In Basra, utilities and British style keep the peace

British forces learned that the hard way. In the crippling heat of August, shortages of electricity and gasoline set off furious riots by frustrated residents. British officials blamed the loss of power on looters and the breakdown of a long-neglected neglected power station that, in turn, slowed the refining of fuel.

But the mass unrest unnerved coalition officials, who prompily put in $16 million to fix the generators. Since then, Basra has been supplied with constant power.

"Once we got those things done, we were able to move on. Now people are concerned with things like employment, sanitation, education...That-indicative-of-our-success," Sweeney said.

The British millitary presence – most visible on foot patrols throughout the city in bretst instead of helmets – is also intentionally kept low-key. Sweeney

"We know how to conduct a military operation in a civilian enviromment. The biggest lesson was you treat everyone like the enemy, then that comes back to haunt you," he said.

Troops who arrived after the Bolstering the coalition is a new Lraqi police force, freshly trained by the Brits to conduct basic patrols and eventually take over security. On a recent evening in Basra, fraqi police set up a check-cearch for weaponers. Stopping all cars, the officers hauled in several knives, a gun, and two young suspects.

"The Iraqi police are taking care of this town," said storekeeper Abdul Zahra Mohammed, 52, as he watched approvingly from a sidewalk." We wunt-Iradir faces."

By contrast, U.S. forces in Baghdad- and the surrounding Sunni Muslim region, a horbed of pro-Saddam supporters, have faced a barrage of daily attacks. Nearly 140 U.S. soldiers have been faced a barrage of daily attacks. Nearly 140 U.S. soldiers have been faced a barrage of daily attacks. Nearly 140 U.S. soldiers have been faced a barrage of daily attacks. Nearly 140 U.S. soldiers have been family a barrage of daily attacks. The city's majority Shifte Muslim oppulation was harshly repressed by his Sunni minority government. In the postwar era, the once munipresent images of Saddam have long-vanished, to be replaced by posters and banners of influential Shifte clerics.

Favar Abd, 54, a gas station attendant, puts it simply: "We feel much safer now. In Saddam's regime, we were afraid all the time, even in our sleep. Anytime someone could come to your door and take you away. But now we have freedom. We have been liberated," he said.

President Bush speaks about the economy at CraneWorks Monday in Birmingham, Ala.

Bush touts economy during stump speech

WASHINGTON - President ush withheld comment Monday Bush withheld comment Monday for the second day on the downing of a U.S. helicopter in Iraq, continuing a White House pattern of ignoring or putting the best face on bad news.

of a U.S. neuropies. A many uning a White House pattern of ignoring or putting the best face on bad news.

Traveling in Alabama, Bush made no direct reference to the loss of 16 U.S. soldiers in Sunday's incident, dwelling instead on the latest good-news economic statistics. His only mention of dead soldiers was indirect and unspecific. "We mourn every loss. We honor every name. We grieve with every family," he told a crowd in Birmingham.

He stressed instead that the condict in Iraq is a direct outgrowth of the war on terrorism that began with the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. "We must never forget the lessons of September the 11th, 2001. We must never forget that tragic day," Bush said. He wowd to stay in Iraq until the job is done: "America will never run." Bush two-pronged approach—highlighting economic gains and emphasizing his leadershy in the war against terror – frames the message that he and his advisors hope to ride to re-election near year. His reticence to confront the latest developments in Iraq was consistent with earlier White House efforts to talk past sothacks while focusing instead on the larger war on terrorism. In recent weeks, Bush has accused the media of exaggerating the bad news and suggested—that attacks in Iraq show." He more successful we are on the ground, the more these kildner will react," he contended last week.

When asked Monday to explain and the section to without comment. On Sunday's helicopter downing, White House peaks publicly often, and will continue to, about the outstanding job our men and women in the military are doing and about the sacrifices that they are making." McClellan said. Meanwhile, Defense Department officials took other steps to reduce media attention to the loss of life in Iraq. In Ramstein, Germany, military officials prohibited media coverage of the return of the solidiers' flagdraped coffins.

The administration also-forbidsphots of dead soldiers' coffins at Dover Air Force Base in Delaware, where they are taken from Ramstein. The ban on coverage is consistent with a policy set in 1991 that was often waived in the past but has been enforced strictly for the Iraq war.

Roderick Hart, a communication professor at the University of the firaq war.

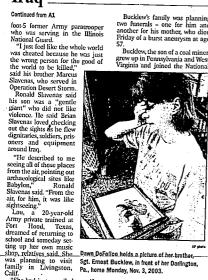

Roderick dedia attention that helped turn public opinion against the Victnam War. Photos of soldiers' coffins lined up in hangars at Dover were staples of media coverage then.

"From a media point of view, it's beginning to have an ominous resemblance to Vietnam," Hart said of the news from Iraq. "Every might people were delivered another set of body bags. That real-pot the law of the news from Iraq. "Every might people were delivered another set of body bags. That real-pot and the past of the produced away at the nations' morale."

Another student, Rosa Arteaga, who is the class valedictorian for Valley class of 2004, becomes passionate when she talks about the difficulties Latino students face just in getting through school without having to pass the ISAT.
"We are attempting to do what our parents didn't," Arteaga said. "However, it is very difficult. We come to school and try to fit in with the American culture, but once we go home we have to return to the Mexican culture."

Often Latino students have to work full-time jobs after school to help support their families, she pointed out. Or if they don't have jobs, they have to do the baby-sitting, housework. and cooking while both parents work in the fields. In addition, many Mexican families head to back to their mother country during December and stay for up to 12 weeks: These traits of the Mexican iliestyle leave little time for most youngs stors to learn the language well enough to pass the ISAT.

