U.S., Russia leaders sign arms reduction

But Bush fails to sway Putin on cutting nuclear reactor technology to Iran

MOSCOW

— Proclaiming an end to "the Cold War legacy of nuclear hostility," President Bush and his Russian counterpart signed an arms-control agreement Friday symbolizing what they called a new and promising era in relations between the former rivals.

Despite the sunny personal summitry, however, Bush and Russian President Vladimir V.

Putin achieved no visible progress on an issue that U.S. officials have called the world's most serious weapons-proliferation problem: Iran's alleged drive to acquire nuclear weapons.

While Bush asserted that Putin had offered unspecified "assurances" over the fate of a Russian nuclear reactor sale to Iran, Putin pointedly rejected the entire premise of U.S. concern —

Justice candidate receives complaint

The Associated Press

— State Supreme Court challenger Starr Kelso was formally accused Friday of violating the state's campaign laws by cooperating with a special interest group on a television advertising campaign attacking Chief Justice Linda Copple Trout.

The complaint, filed with the secretary of state, disputes claims that Kelso had no involvement with a $75,000 ad blitz that Trout and her supporters — including three former high court justices — have said is at best misleading and false at worst.

Chief Deputy Secretary of State Ben Yarsus immediately requested Kelso's response to the claim. If the state investigation finds reason to believe the law was broken, the case would be turned over to the attorney general's office.

Kelso, a Coeur d'Alene attorney, said he had not received the complaint but saw the advertisement being run by anti-tax activist Laird Maxwell of Idahoans for Tax Reform. He said he has not talked to Maxwell since filing in early April to challenge Trout. "It's not my ad," Kelso said. "I had nothing to do with it."

The complaint — signed by former high court justices Robert Bakes, Byron Johnson and Robert Huntley and the four legislative chairman overseeing election and criminal laws — emphasized that the ads contain personal, family photographs that could only have come from Kelso himself.

TWIN FALLS — Memorial Day weekend promises pleasantly warm temperatures and hundreds of travelers looking for a three-day getaway.

all state park campsites requiring reservations. AAA Idaho estimates more than 145,000 people will be hitting the state's highways this weekend.

Nationwide, travel is expected to be highest in the West, with an estimated 7.2 million making road trips. Airline reservations are down throughout the country by 7 percent, a drop attributed to the Sept. 11 terrorist strike.

"The economy may still be on the mend, but Idaho's auto travel reservations for hotels, cars and trip routings are higher than a year ago, sending good signals for the health of overall summer travel, particularly for closer-to-home destinations," Dave Carlson, AAA Idaho spokesman, said in a news release.

Stable gas prices and good travel bargains are credited for the healthy signs of tourism in the state.

The average price for a gallon of regular unleaded gasoline in Idaho is about $1.44 a gallon — about the same as a month ago, AAA's fuel gauge shows. It's a

Lawmakers set hearings into pre-Sept. 11 warnings

Probe will focus on new allegation from Minnesota FBI agent

Combined wire report

WASHINGTON — Congressional investigators said Friday they will probe an FBI whistleblower's criticism that bureau headquarters failed to aggressively pursue a lead in August about a suspected accomplice to the Sept. 11 terrorists.

Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla., chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, called the accusations that FBI headquarters put up an obstacle to a pre-Sept. 11 investigation of Zacarias Moussaoui "very serious." Authorities believe Moussaoui, who aroused the FBI's suspicions last August while taking flight training, was planning to be "the 20th hijacker" in the

of an investigation by the House and Senate intelligence committees into charges of pre-Sept. 11 lapses.

Rowley sent a letter to Congress complaining that agents in her office were reprimanded for contacting the CIA after failing to get help from their own agency. Rowley was interviewed Wednesday by staff members of the investigating committees.

"We know enough now to say that there was a lack of aggressive follow-through of information that ... deserved to have gotten greater attention and treatment," Graham said. "Why has there been this lack of imagination to see what appears to be neon lights of problems and treat them as routine matters in some critical cases?"

The committees are preparing to hold their first hearing — behind closed doors — June 4, the day after Congress returns from its Memorial Day recess. Lawmakers

Knotted garment sharpens suspicions in Levy case

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Washington D.C. police have found a knotted piece of clothing that may have been used to restrain Chandra Ann Levy, adding a critical piece of forensic evidence to a case that detectives strongly suspect is a homicide, law enforcement sources said Friday.

Levy's stretch leggings, found in Rock Creek Park near her skeletal remains, were knotted in a way that suggests they might have been used to tie her up, the sources said.

Billy Martin, the Washington attorney for the Levy family, said city police officials have not discussed with him any evidence they have found, including the knotted leggings.

"If it is true, it goes a long way in proving that Chandra did not die in Rock Creek Park by accident," he said. "Her family has long suspected foul play, and we hope that the D.C. police will continue this investigation until they find the person or persons who took this young lady's life."

better price than last year's average of $1.44 per gallon.

Still, Idaho's average cost per gallon is up from earlier this year when it was less than $1.30 per gallon. The national average is about $1.44 per gallon. The biggest share of American travelers are heading for small towns and rural areas this weekend, AAA says.

"Typically, Idahoans are headed to mountain and lake destinations where camping is the primary activity," Carlson said.

A number of local campgrounds in the Sawtooth National Forest will be open this weekend. The forest office reports that most lower elevation campgrounds are dry and free from snow, but not all services will be available yet. Plans to bring drinking water and to haul trash home. A few trails and roads are open, but the Forest Service asks visitors to avoid those that are still soft and wet.

• Sawtooth campgrounds open this weekend include those on the Fairfield Ranger District, which have full services available, and selected campgrounds in the Twin Falls, Ketchum, Stanley, Stanley Lake and Redfish Lake areas.

• At higher elevations on the Burley-Twin Falls Ranger District, campgrounds such as Lake Cleveland, Thompson, Father and Sons, Bostetter and Pettit remain closed.

• Open trails in the Ketchum Ranger District are Sun Peak, Carbonate Mountain (avoid private property), Quigley Road, Muldoon Road, Slaughterhouse Canyon, Democrat Gulch, Wood River Bike Path, Picabo Desert Road, Dinosaur Ridge and the first couple miles of Greenhorn and Mahoney-Creek trails. Trail Creek Road is open.

• The Salmon River is running high and fast, providing opportunities for kayakers, the Forest Service says.

houses over the next 10 years on lots ranging in size from one-quarter to one-third of an acre. The City Council approved his first construction phase of 69 homes priced between $160,000 and $300,000.

Both city and county officials are represented on the board, because the development is planned in the city's area of impact. The city and county long have had an agreement that allows the city to approve developments within its impact area and creates the joint city-county appeals board.

Attorney Robert Williams, who represents Neighbors for Sound Development, questioned procedural steps that led to the subdivision's approval and the city's ability to approve a subdivision outside city limits.

"It is our legal position that the city cannot give final approval of the subdivision plan," Williams said.

City Attorney Fritz Wonderlich disagreed.

"We think it's absolutely legal, because state law says we can do it," he said.

An Idaho Supreme Court case involving the city of Eagle and Ada County addressed a situation where the arrangement didn't comply with state law. Wonderlich said it's not the same situation in Twin Falls, he said. A local jurisdiction court ruling supports the Twin Falls city-county agreement, he said.

Nonetheless, cities within Twin Falls County are meeting with county commissioners to review their area of impact agreements.

and accused Western companies of aiding Iran's efforts to develop ballistic missiles.

Even as they disagreed over Iran, the two leaders expressed rosy optimism about the overall state of relations. Bush portrayed Russia under Putin as a full partner in the U.S.-led war against global terrorism.

"I'm confident that by working together, we can win the first war of the 21st century ... against cold-blooded killers who want to harm nations such as America and Russia," Bush said during a joint news conference in the gilded splendor of St. Andrew's Hall in the Kremlin. "I understand full well that the people of Russia have suffered at the hands of terrorists, and so have we."

Bush was referring to terrorist bombings that Putin has blamed on separatists from Chechnya, where Russia is fighting a brutal war to preserve its control. The Bush administration has become increasingly less critical of the Chechen campaign since Sept. 11, as Putin has moved to align himself with the U.S. struggle against al-Qaida and its allies.

Despite the warm atmospheres, the summit did not produce any major agreements beyond the already announced arms pact. In particular, Bush was unable to satisfy two long-standing Russian requests: repeal of the Jackson-Vanik law of 1974 that conditions U.S.-Russian trade relations on Moscow's Jewish emigration policies and a formal U.S. declaration that Russia has a market economy.

Jackson-Vanik is widely regarded as a Cold War relic, but repeal remains bottled up in Congress. Bush expressed frustration over the delay and said he would keep working to win enactment.

are planning to hear from some witnesses — including CIA director George Tenet and FBI director Robert S. Mueller III — in public.

The FBI's response to suspicions raised by Minneapolis agents about Moussaoui and a July memo by an FBI agent in Phoenix urging his superiors to investigate Middle Easterners enrolled in U.S. flight schools has become a central issue of lawmakers' questions about possible intelligence failures before Sept. 11.

Sen. Ron Wyden, D-Ore, an intelligence committee member, called Rowley's letter "very troubling."

"It raises significant questions about whether the field people are more willing to take risks than people in the central office," he said.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, a frequent critic of the FBI, said that after being brief on the letter, "I don't blame agents in Minnesota for wondering if there were unwitting collaborators of Osama bin Laden."

"If field agents committed these egregious errors, they would be facing discipline and retribution. But the double standard of discipline and accountability continues, even though Director Mueller has pledged to me that it was gone."

Rowley, a 47-year-old mother of four who competes in triathlons, lives in Apple Valley, a suburb south of St. Paul, and is a graduate of the University of Iowa law school, according to records and acquaintances. A native of northeast Iowa, Rowley came to the Minneapolis field office more than a decade ago from New York, where she worked organized crime and other sensitive cases, acquaintances said.

Friends and colleagues describe Rowley as sharp and serious. "She's not a crackpot or anything," she's a good agent and a sharp lawyer," one former colleague said.

Archbishop retires early; priest resigns

The Associated Press

Milwaukee Archbishop Rembert Weakland, who resigned effective Friday after acknowledging he settled a sexual misconduct allegation against him, plans to make a public apology, a spokesman said.

The time and place of the apology has not been determined, spokesman Jerry Topczewski said.

In Seattle, meanwhile, the Rev. John Cornelius, accused of molestation by at least a dozen men, has resigned from active ministry, Catholic Archbishop Alex Brunett said Friday.

In a prepared statement, Cornelius apologized to his accusers, to Brunett and others. "I acknowledge my failures and accept responsibility for what I've done," Cornelius said in a statement read by Bill Gallant, a spokesman for the Seattle Archdiocese.

Church debate - C1

Brunett said he found the complaints credible and turned them over to authorities.

The molestation incidents mentioned by the accusers occurred between 1968 and 1985.

Pope John Paul II accepted Weakland's resignation Friday in a decision announced in the daily news bulletin of the Holy See's press office, citing Weakland's age as an explanation.

The archbishop, a leading liberal in the church, is the highest-ranking U.S. churchman to acknowledge a settlement of an allegation against him.

Weakland said Thursday that he paid a settlement to a man who accused him of sexual assault more than 22 years ago. He denied ever molesting anyone, but asked the Vatican to expedite the resignation he submitted earlier this year after reaching the mandatory retirement age of 75.

Topczewski said Weakland was sorry for any pain the settlement caused. "He's remorseful for the strain and stress this brought on the archdiocese and the church," Topczewski said.

Milwaukee's top prosecutor, E.

Archbishop Weakland

Michael McCann, said he had known for years that Weakland had a relationship with a man, but there was no suggestion of any crime.

"He advised me that he had a relationship that had compromised him in some fashion," McCann told the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel in Friday's editions. "He was troubled by it, but there was nothing criminal in it."

Roman Catholics across Wisconsin struggled to absorb the news after Weakland's accuser, former theology student Paul Marcoux, went public Thursday with word of the $450,000 settlement. "I want to cry and crawl under my bed," said Marquette Law School Dean Howard Eisenberg, who heads a commission

Weakland created to review sex abuse allegations against priests.

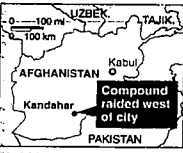

Weakland formed the commission in March, and in April announced the archdiocese would adopt a zero tolerance policy toward molestation.

Bishop Wilton Gregory, president of the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops, said Friday he was "deeply saddened" by the news.

"It comes at a time when the church in our country is suffering greatly from what seems to be an unending series of revelations and accusations," Gregory said in a statement. "On behalf of all of the bishops of the United States, I extend my deepest sympathy to the people of the Archdiocese of Milwaukee."

Compound raided

U.S. and coalition troops raided a suspected Taliban compound west of Kandahar on Friday. Fifty people were detained.

SOURCES: Associated Press; ESRI AP

U.S. says it finds items of value

KANDAHAR, Afghanistan (AP) - Coalition soldiers got into a shootout early Friday after they raided a compound intelligence sources said was a refuge for senior Taliban and al-Qaida leaders. One person was killed and some 50 others were captured, U.S. military officials said.

"Items of intelligence value were found," along with weapons and a large amount of cash, said Capt. Steve O'Connor, a spokesman for the U.S. military in Afghanistan.

No coalition soldiers were hurt in the raid, said Maj. A.C. Roper, a U.S. military spokesman at the base in Kandahar, in southern Afghanistan.

Officials were trying to determine the identities of the detainees. "We don't yet know exactly who we have," O'Connor said.

Two other suspected members of al-Qaida or Taliban were wounded in the raid, which began at 1 a.m. and stretched over eight hours. The compound is west of the city of Kandahar.

Roper said 150 soldiers were involved in the mission - half from the 3rd Brigade of the 101st Airborne based in Fort Campbell, Ky., and half from special operations forces. He would not specify whether other countries contributed troops.

"The attack 'was based on development of existing intelligence' that the compound was 'suspected of providing sanctuary to senior Taliban and/or al-Qaida leadership,'" Roper said.

"Based on that intelligence, we decided to take action," he said. "Several people attempting to flee the area fired at coalition forces, who responded appropriately, killing one. Almost 50 people were taken into custody."

Feds issue rail warning as holiday nears

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Terrorism fears aren't expected to keep Americans off the road Memorial Day weekend, despite a fresh warning from the government, but many travelers are expected to avoid the skies, despite discounts from major airlines.

About 35.2 million people will be traveling during the three-day weekend, a bit more than last year, according to the American Automobile Association.

