Schools eye emergency levy

Addition of 125 new students this year necessitates move, officials say

By Robert Mayer Times-News writer

Other levies - A5

TWIN FALLS - Enrollment is up in the Twin Falls School District, and to accommodate those extra students, the School Board is considering an emergency property tax levy. Not subject to public voter approval, the emergency levy would add $484,787 in taxpayer dollars to the district budget to hire teachers and teacher aides for the 125-student increase. The money would also be used for classroom supplies. Board members are scheduled to vote on the levy at Monday night's meeting. Idaho law allows for emergency levies during periods of unexpected rises in enrollment to cover necessary expenses. The levy amount is formula driven, a function of the increase in students. Superintendent Terrell Donich didn't say Friday how many teachers and teacher aides would be hired. Not anticipating an enrollment increase, the School Board earlier this year eliminated 13 teaching positions and several classified jobs. The one-year levy would cost $30 for the owner of property valued at $100,000. However, school officials point out that because the district recently refinanced its bonded indebtedness, saving $200,000 in the process, property taxes wouldn't rise that much. Instead, the owner of property valued at $100,000 will end up paying $17 more in taxes if the board approves the emergency levy - taking into account the drop in the levy to repay existing bonds. The last time the district asked for an emergency levy was 1992. While there have been other years in the last decade that saw student increases, the district had the financial wherewithal to absorb the increase, Superintendent Terrell Donich said. This year's financial picture, however, is quite a departure and necessitates the levy, he said.

The district during the past year used $300,000 in reserves to absorb a holdback in state funding ordered by Gov. Dirk Kempthorne, leaving a $1.5 million contingency fund for the new year. School officials say contingency funds generally are used for one-time expenses, not for continuing costs such as salaries. At least one board member said Friday he will vote to approve the levy. "I think it's a good thing," Bryan Matsuoaka said. "It'll be in favor of it."

A WAKE-UP CALL?

Pastor Jim Friable of the First United Methodist Church in Twin Falls prepares a sermon in his office. While nearly 35 million Americans attended a church service in the four days following the Sept. 11 attacks, local religious leaders say a year later attendance is back to normal.

Religious leaders see lasting impact of Sept. 11

Churches will observe anniversary

A multi-faith gathering in Twin Falls City Park is one of many observances planned Wednesday to commemorate the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

The 7 p.m. event is sponsored by the Magic Valley Interfaith Association and will focus on the theme "America Bless God." A number of area churches are involved, and everyone is welcome to attend.

things went back to normal." Such observations reflect the national trends. The Gallup Poll reported a 6 percent increase in church attendance the week after the attacks, and the Barna Organization reported that its surveys recorded a 24 percent spike in church attendance in the final weeks of September, according to the Leonard E. Greenberg Center for the Study of Religion in Public Life. Soon after, church attendance figures sagged back toward normal levels. "It looks like people were treating this like a bereavement, a shorter-term funeral kind of thing, where they went to church or synagogue to grieve," explained the Gallup Poll's Frank M. Newport.

"Everyday life conflicts with a spouse, at work, getting the kids to do their homework - initially after Sept. 11, people were talking about feeling anxious and unsure, but it didn't take long for the issues immediate in their lives to be the issues they had to focus on," psychologist Kenneth Ralph told the Lancaster (Pa.) New Era.

Germany: Pair eyed U.S. base

Police find 290 pounds of chemicals in their apartment

The Washington Post

BERLIN - German police have arrested an al-Qaida sympathizer and his American fiancée on suspicion of planning to bomb U.S. Army headquarters in Europe and a German city on the anniversary of the Sept. 11 attacks, a senior German law enforcement official said Friday.

The man, a 25-year-old Turk born in Germany, and the woman, also of Turkish heritage, were arrested Thursday near the southern German city of Heidelberg, authorities said. About 290 pounds of chemicals and five pipe bombs were said to have been found in their apartment.

"We suspect that they intended to mount a bomb attack against military installations and the city of Heidelberg," Thomas Schaeuble, chief law enforcement officer for Baden-Wuerttemberg state, said on television Friday, adding that the man is a strict Muslim "who hates Americans and Jews."

The alleged plot represents one of the most serious threats to U.S. personnel abroad since Sept. 11. German authorities said it was not clear if the pair had any formal link to al-Qaida, or were acting on their own.

The woman was a civilian employee at the post exchange.

West Nile virus hits West Coast

The Associated Press

The West Nile virus has spread across the United States.

A Los Angeles County woman has tested positive for the virus in what is believed to be the first case of a person contracting the illness in the western United States, health officials said Friday in announcing preliminary laboratory results.

The results of further tests won't be known for another week.

Bush presses nations on Iraq

Los Angeles Times

President plans to approach U.N. next week

WASHINGTON - President Bush launched a diplomatic offensive Friday with calls to the leaders of Russia, China and France to appeal for collaboration in dealing with Iraq President Saddam Hussein, and he prepared for talks with British Prime Minister Tony Blair Saturday to coordinate a strategy to take to the United Nations next week. The summit at Camp David will focus on whether to introduce a new U.N. resolution that would soften the terms requiring Iraq to eliminate any weapons of mass destruction, according to U.S. officials. The United States and Britain are hoping to redefine the existing U.N. framework for disarming Iraq by adding a time element and the threat of force to back it up.

Bush and Blair will discuss imposing a deadline on Baghdad for eliminating any nuclear, chemical and biological weapons, possibly within six months to a year - a schedule that former U.N. weapons inspectors believe is not feasible. Bush will also press for a zero-tolerance or "one strike and you're out" clause, the officials said.

An Iraq violation then would justify the use of force against Hussein's regime.

Terrorist plots thwarted

U.S. authorities and officials overseas say that since Sept. 11, they have prevented terrorist strikes against American targets or U.S. citizens in Lebanon, Turkey, Greece, Malaysia, Indonesia, France, Bosnia, Belgium, the Czech Republic, India, Australia and Singapore. A look at some of the foiled attacks:

- Two days after Sept. 11, an Algerian, a Frenchman and a Dutchman are arrested in a European-wide sweep of groups suspected of links to al-Qaeda, accused with several others of plotting to bomb the U.S. embassy in Paris. Prosecutors say the group also targeted the Helme-Drogel base in northeast Belgium, where around 100 U.S. Air Force personnel are stationed.

miles south of Heidelberg, where police found a picture of al-Qaida leader Osama bin Laden, Islamic literature and a book about building bombs, according to Scheubel.

Investigators now believe that key planning for the Sept. 11 conspiracy took place in the German city of Hamburg, where suspected ringleader Mohammed Atta and two of the other 19 hijackers lived.

After the attacks, German authorities intensified their surveillance and crackdown on Islamic militants in the country. Germany's officials have recently opened cases against more than 100 suspected militants who are German residents and are believed to have undergone training at terrorist camps in Afghanistan or fought in the wars there.

Group gives baby shower, luncheon to Sept. 11 widows

NEW YORK (AP) — Dozens of women who gave birth after their husbands died in the Sept. 11 attacks were given a baby shower Friday, a bittersweet gathering in which memories of tragedy mingled with the laughter of newborns.

The luncheon hosted by the Independent Women's Forum's Infant Care Project was organized to ease the pain of the attacks anniversary. About 70 widows and their babies attended.

"I still cry every day," said Jenna Jacobs, as she struggled with her fledgling son, Gabriel. "The pain doesn't go away."

First lady Laura Bush sent a letter. Libby Paraskis, the wife of New York's governor, spoke about the walls of babies in an adjoining nursery.

The pink-and-white tablecloths at the New York's Cipriani restaurant were topped with floral centerpieces. Chairs were decorated with toy angels. Organizers passed around stuffed penguins as party favors.

The greatest applause, and the most tears, followed the reading of a letter from Marianne Pearl, widow of Wall Street Journal reporter Daniel Pearl, who was killed earlier this year by Islamic militants in Pakistan. "Our shared destiny implies a great deal of loneliness," she wrote. "To win over terrorism is not to be crushed by sadness and despair... Our role is to preserve life."

Pearl gave birth to a son, Adam, on May 28.

Jacobs, the only 9-11 mother who addressed the audience, held back tears as she described her life before the attacks, and after.

"We're normal but we're not. There's no closure. There's no moving on. But time still passes," she told the gathering.

The Independent Women's Forum held fly in the women from around the country and Canada. It has granted $4,000 to each of the 102 widows who gave birth after the attacks to help pay for child care.

Sheila Ormedo, whose husband was an American Airlines Flight 177, which crashed into the Pentagon, said Friday was the first time she had met with others like herself.

"It helps a lot emotionally to be here. It's amazing to meet so many mothers who've had the same experience," she said.

Barasheed Ashrafi, the only Muslim in the group, hugged her son, Faragat Chowdhury, as she said: "His father loved this country and when my son grows up I will tell him no matter what religion, everyone is praying for you."

Virus

but county health officials called it a probable case of locally acquired West Nile virus infection. The victims of four other confirmed cases in Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho contracted the virus in states east of the Rocky Mountains.

The 47-year-old Ada county man is the first suspected case of the disease in Idaho. Idaho's Department of Health and Welfare reported the case Wednesday. The man, whose officials believe contracted the virus while on a trip to the East Coast, did not need to be hospitalized and is recovering well, according to health department officials.

West Nile virus is not spread from one person to another, but only by mosquitoes infected with the virus.

Health officials refused to say which mosquito the man had visited out of state, but it would identify him. He said it was an area where the virus has been found.

Nationally, the number of confirmed West Nile cases this year has exceeded 850, with 43 dead, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported. Many others are infected but may never show symptoms, so there could be 110,000 to 150,000 people who have been infected in the United States, most of whom will never suffer its effects or know they have the virus, CDC epidemiologist Dr. Anthony A. Martin said.

State Epidemiologist Christine Hahn said the man asked his doctor to be tested for the virus when he developed a headache, muscle pain, weakness and dizziness and feared they could be connected to several mosquito bites he received while on the trip.

Initial tests results took about a week, said Hahn, because they needed to be sent to the Centers for Disease Control to be confirmed. Final tests by the federal government will take one more week to complete.

Hahn said the diagnosis delay did not affect the man's treatment.

"We are not recommending that everyone with possible mild flu-like symptoms get tested for West Nile," said Hahn. "However, if someone is seriously ill with a severe headache, swollen lymph glands, mental confusion and a fever, they should see their doctor for evaluation. They should also let their doctor know if they think the illness is connected to any mosquito bites they've had in the past few weeks."

Arab leaders quietly press for weapons inspections

Los Angeles Times

CAIRO, Egypt — Arab leaders are quietly pressuring Iraq to allow U.N. weapons inspectors back, with some warning that if Saddam Hussein rejects their demands, they will push their own position to American military action, according to sources in the region.

The behind-the-scenes emphasis on the return of weapons inspectors is coming from two factions within the Arab community. Some countries fear that a U.S. attack on Iraq will destabilize the region, and believe that the only chance to avoid that is to have weapons inspectors on the ground. Other nations, which have made no secret of their own desire to see the Iraqi president ousted from power, are looking for an excuse to jump off the bandwagon of united Arab support for his regime.

"There is a kind of shutting of positions," said Abdel Monem Samir, director of the Al-Ahram Center for Political and Strategic Studies, Egypt's most prestigious think tank. "Iraq is hearing, let and the Iraqis say that the inspectors can't go to a palace or that they have to wait because (Hussein) is there and he needs time to leave, that's it. The clock stops, and Iraq will be in material breach of a U.N. resolution, with all that implies," said a State Department official who requested anonymity.

The goal is to make clear this is "the last chance," the official said. "He can't fudge or cheat and retreat" again and get away with it. And he will pay the heaviest price if he does."

The United States and Britain, permanent members of the U.N. Security Council, also hope to work out a broad, long-term strategy for winning support of the other three permanent members—Russia, China and France—as well as the wider world, U.S. officials said.

If they can agree on specifics, Britain would introduce a draft resolution after Bush speaks at the United Nations next Thursday, according to U.S. officials.

Both nations also would present a more detailed case against Hussein. Britain is expected to submit a report on the UN document outlining the latest Baghdad represents, while the United States has proposed two dossiers to be handled by special teams assigned to inspect weapons government over the next few

Saudis nab key al-Qaida financier, Treasury official says

WASHINGTON — Saudi Arabian authorities have located one of Osama bin Laden's trusted lieutenants, according to U.S. officials who said Friday they have frozen the assets of the alleged al-Qaida financier.

U.S. officials would not disclose the current whereabouts of Wa'el Hamza Julaidan — a man who they say fought alongside bin Laden long before he established al-Qaida and who has been a key lieutenant in the terrorist network ever since. But they confirmed that Julaidan is either in custody in Saudi Arabia, under house arrest there or being closely monitored and prohibited from leaving the country while U.S. and Saudi authorities continue to investigate him.

"This individual is directly tied to al-Qaida and bin Laden," said a senior Treasury Department official. "He is a big fish."

Since Sept. 11, only a handful of senior al-Qaida leaders have been captured, while most — including bin Laden and top aide Ayman al-Zawahiri — remain at large. In addition, many believe that al-Qaida remains flush with enough cash to launch more large-scale terrorist attacks, and that the financial crackdown has been largely unsuccessful, according to a top Swiss official.

Governor might reduce all death sentences to life

CHICAGO — Gov. George Ryan, who has already put executions in Illinois on hold, said Friday he is strongly considering commuting all death row inmates' sentences to life in prison.

Nation in brief

The Illinois Prisoner Review Board said this week it would review requests from 157 inmates who filed clemency petitions and recommend any changes to the governor.

But Ryan said Friday that commutation should be all or nothing. "I don't know how I could pick and choose," Ryan said. "That's why I have to determine whether it's going to be for everybody or for nobody."

Jury convicts brothers of killing father with bat

PENSACOLA, Fla. — A jury convicted 13- and 14-year-old brothers Friday of murdering their sleeping father with a baseball bat and then setting fire to their home in hopes of covering up the crime.

A short time later, a second jury in the unusual case acquitted a 40-year-old family friend of the slaying. Prosecutors had argued at his trial that he wielded the bat, then argued at the boys' trial that they struck the fatal blows to escape their controlling father.

The judge initially sealed the Chavis verdict, reached last week, but he later disclosed the acquittal to the prosecutor and defense lawyers and ordered them not to divulge it pending the outcome of the boys' trial.

According to a transcript released Friday after the verdicts were read, Judge Frank Bell said he was concerned about having to impose mandatory life terms on Chavis and the brothers when "in my mind, I know that one of them is not guilty." The transcript was from a closed door meeting with the attorneys last month.

Military resumes air patrols over New York, Washington

WASHINGTON — Military jets have resumed round-the-clock patrols over New York and Washington as the anniversary of the Sept. 11 attacks approaches. The 24-hour military flights resumed Friday, said Lt. Col. Cathy Abbott, a Pentagon spokeswoman.

The Defense Department started the round-the-clock patrols after the Sept. 11 attacks and began phasing them out in April, Pentagon officials have said. The patrols had continued sporadically when officials received threats.