Research shows it takes about two to three years to learn English well enough to speak socially, but it can take five to seven years to apply it academically.

Concerns; no conclusions

Educators admit the system lags in preparing Latino students for the ISAT. Recently the state Department of Education implemented early-reading intervenion programs and testing for Latino children in the lower grades, spokeswoman Allison Westfall said.

Rut now the state needs to cre-

But now the state needs to create standards for learning English. Next week, a team of experts from around the state will review a draft of those standards. In addition, several states, including Idaho, are working on one test that all schools will use to assess how well students speak English, Westfall said. Idaho schools now have five they can use, said Kathleen Noh, curriculum director for the Kimberly School District.

But that mich. review a draft of those standards

But that might not be enough, at least in the short run. The Idaho Commission on Hispanic Affairs is discussing the situation, said Gladys Esquibel, board president. Last week the commission met with 27 agencies and groups, and one of the main topics people considered was the ISAT in relation to Latino students.

"We have a lot of concerns, but no conclusions at this time." Esquibel said.

But the commission is not willing to sit by and watch Latinos flounder on the test.

"We can't afford to," she said.
"Education is the key to good jobs. That's the foundation, and if we allow this to happen, we're basically saying we don't care about education."

Scientists detect more solar flares

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The Sun fired at least three more salvos of highly charged particles toward Earth Sunday and Monday, and scientists said more explosions from the Sun were likely. The latest solar cruptions brought to six the number of huge flares noted since last Wednesday, one of the most turbulent periods in solar observations since 1940. The sunspots that have been generating the flares probably will trate out of view in the next day or so, according to scientists. That, would offer Earth a respite from the cruptions and the geomagnetic storms they trigger in the atmosphere, according to the Salvos of the Salvos of and distributor Mirumax decided duree hours was too long for a single martial-arts. Him. Part two debuts in February.

It's more coincidence than trend that these three projects surfaced around the same time. The stories are epics that needed more than a single movie's running time to do them justice, and the unresolved endings required the expediency of simultaneous shooting to get them in theaters quickly, before audiences lost interest.

If Hollywood takes away any lessons, it will be on the bottom line, not the lure of cliffinanger story-celling. Whether a franchise is intended as a serialized story or several self-contained flins, studios may be enticed by the cost efficiency of shooting two or more movies in one swoop. efficiency of shooting two or more movies in one swoop.
While studios can be stuck with money-losing sequels, if the first chapter bombs, the strategy can pay off nicely when part one clicks. If "Kill Bill" Vol. 2" matches the performance of "Vol. 1," Miramax should wind up with a total domestic gross of about $150 million for the two films, a solid return on "Kill Bills" $65 million budget.

"If depends on the project." said "Matrix" producer Joel Silver, who is developing a big-screen take on the "Wonder Woman," conit books. "Woo knows? Maybe order to word the same time. It all depends on the material." In the 19th century, novels often were published in installments, and modern authors – notably Stephen King – have had occasional success with senialized fiction.

Television soap operas long have continued that tradition, and Try audiences have become accustomed to season-ending cliffhangers is many sictoms and dramas. Cliffhangers were old-hat in hollywoods early days with such serialized short films as "The Perlis of Pauline." It's been rure to apply that approach to full-length movie franchiese, whose installments generally stand on their own, such as the "Indiana Jones" or "Jurussic Park" flicks.

The "Star Wars" sequel "The Empire Strikes Back" left loose ends hanging for "The Return of the Jedi" to resolve. The prequels "The Phantom Menace" and "Attack of the Clones," while fairly self-contained in themselves, clearly are part of a broader trilogy that will conclude with George. Lucas, final "Star. Wars," movie in-2005.

To satisfy fans and do honor to the sprawling "Lord of the Rings" story, director Jackson got the goahead to divide it into a trilogy, the parts roughly coinciding to Tolkien's three installments, "The Fellowship of the Ring," The Two Towns, with extended video versions adding half an hour or more to each.

"You couldn't have a 10-hour movie," said Viggo Mortensen, who stars as the human warnor Aragorn in "The Lord of the Rings" films," I always looked ait as one story, three movies. I never understood the talk of this whole cliffhanger thing, I would say, people who knew the books wouldn't have said anything about that. They would view it as one story broken up into three pieces."

California firefighters lose own homes while saving others

Paramedic and firefighter Carolina Finch ponders the irony of losing her home in the California wildfires while she was saving the homes ers during a conversation Sunday in the Julian, Calif., firestation.

CUYAMACA, Calif. (AP) — Volunteer firefighter Carolina Finch was trying to save a convalescent home when she glimpsed the angy-orange glow in the sky over her own neighborhood. Rounding the corner, she saw Mussed to be her two-story redword house, the new propriet.

As the sun rose the next morning, it became clear that she was not the only firefighter whose home was only irrelighter whose home was destroyed.

"Dave lost his. God, Carl lost his." she told a dellow firrelighter as they raced off to fight the monstrous blaze that roared through San Diege County last week. "Every single one of us lost our house. Isn't that something? Dann he luck." Seven of eight volunteer firefighters at the Lake Cuyamaca Fire Department and three firefighters at the nearby Julian station lost their homes—when flames whipped through the area last Tuesday. They had been struggling to save their communities—at one point making a dramatic stand that helped save Julian's historic downtown—even as their own homes wore reduced to crumbling foundations and ash.

Afghans unveil constitution plan

KABUL, Afghanistan - The gov-rument unveiled its long-awaited roposal for a new constitution

KABUL, Afghanistan—The gow-ernment unveiled its leng-savaited proposal for a new constitution Monday, opting for a straight presi-dential system and dropping the idential system and dropping the additional position of principal sys-tem position of principal system commission.

