Enrollment exceeds projections

By Robert Mayer Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - More students showed up in Twin Falls school this week than officials expected. As a result, the School Board is considering an emergency property tax levy on Twin Falls taxpayers for the second year in a row. While the 6,970 students counted this week are fewer than last year's 7,005, the figure is more than the 6,941 projected.

Twin Falls, other districts consider emergency tax levies

The board approved an emergency levy Wednesday, even though it's not likely to be used, said Linda Baird, human relations director. Student numbers might continue to grow, because some families don't send their children to school until after Labor Day, she said. Similar situations exist in other districts in the region.

The Wendell School Board earlier this week also approved the use of an emergency levy to accommodate a jump of 93 students. Last year's uncertain middle school conditions compelled more than a few students to seek education elsewhere, Business Manager Diane Adams said. The newly opened middle school probably reversed that trend, she said.

"I wouldn't be surprised that we were getting those students back," she said. Like Twin Falls, the Wendell district will wait for the school year to progress a bit further to get a more stable read on the size of its student body before deciding to resort to the levy. While the Blaine County School District board hasn't approved an emergency levy for its jump in student numbers, I would bet we probably will," Business Manager Mike Chatterton said. Fourth-day school enrollment figures stood at 2,229 students, up from last year's 3,054 students. Blaine Superintendent Jim Lewis chucks up the additional 173 students to a steady influx of new residents spawned by lower interest rates. Please see SCHOOLS, Page A2

Quality Holsteins take to the ring

By Mickey Walker Times-News correspondent

FILER - To Dean Bezek of Jerome, a breeder of registered Holsteins, it's clear and simple: The primary concept behind the registered cow business is to improve on the quality of cattle. And quality Holsteins will be the order of the day as the 2003 Idaho State Holstein Show takes to the ring today at the Twin Falls County Fair. When it comes to raising registered animals, it's not just done for the sake of milking cows. "We don't just milk cows for a living," Bezek said. "We do it for merchandising. We sell and breed better animals." The average turnover on cattle in the United States is amazing, Bezek said. He estimates the cull rate is near 35 percent a year in every herd. "We are trying to breed a better animal that will last longer, perform better, and the bottom line is it will make a dairyman more money," Bezek said. Those qualities become evident in the show ring, where production and conformation are judged.

Crapo defends Patriot Act stand

Anti-terrorism laws include safeguards for rights, senator says

By Julie Pence Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The media have failed to accurately convey his stand on search and seizure provisions in the American Patriot Act, U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo contends. Crapo, R-Idaho, spoke about his position during a meeting with The Times-News' editorial board and in an appearance before the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club.

Sen. Mike Crapo

He said most people seem to have only a surface understanding of the act and its successor, Patriot Act II, which is pending before Congress. If members of the media and the public would take a closer look at the search and seizure provisions, he said, they would understand why the phrase "sneak and peek" for certain kinds of searches and seizures proposed in the act is Please see CRAPD, Page A2

Transcripts reveal chaos that followed WTC attacks

By Kirsten Schamberg Chicago Tribune

NEW YORK - In the middle of unprecedented chaos, people clung to the ordinary. Moments after the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center, those who worked in the buildings contacted their co-workers and friends over telephone and radio, arranging meeting points at locations that would vanish the moment the towering skyscrapers fell. They planned to meet at the North Korea threatens nuclear test

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - North Korea started international diplomats Thursday by threatening to test a nuclear weapon in response to perceived hostility from the Bush administration, a U.S. official said after the second day of six-nation talks in Beijing on North Korea's nuclear program. A North Korean delegate told diplomats gathered in the Chinese capital that the Pyongyang government had "no choice but to declare its possession of nuclear weapons" and "conduct a nuclear weapons test" according to a portion of a cable dispatched by the U.S. negotiating team. The isolated country has a history of alarmist rhetoric followed by confrontation and conciliation. Despite the announcement, diplomats from South Korea, Russia and the United States voiced optimism that the countries would agree during today's final session to meet again soon. An agreement on more meetings would constitute a small but important step in precarious negotiations aimed at persuading the Stalinist state to abandon its nuclear weapons program in return for diplomatic and economic openings to its neighbors and the United States.

North Korea left a door open to progress Thursday, with its diplomats reiterating a long-standing position that the government of Kim Jong Il would be willing to dismantle its nuclear programs if the United States changed its anti-North Korea policies, stopped hindering economic growth and reimbursed electrical power costs. The U.S. official who had read the diplomatic cable reported that the Chinese delegates who had worked hard to bridge gaps between the United States and North Korea and coax them to the table were visibly upset, while the Japanese, South Koreans and Russians were taken aback.

Report: FBI plans arrest in Net attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has identified a teenager as the author of a damaging virus-like infection unleashed on the Internet and plans to arrest him early today, a U.S. official confirmed Thursday.
 The 18-year-old, whose name age group, separated by six-month increments. Four- and 5-year-olds have their own classes, as do the 6-year-olds and over. There is also a production class for cows that have produced more than 125,000 pounds of milk in their lifetimes.

 "The judge for this year's show is Bob Fitzsimmons of Carrollton, Illinoi."
 "Basically, if you have a cow that will stay together, built better conformation wise, you have a cow that will produce a lot of milk," Bezek said.
 He also says registered dairymen don't do that much different than commercial dairymen. Each needs to milk his cows and treat them right. The only distinction is that registered dairymen are trying to breed a better animal, Bezek said.
 "When you have a better production and conformation cow, you can also sell the offspring to other people to give them the same benefit," he said.
 Animals competing in the show ring are judged on qualities that make up the ideal or "perfect" cow. Breeders are judged on the scale of how well their animals compare to that perfect cow.
 One falsehood — now dispelled, according to Bezek — is that years ago dairymen believed a good and hometown was not immediately available, was accused of writing one version of the damaging "Blaster" infection, which spread quickly across the Internet weeks ago, the official said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

MTV rewinds 20 years in video awards show

NEW YORK (AP) — Britney Spears and Christina Aguilera seve the evening tribute to Madonna on Thursday night as MTV presented its 20th Annual Video Music Awards by reaching into its past.
 Dressed in the same kind of white bustier wedding dress that Madonna wore while performing "Like a Virgin" during 1984's inaugural show, Spears and Aguilera gyrated on stage with Madonna, who was in her 50s, in a not-so-innocent tune. Then, while Madonna sang her new song "Hollywood" in an all-black outfit, she shared an open-mouthed kiss with both Aguilera and Spears. "I'm the former teen stars have come a long way since their

 "Come on, over to Tower, by the escalators," a third man instructed his co-workers just moments before that building, too, was struck.
 But the streams of transcripts released by the Port Authority on Thursday indicate how quickly things disintegrated shortly thereafter. The telephone and radio traffic is clearly frantic, rushed, loud. Soon there is no such thing as ordinary.
 "Help! I need ambulance service!"
 "Emergency! Another plane!"
 Poring through the transcripts, one can follow the fate of certain people, both the doomed and those who defy the odds and emerge from the smoking buildings.
 There is a woman named Arlene who works her way down the stairs of one tower. Her radio transmissions come from progressively lower floors; at one point, when she begins to lose her cool on the 28th floor, the man on the other end of the radio counsels her.

 Arlene reports in later to say she has made it safely to the sidewalk.

 "People don't understand what the act says," Crapo said.
 It's not as if the act indiscriminately allows law enforcement and intelligence officials to barge into anyone's homes without notification to search for evidence of terrorist activities, he said. There is a process. Law enforcement would first have to prove to a judge that certain provisions of the act were being met. For example, there would have to be proof of the possibility of significant loss of life if an investigation had to be halted as a result of not being allowed to search someone's residence without notification. Then, law enforcement would have to go to a court and prove to a judge conducting the search in order to be given a certain period of time in which to do it, or to delay notification, Crapo said.
 The issue of when searches and seizures are appropriate has been getting more attention in recent days around Idaho because of U.S. Rep. C.L. "Butch" Otter's move to amend the law. Rather than expand the government's ability to spy on suspected terrorists, Otter wants to eliminate the warrants that let investigators search suspects' homes without notification. Otter's colleague, Rep. Mike Simpson, told The Times-News editorial board on Wednesday he stands with Otter on the issue, but he also said he doesn't expect the House-approved amendment to make it through the Senate.
 Crapo argued searches without prior notification have been used for decades in other areas of law enforcement, such as in drug busts and organized crime activities. He said the test for him in determining if a search is appropriate has to do with constitutionality. "The Fourth Amendment states that 'no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.'" "The founders of our Constitution understood there would have to be searches," Crapo said. It would be stupid to notify someone up front of a wiretap, he said. It would also be a waste of time to tell a suspect beforehand of a pending search of his or her residence for a list of accomplices or plans for terrorism, Crapo explained.
 Plus, in times of war, the government has a right to tighten surveillance on likely suspects, he said.
 "The war on terrorism, I believe, is a war every bit as much as World War II was a war," Crapo said. "I believe the threat to the United States today for terrorism is extremely high."
 Nevertheless, Crapo added he doesn't necessarily buy into everything the U.S. Justice Department is proposing for the second Patriot Act. For example, he wouldn't support allowing the FBI to collect databases for the purpose of profiling average law-abiding citizens. He would, however, vote for court-approved collection of library information on likely suspects.
 In addition, Crapo said he doesn't favor getting rid of the five-year sunset clause in the Patriot Act, as is being proposed by U.S. Attorney General John Ashcroft and Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah.

 estimates and solid business revenues in the Wood River valley.
 In Twin Falls, the issue is more of a concentration of growth at certain schools than overall district growth.
 Growth has been particularly strong at Oregon Trail and Lincoln elementary schools. Bickel, Morningside and I.B. Perrine schools, too, have a few grades whose classroom borders are too full, necessitating additional staff.
 Thus, regardless of whether the district seeks to use the levy — the amount of which is unknown, Bickel said — additional teachers will be added where needed through the use of reserve funds and additional state money.
 A levy will likely be unnecessary, but the board approved it as a safety net, as well as to prevent the need for a special board meeting.
 Cassia, Hagerman, Bliss, Jerome, Valley, Buhl and Castleford are other districts in the region whose early numbers show enrollment increases this year. However, the same districts have said no staff adjustments or emergency levies will be necessary to handle the growth.
 Last year, the Twin Falls School Board approved an emergency levy for the first time in a decade, and it generated $484,747 to hire more teachers, pay for more supplies and materials, and restructure programs eliminated by budget cuts.
 The levy cost $30 for the owner of property valued at $300. However, because the interest rate on the new bonds increased, the net increase in taxes for that property owner was $17 over the year.

U.S. rejects carbon dioxide's effect

Knight Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON - Carbon dioxide, the chief cause of global warming, cannot be regarded as a pollutant, the Environmental Protection Agency ruled Thursday.

The decision, which reverses a 1998 Clinton administration position, means the Bush administration won't be able to use the Clean Air Act to reduce carbon-dioxide emissions from cars.

Had the Bush administration decided that carbon dioxide is a pollutant and harmful, it could have required expensive new pollution controls on new cars and perhaps on power plants, which together are the main sources of so-called greenhouse gases.

Environmentalists are expected to respond by suing the EPA to try to force it to regulate carbon dioxide. The real fight is likely to shift to Congress, where some lawmakers are proposing a new law giving the EPA clear authority to regulate emissions of gases that cause global warming.

"Refusing to call greenhouse-gas emissions a pollutant is like refusing to say that smoking causes lung cancer," responded Melissa Carey, a climate policy specialist for Environmental Defense, a moderate New York-based environmental group. "The Earth is round. Elvis is dead. Climate change is happening."

EPA General Counsel Robert Fabricant took the opposite position in his 12-page decision Thursday. "Because the (Clean Air Act) does not authorize regulation to address climate change," Fabricant wrote, "it follows that (carbon dioxide) and other (greenhouse gases), as such, are not air pollutants."

Aide portrays Bush as needing campaign funds

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush's campaign - expected to dwarf Democratic hopefuls by raising $200 million or more for the primaries, with no GOP rival - is appealing for donations by portraying Bush as a fund-raising underdog who won't have enough cash to defend himself against Democratic attacks.

"Democrats and their allies will have more money to spend attacking the president during the nomination battle than we will have to defend him," campaign chairman Marc Racicot wrote in the fund-raising e-mail sent Wednesday night.

Bush has set several fund-raising records, including the most collected for a presidential primary and the most raised at a single event.

Racicot's e-mail attributes quotes to several Democratic presidential hopefuls criticizing Bush.

Among them, Racicot says former Vermont Gov. Howard Dean stated that Bush might suspend the 2004 election, called Bush "reckless" and "despicable," compared him to the Taliban and said Bush was trying to destroy Social Security, Medicare, public schools and public services.

Panel: Energy system needs money, oversight

WASHINGTON (AP) - Saying competitive electricity markets have failed consumers, an independent energy panel called Thursday for new investment incentives and a bigger role for federal regulators to make the nation's "seriously overloaded" power system more reliable.

The recommendations from the National Commission on Energy Policy were issued days ahead of congressional hearings on the nation's worst blackout two weeks ago. They include empowering the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to mandate grid reliability standards and impose higher, uniform charges to pay for investments in transmission lines.

In a nod to environmental concerns, the panel said Congress should establish a firm timetable for reducing power plant pollutants.

Halliburton contracts add up

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Halliburton, the company formerly headed by Vice President Dick Cheney, has won contracts worth more than $1.7 billion out of Operation Iraqi Freedom and stands to make hundreds of millions more dollars under a no-bid contract awarded by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, according to newly available documents.

The size and scope of the government contracts awarded to Halliburton in connection with the war are significantly greater than previously disclosed and demonstrate the U.S. military's increasing reliance on for-profit corporations to run its logistical operations. Independent experts estimate that up to one-third of the monthly $3.9 billion cost of keeping U.S. troops in Iraq is going to independent contractors.

Over the past decade, Halliburton, a Houston-based company that originally made its name servicing pipelines and oil wells, has positioned itself to take advantage of an increasing trend by the federal government to contract out many of its support operations overseas. It has emerged as the biggest single government contractor in Iraq, followed by such companies as Bechtel, a California-based engineering firm that has won hundreds of millions of dollars in U.S. Agency for International Development reconstruction contracts, and Virginia-based DynCorp, which is training the new Iraqi police force.

The government, said the practice has been spurred by cutbacks in the military budget and a string of wars since the end of the Cold War that have placed a tremendous demand on the armed forces.

But according to Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., and other critics, the Iraq war and occupation have provided a handful of companies with good political connections, particularly Halliburton, with unprecedented money-making opportunities.

U of M adopts new admissions policy

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) - The University of Michigan unveiled a new affirmative action policy for undergraduates Thursday, dropping a point system thrown out by the Supreme Court in favor of a less rigid process that still takes race into account. Applicants will be given the option of identifying their race, but the answer will be considered "holistically" with the rest of the application and will not be assigned a point value, Provost

Paul Courant said. "We continue to believe in gathering a group of students that are very bright but different from one another," Courant said. "Students from all walks of life and backgrounds."

Prop. 13 takes center stage

One of the effects of the initiative has been unequal tax rates for similar properties, like these two hotels in downtown Sacramento.

Recall prompts review of cherished anti-tax law

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Like sunny weather and clogged freeways, tax-cutting Proposition 13 has become a fact of life in California - and as sacrosanct as the automobile and the patio grill.

For the past 25 years, the tax rollback has been politically unchangeable. A generation of politicians felt compelled to declare they would not mess with it.

But now, in this strangest of political seasons in the Golden State, there is talk of changing Proposition 13, and it has generated both wrath and praise.

Billionaire investor Warren Buffett, recruited to advise Republican Arnold Schwarzenegger's campaign to unseat Gov. Gray Davis in the recall election in October, stirred a fierce backlash when he told The Wall Street Journal that Proposition 13 might need to be revised.

Why, he asked, should he pay some $12,000 more in property taxes on his Omaha, Neb., home than he does on his $4 million home in Laguna Beach?

Schwarzenegger quickly backed away from Buffett's remarks, joking that he would make the investment guru perform 500 sit-ups in the mentioned Proposition 13 again.

"It's not simply a proposition. It's embedded in the culture of the state," said Sherry Bellich Jeffe, a political analyst at the University of Southern California.

The 1978 initiative was prompted by an inflationary cycle that sent home prices and property taxes soaring. Approved by 4.2 million voters, it rolled back tax rates to 1975 levels, capped them at 1 percent of a property's value and guaranteed that assessed values would rise no more than 2 percent a year. It was copied, at least in part, by 22 states.

Even today, most political observers agree that the provisions relating to homeowners are unchangeable. But now, with the state struggling to dig out from a deficit hole that was once $38 billion deep, support is growing in some quarters for reforming Proposition 13's commercial property provisions.

In June, a poll by the California Public Policy Institute found that 57 percent of those surveyed were in favor of lifting limits on commercial property taxes.

