propanie were not good choic es. Solar and wind power offered promise but were very expensive to install and maintain and the technologies were not locally available. For heat and air-conditioning, we chose a closed-system ground-source heat pump. The refrigerant from it circulates through our hot water tank, given

Magic Valley needs a talk radio show on local issues

Magic Vailey needs a taik radio show on local issues

There is a problem in our community which needs to be addressed. We have no local radio shows being broadcast.

KLIX 1310 recently made a decision to cut its local morning taik show.

The Magic Valley needs a local show to let people know about what is going on in our local government. We need a local show so that candidates can have a forum to highlight their vision and ideas for our local community. We need a local show so that candidates can have a forum to all in and express their feelings. We need a local show because people will have a forum to tail in and express their feelings. We need a local show because people will not community and a local show will ensure that we can have a forum to highlight ideas to make our community and a local show will ensure that we can have a forum to highlight deas to make our community and to local show will ensure that we can have a forum to highlight deas to make our community and pack Suzanne and Kelly. #### Leaders abuse their power in setting up north rim plan

Wake up, Jerome County!
I'm choosing to reduce my thoughts into writing to assure that the public is informed of the abuse and misuse of powers and what to expect from Jerome County leaders in the future.
The taking of your land and property rights could be their next agends.

I am a private property owner of land along the north rim of the

FERS

Snake River Canyon. I bought my land more than 30 years ago. I did not just move here. I was born here. I worked all my life here and raised my family in this wonderful state. I'm now in my mid-70s and retired.

Not one county commissioner was courteous enough to talk directly to private property landowners concerning an addition to the existing preservation zone along the north rim. These County leaders chose a self-serving was to get what they wanted. Our elected officials asked the county planning and mainistrator to solicit members and form a committee whose sole purpose was to present a preservation zone plan to the county the administrator was only to be an advisor to the landowners along the north rim. Obviously, north rim private property landowners were singled out and doomed from the beginning.

The property user restrictions suggested in the preservation land (service) and finish, and type of vegetation) knocks down the land value and intrudes on private property rights. The talking of my property rights upsets me even more than the taking of my land.

Using the Bureau of Land Management land along the north rim will suffice and preserve the beauty of the canyon. Our county leaders need to enforce the existing preservation zone (center of the Snake River to the canyon's north rim') and not further encroach on private landowners. The proposal to take and restrict an additional 300 (teet of land from the same private landowners (Jerome County's north rim 35 miles) is discriminating and absurd. The south rim business developments are a mistake made by the Twin Falls City and County leaders. Are the Jerome County leaders so the south rim landowners' scenic view of the canyon is preserved? Are our Jerome County leaders bending to the influence of the south rim land and business powers?

Debunk the suburban myth

The notion that suburbs are the key battlegrounds of American politics has become so accepted it is almost a cliche. But the anatomy of suburban life and suburban elections remains much harder to define. No one has done more to explore that mystery than a Minnesotta named Myrao Orfield, who was in Washington last week discussing his latest book, "American Metropolitics: The New Suburban Readity," just published by the Brookings Institution.

The New Suburban Reality," just published by the Brookings Institution.

Five years ago, Orfield opened many eyes with his first book, "Metropolitics," which used computer generated mapping to lay be a fixed to be a fixed, social, racial, economic between the strength of the strength of the strength of his has met erca. He now applies the same erca. He now applies the same erca, the now applies the same erca, and the now applies the mapping for Adama, Shire years of the same erca, and the same erca, the same erca, the same erca, the same erca, economic base and fiscal capacity, they fall into five very distinct categories. with crowded schools and low tax bases, face challenges of their own.

The distinctions Offield draws among suburbs, and the way the varieties show up on his maps in shades from dark red to orange to bright blue, explain why the battle for suburban votes is so challenging—and why cliches about "soccer moms" or "New Economy voters" are often so misleading. They fail to capture the complexity of today's suburban reality.

Orfield, who is a Democrat, is also a passionate advocate of stronger metropolitan government as the answer to the challenges facing central cities and all larges facing central cities and all varieties of suburbs. His assenda calls for tax-sharing, stronger landuscy planning, campaigns for affordable housing, and other measures he says would halt the decline in some parts of the region and relieve the growth pressures being experienced in others.

Whether you agree with his policy prescriptions or not, Orfield has found a way to illuminate the most critical—and, often, most baffling—battlefield in American politics. That is no small achievement.

Jerome decides to buy land for future city well site

By Dixle Thomas Reale Times-News correspondent

JEROME - The city and the Jerome Development Corp. are jointly buying 69 acres of land in the northeastern corner of U.S. Highway 93 and State Highway 25 for around $230,000.

The land is to be used for a future municipal well site for the city water supply. The City Council approved the purchase of the land in a special meeting Monday.