The new draft, presented in a formal ceremony outside the pres-idential palace after weeks of pri-vate discussion among top offi-cials, appeared to be a major political victory for President Hamid Karzai, 46, who hopes to win election next year to the post he now holds temporarily as the country's transitional leader.

The final word on the new charter, and on the form of Afghaniscun's emerging democracy, will come from 500 delegates to match assembly scheduled to the compact of the com preparation for national elections. The entire process is mandated and monitored by the United Nations.

"Today we have witnessed a significant step in taking the Afghan nation toward building a society round by law," Jawad Luddin, Kurzai's spokersman, told journalists after the ceremony, which was attended by the ailing former Afghan king, Mohammed Zahir dents and many foreign ambassadors.

The official draft calls for a president and single vice president to be elected, with a separate two-house legislature and judiciary. It also states that "no law can be contrary to the sacred religion of Islam" but stops short of calling for full Islamic law to be implemented, as some conservative Muslim leaders had sought.
Luddin said the decision to opt for a strong executive, rather than a combined system with both a president and prime minister, was made in the interests of political stability and suitability for the country.

At one point or another, more than 400 of the ship's 1,800 passengers have fallen ill with the highly contagious gastrointestinal bug called the norovirus. The virus is spread through food, water and close contact with infected people and causes diarrhea, vomiting and nausea. Symptoms usually last up to two days.

"We were obliged to halt traffic between Spain and the colony of Gibraltar given the absence of information on the virus," Spanish Health Minister Ana Pastor said. British Foreign Secretary Jack Straw criticized the closure, calling it 'unnecessary and disproportionate." The cruise operator withheld the passports of passengers going ashore. That, Straw said, was "a perfectly adequater safeguard that none of those people can go othrough the border into Spain."

Idaho's new tax collectors show some instant returns

he only thing worse taxes is knowing others are getting away ers are getting away excorfree.

Last winter, Idaho legislators digreed to beef up the Idaho Tax Commission with more office staff and tax collectors, to go after unpaid taxes. Estimates said the state was missing anywhere from $41 million to $88 million in revenue from unpaid income, corporate and sales taxes.

The state's investment = 30 newly hired tax collectors and 15 restored positions — is already bringing returns. The state's lated by 11 million in the first six months. But after just three mouths, the commission had

The idea of hiring more tax collectors was talked about in the 2002 legislative session. Then Democratic gubernatorial candidate Jerry Brady proposed-it in his-2002 campaign-And Gow. Dirk Kempthorne's Blue Ribbon Task Force recommended it again last winter. But resistance came from some conservative Republican legislators, who argued that adding the tax collector positions would only fuel the growth of state government. They also suggested that, in a slumping economy, those who hadn't paid in the past still wouldn't be able to write their tax checks.

Scenes untold from new Iraq

s many Idahoans know, I recently took the opportunite East as part of a congressional delegation. Unfortunately, the kinds of things I saw have not been adequately reported by various media outlets, sof thought I would share a few of my experiences.

ious media outlets, so I thought I would share a few off my experiences.

I felt it was very important to go to Iraq and Afghanistan for a number of reasons. The United States has committed to spend 566 billion on our troops in Iraq, and 520 billion on reconstruction follars will help restore critical infrastructure, like the electrical system, roads, bridges, pipelines, dams, and irrigation systems. As a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, it is important to see that our dollars are spent responsibly.

I also felt it was important to visit Iraq because Idaho soldiers are stationed there, in harm's way. Like their families, I would like to see them return safely, as soon as possible. It is important for members of Congress, the leaders who sent them there in the first place, to show our concern and support for these brave people who are sacrificing greatly to guarantee our security and freedom back here a home. These soldiers are proud of the work they have done, and for good reason. Admittedly, stall, our serving darked and and great good reason. Admittedly, stall, our every death is a tragedly Soll, our good reason. Admittedly, Iraq still has dangerous places, and every death is a tragedy. Still, ou military has had a number of tremendous successes that we don't hear about often enough.

Since the end of organized hos-tilities in May, U.S. forces have helped train 50,000 Iraqi police-men and soldiers of the new Iraqi army. Given our success so far, the goal of 80,000 policemen on the beat by June 2004 is not unrealistic.

unrealistic.

At 4,400 megawatts, the electrical generation capacity of Irai is now higher than it was before the conflict began. Current demand is estimated at 6,000 MW, so there is still much to be done. But we have come a long way in just six months to repair damage and the neglect of 30 years of Saddam Hussein,s regime.

regime. Aside from accomplishments like this, the troops also talked about personal stories that reinforce the value of the United States, mission. To many Idahoans, operational Irrigation systems are part of everyday life. However, one soldier recounted how local Iraqis in the Mosul area were moved to tears when several pumps were restored and began pumping water to irrigate their fields for the first time in years.

Through neglect or deliberate action, many canals and irrigation ditches had been filled in during the Hussein regime. Since many Iraqis were out of work immediately following the war, Coulition Provisional Authority in Iraq officials had an idea to put them to work, have them re-dig the canals. A shortage of shovels in country was solved by offering workers an extra S2 per day if they brought their own shovel. Thousands showed up and the canals were repaired within weeks.

The most telling sign I observed was the openness and friendliness of the Iraqi children. Their attitude is reflective of their parents. If the parents told them Americans are evil or dangerous, the children would stay away. However, everywhere we ment, we were greeted by children running to us, giving us their schools, newly refurbished by the United States Agency for International Development and its partners. Once a tool for Baathist indoctrination and intimidation, 1,564 schools now have new blackboards, glass in the windows, toilest she flight and fans to keep the children cool.