Most, about 29.3 million, will go by motor vehicle, up from 28.7 million last year. But the association expects the number of air travelers to drop to 4.1 million from 4.4 million in 2001.

This year, the holiday comes on the heels of warnings about possible terrorist attacks.

Authorities in New York tightened security around the Statue of Liberty and Brooklyn Bridge after the FBI disclosed uncorroborated information that the sites might be targeted.

The Transportation Department on Friday said it warned all subways and railroad systems to remain on a heightened state of alert for possible terrorist attacks. A source speaking on condition of anonymity said such attacks most likely would involve explosives.

"If it's my day to go, and knock on wood I hope it isn't, then that was meant to be," said Jennifer Kirby, who was changing trains at Grand Central Terminal in New York on her way from New Jersey to Connecticut.

Ron and Patti Finley of Excelsior Springs, Mo., played it safe and traveled by car, setting up their tent at Smithville Lake outside Kansas City on Wednesday night.

"Flying is definitely not an option for us," said Patti Finley. "If we go anywhere, we definitely are driving."

U.S. criticizes Pakistan for missile tests

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Bush administration criticized Pakistan on Friday for planned missile tests amid tensions with India over Pakistan.

"We are disappointed in this," a State Department spokesman said.

Pakistan announced it would conduct missile tests this weekend. Secretary of State Colin Powell called the confrontation between the two South Asian countries perilous. He said the United States would try to coax India and Pakistan to calm down.

Powell, accompanying President Bush on a six-day European trip, said he had spoken to Pakistani President Gen. Pervez Musharraf on Thursday. He then called Indian Foreign Minister Jaswant Singh on Friday from Moscow in another effort to lessen tensions.

"There is concern worldwide," Greek Foreign Minister George Papandreu said after calling on Deputy Secretary of State Richard Armitage.

Pakistan notified India on Friday that it intends to test short- and medium-range missiles from today through Monday. In response, White House press secretary Ari Fleischer said the United States "reminds both India and Pakistan that they have to ease tensions" and work to maintain peace.

Palestinian groups urge rejection of U.S. aid

JERUSALEM (AP) - Dozens of Palestinian groups and leaders have called for refusal of aid from the U.S. government because of its support of Israel, according to a statement.

Among the 84 parties, organizations and individuals listed on the statement issued Thursday are Fatah, Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat's movement, and Hanan Ashrawi, a legislator and commentator who is well-known internationally. Also, nine non-governmental groups signed.

Palestinian human rights activist Khader Shkirat said the United States "supports Israeli crimes and with the other hand gives humanitarian aid to the Palestinians, and that is not acceptable."

The statement highlighted the Jenin Palestinian refugee camp, scene of the heaviest fighting during Israel's large-scale offensive in the West Bank.

Scientists see evidence of 'Big Bang'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Scientists analyzing tiny variations in the sky's background radiation have detected the earliest light emitted at the formation of the universe.

The detailed new images show indications first hints of matter that would evolve into the stars and planets that exist today.

"We have seen, for the first time, the seeds that gave rise to clusters of galaxies, thus putting the theory of galaxy formation on a firm observational footing," said team leader Anthony Readhead of the California Institute of Technology.

"These unique high-resolution observations provide a new set of critical tests of cosmology," he said.

The research, detailed Thursday at a National Science Foundation briefing, was conducted using the Cosmic Background Imager, a set of 13 radio antennas located high in the Atacama Desert in Chile.

The instruments were able to detect minute variations in the cosmic microwave background, the radiation that has traveled to Earth over almost 14 billion years.

According to the researchers the fluctuations are indications of those first tentative seeds of matter and energy.

They added that the measurements provide evidence to support the theory of inflation, which states that the universe underwent a violent expansion in its first micro-moments. After about 300,000 years it cooled enough to allow the matter to form.

Ex-reporter who became homeless dies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Former reporter Michael A. Hobbs, whose stories on the Three Mile Island accident helped The Philadelphia Inquirer win a Pulitzer Prize and who later became homeless and wrote a book about his experience, has died. He was 55.

Hobbs died of a stroke May 16 at Crozer-Chester Medical Center. Hobbs was on the team that covered the 1979 accident at the central Pennsylvania nuclear plant for which the Inquirer won a Pulitzer.

After covering the statehouse in Harrisburg and Philadelphia courtrooms, Hobbs was assigned in 1982 to the Washington bureau. The move may have put too much pressure on him and he left the paper in 1983, said James M. Naughton, former executive editor.

"He was a wonderfully capable reporter who showed great promise early in his career," he said. "The tragedy is that he didn't get to realize it."

Unlike many of his colleagues in the newsroom, Hobbs always wore a coat and tie. Even when he was homeless, he wrote in the 1997 book "Outcast: My Journey from the White House to Homelessness," he tried to get bottles of water to bathe.

"He would disappear for years at a time," said his father, Sterling Hobbs. Eventually, his father said, his son "pulled himself together" and worked at a homeless shelter in New Orleans.

Inmate escapes again

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - A murder suspect who escaped from jail 11 years ago broke out again using the same hole in the same fence.

"You just scream when you hear something like that," said chief jailer Marron Hopkins.

David Ivy, 30, escaped May 16 by crawling through a hole in a fence around an inmate recreation area on the Shelby County jail roof and climbing down a drainpipe.

Jailers could not explain why the hole had not been repaired.

State representative gives last-minute message in Buhl

By Mary Lou Potts
Times-News correspondent

Rep. Celia Gould

BUHL — Since it was where her campaign began, Celia Gould said that's where it should end.
About 100 people gathered at Clear Springs Visitor's Center in Buhl Thursday to get a last-minute message from the Republican state representative, who is seeking the office of lieutenant governor in Tuesday's election.
"Since I kicked my campaign off in my hometown of Buhl, I wanted to wrap it up here as well. I'm proud to be from Buhl," Gould said.
"Someone once told me that I should not mention that I was from Buhl, but to say I was from the Magic Valley when I was speaking in other parts of the state. But I always recognized Buhl as my hometown because my family and roots are here," she said.

Gould thanked her family and husband Bruce Newcomb, the Republican state representative, for Burley, for being present.
The rally was a fund-raiser to finalize her last week of campaigning and was a chance for Gould to thank her supporters from Twin Falls and Gooding counties.

"If Idahoans have problems with our state government, I would like to be able to help them overcome any difficulties. I would like to represent the farming industry and work on the behalf of rural Idahoans," she said.
Hosting the rally were supporters Norma and Bob Blas, Sue and Dick Burwell; Marilyn and Larry Cope; Leslie and Pat Hamlin; Leslie and Jeff Herforth; and Bonita and John Herforth.
The amount of funds raised was not available.

Tribes spend more on initiative

BOISE (AP) — The Coeur d'Alene and Nez Perce tribes pushed their financial commitment to passage of their gambling initiative over $1 million this week.
A report filed with the secretary of state shows that the Coeur d'Alene committed another $150,000 to the campaign this week while the Nez Perce added $30 more.
That brought the Coeur d'Alene's investment in the initiative to $588,000 so far while the Nez Perce have provided $210,000.
Earlier this month, the tribes qualified the initiative for the November ballot. They have said they are committed to spending as much as $3 million to win approval.
The initiative is patterned after a compromise Gov. Dirk Kempthorne negotiated with the tribes. That deal later was rejected by the state Senate.

The initiative would clearly legalize 3,000 electronic gambling machines that have made reservation casinos so profitable. It would restrict the increase in machines over the next decade and earmark 5 percent of profits for state activities off the reservation.
For a decade, the state and tribes have been at odds over the machines.
The state has maintained they are illegal slot machines under the state constitution. The tribes contend the machines are just electronic versions of the state lottery and legal under federal law.
The initiative's organized opposition comes from a group calling itself "Straight Talk: Gambling in Idaho," which has promised to challenge the constitutionality of the initiative in court. It has raised $17,000 to finance the legal action.

Past rulings by the Idaho Supreme Court have suggested the court would not consider the validity of the initiative unless its voters approved.
Former Republican Gov. Phil Batt opposed the machines when the Supreme Court have suggested the court would not consider the validity of the initiative unless its voters approved.
Former Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus also has endorsed compromise and Batt has predicted voters will approve the initiative.

Craig wants feds to rethink layoffs

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Sen. Larry Craig wants the Energy Department to reconsider laying off up to 400 workers at the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory this summer.
In a letter to Energy Secretary Spencer Abraham, Craig argued enough has changed in recent months to warrant taking a second look at the decision.
Site employees were told earlier this week that the layoffs would happen in early August. This is the final part of site contractor Bechtel BWXT's March 2001 strategy to reduce the work force by more than 1,000 within 18 months.
"I am not satisfied that this set of layoffs has been re-examined in light of changes and developments of the past 12 months," Craig wrote. "I am writing to request that such a re-examination be undertaken."

Craig cited two factors — the agreement between the state and federal governments on a pilot waste retrieval project at Pit 9 and the Energy Department's February announcement that it intends to reform and accelerate its entire environmental management program.
Craig argued that the impact of accelerating waste cleanup work has not been taken into account since INEEL job cuts were approved and that it would make no sense to lay off workers now only to have to call them back to meet cleanup deadlines.
The INEEL payroll is now about 7,500 people, down from nearly 900 a decade ago. The site reduced its work force in June when 445 workers opted for early retirement. Another 178 left voluntarily, and last November, 125 were laid off.

Regardless of its own internal plans to speed site cleanup, the court would not consider the validity of the initiative unless its voters approved.
Former Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus also has endorsed compromise and Batt has predicted voters will approve the initiative.

Groups threaten suit over land plan

LEWISTON (AP) — Two environmental groups have notified the Idaho Department of Lands that they will sue to protect endangered animals if the state does not change the way it harvests timber.
The Idaho Conservation League and the Selkirk Conservation Alliance want the state to begin work on a habitat conservation plan. That agreement between states or private groups and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service allows a certain number of endangered fish or animals to be incidentally killed during logging and other activities as long as there is an effort to protect them.

The groups also want the state to take interim measures to protect the fish and wildlife during the years it takes to develop the plan.
Both groups, which recently met with the Land Board headed by Gov. Dirk Kempthorne, claim current timber and road management policies spill sediment into streams to harm bull trout, expose grizzly bears to high road densities and reduce habitat for the few Panhandle caribou by cutting low-elevation old-growth forests.

They particularly object to timber management near Priest Lake and the Floodwood State Forest on the lower end of the Little North Fork River.
But because revenue from timber sales finances public schools, the groups want to work the issue out with the state so some logging can continue.
"We want to work with the Department of Lands to ensure that these sales can go forward without harming wildlife and water quality," John Robinson of the Idaho Conservation League said. "Finding a balance here is critical."

Car crash on Utah interstate kills three

BEAVER, Utah (AP) — An early-morning crash on Interstate 15 left three Snydery residents dead.
The Utah Highway Patrol says Allison Liddell, 17, was driving a Honda Civic with her mother, 54-year-old Valerie Liddell, and a friend, Jara Ludlow, 17. The three were on their way to Lake Powell for the holiday weekend.
At about 2 a.m. the car drifted to the right, and the driver overcorrected, sending the car veering across the median and into oncoming traffic, investigators said. The car collided with a pickup truck. "The victims' died" at the scene.
Utah Highway Patrol spokesman Doug McCleve said the accident appears consistent with a driver who fell asleep. Allison Liddell and her mother were wearing seat belts, but Ludlow was not, McCleve said.

Physicist says clear ice chunk fell from a plane

ODGEN, Utah (AP) — A Weber State University physics professor has concluded that the ice chunk that fell out of the sky Sunday in North Logan did not come from space, and "it would be unbelievable that it came from anything other than an aircraft."
John Sohl said his analysis of the clear ice did not find the dirt and dust that would have been expected from an object from space.

"There's not an indication of cyanide or any of the other elements consistent with cometary ice," he said.
Sohl's analysis concluded there was no tap water having chemical differences that would indicate it came from some other municipality's water supply.

Kempthorne declares drought emergency for Bingham County

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Dirk Kempthorne on Friday declared a drought emergency for Bingham County.
Eastern Idaho's snowpack is well below average and there is scant snow on the ground in the Blackfoot Reservoir is expected to be just 54 percent of normal.

The emergency declaration enables the Department of Water Resources to expedite temporary water rights or changes in existing rights.
Kempthorne has declared a drought emergency in Burley, Bonneville and Blaine counties already this year.

One person attends hearing

By Shar Chaney
Times-News writer

RUPERT—Just one person attended the final public hearing for the Minidoka County and city zoning ordinance.

The Minidoka County commissioners held the public hearing on Friday, Rep. Bert Stevenson, R-Rupert, had a few questions regarding the ordinance, mostly regarding dairies and other confined animal feeding operations.

Many people were involved while the ordinance was being revised; that is probably the reason there has been little comment at public hearings held about the ordinance, said Paul Aston, Minidoka County planning and zoning administrator.

Stevenson asked about the classifications of CAFOs. There will be three classifications, including "industrial" for the largest dairies. Stevenson was concerned with using the word industrial for an agricultural business.

Aston said he has a way to designate the different classifications and shouldn't be a problem. "You could call it 'great big,'" said Rick Bollar, Minidoka County prosecuting attorney.

Among other things are new chapters include regulating sexually orientated business and cell phone towers.

Sexually orientated businesses are not prohibited, Aston said, but the ordinance "very strongly regulates them."

Many people were involved while the ordinance was being revised; that is probably the reason there has been little comment at public hearings held about the ordinance, said Paul Aston, Minidoka County planning and zoning administrator.

Cellular phone towers in residential areas must be camouflaged, Aston said, and tall towers are only allowed in industrial and agricultural zones.

One of the major reasons the ordinance was revised, Aston said, was due to recent court rulings that do not allow cities to make zoning decisions about areas of impact. The new ordinance gives cities the option to review zoning applications in areas of impact, but county officials will have final approval.

Other commission business included:

- Extension office - Commissioners, and commissioner candidates, heard updates on extension office programs and how budget cuts might affect the services provided.

Cuts to the University of Idaho will affect the county extension office. The university must decrease budgets by $33.7 million over three years, said Matt Schuster, extension educator.

More than 50 employees will leave the university's college of agriculture, Schuster said, some from Mini-Cassia, Joan Farr, extension educator in Cassia County, is one who will take early retirement.

Extension programs might be restructured in order to continue, Schuster said. At this point, counties will not be asked for more money to support programs. More cooperation might be needed if programs cross county lines, he said.

• Human resources officer - The commission might hire Keri Perriotto, human resource director at Minidoka Memorial Hospital, to do exit interviews and to hear grievances of county employees.