Pentagon officials declined to say Friday whether the resumption of air patrols was because of a specific threat or because of the one-year anniversary of the attacks.

U.S.: Airstrike that killed civilians was justified

WASHINGTON — An American airstrike that killed dozens of Afghan civilians at a wedding party was justified because the plane fired back after coming under fire from the ground, a U.S. military investigator concluded.

A summary of the investigation report, released late Friday, said those who were firing at U.S. aircraft were to blame, not the Americans who fired back. "While the coalition regrets the loss of innocent lives, the responsibility for that loss rests with those that knowingly directed hostile fire at coalition forces," the report said. "The operators of those weapons elected to place them in civilian communities and elected to fire them at coalition forces at a time when they knew there were a significant number of civilians present."

Afghan authorities say 48 civilians were killed and 117 were wounded in the attacks on July 1 by an AC-130 gunship on several villages in Afghanistan's Uruzgan province. The U.S. investigation could only confirm 34 dead and about 50 wounded, the report said.

First lady advises families to turn off TVs Sept. 11

WASHINGTON — First lady Laura Bush is asking parents to turn off the television on Sept. 11 and instead read to their children and perhaps light a memorial candle.

"Don't let your children see the images, especially on Sept. 11, when you know it'll probably be on television again and again — the plane hitting the building or the buildings falling," Mrs. Bush said in an interview Friday with Univision, a Spanish-language cable TV network.

Parents who decide to allow their older children to watch television on the anniversary should limit the time they spend in front of the set, Mrs. Bush said.

T.F. County OKs budget increase

By Sandy Miller
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County commissioners Friday passed a 2002-03 $23.1 million budget, and every penny is earmarked.
The county estimates it will bring in almost $23.1 million between Oct. 1, 2002, and Sept. 30, 2003, a 2.6 percent increase from the current fiscal year.
The county will spend the same amount — 3 percent more than it spent this year.
The approved budget includes 3 percent cost-of-living raises for county employees.
However, Sheriff Wayne Tousey's wish for $2.9 million for his department was not granted. Commissioners stuck with the $2.1 million they'd allocated for the sheriff's department in the tentative budget — a 10 percent increase from 2001-02.

"I don't like to prioritize, but if I did, law enforcement and quality health care would be at the top of my list," Commissioner Bill Brockman said.
Still, there's only so much money to go around, and Brockman said he took one sheriff's department employee's advice to not "pit one department against the other."
In an effort to ease jail overcrowding and save dollars — the county has spent $363,622 during the current fiscal year to house its inmates outside the county — commissioners gave the offices of the prosecutor and public defender hefty increases in the hope of moving court cases along and keeping the inmate roster down.

The prosecutor's office will receive $714,550 for the upcoming fiscal year, up from $646,595 this year, to allow the office to hold on to an investigator and secretary whose salaries were partly paid by grants that ran out this year. The public defender's office will get an extra $47,375 to spend in 2002-03 to hire another attorney.
Under the proposed budget, the county's general fund — its most important fund — will get the largest share of the budget pie — $3.6 million, 6.2 percent more than it received in 2001-02.
The next-biggest line item was $2.8 million to deal with solid waste, followed by $2.2 million for indigent care — medical care for those who have no insurance and can't afford to pay their health care bills.
Magic Valley Regional Medical Center

recently wrote the county a check for $260,000 to help pay the cost of indigent care this year.
Although the hospital has not received county tax dollars for more than 20 years, it is still considered a county entity, and the county still shows the hospital's financial situation on its budget. The proposed county budget shows the hospital expects to bring in $136.6 million in 2002-03, up from $103.3 million this year.
Brockman said that the hospital makes money, the county benefits "because that's what keeps them off the tax rolls" and therefore allows the county to spend its money elsewhere.

L'EGGS OF GARBAGE

Third-, fourth- and fifth-grade students at Albion Elementary School lower pantyhose filled with trash into a hole at the school Friday morning. Every fall, science students in Jan Hatwell's class bury manmade and organic materials. The garbage is left in the ground until spring and then dug up so the children can evaluate how different materials decompose.

T.F. magistrate announces his retirement

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — After 23 years on the bench, 5th District Magistrate Judge Michael R. Redman says he's ready to retire.
Redman said on Friday — the last day for eight 5th District magistrates to file for retention — he will retire at the end of his term in January 2003.
Now it becomes the job of a magistrate commission to find Redman's replacement, said 5th District Trial Court Administrator Linda Wright. The application process will probably begin in October, she said.

The Idaho Supreme Court will send notices of the vacancy to attorneys in the state. Interested attorneys must pick up applications from the trial court administrator's office.
The commission — consisting of county commissioners, two mayors, two community members, an Idaho Bar Association representative and a magistrate judge, and chaired by 5th District Administrative Judge Roger Burdick — will select five or six candidates for interviews, Wright said.

Redman, 55, said he becomes eligible to retire in October. He said he doesn't yet know his plans for retirement. He has been a magistrate since June 1979.
A magistrate judge hears civil cases where the amount of damages requested does not exceed $10,000, criminal misdemeanor cases, and small claims cases, and may conduct preliminary hearings in felony cases. A magistrate earns $90,718, an amount set by the Legislature.
The seven other 5th District magistrates up for retention all filed petitions with their county clerks. Those judges are:

• Blaine County — Robert Elgee.
• Cassia County — Michael R. Crabtree, Roy C. Holloway.
• Lincoln County — Mark Ingram.
• Minidoka County — Larry R. Duff.
• Twin Falls County — Charles P. Brumback, Howard Smyser.
Unlike other elected officials, judges go before voters for retention, not re-election. Their names will be on the Nov. 5 ballot.

Judge delays hearing in shooting case

TWIN FALLS — The case against a man charged in connection with the 1996 shooting of two Twin Falls men was delayed again Friday.
A preliminary hearing for Jesus Ernesto Avila, 25, set for Friday, was delayed until Sept. 20, Twin Falls County Prosecutor Gant Loeb said.
Avila faces an attempted first-degree murder charge stemming from a Jan. 2, 1996, shooting that left Ryan Maughan and Lawrence McLain seriously wounded.

Legislative candidate withdraws from election

MOUNTAIN HOME — Republican Craig McCurry has withdrawn from his uncontested election for the Legislature after being called to military service.
The departure of McCurry, a major in the Army Reserves who also serves as an Elmore County commissioner, leaves the date for the District 22 seat completely blank.

McCurry has already shipped out and is training in Fort Bragg, N.C., a clerk at the Elmore County elections office said.
Republicans have 15 days to replace him on the ballot. Local Republicans reportedly were meeting Friday to discuss their options. Whomever they choose would be the de-facto winner, barring any last minute write-in candidacy by another party.
The new District 22, carved out in 2001 by the state's redistricting process, encompasses territory from Mountain Home to Garden Valley. Republican Rep. Sher Sellman of Mountain Home would have been the incumbent candidate, but he challenged and defeated Sen. Robbi Barnuta in the GOP primary for the Senate seat. Sellman faces Democrat Fred Kennedy of Mountain Home and Libertarian Mark Joseph Shuster of Glenn's Ferry.

Deputies give BLM a hand

The Times-News

BURLEY — As seasonal firefighters go back to college or to other jobs, the U.S. Bureau of Land Management begins recruiting from an unlikely source: county sheriff's departments.
During September the BLM hires sheriff's deputies from all over the Magic Valley to patrol public lands. The deputies drive BLM vehicles, keep an eye out for fires and take crime reports, BLM spokeswoman Sky Huffaker said.
The BLM draws from the law enforcement pool because sheriff's deputies do not need training, Huffaker said. Officers are given maps of the patrol areas and turned loose, said Camas County Sheriff Keith Rast.
Rast participated in the program last year.
Cassia County deputies like the program because it gives them a chance to earn a little extra money, by working on their days off from patrol. Cassia County Undersheriff Cary Bristol said.

The BLM pays officers at a rate equivalent to overtime wages, he said. Officers are paid the emergency firefighter rate, Huffaker said. BLM officials declined to disclose the rate of pay.
The program helps maintain communication between the BLM and the nine sheriff's offices in the Magic Valley, Huffaker said. It also helps cut down on crimes and violations on public lands, said Mony White, BLM district staff manager.
Last September, Cassia County Deputy Clark Ward caught a man who intentionally started a wildfire, White said. A Utah couple saw the man light brush on fire and reported his actions to Ward, who was on patrol.
For the most part, deputies do not increase law enforcement for the BLM. Instead, they talk to campers, give fire safety information and provide help in emergencies.

Kimberly, Shoshone seek levies

By Margaret Jones and Lorraine Caverer
Times-News correspondents

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly School Board approved an emergency levy Friday that officials say will mean no great change in property taxes.
And in the Shoshone School District, the board will discuss Monday whether to pass an emergency levy that, as in Kimberly, does not require an election.
In Kimberly, the amount of the levy will be about $66,200, up $6,200 from last year's emergency levy. Officials hadn't yet calculated the new levy rate, but the current rate is 37 cents for every $1,000 of assessed property value. That means a homeowner pays $25.90 to the district on a home with an assessed value of $70,000.
The emergency levy will go toward a gifted and talented instructor for the middle and elementary schools, $10,000; increased needs for the new dual credit classes and textbooks for new students, $9,500; an increase of 15 hours a week for technology clerical assistance due to state testing, $8,500; a phone maintenance contract, $7,800; an increase in the school budget to reflect increased student enrollment, $3,000; making a half-time special education aide full time, $11,900; choir robes for a growing interest in choir, $3,500; additional computers for the language arts program, $10,000.

The district is eligible for a levy of up to $101,607 without holding an election; however, Superintendent John Garner said, "Everyone is having to cut back." Schools should find a way to do with less also.
Board chairman Jim Wright agreed. "We could have raised taxes, but we didn't."
In Shoshone, the School Board will be discussing and voting on an emergency levy at its 7:30 p.m. Monday meeting at the district office; at 409 N. Apple.
An election is not necessary to pass the $67,716 levy, said

Paul looks at expanding sewer system

By Nate Johnson
Times-News writer

PAUL — The city of Paul is looking for money to make its sewer system capable of handling waste from Magic Valley Produce.

Representatives of Magic Valley Produce approached the City Council about 10 years ago, asking for a municipal sewer hookup. Paul Public Works Director Rich Rau said. At that time the city system could not manage the water. But the planned new sewer system for the city can be designed to take more of the wastewater.

Carleen Herring, economic development division manager for Region IV Development, is helping the city apply for a $500,000 grant to pay for equipment and lift station upgrades to move the wastewater from Magic Valley Produce.

The city of Paul would not make money off the Magic Valley Produce wastewater arrangement, but it would benefit in other ways, Rau said. By providing sewage treatment, the city of Paul can keep Magic Valley Produce and its 48 permanent and 17 seasonal employees in town, Rau said.

Officials from the Environmental Protection Agency have asked Magic Valley

Public hearing

The Paul City Council will conduct a public hearing to discuss a grant application for sewer improvements at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the city office.

Produce President Pete Delis to change the way the company disposes of sewage, Delis said. Delis would not comment on current disposal practices, except to say the disposal costs nothing.

The waste which needs to be addressed is dirty water created when potatoes are washed. The plant's toilets are already connected to the city sewer system.

The cost for Delis to install a treatment plant on site would be prohibitive, he said.

Herring has not decided if she will apply for a federal block grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development or a grant from the Idaho Department of Commerce on behalf of the city project.

Either grant would probably require matching funds from the city, which could be provided through in-kind work.

Center expands night class program

By Sharl Chaney
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Kids need something to do after school.

In an effort to give them something fun and productive to do, the Cassia Education Center is expanding its night class program, Principal Lauri Bailey said.

The school offered a limited number of night classes last year, funded by the Cassia County School District, Bailey said. That program was deemed a success.

This year the free program will expand because the school district received a $34,982 grant through the safe and drug free schools advisory board.

The grant includes $8,051 for day care services, which means day care is provided free for anyone taking night classes, Bailey said. All supplies and materials are furnished in each class and a light supper will be served.

The program is designed to help students who are behind in credits catch up. Bailey said the classes are open to any student in Minidoka or Cassia counties in grades seven through 12 who is behind in credits.

Students at the Cassia Education Center were involved in selecting which classes would be offered, Bailey said. Most are elective classes with high interest, hands-on topics. All credits count toward graduation.

Classes are filling quickly, but there are still some openings, Bailey said.

Any student interested in taking a class must preregister by calling Bailey at 878-6690.

Classes starting in September are:

- Teen health and relationships — Classes are held from 5 until 8 p.m. on Mondays, beginning Sept. 9 and running through Nov. 25.
- Speech — Classes are held from 5 until 8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays, beginning Sept. 10 and running through Oct. 17.

• Humanities — Events are held throughout the school year. The first class to discuss the schedule will be at 3:15 p.m. Sept. 11.

• Juvenile justice related careers — Classes are held from 5 until 8 p.m. on Wednesdays, beginning on Sept. 28 and running through Dec. 18.

Other classes start at different times throughout the year and run for about 12 weeks, Bailey said. Topics include word work, cooking, parenting, computers and physical science.

Some courses, such as physical science or speech, are offered because many students need those classes. Bailey said 34 students at the Cassia Education Center currently need to take a physical science class. Often those are the ones who need the most help to graduate.

Freshman courses, such as physical science, are sometimes difficult to coordinate because those classes are taught at the junior high and students can attend the junior high after age 16, Bailey said.

Having a night class program gives students more options to complete their education. Some students work during the day, sometimes supporting a family, Bailey said. Without night classes they would be unable to take any classes. And students who take day and night classes can accelerate their work of credits; they earn and receive their diplomas sooner.

Any student interested in taking a class must preregister by calling Bailey at 878-6690.

State, federal officials agree on aquifer study

POST FALLS (AP) — State and federal officials have agreed to share equally in the management of a $3.5 million study of the Rathdrum Prairie Aquifer.

But the decision to give the states of Idaho and Washington the same status in the analysis as the U.S. Geological Survey is drawing criticism.

Dale Marcy of the Kootenai Environmental Alliance fears that means state can more its vested interest in allocating the limited resource to provide the kind of objective, independent direction that a scientific agency like the Geological Survey can.

The aquifer is the main source of drinking water for more than 400,000 people in northern Idaho and eastern Washington.

Water managers in both states want more information on how much water is available.

"We're making assumptions based on the best data we have, but we know that's not good enough," said George Schender of the Washington State Department of Ecology.

The aquifer is the main source of drinking water for more than 400,000 people in northern Idaho and eastern Washington.

Although the federal and state agencies had their individual management plans, all three were very similar, and state and federal representatives agreed to split the financing. They concluded that would be no less efficient than having one agency lead the project.

Officials said funneling some of the money directly to the states will reduce cash lost to administrative costs. The states also have more flexibility than the federal government in working with contractors, and that could spread the grant funds even farther.

