Searchers seek pilot

Hailey businessman radioed airport to land, then didn't

By Pat Murphy
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY - A round-the-clock search near Friedman Memorial Airport was called off for the night Thursday after searchers failed to locate a missing single-engine aircraft.

The intense air and ground search near the airport began Wednesday when a pilot who had been cleared to land just minutes before he was expected to reach the airstrip failed to arrive.

Finding the Cessna 210 was being hampered by the white color scheme of the aircraft that probably went down in snow. The aircraft is a popular high-wing monoplane with retractable landing gear whose various models have speeds of more than 200 miles per hour.

Blaine County Chief Deputy Gene Ramsey identified the pilot as J. James Woodyard, 61, a prominent Wood River Valley resident and developer of some 30 years who is a trustee

Senator: Suits won't solve fish dispute

Crapo urges sides to seek compromise

By Jennifer Sandmann
Times-News writer

BOISE - U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo urged Idaho water interests Thursday to seek a collaborative solution to the state's water battles.

The Idaho Republican, who is in Washington D.C., addressed a crowd of more than 200 over speakerphone.

Litigation over the Endangered Species Act in the salmon recovery debate so far has been focused on the Snake River downstream of Hells Canyon dam, Crapo said.

Now it's moving upstream and into Idaho. The major players in Snake River water convened at the Idaho Water Users Association's 20th annual water law seminar. It concludes today at the DoubleTree Hotel Boise Riverside. Water attorneys, irrigators, federal water brokers, members of the Nez Perce tribe and water experts representing the various intricacies of water management in Idaho are in attendance.

Environmentalists threatening to sue over more water for fish earlier this month told Crapo they would stand down for the 2004 irrigation season. But the Coalition for Idaho Water, a water users association, announced this week that it may sue the federal government. The coalition wants

Perrine statue's creation employs lost-wax technique

By Virginia S. Hutchins
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Layers of slurry and sand turned a likeness of I.B. Perrine's left hand, meticulously shaped in clay and copied in wax, into a chunky white monstrosity.

"It looks like a big glove now," said foundry foreman Joshua Beymer of Renditions Bronze.

Just the thing to catch a red stream of bronze poured at 1,950 degrees Fahrenheit.

The foundry's lost-wax casting technique this week created the hand and almost 30 other sections of a bronze I.B. Perrine statue, the public artwork that commemorates Twin Falls' 100th birthday. They'll have to be welded together and the seams repaired.

The larger-than-life figure of Twin Falls' founder, standing with one arm outstretched and two limbs bent, couldn't be cast in a single piece. So after artist Ralph Lehman completed his clay sculpture and Renditions

Researchers find evidence of earlier meteorite

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Researchers studying rocks from Antarctica have found chemical evidence that a mountain-sized meteorite smashed the Earth 251 million years ago and caused the greatest extinction event in the planet's history, killing about 90 percent of all life.

The extinction came some 185 million years before a similar meteorite collision with the planet killed off the dinosaurs.

Asish R. Basu, a professor of Earth sciences at the University of Rochester, said proof of a massive impact 251 million years ago, possibly near present-day Australia, is in the chemistry found in rocky fragments recovered on Graphite Peak in Antarctica.

"The only place you would find the chemical composition that we found in these fragments is in very primitive, 4.6-billion-year-old meteorites, as old as our Earth," said Basu, the first author of the study, appearing this week in the journal Science.

Blasts rock Turkish city again

This time, British interests appear to be the target

By Molly Moore
The Washington Post

ISTANBUL - Two truck bombs exploded within minutes of each other outside the British Consulate and a British bank Thursday morning, killing at least 27 people and injuring 450 in the second double bombing in the city in five days, Turkish authorities said.

The bomb blasts shocked a city that had just begun to recover from similar attacks on two Jewish synagogues last Saturday, prompting Turkish officials to put

Feds plan to open more Alaska land to drilling

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Bush administration intends to open 8.8 million acres of Alaska's North Slope to oil and gas development, including areas considered environmentally sensitive.

Judge questions impetus for reversing Yellowstone snowmobile ban resources in an environmentally safe manner while protecting the important biological, subsistence and cultural values also found in this area.

Senate could vote on energy bill today

The Interior Department was to announce the oil and gas leasing plan Friday, the day the Senate was taking a critical vote on a massive energy bill endorsed by President Bush but denying him his top energy priority, opening an Alaskan wildlife refuge to drilling.

GOP leaders lobby for Medicare bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Republican leaders coaxed conservatives Thursday to support a sweeping Medicare drug bill, arguing that health-related tax breaks and measures to curb spending on health care should outweigh discomfort at creating a new government benefit for 40 million Americans.

Statue

Bronze workers painted it with a liquid rubber muck and plaster shell, the foundry separated the rubber into almost 30 pieces.

From those molds, workers built wax pieces identical to portions of the original clay statue.

This week, each wax piece was dipped eight times into a liquid slurry - made from silica flour and a binding agent - then coated in silica sand before the slurry dried.

The oven burnt out the wax and cured the slurry to ceramic-like hardness suitable for holding molten bronze. That step gives lost-wax casting its name.

Salmon

to distance the Snake River Basin in Idaho - the river and its tributaries above Hells Canyon dam - from the salmon debate.

The biggest chunk of the statue's funding was a $30,000 grant from private donor Howard Publications, through the Howard Chubbable Foundation.

The heat of oven and crucible, metal former Mark Butler said, can drive a man to drink 'Pepsi water' and that, in enormous amounts, the heavy-duty welding gloves he wears in the casting room sport bent fingers.

"The heat from the furnace just shrivels them up," Butler said.

Foundry workers estimated the future weight in bronze of each piece and grouped them in batches of as close to 90 pounds as possible. In 25 to 30 minutes, their molten metal crucible can melt 90 pounds of bronze in ingots, and recycled bronze sprues.

The flame's monstrous roar makes conversation difficult. But Butler and Smith have a well-choreographed routine: Check for proper 1,950-degree temperature in the furnace. Remove a batch of shells from the oven with heat metal rods. Prop each in a tub of sand.

The men don shiny heat-protective gear, skim impurities from the surface of the bronze, and lift out the shells. They pick it up with a two-handed holder and pour each shell full.

That's the work of just seconds.

Turkey

business and shopping district, dipping a nine-foot crater in the street and ripping apart storefronts for blocks.

British Consul General Robert Short, 58, who had just entered the building, was killed, according to Turkish officials. At both sites, most of the victims were pedestrians or shopkeepers and their customers, Turkish authorities said.

Turkish Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan, who bore a somber expression and deep circles under his eyes, in a nationally televised news conference Thursday night, attempted to deflect accusations that his year-old government had not reacted swiftly enough to security threats, saying: "We don't know when, what, where or how terrorism will hit our targets. Can you show me one country that sorted out the terrorism problem? No, there is not."

of the national Home Builders Institute, the development arm of the National Association of Home Builders. He lives in Hailey but his firm, Woodard Enterprises, is located in Ketchum.

Ramsey said that Woodard, who was returning from a business flight to Boise, contacted the Friedman control tower and was cleared to land at 6:23 p.m. Wednesday. The 100-mile trip from Boise normally takes about 30 minutes.

By 8 p.m., when he had not arrived at the airport, a ground search involving 11 ATVs and 25 police officers was launched in an area believed to be Woodard's last reported location some 5 1/2 miles southwest of the airport.

Chief Ramsey said no emergency locator signals had been received.

Weather at the time, according to reports, involved gusting winds of some 40 miles per hour as well as overcast skies.

said House Majority Leader Tom DeLay.

The stepped-up sales job came as congressional negotiators were formally clearing the way for quick floor action on the measure. "This fight is no longer about prescription drugs," it's about saving Medicare from its enemies," charged Michigan Rep. John Dingell, although neither he nor other Democratic critics sought to prolong the session.

"I fully suspect that the terrorists who are here are planning additional attacks," said a Western diplomat who spoke on condition of anonymity. The U.S. Embassy in Riyadh remained open but was on a heightened state of alert.

Counter-terrorism experts say the group, always a loose-knit network, whose name means "the base," has mutated in reaction to a sustained U.S. assault against its leadership.

In both Saudi Arabia and Turkey, there are indications that local terrorist groups have adapted al-Qaida's ideology and are trying to duplicate its methods without much external direction, said former White House counter-terrorism expert Daniel Benjamin, co-author of "The Age of Sacred Terror."

"We're seeing a different dynamic, sort of a second stage in the development of the radical jihadist" movement, he said.

Matthew Levitt, a former FBI counter-terrorism analyst now at the Washington Institute for Near East Policy, said the use of local groups has meant bombings that are less meticulously planned and more often directed against instantaneous targets of opportunity.

Stopping such attacks "is all but impossible," he said.

Translator says he didn't spy

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) - A former Guantanamo Bay translator arrested with classified documents in his luggage pleaded innocent Thursday in a brief appearance in federal court.

Ahmed Fathy Mehalla, who has been in federal custody since his arrest Sept. 29 at Logan International Airport, was charged in a Nov. 12 indictment with gathering, transmitting or losing defense information and making false statements.

Surface water users have reason to turn to the courts

Regardless of how much snow falls across the Snake River Basin this winter, Magic Valley water users may have no alternative but to ask the courts to clarify water rights between fish producers and groundwater users.

What the debate boils down to is drought and management. Overall allocation of groundwater rights in Idaho has forced Water Resources to go easy in its enforcement of senior water rights.

The agency deserves credit for establishing new groundwater management areas in recent years to monitor illegal use of unappropriated water. The agency has used technology, with satellite images detecting overwatered areas, and a new computer model to chart pumps' effect on canyon springs.

Our view: Fish producers have a valid argument in seeking curtailment of junior water rights. What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

A group of fish producers that includes Clear Lakes Trout Co., Rangen Inc., and Rich View Trout Co., has filed lawsuits in 4th District Court against the Idaho Department of Water Resources. Their objective: to force the agency into curtailing wells used by junior water right holders.

The law seems to be on the producers' side. Idaho water doctrine follows the principle of prior appropriation, which says a water user "first in time is first in right." And fish producers have senior water rights that go back to the mid-1960s, before a good portion of well users' water rights.

But the lawsuit is pushing for more than just water. The fish producers want the courts to strike down state rules allowing groundwater users to submit mitigation - or shared water use - plans that satisfy senior water rights.

Two years ago, groundwater users and surface water users came to a last-minute agreement on how to share resources without forcing a shutdown of groundwater wells. Fish producers have kept working with groundwater users. Still, their water supplies have continued to suffer. With the agreement set to end by year's end, the hatcheries appear ready to go a different route.

Undoubtedly, the years of drought in Idaho have dried up patience as much as water. But drought is a major reason why water rights exist in the first place.

Without a process that recognizes those who have first rights in water emergencies, the state's water doctrine would become a flood of havoc.

But compared to groundwater users, surface water users are still the ones losing more water from declining spring flows and regulated use. It seems apparent that the agency is not properly enforcing prior appropriation laws during times of dire water shortages.

Nobody relishes the role of taskmaster, especially when so many water users contribute to Idaho's economy. And it doesn't help to pit user against user in an agricultural community.

But if Water Resources doesn't force junior water right holders to cut back use, the state's courts will have to.

As for the conjunctive water management that interconnects surface water and groundwater uses, the courts may be the best place to set the matter straight.

Groundwater users will argue that lawsuits destroy the accord made among members of the ag community. That's undeniably true. They will also contend that curtailing well use won't guarantee quick refills of fish producers' channels and ponds.

But things can't get much worse for surface water users. With so many wells sucking water from the aquifer on the north side, something has to be done to help restore fish producers' water.

It only makes sense that they'll eventually use a judge to get it, if they can't get the water their right entitles them to.

New definition of marriage fails logic

It is not as if the ruling by the Massachusetts Supreme Court permitting the "marriage" of same sex couples came as a surprise. If Massachusetts doesn't care about the sexual practices of some of its politicians, why should it care about what some of its lesser citizens do?

The 4:3 ruling, which orders the state legislature to write a law permitting arrangements similar to what the Vermont Supreme Court approved in 1999 when it allowed "civil unions" the same benefits as marriage, is further evidence that G.K. Chesterton's warning has come true: "The danger when men stop believing in God is not that they'll believe in nothing, but that they'll believe in anything."

Marriage was not invented by

the postal service as a convenient way to deliver the mail. It was established by God as the best arrangement for fallen humanity to organize and protect itself and create and rear children. Even secular sociologists have produced studies showing children need a mother and a father in the home.

The first mention of marriage is in Genesis: "...a man will leave his father and mother and be united to his wife, and they will become one flesh." The Massachusetts Supreme Court ruling, which will be used by gay rights groups to lobby for striking down all laws limiting marriage to heterosexuals, is just the latest example of a society that has abandoned any and all authority outside of itself.

History, logic, theology and even secular sociology have defined marriage as: "the mutual relation of husband and wife; wedlock; the institution whereby men and women are joined in a special kind of social and legal dependence for the purpose of founding and maintaining a family" (Merriam-Webster), or "a legally accepted relationship between a woman and a man in which they live as husband and wife" (Cambridge).

These classic examples are being updated to reflect the mood of the times. The online Encarta dictionary defines marriage as a "legal relationship between spouses - a legally recognized relationship, established by a civil or religious ceremony, between two people who intend to live together as sexual and domestic partners." That's a big difference.

What is happening in our culture is an unraveling of all we once considered normal. Anyone who now appeals to virtue, values, ethics or (heaven forbid) religious faith is labeled an enemy of progress, an intolerant bigot, a homophobe and a "Neanderthal."

There is no debate and no discussion. By definition, anyone who opposes "progress" in casting off the chains of religious restrictions on human behavior - which were once considered necessary for the promotion of the general welfare - is a fundamentalist fool, part of a past that brought us witch trials, slavery and back-alley abortions.

But the problem is deeper than the courts. Some of the people who most loudly proclaim the standards by which they want all of us to live have difficulty themselves living up to those standards. A culture is made up of people, but if large numbers of them no longer "hunger and thirst after righteousness" (to invoke a biblical metaphor), neither will their government.

The constitutional way out of this in Massachusetts and in Washington is an amendment that defines marriage as between a man and a woman. Whether sufficient numbers of politicians have the courage to vote for such an amendment in the face of stiff opposition from gay rights advocates and much of the media will soon be determined.

What is most disturbing about this latest affront to tradition and biblical wisdom is that those who would undermine the old have nothing new to offer in its place. It is like morally corrupt ancient Israel when there was no king "and everyone did what was right in his own eyes."

Is that the way we should live? Do we get to vote? Not if the courts play God. Voters can decide in the next election if they want to continue in this direction, or pull the country back from the precipice. Marriage defined should be the social-issue centerpiece of the coming campaign.

Kennedy's death remains unequaled in U.S. history

CARL P. LEUBSDORF

It was a bright, mild late November day when the stunning news reached Washington.

Part of years later, I can still recall my sense of shock as I recognized that the frantic words coming out of my bedroom radio told of the assassination of a president.

As the newest member of the AP staff, I worked nights and slept days as much as I could with four young children. Promptly offering to come in early, I got a quick reminder of my junior status by being told that my regular 10:30 p.m. reporting time would be fine.

The weekend passed in sort of a blur. I have a vivid memory of watching Charles de Gaulle stand before President John Kennedy's body in the Capitol Rotunda. I recall how the sweltering heat of the weekend's emotions, Friday's mildness gave way to chilled rain on Saturday. By Monday, a bitterly cold north wind heralded the onset of winter.

In the ensuing years, we have learned much that we didn't know then, from the riveting details of Kennedy's historic achievement in standing down the Soviet Union in the Cuba missile crisis to the unsavory details of his private life.

Through it all, his hold on the imagination of many Americans has not wavered. He remains the nation's most popular modern president despite his limited achievements, an enduring symbol of the promise of a simpler and more hopeful time.

Much of this, I think, reflects what came before him and what came after. Those too young to have personal memories have difficulty in comprehending how different President Kennedy was from the other political figures of his day.

In an age when older, gray-haired figures traditionally dominated public life, he was younger, more vibrant and more irreverent. His style, for the first time, combined the attributes of the political and entertainment worlds.

His telegetic appeal was accentuated by his beautiful young wife and their two cute young children, ideal subjects of frequently fawning coverage in the day's glossy picture magazines.

Until photographers seen mainly in newsreels or still photos, he was the first real television president, the first to hold live news conferences, the first to be seen in color as well as black and white. It was a time when there were no cable news and network newscasts had only recently expanded to 30 minutes, his assassination marked the first time that Americans saw a major national story unfold on their television screens.

The trauma of the next few years helped to establish the idea of the Kennedy years as the last good times, before racial riots wrecked America's cities, later assassins killed yet another Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King, and a bloody war raged abroad.

And despite his role in extending the initial U.S. effort in Vietnam, Kennedy has largely escaped blame for that disaster, in part because of the subsequent role of his brother, Robert, as an increasingly outspoken opponent of Lyndon Johnson's policies.

Though the historical evidence is decidedly mixed, many close to the late president have always believed he would, after winning re-election in 1964, have abandoned the Vietnam venture. Others disagree. We'll never know. One thing is clear: The history of the post-Kennedy years would have been different, though not necessarily better. Lyndon Johnson would almost certainly never have been president. Richard Nixon might never have been.

But some think Ronald Reagan might have reached the White House earlier in an inevitable conservative reaction to the liberal Kennedy years.