Brian Craig of the Jerome Development Corp. said Tuesday the organization was still in negotiations with the cur-rent owners over the final purchase price.

City Engineer Scott Bybee said city crews hope to start drilling the well by late summer or early fall this. Neighboring wells in the area are around the 300-foot depth.

The new municipal well will be the first step in a larger city water and sewer system improvement project. The city is applying for grants totaling between $5 million and $6 million for improvements to the city water and sewer systems from the Economic Development

Administration, a federal agency.

The city plans to install a 10-inch sewer line and 14-inch water line along Main Street east from the city limits to the future well site in the summer before the drilling begins on the well.

Elko commissioners consider water rate hikes

Times-News correspondent

ELKO, Nev. – Jackpot residents and business owners may soon see a sharp increase inwater rates if Elko County commissioners approve the measure this afternoon.

Under the proposed rate schedule, owners of a single-family residence would pay $13 per month. One dollar of the proposed rate would go into a capital-projects fund while the $12 would be for water use. Home owners now pay water use. Home owners now pay $7.50 monthly under a six-month "winter" rate and $8.50 per month the remainder of the year, said Lyn Forsbert, Elko County public works director.

The rate increase, if passed, would be the first for Jackpot in nearly 20 years. The measure has been approved by the Jackpot Advisory Board, said county manager Rob Stokes.

Other matters scheduled to come before the commission include awarding a contract to begin work on a pilot project for monitoring the sewage treatment

BLM adds comments to fire management plan

By Nate Johnson

By Nate Johnson
Times-Nows writer

BURLEY - As U.S. Bureau of Land Management employees collect comments on the agency's proposed fire management plan, they must incorporate valid concerns into alternative management plan.
The intent of the proposed plan is to reintroduce fire as a natural part of the ecosystem on BLM lands. The current management plan calls for the suppression of all fires. By allowing natural fires to burn in some areas, and by conducting prescribed burns, project manager Terry Smith hopes to reduce fuels and noxious weeds. The plan also calls for increased weed treatment and more seeding of hare ground. If the plan works, it would reduce the number of acres that burn in wildfires cach year, Smith said.
At last week's open house in Burley, people came to learn about the plan and offer comments. The BLM will categorize comments made at the open mouse and submitted by open means and develop alternatives to meet the concerns raised by residents. Later, officials will assess the original plan and the alternatives and select one to implement.

The number of comments about a particular issue does not matter, Smith said. If one person, or 100 people, have a legitimate concern, Blut staffers will develop an alternative to address that concern. There are some comments, however, that don't get that extra consideration. Some people have raised issues, not related to the fire plan or based solely on their opinion as opposed to fact.

"It's got to be a substantial concern," Smith said.

In Burley, several people at the open house liked the plan, but wanted it implemented more quickly. Others questioned the use of Roundup to kill cheat grass, saying it could also kill sagebrush or other plants. If the BLM is going to use a herbicide it must be responsible for any unintended effects of the poison, one man said.
"I was a little surprised that tended effects of the poison, one man said.

"I was a little surprised that our grazing permittees weren't represented," at the open house, Theresa Hanley; Burley BLM Field Office manager, said. The permittees may still comment on the plan, Hanley said The BLM has sent comment forms to all the people who hold permits on BLM-managed land.

U.S kills up to four al-Qaida in firefights

BAGRAM, Afghanistan (AP)-Firefights between U.S.-led special forces and suspected al-Qaida terrorists left up to four of the suspects dead, a U.S. general said Tuesday, detuiling attacks in an eastern region where allied leaders say pockets of al-Qaida fighters are holed up.

No allied soldiers were hurt. Maj. Gen. Franklin L. Hagenbeck said that while the hunt for al-Qaida and Tailban fighters has weakened the enemy, it still had the ability to launch "low-level" terror attacks such as suicide and carb form high.

pelled grenade fire.
"Our soldiers returned fire, killing or wounding two of the terrorists," said Brig. Mike Hannan, a spokeman for the Australian military in Canberra. Hagenbeck said the bodies of the two suspected al-Qaida gumen were dragged away by fellow fighters.

Hagenbeck said two others were killed before dawn Tuesday. Australian special forces were also involved in that firefight, U.S. officials said.

"We knew how they would react once the sun went down last night. So we were ready for that and we killed two... as they were coming back through the area," Hagenbeck told reporters at Bagram air base, north of Kabul. It wasn't clear why the attackers were identified as al-Qaida suspects rather than Taliban.

U.S. military spokesman Maj. Bryan Hilferty said coalition special forces had been staking out the area near the Pakistani border for two days when allied troops came under fire on Monday morning.

Hilferty said a 200-man quick reaction force - two infantry companies from the 101st Airborne Division - were flown in by helicopter two hours later and found mortars, grenades and machine-gun ammunition in a sweep of buildings and nearby caves. He said the surviving fighters appeared to be part of a larger group that had fled into survounding mountains.

The clashes occurred in the same eastern region where the last major battles against the Taliban and al-Qaida were fought in March during Operation Anaconda - the largest U.S.-led ground offensive in Africhanistan.

Hagenbeck acknowledged that the hunt for terrorist suspects had become more difficult because al-Qaida and Taliban concentrations had dispersed since March.

Chinese vice president makes notable visit

WASHINGTON (AP)—VICE—
WASHINGTON (AP)—VICE—
President It Jintao this week becomes the highest ranking chinese official ever to visit the Pentagon.

But, in the up-and-down world of U.S.-Chinese military relations, his meeting with Defense—Secretary Donald II. Rumsfeld comes at a relatively low point.

"What's interesting is whether or not this invitation to Hu represents a change," said David M. Lampton of the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies. "It is quite notable that this Pentagon is inviting a Chinese tice president there—or indeed, any Chinese there."

The visit by Hu, widely expected to be China's next president, is seen largely as a chance for him and Bush administration officials to get to know each other. He arrived in Washington on Tuesday, with

Department of Defense head-quarters, no vice president has, Pentagon officials said.

And while the visit holds some symbolism, the military-to-mili-tary connection between the two countries remains the least developed dimension to the U.S.-Chinese relationship in the Bush administration, Lampton said.

Bush administration, Lampton said.
"It's the notable laggard" compared to more robust finance, trade and political links, he said. "There will be handshakes, there will be photo opportunites. There will not be any substantive breakthrough," the Heritage Foundation's John Tkacik, said of the Rumsfeld meeting.

Twin Falls woman blends many influences in her cooking style

By Dixie Thomas Reale Times-News corresponde

TWIN FALLS - This cook has managed to blend both Italian and Basque influences into her cook-ing style. Linda Biain was born in the Sar Francisco Bay area into a second.

Linda Biain was born in the San Francisco Bay area, into a second-generation Italian/American household. She came to Idaho in 1972 to study nursing at Idaho State University. After college, she worked in Hailey, for the family of Idaho Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa. There, she met her hus-band, Tom. Tom was born and reared in the Basque area of Spain. After the

Linda Biain is Italian and her husband is Basque, so old-world cooking is a part of her family life. In the summer, tho Biains often take their artichokes and peas and their clams and rice outdoors to their picnic table over this year. A daughter will graduate from CSI and transfer to BSU. The other daughter is also at BSU. Linda Biain owns and operates a residential elder-care center, Cenoma House. Her staff dues most of the cooking, but Biain likes to do the baking. She also likes to ask residents of the center about their favorite childhood foods. Then, she researches and tries to locate recipes for those foods and uses them to create food memories for the residents. She has tracked down ingredients for many dishes, from Vinegar Pie to Lumpy Dick.

She learned to cook from her Italian mother and father, from her Basque mother-in-law in Spain and from the Cenarrusas in Italiey, A "back-to-basics" cook, he said, "The fewer the inpedients in a recipe, the better the dish." In Spain, some of the tastiest dishes have no more that six ingredients, she added.

Biain and two of her children are vegan. She claims the vegan lifestyle is great for taking off weight and making people healthy.

Grilled mushrooms

can enrich spring sålad

Wild morels, chainterelles and other unique mushrooms are beginning to spring up. These mushrooms have a special earthy flavor that is best framed by the greens emerging around them. Wild mushrooms mix well with cultivated varieties such as portabellas, field (the kind easily found is the supermarkets), shi takes and osster.

Select fresh mushrooms with full, unshriveled stems. The tex-ture should be pliably supple, never dry or soggy. Avoid erumbly paper-like mushrooms. Store them in the coldest part of the refrigerator in a paper bag with a few holes poked in it for yentilation. Use them within a ventilation. Use them within a few days to enjoy them at their peak. Clean their by trimming the stems, then breshing off the dirt with a stiff, small brush, If they are really dirt, rinse them one by one well under slowly running cold water and immediately drain them in a colaniler. Never soak or submierge mushrooms in water. Dry them in a lettuce spinner or on paper towels. The trick to concentrated mushroom flavor is to keep the mushrooms dry.

Battle strategy against weeds starts with prevention

Where did that weed come from?

Weeds grow from seed or reproduce from their ropts. Knowing that, you're better prepared to do battle with them. Battle strategy begins with prevention, however.

If you plan to plant something in-u-hed-remove-every-green thing already growing three. Use a hoe, spade or whitever happens to be your favorite soil-tumbling device and grub plant tops, nots and all out of the bed. Before you grab any old thing off the shelf, though, read the label. Different products work on different weeds, in different situations.

antierent weeds, in different situations.

RoundUp is a well-known all-round weed killer. It must be applied to the green parts of the plant so that it can be absorbed into the entire plant, roots and all. That's why it is important to keep, it off the green parts of, plants you want to keep.