Lt. Gov. Cruz Bustamante, the only major Democrat on the ballot to succeed Davis if voters oust him, has offered a state budget plan that recommends voters amend Proposition 13 to make owners of commercial real estate pay a bigger share of property taxes. He said such a change could generate up to $2.9 billion a year.

Because of what critics say are loopholes that allow businesses to escape higher taxation, homeowners are now shouldering a larger share of the property tax burden than they did in 1978.

"The voters didn't intend" for homeowners under Proposition 13 to pay an increasing share of the property tax bill while the owners of skyscrapers pay less," Bustamante said recently.

Building a Devil's Corral hotel won't be a snap

Don't make your reservations just yet for a weekend at the Devil's Corral Resort and Spa. Odds are, you'll be soaking in sagebrush for some time to come before a luxury hotel comes to the popular spring.

Our view: For now, Devil's Corral probably has too many barriers to be a prime location for a luxury hotel.

What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

In our view, some commercial or retail development alongside the recreation area would also be suitable, considering how it could help growth in Jerome County.

Jerome County's Devil's Corral might even be a suitable site someday, if accessibility and infrastructure problems can be overcome. For now, though, aiming for a ritzy hotel development in the heart of Devil's Corral would be a stretch.

The new Devil's Corral owners complain that federal land managers and others are deaf to the development concept. We've seen that ourselves. Getting government bureaucrats to think in terms of capitalism is sometimes a challenge.

Outsiders to the community may face an additional challenge, especially if they adopt an adversarial attitude. Idaho is like anywhere else: It helps to work with the locals rather than fight them.

Trying to attract more tourists to the Twin Falls/Jerome area is a welcome idea. But that will take time and significant amounts of funding. For now, the area is more a stopover than a destination. Visitors passing through tend to linger for a day at the most, to view the local attractions.

Putting a posh hotel in an inaccessible spot is an idea that needs - at a minimum - more time to ripen.

Correction

Tuesday's editorial had an incorrect figure describing the amount of nuclear waste the Department of Energy wants to reclassify. Of the 100 million gallons of liquid radioactive material stored in 239 tanks in Washington, South Carolina and Idaho, the department wants to drain most of the liquid for shipment to a permanent storage site.

The remaining liquid in each tank, less than 1 percent of the 100 million-gallon total, is what the Department of Energy wants to reclassify as "low level" or "low risk" waste. The Times-News regrets the error.

Religious 'warriors' answer a common call

With Alabama Supreme Court Chief Justice Roy Moore doing his best to revive easy-pickings stereotypes of Southern religiosity for people like Rhonda Thomason of Montgomery, Ala.

ERIC MINK

In a letter to the editor published Sunday in the Montgomery Advertiser, Thomason wrote: "As the media focus on the people protesting the removal of Justice Moore's monument, I urge those who are deeply troubled by Moore's defiant commitment to the symbolic idol of his beliefs to take heart at the overwhelming number of Americans who are not going to show support."

Including, it seems, the good people of Montgomery. A day earlier the Advertiser had reported that the protesters are at finding so few residents of the state capital in attendance.

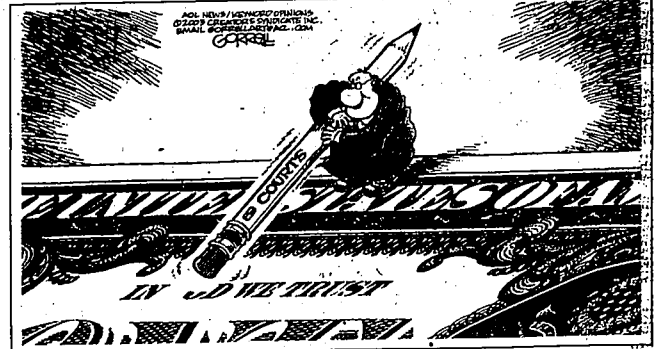

Yes, hundreds and occasionally thousands of people have turned up to support Moore's refusal to obey multiple court orders to remove from public display a chunky stone block inscribed with a version of the Ten Commandments, which he had installed under cover of darkness two years ago. (An ethics panel has since suspended Moore from duty.) But almost all of them, the paper reported, have come from someplace else.

Ah, "outside agitators" - as the cops and politicians of a couple of generations ago used to complain - streaming to Montgomery to do battle in America's continuing holy culture war. Meanwhile, the Bush administration and commanders overseas have alerted us to a parallel migration taking place 6,896 miles as the angel flies from Montgomery: Islamists streaming into Iraq to fight their own holy war against the Great Satan, the United States - an ominous echo of the Islamists who streamed to Afghanistan 20 years ago to fight the Great Satan, the Soviet Union. More outside agitators.

It would be unwise, not to mention unfair, to compare too closely the radical Islamists, who have come to Iraq to kill and maim combatants and innocents with the fundamentalist Christians of good conscience peacefully protesting in Montgomery.

Still, there are some uncomfortable philosophical commonalities. Both groups of partisans see themselves in service to an authority higher than any writs of man. The rule of law must yield to the laws of God. They are, each in their ways, crusaders, holy warriors.

They need make no accommodation for alternate, much less opposing, views. Those who differ differently are not mistaken or misguided. They are, simply, sinners, fallen, heathens. "Either you are with us," they proclaim, "or you are with the infidels."

It is this absolutist mindset - not the tenets of Islam or fundamentalist Christianity - that has helped spawn the crimes and excesses of Wahabism in Saudi Arabia and the Taliban in Afghanistan and the twisted likes of neo-Nazi abortion-clinic murderer Eric Rudolph and Oklahoma City bomber Timothy McVeigh.

Certainly, the spirit of tolerance and understanding has not been much evident in Montgomery recently. Local clergy who have chosen to keep their distance from the Moore spectacle have been criticized by the true believers for failing to speak out.

And even Alabama Attorney General Bill Pryor, whose radical church-state views have hung up his appointment to a federal judgeship, has been taken to task by the Alabama Christian Coalition for taking a teensy step back from his friend Moore by suggesting it might be a good idea to obey court orders.

It was a Montgomery minister, though - the Rev. Karl Stegall of the First United Methodist Church - whose simple, personal truth put the Moore matter in its proper perspective. "I strongly believe in the Ten Commandments as the inspired word of God for all of us," he told the Advertiser. "I have personally been too busy trying to keep the Ten Commandments in the broad daylight to worry about a monument to the Ten Commandments that was brought into the Supreme Court Building in the middle of the night."

Republicans wait in line for the 2008 election

CARL P. LEUBSDORF

Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton. But Republican candidates face a race as ill defined as this year's Democratic contest, and it could start with efforts to promote potential candidates at next year's GOP convention in New York.

Here is a preliminary list of Republican prospects, in alphabetical order, along with some of their strengths and weaknesses:

- Virginia Sen. George Allen: Former governor, now senator and the son of legendary football coach George Allen. A favorite of some conservatives, he needs some way to make his mark nationally.
- Florida Gov. Jeb Bush: There is increasing talk in some GOP circles about the prospect of a dynastic succession. More policy oriented and less congenial than his brother, he might be hampered by some politicized family problems and a sense that the Bush generation is enough.
- Tennessee Sen. Bill Frist: Some thought the former health care was interested even before he unexpectedly became Senate majority leader. Though probably helped by the fact that he isn't a career politician, it remains to be seen if serving as the top Senate Republican will be a plus or a minus.

- Former New York Mayor Rudy Giuliani: The most popular New York mayor in decades, he needs to sustain himself politically while out of public office. More liberal than most Republicans, he faces the fact that no New York mayor has won a higher office in recent times.
- Texas Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison: Either as a third-term senator or as Texas' governor (should she seek and win that office in 2006), she could be the GOP's first major woman candidate. A potential counterpart to Mrs. Clinton, she could face opposition from those who think the GOP needs a change from Texas leadership.
- Colorado Gov. Bill Owens: A potential dark horse, the Texas-born governor is a low-keyed conservative who could mobilize the growing political power of the Mountain West. Not well known.
- Homeland Security Secretary

Tom Ridge: Another potential candidate from the GOP's moderate wing, a lot will depend on the former Pennsylvania governor's job ratings as the first homelands security secretary. A Vietnam veteran and former House member, he would bring broad credentials to the race.

- Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney: Another relative moderate from a traditionally Democratic state, he is believed to yearn for the job that eluded his father, Michigan Gov. George Romney, a generation ago. Politicians from Massachusetts generally do well in the New Hampshire primary.

Others might emerge on the political scene in the next five years and become major players. Gov. Condoleezza Rice of California? Sen. Lindsey Graham of South Carolina?

Not only does it look like the recipe for a wide-open nominating battle, but it could be the first time in memory that there hasn't been a clear early Republican favorite.

Ranger sends thanks from northern Iraq

Hello. I am not quite sure who I am exactly writing to, so please bear with me. My name is Patrick S. Connell of Buhl, Idaho. I am a 1993 graduate of Buhl High School. I am a staff sergeant in the U.S. Army, an airborne ranger currently assigned to Chosen Company, 2nd Battalion (airborne), 503rd Infantry, 173rd Airborne Brigade out of Vicenza, Italy, currently deployed to Iraq in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom. I think, Iraq - Iraq's oil heart.

jumped (conducted an airborne assault) into northern Iraq on March 26, 2003. Our redeployment date is currently slated for April 2004.

The reason for this letter is I have a soldier, also from Buhl-Twin Falls and another from Caldwell as well as one from the Buhlley-Rupert area. The wife of Pfc. Michael Thompson from Buhl-Twin Falls sent him a Times-News. His wife was featured on the front page (July 20 edition). It is so great to hear of all the support the people of the Magic Valley provide for us. Could you please print something to the people of the Magic Valley supporting us from the men of the Magic Valley assigned to the 173rd? There are only three of us and we're all in the same company.

I have one final request: To print something from me expressing my thanks to Buhl High School Class of 1993 for all of their support and to my dad and mom, John and Teresa Connell, now of Jerome, Idaho, for all of their continuing support and letters, to also let them know that I love and miss them, that they are both truly my heroes! And to the rest of my family and friends for their continued support. It is truly greatly appreciated.

In closing, I would like to thank all of you at The Times-News for keeping everyone at home up to date on all of the current news happening in Iraq. Also, my address is enclosed if you or anyone from back home would care to write us. Nothing lifts our spirits or brings up our morale better than mail or even care packages from back home. Thank you dearly! See you all in April or May 2004!

Some drivers abused handicapped parking

To Judy Fisher: Your article on the handicapped will fall on deaf ears. I, too, am a handicapped driver and have the license plates, not the car. Just a few days ago, I was pulling into a handicapped parking and, zip, a car went around me and took my place. Two young men got out and went inside the store. I looked and they had a blue card hanging from the mirror. Neither was handicapped and no other person aboard.

In my travels, this is so common. I'm told the card is for the handicapped, not necessarily the driver, but boy how many times I have seen others using that blue card. Oh well. Will get rebuttals on this, I am sure. But I respect that blue card as I know a doctor's permit is needed to get one.

Thanks again, Judy. Oh yes, did you know with license plates, they cannot tag you for having to park on a meter. That's free, too. LARRY SABIN

WTO negotiators seem close to agreement on medicine

GENEVA—The most emotional charged problem in the World Trade Organization appeared near solution after they agreed on the wording of a deal that would allow poor nations to seek alternatives to expensive patented drugs for diseases like HIV/AIDS and malaria.

Negotiators who have struggled with the issue for almost two years met Thursday to finalize an agreement drawn up last December but rejected by the United States, plus an accompanying statement designed to calm the fears of the big pharmaceutical companies.

"I hope we will seize the moment," said Canadian WTO Ambassador Sergio Marchi, who last December—as chairman of the WTO's general council—reluctantly had to admit temporary negotiations with unflinching U.S. refusal.

But the talks apparently hit a last-minute snag because of Kiyun concerns about the proposed agreement. The meeting was expected to run late into the night.

Under WTO rules, countries facing public health crises have the right to override patents on vital drugs and order copies from cheaper, generic suppliers. However, until now they could only order from domestic producers useless for the huge majority of developing countries that have no domestic pharmaceutical industry.

Palestinian Authority freezes funds of Islamic charities

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip—Palestinian authorities said Thursday they froze the bank accounts of nine Islamic charities to investigate whether the organizations funnel money to militants—the Palestinians' most striking action yet in a U.S.-sought clampdown on armed groups.

Israel welcomed the decision but threatened tough action after a rocket fired from the Gaza Strip hit near the coastal city of Ashkelon, the deepest strike since Hamas began firing Qassams toward Israel in November 2001.

Later Thursday, an explosion near a Palestinian neighborhood in the Gaza Strip killed one person and injured at least three others, witnesses and medical officials said. The cause wasn't clear but witnesses said Israeli warplanes were heard flying overhead at the time.

Israeli bulldozers and tanks earlier flattened brush just inside Gaza to rob militants of cover—the first foray into Palestinian-controlled land since Israel withdrew from parts of Gaza in July under the U.S.-backed "road map" peace plan. Security officials said the move was not a prelude to a major military strike.

Power outage causes mess on London Underground

LONDON—Power went out in parts of the capital and southeast England on Thursday, bringing much of the London Underground and many regional trains to a halt and trapping rush hour commuters in the tunnels.

Electricity was cut for about 40 minutes before it came back on at about 7 p.m., said EDF Energy, which handles some power transmission for London. The outages appeared to be confined to south London and Kent, a county southeast of the city.

A spokesman for the Underground said 60 percent of the subway system was halted at the height of the evening rush hour, including the majority of services in central London.

Abortion-clinic killer faces execution soon

The Associated Press

Barring the unlikely possibility of a stay, a Presbyterian minister who gunned down an abortion doctor will next week become the first American executed for anti-abortion violence.

To a loyal core of admirers, Paul Hill is a martyr-to-be whose actions were justified by the Bible. To others, on both sides of the abortion debate, he is a zealot, undeserving of respect or pity.

Paul Hill

"In a very significant way, it's a sad day," said Gloria Feldt, president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America. "It's sad that people like Paul Hill would murder in the name of God."

Hill, a 49-year-old father of three, is scheduled to be executed by lethal injection Wednesday in Florida for the 1994 shotgun slayings of Dr. John Britton and his volunteer escort, retired Air Force officer James Barrett, outside the Pensacola, Fla., clinic where Britton performed abortions. Hill wants to die and is not pursuing an appeal.

Abortion-rights groups worry that Hill's execution will trigger a backlash by those who share his steadfast belief that violence in defense of unborn children is justified. Several Florida officials connected to the case received threatening letters last week, accompanied by rifle bullets.

"We need to take these threats seriously," said Vicki Saporta, president of the National Abortion Federation. Though Hill still has supporters — they have maintained a Web site in his honor, with snapshots and ballads — most major anti-abortion groups have repudiated him.

"We and other pro-life organizations are against violence, period," said Erik Whittington of the American Life League. "What he did is definitely not anything that anyone I know of supports."

Tom Glessner, director of the National Institute of Family and Life Advocates, said Hill deserves the death penalty.

"He's not a pro-lifer, as far as I'm concerned," Glessner said. "Osama bin Laden acted out of conviction, too."

Michael Bray of Bowie, Md., the author of a book that justifies the killing of abortion doctors, said Hill "will be recognized after the fact as the honorable man that he is."

Organizations opposed to capital punishment have urged Gov. Jeb Bush to spare Hill.

"The death penalty gives this individual the opportunity for martyrdom," said Diana Rust-Tierney, director of the American Civil Liberties Union's Capital Punishment Project. "Far from deterring the kind of violence we deplore, it may be an encouragement."

The governor is unswayed: "No threats, no free advice from others will change my obligation to do what I think is right."

The murders of Britton and Barrett came during a bloody surge of anti-abortion violence a decade ago.

Democrat proposes aid to states to spark economy

Kerry would fund plan with partial repeal of Bush tax cut

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — Democratic presidential hopeful John Kerry on Thursday proposed sending $25 billion to states struggling with budget deficits as part of a broader plan to jump-start the economy and spur job creation.

The two-year "State Tax Relief and Education" fund would help states that have had to cut education spending and lay off police and firefighters under Bush administration policies that have "brought back the days of deficits, debt and doubt," Kerry said.

"When it comes to creating opportunity, restoring fiscal discipline, putting values back into our economy, and preparing for the jobs of the future, George Bush hasn't lifted a finger. I will move mountains," Kerry said at the University of New Hampshire, where he outlined an economic package that mixed new ideas with some old proposals.

The state fund was one of several short-term proposals that Kerry would finance by repealing President Bush's tax cuts for the top 1 percent of income earners. Some of his Democratic rivals — Rep. Dick Gephardt of Missouri and former Vermont Gov. Howard Dean — want to repeal the entire tax cut, an idea Kerry continues to criticize.

Kerry said he would provide tax relief to middle-class families by keeping the child tax credit, reduced marriage penalty and lower tax rates that were part of the Bush package while lowering capital gains and dividend taxes for the middle class.