Our politics might have been less bitterly partisan without Vietnam and Watergate and also if Kennedy and Sen. Barry Goldwater had implemented their plan to travel together in the 1964 campaign and hold a series of televised debates. Instead, no such debates were held again until 1976.

After four decades of covering earth-shaking events including impeachment proceedings against two presidents, an assassination attempt against a third, a disputed presidential election and tumultuous events across the globe, John Kennedy's assassination still stands as the most stunning and perhaps most influential of all.

Push for a private hospital is merely wishful thinking

Well, I see that the board of directors of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center are once again agitating to become a private "nonprofit" (yeah, right) entity free from the hassles of public scrutiny, especially from those nosy editors at The Times-News.

The reason that they give is that by going private they would be better able to compete with other area hospitals. Excuse me? Since when does a county-owned operation have to compete?

Having swallowed up the only other competition in town, this county-owned facility has a virtual monopoly on health care within the city limits.

Could it be that by going private the board can increase its already exorbitant wages without having to justify them to the residents of this county? Could it be that after 20-plus years of gouging the residents of this city and county with exorbitant medical costs that they want more?

Could it be that they no longer wish to be accountable to the county commissioners, who so far have allowed these directors to do as they will even though they are, in fact, county employees?

Which brings up an interesting fact. The directors and hospital employees will tell you with pride (justifiably) that the hospital hasn't taken a dime of taxpayers' money for the above mentioned 20-plus years.

Well, with the prices they charge for medical care, is it any wonder? In fact, they rake in so much money that they can take a public records request from this paper all the way to the Idaho Supreme Court (at our expense) in a futile and arrogant attempt to hide from the public what they (as public employees) are being paid.

It is time that the county commissioners and the residents of the city and county as well as the general public be reminded that they remind these people of a few facts:

- (1) They work in a county-owned facility; therefore, (2) they are not private sector employees.

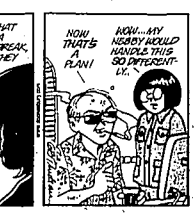

- (3) The money that they make from operating this facility belongs to the county and its residents.
- (4) That any further talk of privatizing the hospital will not be tolerated, and (5) if they don't like the way things are currently being run, well, this is a "Right to Work" state and if they can always find another job either willingly or not.

Jarbridge Road Issue is about fire protection

It is amazing how strange the Forest Service can be. They spent more than $15,000 to close an outhouse that volunteers were willing to clean for free. Then they locked it! What is inside that outhouse that they are trying to keep people from stealing? Where are they getting lawful delegated authority to act as law enforcement officers in Idaho?

It is important that we do not let this Forest Service outhouse fiasco divert us from the real issue - fire. The Jarbridge Road is very important for fire protection in the Forest Service has spent more than $2 million to close this fire road. Remember the thousands of homes that have burned in California, Washington, New Mexico and Colorado because of ridiculous government regulations? The same can happen in the Jarbridge area.

Congratulations to the county commission and citizens in Elko County for having the courage to stand up to an "out of control" federal bureaucracy. "We honor you."

Religious freedom

stands strong in America

Again, I am writing in response to a previous letter from Donna Arp. Ms. Arp, may her deity bless her, has once again exercised her constitutional right and had her opinions published within this newspaper. Thankfully our forefathers have strived to ensure that she would have this right, and more than two centuries since, her and our liberties remain intact.

Our forefathers would be proud. But it appears that Ms. Arp is of the opinion that if you are not of the conservative Christian right, then your opinions and beliefs are of little or no consequence. In her opinion, the Ten Commandments must be put on public display. The Pledge of Allegiance must retain the words "under God." Anybody who does not share this opinion is a heathen or a communist or (gasp!) a humanist.

Ms. Arp, I am not a person who would discount nor disrespect anyone's deity. You have every right to pray to whichever deity you fancy. You can love or hate whoever you choose. Therefore, I do not fault you for your opinions. Whether or not I find them to be misguided is of no real concern. Nor would I expect my opinions to influence your own. However, I must point out the following: Just because our laws are based on basic respect for human life and liberty, it does not mean that our laws are of Christian origin. The concepts of honesty, faithfulness and sanctity of human life are not copyrighted by the Christian church. These are basic tenets of a civilized society. They were not invented by the church.

We live in a nation of diverse cultures and beliefs. We are given the right to choose whatever faith we prefer. We have the right to spread the words of our faith to others. Openly. Without fear. However, in order for you to have these freedoms, you must allow others the same. Without preference to any one religion.

In the words of Lao Tzu, (nearly a millennium before the New Testament was written): "To know that you do not know is the best. To pretend to know when you do not know is a disease."

Foreign trade agreements hinder U.S. interests

Please ask our congressmen and senators to stop the Free Trade Area of the Americas agreement that will create, starting January 2005, a 34-nation Western Hemisphere government like the European EU and result in the loss of jobs and U.S. independence.

Immigration will greatly increase as borders are erased and America will become a Third World nation as we are overrun by poverty-stricken immigrants.

FTAA and EU regional government will be combined into a United Nations freedom-destroying world government!

Also, the General Agreement on Trade in Services, GATS, enforced by the World Trade Organization, will supersede all laws and regulations concerning trade in services of our states, counties, cities and professional associations.

GATS will threaten millions of jobs and would be a giant step toward a global economy.

Both FTAA and GATS agreements will place Americans at the mercy of uneducated, socialist, anti-American bureaucratic ruling bureaucracies that will destroy our independence and jobs!

Please ask our congressmen and senators to stop FTAA and GATS and get out of the anti-American, freedom-destroying United Nations!

Arp reveals honest truths about ACLU

Donna Arp, in her letter to The Times-News, Nov. 13, nailed the American Civil Liberties Union to the post it stemmed from. Never has there been an anti-American group more deadly to the Constitution of the United States, this well-organized and financed group of politicians, judges and lawyers has one purpose in mind - to make Christianity desolate.

The Soviet Union has fallen. It fell because of its communistic beliefs. Their vine reached our shores at World War I and, like the puncher vines (goat heads), spread throughout our gardens. Now their vine has grown hard and strong like the wild Russian olive tree, growing a fruit that cannot be eaten and thorns that burn within us.

Some choose not to worship any god; that is their choice and their American right; however, most Americans are of faith and they worship as they choose.

Regardless, and for no other reason, we must come together standing against this much disguised ACLU. Remember the elected Alabama Civil Justice Roy Moore and his stand for the Ten Commandments in his courtroom; and also the Ten Commandments monument he installed at the Alabama State courthouse. It is the ACLU that brought him down, not the people who elected him. When we pledge our allegiance to the flag, we are pledging to obey the laws of the nation that were written in the spirit of our faith. The ACLU has no respect toward the First Amendment meaning. They have gained positions of authority and misquote it to fit into their agenda regarding the separation of church and state, which they are using to change the intent of the laws.

Ben Franklin, one of our founding fathers, said, "God governs the affairs of men, and if they turn away from him, their labors are in vain." Do we turn our faces away and let our nation go the way of that communist nation that fell and, before its fall, inspired the ACLU among us?

With all the abundance and blessings this nation receives since the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth, Mass., Dec. 21, 1620, and laid the foundation that set in place this nation's Constitution.

Like many Americans and other veterans who shed their blood beside those many who died protecting these ideals, we see some have turned their faces away, straying from the direction set for us. With dedication and faith, we can reclaim our courts.

Lodge relocation
OK gets delayed

GOODING - Western Legends will have to wait through a 15-day appeal period before it can gain final approval to locate the Bald Mountain Lodge on land near Hagerman.

During a public hearing this week, Gooding County Planning and Zoning Commission members listened to neighbors voice concerns about hunting practices and loose dogs near the hunting and fishing club where the lodge has been located.

Western Legends is seeking a special use permit to use the Bald Mountain Lodge for its hunt club on the Old Curran Ranch. The historic lodge was transported 90 miles to the property from Ketchum last week.

Neither of the two neighbors testifying actually opposed the permit on the grounds of the application itself, but rather on errant shots being fired near homes and hunting dogs running loose, they said.

Because of the opposing testimony - regardless of its bearing to the application - a 15-day appeal period goes into effect, P&Z Administrator Judy Daubner said.

If no further opposition is received within the 15-day waiting period, Western Legends will receive approval for the permit.

Members voted to approve the permit as it was applied following the waiting period.

Buhl gets low bid of BUHL - The lowest bid for construction of the new Buhl High School is $8,567,000, the school district learned Thursday.

At precisely 3 p.m., Buhl School Board Chairman Pam McClain opened the 11 bids sent by several building firms.

The highest bid for the estimated $9.65 million construction project came in at $9,818,900.

Construction firms participating in the bidding hailed from Boise, Pocatello, Twin Falls, Idaho Falls and several Utah cities.

The board will meet Tuesday to select a firm.

Bliss puts city block in commercial zone

BLISS - The City Council has voted to reclassify a section of town from a residential zone to a commercial zone.

The motion to rezone block C, which is bordered by Third, Fourth, Kentucky and Procter streets, passed unanimously Wednesday.

Seven people attended the public hearing, including two landowners of adjoining property and several representatives from Holcim Inc., a cement producer.

"Nobody was against it," said Council President Jerry VanderWyst.

Holcim Representatives presented their plan to expand their existing plant that is located at 350 Procter St. on block C. They plan to build a new office, lunch room, storage shed and shop on the property.

"Holcim is a long standing business in the area," VanderWyst said. "They were here before we came - over 10 years."

The City Council also discussed the possibility of creating a truck route through Bliss.

With the possibility of Holcim expanding, council members would like to ensure that the larger trucks stay off of the residential streets where children could be playing.

VanderWyst said. The proposed truck route would follow Procter Street from the Holcim plant to where Procter meets with Highway 26.

Students mull block schedule

By Karli Kowalski
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Students and parents got a peek at Twin Falls High School's proposed "blended block" schedule at two meetings Thursday.

Confusion was a big part of a presentation introducing the schedule to an assembly of Twin Falls High School sophomores and juniors in the morning.

Students whispered to their neighbors as they puzzled over the grid that divided the school day into four block periods and a long lunch with "skinny" classes around it, as well as before and

Glossary of Terms

- AB: 90-minute classes that alternate every other day over a two-week cycle for one year.
- 4-by-4: 90-minute classes that meet every day for half a year.
- Skinny: a 52-minute class that would meet every day all year and be held during the optional zero and after hours, as well as before and after the lunch period.

Some liked the change. Marshall Tolkman, 15, said the current schedule is lacking. He said he likes the long lunch hour in the proposed schedule.

"That'd be awesome," he said. Others saw the pros and cons of extended class periods.

"There's nothing to do in a class for that long," said Tuyen Tran, a 16-year-old sophomore.

"But you have time to do other homework."

James Mace, 16, also had a practical view.

"I'm not too fond of the credit increase, but this will help us get it," he said.

Parents from the school's parent-teacher organization also came to learn about the schedule.

Traci Busbee, a PTO president, found it to be difficult to understand.

"That schedule kind of confused me," she said. "I can't figure it out, I don't know if my kids can."

Gwen Jones, a parent advisor at the high school and proponent of an alternative seven-period schedule, was also at the meeting.

Afterward, she said she was satisfied with the schedule committee's efforts. She said there has been a lot of good dialogue between the community and the school administration. She's pleased with the fact that students will be able to choose what sort of schedule they have.

Couple loses cow cash bid

The Associated Press

BOISE - A Hansen couple on Thursday lost their attempt to recover cash from Twin Falls County's sale of their cattle seven year ago.

William and Julie Coates, who represented themselves before the state Supreme Court, suffered a double blow when justices also ordered them to cover the attorney fees of those they sued.

The high court ruled the Coateses were 21 months too late in filing their appeal of the 5th District Court decision awarding the $22,000 their cattle brought at auction to the county and their creditors.

The Coateses claimed that the county failed to properly notify them that their 47 dairy cows were being auctioned in early 1997, contending that they should be reimbursed for the stock.

The county confiscated the cows in late 1996 from leased barn space on grounds that the animals were malnourished, neglected and being subjected to cruel treatment.

District Judge Daniel Mechl settled a dispute over division of the auction proceeds by splitting the cash between the county and the owners of the barn space the Coateses had leased.

Subsequent legal wrangling left the Coateses with a court order to pay the barn owners $3,000 for unpaid bills during their lease of the property.

The high court upheld the $3,000 debt, and a majority went beyond that to require the Coateses to pay the attorney fees run up by the county and the barn owners, William and Christine Evans, during the appeal on grounds that the Coateses' appeals were unjustified.

Judge issues 'gag order' in murder case

By Pat Murphy
Times-News correspondent

HALLEY - A "gag order" limiting comment from officials about the Sarah Johnson murder trial was issued Thursday by 5th District Judge James J. May, who went out of his way to stress the order did not apply to the news media.

The order applies to prosecuting and defense attorneys, Blaine County Sheriff Walt Felling and his staff, court personnel, witnesses and any personnel hired in connection with the trial.

In arguing for the gag order, public defender Bob Pangburn was especially critical of Sheriff Felling, whom he said has made comments that Pangburn claimed "would not make it into a trial."

Although Pangburn did not repeat the sheriff's words, he referred obliquely to Felling's opinion about a motive in the Sept. 2 slayings of Alan Johnson, 46, and his wife, Diane, 52. The sheriff told a press conference after the arrest of Sarah Johnson, 16, that he believes she killed her parents because they objected to a romance with 19-year-old Bruno Santos and threatened to seek criminal charges against him for alleged statutory rape.

The court, Pangburn told Judge May, must "put a stop" to such pre-trial comments. Later, outside court, Pangburn called Sheriff Felling's press conference comments "irreprehensible."

Sheriff Felling was reported out of town. A message was left at his office seeking comment about Pangburn's assertions.

In other council business, Lance Wutrich of Ware & Associates Certified Public Accountants gave the city its annual audit report.

The report showed the city has over three months of carryover in its general fund, which is recommended as good operating policy, Wutrich said.

'WE'RE TOO OLD TO SCARE'

Environmental group broadens their membership

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM - Ginger Harmon likes to think she has a Broad mind.

Indeed, the Ketchum woman is a card-carrying member, co-founder and board member of Great Old Broads for Wilderness, a grandmotherly group created in 1989 in conjunction with the 25th anniversary of the Wilderness Act.

In that capacity, Harmon showed up with a dozen other Broads at Jarbridge, Nev., a few years ago, each carrying a signature broom to "sweep away the mess" that they contended a couple hundred Shovel Brigade enthusiasts made as they rebuilt a road through a sensitive bull trout area.

She has led others on hikes through the Boulder and White Cloud Mountains, trying to sell them on the benefits that wilderness designation would bring for those areas.

Ah! she has taken her broom up to protest what she sees as abuse of public lands by off-highway vehicles and wanton cattle grazing.

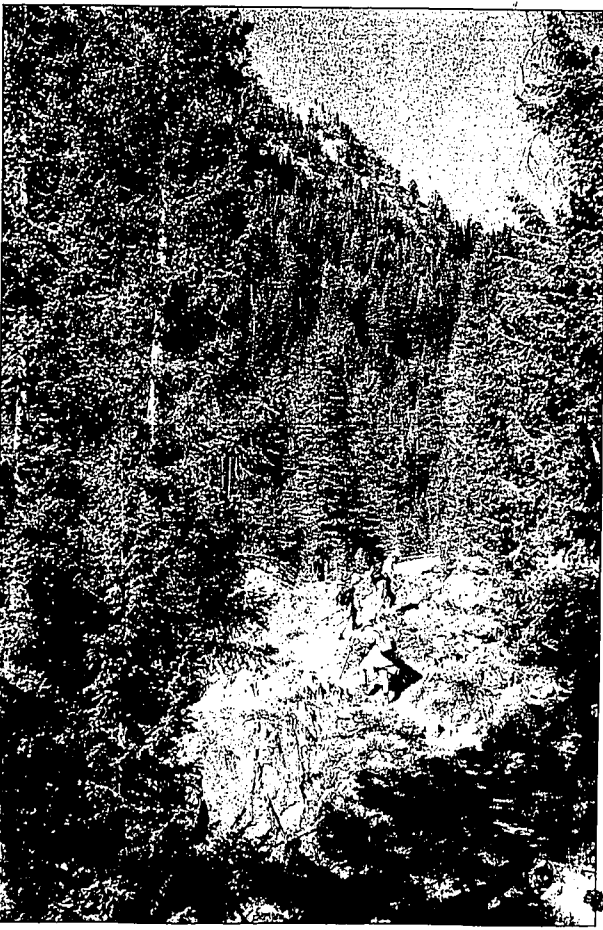

"I've been mindlessly wandering around the wilderness for 25 years," said Harmon, who wanders so much she's pictured in dozens of photos in hiking guides for southern Utah and other areas. "It's my passion."

This week Harmon and other Ketchum Broads hosted the annual board meeting of the 2,400-member Great Old Broads organization in Ketchum.

They hiked through local gift shops. They held a cocktail party to recruit new members. They followed that with an auction to raise money to send Broads to Yellowstone National Park to protest snowmobile use in the park.

And Harmon led them on a hike up Proctor Mountain, disregarding the fact that she had just had a rib removed for surgery three weeks earlier.

Filer manufacturer may seek business expansion

By Mickey Walker
Times-News correspondent

FILER - A grandfather clause that ensured continuation of Filer's manufacturing business on Main Street will allow another businessman to expand.

