Kerry wins Iowa caucuses

Knight Ridder News Service

DES MOINES, Iowa - Sen. John Kerry of Massachusetts won Iowa's presidential caucus Monday night, a surprising come-from-behind victory that dramatically shook up the contest for the Democratic presidential nomination in the first time voters got to speak.

Sen. John Edwards of North Carolina took second place, another come-from-behind finish from a man who had been lagging in the back in the pack until recent days.

The two candidates who had led the polls in Iowa for months, former Gov. Howard Dean of Vermont and Missouri Rep. Dick Gephardt, faded as Iowa Democrats cast the first real votes of the nominating season.

Dean came in a distant third. Gephardt finished a disappoint-

Idaho Democrats will help determine Bush challenger

By Brandon Flala

TWIN FALLS - Magic Valley Democrats say they hope the highly contested Democratic presidential nomination will energize Idaho voters and convince them to vote Democratic.

But even if Idaho again votes for President Bush, as expected, in November's general election, Democrats in the state will help determine who will challenge him.

Idaho Democrats are preparing to pick a presidential nominee Feb. 24 in county caucuses. "There is a definitive change in the momentum for Democrats, and with the right presidential candidate I expect to see it translate into more votes," said state Senate Minority Leader Clint Stennett, D-Ketchum.

Democrats are required by national party rules to choose their nominating delegates by caucus. Republicans have no county caucuses in Idaho, instead using a May primary.

Stennett said the three presidential candidates topping the Monday Iowa caucuses - Gov. Howard Dean of Vermont, U.S. Sen. John Edwards of North Carolina, and U.S. Sen. John Kerry of Massachusetts - will

THE POWER OF GAS

COURTNEY/THE TIMES-NEWS

Miller Lilia Torres hooks up the milking machines to cows at the Whitesides Dairy north of Rupert Monday. The dairy will likely be the first in Idaho to install an anaerobic digester.

Digester partners move ahead with plans

By Shelley Ridenour
Times-News writer

RUPERT - Local dairymen Steve Brent and Brandon Whitesides will partner with an Idaho Falls-based engineering company to build and operate the first anaerobic manure digester in Idaho at their dairy 11 miles northeast of Rupert.

Final details were hammered out late last week, and Intrepid Technology and Resources Monday announced its partners in the planned anaerobic digester project in Minidoka County.

Groundbreaking for the $1 million construction project at the Whitesides Dairy is planned for March 30, if weather allows, Intrepid Vice President Jake

Dairymen's hopes - B1

Dustin said. Phase one of the construction project, which is all that's planned right now, is expected to take four months to complete.

Anaerobic digesters are viewed as a way to deal with problems resulting from the large volumes of manure produced by south-central Idaho's dairy industry.

The Whitesides Dairy project initially will involve two tanks, Dustin said. Plans call for seven tanks eventually at the dairy, once the process is proven, as money is available for the additional tanks and as markets to sell the end product of methane gas are firmed up.

That's the "real beauty" of the approach planned by Intrepid, Dustin said. "It allows us to start the process and allows the dairyman to phase in as he can afford to."

Methane generated from one of the first two tanks will be dedicated to the dairy.

Methane from the second tank will be used by Intrepid personnel, Dustin said. It will be used as a demonstration platform for the company to compress and package methane for sale to various customers.

"There are no plans to convert the methane into electricity, as is commonly done with methane created from digesters, Dustin said. Rather, Intrepid personnel are looking at three other options. One is to clean the gas so it could be fed directly into a gas pipeline with other natural gas. Methane contains too much carbon dioxide to be considered "pipeline quality," he said. A second option is to put the methane gas into cylinders and sell it, much like propane is now sold. A third option is to convert the methane into methanol, which is used in biodiesel.

The end product is Intrepid's interest, he said. The company doesn't want to get in the business of building digesters.

"Our purpose is package that gas in a way that's highly marketable. Everybody else has been focused on turning the gas into

Lincoln districts look at sharing functions

By Kath Kowalaki
Times-News writer

RICHFIELD - Sharing administration among the three Lincoln County school districts could require some restructuring, but board members from the three districts agreed to do more research and meet again.

The three boards held a special work session Monday to discuss the feasibility of having the Richfield, Shoshone and Dietrich school districts run by one superintendent and possibly share other administrative positions. A major concern was whether the districts would lose state funding if they consolidate the superintendents - and if they save money, whether they could spend it in other areas. Board members agreed to check with state officials to find out what would happen.

Mike Cenarrusa, a Richfield School Board member, said he did not support complete consolidation of the districts.