AROUND THE VALLEY

Apparent heart attack kills sheriff

ARCO - Butte County Sheriff Cary VanEtten was found dead in his home Tuesday evening of an apparent heart attack.

A friend who was stopping by to deliver auto parts discovered VanEtten's body, officials said.

Butte County Coroner Andy Anderson said he asked the Tri-County Sheriff's Association to conduct an investigation because VanEtten was only 45 and because he was an elected official.

VanEtten graduated from Butte High School in 1976 and became a sheriff's deputy the next year. He was appointed sheriff in 1991, to finish Darrel Richards' term, and was elected to the office the following year.

VanEtten served on the Lost Rivers Hospital Board and helped with the Extreme Desert Thunder Air Show, held at the end of July. The sheriff also was active in the Wish Upon A Star program and was named Citizen of the Year by the Butte County Chamber of Commerce.

The Democratic Central Committee will submit three nominees to finish VanEtten's term to the Butte County commissioners, who will choose one.

P&Z commissioner plans council run

SUN VALLEY - Planning and Zoning Commissioner Blair Board Jr. wants to move up to City Council.

Board will announce that he is running for Seat 1 on the Sun Valley City Council during a press conference at 1 p.m. Friday at the Harker Center on Morningstar Road.

The seat is currently held by Latham Williams, who has not said whether he plans to run again.

Board is a partner in Mountain Estates Property Management.

He also is a captain and Emergency Medical Technician with the Sun Valley Fire Department, an Idaho State fire inspector and a member of the Sun Valley Ski Patrol. Before moving to Sun Valley he owned and operated restaurants in Kansas City and Seattle.

He served on a citizens committee that developed the mission statement for the city of Sun Valley in 1995 and he helped create an emergency medical system providing EMT first-responders in 1997. He has been on the Planning and Zoning Commission since 1999.

Security is planned for Mountain Home airshow

MOUNTAIN HOME Organizers expect nearly 100,000 guests at Gunfighter Skies 2003, a two-day airshow Sept. 13-14, according to a news release from the U.S. Air Force.

"Any time you bring together that many people, you have to be prepared for just about anything," said Master Sgt. James Swartz.

Gunfighter security forces are handling up the plans, but a number of other agencies will assist, including state and local law enforcement officers.

Prohibited from the show will be pets (except service dogs) and any type of weapons or illegal items, including explosives, black powder, gun powder, small arms ammunition and fireworks.

Cars and other vehicles that enter the base will be subject to search.

People also will be turned away at the security checkpoint if they have coolers (small coolers for baby bottles are acceptable), backpacks, large bags, bicycles, skates, scooters or skateboards.

All hand-carried items will be searched.

Sun Valley chairlifts will close for Labor Day

SUN VALLEY - If you like getting a lift to the top of the mountain, you'd better do it quick.

Sun Valley has announced it will close the chairlift operation ferrying mountain bikers, hikers and sightseers to the top of Baldy at the end of the day on Monday, Labor Day.

The lifts are scheduled to crank up again for the ski season on Thanksgiving Day.

Fewer patients stay in M.V. hospital

By Sandy Miller
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Magic Valley Regional Medical Center expected to have admitted 9,212 patients in October through July.

But only 9,077 showed up. And that can make a difference on the hospital's bottom line.

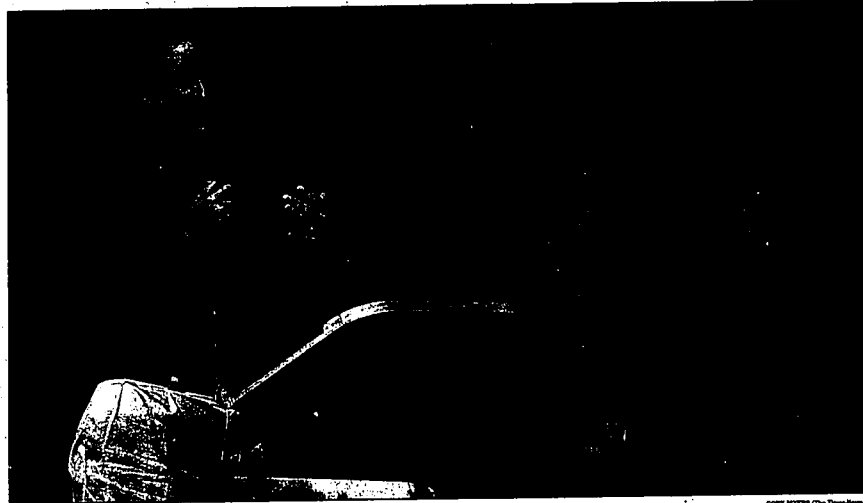

"Most of our payers pay on an admission basis," Chief Financial Officer John Groesbeck told the hospital's Finance Committee Thursday.

But there was an unexpectedly high number of patients who didn't spend the night. In same-day services, 1,086 more patients came in for procedures than the

SYMBOL OF HONOR

U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, talks during a ceremony marking the release of the new Purple Heart stamp by the U.S. Postal Service at City Park in Twin Falls Thursday.

New stamp recognizes wounded vets

By Loretta Burkhardt
 Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS - Recipients of the Purple Heart and their families were honored Thursday as Idaho dignitaries, representatives of each branch of the military, and members of the U.S. Postal Service gathered at City Park to celebrate the release of the Purple Heart stamp.

Although the stamp's unveiling and dedication took place in May at Mount Vernon, Va., its issuance was rededicated locally during a solemn ceremony attended by some 200 people.

"This gives us another opportunity to recognize those who put their lives on the line," U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo said in tribute to all the men and women who have served and are serving in America's armed forces.

While the stamp is not a first issue and is available at post offices nationwide, its introduction to the local area warranted more than 100 personal invitations to area Purple Heart recipients, Twin Falls Postmaster Rob Peters said.

And while the stamp has become an addition to the Postal Service's gallery of stamps that commemorate significant events in American history, the Purple Heart has the distinction of being the oldest military decoration in the world, Peters said. It goes to servicemen and women wounded in combat.

With a suggestion to buy stamps as Christmas presents, following the ceremony, those in attendance were given the opportunity to buy some of the "120,000,000 stamps" scheduled for production.

The stamp has a profile bust of George Washington in the center.

Although family members see the purchase of a commemorative stamp as a way to honor their fallen, there are families who still wait for the Purple Heart medals to be issued on behalf of loved ones.

James and Norma Berkley are an example of just such a family. "We're still trying to get (a Purple Heart medal) for my brother-in-law," said Norma Berkley, who attended the morning ceremony with her husband.

Her brother-in-law is the late Patrick J. Berkley, who was killed in Korea on Aug. 13, 1950, while serving in the Marine Corps.

"I'll never forget that day," he couldn't believe our eyes,"

Berkley said. On that day, James and Norma Berkley were attending the movies at the Roxy Theatre in downtown Twin Falls when news of the war was flashed onto the screen in the form of a newsreel release. Pvt. Patrick J. Berkley appeared on the screen.

"We recognized him immediately - he's my husband's baby brother," Norma Berkley said. But what they saw next is something neither of them was prepared to witness - or will ever forget.

"The scene was taken on a war front in Korea. They were getting off the machine guns. Then right in front of our eyes we saw the whole platoon fall down, flat. They were all killed - and we

Council reopens judgeship

By Rebecca Mayr
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The judge who replaces new Idaho Supreme Court Justice Roger Burdick won't necessarily preside over the Snake River Basin Adjudication.

Because some potential applicants to replace Burdick apparently were confused about the nature of the position, the Idaho Judicial Council is once again seeking applicants for the 5th District judgeship. The vacancy is for a district judge; it is not a Snake River Basin Adjudication position.

Interested attorneys or magistrate judges now have until Sept. 4 to apply for the 5th District judgeship vacated by Burdick.

The confusion likely was due to the fact Burdick presided over the adjudication while also handling other cases as a district judge, said District Trial Court Administrator Linda Wright. The SRBA is the legal sorting of thousands of water rights in the Snake River Basin. Idaho Supreme Court Chief Justice Linda Copple Trout will determine who will become the SRBA judge, a separate decision from the selection by Burdick's replacement as a 5th District judge by Gov. Dirk Kempthorne.

"The new judge may or may not be assigned the case," Wright said. "They have the same chance as the other district judges."

Further confusion was likely caused by two concurrent openings. The Judicial Council held interviews for another opening created by the retirement of 5th District Judge Nathan Eiger, who plans to step down Oct. 1.

The Judicial Council selected three Twin Falls attorneys as finalists for that position. Their names are Richard D. Bevan, Richard D. Greenwood and John K. Butler were submitted to the governor.

Bevan and Greenwood also applied for the judgeship created by Burdick, along with Brian Harper and 5th District Magistrate Judge Randy Stoker. Those four can now be joined by other applicants before the new Sept. 4 deadline.

Applications should be submitted to Robert G. Hamlin, executive director, Idaho Judicial Council, P.O. Box 9495, Boise, 83707, no later than 5 p.m. Sept. 4. The annual salary of a district judge is $95,718.

Combat engineers: War is different today

By Mary Lou Potts
 Times-News correspondent

BUHL - On Sept. 16, 1940, the 116th Combat Engineers were commissioned to active duty in World War II.

They built and demolished roads, bridges and airstrips for the U.S. Army. They cleared the way for the fighting troops.

"Their role was crucial because a general may call up a battalion, but would not have any troops until the combat engineers were called in," said Riley Maxwell of Buhl, who organizes a reunion for the group every two years.

The reunion was held at the Clear Lake Country Club in Buhl this week and was a two-day affair.

The numbers are dwindling, but 14 of the surviving 44 engineers

County residents criticize Wendell annexation plans

By Gina Mulder
 Times-News correspondent

WENDELL - The message from county residents to Wendell's Planning and Zoning Board was emphatic: No to annexation.

About 70 property owners beyond city limits attended the Wednesday night planning and zoning hearing to weigh in on the city's two annexation proposals.

All 20 that testified opposed annexation. Another 28 written responses were submitted to the city but P&Z board members gave no hint as to the content of those letters.

P&Z members adjourned the meeting without announcing if a recommendation would be passed on to Wendell City Council members, where the ultimate decision on annexation rests. No time frame was given for a final determination.

At the onset of the public hearing, board member Barry Brackett outlined the two annexation "ideas" city leaders had been mulling.

The original proposal drafted by the planning and zoning board called for pushing city boundaries out a few hundred feet into unincorporated county land in all directions. This option was intended to bring in about two dozen properties that also would be contributing city water and sewer services.

The second idea initiated by Mayor Paul Isaacson, was to

By Shari Chaney Times-News writer

PAUL — Strobe lights flashed and the fire alarm pierced through the air like an arrow to the ear during a fire alarm test at West Minico Middle School Tuesday.

And at the end of the roughly three hour test, school board members smiled. The alarm system works. School is set to begin Sept. 2.

"We've seen enough to think it's going to work OK," said Terry Edwards, deputy state fire marshal. Sutton added, "I think it's done everything we've asked of it."

West Minico has operated under a fire watch — and without all-alarm system — ever before fire broke out at the end of May, causing damage mostly to the kitchen area. And a fire watch will stay in place until construction in the kitchen is complete, even though the alarm system is functioning fine.

Alarms in the kitchen area work now, but might go down periodically as construction continues, Edwards said. It's easier to keep the fire watch in place until everything is completed.

The fire alarm test began by sending the alarm and touring the school, checking that sirens sounded and strobe lights flashed. Officials had intentionally turned power off for more than 60 hours; the alarm system was a high-tech battery for the first portion of the test.

As the team of fire officials passed through each classroom, several teachers continued reading in their classrooms through the noise.

"What fire alarm?" one said with a smile. When inspection was completed, ed, individual pieces, such as smoke detectors, were tested randomly. Smoke was sprayed in bathrooms, the home ec kitchen area and the shop. Edwards was happy to see that. He said hair spray in a bathroom or sawdust in a shop can set off smoke alarms when there isn't a fire.

The testing group moved all the way to the roof of the building to test the duct detectors. If smoke is detected in the air ducts, they will shut down so they don't move the smoke through out the building, Edwards explained.

During the tests, Superintendent Nick Hallett noted the addition of the flashing strobe lights to the system. The school's previous system did not have lights to alert those who cannot hear the alarm.

Comments can expect a fire drill on day two of school, Principal Sandra Miller said, and every day after until everyone can be out of the building within one minute.

Deer-killing disease extends reach

LEWISTON (AP) — The virus that has killed several hundred deer near Kamiah is spreading through north-central Idaho and threatening to overwhelm some local herds, wildlife managers said.

Epizootic hemorrhagic disease likely caused deer deaths near Kaoskia, Stices, Orofino, Little Canyon at Peck, Cavendish and Slate Creek on the Salmon River. It was first noticed about three weeks ago near Kamiah.

"We haven't had an outbreak of this significance," said Jay Crenshaw, a regional wildlife manager for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. "The high deer density we have in some areas really adds to the problem."

Hospital

Continued from B1 hospital had expected, and the hospital's emergency room was even busier than usual, seeing 2,000 more patients than it is expected to see from October through July.

Salaries continue to be the largest expenditure in the budget. In June, the hospital spent $3.7 million on salaries, up from $3.2 million, or 15 percent, the same month the previous year.

Medical supplies continued to take a big chunk out of the budget, with the hospital spending $1.6 million in July, up from $1.4 million, or 34 percent, in July of the previous year.

Valley are concerned about this. Finance Committee member Dave Johnson said.

Johnson asked hospital administrators to hold the hospital committee members to discuss why supplies are costing so much.

Chief Executive Officer John Kee said a discussion about supplies is on the agenda of the next Hospital Board meeting Sept. 8.

In other financial news, Magic Valley Regional brought in $13.5 million in total patient revenue in July, up from $13.2 million, or 3 percent, the same month the previous year. Here are some other highlights from the hospital's July 2003 financial statements:

• Inpatient revenue — $7.7 million, down from $8.3 million, or 7 percent, from the same month the previous year.

• Outpatient revenue — $5.8 million, up from $4.9 million, or 18 percent, from the same month the previous year.

• Total operating revenue — After deductions, the hospital ended up with $8.9 million, up from $8 million, or 12 percent, from the same month the previous year.

• Total expenditures — $9 million, up from $7.6 million, or 18 percent, from the same month the previous year.

• Largest expenditure — $3.7 million for salaries, up from $3.2 million, or 15 percent, the same month the previous year.

• Net income — The hospital was $438,488 in the red, down 368 percent from the same month the previous year, when it was $142,150 in the black. The hospital's cash position is down due to payments to Medicaid, Groesbeck said. He said significant amounts of the settlement were paid with cash rather than selling investments to maintain as much as possible in higher return accounts.

• Total assets — $103.2 million, down from $104.8 million the same month the previous year.

• Total liabilities and equity — $103.2 million, down from $104.8 million the same month the previous year.

• Admissions — The hospital admitted 924 patients in July, down from 928 patients in July 2002.

Nez Perce leaders dedicate tribal housing

LAPWAI (AP) — A once-vacant

wheat field will soon become home to dozens of families in what Nez Perce tribal leaders are calling one of the best housing programs in Indian Country.

Tribal and state leaders gathered this week to dedicate three housing programs, including the 64-foot Sundown Heights subdivision in Lapwai, a renovated 30-house rental subdivision in Whitebird and a housing counseling office for prospective tribal home buyers.

"This place was wheat fields where children played and got in trouble," Nez Perce Tribal Chairman Tony Johnson said. "In the very near future, this will be a place with homes, where children will play and get in trouble."

The rental homes were renovated using $1.2 million in federal tax credits administered through the Idaho Housing and Finance Association and purchased by Fannie Mae, a private company. It is the first such project in Idaho.

Homebuyers interested in the Sundown Heights subdivision can tap into $1.9 million available for mortgage financing through a federally guaranteed loan from Washington Mutual bank.

And some homebuyers, qualified through the tribal housing authority, will be eligible for $10,000 assistance grants, officials said.

In addition to building roads and airstrips, the engineers swept mine fields, moved heavy equipment and conducted demolition work.

The company was not a combat troop but was expected to protect its camps and equipment. The veterans recalled that some of their worst encounters with the enemy were at night raids.

Roy Richardson of Maple Plains, Minn., recalls joining the group after he was rejected by the Coast Guard for being color blind. He was assigned as a demolition crew leader in New Guinea, even though he could not distinguish the colors of the wires on the detonators.

"At that time, we had two colors — yellow and black — and I could tell that one was light and one was dark," Richardson said.

When building roads and clearing land for airstrips, the group's heavy troops, who toiled up in canyons and hills while the engineers were below, out in the open. The U.S. troops were bombarded every night.

Before the charge was set off, a translator warned the enemy in the caves what was about to happen and said they could surrender. None did.

"When the charge went off, it ricocheted through the tunnels, demolishing the whole hill and leaving 120 to 130 bodies exposed," Richardson said.

