Sower decision heads to court

Sun Valley station owner wants judge to overturn City Council's rejection of tower plans

TWIN FALLS - The City Council is facing a court challenge of its decision not to allow a 120-foot broadcasting tower along Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

has asked 5th District Court to set aside the decision the council made on Aug. 18. In a 5-2 vote, members overturned the city Planning Zoning Commission's recommendation to Talkington and Gioria Gaian were the two council members who voted to accept the tower. Turner is proposing a United Paramount Network affiliate tele-vision station with supplemental Christian and regional program-ing the Twin Falls and Sun Valley areas. The idea is to air Bald Mountain. The full-service station would eventually run pro-gramming from the former ITHeriston Furniture building at 1440 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., where the proposed 120-foot tower would be located.

But there seems to be some question about how the city's ordinances regarding towers is worded. The ordinance says that 'unstaffed' towers that transmit and receive electromagnetic signals are not to be allowed on main arterial streets or residential neighborhoods. A possible problem arises in the Turner case centage of uninsured also hovered around 15 percent.

The 2002 increase would have been "twice as large or larger" if Medicaid, the public health program for the poor, and the State
Children's Health Insurance for low-income children, hadn't picked up the slack, said Robert forenstein, the executive director of the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, a liberal research group in Washington. Those programs increased enrollments by a total of 4 million last year. Many states are cutting them back now because of tight budgets.

The sour news on the uninsured

The sour news on the uninsured overshadowed the fact that in 2002 the total number of people with health care – 242.4 million – increased by 1.5 million over 2001.

The Census Bureau derives the findings from an annual survey of 78,000 households. Virtually all the survey's findings are at the 90 percent confidence level or higher. The piglish of the uninsured is one of the most crucial problems in modern medicine. People without coverage are more likely to forgo preventive care and seek treatment only when their librases require visits to hospital measurement only when their librases require visits to hospital measurement on the problem tends to be gravest advanced, and more costly to treat. The problem tends to be gravest for vascular diseases that have no overt symptoms in their early stages, such as hypertension, disbetes, heart attacks and stroke. In addition, cancers among the uninsured tend to be noticed at more advanced stages. Once the uninsured seek treatment, they are more likely to receive inadequate care and to die sooner, according to numerous studies.

The 2001 increases were across the board, among whites, blacks, Hispanics and all age groups, from 18 to 64.

TWIN FALLS - The costs of doing the county's planning and zoning duties have gone up, and county officials are looking to county residents to help pay the bills.

Among the things-county officials want to do is institute a new $150 fee for each final plat.

They're also looking to increase other fees by from $20 to $275.

State lawnakers passed a new law during the 2003 session that opened the door to allow counties to raise fees for county services. The last time legislators set the fees was in the early 1990s.

Counties can only raise the

As a board member of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce, and a strong supporter of downtown, 'he was the perfect kind of businessman and was a prime example of how to serve a community,' said the chamber's executive, Kent Just.

Everton helped the community by keeping his business local.

"He always said, This is home, and this is where we're going to stay," Just said.

Established in the early '30s, the family downed and operated business grew to employ more than 50 workers. The company was honored in 1998 with the chamber's Charter Member Award for its leadership and support of the community.

Everton began commaging the family business in 1959 after their father, the lage Rulon Everton, retired.

With the exception of Larry's three-year statt in the Army, 'we will be any small business, we did all that could be done," elder brother Don Everton said.

News and sports,

not ads wanted in paper
I had my paper in hand Saturday morning (Sept. 20) to go read about all the local high school ball games. I went up to a local cafe to have coffee while I did so. I get to page 2 and there is a little note that says due to space limitations that the game results will be in Sunday's paper.
Yet on that same page, there was a three-quarter page car ad, complete with pictures. I buy the paper to read about the news. I space to read about the news. I space to read about the news. I want to see the ads, I will look at them later.
Please leave the news and sports in their places and put the ads in theirs. I happen to know that you had some of the results from the games, because I have talleed to two of the coaches of the local games. I understand that you have to have the ads in order to make a profit, but if you there will be no profit, because no one will be buying the paper.