"Richfield wants to keep Richfield in Richfield," Cenarrusa said.

Max Excell, Shoshone superintendent, expressed doubt that many positions such as special education and Title 1 directors could be consolidated, because those people also teach full time during the day in his district.

The schools are already cooperating to share a T-1 phone line for high-speed Internet access. Shoshone pays half the bill, and the other districts split the rest, Excell said.

Brenda Farnworth, Richfield School Board chairman, said the way to consolidate superintendents is to redistribute some of their duties to lower-paid positions.

Hundreds of millions crisscross China

The Lunar New Year holiday approaches and triggers mass movement

The Associated Press

BEIJING - They're crowding planes, trains and buses, unfazed by SARS and price gougers. As the Lunar New Year arrives, hundreds of millions of Chinese are bound for home or holiday - a mass movement of humanity that dwarfs the Muslim hajj.

Even in a country that contains more people than any other, the numbers are startling: The government estimates some 1.89 billion journeys will be made during the Spring Festival travel season, all pegged to Thursday, the start of the new year.

Of that number, an estimated 295 million Chinese, many of them students and migrant workers, will be driving - as if the entire population of the United States decided to hit the road at the same time.

"It's our country's biggest holiday, and everyone is traveling more because the economy is good," said Tong Yin, 21, a student. As she waited for her train at Beijing's Railroad Station, thousands of travelers laden with luggage and plastic sacks scurried around her.

Fears that a resurgence of severe acute respiratory syndrome might cast a pall over the beginning of the year of the monkey are proving unfounded. Only three cases of SARS have been confirmed this season, and the disease does not appear to be spreading.

Still, it's this very scenario - high-speed modern travel - that launched the virus around the planet last year, and China is doing its utmost to be, and appear, ready.

On Saturday, Health Minister and Vice Premier Wu Yi urged transportation authorities to enforce anti-SARS efforts. And a ministry spokesman this Spring Festival promise: "No effort should be spared in guarding.

"Dean should also do well, Stennett said. "He visited Idaho four times last year." Edwards could also pick up votes after speaking at the annual Frank Churchill Banquet Feb. 21 in Boise, Stennett said. Locally, Twin Falls County Democratic Central Committee Chairman Harry Phillips said Dean has the best organization. "Dean has shown a lot of initiative," he said. "Kerry has been to Idaho, but he has mostly stayed in Kerchum." Bob Parrish, Twin Falls County Democratic Central Committee secretary, said the only locally active Democratic group is campaigning for Dean. "There's a lot of momentum for Dean," said Gary Bary, central committeeman. Parrish said the Twin Falls County central committee will select 12 delegates and three alternates Feb. 24. Local delegates will then attend the state Democratic Convention June 17-19 in Pocatello. Everyone attending the county caucus will vote for a presiden-

Continued from A1. Board members also discussed the possibility of creating a single school board. Exell said a consolidation study was done about seven years ago for Richfield and Shoshone, but consolidation was rejected for many reasons, including the fact that Shoshone would have more representation on the board and control over the other school. A successful board configuration for three districts could give three members to Shoshone and two each to Richfield and Dietrich, so that no group could outvote the other. Farwnorth led the board in planning questions to research before they reconvene. Research items included funding, payroll systems, transportation, part-time teachers and public input. Although formal public comment was not allowed at the meeting, about a dozen people came. Board members invited Temperature checks are already in place in major airports, and the government has barred anyone with a fever higher than 100.5 from boarding a train. China's airline authority is also requiring that people flying from Guangzhou, Guangdong's capital and the focus of the SARS investigation, disembark in separate areas for temperature checks. "The suspected SARS cases in Guangzhou affected the business," said an employee from the China International Travel Agency in Beijing who would give only her family name, Xiao. "Travelers were worried." At its peak last year, the flu-like disease - which killed 77 people worldwide and infected more than 8,000 - brought travel in China to a halt. SARS subsided in June, but health authorities have been on guard for its re-emergence with the cold weather. But disease isn't the only potential peril amid the hubbub. More than 100 people died in accidents in the past week as hundreds of thousands of migrant workers left east coast industrial centers for their inland homes. Overcrowding, lane-hogging and dangerous passing have been the main culprits.

Other products on market clean up audio

Q. Regarding your recent column on the Microsoft Plus Digital Media add-on to record music and get rid of noise like scratches, pops, clicks, etc., I checked the Web site at Microsoft (www.microsoft.com/mediacenter) and it seems like that software is only for Windows XP. I have Windows 2000 Professional.