"Our great-grandkids will be paying off this war debt," said Charlie Johnson of Portland, Ore. "I think Bush is getting even for his dad not getting the job done."

"As far as the difference in the conditions of engineers today compared to our day, we had it tough in the jungle, the terrain was worse, and we had lots of rain, but the desert has its pitfalls too," Richardson said.

"There's nothing more exhausting than fighting a war in combat," Richardson said. "The only thing that has changed," Maxwell said.

Maxwell said the group will try to meet again in two years and compares the group to a dandelion gone to seed.

extend the proposed annexation area a half mile from current city boundaries in every direction. This plan would affect about 80 property owners, but city leaders some said they don't know how many square miles or acres would be involved.

In a recent interview, Isaacson said the reason for encompassing more county land would be to boost the city's population in order to receive more population-based federal tax revenue, to stimulate economic growth and to avoid "jagged" city boundaries.

Isaacson addressed attendees by saying the public hearing was scheduled to encourage those county residents within a half mile of the city to discuss the city's future growth options.

"We need to wave flags and support the troops," Richardson said.

Others came to the park Thursday for other reasons.

Army peace-time veteran E-4 Specialist Helen Fink, who served at Fort Lewis, Wash., in 1975-77, had a special reason for attending the patriotic ceremony. "I have a son who's on his way back to Iraq," Fink said. Still others came as city representatives in honor of the military in general.

City councilwoman Elaine Stey said that while a Purple Heart stamp is long overdue, the commemorative ceremony was a timely one, one that serves to "bring what's happening in Iraq closer to what's happening in Idaho."

It wasn't just grown-ups attending the event. About 20 children from St. Edward's Catholic School took time out to pay their respects.

"They're a candid audience,"

Anne Lorraine Smith, whose family owns 64 acres north of Wendell, suggested the city accommodate just those property owners that have requested annexation and to stop worrying about jagged city boundaries.

"And what it matters if it's a jagged edge? It's worked for the Sawtooth Mountains for centuries," Smith added.

Hosack and other county property owners voiced concerns about being forced to hook up to city services if annexed.

Many county residents have spent large sums of money installing septic systems and drilling wells, and several of them questioned why newly annexed property owners would have to abandon those tanks and wells only to shoulder the additional expense of tapping into city water and sewer services.

"This code solves a lot of the problems that we're talking about here tonight. I just really question why we're all wasting our time except for those that are on city services."

Utah man faces prison after porn conviction

The Times-News and The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — An Orem, Utah, photographer accused of participating in an international pornography ring that included a 10-year man has been sentenced to 10 years in federal prison.

Danish police and resulted in arrests in Denmark, Switzerland, the Netherlands and the United States. At least 20 people were prosecuted, including Leslie Peter Bowcut of Burley. Bowcut was sentenced to 30 years to life in the Idaho State Penitentiary after he pleaded guilty in 5th District Court to 14 counts of lewd and lascivious conduct with a child younger than 16. He also faces a federal charge of conspiring to sexually exploit children.

Police found Durborow used his photo business as a front for photographing children in sexually explicit poses. This included setting up a hidden video camera to film minors changing their clothing. Bowcut also ran a fashion model photography business in Burley, first called Paul Jones Photography and later named P.J. Crew, taking photographs of girls between the ages of about 3 and 17. Bowcut told the models he was taking photos for catalogs and advertising firms, but they said they were not pornography — were posted on the Internet and on a Web site Bowcut operated.

The police investigation showed that many of the people who Bowcut allegedly later traded Internet pornography with were subscribers to that P.J. Crew Web site.

Durborow was arrested at his home Aug. 12 on a tip from the U.S. Customs Service. He pleaded guilty March 19 to reduced charges of child exploitation and child pornography distribution.

U.S. District Judge Paul Cassell handed down the prison sentence Wednesday and also ordered Durborow to participate in a treatment program.

Defense attorney Wendy Lewis said Durborow was a minor participant in the pornography ring. The investigation, which police called "Operation Hamlet," originated in November 2001 with

West Nile claims two; progress reported

The Associated Press

Elderly women in New Mexico and Colorado have died of West Nile virus, state health departments in the two states said Monday. In Mesquite, the first victim of a new West Nile virus vaccine for birds showed that an injected version prevented deaths, federal health officials said Thursday. Although it would be impossible to capture and inject millions of birds to prevent the spread of the virus, an effective vaccine could be used to protect threatened and endangered species.

Four years after the virus first appeared in the Western Hemisphere, little is still known about West Nile. Health officials say the bird-vaccine study will add to existing knowledge and efforts to develop a human vaccine.

Woman sues polygamist clan for abuse

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A woman who escaped from her polygamist clan at the age of 16 after years of abuse has filed a lawsuit against the family, seeking millions in damages for "the harm they have caused."

Mary Ann Kingston, now 22, filed the suit in state court Aug. 11, naming 242 family members and 97 businesses operated by the clan in and around Utah's Wasatch Front.

The suit seeks more than $110 million from what Mary Ann Kingston called a "secretive religious society and economic organization" that teaches and promotes sexual abuse of young girls through illegal and underage marriages, incest and polygamy.

Members of the family refer to their society as the "Order," the suit says.

Kingston was born into the family and was told by her father, John Daniel Kingston, one of the clan's leading figures, that she would become the 15th wife of his brother, David Kingston, when she turned 16.

Mary Ann Kingston listens to one of her attorneys Thursday in Salt Lake City.

She was eventually married to David Kingston and was later beaten by her father for attempting to flee. Her father pleaded no contest to second-degree felony child abuse and was sentenced to 28 weeks in jail. Her uncle-husband was recently released from prison after serving nearly four years for third-degree felony incest and unlawful sexual contact with a minor.

"I am pursuing this lawsuit with the hope that other young girls and boys in the same position that I was in will see that the leaders of the Kingston organization are not above the law, even though they tell us that they are," Kingston said. "I also hope that the people that we are bringing this lawsuit against, will realize the harm they have caused and continue to cause and that they will change their ways."

A message left with the law offices of one of the group's attorneys, Carl Kingston, who is also named as a defendant, was not returned Thursday.

The Kingston clan, also known as the Latter Day Church of Christ, is believed to have more than 1,000 members and a $150 million business empire in six Western states, based mainly in the Salt Lake Valley. Marriages of half-sisters, first cousins, nieces and uncles are part of their religious beliefs.

The clan is not part of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, which practices polygamy widely until the 1850s when church leaders renounced it as a condition for Utah statehood. Polygamists are now excommunicated from the Mormon church.

Kingston now lives outside the group, has a job and is married. She declined to answer questions after delivering her statement. Her attorneys would not say where she lives now.

Her plight came to public attention in 1998, when she fled a clan ranch, walked two miles to a gas station and called police, alleging she had been severely beaten and rebelling against the arrangement. In December 1998, the Salt Lake Tribune named her "Utah's of the Year" for her courage in bringing to light the abuse she endured in the closed society.

Developers drop Bear River dam idea citing economics

POCATELLO (AP) — Developers have given up on building a hydroelectric dam on the Bear River below the Oneida Narrows Reservoir.

Officials from Symbiotics LLC, a Rigby-based company, voluntarily withdrew a preliminary permit application to build the diversion. "It just wasn't economically feasible," said Hart Evans with the Ecosystems Research Institute. "There just wasn't enough water."

His Logan, Utah-based firm handled data collection for Symbiotics. The project involved a 15-foot-high earthen diversion dam.

Three environmental groups filed protests against the dam. Idaho Rivers United Executive Director Bill Sedivy said his organization felt the project was purely speculative.

The proposal was one of more than 250 permit applications for hydroelectric plants filed nationwide by Symbiotics. More than 50 proposals were abandoned, Evans said.

Dams are one of the most destructive things man has done to the environment in the past 200 years, Sedivy said.

Yellowstone reopens roads at east, west ends of park

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — The east entrance to Yellowstone National Park was reopened Thursday as firefighters made progress against wildfires in the area.

Visitors arriving at the park in time for the Labor Day weekend will be allowed to travel on the road only during three-hour periods in the morning and evening and must follow other restrictions, such as a 25-mph speed limit. Some places are still smoldering, fire-weakened trees line the road and firefighters continue to stamp out hot spots.

Authorities also allowed some travel to resume, with escorts, on U.S. 191 between Bozeman and West Yellowstone, Mont. A section passing through Yellowstone was closed a day earlier when a fire blew over the highway.

All Yellowstone attractions and services have remained open.

In Montana, about two dozen families in Marina City were able to return to their homes Thursday a day after strong winds blew embers from a fire across a reservoir. Strong winds late Wednesday also caused problems for other fires in northwest Montana.

Both of those guys are boneheads

DEAR ABBY: I am so confused. I can't decide with whom I should spend the rest of my life. My ex-fiance, "Ramon" is in jail. Ramon was a drug addict and is responsible for my bankruptcy. He swears he will be a changed man when he is released. There's also my ex-husband, "Fred." We were married for 10 years. He's the father of my two daughters. Fred swears on a stack of Bibles that he, too, has changed. Both of them want me back.

Ramon is still very demanding, jealous and accuses me of cheating. Believe me, I've had plenty of opportunities, but I haven't acted on any of them.

Fred has remarried, but says he will dump his wife to marry me. Fred hit me a couple of times while we were together - but truth be told, he is more of a mouse than a rat.

What should I do? I can't go to my family. They hate Ramon and Fred, but I love them both.

the minor leagues. Ramon and Fred are your eyes for good reasons. If I were you, I'd explore a third option. However, before doing so, I'd take a break from men for a while.

DEAR ABBY: For the past 15 years I have been best friends with a man I'll call James. We're both in our mid-20s. I always thought James and I told each other everything. Over the years we've shared some good and not-so-good times. He's been like a brother to me.

Recently, a mutual friend, "Kate," told me that James is gay. I am struggling with this news, because if it's true, I never had a clue. To complicate matters, for the past year I've been falling in love with him.

I need to confront James about his sexual orientation, and I also feel an urgency to tell him how I feel about him. But I don't know how to begin this "truth session." Please help me, Abby.

- NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS TO KNOW: Stay calm. Invite James over for coffee and a chat. There is no reason to beat around the bush. Tell him you would like to share some interesting gossip you heard from Kate. Then tell him what she said. Because she said it, doesn't make it true. His reaction will tell you what you need to know.

PS: If it is true, James is still the same wonderful friend you've always had. Remember that.

DEAR ABBY: I have an old acquaintance, "Ralph," whom I hadn't seen for some time. He recently dropped by my home, and told me with great pride about his new business Web site. He said I should look it over. After he left, I did. Abby, it is awful! It is filled with misspelled words, boring graphics, and redundant text. It's impossible to know exactly what his business is or what services he has to offer.

Ralph has not expressly asked for my opinion. If he does, should I be honest?

- A FRIEND WITH A FRIEND
IN NEED

DEAR FRIEND: If he asks you, begin by pointing out the spelling errors. If he's open to that constructive criticism, and you have the time, point out that the graphics and text could use a little "weeding" - and give specific examples. If the situation were reversed, wouldn't you want to know?

Relationships could turn volatile for Virgo

BY: AUGUST 29 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY... you're known by others to be different, someone who likes to call the shots, you're independent and used to going your own way. You can be sensitive and moody. You're best self-employed and would be good working in the security field. At times, you're finely-tuned to unseen forces.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): A romantic interest gives you concern. Evening is best spent with happy people.

Taurus (Apr. 20-May 20): You feel animated and in a romantic mood. An older relative or friend may remind you to give a helping hand in a health matter. Short-distance travel may be hazardous.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You're busy taking care of work projects. You may also be shopping for household appliances. You're in a spend-happy mood - but restrain yourself!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Travel brings back forgotten memories, and you feel nostalgic. It's an invitation this evening, 7:30 (July 23-Aug. 22): Close kin want to gossip, but you're far too involved in property and financial matters to waste time shooting the breeze. Flirt in your house of romance rouses your passion into desire territory.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The exact opposition of Jupiter and Uranus in your sign could cause sparks flying in a relationship. Speaking your mind will certainly clear the air but may be hazardous for your love life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your imagination is working overtime, and your head is buzzing with all the asks you have to complete today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): There should be positive news today from a friend or from dealing with large organizations. Assistance promised to you may not be forthcoming.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): For early Sagittarius (those born in late November), Lady Luck is smiling. Some good news, having to do with both your home and career, puts you in a happier frame of mind today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Being cautious, you have support today from well-wishers when you speak the truth. Watch your belongings, guard your assets.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A new friend could be jealous of sexual and loving overtures being made in your direction.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): You're full of get-up-and-go and can outperform any strategy, just as long as you have a job.

Ford may be the father of charcoal as well as cars

The original Henry Ford wanted to recycle scraps from wood panels on Model T cars. So he developed the charcoal briquette and built a plant with Thomas Edison to make same. Eventually, he turned the business over to another partner, Charles Kingsford. Some people, therefore, label Henry Ford "the father of modern outdoor cooking."

How many words of three letters or more can you make from letters in the word "winters"? Average is 20. Go for 31. That's rated good.

"Twas that sage Roman Seneca who said, "Malice drinks half its own poison."

On the day of the hanging in 1834, a lively crowd of onlookers gathered in Pembroke, N.H. But an official interrupted the hangman to announce a reprieve. The crowd rioted. Today, those who want executions televised insist that old "show must go on" notion never influence such stunts. Not a beworthy nation, what?

Could be you've never eaten a fried dill pickle. It's a highly popular snack down around Mississippi's Natchez.

Most Old West lawmen wore rough-and-ready clothes, but not Wild Bill Hickok. Two six guns, yes, plus a knife in a sash. But also an elegantly tailored European-styled suit with satin lapels and always a silk tie. He owned a lot of silk ties. Liked them.

That philosopher George Santayana wrote, "A child educated out of school is an uneducated child."

Remnants of old deleted unwanted phrases from their writings by overdrawing same with lattice-work of lines - called "cancelli." Whence our word "cancel."

One British soldier dies in attack in Iraq

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Gunmen opened fire with small arms and rocket-propelled grenades on a British convoy trapped between two angry crowds in southern Iraq, killing one soldier and wounding another, the British military said Thursday.

The soldiers were returning from a raid when about 30 people blocked their route in the town of Ali as-Sharqi on Wednesday night, British Lt. Cmdr. Richard Waters said.

The soldiers moved around that crowd, only to be stopped by a second group of people blocking the road near Fort Jennings, he said.

The latest death brings the British toll in the war to 49, with 11 of them killed since May 1 when President Bush declared an end to major fighting. Since that date, 143 U.S. soldiers have died—five more than during the fighting.

Two U.S. soldiers died Wednesday in separate attacks in Baghdad and Fallujah, 30 miles to the west, the U.S. military said. A third soldier reportedly died separately of a non-hostile gunshot wound.

The deaths brought to 281 the total number of American soldiers killed since the war began on March 20.

U.N. workers feared for safety before bombing

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Even before the fatal bombing at the United Nations headquarters in Iraq, anxiety was growing among its staff as the summer wore on and security deteriorated, U.N. officials said.

A U.N. World Food Program had come under grenade attack July 6 in the northern city of Mosul, killing an Iraqi driver. Two weeks later, assailants attacked a Red Cross vehicle, killing an aid worker from Sri Lanka and wounding the Iraqi driver.

A security plan to fortify the world body's operations in Iraq had been sent to the New York headquarters, where it was awaiting approval at the time of the Aug. 19 suicide truck bombing, said a senior U.N. official, who like other U.N. employees contacted by The Associated Press would speak only on condition of anonymity.

But an attack of that magnitude had not been envisioned. And even if the world body had implemented the planned security measures before the bombing, the steps would not have protected the hotel from such a massive blast.

U.S. bombs suspected Taliban positions

KANDAHAR, Afghanistan (AP) — U.S. fighter jets and helicopters bombed suspected Taliban hideouts Thursday in Afghanistan's rugged southern mountains following intense battles between the insurgents and Afghan troops, officials said. The troops were trying to flush out the Taliban from Zabol province when the guerrillas attacked with heavy machine guns in the Chinaran mountains. Haji Granai, an Afghan military commander, told The Associated Press by satellite phone from Chinaran.

Also on Thursday, Col. Rodney Davis, spokesman for the U.S. military at Bagram Air Base, just north of the capital, Kabul, said a band of insurgents attacked coalition forces near the village of Slikin in eastern Paktika province Wednesday. The guerrillas fired small arms and rocket propelled grenades at the coalition soldiers, he said.

Intelligence community: Were we duped by Iraq?

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Frustrated at the failure to find Saddam Hussein's suspected stockpiles of chemical and biological weapons, U.S. and allied intelligence agencies have launched a major effort to determine if they were victims of bogus Iraqi defectors who planted disinformation to mislead the West before the war.

The goal, according to a senior U.S. intelligence official, "is to see if false information was put out there and got into legitimate channels and we were totally duped on it." He added, "We're re-interviewing all our sources of information on this. This is the entire intelligence community, not just the U.S."