Thanks to Steve York for another fine year at the races

Saturday, Sept. 13, I enjoyed an evening of NASCAR auto racing along with a thousand or more other folks at the Magic Valley Speedway. We were not only treated to racing by our local.

relievers can be replaced by cheaper pitchers of roughly equal talent.

Beane values his closers, but he also values the draft picks, cash and prospects that can be acquired for them.

Yet Foulke has emerged as the best pitcher to hold this revolving role in recent years—and the short, unimposing right-hander could be the key to Oadland's division series against the Boston Red Sox and their own adventurous bullpen.

"Twe been thinking about the playoffs for a long time," Foulke said. "It's going to be great to be out there with so much on the line. That's what I thrive on. I want to be grow the best of the guy with the ball in that situation."

almost every relief situation. He got 43 saves in 48 chances, and he went 9-1 with a 2.08 ERA, 88 strikeous and just 20 walls.

If not for a slight propensity for home run balls – he yielded 10 homers among his 20 earned runs. Foulde would have been practiced to the same of the same stream runs and seven valks for a 1.80 ERA on the road. Irrational perfectionism is just one of the factors that drives him, along with the disrespect of the Chicago White Sox's decision to dump him last winter after six sessions in their bullpen.

Oakland's experience with Foulke anchoring a mostly reliable bullpen has been much less entertaining than Boston's adventures in relief.

rotation, led by Wood (14-11, 3-20 ERA), Mark Prior (18-6, 2-43), Carlos Zambrano (13-11, 3-11) and Matt Clement (14-12, 4-13). In many ways, Chicago resembles the Braves teams of the early '90s, who began winning division titles with a brilliant young rotation that included Tom Glavine, John Smoltz and Steve Avery.

Baker is eager to see if that, familiar baseball adage - good pitching beats good hitting - holds up in this series. The Cubs ranked third in the NL with a 3.83 ERA.

"One thing is for sure; good hitting really beats bad pitching," he said, grinning. "If you limp out there with bad pitching against those Braves, they'll beat you to death."

Good pitching "is not overrated."

Then again, the Braves have managed just one World Series title since beginning their playoff streak in 1991 - despite leading the league in ERA almost every year. This season, they slumped to ninth at 4.10, but still won 101 games.

Major League Baseball attendance drops slightly NEW YORK - Baseball attendance picked up in the second half of the season, with the final average of 28,055 down just slightly from last year.
This year's final average was down 0.4 percent from last year's 28,168 and was the lowest since 1996.
The average stabilized after failing from 30,09 in 2000 to 30,012 in 2001 and then dropping 6.1 percent last year.
All 30 teams reached 1 million in home attendance in the same year for the first time, with the New York Yankees (3,465,609), chaleim (3,061,094), chicago Cubs (2,261,65) setting home attendance records.

Last week, Howard and a coalition of education interests submitted a 2004-2005 school year budget request for $903.1 million, or 4.7 percent, over last years budget request for $903.1 million, or 4.7 percent, over last years budget proposal to say whether legislators can afford to grant H ow a r drequest. way out of reach.)
This column has been critical of Howard and those requests. But perhaps this time around, she's starting to change her approach. She has lowered her demands and based the budget on educational needs, not wants.

"We're shifting attention away from teachers to supporting the students," she said. "When the funds are really limited, we have to prioritize, and this is putting the students first."

Oil is key ingredient to rebuilding Iraq POOR THE PROPERTY INC.

The Bush administration is proposing to spend another services and another services are services and another services are services and another large and Afghanistan. Instead, this country should be calling on Iraq and the rest of the oil-producing states to rebuild those nations. Freedom costs, but it should not just cost the United States. Those who benefit most from freedom should pay part of the bill.

According to the Oil and Gas According to the Oil and Gas should not just cost the unusus States. Those who benefit most from freedom should pay part of the bill.

According to the Oil and Gas Journal, Iraq has 112 billion barrels of proven oil reserves, the third largest in the world (behind Saudi Arabia and Canada). Only 10 of 30 discovered oil felds have been developed. The money for rebuilding Iraq can be found underground there and not in the pockets of overburdened American taxpayers.