A. I just kind of wished you had mentioned that in the column to save me getting interested and wasting time going to the Microsoft Web site. I think some of the CD-burning software (Nero, Roxio) might have the audio editing/cleanup software. Any ideas?

—David Strom

A. This kind of confusion occurs as Microsoft works behind the scenes making software exclusively for XP to force upgrades on a world it already dominates. In this case the title itself is Microsoft Plus for Windows XP Digital Media Edition, but just because it has XP in the name doesn't let me or Microsoft off the hook for causing you inconvenience. —M.S. Sorry.

More important, let's talk about alternatives to the roughly $40 one pays for the $20 Plus for Windows XP and the required $20 Digital Media Plug-in. Let's start with the superb Roxio Easy CD and DVD Creator 6.0 that costs $80, after a $20 mail-in rebate, at www.roxio.com and usually less at stores. This software offers an absolutely first-rate module that lets users plug the line out from a stereo player (LP turntable, cassette, etc.) into the line in on a PC sound card and transfer analog recordings into digital files that can be burned onto CDs. It also includes a sound editing module to remove pops, hisses and crackles and equalizes sound to simulate such environments as a studio, a theater or a concert hall.

This software runs on Windows 98 and Windows 2000 as well as XP and is an expanded version of the Easy CD Creator software from Roxio, bundled with a great many Windows 98 and Windows 2000 machines but usually not with XP.

I must caution that my own tests and reviews by other computer writers found that Roxio 6.0 could cause problems if loaded on machines that also have other CD recording software (such as Nero) onboard.

Nero Ultra Edition 5, the other major product for CD burning on Windows 98/2000/XP, also handles this analog-music recording function, admirably but costs $100 instead of Roxio's rebated $80.

Both of these packages go far beyond just recording analog music and can handle everything from ripping songs from store-bought CDs all the way up to creating, editing and burning DVDs.

There is a bare-bones product called Music CD Recorder 3.0 that I can recommend from the low-cost, high-quality software house of Data Becker Corp. (www.databecker.com) that handles only the rudimentary tasks of recording analog music and tweaking sound files to fix hisses and such.

This down-and-dirty software works great but lacks the wonderful range of sound-fixing features included in Roxio and Nero.

A custom home near Park City, Utah, features many windows that double as speakers, computer monitors and television sets.

High-tech windows offer a glimpse into the future

The Associated Press

PARK CITY, Utah — It looks like any of the other stately houses here — nestled in the snowcapped hills, up narrow winding roads and past a slow wooden gate. At 6,000 square feet, it's a little smaller than most in the neighborhood.

But what makes the two-story home different than any house in the world is what's inside. In a word, it's the windows. They turn from clear to opaque white with the push of a button. Many double as speakers, computer monitors and television sets.

Not all of them, of course, are fashioned to handle such elaborate tasks. But wide as the windows lack in technological ability is more than compensated for in abundance.

The home is full of them. On the roof, in-between rooms and standing in for countless feet of Sheetrock as an integral part of the building's structure. They are stacked on top of one another in bathrooms, bedrooms and in 30-foot-high combinations at the front of the house.

Some rooms can draw in sunlight from all four walls. The house's entire span is visible, if one wants it to be, from one end to the other at almost any vantage point. As long as there's sunlight, it will be available in almost every room of the house.

An agreement between Bayport, Minn.-based Anderson Windows and Time-Warner Corp. has produced a concept car, of sorts, for houses.

The home is a showcase Anderson will use for building company clients.

The space-age windows are fitted with a microfiber LCD screen, which can white them out or display light from a television projector. The computer monitor is fully integrated into the window, allowing it to receive and display information without projection. It will even be receptive to touch screen operation.

"I knew the technology was available, but it's so expensive that the fact that someone's actually applying it is what's amazing," said Jim Benney, executive director of the National Fenestration Rating Council.

The house was built in about a year. But it's not quite done.

The company is still working out the bugs. On an early visit, the window television wasn't working.

Cherry pickers squeezed up to both sides of the house and gloved hands hung roof underhangs, pounded nails and shoveled snow.

The house itself was designed not from floor plans, but from "wall plans," said architect Michael James Plautz. The idea was to get away from putting up walls and poking holes in them for windows and instead build an entire house around the windows themselves.

It's a dubious prospect, perhaps, from a window company.

Anderson concedes it might not be the "home of the future."

But the point, they say, is what it suggests could be done with residential architecture to open homes up, while at the same time maintaining privacy.

"We wanted to take the traditional house, unwrap it like a piece of origami, and then wrap it back up again," Plautz said.

It doesn't even have to be in the mountains, or in a million-dollar house, or with smart windows that can browse the Internet to put that idea to work, Plautz said.