Parents tattoo swastika on back of their baby's head

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Police have taken down for some time there is a growing population of white supremacists along the Wasatch Front, and the depth of devotion to that cause was shown by the Logan parents who tattooed a swastika on the back of their 8-month-old child's head.

The issue was discussed at the Northern Utah Gang and Youth Violence Conference, which ended Thursday.

A home-care nurse in Logan said she visited a home earlier this year. The mother answered the door holding the baby.

"I just couldn't believe what I was seeing," said the nurse, who was at the conference but asked not to be identified.

On the back of the child's head was a tattooed swastika about the size of a quarter. It was detailed, colored and very prominent.

The mother refused to let the nurse in the house, but the nurse noticed flags with swastikas and other such items hanging on the walls and scattered throughout the room.

The nurse said she reported the incident to the Division of Child and Family Services, which said though it is shocking, to tattoo a child, it is not child abuse.

Ogden police Lt. Loring Chrader said the number of white supremacist groups is growing in northern Utah through recruiting efforts and an increasing population of prison parolees assigned to an Ogden halfway house.

But she said he "doesn't want to put everybody in a panic. These guys are a concern, but they are not a major, major issue."

Many white supremacists are moving away from more heavily populated areas of Ogden and Salt Lake City to rural areas of Box Elder or Cache counties.

Davis County authorities said a branch of Soldiers of Aryan Culture, a growing white supremacist group with ties in Ogden, has been rumored to be meeting frequently in Sunset.

Secretary: Forest thinning would follow federal law

BOISE (AP) — Millions of acres of unhealthy forests in the West have burned this year, and the Bush administration's move to eliminate appeals blocking forest thinning projects is vital to avoid more catastrophic blazes, Interior Secretary Gale Norton said Friday.

While challenges to such projects would go directly to the federal courts, the Healthy Forests Initiative, environmental standards such as the Clean Water Act still apply, Assistant Secretary Rebecca Watson added.

The two visited the National Intergency Fire Center in Boise, which oversees fire suppression efforts across the country.

"It minimizes the ability for some people to come in and file the fact and challenge and derail projects," Norton said. "A Bureau of Land Management manager told me one man plans to challenge every fuels-thinning project that comes up. That one person's ability to create danger for many other people and to undermine health of the forest."

Conservationists said the administration's blueprint is designed to restrict public involvement.

On Thursday, Norton asked the House Resources Committee to speed up fire-prevention efforts as 2002 wild fires top 6.3 million acres.

The Bush plan would that the amount of forest land in critical fire danger.

Instead of following the National Environmental Policy Act guidelines for public hearings on land management, the government would use a collaborative process adopted by the Western Governors Association.

It relies on cooperation among all levels of government to prioritize which forest thinning projects should be done first, Watson said.

"If we can skip that administrative review and move appeals right to federal court, the process has changed but the standards that govern the process are not provide — the Clean Water Act, Endangered Species Act, National Historic Preservation Act — all those remain in effect and can be litigated," Watson said.

Norton said she favors public-private partnerships that would clear dead and dying vegetation from the forests.

recall after Sept. 11. Gilman recalled, "but I think we may have gone back to sleep in some ways."

Gilman said Americans did not wake up and realize who our heroes are" in the analysis as the fight forward and keep going, just as President Bush advised.

Change, as the only constant

Some things are different since last Sept. 11, when 1,000 people staged a prayer vigil in Twin Falls City Park and hundreds more gathered in a Jerome park, in southern Idaho churches and at the King Fine Arts Center in Burley.

On the plus side, church leaders say there is more patriotism. And Howard McMane, pastor of Twin Falls Idaho Stake, said today's public prayers seem to contain more mention of the country and its heroes.

Ann Major, an attorney, said even the kids at her church's day camp are asking for faithful red, white and blue face-painting day.

Father Brian Thom, rector of Twin Falls Episcopal Church, said the Ascension, senses more interest in fellowship these days, both at church and outside the hallowed walls. "Even the social gatherings I've been to seem more intentional now," he said.

And the Rev. Paul Reeves, rector of the Twin Falls First Presbyterian Church, remembered the church last Sept. 15 that good did come out of terror. A year ago, he said, he's more sensitive toward the blessings in his pastor and his people as the result of praying for the country's military.

But some post-Sept. 11 changes are being characterized as less than sterling. The Rev. Jerry Kester, of the Twin Falls First Church of the Nazarene, said some people are making religion a scapegoat.

"There is this whole idea that religion is at the heart of the trouble, the idea that if we didn't have fanatic religious people," he said, adding that this fuels an ongoing trend of thinking you can be spiritual without organized religion. "We really do have a pretty strong backlash of people saying the problem is religion, and the distance between believers and unbelievers is growing rapidly."

He added: "We are more suspicious of people with ethnic diversity, too."

The Rev. Al Trachsel, of the Burley United Methodist Church, also thinks some people are examining the whole moral thing and concluding, "It's better get to the fun-making while the fun-making is there."

And Pastor Mike Kestler, of Twin Falls Calvary Chapel, looks at all of this as fulfillment of Bible prophecy.

City via its satellite system.

Sixteen percent of Americans gave donations as a result of the tragedy. More than 60 million American adults hung flags outside their homes.

Eleven percent of the public tried to give blood.

Christian music sales increased by 33 percent after Sept. 11, and Bible sales are up 40 percent since that date. More books on Bible prophecy also are being sold, with the "Left Behind" series now topping 32 million copies.

American Free Research Center, G. S. Lewis & Co. Publishers, the Gospel Music Association, Publishers Weekly, Zondervan.

"I don't know that anyone was quite prepared for watching planes fly into the World Trade Center anymore than watching the bombings in Israel," he said.

"I think people are looking for answers concerning end times, and I believe the Bible really points to the days that we live in and warns of what's coming."

Where to go from here

Amid the turmoil, some seem to have embraced a false sense of security, Gilman said. And the Rev. Lynn Schaal, pastor of Twin Falls Amazing Grace Fellowship, said the absence of another big attack might have lulled people away from the church.

"Some people may be thinking it's OK, maybe I don't need this," he said.

But the Rev. Jim Frisbie, of the Twin Falls First United Methodist Church, discovered a number of Sept. 11-generated concerns when he asked his congregation to suggest sermon topics.

"I've preached a series this summer on Christianity and Islam and sermons on why bad things happen to good people and how can we love our enemies," he said. "People have felt more vulnerable in lots of ways."

And so, church leaders are looking for ways to help their people make some sense out of the senselessness.

Michael Driscoll, of the Roman Catholic Church's Boise Diocese, has distributed Sept. 11 liturgical planners to his priests and ministers, along with resources from the U.S. Catholic Conference of Bishops.

"All of the churches will have special services," he said. "I'm joining with (Episcopal) Bishop Harry Bainbridge, who's putting together an ecumenical service in Boise for that night."

Meanwhile, Americans of all religious persuasions continue to work through their grief processes, and attempt to process the messages of their faiths:

"Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord," "Turn the other cheek," "An eye for an eye," "What would Jesus do?"

Last year, on the Sunday after Sept. 11, the sermon at the Salvation Army was titled "Finding Peace in an Unpeaceful World." The obvious question, this year: Did anyone?

"I think we searched harder," Patterson said, "and looked within for peace." Amid plenty of prayer.

Duncan added, "I don't know if we will ever wipe terrorism out of the world, but prayer is a more powerful tool."

And that's why the people of faith will gather Wednesday in Twin Falls City Park, one more time, to pray for peace.

"The gathering at City Park is not a celebration of Sept. 11," Duncan explained. "Instead, we are saying problems still exist, and God is just as much needed — and still is the one to turn to."

Library exhibit shows how animals make their 'living'

TWIN FALLS - A rich variety of plants and animals make their home in Idaho. How these species make a living is the subject of "Understanding the Work of Nature," a traveling exhibit from the Natural Heritage Center at Idaho State University. The exhibit will be on display during the month of September at the Twin Falls Public Library.

The free display can be viewed during library hours: from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday, Friday and Saturday; and 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The display provides an opportunity to explore Idaho's landscapes, habitats and diversity of life through photographs, graphic images, specimens and an interactive computer kiosk.

Visitors can learn about how each species holds an occupation that fulfills an important role in nature. Together, these species keep the natural economy humming. The exhibit tells many stories, including that of the red-naped sapsucker, a common Idaho woodpecker, that "makes its living" by well drilling and home building. Sap wells drilled in willows are not only a rich food source for sapsuckers, but also provide nutrition to other animals including wasps, butterflies, hummingbirds, chipmunks and

Learning about it will help thwart terrorism

region about the reasons for the attacks on the United States, the answer is more likely to relate to the policy of the U.S. government in their region than to the Koran.

Promotion of Israel by the United States figures prominently as a factor behind the negative perception of the United States.

Among both religious adherents and secularists in the region, one finds deep suspicion about the United States, particularly in light of the flare-up of the past year between the Israelis and Palestinians.

A book with a sociological slant about the culture of the Middle East, or a book about our foreign policy as it relates to the region might better accomplish the aim of the University of North Carolina.

Nonetheless, Koranic thought is used by some to give expression to the widely held negative assessment of the United States. To that extent, the Koran is a piece of the puzzle.

In any case, as does President Bush, that those who attacked the United States did so because they hate democracy is inaccurate and obscures the real reasons.

Military force and heightened security go only so far in deterring future attacks. Our policies need to be examined.

Universities around the country have responded to the September attacks by offering new courses in a variety of disciplines on the Middle East.

Students are studying the history of different countries there. They are studying the economics of the region, particularly of the oil industry. They are studying our policy in the region. Only if we understand the Middle East in a comprehensive way can we begin to chart a course to protect ourselves, and to promote the well-being of the inhabitants there.

The University of North Carolina has taken one small, but all important, step in that process.

that even reading the Koran—or a book about it—is perceived as sedition.

On July 22 the Virginia-based Family Policy Network filed a lawsuit against the University of North Carolina claiming that it is unconstitutional for a publicly funded university to require students to study a specific religion.

Family Policy Network President Joe Glover contends that “Approaching the Qur’an is a one-sided presentation of Islam “that entirely leaves out Suras 4, 5, and 9 of the Koran”— passages that contain exhortations to kill infidels.

In response to the brouhaha, university officials amended the assignment so that those students who object to the reading can avoid it and instead write a one-page paper explaining their objection.

Sells, author of the book in question, reportedly spends a lot of time defending his position and trying to make the point that teaching about Islam is not the same as proselytizing for it.

That critical point seems to have been lost in the translation. Surely teaching is not the same as preaching, albeit contemporary instructors seem to have glossed over the difference.

Islam is a religion of peace, or violence, depending on its interpreters. Even within the Muslim world answers are varied.

As I see it, teaching about Islam is not different from teaching about any religion. Neutrality should be maintained and proselytizing should be discouraged. However, the critics do have a point.

Sells book conspicuously omits analysis of sections in the Koran that urges violence and offer, at the very least, a partial explanation of terrorist acts in the name of Allah.

However, it also strikes me as a stretch to require that his assignment is a violation of the Constitution. Students are not being asked to study a specific religion; they are merely being asked to read a book about religion.

Presumably an exchange of views might be a result of this reading. There isn't the slightest presumption that students are being asked to embrace Islam or excuse violence in the name of Islam. Moreover, reading books you disagree with is a reasonable condition for education to promote, since education in its purest sense is an exploration outside of what is already known.

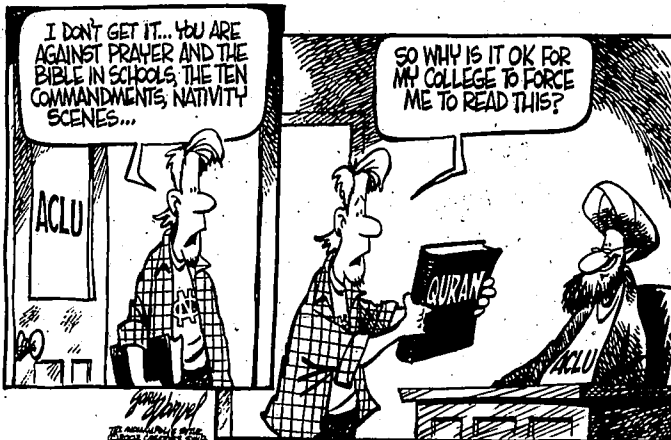

As I see it, the assignment could have been enhanced by having students read sections of the Koran omitted from the Sells' treatment. If this is to be an intellectual exercise, there isn't any sense in adopting a selective understanding of Islam.

Politically correct education, however, doesn't work for either political side in this charged environment. It is instructive, for example, that the ACLU argues that this reading isn't a problem because its aim is educational.

Would the ACLU adopt this same broadminded approach if students were required to read the New Testament or the Torah?

So much for consistency. It's too bad this case has attracted so much attention. What one hears from the sky above Chapel Hill is much thunder, but what one sees is very little lightning or illumination.

For the university's critics, this required assignment is tantamount to the teaching of "Mein Kampf"—i.e., requiring study of the enemy's religion.

The controversy at the university is clearly related to the distrust of Islam among many Americans, a distrust so great

Senator should protect trees, oppose logging aid

To Sen. Crapo: I am opposed to the methods being proposed by Sen. Craig and President Bush to cut trees in national forests located in Idaho. These forests do not belong to timber companies nor to Idaho residents alone. They are under the protection and responsibility of the American people. I want the public process to be followed.

I am not opposed to reasonable cuts being made to protect private property. I am adamantly opposed to the logging being conducted in remote areas for the benefit of commercial interests under the guise of fire protection. It is a cheap shot which plays on people's fears.

I am asking that you consider the real reasons this plan is being proposed and oppose it. Thank you. JUDY HALL, Ketchum

City costs, salaries run too high in Burley

We were taking our oldest grand home after a visit when he was about 11 years old. The subject of how far he had to walk to school came up. Being the elderly gentleman that I am I couldn't resist telling him I had to walk to school five miles uphill both ways in a foot of snow. He got a very puzzled look on his face while contemplating this. Then he said, "Grandpa, you don't know anything about science, do you?" To this day, this story brings a smile to my face.

I feel at the present time I know less about math than science. When Bud Brinegar was city clerk and administrator, Frank Bauman our mayor, the cost to run the city was $75,000 - $45,000 to Bud Brinegar, $30,000 to Frank Bauman and I believe he only drew $15,000. That was his own choosing. So in reality, we only had a cost of $60,000 per year.

Now I don't expect anyone to give back part of their salary, but at the present time, our cost is as follows: City clerk, $36,000 per year; mayor (part time), $15,000; total - $51,000; city administrator, $78,000; deferred salary $3,400, monthly car allowance $360; cost at the present time is $136,720. Now I realize expenses have risen in the last few years, but that much? I don't think so. Is there that much more going on?

I'm sure it's only a rumor, but I will heed the administrator thinks he needs an assistant. For what reason, I'm not sure. Please correct me if I'm wrong, which I hope I am. ROY LAND, Burley

Sept. 11 brought the nation together as a people

PAUL C. REEVES

I f there is anything we can learn from the indelible memory of 9-11, it is this: "We're in this together."