Perriotto advised commissioners on training which could be held and offered other people who may be better for the job. Perriotto said she is very busy at the hospital and her services as a consultant for the county might be too expensive.

Current rates for a consultant range between $150-$200 per hour, Perriotto said.

Declo author plans to organize poetry group

By Orlo Young
Times-News correspondent

DECLO - With a plan in mind to let her children - and herself - experience more of life, Carol Spelius set out with her four children in June 1958 on a cross-country adventure.

The Spelius family boarded a 19-foot outboard boat, dubbed Momoiso, to travel from Fort Benton, Mont., to Cincinnati, Ohio. The 3.5-month journey would encompass 3,400 miles of the Missouri, Mississippi and Ohio rivers.

Carol Spelius and her children - Susan, then age 2, Chris, 6, Christine, 9, and Wayne, 15 - shared adventures on that trip which provided her with plenty of information to write stories and poetry about. And it set the stage for the family to continue those adventures and for Carol Spelius to continue writing about her life.

She Wayne now helps Spelius manage Lake Shore Publishing. Daughter Christine is a veterinarian in Declo. Son Chris is a kayak guide and half owner of a hotel in

They were impressionable, idealistic, full of energy - one on the brink of manhood, knowing little of our country except from the printed page. I wanted them to know and love the aloneness of the outdoors, the peace of an empty open sky at sunset. And I wanted some grand adventure to share with them before time left me too old to care.'*

New Spelius is interested in forming a National Poets Society chapter in southern Idaho. Anyone interested in joining or helping to establish the chapter may call Spelius, who lives in Declo, at 678-6378.

Spelius has received many writing awards including Friends of Literature for "AQUEUS & other Tales," a collection of short stories. Other books she's published are "Gatherings Six in One," which contains much of her poetry; "How We Got Here From There," a compilation of short stories describing family experiences; and "I, Mancha," which takes the personalities of three of her daughter's dogs, rolled into one.

Spelius operates Lake Shore Publishing Co., which she founded as a favor to several of her poet friends who needed a source to release their works. It began as a co-op.

"I thought publishing was just publishing, but the selling is a completely different thing. We sold only by word of mouth, and we had readings. People would attend the readings and if they liked them, they would buy the book," she said.

The state highway into Truchas remained closed Friday.

Fire engines were positioned around clusters of homes and other buildings in Truchas in case the fire should spread. Fire information officer Charlie Jankiewicz said the flames were less than a mile from some parts of town.

No structures were lost in Truchas or the nearby village of Cordova, which also evacuated Thursday. Cordova residents returned Friday.

Review: Filter clogged before plane dropped

BOISE (AP) - Federal investigators say a float plane had no fuel going into one of its two engines before it dropped out Vanessa McFarland's roof.

An investigation led by Debra Eckrote, air safety investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board, concluded a clogged fuel filter blocked gas to the right engine of the Grumman G-44 Widgeon on May 16.

"Which means the engine couldn't run," she said. "It is hard to say how the fuel filter clogged. Filters are there to filter out contaminants."

Eckrote said the sea plane could operate with one engine, but the pilot would have to take specific precautions.

Pilot Patrick Coyle, 47, of Orange Park, Fla., and passenger Steve Sullivan, 46, of Jacksonville, Fla., were flying from the Boise Airport when the plane lost altitude, hitting towers and a power pole before landing on the roof. Both men have left a Boise hospital and returned home.

Baseball fan's ashes prompt haz-mat scare

SEATTLE (AP) - A baseball fan's cremated ashes were dropped over Safeco Field by a low-flying plane Friday, prompting a hazardous materials scare.

The ash-filled container was dropped from a Cessna plane and hit the stadium roof at mid-morning, Seattle Fire Lt. Harold Webb said.

Someone called 911.

Hazardous materials crews responded, closing off the streets around the stadium. No one on the ground was hurt, and the streets were reopened in about an hour.

The identity of the remains was not immediately known.

"There was a spouse on board and her husband was a pilot and a great Mariners fan, and wanted some of his ashes scattered over Safeco Field," Dave Zemmer, a Wings Aloft flight instructor, told KIRO-TV. "We've spoken to the FAA. There were no violations. The pilot was talking to the tower while all this was going on."

But FAA regional spokesman Allen Kenitzer said the agency would investigate and could enforce civil penalties, including fines against the company or suspension of the pilot's license.

The plane flew out of Boeing Field, about four miles south of the ballpark.

"We're certainly not pleased," Mariners spokesman Tim Hevly said before Seattle played the Baltimore Orioles on Friday night.

Hevly said the ash container bounced off the roof and landed on a street north of the stadium.

Mariners head groundskeeper Bob Christoffersen said there was no trace of any ashes inside.

Court: EPA must rework plan to cut park pollution

WASHINGTON (AP) - A federal appeals court directed the Environmental Protection Agency on Friday to rework its plan to cut pollution in national parks, saying part of its 1999 regulation was unlawful.

The EPA rule requires states to take action to reduce air pollution from power plants and other sources whose emissions drift often hundreds of miles - causing haze and visibility problems in remote areas such as national parks and wilderness.

A three-judge panel on Friday in a 2-1 decision upheld the fundamental goal of the program. But the ruling said an EPA requirement that states must require the "best available technology" to cut pollution is unlawful because it undermines states' ability to decide how best to address the problem.

At the same time, the judges rejected an industry petition that asked that the entire rule be scuttled, claiming the EPA's goal of returning parks and wilderness areas to their "natural visibility" was arbitrary.

Winds cause concern around New Mexico wildfire

TRUCHAS, N.M. (AP) - Wind kicked up Friday in northern New Mexico, raising new concern about a forest fire that forced hundreds of people from their homes a day earlier.

"I had some pretty good wind in the afternoon," said fire information officer Charlie Jankiewicz. "We were starting to pinch off the back, but the front of the fire went where it wanted to go."

Incident commander Van Bateman estimated that the blaze had burned close to 8,000 acres by Friday evening, nearly double its size during the morning hours. Officials planned to fly the fire overnight to get a more accurate acreage.

The good news, Jankiewicz said, was that the fire was moving northeast away from the town of Truchas.

Elsewhere in the West, cooler temperatures and overcast skies provided some relief for firefighters at a blaze burning on 4,000 acres in Colorado Friday.

The fire, believed to have been sparked by lightning Tuesday, has burned 13 structures, including two summer homes and two other homes. Five structures at a youth camp

Former Envirocare CEO sues company

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Former Envirocare President Charles Judd has sued the radioactive-waste disposal company, claiming that its owner, Kinross Semnani, blocked his attempt to establish his own business.

Judd, who left Envirocare earlier this year, claims that Semnani has engaged in "willful, malicious and intentionally fraudulent" conduct, costing Judd more than $5 million.

Judd "is a disgruntled former employee who is unhappy he is no longer with the company," said Craig Thorley, general counsel for Envirocare of Utah Inc., which runs a low-level radioactive waste dump in Tooele County about 85 miles west of Salt Lake City.

Although he had not seen the lawsuit, which was filed Thursday in 3rd District Court, Thorley said: "Based on (Judd's) recent actions I would expect it to be inflammatory."

Judd, a civil engineer, was with Semnani when he formed the company in 1988 and became executive vice president in 1994.

He became president after Semnani was forced to resign from the job in 1997 because of his relationship with a former state regulator.

Judd's suit contends he was wrongfully terminated in January and since then Semnani has intentionally interfered with his attempt to begin his own business.

Judd sought work at a tolling cleanup project in Grand County, but Semnani prevented him from getting the job by invoking a no-competition clause in an employment agreement between Judd and Envirocare, the suit alleges.

Judd's suit also alleges Semnani spread lies that Judd had stolen Envirocare property.

Judd is seeking unspecified compensatory and punitive damages against the company and Semnani.

Idaho Senate, District 27 candidates

Republicans Ralph "Moon" Wheeler and Denton Darrington are running in the May 28 primary for the Senate in one of the state's larger districts. District 27 runs from the western Cassia County line halfway to the Wyoming state border. To the south, it serves as the dividing line between Idaho and Utah. Voters from Cassia County on the west side of the district have a 58 percent advantage.

He also pointed out the average Idaho teacher makes $39,000 this coming year, second only to Colorado in the mountain west. In addition, over the past five years Idaho has increased its annual funding per student from $4,290 to $5,364.

Sowing seeds of peace

Program fosters understanding between enemies

MOSCOW (AP) - Hassan Halta remembers the first time he saw an Israeli as someone other than the enemy.

"It was the first night of the camp and I had never met an Israeli before," said Halta, 20, a Palestinian from the city of Tularam on the West Bank.

He struck up a conversation with the other youth in a bunk next to him at the 1996 Seeds of Peace camp in Maine.

"We started talking and in the context of the conversation I really forgot he was an Israeli," Halta said. "I really started seeing a human face in this person."

Such is the goal of Seeds of Peace, an organization that brings Palestinian and Israeli young people together for a summer camp experience that allows each side to see the other outside of the conflict.

Halta, along with others involved with Seeds of Peace, visited the University of Idaho this spring for the Borah Symposium, which focused on the Palestinian-Israeli conflict.

"That was my major turning point in the whole conflict," said Halta, who now studies at Earlham College in Indiana.

Seeds of Peace started in 1993 with 46 students. That year, students in the program ended up on the White House lawn for the signing of the Oslo accords.

Since then, over 1,600 youth from countries embroiled in conflict, such as India and Pakistan, have participated in the program, said co-founder Barbara Gotschalk.

"It's easy to blame, generalize and threaten if you're angry at people on the other side," Gotschalk said.

For students in the program, she said those feelings change.

"You can't hold them in the same light as you always have as the faceless, monolithic enemy."

Eli Shteinberg lives in Haifa, an Israeli city with a large Arab population. For the first nine years he lived there, he said he knew little about his Arab neighbors.

"To me they were - I wouldn't say the enemy, but I know nothing about their culture. I had no Arab friends," said Shteinberg, 18.

When he participated in the program in 1999, that changed.

"You lose this feeling that you're sitting in front of your enemy, that you're supposed to fight with them. It really makes you feel that those on the other side are people, just like you."

side attack on a bus earlier this month that killed eight Israelis.

"The general feeling among my circle of friends in Seeds of Peace is frustration," Shteinberg said. "We feel there is very little we can do, which is not true - we can do a lot - but it is hard for us."

Any person injured or killed could be a friend or family member, he said.

Halta said peace will come through people on each side building relationships with the others.

"You cannot force peace on anyone. If we're going to wait for Sharon and Arafat to shake hands, we will be waiting until the end of days," he said.

Gotschalk said helping young people see their abilities to find peaceful solutions to conflicts is the goal of the program.

"It shows people traditionally at war with each other that it doesn't have to be that way. It's not preordained."

feeling that you're sitting in front of your enemy, that you're supposed to fight with them," he said. "It really makes you feel that those on the other side are people, just like you."

The students also discussed the current conflict. Shteinberg's city of Haifa has been the site of three major bombings, including a sui-

Ranchers Raymond Yowall, left, and Myron Tybo, right, look at a brand inspection certificate that Nevada State Brand inspector Jim Connolly holds Friday in Elko. Nevada agriculture law officer Dennis Journein looks on. Earlier in the day, the BLM seized 150 head of the Te-Moak Band Western Shoshone tribe's cattle after the tribe quit paying federal grazing permit fees.

Feds seize cattle near Elko

RENO, Nev. (AP) - Bureau of Land Management officials seized about 150 cattle they say a tribe was grazing illegally on federal land in northeast Nevada Friday and notified two leading state's rights activists their trespassing livestock could be next.

The activists, third-party gubernatorial candidate David Holmgren and his wife Jackie, warned that the first federal cattle confiscations in Nevada since last summer were sure to touch off a storm of opposition.

The Holmgrens, Mineral County ranchers, are officers of the Nevada Committee for Full Statehood, which does not recognize federal ownership of land in the state.

"The government is to protect the people's property, not the rustlers," said David Holmgren, who filed last week as a candidate for governor for the Independent American Party, the third-largest political party in Nevada with 14,863 members.

"It's time to take a stand in defense of life, liberty and property," said Mrs. Holmgren, who is running for the state legislature.

BLM says state's rights advocates' cows could be next for the same party, which places a premium in private property rights.

BLM officials notified the Mineral County sheriff Thursday night they were initiating impoundment procedures against the Holmgrens, demanding the couple comply with conditions of their federal grazing permit limiting cattle access in summer months or face confiscation.

BLM spokesman Jo Simpson said the Holmgrens have a permit to graze 900 cattle on the federal allotment in central Nevada in winter months, but are continuing to graze about 500 there at a time now when only 150 are allowed.

BLM officials initiated an aerial count of the Holmgrens' cattle on Thursday, but backed off when ranchers gathered in the area, Simpson said.

"Some people on the ground made the pilot uncomfortable, so they did not complete the census," she said. She said she did not know if the ranchers had guns or any other details about the incident.

The BLM seized without incident about 150 cattle from the Te-Moak Band Western Shoshone tribe south of Elko near Spring Creek Friday morning, Simpson said.

"It was peaceful. There was absolutely no problem," she said. The tribe's Te-Moak Livestock Association held a federal grazing permit to graze cattle on the lands from 1940 to 1984, but quit paying the fees to the BLM in 1984, claiming tribal title to the public land.

"In order for the United States to charge us for grazing, we felt they had to show us how they acquired the territory," Raymond Yowall of the Te-Moak Livestock Association told the Elko Daily Free Press. He said the government has failed to do that.

Bob Abbey, BLM Nevada state director, said the agency tried to work with the tribe "in every possible fashion" over the years to resolve the dispute.

summer, said Ken Blake, Jackpot Recreation Center director.

In order to qualify for free swimming, children must take four free swimming lessons, Blake said. Once the swimming lessons are complete, children can swim free the rest of the summer. He said that along with the swimming lessons, proper pool etiquette is taught.

Several sites were identified, and Billin and Fonger will do a feasibility study on the top three sites. They will give the board their recommendations in June.

Voos said the structure would save Jackpot residents money in the long run. At the present, 13 to 14 trips per month are needed to transport Jackpot's 200 tons of solid waste every month. Once the weight of each shipment can increase, that number can be reduced to 10.

He said that since the town is required to pay by the load plus tonnage, there will be a savings of up to 25 percent a year. The money to fund this project will come from Jackpot's solid waste budget.

Other Jackpot business this week included:

- Street projects - The public works department has completed crack-sealing projects on about half of the city's streets this year, said public works supervisor Ed Ellis.