One of the complications involves contracts that the deposed Saddam Hussein regime signed with foreign oil companies, mainly from China, France and Russia. Russia alone is owed biblioms of dallors by fraq for past and the state of the complications of the complications. The companies of the companies. President Vladimir Putin's opposition to U.S. policy. But if the Russians (and the French and Chinese) won't contribute to the restoration of Iraq, those contracts should be canceled. The Financial Times reports (Sept. 25) that the European Commission is expected to contribute a palary $230 million to the rebuilding effort in Iraq. This is like telling creditors won't pitch in write reconstruction for main of Iraq's creditors won't pitch in write reconstruction for main of Iraq's creditors won't pitch in write reconstruction for main of Iraq's creditors won't pitch in write reconstruction of Iraq oil.

In Washington, bipartisan opposition is developing over the United States footing the entire cost. Rep. Dan Burton (Rind.) suggested giving Iraq a long term, interest-free loan. "That would sit well with the American people," he said. What would sit better is a pay-as-Iraq-goes plan. Having the United States pay for reconstruction and infrastructure while we continue to buy oil at ever-increasing prices (OPEC last week announced it is reducing output quouse by 3.5 percent, pump prices) is making us pay ruce. Sen. Evan Bayh (D-Ind.) said, "How do I explain to my constituents that those who helped to prop up Saddam's regume – the French, the Russians and others – could potentially be repaid, but those who financed the war to liberate the Iraqi people will not be repaid?" Good question. Since the Arab oil boycort 30 years ago, there has been talk by

GERALD A.

Democratic and Republican administrations about doing something to make America less dependent on foreign oil producers. Has there ever been a better time for liberation than now? Wouldn't the public warm to a campaign to free us from the dictates of despots who influence our foreign policy and domestic politics based on how "generous" or stingy they are with their oil spigots? "Let them eat sand would be a nice battle cry. Were it not for their oil, we wouldn't care about their repressive societies. There are enough oil reserves in the West (Alaska and Canada come to mind) to supply our energy needs as we and Canada come to mind) to supply our energy needs as we look for alternative sources and simultaneously work to liberate ourselves from the oil companies that would like our petroleum addiction to continue. I would be willing to drive an energy-effi-cient hybrid car if I thought it would starve a dictator. Paul Bremer, the U.S. adminis-tator for Iraq, and Vice President Dick Cheney, along with other administration officials, have reportedly pressured Republicans to give up on the idea of putting reconstruction funds in the form of loans to be repuid from Iraq's war of loans and Iraq's war of loans and Iraq's loans lately. The nations primarily responsible for the enormous wealth in the oil-producing states are the United States, Europe and Japan. The oil-producing states would have no into-stantial income and their discassors would be riding on bikes and not in Mercedes were it not for our money.

Let's use Iraqi oil to pay the.

the ground to fuel Iraq's economy

Bush repeatedly praised Prime Minister Tony Blair of Britain as America's best friend and closest ally.

So what has happened to our best friend since the war ended? The answer is, simply, nothing good. Like President Bush, Blair asyled the "Baghdad bounce" after major hostillites in Ing ended. For a few weeks, Blair (like Bush) and his Labor government experienced a surge of national pride that translated into swelling support in the public opinion polls.

But, alas, it was not to last, and today Blair and his government have less support than at any time since they took office in 1997. What was a double-digin light of the control lapsed into a 3- to 5-point deficit to the opposition Conservative Farry, Blair, the most trusted and respected political leader in Britain before the war, is now the least trusted and respected. Why such a steep fall?

A big part of the answer is that Blair took a much greater political rich and present the blair took a much greater political rich and did President Blair than did President Blair took the initiative on Iraq from a position of unprecedented political strength, he also faced much stronger domestic opposition from the start. Even more important, the bulk of that domestic opposition came from within his own Labor Party in sharp contrast to President Bush, who enjoyed his strongest support from within his own Republican Parry. Therein lay the origin of what has been Blair's misery. In laying out the case for war, Blair needed to convince his core political supporters.