The far-reaching review was started after a political firestorm erupted earlier this summer over revelations that President Bush's claim in his State of the Union speech that Iraq had sought to import uranium from Niger was based on forged documents.

Although senior CIA officials insist defectors were only partly responsible for the intelligence that triggered the decision to invade Iraq last March, other intelligence officials now fear that key portions of the pre-war intelligence may have been flawed.

As evidence, officials say former Iraqi intelligence operatives have confirmed since the war that Saddam's regime sent "double agents" disguised as defectors to the West to plant fabricated intelligence. In other cases, Baghdad apparently tricked legitimate defectors into funneling phony tips about weapons production and storage sites.

"They were shown bits of information, and led to believe there was an active weapons program, only to be turned loose to make their way to Western intelligence sources," said the senior intelligence official. "Then, because they believe it, they pass polygraph tests . . . and the planted information becomes true to the West even if it was all made up to deceive us."

There is growing concern, said another U.S. intelligence official, that "people were just telling us what we wanted to hear."

Saddam's motives for such a scheme may have been to bluff his enemies abroad, from Washington to Tehran, by sending false signals of his military might. Experts also say the dictator's defiance of the West, and its fear of his weapons of mass destruction, boosted his prestige at home and was a critical part of his power base in the Arab world.

Roll out the wagons

Ketchum celebrates Wagon Days this weekend

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM - Wagon Days has been turning back the pages of time since 1955 in its mission to commemorate the late 1800s when Ketchum's giant ore wagons hauled ore out of the mountains. This year, organizers will turn back a couple more pages with a mountain man rendezvous. The rendezvous is designed to commemorate the early 19th century when the fur traders and trappers moved up and down the Wood River Valley in search of beaver pelts.

"It's part of the history of this area that's never been fully explored or portrayed," said Ivan Swener, who has spearheaded the effort to start up an annual rendezvous.

The Smoky Mountain Rendezvous will be held through Sunday in Festival Meadows - the grassy pasture next to Our Lady of Snow Catholic Church on Sun Valley Road.

At least a dozen mountain men dressed in buckskins they've tanned themselves will live in canvas tepees and shelters, cook their meals in black kettles, display old rifles and pistols, sell handmade crafts and demonstrate hatchet throwing and other old-time games.

Wagon Days Committee member Ron Brans hopes it will become an annual tradition that will expand through the years, much as the Big Hitch Parade, which rolls out Ketchum's trademark ore wagons on Saturday.

"These kinds of things can be huge - people love them," he said. "Just shy of 100 historic wagons and horse groups are expected to take part in the parade, which is one of the largest non-motorized Western parades in the Northwest."

The event brings an estimated 15,000 visitors to Ketchum and pumps $4 million into local businesses in what's perceived as the

Chad and Jeremy reunite for Wagon Days

Folk duo will give concert on Sunday

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM - Yesterday's gone - or is it? Aye, mates, that'll be Chad and Jeremy you see back on stage this Sunday as the pair sing in public for only about the second time in 16 years.

As a matter of fact, you might be hearing a lot more of the duo's sweet folkish harmonies. They plan to use their concert on Sunday as a springboard for a national concert tour and for their new CD, which they have been recording the past couple weeks in Halley.

Longtime British Columbia resident Chad Stuart, 69, and Jeremy Clyde, also 69, who used to bear a resemblance to Bob Dylan, were part of the British invasion that included Herman's Hermits and The Kinks.

Stuart was born outside London and educated at the Durham School and The Sorbonne in Paris. Clyde was a grandson of the Duke of Wellington. They met at a drama school that Sir Laurence Olivier attended and began singing in London coffeehouses for $15 a week and free meals.

Their "Yesterday's Gone" hit the Top 5 on the music charts in 1963 and was quickly followed by "If I Loved You" and "Willow Weep for Me" and "A Summer Wind."

Stuart moved to the Wood River Valley 13 years ago and has since carved out a niche for himself teaching guitar lessons, playing fiddle in the community musical "Oliver Twist" and, occasionally, singing in public with his daughter Beth who demonstrated she had inherited her Dad's vocal cords last year when she played lead in "The Sound of Music" for Laughing Stock Theater.

Initially, Stuart was sensitive about his public persona and very much intent on not performing publicly because of a feeling about being stereotyped. He also was skittish about interviews because he felt it had been unfairly portrayed in a People magazine profile.

But, a couple years ago, he organized a garage band featuring three teenage brothers - the Kettlers - and sang lead with them at Ketch, c.m. Alive, a free weekly concert offered up during months. The menu: large-format Beatles and Rolling Stones.

"We kind of canned him out of his shell when he played Ketchum Alive," said the event's organizer, Will Caldwell. "I noticed he was very much a stickler for technical excellence. He went the ninth degree to check out the sound - more so than anyone else we'd ever had."

Stuart said he and Clyde plan to sell their new CD celebrating 40 years of Chad and Jeremy on a Web site. The new work resembles the folk music that made the duo famous, Stuart said, even though they themselves no longer bear any resemblance to the lads with mop-top hardos and black-rimmed glasses of yesteryear.

Times-News correspondent Karen Bossick can be reached in Halley at 578-2111.

Chad and Jeremy will sing together for the second time in 18 years at Wagon Days.

O' Bossie will be one of 18 mules taking the Big Hitch ore wagons out for a spin during the Wagon Days parade, which begins at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Video watch

The Lord of the Rings: The Two Towers

Peter Jackson's second installment of the "Rings" trilogy doesn't just eclipse the first film in production design, CGI (computer-generated imagery), storytelling (with, of course, all appropriate credit to J.R.R. Tolkien) and performances from a constellation of daughts. In addition to the fine cast, including Gandalf (Sir Ian McKellen), Aragorn (Viggo Mortensen), Legolas (Orlando Bloom) and Gimli the Dwarf (John Rhys-Davies), there are ones that talk, rise and walk with lofty majesty; an extraordinary critter-cum-sax; of a hobbit (Andy Serkis) called Gollum; and a rousing, medieval-styled battle with a castle, siege weapons and a seemingly endless outpouring of Uruk-hai. And in the nether-center of this all, you can feel not just the power and sureness of Jackson's direction, but his boyish wonder: Contains but the carnage and some scary images.

From Justin to Kelly

If only the substandard film spun off of Fox's "American Idol" continued the television show's tradition of ridding aspiring newcomers from the stage one-by-one with a dose of its "you stink, find-another-career" reality. At least then there might be a reason to suffer through the movie's filler. And it's all filler, based upon the spring-break love connection between title characters Justin and Kelly, who experience many a romantic roadblock thanks to a professed text messages and a crumbling friend. Kelly Clarkson and Justin Guarini, the first- and second-place winners of the original "American Idol," lead the cast of mediocre actors, singers and dancers. Contains mild sexual overtones.

Levity

Ponderous and pretentious, writer-director Ed Solomon's heavy-handed humming into the indie-picture dark streets is a real-life resurrection of the big-time presence of Billy Bob Thornton and Morgan Freeman. Thornton is Mammal Jordan, a convict released from prison by a couple of buddies who come into town to help him. He's got a deal with Adele (Holly Hunter) the sister of Mammal's victim doesn't know his connection to her. As the preacher, that Mammal works for, Freeman plays a character who's a man of the cloth. Thornton's bungled grace has been seen in too many movies. He's become a badly shaved cliché. Contains drug use and obscenity.

Ketchum's St. Thomas Playhouse will stage the 'Wizard of Oz'

By Karen Bossick Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM - Holy munchkins! Now you can follow the yellow brick road - well, at least, Highway 75 - to a gender-fun play version of the "Wizard of Oz" than the 1939 movie version.

Ding-dong, the witch in this play is a crack-up. And the flying monkeys are so adorable you'll want to take one home.

The play, which runs Thursday through Sept. 8 at the nextStage Theater, is so Grated you can bring the youngest of children to see it, promises Director Anna Johnson.

"I've had parents tell me they never let their kids see the movie version of 'Wizard of Oz' because the witches and monkeys are so scary," said Johnson, artistic director for St. Thomas Playhouse. "That's not the case here. This one contains much more humor - I'll be brushing my teeth and I'll neck up, thinking about the way someone portrayed something."

The play version follows L. Frank Baum's 1900 book more faithfully than the movie, as it recreates the beloved story of a young girl who links arms and hearts with three unusual characters as she tries to find home.

One is a tin man who is off to the tin in a search for a heart. Never mind that he is so emotional his tears are rusting his body which, in this case, is made of car window visors and pieces of metal.

Another is a scarecrow who thinks he doesn't have a brain, despite the fact that he's the one with all the ideas. And the third is a cowardly lion.

"These four form a community as they encounter various challenges," said the Rev. Brian Baker, who will provide the comedic godlike voice of the Wizard.

"Jesus kept saying the community of God is at hand and it is right here if we're awake enough to see it," he said. "At the end of this play the characters realize everything they need is inside them. That they only need to look for a Wizard to supply it. The play really celebrates the human spirit."

Ease on down the road

- What: Ketchum's St. Thomas Playhouse will present L. Frank Baum's "The Wizard of Oz."
Where: nextStage Theater, Ketchum.
When: Thursday through Sept. 8, 6:30 p.m., and Sept. 6-7 at 1:30 p.m.
How much: Tickets, which are $12 for youth 18 and under and $19 for adults, are available at Chapter One bookstore in Ketchum or by phoning 726-5349, Ext. 13.

Dick Brown, who directs the Caritas Choral, will oversee the play's musical numbers with the help of valley newcomer Peter Kowitz. The play will include all the old favorites, "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," "Ding-Dong the Witch is Dead," "Follow the Yellow Brick Road," as well as a couple songs that are not in the movie.

The play features a principal cast of 34 characters, with 75 additional youth and adults playing munchkins, fairies, flying monkeys, witches and Emerald City Guards, who more closely resemble cowboys than the palace guard.

Sara Bradshaw, a 27-year-old alumna of the College of Southern Idaho theater department and the Northside Players, gets to wear Dorothy's shoes, which have been painted red with fingernail polish and covered with a hundred hand glued "rubies."

Bradshaw says it's an honor to reprise Judy Garland's role since she played the role Liza Minnelli - Garland's daughter - played in "Cabaret" two years ago.

"The Wizard of Oz" was one of the most amazing movies ever," she said. "It was a little scary sometimes but it was so colorful and the characters were so vibrant. The play itself focuses on the idea of discovering yourself, learning where home is and having faith."
Peter Kowitz will play the Tin Man, Quinn Orb, the Cowardly Lion, Dawson Howard, the Scarecrow, and Mike Craig, the Wicked Witch of the West.

Wagon

Continued from C1 last whoop-de-doo of the summer season, said Heather LaMonica, Wagon Days coordinator for the Sun Valley-Ketchum Chamber of Commerce.

"When I was 5, I was intrigued by the shootout," she said. "But now that I know some of the history behind the wagons, I love to watch them and imagine how they went up and down Trail Creek Road on a road just wide enough for them. And, of course, I hold my breath as I watch the mules try to make the turn onto Main Street."

Don't skeddadle out of town the moment the parade's over. It'll be followed up with a street dance featuring Mickey Braun and the Motorcars playing classic rock with a country swing at 4:30 p.m.

And on Sunday yet another throwback to the past - oldies-but-goodies Chad and Jeremy - will publicly sing their precious two-part harmonies for only the second time in 16 years during a free concert at the Great Wagon Days Duck Race.

They will appear with Reddick Kelly, the hard-driving Austin, Texas, country rock band featuring cowboy yodeler Muzzy Braun's other two boys: Willy and Cody.

Oh, and it pays to wax up your biggest belt buckle and come gizzupped up this year.

The Blackjack Ketchum Shootout Gang is offering coupons good for dinners for two to the Pioneer Saloon, Chester and Jakes, Full Moon Catering and Red Elephant Saloon to the guys and gals who show up in the most authentic pre-1900 Old West garb and the snazziest contemporary Western wear.

All you have to do is strut your stuff - that is, walk the streets with the Shootout Gang - for a few minutes, before one of the three shootouts. Just sign up before one of the shootouts, which begin at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday and at 12:15 p.m. Saturday on Main Street.

And one hint: No Nikes.

"We've been kicking around ways of getting spectators to dress up more for Wagon Days," said the shootout gang's ringleader Walter Cochran. "Maybe some of them will even want to join the shootout."

Phil Vassar brings country act to T.F.

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - This year, there's some post-Twin Falls County Fair entertainment. Contemporary country singer Phil Vassar will bring his act to Twin Falls airport, in the Twin Falls Arena, located south of Twin Falls, for a Thursday night concert. Seating in Twin Falls, which is located on South Washington Street one mile north of the Twin Falls airport, is on the lawn. Renee Andrew and Suzanne Just will be the opening act.

Vassar, a 41-year-old Virginia native, made his reputation in Nashville as a songwriter long before he picked up a microphone. His big break came when the son of pop crooner Engelbert Humperdinck told his dad about Vassar's music. and Humperdinck recorded Vassar's "Once in a While" in 1996. A publishing contract with EMI followed, and Vassar wrote hits for Collin Raye ("Little Red Rodeo"), Alan Jackson ("Right on the Money"), Tim McGraw ("For a Little While"), Jobee Messina ("Bye Bye") and BlackHawk ("Postmarked Birmingham"). By 1999, he was the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers Country Songwriter of the year.

If you go ...

Alison Krauss plays Ketchum

Bluegrass fiddler will perform on Tuesday night

The Times-News

KETCHUM - The Queen of Bluegrass is coming to town. Fiddler Alison Krauss, who succeeded like no artist before in spreading the appeal of mountain music, will play the Sun Valley Outdoor Arena with her band, Union Station, Tuesday night.

Mountain music

- What: Alison Krauss and Union Station will perform in Ketchum.
- Where: Sun Valley Outdoor Pavilion, located at 101 Saddle Road.
- When: Tuesday, 8 p.m.
- How much: Tickets, which are $39.50, can be reserved by phoning (800) 965-4827, online at <http://www.ticketweb.com>, or at Adkinson's Market in Ketchum.

Blending bluegrass with folk, Krauss' platinum-selling 1995 album, "Now That I've Found You," appealed to mainstream audiences. Then in 2002, she and other bluegrass artists recorded the soundtrack to the movie "O, Brother, Where Art Thou?" which led to a take that made her a household name - and bluegrass popular music.

The 33-year-old Illinois native was a fiddle prodigy as a child, winning the state fiddling championship at age 12. By the time she turned 14, Krauss had a recording contract.

A string of commercially successful albums followed, but Krauss didn't break out of the bluegrass niche until 1992, when she recorded the album "Every Time You Say Goodbye," which featured everything from "Orange Blossom Special" to the Beatles' "I Don't Know Why."

Three years later, "Now That I've Found You" made Krauss a star. The album reached No. 2 on the country charts and - even more remarkably - went into the pop Top Ten and sold over a million copies.

She's won five Grammy Awards, the latest for "O, Brother, Where Art Thou?" which featured Krauss, John Hartford and Ralph Stanley, among others.

'Northfork,' 'Le Divorce' hit M.V. theaters

New to the valley

'Jepers Creepers 2' - A busload of basketball players and cheerleaders represents marauding wheels for a voracious creature in this follow-up to the surprise 2001 hit. Written and directed by Victor Salva. With Ray Wise, Jonathan Breck. (R, for horror violence and language.)

'Le Divorce' - James Ivory's deliciously droll adaptation of the Diane Johnson tragicomedy of manners about Americans in Paris. Naomi Watts and Kate Winslet are the free-spirited Californians mystified by the rigid social conventions of their host country, personified by the delightful Leslie Caron and Thierry Lhermitte. PG-13 (discreet violence, sexual candor, profanity.)

'Northfork' - This visual sonnet - set in 1955 in a Montana frontier town about to be flooded to make way for a hydroelectric dam - is both poetic and systematic. Written by Mark and Michael Polish and starring Nick Nolte and James Woods. PG-13 (death, gunplay.)

'The Secret Lives of Dentists' - A brisk, witty, sophisticated and intelligent depiction of the seemingly idyllic life of married dentists (Campbell Scott and Hope Davis) in which a very self-contained and capable husband and father discovers his wife is secretly not nearly as happy with him as he is with her. Civilized, adult fare from a durably acute and distinctive director, Alan Rudolph. With Denis Leary and Robin Tunney. Written by Craig Lucas, based on a Jane Smiley novella. (1.44).25. R, for sexuality and language.)

Continuing

'American Wedding' - A glibfest that makes the audience giggle at least twice as often as giggle, this third in the American Pie trilogy whipsaws the audience between gross-out and guffaw. With Jason Biggs, Alyson Hannigan, Seann William Scott and the sublime Eugene Levy. R (profanity, sexual candor, raunchy humor.)

'Bad Boys II' - Martin Lawrence and Will Smith are back as maverick cops wreaking havoc and hunting down hoods in this wham-bam two hours and 26 minutes of raucous, shootouts, over-the-top car chases and lots and lots of yelling. It's a turbo-charged sequel, and while there are awesome stunts and spectacle, the whole thing's exhausting. R (violence, sex, profanity, drugs.)