He also reported that the Gurley Drive renovation is scheduled for 2003-2004. The city will accept bids in January or February. The project will include a new roundabout, along with curbs, gutters and sidewalks.

Free swimming - The Jackpot Civic Club is offering free swimming to Jackpot youth again this

Jackpot considers transfer station

By Sam Felman Times-News correspondent

JACKPOT, Nev. - Officials are looking to build a permanent waste transfer station in Jackpot that's expected to cut costs by 25 percent.

It is time to do away with Jackpot's temporary transfer station, said Charles Voos, Elko County community development director. The facility was put in place for a quick fix to Jackpot's solid waste problem when the federal government closed the landfill in 1997, and the waste was transferred to Southern Idaho Solid Waste's Milner Butte landfill in Cassia County.

Engineer Evan G. Fonger and Sam J. Billin, senior project manager with BTW Professional Engineers and Consultants Inc. of Elko, have been hired to assess the needs, find a proper site for the new station, design a basic facility, and determine the cost. Their work is funded by a community development block grant.

Billin told the Jackpot Advisory Board this week the structure needed to be a three-sided building in a location that can handle trucks carrying a lot of weight. The traffic count will not be high, but the weight of the loads will increase. The temporary site sits at the end of Ace Drive, which Voos said was not designed for

Repealing term limits helps the Magic Valley

Don't cast blame around - reach out for solutions

Gov. Kempthorne, administrators - who cares who's to blame; let's fix it.

The Times-News article titled "Silence" on the front page on May 16, the picture accompanying the article shows fifth- and sixth-graders playing violins. Wow! This is money well spent. You are going to silence this program. Get your priorities in order. You silence this and you will increase drugs in the future.

If you're letting go so many teachers, why do you need so many administrators? Let one or two of them go and put back in the music program.

Why so many drug counselors, three, you say, let their families pay their own bills and put back in the music. Support our sports, arts, music and, No. 1, teachers. That makes us what we are.

We elected you to do your job. These activities prevent problems. Find the money, support these programs. That's the reason we elected you as our governor. Let me know what I can do to help. Put the music programs back in our schools. Check out the people that are making these decisions. Support our children and teachers.

P.S. Music is the heart of our soul. Don't take that away from our children of Idaho.

LINDA SCHIEPP
Twin Falls

Don't oust incumbents to jump on term-limit bandwagon

We have an election coming May 28. It would be a wrong reason to replace any of our present elected officials simply because of term limits promoted by the big boys and their out-of-state money chest. The big cry of support is that our voters approved term limits. Cassia voters turned down term limits in their vote in 1998, due to the fact that 1,084 voters changed their mind following the 1994 elections.

Projecting this same percentage decline in support, we would now find, in 2002, a very small minority in support. Following careful study of the effects of term limits, most of us changed our minds and opposed term limits as did this writer. There is no landslide of support in our country, so let's not climb on what some may project as a "bandwagon" for support.

Bruce Newcomb has outlined his various reasons for rejecting term limits, saying that it "might cost him his job," however, it was the "right thing to do" for our country. Denton Darrington and Scott Hedke both concur. At the time of their "no" vote, it was not "politically expedient." Isn't it great that they would put the welfare of our county ahead of their own political future?

I earned my right to vote as a member of the armed forces on Okinawa in World War II, an out-of-state dollars or influence should take away this right. Another reason for rejecting term limits I cited in a previous letter was that it would make for "lame ducks" and confusion in our public offices. As a longtime member of the state accreditation committee, we put a "red flag" on schools with a high turnover of trustees, administrators and teachers. Many were further evaluated and placed on the "warned" or "advised" list.

When I enter the booth on Tuesday, I will ignore the term in office of any candidate and vote only on their leadership, experience and accomplishments. I hope you will do the same.

P.S. Wouldn't it be nice to have a lieutenant governor in the same house with an allegiance to our country who has expressed a desire to work with our local officials on economic

Don't vote for politicians who try to buy their position

The race is on! For one, don't want to see anyone buy his or her way into any electoral seat in any state but especially not in the state of Idaho.

Alan Blinken is a multi-millionaire who is trying to buy his way into the Senate seat now occupied by Larry Craig. Thus far, he has spent more than $126,000 in television advertising alone. Before this election is over, he could possibly spend several millions of dollars to try to achieve his goal and steal the Senate seat. That's more than any other candidate has spent in our state.

He has bought his way into every position he has ever had. He was Bill Clinton's ambassador to Belgium because he gave thousands of dollars to Clinton and the Democratic Party to gain that position. From what I have been told, he did not have a lot of friends in the embassy.

It is time we sent a very important message to all politicians who think they can buy your vote, especially Mr. Blinken. In the great state of Idaho, it's not money that gets you elected; it's where you stand on the issues that affect us all.

Get out and vote, and make your vote count. Re-elect Larry Craig to the Senate. He's the man who should represent us in Washington, D.C. He has become a personal friend of President George Bush.

Grindstaff has led life style full of productivity, service

It has been my privilege to know Gary Grindstaff for many years in many ways as a community and state servant. From Filer High School to farming, dairying in the Filer and Buhl areas, Gary has led a productive lifestyle.

I served with Gary in many soil and water conservation tasks. From the local Basalt Rock Conservation District, Gary moved into Twin Falls County, then on to state president of the Idaho Association of State Conservation Districts. I worked with Gary on a number of occasions through this period in his life and found him to be a very dutiful and dedicated leader.

Gary moved on to serve on the State Soil Conservation Commission and was soon elected chairman of the commission. Again Gary has spent many long hours helping guide funding and policy to local districts, which in turn helps farmers and farm communities with conservation problems. Gary also served many years on the fair board and continues to serve on the fair foundation as a past president and ongoing member.

As I was at this time serving as precinct committeeman and chairman of Twin Falls County where he served well for many years. From this point in time, Gary decided he would like to better serve the county he grew up in. He was appointed by the governor to complete the term of Karla Reed as county commissioner, then re-elected the next two years.

Having served as county commissioner, Gary has helped guide the commissioners through many difficult decisions: dairy ordinances, county budgets, county jail problems and many more. I don't have time to list many of the accomplishments of Gary as a leader in the community, but I believe he is very dedicated to do any job commitment he signs on for. I encourage you to vote for Gary Grindstaff for county commissioner May 28.

I was truly honored when Gov. Kempthorne selected me to fill the seat of Rep. George Swan.

I was honored to represent the interests of the Magic Valley, and I was honored to be Rep. Swan's successor.

My first legislative session was an educational experience. We had tough budget decisions to make and had to address the issue of term limits. Much has been said about my term limits decision, and I thought it was important to share with everyone my views.

I did not vote for personal gain. As a freshman legislator, term limits did not affect me. In fact, it would have been to my advantage to have term limits because I would have had seniority over all new legislators. I voted as I did because I believe it was the right thing to do for the Magic Valley for several reasons.

First, according to the county clerk records, the majority of the people in my district voted against term limits. My vote to repeal term limits reflected the vote of the people who I represent.

Second, it is apparent to me that Magic Valley has an unusual amount of influence in the Legislature because of the seniority of our legislators. Almost every legislator in the Magic Valley is the chairman of a committee, a very influential position. With term limits, all of these legislators would have been eliminated and the Magic Valley would have been hurt. The chairmanships would have gone to the more populous Ada County, and we would not be able to get them back because we don't have enough votes. This is a rural vs. metropolitan area issue. Term limits help Ada County. They hurt the Magic Valley.

Finally, I voted for the repeal because big money for term limits is coming from out of state.

Why do out-of-staters care so much about politics in Idaho? They know that if they can remove our experienced legislators from office and replace them with inexperienced, more liberal members, out-of-state interests can take our water and power. My Idaho friends, do not be deceived, out-of-state interests want to buy our state. They are spending thousands of dollars to defeat my campaign because I stood firm for the Magic Valley. I would appreciate your vote in the Republican primary on May 28.

Sharon Block is a Republican candidate for representative in District 24.

Commissioners form most important part of officials.

To the folks of Cassia County: I feel the commissioners are the most important part of our elected officials. At every meeting, there is business done that affects all residents of the county.

They are the ones that make a difference and have an immediate impact on the citizens they represent. They have to look out for the benefit of all, both the "city folks" and the "country folks." They must find a balance in all they do and every vote they cast because it affects everyone in the county. They make a difference in the economic, moral and social areas of our county.

Just being a county commissioner is a small part of the job. You need to be a leader as well as a listener.

I don't have time to put down all the reasons I am supporting Mike Cranney for Cassia County commissioner, but here are a few: I have known Mike all my life, and he has always been a man of character and integrity. He has morals and principles which have been an asset to him and those who have associated with him.

He has been a man of his word and has had good business ethics in his dealings. Mike is a person with some "new" ideas that will help the county with the problems it faces. Mike is a leader, but a better listener. "Show me a leader, and I will show you a listener." Mike has always been optimistic. No matter how bad things can get, he sees the "cup half full, not half empty."

Mike has not had pride in anything he does, and this goes back to having a positive attitude. If you want a definite change in the county commissioners, vote for Mike Cranney. If you want status quo, vote for one of the other candidates.

Cranney's accomplishments outweigh any shortcomings

I am pleased with the amount of interest being shown for a Cassia County commissioner seat. I really appreciate the five people that have stepped forward willing to share their time and expertise for this position. So often folks like me only offer criticism after decisions have been made. A thank you should be offered for service rendered, not only on the county commission but school board, water and utility boards and other public service.

I have chosen to support Mike Cranney for the Cassia County Commission seat. Let me say publicly, Mike has all his "baggage," as do all of us. But I find his talents and accomplishments far outweigh any shortcomings I perceive.

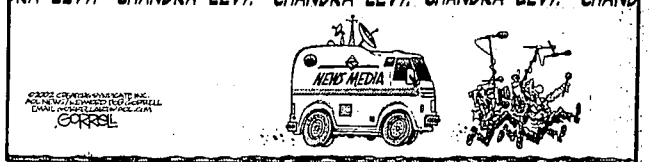

Mike has served for years as a state and national leader in potato issues. We all remember the ABK scare in Washington apple production. Mike was at the helm of the National Potato Council when we had the Temik scare in potatoes. He wisely and calmly handled the situation. He knows how to manage extremely high dollar delicate situations.

Mike Cranney is one of the core group that organized and created the Southwest Irrigation District. The foresight of that irrigation district has had a large positive impact on our water users south and east of Buley.

It was Mike Cranney that was the "pusher" to create the overlay plan for Cassia County confined animal feeding operation development. I believe there will be major growth in the dairy industry in our near future, and Mike's plan has already been adopted by our planning and zoning.

Mike has a very deep and seasoned knowledge of Idaho water and power structure, including rural and generation.

It's a great opportunity for the voters of Cassia County to have so much talent offered for our benefit.

Candidate's record shows he has acted with dignity

For the past several years, Minidoka County assessor Max Vaughn has attempted to assist subdivision owners in rural areas in receipt of tax exemption from residential taxation pending the sale of lots in subdivisions.

In his attempt to apply the tax code to various subdivisions, he was informed by the office of the attorney general that Idaho Code Section 60-304 was so unclear as to lack any ability for enforcement. As a result of that, he introduced HB 487 to clarify the language. In conjunction with that, HB 488 was introduced to allow certain rural subdivisions to have exemptions.

Max Vaughn lobbied extensively to expand the definition of HB 488 to include any subdivision within city limits. Max Vaughn has continued to attempt to fashion a method of assessment that fairly looks at all properties in Minidoka County to fairly provide revenues for governmental services.

There will always be those who believe the tax burden falls unfairly upon them. But the effort to equitably solicit revenues for the required taxes to provide services to county residents continues. His efforts on behalf of those residents is reflected in his legislative history, together with his involvement in rules-making to clarify the tax law.

He should be judged on the fairness of his record and his efforts to perform a difficult and unpopular task with equity and dignity.

Report gives insight into why young people don't vote

With the election just a few days away, we will again wonder why so few young people vote. Let me give you one possibility. On April 14, I bought the Sunday New York Times. I was interested to see what kind of coverage was given to the NIAAA report that included 1,400 deaths on college campuses from alcohol or drug abuse. There was a full page on the awards given the Times by the Pulitzer group - 51 pages "Education Life," and under 3 inches on 1,400 deaths, 500,000 injuries, 630,000 assaults and 71,000 date rapes. This is a summary dismissal of young people and their problems. They are told that they are unimportant and their life-threatening behavior holds no interest for the adult community. Would you want to participate in that kind of society? I think not. Columbia University has had the same dismissal of its California report since 1994. Parents, the press, teachers, preachers and all share the same lack of interest.

Black's dark-side politics failed to tell the whole story

Mr. Black, in his zeal to get detected to the Legislature, uses the dark side of politics to try to discredit his opponent in a May 22 reader comment in The Times-News. He fails to tell the whole truth. Or even half of it. Rep. Sharon Block wisely joined the 61-7 majority in the House (the Senate vote was 27-8) to support an innovative partnership between the private sector, the University of Idaho, Idaho State University and state and federal water agencies to construct on a lease/purchase basis badly needed facilities.

The legislative authorization, sponsored by the speaker of the House and the pro tem of the Senate, is unique in a degree of cooperation and economic efficiency rarely seen in government. Utah Boise programs will move from expensive leased quarters and join BSU Boise health programs under one roof. The Idaho Department of Water Resources must also move from leased quarters and will join the UI Water Resources Research Institute and some federal water management agencies in the same facility. The quantity and quality of much-needed groundwater and other research efforts will be greatly expanded at little added cost. Masters and Ph.D. students will help untangle the great challenges of future water management in Idaho. A portion of the facility will be leased to private parties, including some retail establishments, to pay for part of the costs of overall bond service.

The project has been given the least-cost seal of approval from private accountants, the Idaho Housing Authority and the Department of Administration. Contrary to Mr. Black's charges, support for this project does not affect the 2003 budgets at all. It took nothing away from public schools or the College of Southern Idaho. It might even serve, at some future time, as an interesting model for providing four-year educational opportunities for the Magic Valley.

Seventeen of 18 Magic Valley legislators voted yes. Good vote, Sharon! SEN. LAIRD NOH Kimberly

Candidate misunderstanding or misrepresented SB1391

I was very disappointed to hear Ron Black's misleading attack ads which misstate the effect of SB 1391. I was also disappointed when Mr. Black continued on with his incorrect statements in the space generously provided by The Times-News in its May 22 edition. SB 1391 changed annexation procedures in Idaho. Before this law was passed, cities had broad powers to annex property. SB 1391 gives new rights to property owners and makes the exercise of the cities' annexation powers more difficult. The effect of SB 1391 is exactly the opposite from what Mr. Black states it is. The bill gives citizens in areas subject to annexation new rights, including voting rights, which they did not have before.