Sept. 11 will always be remembered as a day when we cried, moaned, raged, gathered, hugged and prayed as a people. It will always be the day in which we lived and felt "we are in this together." Innocent people who bravely died and courageously rescued were embraced by us as kinfolk and next-door neighbors in the family of America. The distinctions of skin color, native language, religion practiced, gender, age or accent disappeared. What counted, what touched us boiled down to the generic. The living stories of persons - fathers, brothers, mothers, sisters, husbands, wives, grandparents, friends and grandchildren - suffered an unthinkable, gruesome but very real nightmare. Tears streaming, minds dreading and flags waving, we connected seamlessly as one people whose aching souls and united hearts believed "we are in this together."

In weeks afterwards, the Ad Council broadcast a short clip on television depicting this heritage, this uniqueness of America. You remember it. It showed a series of people of every skin color, hair type, face shape and age saying, "I am an American." As I watched this 911 artistic response, it struck me that no other nation in the world could portray itself that way. I will never be able to say, "I'm a Frenchman" or "I am a Chinese." Yet, if a French or Chinese person became a citizen of the United States, they could say, "I am an American." This is a land where Lady Liberty welcomes the tired, poor and huddled masses yearning to breathe free. We Americans are not united by skin shade, religious preference, educational background or economic standing. We are united by an idea that we choose to and can live together in freedom. We're in this freedom idea together.

That is what the leadership of Enron and Worldcom failed to remember. They thought, "We are in this for ourselves." They ignored the reality that their actions would affect thousands of lives. Their heavy greed crashed into the proud towers of thousands of families whose jobs, mortgages, college aspirations, retirement security, medical care, hopes and dreams crashed. Their behavior defamed the priceless American idea, the historic precious value that shined so brightly in our hearts on 9-11. We are in this together.

greed give us two undeniable reasons that this idea of "we're in this together" no longer can solely be an American idea. The planet earth is like a huge mobile hanging in space made up of wood pieces connected by steel. Touch one part and another part is jostled. The wages and tariffs of one land affect the livelihoods in another land. The drought in one place on mobile earth affects the price of produce on the other side of the world. The dwindling rain forest shakes the chances of cure for illnesses plaguing all humankind. Political unrest and injustice in one spot, be it Israel or Sudan, jars the peace and economies of other lands.

Bin Laden's terrorists exported destruction, death and fear. As Americans, we cannot and will not consciously import these into our homeland. Through our action on the local, national and international levels, let us consciously export the genius and truth of America to a divided and hurting world: We are in this together. That would be the best memorial we could ever give to those who perished.

Afghan president says attacks don't threaten government

KABUL, Afghanistan - President Hamid Karzai said Friday the attempt on his life and the deadly car bombing in his capital city earlier were the acts of individual terrorists, not a threat to his government.

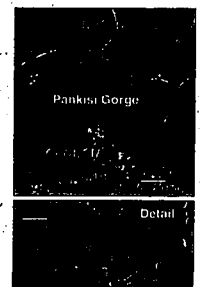

Afghan police and intelligence questioned suspects in Thursday's assassination bid in the southern city of Kandahar and the car bombing in Kabul a few hours earlier that killed 30 people and wounded 167 - the worst day of violence since the Taliban was driven from power.

Police said 14 people were detained in Kandahar Friday for questioning in connection with the assassination bid, in which a bullet fired by a security guard hit to protect a local governor's mansion missed Karzai by inches.

The attacks were seen by many as a serious challenge to Karzai's struggle to establish stability in a country divided among feuding warlords, harried by remnants of the Taliban regime and its al-Qaida terrorist allies, and left in financial ruins by decades of bloodshed.

Russia announces joint operations with Georgia

BAKU, Azerbaijan - Russia's interior minister said he reached an agreement with Georgian officials Friday to conduct joint operations in the Pankisi Gorge after months of tension over the crime-infested area bordering Chechnya, but a Georgian official said no Russian forces would enter the gorge.

Georgia recently started its own operation in the gorge and has repeatedly refused Russia's offers to help rid the gorge of Chechen rebels, who Moscow says use Pankisi as a base and a supply line. Russian officials have scorned the Georgian efforts as a sham.

Russia has long accused Georgia of sheltering Chechen rebels, while Georgia countered that Russia pushed the militants onto Georgian territory in the first place when it launched its second war in Chechnya in five years.

The United States believes some militants could be linked to al-Qaida.

Teacher who had sex with boy sentenced to prison

HACKENSACK, N.J. - A female teacher who had sex with a 13-year-old boy was sentenced to three years in prison Friday after a previous judge caused a furor when he spared her a jail term by saying, "I really don't see the harm that was done."

Pamela Diehl-Moore, 43, was also ordered by Superior Court

Judge William Meehan to register as a sex offender after her release from prison.

Superior Court Judge Bruce A. Gaeta said he saw nothing wrong with the relationship and that the boy did not appear to suffer any psychological harm.

"Maybe it was a way for him, once this happened, to satisfy his sexual needs. People mature at different ages," Gaeta said.

Number of Chinese with AIDS will reach 1 million

BEIJING - The number of people in China infected with the AIDS virus will soar to 1 million this year, but the rate of new infections seems to be falling, a Health Ministry official said Friday.

The announcement was the highest estimate given yet by the Chinese government, which activists and foreign health experts accuse of failing to do enough to combat the epidemic.

The number of infected people in China jumped 58 percent from 2000 to 2001, but the rate of increase this year dropped to 16.7 percent, said Qi Xiaojing, director general of the ministry's Department of Disease Control.

IMF gives formal approval to record loan for Brazil

WASHINGTON - The International Monetary Fund formally approved a record $30.4 billion loan for Brazil on Friday, hoping the size of the package will help convince investors that South America's largest economy is not in danger of defaulting on its foreign debt.

The decision by the IMF's executive board followed outlines of an agreement announced Aug. 7 by IMF Managing Director Horst Koehler.

The IMF acted to shore up confidence in the Brazilian economy, which has suffered this year from deep recession in neighboring Argentina and from growing investor worries what economic policy the government will implement after October's election of a successor to President Fernando Henrique Cardoso.

The Bush team, led by Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill, had been highly critical of huge loans the IMF had used with the backing of the Clinton administration to deal with the 1997-98 Asian crisis. O'Neill dropped his opposition to the new support for Brazil, however.

Wazzu doesn't plan to overlook Vandals

The Associated Press

PULLMAN, Wash. - Idaho's campus is just 8 miles east, and that's as far as Washington State wants to look. The Cougars travel to No. 8 Ohio State next weekend, but quarterback Jason Gesser said No. 11 Cougars won't be guilty of overlooking the Vandals, their opponent in Martin Stadium today.

The Cougars are 1-0 after beating Nevada 34-7, but weren't as impressive in their opener as many thought they would be. "Against Nevada, we should have played a lot better. We should have put up a lot more points," Gesser said. "This week, we're feeling that. We want to go out there and prove ... we can play the way we want to play on Saturday."

WSU, of the Pacific-10 Conference, is favored to win by four touchdowns over its Sun Belt Conference opponent.

Cougars coach Mike Price said his team is still working to get its offense in gear after the Nevada victory that was more difficult than it looked.

Price was particularly concerned with the run offense, which netted only 108 yards. Reserve back Jonathan Smith had the most yards - 50 - and two short touchdowns on 10 carries. Starter John Tippins netted 21 yards on five carries.

"We wanted the running attack to be a lot better," Price said. "We'll just have to see if someone outdistances himself from the next guy."

Idaho coach Tom Cable said WSU, led by Gesser, a senior quarterback, "has a million offensive weapons. It will be a tremendous test defensively. It may be one of the best defenses we play all year."

Gesser, who threw for 242 yards and a touchdown against Nevada, said the proximity to Idaho makes the game a must-win. "They've beaten us two of the last three years. We beat them in a pretty convincing game last season," Gesser said of the 36-7 Cougars' victory. "It's a rivalry. You always want to be the one that beats them."

The Cougars are the first of three Pac-10 opponents the Vandals face this month. Next week, it's No. 13 Oregon and then 14th-ranked Washington on Sept. 28.

"With who we're playing this first month, we have to play the best we can," Cable said. "We're playing better than before ... we have to go beyond that. We have to play the best we're capable of."

Idaho surrendered 503 yards in losing 48-21 at Boise State last Saturday as junior quarterback Brian Lindgren threw for 236 yards and two TDs. Lindgren threw for 427 yards against Boise State last season, then set an NCAA mark a week later for total offense by a sophomore at Middle Tennessee, completing 49 of 71 passes for 639 yards.

The Vandals are 1-11 over the last two seasons, but Cable said he believes they can win. "You could say that's a big hill to climb. To me the character in the football team gives us a chance," Cable said.

Tigers open with win

Jerome ends two-game losing streak to Buhl

By John Derr
Times-News writer

BUHL - It wasn't pretty, but the Tigers will take it.

All the pre-game talk of Jerome centered around its running game, but it was a pair of touchdown passes that led the Tigers to a 15-11 victory over the Buhl Indians in their non-conference football action at a soggy Bowers Field Friday night in Buhl.

The win was also the first for first-year Jerome coach Terry Waitley.

"We have been talking to them all along about wearing people down with our big guys. We just started with the game plan," Waitley said.

Penalties hurt both teams, but it was six lost fumbles - and three that weren't - that hurt the Tigers.

Confusion reigned throughout the night. The first problem came before kickoff. Jerome had the game scheduled at 7:30 p.m. while Buhl showed a 7 p.m. start. That led to a late arriving crowd - including the cheerleaders - for the Tigers.

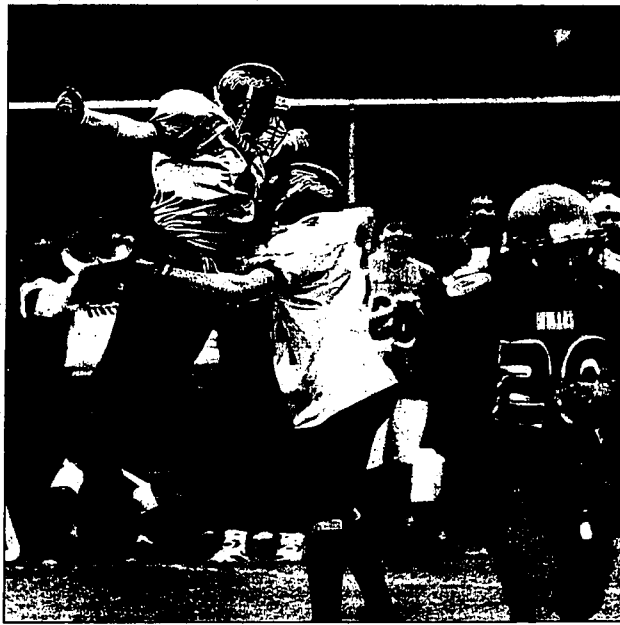

Jerome opened strong, pushing the ball up the field, but a failed field goal ended its first drive. After an interception by Chad Seibold gave Jerome back the ball at the Indians' 34, the Tigers went on a six-play drive for the game's first points.

On fourth down, quarterback Jesse Pallas rolled to his right and aimed for Corey Bauer. The ball was low and Bauer - who was already on the ground - was able to catch it for 10 yards.

Pallas finished the first half 3-for-3 for 28 yards.

"It was awesome. There is a lot of pressure on me, but I am ready to lead us to the promised land," said Pallas, who started at quarterback for the first time.

The Tiger defense dominated, holding Buhl to negative yards through the middle of the second quarter, but the offense was notable to take advantage. A fumble ended one drive before penalties started to mount.

Forced to punt deep in their own territory, Jerome went to snap but the ball sailed to the goal post, giving Buhl the safety.

That brought out a fireworks display from the middle school field. It must have motivated the Indians.

Holes started to open for Indian workhorse Josh Ussery, who tallied 89 yards. Buhl moved the ball down to the 25 then quarterback Tim Bourner connected with Rob Walker for an apparent touchdown, but it was called back due to interference.

The Tigers tried to run out the clock late in the half, but Buhl got the ball back at the Tigers' 39 yard line.

Bourner took off on a draw up the middle before darting outside for an apparent score. The officials signaled for the touchdown, then decided he went out of bounds at the 3.

Troubles with the clock caused more confusion. With the head official blowing his whistle to start the clock, Ussery ran a sweep around the left end for another touchdown. But again, discussion followed, this time the FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. - Arkansas senior defensive lineman Jermaine Brooks knows better than to take Boise State lightly Saturday.

In 2000, Brooks was a sophomore when the Broncos scored 25 second-half points and Arkansas needed a fourth-quarter touch-down pass to win 38-31.

The Broncos get another shot at Arkansas at Saturday at Donald W. Reynolds Razorback Stadium. Boise State (1-0) has made a splash since becoming an NCAA Division I school in 1996.

After losing seasons the first two years, the Broncos have had winning records for the past four. They've been to two Humanitarian Bowls, and in the last three years Boise State is 28-9. That's tied with Kansas State for ninth-best in the nation over a three-year period.

But the Broncos don't have a win against a team from a top conference.

"That's a big step to take," Boise State coach Dan Hawkins said.

Arkansas coach Houston Nutt knows this time around he'll see another Boise State offense that's capable of scoring quickly.

"We know they love to throw the football," Nutt said. "We know that they trust their quarterback. They trust their receivers."

Nutt speaks of junior quarterback Ryan Dinwiddie, who completed 18 of 23 passes for 259 yards in a 38-21 victory over Idaho last week.

Running backs Brock Forse and David Mikell give Boise State multiple options. The pair combined for 328 yards and five touchdowns last week. Forse had a 100-yard receiving game and Mikell averaged 10.8 yards a carry.

Both Arkansas quarterback Matt Jones and running back Fred Hiley's shoulders are healed, although Talley missed a day of practice this week with a stomach ailment.

Williams sisters reach another final

By Howard Fendrich
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK - The streak of Sister Slams was under siege Friday.

In one U.S. Open semifinal, Venus Williams, hampered by a blister on her hand, trailed 0-40 in the 10th game of the third set. In the other, Serena Williams was down 5-2 in the second set, and later faced three set points.

Yet, with an air of inevitability, each sister leaned on their cringing serves to get out of trouble and set up another all-Williams major final.

Venus got past Amelie Mauresmo 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, taking the last five points with serves at up to 122 mph. Serena ran off the final five games to defeat fourth-seeded Lindsay Davenport 6-3, 7-5.

Not once in the 20th century did siblings meet to decide a Grand Slam title. It's about to happen at a third straight major, and for the fourth time in five majors.

Serena Williams hits a shot against Lindsay Davenport during their semifinal match at the U.S. Open in New York Friday. Williams won the match and will face her sister, Venus Williams, in the final today.

"It's definitely very remarkable. It's a feat that's never happened before," said top-seeded Serena. "Growing up I figured, 'Hey, I want to be No. 1. I want to win Grand Slams.' Venus obviously had the same goals."

