Congress nears deal on tax cut

Knight Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — Millions of American families will see extra cash in their mailboxes and paychecks as early as this summer, the payoff from a long struggle between Congress and the White House over how to cut taxes, and how much.

Forced to accept a smaller tax cut than they wanted, House Republicans on Thursday were poised to pass a $350 billion tax-cut plan that President Bush once derided as "little-bitty" but now praises as just what's needed for a struggling economy.

Bush says he'll sign the bill

Passage by the House of Representatives would send the bill to the Senate, which is expected to pass it narrowly today and send it to Bush for his signature. Bush said Thursday that he will sign the legislation into law.

The measure contains $318 billion in outright tax cuts, $20 billion in financial aid to states and $12 billion in refundable credits for working families — direct payments to those who don't earn enough to pay income taxes.

Workers, retirees and millionaires alike will all get more money, either as direct government payments, smaller deductions from their paychecks or by writing smaller checks to Uncle Sam on April 15.

The legislation would accelerate reductions in income tax rates that otherwise would not take effect until 2006; this legislation would make them effective retroactive to Jan. 1, 2003. The current rates of 27, 30, 35 and 38.6 percent would drop to 25, 28, 33 and 35 percent.

Remembered as a hero

A military honor guard fires a 21-gun salute at the funeral of Sgt. Richard P. Carl in Glenns Ferry on Thursday. Carl was killed in a helicopter crash in Iraq.

Glenns Ferry says goodbye to soldier killed in Iraq

By Sandy Miller
Times-News writer

GLENN'S FERRY — The two older men, veterans of a war long past, sat over coffee Thursday afternoon inside Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3646.

They had just said goodbye to one of their own — a soldier from a more recent war killed less than a month shy of his 26th birthday.

"So many people don't know how many lives were lost protecting our freedom," said veteran Daryl Keck. "Anyone who puts his life on the line for our freedom, you've got to be proud of him."

Proud of him they were.

U.S. Army Sgt. Richard Paul Carl's hometown said goodbye to him Thursday afternoon in a service with full military honors, complete with an honor guard from Fort Lewis, Wash.

The traditional 21-gun salute and "Taps" played from a solitary bugle.

The 25-year-old helicopter mechanic from King Hill, son of Karen Carl of Glenns Ferry and Richard Reid of Preston, and two other soldiers, part of the 571st Air Medical Company out of Fort Carson, Colo., died May 9. They had been on their way to help an injured Iraqi child when their UH-60 Black Hawk medical helicopter reportedly came under fire, snagged some power lines and crashed in the Tigris River near Samarra, Iraq. Another helicopter carried the girl to safety.

Carl is also survived by his wife, Audrey, their children, 3 1/2-year-old Ealy Ann and 18-month-old Dominic, sister Dawn Spurgeon and brother Ben.

The flag-draped casket sat in the front of the multipurpose room at Glenns Ferry High School, home of "The Pilots." It was surrounded by flowers, one arrangement from the "Class of '96" — Carl's class.

The Rev. Rinya Frisbie described Carl as a man who had "a love of family and a spirit of adventure." A man who was always there for friends and strangers alike.

"It shouldn't surprise us he died saving the life of an Iraqi child," Frisbie told the large gathering of Carl's family, friends and neighbors. "He would give the last dime he had to someone in need. For Richard, there was never a wrong time, never a wrong place to help."

The Rev. John Payne recalled asking a teenage Carl some years before why he was enlisting in the Army.

"He said 'because I want to help people,'" Payne remembered. "He helped people he knew and he helped people he did not know."

Payne said Carl died doing exactly what he wanted to do.

"Richard loved his family and

Water tables drop — again

By Jennifer Sandmann
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It's been sporadic but widespread.

A number of southern Idaho wells are running dry again this spring and homeowners and irrigators are drilling deeper. How much deeper has varied widely.

The drop in the water table coincides with the past two years of drought. While moisture has been ample this spring, the benefits will take time to show up in the aquifer. It takes about that long for the surface water to percolate down to recharge the groundwater table, the Idaho Department of Water Resources says.

For the second consecutive spring, the department is reporting water table declines throughout the Magic Valley and eastward across the Snake River Plain.

The rise and fall of groundwater levels has been shown to correspond with irrigation across the Snake River Plain. Irrigation recharges groundwater and creates shallower aquifers that are relied on as a water source by many people all across the region.

Wells drawing from the shallower aquifers are some of the first to go dry. But when the irrigation season begins, the water table rises again.

"It seems like once the canals come in, that kind of recharges the water," said Ken Smith, owner of Wood River Drilling and Pumps Inc. in Bellevue.

It was in late February and early March that he experienced a number of requests for deeper or new wells in areas north of Shoshone. He punched a well near Pico near 250 feet deeper to a depth of 350 feet.

About half of the well permits requested from the Twin Falls regional office of Water Resources are for deepening or replacement, said the department's Gary Funderburg. The Twin Falls office administers well permits from Gooding County all the way east into Power County

Job losses in Idaho turn out greater than thought

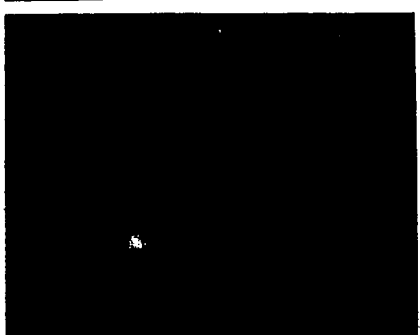

By Bob Flick
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Idaho's economic erosion left thousands more people unemployed last year than analysts first thought, and the state now concludes that any kind of real recovery appears years away.

The state's new economic forecast underscored Gov. Dirk Kempthorne's assessment two weeks ago that the economy will remain stagnant for the foreseeable future. It made the governor's estimate that hard times will persist for two more years appear optimistic.

U.N. OKs U.S.-British rule of Iraq

Deal releases oil revenues to rebuild country and opens trade, investment opportunities

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Putting aside bitter divisions over the Iraq war, the U.N. Security Council gave the United States and Britain a mandate Thursday to govern Iraq and use its oil riches to rebuild the country. The resolution opened the door to a quick resumption of oil exports.

The 14-0 vote was a victory for the Bush administration, which won the backing of the chief opponents to the Iraq war — France, Russia and Germany — even though those nations felt the United Nations would up with too little say in shaping Iraq's future.

Syria, the sole Arab country on the council, was absent during the vote. Syria's state-run press complained the resolution aimed to control Iraq's resources "contrary to the people's will."

The resolution immediately ends economic sanctions imposed on Iraq after its 1990 invasion of Kuwait, opening the country to international trade and investment.

"It's a wonderful day for the Iraqi people," Secretary of State

The rules of occupation

There are many responsibilities an "occupier" faces under the 1949 Geneva Conventions on humanitarian law, according to the International Committee of the Red Cross based in Geneva.

An occupier or occupying country must:

Cooperate with all occupations, if they are needed.

- Restore and ensure public order and safety.
- Provide food and medical supplies.
- Ensure public health and hygiene.
- Facilitate work of schools.
- Uphold criminal laws of occupied territory unless they constitute a threat or contradict international humanitarian law.

An occupier or occupying country cannot:

- Loot
- Compel residents to serve in its armed forces.
- Forcibly transfer residents out of occupied territory to its own territory.
- Exploit resources of occupied territory for their own benefit.

SOURCE: International Committee of the Red Cross

Colin Powell said in Paris. "Now they can see the benefits of liberation as other nations come to help with restoring stability, peacekeeping operations and reconstruction."

With passage of the resolution, the following steps are expected:

- Iraq can resume oil exports, halted since before the war.
- There are 8 million barrels of Iraqi oil in storage tanks at the Turkish port of Ceyhan that can be sold immediately, diplomats said.

U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan will appoint a special representative to work with U.S. and British administrators on humanitarian aid, reconstruction and the creation of a new Iraqi government. Speculation for Annan's choice centered on U.N. High Commissioner for Human Rights, Sergio Vieira de Mello of Brazil, who has Washington's support.

A newly created Development Fund for Iraq will start receiving proceeds from oil sales. The United States and Britain will be in charge of using the fund to rebuild the country. A new advisory body including the United Nations and international financial institutions will oversee the fund. It will get a $1 billion deposit, transferred from the U.N. oil-for-food account.

Satellite snaps Earth's portrait from Mars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NASA on Thursday released what it billed as the first portrait of Earth as seen from Mars.

The colorized photograph shows Earth from 86 million miles away as a small blue dot orbited by its even smaller moon.

The keen-eyed can make out clouds over the central and eastern United States and northern South America, as well as portions of Central America and the Gulf of Mexico, in a specially processed blowup of the image.

NASA's Mars Global Surveyor spacecraft took the picture while orbiting the Red Planet on May 8.

"This image gives us a new perspective — one in which we can see our own planet as one among many," said Michael Malin, whose San Diego company built and operates the camera. Jupiter can also be seen in the picture.

NASA said the portrait was unprecedented — but not for lack of trying.

See the photograph — A1

The agency's Pathfinder spacecraft tried several times to photograph Earth after reaching Mars in 1997, but was thwarted by cloudy skies.

Images of Earth from space have been among the most compelling images produced by NASA missions.

In one, NASA's unmanned Voyager 1 spacecraft reached the fringes of the solar system in 1990 and turned back to take a final look at Earth at the suggestion of astronomer Carl Sagan. The image, taken from 4 billion miles away, inspired the title of Sagan's 1994 book "A Pale Blue Dot."

"Look again at that dot. That's here. That's home. That's us. On everyone you love, everyone you know, everyone you ever heard of, every human being who ever was, lived out their lives," Sagan wrote.

Franks to hang up his helmet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tommy R. Franks, the Army general who commanded U.S. forces to battle field victories in Afghanistan and Iraq, has decided to retire after 36 years in uniform.

Franks made no announcement, but Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld issued a brief statement Thursday saying that Franks had informed him "of his desire to step down as the commander of the U.S. Central Command in the weeks immediately ahead" and that Franks plans to retire from the Army this summer.

"He has served our country with great distinction," Rumsfeld said.

The White House has not said who will be named to replace him as head of the military command most directly involved in the global war on terrorism. The job requires Senate confirmation.

Franks' senior deputy in the Persian Gulf, Army Lt. Gen. John Abizaid, is considered a leading candidate for the top job. The command is responsible for American military activities in 25 countries, from Kazakhstan in Central Asia to the Arabian Peninsula to the Horn of Africa.

Lawmakers seek more data on 9-11 investigation

Knight Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — Congressional Republicans and Democrats, including two presidential hopefuls, faulted the Bush administration on Thursday for not being forthcoming enough with investigations of the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

Appearing before an independent commission that is probing government failings before and after the attacks, the lawmakers urged the panel to be bold in searching for the truth and pressing for reforms.

"The American people deserve to know the full and objective truth as best it can be determined. They and we still have not received that, unfortunately," said Sen. Joe Lieberman, a Connecticut Democrat running for president. "Until we get it, all the attempts to make America safer in this age of terrorism are bound to be incomplete."

Lieberman, fellow Democratic presidential hopeful Sen. Bob Graham of Florida and Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., accused the administration of excessive secrecy in dealings with congressional and independent investigations. The administration has classified too much, they complained.

"Excessive administration secrecy on issues related to the September 11th attacks feeds conspiracy theories and reduces the public's confidence in government," McCain said.

The administration has been engaged in a secrecy tussle with the leaders of a joint House-Senate intelligence inquiry that uncovered a series of missteps by the CIA and FBI prior to Sept. 11. Congressional leaders are trying to declassify as much as possible of the joint inquiry's report, which they now hope to release next month.

"There's a lot of gratuitous classification going on," said House Intelligence Committee Chairman Porter Goss, R-Fla.

Congress considers OK to borrow up to $1 trillion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The timing could not be much better for Democrats: The Republican-led Senate will vote this week on whether to let federal borrowing grow by an unprecedented $984 billion, even as it considers a costly tax cut that President Bush wants.

The Senate is certain to approve an increase in the debt limit to avert a first-ever government default, probably after beating back every Democratic amendment. Even so, with debate beginning as early as Thursday, Democrats see a chance to argue that Bush has mismanaged the economy and the budget.

Their goal is to draw attention to the huge annual federal deficits that have re-emerged — and are expected to stretch indefinitely into the future — after four straight surpluses under President Clinton. Democrats say the chief culprit is the big tax reductions Bush won in 2001, and the latest tax package will only make matters worse.

"The Bush economic plan has failed," said Sen. Richard Durbin, D-Ill. "It has failed to revive the economy, and it's driven us deeper into debt."

Republicans say they expect Congress to approve the debt limit increase and the tax cut before leaving at week's end for a weeklong Memorial Day recess. Though this year's deficit is on track to surpass $300 billion for the first time, Republicans say the public will realize that the GOP has a plan for reviving the languid economy with a dose of fresh tax cuts.

Troops kill two Iraqis in ambush

Los Angeles Times

FALLUJAH, Iraq — U.S. soldiers killed two Iraqis and wounded at least two others after gunmen ambushed a Bradley Fighting Vehicle with a rocket-propelled grenade and rifle fire, Army officials and residents said Thursday.

The firefight that started shortly before midnight Wednesday was the latest deadly incident in this town west of Baghdad where the U.S. occupation remains highly unpopular.

At least 16 locals were killed here in late April in confrontations with U.S. forces.

Some saw problems in mom of dead infants

The Associated Press

Dianne Odell wasn't the friendliest face behind the deli counter where she worked, but she conscientiously raised seven children on a limited income, according to friends in Pennsylvania. The children were tired of moving—tired of switching schools. Still, one night the family mysteriously pulled up stakes again, with no word to the northern Pennsylvania couple who had befriended them.

"All they took with them was what they could take in the car," said Linda Milligan of Montrose, whose contractor-husband employed Odell's common-law husband, Robert Sauerstein. She said she often watched the children and bought them gifts and clothing during the 18 months the family spent in the area.

Dianne Odell
Moved her family around

As odd as the January 2002 move seemed, no one suspected that the children's mother, Odell, might have a past that included the deaths of four newborns—or that she allegedly kept three of the corpses for at least a decade before abandoning them in a storage shed.

Odell, 49, was charged this week with killing those three babies in upstate New York in the early 1980s, after the bodies—two at least partly mummified—were found in a box in the shed in Salford, Ariz.

"I was never really close with my mom, and I don't want to comment," Michelle Lee Odell, 22, of Windsor, N.Y., one of three adult daughters from Odell's first marriage, said Wednesday.

Authorities found Odell—whose prior addresses reportedly include Utah, Arizona, Texas and New York—living with Sauerstein and the children in Rome, Bradford County, near the New York state border.

The bodies underwent preliminary autopsies in Arizona and will undergo further examination by a state police "team of forensic experts."

The team will likely include Dr. Michael Baden, a nationally known forensic pathologist and chief medical examiner for the New York State Police, according to New York State Police Capt. Wayne Olson.

Milligan described Odell as a conscientious mother who stretched the family's limited income and welfare benefits to provide for them.

"I just can't see her doing it maliciously, not the way she was with her children," said Milligan, who described the youngsters as smart and polite. They included five of the Sauersteins' own children and two toddlers described as grandchildren they were raising, she said.

But Jeffrey Strohl, who lived across the street and helped Odell get a job at a Montrose grocery store, said she was let go within a month. Odell argued with supervisors and customers alike, he said. "Say you ordered a pound of ham sliced thin."

She would slice it thick, and say "That's what you said," Strohl said. "He (Sauerstein) seemed like a likable fellow," Strohl said. "To be honest, I think he might even be surprised by all this, because I never got a wrong impression on him."

Odell delivered the three alleged victims between 1981 and 1984, according to officials in Arizona. She told investigators those babies died shortly after their births, officials said.

She also told them she had delivered a baby in 1972, when she was 16, that was stillborn after she was beaten, authorities said. "There's got to be some reason in that time span of years, that she must have thought that it was better off for the kids not to be alive. It might have been the man she was involved with, or something she was involved in," Milligan said.

Her 15-year-old son, Leslie, said the Sauerstein children were tired of moving. He was close to one of the children, a boy who was his age, but was two years behind him in school because of the moves.

"He didn't want to move (again)," Leslie Milligan said. "They just said they would move from house to house because of debt. That's what Dianne said," he said.

Woman, asked about terror, faints

TARRYTOWN, N.Y.—An Arab-American woman who was in court to fight a parking ticket fainted when the judge asked her if she was a terrorist.

Anissa Khoder, 46, has filed a complaint with the state Commission on Judicial Conduct over the May 15 incident before Tarrytown Village Justice William Crosbie.

Crosbie, 79, confirmed this week that he made the remark but said he was "probably kidding with her." He denied her claim that he also accused her of financially supporting terrorists.

There is no transcript of the courtroom session in Tarrytown, Anissa Khoder told The Journal News that when her name was called, the judge asked if she was a terrorist. She said she was offended but kept that to herself.

She claimed that after giving the judge her explanation for why the tickets should be dismissed, "He said something like, 'You have money to support the terrorists, but you don't want to pay the ticket.' I could not believe I was hearing that."

Canadians admit holding 'mad cow' evidence

WASHINGTON—A Canadian official acknowledged that his country held onto samples from a cow infected with mad cow disease for four months, possibly allowing potentially sick cows into the food chain.

Dr. Claude Lavigne, a top official at Canada's animal products directorate, said officials are searching for other cows infected with the disease, also known as bovine spongiform encephalopathy. "At this point, it's a precautionary measure," he said Wednesday in a teleconference with top U.S. and Canadian reporters.

Canada still is looking for where the 8-year-old cow was born and other cattle, including newborn calves, with which it may have been in contact. The disease can incubate in a cow for up to eight years.

Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-MD, said Canadian officials should have proactively checked samples and released the results.

Ridge says unmanned drones could patrol borders

WASHINGTON—Unmanned aerial drones similar to ones used in the war on Iraq could be patrolling the U.S. border by the end of the year to help stem illegal immigration and increase security, Homeland Security Secretary Tom Ridge told the House Select Committee on Homeland Security Thursday.

Predators and other remote-controlled aircraft can watch over a potential target and fly for hundreds of miles with cameras, sensors, communications equipment or missiles.

Support has grown for the unmanned aircraft since their success during the conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Authorities investigate bomb blast at Yale Law

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—FBI agents investigating a bombing at Yale University's law school dusted for fingerprints Thursday and showed students a sketch of a man seen leaving the empty classroom just before the blast.

