Forest Service calls ads inflammatory

ELKO, Nov. – Forest Service officials are pressing the Jarbidge Shovel Brigade to retract radio ads they say are inflammatory and promote ill will toward agency officials by describing them as "armed and dangerous."

But leaders of the citizen activist group challenging federal jurisdiction over a rugged canyon road bordering threatened trout habitat are refusing, saying the ads are truthful.

They accuse the Forest Service of crying to intimidate those who want to drive the remote stretch of road local volunteers have gradually reopened in Elko County since the Jarbidge River flooded and washed it out in 1995.

The ad aired on Elko radio stations over the weekend after the Forest Service cited John Eickhof Sept. 26 in connection with damage to forest resources through off-road driving.

Eickhof, Wendell, is the head of an Idaho truck club that's been active in rebuilding the South Canyon Road in the Humboldi-Toiyabe National Forest near the Idaho line over the agency's objections.

Brad Ling, service manager at Chevrolet-Cadillac Sales of Twin Falls, locks under the hood of a 2003 Chevy Monte Carlo that recently housed a pack rat. Ling says it is common for rodents to try to nest in automobiles once the temperature gets colder, but usually they invade ranch or farm vehicles and not newer cars.

Little critters can cause problems with your car

TWIN FALLS - You start your car heater on a fine fall morning and hear a sound like something bouncing off the sides of a cardboard box. Or maybe the heater emits a gut-wrenching stench. Chances are your car is the victim of a common fall malady: rodent invasion.

The banging around probably is the sound of mice swirling around the blower of the car heater. The smell indicates they're dead. "It stinks really bad," said Rick Cole, service manager at of The Middlokauff Group downtown.

Got mice?

To help keep mice and rats out of your vehicles, mechanics suggest:

- Dog or cat food or bird seed that is stored in a garage should always be kept in closed metal
- containers.

 If you live in a rural area, always change the air circulation switch to "recirculation" before you turn off the car. That will close the air duct to the
- heeter.

 Place bar bait or mouse poison under the hood of your car. The mice will eat the poison and leave the vehicle in \search of water. If you go the poison route, don't leave any water bottles inside the vehicle, because the mice will chew through the plastic to get to the water.

 Don't store vehicles if you can avoid it. One local dealer told the story of a later-model Cadillac that had been stored for several months in a garge, By the time the mice got through with it, all the interior had to be restored.

Two other soldiers from the 4th Infantry Division, which has borne the brunt of recent attacks, were wounded in the bombing near Baqouba, 40 miles northeast of Baghdad, the U.S. command said.

The death brings to 105 the number of American soldiers killed by hostile fire since President Bush declared an end to major combat May 1.

The two Iraqi guards were killed in a bombing near an oil pipeline 150 miles north of the capital, U.S. officials said. Ten other members of the Iraqi Civil Defense Force were wounded by the blast.

at 'The Rockefeller University in New York City. "We have discriminated in the past in favor of a very small number of species."

Three hundred scientists from 53 countries are working on the decade-long census to learn the number of different species and catalogue them. So far, the Census of Marine Life includes 15,304 different species of fish and 194,696 to 214,696 – there's disagreement among the experts – species of animals and plants.

So far, the research is coming up with about 150 to 200 previously unknown species of fish and 1,700 new species of other aquatic animals and plants each year.

The scientists said they believe the oceans that extend across 70 percent of Earth's surface hold about 20,000 species of fish and up to 1.98 million species of animals and plants. Many of those could be basic and small life forms, such as worms and jelly-forms, such as worms and jellyforms, such as worms and jelly forms, such as worms and Jeng-fish.

"We've tended to be interested in the things that we eart," said Ausubel, who helps run the cen-sus for the Alfred P. Stoam Foundation, which provided $20 million in funding. "We've tended not to be interested in the things that pass through our nets or don't taste good. But the small critters are tremendously important in the ecosystem."

Official: Iraq pledges may fall a bit short

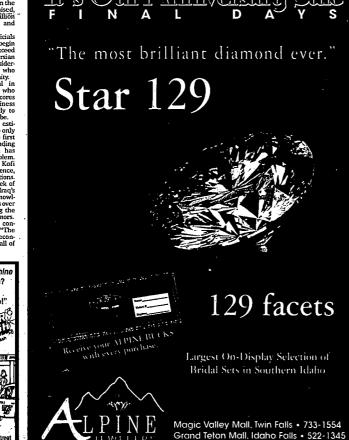

MADRID, Spain (AP)
American and Iraqi officials urged nearly 80 nations at a donors conference Thursday to plottee billions of dollars to rebuild Iraq, but a senior official said expectations should be kept low. "You cannot to provide the property of the provided intervention, to feel terribly enthusiastic about spending a large amount of money in Iraq. Nevertheless, American officials by the Bush administration and $15 billion by Japan.

Nevertheless, American official most expectations, with Persian Gulf countries offering considerable aid, said a US. official who spoke on condition of anonymity. The senior US. official in Baghdad, L. Paul Bremer, who attended the session with scores of Iraqi officials and business leaders, said it was too early to know what donations would be.

Asked about World Bank estimates that Iraq could absorb only about $5.5 billion in aid the first year, Bremer said that spending the money President Bush has asked for would not be a problem. U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan, opening the conference, called for generous contributions. But despite approval last week of Aunan, opening the conference weakingtons were weakingtons were weakingtons were free and said, "The congettern challenge of reconstruction has to be faced by all of us."