Venus beat Serena in the 2001 U.S. Open final, but the younger sister prevailed at the French Open and Wimbledon this year. Venus has a 5-4 career edge against Serena, who has won

The College of Southern Idaho mentor and his son/assistant coach Boomer Walker, both have enjoyed a few pleasant surprises mixed in with the usual headaches during the fall baseball season.

BYU holds off Hawaii

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Bret Engemann completed 21 of 47 passes for 226 yards, and Marcus Whalen ran for 141 yards and two scores as Brigham Young beat Hawaii 35-32 on Friday night, avenging a stinging defeat last year in Honolulu.
Hawaii went 72-45 last season, a humiliating loss that spoiled BYU's 12-0 start, knocked the Cougars from the Top 10 and eroded the team's claim to a possible Fiesta Bowl appearance.
Both teams played hot-and-cold in the rematch, but the Cougars (2-0) pulled away in the third quarter when Hawaii (1-1) stalled offensively.

Twins snap Athletics' win streak

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Oakland Athletics' 20-game winning streak came to an end Friday night as Brad Radke pitched the Minnesota Twins to a 6-0 victory in a Metrodome filled with fans waving Homer Hankies.

The Athletics fell short of matching the second-longest winning streak in baseball history. The Chicago Cubs of 1936 and 1935 both won 21 straight. The 1916 New York Giants won the major league record of 26 wins in a row. The A's had set the AL mark for consecutive victories since their last loss, 2-1 to Toronto on Aug. 12.

Radke (7-4) pitched a six-hitter, striking out five and walking one in his best and longest outing since returning from a groin injury that cost him two months. Cory Lidle (8-10), named the AL's Pitcher of the Month for August after he went 5-0 in six starts with an eye-opening 0.19 ERA, gave up eight hits and five were for extra bases.

Angels 6, Orioles 3
BALTIMORE — Garret Anderson hit his third homer in two games and his major league-leading 52nd double as Anaheim won its eighth straight, beating Baltimore.

Adam Kennedy hit a two-run homer and Brad Fuller drove in six runs for the Angels, whose eight-game streak matches their longest of the season. Rookie John Lackey (8-3) allowed three runs and four hits in six innings.

Yankees 8, Tigers 1
NEW YORK — David Wells pitched a five-hitter and Jason Giambi hit his 35th home run, leading New York over Detroit.

Giambi had three hits and scored three runs as the AL East leaders won their fourth in a row. Detroit lost its third straight game.

Wells (16-7) won for the ninth time in his last 11 starts, and only allowed a Tiger past second base once. He walked none and struck out five in his second complete game of the season and 48th of his career.

Jorge Posada set a Yankees record for catchers with his 36th double and also added an RBI single.

Mark Redman (8-14) gave up seven runs and nine hits in losing for the sixth time in his last seven starts.

M Mariners 14, Royals 7
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Edgar Martinez homered and scored three times as Seattle beat Kansas City.

Bret Boone drove in three runs, Martinez had two RBIs and Freddy Garcia got his 15th win for the Mariners, who remained four games behind Anaheim in the AL wild-card race. Seattle moved within six games of first-place Oakland in the AL West.

Red Sox 7, Blue Jays 2
BOSTON — Benny Agbayani drove in three runs in his Boston debut and Tim Lincecum pitched seven strong innings as the Red Sox temporarily halted their late-season slide with a win over Toronto.

The Red Sox, who snapped a three-game losing streak, had fallen back in the playoff chase this week by losing four of six. They are just 14-18 since Aug. 1.

Indians 9, White Sox 7
CHICAGO — Lee Stevens homered twice and tied a career high with six RBIs as Cleveland beat Mark Buehrle and Chicago.

Dave Burba (5-5), making his first start for Cleveland this season, allowed four runs and seven hits in six innings to help the Indians win their third consecutive game. Stevens hit a three-run homer and a solo shot.

Frank Thomas hit a three-run homer in the ninth inning for the White Sox.

Rangers 9, Devil Rays 3
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Todd Hollandsworth hit a two-run shot in the ninth inning to extend Texas' home-run streak, and the Rangers beat Tampa Bay.

The Rangers have homered in 24 straight games, one short of the major-league record shared by the New York Yankees (1941), Detroit (1994) and Atlanta (1998).

National League

Cardinals 11, Cubs 2
ST. LOUIS — Andy Benes came within one out of a shutout and contributed to younger brother Alan's early exit with two hits during an 11-run third inning as the St. Louis Cardinals beat Chicago 11-2 Friday night.

The Benes vs. Benes matchup was believed to be only the seventh time in major league history that brothers have faced each other. It was the first time since Ramon Martinez beat younger sibling Pedro Martinez on Aug. 29, 1996.

Andy Benes struck out six — fanning Sammy Sosa in three times — and walked one. Alan Benes (1-1) lasted only 2-3 innings and gave up eight runs on seven hits in his third start for the Cubs since his contract was purchased from Triple-A Iowa on Aug. 23.

Braves 5, Expos 0
ATLANTA — Kevin Millwood pitched a three-hitter and hit a two-run double to win his seventh consecutive decision as Atlanta reduced its magic number to four with a 5-0 victory over Montreal.

The right-hander gave up only three singles and never allowed a runner past second base.

Millwood (16-6) is 14-1 in 21 starts since May 24, and the Braves won five of those six decisions. The streak is reminiscent of his 1999 breakout season, when he went 12-3 with a 2.17 ERA over his final 20 games.

Mets 7, Phillies 2
PHILADELPHIA — Jeremy Burnitz hit a three-run homer, Timo Perez had three RBIs and Al Leiter pitched seven solid innings to lead New York Mets over Philadelphia.

Leiter (12-11) allowed two runs, seven hits and overcame five walks to make up for a 9-5 loss to Philadelphia last Sunday in which he lasted just two innings, the second-shortest outing of his career.

Oakland Athletics pitcher Cory Lidle leaves the field after giving up four runs to the Twins in Minneapolis Friday.

Pirates 11, Marlins 0
PITTSBURGH — Jack Wilson hit a three-run homer and had a career-best four RBIs as Pittsburgh beat Florida.

Kevin Young hit a two-run homer and Kris Benson (7-6) combined with four relievers on a nine-hitter, Pittsburgh's seventh shutout of the season.

Rockies 7, Padres 3
DENVER — Juan Uribe hit a three-run homer, rookie Aaron Cook pitched seven strong innings and the Colorado Rockies beat the San Diego Padres 7-3 Friday night. A crowd of 26,243 at Coors Field was a franchise low.

Uribe's homer capped a four-run fourth inning, giving the Rockies a 5-0 lead.

Reds 5, Brewers 3, 12 innings
MILWAUKEE — Barry Larkin singled in the go-ahead run in the 12th inning, and the Cincinnati Reds stayed unbeaten at Miller Park this season by beating the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Reds escaped a bases-loaded jam in the 10th. Aaron Boone drew a one-out walk from Mike DeJean (1-5) in the 12th, moved to third on a single by Todd Walker and scored on Larkin's single.

CSI

might have made it this far on physical talent alone.

"A lot of these kids find out what it's about," Skip Walker said. "This might be more of a job. They might have to grind this out."

So far, the team's strength looks to be on the mound with 14 pitchers in town including sophomores Ryan Davis, Rich Conway and Ryan Jones leading a talented staff of freshmen. Mitch Woolf of Rexburg, Sean Bernhard of Twin Falls and Ross Swisher of Vancouver, Wash.

Another strength is at catcher with sophomores Kris Walker, who finished third on the team in batting (.317) and just bases (62) and fourth in RBI (23), and Jay Baptista in the field.

Walker said recent results have prompted him to look closer at more depth in the pitching staff. In the past, CSI relied on two or three starters and tried to get by with a below-average bullpen. It hasn't always worked.

"I think we'll have a bullpen this year," he said. "Not having one has hurt us the last couple years. Last year they got to our pitching and we were history."

The gaping hole at this point is the infield where all the starters graduated, including leading sluggers Christian Colone and Kody Kirkland on the left side.

"We lost everybody," Walker said. "In all my years coaching we've never been in this situation." Work on finding a leadoff and No. 2 batter is also a concern, he added.

The pleasant surprises so far have come from the marginal recruits that were asked to walk on. Walker said it is early to put pressure on them — he won't name them — but he's been impressed with their intangibles.

"It's hard to measure a kid's heart and head until you work with them," Walker said. "Talent by itself doesn't always fit into this program."

Tennis

their last three matches.

Now it's about making various layers of history.

When the sisters got to the opposite ends of the court for Saturday's final match, they had one day when they practice together, each will aim for a rare feat:

- Venus can become the first woman since Chris Evert in 1975-76 to win at least three straight U.S. Opens.
- Serena can become the first since Steffi Graf in 1996 to win three straight Grand Slam tournaments in a year. She might be going for a true Grand Slam, if not for having missed the Australian Open with an ankle injury.

Whoever wins will be No. 1 in the rankings, a spot currently occupied by Serena. She wrestled it from Venus at Wimbledon.

Saturday's schedule begins with the men's semifinals. Pete Sampras will play Sjeng Schulken, followed by defending champion Lleyton Hewitt against Andre Agassi.

After that, the sisters will meet in prime time, a change instituted last year. So TV can take advantage of the increased popularity of women's tennis. The 2001 final here drew higher TV ratings than a Top 25 college football game.

Lancaster, Andrade share Canadian lead

MARKHAM, Ontario - Neal Lancaster made birdie on a badly repaired divot, made par when his ball ricocheted off a board stake and finished with a 67 on Friday for a share of the second-round lead with Billy Andrade in the Canadian Open.

Lancaster, whose career attitude is matched by a southern drawl right out of Mayberry, was tied for the lead at 11 under 133 with Andrade (67), the winner four years ago at Glen Abbey.

Ian Leggatt put himself in great position to become the first Canadian-born winner of the national championship since Karl Keffer in 1914. He birdied four of his last five holes on the Angus Glen course for a 65 that left him one stroke behind, along with New Zealand's Grant Waite (70).

Hanson goes 6-under at Williams Championship

TULSA, Okla. - Tracy Hanson shot a 6-under 64 to take a one-stroke lead over U.S. Solheim Cup player Cristie Kerr after the first round of the Williams Championship.

France's Patricia Meunier-Labouc, coming off her first LPGA Tour victory last week in the State Farm Classic, was two strokes back along with Sweden's Liselotte Neumann. South Korea's Grace Park and Scotland's Catriona Matthew.

Annika Sorenstam, making her first start since winning the Compaq Open on Aug. 18 in Sweden for her sixth worldwide victory of the year, opened with a 68.

North holds two-shot lead at Kroger Seniors

MAINEVILLE, Ohio - Two-time U.S. Open champion Andy North shot an 8-under 64 to take a two-shot lead over Bob Gilder and Mike Smith after the first round of the Kroger Senior Classic.

Gilder, coming off a victory last week in the Allianz Championship, held a one-shot on the par-3 12th. Gil Morgan, Ed Dougherty and Hubert Green were three strokes back at 67.

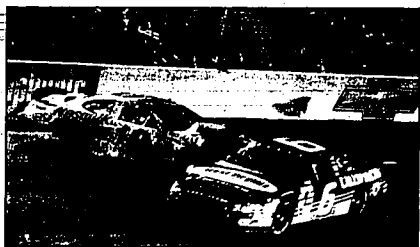

Billy Andrade tees off on the 16th hole during second round of play at the Canadian Open golf tournament Friday in Markham, Ontario. Andrade is tied for the lead with Neal Lancaster, both at 11-under-par for the tournament.

Karlisson cruises at European Masters

CRANS-SUR-SIERRE, Switzerland - Sweden's Robert

Karlisson shot a 5-under 66 to take a four-stroke lead after the second round of the European Masters. Karlisson had an 11-under 131 total. Scotland's Andrew Coltart

(65) and Sweden's Klas Eriksson (67) were tied for second, and 1999 British Open champion Paul Lawrie of Scotland shot a 70 to top a four-player group at 6-under 136.

Scott Riggs (10) spins out as Damon Lusk (6) drives past early in the NASCAR Busch Series FUnal 250 at Richmond International Raceway in Richmond, Va., Friday.

Earnhardt dominates Busch race at Richmond

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - Dale Earnhardt Jr. returned to the series he once dominated and did it more convincingly than ever Friday night, leading 190 laps and easily winning the FUnal 250 NASCAR Busch Grand National race.

So dominant was the 1998 and 1999 series champion that he built a lead of more than 13 seconds in a span of 60 green-flag laps, and three times pulled away on restarts in the final 30 laps of the crash-filled event.

The victory came in a Chevrolet Earnhardt co-owns with stepmother Teresa Earnhardt, and was his second in three Busch starts this year. The race had 11 caution flags that slowed the pace for 83 laps, and 11 of the 43 cars that started weren't around to see the checkered flag.

Among them was Jimmy Spencer, who swept the Busch races at Richmond last year and seemed the most likely to challenge Earnhardt. But Spencer's engine blew after 168 laps, leaving Earnhardt virtually unchallenged.

Jamie McMurray finished second, followed by Jeff Burton, Tony Raines, Jason Keller, Biffie and Hank Parker Jr.

Hamilton will miss at least three weeks

RICHMOND, Va. - Winston Cup driver Bobby Hamilton will be out at least three weeks after breaking his left wrist and right shoulder in a crash at Richmond International Raceway on Thursday night.

Greg Biffie replaced Hamilton in his Andy Petree-owned Chevrolet for Friday's qualifying and Saturday night's Monte Carlo 400 Winston Cup race, the team said. A replacement for future races was not named.

Hamilton was hurt when he crashed in his own truck on the final lap of the Virginia Is-For-Lovers 200 Craftsman Truck Series race. He was running in the top five when the accident occurred.

spun or were hit in the crash.

Monte Carlo 400 will feature all-rookie front row

RICHMOND, Va. - Jimmie Johnson and Ryan Newman added a little bit of history to their impressive debut seasons Friday, becoming the first rookie drivers to sweep a Winston Cup front row in the modern era.

Johnson earned his fourth pole of the season with a lap at 126.145 mph around the three-quarter-mile oval at Richmond International Raceway. He'll start Saturday night's Monte Carlo 400 with Newman on his outside.

Newman, who has won two poles this year, made his way at 125.733 mph, the same time third-place starter Dave Blaney posted in his run.

Newman got the spot because he was the first to post his lap, giving him and Johnson the first rookie front row in the series since 1972. Johnson is the first rookie pole-winner here since Bobby Labonte in 1993.

Mark Martin earned the No. 4 spot, giving Ford three consecutive cars at the top of the field behind Johnson's Chevrolet. Terry Labonte, a Rick Hendrick Motorsports teammate of Johnson and Gordon, qualified fifth in his Chevrolet, followed by defending race champion Ricky Rudd's Ford.

Gordon, who leads active drivers with four poles at Richmond, qualified 10th and said he was trying not to do anything that could cost him. He trails Sterling Marlin by 91 points in the championship race. Marlin, the points leader since the second race, will start 32nd.