'Bruce Almighty' - Jim Carrey with Divine powers? Heaven help us! Heaven - in the form of Morgan Freeman as God - Carrey, an aspiring TV news anchor in 'Bruce Almighty,' a disarming comedy about the uses and abuses of omnipotence. PG-13 (profanity, sexual content, crude humor.)

'Finding Nemo' - Who lives in an anemone under the sea? Little Nemo! When this frisky orange clownfish (think candy corn with fins) breaks free from the Great Barrier Reef, he proves to his timid dad that there is nothing to fear but fear itself.

James Woods stars in 'Northfork.'

Big box office

Last weekend's top-grossing movies:
1. 'Freddy vs. Jason,' New Line.
2. 'S.W.A.T.,' Sony.
3. (tie) 'Freaky Friday,' Disney.
4. (tie) 'Open Range,' Disney.
5. 'The Medallion,' Sony.
- Source: Exhibitor Relations Co.

Though not as great as 'Toy Story 2' and 'Monsters, Inc.,' Pixar Animation movies that are the gold standard for family movies, 'Finding Nemo' is a delightful underwater adventure. G (scenes of loss, separation and suspense)

'Freaky Friday' - Jamie Lee Curtis and Lindsay Lohan are unpredictable and inspired in the otherwise cheesy remake of the movie about the misunderstood Mom and misunderstood Teen who have new appreciation for each other when they exchange bodies for a day. 1 hr. 33 PG (coarse language)

'Freddy vs. Jason' - The psycho killer of 'Nightmare on Elm Street' meets up with the psycho killer from 'Friday the 13th,' and the two slasher-franchise stars let it rip. Connoisseurs of gratuitous female nudity, grisly dismemberments and gnarled chunks of charred flesh will not be disappointed. R (violence, nudity, profanity)

'Tara Crowe Tomb Raider: The Cradle of Life' Angelina Jolie is back as the British babe archaeologist in a somewhat fletcher and more engaging follow-up. Our pisto-packin' heroine trizes around the globe in search of Pandora's Box while a Nobel Prize-winning madman is hot on her heels. PG-13 (action, violence, sex)

'The League of Extraordinary Gentlemen' The movies always need big heroes and villains and comic books are one of the few remaining resources that can satisfy their hunger for characters of a mythic scale. But the movies don't always do right by comics, and to judge by this latest comic to hit the big screen, it's clear that the problem isn't with the source material: Comic books aren't giving movies a bad name - it's the reverse. A cheeky pastiche of late 19th century manners and late 20th century attitude about a quintet of unlikely avengers, the original comic was written by Alan Moore and illustrated by Steve O'Neill. At the center of the story are characters plucked from five famous tales: Allan

Quatermain from H. Rider Haggard's 'King Solomon's Mines,' played by Sean Connery; Mina Harker from Bram Stoker's 'Dracula' (Peta Wilson); Jules Verne's 'Captain Nemo' (Naseeruddin Shah); Robert Louis Stevenson's Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde (Jason Flemyng); and an invisible man (Tony Curran), modeled on H.G. Wells' character. The other leaguers are Oscar Wilde's Dorian Gray (Stuart Townsend) and the movie's own creation, the adult Tom Sawyer (Shane West), who has no business being in this movie or any other. Director Stephen Norrington has a fine eye for production design and authentically epic-sized ambitions. What he doesn't have is a talent for working around a lousy script. (1.50. PG-13, for intense sequences of fantasy violence, language and innuendo.)

'The Medallion' - A delightful Jackie Chan adventure, brisk, light and amusing which pits Chan's Hong Kong police inspector - or against an international crime lord (Julian Sands) intent on possessing an ancient Chinese medallion that confers supernatural powers. Terrific action sequences, superior production design and cinematography - and a beautiful and witty leading lady, Claire Forlani. (1.30. PG-13 for action, violence and some double entendres.)

'My Boss' Daughter' - Young exec Ashton Kutcher house-sits for the boss, and tries to save off-tender. With Tara Reid, Jeffrey Tambor and Andy Richter. Directed by David Zucker.

'Open Range' - Kevin Costner directs, and stars with Robert Duvall, in this wondrously strange, loping throwback of a western about two crusty cowpokes facing off against a nasty rancher and his thugs. Annette Bening also stars. R (violence, profanity)

'Pirates of the Caribbean' - An improbably entertaining, if overlong, adventure that brings new meaning to the term 'summer camp.' Doubloons! Rippled bodices! Unbuckled swords! Krum! 'Pirates of the Caribbean' has it all. PG-13 (violence, sexual innuendo, skeleton zombies)

'Seabiscuit' - Gary Ross' corny but effective adaptation of Laura Hillenbrand's bestseller turns the tale of turf, meow! and triumph into a New Agey tribute to the broke-down horse who heals three broken men. Starring Jeff Bridges, Tobey

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL PREVIEWS

The Lions' roar

Lighthouse Christian football coach Nick Karavedas starts each practice with a hitting drill 'to set the tone' for his first-year program. 'Christians can play football,' he said. The Lions open tonight at 7 p.m. on the road against Hansen.

Lighthouse Christian's new football team plans to play like Christians, but plenty tough

By Scott Thompson
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Lighthouse Christian football coach Nick Karavedas was bent over at the waist, a look of disgust on his face as he screamed at his first-year program. "Deliver the blow," he yelled. "Don't catch it. Be the aggressor." There will be no turning of the cheek between the lines and before the whistle under the watchful eye of the fiery and intense Karavedas. "I want people to see that you can be aggressive and passionate and that you can hit and still be a Christian."

full throttle, even angry at times. He opens each practice with a hitting drill "to set the tone," he said. "You play like you practice." When there's a lull, Karavedas is all over the team. "I thought you guys said you were excited about football," he screamed at another point in the early season practice two full weeks before the Lions' first-ever football game at Hansen tonight. "It doesn't look like it to me."

Lighthouse will play a half varsity, half junior varsity schedule, starting tonight at 7 p.m. against

Tigers aim to turn tide

Burley bases hopes on experienced O-line

By John Derr and Scott Thompson
Times-News writers

After some tough years that have seen the Tigers win just seven games in five seasons, optimism abounds this season on the Jerome football field. Two of those wins came last season against Class 3A Buhl and Wood River, but the Tigers dropped their final seven games by an average margin of 15.9 points, including a 41-6 loss to Twin Falls and a 37-0 thumping at Blackfoot.

Second-year head coach Terry Wadley shrugged off the two blowouts, instead, focusing on the handful of games lost due to late game mistakes.

"We were in all but a few games, we had close losses at the end of the games," he said.

Burley soared to the conference title behind standout running back Jed Thomas and an equally impressive offensive line. And the Tigers are going as far as the offensive line takes them again.

That's the assessment of first-year coach Scott Palin.

"In a perfect world, I'd like to run and pass 50 percent of the time," he said. "That's probably not going to happen this year."

The reason for that is simple: The big boys — Aaron Kibb, Brent Barlow, Cole Jones, Andy Sherrod and Eric Floyd — are largely the same unit that opened holes for the all-everything Thomas, who is gone along with almost all the skill players, including quarterback Matt Michel and receivers Adam Martin and Ryan Bailey.

At Jerome, the difference will be senior leadership and depth with 15 seniors and 30 juniors.

All-conference player Clay Swan (6-foot, 205 pounds) returns and will have an impact on both sides of the ball.

The Tigers suffered a setback at quarterback last week when senior Jed Seamons (6-0, 145) broke his collarbone in practice.

Seamons, who stepped into the starting role midway through last season and finished with 386 yards passing, will be replaced by sophomore Brett Boesiger to start the season.

He'll have some help from experienced players in senior running back Casey Schwanefeldt (5-9, 170), senior tight end Brett Hamilton (6-2, 190), and an offensive line that boasts five returning starters.

Those back are senior tackles Derek Jansson (6-1, 200) and Derrick Hoppe (6-1, 215), guards John Capps (5-9, 225) and junior Tanner Stratton (5-9, 210) and senior center Chance Jasso (6-0, 265).

T.F. school board updates age rule

TWIN FALLS — A new policy allowing ninth-graders to play in all varsity sports was approved Wednesday night by the Twin Falls school board. The change directly affects ninth-graders interested in playing varsity football, volleyball and boys and girls basketball.

Ninth-graders had needed to petition to jump levels for baseball, golf and tennis. Ninth-graders could already play at the varsity level in wrestling, track, softball, cross country and soccer because those sports weren't offered at the junior high schools.

Krumm era begins at Twin Falls

BRUCE SHELLEY/The Times-News

By Steve Turner
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Check the roster. One small, young football team, one first-year head coach — and a hefty pack of desire to bring a winning season to a stadium full of hopeful fans.

The Twin Falls High School Bruins finished last season with a 4-5 record, losing four of their final five games, and left the coaching staff room for improvement.

"Our main goal is to make the state playoffs this year," said Gary Game 1: For a preview of the Bruins' opener, see Page D4.

Krumm, 40, who is the first-year head coach of the Bruins. "It will be tough this year, because there's only two playoff spots in our region."

Krumm has high hopes for the team this year, though, despite the fact that the team is under-sized and inexperienced at this point.

The Bruins return four senior starters in quarterback Luc

CSI volleyball opens Salt Lake invite with two victories

The Times-News

SALT LAKE CITY — The Golden Eagles scratched out a three-game win over Western Nebraska Thursday night to open play at the Salt Lake Community College Invitational with two victories.

CSI defeated Western Nebraska 30-18, 28-30, 15-7 after sweeping Snow College 30-21, 30-19 earlier at the Bruins gym. The Eagles (9-1) almost let the match against Western Nebraska slip away.

"I thought we had the match won in the Game 2," said head coach Ben Stroud. "We were up 12-5 and then we quit playing. We looked terrible. Luckily we grew up enough in the third game and got the job done."

The key was a match-up between Andrea Santos and a Brazilian Fabiana Borsari. Borsari attempted 22 kills but only had six hit the floor with five errors. Santos recorded six kills.

"We shut her down," Stroud said. "That was the game plan."

Andrea Santos pounded down 10 kills while Eliane Santos added six spikes and made seven blocks. Endia Oliver added eight blocks.

"Endia had a real nice game blocking," Stroud said. "She's a big, big block. Those three are a pretty good combo."

CSI takes on the bulk of its schedule today with matches against Eastern Utah, a tough one against Lake Land (Ill.), then a rematch with North Idaho followed by a late match against Southwest Missouri-West Plains, the 2002 national runner-up, at 8 p.m. CSI came out flat in an error-filled match against Scenic West Athletic Conference member Snow College. Snow recorded 19 kills, one better than the Eagles, but 20 errors derailed the Badgers chances.

CSI's big edge was up front with 15 blocks, led by seven for Oliver. Snow's team total was two.

Andrea Santos and Via Felipe each had four kills while Amber Bloom and Eliane Santos had three apiece in a disjointed match.

Defense sparks ISU win over Montana-Western

By Jared Ehom

Times-News correspondent

POCATELLO — Idaho State formally announced its new starting quarterback — Roman Ybarra — after a thirny-five quarterback controversy...

and while Ybarra had a solid outing in his Bengals debut, it was the ISU defense that provided the spark ISU needed to get rolling in a 52-0 season-opening win over Montana-Western...

"There were some real good things that happened and some things we have to get better on," ISU coach Larry Lewis said. "But I'm happy with what we were able to accomplish out there tonight."

The Bulldogs were a high-powered passing machine in 2002 and ISU figured to come out with guns blazing against Idaho State Thursday night in Holt Arena...

With one play, however, Idaho State linebacker Josh Whitworth sent a message to the Bulldogs — ISU might bend a little on defense, but it certainly wasn't...

going to let the NALA squad break it. After UMW took the opening possession and woke the Bengals up with three quick first downs, Whitworth stepped in front of Travis Kirby pass, intercepted it and sprinted down the right sideline for a 75-yard touchdown leaving stunned 'Daws in his wake...

"That brought the team up," Whitworth said. "We have a philosophy that they are not going to get into that end zone. That was what I thought when I saw that ball."

Whitworth may have provided the big play that propelled ISU to the win. But the game was certainly the coming out party for Ybarra...

The transfer from Palomar Junior College showed his coaches made a wise choice by picking the UMW defense apart to the tune of 183 yards in two touchdowns — in the first half...

Ybarra's totals for the game were 224 yards on 22-of-28 passing with three touchdowns.

Twin Falls opens with QB battle

Bruins meet Century tonight at 7:30

By Steve Turner Times-News correspondent

Wide receiver Andy Stucki got around 200 yards receiving last year. He and Luke Butler will be the two targets we need to focus on.

-Bruins coach Gary Krumm

Luc Martin's brother. "We have a lot of young talent and they'll have a chance to make names for themselves," Krumm said.

The Bruins may be short a linchpin. Junior Cody Faught suffered a slight shoulder separation in practice and is a question mark for tonight's game, according to Krumm.

"Linebackers will be a huge factor in the game against Century," Krumm said. "We might play as well as they play."

"On the other side will be freshman defensive end, Nate Robertson (6-1, 200), a player that became available after Monday's school board meeting."

lights, and it will be a good opening game for the community. "The game could turn on mistakes. The team that makes the fewest mistakes, penalties, turnovers, and mental mistakes, will most likely win this game."

TWIN FALLS - Tonight, stay tuned for the battle of the Lukes, starting at 7:30 p.m. at Bruin Stadium. Quarterback Luke Butler leads the Century Diamondbacks.

Bruins head coach Gary Krumm said Butler is very good and had a great summer at football camp. But, Krumm added, "I have our own Luc."

Martin, 6-foot, 4-inches, 215 pounds, has the size and experience to be a vital factor to the Bruins' offense at the quarterback position. The Bruins have never defeated Century in three previous games.

"We need to get the ball to running back Alex Castagno," Krumm said. "We would like to get him 25 to 30 touches per game."

Other key threats for the Bruins offensively will be seniors A.J. Stone and Eric Snow, and junior tight end Joey Martin.

Century likes to blitz the A-gap on defense a lot, according to Krumm, so if the offensive line can protect for Martin, the Bruins will be able to throw successfully against the Diamondbacks.

Other key threats for the Bruins offensively will be seniors A.J. Stone and Eric Snow, and junior tight end Joey Martin.

Lions

Without a senior and virtually no high school football experience on the team, the Lions still expect to field a competitive team. "I have very high expectations for this team," Karavedas said.

"I'm very confident that no one has seen anything like this around here," junior tight end/backer Chance Calhoun said. "I don't think anyone's going to stop it."

"The Lions' strength should come at running back and on a line that should average well over 200 pounds," quarterback Powell Eaton said. "Even our big kids are fast."

"Several players' eyes bulged a little at this statement. Already, the Lions have been lifting weights as a team since October and practicing in 'camps' together all summer. They clearly didn't understand how things could become much more intense."

"Oh, yeah," Karavedas said. "I expect even more." Karavedas is also hoping that the football program will infuse enthusiasm and build momentum for the "entire athletic program."

"We would really like to thank Twin Falls," Karavedas said. "Friday night, Friday night, Friday night under the lights at Bruin Stadium. Wow. That will make a statement."

It is tough to say who is the face of Lighthouse football. It could be Sam Overacre, one with the wide smile and skin mawk "that's for intimidation according to a teammate."

"Or it could be Tyler 'The Swine' Marshall, the team's hardest hitter who gets into a hitting frenzy when he flips the switch. "He'll hurt people," Karavedas said.

Parry power guide puts teams in their place

Parry's Power Guide

Table with columns for Favorite, Rating, Week ending Aug. 30, Underdog, and Idaho Power Rankings. Lists teams like Century, Camas Co., and GLENN'S FERRY.

The power guide is compiled by Noland Parry of Pleasant Grove, Utah. Parry derives his rankings through a computerized program that Parry developed in 1979.

He originally designed the rankings in an effort to calculate where Brigham Young University's football team parlayed in the national polls.

Parry first published the guide in 1980. He has since revised and added high school football to the guide - the second year for Idaho high schools, including the first year for eight-man teams.

Previously, he had done a guide for Utah high schools. Parry also ranks NCAA Division I football, the National Football League, and pro, college and high school basketball.