A consultant recently proposed using local donations and federal grants to create a "revenue guarantee" fund. The money would prop up air carriers serving Twin Falls – presumably as a strategy to encourage service to Boise or jother nearby cities.

In our view, local leaders should pass. Subsidy of some elusive, secondary service shouldn't be their goal. Instead, they should focus on retaining the service we have. Compared with 2002, the number of passengers in 2003 rose 9 percent in June, 17 percent in July, 15 percent in August, and 20 percent in September. That's a good trend.

And that may explain the initial strength that has catapulted the year's unlikeliest candidate to the top of the national polls. At a time when the public seems turned off on politics as usual, he isn't like the usual politicians. With the war on terrorism puting new emphasis on national security issues, Clark brings a unique combination of high-level military and diplomatic experience no rival ear match. In a field dominated by Northern liberals, he is more like the Southern moderates who have been the party's best national vote getters in the last 30 years. He also appeals to Democrate seager for anyone they hink could win.

Still, it is a long way from leading national polls to winning a nomination. He has shown his inexperience in explaining his positions, notably on what should be his strong point: the war on Iraq. His admission that he voted for Richard Nixon and Ronald Reagan may turn off some Democrats. And he hus had the kind of staff turnoil that afflicts many hastily organized campaigns.

But after some hesitancy, he is many hastily organized cam-paigns.

But after some hesitancy, he is beginning to show an under-more volatile. Its electorate is bigger and will include thousands of independents. A poll last week showed him running third, behind New England candidates Dean and Kerry.

New Hampshire also has been a launching pad for candidates who didn't do well in Iowa: Democrate Gary Hart in 1984 and Bill Clinton in 1992 and Republican John McCain in 2000.

Events could play into the center of the property of the page o

Events could play into the general's hands. If Dean defeats Gephardt in Iowa and Kerry in New Hampshire, a strong showing in New Hampshire could make Clark the former Vermont governor's main foe as the race moves south and west. (Of course, Gephardt could foil that plan by winning Iowa and making himself Dean's chief rival.)
Still, many party leaders see Clark as the best hope of blocking Dean, whose outsider appeal they fear won't attract enough a moderates and independents to win. As a general who voted for Nixon and Reagan, Clark could cut GOP margins among white men. Some liberals think he is men. Some liberals think he is too conservative. But their antagonism to President Bush will ensure that most vote Democratic. On the other hand, he may be the least experienced high-level candidate since the COP nominated Wendell Willkie in 1940.

standing of the nominating process that he will need to convert his poll numbers into primary victories. His decision to bypass Iowa's caucuses on Jan. 19 recognized how hard it would have been to build an organization to compete there. He would have had to overcome the head start of Missouri Rep. Dick Gephardt, former Vermont Gov. Howard Dean and Massachusetts Sen. John Kerry. And, besides, Iowa's electorate is dominated by union members, senior citizens and liberal activists, hardly an ideal battlefield for a military man's first political battle. Clark's decision, and a similar one by Connecticut Sen. Joe Lieberman, probably won't change the race much, since neither was likely to do well in Iowa. Both may find New Hampshire's Jan. 27 primary more promising, especially Clark. Is primary is China's modern trade boom has an iffy future

The subplot of President Bush's trip to Asia this week is China's growing economic power. Twenty years ago, China barely traded with other countries. In 2002, it was the world's fifth-largest exporter behind the United States, Germany, Japan and France. With exports up 32 percent so far in 2003, it has now passed Prance. The Bush administration wants China to revalue its currency, the remainish, to relieve pressure on U.S. manufacturers. But currency the remainish, to relieve pressure on U.S. manufacturers. But currency the remainish, to relieve pressure on U.S. manufacturers. But currency the remainish to relieve pressure on U.S. manufacturers. Will China help or hurt the greater global economy? Will its world trade? Or will its low wages and huge surplus of unskilled workers-steal jobs and investment from other countries?

The answers matter enormous other countries?

The answers matter enormous by if China destabilizes the world comony, relations with the United States, Europe and Japan on many issues – from North Korca to terrorism – may suffer. Unifortunately, we don't know the answers. A recent conference by the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington gathered many China experts the produced no consensus on where the Chinese economy is going.

National Association of Manufactures told the conference.

Now, trade always creates winners and losers, Winners usually outnumber losers. There's a mutually beneficial exchange.

Americans can buy inexpensive shoes, toys and personal computers from China; the Chinese can buy commercial jets and sophisticated medical equipment from the United States. Trade supports a support of the contries But all this passument countries But all this passument countries for all this passument countries for all this passument countries personally spend abroad what they carn abroad; markets are reasonably open. What's uncertain is whether these rules apply to China and other Asian countries. They aim for trade surpluses, heavily skewed toward the United States. In 2002, China's surplus with the United States was $103. billion, Japan's $70 billion and Taiwan's $14 billion.

The trouble is that Americans cannot forever devote an ever-rising share of their income to buying Asia's exports. Either other exporters (Mexico, Canada, Europe) get squeezed out, or lost American jobs weaken the U.S. economy.

Everyown has a stake in better.

American jobs weaken the U.S. economy.
Everyone has a stake in better-balanced trade. Steps could be taken, but the CSIS conference didn't suggest that they would.
First, China could revalue the remainbi, which has been fixed to the dollar at a rate of about 8.28 to 51 since 1995. A higher currency would make China's exports more expensive and reduce China's appeal to foreign investment. But economists didn't see China moving soon, because foreign trade and investment are too

Finally, China's domestic econo-my could grow so rapidly that it requires more imports.