Tony Stewart, who won for the third time in seven career starts at Richmond in the spring, qualified 14th.

NFL suspends Slaughter for steroid violation

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. - Jacksonville Jaguars linebacker T.J. Slaughter will be suspended Friday for four games for violating the NFL policy on anabolic steroids and related substances.

Slaughter, a three-year veteran, will not be eligible to return to the active roster until Oct. 7, after Jacksonville's game against the Philadelphia Eagles. The Jaguars open the season Sunday against Indianapolis.

Slaughter, already out with an injured elbow, was not available for comment after the NFL announced the suspension.

A team spokesman said Jaguars coach Tom Coughlin was unable to comment because of the league's privacy policy. Slaughter started eight of nine games he played last season. He missed 92 tackles and one sack.

Woman accuses Bettis of sexual misconduct

PITTSBURGH - Police are investigating Pittsburgh Steelers running back Jerome Bettis after a woman accused him of sexual misconduct.

The woman, who was not identified, told police Bettis attacked her on a car on Aug. 24. She later met him at a bar to have a football autographed.

Bettis' lawyer, Bob Del Greco, confirmed Friday that police in Greensburg - about 30 miles east of Pittsburgh - contacted the player about the woman's claim. Bettis did not answer questions about the allegations, but made a short statement before the team's practice Friday saying he will cooperate fully with the investigation. His lawyer said Bettis had passed a voice-stress analysis, a type of lie-detector test.

NFL notebook

Greensburg Police Chief Richard Baric said Bettis consented to a search of his vehicle Friday. Baric added he would not know what the search yielded until Monday.

The woman told police she met Bettis earlier in August and asked if he would autograph a football for her 2-year-old son at a later date, Baric said. On Aug. 21, the two went to her car to retrieve a ball. Bettis then asked the woman if she wanted to get into his vehicle, according to a police report.

The woman told police Bettis drove out of the parking lot, parked on a street and forced her to perform oral sex. Bettis is scheduled to play in the Steelers' season opener Monday night against New England.

Couch probably won't play in Browns opener

BEREA, Ohio - Cleveland Browns starting quarterback Tim Couch probably will not play Sunday, while running back William Green will be ready.

Couch Butch Davis said Friday that backup quarterback Kelly Holcomb will probably start Sunday against the Kansas City Chiefs.

Couch has a sore right arm after tearing scar tissue near his elbow in the preseason.

Rookie running back William Green missed practice Thursday with a back spasm. Green, added to the injury report and listed as probable, ran full speed during practice Friday and should be able to play.

Couch won't rule out playing Sunday and wants to wait until game time to make a decision.

Eagles' Vincent is doubtful for opener

PHILADELPHIA Philadelphia Eagles Pro Bowl cornerback Troy Vincent is doubtful

for Sunday's opener against the Tennessee Titans because of a bone bruise in his left knee. "It's going to be a battle for him to get back for the game," Eagles coach Andy Reid said Friday. "He is working on it. He says it's feeling a little better."

Vincent was injured while covering Antonio Freeman during Thursday's practice. He left the field on his own and later had an MRI.

If Vincent doesn't start Sunday, he'll be replaced by Al Harris. Rookie Sheldon Brown will take Harris' spot in nickel situations.

U.S. basketball snaps losing streak against Puerto Rico

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - For the first time in three days, the U.S. team did not lose.

Paul Pierce and Jermaine O'Neal scored 15 points apiece as the United States defeated Puerto Rico 84-74 on Friday night in a classification round game at the World Championships.

The U.S. team will play Spain for fifth place at 8:45 p.m. MDT Saturday night.

Only about 1,000 people were in attendance, the latest disappointing crowd in a tournament that has been marked by tiny crowds in sparsely venues.

Ticket prices ranged from $10 to $59 for the first round, from $12 to $66 for the second round, from $24 to $40 for the semifinals and $15 to $135 for the semifinals and $25 to $130 for the gold medal game.

The U.S. team, already without Elton Brand (sore knee) and Shawn Marion (pulled groin), lost O'Neal to a twisted ankle early in the fourth quarter.

The Americans trailed 25-19 after the first quarter, but took the lead for good on a 3-pointer by Baron Davis with 6:49 left in the second quarter.

In other classification-round games, it was Russia 77, Angola 66; Turkey 94, China 86; and Spain 105, Brazil 89. Russia will play Turkey for ninth place and Angola will play China for 11th on Saturday morning.

Saturday afternoon's semifinals are Yugoslavia-New Zealand and Germany-Argentina. The gold medal game is Sunday.

Qwest bond ratings drop two notches

DENVER — Moody's Investors Service has cut Qwest Communications' bond rating two levels following news the company will renegotiate $3.4 billion in loans. The leading New York credit agency acknowledged that the new bank agreement combined with the pending $7.05 billion sale of Qwest's sector business will help the company reduce its $26 billion debt.

However, Moody's said the new loan package would put bondholders behind banks in case of bankruptcy.

Qwest provides local-phone service to much of Magic Valley.

Moody's reduced Qwest's rating to 'Baa1', the seventh-lowest junk bond rating. The ratings of Qwest Corp., which holds the local telephone company's assets, were unchanged at 'Baa3', four levels higher. But they are being reviewed.

Qwest spokesman Chris Hardman said the company was very surprised by Moody's decision this week.

"With the announcement of the sale of our directory business and our new agreements with our lenders, we have addressed the majority of Moody's previous concerns," he said.

Moody's also expressed concern about the restatement of the company's financial results because of accounting errors and a $20 billion to $30 billion change to earnings because of new accounting rules and the declining value of Qwest's long-haul, fiber-optic network.

Fired worker claims racial bias, denial of rights

BOISE — A man fired from his job as a checker at a WinCo Foods store has accused his former employer of racial bias and denying him his employee rights.

WinCo Vice President Michael Read flatly rejected the allegations, calling them false and preposterous.

Lino Paul, who is black, sued in federal court in Boise on Aug. 15 seeking reinstatement or compensation for lost wages and the money he claims the employee-owned food retailer has made by systematically denying workers their rights.

Paul said Thursday that he was summarily dismissed Dec. 27 for selling a beer at 5:59 the night before the end of the night ban on retail alcohol sales.

He claimed another employee, who is white and who he believed was a supervisor, authorized the sale and has not been fired. Although there were several prior minor infractions during his 33-month employment at WinCo's downtown Boise store, he said he had only received written warnings for them. Read said the other employee has denied advising Paul to make the sale.

Read denied any racial bias against Paul, saying company policy prohibits terminating any employee who violates state alcohol laws.

"It had nothing to do with anything other than the violation of the law," he said. "He's simply miffed."

WinCo has 34 stores in Idaho, California, Nevada, Oregon and Washington, including one in Twin Falls.

Albertsons hikes stock repurchase to $1 billion

TWIN FALLS — On the heels of strong second-quarter earnings, Albertsons Inc. announced on Friday that it is doubling its stock repurchase plan to $1 billion.

Chairman Larry Johnston said the decision "gives management the authority to buy back our stock at a time when the current price, in our opinion, does not reflect the value of our company."

Since the program was announced last December, the nation's second largest food and drug retailer has repurchased more than $600 million of stock for $237 million. About 2.7 million of those shares were acquired in the just-concluded second quarter, when the company reported a 13 percent increase in profits from its continuing operations.

The Boise-based company has about 407 million shares outstanding.

This week it also declared a regular quarterly cash dividend of 19 cents per share, payable Nov. 10 to stockholders of record at the close of business Oct. 15.

M.V. labor is a bright spot

Weakening starts in Mini-Cassia area

By Virginia S. Hutchins
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — From job seekers' perspective, Magic Valley's central labor market in August was the hottest in the state.

The three-county market — Twin Falls, Gooding and Jerome counties combined — enjoyed the lowest August unemployment rate among the labor market areas the Idaho Department of Labor tracks statewide. At 3.1 percent, the three-county rate was unchanged from a year ago, and down seven-tenths of a percentage point from July's rate, the department forecast Friday.

"Our economy right now is offering a lot of alternatives to workers, because every sector seems to be very strong," said Greg Rogers, the department's regional labor economist for Magic Valley.

On the flip side, local employers are encountering difficulty filling entry-level, minimum-wage jobs such as fast food. And central Magic Valley workers still face the reality of low wages, lack of benefits and necessity for multiple jobs.

Rogers calls those growing pains.

To the east, Mini-Cassia is in crisis management. J.R. Simplot Co.'s Heyburn plant, scheduled for closure in 2004, will send away its first round of workers Nov. 1. And the effects of lost jobs at Burley's now-closed Kmart store are beginning to filter into the state's job data.

August unemployment rates for Cassia County and Malheur County, while still lower than a year ago, each crept up from July levels.

A couple of normal, temporary maintenance layoffs at potato processors Simplot in Heyburn and McCain Foods USA Inc. in Burley accounted for most of the jump, Rogers said. But Mini-

REPLACING THE CHAIN STORES

Community-owned mercantiles fill the void for shoppers

The Associated Press

CASPER, Wyo. — Department store closings in recent years have left small-town business districts on the High Plains with vacant storefronts, and consumers facing trips to distant Wal-Mart.

Some enterprising business leaders, however, have reacted by developing a cooperative approach to meet shoppers' needs.

Four locally owned mercantiles have replaced chain stores that closed in communities in Montana and Wyoming. Malta and Plentywood, Mont., have had customer-financed ventures in operation since 1999. Efforts by citizens' groups in Powell, Wyo., and Glendive, Mont., resulted in the recent opening of mercantiles in those cities.

Another mercantile is in the works in downtown Worland, Wyo., and business leaders in several Montana towns are considering similar ventures.

The mercantiles are financed with stock purchases by local citizens, and offer clothing as a merchandise mainstay. Representatives from three of the stores said consumers were left without local access to some lines of apparel when Stage Store Inc. deserted their communities. Dress clothes for adults and children's wear were particularly hard to come by.

Witzeling said the committee that community's answer to the problem.

Ken Witzeling, one of the original members of the committee that helped form the Powell Mercantile Inc., said the city's business community attempted to bring in another chain store. It soon became apparent, however, that large corporations are increasingly hesitant to set up shop in small markets.

"When Stage moved out, we just felt that made an awful hole in our downtown merchandise mix and something needed to be done," Witzeling said. "We tried to get other stores. We tried Target, because we heard they were putting in smaller stores."

Sweet P. Hawley of The Powell Mercantile, also known as 'The Merc', in Powell, Wyo., rearranges merchandise Aug. 22. Department store closings in recent years have left small-town business districts with vacant storefronts, and consumers facing trips to distant Wal-Mart. Some enterprising business leaders, however, have reacted by developing a cooperative approach to meet shoppers' needs.

"We tried to get other stores. We tried Target, because we heard they were putting in smaller stores. They said they'd look at us, but they never did."

— Ken Witzeling

They said they'd look at us, but they never did."

After being spurred by the big corporations, the Retail Strategies Committee of the Powell Chamber of Commerce began to search for ways to fill the void.

Witzeling said the committee learned about the mercantiles in Plentywood and Malta, and decided to explore the possibility of a similar venture in Powell.

"We went up and down the street (in Plentywood) and talked to different people and they all referred to it as 'our store,'"

Witzeling said. "Not 'the store,' or 'that store,' or 'our store.' Always every merchant on Main Street bought stock in it."

Encouraged by what they saw, the chamber lobbied local merchants to gain their support. They found that Powell's business community strongly favored the concept, so the committee then took the idea to the public.

Witzeling said Powell's citizens also endorsed the idea and had very strong opinions about what the new store should offer.

"We asked the people what they wanted, and they all said they wanted a better quality than what Stage had," Witzeling said. "Stage had a sale every week, and they wouldn't just ship stuff in and you could sell the darn stuff ... In Plentywood, they had about 36 pairs of galoshes they sent up there. Well, you just don't sell galoshes in Wyoming or Montana."

Powell Mercantile Inc. then went public and began offering shares for $500 apiece. Investors were limited to 20 shares per buyer because "we didn't want anybody to get control of it or anything like that," Witzeling said.

Within six months, 559 investors bought more than 800 shares. The store opened for business July 12, and Witzeling said business has been good.

"On most all of our projections, we're ahead. We're just now getting into the back-to-school sales and every day is better than the day before," he said.

The establishment of Little Muddy Dry Goods in Plentywood began the trend.

Plentywood, a community of about 2,500 residents in northern Montana, has a reputation for independent behavior. Promotions for the area tout its location near the Outlaw Trail. The community also gained some notoriety in the 1920s when voters briefly put Communist Party candidates in control of local government.

Ann McKenzie helped Plentywood once again manifest its independent streak when

McDonald's expands discount menu

Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO — U.S. franchisees leaders at McDonald's Corp. have thrown their support behind the company's latest plan to revive domestic sales that includes a national discount menu and increased restaurant investment in everything from decor to drive-through lanes.

Starting next month, the fast-food chain plans to expand to all 13,000 of its U.S. restaurants, including franchised locations in Magic Valley — a fixed menu of eight items, including sandwiches, drinks and desserts, all priced at $1, according to people familiar with the matter. Currently, about half of the chain's domestic restaurants offer such a discount program — similar to the 99-cent menu at rival Wendy's — but until now individual markets determined what went on the menu.

The "dollar menu" is just one piece of a plan to win back customers in a brutally competitive fast-food arena.

By the end of next year, McDonald's would like to remodel up to 7,000 restaurants, sources said. Some older restaurarants could be rebuilt or relocated, typically at a cost of about $150,000.

It is unclear how much financial support franchisees would get from the company. McDonald's officials declined to elaborate.

The initiatives and the urgency behind them indicate that the pressure is mounting on senior management to reinvest in slumping U.S. sales, which make up half of global sales.

The company has tried everything from improving kitchen operations to reinvesting its menu to launching a massive mystery-shopping program to improve service, yet sales the last two years have been flat to negative at stores open more than a year.

"I think management is feeling the pressure," said Mitchell Speiser, a restaurant analyst at Lehman Brothers. "They're throwing a lot of things at the wall here and hope that something sticks. That's why I think these moves feel like there's a sense of desperation."

While the chain's 2,700 U.S. franchisees still have to approve the discount-marketing plan, the vote is considered a foregone conclusion after the group's leaders endorsed it and the remodeling efforts at a two-day meeting in Las Vegas that ended Thursday.

"We wouldn't be doing this if we didn't think it would make a difference," said Reggie Webb, vice chairman of the franchisees' National Leadership Council and owner of 11 restaurants in Southern California.

There's no doubt from the operator perspective that we are aligned with the company," he said.

Pier 1, Michaels beat expectations for sales

Knight Ridder News Service

FORT WORTH, Texas — Two Texas retail chains with Twin Falls stores, Pier 1 Imports and Michaels Stores, showed healthy August sales that exceeded analysts' estimates and stood out in a lackluster retail sector.

Pier 1 said same-store sales climbed 8.6 percent from the same period last year, compared with the 4.8 percent growth predicted by securities analysts surveyed by the First Call research service.