Standard windows could be placed higher in houses to provide a view of a tree, a ski lift or a skyline — and still provide the owner privacy, he said.

Still, the television, radio and Internet windows could make their way into homes some day.

Right now, they're not available, and Anderson hasn't even put a price on them yet. For now, they're holding on to the idea.

Shiites march for direct elections

By Anthony Shadid
The Washington Post

BAGHDAD, Iraq — In the largest protest since the occupation of Iraq began 10 months ago, tens of thousands of Shiite Muslims marched through Baghdad on Monday demanding that U.S. authorities organize direct elections to choose a new government.

The demonstration sent a clear signal — in numbers and message — that the demands of Iraq's emboldened Shiite majority could not be ignored by U.S. officials, who met Monday with Secretary General Kofi Annan and other U.N. leaders in New York to discuss a greater U.N. role in a plan to transfer power to Iraqis by the end of June.

Under the plan unveiled in November, the U.S. administration wants to hold 18 regional caucuses that would choose a provisional legislature. That legislature would take power by June 30, formally ending the U.S. occupation. But the country's leading Shiite Muslim cleric, Grand Ayatollah Ali Sistani, has insisted that elections — a process U.S. officials say is impossible to organize quickly and unpredictably in its outcome.

"The sons of the Iraqi people want a political system based on direct elections and a constitution that ensures justice and equality for everyone," Hashem Awadi, a representative of Sistani, told the crowd at one of Baghdad's main universities.

Iraqis lie down in the street in Baghdad carrying an Iraqi flag and portraits of Grand Ayatollah Ali al-Hussein al-Sistani and other Shiite clerics Monday. Tens of thousands marched peacefully to demand an elected government as U.S. and Iraqi officials prepared to seek the U.N. secretary-general's endorsement of U.S. plans for transferring power in Iraq.

The protest, which followed a large demonstration in the southern city of Basra last week, was the most visible display of the Shiites' strength, which may pose the greatest challenge to U.S. plans.

Ten months after the fall of president Saddam Hussein, U.S. officials are struggling to cope with a persistent guerrilla campaign in areas dominated by Iraq's Sunni Muslims, a minority that gave Hussein most of his support.

Although Hussein was captured in December, the insurgency continues to demonstrate its grim potency — on Sunday, a suicide bombing at the headquarters of the U.S. occupation killed at least 24 people.

Iraq seeks quick response from U.N. on election study

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.S. and Iraqi officials asked the United Nations on Monday to send a team to study the possibility of holding elections in Iraq, a key issue in Washington's dispute with a leading Shiite cleric over plans for creating a transitional government by July 1.

Secretary-General Kofi Annan said he wanted more details on the mission, but he acknowledged the issue was urgent and said he hoped for a speedy decision.

He said he expects the United Nations to play "an important role" from July onwards in helping the Iraqis draft a constitution and prepare for general elections which under a Nov. 15 agreement must be held by the end of 2005.

Annan spoke to reporters after meeting behind closed doors for over two hours with the top U.S. administrator in Iraq, L. Paul Bremer, members of the Iraqi Governing Council and U.S. and British officials to discuss the future U.N. role in Iraq.

The issue of elections is at the center of a dispute between Washington and Iraq's top Shiite Muslim cleric that could mar the handover of power. Ayatollah Ali al-Sistani wants direct elections to choose a national assembly. The current plan calls for local caucuses to choose the body so a provisional government can take power in Iraq by July 1. U.S. administrators in Iraq say there's no time to organize an election before then.

Annan said all parties agreed that further technical discussions should take place on security and electoral issues related to sending a U.N. team.

He said one issue that the technical experts would look at was the possible use of ration cards to determine voter rolls in an election — which he said would have to take place in May, if it were held.

Bremer said the technical discussions would begin Monday afternoon.

Asked about reconsidering the possibility of elections, Bremer said, "We think that that is a legitimate question and one where the U.N. with its expertise in elections can offer a perspective."

Bremer has said elections cannot be organized in time to meet the June 30 deadline, given the ongoing violence and lack of voter rolls. Annan has backed that view, but he called for the process of choosing an interim assembly to be expanded to include all segments of Iraqi society and to be fully transparent.

"I don't believe there may be enough time between now and May to hold elections," Annan reiterated Monday, but if he decides to send a team — it will "look into that further and report to me."

The secretary-general indicated that he was leaning toward sending a team, reiterating that "the stability of Iraq is everyone's business."

"It's going to be fun," Pete Aldridge said in an interview. "My goodness, the president says this is what we're going to do."