Successes like these, on the personal level, go a long way toward setting Iraq on the path

Successes like these on the personal level, on a long way toward setting fraq on the path to peace and prosperity, it will not be an easy road, but it is important to remember that the attacks are only part of the stop Seeing the flip side, the positive things that are happening, has convinced me that-we will succeed in bringing peace to Iraq.

Downtown plan keeps fairness in mind

wanted to take the time to respond to the editorial which appeared recently in The Times-Neues concerning consolidating the Downtown and Old Towne Immes-wees concerning consonuating the Downtown and Old Towne districts.

Right now, we currently operate three entities – Downtown, Old Towne and Historic Old Towne (which is the management comparty that manages the two districts). We cannot merge the two districts. We cannot merge the two districts, because of the way the funds are collected. Old Towne assesses property owners by their property value multiplied by a mill rate of 50%, and Downtown assesses business owners through several different of the control of the contr

There's been a lot of talk over the years of trying to merge the two districts. I wanted to tackle the years of the near dissolving of Old Tone.

Committee the committee of a committee the presentatives, a manufacturer and two City Council members, one of which was the former executive director of Downtown, Our goal was to create a fair and equitable system that would be easier to understand and maintain.

We first looked at using the mill rate of Old Towne, but it seemed too high and the goal of this committee was not to raise the assessments. We then looked at .003 and then settled at .00275 for the mill rate. This would put the projected budget right in line with the current budget. We also decided to protect ourselves from scaring off future large developments from locating in this area.

This is a very simple system, unlike the current Downtown assessments structure; if we feel that the mill rate or the cap

Property owners who have buildings that house multiple business esc can simply pass along the assessment to the business owners who are already currently paying assessments. We recognize that sometimes bigger really is better. Like the Big Savings we're offering this week at Swemmart and Swemsen's Mar-kets on all your favorite Big Brands. Or the Big Service we provide to every customer who walks through our dears. But unlike some stores, we also appreciate the value of small. Which is why we'll never force you to buy a 5-gallon tub of mayonnaise to get a decent price — or build a store that requires you to hike 20 minutes just to get from the olives on aisle 4 to the lettuce on aisle 67b. So visit Swenmart or Swensen's Markets this week, and experience the stores where big and small work perfectly together.

Social Security benefits will rise in January

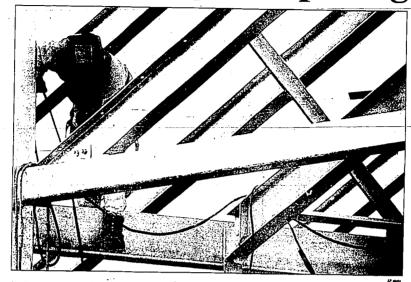

Social Security benefits
Will rise in January Wastinkir(ON - Social Security benefits will rise 2.1 percent, effective with the checks that go out in January, the Social Security Administration has announced.
This cost-of-living adjustment means that the average monthly payment to all retired workers will climb to $922 from this year's $903, while the maximum for those at full retirement age (65 years, 2 months for those born in 1938, and 65 years, 4 months for those born in 1939) will jump to $1,325 from $1,741.

On the pay-in side, the tax rate on active workers will remain unchanged at 7.65 percent (that's 6.2 percent for Social Security and 1.45 percent for Medicare) for comployees and 15.3 percent for the self-employed. The "wage base," on which the Social Security portion is levide, will rise slightly, to $87,900 from this year's $87,000. There is no limit on wages subject to the Medicare tax.

Inflation and other adjustments will also affect private pensions.
Workers with 401(k) plans will be able to contribute up to $13,000 in 2004, and workers 50 and older can tack on anyther $3,000 for a total of $516,000.

Are these useful and worth the yearly fee? I know we can always request our credit reports, but we'd like something more proaction.

we'd like something more proactive.

Answer Credit monitoring isn't all it's cracked up to be.

First and most important, these services can't prevent identity theft. The best they can do is give you an early warning that some one has opened a credit account in your name.

Sometimes, you're not even guaranteed that. Some of the services wait a month before notifying you of any changes, although the best notify you (typically by e-mail) within 24 hours.

Also, most services monitor your credit report from just one of the three bureaus. That means your service won't detect problems that crop up on your reports at the two other bureaus. This is no small issue—the three bureaus don't share information, and the data they collect on you often are different.

In a second report, the Institute for Supply Management said its manufacturing index rose to 57 in October, up sharply from a reading of 53.7 in September. It marked the fourth month in a row that manufacturing flashed agrowth signal.

An index reading above 50 indicates expansion; one below 50 indicates that manufacturing From March through June, the manufacturing index was below 50.

October's manufacturing performance was much stronger than analysts expected; they were forecasting a reading of 55.5 for October.

"The U.S. economy has solid-momentum carrying on into" the current Octoberto-December quarter, said Sherry Cooper, chief economist at BMO Neshitt Burns. In the construction report, spending by private builders on housing projects rose by 1.4 percent in September to a rate of 5471.4 billion, the highest monthly level on tecord.

The housing market has been one of the economy's important sources of strength.

Amid signs that the economy is picking up steam, the Federal Reserve last week decided to hold a key shortsterm interest rate at a 45-year low of 1 percent and suggested that it could stay there for some time. Keeping

Apple leaps forward with new G5

Having Apple Computer's new Yower Mac G5 around the office is like having a superhero assistant. If you've got fors of graphics or yideo heavy lifting to do all at once, it's amazing. Power Mac G4. And the truth is, Apple's Power Mac sales have been so sluggish lately that a lor more people are probably thinking about upgrading from 657-MHz boxes than 1-GHz ones. The dual 2-Ghz models are just becoming widely available. The C5 that I wouldn't recommend is the low-cent 1-6-GHz G5 (starting at $2,900), which uses slower memory, a slower bus and outdated-PCI expansion-instead-of the faster PCLX. You'd be better off dishing out an extra $400 for the 1.8-GHz machine. And once you consider that the 1.8-GHz of has twice the hard-drive space, you realize that the low-end machine only saves you about $275.

Former A.G. eyes run for high court

The Associated Press

BOISE - Former Republican Attorney General Jim Jones announced Monday he has formed a comimitee to evaluate a possible run for the state Supreme Court seat of retiring Justice Wayne Kidwell.

"I am definitely interested in the position but keeping my options open," Jones said in a statement. Jones, a Jerome native who now lives in Boise, is the sedond attorney to express interest in the seat, joining Bart Davis of Idaho Falls, the Republican floor leader in the state Senate.

Candidates for the court must formally file for the seat between March 8 and March 19.

Jones served two four year terms as attorney general from 1983 through 1990 before losing the 1990 Republican primary for the U.S. Senate to—Leary Graigs—He has been in private practice in Boise since.

T.F. council OKs subdivision request over objections of nearby residents

By Rebecca Meany Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS – Despite an earnest appeal by Wirsching Avenute West residents, the City Council voted 6:1 Monday to approve the preliminary plat of Castlewood Subdivision No. 1.

The lone vote of dissent came from Councilman Trip Craig, Although the found most of the plan acceptable, his concerns involved school crowding and traffic issues.

Residents protested several parts of traffic issues.

Residents protested several parts of the plan; the increase in housing with out an increase in schools, which they say are already overcrowded; insuffi-cient parks and recreation space; a portion of the canal that would remain uncovered and therefore dangerous to children playing near it; and sewer odars.

"I don't mind the land being developed," resident Randy Simonson said.
"It's just at matter of low."
Russ Lively, a local architect challenging Graig in today's City Council election, gave testimony that the area would suffer if the plain it is current incarnation goes through. He raised quality of life issues stemming from lack of public space and cited potential truffic and pedestrian danger getting to and from the subdivision.
"The street design has been revised three times," he said. "It's a bad place for traffic anyway. There's ne lights, no sidewalks. If the density of the subdivision can be changed, it can be a nice place."

City Engineer Gary Young disagreed that the development would add undue burden on area traffic. He also addressed residents' concerns of sever odor by stating. "It's improven that it would be deleterions."

Gerald Martens, representing EHM Engineers, countered public arguments of potential deterioration of quality of life. He told the City Council that public services in the subdivision would be taken care of, the homes would be site-built, not pre-manufactured, and the development would take. between five and rejidit-years, allowing time for the school district and residents to address issues that might arise.

Carey hay fires draw sheriff's interest

By Pat Murphy

HAILEY - A group of at least four adults and juveniles is described by Blaine County Sheriff Walt Femling as suspects in a series of fires in Carey that destroyed more than 300 tons of hay and straw. The sheriff did not disclose the names of the suspects, nor how many juveniles or adults, but said they are residents of Carey, a town of about 450 population on U.S. Highway 20 some 33 miles from Hailey.

The state fire marshal's office joined the investigation, Femling said, after evidence of an accelerant fuel used to start the blazes was found.

innocent.

But the court, in its brief opin-ion, made no mention of Porter's status under a recent federal court decision essentially voiding death sentences in Idaho because they were imposed by a judge without a jury determining key eliminates required to justify execution.

Porter, 46, of Nezperce was convicted and sentenced to death for the 1988 beating death of his girl-friend, Theresa Lynn Jones, 29, of Kamiah. He has maintained his innocence, but the state Supreme Court upheld his conviction and sentence in 1997.

Leading up to the early morning slayings, Sarah Johnson had been discovered spending the previous Friday night in Santos's Hailey apartment, after telling her parents she was with girifriends, Femiling said. Her auto privileges were withdrawn by her parents, who also said they would consult law enforcement about possible charges against Santos.

The night before the shortings, Sarah has dertrieved her father's 264-caliber hunting ritler from an adjacent guest house and shortly after 6 am, shot her parents, then tried unsuccessfully to dispose of the gloves and bloody bathrobe in a trash can that would've been picked up by collectors had they not been stopped by crime scene barriers on Glen Aspen Drive.

She then went screaming into the street and sought refuge in a neighbor's home, and continued living with relatives in Caldwell until her arrest.

TWIN FALLS – Building camaraderic, strength and confidence are goals of young cheerleading squads.

Tyouts for the Magic Valley Eagle All-Star Cheerleaders were held in April. There are 15 girls on the pee-wee squad for grades 2 to 4 and 15 girls on the junior squad for grades 5 to 8.

Instructor Andrea Pierce said 14 girls returned from last year, which was their first year.

"We specifically train to compete," Pierce said. "The main goal is to teach them how to perform at a competitive level. Competitive cheerleading has become more popular in Idaho."

Originally, the program started at "Magic Valley Gymnastics, which hired Pierce, and then it moved to the YMCA. But Pierce and her partner, Amanda Shaw, branched out on their own as a business.

"It is a really positive after-school activity," said Pierce, who was a cheerleader in junior high, high school and college.

Cheerleading builds esfetem and physical abilities, requiring strength and coordination, she said. "It is not a roh-rah sport anymore. And just the camaraderic. Chee girls are all from different schools, but they really bond together."

The girls pay $40 a month. Nine-year-old Alexis Richardson enjoys the competitions.

will write book

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) —
The man who went over Niagara Falls and lived to tell about it isn't done telling his story.

Kirk Jones is writing a book about the experience, according to his brother, Keith, who said he'll be the co-author.

Keith Jones said the book would be a lighthearted look at the feat with a serious side about the depression that prompted his younger brother to take the plunge. The tentative title: "You're Kidding Me: A Knuckhead's Guide To Surviving Niagan Falls."
Fueled by vodka and Coke, 40year-old Kirk Jones of Canton, Mich, climbed into the Niagara River and slipped over the Canadian Horseshoe Falls Oct. 20.
Family members and friends said he'd talked about the stun, but no one believed he'd actually try it.
Jones told reporters he'd been suicidal, but the experience made him want to live.

eling in the opposite direction upon a separate portion of the roadway.

Additionally, I have communicated with officials at the Oklahoma Department of Education. They encourage school districts not to place bus stope on or along a divided highway. However, if they must, the stops should be established only where the students would not be required to cross the dividing strip and separate portion of the high-way.

LT. CHRIS WEST, DIREC-OR OF PUBLIC INFORMA-TOR OF PUBLIC INFORMA-TION OKLAHOMA DEPART-MENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY DEAR LT. WEST: Thank you for setting the record straight. You folks at the Oklahoma Department of Public Safety are on the ball. And it looks like you have your work cut out for you. Read on:

DEAR ABBY I live in a small town in Oklahoma where Idds ride bikes to and from school. They do not seem to believe that stop signs are meant for them as well as for cars and trucks. They do not read to the the stop signs are meant for them and regulation that the stop signs are meant for them and regulation are for everyone, and that looking both ways and not stopping isn't good enough.

Lelled the local elementary school and told them to remind students, teachers and parents that one of those kids on bikes could get hur or worse. Should something like that happen, the parents of the bike rider would blame the driver and not take into account. that the child failed to-stop at the stop sign.

Please remind kids and their parents that stop signs are for ALL traffic – not just for cars and trucks.

Polls will be open between 8 am. and 8 p.m. at the old City Hall building, 340 Main $St.

• Ketchum—A former Ketchum mayor is among five candidates challenging for two City Council seats.

Larry Young, who served as challenging for two City Council seats.

Larry Young, who served as mayor of Ketchum from 1988 to 1992, was recalled in 1992 after he became a councilman. His second tenure on the council was cut short after 10 months when he and two others, including current Mayor Ed Simon, were recalled due to a controversy over how they'd handled police department personnel matters.

Other candidates challenging-include Terry Trees, Greg Strong, Mickey Garcia and incumbent Randy Hall. Incumbent Maurice Charlat recently dropped out of the race.

Charlat recently drapped out of the ruce.

The top two vote recipients win the election.

Ketchum council members each receive $1,250 a month, or $15,000 a year.

City voters also will choose whether to increase Idaho Power Co.8 franchise free from 1 percent to 3 percent. A majority of the revenue generated by this increase would go toward burying overhead power lines underground in the downtown areas of the city. The fee like likely would be passed on to consumers. It requires only a simple majority to pass.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

"The two real political parties in America are the Winners and the Losers."

Kurt Vonneaut Jr.

When you (South) respond one no-trump to the one-heart open-ing, North has enough to try for, game, but not quite enough to drive there on his own. He bids two no-trump to invite game (suggesting 18-19 balanced) and you pass, holding a minimum with no fit for your partner.

A diamond is led against two you pass, holding a minimum with no fit for your partner.

A diamond is led against two no-trump, and you can count seven sure tricks. (It is generally a sound policy to count winners in a outrump contract and losers in a suit contract.) So which suit should you play on? Attacking hearts would be the right approach in three no-trump, since you might set up two tricks if the suit splits 3.3. But in two no-trump, developing hearts is not a sure thing, and would fail today, as it happens, against a 4.2 split. (If you set up two heart winners for the defense, East-West will have two diamonds, two hearts, and three clubs to cash before you have two diamonds, two hearts, and three clubs to cash before you have eight tricks yourself. By contrast, working on clubs is sure to produce at least the extra trick you need, because of your solid intermediates.

So take the first diamond and, from now on, play on clubs at every opportunity. When West wins the club ace and shifts to the heart 10, do not fall into the lemptation of ducking — the defense could revert to diamonds with a critical gain of tempo. Instead, rise awith the heart 10, earn diplayelubs again, establishing the long club for your eighth trick.

TRIVIA ANSWER: Stephen Davis

Patriots pull out win over Broncos, 30-26

DENVER - New England and
DENVER - New England and Denver both were 'riddled 'with' injuries. But the Patriots had a healthy quarterback and shrewd coaching strategy.
Tom Brady threw an 18-yard touchdown pass to David Givens with 30 seconds left to give the Patriots a 30-26 win over the Broncos and their fifth straight victory.
It came after coach Bill Belichick's smart move, calling for a deliberate safety with his team trailing 24-23 with 249 left with his team backed up on fourth down at its own 1.
The safety made Denver's lead

26-23, but it gave New England punting room and Ken Walter's free kick put the Broncos back to their own 15.

They went three and out, and Brady then drove the Farrios S8 yards for the winning score, hiting Kevin Faulk for 18 yards on the play before the TD. On the touchdown, Givens bear Deltha O'Neal, whose S7-yard touchdown return late in the third quarter gave the Broncos a lead they didn't surrender until the final minute.

Both teams entered the game with all sorts of injuries. Denver (4) was without two starting linebackers, and its starting left tackle as well as Ed McCaffrey, the third wide receiver.

Damy Kanell, Denwer's third-string quarterback, was making his second straight start because of injuries to Jake Plummer and Steve Beuerlein. And kicker, Jason Elam pulled a groin muscle during the game, the Broncos' third straight loss. The Partiots (7-2) had strated 40 different players in its first seven games and added defensive tackle Richard Seymour, having a Pro Bowl season, to its injury list just before the game with a leg injury. New England was leading 20-17 and punted from its own 30 with 340 left in the third quarter. The punt pinned the Broncos back to their own 23, but snapper Lonie Paxton was called for holding.

On the repunt, O'Neal took the ball on his own 43 and darted left through Patriots' defenders, got some help from an official who got in the way of punter Ken Waller, and went all the way to the end zone.

It was the first punt return for a score against New England in 167 games since Sept. 5, 1993.

The Patriots cut it to 24-23 on Adam Vinatieri's 28-yard field goal with 11:09 left. In the final three minutes, New England was pinned at its 1 after Brady threw three incomplete passes. Paxton deliberately snapped the ball over Walter's head, hitting the goal post. The Patriots' ploy of trading two points for field position worked perfectly.

Eagles cruise to lopsided win

TWIN FALLS – New head men's basketball coach Gib Arnold came into this season promising a tenacious team defense. The College of Southern-Idaho crowd on hand Monday night can't be disappointed.

The Golden Eagles downed the Montana Tech junior varisty 108-44 to open the season and the new Arnold era with a victory.

The Eagles (1-0) made 14 steals and blocked 11 shots against the slower and shorter Orediggers of the NALB Frontier Conference.

CSI came at Tech in waves, with not defensive fulls despite plenty of substituting.

"There was no letdown," Arnold said. "You couldn't tell who the starting five were. I'm most pleased with the bench."

CSI hapassed the Orediggers into 23 turnovers and kept Montana Tech off balance all game long.

One memorable defensive highlight was made by freshman guard Jason McKinney, who put on a defensive show in the waning moments of the first half, He used his quick hands and feet to swipe two Oredigger passes, setting up two lay-ins on the opposite end for a 59-20 halftime margin.

Another was a block by 6-foot-11 Mohamed Kone, who didn't have to leave his feet to stuff 6-1 sesse Youngeren down along the baseline with 8:22 left. Kone finished with four blocks, a teamhigh, while pumping in 19 points and hauling down 10 rebounds. Youngren 16 the Orediggers (Strubounds). Kone and Jason McGriff con-

Kone and Jason McGriff controlled the paint against the smaller Oreditiguers, often able to shoot over the Tech players, and then snag their own rebound for an offensive put-back on several occasions. the 117-year history of the program.

And as the losses have piled up, so have the questions.

It started with doubts about Paterno's decisions on personnel, play-calling and clock management in big games. Five alcohol-related incidents involving players since the season began have some asking whether a coach who defined the term "old school" can still cope with the "me-first" generation – and why Paterno, who turns 77 in December, would even want to.

ters and the product on the field began to slip. What Bowden did was recruit as hard as ever and refocus his energies, starting out by climbing down from the tower in practice more and more. The lull turned out to be merdfully short. On Saturday, his hird-ranked Seminoles beat Notre Dame handily to stay in the national title chase, at the same time widening Bowden's lead over—Paterno (340-338) in their long-standing rivalry to see which will retire as the victory leader in major college football.

Still, Bowden knows better than

"I don't think anything I can say would be appropriate," he said. "I think as highly of be as any coald. I think as highly of be as any coald. I've ever known - and I'm going to leave it at that."

Paterno's should be so lucky.

His contract runs through the end of next season, but Paterno's critics won't be quieted anytime soon. He's talked about coaching another three to five years after that, but if it's still the case, he would be wise to keep those plans to himself - at least for the time being.

Ever since Penn State moved into the Big Ten, the competition for wins and topflight recruits has gotten much tougher. It's hardly coincidental that Bowden won almost two dozen more games over that same stretch while dominating the ACC, where Florida State has gone 995 and won 11 championships in 12 years.
If 'Paterno intends to get hold of his program and climb back into that race, he'd better get started soon. Whether - where - he'll find the strength remains anyone's guess. A month ago, after a close

"I said I hope you guys understand if you stick together and keep hustling something good will happen one of these days," he replied. "Let's come in on Monday, and let's go back to work and we'll go from there."

But what he said a moment later was much more revealing. "The more worried," Paterno said, "about my morale."

And he's not he only one.

USC moves up to second in BCS standings

Miami's first regular season loss in more than three years cleared a path for Southern California to get to the Sugar

California to get to the sugar Bowl.

USC was in second place in the Bowl Championship Series standings Monday, trailing only unanimus No. 1 Oklahoma.

"I suspect that this ranking shows the respect people have for our program and the way we're playing." Trojans coach Pete Carroll said. "We tope to continue to play like we have. If we do, good things will happen."

The Sooners (9-0), the only undefeated team from a majorconference, got every first-place vote in the polls and was the top pick by all seven computers used in the BCS standings.

The standings are used to determine which teams play in a national title game. The teams that finish 12 in the final BCS standings on Dec. 7 will play for the championship in the SugarBowl on Jan. 4.

The formula uses the AP media

The Sooners have a 1.0 for poll wins.

The Sooners have a 1.0 for poll average, 1.0 for computer-rank average, 0.24-for-strength-of-schedule and zero for losses for a 2.24 total. USC was second with 7.02 points.

The Trojans (8-1) are off this week and close the seasons with three unranked teams: Arizona, UCLA and Oregon State.

Mismi fell two spots to No. 4 with 10.26 points following a 31-7 loss to Virginia Tech that snapped a 39-game regular-season winning streak. Florida State remained in third place with 9.52. If Oklahoma wins its remaining three regular season games and the Big 12 title game, it is guaranteed one of the two spots in the Sugar Bowl. The other spot is still up for grabs, although USC has the inside track.

Following Miami are the other three major encloss teams: Ohio State (1147). Virginia Tech (1247) and LSU (1492).

Despite falling to sixth in the Coaches of poll, Miami remained in second place among the computers with a 283 average.

"If we win the games, we're going to be line," Miami coach Larry Coker said, "We'll be where we want to be."