Michaels' same-store sales for August jumped 6 percent, topping First Call's 5.3 percent growth estimate. Same-store sales are at stores open at least a year, an industry benchmark.

Pier 1 executives said the company's business picture continues to benefit from family-based purchasing that has dominated in years since Sep. 11, and from effective advertising featuring actress Kirstie Alley.

In the latest of several improved forecasts that Pier 1 has issued since last fall, the company said it estimates that its second-quarter earnings will be 23 cents per share, up from a projected 21 cents per share last year, it recorded a profit of 14 cents per share in the second quarter.

Pier 1 also said that it had repurchased 1.5 million shares during the quarter, valued at $40.2 million.

"Our new store program is progressing very well with 30 store openings and six closings during the second quarter," said Marvin Girouard, Pier 1 chairman and chief executive. "Our expansion strategy is on track for fiscal 2003, with plans to open 120 Pier 1 stores, close 30, and open eight to 12 CargoKos stores within this fiscal year."

Michaels, the Irving-based crafts chain, said that it is benefiting from the economic downturn's desire to pursue more family-oriented activities since last year's terrorist attacks

Best Buy restates earnings

Knight Ridder News Service

SAINT PAUL, Minn. — Best Buy Co. — which has a Sam Goody store in Twin Falls — said it is taking a $348 million after-tax charge to earnings for the three months ended June 1 to reflect a decline in the value of its Musicianship Group and Magnolia Hi-Fi acquisitions.

While Best Buy reaffirmed its commitment to the two business units, a company executive said the goodwill impairment charge, which amounts to $1.07 per diluted share, "reflects a practical and realistic view of the fair-value decline in our Musicianship and Magnolia Hi-Fi businesses."

The charge means Best Buy's first-quarter earnings will be restated to show a loss of 85 cents per diluted share instead of the previously reported profit of 22 cents per share.

Sam Goody is part of the company's Musicianship Group. Best Buy's $308 million writedown on Musicianship was "based on present expectations for the business in light of the current retail environment and the uncertainty associated with future trends in pre-recorded music products," the company said.

Best Buy bought the 1,300-store Musicland Group for $685 million in February 2001 as a means to extend its reach into shopping malls.

But Best Buy has particularly struggled with the Musicland Group whose stores put a drag on earnings. Now, at least one analyst questions whether the company might be looking to dump Musicland.

Best Buy this week said sales at Musicland Group stores open longer than a year declined 3.4 percent during the three months ended Aug. 31, while sales at its established Best Buy outlets increased 2.7 percent. Musicland accounted for about 8 percent of the retailer's $5 billion in total sales for the period.

But a Best Buy spokeswoman said the company is committed to the Musicland business and continuing to find ways to grow it."

America responds

Patriotism, tributes abound in wake of disaster

By Sharon Cohen
Associated Press writer

History teacher Ken Senter has a plan to capture the horror of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks for his students in Tennessee. He'll take them outside.

Two beams salvaged from the ruins of the World Trade Center — battered hunks of steel he received after lobbying New York officials for nearly a year — will be shaped into a memorial in front of Oak Ridge High School. Every year, his students will file by a hands-on history lesson.

"I just felt in my heart that if I could tell my kids, 'This is from ground zero, people died next to this beam,' ... it will retain the reality of that experience longer," Senter said.

Communities across the nation responded with an outpouring of generosity and grief after last September's attacks. There were candlelight vigils, flags flying, blood donations, hundreds of millions of dollars poured into charities.

A year later, America has turned to commemorating the tragedy in concrete and steel, in words and fabric, in churches, museums, and even tattoo parlors.

There are scholarships and some quilts and rosaries, exhibits and displays, videos and tens of thousands of Web sites. There are public memorials that will scrape the sky and private mementos already buried in the earth. "There's a desperate need for people to be connected," said Nick Carpasso, an art historian in Massachusetts and expert on public memorials.

A youngster looks at angel figures Aug. 4 near Shanksville, Pa.. The figures were placed at the edge of a field near where United Flight 93 crashed on Sept. 11, 2001. Forty-four people died, including the hijackers.

And having an artifact brings the tragedy home, said Mark Schuming, director of exhibitions at the New York State Museum.

"It's human nature to have a touchstone and be closer to a historical event," he said. "The further away you are, the greater the need for it."

Consider just the rusty, dented beams that once made up the 110-story towers. Communities around the nation — including Charlotte, N.C., Lafayette, La., and Tuscaloosa, Ala. — have dispatched trucks to claim them for displays.

In Naperville, Ill., beams and with rubble from the Pentagon will become part of a memorial for Cmdr. Dan Shanower, a hometown boy who was a naval intelligence officer killed in the building.

In Albuquerque, N.M., beams will be used to rebuild the historic bell tower of Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church.

"We have people who leave flowers, rosaries and letters on the beams. They cry," said John Garcia, who is organizing the memorial. "What they (the ruins) represent to us ... is that our resolve is made of steel."

A different kind of memorial is emerging in a quiet Pennsylvania field six miles from the spot where United Airlines Flight 93 crashed after its passengers apparently tried to thwart their hijackers.

The Rev. Al Mascherino, a Catholic priest, spent $18,000 to buy a vacant church and plans to buy non-denominational services on the 11th of each month.

"Of all the messages of those who perished that day, theirs was the clearest," Mascherino said of the passengers. "It really was a declaration of independence. They were able to rise up and defeat their oppressors."

"We have people who leave flowers, rosaries and letters on the beams. They cry."

Psychological fallout, anxiety linger a year after attacks

By Matt Cronson
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — A year later, many New Yorkers — even a significant number whose lives were little affected by the Sept. 11 attacks — still struggle with the psychological fallout.

The effects are harder to assess in other parts of the country, where little research has been done since the immediate aftermath of the attacks. But experts believe that the continued threat of terrorism is contributing to anxiety and depression across the nation.

"It's different for everybody now," said Marcia Kraft Goin, a psychiatrist at the University of California, Los Angeles. "It's continuous."

Rachel Yehuda, an expert in the treatment of post-traumatic stress disorder at the Bronx VA Medical Center, said she still receives new patients plagued by memories of Sept. 11. Other mental health professionals report ongoing anxiety and depression among their patients over Sept. 11 and terrorism generally.

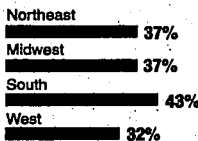

The problem is especially acute in New York. A survey conducted by the New York Academy of Medicine found one in 10 people here were clinically depressed one or two months after Sept. 11, and 75 percent were experiencing post-traumatic stress disorder at that time. Extrapolated to the whole city, the survey of 8,000 people suggests that about a million New Yorkers suffered from one or both disorders in the weeks after the attacks.

"These people are actually at greater risk of developing psychological symptoms if something else happens," said

Attack anxiety varies by region

Level of worry related to the Sept. 11 attacks by U.S. region:

Sandro Galea, an epidemiologist at the academy's Center for Urban Epidemiologic Studies.

By February, the number of people with clinical depression or post-traumatic stress disorder had dropped by one-half to two-thirds, still higher than epidemiologists would normally expect in a city as big as New York. One person in three continued to report at least some symptoms of depression or post-traumatic disorder, even if they did not fit the criteria for the illness itself.

Mothers of young children are especially anxious about the prospect of future terrorist attacks, said New York psychiatrist Julie Holland. They worry most about who will take care of their children if they die.

The children suffer, too. Columbia University epidemiologist Christina Hoven has been studying schoolchildren in New York City to see if they have lasting emotional problems related to the attacks. Her results indicate that children from all over the city, not just in the immediate ground zero area, are suffering.

In February and March, Hoven surveyed 8,000 New York public school students in grades 4-12. The questionnaires were designed to identify a broad range of ills, including depression, post-traumatic stress disorder and substance abuse.

Not surprisingly, Hoven found more problems among children who had lost relatives in the attacks or who knew somebody who had been at the World Trade Center on Sept. 11. But she also found a startlingly high incidence of psychological problems among children who did not have any special connection to ground zero.

"It was an event of such proportion that children were just overwhelmed with it," Hoven said. "You smelled it, you felt it, the subways were backed up, and parents couldn't go to work."

Beyond New York, adults and children around the world saw graphic television footage of airplanes smashing into buildings, burning towers collapsing into rubble and people leaping to their deaths to escape the flames.

"People saw it over and over and over again," Goin said. "That added to the sense of trauma."

There is debate about whether televised images themselves can trigger post-traumatic stress disorder and other illnesses. Hoven said she heard reports of children as far away as Chile being troubled by the attacks.

Doctors in Pittsburgh treated an 11-year-old boarding school student who developed post-traumatic stress disorder and depression after watching television coverage of the World Trade Center. The boy became so upset that he threatened suicide five weeks after the attack, the doctors reported in the Journal of the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry.

Therapists said they expect to encounter more anxiety, depression and substance abuse this September as memories are triggered in what psychologists call the "anniversary reaction." And their patients will not be the only ones struggling.

"Those of us who are trying to be the treaters have also obviously been affected by the experience, whether we were there or we weren't there," Goin said. "This uncertainty is so ever-present. And we can't forget it."

The plan was conceived by Schlatter, a Wilmington, Del., fire chaplain, for his mentor and fellow Franciscan friar, the Rev. Mychal F. Judge, the New York City fire chaplain who died at the World Trade Center Sept. 11. The plan calls for placing trailer-mounted bells at or near each of the three crash sites and striking each bell once every 10 seconds for each victim at that site, starting at the time of each plane crash.

The pledge: How do Americans really feel about a nation under God? Page C3

The Times-News

Section C

Mark 9-11 anniversary with meaning

The 9-11 anniversary looms with a certain foreboding. But what's the appropriate way to mark the day?

Opportunities abound if you look around. The most important thing is not to forget. The loss is too devastating, and the need to uplift the spirits of a hurting nation is too important to ignore.

Consider these suggestions:
• Spend part of Wednesday in silent prayer for the victims of 9-11, for the survivors and for our nation. Light a candle in remembrance and use it as a focal point for praying or meditation. If you are so moved, offer this prayer: "God of the ages, before your eyes all empires rise and fall yet you are changeless. Be near us in this age of terror and in these moments of remembrance. Uphold those who work and watch and wait and weep and love. By your Spirit, give rise to us to broad sympathy for all the peoples of your earth. Strengthen us to comfort those who mourn and work in large ways and small ways and find peace. Bless the people and leaders of this nation and all nations so that warfare, like slavery before it, may become only a historic memory in the strong name of the Prince of Peace, Amen." (The Rev. Eileen W. Lindner and The Rev. Marcel A. Welty, National Council of Churches)

Attend one of the religious services in your community that remembers those who died in the terrorist attacks. Consult your newspaper for times and places. If your community will have an interfaith service, consider attending. Remember the severity of faith in this country is increasingly important. Such a recognition need not compromise your own beliefs.

Consider ways your group or organization can make a difference in remembrance of Sept. 11. For example, set up a blood drive or organize a car wash or other fundraiser for a local charity or relief effort.

Visit Bellefontaine.com on the Internet to read what others have to say about the effect of Sept. 11 on their lives. Share your thoughts.

Use the litany of remembrance, penitence and hope, prepared by the National Council of Churches in Christ, for a group service: <http://bruno.nccusa.org/interfaith/sep11litany.html>

Several religious groups offer helpful resources for remembering the day and for dealing with the aftermath of violence.

Talk about the significance of the day with children, and about the fears they may have.

Thoughts and prayers

A YEAR LATER ...

The Times-News

Last year, at a Sept. 11 prayer vigil at Twin Falls City Park, the Rev. Jim Frisbie told the people, "This is an opportunity for America to show its best or its worst."

A year later, area church leaders look back at what happened — and ponder where we go from here.

Lord, in this moment we are ever so grateful that your Holy Spirit helps us with our prayers, for we are having difficulty assembling our words. Our thoughts are a mixed torrent: stunned disbelief, shocked mixed with angry indignation, alarm that our peace has been breached, grief and hope jockeying for position, a search for persons to blame, hope that some may yet be rescued alive, but a despairing that they won't. We fear what may come next. Are there to be yet acts of violence? We hear calls for retaliation. Against whom? Will the truly guilty be found? We recall that Jesus taught us that the wrath of man does not accomplish the justice of God. Lord, we grieve for the families of those whose loved ones have been destroyed. And fearing what lies yet ahead, we pray for our leaders.

Temporarily their reactions with godly wisdom. Give them strength to do what's right. May answers be found that won't take still more lives.

Lord, help us sort through our thoughts and hold to those that are from you. For you are our hope, you are our strength, you are our security in a world inflected by sin. May Christ be never more real to us. Amen.

The Rev. George Leppert, First Menonite Church, Piermont
A prayer shared with the Flory Kwanis Club shortly after Sept. 11, 2001.

Many in America have thought about eternity for maybe the first time in a long time. God would say to you, "Life is precious. Let me help you discover the things that are truly important: 1. Being in relationship with God and in love. 2. Purpose in life. 3. Help in family and relationships."
—Pastor Lynn Schaal, Amazing Grace Fellowship of Twin Falls
From a sermon used to address the tragedy

Never has it been clearer to me than in this moment that people of faith, in the name of the Gospel and the mission of the Church, are called to be about peace and the transformation of the human heart. Beginning with the own heart. I am not immune to emotions of rage and revenge; but I know that acting on them only perpetuates the very violence I pray will be dispelled and overcome. We may our response to be engaged with all our hearts and minds and strength in God's project of transforming the world into a garden, a place of peace where swords can become plowshares and spears are changed into pruning hooks.
—The Most Rev. Frank J. Griswold, presiding bishop and primate of the Episcopal Church, USA
From a statement shared in all Episcopal congregations on Sept. 16, 2001.

God is in the church when God is in its people.
People will know peace when people know God.
—Major Ann Patterson, Salvation Army

The United States is at war. Are you afraid? On Wednesday night a lot of us were awakened to thunder and lightning. Was this God reminding us that He is still here and still in control? Was this God telling us to not be afraid to come to Him, trust Him, walk in obedience to Him — for He is, the only God. What is He going to do for you? Are you joining the Savior as a saved, committed Christian, so

We pray that the God of perfect peace, in whom there is no violence or cruelty, may be with all who are at peace with one another. May they cling to the good that unites them and remain in that peace.
Relieve the suffering of all those harmed by hatred and violence. Banish such feelings of hatred and violence from within us. Protect us from the violence of others, keep us safe from the weapons of hate and resolve in us that peace that only you, our God, can give.
—Bishop Michael P. O'Riordan, Roman Catholic Church Boise Diocese

The terrorists wanted to spawn fear that divides and destroys. But that is not what happened in America. Common people rose up to be heroes. People rushed to give blood, money, time and even their lives. People cried, mourned, gathered, hugged, lit candles and prayed. We as the American people have not, cannot and will not succumb to the hoped-for fear of the terrorists.