President Bush appointed Aldridge, 65, to head a commission charged with figuring out how to carry out the president's vision and bring in industry and other countries as partners.

In 1986, Edward Cleveland "Pete" Aldridge was training to fly on a space shuttle as a payload specialist, or non-career astronaut, right before the Challenger explosion. His flight was scrapped after Challenger erupted in a fireball during liftoff.

Spirit takes Sunday drive on Mars, prepares for tasks

PASADENA, Calif. — The Spirit rover took a weekend spin on Mars that doubled the distance on the six-wheeled vehicle's odometer, NASA said Monday.

The slow, nearly 10-foot drive took Spirit 30 minutes, including repeated pauses to allow the rover to snap pictures. The drive was the first forward movement of the rover since it rolled off its lander and onto the martian surface Thursday.

"We went for a little Sunday drive," mission manager Mark Adler said at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Spirit ended up parked in front of a football-size rock scientists have dubbed "Adirondack." It lies a foot from Spirit, within easy reach of its robotic arm.

But this year, with the presidential contest looming, Mrs. King also talked about peace at home.

"The noblest goal is not conquest of enemies but reconciliation with adversaries. We must remember in this election year that Republicans and Democrats, conservatives and liberals, we are all sisters and brothers," said Mrs. King, speaking at Ebenezer Baptist Church, where King preached until his assassination in 1968.

Episcopal group meets to make 'church within a church'

PLANO, Texas — Conservative Episcopalians opposed to a gay bishop's consecration and other liberal trends opened a two-day meeting Monday to establish a "church within a church" — a move that could pose a serious threat to the denomination.

The closed-door meeting of the Network of Anglican Communion Dioceses and Parishes involves conservative bishops, clergy and lay delegates from 12 dioceses with 235,000 members, or a 10th of the nation's Episcopalians.

Delegates will adopt an organizational charter, elect leaders and debate how to help conservative parishes in liberal dioceses. Planners insisted the network is not a breakaway denomination or schism, but a "church within a church."

U.S. helicopter attack kills 11 in Afghanistan

KANDAHAR, Afghanistan (AP) — A U.S. helicopter attacked a house in a village in southern Afghanistan, killing 11 people, four of them children, Afghan officials said Monday.

The U.S. military said it conducted a weekend raid in the area in which it killed five armed militants. It said it had no information about civilian casualties. The attack occurred around 9 p.m. Sunday in Saghatho, a village where U.S. forces hunting for Taliban insurgents had carried out searches the day before, said Abdul Rahman, chief of Char Chino district in Uruzgan province.

"They were simple villagers, they were not Taliban. I don't know why the U.S. bombed this home. We have informed our authorities," he told The Associated Press by telephone in the southern city of Kandahar.

The governor of Uruzgan, Jan

Mohammed Khan, confirmed Rahman's account that four men, four children and three women were killed in a U.S. bombing.

He said U.S. authorities had told him they had seen ammunition in their search of the village, which apparently raised suspicions. During the search, "the people were afraid, they started running," Khan said.

"The Americans bombed this home,"

In Kabul, U.S. military spokesman Lt. Col. Bryan Hilbert confirmed a weekend air strike north of Deh Rawood, a town in Uruzgan province where the U.S. military has a base.

"Coalition forces engaged from the air and killed five armed anti-coalition militia members," Hilbert said, but had no information about any civilian casualties.

CSI board considers growth issues today

TWIN FALLS - Growth is on the agenda for the College of Southern Idaho board today.

The 5:30 p.m. meeting in Room 256 of the Taylor Building will address the college's future road infrastructure needs.

President Jerry Meyerhoeffer said the college's next building will be built across North College Road, so crossing the street will become a major concern.

Meyerhoeffer said the college is looking at alternative routes and possibilities for traffic calming. It is also examining the infrastructure around the main entrance on Falls Avenue.

The board will consider a proposal from the Gallatin Group, a consulting firm, to lobby for the college to receive more federal funding, Meyerhoeffer said.

He will also present a proposal to move the Southern Idaho Learning Center, which helps students with disabilities, onto the college campus.

Meyerhoeffer said the challenge will be to find space for the program.

The board also will hear a report of a slight increase in enrollment for the spring semester.

College board meetings are open to the public.

'Transition home' debate resumes

Council considers permit tonight

By Rebecca Meary Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The tug-of-war over the future of a house on Martin Street - and its impact on the neighborhood - resumes tonight.

At issue is the disagreement

Tonight's meeting

The Twin Falls City Council meeting begins at 5 p.m. today at the City Council chambers, 305 Third Ave. E. It is open to the public.

between property owner and part-time Twin Falls resident Helen Kolouch and many county and state officials who want to use the house at 285 Martin St. as a home to help with the transition of troubled teens back into the community. Kolouch is concerned about lack of details of the project, insufficient conditions in a special-use permit and whether such a project fits into the area's zoning.

Kolouch is appealing the decision by the city Planning and Zoning Commission to grant the special-use permit, approved in November by a vote of 7-1. The City Council postponed a decision on the appeal Jan. 5, and the matter goes back before the council today.

"It doesn't fit within the special-use permit system," said Kolouch's attorney, J. Dee May. "There is no special-use permit for what they're calling a transition home."

The area is zoned R-6 PRO, which requires a special-use permit to operate a transitional home there, the city staff says. The closest category the home could fit into, May said, is a day care center, but that categorization requires those housed there to be incapable of caring for themselves. That would not be the case with the teens who would be accepted into the center, May said.

"If they violate their own statute, that gives an automatic ground for appeal," he said. "They'd have a hard time holding that up."

The home has been dubbed "BILL'S Place," in part to honor County Commissioner Bill Brockman, instigator of the project.

WINTER WORK

Burley resident Renee Holtman tookles Monday's new snowfall right away. Holtman said she prefers to shovel when the snow is still 'powdery and light,' because it's easier than clearing compacted snow out of her driveway. Weather forecasters say there's little chance of more snow until the weekend.

CSI welcomes Bush job-training plan

The Times-News and The Associated Press

TWIN FALLS - The College of Southern Idaho prides itself in providing job-training programs for local employees.

So CSI President Jerry Meyerhoeffer said Monday he was delighted to hear that President Bush is expected to propose new job-training grants for community colleges during his State of the Union speech tonight.

"For us it's pretty exciting, because that's exactly what we do," Meyerhoeffer said.

In his address to Congress and the nation, Bush plans to announce at least $120 million in grants, administered by the Labor Department, to enhance work force training programs at community colleges, education officials said. Preparing American workers for today's economy is a key issue in November's presidential election.

The president is expected to expand on the plan in a speech Wednesday at Owens Community College in Toledo, Ohio, a re-election battleground state that Bush has already visited more than a dozen times.

"They are not putting the money into the Department of Education, they're putting it in the Department of Labor - the signal there is to focus on work force training activities," said Terry Hartle, senior vice president of the American Council on Education, a trade association of 1,800 two- and four-year colleges and universities.

"I guess they think that training and retaining remains essential as we continue to see the erosion of American jobs, especially manufacturing jobs," Hartle said. That is a particular problem in such states as Ohio, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Job growth is expected to be an important issue leading up to November's presidential election, and Bush could be vulnerable. The economy has lost about 2.3 million jobs since he took office in 2001, giving him the worst job-creation record of any president since Herbert Hoover.

White House aides declined to comment on the proposal Sunday. "We'll let the president make his speech on Tuesday," spokesman Taylor Gross said.

George R. Boggs, president and chief executive officer of the American Association of Community Colleges, which represents 1,200 schools, said the grants would be targeted to workforce training programs in high-demand occupations, such as health care.

"Of course, on the national scheme, it's not a great amount, but it's certainly enough to help some of our colleges develop capacity for these programs, so we would be very supportive of this proposal," Boggs said.

Dairy owners hope for costs savings with digester

The Times-News and The Associated Press

RUPERT - Dairy owner Steve Whitesides said Monday he is optimistic the dairy will be able to harvest and use methane gas from manure and see long-term cost savings.

Whitesides Dairy - owned by Whitesides, his brother Brent and nephew Brandon - is a dry lot dairy. Manure created at the dairy now is generally composted, Whitesides said.

Project moves ahead - A1

Under phase one of its anaerobic digester project, 20 percent of the dairy's waste will be processed. Eventually Whitesides would like to add enough tanks to process 50 percent of the manure through the digesters. The Whitesideses view the digester project as a revenue-generating project for their business.

Parole officers start to feel case overload

The Times-News and The Associated Press

BOISE - The state's cash commitment to treatment programs and inmate transitional services has played a significant role in stabilizing Idaho's prison population and saving millions of dollars.

But Correction Director Tom Beaulclair warned on Monday that the resulting surge in probationers and parolees is beginning to overwhelm caseworkers and threatens to undermine the gains that have been made in prison management.

If the trend is not reversed, Beaulclair told legislative budget writers, "we will have to prioritize our services in the future." Caseloads statewide are now averaging just above the optimum of 65 per officer, Beaulclair said, but they are significantly higher in select areas. The number of offenders on probation and parole in Magic Valley, for example, increased 23 percent from 1,010 in 2002 to 1,244 in 2003, according to an Idaho Department of Correction statistics. That compared with 10 percent growth statewide. The number of probationers and parolees statewide is expected to increase by over 600 in the coming year. Beaulclair offered no specifics and reassured lawmakers that public safety would not be compromised. But he said as caseloads rise and officers have less time to devote to each one, supervision will have to be dropped for lower-risk offenders while others will be discharged completely. "The people who have to be supervised will be supervised,"

She moved to Burley in the early '40s to work at Roger Brothers, which later became the J. R. Simpler Co. While working there, she met her husband, Herman K. Harkness, and they were married in 1944. She worked at Ore-Ida until her retirement in 1981. She was an active member of the Rupert and Burley Christian Churches, the Ruth Rebekah Lodge, and the Idaho Neighbor Network.

She loved needlework, crocheting and quilting. She especially loved making her handiwork for her family and donating to the church fund-raisers. She loved animals and she has had a pet dog since she was 3 years old. She was loved to fish. She will be greatly missed by those who loved her.

Survivors include a daughter, Barbara Mayes of Burley; two sons, H. Kirby (Connie) Harkness Jr. and C. K. (Dena) Harkness, both of Heyburn; seven grandchildren, Lauri, Kevin, Brandon, Brandi, Amber, Misty and Eric; and seven great-grandsons.

She was preceded in death by her parents, her husband and two sisters.

A service will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 21, 2004, at the Burley First Christian Church, 1401 Oakley Ave., with Pastor Herb C. Whitaker officiating. Burial will be in the Pleasant View Cemetery in Burley. Friends may call at the church from 10 to 10:45 a.m. before the funeral on Wednesday. Arrangements are under the direction of Payne Mortuary in Burley.

Ed board denies rift with Howard

BOISE (AP) — Three members of the state Board of Education met behind closed doors with every key Republican lawmaker on Monday to discuss the power struggle between the board and the Democratic state schools superintendent.

The nearly two-hour meeting happened only hours after board President Blake Hall issued a statement defending the board from suggestions that it was trying to wrestle power and money from the state Department of Education.

Hall said an executive delegation of the state board meets with lawmakers at the beginning of every legislative session to discuss upcoming issues. He said most of the meeting was spent discussing the recent report regarding the University of Idaho's University Place project — a questionable financing scheme for the project turned into a scandal last year and caused the resignation of university President Bob Hoover.

But Hall acknowledged that some of the meeting focused on the federal No Child Left Behind Act, its implications on Idaho education and some differences the board has had with state Superintendent Marilyn Howard, the only statewide elected Democrat and one who has increasingly clashed with board decisions.

Hall, the former state Republican Party chairman, GOP national committeeman and Idaho Falls lawyer, said differences between the board and Howard are over a few policy matters, not politics.

Hall said some people, whom he did not name, have criticized the board for withholding federal funds from the department.

"For fiscal year 2004, the superintendent received $159.8 million. Of that, the state board will only administer roughly $5 million for assessment and accountability, teacher training programs and operations," Hall wrote in a prepared statement.

Asked to comment on the board's relationship with Howard, Hall said, "I am unaware of anything but a cordial relationship between the superintendent and the state board."

Participants in the closed meeting in the office of Senate President Pro Tem Robert Geddes included Hall and state board members James Hammond of Post Falls and Roderic David of Eagle.

Inclusive members at the meeting included Geddes and two other Senate GOP leaders, House Speaker Bruce Newcomb and all three House GOP leaders; the House and Senate chairman of the state budget writing committee; the House chairman and vice chairman and Senate chairman of the education-committees; and Gary Stivers, director of the Board of Education's staff.

Worries linger over tank leaks

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Cleaning up polluted groundwater from leaking underground fuel tanks is going on in almost every county and city.

But Idaho is likely to remain the only state that does not inspect underground storage tanks, all because of a lack of funding, state environmental officials say.

"Leaking underground storage tanks account for 90 percent of groundwater contamination. It's very bad for public health," said Steve Heaton, Idaho Department of Environmental Quality underground tank coordinator.

Last year, the Legislature rejected the state agency's proposal to create an inspection program. The expense involved in proposing new legislation makes it impractical to try again this year, Heaton said.

Gas is still being pumped out of the ground at a closed gas station in Ashton as part of emergency cleanup by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

A little more than 100 gallons have been recovered since pumping at B&D Texaco began in August, said Mike Szlerog, who is coordinating cleanup for the EPA.