TCU, major college football's only other undefeated team, moved up three spots to No. 9. The Horned Frogs are hurt by having the 98th toughest schedule out of 117 teams.

The three-time All-Star short-stop was hired Monday to replace Jerry Manuel, who was fired Sept. 29 after the White Sox failed to reach the playoffs for the second straight year.

Guillon has no managerial experience and has spent the past two seasons as the third-base coach for the Florida Marlins. But he made it clear how badly he wanted this job, and his passion won over general manager Kenny Williams and owner Jerry Reinsdorf.

Former Toronto manager Cito Gaston was thought to be the initial favorite for the job. Williams played for him, and he led the Blue Jays to World Scries titles in 1992 and 1993.

But in the end, the White Sox went with one of their own.

Guillen spent all but three years of his 16-year career on the South Side. Originally signed by-San Diego, the three-time All-Star shortstop was traded to the White Sox in December 1984. He made his major league debut the next season and was voted AL Rookic of the Year He hit 273 with one homer and 33 RBIs and set a White Sox record for short-stops with just 12 errors.

Guillen also played in Baltimore, Allanta and Tampa Bay before retiring in 2000. He appeared in 1,993 games and was a career. 264 hitter with 619 RBIs.

After he retired, he joined Montreal's coaching staff, He's spent the past two seasons as a coach for the Marlins.

INDIANAPOLIS' - Kenny Brack considers himself lucky to be alive.

The former IRL champion and Indianapolis 500 winner who was seriously injured in a crash three weeks ago will undergo a second operation Tuesday, but he is expected to make a full recovery in about six months.

"I'm sure you can call it luck or whatever, but I certainly feel I had help from above to still be here. It was an extremely big crash," Brack siad Monday in his first interview since the Oct. 12 wreck.

Brack broke his back, a thigh, his breastbone and both ankles when his car made contact with another car, spun into the air and crashed in the season-ending race at Texas Motor Speedway.

Another IRL driver, Tony Renna, was killed in a similar crash when his car went airborne during private tests at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway two weeks ago.

Brack's surgery Tuesday will involve placement of a bracket on his spine and probably some bone fusion to stabilize the back, Dr. Robert Gregori said.

Brack has seen photos but remembers nothing about the crash.

Valentine returns to Japan, signs three-year contract signs three-year contract

TOKYO – Former New York
Mets manager Bobby Valentine returned to Japanese baseball Monday, signing a three-year deal with the Lotte Marines.
Valentine, fired by the Mets in October 2002 with one year left on his contract, declined to comment on financial terms of the contract, saying only that it was flattering? and appropriate for someone with over 2,500 games of managerial experience.
Japan's Sports Nippon newspaper reported Monday that he will make an estimated $6.4 miltion on the three-year contract with an option for two years.

He managed in New York from 1995-02, leading the Mets to the 2000 World Series. He also managed the Texas Rangers from 1985-92.

Hockey Hall of Fame
Inducts notables

TORONTO - Pat LaFontaine was inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame on Monday after starring for the New York Islanders, Buffalo Sabres and New York Rangers in a career cut short by concussions.
He entered the shrine with Grant Fuhr, one of his Buffalo teammates and the first black player to enter the hall. Detroit Red Wings owner Mike Blitch and amateur coach Brian Kilhea joined the hall in the builders' category.
—"To bo here-with-these-threeguys, I feel like the luckiest guy in the world," LaFontaine said after the four received rings and blazers.

LaFontaine scored 468 goals, getting 40 or more in six consecutive seasons, and assisted on 545. He was on the U.S. team that won the 1996 World Cup'and played in the Olympics in 1984 and 1998. A head injury on March 16, 1998, ended his career.

LaFontaine and Fuhr were Sabres teammates from 193-95.
Fuhr earned five Stanley Cup rings with the Edmonton Ollers.
He had a great glove hand and supplied the bigmoment saves.
Fuhr plays down the racial sigmificance of his entry to the hall in deference to Willie O'Ree. In 1957, O'Ree became the Nills first black player and is now involved in the leagues' minorities programs.

YPSILANTI, Mich. – Eastern Michigan fired football coach Jeff Woodruff on Monday, two days after the Eagles felf to 1-8 with a 38-10 loss to Central Michigan.
Woodruff, who had a 9-34 record in four seasons, was replaced on an interim basis by running backs coach Al Lavan.
The Eagles were 3-8 in 2000, 2-9 in 2001 and 3-9 in 2002.
Woodruff became the latest Division I-A coach fired this season. Others dismissed were Carl

SEATTLE - Washington tailback Rich Alexis, the team's leading rusher, probably will miss the rest of the regular season because of a torn quadriceps muscle in his left thigh, coach Keith Gilbertson said Monday.
Quarterback Cody Pickett, meanwhile, will start Saturday's game at Arizona, provided he doesn't show further signs of the concussion that sidelined him for the second half of last week's win ower Oregon.
"If Cody is symptomatic during the week, he'll be out,"
Gilbertson said.
Reserve Casey Paus, who led the Huskies (5-4, 3-2 Pac-10) to 35 unanswered points against Oregon, will start if Pickett can't play.

UNIONDALE, N.Y. - Jason Wiemer scored from center ice in New York's three-goal second period, and the Islanders beat the Ottawa Senators at home for the first time in nearly eight years, 6.3 Monday night.
Mariusz Czerkawski and Oleg
Kwasha also scored in the second, and Trent Hunter, Alexei Yashin, and Shawn Bates added goals for the Islanders, who hadn't defeated the Senators at Nassau-Coliseum-since Jan. 6,7 1996.

Ottawa was 13-0-4 on Long Island since, including two wins during a five-game playoff victo-ry last season.