As a former member of the city of Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission, I can say that SB 1391 is a big step toward protecting individual property rights. I do not know if Mr. Black simply did not understand the legislation or if this is just cynical and misleading campaigning. Either give me pause.

I will be voting for the candidate who understands complex legislation and stands up for individual rights in the primary election. And that candidate is most certainly Sharon Block. In Mr. Black's words, "the choice is obvious."

Handy will listen to problems and implement solutions

I was really pleased to learn that Clay Handy had filed to run for the open county commissioner seat in Cassia County.

In the mid '80s, I accepted an appointment to return to the Burley City Council to fill out the two years remaining of a regular term. One of the pleasures of that experience was working alongside of Clay Handy. He demonstrated the ability to understand the problems that faced the council in its planning for the city but also the ability to move ahead and assure that those plans were implemented.

We need his talent of listening, understanding and finding a balance to resolve the many issues that are always facing local government. He has shown it before. I am sure he will again.

You are officially implored to vote for Scott Bedke

I implore you to vote with me for Scott Bedke for state representative in the newly formed 27th legislative district. He has served me well and even disregarded political party and religious differences. Here is the story:

I had a problem which many of us faced that I believed was discriminatory against those of us who pay by cash and not credit cards. When I told Rep. Scott Bedke about my concern, he immediately took the ball in his court and became the floor sponsor for the bill to the House, even as a freshman representative. He saw an injustice and, within two months, he and Sen. Goettle had a bill being signed by the governor making it unlawful to use credit history or rating as a primary scoring for determining premiums. Thanks, Rep. Scott Bedke, you served me and a lot of others well. You listened and did something! You deserve to be re-elected. LOREEN GORRINGE Oakley

Candidate shows character, intelligence, integrity, trust

Prior to my retirement, I spent 25 years in international banking working with national and international businessmen and politicians. It is always refreshing to deal with people of character, intelligence, integrity and trustworthiness - qualities desperately in demand in our political system. I have known Scott Bedke for a number of years as a valued member of the community and colleague on city council. He is studious, thorough and possesses all of the aforementioned qualities which ideally qualify him for re-election to the Idaho House of Representatives for District 27.

I can endorse Scott Bedke without reservation and urge you to favorably consider his candidacy. ROBERT G. FEHLMAN Oakley

Bruin girls take third place at state track meet

Eagle teams sweep 5A meet

By John Derr Times-News writer

BOISE - Strong performances from the Bruins propelled the Twin Falls relay girls to a third-place finish in the 5A Idaho Track and Field Championships Friday night at Bronco Stadium at Boise State University.

Eagle claimed the state title with 90.5 points followed by Lake City of Coeur d'Alene with 77. The Bruins scored 63 points to finish ahead of Meridian (59) and come home with a trophy.

"What an accomplishment. We are proud of our team, we worked hard today," senior team captain Megan Greenwood said.

Fellow captain Kim Strunk added, "This is the best group I have ever got to work with and I am glad it has to end."

Minico finished in eighth place with 41 points.

In the boys meet Eagle (120) earned the sweep while Meridian captured second (95). Twin Falls took 10th place with 28.5 points while Minico was 12th with 22 points.

BOISE - After a solid start Thursday from the throwers, Melissa McLimore brought it home with a pair of gold medals to lead Jerome to a second straight 4A girls state track and field championship Friday during the Idaho Track and Field Championships at Boise State University.

The Tigers got 28 points from McLimore to claim their fourth title in five years totaling 85 points. Moscow came in second with 76. Skyview was third with 72 points.

"The throwers did well and McLimore was outstanding," Jerome girls coach Elmer Mervig said. "Kids that were supposed to pick up points did and that was the key."

Burley finished strong to take home the fourth-place trophy with 70 points.

"I knew they could do it. We got individual championships from Lindsey Abo and Tiffany Anderson, but it was a team effort and everyone performed well," Burley coach Hal Strain said.

In the boys meet, Bishop Kelly tallied 130 points to top Vallista (104.5). Moscow was a distant third. Jerome collected 39 points to finish sixth while the Burley boys came in fourteenth with 18 points.

Local teams lead small school points races

By Scott Thompson Times-News writer

BOISE - Carin Patterson held off a charge near the end but still managed to successfully defend her 3,200-meter state title Friday with a tremendous finishing kick at the 2002 Idaho Track and Field Championships at Bronco Stadium at Boise State University.

Patterson's effort led a host of Magic Valley athletes who won titles on the middle day of the meet.

The Gooding High runner, who is also the reigning 1,600-meter champion, sat back in second place through much of the race but took the lead with three laps to go.

"She had a momentary scare when Sugar-Sikes Keri Fuller passed her with about 300 meters to go."

5A state track and field

Girls

The Bruins 4x200 relay team earned the first gold of the night for the Magic Valley. After the same team finished second last year, they were determined to move up.

Greenwood took the first leg, and then Lynsey Scherbinke moved the team into first place.

"I was really trying because I knew I had to get a good lead," said Scherbinke.

Stephanie Davis took the solid handoff and pushed the Bruins further into the lead. Down the stretch the anchor leg runner Kylie Boggs had to hold off Skyview.

"I couldn't feel her until the last 25 yards. I knew I had to give it all I have now," Boggs said.

After a delay to check the photo, the team let out a yell as they were informed of their victory.

Sprinter Orla Walsh from Twin Falls grabbed a second (100) and third (200) in the sprints.

"I think it was outstanding for a sophomore. I thought I would come in here and finish eighth," she said. "I made the goals I wanted to."

Walsh joined teammates Scherbinke, Davis and Greenwood for a third place finish in the 4x100 relay.

Minico's Monica Jensen finished second in the 300 hurdles, third in the 100 hurdles and fifth in the long jump to go along with her relay.

"It could be a pretty heavy," said Jensen, whose main goal for next year is to win the triple jump for the fourth time.

Strunk placed in both the hurdle events. She took fifth in the 110 and sixth in the 300.

Strunk joined the 4x400-relay team along with Jamie Barbourka, Boggs and Laura Grindstaff that finished fifth in the final event of the night.

Boys

A pair of Twin Falls relay teams had solid finishes to pace the Bruin attack.

The 4x200 (Jake Salinas, Brandon Field, Cameron Rosenau, Chris Herzinger) finished third while the 4x100 team (Field, Cole Easter, Alex Castagna, Salinas) finished fourth with a personal record of 4:55.

"We are a young team, we will be back next year," said Salinas, who tied for fourth place in the long jump.

Capps finished third in the 110 high hurdles after the person next to him crashed. Capps said his start was the key.

"My start needs improvement," Capps said. "I end up playing catchup."

Thomas captured second place in the 300 hurdles with Capps taking third.

"After seeing that guy from Post Falls, yesterday, that was what I expected. I set a new school record," said Thomas, who added a fourth place in the 100 meters.

Drew Johnson of Burley finished fifth in the one mile as he placed in both distance events.

Cole Nelson, who scored well at regionals for the Bobcats, was sick all week and was unable to make it into the final of his three events.

Cory Mays of Jerome jumped 20.5 in the long jump to finish eighth.

Two medal winners included Marjorie Bingham of Jerome (fifth in the 800), Burley's Liz Bryce (fourth in the open 400) Britney Hamblin of Jerome (seventh in the long jump).

Boys

Jerome's Nathan Capps and Burley's Jed Thomas continued their battle in the hurdles.

Valley runner Katie Brock in 11:44.04 in the 3,200 meters was the highlight of Friday's performances for Canyon Conference schools: Glens Ferry, Valley, and Wendell. Trojan Sherman King finished second in the shot put with a heave of 51.4-5.

The Wendell boys were the top Magic Valley team, with the Trojans in ninth place with six points. The Trojan girls were in sixth place with eight points after the preliminary rounds.

Class 1A

Murtaugh teammates Jillian Cutler and Lacey Perkins dominated the jumping events, swapping victories in the long and triple jump.

Cutter, a sophomore, won the long jump with a distance of 16.9-5 and Perkins, a junior, finished third in that event with a 15-11.5 jump.

In the triple jump, Perkins took top honors with 34-10.5, while Cutler came in third.

The two also shared two other things in common: elation with the victories but dissatisfaction with their winning marks.

Cutter, who finished fourth in the long jump last year, thought she could have done better.

"I'm a little disappointed," she said. "I'll try again next year."

Perkins wasn't even completely satisfied despite a personal best.

"I'd hoped for 35 feet," she said. "But I don't care if it was my worst or my best. I just wanted a medal."

Hansen won the medley relay with a time of 1:57.25.

The Lady Red Devils were tied for the team lead with 34 points alongside defending champion Rifer River.

In the boys meet, Idaho City was leading with 39 points. The Magic Valley's best showing was Dietrich's 10th place. The Blue Devils had nine points.

The Minico boys got their only points of the night from Ryan Hansen, who captured sixth in the 300 hurdles. Hansen was in third at the last hurdle, but hit it and fell back three places.

"It was a tough race. I hit the last hurdle with the wrong foot," Hansen said.

Zach Fleming, who easily qualified in the 100 on Thursday, injured his hamstring in the 200 preliminary and was unable to compete in the finals.

Herzinger, a junior, took third place in the open 400 for the Bruins.

"I wanted to finish in the top three so that was not too bad. Hopefully next year I can improve," said Herzinger, who added a seventh place finish in the 200.

Twin Falls added a sixth place finish in the 4x400 relay.

USOC president resigns after admitting to lies

DENVER (AP) - U.S. Olympic Committee president Sandra Baldwin resigned Friday, a day after she admitted lying about her academic credentials.

The announcement was made following a conference call between Baldwin and USOC Executive Committee members.

Baldwin told USOC chief executive Lloyd Ward her resignation was effective immediately.

"I want the best for the Olympic movement and, as one who believes in its ideals, I accept full responsibility for the mistakes I have made," Baldwin said in a statement.

"The USOC, our athletes and our volunteers will always have a special place in my heart."

After apologizing for an international Olympic meeting in Malaysia on Wednesday, Baldwin admitted that academic information in her official biography was inaccurate.

She had claimed that she graduated from the University of Colorado in 1962 and earned a doctorate from Arizona State in 1967.

Baldwin said Thursday that she actually graduated from Arizona State in 1962 after leaving Colorado three years earlier and never completed her dissertation.

"This is the most dignified thing to do," International Olympic Committee president Jacques Rogge said.

Rogge said Baldwin would automatically lose her seat with the IOC, which she gained in February 2001. It is unlikely that she will have to relinquish her position as vice president of the Association of National Olympic Committees, which was meeting in Malaysia.

The USOC said it will begin looking for a replacement immediately.

American IOC member Anita DeFranz said under USOC rules, the vice president-secretary will hold the office until a permanent replacement is sought.

Marty Mankayev is the current secretary.

ATLANTA (AP) - Vinny Castilla had a three-run double in Atlanta's seven-run third inning, helping the Braves ruin Ken Griffey Jr.'s return with an 11-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds on Friday night.

Griffey went 1-for-4 in his return after missing seven weeks with a torn tendon in his right knee. He singled sharply in the first inning off Kevin Millwood (3-5) in his first action since April 7. The Reds went 2-5-16 in his absence and lead the NL Central. Millwood won for the first time in seven starts, and his first since April 8. He allowed two runs on eight hits in six innings.

Dodgers slugger hits fifth homer in two games

Shawn Green, who set one major league record and tied two others during a four-homer game in Milwaukee the day before, tied another mark Friday night with a home run in the first inning against the Arizona Diamondbacks.

The solo blast, Green's 10th this year, was his fifth homer in two games - tying a major league record. It was the 25th time a player hit five homers in consecutive games, 15th in the National League. San Francisco's Barry Bonds was the last to do it on May 19, 2001.

Green was 6-for-6 Thursday against the Brewers, homering in the second, fourth, fifth and ninth innings. Together with a double and single, he amassed 19 total bases - a record for one game. He also tied the major league records for runs scored (6) and extra-base hits (5). On Friday, Green pulled an outside fastball from Diamondbacks starter Curt Schilling an estimated 377 feet into the right field seats.

Red Sox batter Carlos Baerga watches the flight of his game-winning sacrifice fly on Friday, which scored base runner Ricky Henderson, in the 11th inning against the Yankees at Fenway Park in Boston. The Red Sox won 9-8.

Red Sox hold off Yankees; White Sox embarrass Tigers

BOSTON (AP) - Carlos Baerga's sacrifice fly in the 11th inning gave the Boston Red Sox a 9-8 win Friday night after they pounded Roger Clemens before squandering a six-run lead over the New York Yankees.

With the bases loaded, Baerga hit a liner on an 0-2 pitch from Steve Karasay (1-2) to medium center field and Ricky Henderson scored easily as Bernie Williams' throw hit the mound and went to the first-base side.

Rolando Arrojo (3-1), Boston's sixth pitcher, threw two perfect innings.

The Red Sox' second straight win over the Yankees and fifth in six games this season gave them a three-game lead over New York in the AL East and assured them of at least a split of the four-game series.

Clemens allowed seven runs in 3.23 innings as the Yankees fell behind 8-2.

Paul Konerko hit three-run homers and Kousser Lofton added a solo shot as the White Sox won their third straight game.

Buehrle (8-3) allowed only one unearned run, struck out five and walked one in his fifth career complete game and first this season.

Steve Sparks (2-5) allowed eight runs - seven earned - and nine hits in four-plus innings for the Tigers, who had their six-game winning streak snapped.

Indians 5, Blue Jays 2
TORONTO - Rookie Ryan Drese won his third straight start as the Cleveland Indians beat the Toronto Blue Jays to end a four-game losing skid.

Jim Thome went 3-for-3 with two walks for the Indians, who also ended a six-game road losing skid.

Cleveland manager Charlie Manuel reworked an Indians' lineup that came into the game hitting 2-1.

Matt Lawton, who was moved from the third spot in the order, led off the game with a walk.

On Vaquez, dropped from the top spot, followed with an RBI triple off Justin Miller (3-2). Ellis Burks then hit an RBI grounder.

Drese (5-3) allowed one run and seven hits in 6.23 innings. He struck out five and walked four.

Notes on the economy

Magick Valley report

Tourist tally

Twin Falls' tourism traffic got a boost last week. Here's the visitor center's report from the Idaho-Lemhi Visitor Center, at the south end of the Perrine Bridge.