Case in point, Blair never convinced half his Cabiner or a third of the Labor members of the House of Commons, none of whom ever came to accept that Iraq posed a clear and present danger or British for the Blair services relationship with Bush-scorning Blair as no more than Bush's "poolle". So when Blair went to war, his Labor colleagues did no more than go along with what they regarded as "Blair's Mar," including its attendant political risks.

Blair was highly vulnerable to the political disaster he has been suffering. The failure to find weapons of mass formulation demands for an investigation of the entire Iraq policy. This led to the (questionable) accusation that Blair had a key role in exigerating the case for war.

Recently, Blair has suffered through a public judicial investigation of the suicide of a government scientist who apparently; made such a charge to a BBC judicial investigation plus more investigations to follow may make mixes with the summary make most person the important political consequence for Blair is already known. He has lost the most precious of political advantages, trius and respect, which were the strongest elements of his success and respect, which were the strongest elements of his success to be America's best friend.

Now is the time to start considering candidates

considering candidates
The time is upon us to choose who will best represent our interests leading Twin Falls into its next. 100 years. I am ready, willing and able to accept this responsibility as a member of the Twin Falls City Council.
With the election just over a month away, questions will soon begin asking how candidates would have responded to recent issues: Is Twin Falls right to open its own emergency dispatch center? How should the city dispose of confiscated weapons? Should a TV tower be allowed on Blue Lakes Boulevard? These are important issues and answers will be given. But I feel it's more important to focus on the unknown of our future. Who knows what the next issue will be to face city council members? My job as your elected representative will be to listen to you, weigh all sides of the issue, work with other members of the council and have the courage to make a decision that best suits. Specific issues related to job growth, city services, recreational opportunities, public safety and quality of life will come up. As a member of the city council, I'll work with your other elected representatives, the city's qualified and experienced staff, and other local organizations to do the right things for our community. The city does not stand alone in addressing these issues. But the council must be a leading partner to keep Twin Falls the place we collectively want it to be. As a resident of this city, I have kept in touch with what's going on around us. During my time as a member of the KMVT news staff, I reported on issues facing our community. I still keep up to date on current events, both locally and globally. In order to make educated decisions, one must have the facts.

My past experience as a volunteer member of boards of directors for area organizations and as part of a team in my jobs gives me the ability to be an effective part of the city council – your 'team' to decide the future path of our city.

Please take the time to learn all you can about the candidates, and I'm confident you will see that I am your best choice for responsible leadership on the Twin Falls City Council Please yout for me, Shawn Barigar, on Nov. 4.

Neighbors ask enviros to speed action against feedlot

WEISPR (AP) – Rural residents have turned to an unlikely ally to hatle a feedlor they say sullies their water, clouds their air and spaces their families sick.

Insatisfied with the response if state agencies, the neighbors taxe joined the ranks of the Idaho Conservation League. The environmental group has usually not been aligned with farm towns which depend on businesses like feedlots for their liveli-lood.

"We're not anti-agriculture, but I don't think you'll find many peo-ple in Weshington County that think this is a good place for a feedlot," said Wayne Ferrell, a for-mer farmer and local resident.

The league in August put Sunnyside Reedlot owner Seth Matthews on notice it intended to sue him in October for violating water laws.
"You can haul water but you can't haul air," said neighbor Shirley Tongkin, who must bring in her water rather than use the groundwater.

Ensure truth and accuracy: write your own obituary

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter from the man who wendered if it was all right to write his own obituary. As an editor who has written obituaries for several community newspapers for more than 20 years, I can say that obituaries are causing more and more headaches in newsrooms. They are a potential can of worms.

objutury as she presented it.

Within hours, a woman came torming into the office. It was the deceased's former wife. She still lived in our town, and she was furious that her children – who had been fathered by her former husband – were not mentioned in the objutury written by the seeond wife.