Burley Bobcats

Head coach: Scott Flinn, first year.
Assistant coaches: Steve Satalo, RBN Jensen, Kent Jensen, Gary Elensohn, Jason Vanbuskirk, Art Silva, Jeff Lord.
2002 record: 5-4
2002 finish: Great Basin (4A East Pod 2) champions, lost play-in game to Madison.
Returning starters: QB Cade Jones (sr., 5-8, 160), FB Roy Meyer (sr., 5-9, 170), WR/DB Jake Gerritt (sr., 6-1, 175), TE/DL Brent Hines (jr., 6-3, 200), C/DL Cole Jones (sr., 6-0, 200), C/DL Aaron Kirk (sr., 6-1, 185), C Brad Burby (sr., 6-2, 300).
Key newcomers: RB Jake Martin (jr., 5-11, 175), Steve Elensohn (jr., 5-10, 150), WR/DB Wes Hadden (5-9, 155), WR Anthony Curial (6-2, 155), DL/DE Cannon (sr., 6-2, 185).
Season outlook: Seven returning starters hope to keep the Bobcats near the top of the 4A East Great Basin Conference race this season. Despite the loss of standout tackle Jeri DeWitt, the Bobcats compensate by bringing back linemen Aaron Kirk, Brad Barlow, Cole Jones, Andy Strad and Eric Floyd, largely the same unit that opened holes for Thomas a year ago. Cade Jones takes over for Matt Michel at quarterback as head coach in his first season as head coach. Bobcats are joined in Great Basin by Century, Jerome and Postlelco.

Coach says: "Our numbers are up, now we must raise every player's level of importance."
Jerome Tigers
Head coach: Terry Waitley, second year.
Assistant coaches: John Swan, John VanVliet, Des Case, Chris

Waddy, Eric Anderson, Marry Espinoza, Houston Finn, Sid Gaubies, Tim Anderson, David Spellerberg.
2002 record: 2-7
2002 finish: last in Great Basin (4A East Pod 2).
Returning starters: QB Jed Seamon (sr., 6-0, 145), RB/LB Clay Swan (sr., 6-0, 205), RB Casey Schwanzke (sr., 5-9, 170), TE/LB Brett Hamilton (sr., 6-2, 190), T/DEK Derek Jansen (sr., 6-1, 200), T Derrick Hope (sr., 6-4, 215), G John Capps (sr., 5-9, 225), G Tanner Patterson (jr., 5-9, 210), C Chance Jasso (sr., 6-0, 255), LB Zack Fleming (jr., 5-9, 180).
Key newcomers: RB Preston Hills (jr., 5-8, 165), WR James Bamberg (jr., 5-9, 165), WR Dillon Baker (jr., 5-11, 160), WR/DB Brady Black (jr., 6-0, 160), DL Brit Thiesen (jr., 6-3, 185), Aaron Kolsen (sr., 5-11, 180), DL Kasey

Child (jr., 6-0, 180), DL Jordan Jackson (jr., 6-0, 185), DL Josh Charles (jr., 6-0, 210), LB Ryan Musgrave (jr., 5-6, 140), DB Tyler Larsen (jr., 5-6, 140), DB Shane Humphries (jr., 5-5, 155), DB Stew Shaffer (sr., 5-10, 160).
Season outlook: Optimism runs high for the Jerome Tigers football team this season. Nine returning starters are back on offense, including the entire line, which should be able to open holes for senior halfback Clay Swan, who had 647 yards on 33 carries last season. The defense might be a little shaky with a green line, secondary and a new defensive backfield. Swan leads the Tigers into '03 at both tailback and linebacker, positions that he has started at for the last three years.
Coach says: "Our league is pretty equal this season."

The Jerome special teams unit practices kick-off returns earlier this week.

Milco Spartans

Head coach: Tim Perrigo, eighth year.
Assistant coaches: Steve Torik, Steve Hanchburg, Dennis Hakes, Doug Ginnell.
2002 record: 3-5
2002 finish: lost in regional state play-in game at Bonanza.
Returning starters: RB Trent Fousek (jr., 5-8, 150), DL Jacob Maguhn (sr., 6-3, 220), OLB Kev Schow (sr., 6-0, 175), OLB Matt Schow (sr., 6-2, 190).
Key newcomers: QB Cory Whitman (jr., 5-10, 165), WR Eric Kirby (sr., 5-10, 150), WR Charlton Coffey (sr., 6-0, 175), TE Cody Blighman (jr., 6-5, 205), G Brad Clark (sr., 6-2, 220), DL Kit Carney (sr., 6-3, 325), LB Rowdy Hakes (jr., 5-11, 180), DB Mike Conrad (jr., 5-10, 175).
Season outlook: The Spartans move up to Class 5A this year, before moving down for good to the 4A ranks next season. Coach Perrigo will have his team ready and raring to go down the claim that his team has a competitiveness up front. The Spartans are a young team, which will only improve as the season progresses.

They return players at both outside linebacker positions by Schow and Schow and should be solid with the addition of junior Rowdy Hakes.
Coach says: "A move back to 5A will provide a challenge. The young Spartans should improve as season progresses - look for our inexperienced team to surprise some teams at the end of the season."
Twin Falls Bruns
Head coach: Gary Krumm, first year.
Assistant coaches: Ed Pinger, Allyn Reynolds, Toby Cleave, Dan Vogt, Dave Slotten, Brent Sempke, Zach Heron.
2002 record: 4-5
2002 finish: 0-3 in Region III Four-Five-Six.
Returning starters: QB Luc Martin (sr., 5-8, 165), RB Parker Folkman (sr., 6-0, 190), RB Dean Bernhard (jr., 5-11, 145), RB Guy Kim (jr., 5-6, 145), RB/DB Zach Schaal (jr., 5-8, 135), WR A.J. Stone (sr., 5-11, 175), WR Craig

Lennitt (sr., 5-11, 175), WR/DB Randy Smith (sr., 6-2, 185), WR Mitch Noggle (jr., 5-10, 160), TE Joey Martin (jr., 6-4, 210), TE/DL/P Nate Robertson (jr., 6-4, 215), T John Coronado (sr., 5-8, 225), Beynon Borrett (sr., 6-2, 240), T Joey Wavra (sr., 5-11, 160), G Andrew Wilkin (jr., 6-1, 255), G Chris Kendrick (sr., 6-0, 200), G/LB Tom Patterson (sr., 5-9, 185), G/LB Dustin Russell (sr., 5-11, 185), C David Van Eys (jr., 5-10, 210), PK/PB Carl Ort (sr., 6-2, 170), PK Patrick Harris (sr., 5-9, 160), DL Lance Bailey (jr., 6-0, 250), DL Jesse Irie (jr., 6-1, 180), DL Dan Polisher (jr., 6-0, 185), LB Cody Fought (jr., 6-1, 160), DB Cameron Rosenau (sr., 5-7, 150).
Season outlook: Alumnus Gary Krumm takes over an embattled Twin Falls program that hasn't been in the playoffs since the 1999 season. In Krumm, the Bruins have a fiery, fiery and fierce competitor who refuses to have anything less than 100 percent from his team. In the Bruins, Krumm has a team on the senior leadership especially with senior leadership in quarterback Luc Martin and wide receiver/defensive back A.J. Stone, who was an all-region selection a year ago. Martin is back from an injury that kept him out for most of last year. The Bruins have equal parts experience and size, although traditionally the program has played small along the front line. Expect Krumm to have his Bruins ready and fighting in every game this season. The conference is strong with perennial power Highland, but the Bruins have a medium schedule with four, 4A schools on the schedule. There are high expectations for the Bruins to return to the postseason, if Krumm is able to guide the Bruins back to the playoffs, the "interim" tag ahead of his title could be forgotten. If any Bruin Stadium.

Coach says: "We can throw, catch and run the ball with anyone. I like our overall team speed and we have the capabilities to make big plays, offensively and defensively. Skill-wise, we have good depth everywhere. I think our kids have responded well to our new system. Overall, we are anxious and excited."

Burley

Palin hopes the experienced line will make a smooth transition to this year's skill players.
Cade Jones takes over the reins of the offense as the team's quarterback.
"I just couldn't be happier with my quarterback," Palin said. "He's a great leader. He's just the kind of kid I want leading my football team. A lot of people might question his arm strength, but he more than makes up for that."
Palin said Cade Jones has been practicing extremely hard all summer.
Jacob Martin takes over for Thomas, the school's all-time rushing leader in just about every category who is now at NAIA national champion Carroll College in Helena, Mont.
Defensively, Aaron Kirk at linebacker is turning heads.
"He's the heart and soul of my defense," Palin said. "I think the community is going to be very proud of the way we play defense. We fly around the ball. We will play defense and occasionally we'll get lucky and score. I know this, if we don't give up any points, we can't lose."

Cole Jones will also receive a lot of attention from opponents, where his quickness and strength make him a handful to block.
"He's a great high school player and, if he gets any bigger, he'll be a great college player," Milco coach Tim Perrigo said.
The key will be adding depth behind the starters.
And Palin hopes that all that will lead the Bobcats to build on last year's success, when the Bobcats finished 5-4 and lost to eventual state runner-up Madison in a state play-in game in a very close game.
"Coach Roper got us to the middle of the pack and I want to get us higher," Palin said.
Burt wins and losses are not where Palin is primarily focused.
Instead, he ticks off four goals: 1. Building community leaders; 2. Having a disciplined team on and off the field; 3. Being tough to beat - "If somebody beats us, I want them to know they've been in a war"; 4. Competing for a state championship every year.

5A

Martin, receiver Eric Snow, safety/receiver A.J. Stone and defensive end Dusty Scott, Krumm said.
Prior to this year, Krumm coached varsity football for 15 years in Burley, Kimberly, Wendell and, most recently, in Buhl, where his team went 6-2 during the regular season of 2002.
Krumm graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1981 and was a three-sport letterman in football, baseball and basketball. He lives in Twin Falls and said he has dreamed of coaching and teaching at Twin Falls High School.
Krumm said he brings a new program to the team, but will stick to his beliefs and philosophies he has used coaching in the past. "I don't have a miracle secret," he said. "I just like to focus on the detailed things and make sure our coaches and players are on the same page like they are now."
On that same page, the team members have positive things to say about their new coach.
Martin said that Krumm's system was hard to grab at first, but now the team is getting a hold of it. "He brings a winning football atmosphere to the team. Some of the new things he does are hand out T-shirts to hard-working players, and he has us bring rocks to practice with our daily goals to them," Martin said.

Krumm's main concern this year is the offensive line. "I am concerned with us up front, because we are undersized and inexperienced," Krumm said. "But I think we can make up for it with team speed. We have big-play capabilities, and a lot of depth defensively and at our skills positions."
Of the 85 players who came out for the team, just 24 of them are seniors, but many of the younger players are used to winning.
Another element that Krumm hopes to add to the team is emotion.
"One thing you don't need talent for is enthusiasm," he said. "Football is legalized violence, and I hope to bring passion and aggressiveness to the team."
Leading the team offensively will be 6-foot, 4-inch, 215-pound Martin. "We have a good chance this year," Martin said. "Our conference is tough and Highland will be a big test, but we should do real well. So far, our senior leadership has been very solid."

Anchoring the defensive side will be Stone (5-11, 170). "We're working very hard in our practices right now," Stone said. "Our first game against Century will be a tough one, and we'll find out how good we really are after that game."
Krumm said the schedule, for the upcoming season, which includes a number of 4A opponents, will offer various types of challenges for the Bruins.
"It's a good schedule because we play our non-conference games early so we can build up momentum and play the bulk of our conference games late and have success," he said.
Success would be music to anxious Bruin fans' ears.
Minico Spartans
Minico is looking for a successful season in its final stint in Class 5A. The young Spartans hope to surprise some people late in the season, led by experienced offensive line.
Minico football coach Tim Perrigo likes this year's 4A as an awful lot.
"It's just like it a whole lot better if it had a little more seasoning. We're very, very young," he said. "But I like their attitude and their work ethic and the way they compete. This is a team that you can win some games with by the end of the year."

The problem for the Spartans, who went 3-6 a year ago, is a lack of time as they play at the Class 5A level for one last season before moving back down to 4A in a year.
Minico has just 16 seniors and very few of them have seen much varsity playing time. Only four starters return - seniors Greg Schow, Jacob Maughan, Trent Fetzer and junior Matt Schenk.
As usual, defensive coordinator Steve Haugeberg's unit could be the strength of the Spartans. Schow, at middle linebacker, has been tremendous. "He's just playing unbelievably," Perrigo said. "He's aggressive and just getting after it. He has a real nose for the football."
The biggest question mark on that side of the ball is the defensive backs, Perrigo said.
On offense, junior Cory Warburton and senior Stegan Phillips have battled for the quarterback job, with Warburton getting the nod to start the season.
Phillips and Eric Killy could both see time at receiver along with Chariton Coats.

Fetzer and Valley transfer Brian Cavenver will give the Spartans a strong backfield, with Fetzer providing the speed and Cavenver the muscle to pound between the tackles.
Kody Bingham, a 6-foot-6 junior, has been impressive at tight end. The offensive line is the biggest - literally - concern on offense. "We're huge," Perrigo said. "If we lined things up right, we could go 300 pounds across the line. But that doesn't do you any good if you're not blocking any one. We're soft."
The competition certainly won't be. Idaho Falls will likely rely on a run-first offense.
"They should be able to run the ball immediately," Perrigo said. "They have a lot coming back on our offensive line."
Skyline went through its growing pains last year and played well by the end of the year. "They were real young a year ago but they improved by the end of the season and knocked off Twin," Perrigo said. "They should be a lot better."

Busch stays in spotlight

Kurt Busch earned his third Winston Cup win of the season Saturday night at Bristol Motor Speedway.

Don News Service

Brash driver's latest win draws ire of peers, fans

By Rick Minter
Cox News Service

BRISTOL, Tenn. — The brash, young, Kurt Busch won the 500 at Bristol Motor Speedway Saturday night, but his victory was not without controversy.

NASCAR's reigning bad boy, already on probation for an altercation with Jimmy Spencer at Michigan, continued his on-track attack on the veterans of the sport by knocking Sterling Marlin out of second place on Lap 372 as the two sped into Turn 1.

"He didn't even try to go under you, he just ran into the back of you," Marlin's team manager Tony Glover radioed his driver.

Said Busch to his crew: "Nobody's going to cut me a break tonight. Tell them I'm sorry."

Eight laps later he sped by Kevin Harvick and led the remaining 120 laps to get his fourth win of the season and the eighth of his three-year career. A good portion of the 164,000 fans in attendance boomed as Busch pulled into Victory Lane.

He apologized to Marlin, which drew more boos, then added that the incident with Marlin "some-what overstates things." Second-finishing Harvick said Busch gets booed because "he's a cocky, arrogant punk and he has a really, really bad attitude, but he can wheel a race car."

Jimmie McMurray finished third, followed by series points leader Matt Kenseth and Jimmie Johnson.

The race turned out to be far more eventful than the typical fender-bender that races at Bristol can become. There were a Winston Cup-record-tying 20 cautions.

Of the first 375 laps, 102 were run at idle speed as a result of nine caution periods. The most serious crash occurred in Turn 4 on Lap 89. Michael Waltrip lost control of his No. 15 Chevrolet while trying to pass his Dale Earnhardt Inc. teammate Jeff Green. Waltrip's spinning car slid down the track into the oncoming No. 2 Dodge driven by Rusty Wallace. Both cars were destroyed and Wallace was taken to a local hospital for observation. He was released

“ He didn't even try to go under you, he just ran right into the back of you. ”

— Sterling Marlin's team manager, speaking over the radio to Marlin after Kurt Busch knocked him out of the Sharpie 500

After tests showed no injuries, "(Green) squeezed me down a little bit, just doing his job, and I got down on the apron and went sideways," Waltrip said.

Just as he has for nearly every race this season, points leader Matt Kenseth got breaks when he needed them. First, he had a right rear tire begin to deflate on Lap 159. As he slowed on the track, traffic stacked up behind him and Busch wound up spinning Casey Mears. That brought out the caution and allowed Kenseth's crew to replace the tire without losing laps.

He got another break on Lap 223 when the caution flew for a spin between Ted Musgrave and Ricky Craven. Kenseth had been losing positions on the track, but the caution allowed his crew to make adjustments.

Then he took advantage of a late-race caution period to put on four new tires and charge into the top five at the finish.

Kenseth's teammate Mark Martin wasn't so lucky. After running in the lead pack and leading 49 laps, he had to make an extra pit stop on Lap 343 because he drove off with the catch can still attached to his car.

He restarted the race in 26th place and crashed a lap later after contact on the front stretch with the No. 4 Pontiac of Johnny Sauter.

POST-RACE NOTES

Gordon refuses to comment on Playboy article

By Rick Minter
Cox News Service

BRISTOL, Tenn. — Jeff Gordon found a way to quiet the questions about a Playboy article in which a former perfume salesperson discussed her alleged relationship with the four-time Winston Cup champion.

Gordon won the pole for the Sharpie 500 at Bristol Motor Speedway and he quickly indicated that he would not talk about the article featuring Deanna Merryman, who claims she had an 11-month affair with Gordon while he was married. "It's not even worth commenting on," Gordon said. "All I want to talk about is being fast at Bristol."

He turned a lap at 127.597 mph to break the event qualifying record, formerly held by Rusty Wallace. Thirty-three other drivers — including Wallace — also bettered the three-year-old mark of 125.477 mph.

Gordon finished the race in 28th place after being involved in a wreck.