Unfortunately, just the opposite may happen. China's present boom may be unsustainable.

Credit is exploding, Lardy fore-sees defaults and excess industri-al capacity. Economist John Makin of the American Enterprise Institute - speaking at an AEI seminar - warned of a China "buble".

Sooner or later, bubbles pop.

Weaker confidence and domestic spending would follow. China would depend even more on for-eign trade and investment. If that's not a formula for trouble, what would be?

The anti-sports utility vehicle movement isn't as bad as he portrays. I doubt seriously that "Environmentalists relentlessly label American auto manufacturers as terrorists and un-

Phil seems to be of the opinion that if we don't buy an SUV, then we will buy a foreign car. This is not the case either. Perhaps these people would just buy an American car that gets better gas mileage.

This wouldn't necessarily put Americans out of work. They would still be needed to make the smaller cars.

Admittedly, the manufacturers would make less profit per vehicle. But the rest of us Americans would make cleaner air to breathe.

If you watch the roads, you will find that approximately 50 percent of the cars have just one or two persons in them. That doesn't spell a need for an SUV at 17 miles per gallon when a compact car doing 27 to 35 miles per gallon could do the job. Phil, there isn't any movement in Hollywood or elsewhere to "Remove American-made SUVs from the road." Just a desire for cleaner air. For you and yours as well as for the environmentalists.

However, remember this: Sales and profits are actually counted. Joblessness, on the other hand, is measured by estimates based inly fractions of the work force. The politically correct answer is that everyone who wants to work should have a job, but 4 percent is considered full employment. No longer do big firms fuel the economy. Job growth is in small businesses, many of which benefit from the "outsourcing" of nonessential duties that big companies once did themselves. Israel plans new homes, defying peace plan

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel disclosed plans Thursday to build nearly 300 homes in West Bank settlements, despite a freeze on construction required by a U.S. backed peace plan. Palestinians condemned the project and urged the United States to intervene.

An associate of Yasser Arafar, meanwhile, said the Palestinian leader was unnerved by an army raid near his compound this week, and clenched a submachine gun as he declared he felt the "smell of paradise."

Israel has said it would "remove" Arafar at an 'unspecified time, but has not explained whether this means expulsion or assassination. Israeli Prime Minister Arafa tis the major obstacle to peace, but in an earlier newspaper interview back-tracked from threats to expel the Palestinian leader.

The construction of 273 apartments in West Bank settlements was disclosed Thursday by Israel's Housing Ministry, which published an ad in an Israeli newspaper inviting contractors to bid on them. The apartments are slated for Karnei Shomron, a settlement deep in the northern West Bank, and Givat Zeev, on the outskirts of Jerusalem.

"The Housing Ministry builds all over Israel, including the West Bank," said ministry spokesman Kobi Bleich. "This tender is in line with a decision taken by the government of Israel."

The U.S. backed "road map" plan requires a freeze on construction in the roughly 150 Jewish sertilements in the West Bank and Gaza Strip Palestinians hope to establish an independent state in the two territories, which wild a dictation rather than peace and negotiator "was a postigations" and dictation rather than peace and negotiation," said Saeb Erekat, the chief Palestinian peace negotiator "We urge the Bush administration to stop this policy because this is obstacle No. I to peace."

There was no immediate comment from Washington.
The Israeli government says it needs the new buildings because of what it calls the "natural growth" of the settlements. However, the "road map" does not take that into account in its blanket building freeze.

A senior Israeli official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said all the units were in existing communities and did not involve the confiscation of Palestinial hand.

The more than 220,000 settlers living in the West Bank and Gaza provide a strong base of support for Sharon's government, and a settlement freeze poses political difficulties. The housing minister, Effi Eitam, is a hard-line advocate of the settlers.

Earlier this month, the government announced it would build 565 new homes in West Bank settlements, most of them in the ultra-Orthodox Jewish community of Beitar Illit outside Jerusalem.

The fire – the largest in the region this year – appears to be related to an agricultural burn ignited on private land that migrated onto forest land. The BLM was also on the scene Thursday of a smaller fire just south of the same location. The roughly 500-acre South Hill City Fire was also human-caused. Firefighters expected to have the fire controlled by 6 p.m. Thursday.

dropped out of the race for City Council, leaving three candidates unopposed. Peterson's exit means incumbent Councilman Chuck Solace and new-comer Ralph Dorramus will be elected to four-year terms on the Eden City Council.

Incumbent Mayor Larry Craig, 61, is running unopposed for Eden's top post. He has served the city for 15 years – the past six as mayor.

Solace, 60, a retried sprinkler fitter and part-time bus driver, has served on the council for the past six years. Dorramus, 67, is a retired heavy cuipment operator.

Despite no competition, Eden will still hold its election Nov. 4 Folls will be open from noon to 8 p.m. at Eden City Hall, 115 Main St.

Voters can register on the day of the election by taking recent unliry bills or city water bills to the polls as proof of residency.

Hagerman incumbents earn additional terms

HAGERMAN - Two incumbents are running unopposed for the Hagerman Fire Protection District Commission and will therefore automatically earn additional four-year terms.

The terms of district Chairman
jim Henslee and Commissioner Mark Buddoc expire this year, but the two were the only individuals to file declarations of candidacy for their respective positions in this November's fire district race.

The deadline for write-in candidates has passed. No election will be held.

The saccomplishment - a milestone in efforts to clean up the store came three months before a deadline the U.S. Department of Energy reached with the state of Idaho.