The explosive—which investigators believe was a pipe bomb—damaged two rooms Wednesday, and about 300 rare law books in a room below were soaked with water from the sprinkler system. No one was injured.

Acting Police Chief Francisco Ortiz said the bomber was "trying to send a message."

Law student Carsten Jungmann said he helped the FBI draw a sketch of a man he saw leaving the classroom about two minutes before the explosion. The man was clean-shaven and appeared to be in his 20s or 30s, with black hair that hung just below the ears, Jungmann said.

Authorities charge funeral company moved bodies

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—A funeral services company and its local operators were charged Thursday with felonies for allegedly unearthing older bodies to make way for more burials at two South Florida cemeteries.

Nation in brief

SCI and Menorah Gardens officials did not immediately return calls Thursday seeking comment. SCI is based in Houston and is the world's largest funeral services company.

SCI has blamed gravediggers for the burial problems and said it has quickly responded to other problems as they developed. A civil lawsuit filed against Menorah Gardens on behalf of 1,400 families claims the cemetery operator dug up at least three graves and dumped the remains in nearby woods after ignoring problems with crowding.

Baby sitter faces prison in lethal cold medicine case

BARTOW, Fla.—A woman who ran a day-care center out of her home pleaded no contest to charges she gave a 3-month-old girl a lethal dose of cold medicine to make her sleep.

Paula Burcham, who accepted a plea deal Wednesday, was indicted last year on manslaughter and aggravated child abuse charges that could have brought a total of 45 years in prison.

Under the plea deal, the aggravated child abuse charge was dropped and Burcham, 53, faces a maximum sentence of eight years in prison at her sentencing Aug. 15. The deal also stipulates Burcham not baby sit for unrelated children under age 6.

Study suggests lithium for Alzheimer's treatment

Lithium, used for decades to treat manic depression, has been shown in mice to block the production of proteins that form deposits in the brains of Alzheimer's patients, suggesting a potential role for the drug in treating the disease.

The researchers who conducted the experiments stressed that lithium has not been shown to work on Alzheimer's patients.

And lithium, though widely used to treat mental illness, has many side effects, including kidney damage. The problems are most pronounced in the elderly, who also face the greatest risk of Alzheimer's.

Alzheimer's is marked by the buildup in the brain of one protein, called amyloid beta, outside nerve cells and a second, called tau, that forms tangles in the cells. Alzheimer's affects about 12 million people worldwide.

Police pose as 'homeless' to catch motorists

KISSIMMEE, Fla.—Police went undercover as homeless people in tattered clothes to catch drivers running red lights.

The undercover officers, watched for lawbreakers, then radioed ahead to other officers who pulled the motorists over and gave them tickets.

Homeless advocates called Operation Vagrant, a sting involving Kissimmee police and the Osceola County sheriff's office, silly and offensive.

During the operation Wednesday, officers wore fake teeth and tattered clothing, and pushed shopping carts along the streets. They also carried small cardboard signs reading: "Sheriff's traffic sting in progress. Buckle up."

Projects give M-C students confidence

By Shari Chaney
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Students in Judy Chandler's class at Burley High School reeled off the reasons they liked the senior presentation requirement of their English class.

It gives students confidence.

Students receive positive feedback.

The project prepares students for the demands of college.

It's a big sense of accomplishment.

The project incorporates other classes into one project.

"Before (the presentation) they have it. They're anxious and scared," Chandler said. "Right now they feel real good about it."

The senior project, somewhat new to Cassia County students, seems to be well-received.

At Burley High School, all seniors create English portfolios which feature work from their high school careers. They also each give a five- to seven-minute presentation based on the information in the portfolio.

Deco High School students concurred with many of the benefits mentioned by the Burley students.

It provides an opportunity to work harder, Deco student Jared Larsen said. It's similar to what students might have to do in college and is good preparation.

"It's where academics and schools are headed," Larsen said.

Other students said seniors sometimes tend to get lazy at the end of their school careers. The senior project is an opportunity to learn, but in a different way and about something interesting.

Projects at Deco were optional this inaugural year. Students created projects somehow tied to their senior English papers and gave presentations. And topics ran the gamut — from Linzy Morgan's ceramics project to Larsen's presentation on multiple intelligence theory.

Next year projects might need to have an academic focus, Deco teacher Kelly Kidd said. Morgan's ceramics project might not work next year. An actual senior project class won't be offered next year either, Kidd said. The project will be completed outside class.

Students who took the class receive a grade, but some students completed a project without being in the class.

Being able to stand up and give a presentation prepares students for the future, Kidd said. "I think we're sending them out better prepared than I was 20 years ago."

Morgan said the project teaches responsibilities to deadlines and makes a research paper come alive. "You have to do what your research paper says," Morgan said.

Kidd said school district officials have no intention of requiring all seniors to do projects next year, but students at Deco might see the requirement as part of an English or social science class.

At Burley, the portfolio and presentation are not a requirement to graduate, but grades for the items are attached to the second-semester English credit, Chandler said.

Chandler has incorporated the portfolio and presentation in her class for three years, and all seniors have made the presentations for at least two years.

The project begins at Deco by the student writing a letter of intent to his advisor outlining the project, Morgan explained. Then the student must find a mentor — a non-relative and expert in the field he is studying.

Parent permission is needed; the project takes 15 hours of work outside of school time.

Larsen said a lot more than 15 hours is invested by the end of the project.

The research paper is due in mid-March in English class. Presentations are given in late May to community member judges.

Some students who originally started a project at Deco did not finish; many did not opt to do a project.

Chandler said Burley students collect their writings from throughout high school and assemble a packet of many types of writing — expository, persuasive, a resume and cover letter, an annotated bibliography and a research paper.

They continually revise those works during the senior year "until there are no more red marks," Chandler said, then put the papers together in a binder.

DeLay breaks silence on Texas legislative rebellion

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Majority Leader Tom DeLay said Thursday he had contacted two federal agencies to help in the search for Texas Democratic lawmakers who had fled the state, but he said he and his staff never contacted the Homeland Security Department.

DeLay, R-Texas, said his office contacted the Department of Justice on May 12 to ask "about the appropriate role of the federal government in finding Texas legislators who have warrants for their arrest and have crossed state lines."

He contacted the department after Texas House Speaker Tom Craddick had asked him for the information, DeLay said.

He also said his office tracked the plane of former Texas House Speaker Pete Laney by contacting the Federal Aviation Administration office in Washington, then relayed that information, which he said is publicly available, to Craddick's office.

"Other than that there has been no contact by me or anyone on my staff with the Department of Homeland Security," DeLay said.

"There's been no contact by me or anyone on my staff with the (Texas Department of Public Safety) or anyone else involved in the investigation of trying to track down these" state lawmakers.

DeLay has been at the center of the Texas crisis from the beginning.

It was at DeLay's urging that the state House introduced a bill this month to realign Texas' 32 congressional districts. They were drawn two years ago by a federal court panel.

By hiding out in Oklahoma for nearly a week, Democrats killed the redistricting bill. The deadline for passage expired without enough state House members in Austin to vote.

DeLay said he is not giving up on redistricting but would not release details of what he plans next.

Ending appeasement in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia

An appeaser is one who feeds a crocodile, hoping it will eat him last. Winston Churchill once said. The Kingdom of Saudi Arabia is learning this the hard way. After decades of appeasing Islamic extremism in the heart of the Arab world—and believing such a policy essentially immunized it against terrorism—it's reeling from an unexpected, painful bite.

PETER BROOKES

On May 13, several Saudi-born operatives of Osama bin Laden's al-Qaeda network stunned the Saudi capital, Riyadh, with a suicide bombing that killed 20 and wounded hundreds including Saudi Muslims. More attacks in the heart of Muslim lands by entrenched al-Qaeda cells appear likely, prompting Riyadh officials on Tuesday to raise their terrorism alert to its highest level.

After successes in Afghanistan, Yemen and Iraq, the war on terrorism has landed squarely on Saudi Arabia's doorstep. Regrettably, this comes as no surprise.

For years, the Saudis have tolerated Islamic radicals. They turned a blind eye to the fundamentalist Wahhabi branch of Islam, which preaches violence and exports extremism and hatred worldwide through mosques and madrassas (Islamic religious schools). They allowed Saudi charitable organizations to fund terrorism abroad.

Of course, we should remember that Osama bin Laden is Saudi and that as many as 10,000 of his countrymen fought with the Taliban in Afghanistan. No one knows how many of the more than 80,000 individuals who passed through al-Qaeda's training camps in Afghanistan were Saudi. But we know 15 of the Sept. 11 hijackers were among them.

Long in denial about militancy in its homeland, the Saudi royal family finds itself in the terrorist's crosshairs. It must, once and for all, directly confront its home-grown extremists and root them out. For Islamic fundamentalism poses a grave threat not only to the West, but to the Saudi kingdom as well.

The Saudi government should immediately increase security at likely civilian targets and act more decisively on intelligence tips. Ignoring even one request from U.S. officials for better security before last week's attack would have been bad enough; the Saudis ignored five.

It was no one-time lapse. Saudi authorities have been uncooperative in investigating past attacks against Americans, including the Khobar Towers bombing in 1996, which killed 19 airmen, and the Sept. 11th attacks. The kingdom reportedly spirited a number of its citizens out of the United States after 9/11 before it could be determined if they had information about the hijackers.

This time, Saudi mabaheth (terrorist police) should cooperate.

are fully with the United States and grant full access to suspects, witnesses and evidence on the bombings. Any leads that result could be critical in preventing future attacks.

But more must be done. Riyadh should shut off the unregulated flow of money leaving Saudi Arabia for the pockets of terrorists. A report submitted to the U.N. secretary-general by an independent consultant on terrorism financing shows that, over the last decade, Saudi "religious charities" have channeled up to $500 million to terrorist groups including al-Qaeda and Hamas, which orchestrated the recent suicide bombings in Israel.

Inhibiting the flow of cash is crucial. Terrorism needs capital, and it can spread misery fairly cheaply. The 9/11 operation cost al-Qaeda approximately $500,000 to conduct. Since then, approximately $134 million in terrorist money has been identified and frozen worldwide—a fraction of the total amount available to finance such attacks. As long as terrorists have money, they're deadly.

Saudi officials also should crack down on the terrorists and their supporters. They can start by dismantling the pervasive radical Islamist infrastructure in the Kingdom that has propagated the ideology of hatred and terror at home and abroad, including the mosques and the militant media organizations.

Addressing the root causes of terrorism is also important, and that means the kingdom must reform its social and political system. Declining living standards, increasing unemployment and the lack of basic civil liberties fuel the engine of terrorism. The Saudi people deserve a more open and accountable government.

Nineteen months into the anti-terrorism war, Saudi Arabia is finally getting a wake-up call: No one is immune. The Saudis have pledged their full cooperation in the war on terrorism—and the world deserves nothing less. It's high time we bagged this crocodile.

Peter Brookes, a former deputy assistant secretary of defense, is a senior fellow for national security affairs at The Heritage Foundation.

AROUND THE VALLEY

Preliminary hearings continue for suspects

Dustin Hunt, 22, and Michael Kral, 21, both of Buhl, were arrested May 16 in connection with the shooting of 27-year-old Mari House of Twin Falls.

Hunt and Kral are each being held in the Twin Falls County Jail on a $1 million bond.

House was wounded in the neck, shoulder and leg after assailants fired several shots with a .22-caliber pistol through a pillow at her in her home early May 16, according to a sworn affidavit written by Twin Falls police detective Curtis Gambrel.

House was in fair condition at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls Thursday, a hospital spokeswoman said.

House might have neurological damage, said Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebe.

A conviction of aggravated battery with a deadly weapon could result in up to 30 years in prison.

Bob Dylan comes to Ketchum to wall

KETCHUM - The granddaddy of protest music Bob Dylan will be one of three headliners slated to play in a new concert series this summer in Ketchum.

Bravo Entertainment of Boise got the go-ahead from the Ketchum City Council this week to hold three concerts at the park and ride lot at Warm Springs and Saddle roads.

Dylan will wall July 21. Rocker George Thorogood and the Destroyers will perform on Aug. 19, and award-winning bluesgrass musician Alison Krause will perform on Sept. 3.

Tickets will range in price from $25 to $50 and will likely go on sale in mid-June. Bravo will probably lay down some Astroturf or spray the dirt and gravel parking lot with vegetable spray to keep the dust down.

The city has already received offers from several local residents about the concert. But the city will get some revenue from allowing the concerts on city property.

Wendell Cemetery

to have hospitality booth

WENDELL - The Wendell Cemetery District Board will host its traditional hospitality booth over Memorial Day weekend.

Records will be available for those who need help locating graves. Artificial flowers that have been left at the cemetery in past years will be available for a donation. Money will be used for booth supplies or put toward the garden and gazebo.

The booth will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Anyone coming to the cemetery is invited to stop by, visit and have cookies and punch or coffee.

The American Legion will present a special service program at 11 a.m. Monday at the flag pole.

Several projects are under way at the cemetery to make it nicer, said Jeanne Spencer, clerk for the Wendell Cemetery District.

The Grant Zollinger Memorial Garden is being developed with plants, benches and other memorials to honor loved ones. Anyone who wants to participate in developing the garden is welcome.

Help is needed to put up a chain-link fence along the west side of the cemetery. Those who would like to help with this or other projects should contact Harry Surphus at 536-5244 or Wade Spurgeon at 536-2010 or any other board member.

Student art is on display in Ketchum at center

KETCHUM - Works of more than 200 art students from kindergarten through high school are on display at the annual "Young at Art" show being held at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts at Fifth Street and Washington Avenue.

The exhibit includes four hand-painted stools from elementary school students who will be raffled off. Ceramic items will be offered up in a silent auction.

The exhibit is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today and 3 to 5 p.m. Monday.

Board keeps ISDB director

The Times-News and The Associated Press

BOISE - The State Board of Education on Thursday unanimously ordered its director to develop a "plan of action" for the superintendent of the Idaho School for the Deaf and the Blind.

The board decision, made without comment after a lengthy closed-door session, followed an investigation by the board staff, including Director Gary Stivers, into allegations of mismanagement and other irregularities against Superintendent Angel Ramos.

Ending a four-month inquiry, Stivers said the board has supported Ramos as superintendent for another year.

As such, Ramos stands absolved of all charges.

"I was expecting it. I knew I had not done anything wrong," Ramos said by phone Thursday afternoon. "I'm very surprised and so pleased at the outpouring of support from my staff and the community."

Stivers said the action plan would involve school procedures in finances, personnel and information technology, but he declined to provide any details. He said it was a personnel matter protected by exceptions to the open-records and open-meeting laws.

Earlier, a board spokeswoman said the allegations often lacked specifics and at times appeared contradictory.

Ramos, the first deaf superintendent of the Gooding school, has generally dismissed his critics as a handful of disgruntled parents and employees who have refused to identify themselves.

He said this incident has provided him with a valuable lesson.

"I need to have better control of information going out to my staff and to the public," he said, adding that much of the anonymous allegations were based on misinformation.

Ramos blamed the attacks on a second straight year without pay increases for the school's staff, jobs lost with the elimination of a special-needs program and a shakeup of the membership on the school's parents advisory board.

Blaine bans personal watercraft

By Pat Murphy
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY - In a matter of weeks, Blaine County will begin enforcing a ban on personal watercraft on two popular mountain lakes.

The prohibition results from complaints by recreationists that the lakes' tranquil settings have been shattered by the roar and speeding wakes of the watercraft, commonly known by trademarks such as Jet Ski, Sea Doo, Aqua Trax and WaveRunner.

Unanimous 3-0 approval of the ordinance came Wednesday after more than an hour and a half of comments from a packed meeting room. The audience clearly provided lopsided support for Commissioner Sarah Michael's proposal.

Deputy County Prosecutor Tim Graves, who is the commission's attorney, summarized the ordinance as designed to prevent noise, to protect an environment that includes sockeye salmon, and to ensure safety.

The ordinance, which takes effect in June, applies only to Pettit and Alturas lakes north of Galena Pass and in the Sawtooth Valley. At the suggestion of Commissioner Mary Ann Mix, the ordinance and its effect will be reviewed after the summer of 2004, but otherwise has no expiration date.

Although a few opponents and supporters of the ordinance sternly confronted each other with claims and counterclaims about personal watercraft, the hearing - the second one held on the proposal - remained

Road work stops due to holiday

The Times-News

SHOSHONE - Highway construction in south-central Idaho will be suspended today through Monday to accommodate Memorial Day weekend travelers, the Idaho Transportation Department says.

However, traffic shifts still might be in effect for projects already under way, including the following:

- I-84/U.S. 93 interchange - The interchange at Interstate 84 and U.S. Highway 93, three miles north of Twin Falls, is being rebuilt. On I-84, traffic has been shifted to the eastbound lanes. Newly constructed I-84 westbound on- and off-ramps are open to traffic and a traffic signal was relocated next to the ramps earlier this week.

Throughout the project, lane closures along Highway 93 may occur, though one lane will remain open in each direction.

The $7.27 million project, scheduled for completion by December, involves replacement of the existing I-84 westbound overpass and the westbound on- and off-ramps. A nonstop loop ramp for northbound Highway 93 traffic merging into the westbound lanes of I-84 also will be constructed.

Western Construction Inc. is the contractor.

- I-84, Glenns Ferry to King Hill - The eastbound lanes of I-84 between Glenns Ferry and King Hill are being reconstructed. Traffic has shifted to the westbound lanes, with the lane open in each direction. The eastbound lanes will remain closed until the project is complete.

The $10.4 million project, scheduled to be complete by November, will create a smoother road surface for motorists, the Transportation Department says. The nine-mile stretch of highway is deteriorated and cracked.

- I-84, Cottrell Interchange to Sublett - A project to rehabilitate 16 miles of westbound I-84 lanes from the Cottrell interchange to Sublett, about 21 miles southeast of Burley, is under way. Crews will not work today or Monday. Traffic is

Memorial Day looks to be busy for campgrounds

By Brandon Fiala
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Memorial Day weekend promises warm temperatures as thousands of Idahoans travel to area campsites.

"If the number of campsites reserved in advance of Memorial Day weekend is any indication of camping interest this year, we are off to a great summer camping season," said Rick Collignon, director of the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation, in a news release.

AAA Idaho estimates that 143,000 Idaho residents will travel more than 50 miles this weekend, a slight decrease from last year.

"We're expecting travel numbers on par with last year - which was a record year," said Dave Carlson, AAA Idaho spokesman.

Decreasing gas prices also helped boost travel estimates. The average price for a gallon of regular unleaded gasoline in Idaho is $1.56 - still 15 cents higher than a year ago, Carlson said. The national average is about $1.49 per gallon.

While nationally most people are headed to oceans and beaches, most Idahoans are headed toward mountains and lakes for the weekend, with highs in the mid 80s to low 90s, said Jim Meyer, a duty forecaster for the National Weather Service in Postle.

In the Sawtooths and Stanley area, expect highs in the 60s to 70s, with lows in the 20s and 30s. There is about a 15 percent chance for slight rain showers during the late weekend, Meyer said.

Campgrounds at many state parks are fully reserved for the weekend, but other campsites in the Sawtooth National Forest are on a first-come, first-served basis.

"If people don't have a reservation, we encourage them to call the park," Collignon said.

Despite the warm weekend, snow still remains in some areas.

The road to the top of Mt. Harrison is closed at Pomerelle Ski Area, and use of many roads in the Wood River Valley is limited, according to a Forest Service news release.

Most of the side roads in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area are only open for a short distance before they become soft and muddy.

Campers in the SNRA can also expect different fees and campsite capacities. In the past, campgrounds within the SNRA allowed up to 10 people per single campsite and up to 20 at multi-family campsites. However, beginning this season a maximum

Fire, illness close Minidoka County schools

The Times-News

PAUL - A Thursday afternoon fire damaged West Minidoka Middle School and created an even longer holiday weekend for students there.

Meanwhile, Acequia Elementary School is closed today as well, after 28 students there became sick Thursday afternoon. Minidoka County School District Clerk Darrel Black said.

The fire at West Minidoka was reported after students had left for the day Thursday, Black said.

The West End Fire Department and Minidoka County Sheriff's Office were still investigating the cause that night, said sheriff's Lt. Dan Kindig. Investigators are leaning toward attributing the cause to an electrical problem, Kindig said.

The fire caused "substantial damage" to the school, Kindig said. No one was hurt.

It appears the fire started in a small outbuilding adjacent to the west side of the school, Kindig said. The fire then spread up over the kitchen area in the main building.

While there are no classes for students today at West Minidoka, staff members are expected to report for work, Black said.

At Acequia Elementary, 28 students became ill - symptoms included vomiting - Thursday afternoon. A number of staff members "felt bad" as well, Black said.

"I do not know the cause, and I'm not going to speculate at all," he said. "For the safety of the students, there's no school (today). We and the health department are checking to find the cause."

For Acequia Elementary staff members, it's optional whether they go to school, Black said.

School was scheduled to go on as normal at all other Minidoka County schools today.

Senator wants park fee program to continue

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Sen. Craig Thomas, R-Wyo., introduced legislation Thursday that would allow national parks to continue to collect 80 percent of admission fees to pay for improvements.

In 1997, Congress allowed parks to keep four-fifths of their receipts for enhancement projects under the Recreation Fee Demonstration Program, which is due to expire in 2004.

Thomas' bill would make the fee-collection authority permanent.

"The Recreation Fee Demonstration program was an effort by Congress to allow public land agencies to obtain funding in addition to their annual appropriations," Thomas said in a release. "My legislation will help provide resources for badly needed improvement projects and ensure an enhanced experience for all visitors."

Thomas, chairman of the Parks Subcommittee for the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, said the nation's parks are being "loved to death." "We need to guarantee our national treasures are available for generations to come," he said.

Burley plan splits sewer project bill

Residents will vote on measures Tuesday

By Shelley Kidenour
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A proposed new, larger sewer plant in Burley would be paid for by both sewer users and by property owners under the plan touted by city officials.

Burley residents vote Tuesday on two measures related to a new sewer plant.

They'll be asked to let the city borrow $18 million to replace the existing 2.5-million-gallon-a-day sewer plant, which the city has been ordered to replace by the Environmental Protection Agency. The existing plant doesn't comply with federal or state regulations.

That loan would be paid back through user fees, which were increased last year.

Voters will also be asked to let the city borrow another $7 million. For $25 million, a 5-million-gallon-a-day sewer plant could be built in Burley. A bigger plant provides room for new businesses to hook in, something that city officials hope to see happen today. The $7 million loan would be repaid through higher property taxes.

Increased utilities, increased taxes

City officials plan to borrow the $18 million from the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality's revolving loan fund. The state will loan that money at a 3.75 percent interest rate, Burley City Administrator Mark Mitton said.

The loan would be paid back in 20 years. No plans are in place to raise user fees in the near future, but city officials say rates could increase someday.

Last July, sewer rates were increased fairly stiffly to begin accumulating money for a new plant. Residential and small business sewer customers now pay $27.50 a month for sewer services. That fee replaces a previous monthly base fee of $8 plus 60 cents per 1,000 gallons of metered water.

Large commercial customers continue to pay the same rate they did before the rate increase, $10 a month, plus $1.30 per 1,000 gallons of metered water.

People who live outside the city limits but who are hooked to the city sewer system pay double the in-city rate.

The $7 million would be borrowed from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's rural development office. Mitton expects that loan to carry an interest rate of between 4.25 percent and 4.5 percent. It would also be a 20-year loan.

The $7 million loan would be paid for by an increase in property taxes. It would increase taxes paid to the city by the owner of a $180,000 house by 33 percent a year. The increase for a $60,000 house is 56 percent a year. The increase to the owner of a $250,000 house is 37 percent a year.

The city of Burley collects $12 million in property taxes a year.

The city would actually have to borrow the money to pay for interest on the two loans, too.

The total price tag for the $18 million segment plus interest is $25.9 million. The price of the $7 million issue increases to $10.7 million with interest, Mitton said.

If approved Tuesday, the higher tax rate won't show up on property tax bills until 2004, Mitton said, because the project probably won't start until the spring of 2005. Before any construction work can begin all the engineering must be completed. Then, advertising for bids occurs and bids are opened.

Mitton expects to advertise for bids in July 2004 and open bids in September 2004. It would be up to the general contractor and dependent on weather conditions whether any construction work began that fall, or waits until spring 2005.

Once those bids are opened, should the project actually cost less than $18 million, the lower amount would be collected in property taxes, he said.

Should Burley grow during the 20-year payoff of the loans, the tax rates would decrease, Mitton said. The rate is established to generate a specific dollar amount every year. If there are residential or business owners are paying property taxes, that amount is shared with more taxpayers, which reduces the tax burden per individual payer.

Why build it?

Mitton says it makes economic sense to build the larger plant now. By building the plant bigger to begin with, the city will save money. The plant will be designed for expansion, but costs would probably increase by at least a third, he said, to build a 5-million-gallon-a-day plant a few years later.

Dave Anderson, an Idaho Department of Environmental Quality employee who lives in Burley, said the $18 million part of the project is essentially just bringing Burley "up to speed."

Replacing the plant won't cost taxpayers or sewer users any more money than they're paying today, Anderson said. Rather, it allows the city to operate a waste treatment plant, as it's required to.

On the other hand, the $7 million "really buys us a lot of capacity," Anderson said. "This is what the city of Burley has to offer any industry."

The proposed $25 million project is the largest single infrastructure project the city of Burley has ever undertaken or will ever undertake, Mitton said.

The inadequate sewer is the missing piece in the city's infrastructure offerings to prospective businesses and industries. "We've got water and other good assets, this is the one thing we're lacking in order to move forward," Mitton said.

Burley Mayor Jon Anderson said city officials are "trying to do the right thing," with the two-part sewer proposal.

"If this thing fails, we'll keep looking," he said. "We'd look at the Simplot plant."

But, Jon Anderson and Mitton said, the Simplot wastewater plant isn't designed to handle municipal waste and isn't for sale. So it's been ruled out as a viable alternative, in spite of the fact people keep suggesting the city acquire that facility.

Dave Anderson said the Simplot wastewater plant is designed only to process food waste and couldn't be adapted to handle municipal sewer waste.

The city has received $3 million in federal grant appropriations so far, and will apply for another $1 million in the next two years, Mitton said.

The $3 million is being spent on pre-engineering and studies which must be finished before construction could begin.

Forsgren Associates Inc. of Salt Lake City has already been hired as the project engineer.

Rural fire departments receive federal money

By Rachel Hartgen
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Through the efforts of the Southern Idaho Fire Co-op, local rural fire departments have received what they describe as much-needed federal funding.

The Southern Idaho Fire Co-op board is made up of local representatives from area fire departments.

The board, led by Chairman Pat Bishop, annually collects applications from rural fire departments requesting aid designated by the Rural Fire Assistance federal program.

"We have local chiefs making local decisions on a federal program," Buhl Fire Chief Mark Grimes said.

That type of partnership is rare, Grimes said.

The Rural Fire Assistance Program, part of the National Fire Plan, allocates money to the South Central Idaho Bureau of Land Management to be distributed among area rural fire departments.

The BLM then calls upon the guidance of the Southern Idaho Fire Co-op to distribute the federal aid.

"The board allows the right formula with the right people for the right amount of money," South Central BLM Fire Manager Andy Payne said.

Each year, 30 to 31 South

Central Idaho fire departments are part of this program, with each community receiving a maximum amount of $20,000.

This year, $210,000 was dispensed among local rural departments with the guidance of the Southern Idaho Fire Co-op board.

The aid is used for six general purposes: training, prevention, personal protective equipment, equipment, communications and tools and supplies.

In 2003, the Ketchum Fire Department received the largest sum of $10,893, which it is using for equipment.

Hailey Fire Department received the smallest amount, with $1,186 used for training and equipment.

Officials of the South Central BLM, along with representatives of Idaho congressmen, awarded the members of the co-op board at a ceremony Thursday morning in the KMYT Community Room.

Local fire chiefs Pat Bishop of Gooding, Mark Grimes of Buhl, Larry Pool of Rupert, Greg Schwab of Ketchum and Dan Kosen of West End were commended for their work.

"We appreciate their efforts," Idaho BLM State Director K. Lynn Bennett said. "Their time and energy are true volunteerism. Without them, it wouldn't work."

Bond sale generates extra money for Minidoka schools

The Times-News

RUPERT — A record-low day for interest rates translated to more money for the Minidoka County School District.

School officials sold bonds Wednesday night to pay off a $9 million lease-option loan the district had secured last year. Because of low interest rates, the sale netted another $1.2 million for school construction projects.

In March voters agreed to let district officials convert the lease-option loan to a bond issue. The change was expected to generate an additional $1 million.

Property-tax payers will likely save $533,899 because of the new arrangement, Minidoka County School District Superintendent Nick Hallett said, because tax payers in the district in the next 17 years will be reduced by that amount. However, he pointed ed out the additional money might also be used to offset other decreased tax revenues, especially related to a recent taxing which said Minidoka County officials had charged The Amalgamated Sugar Co. too much in property taxes.

Planned construction projects with the extra money include remodeling at Ittyburn and Acquia elementary schools, addressing mold and moisture problems at Big Valley Elementary School, adding a science room to West Minidoka Middle School and making changes to the music room and auditorium at Minico High School.

Construction projects are good for the local economy, Hallett said. More money for construction and possibly lower taxes — it doesn't get much better than that, he said.

Officials close Boise County jail in order to reorganize

IDAHO CITY (AP) — Boise County officials have closed the county jail following two escapes and a felony charge against one jailer.

The county will decide if it will rerun the jail after training is completed and procedures are changed, said county Prosecutor Theresa Gardunia. In the meantime, inmates will be transported to other jails.

Harrison said the closure was meant to protect taxpayers. She said jailers will get additional training, policies will be changed and stricter rules will be added before the jail reopens.

"The jail is one of the biggest liabilities to a county," Gardunia said. "You tend to be a little lax, and that shouldn't happen in a small town but it does. You tend to be not as strict with some of the rules."

Jail Deputy Matthew Williston was charged with a felony earlier this month for allegedly having sexual contact with an inmate. Two inmates were released from the jail earlier this year.

Sheriff Gary Brown told KTVB-Boise he hopes to have the jail back open by the end of July, but Gardunia said that is an unrealistic expectation.

Sen. Craig organizes M.V. grazing workshop

WASHINGTON — With the initiation of a new grazing season and rapidly changing range conditions, U.S. Sen. Larry Craig-R, Idaho, has organized a series of informational workshops.

The Magic Valley-area workshop will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Jerome City Council chambers, 100 E. Ave. A.

Participants include the Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management and Idaho Department of Lands. The Natural Resources Conservation Service will provide an update on the current water situation.

Topics include changes regarding range improvements, categorical exclusions, range health assessment and utilization tools, fire, noxious weeds, endangered and sensitive species, crickets and grasshoppers, communication and planning, and water management, Craig said in a news release.

Around the Valley

Ranchers with any of the above concerns are invited.

For more information about the workshop, call Mike Mathews in Craig's Twin Falls office at 734-6780.

Gallery walk in Ketchum gets shuttle service

KETCHUM — It's billed as a gallery walk. But that doesn't mean you have to walk, does it?

Not any longer. Two KART buses will offer free transportation for the monthly gallery walks in Ketchum and Sun Valley, where more than two dozen art galleries throw open their doors to offer refreshments and, oftentimes, a chance to meet with the artists behind their current exhibitions.

The first Art with Kart will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday. Buses will circulate every 10 minutes, picking up and letting off riders at specially designated stops close to member galleries. The bus also will stop at parking lots at the LDS church on Sun Valley Road, the Ketchum Post Office at Fourth Street and Second Avenue, the 511 Building at Sixth Street and Leadville Avenue in front of the Sun Valley Post Office on the Sun Valley Mall. Additional gallery walks this summer will be held on July 5 and Aug. 1 and 29.

Wellness festival comes to Sun Valley this weekend

SUN VALLEY — More than 2,000 people are expected to hit town this weekend as the sixth annual Sun Valley Mountain Wellness Festival kicks off.

Sun Valley/Ketchum Chamber and Visitor Bureau Director Carol Waller said she is buoyed by recent reports that indicate Americans plan to hit the road this weekend, regardless of worries about the war in Iraq and the economy.

The four-day wellness festival, which the chamber instituted to push the start of the summer season back from late June to the Memorial Day Weekend, will feature a variety of workshops on such topics as anti-aging and the secrets of stress-resistant people. The conference, starting today and ending Monday, will feature such well-known personalities as Ram Dhar, Armand Hemingway and Debbie Ford.

Admission is a $25 badge good for all four days. A few of the events require an additional charge. For information, call 1-800-634-3347 or go to www.svmtnwellness.org.

Memorial honors victims of bridge collapse

WEBBERS FALLS, Okla. (AP) — After a month of preparing a section of a city park for a memorial to those who died in last year's bridge collapse, John Peoples saw the fruits of his labor on Thursday.

A backhoe gently hoisted the bronze sculpture of a girl on top of an angled beam at a site Peoples, as superintendent of Broken Arrow-based Magnum Construction, had been working to prepare.

"It seems like hallowed ground," he said. "It's real peaceful."

The sculpture will be dedicated during a first anniversary memorial service on Monday at the Battle of Webbers Falls city park.

Fourteen people died May 25 after a towboat pushed two barges into the piers of the Interstate 40 bridge, causing a 500-foot section to collapse into the Arkansas River.

The victims included Utah truck driver Paul Taille Jr., 39, of Magna.

Artist Shahla Rahimi-Reynolds, the memorial's designer, joined Peoples, Webbers Falls Mayor Jewell Horne and others as the sculpture was placed.

It depicts a young girl with arms outstretched to cradle a dove atop a jutting structure made of broken steel beams from the I-40 bridge. The $150,000 project is being paid for with federal funds and private donations.

"As we were doing it, we stopped and reflected on it and took pictures," Peoples said. "It's nice. That sculpture really sets it off."

Rahimi-Reynolds has said the sculpture, titled "Going Home," symbolizes all the victims leaving this earth toward heaven.

Much of the memorial surrounding the bronze sculpture is black granite from the African country of Zimbabwe.

Starting Memorial Day, the fees for single campsites and one vehicle are $10 to $13, while fees for multi-family sites are $18 to $28.

Also new this year will be a parking fee at Sandy Beach Boat Ramp, Outlet Day Use Area and Beach, North Shore Picnic Area and Beach, Point Day Use Area and Beach, Alturas Inlet Day Use Area and Beach, and Wood River Picnic Area. The new parking fee per vehicle is $3 per day, $10 per week or $25 per year.

"Due to increasing sanitation and labor costs associated with maintaining these day use areas, it has become necessary to charge a nominal fee to users of the facilities," said Renee Catherin, developed-recreation manager for the SNRA.

No traffic restrictions will be in place during the holiday weekend. After Memorial Day, traffic will be reduced to one lane and will be guided through the construction zone by flaggers and a pilot car.

Work is estimated to cost $1.9 million, and completion is scheduled for July.

civil, and speakers generally complied with the three-minute time limit for statements.

However, two callers who had told Michael in telephone voice-mail messages that they would appear did not show.

Both male voices had identified themselves as attorneys, but Harrison heeded "fight your tooth and nail" and represented a group that "has a lawsuit in the works" to overturn the ordinance.

Graves told the commission that state law gives the county power to regulate operations of watercraft on the lakes.

One of those who appealed for the commission not to enact the new ban was Jim Jarrett, who summers at Alturas Lake and said the handful of watercraft he estimated about 15 — were operated safely and did not shatter the lake's quiet.

But David Harrison rejected defenses of the watercraft. He said "these machines have no place (on the lakes). Their potential (for accidents) is frightening."

Harrison also said, "My special interest is peace and quiet."

A different objection to the ban came from civic activist and one-time Ketchum City Council candidate Mickey Garcia who told the commission "you're not doing this the right way."

He suggested partnering with the Sawtooth National Recreation Area and conducting environmental studies before making a decision.

"Just because you can (enact a ban) doesn't mean you should," he said.

Marilyn Pauley, wife of Dr. Steven Pauley, disciple of anti-pollution ordinances in the Wood River Valley, said that "two or three Jet Skis can make 400 people believe they're not there (at the lakes) for peace and quiet."

Brandon Thompson, an objector to the ban, suggested the county commission and watercraft operators could work together to develop a plan to concerns other than an outright ban.

To Michael's question whether piecemeal regulations — such as on hours of operation and watercraft wake speeds — could be enforced, Blaine County Sheriff Walt Felling said it would be difficult, if not impossible.

Felling said he has no budget for even one full-time marine patrol officer and must rely on deputies on their days off to patrol the lakes.

He also said that once deputies cross 8,701-foot Galena Pass into the Sawtooth Valley, they have no direct communication with headquarters because terrain blocks radios and cell phone transmissions.

Michael took pains to explain to the audience that the ban does not apply to standard boats.

Top Kempthorne aides get hefty raises

BOISE (AP) — Despite the economic crunch that is denying state employees pay raises for the second straight year, Gov. Dirk Kempthorne has given three top aides hefty salary hikes.

State records show that David Lehman, who handles health and welfare issues for the governor, got a 43 percent pay increase from $42,016 a year to $60,008. Scott Turlington, Kempthorne's advisor on natural resources, got 20 percent from $50,003 to $60,008. Michael Bogert, the governor's staff attorney, got 14 percent from $82,680 to $94,494.

The records were obtained by

The Idaho Statesman.

Another 117 of the state's 24,000 workers have seen pay increases, about half merit or temporary increases and the others the result of changed job responsibilities.

The state's overall payroll is about $1 billion, half of that financed from general tax collections.

Kempthorne Chief of Staff Brian Whitlock said Lehman and Turlington both took on more responsibilities after other aides left the staff. Whitlock said Bogert's responsibilities, while unchanged, mirror those of a division chief in the attorney general's office and warrant ed commensurate compensation.

Idaho Democratic Party Chairwoman Carolyn Boyce called on Kempthorne to retract the raises. She said it was inappropriate to increase his own staff's salary "in a time when we have school districts going to a first day school week, state employees who have not received a pay raise in over two years and we're laying off teachers and other state employees."

House Appropriations Chairwoman Maxine Bell was concerned about the magnitude of the hikes, especially when "we don't know yet that we're going to be able to budget with what we've left in place."

But employee compensation expert Roger Brassy said the value of the job is more important than the size of the raise. Still Brassy said that convincing people that huge percentage pay hikes are justified is hard in a tight economy.

Whitlock said the reduction in the number of staff in the governor's office made it possible to provide the pay increases even after the Legislature cut the governor's office budget by 7 percent.

And Bell acknowledged that as long as Kempthorne stays within the budgeted amount, it is his decision on how to spend the money.

Federal funds will help rural fire departments

By Rachel Hartigan
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Through the efforts of the Southern Idaho Fire Co-op, local rural fire departments have received what they describe as much-needed federal funding.

The Southern Idaho Fire Co-op board is made up of local representatives from area fire departments. The board, led by Chairman Pat Bishop, annually collects applications from rural fire departments requesting aid designated by the Rural Fire Assistance federal program.

"We have local chiefs making local decisions on a federal program," Buhl Fire Chief Mark Grimes said.

That type of partnership is rare, Grimes said.

The Rural Fire Assistance Program, part of the National Fire Plan, allocates money to the South Central Idaho Bureau of Land Management to be distributed among area rural fire departments.

BLM then calls upon the guidance of the Southern Idaho Fire Co-op to distribute the federal aid.

"The board allows the right formula with the right people for the right amount of money," South Central BLM Fire Manager Andy Payne said.

Each year, 30 to 31 South Central Idaho fire departments are part of this program, with each community receiving a maximum amount of $50,000.

This year, $210,000 was dispersed among local rural departments with the guidance of the Southern Idaho Fire Co-op board.

The aid is used for six general purposes: training, prevention, personal protective equipment, equipment, communications and tools and supplies.

In 2003, the Ketchum Fire Department received the largest sum of $10,893, which it is using for equipment. Hailey Fire Department received the smallest amount, with $1,186 used for training and equipment.

Officials of the South Central BLM, along with representatives of Idaho congressmen, awarded the members of the co-op board at a ceremony Thursday morning in the KMYT Community Room.

Local fire chiefs Pat Bishop of Gooding, Mark Grimes of Buhl, Larry Pool of Rupert, Greg Schwab of Ketchum and Dan Kersen of West End were commended for their work.

"We appreciate their efforts," Idaho BLM State Director K. Lynn Bennett said. "Their time and energy are true volunteerism. Without them, it wouldn't work."

Initiative would repeal Right to Work law

BOISE (AP) — Two more ballot initiatives are making their way through the initial approval stages, including one that would repeal the state's Right to Work law.

Cour d'Alene attorney Scott Reed filed the required 20 signatures Thursday with the Secretary of State's office.

The proposal, sponsored by the North Idaho Central Labor Council, would void a law passed in 1985 that says union membership cannot be made a condition of continued employment.

Idaho is one of 22 states, mainly in the South, Midwest and Intermountain West, where Right to Work legislation is currently in force.

A separate measure brought by Rathdrum activist Rose Johnson would create a fourth branch of government, the Idaho Judicial Accountability Commission, to review and investigate allegations of judicial misconduct.

The proposed initiatives are in the first stages of approval, in which the Attorney General's office reviews them for constitutional viability, assigns titles and suggests changes.

Panel suggests former lawmaker for open seat

'Queer lovers' remark drew some attention

BOISE (AP) — Former conservative state Rep. Lyman Winchester of Kuna is the top nominee of a Republican legislative district panel that is recommending candidates to replace GOP State Rep. Fred Tilman in the Idaho House.

Winchester, 67, who unsuccessfully ran for the Republican nomination for state controller last year, is joined on the slate by Clifford Bayer, who lost to Tilman in last year's GOP legislative primary.

Bob Forrey, who represented a Canyon County district in the House during the mid-1980s, was the panel's third choice for the southwestern Ada County seat.

Gov. Dirk Kempthorne will select Tilman's replacement within the next two weeks. Only once has the Republican governor not picked the nominating committee's top choice to fill a vacancy. That involved a Democratic House seat two years ago.

Tilman, who chaired the House Education Committee, resigned last week after Kempthorne named him to a vacancy on the Ada County Commission.

Winchester, a retired Air Force pilot with a ranch in southwestern Ada County, served seven terms in the House, the last one as chairman of the Environmental Affairs Committee. Voters ousted him following two contentious legislative sessions that helped Democrats and moderate Republicans make legislative gains over the following six years.

In his final term, Winchester accused two lawmakers of being "queer lovers" during a heated debate over whether schools should teach students about homosexuality. He never apologized and said this week that the remark drew more attention than it deserved.

Winchester has also been at odds with Kempthorne on the governor's handling of the economic crisis, objecting to the tax hikes Kempthorne won and urging the drastically deeper budget cuts Kempthorne said he would not tolerate.

Tilman got the $74,000-a-year county commissioner's post despite consistently opposing many Kempthorne policies over the past five legislative sessions.

Challis district could be first to impose pay-to-play

CHALLIS (AP) — On the heels of this week's rejection of a special levy to continue high school sports programs, Challis School District officials are considering a pay-to-play program to keep the teams alive.

"I'm getting ready to go to Boise for the state track meet," district Athletic Director Linda Zollinger said, "and I'm thinking it might be the last one for us."

Zollinger said offering fewer sports next year could resolve the financial dilemma. However, federal law requires boys' and girls' sports be treated equally so that the district could not just keep football and wrestling — the only two sports that make enough money to support themselves.

The other option would be charging the students a fee to play the sports. It has been discussed by other districts in Idaho but never implemented like it has in districts in other states where financial problems have taken their toll.

Zollinger said quick estimates suggest that Challis athletes would have to pay more than $700 each to participate in a sport to fully cover costs.

"I think the community will come and help us," she said. "I think people just got tired of their taxes going up."

District voters decisively rejected a $220,000, two-year property tax increase to continue offering extracurricular activities including sports.

The levy would have added less than $35 to the annual tax bill on a $100,000 home. Some attributed the defeat to the school board's decision to cut the vocational agriculture and home economics programs.

At the high school graduation on Wednesday, students remained confident that sports and other activities will be offered again next year.

"I think they'll find a way to get it going," said valedictorian Dillon Brower, a member of the state champion wrestling team.

BLM closes land near Bellevue after complaints

By Pat Murphy
Times-News correspondent

BELLEVUE — Because of complaints from nearby private landowners, the Bureau of Land Management has closed off 80 acres just east of Bellevue to off-highway vehicles such as dirt bikes and ATVs.

The ban takes immediate effect.

The road that slices through the BLM tract, Muldoon Summit Road, remains open, but trails used by off-highway vehicles to access BLM land on either side of Muldoon are closed to all traffic, according to John Kurtz, outdoor recreation planner for the BLM's Shoshone field office.

Kurtz said the closure came after residents complained of noise and dust from dirt bikes and ATVs that crossed private property, as well as an accident last year involving two motorcyclists.

But there also has been severe damage to vegetation, Kurtz said, and possible erosion and introduction of noxious weeds, whose seeds are spread on vehicle tires.

Kurtz stressed that the BLM in partnership with groups such as Big Wood Backcountry Trailhead would jointly work to find "appropriate places" for use by off-highway vehicle riders and to work to "educate users in responsible use."

The closed area is popular with snowmobilers in the winter, then motorcyclists and ATVs in the summer.

However, "only a handful of riders" are involved, Kurtz said, although they "cover a tremendous amount of miles — trails-riding to the hill, then climbing experience."

Several areas, he said, are attractive to off-highway riders such as Ohio Gulch past the waste transfer station east of the area between Hailey and Ketchum; Stanton Crossing off Idaho Highway 20 en route to Fairfield southwest of Bellevue; and Rotorun ski area west of the Hailey area.

Hiker saves pal, is killed by boulder

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A man boulder Wednesday after he pushed a friend to safety.

Seth Buhr, 22, Salt Lake City, was hiking with two women and another man in Big Cottonwood Canyon when they took a break at the Donut Falls area, Salt Lake County sheriff's spokeswoman Peggy Faulkner said.

As they sat at the base of the falls, two of the hikers noticed a shift in the rocks above and started yelling. Buhr shoved one of the women into the pool before the boulder crashed down on him.

"She'd have been killed. He saved her life," Faulkner said. "Just a freaky accident. Nobody was above the rock. It's scary stuff — nature."

The survivors tried to move the rock but couldn't budge it. One woman cut her hand badly during the rescue attempt and walked down the trail, where she met a couple who were about to hike to the falls.

The man went up to while the woman tried to comfort the injured hiker and called for help. The injured hiker was taken to a nearby hospital.

A rescue crew needed ropes and pulleys to lift the boulder 6 inches so the body could be removed.

Canada fines woman for petting whale

GOLD RIVER, British Columbia (AP) — A woman pleaded guilty to petting a killer whale and was fined $74 in the first case of its kind in Canada.

Sandra Bohn could have been fined a thousand times as much under the federal Fisheries Act's marine mammal regulations, and whale watchers are on notice that "the sentence next time will be quite different," Judge Peter Doherty said Tuesday.

Police Cpl. Jacques Olsen said that while the fine was small, the point was made.

"This is the first offense of this kind that's ever been heard in court," Olsen said. "We've set the bar."

Bohn admitted petting a 3-year-old male orca known as Luna, who was separated from his family group and settled in remote waters on the west side of Canada's Vancouver Island, which is within his family's year-round range. The fear for Luna has been his growing familiarity with people.

Olsen said there also have been reports of people feeding beer to the whale and swimming with it. Marine mammal experts say touching or petting a whale could change its behavior patterns and lessen its chances of reuniting with its pod, or clan.

Canadian and U.S. scientists have been meeting to determine why the best for Luna — to let him stay where he is or relocate him — and for the rest of the endangered southern resident orca population.

John Ford, senior marine mammal scientist at the Pacific Biological Station of Fisheries and Oceans Canada in Nanaimo, said there is little chance Luna will join the group when they swim past Nootka Sound, mainly because the pod is small and declining in population.

Bohn said after the court hearing that residents of this town on the west coast of Vancouver Island have been petting Luna for the last couple of years.

She said she was at the wharf on Nootka Sound with four or five others when she was cited on Feb. 7.

Scientists report on Yellowstone enzyme

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — Scientists say a tiny creature living in a hot spring may be the key to making industrial bleaching of clothing and paper products easier on the environment.

The enzyme apparently is able to break down hydrogen peroxide by itself in industrial bleaching, say researchers at the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory.

Their findings were presented at the annual meeting of the American Society of Microbiologists in Washington, D.C. this week.

Utah prepares for June firing-squad executions

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The only state that dispatches condemned inmates by firing squad is assembling gunmen for back-to-back executions next month.

The nation's last execution by firing squad was in 1996. Exercising their right under Utah law, a serial killer Roberto Arguelles and Troy Michael Kell, a white supremacist who stabbed a fellow inmate to death, have chosen the firing squad over lethal injection and are set to die at 12:01 a.m. on June 27 and 28, respectively.

However, Kell filed an appeal last week that will probably halt his execution.

Of the 850 inmates put to death in the United States since the U.S. Supreme Court reinstated capital punishment in 1976, two have died by firing squad, both in Utah: Gary Gilmore in 1977 became the first person executed in the United States after the court's ruling, and John Albert Taylor was put to death 13 years later.

Since 1977, Utah has executed four other killers, all by injection.

Anti-death penalty forces are protesting, arguing that the firing squad amounts to cruel and unusual punishment. And the prison is bracing for large crowds of protesters.

Utah's use of firing squads predates statehood in 1896 and is a remnant of the early Mormon belief that bloodshed is a required punishment for taking a life, said Richard Dieter, director of the Death Penalty Information Center, which says it is neutral about the death penalty but critical of its application.

"Certainly no other state has continued its use or allowed people to choose it. It's the one thing that stands out," Dieter said. "It's part of the history, so there's a reluctance to change."

The notion that murder must be atoned for in blood has never been part of official church doctrine, and the Mormon church has not taken a formal position on execution methods, said Robert Millet, Brigham Young University religion professor.

The Utah Corrections Department is recruiting law enforcement officers for two five-person firing squads, asking the police departments in the communities where the crimes were committed to nominate volunteers.

The officers' identities will not be released, and participants will be barred from talking publicly about the experience.

A hood will be put over the condemned man's head and a target will be pinned over his heart. The executioners will fire simultaneously from gun portals in a separate room at the inmate, seated in a chair about 30 feet away.

One of the five rifles will contain a blank so that no one will know who fired the fatal shot.

In 1992, Arguelles abducted and strangled Margo Bond, a janitor at a junior high school where he had been hunting for teenage victims. He also kidnapped, sexually assaulted and killed two girls, ages 13 and 15, and stabbed a 16-year-old girl more than 40 times. He was sentenced to death in 1997. Arguelles has repeatedly said he wants to die.

Kell was convicted in 1996 of killing a black man, Lonnie Blackmon, at the Utah State Prison. Kell, serving time for a previous murder, stabbed Blackmon 67 times with a homemade knife in 1994.

Transient will plead guilty in Boise slaying

BOISE, (AP) — Transient Eric Virgil Hall is scheduled to enter pleas on May 29 in the sexual assault and death of a woman in town.

Hall, 32, was indicted Tuesday and arraigned Wednesday on charges of first-degree murder and rape in the death of Boise resident Cheryl Ann Hanlon on March 1. Her body was found in the foothills on March 1.

Hall was indicted by a grand jury April 23 on first-degree murder, kidnapping, and rape in the death of flight attendant Lynn Henneman in 2000.

Hall is scheduled to enter a plea before 4th District Judge Mike Wetherell.

Ada County prosecutors have already filed a notice that they will seek the death penalty in the Henneman case.

Witnesses told police they saw Hanlon, 42, with Hall outside a Boise bar early March 1.

Detectives said Hall admitted to detectives that he killed Hanlon. Investigators said details at the Hanlon crime scene immediately brought to mind the Henneman case.

Both women were sexually assaulted, then strangled with something other than human hands. Both were found partially nude.

Hall was linked to the Henneman killing by a DNA sample taken from him after his arrest.

Telemarketer tactics draw BBB warning

TWIN FALLS — Residents throughout southern Idaho and eastern Oregon are being aggressively telemarketed by a Canadian company offering a program to protect their Social Security numbers, said the Better Business Bureau, which on Thursday issued a statement advising extreme caution.

The company, identifying itself as National Privacy Telephone Guard, attempts to sell Social Security number protection for an advance fee of $299. In addition to Social Security numbers, the company collects bank account and other personally identifiable information during the call.

Idaho residents in Magic Valley and throughout Treasure Valley have reported receiving the call, the Better Business Bureau said. "There have been several victims," the organization said.

The Better Business Bureau cautioned consumers never to give information — including Social Security numbers, bank or financial account numbers or credit card numbers — to anyone who contacts them without their invitation.

Consumers who provided information to the telemarketer may contact the Better Business Bureau assistance filing complaints with the Federal Trade Commission and Phonebusters, a national deceptive telemarketing call center operated by the Canadian Provincial Police.

The private, not-for-profit Better Business Bureau can be reached at (800) 218-1001; its Web site is www.magicvalley.bbb.org.

Name change comes for department store

SEATTLE — The Bon Marche department store chain is getting a name change.

Starting Aug. 1, the stores in Twin Falls and elsewhere will be known as The Bon-Macy's. It's a marketing move by The Bon's parent company, Federated Department Stores Inc.

Federated officials said Thursday that they will rename all their department stores nationwide to incorporate the Macy's name.

The Seattle-based Bon has 48 stores in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming.

As of Aug. 1, Federated's 42 Lazarus stores in the Midwest will be Lazarus-Macy's, and the five Goldsmith's stores in Tennessee will be Goldsmith's-Macy's. On Feb. 1, Burdine's will operate as Burdine's-Macy's at its 56 Florida stores.

Cincinnati-based Federated already has started the name change with its Rich's-Macy's stores in the South.

Longview Fibre will announce financial results

TWIN FALLS — A gold-winning Olympic gymnast will headline next year's Success Breakfast on March 4, organizers announced Thursday.

Peter Vidmar, a gold medalist in the 1984 Olympics, met Success Breakfast chairwoman Pati Adam when he was in Twin Falls recently for a ribbon cutting at the LA Weight Loss Center.

Being in the right place at the right time, and asking the right questions, secured Vidmar for next year's breakfast gathering, Adam said.

Thursday in a statement from organizers.

"I think (Vidmar) is going to be dynamite. And I think it's going to be a real fun Success Breakfast," said the College of Southern Idaho's vice president of instruction, Jerry Beck. "He has been noted as one of the best motivational speakers around."

CSI and the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce put on the annual Success Breakfast to honor winners of the Chamber Person of the Year award and the annual Lifetime Achievement Award. Honorees' identities are kept secret until the breakfast.