Q. What's a "morganatic marriage"?

A. matrimonial matchup of a person of royalty with a commoner. It doesn't bestow royal rank on the "inferior" partner. And doesn't entitle the "lowborn" mate to inherit royal property. The word "morganatic" comes from a Latin phrase meaning "marriage with morning gift."

A male mouse, immediately after mating, kills every baby mouse he can catch.

Q. In April of 1790, about 20,000 people gat together in Philadelphia in America's largest public gathering to that date. Quick, what was the occasion?

"A lot of the manufacturers really stepped forward," said Clements, who organized the rafe. "Too was the type of guy who always liked to check out everyone's new truck or buggy. He was willing to help out all the time with the track."

Schroyer, who was in a band called 4 on the Floor, shot some racing footage and put it to his music a few years ago.

"The guys like to watch their trucks and buggy neding to Troy's music," Clements said.

Troy's elster, Robin Walters of Twin Falls, said her brother was born and ratised in Iwin Falls, and that he did a lot for various charty organizations.

Schroyer's son, Tacy, raced his-flowers son, Tacy, raced his-flowers son, Tacy, raced his-flowers and the season of the season for three years.

There are two main events held at the Almosta Ranch track during the year The Spring Fling is held in May, and the State Championship in September. The track is located at 1732 Eldridge Ave. between South Locus Street and Eastland Boulevard, It is Idaho's largest off-road track, racers said.

64-bit computers shine – but not because of 64 bits

I tested both systems and found

Tested both systems and found good, sometimes spectacular, performance boosts. Both shaved minutes off computing intensive reales such as making DVD movies or ripping music.

The performance does come at a price - about $3,000 for the top-of-the-line-Power Mac G5 and about the same for a system based on AMD's flagship Athlon 64 FX-51.

And it's safe to say all the improvements I noticed had little or nothing to do with the much-hyped 64-bit technology. That's because software like Windows XP doesn't support it yet. Apple's XP doesn't support it yet. Apple's because software like Windows XP doesn't support it yet. Apple's a bit further ahead, but the programs I used were not optimized. So what's the big deal about bits? A 32-bit processor can handle up to 4 billion bytes of memory—an amount rarely approached in ordinary desktop computing doday. By comparison, a 64-bit chip can address 18 billion billion bytes.

can address 18 billion billion bytes.
That's great for massive data-base applications, nuclear blast simulations or long-range climate predictions. Down the road, 64-bit desktop processing will help FCs cender images with lifelike realism, AMD officials say.
But that's the future – when there's software available, and when so much memory will be affordable. Today, both the Athlon of 4 and Apples GS are stuck in a 32-bit world.

64 and Apples GS are stuck in a 32-bit world.

Even so, both machines are impressive. Processor speeds are bumped up from previous generations. Various data freeways between the processor and memory, as well as other subsystems, have been widened. Such bottleneck-busting moves improve overall performance.

I tested a system based on the highest end of the Athlon 64, the FXS.1. The S733 processor runs at 2.2 gigahertz. AMD built the computer to show off the new proces-

The full benefit can only be realized by using 84-bit applications and operating systems, which are still rare, but the processors work within the framework of existing 32-bit software.

scandals that have rattled corporate America over the past two years.

Jury selection in the trials of Dennis Kozlowskii and former banker Frank Quattrone began just blocks apart in separate Manhattan courts.

Quattrone and Kozlowski have both come to symbolize the corporate excess of the late 1990s, and their trials are being closely watched by the financial community as a sign of how authorities will prosecute alleged corporate.

Kozlowski is accused of looting 5500 million from Tyce and spending the money on everything from high art to furniture, including a 55,000 antique umbrella stand.

In one well-known episode, Tyco picked up half the tab for a $2 million birthday party for Kozlowski wife in Italy that featured musician Jimmy Buffett and an ice sculpture of Michelangelo's David.

I'm tempted no owithout, figuring that the government will step in with help if there's a cantstrophe.

Answer: Yours is the reasoning of many homeowners who go without causstrophic coverage (which also includes windstorm policies in areas whee hurricutes are a significant threat). But there are problem your faith your facely limited the problem of the problem.

homeowners help, the president must declare a major disaster. Although that's routine after big earthquakes and hurricanes, more contained catastroppes might not contained catastrophes might not merit such a response. The vast majority of floods, for example, aren't officially declared disasters. Also, FEMAS assistance is more limited than most example.