Our hope rests in God, whom we have come to know in Jesus Christ, in Oklahoma City, near the Murrah building which Timothy McVeigh bombed in a statue constructed by St. Joseph's Catholic Church. The statue's powerful image represents a tall, white-robed Christ. He stands with his back to the busy street and the place where the federal building once stood. The representation of Christ faces the wall in which there are 188 empty spaces — one space for each person who died. With bowed head, Jesus faces that symbol of loss, covers his face with one hand and weeps.
In whatever suffering we know, we cannot forget one important truth: "Christ weeps with us. So endured death as a consequence of evil and sin and then rose from the dead to conquer sin, evil and Satan. We carry no awe and respect for those who kill the body by slamming a plane into a tower. We carry awe and respect for the one who is the author of our hope because He holds the destiny of our souls.
—The Rev. Paul C. Reeves, Twin Falls First Presbyterian Church
From "Faith and Fear," Sept. 17, 2001

On Sept. 11, 2001, a mysterious group of terrorists taught us all a valuable lesson. To be sure, the lesson came at a terrible price: thousands of lives, billions of dollars and a nation's peace of mind were lost. But these sacrifices purchased something of great value. We were reminded that we are a nation, and that our lot is cast together.

We are a people who show an infinite range of differences, one from the other, but the tragedy of 9/11 forced us to come together as Americans. Those lost lives belonged to our sisters and brothers. The terrorist blow was struck at all Americans. The tears to be shed should flow from every eye. And the next steps to be taken in this crisis are steps we need to take together. In determined, formation. God help us to react, and then to act, in ways which honor Him and reflect positively on our shared heritage as citizens of the USA.
—The Rev. Lawrence Vokler, Immanuel Lutheran Church of Twin Falls

no matter what happens in our nation and the world in the days ahead, we will not be afraid, for we are children of God? God is the one, in this time of mourning, who reassures us that it is not by might, nor by power, but by His loving spirit. Let us read John 3:16.
—Pastor Dale Metzger, Rock Creek Community Church of Twin Falls
From a sermon preached on Sept. 16, 2001

Participants become emotional at the Sept. 11, 2001, Twin Falls vigil held for victims of the terrorist bombings. At the gathering, a large turnout of concerned citizens sang and prayed together for the victims and their families.

The words seem impossibly trite and trite, but here they come: We need to pray for Osama bin Laden. Though we deplore his beliefs, he and those who follow him are still Muslims of God's creation. They are redeemable by God's grace. Really? No, think about it ... though twisted and mutilated by violence, fear and hate, are they any different than those who crucified our innocent and loving Lord? Jesus cried, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." Could we pray, "God forgive Osama — the Taliban and all hate-filled fundamentalists — for they really don't know what they're doing?" Well, they don't. And sometimes we don't really know what we're doing either. God help us love and not hate! If Jesus lives in us, we can, too.

The events of Sept. 11, 2001, have created much internal reflection. We have searched our core beliefs for comfort and guidance. There is a realization that life is fragile, filled with many uncertainties. Our leaders have provided insight, direction and peace. Television host Larry King asked the president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Gordon B. Hinckley, what he thought of those who, in the name of their religion, carried out such inhuman activities. President Hinckley responded, "Religion offers no shield for wickedness, for evil, for those kinds of things. The God in whom I believe does not foster this kind of action. He is a God of mercy. He is a God of love. He is a God of peace and reassurance, and I look to Him in times such as this as a comfort and a source of strength."

We need to strengthen our homes, families and community. United as friends and neighbors, we must hold fast to life that is good and right. The land of America is a choice and blessed land. We must stand firm against the forces of evil. We pray that our national leaders will be inspired and sustained in the war against terrorism.
Our church leaders have taught us, "Our safety lies in repentance. Our strength comes of obedience to the commandments of God." This September, we remember all the many families traumatized by the events of last year. We pray the Lord will comfort and lift them. Earnestly, we petition: GOD BLESS AMERICA!
—Dr. Brad R. Hobbs, Stake President, Twin Falls Idaho Stake, LDS Church

Miracles happen. Some will counter, "Well, are you saying then that justice should not be served?" Hardly! All of us are accountable for our sins. Confession precedes forgiveness. He needs a "trial" ... to see things differently. (That's the real point of a trial, isn't it?) The danger for us is that an unforgiving spirit also removes us from the forgiveness we need. "Forgive us our trespasses AS we forgive those who trespass against us." Jesus taught his disciples, "Unless you forgive those who trespass against you, your heavenly Father will not forgive you your trespasses."
—Pastor Dan Reike, Our Savior Lutheran Church of Twin Falls
From a church newsletter dated November 2001

This past week was filled with a horrendous tragedy that none of us could have ever fathomed or imagined. I would say that it is by far the worst tragedy that this country has ever experienced. It has already been compared to the attack on Pearl Harbor, but is much worse in terms of the numbers of lives lost. Our enemy has struck and has dealt a death-blow to thousands of people. Our enemy is first — and foremost — Satan, the Evil One who goes about seeking whom he might devour. His modus operandi is to lie, steal and destroy. Our buildings can be torn down and burned. Our bodies can be injured and brought to death. However, for those who know the Lord our God, our spirits cannot be snuffed out. We have eternal life! (Colossians 1:9-23)
I do believe that we must make prayer more of an integral part of our daily lives to have in the past. When we pray over our food, remember, there is nothing that can harm us — we who know the Lord Jesus Christ. We have the promise of eternal life. At such time that we are swept from this earth, we will be present with the Lord.

110 STORIES
110 stones in the sky tumbling and wavering like a planned demolition, filling the world below with tumbling lives.

266 stories in the sky, soaring planes, thinking of little else but appointments and plans for the weekend.

Three hundred courageous stories, charging up smoky stairways, equipped for danger but not death, in the face of the falling sky.

Three thousand stories in the sky, tumbling in disarray, or fleeing from the hatred that targets ordinary lives.

The world stops, lifting hands in the air as if to hold the buildings above their heads, or somehow to stop this moment in time.

We are changed by these stories in the sky, seeing each others' eyes as if for the very first time, holding each other, eternally thankful for the warmth of life.

These stories in the sky will live in us, forever lifting our gaze beyond the rubble and the chaos, to see the One who brings sense and order, beauty and redemption, to all the stories in the sky.

The Rev. Jim Frisbie, Twin Falls First United Methodist Church
Written in 2001

The tragedy of 9-11 is reminiscent of offenses of our personal lives. The attack of 9-11 was not the first attack on the World Trade Center. In 1923, it was attacked the first time. Why was it attacked the second time? I believe it is because we often fail to heed warnings, just as we do in our personal lives. We can think that ignoring the warning signs will make the problem go away. That is the old judge: "What you don't know can't hurt you. Nothing could be further from the truth. One of the main themes of that day is "get back to normal." But it is normal to return to ignorance of the enemy all around us. We do not wake up to the reality of the condition of our nation? America has been very preoccupied with its comfort rather than its moral and spiritual health. Just as we must pay attention to our physical health, we must also heed the warning signs of spiritual deterioration. Look at what entertains America — the music videos teens watch, the violence of the silver screen, the disrespect of autonomy in TV sitcoms. These have become so much a part of our culture that, when the reality of these were made manifest, we sat in amazement and watched a surreal scene, as the world towers came crashing down. Remember how we all said it looked like a movie? But this time it was real. We have become so desensitized by the media world that we have trouble distinguishing reality from fiction. 9-11 was real. It was a wake up call to America. The churches were filled, but America did not stay awake for long, sad to say. Our hearts were sensitive to the grief of this life, and we longed for an answer from the God our nation once called its own. Eighty-three percent of Americans claim to be Christians. Is that a Christian? Has so many different meanings to our nation during times of comfort; but when we are faced with the reality of our own mortality, we are awakened to our need to know more about the one who has redeemed us to eternal life. The life is filled with blessings and tragedies. We need to be spiritually fit and know whom we have believed. Our personal lives are filled with spiritual warning signs so we can be ready when troubles strike, and they often strike unannounced.

What would Jesus write? Film critics offer answers

By Bob Ivry
Knight Ridder News Service

The third "Austin Powers" got Michael Elliott thinking of First Thessalonians. Chapter 2, Verses 11 and 12 to be exact. Elliott is a Florida-based film reviewer whose work can be found at www.christiancritic.com, and he always selects a Bible verse pertinent to each movie.

In the case of "Austin Powers in Goldmember," Elliott duly makes note of the "sheer inanity of the project," but to shoochorn a passage from Scripture, Elliott focuses on the Bible's father-son conflicts.

"Most films out there present the point of view of the filmmaker," Elliott says. "I counter that with the word of God."

If that sounds a tad heavier than "two thumbs way up," get used to it. Elliott is one of a burgeoning number of online critics who tackle Hollywood from a devoutly Christian perspective. Armed with a Bible in one hand and a film's production notes in the other, Christian film critics are leading and sparking a resurgence of believers who are heading into movie theaters searching for spiritual lessons after decades of culture war with Hollywood.

"Church-goers are becoming more interested in addressing culture rather than condemning it," says Jeffrey Overstreet, a Seattle-based columnist who tracks Christian film criticism for Christianity Today magazine.

Christian critics hardly form a unified front, even against the sex, violence, and "false" world views offered up weekly by a mammoth-serving Hollywood. They range from the unabashedly fundamentalist Protestant, like Colorado-based Steven Isaac of www.family.org, an offshoot of culture-basher James Dobson's Focus on the Family, to North Jersey-based Steven D. Greydanus, a Catholic who includes the ratings of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops' Office of Film and Broadcasting on his www.decentfilms.com Web site.

Methodists celebrate organ addition

The reinstalled 8-foot Major Diapason pipes in the Austin Pipe organ at the First United Methodist Church are ready to 'sing' again.

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS—A musical celebration of the new addition to the Austin Pipe organ is set for 3 p.m. Sunday at the First United Methodist Church on Shoshone.

The program also will feature the church's Artists' Concert Grand piano, which was damaged last year when plaster fell from the ceiling of the church sanctuary.

The Major Diapason pipes for the Austin organ have been in storage since 1985, when they were removed to make way for a new set of pipes. Money was raised to repair some of the old pipes and construct a new wind chest.

Other renovations were completed, and the 63-year-old Major Diapason is now ready and in tune.

The woodwork of the piano has been refinished, too, and restoration of the hammers and sound board is complete.

Those performing at Sunday's concert are Sarah Benton, organ and piano; Beverly Crothers, piano; Hank Willis, piano; Clarence Dudley, piano; and Alice Anderson, voice. Classic, patriotic and swing music are on the program.

The public is invited.

Stop judging other religions by saying they're false

Kristen Keck, I see you are still at it—praying for other people when you should be praying for yourself. You know, Jesus said, "Judge not that you be not judged" (Matthew 7:1). Evidently, you do not know what the word "superstition" means, according to your last letter.

You said there are multitudes of false religions. I hope and pray that you are not in that category. Perhaps you should put a sign on your door that states, "I belong to the true religion." That way, everyone would know what religion you belong to.

A wise man once said some people will keep on praying to idols that can neither hear, see, walk nor talk. Jesus said, "The scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses' seat" (Matthew 23:2).

Kristen, you keep on quoting what a Pharisee said in his letters.

I pray that you will stop judging other religions by saying they are false.

New pastor in Hagerman is a true man of God

At Hagerman Christian Center, it was said when it came time for the founder and beloved Pastor Jim Davis to retire. It is always hard on a church when there is a time of searching for a new pastor.

We have been so blessed to now have our Pastor Daniel Isaac Tellez, a true man of God. He preaches right from the Bible, lifting us up with God's Word. I invite you to come and visit if you are looking for a closer walk with God.

The troubling times when Christianity is being attacked by the American Civil Liberties Union, TV movies and more, what a blessing to find a pastor that follows the word of God to the letter. No additions, no deletions, not being politically correct. Just pure teaching of our Lord Jesus Christ.

When it comes to deciding, there are only two choices

After the 9-11 tragedy of last year, a lot of folks have been sorting out the goods and making or renewing choices of which one they have picked. Seems to me there's only two choices:

Jesus said (John 10:10), "The thief does not come except to steal and to kill and to destroy. I have come that they may have life, and that they may have it more abundantly." Now, it doesn't take a rocket scientist to see which one is the better choice, right? The "thief" comes (in the name of a god) to wreak havoc, but Jesus says, "That's not God's way at all."

As for me and my house, our choice is Jesus, who was God in human form, proven by his death and resurrection and, to me, the realization that belief in him has resulted in forgiveness of my sins.

Citizens support 'under God' phrase in pledge

By Richard Otting
The Associated Press

"One nation under God." That phrase isn't part of the Constitution, and may not be constitutional in the Pledge of Allegiance, but Americans have made it clear those four words embody their feelings toward the nation — no matter what the courts say.

In this post-Sept. 11 year, when people from coast to coast have prayed together at innumerable memorial events and have sung "God Bless America" in classrooms and baseball stadiums, this summer's federal court ruling on the pledge could hardly have caused more outrage.

It was the most dramatic example of a phenomenon that's been going on for years: The courts try to restrict public expressions of non-denominational religion, but on the streets, people don't accept the ruling.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals banned the use of "under God" in public school recitations of the pledge because the U.S. Constitution forbids "an establishment of religion" by government. That decision has been labeled "absurd," "asinine," "heinous," "mindless," "outrageous," "very dangerous" and "just nuts" by an assortment of Democrats, Republicans and religious commentators. The day of the ruling, Rep. Joseph Pitta, R-Pa., left, organized House members who said the Pledge of Allegiance on the steps of the Capitol after a federal appeals court decision to declare the pledge unconstitutional because of the phrase 'under God.' At right front is Rep. John Mica, R-Fla.

June 26, the U.S. Senate passed an instant denunciation, 99-0, and House members gathered en masse on the Capitol steps to defiantly recite the pledge.

Even the Anti-Defamation League, which ardently advocates church-state separation, declared the ruling "goes against the culture and traditions of this country."

Now there are efforts to impeach the 9th Circuit judges and overturn their handiwork, and 356,000 Americans have signed a petition backing proposals in Congress to amend the Constitution and make the pledge inviolable. And the pledge debate is occurring in the midst of a broad rethinking of the "establishment of religion" clause.

The day after the 9th Circuit decision, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled 5-4 in favor of tuition voucher plans that include religious schools. Justice David Souter's dissent protested that this obliterated doctrine dating back to the 1947 Everson decision. Everson was the first ruling to say the "establishment" clause requires separation of church and state, which the court interpreted to mean that federal, state or local governments cannot "pass laws which aid one religion, aid all religions, or prefer one religion over another." That led to bans on graduation prayers, football prayers, moments of silence and Ten Commandments displays in public schools, precedents that undergirded the 9th Circuit's pledge decision.

But popular dissent is unending.

The president of the Southern Baptist Convention and TV preacher Jerry Falwell have called for mass civil disobedience in the form of ongoing classroom pledge recitations. A November federal trial will decide whether a Nebraska school board member should have led the Lord's Prayer at graduation. And hardly a week passes without legal footwork over the country's 4,000 municipal Ten Commandments displays.