Larry Wayment of Wayment Manufacturing, a tool-and-dye shop at 918 Main St., is presently leasing a third of a building owned by Acme Manufacturing.

Wayment approached the Filer City Council with questions to determine if he could expand his business or whether he'd have to move it.

Wayment said his business has been growing rapidly and he has had to store equipment in other buildings owned by Acme.

"At the present time we've outgrown our facility," Wayment told the City Council Tuesday. "We'd like to purchase the building in conjunction with a business from North Carolina."

Wayment felt the business would also be expanding further and additional space would have to be added on.

The business has been in operation for seven years.

"We have to make a decision pretty soon whether or not to buy the building and if we can't expand on that property then we can't buy the building and we'll have to move our business elsewhere," Wayment said.

City Attorney Fritz Wenderlich said that the ownership would not be an issue as it is grandfathered in.

Based on Filer's current land use policies, manufacturing operations are no longer allowed in the commercial zone along Main Street unless their existence predates the zoning ordinances.

An expansion of Wayment's business would, however, require a special use permit, he was told by the City Council Tuesday.

A hearing on the permit would have to be held and there would be no guarantee beforehand that it would be approved, Wenderlich said.

"You can even apply for the permit now, even though you don't own it yet, with the idea to secure that potential future expansion," Wenderlich told Wayment. "It's a manufacturing use and would be grandfathered in."

In other council business, Lance Wutrich of Ware & Associates Certified Public Accountants gave the city its annual audit report.

The report showed the city has over three months of carryover in its general fund, which is recommended as good operating policy, Wutrich said.

AG: State ed board unconstitutionally changed funding scheme

LEWISTON (AP) — A State Board of Education attempt to funnel state cash to virtual charter schools unconstitutionally usurped the Legislature's power, according to a legal opinion from the Attorney General's office.

Deputy Attorney General William von Tagen concluded that "the board does not have the legal power or authority to create a mechanism for funding public schools that is contrary to the legislative funding mechanism."

Gary Schreder, the board's executive director, said the regulations were prompted by the creation of three Internet-based virtual charter schools that recruited students statewide, but there was no mechanism to provide them with state support.

The state board voted to divert cash to the virtual schools from each of the school districts where the charter students live, primarily small remote districts.

However, von Tagen said that was not authorized by state law.

"It's pretty much what I've been saying all summer," said state Senate Education Chairman Gary Schroeder, R-Moscow, who asked for the legal analysis.

Schroeder agreed there are problems in financing Internet-based charter schools but resolving the problem is a legislative responsibility, not an administrative board's.

"I think the elected people are the ones who should be making the laws," Schroeder said. "I don't full well agree with the Legislature all the time, either. But that authority obviously rests with the Legislature."

The seven board members appointed by the governor adopted the policy earlier this month over the objections of State Schools Superintendent Marilyn Howard; the eighth board member who raised questions about its constitutionality.

Marie worked for Victor Adding Machine Company for 23 years in Chicago.

Marie married John Favaro on Dec. 17, 1966, in Chicago. He preceded her in death in 1993.

They moved to Twin Falls in 1970 and were members of the Bethel Temple Church. Her parents, two brothers, John and Edward (Ed) Brehm preceded her in death.

She is survived by one sister, Frieda (Brehm) Hallsten of Twin Falls, Idaho; three brothers Dan (Edith) Brehm of Hayden Lake, ID, Bob (Dolores) Brehm of Twin Falls and Alex (Linda) Brehm of Sun City West, Ariz.; three stepchildren, twins, Rose Thies of Boise, Charles Favaro of Chicago, and Kay Benedicto also of Chicago. Numerous nieces and nephews survive Marie.

The service will be conducted at 1 p.m. Friday, Nov. 21, at the Hove-Robertson Funeral Chapel in Jerome with the Rev. Allen Picklesimer officiating.

Friends may call from 9 a.m. until noon Friday at the Hove-Robertson Funeral Chapel.

Memorial donations may be made to the Magic Valley Home Health and Hospice.

State seeks subpoena for support fund records

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The state Division of Consumer Protection has initiated a subpoena of bank records for the Parker Jensen Support Fund because the boy's family cited last week for failing to file the paperwork to make the fund legal, continues to disregard the state's requests.

Division director Francine Gianni said Wednesday her agency had tried to work with the Jensens to resolve the matter, but letters sent by registered mail went unanswered and repeated promises to supply information to the division were not kept.

The Jensens were cited because they haven't finished the legal process allowing them to solicit and collect funds to help pay for 13-year-old's medical care.

Parker was diagnosed with a rare form of bone cancer last spring.

His parents' disagreement with doctors over treatment forced the family into a months-long public custody battle with Utah authorities. Last month the state withdrew its petition for custody of the boy, which would also have placed him in court-ordered chemotherapy treatments.

On Tuesday, speaking to the Dixie Republican Forum in St. George, Parker's father, Daren Jensen, told a southern Utah audience that a citation issued by the division is another instance of how the state has harassed his family.

Gianni contested Jensen's remarks.

The division is only attempting to close the books on a process begun in September after Parker's uncle Tracy Jensen sent the division a letter stating his intention to establish the fund under Utah Charitable Solicitations Act, she said.

"We were promised on three consecutive days by Tracy Jensen that we would be getting the information and it's been stalled," said Gianni. "Frankly, I thought we had all of this arranged."

Procedural snafu stalls P&Z request Declo creates new junk ordinance

Applicant wants to build within 100 feet of river

Rose Marie Parsons
Times-News correspondent

he had posted a hearing notice on his property at 420 W. 90 N. Since Martin's answer was "no," McMurray told commission members that they should reschedule Martin's hearing for Dec. 1.

Martin is seeking a conditional use permit to build within the 100 feet of the Snake River.

The exhibits Martin gave the planning commission showed he had published a hearing notice in a newspaper, and he had sent letters to neighbors within the prescribed area.

But the commission learned this week that they do not have the authority to grant a permit if notice has not been posted on the affected property.

Commission Chairman Vaughn Cook asked if others in the audience had come to Thursday's meeting to testify concerning Martin's request for a conditional use permit. Eleven people raised their hands.

Cook apologized for the inconvenience and asked them to return in two weeks.

McMurray said the Martin hearing should be postponed to avoid the same procedural error that caused Cassia County commissioners to overturn the conditional use permit the planning commission granted. Jeffrey Mitchell in June, McMurray expects Mitchell to reapply to erect a wind turbine on his property.

Planning and Zoning Commissioner Rod Lake said he attended the hearing when the Mitchell decision was appealed to the county commissioners. He suggested other procedural issues raised by the attorneys in the Mitchell case need to be addressed, including how to handle a tie vote.

The planning commission also continued their comprehensive plan analysis Thursday night.

Declo creates new junk ordinance

By Mary Lynne Bristol
Times-News correspondent

DECLO - New rules are now in place in Declo regarding enforcement of abandoned, wrecked or unsightly property.

City Council members earlier this month approved a new ordinance making it a misdemeanor offense to have junk such as unsightly, unusable, dismantled, damaged or dilapidated items - in public view. Property owners may install fences to hide junk on their land.

enforcement can occur. Fries asked about making the sidewalk along Main Street wheelchair accessible and was told to check into the costs.

Waste treatment - Lloyd Smith of Mountain West Realty in Burley spoke to the council about the former Declo Produce building. Smith represents Shirley Parker, who owns the building.

According to Smith, someone is interested in buying the building but has questions about water and waste disposal service at the site. The clients need more water than had previously been used at the building, Smith said.

Rupert police call three-year-old a hero

By Shelley Ridenour
Times-News writer

RUPERT - A 3-year-old boy walked about an eighth of a mile in the dark Friday night to find help after the family vehicle he was riding in rolled, killing his father and injuring his mother.

Police credit the boy, Payton Fairchild, with saving his mother's life.

The little guy is a hero in our eyes," Minidoka County Sheriff's Lt. Dan King said.

Four members of the Fairchild family were in a Jeep Wrangler Friday night, driving along the 12th Street canal in Rupert, when Cory Fairchild lost control of the Jeep and it rolled off an embankment at the canal.

Cory Fairchild, 29, was ejected from the Jeep and killed. His wife, Desiree, son Payton, and the couple's 8-month-old son were also in the Jeep. No one was wearing a seat belt, nor were the boys in child safety seats, police said.

Police aren't sure exactly what time the accident occurred.

Payton Fairchild walked through a field to the home of Doris Martinez. Martinez called 911 after she opened her door and saw the little boy, who appeared injured and had some blood on him, King said. He told Martinez his mother was hurt.

Martinez's call came into the dispatch center at 8:24 p.m. Friday. As emergency personnel were responding, a Rupert Police Department officer drove by the canal and saw the wrecked Jeep.

Police say he had Desiree Fairchild not been found when she was, she might not have lived, King said. Had Payton not walked to that house, King doesn't know what might have happened.

"I'll save his mom," King said. "In our hearts and minds this 3-year old is a hero. This is one brave little boy. We could all learn something from him."

The deputy who later talked to Payton said the boy was fearful because it was dark and he had to walk alone and didn't know where he was.

Payton and his little brother are staying with relatives, King said. Desiree Fairchild remains in Portneuf Medical Center in Pocatello, where she was listed Thursday in stable condition, upgraded from serious condition earlier this week.

The baby wasn't injured, King said, and Payton sustained bruises and scrapes.

Lincoln County buys ambulance at bargain price

SHOSHONE - Lincoln County has purchased a new ambulance at a bargain price thanks to a grant generated from statewide driver's license fees.

new wing and deck, plus a paved parking area and other improvements.

Southern Idaho Medical Services, an ambulance service started in 1986 by Gary and Melody Russell, will operate the new vehicle.

"This demo was a 2003 model, fully loaded with extras as a premium vehicle," Melody Russell said. "The price of a vehicle with all the features of this ambulance would be somewhere around $120,000, but because this was a demo vehicle we were able to purchase it for $94,131."

Among some of the features are automatic tie chains, a heater in the patient compartment and a GPS unit.

"The new ambulance has only 5,000 miles on it. The one it replaced had racked up 118,000 miles."

SIMS ambulance service is dispatched to about 290 calls per year. Lincoln County receives no dollars for raising districts for ambulance transport. Without the grant, the county would have been unable to purchase the new ambulance.

Mike Bright, director of disaster services in Lincoln County, said he'd "like to thank everyone who has a valid Idaho driver's license."

Dr. Warren Dopson, internal medicine physician affiliated with Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, will discuss the latest information on statin drugs, offer solutions to control high blood pressure and cholesterol, review the differences and advantages between low-fat and low-carbohydrate diets, and provide general education about test results numbers for cholesterol and blood pressure.

Admission is free and the public is invited.

"We replaced the kitchen, heat pump and windows and doors, as well as landscaped the grounds," Fordson said. "We have a new fire protection sprinkler system installed in the home as well. We went from six bedrooms to seven bedrooms."

The facility has been re-licensed to care level III, which allows for current residents to have hospice personnel come in for nursing care. Besides being an assisted living facility, DeSano Place provides respite care for family caregivers by the hour, or providing there is an empty room, for a few days at a time.

Pendleton and her husband have owned the home since July 2000.

The assisted living facility has six employees, some of whom have worked at the home for as many as 10 to 15 years.

City of Twin Falls receives second place award

TWIN FALLS - The city of Twin Falls and Operations Management International Inc. garnered the second-place award in the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Biosolids Exemplary Management Excellence Awards Program.

OMI accepted the second-place award in the "greater than 5 million gallons per day wastewater treatment" category Oct. 13 at the annual Water Environment Federation Technical Exposition and Conference in Los Angeles.

The Twin Falls wastewater facility treats 10 million dry pounds (2,000 tons) of biosolids per year. The city converted three sludge trucks from a rear discharge load to a front discharge load. This change allows biosolids to be applied evenly and allows a wider application width, which greatly reduces field compaction. OMI has managed the Twin Falls wastewater treatment plant since 1985.

"OMI's continuous attention to regulation compliant, agricultural friendly and economical biosolids management has been key to holding sewer rates down," said Cary Young, Twin Falls city engineer, in a press release. "Our confidence in OMI's outstanding performance has been further reinforced by this national award."

Young is the 170th award recipient in Englewood, Colo. OMI manages 170 wastewater treatment facilities nationwide.

Experts agree national test results mask Idaho problems

BOISE (AP) - Test results showing Idaho students exceeding national average scores in reading and mathematics are masking comparative weaknesses in the state's education system, experts said.

But more direct comparisons indicate Idaho's overwhelmingly white student population is lagging behind much of the nation, especially in math.

A generally no-frills education system, relatively low incomes in rural Idaho and a comparatively low percentage of college-educated parents are the reasons some educators believe Idaho students are not keeping pace nationally despite the average scores.

"We're not challenging our best students," Howard said. "We have a lot of rural districts and offering challenging courses can be difficult for them. We're also a state where we're still seeing first-generation kids go to college."

"Having that as a family expectation seems to raise the bar," she said. "It doesn't have anything to do with intelligence. It's a matter of motivation."

Garrett also said that the poverty level in rural Idaho creates some of the same learning problems among the almost exclusively white students that are common to inner-city children, who are more likely minorities.

coverage. But he said two weekly newspapers, the Idaho Mountain Express and The Wood River Journal, and the daily Times-News have blanketed the town with coverage that he insisted has "strained the jury pool."

Blaine County Prosecutor Jim Thomas told Judge May he had no objections to the limited gag order. But he argued that "a potential jury pool doesn't need to be sheltered, only fair" and disagreed with Pangburn that some of Sheriff Fleming's statements to news reporters would not be introduced at the trial.

The defense attorney also told the court he didn't believe the trial would begin on Feb. 10 as scheduled by Judge May, since it was insufficient time for him to prepare.

Pangburn told The Times-News later that he had not received any of the evidence from the prosecution nor a transcript of grand jury proceedings that led to Sarah Johnson's indictment and arrest eight weeks after the slayings of the Johnsons in the bedroom of the Bellevue home.

In the question of whether he'd seek to move the trial, Pangburn said he hadn't decided.

But Judge May alluded to alternate possibilities in discussing plans for the trial. He called it an "unusual case" because of "emotional" events that were dramatic "... and that Blaine County is not a very large jury pool." The court, he said, must also consider the expense to which the county should go "to obtain a jury" for a fair trial.

At the evening community forum, some parents were enthusiastic about the longer periods eliminating wasted time. Cindy Jeser was confident that students coming from block periods in junior high school would have an easy transition into the proposed schedule.

"The continuity of going to the high school with the block schedule is going to be a piece of cake," she said. "I'm very impressed with the work the committee has done."

About 38 parents, students and community members attended the meeting where 12 of the 16 schedule committee members were available to answer questions. Parents brought a variety of concerns including class sizes, schedule complexity and graduation requirements.

Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said that block periods may make some classes larger. However, the longer periods will enable students to break into smaller groups, to receive extra help from the teachers and to help each other. With the new schedule, the district would have to hire approximately four new teachers, Dobbs said.

School

"We aren't going to overload our classes," Dobbs said. "That's bad practice."

One parent asked Megan King if she was able to figure out her class schedule without help using the block format. She said it took her a few minutes once she knew which classes were offered on which format, whether it be AB, 4-by-4 or skinny.

Another concern was about the impact of moving the first half of students' U.S. History requirement from eighth to 10th grade. The new requirement is for 10th grade students to take it next year, but those students already had it in eighth grade. Twin Falls High

Giving the centuries of accumulated wisdom they have among them, Broads have invented Nestle's Chihuahuan Dog as a canine guardian protection for its grandsons. They've led hikes in the Canyons of the Ancients National Monument to show newspaper reporters why the area, which has the highest known density of archaeological sites in the country, needs protection.

Thirty Broads went to Yellowstone last Presidents Day weekend to protest the Bush administration's decision to let snowmobilers continue to recreate in the park. And they hope to double or even triple that number this year.

Some of the Broads, such as two widows from Chicago, had never even been camping before they joined the group. But they're determined to leave a legacy of wilderness for their grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

"I go to the mountains to restore my soul, so it's very important to me to preserve them," said Lowie Graves of Ketchum.

One of the advantages that the Broads have is their name and the humorous way with which they approach potentially heated situations, said Executive Director Ronni Egan, a former horse outfitter and rafting guide from Durango, Calif. News media like the Broads because they're so different from other conservation groups.

Craft bazaar heralds new Fairfield tradition

By Amy Ballard
Times-News correspondent

FAIRFIELD - It may not be 11,000 pounds, 70 feet tall or headed to the U.S. Capitol, but Fairfield residents hope their Downtown Holiday Tree will become an annual tradition.

The celebration of the tree will coincide with the annual craft bazaar and the American Legion Hall on Saturday.

Ken Cox of Fairfield donated a 15-foot blue spruce to serve as a living Christmas tree, which will be decorated with donated ornaments and lights for all of Fairfield's residents and visitors to enjoy. The tree will be planted in the pocket-park-downtown-on Soldier Road.

Norma Ellison, who is heading up the Downtown Holiday Tree Committee for the Chamber of Commerce, says more donations are needed.

"We don't have a lot of ornaments yet," Ellison said. "But we figure if we plant the tree, the donations will come."

Crafters and shoppers young and old will find something to enjoy at the craft bazaar. Held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., the fair will host 11 vendors of crafts such as goat's milk soap, as well as of baked and canned goods.