TALK Liz Pulliam Weston

Also, FEMA's assistance is more limited than most people realize. The agency's grants for emergency home repairs are limited to $5,000.

After that, affected homeowners can apply for loans from the Small Business Administration — but those must be paid back Between your morrgage and your SBA loan, you could easily wind up owing more on your property than it's worth.

The true that catastrophic coverage is often expensive. Flood insurance awerages $382 a year. Windstorm coverage tuns $461 per $100,000 of coverage in South Carolina. Earthquake policies can set you back a few hundred dollars to sewaral thousand dollars, depending on where you live and how much your home would cost to rebuild.

Deductibles are high for earth-quake coverage; you're expected to come up with the first 10 percent to 15 percent out of your own pocker - or $20,000 to $30,000 on a home that's insured for $200,000 windstorm policies typically have a 2 percent deductible, and federal flood insurance comes with a $500 to $1,000 deductible. But insurance is designed to protect you against the big financial setbacks you couldn't easily cover yourself. If you couldn't afford to rebuild your house with your savings, at least consider catastrophic coverage.

royenge.
You still might decide to "go bere," particularly if you don't have much equity in your home and you have no problem reneging on your mortgage. Hundreds of homeowners in the Northridge, Calfe, area did just that after the 1994 earthquake. Rather than shoulder the costs of rebuilding, they gave their keys back to the bank and walked away.

If you have lots of equity, value your credit rating or like to honor your debts, however, catastrophic coverage can allow you to protect what's probably your largest investment.

what's probably your largest invest-ment. You can deal with high deductibles by setting up a home equity line of credit to pay the cost - but do so before disaster strikes. The appraisal isn't likely to go se well when your home is a pile of rubble.

Stanley said. Today they get theur with.

Selors at their annual meeting early this month, and Jerome isn't the only school that will send strength of the order to today. In future years, Stanley said, career fair organizers will be able to give school counselors earlier notice of the date, and they might combine the career fair with the annual Magic Valley College Fair at which over 50 college and universities exhibit.

50 college and universities exhibition.
Organizers weren't able to coordinate the dates this year, and the latter event is scheduled for November. Ow jobless rates in much of Magic Valley – 3.8 percent in August for Jerome, Gooding and Twin Falls counties combined – workers want to learn more about local employers, Stanley said. People like to shop the market, even if they already have jobs.

the marker, com-have jobs.
"I think people have a keen interest regardless of what the economic fortunes are right now," interest regardiess of what the economic fortunes are right now." he said.

Many of the employers at today's fair aim to advertise specific job openings and take applications, said Deby Johnson, The Times-News' classified and Internet manager. Others simply want the exposure, so that workers will keep them in mind when launching job searches.

Response from employers was so hearty that organizers are contemplating adding an early-opting installment of the annual autumn career fair, Johnson said.

Iropin in authority in that encounter.

Michal Lebel, sitting East, was the player confronted with a tricked persensive problem. The full attricts are to construct and the properties first.

The auction had seen South agree hearts as trumps initially, with North then cue-bidding in diamonds. Thereupon, South's Roman Keycard Blackwood inquiry had elicited the fact that North had two aces, but did not have the heart queen (not entirely a surprise to Lebel). Philippe Cronler led the four of diamonds against six spades, and declarer, John Reardon, played low from dummy, letting Lebel win his queen. How would you plan the defense?

Well, Lebel worked out that on a passive black-suit return, declarer would make 12 tricks easily. He would draw trumps, play the top hearts and ruff a heart, then cross to the diamond ace to run the hearts.

Hoping to find his partner with the club jack, Lebel found the Greek gift of a diamond return into dummy's tenace. It gave declarer a cheap trick, but look away the late entry to the heart suit. The best that declarer could do was take the club finesse and try to ruff a club, but Lebel could overruff for one down. The bidding:
