Study: Sons may shorten moms' lives

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — "My son will be the death of me yet." The familiar lament by mothers everywhere may have a kernel of scientific truth, researchers say.

A study analyzing family church records in earlier centuries found that having sons shortened the life span of Finnish mothers by about 34 weeks per son. Daughters nurtured to adulthood helped prolong mothers' lives.

Baby sons, researchers suggest in the journal Science, make a much greater physical demand on the mother's body than do the typically smaller daughters and this may actually lead to a shorter life for the mother.

"Boys are usually born much heavier than girls," said Samuli Helle, a researcher at the University of Turku in Finland and the study co-author. "It seems that boys are much more demanding to produce than girls."

Helle said the conclusion is based on church family records kept in Finland for a nomadic people called the Sami during the period 1640 to 1870. He said the toll on mothers lives of having sons may not apply in the era of modern medicine.

"Nowadays we have better medical care," Helle said. "Resources are not as likely to limit females' life span. There might be some effect, but it will not be as huge as in the Sami people."

Helle and his co-authors used the records because of their accuracy and because they gave a measure of the effects of natural mortality before advance medical care.

Idaho doles out pay hikes as revenue drops

The Associated Press

BOISE — As the bottom fell out of state tax collections last winter and Gov. Dirk Kempthorne publicly justified drastic reductions in education budgets, his agency managers were doling out tens of thousands of dollars in bonuses and pay raises.

State records show that from January through March, 92 employees in 11 agencies relying on general tax receipts split up more than $24,000 in one-time bonuses. These bonuses, a small amount compared to some past years, ranged from less than $100 to $1,000.

But from Jan. 1 through mid-April, more than 730 employees in 26 agencies relying on general tax revenues were granted pay raises that increased the state's biweekly payroll by more than $102,000. The cost through the end of the current budget year on June 30 would be more than $1 billion.

Departments that rely on general tax collections are authorized to have on the payroll nearly 9,000 full-time positions.

TWIN FALLS — It wasn't the story of Florence Nightingale that inspired 20-year-old Amber Hamrick to go into nursing.

It was her older brother.

"He was accident prone," Hamrick said.

Now a first-year student in the nursing program at the College of Southern Idaho, Hamrick has graduated from putting Band-Aids on childhood scrapes to knowing how to take someone's temperature, give a shot and start an I.V. line. For now, only on dummies, of course. Real people will come later.

But there's a lot more than that to nursing.

"It's not just about giving shots and medications," Hamrick said. "Nurses give a lot of support and do a lot of teaching."

Hamrick is one of more than 140 students in the nursing program at CSI. She and her fellow students demonstrated their newly found skills Thursday at an open house celebrating the program's 30th anniversary.

Panel ponders life after Simplot

Grants could ease transition for workers who lose their jobs

By Shelley Ridenour
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A task force established in response to the planned closure of J.R. Simplot Co.'s Heyburn potato processing plant has decided on its first move: form a steering committee.

The committee's immediate tasks will be to determine what grant money might be available to any entities and what opportunities might exist for the plant after Simplot stops using it, said Richard Reynolds, chairman of the Mini Cassia Development Council board.

Simplot announced last week that it will close the Heyburn plant in 2004 and lay off most of its 649-person work force this fall.

Simplot The Heyburn plant closure

"We are looking for all opportunities that we can for monies and for any help that we can find, to not only help the people who were laid off, but the economic impact on our community," Reynolds said Thursday.

The task force met for the first time Tuesday and decided that a 12-person steering committee will be appointed soon. The Mini-Cassia Development Council will appoint the committee members. The thrust of Tuesday's meeting was "our concern for the employees who have been displaced," Reynolds said.

The steering committee will come up with a list of long- and short-term projects and then act on that list, he said. The committee will seek assistance from various agencies and entities, including the state labor and commerce departments and city and county governments.

One of the possible sources of assistance to Mini-Cassia leaders as they tackle how to deal with impacts from the plant closure is the College of Southern Idaho.

Jerry Beck, CSI's executive vice president, said "the college always stands ready to help in difficult — as well as in good — times."

College officials have attended some of the meetings at which the closure has been discussed, Beck said, but there are no solid plans for what role the college might play as work continues.

"We are hopefully part of the solution," he said.

Beck said it's important for the community to first get past the shock of the decision by the plant's owners to close the facility.

passes deemed suspicious by the U.S.-led coalition against terror.

Their aim is to zero in on suspected al-Qaida and Taliban hotspots, who military officials say have dispersed into small groups, adopted guerrilla tactics, and learned to blend in with residents — much like the covert operations teams themselves.

"Our people are very good at what they do. They're very good at hiding," said the U.S. military spokesman, Maj. Bryan Hilfery.

Equipped with handheld "laser target designators," U.S. special forces were active in the early stages of the Afghan war, sneaking near front lines to guide American airstrikes toward enemy positions. The bombing campaign, backed by northern alliance troops, ousted the Taliban late last year.

Back then, the enemy was relatively easy to spot. These days, al-Qaida and Taliban fighters are proving elusive, and the allied coalition is turning increasingly to covert operations and intelligence to track them down.

The effort includes finding and analyzing documents, computer disks and arms caches left in caves and underground bunkers, monitoring satellite imagery and intercepting radio, telephone and e-mail communications.

Unmanned spy planes equipped with cameras also have been put to use by CIA operatives.

Even with all the high-tech help, human intelligence is the most reliable, Hilfery said. Tips sometimes come from Afghan authorities or villagers, who point out areas where suspected al-Qaida fighters or weapons caches might be.

Special operations teams are inserted into a target area — mainly in eastern Afghanistan — by air, vehicle or foot, and usually at night. "If you put people in a way that no one will know that they're there," Hilfery said. "You'll set up a position where you can provide eyes on a particular area."

And then they watch and wait.

ty. Then, community leaders need to look at what the potential employment growth areas are and determine if workers can be trained to fill those needs.

Today, those areas are health care and high technology, Beck said. Employees who plan to work in either of those fields require high training.

That is somewhat different from past situations in the Magic Valley. When other plants have closed, employees haven't always needed especially high skill sets, he said. There are various training programs available through such entities as the state labor department. The college can cooperate with those types of programs.

The Simplot plant sits on 36 acres in the city of Heyburn, Reynolds noted. Future possible uses of that land and buildings need to be explored, task force members agreed.

However, he said, the steering move, he said, "but you just don't know those things."

The group first needs to see exactly what Simplot's final plans for the facility are. Once that is determined — depending on the outcome — community leaders need to decide if they want to acquire the buildings, if offered for sale, and if so, what to do with those buildings.

"Then we keep moving through the process, and then at least you know where we're working from and where we can go," Reynolds said.

"Because of the challenge we face we are going to move as quickly as possible in the directions we can," Reynolds said. "Some things aren't as easy to get done in the timeline we want, but we'll go as fast as we can going in making good and wise decisions."

While the steering committee needs to be small, Reynolds said, it needs help from everyone in the community.

As the committee works, it will Votroubek said hospital patients often mistook him for a doctor during his clinical studies. The 1997 Wendell High School graduate followed his mother into the nursing profession.

It's not the paycheck

Although the pay is good — $46,782 was the national average in 2000 — it's not what draws most people into the profession.

"If people go into it just for the money, they're not going to stay," said Jim Rodgers, a LifeFlight paramedic and CSI paramedic instructor who's also enrolled in the nursing program.

Rodgers said nursing, while it can be lucrative, is not an easy profession. The hours can be grueling. Except for nurses with years of seniority, most nurses work nights, weekends and plenty of holidays.

Nursing, Rodgers said, is more than just a profession.

"You have to want to care for people at their best and their worst," Rodgers said.

Zimmerman agreed.

"You have to have a real love for people," it's not what "Caring" — that's what is most important."

Bush says Arafat must arrest, jail terrorists

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, scaling back the praise he had just heaped on Yasser Arafat, said Thursday the Palestinian leader must arrest and jail Hamas militants who carry out attacks on Israeli civilians.

Bush said he was pleased Arafat had spoken out against terrorism. "That's good. That's a positive development," he said.

However, the president went on to say a key test of Arafat's intentions was whether he arrests terrorists and keeps them in jail. Arafat has a history of arresting militants, only to let them go days later.

"In order for there to be peace, we must root out terror," Bush said at the White House.

On Wednesday, after Arafat spoke out against terrorism in Arabic, Bush lavished praise on the Palestinian leader. He said Arafat's statement was an "incredibly positive sign."

The State Department, more cautious, called the statement, which included an Arafat promise to use Palestinian security to deter attacks, a good first step. But department spokesman Richard Boucher also insisted that Arafat confront terror directly.

Hassan Abdel Rahman, who heads the Palestine Liberation Organization's office in Washington, said Arafat had made similar statements in the past. But, Rahman said, this time "he used stronger language."

Maryland bans executions pending racial bias study

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Following the example set by Illinois two years ago, Gov. Parris Glendening on Thursday suspended all executions in Maryland while a study is done on whether the death penalty is meted out in a racially discriminatory way.

Glendening, a Democrat who is barred from seeking a third term this fall, blocked next week's lethal injection of 44-year-old Wesley Baker and said he would stay any other executions that come before him in his eight months left in office.

The governor repeated his support for the death penalty for especially heinous crimes, but said "reasonable questions have been raised in Maryland and across the country about the application of the death penalty."

"It is imperative that I, as well as our citizens, have complete confidence that the legal process involved in capital cases is fair and impartial," he said.

Illinois is the only other death penalty state to impose a moratorium on executions.

The study is expected to be completed in September and will then be reviewed by state lawmakers.

Glendening said he expects the moratorium to remain in place for about a year. However, the next governor is free to resume executions upon taking office in January.

Vote for veteran backups to replace retiring leaders

Know-how counts more than ideology in some political races. This year's campaigns for state controller and secretary of state are two such races, and in both cases Republican voters have the opportunity to nominate seasoned, trustworthy professionals to join the GOP ticket.

These two offices don't get much public attention, because they deal with dry-as-toast details of government operations. But they are quietly important.

About these races:

Secretary of state - Republicans Ben Ysursa and Evan Frasure are running for the GOP nomination for Idaho secretary of state in the May 28 primary. Democrat Steven F. Scanlon and Libertarian Ronald E. Perry are running unopposed for their parties' nominations.

Controller - Republicans Keith Johnson, Gene Winchester and Donna Jones are running for the GOP nomination for state controller. Democrat Bob Sonnichsen and Libertarian Suzanne Gibbin are running unopposed for their parties' nominations.

The Times-News offers its editorial endorsements as a service to readers. We welcome opposing viewpoints.

The Land Board's decisions have far-reaching implications for environmental policy and public-school revenue, and replacing two of the five members is a decision that voters can't afford to fumble.

Voters are unaccustomed to making changes in these two offices. Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa, whose name has become almost synonymous with his job, is retiring next winter after 35 years in office. Controller J.D. Williams also is stepping down. He and his predecessor Joe Williams, a distant relative, have held the job for a combined 45 years. (The office was called "auditor" in Joe's day.)

Fortunately for voters, both Cenarrusa and Williams have groomed well-qualified potential successors. Republican voters can feel confident about nominating Ben Ysursa for secretary of state and Keith Johnson for controller.

Here are some details:

Ben Ysursa

Ysursa has been Cenarrusa's chief deputy for the past 25 years. As a lawyer and long-time head of the state's elections division, he exhibits an intimate knowledge of Idaho election law and practices. Along with his boss, he deserves credit for Idaho's admirable record of squeaky-clean, efficient elections.

As Cenarrusa's chief deputy, Ysursa also has worked extensively on Land Board issues. He promises to continue the sensible, multiple-use orientation that Cenarrusa and his fellow Land Board members have pursued in recent years.

His opponent, long-time state Sen. Evan Frasure, is running on a "No more clouds" slogan - targeting the punch-card ballots used in many Idaho counties. He contends that Idaho risks the same national ridicule that visited Florida after the 2000 presidential election. He criticizes Ysursa for failing to promote modernization.

But it's a hollow criticism. The Florida problem was caused by ignorant voters and faulty ballot design - not by a basic technological flaw. And even if Idaho needs to replace punch-cards, Ysursa's experience and ability still make him the obvious choice to get it done.

Keith Johnson

J.D. Williams is a Democrat, and lots of people were surprised to hear him endorse a Republican as his successor. But the reasons are obvious.

Williams recruited Johnson from Oklahoma, where Johnson was serving as that state's controller. (In Oklahoma, the controller is appointed rather than elected.) As a native Idahoan, an attorney and a certified public accountant, Johnson plainly was a great catch. He comes to this election highly endorsed by Oklahoma state financial officers, both Republican and Democrat.

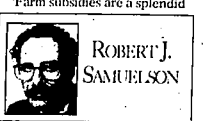

Like Ysursa, Johnson will look out for the interests of natural-resource industries in Land Board decisions. And for Republican voters who care about party loyalty, he brings a record of volunteer service in GOP campaigns.

He has a ready answer to the obvious question of why he's working for a Democrat: "I would rather work for a Democrat than not live in Idaho." (Williams endorsed him early on. Hedging his party bet, he has since added a second endorsement for the Democrat who filed later.)

Two experienced GOP politicians - Gene Winchester and Donna Jones - are running against Johnson. They're both honorable and intelligent people, but neither can match Johnson's experience and knowledge. He'd make an excellent successor to Williams.

Farm subsidies: A bumper crop of corruption

If government waste were an art form, the new farm bill would be the Mona Lisa. The lavish agriculture subsidies have few redeeming social or economic values. But as a work of politics, the bill is a masterpiece, and as with all masterpieces, it exposes larger truths. We are now routinely told that excessive private campaign contributions are corrupting Washington politics. The farm bill says otherwise. American democracy (it turns out) is more interesting, intricate and perhaps more corrupt than that.

ROBERT J. SAMUELSON

Farm subsidies are a splendid example of old-fashioned politics: using public money to buy votes. It's the quest for popularity and power, and not campaign contributions, that matters. Under the new bill, the subsidies are estimated to cost almost $200 billion over the next decade, or about $20 billion annually.

The point is to stabilize farm incomes - to prop them up in periods of low prices and thereby save "family farming." The subsidies have existed in one form or another for almost 70 years, and there's no evidence that they work. Farmers and farm workers accounted for 21 percent of the labor force in 1929, before the New Deal's first agriculture legislation. Their share today is about 2 percent.

Bigger tractors, more fertilizer, better seed varieties and cultivation methods have promoted farm consolidation and larger harvests. In the 1940s, American farmers grew an average of 34 bushels of corn per acre; in 2001, the average was four times that, 137 bushels an acre. Government subsidies simply haven't been able to overcome the pressures for bigger and more efficient farms.

The subsidies also hamper efforts to open foreign markets.

Precisely because American farmers are so productive, they need exports to absorb their surpluses. But foreign markets are heavily protected by subsidies and high tariffs, because farmers almost everywhere are politically favored. The average food tariff around the world is now 62 percent. It's hard to convince other countries to cut their subsidies and tariffs if we won't cut our own.

The subsidies survive partly because they're protected by the "iron triangle" of congressional committees, interest groups and government agencies (here, the Agriculture Department). Without farm programs, all would be less important. To sustain their power, farm legislators and lobbyists "are willing to trade their votes for almost anything," says economist David Orden of Virginia Tech, a longtime student of farm politics. In Congress, farm legislation also includes food stamps, a much more popular program with many more beneficiaries, now about 18 million. This makes it easier to attract the support of urban and suburban legislators.

But what increasingly protects farm subsidies is political corruption. With Congress split - and control of the House and Senate few races - swing voters must be courted.

The result is much bipartisan hypocrisy. President Bush denounces excessive government spending, but he's for the farm bill. Democrats such as Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota condemn budget deficits, but they're enthusiasts for farm subsidies. The controversies over this bill mainly involve which farmers get the most subsidies and which politicians get the most credit. Perhaps some details reflect campaign contributions. But Hagstrom minimizes their role: "The amount of money that any one sub group gives is so very small compared to all contributions."

The larger truths are at once reassuring and disturbing. What's reassuring is that private money has not on the whole corrupted politics. By and large, Congress and the President are trying to please and impress major groups of voters. What's less reassuring is that this process also invites abuse. It's not the buying of public influence with private money but just the reverse, on an astounding scale.

For the 2000 election, total spending and private campaign contributions - for everything from school boards to the presidency - came to about $4 billion over two years. By contrast, here are the White House and Congress doling out up to $20 billion a year to satisfy one tiny group of voters, with few (if any) public benefits. If that's not corruption, what is it? Maybe, just democracy in action.

Simplot's behavior should be considered blatant theft

In light of the Simplot Corp.'s recent behavior, everyone in southern Idaho should take a long look at the products they purchase. What Simplot has done to our local potato farmers is blatant theft. The time of its announcement was planned in such a way to ensure there would be potatoes in the ground for it to purchase at cheap prices this fall. There are many processors and packers who continue to honor their commitments and choose to use the quality potatoes grown in Idaho.

When going to the grocery store and local restaurants, we should make every effort to purchase products from these companies. We also have many local choices for the products we use in our farms and businesses. We need to remember how little regard Simplot has for our neighbors and choose accordingly.