Week of May 12-18: 808

That's down 9 percent from the 889 visitors during the same week in 2001.

Season to date: 4,910

The visitor center's 2002 season, which starts when mid-March, has far exceeded 11 per cent below visitors from the 5,592 of the comparable portion of 2001.

Those numbers continue to be off from last year's. However, the center said, "We're hoping that it's only the weather."

This weekend's activity should start to end. Late whether people will be in the center this season, he said.

Chamber gives door maker grant

By Virginia S. Hutchins
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A small Twin Falls manufacturer is grabbing a bigger chunk of the market for wood features in luxury homes.

Idaho Custom Doors Inc., a subsidiary of W.R. Clay Inc., makes custom wooden doors, entries, molding and flooring for homes and sells them in Sun Valley; California; Jackson Hole, Wyo.; and the Yellowstone area.

Demand has shot up. In the past year and a half, Idaho Custom Doors more than doubled its revenue, President Bill Clay said.

By leasing a building next door to its existing shop two months ago, the business expanded by 8,000 feet, he said. The staff of three grew to nine.

"And we anticipate another six to eight employees here - hopefully within the next six months," Clay said.

"We just got people that are screaming

Collaboration

The Buhl and Twin Falls chambers of commerce collaborated this week for a joint after-hours social gathering at the visitor's center of Clear Springs Foods in Buhl.

Tim Hanifen, vice president of operations, gave the group facts and figures on Clear Springs: 36th year in business; 426 employees; three shifts of workers in the food plant; processing of 40 percent of all the rainbow trout in the nation that is used for food.

Clear Springs' products go to every state and some areas of Canada, he said.

"We have not ventured into other foreign countries because the market we have is large enough for us to handle," Hanifen said.

"The company became 100 percent employee-owned in August of 2000," Hanifen said. "With a $16 million yearly payroll, everyone seems happy about it."

He said company leaders were pleased that so many from Twin Falls drove to Buhl for the outing.

Here's a roundup of other Twin Falls chamber news:

• The chamber also approved a $40,000 grant from Business Plus II to the Advanced Regional Technical Education Coalition for administrative costs.

That's the same amount ARTEC received a year ago from Business Plus II, which has supported the high school consortium since the campaign's birth.

• Chamber leaders signed a $17,500 contract with STELLAR Fundraising Executives Inc. of Alpharetta, Ga., to study whether donors will support a third economic-development campaign - a potential Business Plus III.

The chamber is asking the consulting firm to answer "Is it wise to go for a Business Plus III?" Just when the firm is expected to begin in late June and finish by the end of July, he said.

NEW YORK - Wanted: a chief executive for Gap Inc. Consumer products background required, but retailing experience not necessary. General operations and marketing experience a plus. Must appreciate creativity. Team builders welcome.

The unexpected retirement of Gap's president and chief executive Millard Drexler has prompted a worldwide hunt to find a multi-skilled successor even as the nation's largest apparel chain has been struggling for two years with declining sales, fashion missteps and eroding stock value.

The company has an Old Navy store in Twin Falls.

Wall Street is concerned about the ability of Drexler's replacement - who might come from outside the retailing arena - to improve the company's fortunes.

"It will be easy to find people, but not easy to find the right person," said Joseph Teklis, retail analyst at Wachovia Securities. "With Drexler leaving, there is definitely an added level of uncertainty."

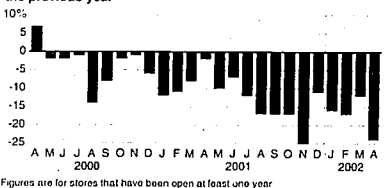

The news sent Gap's stock plummeting 15 percent Wednesday although it stabilized toward the end of the week, closing at $14.06 Friday. But the

Dell Computer looks at writing itself into the printer business

Knight Ridder News Service

SAN JOSE, Calif. - Dell Computer is considering entering at least one facet of the printer business, a move that could be a thorn in the side of the new Hewlett-Packard, whose recent merger with Compaq Computer stripped Dell from its No. 1 PC maker perch.

The announcement comes from a Wall Street analyst who sat down with Dell founder and Chief Executive Michael Dell this week and asked him about getting into the business that most benefits Hewlett-Packard's bottom line.

According to the Bear Stearns analyst, Andrew Neff, Dell's CEO wants a piece of the recurring revenues that come from the printer ink business, long considered by HP to be the most lucrative part of its company.

"He certainly did not say he was entering the printer business," Neff said.

Michael Dell never gave a yes or no answer, Neff said, and "danced around" specifics of how the company might get into the printer or ink business - either by buying a printer company such as Lexmark, through an outsourcing deal that would put Dell's brand name on another company's printer or an agreement that would allow Dell to collect some of the ink revenues.

Neff said an acquisition seems unlikely.

"Dell doesn't have a history of acquisitions," he said. "They don't like to buy companies in the channel. They like to sell direct."

Dell Computer - a Twin Falls employer - would not comment on Neff's remarks.

"There's nothing new to announce," Dell spokesman Mike Maher said, noting that Dell is evaluating products all the time.

Dell, which is known for low-priced commodity computers, resells Lexmark, Epson and HP printers. It has recently expanded into selling networking switches, digital projectors and data storage machines.

"This is a fairly brilliant chess move," Neff said. "When everyone is focused on one side of the board and suddenly the opponent moves his queen on the other side of the board and says 'Check,' every-one notices."

During the saga of the HP-Compaq merger, discussions focused on the PC business and the drain it could be on the new HP.

"No one ever thought about the idea of someone challenging HP" for a piece of the printer ink business, Neff said.

If Dell enters the printer business and does things right, it could hurt HP, Neff said. He has a "buy" rating on Dell's stock.

One investor said getting into the printer business could be a good long-term move for Dell, enabling it to expand its reach into the profitable corporate market.

"It makes sense," said Alan Loewenstein, co-portfolio manager of the John Hancock Technology Fund. "If you are ordering a PC then you also are probably ordering a printer, and if they can control that, they can increase margins."

"They wouldn't be manufacturing. They would be outsourcing probably, so they should be able to reduce costs on them," he said.

Natural gas company asks for rate reduction

The Associated Press

BOISE - After several years of escalating natural gas bills, Intermountain Gas Co. customers should get a break this summer.

The company this week asked the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to approve a $523 million rate reduction that would lower customers' current bills by nearly 25 percent. The company's net revenue would drop by $52.5 million.

Company officials said the announcement should be welcomed by 250,000 customers throughout Magic Valley and the rest of southern Idaho who have seen their rates rise by about 50 to 60 percent over the past two years and up to 70 percent since July 1998.

For a long time, there was a gas surplus that kept prices low, they said. But over the past several years, demand increased and the surpluses were exhausted, driving prices up. That encouraged more exploration and drilling.

Although prices have dropped from last year's highs, company officials doubt they will return to the pre-1998 levels.

Byron Defenbach, marketing product manager, said demand has stayed constant and there is less of a gap between supply and demand, so there is little likelihood past surpluses will return and drive prices even lower.

"We would love it if that happened, and you should never say never, but at this time it appears unlikely," Defenbach said.

The company estimates that if the request is approved, residential customers using natural gas for both space and water heating would see an average annual savings of $188.

Those customers using gas just for space heating should see average rates drop by $128. Commercial customers will enjoy nearly $800 in yearly savings.

Because the request is for a rate decrease, it is unlikely the board will hold public hearings, commission spokesman Gene Fadness said. It will likely set a period for written comments.

Stocks pull back on terrorism fears

NEW YORK (AP) — A downgrade in the semiconductor sector capped a troubling week on Wall Street Friday, sending stocks sharply lower ahead of the Memorial Day holiday weekend.

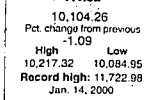

It was the slowest trading day on the New York Stock Exchange this year, reflecting the start of vacation for many traders as well as continuing anxiety about possible terror attacks. The lack of activity made prices more susceptible to big swings, since low volume can exaggerate gains or losses.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed down 111.82, or 1.1 percent, at 10,104.26, after two days of moderate late-session gains.

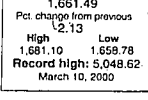

The biggest losses came in the technology sector, sending the tech-focused Nasdaq composite index down 36.14, or 2.1 percent, to 1,661.49. The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 13.26, or 1.2 percent, at 1,083.82.

It was a losing week for all three indexes, as the selling erased much of the market's gains of the previous two weeks. The Dow dropped 2.4 percent, the Nasdaq fell 4.6 percent and the S&P fell nearly 2 percent. The three indexes have alternated between weekly gains and losses all month.

"A lot of people have left early for the holiday, so it's affecting volume," said Stephen Massocca, president of Pacific Growth Equities. "People are still nervous there might be some terror attack over the holiday weekend and that's affecting trading."

Applied Materials tumbled $1.77, or 6.9 percent, to $23.80 after a downgrade in its rating on the stock, noting that the demand forecast for semiconductor stocks remains uncertain. Applied Materials makes equipment used in the production of semiconductors.

"On light trading volume like we're seeing today, a downgrade like this can drive the direction for the market," said Brian Bruce, director of global investments, PanAgora Asset Management.

The selling spread to other chip stocks including Intel, which fell 73 cents to $28.66. The broad tech category also declined. Sun Microsystems fell 55 cents to $6.86 after reaffirming its fourth-quarter financial targets, but indicating that order rates are slow.

Among blue chips, American Express slid 38 cents to $42.53, while General Electric dropped 35 cents to $32.60.

Cigarette ads have been banned from television and radio under federal law since 1971.

"What this report shows is that when the tobacco industry was required to curtail certain forms of advertising as a result of the 1998 settlement, it simply moved its marketing dollars to other places and increased its spending," said Matthew Myers, president of the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids.

But Mike Pfeil, a spokesman for Philip Morris USA, said the settlement led to important changes in the way cigarettes are advertised.

"You've got a reduced visibility certainly with our products, and you've got a commitment to merchandise the products in a responsible fashion," Pfeil said.

Cigarette companies spent the most money in 2000 — $3.9 billion — on promotional allowances, such as paying retailers for prime shelf space.

Economy grows at 5.6 percent rate first quarter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy snapped back from last year's recession, growing at an annual rate of 5.6 percent in the first quarter, the strongest performance in nearly two years.

The latest reading on the first-quarter gross domestic product which measures the total output of goods and services produced within the United States — showed the economy grew a little less briskly than the 5.8 percent rate estimated a month ago, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

Even so, the revised January-March performance was remarkable given the economy actually shrank at a 1.3 percent rate in the third quarter of 2001. GDP growth at a below-par 1.7 percent rate in the fourth quarter.

"The economy is on the mend, but it needs more time to heal," said Mark Vitner, senior economist at Wachovia Securities.

In another Commerce report, new-home sales rose solidly in April, providing support for the recovery.

New-home sales went up 1 percent last month to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 915,000, as low mortgage rates and solid housing appreciation motivated buyers. In March, sales fell 3 percent.

Although the economic recovery is clearly underway, many economists have mixed thoughts on how it will ultimately shape up, with predictions running from sluggish to solid, but probably not strong.

On Wall Street, stocks slumped. The Dow Jones industrial average was off 74 points and the Nasdaq index was down 31 in morning trading.

President Bush has credited his $1.35 trillion tax cut package enacted last year with helping to pull the economy out of recession. He wants to make sure the recovery stays on firm footing.

So does the Federal Reserve. Citing uncertainties about the vitality of the recovery, the Fed earlier this month decided to leave short-term interest rates unchanged at 40-year lows. Vitner predicts the Fed will continue to keep rates steady through the summer.

Low interest rates should motivate consumers to continue buying — and for businesses to step up investment, which would help the economic recovery. Consumer spending accounts for two-thirds of all economic activity.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan has warned that the recovery could be less than sizzling because consumers, who kept buying throughout the slump, might not have a lot of pent-up demand coming out of it.

Many economists believe economic growth slowed in the quarter to between 3 percent and 3.5 percent — still considered a respectable pace.

Tobacco industry relies on advertising to market products

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tobacco companies are spending more than ever on advertising and promotion, despite court-imposed restrictions, the industry says Friday.

Increasingly, they are using in-store promotions — paying owners for prime shelf space and offering giveaways — to sell their products, a Federal Trade Commission report found.

The industry spent $9.5 billion on advertising and promotions in 2000, the last year for which such figures were available. The total was 16 percent greater than the previous year.

Cigarette manufacturers in 1998 reached a $206 billion settlement with 46 states.

The agreement banned cigarette advertising on billboards and public transportation. It also curtailed giveaways of branded merchandise, such as hats with logos, and cigarette samples, and it limited the number of public events such as auto races that companies could sponsor.

Cigarette ads have been banned from television and radio under federal law since 1971.

"What this report shows is that when the tobacco industry was required to curtail certain forms of advertising as a result of the 1998 settlement, it simply moved its marketing dollars to other places and increased its spending," said Matthew Myers, president of the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids.

But Mike Pfeil, a spokesman for Philip Morris USA, said the settlement led to important changes in the way cigarettes are advertised.

Book group recommends three books for your perusal

By Friends of the Jerome Library

"All The Dead Were Strangers" by Ethan Black is a newly published murder mystery, which is refreshingly different.

The story involves police and a U.S. Army unit, and holds interest throughout. This page turner is available at the Jerome Public Library.

"The Oath" by John Lescroart is a suspenseful legal thriller which tells a story of doctors practicing bad medicine in an HMO.

It's well written, with good characters and very logical. The descriptions of family life in the book ring really true. The author has other books worth reading, which include "The Hearing" and "Nothing But The Truth."

Nelson Demille has written many very good books. Now he's written a great book, "Up Country" is about Vietnam, the war in flashbacks and he covers some of the famous battle areas, as well as the people of Vietnam, north and south, and how it affected the lives of our military, then and now. It holds interest throughout and the plot has so many twists and turns. It's a long book but beautifully written, almost lyrical in some parts. This book is well worth reading and makes you think.

Any veteran of Vietnam should definitely read this book. It also has an intriguing murder mystery as well!

Students dive into international economics at summit

MURTAUGH - Magic Valley students learned about global commerce at an economic summit by diving into international trade.

The Idaho Council on Economic Education sponsored the international economic summit on April 27.

Students from Gooding, Bliss,

Murtaugh and Wood River attended, reported Lorraine Rapp of Murtaugh High School. There were 37 countries/teams, which equaled around 150 students.

The country of Japan from Wood River High School received first place for ideas on how to improve its adopted country's standard of living through international trade. The country of Zimbabwe from Murtaugh received second place, the country of Germany from Wood River received third place, and the country of Singapore from Murtaugh received fourth place.

The all-day simulation is aimed to help students understand global economics. Students participated in alliance building, debate, quizzes and trading. Each activity was worth points to be tallied at the end of the day.

Before the summit, students in each team adopted a country and then studied its economy and its people.

Bryan Matsuko organized the summit at CSI.

Crandall completes basic training for Marine Corps

Marine Corps Pfc. James L. Crandall, II, son of Ramona L. Crandall of 792 S. Park Ave. W., Twin Falls, and Jim L. Crandall of 911 Rice Circle, Twin Falls, recently completed basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

Crandall successfully completed 12 weeks of training designed to challenge new Marine recruits both physically and mentally. Crandall and fellow recruits began their training at 5 a.m., by running three miles and performing calisthenics. In addition to the physical conditioning program, Crandall spent numerous hours in classroom and field assignments which included learning first aid, uniform regulations, combat water survival, marksmanship, hand-to-hand combat and assorted weapons training. They performed close order drill and operated as a small infantry unit during field training.

Crandall and other recruits also received instruction on the Marine Corps' core values: honor, courage and commitment, and what the words mean in guiding personal and professional conduct.

Crandall and fellow recruits ended the training phase with The Crucible, a 54-hour team effort, problem-solving evolution which culminated with an emotional ceremony in which the recruits were presented the Marine Corps Emblem, and were addressed as "Marines" for the first time since boot camp began.

Woman gasps at cousin's dating choice

DEAR ABBY: For years I was married to a very abusive man. I have a female cousin who stood by me through it all and helped me to finally free myself from him. Since childhood, this cousin and I have confided in each other about everything in our lives. Now I find out she's dating my ex-husband! Abby, I feel betrayed. I also feel I can no longer confide in her. What should I do?

-CONFUSED BEYOND BELIEF, BEVERLY, MASS.

DEAR ABBY:
Abigail VanBuren

don't get to plan it my way, the opportunity will have passed me by. Above all, I want the experience of shopping for and choosing my dream bridal dress. I'd like to wear an ivory gown with no train and a simple, long veil that would drag as a kind of train. Certain people have told me I should not do this. What do you think, Abby? Is it OK for a second-time bride to wear a formal

bridal gown? -TWICE A BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: Those who are advising you to be more low-key are going by the book. If you do not choose to go by the book—and since you're paying for the wedding—write your own chapter and do what makes you happy. True friends won't criticize.

DEAR CONFUSED: Start praying for her. Because you've been in her shoes, you know firsthand what the future holds for her.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter and some friends tell me I "need a life." Their comments hurt and upset me, Abby, because I am living the life I want. I have lived with my healthy 87-year-old father since my mom died a few years ago. I run the house as well as manage our cabin resort by the lake. I am truly happy most of the time.

Do you have any suggestions on what I can say to my daughter and friends when they go on about this?

-LIFE IS GREAT ON LAKE SUPERIOR

DEAR LIFE IS GREAT: Thank them for their concern, then tell them you're happy with your life just as it is. This is the life you have chosen, and you find it fulfilling. And, "Since it ain't broke, don't fix it." Tell them they should please stop finding fault with your life and get on with theirs.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question about accents. At age 20 I was married briefly. It was a big mistake. My boyfriend and I had lived together during college in our small Midwest town, and we gave in to the pressure to tie the knot rather than continue "shacking up."

My wedding quickly became "my mother's wedding." She completely took over and ran the show. I wanted fresh flowers—I got silk. I wanted ivory china—I got white. I wanted a small, private wedding—I was stuck with 562 people I barely knew. She even selected my Dior wedding gown and veil, and considering Mom was footing the entire bill, I felt obligated to yield. I later threw the dress away—I hated it that much.

On top of all that, I didn't want to get married in the first place, and told my mother as much. By then, however, the invitations were out and I felt stuck. Please keep in mind I was only 20, Abby. That was nine years ago; I would never be steamrolled like that today!

Now I am engaged to a wonderful man. This is his first marriage. We are planning (and paying for) a small but formal event, and I want this wedding to be mine. If I

Alligators' mating call sounds like cannon fire

The mating call of alligators sounds so much like cannon fire that even the alligators can't always tell the difference. A Pensacola client alludes to this curiosity when he says a 21-gun salute by naval ships has been known to turn on a whole swamp. Students of human behavior say a person rarely throws a tantrum when alone.

"Off with his head" is one of the most quoted lines from William Shakespeare's "Richard III." But Shakespeare didn't write it. An early actor, Coley Cibber, improvised it for his own convenience, and it stuck.

In the French lessons it ran during World War II, the "European edition of 'Yank'" upset stateside women considerably when it printed instructions on how to say, "My wife doesn't understand me."

Q. The more money you've got, the more cavities you get, according to dental researchers. Why so?

A. You need enough money to go to the dentist before your cavity-count is recorded. Lot of people with more cavities than coins just don't show up in such research.

Most common names for the elder of retired men nationwide are John, Charles and James. In those age brackets, I've noted earlier, every Tom, Dick and Harry is a John, Charles or James.

Tests of physical strength turned up the curious finding that the average female senior in high school appears to be stronger than the average female senior in college.

Q. What's the fastest swimming fish?

A. The bonito, possibly. Nobody really knows. Estimates come from fishermen who calculate how fast certain fish take the lines out.

Those who collect the oddball names of curious places are into what's known as "toponymy."

Q. What's the difference between a sapphire and a ruby?

A. Only color.

Did I tell you purse snatching in Haiti was long a crime punishable by death?

Q. Both "rape" and "rapture" come from the same Latin word, I've read. What word? And what did it mean originally?

A. "Rapture." To "seize," to "carry away."

Take time to reflect on matters of faith

Memorial Day weekend is a good time for subtle reflections on matters of faith. Ponder the following three questions, at your leisure. By the close of the 20th century, Christianity was active everywhere in the inhabited world. Its biggest inroads today are in South America, Africa and Asia, according to the World Christian Encyclopedia. The shift in Christian dominance in Western nations reveals the following, according to James Billington, the librarian of Congress who analyzed the data, in Books & Culture: The growth in Christian believers (558 million in 1990 to 2 billion in 2000) has occurred mostly in underdeveloping countries, though the overall rate of Muslim growth was greater worldwide than that of Christianity's. Of six major Christian groups in the encyclopedia, the one with the fastest growth rate is "Independent" (including Pentecostals and charismatics). It accounts for nearly 28 percent of Christians worldwide. Most in this category are nonwhite, poor urban dwellers, "though their collective wealth increased nearly tenfold between 1970 and 2000." Among the more disturbing findings is the accelerating fragmentation of Christianity and the increasing defections (almost 2 million a year) from it in Europe and North America.

Here's your first question to ponder: If prosperity increases in a region or country, why is it not the case that a decline in the number of Christians follows?

Mary Reath, author of "Public Lives, Private Prayers," urges us to think about why religious people are confused about faith and morality. "How subtly destabilizing is it when huge blocks of people who name themselves as Catholic or Jewish, Muslim or Protestant live their lives with little clarity about which teachings are essential?" she writes in Sightings, a University of Chicago newsletter. "What does it mean that so many raise their children in ways that are so out of sync with the institutional bodies?" In many respects, it's no wonder people are confused, she said. Their knowledge of life anywhere on the Earth is instantaneous, and their selection of goods and services is unlimited. How does faith make sense of such sensory overload? And how can morals be defined when each person decides for himself or herself what's acceptable, regardless of what some authority proclaims? The result, she says, "is a loneliness in the post-modern world. We don't know how we got here, why we are here or where we are going. The boundaries are so wide open, and the conflict between individual conscience and group authority has seemed unbridgeable."

Question two: Why aren't these tough issues being addressed from the pulpit?

Government-sponsored faith-based groups are increasing, reports the May 1 issue of the Baptist Joint Committee Newsletter. Forty different types of services are offered by faith-based groups and have government funding, according to a study by the Hudson Institute and the Center for Public Justice. Only seven types were found in an earlier study. Services include job training, emergency medical care, GED instruction, youth camps and domestic violence prevention. The recent study found that of 587 organizations with government contracts, 22 percent are congregations rather than agencies—an increase in congregations from 2.5 percent in 2000. Is that bad? "This raises red flags," said K. Hollyn Hoffman, general counsel of the Baptist Joint Committee. "Do these new programs protect the integrity of religious institutions and the rights of beneficiaries?" Or is it good? These efforts show "a nice tapestry being woven in our country between secular and sacred organizations coming together at the local level" to serve the nation's poor, said Jim Tovey, director of the Office of Faith-Based and Community Initiatives.

Question three: Faith-based initiatives: good or bad?

Tom Schaefer writes about religion and ethics for the Wichita (Kan.) Eagle.

¡Bienvenidos!

Elizabeth Palmer is starting a new Hispanic ministry which includes Sunday school classes at the First Church of the Nazarene in Twin Falls. The meeting for those interested will be held on July 4th and classes will begin on July 6th.

Church plans Hispanic Sunday school

Hispanic Sunday school

Where: Twin Falls First Church of the Nazarene, 1231 Washington St. N.
When: Kick-off party at 5 p.m. July 4; class will meet at 10:45 a.m. Sundays
More information: Call 733-6610.

TWIN FALLS — Bienvenidos a la Iglesia del Nazareno Twin Falls. In English, that's, "Welcome to the First Church of the Nazarene of Twin Falls."

In other words, the church's welcome mat is out for Spanish-speaking people, and by mid-summer, church leaders plan to have Sunday school classes for Hispanics. Elizabeth Palmer, who is originally from Ecuador and is bilingual, will teach the Bible studies for Hispanic adults.

"This is something new we're starting at the church," she said. "We don't have a Hispanic community in our church at all; it's mostly white."

The Rev. Jerry Kester, the church's senior pastor, said the church recognizes that an increasingly large percentage of people in the Magic Valley are from Mexico or Central America. He said the church wants to include these people in what the congregation is doing. "We hope they'd like to be included; we don't know," he said. "So we're willing to try to create a more friendly environment for people who are Spanish-speaking."

He said Palmer feels there are not enough ministry outreaches to Spanish-speaking people, and really has a heart for this. She has encouraged him to get something going, he explained.

Although Palmer is new to teaching such a class, Kester said that she lacks in experience she more than makes up for in enthusiasm.

Palmer has studied, in Nampa, with the Rev. Accel Ruiz, a missionary from Mexico who is working for the Intermountain District Church of the Nazarene. He's helping establish ministries that reach Spanish-speaking groups. He and members of a denominational Hispanic Task Force are serving as advisors to Palmer, helping her get started with her teaching.

"He is really encouraging and like a mentor with this," Palmer said of Ruiz. "I'm just a person that never has been in ministry, and I feel the call of God to do this."

Plans are now in place to introduce the new Hispanic Sunday school class at a Community Block Party on Independence Day.

As another part of the church's outreach to the Hispanic community, church leaders plan to add a translation of services into the mix. A low-power FM translation station will be installed in the sanctuary so that people can wear hearing devices which will pick up a transmitted signal interpreted by a qualified person.

"We're just at the very beginning stages," Kester said.

Scandal forces church into unusual debate

Issue of gay priests becomes public topic of discussion

By Rachel Zoll
The Associated Press

The Roman Catholic Church, which considers homosexuality a disorder and gay sex a sin, has quietly struggled for years with the growing presence of gays in the priesthood. Now that conflict has gone public. Under siege over clerical sex abuse, church leaders are pledging to clean house. And with some blaming gays for the crisis, the debate over whether homosexuals should continue to serve has gained urgency.

Gay clergy argue they have been unfairly blamed for the scandal. They say they love the church — just not its teachings on homosexuality — and want to continue serving the Catholic community. But it may soon become more difficult for gays to find a place in the church. Noting that most of the victims of priestly abuse are adolescent boys, some church leaders have concluded homosexuals should be ousted.

Clinicians say no credible data exists on the number of abusive priests who are homosexual and there is no evidence that homosexuals are more likely than heterosexuals to molest children.

Paul Sheker, left, president of Dignity Hartford, leads a protest against the blaming of gay priests for sexual misconduct with children outside the Catholic Archdiocese in Hartford, Conn. The abuse scandal has forced the Roman Catholic Church into public debate about gay priests.

But the discussion is awkward for a church that shies from open talk of sexuality, and it is complicated by the tendency of American Catholics to see the issue through the prism of their own political beliefs. "The left sees the question of gays as just another reason to change the law of celibacy, to ensure the priesthood doesn't get transformed into a largely gay profession," said the Rev. Richard McBrien, a liberal theologian from the University of Notre Dame. Many conservatives see homosexuals as deviant, and feel they cannot possibly uphold traditional Catholic teachings. A key concern about gay priests is their impact on recruitment as the number of Catholic clergy dwindles. There are no definitive statistics on

Speaking in tongues remains a hot topic

By Eric Gorski
The Gazette

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — The devil wouldn't like Victory World Outreach.

Near the end of each service, the Rev. Ron Jones invites people who need healing to come to the altar for an anointing with oil. A church staff member or volunteer will lay hands on heads and, more often than not, begin speaking in tongues.

The sounds are hard to put into words because they aren't words, as far as anyone knows. Depending on who is speaking, it can sound like a foreign language, sticks clicking together or a baby's babbling.

Scenes like this take place every Sunday. While some people confine their "prayer tongues" to the privacy of home, others do it in small groups of like-minded believers.

On May 19, Christians celebrated one of their most important holidays, Pentecost, when the Holy Spirit came down on the apostles in a fury of wind and tongues of fire, as described in the Book of Acts. The apostles were filled with the Holy Spirit and spoke in other tongues, the Bible says.

A century ago, that story helped trigger a revival, one rooted in the belief that God makes speaking in tongues and other "spiritual gifts" from the early church available to modern-day believers. The Pentecostal movement led to the establishment of new denominations, launched a charismatic renewal in established Protestant and Catholic churches and helped birth the megachurch. Pentecostal and charismatic churches are the fastest-growing stream of Christianity in the world today.

Scholar Stanley Burgess estimates one in five Pentecostals speaks in tongues. Critics say it's a thing of the past and don't see the value in speaking unintelligible words. Supporters point to its biblical precedence, calling it a miraculous gift available to believers and a direct line to God.

"Some might think this is hype. Some might think this is fanaticism. But it's Holy Ghost power!" says a pastor at Victory World Outreach.

"The devil feels threatened by churches with Holy Ghost-filled people," says Jones. The devil, he says, doesn't like speaking-in-tongues churches.