Since 1988, big-name speakers have provided another draw to the awards breakfast. In 2003, it was former U.S. Sen. Alan K. Simpson from Wyoming.

Next year, attendees who aren't chamber members will pay $5 more than in the past to get in the door.

The 2004 Success Breakfast will be March 4 at the CSI gym, with Vidmar's presentation in the Fine Arts Auditorium immediately following. Tickets will be $35 for chamber members, unchanged from this year, and $50 for nonmembers, up from $45 this year.

Some ticket buyers chose to attend just one or the other portion of the event.

Vidmar will receive $10,000 to speak in Twin Falls, Beck said. That's the same fee Simpson got.

Vidmar, who lives in California with his wife and five children, still is the highest scoring male gymnast in Olympic history, Success Breakfast organizers said. When he was 11, his parents enrolled him in an experimental gymnastic program designed to develop future Olympians. Over the next 12 years, Vidmar took only four days off from his training schedule — for his honeymoon.

At the Los Angeles Olympics, breakfast organizers said, Vidmar led his men's gymnastics team to America's first team gold medal by defeating defending world champions from China. He also took a personal gold medal on the pommel horse and

ROAD TRIPS REIGN

More vacationers may choose to stay closer to home

The Associated Press

GREENVILLE, N.Y. — At the Greenville Arms in the Catskills, owner Eliot Dalton exudes springlike optimism as a new coat of paint is applied to the backyard studio and flowers come to life.

Bookings are decent enough ahead of Memorial Day that he contemplates raising the rates at the inn, which is a retreat for artists.

"We're off to a slow start," Dalton said, noting the economic slump, "but it looks like we'll make up for it."

While the economy, SARS and terrorism are discouraging global tourism, U.S. vacation spots within driving distance could get a boost from travelers who do not want to fly or visit faraway places, industry officials say.

Travel agents said they are seeing — and promoting — interest in road trips everywhere from the southern tip of the Appalachians to northern Michigan's Mackinac Island, and across California's Sierra Nevada.

By raising the terror alert to orange this week, the government may have given travelers another reason to avoid airports and major metropolitan areas.

"Anything with a non-urban area ring to it is doing well," said John Stachnik, president of Mayflower Tours, a Downers, Ill.-based travel company specializing in bus and air travel. This summer, Stachnik added, bus trips are the "shining star" of his business, accounting for more than 50 percent of revenue.

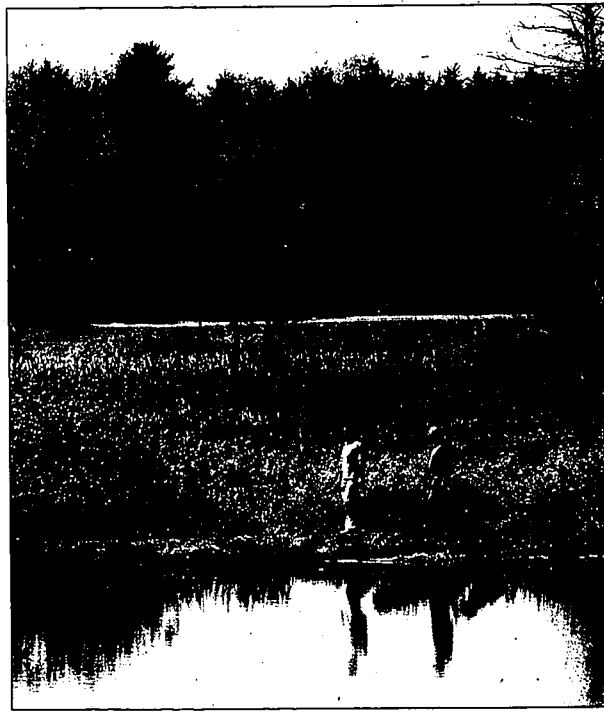

AAA, the automobile club, said the latest terror alert would not affect its prediction from last week that 84 percent of all Memorial Day vacations will be by car and 11 percent by air.

"If something serious happens on our soil, then conditions could change," AAA spokesman Jerry Cheske said.

The owners of resorts and inns in Greenville, about 150 miles north of New York City, say that advance bookings are flat or down 10 percent to 15 percent from a year ago so far, but that — as in past years — they expect a burst of business once it gets warmer.

"It's not as good as I'd like it to be, but I've been through this before," said Jyl DeGiovine, whose grandparents founded the Balsam Lake Resort in Greenville nearly 70 years ago. "It usually picks up at the last minute and everything is fine."

The airline industry has less reason for hope.

Golfers enjoy the Sunny Hill Resort and Golf Course during its first day open of the season Saturday in Greenville, N.Y. The owners of the resorts and inns near Greenville say advance bookings are down, but expect a burst of business once it gets warmer.

The number of miles flown per passenger is down 7 percent from a year ago and down more than 15 percent from 2001, the most recent Air Transport Association figures show.

A closer look reveals how fears of terrorism and SARS are altering travel patterns. For example, U.S. bookings for North American and European air travel in June are slightly higher than a year ago, while bookings to Asia, Africa and the Middle East are down sharply, according to Sabre Airline Solutions, a consulting business.

While the airline industry is seeing improved bookings in some places, that demand is being generated at a price: cheap tickets. The average leisure fare on the 100 busiest U.S. routes is 7 percent cheaper than a year ago and 13 percent less than in 2001, according to Harrell Associates, a consulting firm.

"We're finding more and more people wanting to do things within a comfortable driving radius of, say, four to five hours," said Dale Eversly Conn, president of the travel agency Travelstar Inc. of Westport, Conn.

Dennis Fenton, owner of Your Travel Connection in Albany, Ga., said: "We're pushing Destin, Fla., and we're pushing certain areas in northern Georgia," such as Blue Ridge and Dahlonega, where weekend packages cost as little as $175 per person.

In June, Pamela Clubb, 40, of Jacksonville, Fla., and her parents and two children will fly to Las Vegas to begin a two-week road trip through Nevada and California. The Clubs will take their rented van to Yosemite National Park, San Francisco and the Napa Valley — all for about $1,500 per person.

Clubb's husband, who was laid off by bankrupt Adolphia Communications and recently started a new job, will not be joining them.

While gasoline prices have come down sharply in recent weeks, at $1.49 per gallon regular unleaded is still 10 cents more expensive than it was a year ago, according to the Energy Department.

Doug Yoder, owner of the Bay View bed-and-breakfast in Mackinac Island, said it is having an effect on his business. "When gas prices go up, people tend to travel more in their own state," he said. "And we feel that."

ShopKo posts lower sales for Q1

TWIN FALLS — Wisconsin-based ShopKo Stores Inc. on Thursday announced lower sales and a loss for the first quarter, but touted its debt reduction.

"While sales were disappointing at the ShopKo Division, we continue to be encouraged by the improvement in sales trends at the Pamida Division," ShopKo President and Chief Executive Officer Sam Duncan said in a statement. "Although the retailing environment was difficult, inventories and expenses continue to be well controlled in both divisions."

Consolidated sales were $707.9 million for the quarter, which ended May 3, compared with $728.8 million a year earlier. Comparable-store sales — a key indicator for the retail industry — fell 2.7 percent.

ShopKo, which has a Twin Falls store, reported a quarterly net loss of $1.1 million, compared with last year's earnings of $500,000 last year before the cumulative effect of an accounting change. Loss per share on a fully diluted basis was 4 cents, compared with earnings of 2 cents before the cumulative effect of the accounting change last year.

Debt was reduced $154.0 million compared with last year. Financial results from a handful of other retailers which have Magic Valley stores:

Target stockholders grow furious as executives don't answer questions

Knight Ridder News Service

MINNEAPOLIS — At Target Corp.'s annual meeting this week, chief executive Bob Ulrich came prepared to talk to shareholders — but apparently not to listen to them.

In a meeting that took less than half an hour, Ulrich introduced top company officers, discussed two routine business items and gave stockholders a brief synopsis of the Minneapolis-based retailer's accomplishments in 2002. "In 2002, we had some of our plans for this year. Among those plans: change up its design Marshall Field's division with a new look."

Then Ulrich promptly adjourned the meeting without taking shareholders' questions. His abrupt exit from the podium stunned the audience and roused most valuable stockholders — especially at a time when corporate accountability is under intense scrutiny.

"I am irritated and disgusted," said Ulrich Epstein, a 72-year-old shareholder who traveled from Sherman Oaks, Calif., to attend the meeting. "This is the first time in 30 years they didn't take any questions (from me). They're a good company and do good work. But the impression is they have something to hide."

If he could have spoken, Ulrich would have asked about Ulrich receiving $19 million in total compensation last year.

Other shareholders, like Bill Ritzen of Golden Valley, Minn., wanted to know whether or not whether Target's strategy of adding more food offerings at its regular discount stores — which include one in Twin Falls — is too good to have that rival.

Ritzen noted Target's stock price is down about $9 a share from a year ago when it was trading at about $41 or $42 a share.

Meanwhile, the Parents To End Unions blasted Target for cutting short the meeting, contending it was promised a chance to air concerns about some of the retailer's programs that use up discounts on locally charged programs such as "Real World" and "Road Rules." Target had no immediate response to the complaint.

At the end of the meeting and another session after the meeting, a silver medal in the individual all-around competition.

"I'm a natural speaker," Vidmar appears before many Fortune 500 companies and other large gatherings.

"He has borrowed from the 1984 Olympics judging criteria of risk, originality and virtuosity to create a trademarked motivational presentation," Success Breakfast organizers said in a statement. "It turns these elements of a gymnastics performance into the principles of a successful company; risk means you're willing to do something daring; originality allows you to quit copying the other guy and do something that makes them copy you; virtuosity involves taking a certain skill and doing better than anyone else."

For the first time in many years, there was no Success Breakfast in 2001, as organizers moved the annual event from fall to spring. A former football quarterback, a time-management expert and a former astronaut were the keynote speakers in 2002, 2000 and 1999.

TFHS drama students conjure up rock 'n' roll 'Midsummer Night's Dream'

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — As an exercise in the genius of silliness, "A Midsummer Night's Dream" can't be beat.

So why not add a rock 'n' roll track?

"Oberon — gets some — Jimi Hendrix music," said Howard Miller, drama instructor at TFHS and director of the production, which will be staged next week in a greenhouse at Kimberly Nurseries.

"When Titania appears, we play 'San Francisco, Flowers in Your Hair.'"

"The idea is to combine Victorian costumes, representing the most repressed era in history, with music from the least repressed."

TFHS has done this play before at Kimberly Nurseries, but never quite in this format.

"We added a little dialogue," Miller said.

Including characters explaining their frequent speeches to each other with asides like, "Because I'm a senior and I need this credit."

"It's entertaining and it's funny," Miller said. "And Shakespeare always was great to work with." Miller said. "It's their busiest time of year, and yet they let use grass and move plants, anything we need, for the set."

The play, of course, takes place in a bower. Lysander (Scott High) loves Hermia (Mandie Miller-Sorensen), and Hermia loves Lysander. Helena (Ashli Hartman) loves Demetrius (Billy Perry).

Egeus (Jared Brannen), Hermia's father, prefers Demetrius as a suitor, and enlists the aid of Theseus (Matt Kershaw), the duke of Athens, to enforce a shotgun marriage for his daughter. According to Athenian law, Hermia is given four days to choose between Twin Falls High School senior Kayla Stephenson, right, playing the part of Titania, chases fellow senior Corrie Winterholler, playing the part of Puck, during rehearsal of William Shakespeare's 'A Midsummer Night's Dream' this week. The TFHS Drama Department will present a rock 'n' roll version of 'Dream' next week at Kimberly Nurseries in Twin Falls.

Demetrius, life in a nunnery, or a death sentence. Hermia runs away to the surrounding forest with Lysander.

There, life gets complicated. Oberon (Lucas Wells) and Titania (Kayla Stephenson), king and queen of Fairies, are squabbling over a boy whom Titania has adopted. Oberon orders his servant Puck (Corrie Winterholler) to bring him magic love drops, which Oberon will sprinkle in the queen's eyes as she sleeps, whereupon Titania will fall in love with the first creature she sees upon awakening.

Meanwhile, Helena and Demetrius have also fled into the woods after Lysander and Hermia. Oberon, overhearing Demetrius' denunciation of Helena, feels sorry for her and tells Puck to place the magic drops on the eyes of Demetrius as well, so that Demetrius will fall in love with Helena.

Puck, however, anoints Lysander by mistake. Helena stumbles over Lysander in the forest, and Lysander falls hard for Helena and renounces a stunned Hermia.

Puck casts a spell on Bottom (David Dahl), one of a group of craftsmen rehearsing a play in the forest, that gives him the head of a donkey. Bottom, as luck would have it, is the first thing Titania sees when she wakes up, so Bottom ends up being lavishly kept by the queen.

Oberon is delighted, but less amused when it becomes obvious that Puck has botched the attempt to unite Demetrius and Helena. So he punts the four lovers to sleep and gives Lysander an antidote for the love potion so that he will love Hermia again when they all wake up. Then Oberon gives Titania the same antidote, and the king and queen reconcile.

Theseus and Hippolyta (Virginia Reynolds) then discover Lysander, Hermia, Helena and Demetrius asleep in the forest. All return to Athens to make sense of what they think is a strange dream. Likewise, Bottom returns to his players, and they perform "Pyramus and Thisbe" at the duke's wedding feast, which suddenly becomes a triple wedding.

Other members of the cast are Niki Magill as Quince, Arnea Heric as Flute and CobWeb, Tracy Gerber as Snout, Mary Ann Valentine as Snug and Poaseblossom, Kiley Johnson as Moth, Alicia Palmer as Mustardseed, Virginia Reynolds as Waterlilly, Cori Sterling as Fire Fly, Strat Sorensen at Changeling Boy and Mitch Rivera is Philostrate.

Matt Kershaw, Casey Hyde and Miller himself make up the rock combo.

Hagerman celebrates 15th Fossil Days this weekend

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — By recent tradition, summer can't arrive in the Magic Valley until the Fossil Days parade rolls down State Street in this balmy riverside town.

Which must explain Saturday's forecast high of 92 degrees.

This will be the 15th Fossil Days, a Memorial Day Weekend celebration designed to showcase Hagerman's status as a tourist spa and the nearby Hagerman Fossil Bed National Monument.

The fun begins with an opening-night celebration tonight, commencing with a wine-and-cheese-tasting party from 5:30-6:30 p.m. in City Park, followed by a performance by Glenns Ferry's Historic Opera Theater of the melodrama "Murder at the Banquet" at 6:30 on a stage in the park. Admission is free.

Following the play, there will be a two-hour concert on the stage, starting at 8 p.m. The Third Attack Dance Band will provide the music.

The carnival will open and park vendors — nearly 100 of them, with everything from food to crafts on offer — set up shop at 11 this afternoon. They'll be in business on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Saturday's proceedings start with the traditional country breakfast from 7:30 a.m. at the Senior Center, while beginning at 10 there's a three-on-three basketball tournament at Hagerman High School.

The parade follows at 11, featuring a mounted color guard, rodeo queens, mounted riding clubs, antique and classic vehicles, individual riders, horse- and ox-drawn wagons, and emergency vehicles.

Grand marshals this year are Lloyd and Kathleen Brown and Bud and Carol Ainsworth.

Music will dominate the afternoon and evening in the park, starting with a performance by the Old-Time Fiddlers at 1 p.m.

Two events for kids are scheduled: the traditional fish scramble, for children 12 and under, at 3 p.m. in the park, and a "money hay" scramble at 5 p.m.

In addition, the Hagerman Fossil Beds National Monument Visitor Center, located across State Street from Hagerman High, and the horse quarry along the Snake River will both be open today, Saturday and Sunday. Visitor center hours are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily and the quarry will be open from 1-5 p.m. daily, for information and directions on how to get to the horse quarry, stop at the visitor center.

The 4,400-acre monument contains the remains of thousands — maybe millions — of mammals that gathered around bogs in the area in the prehistoric past. The site has been a favorite of paleontologists for years, and it attracts about 10,000 civilians a year as well.

Parking for Fossil Days is provided in vacant lots along State Street; signs will be posted to direct visitors.

Jim Carrey hits theaters again in 'Bruce Almighty'

Combined wire services

Movies playing in south-central Idaho this weekend. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times, Knight Ridder Newspapers and Associated Press reviewers. Ratings by the Motion Picture Association of America are: (G) for general audiences; (PG) parental guidance urged because of material possibly unsuitable for children; (PG-13) parents are strongly cautioned to give guidance for attendance of children younger than 13; (R) restricted, younger than 17 admitted only with parent or adult guardian; (NC-17) no one younger than 17 admitted.

'Agent Cody Banks'

Take the prince of Fox, Malcolm in the Middle's Frankie Muniz, pair him with Disney princess Hilary Duff, and what you get, if you're lucky, is a plucky action comedy franchise, along the lines of 'Spy Kids.' What you get if you're unlucky is 'Agent Cody Banks,' a listless, teenage James Bond wannabe. PG (violence, lace underwear, tight jumpuits).

'Anger Management'

A hapazard Jack Nicholson-Adam Sandler vehicle, a classic of the 1990s collaboration between symbols of quite different generations. But when it comes to high-concept, low-brow Hollywood comedies, you really have to take what you can get. Sandler's made some of the most dimwitted films since the heyday of Francis the Talking Mule, but now he's got Nicholson as a sparring partner. Though what "Does he have pretty much deficits missing, Nicholson just fooling around adds an energy to even the kind of hopelessly contrived material that lets you know that the lowest common denominator just got lower. Sandler has some amusing moments, but it's too undiscriminating and scattershot to be worth paying attention to. But, things could be worse. (L41. PG-13 for crude sexual content and language.)

'Bringing Down the House'

In this odd-couple comedy, Queen Latifah plays a newly sprung convict who breaches the citadel of Steve Martin's power lawyer. The alliance of one of the funniest and most under-deployed comics in movies with the hip-hop diva, it seems like comic kismet. Just the thought of Martin, who does upright whiggy better than anyone else, launching against Latifah's implacable wall of cool is irresistible. It isn't that you don't laugh—it's that too often you wish you hadn't. The comedy of mismatched partners works only if laughs are at each player's expense. Here, Latifah sasses Martin every which way, but somehow the joke is usually on her. Screenwriter Jason Filardi and director Adam Shankman stage humor out of her looks, language and friends, mining entertainment from her nominal exoticism. (L41. PG-13, for language, sexual humor and drug content.)

'Bruce Almighty'

From the TV commercials, this looks like Jim Carrey's big return to the kind of broad physical comedy he made his name with. And it is—until it turns into a very special episode of 'Touched by an Angel' about two-thirds of the way through. Carrey plays a TV reporter who receives the power of God (Morgan Freeman) after suffering a crisis of faith, but the tone turns from wacky to preachy with the arrival of a lightning bolt from the heavens. Among the most glibious sins: The film wastes Jennifer Aniston, who proved with 'The Hot Chick' she could do more than play the supportive girlfriend. PG-13 for language, sexual content and some crude humor. 94 minutes.

'Bulletproof Monk'

Chow Yun-Fat and Seann William Scott play incongruous partners in this clumsy attempt at another East-meets-West comedy-action hybrid. PG-13 (vio-

Big box office

Last weekend's top-grossing movies:
1. 'The Matrix Reloaded,' Warner Bros. -
2. 'Daddy Day Care,' Sony.
3. 'X2: X-Men United,' Fox.
4. 'Down With Love,' Fox.
5. 'The Lizzie McGuire Movie,' Disney.

lence, profanity, sexual suggestiveness)

'Daddy Day Care'

Directed with flaccid intention by Steve Carr and written by Geoff Rodkey, the setup finds Eddie Murphy as a family man who gets his derrière kicked first by his boss (he's canned), then by a congregation of ruthless scene-stealers (he opens a day-care center). The kid who plays Murphy's son is terminally adorable, if distracted, and Regina King makes as pleasant bland a spouse as Donna Reed. The less said about Anjelica Huston, doing her witchy-woman thing, the better, although Jeff Gordin and Steve Zahn, as Murphy's cohorts, are welcome relief. (L41. PG, some material may not be suitable for children.)

'Down With Love'

Retro romp spoofing the frothy Technicolor sex comedies of the '60s. Rene Zellweger and Ewan McGregor fill in for Doris Day and Rock Hudson. With David Hyde Pierce, Sarah Paulson and Tony Randall. Directed by Peyton Reed. (PG-13, for sexual humor and dialogue.)

'The Good Thief'

Nick Nolte stars as a haggard, froggy-voiced gambler with a heroin jones and an eye for fine art in Neil Jordan's smoky remake of a classic Jean-Pierre Melville gangster flick. A heist movie, set on the French Riviera, it's big on mood and style and boasts a multinational cast that mumbles and meanders with conviction. 1 hour 49 minutes. R (drugs, sex, violence, profanity)

'Holes'

Louis Sachar's young adult novel has been turned into a movie with a younger crowd in mind, but older adults savvy enough to disregard labels will find it surprisingly rewarding. Working from a screenplay by Sachar himself, director Andrew Davis has come up with a sweetly entertaining fable about strange doings in a juvenile correction facility in Texas that switches tones between the comic and the menacing. It's a difficult but finally satisfying balancing act that succeeds, despite a few hiccups. Shia LaBeouf, Sigourney Weaver, Jon Voight, Patricia Arquette, Tim Blake Nelson and Dule Hill. (L51. PG, for violence, mild language, and some thematic elements.)

'How to Lose a Guy in 10 Days'

Kate Hudson plays Andie Anderson, a columnist for a Cosmopolitan-style women's magazine that takes on the tough issues, like "Sizzling sex in 10 days!" and "Do blondes have more fun?" But she's clearly in the wrong place, because she wants to write about politics and the environment, which fails to impress her hard-driving editor (Bebe Neuwirth, channeling Vogue's Anna Wintour). In a cutesy alliterative touch, Andie hooks up with Ben Barry (McConaughey), a hotshot advertising exec who changes his shirt in the middle of the office so all the women can stare at his six-pack abs. The premise is strictly old-school screwball comedy: After a female co-worker has driven yet another guy away by being too clingy, Andie gets an idea for her latest column: "How to Lose a Guy in 10 Days." She'll pick someone out and make all the mistakes women make in relationships, hoping that he'll dump her. PG-13.

'Identity'

A psychologically complex variation on Agatha Christie's classic "Ten Little Indians" lands John Cusack, Ray Liotta, Amanda Peet and seven others at a desolate Nevada motel during a storm. The guests keep dying but director James Mangold and writer Michael Coney crisply maintain suspense and involvement, unafraid to tetter on the precipitous. With John Hawkes, Alfred Molina. (L27. R for strong language and violence.)

'The In-Laws'

This remake, starring Michael Douglas and Albert Brooks as mismatched fathers whose children are getting married, is essentially the same as the 1979 comedy starring Peter Falk and Alan Arkin. There are a few minor differences: Brooks plays a nerdy pediatrician; Douglas, in the role of secret government agent, drags Brooks' character to France; Falk, in the role of secret government agent, drags Arkin's character to Central America. But the main difference: This new film isn't funny. It strives so desperately for laughs, you can almost feel the actors working up a sweat through the screen. Candice Bergen and Ryan Reynolds co-star. PG-13 for suggestive humor, language, some drug references and action violence. 96 minutes.

'It Runs in the Family'

There's a Hallmark Hall of Fame quality to this movie—because it's the sort of gentle family story that is usually the province of television, because it is commercially doomed and because it's so much better than its sappy ads make it look. To see how surprisingly not bad 'It Runs in the Family' is, you need only look at Kirk Douglas' previous film, the phony, schmaltzy 'Diamonds,' which had an identical set-up—three generations of males in a family take turns fighting and hugging. 'It Runs' takes the same material and gives it the texture and atmosphere of actual family life: The interaction between the characters is complicated, well-meaning and occasionally foolish. There's a sense under it all that these people have problems, and they don't know the answers to them, but at least they're taking a stab at figuring them out. Director Fred Schepisi ("Six Degrees of Separation," "Last Orders"), a director of unerring taste, makes sure things never get icky, despite the gimmick that he is working with three generations of Douglas actors (Kirk, his son Michael and his grandson Cameron, the latter two of whom could function as the "pro" and "con" arguments for nepotism). The script is pretty good, but the best moments are pure Schepisi: an expression of tender, aching grief, a rare cinematic moment of elderly romance or a married couple's argument that is passionate and misguided and — to us, at least — funny, the way real arguments are. PG-13.

'The Lizzie McGuire Movie'

The Disney Channel's terminally self-conscious middle-schooler graduates from the eighth grade and goes on a summer class trip to Rome, where she mistakes for an international pop diva. (Don't you hate when that happens?) Sticky-sweet and sardonic, but you sort of see the point and the movie-star potential of Hilary Duff in the marquee role. With Adam Lamber, Yani Gellman, Alex Borstein and Robert Carradine. Directed by Jim Fall. (L30. PG, for mild thematic elements.)

'The Matrix Reloaded'

Let's start with all the things it is the highly anticipated sequel to one of the most influential, admired (four Academy Awards) and popular (nearly half a billion dollars in worldwide theatrical gross) of films; the first part of a simultaneously shot two-picture conclusion to the original (the second part, 'The Matrix Revolutions,' comes out in November) that together cost upward of $300 million and has taken four years to come to the screen; an elaborately choreographed, rigorously stylized science-fiction epic rife with cool heroes, intriguing villains and eye-widening action set pieces that show us the money in no uncertain terms. Saying what the film isn't turns out to be a lot less complicated: It's simply not as satisfying as the original. Even the return of stars Keanu Reeves, Laurence Fishburne and Carrie-Anne Moss, as well as writer-directors and conceptual godfathers Larry and Andy Wachowski, can't change that. (218. R, for self-violence and some sexuality.)

'A Mighty Wind'

It's a good thing that Christopher Guest, impresario of the gently faux documentary, wasn't listening when irony was given the boot in the mass media a few years back. Guest now turns his sights on the folk-music scene and once again, the writer-director has proved that there are times when the art of poking delicate fun isn't just one of the more sincere forms of flattery—it's among the most loving. It may be, however, that having pushed spurious nonfiction film to its comic apotheosis with 'Best in Show,' he's reached the limit of this style of lampooning. With Guest, Bob Balaban, Michael McKean, Harry Shearer, co-writer Eugene Levy, Catherine O'Hara, John Michael Higgins and Jane Lynch. (L32. PG-13, for sex related humor.)

'Phone Booth'

Written by exploitation king Larry Cohen and directed by Joel Schumacher, a longtime purveyor of slightly more rarefied pulp, this new thriller stars Colin Farrell, one of those young men about town who's been up-and-coming for the last five years. Without question, the whole thing's absurd — this is, remember, about a guy held captive in a phone booth — but for its first 40 minutes or so it's also mildly entertaining, fueled by the buttresses of the setup and Schumacher's energy. If the whole thing flags, then dive-bombs at the midway point, it's not because Farrell and Schumacher aren't trying hard, but because the filmmakers struggle to wedge in some meaning where none belongs. Exit a tense little thriller; enter condemnation, confession and contrition. With Radha Mitchell, Katie Holmes, Forest Whitaker and Kiefer Sutherland. Written by Larry Cohen. (L24. R, for pervasive language and some violence.)

'What a Girl Wants'

Designed as the ideal confrontation to narrate a young girl or teen, 'What a Girl Wants' will more likely hook their mothers. Ostensibly, the movie stars Nickelodeon luminary Amanda Bynes, but it truly belongs to Colin Firth, the thinking woman's Hugh Grant. PG

'X2: X-Men United'

Brisk and involving with a streamlined forward propulsion, it's the kind of superhero movie we want if we have to have superhero movies at all. It's also an improvement over the initial 'X-Men' venture, yet, paradoxically, it wouldn't be as satisfying as it is if that first one hadn't existed. Director Bryan Singer, the key members of his production team and no fewer than nine stars and the genetic mutants they portray return from the 2000 original, all benefit from having the previous effort behind them. With Hugh Jackman, Halle Berry, Ian McKellen, Patrick Stewart and Brian Cox. (213. PG-13, for self-action/violence, some sexuality and brief language.)

IN BRIEF

Gatorade names player of the year

CHICAGO — Gatorade awarded the 2003 Idaho High School Boys' basketball Player of the Year award to senior pitcher Zach Simmons of Glenns Ferry, according to a press release issued Thursday.

Simmons finished the regular season 11-0. He struck out 14 batters at a possible 15 outs in a 12-0 tie-breaking win over Malad, sending the Pilots to the state tournament, which began Thursday.

Past Idaho honorees include Lake City High School's Aaron Abriel in 2002, John Hardy of Centennial in 2001 and Minico's Jared Price in 2000.

The 50 winners are chosen by a national media advisory board which considers on-and-off the field accomplishments. The national baseball player of the year will be announced next week.

TRIVIA ANSWER:

Milwaukee's Jenkins was hit by a pitch. Jeremy Bonbrant hit three home runs, three not in consecutive at-bats, on May 10, 2001. Jenkins and Richie Sexson, each hit three consecutive home runs in a 9-4 victory over the Arizona Diamondbacks on Sept. 25, 2001.

New Jersey's Kenyon Martin, right, and Detroit's Tayshaun Prince vie for the ball during Game 3 of the Eastern Conference finals Thursday in East Rutherford, N.J.

Nets take command

The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Jason Kidd and Kenyon Martin got running in the first quarter, so the New Jersey Nets didn't have to wait until the fourth to win the game.

Dominant at both ends, Kidd scored a career playoff-high 34 points and Martin had 19 as the New Jersey Nets finally hit their up-tempo stride and moved within one victory of an Eastern Conference finals sweep by beating the Detroit Pistons 97-85 Thursday night.

Martin scored 14 points in the first quarter, when New Jersey took the lead for good. Kidd scored 15 of New Jersey's 19 points and had two steals during a 9.5-minute stretch starting late in the second quarter, leading his team to a 32-4 advantage in fast-break points.

Kidd made 11 of 21 shots, 11 of 13 free throws and had 12 rebounds and six assists. He shot free throws to chants of "M-V-P! M-V-P!" in the fourth quarter.

The Nets sputtered before winning the first two games of the series by two points apiece with fourth-quarter rallies, with the scores in the 70s and 80s.

Regardless of the method, the defending conference champions have won nine straight playoff games and can close out their second straight sweep Saturday when they host Game 4.

Richard Hamilton scored 21 points — but only six in the second half — to lead the Pistons, who now must attempt to become the first team in NBA history to come back from 3-0 down to win a series.

Desperate to find a winning formula, coach Rick Carlisle benched struggling starters Chauncey Billups and Tayshaun Prince for the start of the second half, but there was no solution for 18 turnovers, a 50-39 rebounding deficit and a Nets defense that seemed to have its hands everywhere.

Only a few pingpong balls kept the night from being a total loss for the Pistons, who won the 2, 0, 2 over-alls pick in the draft lottery held just before tipoff.

Bruins knock off Centennial 7-1 to advance

By Scott Thompson
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Twin Falls Bruin and Minico Spartan baseball teams went completely different directions.

But they're headed to the same spot.

Both advanced Thursday to the Class 5A semifinals with first-round victories over Boise area teams at Borah's Wigle Field. The Bruins went with experience, while the Spartans went with youth.

Twin Falls 7, Centennial 1

A year ago, Twin Falls pitcher Andy Coats knew for nine days that he was going to be pitching Game 1 at the state tournament.

This year, coach Matt Rasmussen gave him a few hours notice and the Bruin hurler responded by three-hitting the Patriots and holding them to just an unearned run as Twin Falls broke a streak of two straight two-outs at the state tournament.

"I liked this a lot better," Coats said. "If you know too soon, you just think about it and make it bigger than it is."

But the Bruin senior admitted that he wanted the ball.

"I really wanted to pitch the big game," he said.

And that ultimately was why he got the nod.

"We went with the big senior who has thrown a lot of big games for us," Rasmussen said.

And Coats kept the Bruins in the game while their offense struggled the first couple of innings.

"That was Andy keeping us in the game," Rasmussen said. "But once we got through the lineup, Please see BRUINS, Page D2

The Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Texas — Annika Sorenstam had everyone fooled.

"Watching her split fairways and put for birds on every hole, no one could have guessed what was going on inside — the pounding heart, queasy stomach, jangled nerves."

"It never went away," she said. Looking at her score, no one could have guessed it belonged to a woman.

In an atmosphere that matched the historic occasion Thursday, Sorenstam held her own at the Colonial with a 1-over 71 that left her in the middle of the pack.

The first woman in 58 years to compete on the PGA Tour played like one of the boys.

"It was more than I could have ever expected," Sorenstam said. "It's just a thrill to be here and try to win, very pleased with the way I played."

Spartan senior takes triple jump for fourth straight year

By John Darr and Kevin Hall
Times-News writers

BOISE — Idaho State-bound Monica Jensen of Minico proved she has no equal when it comes to the triple jump. And she hasn't had one for four consecutive years.

The senior jumped 37-feet, 5-inches, 7 inches shy of the state record, but still solid enough to capture the Class 5A event to highlight action after the first day of the 2003 Idaho State Track and Field Championships at Bronco Stadium.

Jerome, the reigning girls 4A champions finished Day 1 on top, behind throwers Jennifer Pond and Vanessa West.

State track and field

Today's action starts with field events for 3A, 2A, and 1A athletes at 9 a.m. and the 3,200-meter run for all three classes at 9:30 a.m. Track preliminaries start at 11:30 a.m. for the three classes with finals in Class 5A and 4A running events beginning at 5:30.

Class 5A

The Twin Falls Lady Bruins ended Day 1 in second place with 20 points, one point ahead of defending state champion Eagle and four behind last year's runner-up Lake City in what will prove to be a close race. Minico is in eighth place with 16 points.

NAMPA - Idaho Gatorade Baseball Player of the Year Zach Simons lived up to his most recent accolade, striking out 15 batters as Glenns Ferry held on for a 2-1 opening round win Thursday at the Class 2A baseball tournament in Nampa.

Still, Glenns Ferry knows they must play better as the tournament progresses.

"We did not execute," Simons said. "That was not Pilot's baseball."

It wasn't just the Simons show. Scott Uhl had a big game as well.

Glenns Ferry went ahead 1-0 in the first inning. Senior second baseman Scott Uhl singled and then stole second base. He moved to third on a single by Simons and scored on a double steal.

The Pilots went ahead 2-0 after Uhl reached on a two-out walk in the third inning, moving to third base on a single by Simons. Simons then attempted to steal second. The throw sailed into center field, allowing Uhl to score.

Prairie rallied in the bottom of the seventh after two singles in a row to start the inning. A wild pitch battered both runners into scoring position. Simons bounced back with his 15th strikeout before a groundout to first scored one runner.

A blooper toward right field was chased down by Uhl to end the game.

"When you're a senior it's your job to come through when your team needs it," Uhl said. "We need to come with a better approach at the plate tomorrow. Sometimes we rely too much on Zach."

Despite the win, coach Dennis Uhl is hopeful the Pilots have the first-game jitters out of their systems.

"Hopefully we got this first game behind us," Uhl said.

Prairie pitcher Matt Baerfouer struck out 14 Pilots to keep his team in the game.

"I got outpitched tomorrow," Simons said. "I feel we snuck by with one today. But we're going to break out Friday and Saturday and get the job done."

Glenns Ferry will play the Grangeville/Nampa Christian winner at 7 p.m.

Tigers cruise to 10-0 win over Hillcrest

Lott tosses two-hitter

By Kevin Hall
 Times-News writer

CALDWELL - J.D. Lott pitched a two-hitter in six scoreless innings and Doug Benson and Kyle Roberts hit back-to-back doubles to crack open a 0-1 game in the third inning as Jerome shut out Hillcrest 10-0 to open the Class 4A State Baseball Tournament Thursday at Charlie Alvarez Field in Caldwell.

Jerome (14-5) advances to face Bishop Kelly, 8-5 victors over Post Falls Thursday, in today's semifinals at 4 p.m. The game is a rematch of last year's consolation championship won by the Tigers 5-4.

Jerome rapped out 11 hits after being held hitless through two innings by Knights starter Zach Widham. But Benson, who had two hits along with Paul Scofield and Stu Schiffer, said the Tigers had to overcome first-game jitters.

"Our first time around we were really nervous," he said. "Our second time up we relaxed and hit the ball."

Benson settled his nerves by sending an 0-1 fastball to the opposite field for Jerome's first hit. Jed Scowen, who had reached on a throwing error by the third baseman, came around on the hit when the right fielder booted the ball, also allowing Benson to reach third. He scored when Roberts ripped a grounder down the third-base line for a double and the 2-0 lead.

The Tigers threatened again in the fourth putting runners on first and third but came away empty. After Lott went 1-2-3 in the top half of the fifth, his teammates went to work for him, chasing Widham with four singles, a walk and an error on the grounder to plate five runs for the 7-0 lead.

Lott, who will attend Treasure Valley Community College this fall, said the run support helped, but with a fastball ranging in the mid 80s and a curve that baffled the Knights (16-11), it proved unnecessary.

"I felt real good and I had strong defense behind me," said Lott.

The Tigers ended it in the sixth with doubles by Scofield and Schiffer and an RBI single by Casey Schwanefeld, who scored the game's final run on a wild pitch.

Oster said if the Tigers play this well with nerves, he doesn't need them relaxing.

"Coming up yesterday on the bus and in the hotel there was a feeling of nervousness. But it also had an electric feel to it," he said. "This team almost feels like they know what they're going to do. We're peaking right now."

Dreifort downs Rockies for seventh straight win

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Darren Dreifort struck out a career-high 12, and Brian Jordan went 3-for-3 with a tie-breaking single as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Colorado Rockies 4-3 Thursday for their seventh straight win.

The Dodgers are on their longest winning streak since taking nine straight from June 26 to July 4, 2001.

Dreifort (4-3) gave up three runs, two hits and four walks in six innings. In the second, when Aaron Cook (1-4) reached on a wild pitch after fanning, Dreifort became the first Dodgers pitcher to strike out four in an inning since Don Drysdale on April 17, 1965.

In the sixth, Pedro Astacio (3-1) gave up five hits but was in frequent trouble, allowing the leadoff man to reach base in four of six innings.

Cubs 3, Pirates 2

PITTSBURGH - Tom Goodwin, getting an infrequent start, hit a go-ahead solo homer in the ninth off Scott Sauerbeck (0-4), his 24th career homer in 14 seasons.

Chicago ended a season-high three-game losing streak. The Pirates have lost 12 of 16 overall and have yet to win any of their eight series in PNC Park, where they are 7-17.

Blue Jays 8, Yankees 3

NEW YORK - Carlos Delgado homered twice and drove in five runs Thursday night as the Toronto Blue Jays sent Andy Pettitte to his career-worst fourth straight loss, beating the New York Yankees 8-3.

Before the game, they found out All-Star center fielder Bernie Lintz probably will miss four-to-six weeks because of torn cartilage in his left knee.

Last weekend, first baseman and designated hitter Nick Johnson went on the DL because of a stress fracture in his right hand and he also is expected to miss four-to-six weeks.

Twins 6, Athletics 5

OAKLAND, Calif. - Bobby Kirtley hit a two-run homer and his bases-loaded walk forced in a run as Minnesota beat the Oakland Athletics, and handed John Halama his first career loss to the Twins.

Tigers 3, Indians 2

CLEVELAND - Eric Munson drove in the go-ahead run with a sacrifice fly in the 11th inning, and the Detroit Tigers snapped a seven-game losing streak with a win over the Cleveland Indians.

The Tigers avoided a four-game sweep and snapped the Indians' three-game winning streak. Detroit improved to 1-3 in extra innings while Cleveland fell to 0-4.

Mariners 5, Royals 1

SEATTLE - Gil Meche took another strong pitching performance into the seventh inning and Ben Davis homered to lead the Seattle Mariners over the Kansas City Royals.

Ichiro Suzuki doubled and scored twice as the AL West leaders won for the eighth time in 10 games.

Meche (6-2) won his second straight start.

Rangers 10, Devil Rays 8

ARLINGTON, Texas - Alex Rodriguez hit a tiebreaking home run in the seventh inning, and the Texas Rangers beat the Tampa Bay Devil Rays to extend their winning streak to a season-high six.

Hank Blalock and Einar Diaz each homered and had three RBIs for Texas, which completed a three-game sweep. The Rangers are on their longest winning streak since taking eight in a row last June 19-25.

With the score 8-11, Rodriguez hit his 13th homer of the season, a drive off Travis Harper (0-3).

Braves 9, Reds 4

CINCINNATI - Javy Lopez homered twice, tripled and hit in three runs as Atlanta avoided a series.

Lopez tripled and scored in the second, hit a two-run shot off Ryan Dempster (1-4) in the third, then led off the sixth with his RBI for Texas, which completed a three-game sweep. The Rangers are on their longest winning streak since taking eight in a row last June 19-25.

Jose Guillen homered in each of his first two at-bats against Shane Reynolds (4-1), but the right-hander allowed only four hits through 6 2-3 innings as he hit his 13th homer of the season, a drive off Travis Harper (0-3).

Track

 jump of 35-5 and sophomore Chelsea Irons of Twin Falls took fifth at 3:57.9.

It was business as usual for Jensen, who has the 100- and 300-meter hurdles finals today.

"I came in hoping to get the standard (38-2)," said Jensen.

With a lack of competition, she had to have something to push herself.

Jensen had a tough fight in the 100 hurdle preliminaries, edging out Megan Pernier of Centennial, but cruised by 30 yards in the 300 intermediate hurdles.

Heather Holston of Twin Falls had a new personal best of 38 feet to take second in the shot put.

"It was my very first throw. I just got under it better and popped it out there," said Holston, who finished third last year.

Brandon Fjeld and Jake Salinas will battle in the 100-meter finals as both easily made it through to lead the Bruins, who sit in 14th place with three points after six events.

Eric Snow advanced to the finals of the 110 high hurdles, but will have his work cut out for him against reigning champion Kilmaster of Eagle who ran 13.94 at district. Snow also will compete in the finals of the 300 intermediate hurdles after nudging a fourth-place finish in the second preliminary.

The night ended with the Twin Falls girls medley relay team finishing second. Entering as the top seed, the Bruins took the lead on the final leg with freshman Brittany Ward moving past Lake City's Katie came out of nowhere to nose out Twin Falls in the finals today, however.

"I knew she was close, but not that close," said Ward, who was joined by Irons, Lynsey Scherbinaki, and Stephanie Davis on the relay team.

Class 4A

The Tiger girls racked up 38 points in their quest for a repeat state title. Madison and Valliue tied for second at 31.5. Burley was 12th with nine points.

On the boys side, Jerome was ninth with 12 points while Burley was 15th with four points and the Bobcats qualified several athletes in the sprint.

Jerome's throwing tandem of Pond and West put the Tigers in the hunt for a team trophy.

Pond, who will play basketball at the College of Southern Idaho next year, won the shot put with a throw of 38.10. Right behind her for second place was West at 36.6.

Despite the victory, Pond wasn't pleased with her mark.

"Thirty-eight feet isn't my best. When you come to state you want to bring your 'A' game," she said. "It was good to get points for the team. Vanessa and I wanted to go 1-2."

That didn't happen in the discus preliminary, as the Tigers settled for second and third.

Their plans for a sweep were spoiled by a freshman from Blackfoot named Sarah Cardinal, who was dwarfed by the two Tigers on the awards stand. Cardinal won 6 feet past her personal best by 2 feet with a toss of 135-2. West hit 133-11 on her second throw, but scratched on the other five attempts - two that clearly went past 140 feet.

Burley long distance runner Stephanie Johnson had a solid showing in her first state meet. The freshman ran the 3,200 in 12:05, good enough for a fourth place medal.

"It was great. It is some fun just to be here," said Johnson, who will also compete in the mile and 800.

Older brother Drew, a Bobcat junior, took fifth in the boys 3,200.

Cory Musgrave, a Tiger senior, improved on an eighth place finish in the triple jump last year to third place. His jump of 42.7 was just short of his personal best.

Ryder Burman of Jerome was one of six high jumpers that clear 6-2. Everyone except Brandon Christoffersen missed for a long jump in the standings. Based on number of misses, Burman claimed the third-place medal.

Burley speedster Jed Thomas proved he will be tough to bet in the finals of the 100 and 200 sprint finals tonight. The Bobcat senior easily qualified in both events.

The Jerome girls ended the night with a sixth place in the medley relay.

Class 3A-2A-1A
 Abelee Espazura crunched her nose at the announcement "In fifth place, Espazura, Buhl, 34-8."

Despite the disappointing showing in the 3A girls shot put, won by South Fremont's Tiana Illi with a heave of 38-2, Espazura still managed to find some fun in the result.

"I just had one of those meets. You were expecting me to say 39, 40 feet? Well, it was 35 ...," her voice trailing off as she turned to hide her embarrassment.

But then she remembered what she has coming up.

"Well, I have discus today. I graduate (next) Friday and then I go to college," finally, that smile crossing her face.

After two events, South Fremont leads the 3A girls with 18 points and Snake River is second with 11. Buhl stands seventh with four points; Filer is ninth with three points; Wood River is 11th with two and Kimberly has a single point.

Levi Novis of Gooding claimed second and Preston Allen took third in the boys triple jump to lead area boys in 3A. Decalo is fourth overall with 10 points while Salmon leads at 15 points.

In other standings: Butte County leads the 2A girls' and Firth the 2A boys. Kootenai has 16 points to lead the 1A girls and Castleford is a surprise fourth with eight points, led by the second-place finish of Katie Adkinson in the discus (109-4).

After one event, Mackley leads the 1A boys with 24 points. Genesee is second with five points.

Nike gives LeBron James mega deal

By Tom Withers
Associated Press writer

AKRON, Ohio — LeBron James went to school Thursday with enough lunch money for everyone.

The hyped high school senior and expected No. 1 pick in next month's NBA draft, signed a multiyear endorsement deal with Nike worth over $90 million, a risky move by the shoe and sports apparel giant that helped make Michael Jordan famous.

Nike won a heated bidding war against sneaker rivals Reebok and Adidas to sign the 18-year-old James, considered a possible successor to Jordan on the floor and on Madison Avenue.

Terms of the deal were not released, but a source close to James, who spoke on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press the deal was for seven years and valued at more than $90 million.

James' choice of Nike, a $10 billion company and the market leader in athletic shoes, closed a frantic final week of negotiating by Goodwin with representatives for all three companies

LeBron James

Says Nike 'has right product' for him bent on signing the 6-foot-8 St. Vincent-St. Mary star.

Despite the huge deal, James didn't miss classes after signing the contract, driving his power-colored Hummer to school and parking it in the lot.

"Nike is the right fit and has the right product for me," James said. "They are a great group of people who are committed to supporting me throughout my professional career, on and off the court."

James' deal dwarfs any of the previous initial contracts given to a young, unproven player who is skipping college and has yet to shoot his first jump shot in the NBA.

"There's no question about it, there is a tremendous risk here," said John Horan, publisher of the Sporting Goods Intelligence newsletter.

Nike's package includes a personal shoe and apparel line for James, who will have artistic input into his sneaker model, Goodwin said.

After Adidas pulled out of negotiations early Wednesday, Goodwin said representatives from Reebok and Nike pushed hard, hoping the other would buckle. Reebok reportedly offered $75 million.

James' deal is believed to be the richest ever given as an initial endorsement contract. It is also nearly on par with the five-year, $100 million deal Nike gave Tiger Woods in 2000.

When Jordan signed his first contract with Nike in 1984, it was for $2.5 million over five years. Shaquille O'Neal received $3 million from Reebok in 1992. Four years later, 17-year-old Kobe Bryant skipped college and got $5 million from Adidas.

Reebok signed Allen Iverson to a $50 million lifetime deal in 1996, and Tracy McGrady, another player who went to the NBA straight from high school, signed a six-year, $12 million contract with Adidas in 1997.

Combine those five, and they still don't equal James' deal. Before his first dunk, he's already soaring over some of his peers.

Bob Williams, president of Burns Sports & Celebrities, a marketing group which matches athletes with advertisers, said Nike had no choice but to extend itself.

"This was a full-blown, all-out price war," he said. "Nike won it. I think that Nike is the leader in the industry, and the leader in the industry cannot have a player with the potential of LeBron James sign with a competitor."

Nike signed Carmelo Anthony to a shoe and apparel deal on Tuesday. Anthony, who led Syracuse to the national championship in April, is a close friend of James and projected to be taken second in the June 26 draft.

James also signed an exclusive multiyear contract with Upper Deck trading cards Wednesday. That deal includes a $1 million signing bonus.

Cavaliers win NBA draft lottery, get James

By Tom Canavan
Associated Press writer

SECAUCUS, N.J. — The Cleveland Cavaliers hit the LeBron James jackpot.

The Cavaliers won the NBA draft lottery Thursday night, giving them the right to make the first overall selection in the June 26 draft. They're expected to stay in Ohio and choose James, the 6-foot-8 high school phenom from Akron.

The Memphis Grizzlies got the second selection, but that pick goes to Detroit. The Denver Nuggets will pick third.

Cleveland and Denver had the best chance of landing the top pick. Each team had 225 ping-pong balls out of the 1,000 available after finishing tied for the worst record in the league at 17-65.

Carmelo Anthony, who led Syracuse to the national championship this season as a freshman, is projected to be taken after James.

Danko Milicic, a left-handed 7-footer from Serbia who turns 18 on June 20, is the best of the big men available, and he's expected to be the No. 3 pick.

James, however, is the player everyone in the NBA has been coveting. The 18-year-old swingman can shoot from the outside as well as drive the lane.

James, who just signed lucrative multiyear contracts with Nike and Upper Deck trading cards, averaged 30.4 points, 9.7 rebounds, 4.9 assists and 2.9 steals as a senior at St. Vincent-St. Mary High School.

Toronto Raptors star Vince Carter said James will face intense pressure as an NBA rookie.

"Everybody is just speculating on what he could do when he steps on the court, not what he is doing when he is out there," Carter said Thursday. "He's stepping into another level. I think he is going to be a great player. I think everybody thinks it, but I think that's what is it all about, his potential."

The Pistons, who had the best record in the Eastern Conference, got the second pick overall from Memphis. The Grizzlies traded away the pick in 1997 for Otis Thorpe. Memphis would have kept the pick only if it had won the lottery.

The fourth selection went to Gordon Gund, left, owner of the Cleveland Cavaliers, holds a Cavaliers jersey with LeBron James' name with Russ Granik, NBA deputy commissioner, after the Cavaliers won the No. 1 draft pick in the NBA draft lottery and the right to choose Ohio high school star James, at NBA television studios in Secaucus, N.J., Thursday.

Toronto, which will be followed by Miami, the Los Angeles Clippers, Chicago, Atlanta, New York, Washington, Golden State, Seattle and the Grizzlies again. They got the No. 13 pick from Houston, while Milwaukee gets the Hawks' pick, because of trades.

Peculiar officiating sparks debate in Mavs-Spurs series

DALLAS (AP) — There were no referees around Thursday, an off day in the Western Conference finals. Accordingly, nobody got too upset.

A day after the technical foul-fest known as Game 2, the Dallas Mavericks and San Antonio Spurs insisted they are not going to let the officiating get to them in Game 3 on Friday night.

"It's stupid to even worry about referees. They have a tough job to do. Let them do it," Dallas guard Steve Nash said. "No matter what happens, whether you're not getting a fair shake on a given night, there's nothing you can do about it. It's not deliberate."

"Even if it is deliberate, what are you going to do about it?" In a series tied at one game apiece, the officiating has been the hot topic — and the debate has had a personal twist: The person people were wondering about after Game 2 was referee Joey Crawford.

The notoriously quick-tempered Crawford called four technical fouls in the first quarter of San Antonio's 119-106 victory, ejecting coach Don Nelson with two quick technicals during a timeout.

Players and coaches are not allowed to publicly criticize referees, so the easiest thing for them to do Thursday was to try to steer clear of the controversy.

NBA vice president of operations Stu Jackson, who oversees the referees, did the same.

Mavericks owner Mark Cuban said he received 750 e-mails concerning the officiating by the time he went to sleep Wednesday night and had another 500 awaiting him when he awoke. A common theme: Why does the NBA assign playoff games to referees whose personalities affect the way the game is called?

The NBA assigns referees to NBA referees for more than 20 years, every NBA player and coach is well aware of his quick fuse and confrontational personality.

And when Nelson walked to the center of the scorer's table and stared at Crawford during a first-quarter timeout, Nelson had to know that Crawford would take the bait and eject him.

The NBA assigns referees to playoff games based upon seniority and merit, and many of the veteran officials have strong personalities and distinct styles of officiating.

Referees began wearing wireless microphones a few years ago, giving television viewers the opportunity to hear conversations between referees and others. The technology gives fans an added level of insight into the games, but it also spotlights the peculiarities of some individuals.

League officials have worked quietly behind the scenes through the years to change the behavior of some of the more confrontational referees, and some of them have adapted well.

Knowing which buttons can be pushed with which referees is part of the knowledge that successful coaches and players draw upon during games.

"The referees can only take so much — you've got to know what you can get away with," San Antonio's Stephen Jackson said. "I had to learn that the hard way, too, about getting techs. But you've just got to know what you can get away with. Keep your mouth closed and you'll be fine."

CCSN advances #### to Joco World Series

HENDERSON, Nev. — The Seaside West Athletic Conference and Region 18 champion Community College of Southern Nevada Coyotes took two of three games from Region 1 champion Chandler-Gilbert Community College (Ariz.) last weekend to advance to the Junior College World Series, starting Saturday in Grand Junction, Colo.

The CCSN Coyotes beat the Chandler-Gilbert Coyotes 10-7 in Game 1, lost 8-6 in Game 2 and won the clincher 12-3 to become the Western regional champions. CCSN takes on Seminole (Fla.) Community College at 4 p.m. Saturday at Suplizio Field.

Dodgers player

tackles fan on the field

LOS ANGELES — Jason Romano is aware of recent history, so the 23-year-old rookie isn't hating when he saw a fan on the field at Dodger Stadium approaching teammate Brian Jordan.

Romano tackled him. "You have to be thinking of the way things have been the last couple of years," Romano said. "Knowing the way the world is today, you have to do something."

And so Romano did do something with two outs in the top of the ninth inning Wednesday night before the fan, identified as 26-year-old Oscar Villanueva, was taken from the field by stadium security.

The game, won by the Dodgers 3-2 over the Colorado Rockies, was delayed only briefly.

Dodgers spokesman John Olejnik said Thursday that Villanueva was charged with trespassing.

Kansas City Royals first baseman Tom Gamboa was attacked by a father and son during a game at the Chicago White Sox last September, and umpire Laz Diaz was accosted by a fan at the same ballpark last month.

Villanueva came onto the field during a break in the action, while manager Jim Tracy and others were checking on reliever Eric Gagne, who had deflected pinch hitter Greg Norton's infield single with his pitching hand.

"The fan had his hand out, like he wanted to meet me," said Jordan, who had moved from center field to left in the eighth inning when Romano was inserted in center. "He tried to fake security out a little, then came my bodyguard from center field. It was impressive. I saw the fan run and fake, then Romano just blasted him."

"I knew he didn't mean any harm, but I knew he was going to pay for it somehow."

Titans' McNair

apologizes for arrest

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Tennessee Titans quarterback Steve McNair apologized Thursday for his arrest hours earlier on charges of drunken driving and illegal possession of a handgun.

"This is something I didn't think that would ever happen, but this is something that we've just got to deal with, and I will with the support ... of my teammates, coaches, family and friends," McNair said.

"I will get over it." McNair read his short statement while flanked by Titans coach Jeff Flaker, general manager Floyd Reese and president Jeff Diamond. He didn't take any questions and concluded by saying that he will bounce back from it. McNair said.

McNair was stopped just after midnight by a police officer who saw his sports utility vehicle weaving on a downtown street. The officer's eyes were bloodshot, his breath smelled of alcohol and he acknowledged drinking, police said.

He failed a field sobriety test and a blood-alcohol test produced a reading of 0.18 — well above Tennessee's level of presumed intoxication of 0.10. He was released on $3,000 bond after appearing in court and is due back in court June 25.

McNair was "pleasant and cooperative," police spokesman Don Aaron said.

The weapon charge involves a 9 mm handgun found in the console between the front seats of his SUV. McNair has a permit for the handgun, but an intoxicated person may not legally carry a loaded weapon. The pistol was seized.

NCAA certifies WSU

sports programs

SPOKANE, Wash. — The NCAA on Thursday certified Washington State University athletic programs for another decade, ruling the school has largely complied with Division I requirements.

Washington State was among six Division I institutions to win accreditation Thursday. The others were Bowling Green, Iowa State, Claremont, Monmouth and Santa Clara.

"A designation of certified means that an institution operates its athletics program in substantial compliance with operating principles adopted by the Division I membership," the NCAA said in a brief press release.

The certification process was adopted in 1993 and all 325 Division I programs must participate. It is intended to ensure integrity in a school's athletics program. Washington State last was certified in 1995.

The process involves a lengthy self-study by a school's chief executive officer, with the review covering commitment to rules, compliance, academic integrity, fiscal integrity, equity, welfare and sportsmanship.

Certification is separate from the NCAA's enforcement program, which investigates allegations of rules violations. A decision of certified does not exempt an institution from enforcement proceedings.

Washington State officials spent some two years compiling an exhaustive study of athletic programs at the Pullman campus.

The study found that WSU athletics is a $22-million enterprise with some 600 employees, was operating in the black, and complying with rules involving number of women athletes. A 70-person committee, including faculty, administrators and students, began work in 2001 on the process.

The biggest concern was graduation rates for student-athletes. Even though WSU does much better than some programs, the goal is a 100 percent graduation rate for those athletes who exhaust their eligibility.

The graduation rate for all athletes averaged 59 percent between 1992-96, compared to 59 percent for all students.

Graf, Agassi will #### become parents again

FRANKFURT, Germany — Steffi Graf and Andre Agassi are to become parents for the second time.

The tennis stars are expecting the baby in mid-November. Graf's management company said Thursday.

Agassi and Graf married in October 2001 and their first child, Jaden Gil, was born later that month.

They began dating after each won the French Open in 1999. Graf retired in 1999; Agassi briefly regained the No. 1 ranking this month.

Agassi skipped last week's Hamburg Masters and is to play in the French Open starting Monday.

Nadeau is speaking

The 32-year-old driver was critically injured May 16 when his car slammed driver's side first into the wall. He was upgraded to fair condition May 18 but regained full consciousness only this week.

Nadeau sustained head, lung, rib and shoulder injuries and is having physical rehabilitation and speech therapy, team spokesman Dave Ferroni said.

Chang bids adieu to Roland Garros

PARIS (AP) — Michael Chang toured the world with his racket for the 'better part of two decades, winning big matches in front of big crowds.

The successes and spectators are scarcer this season, his last: About 100 people saw Chang lose at a minor league event in Forest Hills, N.Y., this month.

Ab, but he'll always have Paris. Chang won the 1989 French Open at 17, still the record for youngest male champion at a Grand Slam tournament, and along the way he beat Ivan Lendl in one of the greatest comebacks in tennis history.

Now 31, Chang will play on Roland Garros' red clay for the final time.

"It's always a good feeling to be back there, playing on the same courts, reliving memories of those good shots and those tough matches," he said. "You always want to do well. Particularly the last time, it would be nice to win a few matches."

Chang isn't seeded at all. Playing a limited schedule, he's won just one ATP Tour match all year, is ranked 142nd, and he needed a wild-card invitation to get into his 15th straight French Open.

How long has Chang been around? His first trip to the French Open ended with a third-round loss to John McEnroe. Yet, that John McEnroe.

Chang's breakthrough came a year later, when he became the first American to win at Roland Garros since Tony Trabert in 1955. In doing so, he collected the first major title for what would become a star-studded generation of U.S. men: Chang, Agassi, Pete Sampras and Jim Courier.

It wasn't just that a kid knocked off the three-time French Open champion and the world's No. 1-ranked player. It was how Chang did it, rallying from a two-set deficit while battling dehydration and leg cramps so painful he didn't sit during changeovers.

Chang did whatever it took to paint his 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 masterpiece. "He showed a lot of courage," Lendl said then; he rarely speaks to reporters nowadays and couldn't be reached for comment.

The gumption and stick-to-it-iveness Chang displayed were emblematic of a 5-foot-9, 160-pound guy who couldn't rely on pure power.

He made a career out of tracking down opponents' shots, winning 34 titles and reaching No. 2 in the rankings (he was one win from rising to No. 1 but lost to Sampras in the 1996 U.S. Open final).

Andy Roddick, seeded sixth at this French Open, says he was inspired by watching that tennis marathon at age 6. Paradoxically, Srichaphan of Thailand, seeded 10th, called Chang "my hero when I was young."

Even Chang gets a kick out of watching himself play. Every so often, he'll pop in a video of the Lendl match and relive the 4.5 hours that define his career.

"It's odd," Chang said. "I'll be watching the tape, and I'll finish the match and I'll think to myself, 'How did I win that?'"

Arena Football heads into playoffs on upswing

NEW YORK (AP) — Now finishing its 17th season, the Arena Football League has outlasted every pro football entity but the NFL. Yet it's still in its infancy.

As the playoffs begin this weekend with four wild-card games on NBC, the Arena League has plenty to brag about. The ratings in the first season on network television were solid enough: a 1.1 average for the season, helping NBC turn a profit. By the ArenaBowl on June 22, nearly 25 million people will have watched the indoor game on television this year.

The move from an April start to a February-June season paid off in a 15 percent increase in attendance. Games averaged 11,500 on-site, with 17 sellouts. The eight home games for expansion Colorado, which lost all of those games and finished 0-8 there, were sold out.

A total of 1,458,830 fans attended the 128 games, the league's eighth straight season with more than 1 million fans.

Revenue from advertising and sponsorships is over $20 million and merchandise sales are up 40 percent. The league plans to expand to 18 teams next year, with New Orleans and one unidentified city coming aboard. In 2004, Nashville and Washington, D.C., both with NFL owners, are expected to join.

According to a recent ESPN poll, AFL fans are more likely to try, switch, and remain loyal to a league or team sponsor's product, beating out even NASCAR.

"We feel really good about the results," says David Baker, the league's energetic commissioner. "Our attendance is up about 25 percent in the last two years at a time when the economy is down, we've had a tough winter, and there was a war in the middle of our season."

"I know the economy has impacted the sports industry for last two years, yet we are up and we're expanding all the time."

Baker is particularly buoyed by having the likes of John Elway involved in team ownership. Elway brings star power to Arena Football, even if he no longer is throwing howitzers — and even if he is firing the entire Crush coaching staff, as he did Monday.

"There aren't that many John Elways out there," said Baker, in his seventh season as commissioner. "The Crush have arguably the strongest ownership group in all sports with Broncos owner Pat Bowlen; Stan Kroenke, who has part ownership in the Rams and owns the NBA and NHL teams (in Denver); and John Elway, future Hall of Famer."

The playoffs open Saturday with the wild-card round. Las Vegas is at Arizona and Georgia is at Dallas, both televised regionally by NBC. On Sunday, the games are Chicago at New York, and Detroit at Grand Rapids.

San Jose, Los Angeles, Tampa Bay and Orlando received byes.

Moreno becomes Angels' owner

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Angels' new owner grinned, opened the big gift box and helped manager Mike Scioscia and general manager Bill Stoneman put on huge red smurfs.

Arturo Moreno was introduced Thursday as the third owner of the Angels in their 43-year history after completing his $184-million purchase from The Walt Disney Co.

"This is what I got for that," he said, laughing and holding up two keys to the stadium.

Moreno wants to be called Arte and started off his tenure by giving the hats to top team officials. He already has spent time wandering around the stands and chatting with fans, and plans one immediate change.

"Beer in the bleachers is $8.50. I can go around the corner and get one for a buck-and-half," Moreno said. Asked if he was thinking about lowering the price, he said, "I'm not thinking about it. I'm going to do it."

The 56-year-old Moreno, a native of Tucson, Ariz., made a fortune in outdoor advertising. He is a private man who doesn't particularly like the spotlight.

But he was gracious, forthcoming — and humorous — when he was introduced to the Southern California media on Thursday at the Edison International Field.

"This is sort of like living the American dream," Moreno said. "You get to come the ballpark and get a free beer."

Arturo Moreno Made fortune in outdoor advertising

He emphasized that he plans no significant moves in the World Series champion Angels, and that he will give freedom to Stoneman to run the player personnel side of the operation and to Ullrich to run the business side — the price of beer an exception.

Moreno, a fourth-generation American who has 10 siblings and grew up working in his parents' print shop in Tucson, is the first major league controlling owner of Hispanic background. Ask why he feels he can bring to the team, Moreno said, "I'd like to say I'm a left-hander with a 95 mph fastball and a great cutter, but I'm right-handed and I'm slow."

SDSU's Bay resigns AD job over audit

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego State athletic director Rick Bay resigned Thursday, two weeks after a California State University audit cited lax oversight in the athletic department and a mismanaged equipment room.

University President Stephen L. Weber also fired senior associate athletic director Jana Doggett and placed equipment room manager Steve Barbel on leave pending disciplinary action.

According to the audit, an 11-month investigation revealed that admissions rules were bent; athletic department clothing and equipment were taken for personal use by employees; and there was an overall lack of oversight of equipment purchases, inventory and bargaining.

Weber initially supported Bay after the state released its report on May 6. But he said he asked the AD to resign after a meeting in which he and Bay disagreed over the legitimacy and scope of the auditor's report. Bay initially refused to quit and would have been fired if he hadn't, Weber said.

Bay, the AD since 1995, had two years left on a contract that paid him $162,097 annually from the state, plus another $70,000 from private sources. Neither the school nor Bay would divulge a settlement.

Is IRL on track to become another CART?

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Tony George founded the Indy Racing League with the idea of providing a low-cost oval series that would showcase American drivers.

That mission seems to have veered off course heading into Sunday's Indianapolis 500, which will have a bunch of big-money teams and foreign drivers contending for a trip to Victory Lane.

"The look of the IRL is definitely a lot different than it was two or three years ago," said Ron Hamelgarn, one of the few remaining owners who's been there since the beginning. "There's a lot of new faces."

In many ways, the IRL has morphed into CART, the series so loathed by George that he decided to start his own circuit in 1996.

Most of CART's top car owners, including Roger Penske and Chip Ganassi, declined to the IRL in the past two years. They brought along talented foreign drivers such as two-time Indy 500 champion Helio Castroneves, a Brazilian.

Meanwhile, IRL teams that used to get by on a shoestring budget have been put out of business. Foreign drivers hold down half of the regular jobs on the circuit.

"The homegrown-to-foreign ratio is better in the Indy 500, which managed to fill its 33-car lineup with mostly American drivers on one-race deals. Former IRL regulars such as Alex Barrin and Billy Boat are among those who hope to use those 500 miles to improve their job prospects."

When IRL got started, George was looking for drivers such as Barrin and Boat, two Americans who paid their dues in racing's Irish language. Barrin grew up driving go-karts in his native California.

Boat was a champion in the UAC Western States Middleweight, winning a record 11 straight races in 1995.

But Boat went out of business and Barrin found himself with a rise for 2003. He's starting at Indy only as a fill-in for Arie Luyendyk, who didn't feel well enough to drive after a practice crash.

"That's a concern for us," IRL spokesman John Griffin said.

"We've made a commitment to ovals and giving Americans the opportunity to race."

Michael Andretti and Al Unser Jr. are the most prominent American drivers in IRL.

Algeria quake death toll nears 1,000

ROUBA, Algeria (AP) — Stunned and weeping survivors wandered through collapsed buildings Thursday and rescuers clawed by hand through rubble after Algeria's worst earthquake in two decades killed more than 1,000 people, injured thousands and left thousands more homeless.

Officials feared the death toll would increase with the search for bodies and survivors, helped by emergency teams from Europe and Asia that rushed to this North African country of 30 million after Wednesday night's disaster.

Entire families were killed in the 6.8-magnitude quake, which was strongest about 60 miles east of the capital Algiers. Injured people overflowed hospitals. Rescuers calling to any survivors under the wreckage occasionally heard voices answer back.

"The building shook like a ship. I sheltered with my daughters in a doorway. That's why we're still alive," said Fatma Ferham, 70, of Rouba, a town 13 miles east of Algiers and near the epicenter.

Entire blocks lay in ruins. Mechanical diggers lifted away rubble as soldiers and civilians joined in, digging by hand through the debris.

Rescue services were overwhelmed by the scope of the disaster.

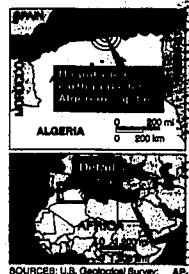

Women cried out the names of their dead or injured children, walls that mingled with the screams of ambulance sirens. Bodies piled at the town morgue were wrapped in blankets or plastic bags.

When the quake hit, "People yelled, 'God is Great!'" said resident Hakim Derradji. "It was horrible, it was like we had been bombed."

Late Thursday, the official APS news agency said at least 1,092 were dead and 6,782 were injured. Thousands more were left homeless.

A man sits Thursday near a destroyed building in Reghaia in the Boumerdes region, about 20 miles east of Algiers.

Memorial Day means day of remembrance

DEAR ABBY: Memorial Day is again upon us. Many of our citizens will enjoy a day off from work. Some will join family and friends at the beach, a picnic, a ball game or perhaps the mall. Sadly, the true meaning of this holiday, which was designated to remember and honor America's fallen, will be forgotten by many Americans.

We owe these men and women a debt of remembrance. We must make a special effort to honor their legacy on this and every Memorial Day.

This year, the White House Commission on Remembrance is asking Americans to pause on Memorial Day at 3 p.m. local time, wherever they may be, and reflect on those who have died for our freedom. To mark this year's observance, I have asked Charles Strouse, the noted composer of "Annie" and "Bye-Bye Birdie," to write a song for the National Moment of Remembrance. The song is titled "On This Day."

Parents and kids can listen to "On This Day" online and download sheet music to learn the song. The National Association for Music Education (NAME) has posted this information on its Web site: www.name.org.

Abby, I again ask your help in encouraging your readers to join in this act of national unity in remembering our fallen on Monday, May 26. As John F. Kennedy said, "A nation reveals

Bartenders save money using 'dumping' method

Q. In the barroom business, what's meant by dumping?

A. Pouring cheap booze into empty bottles of expensive liquors. Not the same as marrying, combining two half empties of the same liquor into one full bottle.

Albert Einstein on his deathbed reportedly said there is only one important question. Ponder that. What do you suppose the question might be? Ask around. See if anybody says what Einstein said: "Is the universe friendly?"

Are rabbits paranoid? If not, why not? Almost every mammal and bird that eats flesh huns rabbits.

You know why the doughnut became so popular in an earlier America? More people had frying pans than ovens.

You and I grew up thinking the orchid was a flower for special occasions, did we not? But why? It's not a rarity. A seventh of all flowers that bloom are orchids of one sort or another.

Imitation, said the great comedian of yesteryear Fred Allen, is the sincerest form of television.

If you show your horse how to turn on the stable lights at dusk, it will do so daily, I'm told.

Cabbage prices always go down right after St. Patrick's Day.

The Greek historian Herodotus in 484 B.C. examined costumed skeletons on an old battlefield. Skulls of Persians, he noticed, were thin and fragile. Skulls of Egyptians were thick and tough.

He asked why and was told, Persians were turbans, Egyptians went bareheaded. He deduced the sun influences bone growth. It was the first time of record anyone had figured that out.

Along with success, said Euripides, comes a reputation for wisdom.

DEAR CARMELLA: Thank you for your timely letter — and for the reminder that Memorial Day is only a few days away.

The White House Commission on Remembrance promotes the values of Memorial Day by acts of remembrance throughout the year. Learn more about it by visiting www.remember.gov.

Readers, as the events of the last few months have reminded us all, freedom is not free; in every conflict there is a price paid in human life.

I hope that on this Memorial Day, all of you will take a "moment of remembrance" out of your holiday celebration to respect the young people who gave their lives this year in the service of our country, and perhaps join me in offering up a prayer for their grieving families.

Idaho court exempts church from worker's compensation insurance

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court on Wednesday exempted the Bible Missionary Church in Kuna from mandatory worker's compensation insurance coverage for its pastor.

The unanimous five-member ruling found that the church did not employ Jack Howard with the intention of making money.

Justice Wayne Kidwell, writing for the court, said the ruling had nothing to do with the church's not-for-profit status. Instead it was based on the fact that the church receives no financial support from any regional or national religious organizations or from activities such as renting its space for events, running a day care or holding rummage sales.

Howard merely led worship services on Sunday mornings and Wednesday evenings.

"The church is funded solely by donations from those who attend its worship services," Kidwell wrote. "The church provides its services to anyone who requests them, irrespective of whether that person gives or has given any money to the church."

The court said the undisputed facts in the case showed that the church neither received equivalent payment for the services it provided nor was reimbursed for any losses or expenses.