The single-wall storage pools are more prone to damage from earthquakes or other accidents than modern, double-wall underwater storage areas. Pools have been the preferred storage method for spent reactor rods because water blocks rediation and dissipates the heat generated by decaying radioactive materials.

"The biggest challenge was consistency – moving 2,425 fuel rods without ever dropping one," transfer director Art Clark said.

The rods had to be removed by the end of 2003 to keep INEEL on schedule with the cleanup plan agreed upon by the Department of Energy is trying to have it done by 2012, clark said.

Historian: Lewis and Clark crew survived despite poor medicine

POCATELLO (AP)—Meriwether Lewis and William Clark were explorers, not doctors. Despite their medical shortcomings, the two did a decent job 200 years ago as the nation's first wilderness physicians, said historian David Peck.

Lewis and Clark's journey across North America was filled with mosquitoes, heat exhaustion, firotbliet, hall, floods, rattlesnakes and grizzly bears, said Peck, who also is a physician. But throughout the 28-month journey, only one man dide!

cian. But throughout the 28-month journey, only one man died.

"These people made it because they were tough. It was an amazing thing to do what they did," Peck said Wednesday at the Kasiska Foundation's annual Conference on Health Care at Idaho State University.

Stomach ailments slowed the crew several times throughout the trip. Crew members were also struck with styphilis, which was treated with a topical mercury salve.

The treatment made them salivate, now known as a sign of mercury poisoning. At the time, physicians thought salivating was a sign of disease leaving the body. The treatments probably did kill the bacteria, Peck said, but was aborderictive in damaging the patient.

Sacagawea, a Shoshoni woman who made the journey with the crew, also suffered from a serious stomach aliment on the trip. Lewis and Clark also faced injuries along the way. While hunting, Lewis was shot in the buttodes and was sore for two weeks. During: a Great Falls, Mont., storm, crewinembers were injured by 'Jinch' hail stones.

But despite their primitive treatments, the crew was helped byti their knowledge of medicine, Peck i said. When they ran out of items for trade with American Indians, they obartered a homemade eye washinged on excellents, they obartered a homemade eye washinged to the common cyc ail-Barigar said petitions are being circulated to request the county commissioners set up a property tax levy to provide money for the service. After the names are verified as registered voters, the county commissioners wind hold a series of public hearings to listen to the people. downstairs in the house when he smelled smoke. Bruce went upstairs to find a good-sized fire and, using his cell phone, dialed 911 and then ran down to turn off the electricity and propane.

It took only minutes for the Dietrich Fire Department to respond. Firefighters from Shoshone arrived soon after.

The fire was confined to mostly the upper floor on the east side of the house. A majority of the damage was located in the attic and a bedroom. The fire did not cause irreparable damage.

On Thursday, after a state fire marshal out of Idaho Falls inspected the home, it was determined that the probable cause was a faulty wire.

"The wiring had been previously inspected and was approved,"

Dilworth said. "The fire marshal said that everywhere else the wiring was done very well and it looked the same where the fire broke out. It could have been a faulty wire from the factory." Dilworth said she is most grateful that her family had not yet moved in, as the fire was in what would have been the bedroom of her 2- and 4-year-old sons.

Laura's father, Scott Anderson, is the contractor for the home and estimated the damage to be somewhere close to $40,000. But the fire that broke out at about 7 p.m. Wednesday wasn't finished after firefighters performed about three hours of moping. I heard a loud noise like someone Dietrich Fire Chief Lyle Towne arrived in just minutes and quickly extinguished the second-round of flames, which apparently were caused from a hot spot inside.

Dilworth said that the fire departments were very vigilant during the night, driving past the house several times to watch for just such an occurrence. She expressed graitude to both the Shoshone and Dietrich fire departments for their good work and propole in the community for coming to offer aid and support.

Officials: Residents can't rely on estimates:

Notices lead to tax bill confusion mail in May, and a small box on the form lists estimated taxes for their property.

But each year when that form comes, residents shouldn't rely on the estimate, Minidoka County Clerk Duane Smith said.

It's a comment echoed by Qassia County officials, too.

"It's bascially inaccurate information," Cassia Treasurer Gayle Ereleon said.

The estimated taxes calculated in May use current property values with the previous part levy rate, and the previous part levy rate with the previous part levy rate in November.

The problem is that new levies from the various taxing districts aren't calculated until September after each entity holds budget hearings, Smith said.

The levy rate is created by dividing the budget of an entity by the valuation of land in its district.

This year in Minidoka County, which is just one of many taxing entities affecting tax bills, the budget went up and the value of assets in the county went down – a double-whammy. Each property owner's taxes depend on what tax code the property lies in – there are 16 tax code areas in Mindola County, Smith said. In all but one tax code area, for he levy increased between 5.77 percent and 15.19 percent. "In almost all cases, it will be higher, Smith said. In Cassia County, most tax code areas are roughly the same as last year. Taxpayers in the city of Burley will see an increase due to the 'sewer bond issue that was approved by voters, Teckson said. Mindoka County Assessor Max Vaughn said estimated taxes are printed on assessment notices?

Minidoka County Assessor Max Vaughn said estimated taxes are printed on assessment notices because of an agreement made about four years ago between the Idaho Association of Counties and the Legislature.

Idaho Association of Counties and the Legislature.

The groups have discussed making the estimated box optional. It's hard to explain to people the number is only an estimate when that's what they expect to pay, and yet their actual tux bills end up being much higher, Yaughn said.

The system works in other states because the levy rate is set early, before assessment notices armailed, Yaughn said. But in Idaho, he said, "It can create a lot of problems."

he said, "It can team the lems."
Along with estimated taxes, the May assessment notice includes phone numbers for each taxing entity and a date for each of their budget hearings, which usually are held in August or September.

A regional economic develop-ment team allows local people to quickly respond to requests, Rogers said.

Rogers said.
That quickness was put to test this week, Mini-Cassia Development Commission Chairman Brent Lee said.
"It went boom, boom, boom, resolve, resolve, resolve, resolve." Lee said.

Rogers explained the regional approach to development by telling the audience that the resources of the entire region are available to each community, but each community is responsible for closing deals and making things happen in their own area.

The national economy is just beginning to improve, she said, and the Magic Valley is seeing that turnaround. But, she cautioned, while economic indicators are improving, things are stable enough for anyone to predict if the economy will continue to improve or if things might go back down.

That increases the importance of local development groups.

"We've got to have everybody at the top of their game," Rogers said. "It's critical each area be ready when we call on them." Greg Scibert from the Idaho Department of Commerce also emphasized the need for cohesiveness in a community. "There are thousands of communities out there competing for business," he said. "There are 10 other places being equally or more aggressive" than Mini-Cassia to get any company that plans a site visit to Mini-Cassia, he said.

other mountain communities are talking about some sort of crack-down.

It is the latest development in an increasingly abrasive relationship between residents and Interstate 70, the main east-west route through Colorado and in many ways the lifeblood for tourist-dependent communities. Vail officials are calling for a regional meeting of local governments to talk about traffic problems, said Suzanne Silverthorn, a spokeswoman for the resort, 100 miles west of Denver.

The town may even send its own police onto the federal highway to slow drivers down. "I am very sympathetic," said Gary Lindstrom, a commissioner in neighboring Summit County. "On the east side of Vail Pass, residents of Copper Mountain complain on a regular basis that there is a huge amount of noise as trucks come down the pass."

"If Al-Kraida travels to Saudi Arabia, the United States government will be unable to ensure his presence at trial," Martin told Williams in the affidavit.

While the federal government has only charged him with immigration offenses, authorities say Al-Hussayen maintained several bank accounts in Indiana, Texas, Idaho and Michigan to siphon large sums to the Islamic Assembly of North America.

Agent also claim he helped maintain Web sites for two radical Saudi shelies, Salman Al-Awada and Salar al-Hawali, who federal officials say have direct contact with Osama bin Laden.

Press.
The estimate was more optimistic than those by Iraqi oil officials.
Evans, just back from a visit to Iraq, said he was impressed with the free-market spirit and the number of foreign companies eager to set up operations even in the face of continuing security risks.

Astudy produced by a U.S. working group for the Pentagon earlier this year said it, could take up to three years to return Iraq production to its pre-1990 levels of 3.5 million barrels per day and that could happen only after billions of dollars in repairs. This estimate ran counterto optimistic administration forecasts that much of Iraq's reconstruction could be financed by oil sales.

HABBARIYAH, Iraq
—American troops in helicofters swooped down on this remote sheepherding village in the desert and detained nearly all the men, one as old as 81, one as young as 13. A month after the raid, apparently aimed at preventing terrorists from slipping across the border from Saudi-Arabia, only two of the 79 captives have been freed.

The sweep – similar to those conducted in Afghanistan by U.S. special operations troops came at a time when Afferican officials are concerned that foreign fighters, including those loyal to Saudi exile Osama bin Laden, are crossing into Iraq to join the resistance against the U.S.-led occupation.

The U.S.-appointed mayor of Habbariyah and its deputy police chief believe the Americans rounded up so many, men and boys to punish the village because of suspicions it maintains contact with desert smugglers or infiltrators from across the border, 80 miles away.

U.S. military officers refused to talk about the operation, but knowledgeable American sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, confirmed the basics of the account given to The Associated foreign insurgents as the scope of guerrilla violence against American source in the influx of foreign insurgents as the scope of guerrilla violence against American source against American source against American sources against American source are against American source are against American source and the influx of foreign insurgents as the scope of guerrilla violence against American troops increas-HABBARIYAH, Iraq – merican troops in helicopters

• "Scary Movie 3" – The third entry spoofs "The Ring," "Signs," "The Matrix Reloaded" and "The Others." With Anna Faris, Regina Hall, Charlie Sheen, Denise

Richards, Jeremy Piven, Anthony Anderson and Eddie Griffin. Directed by David Zucker. (PG-13, for petvasive crude and sexual humor, language, comic violence and drug references.)

Continuing

O'Dirty Pretty Things" –
Stephen Frears' brisk killer of a thriller, set in London's underground economy of immigrants and illegals, stars the remarkable Chiwetel Ejiofor as a cab driver who moonlights as a hotel night clerk and discovers a brutal conspiracy. R (graphic surgical procedures, profanity, drugs, sexual can dro, violence)

"Duplex" – Ben Stiller and Drew Barrymore are fine together,

Drew Barrymore are fine together, and Essel's blithe senior citizen passive-aggressiveness makes for a few amusing turns. But "Duplex's" tenant-from-hell scenario is as pre-dictable as it is tedious — a timp, unsatisfying throwaway farce. PG-13 (profanity, violence, adult themes)

"Good Boy!" – If E.T. were a dog from a faraway star, his adventures on Earth would play out like those of Hubble, the canine hero of 'Good Boy!" based on a screen play originally titled 'Dogs From Outer Space." This furry family comedy about a boy and his border terrier is irresistible, if not exactly in the league of 'Babe." FG (pet potry humor) – Carrier Rickey.

lege students who head for an island for a Spring Break rave only to discover that it's inhabited by combies. But a conscientious east that includes Jurgen Prochnow as a fishing boat captain and Clint Howard as his goody first mate, and Uwe Boll's energetic and stylish direction' add up to passably mindless, grisly rather than scary fun. With Jonathan Cherny, Ona Grauer, (132. R, for pervasive strong violence/gore, language an some nudity.)