Tips should be the decision of the diner, not the restaurant

We hadn't been to a restaurant for some time, so we decided to eat out. We used to meet at this certain restaurant regularly with our friends. We were sure we were shocked when we got our bill! They had added the gratuity to our bill.

What a rip off! As much as they charge for their meals, they should be able to pay their waiters, and not expect us to pay their wages, too.

If we get good service, we pay our waiter well, and if not, they get what they're worth. The decision of tipping is ours, and we should be the one to determine the amount we tip for the service we get.

This will be the last time we take our friends to this restaurant. And if any other restaurant decides to add the gratuity to the bill, they're off our list, too.

Dairy doesn't really smell that bad - stop complaining

Smelly dairy? I think not. The people that buy property close to a dairy, then complain about the smell and the flies - can't believe the gall of some people.

Our property borders the dairy property. We're closer than they are. We don't smell it but a couple of times a year. Stop harassing the dairy on farm politics. People that like living close to the good dairy neighbors. Some people are never happy unless they are complaining about something or trying to cause trouble for someone.

So if you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen!

Family privacy can never be an excuse for child abuse

Planned Parenthood recommends abortion and is slanted education. I want to respond to the caring people, Larry Parke and Joann Jackson, letters dated April 15.

Joann, I commend you for volunteering to help those in crisis pregnancies and, Larry, for caring enough to write a letter to the editor. Joann, Planned Parenthood does put on a good front; however, the research can be changed to look the way you want as I learned in a statistics class at UCLA. Look up STOPP.com on the Internet and you will see opposite figures. It may be true in this state that it does not perform abortions, but when the medical director is one of the largest abortion providers in the state of Idaho, you wonder if there isn't a conflict of interest. I know of two incidences of girls Planned Parenthood has pushed to have an abortion and the girls then became suicidal. In 2000, Planned Parenthood took in a record $69 million by performing abortions, one-third of its total income. Planned Parenthood president Gloria Feldt receives a salary of $324,217 a year.

Burkes County, Pa., had 60 abortions in 1999, and after Planned Parenthood came, they increased to 685.

Joann, there is an alternative place you can volunteer called the Pregnancy Crisis Center on Main Street, phone 734-7472. It offers free pregnancy tests, health education, parenting classes and emotional and physical and financial support. Even cars have been given; soon maybe a maternity home. The client advocates are all volunteers. They operate on $30,000 a year from community donations.

As far as the suffering of children being raised by those who do not want them, there are many childless couples wanting desperately to have a child and adopt them. With your reasoning, Joann, we should kill those children now rather than see them suffer at 1 year old or older. Why wouldn't you? Because there are a child and the same is true about the fetus. Research now shows that the fetus can feel in the womb. What about the suffering of a child during an abortion? Would you like to be soaked in salt until you died or have your limbs torn off and held pulled off or your brains removed? Family privacy is never an excuse in abuse of a child.

Pipe bomb suspect meets with family in emotional reunion

RENO, Nev. — The father who helped the FBI capture his son in the string of mailbox bombings held an emotional jailhouse reunion with him Thursday for the first time since the college student's arrest.

Cameron and Pamela Helder met with their son Luke at the county jail in Reno for about 30 minutes. They were separated by glass and spoke by telephone, but authorities said the meeting was emotional.

"We are here to see our son in his hour of need," Cameron Helder told reporters afterward. "We told him we love him. I feel a lot better after speaking to him."

Helder, 21, was captured Tuesday near Reno. He faces federal charges in Illinois, Nebraska and Iowa, where his initial court appearance is scheduled for today.

INS tracking system will follow foreign students

WASHINGTON — A new system that will allow the Immigration and Naturalization Service to track approximately 1 million foreign students will be up and running in the next several months, Justice Department sources said Thursday.

The start-up of the Internet-based system, after years of criticism from lawmakers of the INS's antiquated tracking methods, is seen by officials as a significant step toward monitoring foreign students and beefing up the country's anti-terror safeguards. The system is scheduled to be operational by July 3.

The INS was "supposed to keep up with (students), and obviously the schools were not cooperating. But the bulk of the problem was the system itself was antiquated," a Justice Department official said Thursday. "You had to push a million students through a paper system and expect to get accuracy."

The system is designed to provide up-to-date computerized information on non-immigrant foreign students, such as name changes and new depoues, an official said. Each school will have 24 hours to input changes.

Nation in brief

Abuse victims ask bishops to assist lobbying effort

NEW YORK — Victims of clergy sexual abuse asked Roman Catholic bishops in about 20 cities Thursday to help them lobby state legislators to make it easier to prosecute errant priests.

The Survivors Network of Those Abused by Priests said it was undertaking the effort now because it feels U.S. bishops will fail to set an abuse policy that fully protects children. Drafting a protocol for handling molestation claims will be the focus of a bishops' meeting next month.

Meanwhile, alleged victims of now-defrocked priest John Geoghan reacted with disbelief after Cardinal Bernard Law said he didn't remember letters accusing Geoghan of sex abuse and complaining about his transfer from parish to parish.

"I found that the cardinal had some selective amnesia," said alleged victim Mark Keane, who heard Law's testimony during a deposition Wednesday.

The cardinal's deposition was ordered in a lawsuit filed by 86 people who say Law and the Boston Archdiocese failed to protect youngsters from Geoghan, who has been accused of sexually abusing more than 130 children over three decades.

Daschle says Enron broke laws during energy crisis

WASHINGTON — Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle said Thursday he believes Enron Corp. broke laws while manipulating electricity supply and prices during the California energy crisis.

"I don't think there's any doubt that somebody ought to go to jail and that we ought to find a way through public policy to fix a system that needs to be addressed," said Daschle, D-S.D.

California Republicans sought to blunt any partisan advantage for Democrats on the issue, Reps.

Mary Bono and George Radanovich joined Democrats in calling for a Justice Department probe of Enron's energy trading practices as explained in internal company memos made public this week.

The Enron documents described how the energy trading company sought to cash in on California's energy crisis in 2000 and 2001. During the crisis, wholesale energy prices shot up tenfold.

Former Afghan warlord escapes CIA missile attack

WASHINGTON — A former Afghan prime minister is believed to have escaped a CIA missile strike in the first known attempt to kill a factional leader suspected of plotting against the U.S.-backed government.

Though not known to be part of the Taliban or al-Qaida, Islamic leader Gulbuddin Hekmatyar was considered a fair target because he was threatening American troops and had offered rewards for their deaths, officials said Thursday.

The CIA fired a missile from an unmanned Predator spy plane Monday near the capital, Kabul, in hopes of killing Hekmatyar, U.S. defense officials said on condition of anonymity.

The Central Intelligence Agency has played a major role in the Afghan campaign, gathering intelligence and sending in its paramilitary to work with local tribal leaders who have mounted their armies against the Taliban and al-Qaida.

Search turns up flight manuals; WTC pictures

NORFOLK, Va. — An investigation into an alleged scheme to obtain fraudulent student visas turned up a student Federal Aviation Administration flight manual, a hand-drawn diagram of a plane striking one of the World Trade Center towers and a date book with a lone entry, Sept. 11, according to court documents.

According to documents the FBI filed to justify additional search warrants, authorities also seized from the same location in Virginia photos of men posing outside and inside the trade center, a postcard with an aerial view of the Pentagon and a book identifying commercial airliners.

The materials were seized on or about Dec. 7 when a search warrant issued in the Eastern District of Virginia authorized a search of a location used by one of the students allegedly involved in the scheme, according to the affidavit filed this week in federal court in Norfolk.

The document did not give an address or other details about the location. An FBI spokesman declined to comment Thursday. The Virginian Pilot of Norfolk, citing sources it did not identify, reported that the location was a home in northern Virginia.

New Iceberg 47 miles long breaks off Antarctic ice shelf

WASHINGTON — An iceberg 47 miles long and 4.6 miles across has broken off the Ross Ice Shelf in the Antarctic, the National Ice Center reported Thursday.

The giant sheet of glacial ice and snow was named C-18, meaning that it's the 18th iceberg to be tracked in that section of Antarctica since 1976, when record keeping began.

The iceberg is not considered a hazard to navigation.

AROUND THE VALLEY

CSI board looks to economic figures

TWIN FALLS - Just when it seemed like the worst was over, the financial situation at the College of Southern Idaho might have deteriorated further.

CSI's board of trustees is holding an executive session this morning to focus on the latest state economic figures and their effect on the college.

April state tax receipts were $60 million less than anticipated, the damage of which is bound to trickle down to CSI.

"It's brutal right now," said President Jerry Meyerhoeffer.

Personnel matters will be discussed at today's meeting but he couldn't say whether that meant further staff layoffs.

Meyerhoeffer said he received a press release from Gov. Dirk Kempthorne that called for "prudent management" among the state's public entities.

"They told us that if we were aggressive managers we would start looking at the budget for next year at 95 percent of the level we've been funding at. That's maybe a best case scenario," he said.

The outcome of the executive session won't be revealed until the board's May 20 meeting.

CSI taps Paul resident to give keynote address

TWIN FALLS - Motivational speaker Jaylynn Twiss will give the keynote address at the College of Southern Idaho's May 17 commencement ceremonies, the college has announced.

Twiss has spoken for years to business, religious, agricultural, educational and medical groups around the nation at banquets and conventions.

Twiss, a longtime Paul resident, holds degrees in psychology from Brigham Young University and the University of Idaho. She has taught emotionally disturbed children, high school English, and study- and job-skills classes at CSI's Mini-Cassia Center in Burley.

About 450 students will receive their associate degrees at the May 17 graduation program, which begins at 8 p.m. in the CSI gymnasium.

M.V. Bank sponsors Jimmy Buffett night

TWIN FALLS - Magic Valley Bank will sponsor Jimmy Buffett Night Saturday, a fund-raiser for the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life.

The event is scheduled from 6:30 p.m. until closing at Dunken's Draught House, 101 Main Ave. N., Twin Falls. Come dressed like a Parrothead; prizes will be given for best dressed man and woman.

Raffle tickets are being sold for a chance to win two tickets to the Jimmy Buffett Memorial Day Concert in Las Vegas, Nev., plane tickets from Boise and two nights at the Luxor. Only 100 raffle tickets will be sold at $25 each. Tickets can be purchased at Magic Valley Bank on Shoshone Street or Dunken's. The winner will be announced at 8 p.m. Saturday at Dunken's.

All proceeds from raffle, wine sales, tips and $1 from each cheeseburger, courtesy of Dunken's, will be donated to the American Cancer Society Relay for Life.

Astronomy Day offers events for M.V. residents

TWIN FALLS - Astronomy Day 2002 will be observed at the Herrett Center Saturday afternoon and evening. All events are free and all ages are welcome and encouraged to attend.

Starting at 1 p.m., one of the Herrett's telescopes with a special solar filter will be set up for viewing the sun, weather permitting. At the same time, a solar scale model will be built along North College Road to illustrate the distances in our own solar system. Make-and-take activities will go on in the Frost classroom of the Herrett Center all afternoon as well.

One of the activities in the classroom will involve building water bottle rockets from 1 to 3:30 p.m. Weather permitting, the bottles will be taken outside at 3:30 for launching.

The Magic Valley Astronomical Society will hold its monthly meeting at 7 p.m. The public is always welcome to attend. Then, at 9:30, weather-permitting, the monthly Star Party will be held in front of the Herrett Center.

For more information about any of the events, please call the Herrett Center at 733-9554, ext. 2655.

Gov. Dirk Kempthorne talks to a crowd of supporters at a campaign stop at Blue Lakes Country Club on Thursday.

Governor says there are still good things happening

By Julie Pence
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - With a backdrop of budding poplars contrasted against the Snake River Canyon, Gov. Dirk Kempthorne spoke to supporters on Thursday about the good things happening in Idaho.

Magic Valley businessman Con Paulos, chairman of the Idaho Department of Commerce's Economic Advisory Council, held a $100-per-plate fund-raiser for Kempthorne at the Blue Lakes Country Club. But the sky was overcast - perhaps a symbolic reminder that the state is facing challenges.

"I wish all of Idaho was experiencing all the wonderful things happening in Magic Valley," Kempthorne said. He listed the groundbreaking for a new warehouse operation in Jerome, the opening of call centers in Jerome and Twin Falls, and dairies as examples of continuing prosperity.

He did not discuss the planned closure of the J.R. Simplot Co.

potato processing plant in Heyburn. The plant has a $15 million to $20 million annual payroll, said Greg Rogers, a Department of Labor regional labor economist.

Nor did Kempthorne rule out the possibility of a special session for the Legislature in summer, either. If lawmakers reconvene, it will be to decide how to keep paying the bills because of smaller-than-anticipated tax revenues.

"At this point I don't anticipate it, but it's always an option," the governor said.

Kempthorne said he is working from the contingency plan that the Legislature gave him before it adjourned in March. The contingency fund is composed of $22 million diverted from renovation of the interior of the State Capitol, $19 million in cash the state got last month from the tobacco settlement and $80 million previously earmarked for construction projects, many of them on state college campuses.

Heyburn City Attorney Steve Taft said the city is continuing to negotiate "with everybody," including Simplot officials and those interested in purchasing Heyburn's electric distribution system. Selling the electric system is part of a potential settlement agreement related to litigation between Simplot and the city of Heyburn.

Filling in at airport may strain TFPD

By Mark Heinz
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A changing of the guard at the Twin Falls airport could end up putting the pinch on the local police, as the department's patrol division captain said.

"If it goes long term - and we have to fulfill our responsibility out there for more than, say, 30 days - it is going to be a burden on us," said Twin Falls police Capt. Jim Massey. "We are working up a schedule to put off-duty personnel out there as a contingency plan."

U.S. Army National Guard troops have since shortly after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks helped provide security at the nation's airports. The National Guard is expected to withdraw at the end of this month. A new federal agency, the Transportation Security Administration, is charged with providing permanent security screening.

But it could be as long as a year before the TSA is fully in place.

That leaves local police filling in the gap all over the country. The federal government is, in some places, allowing airports to use private security agencies. But that's not the case in Twin Falls, said Bill Carberry, manager of Justin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport.

"We will have city police officers out (today), so there will be sort of an overlap between the Guard leaving and the police taking over," he said.

At least one city police officer will be at the airport during the preflight screening periods, which happen five times a day, he said.

The TSA might have its people in place in Twin Falls as early as November, but it could take a full year, Carberry said.

Twin Falls will probably end up with only two TSA agents assigned to its airport, he said.

"I don't think there will ever be any more than one on duty at a time out here."

Meanwhile, the federal government has indicated it will reimburse local police departments for the added cost of putting officers on duty at airports.

Twin Falls County Commission, District 1 candidates

Republican incumbent Twin Falls County Commissioner Gary Grindstaff will face Republican challenger Bill Crafton in the May 28 primary election for the District 1 county commission seat. County commissioners are paid $40,976 a year.

	Basic information	Dairies	County jail proposal	Magic Valley Regional Medical Center	Experience, other issues
 Gary Grindstaff	Name: Gary Grindstaff (Incumbent) Age: 61 Occupation: County commissioner Political experience: County commissioner for 2 1/2 years, chairman of the Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee for five years, now a Region 5 chairman. Residency: Native	"They're a big part of our economy and they create a lot of jobs. I don't think we would have had this growth without the dairy industry. I think the Department of Ag is doing the best they can. The DEO is responsible for (monitoring) odors in the state."	"We've studied it very closely and after studying the issues and costs, we need a new jail. The county won't be able to withstand the costs. By 2010, it will cost the county $1.6 million to house prisoners outside the county, and that's if there's a place to go. I don't think people realize what a crisis that could be for the county budget. I think we need to form a committee to look at the figures and the facts to get the community to understand why we need a jail. As far as judicial review, I think we should let the committee decide."	"We have a memorandum of understanding with the hospital to look at the governance of the hospital and educate ourselves. We're going to look at for-profits and nonprofits. It seems like a lot of hospitals are doing that. Right now, our hospital is doing very well financially and in serving the community and trying to improve itself. It's owned by the county, so it should be open to the public."	"I'm going to bring two and a half years of experience running the county government and a lifetime of experience in dairy, farming and in commercial properties. I'm a life-long resident and I know our culture. I've worked well with people on a number of boards. I'd like to work on updating the agreements with the impact areas. I'd also like to continue working to clean up our water and our air."
 Bill Crafton	Name: Bill Crafton Age: 46 Occupation: Director of Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Political experience: None Residency: 4 years	"The dairies have issues they need to deal with. Science needs to be involved as well as resource development. If they have the land and water and they take care of the issues related to the environment and odor, that would solve the problem. The tools are available to address those issues."	"We need to ask ourselves, 'Is it cheaper to have a jail or to house prisoners somewhere else?' Can we get by without a jail? No. We need to look further down the road to see if we can afford to build a jail that size. We need to have an independent consultant who works for the county to find the best deal to meet our needs. Then we need to educate the public. We are the salesman, and we have to sell it to them. ... Then we need to put it up for a vote. Judicial confirmation should be the last resort."	"In order to be competitive, the county needs to look at the long-term viability of the hospital. We need to look at whether we should sell the hospital or partner with someone. The last thing the county wants is to find itself 10 years from now without a first-class hospital in our community. We should do what's best for health care. We need to throw it all on the table and look at the options and look at what's best for the community."	"I have a good background in decision-making, and I have a lot of experience in the private sector. I do bring a lot to the table as far as how to administer. I have no axes to grind or any preconceived notions. We are a $22 million business, and we need to be run like one."