Local entities such as the Camas County Senior Citizen Center and the Camas County Public Library will also use the bazaar to raise funds. The Library will raffish a basket of holiday goods from the Specialty Shop, with tickets for $1 each or six for $5.

The bazaar's chairman, Robyn Stewart, said, "There's usually lots of good stuff that makes a good Christmas gift."

Idaho cracks down on pollutants

BOISE (AP) - Agency directors have been ordered to minimize emissions of state vehicles in southwestern Idaho and prepare a response plan for periods of elevated air pollution levels.

The executive order issued this week by Gov. Dirk Kempthorne encourages general energy conservation, and increased use of teleconference ing and alternative transportation programs for state employees to commute to work.

He directed the state Energy Division to come up with a strategy for increasing use of environmentally-friendly fuel supplies in the Boise area while university researchers work on understanding and solving its air pollution and inversion problems.

Ex-Boise mayor's aide pleads guilty to felonies

BOISE (AP) - A man ousted as the mayor's chief of staff has pleaded guilty to four felonies for his involvement in Boise's biggest City Hall scandal in decades, which also led to the conviction of the former mayor.

Gary Lyman entered his pleas after missing public money and illegally taping executive sessions of the city council.

Although Lyman said he did not believe he broke the law on any occasion, he told 4th District Judge Deborah Bail that it was time to end the controversy. He lost his job in December. "The community has probably had plenty of this, a sometimes emotional Lyman said during a lengthy exchange with the judge. "In order to bring closure to this horrible ordeal that has occurred for myself, my family, my friends and others, this seemed to be the right approach to take, your honor."

Much of the hearing was broadcast live on Boise television station KTVB.

Bail set sentencing for Jan. 15, six days after former Mayor Brent Coles is to be in court for a resentencing hearing. Lyman's plea agreement assures him he will spend no longer than four years in prison.

Coles pleaded guilty earlier this month to two felony counts of misusing public money for a 2002 trip to New York. Coles' plea bargain limits his prison time to no more than three years.

The New York trip, which both took along with two other city employees for dinner and a Broadway show, was what sparked the investigation that led to both men's downfalls.

Lyman's pleas were in connection with that New York trip and a soon after 1999 trip to the Midwest. Lyman maintained that based on previous city council actions, the council would have approved the trips in question as related to city business. He told the judge he simply wished the council had been given that opportunity rather than the approval coming only from the mayor.

He also told Bail that he sat in on nearly every city council executive session and would have legally been able to sit in the one he allegedly eavesdropped on from his office.

The grand jury found his taping of city council executive sessions was a violation of the law protecting the integrity of verbal and wire communications to which he was not party.

Deputy Attorney General J. Scott James told Bail that if the case went to trial, other current and former city officials including Coles would refute Lyman's contentions.

Bail told Lyman she simply did not find his story believable. "I'm having trouble believing your version. In fact, I'm not buying it."

Servicemen reach final resting place

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - The remains of seven servicemen whose plane crashed in Russia after taking off from Alaska during World War II were buried Thursday in Arlington National Cemetery.

The group burial was conducted with full military honors, the Defense Department said in a news release.

The servicemen were aboard a Navy bomber that left Attu Island in Alaska's Aleutian Islands on March 25, 1944, and headed for enemy targets in the Kurile Island of Japan.

The Defense Department identified the seven as Lt. Walter S.

Whitman Jr. of Philadelphia, Lt. jg. John W. Hanlon Jr. of Worcester, Mass.; Petty Officer 2nd Class Clarence C. Fridley of Manhattan, Mont.; Petty Officer 2nd Class Donald G. Lewallen of Omaha, Neb.; Petty Officer 2nd Class Jack J. Fowler of Decatur, Ill.; Petty Officer 3rd Class Samuel L. Crown Jr. of Columbus, Ohio; and Petty Officer 3rd Class James S. Palko of Superior, Wis.

Henry Ford was more of a pioneer than most realize

Not all of the original Henry Ford's pioneering projects were well publicized. Among his 40,000 employees in 1919 were 9,000 handicapped. Vehicles never carry food in their feet.

The late Malcolm Forbes observed, "There's never enough time, unless you're serving it."

Q. Why was Persia's name changed to "Iran"?
A. Iranians always called their homeland Iran - meaning "Land of the Aryans." Westerners named it Persia in the sixth century B.C., an allusion to the southern region called Persis. It was in 1935 that Iran's government officially requested it be known internationally as Iran.

Magazine dubs Depp sexiest man alive

NEW YORK (AP) - People magazine has named Johnny Depp the "Sexiest Man Alive 2003," saying the actor, known for his "brooding eccentricities," has "mellowed since becoming a father."

Depp, star of this year's "Pirates of the Caribbean: The Curse of the Black Pearl," has two young children with his girlfriend, French actress and pop singer Vanessa Paradis.

People also picked its Top 10 sexiest men: Brad Pitt, Ashton Kutcher, George Clooney, Lenny Kravitz, Justin Timberlake, Hugh Grant, Russell Crowe, Hugh Jackman, Denzel Washington and Colin Farrell.

Teen finds surprising bit of family history

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 and recently went snooping through some old boxes in the attic. In one of them I found a wedding picture with my mother as a bride. I was shocked to see that the groom was not my father. He was a man who is a friend of the family! The date on the photograph is 1980. I had no clue that my mother was ever married before.

Do you think my father knows? I don't know what to do with this news.

DEAR ABBY:

feeling vulnerable. However, you have more control than you think. You can stop seeing Hank - so you will no longer be tempted to "slip." If you feel you need emotional support, speak to a chaplain on the naval base. You're a military wife now, and it's important that you stay strong for your husband. Email him. Write to him. Keep yourself occupied. Fill your time so you won't have time to dwell on Hank.

Please don't get me wrong, Abby. I've never been one to do wild and crazy things, but right now I feel like I have no control

DEAR IN SHOCK IN OREGON: Here's what to do with the "news." Show the wedding picture to your mother and say, "That must have been some costume party!"

Seriously, I'm sure her first marriage isn't meant to be a deep, old family secret. I'm also sure your father is aware of it, because a prior marriage is something that someone has to reveal before remarriage; the question is asked at the registrar's office when a couple applies for a marriage license.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old married woman, "Jerry" and I have been married just a year, but we've been together for almost four. We have one child who is 3 and another on the way.

Jerry joined the Navy soon after our wedding. He met "Hank" in boot camp, and they became good friends and hung out together until Jerry was deployed to Japan. Hank remained here and comes over from time to time to play with our son.

For the most part, I am content in my marriage, but lately I've had strong feelings for Hank. Hank has told me he has feelings for me, too. Now I'm mixed up about everything. I don't know if I could ever leave my marriage, but more and more I can picture

Joint project earns prestige for Gemini

IF NOVEMBER 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY... you are basically easygoing, though at times you can perplex others with your mercurial attitudes. With loose ends tied up this year, you'll see fresh activities and interests next year bring special rewards. January promises romance.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): A deal is on course. Don't forget to ask vital questions that may have slipped your mind; also, check the small print. By being forceful, the other party comes clean.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Partners are demanding. A critical error this morning is cleared up. Virgo is in the picture.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Working on a joint project gives you prestige. Mars and Jupiter provide the energies required. Your touch, though unnoticed, works wonders. No matter, as this cooperation has lasting results.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): As Jupiter provides a shoulder on which to lean, your verbal skills sustain a situation and bring harmony.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Time is precious, and making plans without talking things over can prove expensive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Jupiter is giving you the crazy confidence to attempt the impossible. After all, resisting pressure and making your own calls has served you well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A meeting with club or family members sparks a new passion. You have just the right insight to catch the bird.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The moon in your house of self-undoing bus you making a compromise you may later regret.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Being able to forgive and believing in the power of love set the new theme.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Someone may criticize your romantic notions, but you need to be egged on in the right direction. Ignoring certain rules is OK, but taking risks is another story.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone else's mistakes may be causing concern. Overreacting and causing a melodrama is painful to everyone concerned. Be magnanimous and let it be.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): If someone wants your opinion, tell him or her what you have in mind, but avoid being critical. When it comes to a special relationship, you're not your usual compliant self.

Yellowstone snowmobile plans hit the courts

Judge wants to know Park Service's reasoning

WASHINGTON (AP)—A federal judge questioned Thursday what prompted the Bush administration's decision to let snowmobilers keep riding in Yellowstone National Park.

The current plan will allow a limited number of snowmobiles to enter the park and require them to be built with cleaner, quieter engines.

U.S. District Judge Emmet Sullivan called it a "360 degree change" from the Clinton administration's plan to restrict their use.

"What's really driving these decisions?" he asked Interior Department lawyer Andrew Emrich at a hearing.

Emrich said new, low-emission snowmobile engines allowed the National Park Service to redesign its plan so snowmobiling could continue because the park was protected from pollution. "Technology had come quite a way in just a couple years," Emrich said.

Several conservation groups are asking Sullivan to strike down the plan, which they contend does not do enough to protect park wildlife and workers from air and noise pollution.

Aligail Dillen, a lawyer for the Greater Yellowstone Coalition, said haze and health risks will continue in the park in spite of the new machines.

"Those things are not consistent with protecting national parks," Dillen said.

The Bozeman, Mont.-based group argued a ban is the only way to protect the park's natural resources and wildlife and said there was no justification for reversing it.

The Interior Department, which oversees the Park Service, said its decision was appropriate and wants the challenge thrown out.

Sullivan said he may not decide the case until after the snowmobile rule is published, the last formal step before it takes effect. He set a court hearing for Dec. 17 — the day snowmobiling is expected to begin in Yellowstone and near Grand Teton National Park.

Sullivan asked Emrich whether the government would delay the start of snowmobiling until three days after the rule is published to give time to resolve the court case. Emrich said he would determine that by Monday.

The Fund for Animals conservation group also opposes the snowmobile rules. It alleges that the Park Service failed to thoroughly evaluate whether its practice of grooming snow-covered roads for snowmobiles and snowcoaches harms wildlife by creating unnatural corridors for them to move out of the park.

The Park Service under President Bush agreed to review the Clinton ban as part of a legal settlement with snowmobile makers.

Although it is not an all-out ban, the new plan marks the first time the Park Service will limit the type and number of snowmobiles allowed in the parks.

Riders also must make reservations and travel in guided groups. Rangers will monitor air quality, noise and wildlife and make adjustments to the entry limits if needed.

Jackson surrenders on child molestation charges

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—His hands cuffed behind his back, Michael Jackson was booked on a suspicion of child molestation Thursday after arriving by private jet to face charges that could destroy the pop star's career and send him to prison for years.

The self-styled "King of Pop" immediately posted $3 million bail and waved to reporters and flashed a V-sign before leaving the Santa Barbara County jail in a black Suburban escorted by three sheriff's motorcycle officers. "He's come back specifically to confront these charges head-on," defense attorney Mark Geragos said. "He is greatly outraged by the bringing of these charges. He considers this to be a big lie."

With Jackson's riches and global fame, the advent of 24-hour cable news channels, and the rise of TV cameras in the courtroom, the allegations set the stage for what could be the most sensational celebrity court case the world has ever seen.

Authorities released no details of the case beyond a warrant accusing the 45-year-old Jackson of multiple counts of lewd or lascivious acts with a child under 14, an offense punishable by three to eight years in prison.

But news reports have said the child was a 12- or 13-year-old boy who visited Jackson at his Neverland Ranch, a storybook playland where the singer was known to hold sleepovers for children and share his bed with youngsters.

A demonstrator outside the jail, college student Cesar Mendoza, held a homemade sign reading "Moonwalk 2 jail."

"I love his music, but I don't know if I can support him now. This is his second time. I can't believe him anymore," said Mendoza, 22, of Isla Vista.

Jackson's brother Jermaine denounced the allegations in a CNN interview.

The Missoula Children's Theater presents Little Red Riding Hood

• Hamlet: "How chances it these players travel? Their residence, both in reputation and profit, was better both ways."

• Rosencrantz: "I think their inhibition comes by the means of the late innovation."

TWIN FALLS - Life comes in six-day blocks for Joshua Laird and Jill Franklin, interspersed with one-day, 500-mile drives in the rain.

"This is nine weeks in a row," said Laird, one of the actor/directors of the Missoula, Mont., Children's Theater's International Tour Project.

"Next week, we're off for Thanksgiving, but then it's on to Fort Townsend, Wash."

For MCT, the show really has to go on.

And it's the same show. Laird and Franklin are working with 53 kids in Twin Falls this week on "Red Riding Hood."

"We're definitely on a schedule," Franklin said. "Fortunately, the kids are usually great to work with."

MCT's signature mission in life, sending out two-person teams to teach a play—lock, stock and lighting—to a different cast of kindergarten through high school seniors every week.

It's a gut-busting apprenticeship for young actors, but they jump at the chance.

Both Laird, 23, and Franklin, 24, are from the South and recently out of college or theater training programs; they got their MCT jobs through regional auditions. There are 22 other teams just like them, running six different fairy tales at 800 weekly residencies annually involving 45,000 kids in the United States, Canada, Europe, South America and the Pacific Rim.

In "Red Riding Hood," Laird and Franklin are dealing with a composite of three different fairy tales, and a different spin on the familiar Red Riding Hood, the Wolf and the Woodsman.

"Our week includes an open audition, four hours of rehearsal

Two-person teams of actor/directors from the Missoula, Mont., Children's Theater cast, rehearse and produce a show in six days, using local children.

Our week includes an open audition, four hours of rehearsal Monday through Friday, and three workshops. Plus the performances on Saturday, with scenery and costumes.

— Jill Franklin, member of the Missoula, Mont.,
Children's Theater's International Tour Project

Monday through Friday, and three workshops," Franklin said. "Plus the performances on Saturday, with scenery and costumes."

It's a full week's work.

"It's mostly a pleasure, she says, but there are moments. A 5-year-old actor, unhappy with his part, slugged her recently."

"He had several members of his family in the play," she said. "But needless to say, he wasn't among them."

Tomb Raider: The Cradle of Life

Our buff-and-limber gymnast archeologist (Angelina Jolie) goes in search of Pandora's box, fighting with rivals Chen Lo (Simon Yam) and supervillain Jonathan Reiss (Ciaran Hinds) along the way. The plot seems to have been flicked from the James Bond flea market of secondhand ideas. Laird visits such exotic locales as Shanghai and Hong Kong, exchanges erant bullets with a familiar array of muscle-bound grunts, somersaults through the air, rides turbo-powered motorcycles, particulates in a few of those long-stick martial-arts battles and even pole vaults onto an ascending helicopter. It's been done better and better. Only Jolie offers need: apply. Contains action violence and sexual situations.

Sinbad: Legend of the Seven Seas

In this business-as-usual, animated feature, "Eris" (voiced by Michelle Pfeiffer) is a mischievous goddess of chaos, with too much time on her hands. Sinbad (Brad Pitt) is a cocky pirate who plunders ships and cares for no one but himself. Eris decides to have twisted fun with mortals in general and Sinbad in particular. She finds a situation in which Sinbad must save the life of his friend Proteus (Joseph Fiennes) by finding the powerful Book of Pessca. Along for the ride is Marina (Catherine Zeta-Jones), Proteus' beautiful, headstrong fiancée who intends to keep Sinbad on a moral course to get that book.

The movie, a mixture of two-dimensional and computer animation, doesn't seem to be trying to make more than a medium-size splash. Contains adventure action, mild sexuality, and mild obscenity.

Through drawings, video and computer photography, nine nationally known and emerging artists explore the cosmos and examine the relationship between chance, causality and the laws of nature. Gallery hours are Mondays through Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and admission is free. The Sun Valley Center is located at 191 Fifth St. E. in Ketchum.

Through Jan. 29
 "Retro Steel," a retrospective of the work of Twin Falls artist LaVar Steel, will be on display in the Jean B. King Gallery at the Herrert Center for Arts and Science on the campus of the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls. Gallery hours are Mondays and Fridays from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Wednesdays and Thursdays, and from 1-9 p.m. on Saturdays. Admission is free.

Planetarium offers new Christmas show

The Times-News
TWIN FALLS - A Christmas-based astronomy show, "The Christmas Star" will begin Nov. 28 in the Faulkner Planetarium at the Herrett Center for Arts and Science on the campus of the College of Southern Idaho.
 The program will be shown at 2 and 7 p.m. Nov. 28 and 29. For the following three weeks, the show will be at 7 p.m. Tuesdays, Fridays and Saturdays as well as 2 p.m. Saturday afternoons.
 Original narration and production of "The Christmas Star" took place at the Buhl Planetarium in Pittsburgh. Faulkner manager Rick Greenwald and production specialist Chris Anderson did additional work on the program to adapt it to the Faulkner's theater.
 In the program, astronomers and Bible scholars first approximate the actual time of Christ's birth, using clues written by ancient scholars. At least one of the clues deals with a lunar eclipse at the time of Herod's death. The projected star field on the Faulkner's 50-foot dome is adjusted to reflect the way the stars would have looked over Bethlehem some 2,000 years ago. Then, various possibilities are studied as to what was the star that led the wise men to the Christ child. They range from a comet or a planetary conjunction to a supernova or simply a miracle.