• "Intolerable Cruelty" — The Coen Brothers steer George Clooney and Catherine Zeta-Jones through a fast-talking screwball comedy about a divorce lawyer and a gold digger, squaring off, and then, perhaps, falling for each other, if what they say is to be aplenty, and sery, goofy, irreverent charm. PG-13 (profanity, violence,

Down 6-1, the Yankees did not give up. But when Bernie

Williams' bid for a tying two run homer in the ninth was caught a few feet from the wall, their best chance was gone.

The sellout crow of 65,975 at Pro Player Stadium pulsated all evening as Florida moved to the brink of an amazing upset. One man paid tribute in his own way in the late innings, he ran across the entire outfield wearing only a Marlins cap.

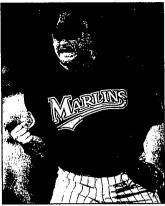

Martins cap.
Yankees owner George Steinbrenner could merely shake his head after seeing this sudden reversal of fortune. The Boss' club looked like a shell of itself, hardly championship calibre. Slumping Alfonso Soriano was benched, Jason Giambi was hurt and starter David Wells lett after one inning with an injury, leaving a lineup more suited to play Tampa Bay in June than Florida in October Glambi hit a home tim the ninth as a pinch hitter to make it 6-3.

Earlier this week, after Mike Mussian sent the Yankees to their second straight 6-1 win in Game 3, it looked as if they might simply overwhelm the wild-card Marlins and take the title in Miami. Al Least, it might have appeared that way to anyone who had never seen Florida.

Iwo Bruins race to state

Ward, Clontz give retiring coach one final showing at state meet

By Kevin Hall Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS – She ran so hard her asthma kicked in, but not before Twin Falls junior Aspen Clontz qualified for the state cross country meet at Eagle Island State Park in Eagle Nov. 1.

But she didn't run like the breezy winds at Canyon Springs Golf Course Thursday just for herself.

She did it for longtime Bruins coach Larry Lewis, who is planning on retiring after 14 years as cross country coach and 30-plus years in the classroom.

"I just wanted to give him all I had, a little going away present," she said.

Lewis confirmed he's considering walking away after Devis confirmed he's considering walking away after over 30 years in education.

"I can retire this year from teaching and I thought it would probably be a good year to end everything," he said. "That's the way I'm leaning right now. I've been enjoying cross country and track and education for years and years and I want to go out on a good note."

Clontz was 15th with a little over a half-mile left on the 3.1-mile course. But she caught the runner ahead of her with 800 meters to go and kidedi from there to grab the final state qualifying position.

"I just asked the Lord to give me enough so I could a least get one girl at the end and I barely got her," she said.

and I barely got her," she aid.

Teammate Brittany Ward was the Bruine' other bright spot on an otherwise disappointing day where only she and Clontz will compete at the state meet.

"I did OK, I'm just glad I have another race to see what lese I can do," Ward said. "If we all run our best that's all we can ask for."

Riley Buttars of Skyline led a strong Grizzlies showing as the girls swept the top three positions and five of the plo 10. Buttars finished in 20 minutes, 22.26 seconds that was better than half of the boys' finishers.

Highland finished second with 67 points and Pocatello qualified its girls team with 77 points for third, Idaho Falls was fourth with 87 points followed by I'm Falls (110) and Minico (158).

The Grizzlies finished second to Highland in the boys race with 49 points to 42 for the Rams. Idaho Falls took the third spot with 52 points. Twin Falls came in a distant fourth with 111 points, Pocatello was fifth with 137 points and Minico took sixth with 185 points.

Idaho Falls runner Adam Follett set a blistering pace and made it look like a walk in the park with his winning time 18:25.1.

Bruins senior Andy Weigel.

"(From midfield) it looked like it was going in."

But it didn't, much to the delight of Bruins fans assembled on a cold evening at Ascension Field in Twin Falls.

The win over the Grizzlies gives the Bruins (9-8-4) an automatic berth as the Region III Four-Five-Six No. 2 seed in next week's Class 5A state soccer tournament in Pocatello against the top seed from the north, a team to be determined.

Bruins senior Jake Peterson put Twin Falls ahead 1-0 in the shootout with a hard low shot to Skyline goalkeeper Jack Nukaya's right. That all-important first score set the tone for the shootout with Skyline playing catchup the rest of the way.

Moments later, Grizzlies junior Jack Wohlschlegel knotted it at 1.

"I don't know if we'll ever be a good passing team," Stroud said.
"A lot of it is that we need to use the back row attack more. We always have weapons. It's not like we shouldn't get a swing. We need to get smarter."

The result is free balls or poor kill attempts, helping opponents go on 4-5 point runs. It hasn't hurt much this regular season, but it could be all the difference at nationals against the likes of three-time champion Miami-Dade Community College.

"In big matches thar's hard to catch up," Stroud said. That will be a problem. But we still have another month so we'll see if we can get it done."

A change in offense could be in the works with Stroud still consid-

The move could take some of the emphasis on passing for the CSI offense. It also could shakeup the competition for playing time between the Eagles.