Castleford officials ask county to keep deputy

By Mary Lou Potts Times-News correspondent

CASTLEFORD - The city of Castleford is determined to find a way to keep Twin Falls County Sheriff's Deputy Mike Cooper in town.

Armed with more than 200 signatures, council members Herb Runyan, Greg Mason, Oscar Flores and Twila Crawford, Mayor Rita Ruffing and City Clerk Patsy Kinyon visited the county commissioners recently to plead their case for keeping the deputy in Castleford.

Work teams will meet at the Red Barrel and assignments will be issued for various areas. Trash bins will be available at the school park for trash and old tires, wood scraps will be burnt and old appliances and used engine oil will have specific dump sites.

When it comes time to prioritize availabilities, Castleford's request will definitely be at the top of the list.

Cooper's salary is funded by the school, city and a grant which will expire in October. The city and school district cannot afford to pay Cooper's entire wages and have asked the county to help find a way for the town to keep the deputy on duty.

In other city business, with Johnny Horizon Day past, the city is ready to have community cleanup at 8:30 a.m. on May 18.

Blaine developers may seek annexation

By Karen Bossick Times-News correspondent

HAILEY - Backers of a proposed golf course and residential development in a canyon east of Hailey could ask to be annexed into the city of Hailey next month based on the feedback they get from the public on May 22.

Regardless of the outcome, it's likely that cross-county ski trails on alfalfa fields in Quigley Canyon will be up and running by next winter.

Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation Nordic Coach Rick Kapala has secured the owner's OK, funding and the donation of a brush cutter to set tracks through the alfalfa fields to try skiing in the canyon. All he's waiting on is a thumbs-up from the Blaine County School District, because the area is near the high school.

Kapala had a huge response from Hailey and Bellevue residents who were interested in meeting themselves and their children involved in cross-country skiing following a race he organized last January for Olympic athletes training at Sun Valley. But people said Nordic trails north of Ketchum were too far to go on school days.

Interested?

What: Open house concerning the Quigley Canyon Ranch project. When: 11:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., May 22. Formal presentations are planned at noon, 3 p.m. and 6 p.m., but representatives will be available to answer questions throughout the day.

Where: Wood River Inn in Hailey.

on hand to meet with the public all day.

Recreation planners envision an 18-hole golf course with more affordable prices than the Sun Valley and Elkhorn golf courses. To mitigate environmental concerns, the course is being planned as an Audubon sanctuary course. That will involve restoring a small creek to allow small wildlife to return, among other things, said recreation district director Mary Austin Crofts.

Quigley Pond could be turned into a public fishing hole. Hiking on the south side of the canyon would be opened to the public. There also could be a sledding and tubing hill, a paved bike and pedestrian trail separated from the main road to the club house, two trailhead parking areas and winter snowmobile access.

The recreation district wants to use private funds, rather than taxes, to build and operate the course.

"Our goal is to get as much public input as possible to find out what people want," Perry said.

approached Quigley Ranch owners and the recreation district about the idea of a golf course.

The proposal has been scaled back from 35 residential lots to 150, said John Gaeddert, a spokesman for the developers.

But some people remain critical of the project, saying they don't want to see increased density in the canyon.

Hailey resident Bill Hughes, who works for the U.S. Post Office, says he would like the recreation district to back off and see what happens with the annexation before talking specifics of cross-country trails and other amenities.

Hughes added he feared that developers would use the recreation district's clout to get what they want.

"It's nice to dwell on all these dreamlike things, but the big issue is growth. Do we want to add density out Quigley Canyon?" Hughes said.

Developers could develop the project even if it remains in the county. But it's likely Hailey would prefer to annex it so it can get annexation fees to pay for infrastructure and property taxes to pay for police and fire protection, Perry said.

AG candidate Gabbert boasts legal experience

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - Part-time Adams County prosecuting attorney Myron Dan Gabbert doesn't have as many years in public service as his three GOP primary opponents for Idaho attorney general. But he's practiced law longer than any of them.

Gabbert, 59, argues that his 35 years as a private-practice attorney make him the more qualified candidate than his opponents to replace Attorney General Al Lance in the Republican primary.

"The breadth of my private practice experience outweighs everybody else's experience elsewhere," Gabbert said in a meeting with Times-News editorial board members Thursday. "My experience tells me to do the job in the most effective manner possible."

"I tell clients if I can't do a job adequately, quickly and cheaply, I'll refer them to somewhere else. I think I would bring standards of efficiency to the office of attorney general."

Gabbert cited the $27 million settlement made by the state after it lost a lawsuit filed by the American Trucking Association. Gabbert said the state "could have settled that for zero."

"I'm going to guarantee you, had I been the person operating that office, and before I lose $27 million of the taxpayers money, ... I will take a long analysis of what risks and benefits exist before I litigate that case."

Gabbert said that like Lance's office did, he would have advised the citizen's reapportionment committee to stay under a 10 percent population deviation for redistricting. The reapportionment case took three different attempts to find a suitable map.

Gabbert said he favors giving redistricting authority back to legislators.

"While legislative reapportionment doesn't always work well, I don't like placing the elected responsibility away from the elected individual."

On land board issues, Gabbert said the attorney general's role on the five-member board is secondary to his duties as the highest legal officer in the state. But he says the importance of the position comes down to providing long-term and short-term stewardship of the land, economic benefits and environmental efforts to protect it.

"We need to treat public lands as if they were our own," he said. Gabbert has served as Adams County prosecuting attorney for the last 16 months. Other than his first job in Idaho, as a law clerk for Idaho Supreme Court Chief Justice Joseph McFadden in the 1960s, it's his only venture in public service. He mostly has served as a private attorney in Boise and McCall.

The GOP primary menu includes Michael Bogert, legal counsel to Gov. Dirk Kempthorne, Lawrence Wasden, attorney general chief deputy, and Todd Lakey, Canyon County commissioner. The winner will face Democrat Keith Rank of Blaine County in November.

Snow storms shut down road clearing in Montana

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK, Mont. (AP) - Up to 50 inches of snow has fallen in the past week at higher elevations in Glacier National Park, stalling efforts to plow open the park's classic Going to the Sun Road. The snow since Friday also has been accompanied by record low temperatures and high winds, heightening avalanche danger. In the past 10 years, only the record-breaking winter of 1996-97 was comparable to the current snowpack and snow moisture conditions, leaving many to worry about possible flooding should the mountains melt out too quickly.

But that isn't likely now. Blase Reardon of the U.S. Geological Survey said the snowpack above 5,000 feet not only hasn't begun to melt, it is still accumulating. And the forecast for the region called for temperatures dipping into the 20s, with a chance of more mountain snow Thursday and Friday. Plowing of park roads began April 2. But with recent snows, only the lowest-elevation roads are open to vehicle traffic, and even many of those have closed again because of the May snows.

Legislators defend repeal

Lawmakers brief chamber on session

By Lorraine Cavenar
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY—Speakers Thursday at a Mini-Cassia Chamber of Commerce lunch talked about the accomplishments during this year's legislative session, including repeal of term limits.

Dick Rush, vice president of natural resources for the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry, said his association agreed with the term-limits repeal, because term limits would have removed too many local people from office.

"It is hard to find people to run for these offices," he said.

Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, agreed with the repeal. Cameron voted for the repeal.

"To vote against the repeal would have been voting against our (local) voters," Cameron said. "We believe you are smart enough to vote and don't need an artificial mechanism."

While Cameron does not want career politicians, he said term limits are not necessary. Cameron said it's important to him to continue to work on the finance and appropriation committees and hope the voters will allow him to do that. Being on those committees, Cameron had to focus on budget issues in a year that the Legislature cut the budget by $64 million.

Removing 2 percent from school appropriations was awkward but necessary, he said. Most school districts have found ways to cope with the cuts, he said. He congratulated those schools which used their reserves.

Public school budgets in the state were cut by $23 million, he said. Other cuts were made to Medicaid.

"We had to make some tough choices," Cameron said. "It may be a bitter pill to swallow."

Cameron said he would not be surprised if there are still budget shortfalls of $50 million next year.

Rep. Bert Stevenson, R-Rupert, agreed with Cameron's approach to budget cuts.

"The problems we solve there are no different than those every family solves at home when they face a shortfall," he said. "But we don't have the luxury of going to the bank."

Stevenson does not believe raising taxes would help.

Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Declo, said one of the issues he was most concerned with was redistricting.

"After this primary election either Cassia or Power County won't have representation," he said. "More and more rural counties will lose their representation in the state Senate."

Redistricting will cause some strange circumstances, he said. Because of the time necessary to travel far distances in the larger districts, only those who are retired or semi-retired will have the time to devote to the job, he said. Legislators already spend in excess of 50 percent of their time doing legislative business and redistricting will cause that to increase.

Times-News correspondent Lorraine Cavenar can be reached at 208-336-1351 or by e-mail at lca@magicvalley.com.

Paul Armstrong with Lamar Outdoor Advertising spent time this week putting up billboards that include information about preventing teen pregnancies. The billboards feature artwork by Mini-Cassia students. Contest coordinator Adria Masonar said six designs were chosen from roughly 30 entries and will be displayed at six locations around Burley and Rupert during May, which is Adolescent Pregnancy Prevention Month.

Cassia school leaders seek levy approval

By Shari Chaney
Times-News writer

BURLEY—The upcoming $623,435 mill levy vote will buy teachers and technology for Cassia County schools, school officials say.

Cassia County voters will cast ballots on the mill levy question May 21 at any of 14 polling places. Polls are open from noon until 8 p.m.

The levy in Cassia County is for $623,435, the same amount as in previous years. Superintendent Mike Chesley said. The actual tax rate varies depending on the assessed property value. Recently tax levies had been going down because assessed values had been going up. That is not a trend expected to continue, he said.

The current tax levy rate for the supplemental levy is nearly 8 cents per $1,000 of assessed property value, said Jim Pherson, school director of finance and operations.

Cassia taxpayers see a total school tax levy rate close to 64 cents per $1,000 of assessed prop-

People who are not registered to vote may do so at the polls on election day. They need to bring a photo identification with their current address. Absentee ballots are also available by contacting the district office before 11 a.m. May 20. Absentee ballots must be returned by 6 p.m. on election day.

erty value when the tax rates for a plant facility levy, the maintenance and operations levy and a 1996 bond levy are considered.

The money from the supplemental levy goes directly into the district's maintenance and operations budget, Chesley said. The two main expenses for the money are to boost technology and reduce classroom size.

Reducing classroom size "means we hire more teachers," Chesley said. School officials strive to keep kindergarten through third-grade classes between 20 and 23 students. In upper grades, class sizes should be about 25-30, Chesley said.

The levy comes before voters each year and has been the same amount for many years.

"We have not raised that for years and years," Chesley said.

More than seven years ago, the levy amount was raised and the levy failed, but passed when the amount was lowered again.

The levy has always passed, Chesley said. A 50 percent majority of those casting ballots is needed to approve the mill levy, but the district strives for 70 percent approval.

"We're good stewards and trying hard to watch every penny," Chesley said.

If the levy did not pass? "We would lose a lot of teachers and aides and computers," Chesley said.

This is a critical year, Chesley added, because of the budget holdbacks implemented by the state Legislature earlier.

Snow hampers road-clearing effort

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK, Mont. (AP) — Up to 50 inches of snow has fallen in the past week at higher elevations in Glacier National Park, stalling efforts to plow-open the park's classic Going to the Sun Road.

The snow since Friday also has been accompanied by record low temperatures and high winds, heightening avalanche danger.

In the past 10 years, only the record-breaking winter of 1996-97 was comparable to the current snowpack, leaving many to worry about how much snow should the mountains melt out too quickly.

DOE pumps liquid waste from tanks

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The Energy Department announced on Thursday that it has finished removing and processing liquid radioactive waste in five underground tanks at the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory.

Draining the tanks of hundreds of thousands of gallons of liquid from the tanks was completed well ahead of the June 30, 2003 deadline set in a consent agreement signed in 1992 by the state and federal governments.

That agreement has been incorporated by reference into the state's 1995 waste cleanup agreement with the federal government.

The tanks still contain radioactive sludge. A majority of that will be removed before the tanks are permanently closed under the plan. Some environmentalists have argued that all the sludge should be removed before the tanks are closed.

Closure of the first tank is now scheduled for next year.

The Energy Department has been storing liquid waste from reprocessing spent nuclear fuel in the tanks since 1952. With the draining of five, there is only 900,000 gallons of material left in the other six, the smallest volume of liquid stored over the Snake River Aquifer since 1958, Energy Department officials said.

The department is still struggling to meet a Dec. 31 deadline for shipping 15,000 barrels of non-liquid plutonium-contaminated waste out of INEEL to its underground dump in New Mexico.

Through last week, the department had shipped 7,300 barrels, but officials have said they intend to increase the number of shipments from 10 a week to 15 by the end of the month. Each shipment typically contains 26 barrels of waste.

Failure to meet the deadline would open the way for Idaho to block any new shipment of high-level radioactive waste into INEEL for temporary storage. Stopping those shipments would significantly disrupt the Energy Department's waste management strategy.

All the waste must be removed from the state by 2035.

Economy

Weak personal income tax payments on April 15 left state tax collections $60 million short for the month, twice the amount policy-makers had feared. In response, Kemphorne froze hiring and suspended all merit pay increases and vehicle and equipment purchases.

But the plunge in receipts essentially wiped out most of the $80 million for building projects.

College of Southern Idaho President Jerry Meyerhoeffer, who attended Thursday's event, expressed little optimism the reduced revenues can be made up in May and June.

CSI officials were planning to use $6.3 million from the fund for a long-awaited 20,000-square-foot addition to the Fine Arts Building. The CSI building is second from the bottom on the list of projects to be cut.

"There are only four buildings left on the list," Meyerhoeffer said, "and I don't think anybody expects those to be around after June."

When asked if lawmakers could refrain from cutting any more from the college's budget for the coming year if there is a special session, Kemphorne pointed out that up to 85 percent of the state's budget consists of public and higher education, health and welfare and corrections.

"That's the dilemma," Kemphorne said. "There isn't much left for all the other agencies."

The state's two community colleges were cut about 9 percent for the 2003 budget, Meyerhoeffer said. That's in addition to a $500,000 holdback from the 2002 budget and another $300,000 to $400,000 the college did not get to compensate for growth. The state usually allows extra students money to colleges for extra students.

Kemphorne — who is running against three Republicans in the May 28 primary election and faces a likely general election challenge from Democratic newspaper publisher Jerry Brady — said the K-12 public school budget was the only one that was not cut for 2003.

"I know this is little comfort, but every state is going through this," he said. "Most states are a lot worse off than we are. We'll get through this, and when we do, we'll be one of the states ahead of the pack."

Merchants plan street fair in downtown Burley

BURLEY — Several Burley merchants have joined together to sponsor two days of entertainment and fun in downtown Burley on May 17 and 18.

Sandy Baumgartner, owner of Sandy's Bernina Sales and Service, said continuous entertainment by local performers is scheduled both days. The 1200 block of Oakley Avenue will be blocked off to traffic to allow for the street fair to be set up.

The event runs from 11 a.m. until 6 or 7 p.m. Friday, May 17, and kicks off again at 11 a.m. Saturday, wrapping up whenever the crowd dwindles, Baumgartner said.

A number of local artists and crafters are expected to sell their one-of-a-kind wares during the event, according to Pat Holmes, owner of R & J's Camera.

For more information, contact Holmes at 878-7552 or Baumgartner at 678-1573.

ports, Massey said.

He said his department will try to avoid racking up overtime.

"We will try to cover it with on-duty personnel. But we are obligated to cover those flight times," he said.

And there's also the fact that Twin Falls is the primary alternate destination for any flights that have to be diverted from the Hailey airport because of bad weather or other reasons, he said.

"That's just another fly in the ointment."

The TFPD kept a strong presence at the airport immediately after the attacks but gradually backed off as the National Guard took over.

"There was some overtime then," Massey said. "I wouldn't say it was burdensome, but there was some."

Massey and Carberry said they understand the huge logistical problems federal officials are dealing with as they try to get the TSA up an running.

"Washington is really trying to get the screening program on board," Carberry said. "They are really trying to get the face of that agency out for the public to see."

Another mandate local airports must meet is a call for explosive detection systems to be in place within a year, Carberry said.

At first, there was concern that would mean Twin Falls would have to train a huge detection team into its terminal, Carberry said. The machines are about the size of a pickup, he said.

But now, it's looking as if

Twin Falls might be able to meet the mandate with some extra X-ray equipment and a small "sweeping" device capable of picking up explosive residue, he said.

"We might be able to make that work," he said. "But we should have a much clearer picture of everything by this fall. All this is still subject to change."

Simplot

Tuft anticipates a resolution in the next week or two. Options include selling the electric system and a dismissal of the lawsuit or not selling the electric system and renegotiating the lawsuit with Simplot, he said.

Theoretically, Simplot could continue to pursue litigation against the city even if the plant closes, Tuft said.

However, Tuft is optimistic the issue can be resolved. "We are awfully close," Tuft said.

Simplot attorney Joe Miller said the lawsuit is on hold and has been for some time, while Heyburn pursues finding a buyer for the electric distribution system. The closure of the processing plant does not affect the lawsuit.

Heyburn City Councilwoman Ruth Ann Durrant said the city is moving forward with the sale of the electric distribution system. She has not heard of any changes in the status of the lawsuit.

EPA orders end to Panhandle water pollution

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Federal regulators stepped into the debate over the U.S. Highway 95 reconstruction project along Lake Coeur d'Alene on Thursday, ordering the state Transportation Department to immediately stop polluting creeks feeding the lake. But department spokesman Mel Coulter said an agreement reached earlier with state environmental regulators to control runoff from the $21 million project should also fulfill the directives from the Environmental Protection Agency. The state Department of Environmental Quality reached a consent agreement with the department and its contractor, Scarselli Brothers Inc., on changes to construction tactics after threatening to impose a $70,000 fine. "We believe we've already met the conditions as described by DEQ," Coulter said. "The construction will continue."

Under the agreement with state regulators, the Transportation Department is upgrading its erosion prevention strategy and will implement it along the entire project while experts evaluate the existing sediment problems and recommends a way to correct them. "The erosion control measures for the highway reconstruction project have not performed well and resulted in problems that we take seriously," Transportation

Director Dwight Bower said. In its order, EPA warned the state that if sedimentation of the creeks continues, the state will be fined $27,500 for each day it fails to stop it. "In my 30 years at the EPA," Water Quality Compliance Unit Manager Bud Loisel said, "I've never before seen violations this flagrant. The real topser here is that ITD has been penalized for committing serious water quality violations before."

Basin mining cleanup plan falters

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — The relative peace following the creation of an unprecedented multi-government agreement to guide cleanup of mining wastes appears to have ended after less than a month. Legislation that formed the new Basin Environmental Improvement Project Commission apparently does not give the county commissioners on the roster a voice in setting cleanup priorities. The state-brokered Coeur d'Alene Basin panel was formed to include local participation in a federal plan to clean up heavy metals from more than a century of mining in the Silver Valley. The seven-member board includes Kootenai County Commissioner Dick Panabaker, Shoshone County Commissioner Sherry Krulitz and Benewah County Commissioner Jack Buell. The language appears only to give Idaho and federal members authority to spend cleanup funds.

Idaho official certifies gambling initiative

BOISE (AP) — The secretary of state's office on Thursday certified for the November ballot the tribal initiative to legalize lucrative electronic gambling machines in reservation casinos.

The Elections Division verified 49,709 registered voter signatures on the petitions submitted earlier in the day by leaders of the Coeur d'Alene and Nez Perce tribes. Only 43,685 registered voter signatures were required. County clerks had validated the signatures as those of registered voters during the past several weeks.

It is the first, and likely only, initiative to qualify for the general election ballot. Sportsmen are having their petitions checked by county clerks now but are pessimistic about reaching the signature goal on their proposal to revamp the way Fish and Game Commission members are selected.

A third proposition to subject judges to the authority of a citizen grand jury, determined to be unconstitutional by Attorney General AJ Lance, fell far short of the signature requirement.

Advocates of term limits have until next Tuesday to gather the 43,685 registered voter signatures to subject the Legislature's repeal of the 1994 term limits initiative to voter review in November. Leaders have expressed confidence that they will reach the goal.

Utah school board keeps Red Devil name

SPANISH FORK, Utah (AP) — Residents of Springville and Mapleton and students and faculty at Springville High School voted to keep the Red Devil as the school's mascot — and now so has the Nebo School District Board of Education.

The board voted 3-1 Wednesday to retain but tone down the mascot.

Local opponents had contended that the mascot was a representation of evil.

They were joined earlier this week by Navajo Nation President Kelsey Begaye, who said the mascot was offensive because settlers used the term "Red Devils" to insult American Indians.

The Red Devil mascot originated with Red Devil Cement Co., which contributed the cement to build the foundation of the original high school.

In a nonbinding referendum Tuesday, 76 percent of the 6,438 people who cast ballots wanted the mascot to stay.

At Springville High School, 92 percent of 1,030 students and 87.5 percent of 80 faculty members who voted favored keeping the mascot.

"Given the lopsided numbers for the Red Devil, it's not hard to see what possessed board members to vote the way that they did," said Springville resident Michael Turner, a mascot supporter.

County planners OK permit for resort project

BOISE (AP) - Valley County planners have unanimously endorsed detailed plans for WestRock, a proposed four-season resort on the shores of Lake Cascade.

WestRock opponents say approval by the Valley County commissioners is a check, so they are trying to halt the developers' attempt to arrange a water supply and drain local wetlands.

The zoning board's 5-0 vote Wednesday gives WestRock its county-level conditional-use permit, approval to move ahead with construction.

"We are pleased to see an unambiguous reaffirmation of the county's endorsement for the project," said Jean-Pierre Boespflug, WestRock's chief executive officer.

But the decision can be appealed to the County Commission, which can affirm or reject the vote.

Citizens for Valley County, opponents to WestRock, said such an appeal likely would be useless.

"It's a done deal with the County Commission - it always has been," said Charles Ray, a Citizens member who believes the commissioners are eager to approve the $1.2 billion development.

That board has refused to comment on how it would vote on such an appeal. They have said the jobs WestRock would bring to the unemployment-wracked area would help ease bad times.

Ray said Citizens is working on a different level.

It has filed a protest against WestRock's water right application to the state, and sued the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in federal court for issuing a permit that would allow WestRock to drain and dredge wetlands.

The group also has asked for an injunction to stop WestRock from building while that federal case is pending.

WestRock also awaits the Idaho Land Board's decision whether it will lease 2,124 acres of state land for its ski hill, considered integral to the project.

Two men lose out on Ammon liquor licenses

IDAHO FALLS (AP) - Two men have lost their claims on state-issued liquor licenses that would have let them sell hard alcohol in Ammon.

Idaho Falls businessman Dan Ruddle is considering a lawsuit after losing an Ammon license for the second time in eight months because of a state review.

The Idaho Bureau of Alcohol Beverage Control recently notified Ruddle and Eric Lewis of Idaho Falls it had made a mistake when it told them in March they were next in line for the Ammon licenses. It refunded their money.

Ammon officials applauded the ruling, which was prompted by letters they sent to the department. They had questioned the agency's decision to create a waiting list for the licenses.

Lt. Robert Clements, beverage control director, said the agency decided it cannot maintain a waiting list for available licenses. Instead, the licenses will be issued on a first-come, first-served basis to any individual who has a building ready for business.

Ruddle, his wife and his stepson's girlfriend were stripped of three Ammon licenses last fall after a similar situation arose with the city and the department.

Ruddle and his family originally were told by the state they could hold the licenses under "inactive status" and did not have to use them right away. But some Ammon residents challenged that practice.

The department reviewed it and gave Ruddle and his family 90 days to use the licenses. They lost them following arguments with the city and when they could not find a business location.

Fire rips through grocery store

FRIDAY HARBOR, Wash. (AP) - A fire burned through a grocery store, restaurant, gift shop and two other businesses Thursday in this San Juan Islands town.

Volunteer firefighters, including some who arrived by boat, had the blaze under control by nightfall. There were no reports of any injuries, Mayor Gary Boothman said.

"We're really fortunate," Boothman said.

"It's a sad day, but it's not a tragedy."

The businesses shared space in one building with the grocery store. The cause of the blaze wasn't immediately determined.

Prison officials hunt for location for work center

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) - State prison officials are still trying to find a place for a community work center in the Idaho Panhandle, and they have issued a new report to calm concerns about its economic impact.

The independent analysis, by local developer and planner J.P. Stravens, concluded that the 100-inmate center would add $2 million to the local economy in its first year and a $1 million a year after that.

Stravens also discounted worries that the inmates would take jobs away from local workers.

"I'm hoping they'll get a little bit more objective information rather than the sensationalism and the not-in-my-backyard risk that people often talk about," Correction Director Tom Beauclair said.

"All of this negativity came out, and we were not really able to get out this information because of so much fear."

Attacks in Russia

A remote-controlled bomb exploded during a Victory Day parade in southern Russia on Thursday, killing and injuring attendees.

Blast rocks Russian town during parade

KASPIISK, Russia (AP) - A remote-controlled bomb shattered a holiday parade Thursday in a Russian town near Chechnya, killing at least 25 people, including 12 children and members of a marching band that had just struck up the tune "Victory Day." Streams of blood trickled down the tree-lined road after the blast, which injured about 150. A mangled drum heaped with flowers lay next to a pile of abandoned horns and an empty boot.

No one claimed responsibility, but regional officials blamed Islamic militants who have organized previous attacks in the restive region, Dagestan. A 1996 blast in a Kaspisk building that housed Russian border guards killed 69 people. Officials never determined who was responsible.

On Thursday, a marine band had just started playing the name-sake song of Victory Day, which honors the anniversary of the Allied defeat of the Nazis in World War II. Children ran in front, cheered on by veterans, as the musicians and other servicemen headed to the cemetery in the Caspian Sea port of Kaspisk for a wreath-laying ceremony.

Then the bomb - an anti-personnel mine, packed with metal fragments, according to witnesses - blew up. The explosion was the latest of a series of terrorist and criminal attacks that have rocked the southern region. But coming on Victory Day, it shocked and angered people across Russia. News of the explosion broke during the annual military parade on Red Square, where thousands of troops marched past Russian President Vladimir Putin and World War II veterans.

Sweep nets 300 arrests in Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) - In a sweep against Islamic militants Thursday, Pakistani authorities rounded up nearly 300 suspects while U.S. and French investigators searched for links between al-Qaida terrorists and a suicide bombing that killed 14 people, including 11 French engineers.

President Pervez Musharraf has called the bombing an attempt to destabilize Pakistan and "weaken its resolve" in the fight against terrorism.

Countries reach deal to end standoff

BETHLEHEM, West Bank (AP) - A deal has been reached to end the 38-day standoff at the Church of the Nativity that would divide among several countries the 13 suspected militants Israel wants deported, an Israeli official said Thursday.

Cyprus Foreign Minister Yimmnikis Cassoulides said his country would temporarily take in the militants. From there they would be flown to their final destinations.

Under the deal, reached by European negotiators, Italy and Spain would take some of the militants, while the remainder would be taken among at least four other countries, the Israeli official said on condition of anonymity.

Israeli military sources said they do not believe the 123 Palestinians in the church will leave until this morning. A previous deal that would have sent the 13 militants to Italy unraveled Tuesday when Italian officials balked, saying they had not been fully consulted about the plan.

An Italian Foreign Ministry official said that under the proposed deal, Italy and Spain would take some of the militants while Austria, Greece, Luxembourg, Ireland and perhaps even Canada might take the rest.

The siege began April 2 when more than 200 Palestinians fled into the church, which marks the birthplace of Jesus, ahead of invading Israeli forces. In the weeks that followed, several groups of civilians and Palestinian policemen left the compound, leaving 123 inside.

Earlier Thursday, Palestinian and Israeli negotiators said a deal was in place to allow dozens of Palestinians to emerge from the church, leaving behind 13 suspected militants until a country could be found to take them.

'Attack of the Clones' lands in theaters Thursday

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY - He's a true "Star Wars" fan, is Andy Vawser: He even liked Jar-Jar Binks.

So it will surprise you not at all to learn what his plans are for next Thursday.

"Oh, I'll be there," said Andy, a home-schooled 15-year-old who figures to join nearly 10 million moviegoers primed for the four-day opening weekend of "Star Wars Episode II: Attack of the Clones."

"For about a month now, I've been counting down the days until it comes out," Andy said.

"Some people have expressed to me that they are not sure they will like Episode 2 because of a big love story. Well, I don't really care, because it's 'Star Wars' and I'm going to like it anyway."

If you doubt the star power of the fifth "Star Wars" movie, consider this: According to the Zap2it.com wire service, the Chicago-based outplacement firm Challenger, Gray and Christmas is predicting that nationwide 2.6 million workers will skip work Thursday to see "Clones" on opening day.

That could mean more than $319 million in lost wages for U.S. businesses, especially for computer and tech companies due to their "geek-heavy" payrolls, said John Challenger, chief executive of CGC.

"It's a feeling that you are culturally deprived, or out of the loop or have committed some sort of a minor crime if you haven't seen the movie in the first weekend," film critic Leonard Maltin told Zap2it.com.

Theaters in Twin Falls and the Wood River Valley have scheduled screenings starting at midnight Wednesday.

"Clones" is an especially big deal for the "Star Wars" faithful because it promises to answer The Big Question: How come the second is so good? (You know him as Darth Vader) went bad?

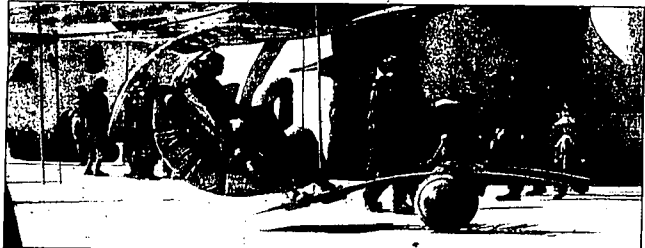

"May 16th is a good day for two different reasons," Andy Vawser said. "First it is the day Episode 2 is put into theaters, and second it is George Lucas' 58th birthday. I am a huge George Lucas fan just as much

In 'Star Wars II: Attack of the Clones,' Anakin Skywalker, played by Canadian actor Hayden Christensen, begins his long odyssey to the Dark Side of The Force.

Opening dawn
Interstate Amusement in Twin Falls plans a midnight screening of "Star Wars Episode 2: Attack of the Clones" at 12:01 a.m. on Thursday, and showings at the Twin Cinema and Jerome Cinema at noon, 12:45 p.m., 3:45 p.m., 6:30 p.m., 7 p.m., 9:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. throughout the opening weekend. Advance tickets are on sale now.

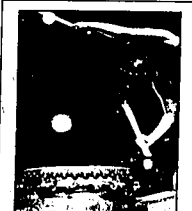

as 'Star Wars,' maybe even more. I have dreams of becoming a filmmaker someday like George Lucas, so he is kind of a role model for me. He knows how to tell a story and make it so realistic and complex just as if it were real."
The much-maligned "Star Wars" Episode I: The Phantom Menace has earned $431 million in the three years since its release. If it was a flop, it's also the fourth-highest grossing film ever.
"Clones" is widely expected to outpace that standard at the box office, with many, many more billions to come in the form of "Star Wars"-licensed merchandise.

"I have a 'Star Wars' collection ranging from action figures, star figures, books, cards, movies, soundtracks, computer games, posters, and even potato chip bags with 'Star Wars' pictures on them," Andy said. "In all, I have about 175 Star Wars items and I have hardly gotten started on Episode 2 products. My oldest items are an original Admiral Ackbar from 'Return of the Jedi,' and an original picture book of 'Return of the Jedi.' My newest 'Star Wars' item is the 'Star Wars Episode 2: Attack of the Clones' soundtrack.
"If there is ever an item I really want it is a life-size cardboard figure, like you see in the stores."
There's gold, you see, even in cardboard Darth Vaders.

TWIN FALLS - It's percussion with attitude.
Arts on Tour will bring the Portland, Ore., Taiko to the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Center auditorium tonight, a dynamic, multi-ethnic Asian-American drumming group based on Japanese tradition.
Its performances combine traditional and contemporary compositions and choreography, including a fusion of taiko, hip-hop and R&B; and oyakodo: don, or kind of duet between the large Shoji Oniko, or mama drum, and small okedo-daiko and shime-daiko, or children drums; and "Pacific Voices," a piece inspired by the breathy sounds of the shakuhachi flute.
Taiko, the Japanese word for drum and the name of the art form, has its roots in ancient tradition and was used in religious ceremonies, community festivals and theater. The boundaries of the villages were defined by the distance from which the community taiko could be heard.
American taiko was born in the late 1960s and early 1970s with the rise of ethnic studies on college campuses, and became a symbol of the movement to gain compensation for Japanese-Americans who were interned by the U.S. government during World War II.

'Unfaithful' arrives in area theaters

Combined wire services

Movies playing in south-central Idaho this weekend. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times, Associated Press and Knight Ridder reviewers. Ratings by the Motion Picture Association of America (MPAA) for general audiences; (PG) parental guidance urged because of material possibly unsuitable for children; (PG-13) parents are strongly cautioned to give guidance for attendance of children younger than 13; (R) restricted, younger than 17 admitted only with parent or adult guardian; (NC-17) no one younger than 17 admitted.

Oliver Martinez, left, and Dianne Lane star in 'Unfaithful,' a frustrating yet deeply watchable melodrama that makes you think it's a tougher picture than it is. Ben Affleck and Samuel L. Jackson star as a pair of Manhattan motorists who have a bump and run collision on the FDR Drive and then take road rage to apocalyptic heights as they systematically attempt to ruin each other's lives. Adeptly written by Chap Taylor and pitched to Tolkin and impressively directed by Roger Michell ('Notting Hill'). With Sydney Pollack, Toni Collette, Kim Staunton and Amanda Peet. (1.39. R, for language.)

'A Beautiful Mind'

Having won an Oscar for his beefy performance in 'Gladiator,' Russell Crowe got another the old-fashioned way by playing mathematician John Nash Jr., a genius whose accomplishments were overshadowed by paranoid schizophrenia. Like most Ron Howard movies, this one is sincere and well-constructed, but it feels like an unsatisfying stunt. Rated PG-13, violence, language. 2 hours, 15 minutes.

'Blade 2'

Wesley Snipes returns in the title role as a Daywalker, half-human, half-vampire in a bloody, action-filled but far less sedate sequel to the 1998 original. Also returning is Kris Kristofferson as Blade's human mentor, a brilliant scientist whose inventions aid in the war on vampires. This time the duo strike a race with the vampire overlords to defeat the Reapers, a super race of vampires intent on annihilating all other vampires before doing the same to all humans. With Ron Perlman, Leonor V arcia. (1.35. R) for strong pervasive violence, language, some drug use and sexual content.)

'Changing Lanes'

Compelling yet off-putting, quietly realistic as well as completely contrived, shameless in the name of social responsibility, this

'Clockstoppers'

A watch that enables the wearer to stop everyone and everything in their tracks. Imagine the possibilities! If this jaunty little sci-fi doesn't exploit them to the hilt, it's still a fleet-footed and pitchingly upbeat family diversion. Jesse Bradford, Paula Garcés, Robin Thomas and Julia Swenney lead an appealing cast. Directed by Jonathan Frakes. (1.33. PG for action violence and mild language.)

'High Crimes'

The many recent films about women in a whole lot of trouble don't all star Ashley Judd, but it's starting to seem that way. It's not that Judd, who has a knack for spunky vulnerability, hasn't done

Franklin, whose films include 'One False Move' and 'Devil in a Blue Dress,' doesn't have a gift for involving, character-driven thrillers. # Movies animated adventure that employs the same plot devices and character archetypes as 'Shrek' and 'Monsters Inc.' and, as would be expected, suffers in comparison. A stubborn woolly mammoth (the voice of Ray Romano) and a motor-mouthed sloth (John Leguizamo) save the life of a human baby, and attempt to deliver it to its family before the passage south freezes over and some saber-tooth tigers take their revenge. The animation is mostly gorgeous (only the chive-like Cro-Magnons seem lifeless), but originality is in shorter supply than fire. Rated G; violent animal fights, discussions about the food chain that may disturb younger viewers. 1 hour, 25 minutes.

'Jason X'

Yes, the 'Friday the 13th' killing machine is back for his 10th (!) go-round. He's four centuries and zillions of miles removed from balmy old Crystal Lake, having been unwittingly defrosted by a 24th century starship crew about to be sent into hamburger. Somebody, please, make Jim-Goo even-further away! With Kane Hodder, Lexa Doig and Lisa Ryder. Directed by Jim Isaac. (E36. R, for strong, horror violence, language and some sexuality.)

'Life or Something Like It'

For the first 45 minutes or so of this story, we think director Stephen Herek may have actually repeated the achievement of 'Mr. Holland's Opus' in which he turned a potentially sappy melodrama into a moving meditation on values and life choices. Angelina Jolie is funny and believable as a Seattle TV reporter told by a homeless psychic (Tony Shalhoub) that her perfect life will end in a week. But despite her valiant efforts, and those of a supporting cast that includes Edward Burns as her sparring videographer and Stockard Channing as her Barbara Walters-like idol, this goes seriously goofy and then ridiculously so. Rated PG-13; language, sexual situations.

'Murder by Numbers'

Think of it as a classic 1940s double-bill uncasily contained within the confines of a single motion picture: a fairly standard star vehicle for established diva Sandra Bullock as a sharp-tongued homicide detective who has to solve the toughest case of her career; and a much more involving B-picture, an intriguing study in aberrant psychology that stars Ryan Gosling and Michael Pitt as two high school thrill killers. Inspired by 1925's celebrated Leopold and Loeb case, this part works better because director Barbet Schroeder has a documented affinity for the dark side. (E59. R, for violence, language, a sex scene and brief drug use.)

'The Rookie'

Though a liberty or two has been taken with this spring's inevitable inspirational baseball drama; not much dramatic improvement can be made on the true story of Jim Morris Jr. (played by Dennis Quaid), a West Texas science teacher whose dreams of going pro in the '80s were thwarted by injury. Eleven years later, on a bet with the high school team he coached, he tried out again at age 35, when he inexplicably began throwing 95-m.p.h. fastballs. Director John Lee Hancock doesn't exaggerate the familiar material, but he elevates it in every way, with help from a great supporting cast (Brian Cox as Jim's cold father, Rachel Griffiths as his wife) and from our own belief in dreams deferred. Rated G; nothing objectionable. 2 hours, 3 minutes.

'The Scorpion King'

The creative team seems to have ransacked so many Saturday afternoon serial-for-plot devices you almost expect to see Ming the Merciless skulking around somewhere in the background. Its saving grace, as much as it has one, is that it is unpretentious, completely refusing to take itself too seriously. With wrestling star The Rock in the title role and energetically directing by journeyman Chuck Russell. (E28. PG-13, for intense scenes of action violence and some sensuality.)

'The Son's Room'

Nanni Moretti has been dubbed the Italian Woody Allen for the literary, intelligent comedies he writes, directs, and stars in, and his first serious drama may only reinforce the comparison. But this story about a well-to-do family that comes undone after the death of a child is original without being overly innovative. And it has a carefully considered but very convincing performance by Moretti as a psychiatrist who is unable to heal himself or help his wife and their daughter after their son dies in a diving accident. Moretti's film, which won the Palm d'Or at the 2001 Cannes Film Festival, has none of the melodramatics that made many people suspicious of 'In the Bedroom'; its road to healing is paved not with revenge but with reconciliation. Rated R; language, sexual situations. 1 hour, 39 minutes. In Italian with English subtitles.

'Spider-Man'

It may look like an action comic come to life, but its best feature is its romance comic heart. It's the rare cartoon movie where the villain is less involving than the love story. Directed by Sam Raimi with a distinctly sunny tone and though the film marks time more than it needs to and is no more than sporadically exhilarating, it does enough things right to be a solid comic book citizen. The appropriateness of Tobey Maguire's creaky-voice sincerity, the very ordinariness of his off-beat charisma, turns him into the most convincing of Spider-Men. Love interest Kirsten Dunst and Maguire make a real connection on screen. With Willem Dafoe as Green Goblin. (201. PG-13 for stylized violence and action.)

'The Sweetest Thing'

Women, it's said, can be just as ruthless and rude and raunchy in a locker room as men, and this is the movie that sets out to prove it. It's the chick version of the gross-out guy comedy, with Cameron Diaz, Christina Applegate and Selma Blair as hornheads on the prowl, eventually learning valuable lessons about love and such, but not

To the neighbors, friends and family of Dr. J. Laird & Marsha Seitch, and to the firefighters and other professionals on the scene— Thank you all for your help, support and kindness during and in the aftermath of the fire at our home on May 5, 2002.

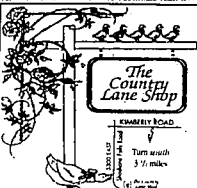

Of all the properties which belong to honorable men, not one is so highly prized as that of character. —Henry Clay before having all manner of sexual and scatological misadventures. Rated R; sexual theme and situations, language, alcohol abuse. 1 hour, 24 minutes.

'Unfaithful'

Divine trash, like Adrian Lyne's earlier movies, including '9 1/2 Weeks' and 'Fatal Attraction.' Thematically, though, it's more serious and subdued, as if Lyne finally has grown up after more than 20 years of directing. Much of what has to do with the nuanced performances from Richard Gere and Diane Lane as a wealthy married couple. She has an affair with a hot, young Parisian (Olivier Martinez); he finds out; things get ugly. Despite the steamy sex scenes, the movie is more about emotional consequences. R for sexuality, language and a scene of violence. 124 minutes.

T.F. girls hoops coach says he's lost his job

By Kevin Hall
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Lawrence Pfeiffer is apparently out as the Twin Falls High School girls basketball coach.

Pfeiffer said Thursday that high school Principal Ben Allen told him on May 3 "he was going to recommend to not rehire me for next season."

Allen would not confirm Pfeiffer's report. But said he has

Meeting Monday

The Twin Falls School Board will meet at 7 p.m. Monday at the district's downtown administration building. Personnel discussions, typically one hour to the public.

made recommendations to school district officials, either to keep or to replace four of the school's coaches: football, volleyball and boys and girls basketball.

"I made a recommendation and it'll be up to the School Board when they meet on Monday," Allen said. "The board will act on it."

He declined to say what those recommendations were.

Allen said a decision on all the coaching positions has to be made by May 25. Another decision needing to be made is ratifying a new collective bargaining agreement, which would allow the district to hire coaches from outside the district.

The current language in the master agreement with teachers gives priority to teachers already employed by the district.

"Right now the collective bargaining agreement and the whole master contract agreement has to be waived out," Allen said.

Asked if Allen had met with any of the other coaches, athletic director Andy Barron confirmed only one meeting.

"Ben did talk to at least one coach and I won't comment any further at this point," Barron said.

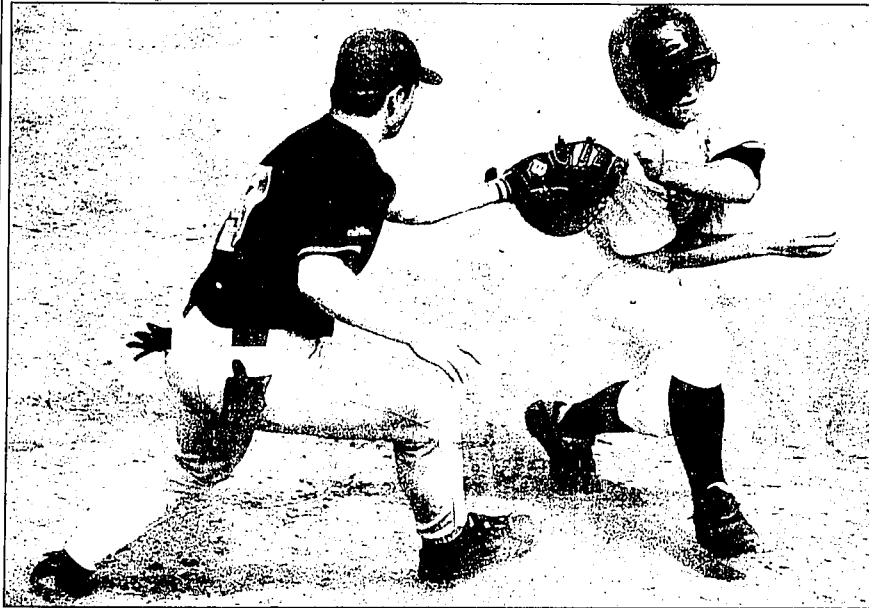

Calls to boys basketball coach Dan Vogt volleyball coach Kelly Younce and football coach Mark Schaal were not answered.

Pfeiffer graduated from the high school in 1978 and has coached the girls basketball team for 10 years, including an

REGION 18 BASEBALL TOURNAMENT

Ricks gets last laugh

College of Southern Idaho baserunner Tom Myers gets tagged out by Ricks first baseman Trent Perry after Myers was caught in a pickle trying to steal second Thursday.

Thigh injury moves Colonel into DH role

By Joe Sunnen
Times-News writer

ST. GEORGE, Utah — College of Southern Idaho shortstop Christian Colonel has likely played his last game in the field for Golden Eagles.

After injuring the quadriceps muscle in his right thigh rounding first base in Wednesday's 8-4 win against North Idaho College at the Region 18 tournament, Colonel was in the lineup as a designated hitter on Thursday.

He said he felt well enough to play shortstop after the game on Wednesday but experienced tightness and some swelling overnight.

CSI coach Jim Walker said he doesn't expect Colonel to wear a glove the rest of the tournament.

"We lost some leadership out there definitely," Walker said. "He's sore right now. I don't know if he'll be back out there, but he had a pretty good rest today and we'll see."

Colonel went 0-for-2 with two walks and a run scored in the loss to Ricks College.

Quick hook

Matt Gunning might have ended his career at CSI watching the outside corner.

The sophomore struck out looking in the bottom of the eighth inning against Ricks College and immediately left the home plate umpire know how he felt about the call.

Gunning was ejected from the game. Under State West Athletic Conference rules he will be suspended for at least one game for getting tossed.

Just bad luck

Ricks starting catcher Shelby Guest was likely lost for the tournament on Wednesday when a shard of wood from a broken bat flew through a hole in his catcher's mask and cut him just below the eye.

Vikings knock CSI into loser's bracket

By Joe Sunnen
Times-News writer

ST. GEORGE, Utah — College of Southern Idaho sophomore Tom Myers would have made such a good hero.

The 5-foot-7-inch second baseman is unassuming, better in the field than in the batter's box, and he doubled in the Golden Eagles' game-tying run in the bottom of the seventh inning of the second round of the Region 18 Tournament on Thursday.

Too bad Ricks College never gave him the chance to finish tugging on the red cape.

The Vikings scored two runs in the top of the eighth inning on an RBI triple by C.J. Milne and an RBI double by Jeff Rober, as Ricks defeated CSI 6-4 in eight innings at Bruce Hurst Field in St. George, Utah.

In other games on Thursday,

Salt Lake Community College stunned No. 1 Dixie State College 1-0 to move into the semifinals. The Bruins meet Ricks at 7 p.m. The Community College of Southern Nevada eliminated North Idaho College 8-5 and Utah Valley State College was ousted

Duncan edges Kidd, O'Neal for MVP

The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — San Antonio Spurs forward Tim Duncan edged New Jersey Nets guard Jason Kidd for NBA MVP honors Thursday in the award's fifth-closest finish since the media began voting in 1981.

Duncan received 57 first-place votes and 254 points from a panel of 126 sports writers and broadcasters, while Kidd drew 45 first-place votes and 897 points.

Shaquille O'Neal was third with 696 points. After word of Duncan's selection got out Monday, Nets coach Byron Scott and O'Neal protested that the wrong player won. Kidd himself was more gracious, saying he was happy for Duncan.

Duncan, who finished second to Philadelphia's Allen Iverson in last year's MVP voting, acknowledged that a number of players had exceptional seasons. "I'm not going to give it back," he said after receiving the Maurice Podoloff Trophy from commissioner David Stern in a

Wood River enters district tourney as clear favorites

By Scott Thompson
Times-News writer

In one corner of the Class 3A District Four baseball tournament, you have the reigning state champion Bluff Indian baseball team. In the other you have Idaho's top-ranked Wood River Wolverines.

Throw in contenders Kimberly and Filer and the tourney promises plenty of fight.

The Wolverines (19-5 overall, 6-0 Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference), both the top-seeded team in the tournament and No. 1-ranked team in the state by IdahoSports.com, host No. 4 Kimberly (5-15-2, 0-6) today. Runner-up Buhl (14-6, 4-2) hosts third-seeded Filer (9-12, 2-4).

Bulldog coach Terry Bohan knows what it will take to knock off the Wolverines.

"They are going to hit the ball and they are going to have pitchers who are going to go out and throw strikes," he said. "We're just going to have to match them."

He said his team will also hope to catch Wood River looking ahead. "That's what you've got to tell yourself going into the game," he said. "We know we're not going to see (Wolverine ace Ryan) Reynolds, so you might say that they're looking past us. But I don't think so."

Wood River coach Lars Hovey certainly doesn't feel his team is taking anything for granted.

"I don't think we're looking past anybody," he said. "We just did what we needed to in the regular season and now it's time to take that next step. We're excited and we have a lot of confidence in what we can do."

Hovey said it's also important not to try to do too much. "We're not going to try to do anything spectacular," he said. "We feel that if we just play good, solid baseball and just play our game, we should be the district champions."

CCSN meets Dixie in a lose-out game at 1 p.m.

CSI's surprise loss drops the Eagles (40-15) into the loser's bracket and into a must-win game against the College of Eastern Utah today at 10 a.m.

"It's an almost impossible job for us now," CSI coach Jim Walker said.

"Character is involved in this next game. We want to win it because we don't want to leave or embarrass ourselves. We want to keep going and try. And you never know. But pitching-wise, we're cooked."

The red-hot Vikings nearly finished blanked the Golden Eagles' pitching staff. Ricks pounded out 12 hits and forced CSI to use five pitchers in the game.

"We didn't really talk about trying to get into their bullpen," Ricks sophomore Brent Sal said. "We just came out and tried to

The Vikings also benefited from a complete-game victory by Matt Lindstrom. The tall right-hander scattered seven hits and struck out seven in the win.

The Eagles swept Ricks in Twin Falls this season.

"I think Ricks is really hot right now," Walker said. "But I don't know if they have enough pitching to make a run at it. But if they can find a guy to win tomorrow they might cause some trouble."

The trouble started for CSI in the sixth inning when Ricks scored three runs to take a 4-3 lead.

Soil doubled in a run and Chris Herbert drove in Soil to tie the game 3-3. CSI sophomore Joe Miller hit Ryan Harris with the bases loaded to give Ricks a 4-3 edge.

CSI's starting pitcher, Brad Burrow, was knocked out the inning after the first run and his replacement, Ryan Jones, was pulled after walking the first batter he saw.

Dallas' Raef LaFrantz, left, and Sacramento's Vladio Divac scramble for the ball in the second half of their Western Conference semifinal game in Dallas Thursday.

Kings crown Dallas for 2-1 series lead

DALLAS (AP) — Thousands of cowbells and a couple of ankle injuries weren't enough to slow down the Sacramento Kings.

Mike Bibby scored 29 points and Doug Christie returned from a sprained ankle to score 14 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter as Sacramento beat the Dallas Mavericks 125-119 Thursday night.

The Kings, who lost second-leading scorer Peja Stojakovic to a sprained ankle in the third quarter, took a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven Western Conference semifinals.

Game 4 is Saturday in Dallas. Chris Webber had 31 points and 15 rebounds and Vladio Divac added 19 points and 13 rebounds, helping the Kings add a little muscle to the matchup of the league's two highest-scoring teams.

Michael Finley had 35 points for Dallas, while Raef LaFrantz added 24 points and 13 rebounds.

MONTREAL (AP) - Nicolas Wallin scored on slap shot through a screen 3:14 into overtime Thursday night to give the Carolina Hurricanes a stunning 4-3 comeback victory over the Montreal Canadiens.

The Hurricanes scored four unanswered goals to even the series 2-1.

Rookie Erik Cole sent the game into overtime, getting credit for a rebound in the crease and flipping it past Montreal goalie Jose Theodore with 40.8 seconds left. It was his fourth goal of the playoffs.

Game 5 is Sunday afternoon at Carolina with Game 6 in Montreal Monday night.

Early on, it seemed like the Canadiens' night. Andrei Dackell, Yanic Perreault and Sergei Berezin staked Montreal to a 3-0 lead by the midpoint of the second period. The Habs had even forced Carolina goalie Kevin Weekes to the bench after one period in favor of Arturs Irbe.

But the Hurricanes, desperate not to fall behind by two games in the series, gamely fought back, outshooting Montreal 14-4 in the third period and scoring three times against Theodore in regulation, who made 36 saves.

Sean Hill ended Theodore's bid for his first playoff shutout, scoring on a hard slap shot from the slot at 3:57 of the third while the Hurricanes held a two-man advantage.

Bates Battaglia narrowed the lead to 3-2 with his second goal in two games, scoring past Theodore's stick on a shot from the slot that appeared to be slightly screened.

Cuban defectors spark Marlins

MIAMI (AP) — Three Cuban defectors helped pitch a five-hit, including rookie Hansel Izquierdo, who went five innings for his first career victory as Florida beat San Diego.

Izquierdo (1-0) was followed to the mound by countryman Michel Trefa. Braden Looper and Cuban Vladimir Nunez, who pitched the ninth for his seventh save in eight chances.

The Marlins extended their season-high winning streak to four games. They moved into first place in the NL East, the latest a Florida team has been in first place.

Brian Tollberg (1-4) lost despite his best start of the season. He allowed seven hits and one run in six innings.

Giants 4, Mets 3

NEW YORK — Barry Bonds hit career home run No. 578. Pedro Feliz hit his first since last Sept. 7 and the San Francisco Giants rallied from a three-run deficit to roll to their seventh straight win.

4-3 over the New York Mets on Thursday night.

The Giants (22-11) are off to their best start since 1973 and on their longest winning streak since taking nine straight July 25 to Aug. 3.

After Mo Vaughn's long first-inning homer off the right-field scoreboard and Rey Ordonez's squeeze bunt in the second, the Mets showed little life against Ryan Jensen (3-2), who combined with Felix Rodriguez and Robb Nen on a four-hitter. New York has lost a season-high five in a row.

Bonds hit a solo homer off Pedro Astacio (5-2) and was later ejected in the eighth inning for arguing a called third strike by umpire Dan Iassogna.

Brewers 9, Cubs 4

CHICAGO — Jose Hernandez hit a pair of two-run homers and Milwaukee used a six-run sixth inning to end a nine-game road losing streak.

Richie Sexson and Hernandez hit two-run homers in the sixth off Jason Bere (1-5) and Hernandez added a two-run shot off Ron Mahay in the ninth on a blustery day at Wrigley Field.

Sammy Sosa hit his major league-leading 15th homer off Ben Sheets (3-3). It was the 465th of his career to tie him with Dave Winfield for 21st place all-time.

Phillies 3, Astros 1

PHILADELPHIA — Randy Wolf allowed two hits in seven innings and pinch-hitter Tomas Perez hit a two-run double in the seventh to lead Philadelphia to its sixth straight win.

The Phillies swept Houston at home for the first time since July 1985.

Wolf (2-1) allowed one run, struck out four and didn't walk a batter. The only run came on Jeff Bagwell's solo homer with two outs in the seventh. Jose Mesa pitched the ninth for his 11th save.

Dave Mlicki (3-4) gave up three runs in 6 1/3 innings.

Expos 6, Rockies 5, 12 Innings

MONTREAL — Jose Vidro hit an RBI single in the 12th inning as the Montreal Expos ended their season-high six-game losing streak Thursday night with a 6-5 win over the Colorado Rockies before the smallest Olympic Stadium crowd of the season.

With the Montreal Canadiens playing host to Carolina in an NHL playoff game at the Molson Centre, just 3,183 were on hand — the Expos' smallest crowd since 3,037 attended an 8-3 win over Colorado last Sept. 20.

Vidro hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning, but Montreal closer Matt Herges blew a two-run lead in the ninth.

Mike Mordecai hit a one-out single in the 12th and went to third when Eddy Chavez doubled off the right-field wall. Vidro blooped a single off Rick White (0-4) over a drawn-in infield into shallow center.

Graeme Lloyd (1-2) pitched 1 2/3 innings for the win.

Braves 6, Dodgers 2

ATLANTA — Gary Sheffield homered for the second time in three days against his former team, a three-run shot that carried the Atlanta Braves to a 6-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers on Thursday night.

Dominic Moss earned his first major league win even though he didn't pitch nearly as well as his previous start, when he went seven no-hit innings against St. Louis.

Devil Rays suffer 14th straight loss

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Orlando Hernandez pitched one-hit ball into the eighth inning, and Derek Jeter and Jason Giambi homered as New York sent Tampa Bay to its 14th straight loss.

The Devil Rays' losing streak matches the longest in the major leagues since 1983 — Baltimore began that season by dropping an AL-record 21 consecutive games.

Hernandez (4-1), who allowed one run in 7 1/3 innings, improved to 8-1 lifetime against the Devil Rays. Mariano Rivera worked out of a jam in the eighth, then finished the three-hitter for his 225th career save, breaking a tie with Dave Righetti for the franchise record.

Jeter, who began the night in a 2-for-17 slump, hit a solo homer off Joe Kennedy (1-3) in the fourth inning. Giambi added his sixth homer of the season for a 2-0 lead in the seventh.

Royals 5, Indians 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mike Sweeney homered twice and Joe Randa hit a tiebreaking single in the eighth inning as Kansas City rallied to beat Cleveland.

The Royals scored three runs in the eighth after the first two batters were retired. It was their first win in 20 games this season when they trailed entering the eighth inning.

After Sweeney's second homer off Carlos Beltran grounded reliever Ricardo Rincon (0-1) with a single and stole second. Randa's single to center off David Riske, the third pitcher in the inning, scored home Beltran. Neifi Perez added an RBI single.

Jeff Suppan (3-4) allowed three runs and seven hits in eight Boston's Shea Hillenbrand, right, is congratulated by coach Mike Cubble as he rounds third base after hitting a home run against Oakland in the fifth inning Thursday. Boston defeated Oakland 5-1, sweeping the three-game series.

Innings for the win. Roberto Hernandez got his second save.

OAKLAND, Calif. — Jose Offerman and Shea Hillenbrand homered to lead the Boston Red Sox to their ninth straight win and a three-game sweep of the Oakland Athletics with a 5-1 victory Thursday.

Derek Lowe (5-1), two games removed from pitching a no-hitter, won his fourth straight decision after allowing one run and six hits in eight innings.

Jermaine Dye drove in the only run for the A's, who have lost seven of nine. Tim Hudson (3-4) lost for the fourth time in five decisions.

The Red Sox (24-7), who have the best record in baseball, are off to their best start since going 25-6 in 1946 and their nine-game winning streak is the longest since a 12-game streak in August 1995.

Rangers 4, White Sox 1

ARLINGTON, Texas — Fill-in starter Joaquin Benoit pitched six innings for his first career win and Hector Ortiz homered for the first time in Texas' victory.

Benoit (1-0), replacing an injured Ismael Valdes, allowed one run and four hits, with three strikeouts and three walks. He retired the last 10 batters he faced. Hideki Irabu got his eighth save.

Ortiz homered off Todd Ritchie (3-3) in the second inning — in his 250th career at-bat — to tie the game at 1.

Baseball memorabilia takes strange twists

By Hal Bock
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — First, it was Ruben Rivera peddling teammate Derek Jeter's glove for $2,500 without permission. Then, the province of Quebec and the Canadian federal government got into a squabble over Maurice Richard memorabilia.

Every day, it seems, there's some new wrinkle in the business of collectibles, something to keep dealers and customers on their toes.

Forget the old-fashioned notion that a signed baseball was a big deal. Now a big deal is a discarded piece of Luis Gonzalez's chewing gum.

"After that, I got two calls for Jeter's gum," said Brandon Steiner, who runs a collectibles business. "There's a lot of stuff going on in this industry."

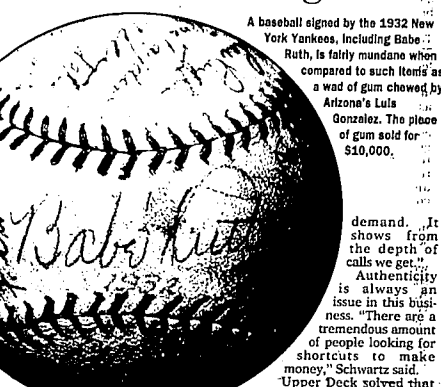

Howard Schwartz, who runs Grandstand Sports & Memorabilia, gathered the 1980 United States hockey team for a reunion and signing just before the Winter Olympics, the first time the players had done that.

"We allowed our customers to send us anything," he said. "They signed programs, tickets, hockey cards, coasters, stickers, jerseys, photos, even skates. You name it, they signed it."

The trick in memorabilia is to come up with new stuff. That was the appeal of the Miracle on Ice team.

"The most popular idea today is to do a signing with an athlete who has not done one before," Schwartz said. "There's so much product out there for older guys. For them, you try to get unique items."

So instead of Yogi Berra's autograph on a baseball — ho hum — Schwartz got him to sign a pair of

A baseball signed by the 1992 New York Yankees, including Babe Ruth, is fairly mundane when compared to such items as a wad of gum chewed by Arizona's Luis Gonzalez. The piece of gum sold for $10,000.

"There was no video of the swiped glove cap but it is Rivera released from a $1 million contract with the New York Yankees. Richard's mementos, including a Stanley Cup ring and a No. 9 hockey jersey, were placed in protective custody while that matter is thrashed out.

Best of all, though, was Gonzalez's gum, which sold for $10,000.

"It opens eyes," Schwartz said. "It shows that in this business, you can get anything you want. I remember a couple of years ago that Ty Cobb's dentures sold at a Sotheby's auction. I don't think they're related, though."

Upper Deck solved that by putting miniature cameras inside its pens that will produce videos of athletes signing memorabilia. Michael Jordan and Kobe Bryant are among those who have used the technology.

Sometimes, memorabilia can extend to the esoteric.

Leland's, a leading dealer in the field, once sold a piece of cake from Joe DiMaggio's wedding to actress Dorothy Arnold about 60 years after the party. Some what petrified, the pastry still attracted a price of $17,42.

Leland's next auction, May 16-17, includes a baseball from Game 5 of the 1920 World Series. That's the game in which Bill Wambach had the only unassisted triple play in World Series history and Elmer Smith hit the first Series grand slam.

This ball had no part in either of those events but it was used in that game and carries Tris Speaker's autograph. The minimum bid is $3,000. Don't worry. It will sell and probably for considerably more than that.

"People want this stuff," Steiner said. "There's incredible

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Bryce Molder and Joe Durant shot 7-under 63s Thursday to share the lead in the Byron Nelson Classic, while Tigers Woods had a 71 in his first start since winning the Masters.

Durant, a two-time winner last year, opened on the easier Cottonwood Valley course. Woods also played Cottonwood Valley.

Nick Price, Lee Janzen, Frank Lickliter, David Gossett and Esteban Toledo shot 64s. David Duval, who had an MRI exam on his right shoulder Wednesday and found nothing but tendinitis, had a 66.

FRANKLIN, Tenn. — Coming off her worst performance of the season, Annika Sorenstam shot a bogey-free 7-under 65 to take a two-stroke lead in the Aerus Electrolux USA Championship.

The Swedish star had her second-lowest round of the year a week after tying for 59th in the rain-shortened Chick-Fil-A Charity Championship in Georgia.

Wendy Ward, Wendy Doolan, Kris Tschetter, Mhairi McKay and Brandie Burton opened with 67s, and Liselotte Neumann topped a seven-player group at 68. Defending champion Juli Inkster, the winner in Georgia, shot a 71.

SUTTON COLDFIELD, England — England's Greg Owen shot a 6-under 66 to take a one-stroke lead over Wales' Ian Woosnam after the first round of the Benson and Hedges International.

Argentina's Angel Cabrera and Englishmen David Carter and Anthony Wall opened with 68s on The Belfry's Brabazon Course, site of the Ryder Cup matches in September. John Daly shot a 70.

Bryce Molder looks on following his drive on the 18th Thursday during the first round of the Byron Nelson Classic in Irving, Texas. Molder finished the first round at seven-under-par, sharing the lead with Joe Durant.

Williams struggled in beating Magdalena Maleeva 7-6 (2), 6-4 in the $1.22 million event.

In other third-round matches, Daniela Hantuchova, seeded 11th, upset sixth-seeded Jelena Dokic, 6-2, 6-3. Fifth-seeded Justine Henin defeated Elena Likhovtseva, 5-7 6-4, 6-4.

"It would mean a lot to win here," Agassi said. "Just to be here in the thick of it, competing and having the chance to win is all I can ask for."

In another third-round match, James Blake rallied from a loss in the first set to beat Fernando Gonzalez 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

In the 1989 Italian Open final, the then 19-year-old Agassi lost in five sets to Argentina's Alberto Mancini.

Agassi will next play Albert Costa, a 7-6 (5), 6-3 winner over Albert Montanes.

The tournament's top four seeds, No. 1 Lleyton Hewitt and No. 2 Gustavo Kuerten, defending champion Juan Carlos Ferrero and No. 4 Yevgeny Kafelnikov lost Wednesday.

Former Notre Dame coach Devine dies at 77

PHOENIX (AP) — Dan Devine groomed Joe Montana for greatness and won a national championship at Notre Dame.

A master motivator and stickler for details, he sometimes angered his players but usually brought out their best.

"When he died at his home in Tempe, Ariz., on Thursday at age 77 after a long illness, he left the legacy of a winner.

"Dan Devine was a leader of men," said Arizona Cardinals assistant coach Johnny Roland, who played for Devine and later coached with him. "All the programs he undertook were better for it. He was my mentor. He recruited me to play at Missouri and he recruited me into the coaching profession.

"He had a way with people of making them believe in themselves."

Devine went 172-57-9 (a .742 winning percentage) over 22 seasons at Notre Dame, Missouri and Arizona State. As a college head coach, he had just one losing season.

He also coached the Green Bay Packers for four seasons, going 25-27-4.

Devine was elected to the National Football Foundation's College Hall of Fame in 1985. Arizona State hired Devine as head coach at age 31 in 1955. After three seasons and a 27-3-1 record, he moved to Missouri, where he was 33-37 in 12 seasons, with two Big Eight championships and six bowl appearances.

He went to Green Bay in 1971. After going 4-8-2 in his first season, the Packers won the NFC Former Notre Dame head football coach Dan Devine stands on the sidelines during the 1979 Clemson-Notre Dame game in South Bend, Ind. Devine, who coached Notre Dame to the 1977 national championship, died Thursday at his Tempe, Ariz., home, after a long illness. He was 77.

Central at 10-4 the next season. But they fell back to 5-7-2 in 1973 and 6-8 the next year.

By then fans had grown disenchanted and ran Devine out of town. So angry were some, that Devine's dog was shot to death.

His final and greatest coaching tenure occurred at Notre Dame, where he replaced Hall of Fame coach Ara Parseghian in 1975. In five seasons under Devine, the Fighting Irish were 53-16-1 and won three bowl games.

In 1977, Notre Dame, quarterbacked by Montana and with Bob Golic anchoring a tough defense, won the national championship. The Irish (11-1) beat previously undefeated Texas, led by running back Earl Campbell, 38-10 in the '78 Cotton Bowl.

"I have nothing but the kindest thoughts for him," said Rev.

Edmund Joyce, the man who hired Devine and now serves as Notre Dame's executive vice president emeritus. "He was a true gentleman and a wonderful coach. ... He did not have Ara's charisma but his record was as good. I respected him as a man and a coach."

Former Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz, now at South Carolina, called Devine "a true gentleman and a tribute to the college game."

Devine was a self-described "fussbudget" who required shoes to be shined and pants pressed daily.

He brought the first black players to Arizona State and to Missouri, but never considered himself a pioneer in integration.

Devine left coaching in 1980 and returned to Arizona State as executive director of the Sun Angel Foundation, a fundraising group. In 1987, he moved to job directing an Arizona State program to fight substance abuse.

In 1992, he returned to Missouri as athletic director and served in the job until his retirement in 1994.

NASCAR INSIDER

A week off

Track aims for soft walls

The Winston Cup series takes a week off for the Mother's Day holiday. NASCAR's top circuit resumes the following weekend for The Winston one of the season's most anticipated events.

NHIS has seen two NASCAR deaths

The Orlando Sentinel

ORLANDO - Bob Bahre, the New Hampshire International Speedway owner who has agonized over the deaths of Adam Petty and Kenny Irwin at his track, said this week he plans to install soft walls in time for his Winston Cup race in July, if NASCAR approves them.

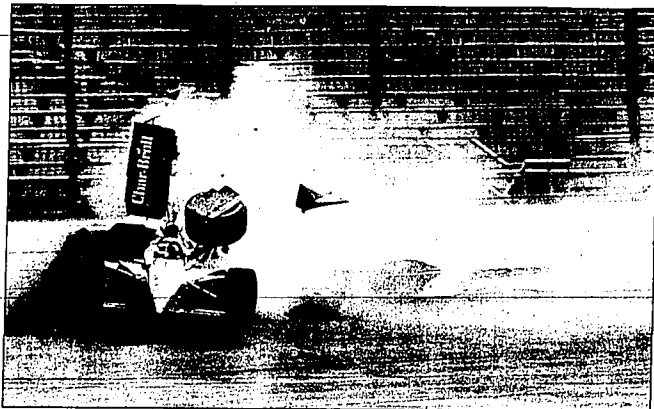

The life-saving barriers would be a tailored version of those just installed at Indianapolis Motor Speedway, called the SAFER (an acronym for "steel and foam energy reduction") system.

Bahre is the first Winston Cup track owner to commit to the SAFER walls other than IMS president Tony George, who provided most of the funding for the system's development.

The Aug. 4 Brickyard 400 at Indy had been expected to be the first NASCAR race using soft walls. But if Bahre's plan is approved, the July 21 New England 300 would be the first.

IRL driver Robby McGehee slammed the driver wall at about 220 mph at Indy during Sunday's opening practice for the May 26 Indy 500, and walked away.

McGehee suffered small fractures of his upper spine and lower left leg. "The fact that I hit the wall that hard, and I don't have a head injury, is a testament that the SAFER wall worked," he said.

Race car driver Mark Dismore crashes into the turn 1 wall just before the close of practice for the Indianapolis 500 at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on Thursday. Dismore crashed his Dallara into the padded wall in turn 1 and was taken to the track's medical center. He was later transferred to Methodist Hospital with a concussion, track officials said.

Winston Cup cars weigh 3,400 pounds, more than twice as much as Indy cars, and Bahre said NASCAR approval of the wall installation at Loudon is contingent upon analysis of data from the test crash of a stock car at the University of Nebraska three weeks ago.

"We saw how it worked; it looked good to the eye," Bahre said. "But they had all sorts of (data recording) equipment in the car. We have to wait for the data to come back."

"If everything's OK, and we get it done, we want it done for July."

Wallace warns Harvick about aggressive driving

The Washington Post

After Kevin Harvick's roughhousing in a race car went too far last month and got him banned from a NASCAR race, former champion Rusty Wallace gave the youngster some fatherly advice.

A former hellion behind the wheel himself, Wallace, 45, phoned Harvick to tell him he didn't have to prove he was a great racer every lap. Wallace told him to calm down in the car. Then Wallace told him the harsh truth he was told years ago after NASCAR officials decided he'd crossed the line that separates good, aggressive driving from flat-out obnoxious driving.

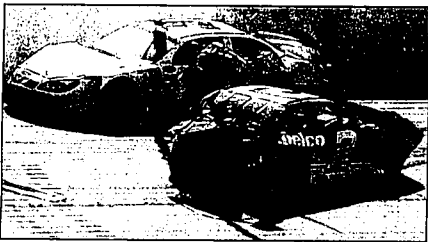

"They told me a thousand times, 'Huck, we don't need you. If you're not at this racetrack, this show will still go on. So you better line up and get professional, or that's it!'" Wallace recounted.

In the hard-charging arena of stock-car racing, policing rough driving is a tough business.

The first trick is drawing the line between what's acceptable on a racetrack. The problem is, that line's blurred by circumstance, varying according to the size of the racetrack, the point in the race and, in some cases, who's behind the wheel.

The next trick is getting drivers to understand the difference.

That's partly the job of NASCAR officials, who have the power to dole out fines, probation and, in extreme cases, suspension. More often, it's handled by veteran drivers, who either hit back or have a stern talk with the young guns intent on banging other cars, spinning them out or cutting them off.

Kevin Harvick (2) leans in the window to have words with Andy Kirby (77) after the two crashed between the first and second turns in the early laps of the NASCAR Mr. Goodcents 300 at the Kansas Speedway in Kansas City, Kan., Sept. 29, 2001. Road rage, on and off the track, has become the thing of the moment, with plenty of accompanying headlines and ensuing big-dollar fines and probations issued by NASCAR.

A certain amount of aggression on the racetrack is necessary. Knocking a car out of your way 50 laps into a 500-lap race will earn you a reputation as a punk. But with one lap to go and a victory at stake, front-running drivers are expected to take bigger risks.

On short tracks, where cars do battle in close confines, bumping and banging is virtually unavoidable. Because speeds aren't so fast (less than 130 miles per hour or so), the risk of injury isn't so high. But contact on superspeedways like Daytona or Talladega, where cars hit 200 miles per hour, can have calamitous results. "It's common sense," said car owner Bill Davis, whose driver Ward Burton won the 2002 Daytona 500. "There's a huge difference between coming in here and knocking people out of the way, and getting to the front by just racing hard, like Jeff (Gordon) and Bobby (Labonte) and a lot of other people do."

The late Dale Earnhardt became an icon for his aggressive driving, earning the nickname, "The Intimidator." But for every well-placed bump that his fans cheered, just as many detractors booed. Still, Earnhardt's ability to straddle that line between aggressive and overly aggressive driving defines the essence of stock-car racing's appeal - polarizing fans and keeping them coming back for more.

NASCAR officials felt Harvick went over that line last month at Martinsville (Va.) Speedway.

Already on probation for a post-race scuffle with Grand National driver Greg Biffle in March, Harvick spun out Coy Gibbs in a NASCAR truck race. Ordered off the track by NASCAR officials, Harvick wheeled his truck directly to the NASCAR trailer, where the sport's top brass works on race day, and parked it at the door in defiance.

In response, NASCAR officials slapped him with the harshest sanctions ever issued for rough driving. They barred him from the next day's Winston Cup race (which meant his race team couldn't collect any points toward the season's championship), fined him $35,000, and extended his probation until Dec. 31.

Some suspect Harvick is simply trying too hard to fill Earnhardt's shoes. Car owner Richard Childress, who tapped the young Californian as Earnhardt's successor after the racing icon was killed in the 2001 Daytona 500, defends Harvick's zeal. "That's the reason he got the job - because he was aggressive," Childress says. "And his talent."

Most feel Harvick has a long way to go before he earns the right to sashay around the racetrack with Earnhardt's abandon.

"When all of the sudden you lose respect of the veterans, that's a real wake-up call," Wallace says.

Winston Cup teams make bid for Keller

By Rick Minter
Cox News Service

RICHMOND, Va. - Busch Series points leader Jason Keller, who got his third win of the season on Friday at Richmond International Raceway, may be headed for the Winston Cup Series as soon as next season.

Keller said he has been getting inquiries from Winston Cup teams interested in hiring him to drive one of their cars.

"The phones are starting to ring more and more, and I'm sure it'll be ringing this week," he said. "But it's going to take a good situation to get me out of where I am now."

He said he wouldn't leave his present team unless he felt he was going to a Winston Cup team that was capable of winning races right away.

"I don't think the grass is greener on the other side just because it's Winston Cup," he said. "I'm happy where I am now, and we'll cross that bridge when we get there."

"I'm not the kind of person that would go behind anybody's back," he said. "Greg has been very good to me."

Man's version of friendship is long way from love

DEAR ABBY: I am 43 and deeply in love. For five years I have been dating a 57-year-old man I'll call Ray. When Ray enters a room, I honestly feel my heart skip a beat. Although we do not live together, we share many of the same interests and have lots of fun together. My problem is that Ray has a mean streak. If I complain, he has a sarcastic answer or turns it around and blames me. For example, I was diagnosed with cancer last fall and needed emergency surgery. The day after my surgery, Ray left on a 10-day golf trip with his buddies. I felt alone and abandoned. When I told him how I felt, he said my illness couldn't have been that serious because I survived.

Ray likes to be around his friends and family but rarely includes me. When I suggest that I'd like to be a more important part of his life, he tells me I am too "clingy." In our five years together, I have spent several Christmases and most Valentine Days alone, and I sit around while he takes numerous vacations with other people. Ray tells me he loves me, but doesn't want to marry me. Dating is a comfortable arrangement for him. He gave me a diamond "friendship ring" for my birthday. I am too embarrassed to wear it. My family, friends - and I - expected an engagement ring. Do you think I am being jerked around?

- OUT-OF-SORTS IN OTTAWA

DEAR OUT-OF-SORTS: You bet I do - but you have allowed it to happen. The diamond ring (are you sure it's genuine?) is a "pavlov" so you won't notice that you really have neither a healthy relationship nor someone you can count on. Even if the stone is genuine, the man is a phony. As soon as you lose this loser, you'll start to feel better. Trust me.

Drug-disliking teen turns in dad

The Seattle Times

SEATTLE - Fed up with living in a house that had become a marijuana nursery, a Covington teen picked up the phone and dialed 911 to turn in his own father Tuesday evening, sheriff's deputies said.

"The kid said he was sick and tired of being around drugs and sick and tired of his dad doing drugs," King County sheriff's spokesman Greg Dymerski said.

"He's a good kid, and his conscience got the best of him."

The 38-year-old divorced father of three was booked into the King County Jail on suspicion of drug felonies after deputies carted off at least 40 plants, bags of dried and ready-to-sell marijuana buds and scales to measure the crop, Dymerski said.

The 17-year-old, his 15-year-old sister and their 7-year-old brother went to stay with family friends, deputies said.

San Francisco got world's first cable car

Even a lot of San Franciscans don't realize their city got the world's first cable car in 1874—even before the ordinary trolley car was invented. Not much before. But before. First trolley was installed in Berlin in 1881. Horse-drawn, that one. Cleveland set up the first electric trolley a year later.

Does anybody buy your ideas? If so, maybe you can start something big. It's said all significant social movements in the history of mankind began with one person plus one person who believed in that person.

In the Ptolemy dynasty of Ancient Egypt, each tax collector personally had to pony up the tax of a certain area. In said collector's assigned group, history records those collectors became exceedingly dangerous hunters of men.

The first motorcycle — 1869 Frenchmen, Pierre and Ernest Michaux, built the thing. 1869 had a steam engine. You did no wheels on that one.

That Oriental dress called the cheongsam — slit skirt, Mandarin collar — says something about modesty in the China of bygone years. A woman could show her legs to the top of the thigh, but she had to cover her throat. Too sexy, that throat. The cheongsam was the conservative costume.

Cold can kill in three hours. Thirst in three days. In desert deaths, it's most often the nighttime cold, not the thirst, that's fatal.

Q. Is there really such an animal as a flying kangaroo?

A. One male bird is so-called. Because he has a pouch of pleated skin under each wing. Therein his chick is held securely even when he's flying. Seen in Brazil and Central America mostly. He's otherwise known as the male American Finfoot.

How many times have you seen the Statue of Liberty on television during the last year? Quite a many, no doubt. All right, Sherlock, in which hand is she holding the lamp? Spring that one in a crowd and only about half of them say the right hand, which is correct.

Ex-waitress settles suit with Hooters

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — A former waitress has settled her lawsuit against Hooters, the restaurant that gave her a toy Yoda doll instead of the Toyota she thought she'd won.

Jodie Berry, 27, won a beer sales contest last May at the Panama City Beach Hooters. She believed she had won a new Toyota and happily was escorted to the restaurant's parking lot in a blindfold.

But when the blindfold was removed, she found she had won a new toy Yoda — the little green character from the "Star Wars" movies.

David Noll, her attorney, said Wednesday that he could not disclose the settlement's details, although he said Berry can now go to a local car dealership and "pick out whatever type of Toyota she wants."

Artist alters freeway sign to help motorists

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An artist upset by a confusing Los Angeles freeway sign took matters into his own hands by scaling the sign and adding directions so good that state officials couldn't tell.

Richard Ankrum, 46, said he thought of the project three years ago but didn't actually do it until last August. As thousands of motorists passed below, Ankrum went to work in a hard hat and orange reflective vest to avoid raising suspicion. His pickup truck carried a contractor-style logo on the side that read: Aesthetic De Construction.

What Ankrum did was put the word "north" over an emblem for Interstate 5. The sign is two miles before the exit, plenty of time for motorists to plan their transition from the Harbor Freeway to the correct lanes of 15. Ankrum studied freeway signs and downloaded specifications from the Federal Highway Administration's Web site. His biggest challenge was finding reflective buttons that make up each letter, but he tracked down replica buttons sold by a company in Tacoma, Wash.

The work is so genuine that state transportation officials didn't know it was "functional art" until a newspaper column leaked the news last month.

There are no plans to take down the sign or pursue charges. "The experts are saying that Mr. Ankrum did a fantastic job," said Jeanne Hamilton, a state transportation spokeswoman.

"They thought it was an interesting job."

But is it art? "It needed to be done," Ankrum said. "Hopefully it will help people out, which was the whole point."

Cars drive under a highway sign that Los Angeles artist Richard Ankrum altered. Ankrum's artwork went undetected for months.

Notes on the economy

Magie Valley report

Tourist tally

Twin Falls' tourism traffic got a slow start this season. Here's the visitor count from the Buzz Langdon Visitor Center, at the south end of the Perrine Bridge:

- Week 4/28-5/4: 560
That's down 33.0 percent from the 821 visitors during the same week in 2001.
- Month of April: 2,257
That's down 6.4 percent from April 2001's 2,411 visitors.
- Season-to-date: 3,259
The visitor center's 2002 season, which started in mid-March, so far has posted 9.9 percent fewer visitors than the 3,617 of the comparable portion of 2001.

"A much cooler and windy spring is likely afflicting to the smaller number of visitors over last year," Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce executive Kent Just said.

Pre-Paid Legal trumpets victory in Alabama

ADA, Okla. - Pre-Paid Legal Services Inc. celebrated a victory this week in its ongoing legal battles against customers, shareholders and sales representatives. The Ada-based company, which has representation in the Magic Valley, reported that a judge has rejected class-action certification for a lawsuit filed earlier this year on behalf of Pre-Paid customers in Alabama. The judge is allowing the customers' claims alleging breach of contract against Pre-Paid to proceed, however. The class-action dismissal, with prejudice, was the latest of three recent legal victories for Pre-Paid. In March, a federal judge in Oklahoma City dismissed with prejudice a class-action lawsuit filed by Pre-Paid shareholders. That dismissal is under appeal in Denver. More recently, the same law firm handling the class-action complaint in Alabama - as well as a new class-action lawsuit on behalf of Pre-Paid customers nationwide - withdrew one of a dozen lawsuits it has filed against the company. "We believe there is a rhythm evolving with these lawsuits," said Harland Stonecipher, Pre-Paid's founder, chairman and chief executive. "They get filed, then ballyhoed online and in the media, then dismissed ... Our intention is to continue to vigorously and steadily defend our very defensible positions." The lawsuits allege Pre-Paid oversells its products - which provides limited legal services - to customers who often believe they'll receive far more legal coverage than they do. Pre-Paid sales agents also have filed a class-action lawsuit against the company for allegedly overselling its business opportunity.

Logistics company will build warehouse in Jerome, hire 30

By Dixie Thomas Reale
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - Business and community leaders turned out on a blustery spring morning Thursday to welcome WOW Logistics to Jerome. A 232,000-square-foot warehouse and distribution center, with refrigerated and dry-storage capability, is planned at 50 West 100 South. Construction should begin in late May or early June. The project brings "badly needed service infrastructure to this area which hasn't been available locally before," said Jan

Rogers of the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization.

Con Paulos, a member of the Idaho Economic Advisory Council, called WOW Logistics a first-class company.

"They are good citizens just like us," Paulos told the more than 120 people from throughout the valley who gathered Thursday. The Jerome facility will market its services to general manufacturers, the dairy industry and processors in Magic Valley and the Pacific Northwest.

WOW Logistics is an Appleton, Wis.-based warehousing, distribution and logistics company with 5 million square feet of food-grade warehouse space in Wisconsin. WOW stores, distributes and ships merchandise for manufacturers and dairy-related customers. Jerome is the company's first major venture outside of Wisconsin.