 The program is appropriate for all age levels.
 The Faulkner's music-based holiday show "Steamrolling Through the Holidays" will also be shown starting the day after Thanksgiving. Greenwald and Anderson created the show several years ago using the music of Mannheim Steamroller and it has remained popular each Christmas.
 "Steamrolling" can be seen at 4 and 8:15 p.m. Nov. 28 and at 8:15 p.m. Tuesdays, Fridays and Saturdays thereafter.
 Admission to the planetarium is $4 for adults, $3 for seniors, $2 for students, and $9 for families of up to two adults and five children.
 For more information, contact the Herrett Center at 732-6655 or visit the Web site at www.csi.edu/Herrett.

ANNIVERSARY

THE BARNHARTS

HAGERMAN - Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barnhart of Hagerman will be honored at an open house for their 50th wedding anniversary. Friends and relatives are invited to attend a potluck dinner at 1 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 22, at the Hagerman Grange, 240 E. Salmon.

Jerome cruises past Declo

Tigers' size proves decisive in 47-30 win

By Kevin Colbert
Times-News writer

JEROME — Size is an important part of basketball.
The Jerome Lady Tigers used their wisely here Thursday night in a 47-30 non-conference victory over Declo.
Jerome received 18 points from 6-foot senior post Vanessa West and 10 points from 6-1 post Elisa Hope. Many of the buckets inside were the result of the overpowering tandem's strength advantage against the Lady Hornets' equally tall but physically weaker post players.

"They're big, physical girls," said Declo coach Kurt Murdock, whose team dropped to 1-1 on the season. "We've got tall girls, but they're skinny. There's not a lot of muscle on them. They can run and jump, but they're just not as big."

"When it comes to muscling your way in, their girls make it look very easy. Their posts are great and they do a great job."

The duo was especially impressive in the second half, combining for 17 points while Jerome coach Michelle Skyles had her squad run its offense almost exclusively through the posts.

"Both those kids are solid players," Skyles said. "They're both college-type players. Our kids know that we've got to get it inside, and that opens it up more for the outside kids. They're both great players."

Senior guard Whitney Clark also had a solid night for Jerome (2-0), finishing with 13 points while also making several outstanding entry passes into West and Hope.

But for as strong as the Lady Tigers were offensively, it was their defense that held Declo in check during the first quarter. The quick Jerome guards, including Clark and senior Mallory Meservy, pressured the Lady Hornets into several bad passes, resulting in eight turnovers in the first frame and just three shot attempts.

"I think our defense is something we're trying to key on this year," Skyles said. "Last week, we forced 39 turnovers (in a win against Pocatello) and tonight, I think we forced 32. I felt real pleased with how we played defensively."

Clark hit a 3-pointer along the right baseline to give the Lady Tigers, who never once trailed, an 8-2 edge.

MAKING HER MARK

Former Jerome stand-out and current College of Southern Idaho freshman forward Jennifer Pond will play in her first college home game tonight when the Golden Eagles play Dixie State College at 6 p.m. at the CSI gymnasium.

Jerome grad Pond contributes to CSI with scoring, rebounding, more

By Kevin Colbert
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There's a moment in most basketball players' careers where a single play signifies that they have, indeed, arrived.

More often than not, that moment comes on a clutch last-second shot, but College of Southern Idaho forward Jennifer Pond made her first possible game-saving play on the defensive end.

UP CLOSE

With the Golden Eagles ahead 66-63 and with 36 seconds remaining at Snow College last Saturday, the Jerome High School product stepped in front of a hard drive to the basket by Badger guard Rana McMurtrey. The contact resulted in a charge on McMurtrey, giving CSI possession. The Eagles were then fouled and made three free throws down the stretch to seal the win 69-63.

"Jen Pond stepped in and took a nice charge," CSI head coach Randy Rogers said. "That was nice because we weren't getting any calls — any close calls — all night."

Pond actually set the defensive mind-set for the team during a time out with just over a minute remaining.

"We kind of picked some goals, and one was to have three charges for the game," Pond said. "We only had one."

"There was 1:19 left or whatever and I said, 'Guys, we have to come out and get two charges.'"

Wendell guns for 2A state title

Trojans face undefeated Grangeville tonight

By Eric Larsen
Times-News writer

MOSCOW — The Wendell Trojans (11-0) will make the long trip up to the Kibbie Dome in Moscow for Saturday's 2A state football championship game against the undefeated Grangeville Bulldogs.

Kickoff is 8 p.m. MST on the University of Idaho campus.
Coming off a 16-0 shutout of West Side, the Trojans enter the championship off a stifling defensive performance that held the potent Pirates offense to 149 total yards.

Led by senior cornerback Brett Fowler's two interceptions and Tyler Slade's two forced turnovers, the Trojans stymied the Pirates.

Wendell coach Jerry Diehl knows that his defense is going to have to play with the same intensity during the championship game.

"Our D will have to play well, they have a heck of a runner in that Mundt kid," Diehl said. "We can't miss tackles at the line of scrimmage with him running."

Standing across from the Trojan defense will be a high-scoring Bulldog offense led by senior tailback Brad Mundt. The 6-foot back has torn through opposing defenses on his way to 1,902 rushing yards and 37 touchdowns for the season. Grangeville coach Craig Cunningham — in his 20th and final year with Grangeville — will look to Mundt to end his career on a high note.

"He's a tough, competitive kid," Cunningham said. "The good ones all want the ball in the fourth quarter and that's what Brad wants."

Running the Bulldog offense will be senior quarterback Alex Frei. While Grangeville's offensive attack is focused around the

"He's an awfully good thrower, completes around 66 percent of his passes," said Cunningham. Seniors Kevin Allen and Lee

BSU heads to Fresno for crucial WAC battle

Winner will control-conference race with just two weeks left

The Times-News

BOISE — The No. 20 Boise State University Broncos will put their national ranking and their Western Athletic Conference lead on the line when they face Fresno State at 7 MST tonight.

The winner takes the lead in the conference with only two weeks left in the season.

Fresno State (7-4, 5-1 WAC) may not have as impressive a record as the Broncos (9-1, 5-0 WAC), but have certainly faced sterner competition with losses at Tennessee, Oklahoma, Colorado State and Hawaii.

Sophomore quarterback Paul Pinegar has thrown for seven touchdowns and five interceptions. Sophomore tailback Dayne Wright has 838 yards on 148 carries. Senior receivers Bernard Berrion and Marques Davis are Pinegar's top targets. Berrion leads the team with 483 yards on 45 catches.

If Friday night's game becomes a shootout, it may favor Boise State. The Broncos have scored 50 points more in three-straight games, most recently a 51-21 rout against Texas-El Paso.

Broncos senior quarterback Ryan Dinwiddie is only 310 yards away from setting a new school record for single-season passing yards. He is currently completed 198-of-325 passes for 3,054 yards and 23 touchdowns.

Tim Gilligan is his favorite target with exactly 1,000 yards on 58 catches. Running back David Mikell is poised to break the 1,000-yard plateau with 991 yards on 198 carries. He has scored nine times.

CSI men face tough foe without head coach

By Kevin Colbert
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The timing couldn't be worse for the College of Southern Idaho's men's hoops team.

Not only are the Golden Eagles heading into this weekend's key Scenic West Athletic Conference series with second-ranked Dixie State after two road losses at Snow College, they'll be doing it, at least for one game, without their head coach.

Head coach Gib Arnold will be absent from the bench of tonight's 8 matchup with the Rebels at the CSI Gymnasium after he received two consecutive technical fouls late in the game in an 88-72 loss to Snow this past Saturday.

SWAC rules state that a coach or player that is ejected from a game must miss the following scheduled contest.

Assistant coach Barret Peery will temporarily assume head coaching duties. Arnold will be allowed to return Saturday night.

Arnold was tossed for his displeasure with the officiating. The Badgers went to the free throw line 88 times over the two games at Snow. CSI was at the line just 45.

"It was a lot of the officiating," Arnold said of the reason for his ejection. "No doubt about it. I don't like going in and shooting 40 less foul shots than the team I'm playing."

The Eagles (4-2 overall, 0-2 SWAC) will face a tremendously balanced lineup from Dixie State (5-0, 2-0) that features five players scoring in double figures.

Versatile off-guard Vincent Grier leads the Rebels at 17.2 points per game. The 6-foot-5

Jerome cruises past Declo

Tigers' size proves decisive in 47-30 win

By Kevin Colbert
Times-News writer

JEROME — Size is an important part of basketball.

The Jerome Lady Tigers used their wisely here Thursday night in a 47-30 non-conference victory over Declo.

Jerome received 18 points from 6-foot senior post Vanessa West and 10 points from 6-1 post Elisa Hope. Many of the buckets inside were the result of the overpowering tandem's strength advantage against the Lady Hornets' equally tall but physically weaker post players.

"They're big, physical girls," said Declo coach Kurt Murdock, whose team dropped to 1-1 on the season. "We've got tall girls...but they're skinny. There's not a lot of muscle on them. They can run and jump, but they're just not as big."

"When it comes to muscling your way in, their girls make it look very easy. Their posts are great and they do a great job."

The duo was especially impressive in the second half, combining for 17 points while Jerome coach Michelle Skyles had her squad run its offense almost exclusively through the posts.

"Both those kids are solid players," Skyles said. "They're both college-type players. Our kids know that we've got to get it inside, and that opens it up more for the outside kids. They're both great players."

Senior guard Whitney Clark also had a solid night for Jerome (2-0), finishing with 13 points while also making several outstanding entry passes into West and Hope.

But for as strong as the Lady Tigers were offensively, it was their defense that held Declo in check during the first quarter. The quick Jerome guards, including Clark and senior Mallory Meservy, pressured the Lady Hornets into several bad passes, resulting in eight turnovers in the first frame and just three shot attempts.

"I think our defense is something we're trying to key on this year," Skyles said. "Last week, we forced 39 turnovers (in a win against Pocatello) and tonight, I think we forced 32. I felt real pleased with how we played defensively."

Clark hit a 3-pointer along the right baseline to give the Lady Tigers, who never once trailed, an 8-2 edge.

MAKING HER MARK

Former Jerome stand-out and current College of Southern Idaho freshman forward Jennifer Pond will play in her first college home game tonight when the Golden Eagles play Dixie State College at 6 p.m. at the CSI gymnasium.

Jerome grad Pond contributes to CSI with scoring, rebounding, more

TWIN FALLS — There's a moment in most basketball players' careers where a single play signifies that they have, indeed, arrived.

More often than not, that moment comes on a clutch last-second shot, but College of Southern Idaho forward Jennifer Pond made her first possible game-saving play on the defensive end.

of a hard drive to the basket by Badger guard Rana McMurtrey. The contact resulted in a charge on McMurtrey, giving CSI possession. The Eagles were then fouled and made three free throws down the stretch to seal the win 69-63.

"Jennifer Pond stepped in and took a nice charge," CSI head coach Randy Rogers said. "That was nice because we weren't getting any calls — any close calls — all night."

Pond actually set the defensive mid-set for the team during a time out with just over a minute remaining.

"We kind of picked some goals, and one was to have three charges late in the game," Pond said. "We only had one."

"There was 1:19 left or whatever and I said, 'Guys, we have to come out and get two charges.'"

If Friday night's game becomes a shootout, it may favor Boise State. The Broncos have scored 50 points or more in three-straight games, most recently a 51-21 rout against Texas-El Paso.

Broncos senior quarterback Ryan Dinwiddie is only 310 yards away from setting a new school record for single-season passing yards. He is currently completed 198-of-325 passes for 3,054 yards and 22 touchdowns.

Ten Gilligan has his favorite target with exactly 1,000 yards on 58 catches. Running back David Mikell is poised to break the 1,000-yard plateau with 991 yards on 198 carries. He has scored nine times.

Wendell guns for 2A state title

Trojans face undefeated Grangeville tonight

By Eric Larson
Times-News writer

MOSCOW — The Wendell Trojans (11-0) will make the long trek up to the Kibbie Dome in Moscow for Saturday's 2A state football championship game against the undefeated Grangeville Bulldogs.

Kickoff is 8 p.m. MST on the University of Idaho campus.

Coming off a 16-0 shutout of West Side, the Trojans enter the championship off a stifling defensive performance that held the potent Pirates offense to 149 total yards.

Led by senior cornerback Brett Fowler's two interceptions and Tyler Slade's two forced turnovers, the Trojans stymied the Pirates.

Wendell coach Jerry Diehl knows that his defense is going to have to play with the same intensity during the championship game.

"Our D will have to play well and they have a heck of a runner in that Mundt kid," Diehl said. "We can't miss tackles at the line of scrimmage with him running."

Standing across from the Trojan defense will be a high-scoring Bulldog offense led by senior tailback Brad Mundt. The 6-foot back has torn through opposing defenses on his way to 1,902 rushing yards and 37 touchdowns for the season. Grangeville coach Craig Cunningham — in his 20th and final year with Grangeville — will look to Mundt to end his career on a high note.

"He's a tough, competitive kid," Cunningham said. "The good ones all want the ball in the fourth quarter and that's what Brad wants."

Running the Bulldog offense will be senior quarterback Alex Frei. While Grangeville's offensive attack is focused around the

BSU heads to Fresno for crucial WAC battle

Winner will control conference race with just two weeks left

The Times-News

BOISE — The No. 20 Boise State University Broncos will put their national ranking and their Western Athletic Conference lead on the line when they face Fresno State at 7 MST tonight.

The winner takes the lead in the conference with only two weeks left in the season.

Fresno State (7-4, 5-1 WAC) may not have as impressive a record as the Broncos (9-1, 5-0 WAC), but have certainly faced sterner competition with losses at Tennessee, Oklahoma, Colorado State and Hawaii.

Sophomore quarterback Paul Pinegar has thrown for seven touchdowns and five interceptions.

Buhl pulls away in second half Twin Falls shuts down Century

Indians knock off Glenns Ferry

By Eric Larsen Times-News writer

BUHL — The Glenns Ferry Pilots came out with a flat third quarter, allowing the Buhl Indians to take a 14-point lead on their way to a 49-34 girls basketball win Thursday night at Buhl High School.

Buhl led most of the way, taking a 28-22 lead in halftime. Although Glenns Ferry was able to find their shots for a 17-point second quarter, the Pilot squad was held to less than 10 points each of the other three quarters. Pilot coach Kelly McElhone's team tired after the half, thanks in part to the flu bug that shortened the bench.

"Offensively it shows how tired and out of shape we are," said McElhone. "We got into foul trouble because we were tired, that flu bug really hit us hard. I thought we'd be farther "along than we are now." But passing game proved to be too much for Glenns Ferry's defense to handle, as the Indians were able to generate layups out of their half-court set.

Senior point guard Dani Kippes controlled the pace of the game with her solid ball handling and passing ability. Kippes played all 32 minutes of the game as Adams found his team in foul trouble early.

While Kippes' numbers weren't spectacular — six points, four rebounds, and three assists — her leadership was an invaluable asset for coach Scott Adams' team.

seriously have not had a point guard as smart as her and I would have played her on any of my boys teams." Adams said. "She's so smart and under control, I have all the confidence that she'll get the job done."

Buhl junior forward Amanda Owen led all scorers with a 14-point performance, while senior center Jessica Brown added nine points and 12 rebounds. Brown's hard work has paid off in spades.

Glenns Ferry was led by an eight-point performance from junior guard Chelsey Jess and a seven-point, five rebound effort from Jessica Simons. Simons was saddled with four fouls in the third quarter and sat most of the second half.

"When Jessica goes out that hurts us a lot, she brings a lot of experience to the team. Kylee (Noble) stepped up and played well for us tonight," said McElhone.

Buhl will face a tough American Falls team Saturday while Glenns Ferry faces Declo.

POCATELLO — The Twin Falls Lady Bruins blew past Century in the second and third quarters en route to a 51-28 win Thursday night in girls basketball action.

The win improved Twin Falls to 3-0 and avenged a late-season home loss from the year before.

The difference was defense as Twin Falls built an early lead it never gave up.

"We played really good defense," said second-year coach Joe Shepard. "We shut them down for the first five minutes. We controlled the boards pretty well."

The win finally got a little offense going in the second quarter when Amanda (Hovey) hit a couple 3-pointers to give us the big lead at halftime."

Hovey led all scorers with 19 points while adding three assists. Hannah Heidenreich pulled down 10 rebounds.

Jamie Edwards and Amy Braxford were credited for their defense in holding Century's Paige Knudson to nine points, only two in the first half.

Twin Falls led 22-11 at the break. The Bruins (3-0) host Jerome Tuesday.

ered inside the TCU 20 with less than three minutes left and moments later Anthony Harris bulled into the end zone from 2 yards out to make it 40-28 with 1:30 left.

TCU was eighth in the Bowl Championship Series standings this week and needed to be unbeaten to have any shot of becoming the first school from a non-BCS league to receive an invite to one of the four high-dollar major bowls.

Now, the best the Horned Frogs can hope for is a piece of the league title and a spot in one of five bowls with C-USA ties.

Southern Miss, which has won five straight games, can earn a bid to the Liberty Bowl by beating one-win East Carolina next week.

Almond, who has thrown 12 TD passes since regaining the starting job five games ago, was 14-for-23 with an interception.

Southern Miss helped out by taking a 24-6 lead with the jump of three big plays — one by the defense, one by the defense and one by special teams.

It marked just the second time this season TCU was down at halftime and by far the biggest deficit the Horned Frogs have faced at any point this season.

Boston beats Caps to extend unbeaten streak

BOSTON (AP) — Mike Knuble had a goal and an assist, and Boston stretched its streak without a regulation loss to 11 games with a 3-2 win over Washington Thursday.

The Bruins, who have won four straight at home, have earned at least one point in every game since they lost to Carolina on Oct. 23 (7-0-1-3).

Washington (5-13-1) is tied with Pittsburgh by an NHL-low 11 points.

Tommy Jugr and Sergei Gonchar had the Capitals' goals.

Lightning 3, Islanders 2. TAMPA, Fla. — Cory Stillman scored his 10th goal of the season in the third period to help lift the Tampa Bay Lightning over the New York Islanders 3-2 Thursday night.

Stillman's goal from the left circle on Tampa Bay a 3-0 lead 4:27 into the third.

Arron Asham and Mark Parrish scored for the Islanders. Asham brought the Islanders within 3-1 at 14:19 of the third, and Parrish made it a one-goal game with 1:24 left.

Senators 6, Hurricanes 1. OTTAWA — Marian Hossa had a goal and an assist, and Ottawa scored five times in the second period en route to a victory over Carolina.

Hossa, who leads the Senators with 10 goals and 20 points, assisted on Yacov Varada's tying goal with 9.6 seconds left in the first. It was Ottawa's first even-strength goal in four games.

Jason Spezza, Radek Bonk, Peter Schaefer, Todd White and Hossa scored in the second as the Senators outshot Carolina 17-4 in the period.

Radin Vrbata scored his first goal in nine games for Carolina.

Blue Jackets 3, Red Wings 0. COLUMBUS, Ohio — Dan Fritsche became the first Ohio native to score a goal for Columbus, which split a home-and-home series with Detroit.

Marc Denis stopped 25 shots for his second shutout of the season and 11th of his career.

The 18-year-old Fritsche's writer early in the third period was his first NHL goal. The Parma, Ohio, native was a second-round pick in this year's draft.

Flyers 3, Wild 1. PHILADELPHIA — Mark Recchi had two power-play goals and an assist, helping Philadelphia extend its unbeaten streak to eight games.

The Flyers, 7-0-1 in this run, are 8-0-2 at home.

Alexandre Daigle scored against his former team for the Wild, who shut out the Flyers in consecutive games last February.

Tony Amonte added a goal and assist, and Jeremy Roenick had two assists for Philadelphia. The line of Roenick, Recchi and Amonte has 51 points in 15 games since they were united four games into the season.

Flames 2, Canadiens 1. CALGARY, Alberta — Martin Gelinas scored with 1:14 left, and Mikko Kiprusoff earned his first win to lead Calgary over Montreal.

Gelinas scored off a rebound of a slap shot by Jordan Leopold, beating Montreal goaltender Jose Theodore.

Kiprusoff, acquired Sunday in a trade with San Jose, finished with 22 saves. Roman Turek is sidelined indefinitely with a knee injury.

Steven Reinprecht also scored for Calgary, which has won the first two games of their six-game homestand.

Craig Rivet scored for Montreal, which wraps up a five-game road trip Saturday night in Edmonton with an outdoor game against the Oilers.

Oilers 3, Maple Leafs 2. EDMONTON, Alberta — Alec Hensley had a goal and an assist in Edmonton's victory over Toronto.

The Oilers won their fifth straight while Toronto's winless streak was stretched to five games (0-2-3-1).

Edmonton goaltender Ty Conklin stopped 31 shots to win his fourth consecutive start and earn his fifth victory in six since replacing Tommy Salmi (hip).

Marc-Andre Bergeron and Mike York also scored for the Oilers.

Darcy Tucker and Gary Roberts had goals for Toronto, which has won just once in seven games (1-2-3-1).

Finley helps Mavericks hold off San Antonio, 95-92

DALLAS (AP) — Michael Finley scored six of his 17 points during a game-turning run in the third quarter and the Dallas Mavericks held off a late charge to beat the San Antonio Spurs 95-92 Thursday night.

Finley's 14-foot jumper less than two minutes into the second half put the Mavericks ahead 50-49. It also ignited the 12-2 start that put Dallas in the lead to stay.

Dirk Nowitzki had 26 points and Antoine Walker had 22 points and 11 rebounds for the Mavericks who have won all six home games this season.

The Spurs, trailed by as many as 16 in the fourth quarter before an 11-2 spurt, getting to 88-82 on Manu Ginobili's 3-pointer with 2:46 left, by time Colin Duncan drove down the lane virtually untouched for a dunk, it was 92-90 with 18 seconds left.

But the Spurs, playing their first game in Dallas since clinching the Western Conference finals with an incredible Game 6 comeback here last May, couldn't get closer.

Finley also scored his third 3-pointers in the final 10 seconds. Duncan had 30 points and 17 rebounds for the Spurs. Rasho Nesterov had 18 points.

Steve Nash, coming off his first career triple-double, didn't get into double-figure scoring until hitting three straight free throws after Duncan's dunk. Nash finished with 12 points.

Even though Finley made just 5 of 17 shots, he was the difference in the third quarter. He added a jumper and then his ally-oop dunk from Shawn Bradley, the Mavericks led 60-51.

Finley also made both of his free throws after Anthony Carter was called for a flagrant foul on grabbing Finley's jersey on a break. Finley was upset, and had to be escorted from Carter before hitting the free throws.

The Mavericks didn't have any turnovers in the third quarter, when they outscored San Antonio 27-17.

Tigers

Continued from D1. A West free throw followed by two Hop buckets midway through the second period gave Jerome a commanding 17-5 advantage.

But West turned up his defensive pressure late in the second period and into the third, eventually cutting its deficit to 28-23 on a 0 run extending from late in the third quarter into the fourth to all but stall the game away at 39:23 before Declo's Ashley Peterson ended the run with a short jumper. Peterson led the Lady Hornets with eight points.

"They just wore us down," Murdock said. "We can't physical-

Diaz leads LPGA Tour Championship

International team rallies at Presidents Cup

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A good book and a good friend helped Laura Diaz book and a good friend helped Laura Diaz enjoy herself on the golf course again. A trip to the emergency room and an eye infection made Annika Sorenstam wish she was someplace else.

Struggling with a bum ankle and playing a course she's never played, Diaz used some of the lessons from a motivational book she read, combined it with the comfort of playing alongside her best friend, and took the first round lead Thursday at the LPGA Tour Championship.

Diaz shot 3-under-par 69, five strokes ahead of Sorenstam, who took a trip to the emergency room in the morning, which she was diagnosed with pink eye. She shot 74 — not bad considering she played the entire round without a contact in her right eye.

Diaz needed all her senses to persevere at the blustery Trump International Golf Club and take a one-stroke lead over Lori Kane. Fred Malton was another stroke back on a day in which only three players in the field of the LPGA Tour's top 30 money winners broke par.

International team shows its mettle

GEORGE, South Africa (AP) — Mike Weir showed guts and imagination, and the International team showed plenty of resolve in the Presidents Cup by rallying in three matches to take a 3.5-2.5 lead Thursday.

The United States was hammered five years ago in Australia — the only other time these matches were played overseas — but was poised this year to take a commanding lead in the six alternate-shot matches.

Tiger Woods and Charles Howell III proved to be a solid team, winning 4 and 3 in a match they never trailed against Stuart Appleby and K.J. Choi.

Davis Love III and Kenny Perry were just as tough, building a 4-up lead before closing out Peter Lonard and Tim Clark on the 16th hole.

The Americans led in three other matches, and it looked like it was going to be a rout. The International team had other ideas. Weir and Perry, Price, playing in the first match, were 2-down after two occasions "and both times batted back before trailing 1-down after Hole No. 16.

On Hole No. 17, Weir hit a 6-iron right to the flag to win the hole, before being a birdie putt on No. 18 for a 1-up victory that swung momentum to the international side.

Justin Leonard and Jim Furyk appeared to have their match in the bag, 2-up with three to play before Ernie Els and Adam Scott rallied to win 1-up.

Robert Alenby and Stephen Leoney pulled off the most amazing comeback of the day, 3-down with three holes to play it only earned them a half, but it was enough for the International team to lead after the first session.

Declo-Burley match highlights hoops weekend

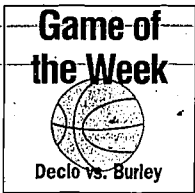

By Eric Larsen
Times-News writer

BURLEY - Declo's Lady Hornets will make the short trip to Burley for a nonconformity clash with the Bobcats Saturday at 6 p.m.

The Bobcats enter the game 1-1 off a gritty overtime win over Filer. Coach Gordon Kerbs will look for continued strong play from senior guard Lindsey Abo and another gutsy rebounding performance out of senior post Sheri Gran.

"We've got our hands full, we have to play well even to compete with them," Kerbs said. "But if we have what we did (against Filer) we have a chance."

Declo is coming off a game versus a tough Jerome team Thursday night. With a height advantage over the Bobcats, the Hornets will look to take control of the boards. While senior post Ashley Peterson has taken the team leader role, coach Kurt Murdock is looking for balanced scoring from his team. In their 32-23 Tuesday win over Snake River, junior guard Holly Hurst led all Declo scorers with six points.

"We had seven girls score that game, I like that," said Murdock. "Don't look for a low scoring game tomorrow though, as Burley will look to negate Declo's size advantage by pushing the ball up court. While the Bobcats have the ability to put in taller bodies in an attempt to match Declo's size, Abo and speedy senior wing Jessica Byington will dictate the pace of the game for the Bobcats."

"Byington plays real hard, real aggressive," Kerbs said. "We just need to work on shot selection."

While Declo is still working out the kinks in their guard play, Hurst's solid start has been a good Dietrich will play Butte County Friday while Hansen draws The Community School in the Hansen tournament this weekend. The sign for Murdock.

"Things are coming along well, girls are excited about the changes going on, they've been real receptive to it," said Murdock.

Hansen tournament
Dietrich will play Butte County Friday while Hansen draws The Community School in the Hansen tournament this weekend. The season-opener for coach Terry Dowd's Hansen Huskies will usher in a new era as the new Hansen coach starts 13-year-old basketball wunderkind Charlotte Freestone.

"Everything's new for these girls," Dowd said. "It's just going to take time for the girls to learn the new program."

Dietrich will face a tough test against a solid Butte County team.

With sophomore Caitlin Dill leading the way early in the season, the Blue Devils look poised to make noise in the short tournament. The winners and losers of each game will play each other Saturday.

Minico at Rigby

Minico looks to even out its season record with a win against Rigby tonight. Senior forward Kaybree Dayton will look to continue her strong play as Minico looks for a consistent second option. Tough post play from junior post Amber Warth will be key for Minico as the Spartans look for second-chance baskets.

The Spartans will face conference power Skyline on Tuesday, a game that will be a tough test for coach Clint Strautman's team. The Grizzlies have opened the season 3-0 with wins over Madison, Rigby, and Blackfoot.

Valley at Wood River

Wood River and senior Natalie Green will look for another early-season win against the Valley Vikings Saturday. With two of the area's top players - Green and Valley's Mindy Malone - going head-to-head, the game has the potential to be a shootout. Valley coach Brian Hardy's team is still looking for a consistent second option to help Malone with the scoring load. While Lindsey Wood and Sara Przegierz look to be the most likely suspects, a more aggressive offensive effort from returning point guard Paige Wyatt could be key to the Vikings' success.

Jerome at Twin Falls

Tuesday's game between the Tigers and the Bruins will be a great early-season test for both teams. Jerome coach Michelle Skyles' team will face Vallivue Saturday and will be looking to build momentum for the season. Both teams have great depth and tournament-tested experience. The Bruins' Hannah Heidreich has stepped into a major role, leading her team in scoring with 15.5 points per game.

Jerome's Elisa Hope looks to continue her strong play after her season-opening 20-point performance against Pocatello.

Wendell defense stops West Side

The Times-News

Wendell's defense gave up only 149 yards of offense in a 16-0 shutout of West Side in Saturday's 2A state tournament semifinal game.

The defensive unit was able to force five turnovers on four pass interceptions and a forced fumble. Linebacker Tyler Slade came up big with an interception along with the forced fumble and recovery.

Senior cornerback Brett Fowler intercepted two of West Side quarterback Kevin Beckstedt's passes, while Daniel Borray picked off the other.

Wendell coach Jerry Diehl knows how valuable his team's play against the pass has been.

"We've bothered teams all year," Diehl said. "I think Fowler's only had a couple passes caught on him all year. With eight picks this year, he's caught more than his opponents."

Girls Basketball
Burley's Lindsey Abo led the Bobcats to a 51-46 overtime win over Filer Tuesday. As part of her team-high 16 points, Abo hit a 3-pointer to tie the game with 6.5 seconds left in the fourth quarter.

Abo's second 3-pointer of the game gave the Bobcats a 47-46 overtime lead they wouldn't relinquish.

Arkansas dismisses linebacker after arrest

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - Arkansas coach Houston Nutt dismissed senior linebacker Jimarr Gallon from the team Thursday after university police charged the player with driving while intoxicated and driving the wrong way on a one-way street.

Gallon is the second Razorback linebacker disciplined this week. Nutt indefinitely suspended Sam Ojabuabu on Sunday after Fayetteville city police charged the sophomore with drunken driving the night of his 20th birthday.

Gallon, 23, of Chesterfield, Va., was arrested by university police and taken to the city jail about 2 a.m. Thursday, according to Fayetteville police Cpl. Julie Morman.

The Grangeville offensive line is tall and athletic, led by towering 6-6 tackle Chris Kaschmitter. Sharing the blocking burden with Kaschmitter will be 6-3 linemen Richard Turner and Joe Church, 5-11 guard Doug Holcomb and 5-10 center Josh Clark.

"We have the luxury of an experienced line," Cunningham said. "They're a big part of Mundt's success."

Wendell's offensive duo of quarterback Trent Davison and running back Cody Howerton will need to improve upon last week's numbers when Howerton was held under 100 rushing yards for the first time this season. While last week's offensive lull is a concern, Diehl feels that the running game will pick up against Grangeville (11-0).

"Not playing West Side will help," said Diehl. "I don't think Grangeville can keep up with our speed."

Diehl will look to run the ball early and often against the Grangeville defensive unit.

Grangeville's defense has a knack for creating turnovers and setting up their offense with great field position. With nine defensive starters returning from last year's state semi-finalist team, Cunningham has a talented and experienced squad.

the Bulldogs' leading tackler, while brothers Chris and Patrick Kaschmitter clog the running lanes at the defensive tackle positions.

"We don't do a lot of complicated things, we just line the kids up and let them play football," said Cunningham. "Our biggest challenge will be making sure we're lined up correctly against Wendell's multiple formations."

It will be imperative that Wendell avoids turnovers and wins the battle of field position against such a stalwart defensive unit. With both defenses capable of lock-down performances, time in the red zone will be at a premium.

"We need to hold on to the ball and just get a solid game out of our guys," said Diehl.

Both coaches will be gunning for their first state championship as a head coach.

This year's trip to Moscow is Diehl's first, while Cunningham is returning to the title game and "It's a dream match-up for two undefeated teams," said Cunningham. "I just hope history doesn't repeat itself."

The atmosphere in the Kibbie Dome could be electric with a large crowd expected.

"Big games are a lot of fun, win, lose, or draw," Diehl said. "But as it gets closer you start to feel the pressure. Our kids will be ready."

Rose Bowl seems a consolation prize

By Josh Dubow
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK - In the days before the BCS, when accolades and touchdowns meant more than computers and calculators, it would have been clear what Ohio State and Southern California are playing for this weekend: The Rose Bowl.

What was once the ultimate goal for teams from the Big Ten and Pac-10 is now a consolation prize - much to the dismay of some of the people involved.

"I really love the traditional matchups of the bowl games, and I would love to see us playing the Big Ten every year," USC coach Pete Carroll said. "I know I'm old-fashioned, but I love that matchup."

The Trojans can clinch the Pac-10 title with a win Saturday over rival UCLA, plus a Washington State loss to Washington. If the Gonzags win, USC can still win the conference by beating the Bruins and then Oregon State on Dec. 6.

In Ohio State, the path is much clearer. Win at Michigan and the Buckeyes are the outright champs in the Big Ten for the first time since 1984. Lese and the title goes to the Wolverines.

What's not clear is what bowls the Buckeyes and Trojans will play in if they win out.

A chance at the national championship in the Sugar Bowl likely awaits one of those two teams if they finish with one loss. The other would spend New Year's in Brazil.

Ohio State was second in this week's BCS standings, 0.19 points ahead of USC. But because USC has more room to improve in the computers and the strength of schedule, the Buckeyes could slip even with their biggest win of the season.

The picks:
 • No. 1 Oklahoma (minus 19) at Texas Tech
 Sooners wrap up regular season vs. high-flying Red Raiders ... OKLAHOMA 45-20.
 • UCLA (plus 2) at No. 2 Southern California
 Trojans look for fifth straight win in rivalry ... USC 41-10.
 • No. 3 LSU (minus 6.5) at No. 15 Mississippi

Southern California's Mike Williams runs for a touchdown Saturday in Tucson, Ariz. USC is No. 3 in the BCS standings, just behind Ohio State.

Rebels can clinch first SEC West title over ... LSU 27-17.
 • No. 4 Ohio State (plus 7) at No. 5 Michigan
 Buckeyes haven't won three straight vs. Wolverines in 40 years ... MICHIGAN 24-20.
 • Kentucky (plus 18.5) at No. 6 Georgia
 Bulldogs can clinch tie for first in SEC East with win ... GEORGIA 34-10.
 • No. 8 Washington State (no line) at Washington

Huddles have won five straight Apple Cups ... WASHINGTON STATE 27-10.
 • Vanderbilt (plus 21) at No. 9 Tennessee
 Vols need to win to keep BCS bowl hopes alive ... TENNESSEE 37-10.
 • No. 10 TCU (plus 2.5) at Southern Mississippi (Thursday)

Conference USA title and more is on the line ... SOUTHERN MISS 21-17.
 • Boston College (plus 14.5) at No. 12 Virginia Tech
 Teams meet for final time in Big East ... VIRGINIA TECH 31-20.

• Rutgers (plus 26.5) at No. 13 Miami
 Hurricanes still have chance at Big East title ... MIAMI 37-17.
 • No. 16 Purdue (minus 24.5) at Indiana
 Boilermakers look to keep Old Oaken Bucket ... PURDUE 37-10.

• No. 17 Iowa (plus 1.5) at Wisconsin
 Hawkeyes, Badgers playing for bowl positioning ... IOWA 24-21.
 • No. 18 Miami (Ohio) (minus 24) at Ohio
 RedHawks looking for 10th straight win ... MIAMI 37-17.

• Missouri (plus 14.5) at No. 19 Kansas State
 Wildcats can clinch date in Big 12 title game vs. Oklahoma with win ... KANSAS STATE 34-17.
 • No. 20 Boise State (minus 8.5) at Fresno State (Friday)

Broncos can clinch tie for first in WAC with win ... BOISE STATE 37-24.
 • No. 21 Pittsburgh (minus 15) at Temple
 Owls still searching for first Big East win ... PITT 37-14.

• No. 22 Bowling Green (minus 14.5) at Ball State
 Falcons need to win to keep MAC title hopes alive ... BOWLING GREEN 38-13.
 • No. 24 Oklahoma State (minus 27) at Baylor Cowboys can tie school record with nine regular season wins ... OKLAHOMA STATE 45-10.

• No. 25 West Virginia (minus 2) at Syracuse
 Mountaineers can stay tied for first in Big East with win ... WEST VIRGINIA 27-20.

sophomore also has the ability to move over and play the point in relief of Jason Petrimoulox (120 ppg, 5.6 rebounds per game, 40 assists per game).
 In an intimidating frontcourt of 6-7 Gonaga transfer Tyler Amaya (14.0 ppg, 6.2 rpg), 6-9 Gonaga transfer Dustin Villacipe (12.6 ppg, 6.2 rpg) and 6-7 Spencer Ford (12.5 ppg, 6.2 rpg) will challenge a CSI frontline that, for the most part, struggled against Snow.

Eagle big men Abdoulaye Ndiaye, Yusuf Baker, Jason McGriff and Mohamed Kone were held to a combined 16 points and 20 rebounds in the first loss to Snow.

"I think they were pretty tentative, having a little bit to do with it being the first game away from home," Arnold said. "The officiating was calling it real tight so they weren't being their normally aggressive selves."

"We have some size and it needs to be active," he continued. "Our 'bigs' really need to block shots and rebound and be bouncy and do things that bigs do. We didn't do that over the weekend."

Arnold did, however, receive a better performance Saturday from Baker and McGriff. Baker scored 10 points, grabbed six rebounds and blocked two shots in the 88-72 loss while McGriff notched 10 points and nabbed five boards.

"Yusuf came out and played a lot better the second night. He was blocking shots and scored for us and drew fouls," Arnold said.

"Both him and Griff played a lot better. The first night, they both struggled. I expect both those guys to have a real good weekend coming up."
 CSI will also need a more consistent effort from its backcourt.

David Sills scored 26 points and Clint Gulley 13 the first night against Snow before combining for 11 points on 2-of-15 shooting an evening later.

Sophomore guard-forward Dante Sawyer was the most consistent Eagle against Snow, hitting for 20 and 15 points in the two games. Sawyer is averaging a team-best 17.7 points per game.

Pond

(McMurtree) drove and I went over to help and I was like, 'Ooo, change time.' I took it and it was fun because the team was excited. It was a big momentum booster."

Surprisingly, defense has been the one area of Pond's game that needs the most fine-tuning. After playing power forward and center at Jerome, the 5-foot-11 freshman has had to make the adjustment to playing small forward in college.

"Defensive-wise, I have to guard a quicker post over even a three," Fond said. "I've got to work on that one. I'm not as quick."

The offensive aspect of the new position presents its own set of challenges as well.

"It's still difficult right now," revealed Pond, who said that she chose to play at the junior college level over an NCAA Division-I school for the chance to work on her ball handling at small forward. "I'm learning how to dribble the ball. I can dribble, but I have to become a better ball handler."

Regardless, Pond is still a potent offensive weapon. She is third on the team in scoring at 9.4 points per game. Still, she is able to use the low-post game that allowed her to be named the Times-News' Girls Player of the Year at Jerome while also demonstrating a deft outside shooting touch and passing abilities.

But perhaps Pond's greatest contribution has come on the glass. She's leading the team in rebounds at 6.8 per game, with 12 of her 34 boards coming on the offensive end.

"It seems like when a rebound comes off, she's somewhere near it," Rogers said. "I don't know if she has a knack for finding out where the rebounds come from or which side it's going to be missed from, but she always seems to be around."

Pond's all-around game will be needed when the Eagles (4-1 overall, 2-0 in conference) host North Idaho State (4-1, 2-0) tonight at the Dixie State (4-1, 2-0) tonight at the Saturday night at 6 in the CSI Gymnasium.
 The Eagles' two wins at Snow should give them the much-needed momentum for a series against Dixie that could play a large part in determining a conference champion and regional host down the road.

"If we get these two home games, it's going to send a message that we're here and ready to play and we want to go to nationals," Fond said.

CSI trailed by four points on Saturday at Snow with 3:28 remaining before rallying for the win.

"(Snow) probably outplayed us for 37 minutes," Rogers said. "We had a good stretch there when we were down four points late and were able to go on a (10-0) run to win by six."

Freshman guard Sidney Orndorff paced the Eagles with 23 points, including 6-of-6 free throw shooting in the second half.

CSI will have to contend with a Dixie State club that is coming off a pair of home wins over Colorado Northwestern Community College.

The Rebels are paced by the frontline duo of 5-11 sophomore forward Amanda Fillmore (15.0 ppg, 6.6 rpg) and 6-1 sophomore forward Aminara Soumare (10.2 ppg, 10.0 rpg).

The two teams' lone losses have come against a common opponent. Central Arizona defeated CSI 77-68 on Nov. 6 at the Dixie Tournament before beating DSC 47-43 a day later.

Crackdown on Internet crime nets 125 arrests

Nation/world in brief

WASHINGTON — Federal prosecutors have charged more than 125 suspected computer hackers, identity thieves and other cyberspace scammers in a nationwide crackdown on Internet crime, law enforcement officials said Thursday.

Those facing charges include run-of-the-mill counterfeiter and software pirates, as well as a man who illegally tried to sell Congressional Medals of Honor online and another man who hijacked the web site of the al-Jazeera Arabic language news network to display a patriotic U.S. message.

"The information superhighway should be a conduit for communication, information and commerce, not an expressway to crime," Attorney General John Ashcroft said. "It is a top federal law enforcement priority to stop crime on the Internet."

The investigation, dubbed "Operation Cyber Sweep," has uncovered about 125,000 victims with losses topping $100 million over the past several months. Seventy indictments to date have led to arrests or convictions of 125 people, with more expected as the probe continues.

"Cyberspace is not outer space," said FTC Chairman Timothy Muris. "It makes no difference where you break the law."

Ailing Egyptian President Mubarak cancels speech

CAIRO, Egypt — An ailing Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak canceled a speech on doctor's orders Thursday, a day after abruptly leaving the podium for more than 30 minutes in the middle of a nationally televised address to Parliament.

Hosni Mubarak

The cancellation came after Egypt's main newspapers, which are tightly controlled by the government, devoted several pages to reassuring statements on the 75-year-old president's health and photos of a vibrant Mubarak waving to applauding politicians.

An official in the president's office, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said it was extremely rare for the president not to attend the annual religious meeting Thursday night to mark God's revelation of the Quran, Islam's holy book, to the Prophet Muhammad, at which he usually awards prizes to people who have shown excellence in reciting the Quran.

Mubarak has no designated successor and is believed to be grooming his son to follow him. Mubarak has led Egypt since Muslim extremists assassinated his predecessor, Anwar Sadat, on Oct. 6, 1981. Mubarak was Sadat's vice president and holds near autocratic power, bolstered by his military.

Mubarak is widely regarded as a moderate voice in the volatile Arab-Israeli conflict and has stuck to a peace treaty Sadat signed with Israel despite hostility among many Egyptians and other Arabs toward Israel.

Palestinian factions agree to attend Cairo truce talks

JERUSALEM — Thirteen Palestinian factions, including major militant groups, have agreed to attend truce talks in Cairo next month, and Palestinian officials said Thursday they expect the conference to be successful.

President Edward Shwehade immediately ordered the newly elected parliament to convene Saturday, but the opposition vowed to try to block the session and began rallying its supporters to march on the capital, Thibisi.

The showdown between the president and his opponents has already become this country's deepest political crisis in years.

The Nov. 2 election was marred by widespread allegations of fraud and vote-rigging, drawing criticism from the United States and sparking a week of protests against the government.

The protests, initially about reversing the election results, soon encompassed popular anger at widespread unemployment, poverty and chaos, leading to calls for Shevardnadze's resignation. The election commission's delay in announcing results added to the anger.

Serial rapist hits tourists in Cancun

Knight Ridder News Service

CANCUN, Mexico — A serial rapist is stalking foreign tourists in the Mexican resort of Cancun, assaulting and robbing at least 13 women, most of them Americans, in the last six months, authorities say.

The rapist is believed to be a Mexican police officer. Authorities in Quintana Roo state say they are virtually certain of his identity and place of work but can't arrest him without more assistance from his victims to build a case.

"We know who the suspect is, and that's the important thing," said Miguel Angel Pech Gen, assistant attorney general for the state. "We're just waiting for victims to identify the suspect and we'll arrest him."

Cancun, known for its turquoise waters, white beaches and glitzy hotels, attracted at least 3 million American tourists last year, making it the top Mexican destination for Americans.

Details of the investigation were confirmed by the state prosecutor's office in recent days just as Mexico's peak tourist season was getting under way.

In Mexico, a criminal investigation is not possible without a formal complaint. While a few women have filed criminal complaints, they have then left Mexico and have not been available to investigators, officials said.

"Many of them do not want to file a criminal complaint, much less submit to a gynecological exam in Mexico," said Pech Gen.

The Cancun Hotel Association is offering to pay for victims' expenses, including hotel, airfare, local travel and meals, to encourage them to return to file a complaint.

The victims range in age from 20 to a 40. Of the 13 known victims, eight are American, and the others are Canadian, Australian or British.

The suspect is in his late 20s or early 30s and is described as a churly who approaches his victims in the early evening with small talk in fluent French and English.

Scholars find parts of Bible verse

JERUSALEM (AP) — A barely legible clue — the name "Simon" carved in Greek letters — beckoned from high up on the weather-beaten facade of an ancient burial monument.

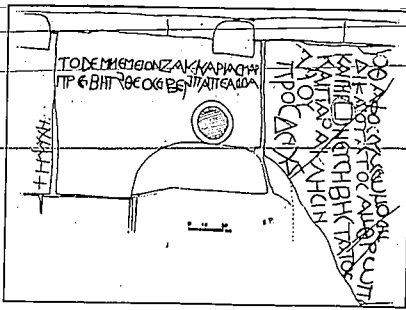

Their curiosity piqued, two Jerusalem scholars uncovered six previously invisible lines of inscription: a Gospel verse — Luke 2:25.

Archaeological finds confirming biblical narrative or referring to figures from the Bible are rare, and this is believed to be the first discovery of a New Testament verse carved onto an ancient Holy Land shrine, said inscriptions expert Emile Puech, who deciphered the writing.

A few Old Testament phrases have been found on monuments, and a passage from Paul's Letter to the Romans (3:13) is laid into a floor mosaic into the ancient Roman city of Caesarea.

Jim Strange, a New Testament scholar from the University of South Florida, said the ancient, apparently believed chiseling Scripture into monuments debased sacred words. The widespread use of Bible verses on shrines began only around 1,000 A.D., in Europe, said Strange, who was unconnected with the discovery.

The inscription declares the 60-foot-high monument is the tomb of Simon, a devout Jew who the Bible says cradled the infant

This drawing shows two Greek inscriptions on the facade of an ancient funeral monument in Jerusalem's Kidron Valley. The inscription is Luke 2:25 from the New Testament.

Jesus and recognized him as the Messiah.

It's actually unlikely Simon is buried there; the monument is one of several built for Jerusalem's aristocracy at the time of Jesus.

However, the inscription does back up what until now were scant references to a Byzantine-era belief that three biblical figures — Simon, Zachariah and James, the brother of Jesus — shared the same tomb.

Earlier this year, an inscription referring to Zachariah, who was John the Baptist's father, was found on the same facade. Puech and Joe Zias, a physical anthropologist, continued to study the monument. Applying a "squeeze" — a simple 19th-century technique of spreading a kind of paper made over a surface — they uncovered the Simon inscription. Now, they hope to complete the trio by finding writing referring to James.

ANTI-BUSH RALLY

Protesters gather in London's Trafalgar Square Thursday for a demonstration against the state visit to Britain by President Bush. The National Gallery is at left and the spire of St. Martin's in the Fields is at center.

Thousands protest visit to Britain

By Jane Wardell
Associated Press writer

LONDON - Tens of thousands of demonstrators marched through the heart of London on Thursday, toppling a 17-foot tall papier mache statue of President Bush to show their anger for the Iraq war and Prime Minister Tony Blair's support of the invasion.

As Bush and Blair vowed "not to flinch or give way or concede one inch" to terrorism in the wake of deadly bombings against British targets in Turkey, protesters said the close relationship between the two leaders made them deeply uneasy.

"We're angry that Bush appears to be leading our country," said marcher Ted Edwards. "Why Blair is allying himself to Bush I do not know."

“ You will never change the hearts and minds of terrorists by bombing them. ”

- Mischa Gorris,
London lawyer

Many in the crowd said Thursday's bombings in Istanbul, which killed more than two dozen people, strengthened their resolve to oppose U.S.-British policy in Iraq. "There have been more, and more bombings since the action in Iraq and more terrorism," said Mischa Gorris, a 37-year-old London lawyer. "You will never change the hearts and minds of terrorists by bombing them. This is what you will get."

Amid chants, the blast of foghorns and the beat of drums, protesters marched past the Houses of Parliament and through the heart of governmental London to Trafalgar Square.

The march took almost two hours to clear its starting point at the University of London. The Stop the War Coalition, which organized the march, said 200,000 people participated; the police estimate was 70,000.

As the work day ended, many people who had not marched joined a rally in Trafalgar Square, where the bronze-painted statue of Bush was toppled to wild applause - a mocking reference to the toppling of Saddam Hussein's statue after coalition troops took control of Baghdad on April 9.

The protests were generally orderly but as night fell police struggled to contain a few hundred demonstrators who broke away from the Trafalgar Square rally and darted down a nearby street. Officers linked arms surrounding the protesters and arrested several who refused to move off the road.

The protests did not appear to faze the president.

"Freedom is beautiful," Bush said Thursday, adding he was happy to be in a country where people were allowed to speak their minds freely. "All I know is that people in Baghdad weren't allowed to do this until recent history."

GIMME 'FIVE'

A soldier with the 82nd Airborne Division gives a high-five to an Iraqi boy at a coalition checkpoint Thursday in Fallujah, 40 miles west of Baghdad. Tension remains high in this Iraqi town as Fallujah has been the most dangerous place for U.S. troops since the overthrow of Saddam Hussein's regime in April.

Agency's new cargo rules aim at tightening border security

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Homeland Security Department announced new rules Thursday to better identify cargo shipped into and out of the country.

Electronic manifests identifying freight shipped by truck, rail, plane and ship must be sent to Customs and Border Protection officials before the goods reach the border.

Customs now gets some advance information on cargo carried by plane, rail and truck. The information, though, is provided voluntarily and isn't always complete. Cargo declarations no longer will be allowed to arrive on paper with a shipment.

Officials said the electronic information will be compared with law enforcement and commercial databases to target potentially dangerous shipments that need to be inspected.

Congress ordered the changes last year because of fears that terrorists could smuggle chemical, biological or nuclear weapons into the country. Customs officials say they can identify high-risk cargo by reviewing shipment data against the databases and in light of strategic intelligence.

Only a tiny percentage of air, rail and truck cargo is currently inspected.

The rules are similar to those that require ocean carriers to provide detailed information on the contents of containers destined for the United States 24 hours before they are loaded onto ships at foreign ports. Ocean carrier companies will now have to provide this information electronically.

Suicide bomber strikes U.S.-allied party in Iraq

KIRKUK, Iraq (AP) - A suicide truck bomb exploded at the office of a U.S.-allied Kurdish political party in this northern oil center Thursday, killing four bystanders and wounding about 30 - including children.

It was the second car-bombing in as many days against Iraqis cooperating with the U.S.-led occupation. Elsewhere, a pro-U.S. politician was assassinated in the southern city of Basra, his party said Thursday.

Jalal Johar, an official of the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan, said the death toll rose to five Thursday night with the death of one of the injured, a boy about 7 years old. The powerful explosion at about 10:30 a.m. shattered windows and damaged doors at the two-story yellow and green PUK building by radio and television stations.

Such attacks in the Kurdish-controlled areas are less frequent than in Baghdad or other parts of central and western Iraq dominated by Sunni Muslim Arabs. On Sept. 10, a suicide bomber blew up his vehicle near a U.S. intelligence compound in the northern city of Irbil, killing three people and seriously wounding four American intelligence officers.

"We think that Islamic terrorist groups and remnants of the Saddam (Hussein) regime are behind the attack," Johar said of the Thursday attack. "They are coordinating between them."

The PUK is a group that supports American efforts in Iraq. Party chief Jalal Talabani is the current head of the U.S.-installed Iraqi Governing Council.

No group claimed responsibility for the attack, but suspicion fell on Ansar al-Islam, a small, al-Qaida-linked Kurdish extremist group active in the northeastern area of Iraq that borders Iran. Kurdish officials also said other Islamic militants as well as Saddam loyalists may have been behind the blast.

Late Wednesday, a car bomb exploded outside the home of Sheikh Amer Ali Suleiman, a tribal leader in Ramadi, about 60 miles west of Baghdad. Hospital workers said Thursday that two people were killed.

Suleiman is a leader of the Duleim tribe, one of the largest Sunni Muslim tribes in Iraq. He is a member of the city council and close to the Americans. Ramadi is part of the "Sunni Triangle," where anti-U.S. attacks are concentrated.

Rebels repeatedly have attacked police stations and Iraqis perceived to be cooperating with the occupation.

In Basra, the Assyrian Democratic Movement said its representative on the municipal council, Sargoun Nanou Murado, was abducted Tuesday on his way to work.

His body was found Wednesday, a statement said.

Opposition senators expect close vote on energy measure

Knight Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON - Senate opponents of a wide-ranging energy bill said Thursday that they were one vote shy of having enough votes to defeat the Republican-crafted measure, which President Bush has said he wants to sign.

The Senate will vote today on a motion to shut off debate; the outcome will show whether opponents have a chance to prevent the bill from passing. Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., the measure's primary architect, said votes were still in play but that he was confident the bill would pass.

The intense jockeying over the measure arose in part because opponents charge that it's loaded with expensive pork-barrel projects and that it would harm the environment and distort fuel markets by mandating the increased use of ethanol, a corn-based gasoline substitute. Opponents say the legislation would increase U.S. fuel supplies.

The ethanol provisions alone could cost up to $30 billion, said

Bill OKs Idaho reactor

The energy bill includes provisions for a new reactor project at the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory. The $27.3 billion water and energy appropriation for the spending year that began Oct. 1 includes $15 million for the initial design work on a new reactor technology that will eventually cost $1.1 billion to develop over the next six years. Several government and environmental watchdog groups have objected, questioning the economic viability, safety and security of the project.

-The Associated Press

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz. With so many "pork" projects to criticize, McCain said he felt like "a mosquito in a nudist colony."

The bill also would give a $95 million tax credit for "thermal pollution" that would benefit only two companies, ConAgra Foods and Changing World Technologies, McCain said.

Poll: Iraq plans worry Americans

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - Americans of every stripe are worried that the U.S. occupation of Iraq could turn into a quagmire, and most are unconvinced that President Bush has a clear plan to handle the problem, a Los Angeles Times Poll has found.

Despite their misgivings, however, a narrow majority of respondents said they still trust Bush to make the right decisions on Iraq, and a solid majority gave him high marks for his conduct of the war on terrorism.

The Times Poll's findings echoed those of other recent surveys that have found a rapid decline in public support for the war.

In April, as U.S. forces swept into Iraq, the Times Poll found that 77 percent of the public said they supported the decision to go to war. This week, when asked whether it had been worth going to war, only 48 percent said yes; 43 percent said no.

The margin of sampling error is plus or minus 3 percentage points.

BRIEFLY IN MONEY

S. Idaho woman takes lead of state group

TWIN FALLS - Jan Rogers, Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization's executive director, was named president of the Idaho Economic Development Association.

Rogers replaces Ray Burstedt of Bannock Development, IEDA's president for the past two years. Rogers' two-year term ends December 2005. IEDA, established in 2000, is a trade association of economic development professionals and affiliated entities, who aim to enhance economic development in Idaho, influence public policy and promote business growth in the state.

Jan Rogers

"In just three short years of operations, we have accomplished much to reach our goals and mission as an association. The formative years we have now completed will provide a foundation upon which this association can drive the economy of this great state," Burstedt said in a statement.

Under the leadership of Rogers and IEDA's marketing committee, IEDA secured a $150,000 marketing grant from Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory operator Bechtel BWXT Idaho LLC.

"This important grant will allow economic directors in Idaho to create a center of gravity to get our image as well as life and business advantages to a national and world audience," Rogers said. "As the national economy stabilizes, Idaho will be well positioned to take advantage of the opportunities for new business development both in business attraction and expansion of our existing business base."

Qwest won't challenge phone number transfers

DENVER - Qwest Communications International Inc. has decided not to challenge federal rules allowing people to transfer their home phone numbers to a cell phone.

The Federal Communications Commission approved the rule last week.

The FCC also will let people transfer their wireless phone numbers to land lines, though rules limit who will be eligible. People also will be able to switch wireless companies without changing their numbers.

Qwest will comply with the FCC rules, even though it believes they are a disservice to customers, said Steve Davis, Qwest senior vice president of public policy.

The changes take effect Nov. 24 for customers in the 100 largest metropolitan areas and nationwide March 24. The rules could persuade some customers to go completely wireless, if they can use their land line numbers as their cell phone numbers.

Traditional phone companies have argued that the FCC rules do not make it as easy for them to lure wireless phone users as it is for cell phone companies to take away their customers.

For instance, a phone customer can unplug a corded phone and transfer the number to a cell phone if the wireless company serves the same area.

But a customer wishing to transfer a cell phone number to a landline can only do so if the first three digits of the number correspond to the same "rate center" as the one in which the house or business is located.

Food distribution firm plots Post Falls site

POST FALLS - Food-service giant Sysco Corp. says it has signed a contract to buy land for a 140,000-square-foot distribution center in the Idaho Panhandle.

The Houston-based company will build office space, a docking area, retail and dry storage space. The $25 million center will likely employ between 150 and 200 people, said John Palizza, Sysco assistant treasurer.

The operation will distribute meat, produce and dairy products to customers in Spokane, Yakima, Wash., and northern Idaho.

"Everything you need to run a restaurant, you can get from Sysco," Palizza said.

The Post Falls plant could be operational in spring 2005.

Gap's earnings nearly double

By Virginia S. Hutchins
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A number of specialty apparel and footwear retailers with Twin Falls stores announced quarterly financial results this week.

Among the highlights:

Gap Inc.

San Francisco-based Gap Inc. on Thursday said earnings for the third quarter, which ended Nov. 1, rose 34 percent over last year to $263 million, driven by faster sales and improved margins.

QUARTERLY REPORTS
Diluted earnings per share rose to 28 cents from the year-ago 15 cents. Net income grew to $263 million from $135 million. The quarter's net sales increased 8 percent to $3.9 billion, while comparable-store sales were up 6 percent.

"We delivered a very solid performance for third quarter supported by better product assortments and more effective marketing to core customer segments, and a strong operational focus on flowing top-line gains through to bottom-line earnings growth," said Gap's president and chief executive, Paul Pressler.

At the company's Old Navy chain, comparable-store sales rose 6 percent from the year-ago third quarter, and net sales grew to $1.6 billion from $1.5 billion.

The corporate parent's year-to-date sales rose 12 percent, while comparable-store sales increased 9 percent.

Year-to-date earnings were $674 million, compared with $229 million last year.

Limited Brands

Ohio-based Limited Brands, the operator of Victoria's Secret and Bath & Body Works, reported a sharp rise in third-quarter earnings, mainly because of the sale of its remaining interest in Alliance Data Systems Corp.

The specialty retailer earned $129.7 million, or 25 cents a share in the quarter ended Nov. 1, compared with earnings of $15.8 million, or 3 cents a share, a year ago.

Limited Brands said the results include a gain of 16 cents a share

Smith takes lead at Hailey chamber

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY - A man who has conducted his travel business from Mount Everest to the Negev Desert now aims to put Hailey on the map.

He replaces Natalie Turner, who was shot and killed by police last August in an altercation with her ex-husband over the custody of their two children.

"It's always been a dream of mine to live here because of the quality of life - there's not anything like this area," said Smith, who has been coming to Sun Valley to ski since he was a child. "I've been to a lot of tourist places around the world where the locals seem burnt out, but I've never noticed that here. People are genuinely friendly."

It was Smith's long list of credentials that prompted chamber board members to hire him, said Hailey businessman Jeff Bertz. A high school senior in Oregon, Smith came from Astland, where he received the Lifetime Achievement Award from that town's chamber of commerce just before his move.

Smith formed Jits own travel company and works with airports, hotels and others to create vacation ski packages to Europe and trekking vacations in Southeast Asia.

He founded the Ashland Visitor and Convention Bureau and was its president. He also started the Southern Oregon Reservation Center and organized familiarization trips for travel professionals to Oregon.

Smith relishes the idea of living in Hailey, which has only 7,000 people compared with Ashland's 19,500.

"I'll reside over a city of 600 some businesses that is growing faster than the ink can dry on Census counts. And a chamber that is making the transition from an organization primarily concerned with strictly budget, lights and organizing Springfield celebrations to one that is about to cut the ribbon on a new shopping center."

"When I moved here 40 years ago, this was a small community where everyone knew everyone. Now we've turned the corner," said Joan Davies, who heads up the College of Southern Idaho campus in Blaine County. "We need someone who can keep us as a community, even as he or she works to bring solid economic development to town."

Smith also will be charged indirectly with helping to restore the psyche of a town that has gone through several shocks lately, including a double murder in nearby Bellevue, an alleged rape and the death of Turner, a well-liked young woman whom some said had the potential to do great things with the chamber.

Smith said he's here to "put the chamber back together," Davies agreed.

"We've had our moment of compassion. Now it's time to go forward," she said. "With the criteria I see in his background, I feel real optimistic that he can do what needs to be done."

One of Smith's first acts as executive director was to head to the top of Rotauran, a tiny ski hill

Wireless pagers become lifeline for deaf

Devices make it easier to communicate

The Associated Press

When Cary Barbin's car broke down at 2 a.m. on a remote road in New Jersey, pulling out a cell phone and calling the auto club wasn't an option. Like his parents, grandparents and millions of other Americans, he's deaf.

But Barbin wasn't helpless. He took out his BlackBerry wireless pager and typed an e-mail to a hearing friend, who called the tow truck.

Barbin, 35, researches technologies for the deaf at Gallaudet University, a Washington-based school for the deaf and hard of hearing, but he didn't have an e-mail pager just because he's a techie.

Cell phone-size messaging gadgets like the BlackBerry and the T-Mobile Sidekick have caught on quickly with the deaf since being introduced a few years ago, giving them freedom to move around and communicate like never before.

"I talk to my friends almost everyday with the pager. It is really great!" said Bryan Blaisdell, a deaf 15-year-old in Pascoag, R.I. He uses his Sidekick to message his parents for rides, and can stay in touch with them when he's out, things that would have been hard or impossible a few years ago.

The pagers have become even more important to the deaf than cell phones are for the hearing, since the deaf can't use regular phones or pay phones.

"Before, you were set to a strict plan that was set in advance. There was no way to change the plan if somebody was running late," said Joe Karp, director of marketing at Wynd Communications, one of a couple of companies that specialize in selling wireless services to the deaf.

Wynd, which is based in San Luis Obispo, Calif., started out selling e-mail pagers to corporate travelers. But in 1997, the company got an e-mail from a deaf lawyer, who pointed out that the pagers were great for the deaf.

"We began to explore the opportunity, and found that there was a decent-size market - 28 million deaf or hard of hearing in the U.S.," Karp said.

This month, Wynd introduced a service that makes its pagers more useful in communicating with the hearing. Users can now send text messages to human operators, who call a hearing recipient on the phone and read the message. The recipient can then tell the operator to send a message back to the deaf person's pager.

The human operator is part of a state-mandated relay service designed for older equipment. Please see PAGERS, Page E3

M.H. King's constructs new building in Buhl

By Mary Lou Potts
Times-News correspondent

BUHL - The company hates to leave an empty store downtown and has heard complaints from senior citizens who walk to the store, but M.H. King's in Buhl is moving to a new building at the east end of town.

"We feel like we can better serve the community by moving to a larger location," said store manager Mark Jeske. "We will manage the new store when it opens in spring 2004."

The new structure is 16,234 square feet with a project cost of $400,000.

According to executive Tom King, the business plans to expand its lines of merchandise such as toys, hardware and seasonal products as well as build a bigger garden shop.

An important improvement will be a larger parking area, King said.

Because King's owns the downtown building it occupies now, it is trying to rent or lease the building so it doesn't stay vacant, King said.

Workers from Mountain States Steel Erectors of Bigham City, Utah, prepare to install girders that will support the storefront frame of the new M.H. King's store being constructed at U.S. Highway 30 at the east end of Buhl.

"With the national economy at a low and businesses trying to recover, I think building a new store in Buhl is a sign that we have faith in the community," King said.

According to Jeske, the store's current staff of 12-14 people will handle the duties of the move to the new store, but there may be a need for more hires later.

The construction project is under the supervision of project manager Mark Davis, employed by King's.

"All the side jobs are subcontracted to other companies, but we try to use local businesses when we can," Davis said.

The new store's freight delivery will be through several streets, including Williams Street and unload in the rear of the store.

West End Senior Center member Reta Conrad still drives and she lives in the area of the new store, so the King's relocation will be a convenience for her. But the store will be missed downtown by seniors who frequently walk to shop, she said.

"On the other hand, seniors who drive might have an easier time with the new King's location. "It will be a parking advantage," said Lila Whaley, who drives.

Ex-CEO answers suit, says competition brought down Kmart

Knight Ridder News Service

DETROIT - Kmart Corp.'s downturn was caused by fierce competition, Sept. 11 and a foul economy, not poor management and free-spending executives, an attorney for the Troy, Mich., retailer's former chief executive officer and chairman said.

Chuck Conway's Chicago attorney, Scott Lassar, issued the statement this week a day after a civil lawsuit was filed in Pontiac, Mich., blaming Conway and his executive team for the retailer's Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

"As CEO and chairman of Kmart, Chuck Conway poured his heart and soul into trying to turn around the giant retailer," Lassar wrote. "Although he made significant improvements, the magnitude of the effort, the tragic events of September 11th, the downturn in the economy and fierce competition in the retailing industry defeated his efforts."

The lawsuit, filed by the Kmart

Creditor Trust in Oakland County Circuit Court, said the executives cost the company more than $1 billion before the January 2002 bankruptcy filing. Kmart Holding Corp. emerged from bankruptcy May 6 with a new management team and board of directors, 600 fewer stores and 67,000 fewer employees.

Kmart operates a store in Twin Falls but closed one in Burley.

The lawsuit blames Conway and his team for strategic blunders in running the century-old retailer and a pattern of "corporate waste at a time when, to say the least, Kmart could ill afford it."

The discount chain skidded into bankruptcy after lagging sales, failed promotions and a massive $850 million inventory buildup created a cash crunch.

And just two months before Conway and his team took $28.8 million in loans in late 2001, managers were stalling vendor payments to avert a cash crisis.

Meanwhile, certain executives were charging Kmart for personal expenses, the suit contends. For example, Conway billed $106,191 for improvements to his home. He had three company-issued vehicles and used corporate jets for personal travel, the lawsuit said.

"Mr. Conway did not engage in self-dealing," Lassar said. "Mr. Conway looks forward to rebutting the accusations."

The lawsuit also targets Mark Schwartz, former president, four other executives, two former Kmart employees and a former PricewaterhouseCoopers, Kmart's accounting firm from 1993 until last month.

None of the executives named in the suit has been accused of criminal wrongdoing, but a federal investigation has been ongoing. Federal charges against two lower-level executives were dismissed Nov. 7.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Bobby Wolff

Theory can leave questions unanswered, but practice has to come up with something.

Bridge is not simply an academic exercise. Sometimes the best plan in abstract may not be the best in practical maneuver.

WEST: ♠ 9 7 4, ♥ 8 7 4, ♦ 7 6 3, ♣ 8 5. EAST: ♠ 10 8, ♥ J 10 3, ♦ 10 5 2, ♣ A Q 3 6 4.

What is the best way to bring home 12 tricks against a neutral hand? Well, you have 11 tricks, and only the clubs offer a real hope for bringing in a 12th trick.

Since you do not have the club eight, cashing the ace and king and playing a third club means that almost any time the suit splits 4-2, you will lose two tricks.

No, the best way to tackle the deal is to lead the 10 from dummy. This covers with the jack, and you win the ace and then lead the club toward the nine.

South holds: ♠ 10 8, ♥ J 10 3, ♦ 10 5 2, ♣ Q 3 6 4. South West North East: 2♥ Pass 6NT All pass.

This line has nearly a two-thirds chance of success, since it makes the contract whenever East has a doubleton honor or club honors, or whenever clubs split 3-3.

ANSWER: Raise to three spades. Your partner has shown a hand too good to overcall that range for an overall three days goes up to 16-17 points.