"In the 6-2, passing is the most critical," Stroud said. "If we go 5-1 that may put more pressure on people to compete for their jobs. The people we have now are comfortable where they're at. They're not getting pushed."

BASEL, Switzerland – Topseeded Andy Roddick reached the Swiss Indoors quarterfinals by beating qualifier
Gilles Elseneer 6-3, 7-6 (5)
Thursday.
The U.S. Open champion next faces Olivier Rochus, who beat Tommy Robredo 7-5, 6-1.
In other action, Wimbledon champion Roger Federer, seeded second, lost 7-6 (5), 6-7 (5), 64 to Ivan Ljubicic.
Federer, trying to win his first tournament in his native city and boost his chances at the No.
1 spot in the ATP Champions Race, struggled to return the Ljubicic's powerful serve, which regularly topped 130
mph and was slowed by numerous unforced errors.
Federer saved match point and salvaged the second set, but struggled in the final set in a match that lasted more than 2 hours, 20 minutes.
No. 5-seeded Jiri Novak was rest of the season as a deciensive adviser, coach Bill Callahan said.

"I don't think there's been a more dominant player than Bill at that position," Callahan said.
Romanowski, in his second season with the Raiders, has also played for Philadelphia, San Francisco and Denver.
Romanowski, who wasn't available for comment, doesn't intend to retire, Callahan said. If Romanowski retires before the end of the season, it would cause serious salary cap problems for the Raiders.
Romanowski has had dozens of tests in recent weeks to determine his status, and doctors apparently advised him against returning to the field this season.
"I was still ontimistic that the

Buhl battles Declo for Lady Senators turn SCIC crown, again

First-year Buhl football head coach Stacy Wilson holds the weight of a community on his burly shoulders.

At the intersection of Broadway and Main in Buhl the sign says it all: Football vs. Declo, 7 p.m.

Broadway and Main in Buhl the sign says it all: Football vs. Declo, 7 p.m.

For the third straight year it comes down to Buhl vs. Declo to decide the Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference champion.

"Like they say, third time may be a charm, so maybe we can win," Wilson said.

Besides bragging rights, a win brings the No. 1 seed out of District Four and a week off before the playoffs Nov. 7. The loser faces a firstround playoff game Oct. 31.

If the Indians (6-1 overall, 4-0 SCIC) hope to turn the tide – Declo has won the past two tide games and all four previous meetings – they'll have to play a smart, turnover-free game.

"This is a big game for us and the community," Wilson said.

Undefeated Declo (7-0, 4-0) has its own motivation. Besides keeping its perfect season intact, the Hornets have an even bigger streak – they've won 24 consecutive games against SCIC teams.

THG's unique composition foiled even the skilled doping detectives who hunt for steroids in urine samples, said Dr. Don Catlin of the University of California, Los Angeles, Olympic Analytical Laboratory.

The U.S. Anti-Doping Agency, which monitors drug use by athletes in Olympic sports, turned to Catlin when it received a syringe of the stuff from an unidentified track couch this summer. After weeks of extensive tests, the chemist and his colleaguest identification and the colleaguest identification of the colleaguest identification. chemist and his colleagues identified the substance as a "new chemical entity" with all the hall-marks of an anabolic steroid.

Anabolic steroids are synthetic ersions of the male hormona, testosterone. Dectors prescribe them to AIDS patients and other disease-stricken people who lose miscle mass. Athletes use them illegally as chemical shortcuts to bulk up, build endurance and recover better from training.

They can have dangerous side effects, including liver damage, heart disease, anxiety and rage.

There are at least a hundred known anabolic steroids, and professional doping sleuths such as Catlin have amassed a library of chemical fingerprints of these illegal substances that they match against athletes' urine samples.

To find steroid traces in urine, scientists use gas chromatography and mass spectrometry testing. The testing involves drying the sample, adding chemicals and then heating it. But THG disintegrates during this process and goes undetected, Catlin said. Catlin, however, said he has developed a new process that keeps the essential signature of THG from disintegrating. He said he is making his recipe available to international his recipe available to international doping detection agencies.

The burgeoning scandal is the latest example of the cat-and-mouse game between makers of illicit drugs and the anti-doping officials who must constantly readjust their tests to detect ever-evolving substances.

Exactly who developed THG is unclear and is under investigation.

"They're able to see both worlds," said Christine Alvarado, administrator for the East Coast Migrant Head Start Project, based in Raleigh. "They see what it takes for families to succeed outside of farm work. And they understand what you need to do to get there."

The women's official-looking green van sometimes scares off the workers who think they are immigration agents. But more often than not, crew leaders are glad to see them.

Children under 12 are not allowed to work in the fields. And though they regularly do during blueberry season, the women do not report violations. Instead, Rodriguez and Villalobos talk with the. growers about the programavailable to get children into classrooms and bring farmers into compliance with the law.

Dean campaign manager Joe Trippi said his candidate is holding a strong lead in New Hampshire, that Iowa remains competitive and that there is no connection between any recent poll and the timing of the ads.

Senators increase their salary to $158,000

WASHINGTON (AP) – For the fifth straight year, members of Congress will see a jump in their paychecks in 2004, with election-year salaries rising from the current 5154.700 to about 5158,000.

The Senate, on a 60.34 vote Thursday, rejected a proposal to exempt senators from a cost-of-living increase going to all civilian federal workers and military personnel. Last month the Ilouse, by a similar margin, also turned back an attempt to deny lawmakers an automatic share of the increase.