Speaking in tongues and the Bible

The Holy Spirit came upon the apostles the day of Pentecost in Chapter 2 of the New Testament's Book of Acts. The apostles were filled with the Holy Spirit and "began to speak in other tongues as the Spirit enabled them" (Acts 2:4). A crowd in Jerusalem from many nations recognized their languages being spoken. Some thought the apostles were drunk; Peter said they weren't.

Two other examples of speaking in tongues are in Acts — one in which Gentiles begin speaking in tongues while listening to Peter (Acts 10:46) and another in which disciples speak in tongues and prophesy after Paul lays hands on them in Ephesus (Acts 19:6).

The full cataloging of "spiritual gifts" is in Chapters 12 and 14 of Paul's first letter to the Corinthians. Other gifts include healing, prophecy and the interpretation of tongues. Most Pentecostals and charismatics believe each is available to born-again believers.

Christians invite Muslims to Sept. 11 observances

NEW YORK (AP) - The National Council of Churches is asking its affiliated congregations to mark the anniversary of Sept. 11 by holding open houses and inviting Muslim neighbors to attend. The gesture will reverse what happened last September, when many U.S. mosques held open houses for non-Muslim neighbors to build understanding. The board of the National Council, which has 140,000 affiliated U.S. Protestant and Orthodox congregations, approved the Open Doors Interfaith Hospitality Project at its May meeting. The program, developed in consultation with U.S. Muslim organizations, is being led by the Rev. Jay Rock, the National Council's interfaith relations director, and professor Jane Smith of Hartford Seminary in Connecticut. One of the National Council's member denominations, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), will also promote an interfaith theme for the anniversary. The Presbyterians are inviting 10 foreign teams of one Muslim and one Protestant to visit U.S. congregations Sept. 10-23. Teams are scheduled to visit from Egypt, Ethiopia, India, Indonesia, Italy, Kenya, Lebanon, Lebanon, Niger and the Philippines. Religion In brief
Church tribunal dismisses protests against lesbian
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - A Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) court in California has dismissed two cases protesting the clergy ordination of an openly lesbian candidate, Presbyterian News Service reported. Conservatives complained that Redwoods Presbytery, which covers churches from Marin County to the Oregon line, failed to examine the Rev. Kathleen Morrison properly to see if her views of chastity fit denominational policy against same-sex activity. The court of a regional synod dismissed the cases, saying there were no specific allegations of sinful behavior. In a separate but similar Fort Lauderdale, Fla., case involving a lay elder, the Presbyterians' national court ruled in April that complaints of same-sex activity "must assert factual allegations of how, when, where and under what circumstances" any wrongful behavior occurred. Morrison, who now lives with a partner in Carleton, Ky., is a full-time field organizer for More Light Presbyterians, which advocates full inclusion of gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender Presbyterians in church life.

Russia's house rejects bid to restrict Roman Catholics
MOSCOW (AP) - Russia's lower house of parliament has rejected a draft appeal that asked President Vladimir Putin to have the Justice Ministry nullify the Roman Catholic Church's registration and abolish its dioceses. Tensions have risen recently between Catholics and the dominant Russian Orthodox Church, which says the Vatican is poaching on its traditional territory. Two foreign Catholic priests were denied entry to Russia in recent weeks. Viktor Alksnis of the centrist Russian Regions faction initiated the draft appeal after the Vatican decided to upgrade its presence in Russia to regular dioceses, a move the Orthodox strongly protested. His bill accused Catholicism of treating Russia as a "spiritual wilderness" despite its 1,000-year-old Christian heritage and said Catholic activity threatens Russia's "territorial integrity." About two-thirds of Russia's 144 million people are Orthodox. Catholics number approximately 600,000.
Lawyers take Commandments case to appeals court
LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - A federal circuit appeals court was asked Monday to review a February ruling that said the community of Plattsmouth, Neb., must remove a park monument with the Ten Commandments and Jewish stars of David. An estimated 4,000 Ten Commandment monuments are displayed in U.S. cities. Last year, the U.S. Supreme Court refused to review a court order barring an Indiana display, Alabama, Mississippi, North Dakota, Ohio, South Carolina and Texas, as well as Nebraska, filed briefs in that case. "Nothing in the constitution prohibits the government from acknowledging the important role the Ten Commandments has played in the development of our culture," said Francis Manion, a lawyer for the conservative American Center for Law and Justice, which seeks the Nebraska appeal. U.S. District Judge Richard C. Linn rejected Plattsmouth's argument that the monument is protected by First Amendment religious freedom and said the display "conveys a message that Christianity is favored over other religions." The American Civil Liberties Union filed the original case and has criticized monuments in two other Nebraska towns.

Scandal

the number of homosexuals among seminarians and the 46,075 priests working in the United States, but estimates range from 10 percent to 50 percent. In the past few decades, as thousands of heterosexuals left the priesthood to marry, the percentage - not necessarily the number - of homosexuals rose, according to Richard Sipe, a psychotherapist who is a former priest. Church leaders became more aware of the presence of gays in the 1970s, when the gay rights movement inspired some homosexual priests to be more open about their orientation, said Sipe. Easing of seminary discipline after the Second Vatican Council in the 1960s created more opportunities for covert sex, said Dean Hoge, author of a recent Catholic University of America study of priests. "The seminaries earlier were almost on the models of military schools," Hoge said. "Very commonly they had the rule you're not allowed to enter another man's bedroom. Every room had a hole so people could look in. No going to movies. No going off campus. It was real tough." Today, seminarians are better educated about sexuality, said the Rev. Raymond Carter, an Oregon-based psychologist. Students examine their sexual orientation as they prepare to commit to a life of celibacy, and support groups for gay priests have been formed, in some cases with the knowledge of the local bishop, he said.

Book looks at ways to define a church's mission, identity

The Dallas Morning News
"Cracking Your Congregation's Code," by Richard Southern and Robert Norton (Jossey-Bass, 208 pages, $23.95).
Every congregation is unique. That's the starting point of this book, which presents strategies for clergy and lay leaders to define their church's identity and mission, and then to begin promoting growth and renewal. The authors, church consultants, say that too many congregations are drift, unsure how to assess their spiritual health and unable to chart a clear direction for the future. This concise book offers an eight-step process to move from uncertainty to confident decision-making. Many congregations and entire denominations - have become stagnant, no longer able to attract and retain members, Southern and Norton say. Churches in crisis must act quickly if they hope to reverse their decline and regain relevance. "The mainstream congregation no longer has the luxury of simply waiting for better days, hoping that people will get religion and return to congregational life," according

"At the Entrance to the Garden of Eden," by Yossi Klein Halevi (William Morrow & Co., 336 pages, $24).
An American-born resident of Jerusalem, Yossi Klein Halevi writes of matters carrying new import today. With the proclamation of Israel's nationhood in 1948, "For the first time, a sovereign Jewish majority had its own Muslim and Christian minorities," he writes, "a role reversal (that) demanded of Jews a new psychological and theological maturity." The book's subtitle is "A Jew's Search for God With Christians and Muslims in the Holy Land." The author set out to meet and learn from a handful of the million-plus Muslims and Christians in Israel. In the two years ending with the new millennium's arrival, he made a journey into their sacred places and times. Most of the chapters are titled and themed after holy observances other than his own. "As much as I wanted to avoid politics," he writes, "I couldn't conveniently avoid 'politics' and focus on 'spirituality' as a Muslim who denied the right of Jewish sovereignty over any part of this land threatened me spiritually as well as physically."

Judging by the reaction from two personal performances, they liked what they heard. MUSIC
"All the Love," Oleta Adams (Pioneer, 55 minutes).
I became an Oleta Adams fan early in Anita Baker's nearly decade-long hiatus from recording. Like Baker, Adams is a singer of sating love songs, such as the Desert Storm anthem "Got Here" and "Just Had to Hear Your Voice." In 1997, she began to sing about her faith on Come Walk With Me. Her latest effort blends both interests, relying heavily on outside writers. "All the Love's" best tunes, though, are her own, as the jazzy rhythms of "Power of Sacrifice" and urban grind of "Bump In the Road" demonstrate. Covers of Avalon's "Can't Live a Day" and Ice Ann Womack's "I Hope You Dance" are fine but don't improve on the originals.

The Rev. Frank Horton hugs church members at the First United Methodist Church in Covington, Ky. The soon-to-retire Horton also leads services at the Ninth Street Methodist church each Sunday.

Minister serves black, white churches

By Lori Burling
The Associated Press

COVINGTON, Ky. — Every Sunday at 10:45 a.m., the Rev. Frank Horton delivers his sermon at First United Methodist Church. Fifteen minutes later, still in his robes, he dashes four blocks across town to the pulpit at Ninth Street Methodist Church to deliver the same sermon.

"This is the way it's been in the more than two years since Horton took on the task of trying to breathe new life into two dwindling downtown congregations — one predominantly white, the other predominantly black. The two congregations are the oldest Methodist churches in this Ohio River city: President Ulysses S. Grant and his parents were members of First United.

"I think it was different for the congregation at first," Horton, who is black, said of his reception at mostly white First United. "But it's worked out well."

Horton, 64, is being honored by both churches as he preaches sermons leading up to his retirement in June. Having spent 20 years as a missionary in Africa, he was hired in 1993 to recruit members at the two Kentucky churches. The pews at both churches are now half-full, with an average of 35 congregants each Sunday.

"Downtown church populations are dwindling everywhere," Horton said. "People are going out to suburban churches that have youth groups and many activities."

When Horton's wife, also a missionary, fell ill and had to have one leg amputated, the couple returned to the United States and the Methodist bishop assigned Horton to northern Kentucky. Today, Horton incorporates some of what he learned in Africa into his services.

First United Methodist has added bongo drums, a traditional church instrument in Africa, into its band. And Ninth Street parishioners pray in a group at the front of the church, much like African congregations.

After retiring, Horton plans to split his time between Africa and the United States.

Ex-Jehovah's Witness tells of leaving Watchtower Society

By Richard Scheinin
San Jose Mercury News

Diane Wilson of Morgan Hill, Calif., spent nearly half her life as a Jehovah's Witness, and her memories are bitter ones. For 25 years, she says, she was taught to not ask questions and eventually to shun her own daughter, who had left the Watchtower Society.

Wilson became involved with the Watchtower, which has about a million members in the United States, in 1968 and was baptized a Witness in 1970. She was 21 and recently divorced, living on the edge in Santa Clara County with a young child.

As she tells it, she was emotionally "vulnerable" and soon found herself in a rigid religious organization that expected — and got — complete obedience from its members. Now 54, Wilson left the Watchtower Society in 1993 after decades of inner turmoil and two years of intensive therapy. She tells her story in "Awakening of a Jehovah's Witness: Escape from the Watchtower Society" (Prometheus Books). Her second husband, a Jehovah's Witness, filed for divorce after 30 years of marriage, as the book was going to press.

I talked with Wilson, a sign-language interpreter for the deaf, about her life as a Witness.

QUESTION: Not much room for interpretation?

ANSWER: When a religion is legalistic and controlling and saying, "It's either our way or the highway," that's when it's a problem. I think the Scriptures have many gray areas, and people should be free to think about and interpret them. But the Jehovah's Witnesses take those gray areas and make them black and white. And this is when they get into their doctrinal zigzags: First, you're told this is the way. But then something changes and they announce, "We have new light. Jehovah has shown us that this is the way." It can go from Point A to Point B to Point C and back to Point A, and there's always a Scriptural justification. Their doctrine on rape has changed 12 times over 30 years, and it has wreaked emotional havoc over years. If a woman is raped at knife-point or gunpoint and she doesn't scream, it's fornication. It's not rape. So if a guy tells you, "I'll kill you if you scream," and you believe him, you haven't been raped. That was the doctrine for a long time. They zigzagged for years. In 1993, they finally said, "No, rape is an act of violence. It's not sex at all." So with the doctrine on rape, you had a 180-degree turn. I was raped when I was 33, and I know the havoc this creates. I went to see the elders' judicial committee and was told this was an infraction of the rules because I didn't scream. They had no compassion for me at all.

QUESTION: What do you hope your book accomplishes?

ANSWER: People are hurting, and I just feel it's time for the veil of secrecy to be lifted. Maybe it'll save someone from wasting half their life, the way I did.

Society responds to issues raised in book

San Jose Mercury News

David Seoniman, a spokesman for the Christian Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, headquartered in Brooklyn, N. Y., answered questions prompted by Diane Wilson's "Awakening of a Jehovah's Witness: Escape from the Watchtower Society."

QUESTION: Has the Watchtower "zigzagged" on doctrine?

ANSWER: We've never claimed to be infallible, inspired or perfect as an organization. And so it's a fact that with increased knowledge, as we increase our study of the Bible and come to a better understanding, that from time to time we will make adjustments. We humbly do that, because we're students of the Bible, we've noted that Jesus continually reminds Christians to stay alert. He says, "Stay awake," live in expectation of the great day to come. He spoke of events that would let you know that you're in the Last Days, such as earthquakes. So when we see such events, we say that indeed the great Day of Armageddon is close. And if Armageddon is close, then paradise — relief from sickness, disease and suffering — is close. So it's not to scare someone. It's good news, that relief is coming. At times, we may have gotten a little anxious. And perhaps in our enthusiasm, we spoke of the possibility that it could come in a particular time period. But we never gave an exact date. We teach what Jesus spoke: "No man knows the day or the hour."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE Bobby Wolff

"Beware lest you lose the substance by grasping at the shadow."
— Aesop

"I can't believe it," I lamented a forlorn South. "Even with a losing spade finesse, I counted 10 sure winners," he added.
"Your arithmetic was correct," answered North. "It was your timing and your greed that lost the game."
East took his diamond ace and crossed his first hurdle by returning a diamond at trick two. Had East led a tempting trump at trick two, South would have been "forced" to make his game. He would have drawn trumps and lost the spade finesse, conceding only a trick in each side-suit.
After East knocked out dummy's remaining diamond honor at trick two, South led a club from dummy. East hopped up with his ace, and this time he led a trump to prevent a diamond ruff in dummy.
South was now in trouble. After he drew trumps, his only chance was a winning spade finesse. Unfortunately it lost, and the defenders took a total of two diamonds, a spade and a club for one down.
How does South cinch the game? By willingly conceding a spade loser. At trick three, he should lead dummy's spade jack, giving East his king and leaving South with no effective reply. If East leads a diamond, dummy can ruff. If he leads spades, South can discard his diamond loser. And if East leads a trump or a club, South can draw trumps and claim his 10 winners.