There is no residual effect, which means that, once RoundUp gets to soil particles, it's out of ammunition. It is not a good idea to spread it on the soil. It's a. waste of the product, and spread over naked soil, it could be washed somewhere you don't Pre-emergent herbicides kill, just-sprouting plants, Preen, is, a; well-known weed preventige. You sprinkle the granules on the cleaned garden area and mulch, or scratch it into the soil and add-water. As seeds, germinate, the herbicide kills the sprout. Wide-leaf weed killers, such as 24,d or Weed B Gone, are best suited for weeds with wide leaves, such as dandelions. It won't stick to slim grass leaves, but does a good job on purslane, dandelion, bur clover or mallow, for example.

Can't get the spray to stick to the weed? Either spray your weeds with a couple of table-spoons of dishwashing liquid in a 20-gallon sprayer before you apply weed killer, or try adding a dash of the soap to the herbicide.

This 'hard-water' problem could be from water heater

QUESTION: We have been finding small, hard granular pieces in our faucets. We think they are coming from our water heacts. We think they are coming from our water heacts. What should we do about it?

ANSWER: Small chips of plasticilise material in faucet aerators, often accompanied by reduced water flow from the faucet, is usually a sign of diprube failure in the water heater. This is a problem that has plagued thousands of water-heater owners in recent years. Another symptom of the problem is a reduction in hotwater temperature, but that can have causes other than dip-tube failure. The dip tube, made of plastic, is attached to the water heater's cold-water inlet and extends nearly to the bottom of the tank-lts purposes to carry-incoming cold water to the area of the tank where most of the heating is done. Water heaters manufactured in the years 1993 through 1993 are subject to the problem, in which the dip tube breaks off and disintegrates. Small fragments are washed through the water lines and clog aerators and filters.

If you detect the symptom whether your water heater was made in the 1993-97 period. If the year of installation is not known, because the company will give any help, or at least help to confirm the problem.

Betalled information on defective dip tubes can be found on the Internet. Go to a search engine such as www.google.com and enter the words "water heater dip tubes" in the search field, then fol-low the links.

If you love chocolate, it will love you right back

By Carol J.G. Ward Knight Ridder News Service

In a study published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition (November 2001), a researcher at Pennsylvania State University concludes that, like fruits and vegetables, chocolate may increase antioxidant levels in the blood. The study doesn't encourage eating large amounts of chocolate, but it does suggest that chocolate in moderation can satisfy a sweet tooth and offer health benefits.

A Romantic Arbor

By Kathy Scott

Arbors offer romance, privacy and beauty. Some couples choose to say their vows under arbors of flowers and lace. The fragrance of a flower arbor accentuates its romantic stature. An arbor can serve a practical purpose as well. It can provide you with shade on a hot. sunny day or serve as a very fancy work area.

There are several types of arbors. One of the more common is the pergola, a tunnel-like arbor you can walk through. It can be made by building an open frame or several arches over a decorative or simple path. The pergola can be decorated with vines and flowers. Pergolas often lead you to a special destination, such as a garden or a place to get away from it all.

No matter what type of arbor you choose, plan it accordingly before you actually start building it. Decide if you will have climbers, like wisteria. If so, you will need to construct a sturdy frame. A less sturdy frame will work for lighter-weight plants. Always be sure and check with your community zoning commission before building any structure.

You may want the color of your arbor to match your house or other wooden structures in your garden. When painting, use an oil-based primer and then latex or an oil-based paint.

Since the paint will be exposed to the elements, you should sand between each coat so the paint will stick. For a more natural look use stain. Stain is actually easier to apply and will wear better than paint. You may choose from pigmented stains or bleaching stains. All will enhance the grain of the wood. For something even easier, just apply a preservative and let the wood weather naturally.

You can make a trellis arbor by cutting and attaching trellis to the frame you have already set up. The most common arbor plats are clematis, jasmine, wisteria, climbing roses, ivy and grapes

Make your arbor reflect your dreams and wishes. Set is apart from the everyday, humdrum of life. Make it your place, or pathway, to which you can escape.

This sushi comes from south of border

By Beverly Bundy Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Fort Worth Star-Tologram

Could it be that ceviche, the south-of-the-border sushi, is finally going to have its day in the sun? Long a staple at Mexican restaurants, the citrus-marinated fish has made an appearance on this year's esteemed James Beard Award list with the nomination of "Cevichel" as best single-subject cookbook of the year. And cheffauthor Guillerino Pernot's a long way from the Gulf of Mexico in topography or spirit.

The word ceviche is derived from the Latin "clians" (food) by way of the Spanish "cebo" (fodder, food, bait) and "cebiche" (fish stew) - logical enough considering that the dish we know has long been a specialty of Spanish-speaking Latin American countries.

Finger sandwiches make for single, satisfying snack

By Carol J.G. Ward Knight Ridder News Service

When you're looking for some-thing light to serve and easy to eat, say for a spring bridal show-er, finger sandwiches come in handy. Cut sandwiches into shapes such as stars, crescents or flowers or into understated re-etangular, triangular, round or square shapes. The bread should be sliced thinly and served with-out crusts. A thin coating of but-ter will keep the bread from get-ting soggy.

Caught between the crossroads

Off the field, Minico's John Fennell is all smiles, freekles, shrugs and quiet humility.

On the mound, the 6-foot 7-inch right-hander is all business, loasting a career high school record of 20-5 going into Tuesday's game with Poeatello. His arsenal includes a mid-80s fastball, a sharply breaking curve, a good change-up, and, when it's going, a sharply breaking curve, a good change-up, and, when it's going, a sharply breaking curve, a good change-up, and, when it's going, a sharply breaking curve, a good change-up, and when it's going, a sharply breaking the first some of the control of the Church of Jesus Christ of Lactured ay Saints, which would like him to serve his two-year mission, or head directly to college; where 'd he keep his arm in shape and pursue his dream of playing professional baseball.

He doesn't blink.

Thompson's TIMEOUT Scott Thompson

"I think I need to go (on the mission)." he said. "I know a lot of missionaries that come back and say that they were the two best years of their life. Plus, I'm doing what my church leaders asked me to do."

He admits the layoff from baseball concerns him as to the effect it will have on his arm. But with just 180 pounds on that 6.7 frame, he also hopes the time off will be a positive experience.

"I'll be both," he said. "If put weight on, that will definitely be good. But getting my arm back in shape will be tough."

He doesn't have to look too far to see how tough. His father, who is also named John although they her not junior and senior, was irrafted by the San Francisco Giants out of high school but instead chose to play at Brigham Young University his freshman Complex Houng Hennell's future.

"I'll be keep the work of the work of the beat was the last man cut from the team upon returning from his mission."

"I don't even want to guess,"

i "I don't even want to guess," be said.
I He has done it all in high school, registering 221 strikeouts against just 60 walks in his three-yean varsity career. This season, he has a 42 record with 65 strikeouts, seven bases on balls and an darned run average of 1.75. He also has two nine-inning no-decisions.

His coming-out party was in his sophomore year when he nearly equaled the school record for wins (11), going 10-1 with a 1.60 darned run average. It's a record he would dearly love to share since it was set by his father in this senior year of 1971.

The 11th victory would also have meant a state title for the Spartans. But a bases-loaded double error in extra innings to Timberline was their undoing.
Fennell likely won't get his father's record but now only time will see if he can go further after high school.

If the combination of talent, will see if he can go further after high school.

If the combination of talent, character, willingness to take a huge risk on a stand of principle and lessons passed down from the past mean anything, he will go far.

Le Gougne "We are more than confident we took the right decision," said ISU President Ottavio Cinquanta.

Sources have told the Tribune the International Olympic Committee pressured the ISU to sanction Le Gougne and Gailhoguet.

"I think there were pressures operating on the ISU to justify—the result in Sall Lake City, Max-Miller of Salt Lake City, one of Le Gougne's attorneys, said Tuesday night from Paris.
Gailhaguet and the defendants' attorneys left Lausanne before the decision was announced. Le Gougne was one of five judges on the nine-judge panel who placed Russians Elena Bereznaia and Anton Sikharulidze first in the decisive free skate. Four days later, after hearing testimony that Le Gougne said she was pressured by Gaillanquet to vote for the Russians, the ISU decided to give a second gold medul ro. Canadians Jamie Sale and David Pelletier.

Pelletier.
Le Gougne later recanted, saying she accused Gailhaguet under duress after being physically and psychologically threatened by other judges and skating officials. Le Gougne has maintained she chose the Russians on merit.

The Snow College baseball program has become the latest casualty of budget tightening among colleges in the Scenic West Athletic Conference.

Badgers' baseball coach Robert Anderson said he was informed April 23 that the college would be dropping the program after this season due to a $700,000 curback to higher education spending in the state of Utah.

"It's sad because athletics can be so valuable in the education of young people," Anderson said.

But Snow communications said.

But Snow communications department director and the college's radio broadcaster, Gary Chidester, said the school hasn't officially axed the program.

Gary Chidester, said the schonhasn't officially axed the program.

"It's not official and the president (Michael T. Benson) hasn't made an official announcement still a possibility that we will keep baseball."

The apparent move came as a surprise to College of Southern

Angels rock Tribe, 21-2

CLEVISLAND (AP) - Ramon Orizi (2-3) got all the runs he could ever need and Troy Glaus had five RBIs Tuesday night as the Anaheim Angels rolled to their fifth straight win, 2-1; over the reeling Cleveland Indians. It was the most runs scored by the Angels in 23 years, and the most ever against the Indians at Jacobs Field.

White Sox 8, Mariners 4

CHICAGO - Magglio Ordonez hit a two-run homer as Chicago ended Seathes 10-game road win-ning streak to start the season. Counting five wins away from home to end last season, Seattle's road winning streak had been 15 games.

Rangers 10, Blue Jays 3
TORONTO - Alex Rodriguez hit his 250th career home run, and kenny Rogers (340) had another strong start as Texas beat Toronto, before the smallest crowd in SkyDome history.
Rodriguez became the second-youngest player to reach 250 homers, at 26 years, 277 days. Only Jimmie Foxx (26) years, 269 days) was younger.
Rafael Palmeiro passed Carl Yastrzemski for 25th on the career list with his 453rd.

Red Sox 4, Orioles 0
BOSTON - Darren Oliver (3-1) pitched his first shutout in more than two years and the fourth of his career; and Nomar Garciaparra drove in two runs to lead Boston over Baltimore.

Twins 6, Devil Rays 3

MINNEAPOLIS - Torii Hunter hit his ninth home run, and Kyle Lohse (2-1) pitched seven strong innings for Minnesota.

Tigers 9, Royals 3 DETROIT - Steve Sparks (2-2) pitched a two-hitter, and Damian

KIMBERLY - On the score card it looks like a gimme.

Hole No. 7, 122-yard Par 3, Easy, right.

Think again.

With a rece box perched high above the green on the Rock Creek Canyon run and little or no fairway on the canyon floor, the signature hole at Pleasant Valley Golf Course in Kimberly is practiced in the art deception.

It looks like an easy loft shot onto the green from the tee. That is, until the ball plops down into the water hazard short of the green, lands in the tall grass in from of the green, for my low like into the water hazard short of the green, lands in the tall grass in from of the green, or simply sails into the pasture off to the left of the hole.

"R's a short par 3 but it's a very difficult hole when the wind is blowing," course pro Al Rohweder. There isn't a lot or room to miss it. If you don't hit a good shot and get a little lucky, you're either on the hillside, out of bounds or in the pond."

Negotiating those elements is especially tricky on the newly opened back nine across the street from the clubbouse. The course will officially open its back nine on May 14.

The member-owned course has come a long way since it was first developed by Carl Feldbusen in the mid-1990s and officially opened in June of 1997. The next step in the evolution will be a ribbon-cutting ceremony for the back nine and an increase in tournament play.

"When we get the other nine attached we'll be doing more tournament play open to the public," Rohweder said. "Right now out tournaments are usually one day. We have scheduled four tournaments this year with 100 to 150 people which we couldn't do. 150 people which we couldn't do a before because we only had nine holes."

The most telling sign about who calls Pleasant Valley home is probably in the parking lot.

"You won't see a lot of Cadillacs in pur parking lot."
Roliweder said. "What you will see is an awful lot of nice looking pickup trucks."

Looking up from the green toward the tee box, it's easy to see why the seventh hole at Pleasant Valley Golf Course in Kimberly is such a challenging eno. #### Workshop offers tips on securing contracts

On securing contracts

TWIN FALLS - How to pursue business opportunities with the federal government will be the focus of a May 8 workshop, from 8 a.m. to noon at WestCoast Twin Falls Hotel.

The Idaho Department of Commerce is co-sponsoring the free workshop - and similar ones around the state - with the Small Business Administration, Idaho Small Business Development Center and Sen. Mike Crapo.

State Commerce Director Gary Mahn said the workshops are a tool offered to Idaho businesses to give them a competitive edge.

"Look at the numbers," Mahn said. "The federal government spends millions on purchases and services with outside contractors. The INEEL spends $133 million. Fairchild Air Force Base spends between $35 and $40 million. The number of business opportunities offered by federal agencies is phenomenal."

Hynix deal falls through

BOISE – The expansion bid of Micron Technology Inc., the world's No. 2 memory chip maker, collapsed Tuesday with the rejection of its multibilition-dollar proposal to acquire the memory chip operations of Hynix Semiconductor Inc.

The Hynix board of directors turned down the offer unanimously, just a day after creditors to the financially struggling South Korean company endorsed the deal by better than three to one.

"The plan overestimates the value of the Micron stock to be paid for the sale of Hyna's memory husiness; unrealistically pressumes the size and timing of contingent flabilities and is too opinishit in its estimate of the cash flow of the remaining company," the board statement said.

Hynis President Park Chongsup, who pushed the sale to Micron, resident after the decisional the board, which is composed of three Hynis executives and seven outside directors. Failure to approve the agreement Tuesday nullified it.

Officials ruled out renegotiating with Micron.

"The sale of Hynix's memory business may be a meaningful option in and of itself, but it is not the best option for the interested parties, including the company, its shareholders, its employees and its creditors," the board said in the statement.

Citing an upturn in memory chip prices and Hynix's improved technology development, the statement said the board 'has concluded that it is possible for Hynix to successfully exist as an independent entity."

Qwest must prove to state and federal regulators that its system in the former U S West states is open to competitions before it can begin offering long distance again.

In Minnesota, the company is accused of giving some of its rivals better terms to access the party of its local telephone network they need to serve their customers.

The question regulators face is whether Qwest violated state or federal laws by signing the deals and not publicly disclosing their

and not publicly discreasing suctions.

Competitor AT&T Corp., which brought the agreements to the attention of state regulators, argues Qwest-is in violation of federal regulations that require it to give all its rivals equal access to its network.

"This is a clear case of Qwest playing favorites," said Tom Pelto, an AT&T vice president.

"The whole scheme sets Qwest up as the company that picks the winners and losers in the mar-winners and losers in the ma-ket."

While it remains unclear whether Qwest stuck similar favorable deals with competitors in Utah; Pelto suspects such-sweetheart contracts are not con-fined to just one state. Qwest spokesman Bill Meyers-said the firm is cooperating with state regulators. The company's stance is it has done nothing wrong.

The contracts in question were not "interconnection agreements" that needed to be disclosed to all its rivals, Meyers said. Instead, he described them as agreements that settled sorvice disputes with individual whole-sale customers.

"That is what we are going to have to determine – exactly what those contracts are," Mecham said.

Boise-based cleanup company soars on quarterly profit

BOISE (AP) - American Ecology announced its highest quarterly operating profit in a The Boise-based company, which specializes in radionetive and hazardrous waste disposal, reported a ope-time gain of $16.3 million to post a net income of $19.1 million, or $1.38 per share, for the first quarter of per snare, to the consequence 2002.

The 516.3 million gain came from the implementation of a new accounting standard that changes the way the company must account for its long-term obligations for closing and maintaining its landfills.

The change reduced company liabilities by $11.1 million and created a future asset of $5.2 million for the value of the landfills.

fills.

Not counting the one-time gain, the company still posted an operating profit of $3.5 million for the quarter, up from $1.3 million a year ago.

American Ecology leaders say the positive quarter shows that a turnaround is well under way. "We believe American Ecology is now well positioned to grow earnings from its core business and take fuller advantage of the ongoing consolidation of the environmental services industry," said Stephen Romano, president chief executive.

checkbook, read the stock tables and use credit cards wisely. Nevertheless, simply throwing tax dollars at a problem doesn't guarantee success. Nor does the establishment of a federal oversight department. What's more critical is the need for parents, grandparents and other adults to talk to kids about financial responsibilities. Those kinds of conversations don't cost a dime, and may help a kid get a passing grade when making real-life financial choices.

Bargain hunting sparks stock market rally

NEW YORK (AP) – Wall Street emerged at least temporarily from its slump Tuesday as bargain hunting lifted stocks in spite of another set of lackuster earnings and a dip in consumer confidence. Analysts cautioned against too much enthusiasm about the advance, however, noting that the market's pattern has been to rally and then pull back when investors' expectations fail to mesh with reality. Indeed, while stocks ended the day higher, the gains faded late in the session.

"You're really just gerting a snappack today," said Duncan Richardson, chief equity investment officer at Eaton Vance. "The stocks that were down the most last week are up the most today, But I don't think there's been any broader change."

The Dow Jones industrial average closed up 126.35, or 1.3 percent, at 9,946.22, after rising as much as 186 earlier in the session.

It was the Dow's first tripledigit gain in two weeks, but failed to propel the average back above 10,000. This is the third straight session the blue chips have spent below the psychologically important level.

Broader stock indicators also moved higher. The technology-focused Nasdaq composite index gained 31.30, or 1.9 percent, at 1,688.23, while the Standard & Poor's 500 index climbed 11.47, or 1.1 percent, to 1,076.92.

Some buying had been expect-red following weeks of losses on mediocre earnings reports and catious-to-pessimstic forecasts. Invesiors, who had hoped for firm signs a turnaround was under way, spent most of the month seling stocks and avoiding new commitments. As a result, the Dow dropped to levels not seen since mid February, while the Nasdaq and S&P fell back to their late October ranges.

Although earnings Tuesday weren't any more or less spectacular than others released previous ly. Wall Street was more willing to set aside some of its qualms - at least for the moment.

Earlier this year, President Bush signed the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001, which makes $385 million available for schools to use in innovative education programs. Some of that funding is earmarked for programs that "promote consumer, economic and personal finance education." And in a recent development, Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill announced the creation of an Office of Financial Education. The new office will work with the Education Department to encourage schools to adopt financial education curricula.