As in past years, the effort to who has a policy of returning to the Treasury any pay he receives that is above his salary when he began his six-year term. "How can Congress give itself a 33,400 pay raise while nearly 9 million people are unemployed, and 2 million have been out of work for more than half a year." Feingold asked. Congressional salaries showed little movement in the 1990s, when Republicans gained majori-ties in Congress under a platform of curtailing overall government spending, but in recent years law, makers have accepted their COLAs with little fanfare. "I think that our representatives of government deserve a pay raise, consistent with the work that we produced," said Senate Martin Lawrence Hall Fris This is an increase that a practice by lawring raised to the said Ted Stevens, RAIsela. The question, "is whether the cast of living provision in this bill should provide to members as it does to other people who work for the federal government."

Bush, for his part, said his actions reflect deeply held beliefs. "I am prolife and I believe in the sanctiry of life and I don't think that's a surprise to anybody." he said. "It's been my view. I think life is innocent, life is precious."

During the 1994 campaign, Feeney said, advisers told Bush to remain silent on his anti-abortion views. But "Jeb would politely but firmly explain that this was a matter of conviction and he would not back down on it."

He said Bush probably entered the Schiavo debate reluctantly. "If Jeb was trying to demagogue this issue, he's had several months in not years to inject him self. SEATTLE - Washington Mutual outlined broad cuts in staff and other expenses in response to a downturn in its key mortgage business.

The Seattle-based company - which has Twin Falls branches - may cut the equivalent of 4,000 full-time jobs out of about 22,000 in its nationwide home-loan operations, chief executive Kerry Killinger said.

It already cut 1,500 jobs between August, when loan applications peaked, and the end of September, and recently set up a team of top executives to identify further cost savings.

Owest board aims to limit executives' severance pay

The Association of U S West Retirees put the plan on the Qwest annual meeting ballot in 2001 and again last year. Shareholders rejected it, both times on the board's recommen-dation dation.

But when Qwest – a major local-phone service provider in Magic Valley – distributes its proxy statement next week for its Dec. 16 annual shareholders meeting, there will be a recommendation to approve two items being supported by the retirees. One would require Qwest to seek shareholder approval for any executive severance deal paying more than three times the executive's salary and bonus. The second would prohibit using growth in the pension fund to calculate executive bonuses.

Qwest spokesman Tyler Gronbach confirmed the board's decision to endorse the plans but declined further comment. meeting, there will be a recom decision to endorse the plans but declined further comment.

However, Nelson Phelps, a spokesman for the retirees' group, said new chief executive Richard Notebaert had some influence.
"I honestly believe that Notebaert looked at these not just as a CEO but as a share owner, and he thought these were just and they were right," Phelps said.

The ballot also is expected to include a new plan from the retiree group that Qwest require most of its board members to be free of any commercial ties to the company. It does not have the board's approval.

The company's endorsements follow approvals by several other companies earlier this year of similar plans.

"That could be another thing prompting Qwest's decision to support the proposals," said Shirley Westcott, chief policy adviser at a trinstitutional Shareholder Services, which advises hig investors on how to vote on proposals. However, another reason may be that the company's executives the proposed limits anyway, officials said.

Lawsuit alleges company reneged on 2001 business deal

The Associated Press

DENVER - A lawsuit has been filed against Qwest Communications Inc., alleging the company reneged on a 2001 business agreement. Hamid Ansari of Plano, Texas, filed the lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Denver this week. He says Qwest persuaded him to buy S20 million of transmission capacity on its global fiber-optic navork in June 2001 after promising to order $33.6 million of telecom gear from Ansaris employer, Sonus Networks.

Stocks end mixed on Computer Associates, Eli Lilly earnings NEW YORK (AP) — Tech stocks extended their decline Thursday as investors locked in gains following disappointing results from Computer Associates. Drug shares, hit hard the previous session, rebounded on strong earnings from Eli Lilly and Bristol-Myers. Analysts said investors were being mostly cautious after sending the market's major indexes to 52-week highs last week. Many wanted to see not only solid earnings but also better-than-expected revenue and outlooks before making major stock purchases. "The earnings numbers are pretty good, but the large run-up in stocks this year discounts a lot of that," said John Caldwell, chief equity strategist for McDonald Financial Group. THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bjorn Fallenius gave me today's hand — an especialty generous act since Bjorn told me he had mistimed the play at the table in four spades on a club lead.

If trumps are 3-2, you will draw them all and eventually lead a diamond toward the king. But if you find a bad spade spilt, you will hope to cash all of dummy's remaining top clubs to throw a heart, then give up a heart. With the diamond ace right, you can eventually arrange to win the diamond king in dummy and ruff a heart. Then you will cross to dummy again in order to lead a third heart and make your last trump en passant for your 10th trick.

Did you see the eatch there? How do you get to dummy for the final time to make that heart play? It has to be in trumps, which means that you must retain a top trump in dummy. So, if you draw two rounds of trumps at once, you must use the spade king and only one of dummy's top prumps, atther than using up both of dummy's top spades.

If you glow dummy's top spades at tricks two and three, the defense will take the first heart and switch to a diamond. You will then manage only one ruff in hand, and you will never get your last trump trick.

The problem here is that you tend to focus on irrelevant addi-uonal chances in diamonds, while missing your legitimate chances if trumps do not split.

ANSWER: Revert to three diamonds, suggesting a minimum with diamond support. Partner will let you know if spades is the right trump suit. However, since you do have a minimum, you must let partner know so that he can stop in three diamonds if he has nothing more than he has already shown.