The initial 12- to 15-acre Jerome building site, adjacent to the railroad tracks and Interstate 84, just west of Jerome Cheese Co.'s plant, is part of a 40-acre parcel purchased at an undisclosed price from Nolan Victor, said Bob Rossi, director of new business development for WOW.

WOW Logistics will hire 10 to 12 employees initially and eventually 30. All jobs are full time and pay $8 to $11 per hour. Employee recruiting will probably start in June or July, Rossi said. The Jerome branch should be open for business by Dec. 1, he said.

Idaho Gov. Dirk Kempthorne called Jerome a "can-do community" in a "welcoming, pro-business state." "The economy in Idaho is tough, but in these tough times here is a field of dreams," he said.

Kempthorne complimented city, county and area leaders on their success in bringing WOW Logistics to Jerome. He said three years ago he attended a groundbreaking ceremony in downtown Jerome for the central business district improvement project. Last year Kempthorne attended a groundbreaking for ISI, a call center on Main Street West in Jerome. Now, it's WOW Logistics.

"In three years Jerome has gone from a one-stoplight town to a three-stoplight town," Kempthorne said. He called Jerome's growth rate "warped speed."

"Jobs created in Jerome benefit people in Idaho Falls, Twin Falls, Boise and all of Idaho," he

Weather, early Easter hurt April's retail sales

The Associated Press

NEW YORK - Unseasonable weather and Easter in March tempered retail sales in April for many merchants, including industry leader Wal-Mart Stores Inc., as shoppers found little to draw them to the malls. Wal-Mart, the world's largest retailer and the operator of stores in Burley and Jerome, reported Thursday that sales were up 3.3 percent at stores open at least a year, a figure known as same-store sales. That was at the low end of the company's forecast for a 3 percent to 5 percent gain, and a bit below the 3.9 percent gain expected by Wall Street analysts polled by Thomson Financial/Fitch Call. Total sales were up 9.3 percent. Same-store sales are considered the best indicator of a retailer's health. Still, in what is becoming a monthly pattern, Wal-Mart, along with other discounters and several moderate-priced powerhouses such as T.J. Maxx parent TJX Cos., continued to outperform the industry. Department stores continue to languish, though their businesses appear to be stabilizing. Specialty stores showed mixed results. Gap Inc. - which has an Old Navy store in Twin Falls - continued to record steep declines, posting a 24 percent decrease in same-store sales for April. However, the performance was better than the 30 percent dip analysts had forecast. Total sales were down 17 percent. "Consumer spending continues on a cautious path," said Kurt Barnard, president of Barnard's Retail Trend Report, based in Montclair, N.J. "It was also either too hot or too cold. And on top of that, we did not see much fashion that would sweep consumers into the store." The earlier Easter, on March 31, inflated March sales by 2.5 percent, and hurt business by a similar amount for April, said Michael Niemira, vice president of Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi Ltd. Wal-Mart's lukewarm sales performance also hurt the total sales picture, he said. "Weather that shifted from unseasonably warm to wet and cold also dragged down sales, he said.

TCBY chain's original store closes after 20 years

The Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. - A storefront from which TCBY grew to 3,000 frozen yogurt shops in 70 countries has shut down, more than 20 years after it served as a launchpad for the international chain. Frank Hickingbotham opened the first TCBY shop in the Market Place shopping center in west Little Rock on Sept. 23, 1981. In those days, the letters stood for "this can't be yogurt!" - a slogan the company later changed to "the country's best yogurt." With its wicker chairs and potted flowers, the shop became the model for all that followed, said Herren Hickingbotham, the eldest son of the founder and the shop's first manager. For a time after the company had grown to include several other shops, its headquarters was just across Rodney Parham Road from the Market Place center. Eventually, the company moved to a 40-story skyscraper in downtown Little Rock that still bears the "TCBY" letters at the top.

Herren Hickingbotham said he was sad to see the first shop close, though his family sold the company for $138 million two years ago to the owner of Mrs. Fields Cookies.

The company is now owned by Capricorn Management of Utah, which also owns the Great American Cookie Co. and two companies making pretzels for mall kiosks. "TCBY now has franchised shops in almost 2,000 locations in the U.S. - including one in Twin Falls - and 252 more in 26 other countries. Although TCBY's numbers are down from their heights, brand manager Lori Peterson at Capricorn said TCBY made a profit in 2001 for the first time in several years, and is profitable so far in 2002. "Our sales are going great," she said. Phil Faulkner, a restaurant operator, is buying the original shop building. Faulkner said he'll open an old-time soda-fountain shop in the former TCBY space.

Qwest says it has bids for directory unit

The Associated Press

DENVER - Qwest Communications International Inc. said Thursday it has received multiple bids for all or part of its QwestDex Yellow Pages directories business. The telecommunications company is the dominant provider of local telephone service in Magic Valley. A Qwest spokesman would not disclose any details about the bids or who made them. Qwest was "encouraged by the level of interest and quality of the bids and is proceeding with the process. However, there is no assurance of the timing, amount or other terms of any possible transaction," the company said in a statement. Qwest has been under enormous pressure to reduce its $25 billion debt, and various published reports have suggested the directory unit could sell for $8 billion or more.

Qwest has also been looking to sell other non-core assets, including its wireless business, access lines or possibly cell towers. The directory unit generated $1.6 billion in revenue last year. The New York Times, citing unidentified sources, said Thursday at least three bids were made for the directories business. Sources familiar with the matter told The Associated Press that J.P. Morgan Chase had HAYLEY - The Blaine County Education Foundation honored Atkinson's Market on Thursday for its ongoing contributions to Blaine County students. Atkinson's, which has stores in Ketchum and Hayley, has contributed more than $100,000 to the district's seven public schools over the past seven years to purchase computers and playground equipment, fund reading programs and the like.

Outgoing foundation President Sandy Sanders presented Atkinson's with two bank-case-sized banners to be hung in stores, praising Atkinson's for contributions toward school excellence. "They're always there making outstanding contributions to the seven schools in our district. They've been our top single giver, our most consistent giver, etc., etc.," Sanders said.

The Atkinson family has donated cakes, cash and more for just about every school event since the Atkinsons started their first grocery store in 1956, said Chip Atkinson, who accepted the award with his brother Whit. But store owner decided to find a more consistent way of making donations, with the Education Foundation was created seven years ago.

The first year, Atkinson's had parents of schoolchildren hand over grocery receipts to the schools, which then collected a percentage of the receipts from Atkinson's. A year later Atkinson's began automatically deducting a percentage of each store's sales from the check made with Advantage cards - a locals' discount card issued from Atkinson's. "We feel the business thrives off the community, so we have an obligation to give back." The store regularly named to a list of Idaho's top-producing businesses despite its size, also gives to plenty of community causes, such as underwriting the Sun Valley Center for the Arts' children's concerts. "My family has been an integral part of this community forever. My father was 15 years old when he moved here from Chicago. And my mom was the first part-time arts teacher at Hemingway Elementary," said Chip Atkinson. "We feel the business thrives off the community, so we have an obligation to give back."

The Education Foundation awarded Excellence in Education awards to three projects Thursday. Wood River Middle School teacher Cathy Fieguth received $1,100 for a computer lab program. Bellevue Elementary teacher Anne Elmour received $2,400 for a Literacy Tree Reading Guide project. And Tim Sawyer received $2,000 for a gifted-students program at Wood River High School.

Firms should foster worker loyalty Retail sales reports sink stocks

NEW YORK (AP) - It's one of the most precious commodities a small business can have, but it's one many company owners don't try hard enough to keep - their workers' loyalty.

"The importance of workplace loyalty is greatly underrated," said Diane Arthur, head of her own management consulting firm.

"Employees are saying, 'They don't have a sense of commitment to us, so we can't afford to have a sense of loyalty to them,'" said Arthur, who described owners who don't value their workers' loyalty as shortsighted.

If employees feel loyal to a company, they're likely to be more productive and make an extra effort for the business, Arthur said. They're likely to stay, keeping the business stable and allowing the owner to concentrate on sales and earnings, not hiring replacement staffers.

The problem, consultants say, is that employees don't understand that in order to get loyalty from workers, a boss has to be loyal to them in the first place. "Loyalty should be initiated by the employer," Arthur said.

The weak economy isn't helping the situation. "Employees for the most part believe that because we're in a tight economy, it's now an employer's marketplace and no longer an employee's marketplace," said Beverly Kaye, an employee retention consultant in Sherman Oaks, Calif.

"That is not necessarily so - don't relax, don't think that you've got no choice. Good talented people will always have choices," Leigh Brunton, a vice president with Right Management Consultants in Overland Park, Kan., put it bluntly, saying some employers have the attitude that

"The good news about being in a small company is believing you can have an impact."

Jana Matthews, author

if workers aren't happy, "don't let the door hit you on the way out. They've got to get rid of that mindset."

Consultants say it's not that hard to foster worker loyalty. Just about every business owner can find ways to make employees feel valued in turn, care more about the business.

But don't for one minute think that giving someone a paycheck is all you need to do. Brunton, whose company does exit interviews for other businesses, said that most managers think their workers have left because of money.

In reality, "you couldn't pay enough money to keep them," said Brunton, who wrote "Keeping the People Who Keep You in Business."

What's more important to employees is a belief that they can grow and develop in their work, said Gary Topchik, managing partner of Silverstar Enterprises Inc., a Los Angeles-based management consultancy.

"If someone is on a career path and they have a good sense that they're moving up or the president of the owner will take care of them and they have a good future, there's a strong sense of loyalty," said Topchik, who wrote the book "Managing Workplace Negativity."

It's possible to give employees that sense even in businesses like a gas station or dry cleaning store, Topchik said. If an owner tells a worker "I'm going to teach you how to manage," it can go a long way toward making the least experienced, unskilled employee feel loyal, he said.

Jana Matthews, a consultant in Boulder, Colo., and co-author of "Building the Awesome Organization," said that helping employees understand their role in the company's mission will also help. So, in the dry cleaning example, she suggested an owner connect to workers, "our business is to help people walk out of here looking their best - so the issue isn't just dry cleaning clothes."

A small business actually has an advantage when it comes to nurturing loyalty, Matthews said. "The good news about being in a small company is believing you can have an impact."

Moreover, with fewer employees, it's easier for the boss to stay in closer contact with the staff. "One-on-one communication, as opposed to building a sense of loyalty, is so a willingness to pay," Arthur said.

"Ask them, 'How am I doing?'" Arthur said. "But if they tell you they're not, or you realize it, you won't have any loyalty. Be honest and sincere."

Along that line, if you feel an employee is disloyal, try to find out why. "Listen to their anger. Don't just say, 'He was in a snit,'" said Kaye, co-author of "Love 'Em or Lose 'Em."

Of course, positive feedback - verbal and written - goes a long way, Kaye said of her employees. "I thank them often and I think them in writing."

Consultants also say rewards such as free lunch and gift certificates are a great idea - yes, they're cost money, but they are great investments in creating loyalty.

NEW YORK (AP) - Wall Street's efforts to extend its rally Friday were frustrated as mixed retail reports persuaded investors to play it safe and cash in their gains.

Stocks fell sharply, although the major indexes probed more than half of Wednesday's significant gains. A retreat following a big advance is not unusual, but analysts said the declines showed that buyers still lack faith that the business recovery will be strong enough to support higher stock prices.

"By and large, this bull is looking like a one-trick pony," said Bryan Piskorski, market commentator at Prudential Securities, referring to Wednesday's rally. "We didn't give it all back, but sustainability and follow-through are still big problems for this market."

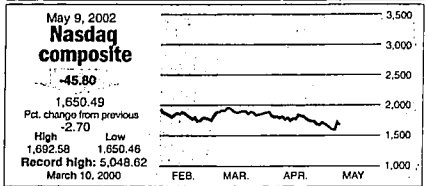

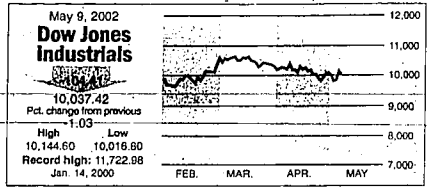

The Dow Jones industrial average closed down 104.41, or 1.0 percent, at 10,377.42, putting it back from its 305-point gain Wednesday. Broader stock indicators also fell back. The Nasdaq composite index fell 45.80, or 2.7 percent, to 1,650.49. The Standard & Poor's 500 index dropped 15.87, or 1.5 percent, to 1,073.01.

On Wednesday, the Nasdaq soared 122 points, while the S&P gained 33.

A slew of mostly unimpressive retail sales reports started the session on a negative note. Consumer spending accounts for two-thirds of the economy, and retail sales are considered one indicator of its strength.

Wal-Mart fell $1.40 to $54.99 and Target lost $2.29 to $42.03 after reporting weaker-than-expected April sales at stores open at least a year. But the Gap rose $1.08 to $15.79 on a smaller-than-expected sales decrease.

Reports of an antitrust in the mail at the Federal Reserve further unnerved the market, although investors Thursday appeared to be returning to their old pattern of selling rather than risking more gains.

Weeks of lackluster first-quarter results and most companies' inability to predict stronger quarters have made selling more attractive than buying. Although Cisco's news was enough for one rally, analysts say one company alone cannot spark the longer-term buying needed for a true turnaround. They also note that Wednesday's gains were mostly more of a rebound since stocks have fallen so much.

"It's constructive that we haven't fully reversed all the moves from Wednesday, but confidence generally remains shaken in the market," said Tom Galvin, chief investment officer at Credit Suisse First Boston.

Lobbyists try to stop IRS plan to tax stock options

WASHINGTON (AP) - Corporate lobbyists and members of Congress are lining up to oppose a plan by the IRS to collect payroll taxes on stock options...

Incumbent taxes do not apply when employees are granted options or when they are exercised - but wouldn't change under the IRS proposal - but capital gains taxes must be paid when the stock shares are sold.

Incumbent stock options are usually given to employees, often to a company executive, who then must wait a specific length of time before exercising them.

Opponents say this amounts to a new tax burden, never authorized by Congress, that would disrupt a form of compensation affecting about 10 million people.

Employees like to own a piece of the business. People can say, "I'm part of this organization," said John Seft, director of retirement policy at the American Benefits Council, an industry trade group. "The financial disincentive of the tax itself, plus the higher administrative costs, might lead to less of these plans being offered."

Oil prices were mostly flat, with West Texas Intermediate futures ending at $27.27 a barrel.

Survey: Employees are working longer hours

It doesn't just feel you're putting in more hours at the office. You're actually, according to a survey recently conducted by the world's biggest recruiter...

Of the 1,742 managers and professionals polled by Manpower Recruiters International, nearly two-thirds work five to six days a week, and almost a third are working late at least once a week.

Bahraini election lets women vote

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Voters cast ballots Thursday in Bahrain's first election for representative bodies in nearly 30 years — another step in the Gulf nation's transformation from absolute monarchy to democracy, and the first time Bahraini women were allowed to vote and run for office.

Across the country, people clamored to vote in the election for municipal council members, with men and women waiting in long, separate lines in keeping with the country's conservative Islamic traditions.

"Let me in, let me in!" shouted 80-year-old Maryam Mohammed Yousuf at a polling center in the capital, Manama, that failed to open on time. Leaning on a metal walking stick and a younger female relative, Yousuf's wrinkled face peered through a black chador. The head-to-toe robe was worn by most women voters.

"As a loyal citizen I've been waiting for this opportunity all my life," Yousuf said. "This is a new birth for the nation, this is very, very, very good."

Electoral officials said turnout was heavier than expected, but did not immediately release figures. Complete results were not expected before today.

More than 200,000 residents were eligible to vote, including citizens of neighboring Gulf Cooperation Council states and foreigners owning property in the kingdom. Bahrain has a population of about 650,000 people. Of some 306 candidates, 30 were women.

One female candidate, Badriya Ali, said she felt exhausted but exhilarated after greeting voters throughout the day at a polling station in Hidd, about 12 miles from the capital.

"I am totally exhausted and nervous, but it's all fun," said the 42-year-old mother of five who ran against five male candidates.

"The competition was tough, but I think I have received a lot of support today, and God willing I will win."

A candidate needs to acquire more than 50 percent of the votes in their districts to be elected.

Thursday's leap toward democracy was being closely watched throughout the Gulf. Bahrain's eastern neighbor, Qatar, is the only other Gulf Arab state that allows women to run for office. Kuwait also holds elections, but bars women from running for office.

Court issues warrants for war crimes suspects

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A Belgrade court issued arrest warrants Thursday for 17 top Serb war crimes suspects, including former Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic and his wartime commander Ratko Mladic.

But the warrants issued by the Belgrade district court may not result in the suspects' immediate arrests and extraditions to the U.N. war crimes tribunal in The Hague, Netherlands.

Yugoslav authorities say they do not know the whereabouts of Mladic, Karadzic and several other suspects wanted by the tribunal, said Branislav Todic, the chief investigative judge of Belgrade's district court.

Karadzic and Mladic — two of the world's most wanted war crime fugitives — have been indicted by The Hague court for genocide.

The U.S. ambassador-at-large for war crimes, Pierre-Richard Prosper, was recently quoted by Belgrade media as saying that Yugoslavia must arrest Mladic and Karadzic and extradite them to The Hague before the U.S. Congress would approve aid to the Balkan country.