Teen-ager's plea for help goes unheeded

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you as a last resort. Please print my letter so I can get help. I am a young teen who feels like commit-ting suicide.

iny letter sol can get help. I am a young teen who feels like committing suicide.

My parents work long hours and provide a roof over our heads and food on the table, but we spend hardly any time together. While I have suffered no physical abuse, I've been hurt by my mother's verbal abuse. I think I'm depressed because in a survey I took at school, I matched the profile of a person suffering from depression.

I can't tell my parents, although I have tried numerous times. When I told Mom I wanted to see a psychiatrist, she said "no." I've tried talking to teachers but nothing works. Is there something I can do without involving other appeals? No matter what I say, no one takes' me seriously. My friends think I'm joking when I tell them how I feel.

I wam they I want to live – but if there's no help, there's no being the part of the par

DEAR DESPERATE: Since you DEAR DESPERATE: Since you did not provide me with your location or telephone number, I am limited in what I can offer. Pick up the telephone and ask the operator to connect you with the local suicide hotline. Tell them exactly what you have told me, and that I suggested you call. They will respond to your cry for help.

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago my beloved wife was diagnosed with breast cancer. The shock, numbness and despair set in for both of us while she pursued aggressive and exhausting treat-ment.

This picture of the galaxy UGC 10214 was taken April 1 and 9 by the Advanced Camera for Surveys, which was installed aboard NASA's Hubble Space Telescope during Servicing Mission 3B. Dubbed the Tadpole, this spiral galaxy is unlike the textbook image of stately galaxies. Its distorted shape was caused by a small interloper, a very blue, compact galaxy visible in the upper left corner of the more massive Tadpole. The Tadpole resides about 420 million light years away in the constellation Direct.

Hubble captures stellar shots

WASHINGTON — The black of space is slashed with silvered streaks of stars as two fiery galaxies merge in a collision of giants. A massive pillar of dust glows in crimson in the glare of hot stars, and another hebula smolders in blues, pinks and reds from the light of stellar birth.

These views, never before seen in such detail, are among the first captured by a new camera on the Hubble Space Telescope, an instrument experts say may radically change what is known about the early and very distant universe.

The camera, called the Advanced Camera for Surveys, "is opening, a wide new window onto the universe," said Holland Ford of Johns Hopkins University, leader of a team that developed the new camera.

Speaking Tuesday at a news conference where the first four views from the ACS were released, Ford said the new camera increases by 10-fold the visual sharpness of the Hubble and gives the clearest pictures ever of galaxies forming in the very early universe.

Ford forecast that new images from the ACS can radically change some basic understanding about how and when the stars and galaxies first formed.
One view released Tuesday shows an object, identified as UGC 10214 and dubbed the "Tadpole galaxy" because of its shape, that has a long tail of stars and gas smeared neross 280,000 light years of the heavens by the gravitation force of a merging compact, blue galaxy.

The same image, taken in a fraction of the time required by the old Hubble camera, captures the light of more than 3,000 galaxies. One such galaxy, seen as a dim red dot, is shown, as it was when the universe was about 10 percent of its current age, said Ford.

"The light we see left that fain red galaxy when the universe was just 1 billion years old," he said. The ACS was installed on the Hubble during a servicing mission to the orbiting space telescope in March. Space shuttle astronauts, in a series of space-walks, also installed new power equipment, a guidance control wheel, and a mechanical cooler on the 12-year-old Hubble. Following a weekklong check-out, engineers found "the Hubble is back in business and works great," said Ed Weller, the associate administrator for space science at NAS.

Bobby Wolff

"How much better a thing it is to be envied than to be pitied." Herodotus

In the world of duplicate bridge, the post-game conversation is replete with hard-luck stories. The also-rans enjoy relating how bad things always happen to them. The winners enjoy relating how their cleverness created hard luck for others. Today's deal received much attention.

An unhappy West lamented, "Had I not raised hearts, they probably would have stopped at two spades instead of bidding that filthy game. They had 21 HCP between them, and two finesses were offside." he complained. His story was worth at least two "pity points."

After West's heart lead went to dummy's ace, South ruffed a heart and led a trump toward dummy. West took his ace and led another heart, but South took charge. He ruffed, drew the last trump, and still made 10 tricks de-spite losing both minor-suit finesses.

A proud defender related another side of the story. After the same bidding and the same lead, South also won dummy's heart ace and ruffed a heart. However, when South led a trump toward

How did this affect South's thoughts? Was West falsecarding with a doubleton Q-J? Or did he have a singleton queen? If West's queen were singleton, South was destined to lose two trump tricks anyway. Accordingly, he played low from dummy, hoping to drop East's singleton ace. Horrors! After West scored his two trump tricks, he exited safely in hearts, and South's game suffered a cruel one down. Surely, South was due 10 "pity points" for his unlucky result.