Crew chief Parrott rejoins Sadler team after absence

Veteran crew chief Todd Parrott was back at work at Bristol, Friday, saying the problems that caused him to leave Robert Yates Racing earlier this year have been solved.

Parrott had been team manager for Dale Jarrett's No. 88 Ford and Elliott Sadler's No. 38. Now he's crew chief for Sadler.

"There were just some issues and some problems that we had, needed to be worked out," Parrott said. He also said he's put behind him the public criticism he got from Jarrett earlier in the year. "We're all come together, and we're excited to be back racing together," Parrott said.

Sadler finished 38th in Saturday's race.

Childress will give Kerry Earnhardt a shot in W.C.

The late Dale Earnhardt helped Richard Childress become a multi-millionaire car owner. Now it appears Childress is making a move to show his appreciation.

Childress said over the weekend that he's in the process of preparing a car for Kerry Earnhardt, Dale's 33-year-old son, to drive in selected Winston Cup events.

"We're probably going to give him a shot at it," Childress said. Kerry, brother of current driver Dale Earnhardt Jr., has raced in ARCA and Busch for the past few years with moderate success. He won his first ARCA race on Father's Day in 2000 at Pocono and registered three wins the next season.

But his career has gone backwards this year. He was dismissed from his FitzBradshaw Racing Busch team earlier this season and his talents were publicly criticized by team co-owner Terry Bradshaw.

But over the years, Childress has been known to hire from the heart. It worked with Robby Gordon, whose abilities were questioned when Childress first hired him but has now become one of the Winston Cup's top drivers.

It might happen again with the lesser known of the Earnhardt sons. "I think he deserves a chance," Childress said.

Deb Shops announces decrease in net sales

TWIN FALLS - Philadelphia-based Deb Shops Inc., a teen apparel retailer with a store in Magic Valley Mall, on Thursday said its second-quarter net sales decreased 4.8 percent to $73.0 million, from $76.7 million a year earlier.

For the quarter, which ended July 31, gross profit was $22.7 million resulting in a gross margin of 31.2 percent, versus year-ago gross profit of $28.9 million and a 37.7 percent gross margin. Net income fell to $2.7 million, compared with $7.3 million in the prior year, while diluted earnings per share dropped to 18 cents from 52 cents.

As of July 31, Deb had $152.9 million in cash totaling $11.17 per outstanding share; shareholders' equity of $177.2 million; and no debt.

"Economic softness in our core markets, poor weather in the first half of the quarter, and subsequent merchandising challenges, combined to negatively impact same-store sales for the quarter," said Marvin Rovnick, president and chief executive.

Deb Shops expects fiscal 2004 sales to be in the range of $290 million to $300 million - based on a projected low-double-digit comparable-store sales decrease for the second half of the year, slightly offset by net new store growth.

The year's earnings per share will likely range from 70 to 80 cents, said Deb, which earlier had forecast $1.25 to $1.30.

City engineer will speak at T.F. Realtors meeting

TWIN FALLS - The September general membership meeting of the Greater Twin Falls Association of Realtors will be held at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday at the Turf Club.

Gary Yang, city engineer, will be the speaker. A personal safety presentation is also planned.

Those who plan to attend the lunch meeting must fax notice to the association office at 734-5707 the day before the meeting. Anyone who makes a reservation and does not show up will be charged $8.75, the association said.

Rockies' blacks lag behind average in Web use

DENVER - Blacks living in the Rockies and parts of the West log onto the Internet in fewer numbers than in virtually any other part of the nation, according to a survey.

Just 33 percent of blacks in the region who responded to a survey by the Pew Internet & American Life Project said they use the Web. The region includes Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Utah and Wyoming.

Nationwide, the number for Internet usage by blacks was 42 percent.

Only the upper Midwest - Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin - ranked lower, with 32 percent of blacks using the Internet. The highest, 48 percent, was in the lower Midwest: Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Oklahoma.

Hispanics in the Mountain region, however, were more likely to use the Internet: 63 percent said they use the Internet, compared with 54 percent nationwide.

Overall, Internet use is strong in the Mountain states at 64.2 percent of adults, 18 percent higher than the national average of 59 percent but slightly below California, the Pacific Northwest and New England. The lowest usage is in the South, where just 48 percent log on.

The survey said Mountain region users are less likely than their peers nationwide to search the Web for financial and health information or to buy products using the Internet. Users typically have experienced that elsewhere, yet they prefer e-mail to surfing "just for fun" and typically log on at home using a relatively slow dial-up modem.

"Maybe it's because they're more experienced," said Tom Spöner, a research specialist with Pew. "They've seen what's out there and they're less inclined than the rookies to spend a lot of time surfing around the Internet."

Economy improves

Numbers raise hopes of second-half rebound

WASHINGTON - Idling for months, the economy finally shifted into a higher gear in the second quarter as consumers and businesses bought more and the federal government ramped up military spending on the Iraq war. The improvement reinforced the belief that the economy will pick up speed through the rest of the year.

The broadest measure of the economy's performance, gross domestic product, grew at an annual rate of 3.1 percent in the April to June quarter, according to revised figures released Thursday by the Commerce Department. That was faster than the 2.4 percent growth rate first estimated a month ago and came after two straight quarters of lackluster economic growth. GDP, which measures the value of all goods and services produced within the United States, increased at just a 1.4 percent pace in the final quarter of 2002 and the first three months of this year.

"The economy is rolling forward now with considerable momentum and there's no reason to think we won't have strong economic growth through the rest of the year," said Bill Cheney, chief economist at John Hancock.

The upward revision to second quarter GDP made economists feel even better about the prospects for a solid economic rebound in the second half of this year.

Some economists believe growth in the final six months of this year will clock in at a rate in the range of around 3.5 percent to just more than 4 percent. Others think it will be closer to a 5 percent pace. In either scenario, such a pace would be better than the 2.3 percent growth rate seen in the first six months.

More recent reports showing manufacturing on the mend, shoppers hitting the malls and

LIGHTEN UP

Montana backpacker, businessman trims his load

The Associated Press

BOZEMAN, Mont. - Ryan Jordan likes to keep things light. But that doesn't mean life is easy. Or inexpensive. Or that there's any lack of misery.

On the other hand, his combination of savvy, strong legs and high-tech products let him cover some incredible distances under his own steam. Earlier this summer, he walked 225 miles in the Beartooth Mountains in 10 days, carrying a pack that never weighed more than 20 pounds.

Now he's made a business out of his enthusiasm for ultralight-weight backpacking.

The 33-year-old Bozeman resident, who has a Ph.D. in civil engineering, also is the publisher, editor and ramrod of an online business called backpackinglight.com. The company puts new products through rigorous field testing, evaluating manufacturers' assertions and publishing the results for people who, as one reader described them, are "gear junkies."

Ryan Jordan looks over a sleeping bag under a tarp that doubles as a rain poncho Aug. 20 at his Bozeman, Mont., home. Jordan likes to keep things light, and has business out of his enthusiasm for ultralight-weight backpacking.

Jordan has been fanatically trying to reduce the weight of his backpack ever since he had a summer job in the Olympic Mountains, teaching Boy Scouts how to backpack. Then, about three years ago, he became increasingly frustrated with gear manufacturers who produced gear that either "didn't work or wasn't that light."

He started writing critiques of that equipment and a couple years ago turned those endeavors into a subscription-based Web publishing business.

Anybody can log on to his site for a sample, but premium subscribers pay $24.95 a year for full access to product reviews, editorials and writups of trips Jordan and others have taken.

His market research shows at least 40,000 people visit the site at least once a month. Their average age is 47 and they spend an average of $1,000 to $2,000 a year on gear.

These are not passive enthusiasts," he said of his readers.

Plus, lightweight backpacking gear is the fastest growing sector in the vast market for outdoor recreation equipment.

"Three years ago, you'd be hard pressed to find a 2-pound down sleeping bag," Jordan said. "Now, there's about 20 of them on the market."

But finding the best one is a challenge that's vexed volunteer gear testers - some say abusers - do their stuff.

None of those testers - they live in North America, Norway, Australia and New Zealand, and all are trained in science or engineering - receive any pay. But they get to keep the gear they test.

The Web site is now 2 years old. It accepts no sponsorship or advertising, but has gained enough credibility that manufacturers come to Jordan, asking him to test their stuff. He also works with them on product design.

And there's some amazing stuff out there. Most of it, Jordan said, comes from "cottage manufacturers." Jordan modeled some of it in his backyard recently.

His personal base kit weighs in at less than 6 pounds. That doesn't include food or water, but it does include clothing, a sleeping bag and pad, backpack, cookware and stove, and a first aid kit.

The alcohol stove weighs just 0.4 ounces. A titanium cup doubles as a cookpot and weighs in at 2.1 oz. His down sleeping bag is a 1-pounder and he beds down in a

Walgreen CEO: Company doesn't rely on acquisitions

Knight Ridder News Service

VANCOUVER, Wash. - Financial analysts have long praised Walgreen Co. for its homespun approach to expansion that shuns gobbling up smaller chains in favor of using its own money to buy new stores.

So it was all the more surprising this week when Walgreen announced it was buying 11 stores from the Vancouver-based H.S. School Pharmacy Inc.

"The acquisitions are very rare for us," said David Bernauer, Walgreen chairman and chief executive.

Walgreen's last significant purchase was in 1986 when it bought Medi Mart, a 66-chain pharmacy in the New-England states, said company spokesman Michael Polzin.

But to assume Walgreen's growth has been slow is incorrect.

The national chain, which has a new Twin Falls store, has repeatedly set industry standards in terms of design, harnessing technology and expansion of its food section. There are currently 4,120 stores in 44 states and Puerto Rico. The company intends to have 7,000 opened by 2010. Sales in 2002 were $28.7 billion, with 60 percent of that in prescription drug sales. Walgreen expects to invest $1 billion in 2003 in new and relocated stores, distribution centers and system development.

Walgreen's closest competitor, CVS Corp., operates approximately 4,100 stores and recorded $24.1 billion in sales in 2002.

Walgreen officials say the real driver behind its growth is an aging population and its increased reliance on medications.

"The baby boom generation is moving into its peak prescription years," Polzin said.

Much of the recent expansion has been in Florida, Texas, California, Arizona, Georgia and the Carolinas as retirees flock to warmer climates.

Walgreen first opened in 1901 as a single pharmacy Charles Walgreen ran in Chicago. By the 1920s, the company was growing in New York and Florida. It was also during this era that one of Walgreen's soda jerks created the malted milkshake, an eventual mainstay of soda fountains.

The modern day evolution began in 1981 when Walgreen created a companywide comput-

Audit certifies sustainable fiber use

The Associated Press

BOISE - An independent audit shows the tree fiber Boise Cascade Corp. obtains from the Northwest's forests for its paper and wood products comes from sustainable sources.

Certifying forests, started in the mid-1990s as environmental groups and consumers sought proof that the wood they were buying came from forests that had been managed to encourage sustainable forestry.

In 1995, the American Forest & Paper Association created the Sustainable Forestry Initiative. The program from the timber industry sets standards for logging operators, companies plant or grow more trees than are harvested each year.

The audit by PriceWaterhouse Coopers certifies that Boise Cascade's fiber procurement in the Northwest conforms to the initiative. It also recertified the Boise-based company's forest management practices on more than 300,000 acres in western Oregon.

"We believe forest audits are an opportunity to demonstrate that harvesting trees and protecting the environment are compatible objectives," said David New, company vice president of timberland resources.

In Magic Valley, Boise Cascade has a corrugated-container plant in Burley.

Environmental groups such as the Rainforest Action Network have rallied at Boise Cascade for either logging or merely buying wood from old-growth forests worldwide.

The company conducts certification audits every three to five years. The first audit in fiscal 2000 certified Boise Cascade on all timberlands in the United States.

Michaels sees profits increase

Knight Ridder News Service

IRVING, Texas - Michaels Stores Inc., the nation's largest arts and crafts chain, reported a 15 percent increase in fiscal second-quarter profit and earnings per share that beat Wall Street expectations.

Irving-based Michaels - which has a north-Twin Falls store - posted net income of $24.3 million, or 35 cents a share, in the period ended Aug. 2, compared with net income of $21.1 million, or 30 cents a share, a year ago.

The consensus estimate from analysts surveyed by Thomson First Call was 33 cents a share.

Revenue was up 7 percent to $616.5 million, and same-store sales, or sales at stores open at least a year, rose 1 percent.

The gas store's highest cost the company about $400,000 in sales.

"Despite the soft economic environment, we remain optimistic for a solid second-half performance. Next year is expected to average sales of $4.4 million this year, inching closer to the $5 million goal set by Rouleau when he joined the company in 1997.

Plans are to have a bigger selection of gift items in stores during the holiday season, he said.

T.F. mayor honors Magic Valley work force

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - Twin Falls Mayor Lance Clow on Thursday honored the Magic Valley work force - as well as the system that helps keep it competitive - by dedicating Labor Day to be IdahoWorks Day.

Gov. Dirk Kempthorne signed a similar proclamation this week. IdahoWorks, Idaho's work-force development system, is a collaboration of state and local organizations committed to creating a globally competitive work force in Idaho, said a statement from the mayor's office.

that the rate may stay at this low level for some time. Near rock-bottom short-term borrowing costs along with fatter paychecks and other incentives coming from President Bush's third tax cut should help boost economic growth, analysts said. Even if that happens, the job market could remain sluggish, however. "Despite the healthier economic outlook, the Achilles' heel of the economy is lack of jobs," said Sung Won Sohn, chief economist at Wells Fargo. The nation's unemployment rate, now at 6.2 percent, could hover

"I am pleased today to be able to dedicate the tremendous efforts of so many wonderful partners in the IdahoWorks system that help build our local work force," Clow said during a Thursday open house at the Labor Department's Magic Valley Job Service Office. Stocks rise in light trading

NEW YORK (AP) - Wall Street plodded through another quiet preholiday session Thursday, finishing with moderate gains after a last-hour surge of buying. Despite two upbeat economic reports, prices fluctuated in a narrow range for most of the session. Analysts attributed the market's attentiveness to concerns about an improving business climate that has already been factored into Wall Street's higher prices.

dent of Global Trends Investments in Newport Beach, Calif.

Thursday's biggest winner was the Nasdaq composite index, which closed up 18.05, or 1 percent, at 1,800.18.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 40.42, or 0.4 percent, to 9,374.21. The Standard & Poor's 500 index rose 6.05, or 0.6 percent, to 1,002.81.

Despite a slow week and erratic trading, Thursday's gains were the third in a row for the Nasdaq and S&P, something that analysts found encouraging - especially where the Nasdaq is concerned. When traders return from vacation, analysts said the market could have greater momentum.

"The Nasdaq keeps prodding along, and that is one thing that is going to be on the radar of our investors. As they come back from a long weekend and get re-engaged with their portfolios, they will realize the Nasdaq is at 16-month highs," Lydon said.

Trading was again affected by low volume, the result of many traders and investors being away on vacation.

This week (before Labor Day) usually is just dimly slow. Trying to make something exciting about this week is tough," said Thomas F. Lydon Jr., presi-

Coldwater Creek cuts losses

SANDPOINT (AP) - Strong retail sales helped Coldwater Creek Inc. stem its losses during the second quarter, company officials said.

50 retail stores led to a better than expected performance, Chairman Dennis Pence said. The women's clothing accessory brand cut its losses by $6 million, he said.

Jordan agrees that he endures a lot of misery, but mostly when he's testing products. When he's doing one of those 200-mile pleasure walks, it's actually very comfortable, he said.

For one thing, a light pack means you need less food. He eats about 2,000 calories of freeze-dried food a day, walks 20 miles a day and said he never loses any weight on his trips.

Tom Murphy agrees. He's a prodigious hiker, a well-known backpacker and long-term veteran of Park County Search and Rescue. People can get themselves in a lot of trouble with much stuff, Murphy said.

And lightweight materials can get expensive. He said a novice to lightweight backpacking can build a base kit that weighs 20 pounds for about $250. But the 50-pounder, the one where the only padding in your pack straps consists of your spare socks, will cost as much as $1,500.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Bobby Wolff

Only a fool would refuse to enter a fool's paradise... when that's his only paradise he'll ever have a chance to enter.

WEST: Q 10 5 3, K 9 7 5 3, A 8, K Q 10

EAST: A 9 8, K 7 4 3 2, J 7 3 1 2

Sometimes you can recover from the most apparently bleak of the cards if you can find the silver lining to your cloud. Here, after North drives to the heart game facing a vulnerable weak two in seconds...

Vulnerable: North-South Dealer: East The bidding: South West North East 2♥ Pass 4♥ Pass

Opening lead: Club ace BID WITH THE ACES South holds: K 7 5, Q 10 8 6 4, A 8, K Q 10

When the spade finesse wins, South cashes dummy's spade king, pitching a club, and ruffs a spade back to hand...

ANSWER: Make a negative double rather than bidding two hearts, which would be a sizable overbid.