That site was picked for immediate cleanup because gasoline was found in the groundwater 10 feet below the site, and the EPA and state were concerned it would contaminate the Henry's Fork of the Snake River.

— Makes updates and technical corrections to various tax statutes applicable to taxes administered by the State Tax Commission.

Introduced in House

HB476 (Robison and Cuddy) — Restores the 1995 property tax law to its original form. Property taxes that school districts are no longer permitted to collect under the 1995 law would be replaced by state funding, costing the general fund $1.6 million.

HB477 (Revenue and Taxation) — Makes technical corrections and updates property tax laws.

HB478 (Revenue and Taxation)

IB479 (Revenue and Taxation) — Updates and makes technical corrections to Idaho's adoption of the Uniform Unclaimed Property Act.

SB1211 (Keough) — Repeals the 2003 law that requires judges to impose a property tax increase on school districts found to have building safety problems but no money to fix them.

RALLY FOR HUMAN RIGHTS

Boise resident Khalil Oliver, 7, holds a sign on the steps of the statehouse in downtown Boise Monday during a rally for Martin Luther King Jr. Day. About 200 activists marched from Boise State University to the capitol building for the rally. Afterward, Idaho Gov. Dirk Kempthorne addressed the crowd inside the rotunda.

Senator wants Idaho terror law revamped

BOISE (AP) — Slain human rights activist Martin Luther King Jr. could be arrested and imprisoned under the Idaho Terrorism Control Act if he were alive to lead a protest march to the state Capitol, a lawmaker says.

State Sen. Michael Burkett, D-Boise, is backing legislation to loosen the harsh standards of the law which was passed in what he calls a "frenzy" after the September 2001 terrorist attacks.

"Dr. King would have committed an act in violation of law," Burkett told participants in a march from Boise State University to the Statehouse during a King holiday observance.

"That is our current definition of terrorism," Burkett said. "Dr. King could be charged with a felony labeled a domestic terrorist and subject to up to life in prison for his act of civil disobedience."

Under the act, anyone could be charged with terrorism if they violate any section of Idaho law while participating in an activity intended to influence government policy by intimidation or coercion.

Burkett said that "applies to any criminal act," Burkett said. "But guess what? If you just walk when you're marching, that's a misdemeanor and a criminal act. That would apply to traffic citations."

Burkett said his bill would require a felony — one intended to harm people — to trigger the law.

"We need to change this, to make sure all Idahoans can safely protest the policies of state government without the fear of being labeled a terrorist," he said.

The Idaho Community Action Network also on Monday said King's dream of equality and justice remains unfulfilled and called for political changes in Idaho to resolve that.

Undocumented workers should not be barred from obtaining state driver's licenses, said Sam Blair, the network's organizer.

The group also said many undocumented students are financially punished when trying to college because of a federal restriction that prevents states from offering them in-state tuition rates.

"That means those students must come up with out-of-state tuition, far more expensive than Idaho's in-state fees," Blair said.

The organization also wants renamed more than 70 locations in Idaho that still retain the word "squat" in their names, calling it a derogatory term for tribal women.

Kempthorne calls petition a hindrance

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Dirk Kempthorne, who spent his initial years as chief executive working with anti-abortion groups to help them achieve their goals, has denounced one group's attack on his administration and the three before it.

Kempthorne said the petition filed with the state Supreme Court over allegedly inadequate public information on alternatives to abortion only delays attempts to improve implementation of the 1993 law.

"It's unfortunate that this lawsuit has been filed because the governor's office has been working with the plaintiffs on a resolution to this 20-year-old issue," Kempthorne said in a statement

Monday.

The Idaho Chooses Life Alliance filed a petition with the state Supreme Court last Friday asking that the state be ordered to publish its own brochure for distribution to women considering abortion. The pamphlet should describe alternative services available to pregnant women including adoption, the characteristics of a fetus up to 24 weeks old, abortion procedures and any reasonable complications and risks to the mother.

The Department of Health and Welfare has been circulating an old pamphlet produced by the state of Ohio, which includes a disconnected toll free telephone number for information on abortion and alternatives. Critics claim that fails to comply with the state's Right to Know law.

Neither Kempthorne nor the Department of Health and Welfare would comment on the specifics of the petition, announced by group spokesman David Ripley on Sunday.

The law was enacted before Ripley became an ardent opponent of abortion in the 1990s. Before that, Ripley was one of the engineers of the huge Democratic victory in 1990 that capitalized on public dissatisfaction with Republican approval of what would have been the nation's toughest anti-abortion law. Then-Gov. Cecil Andrus vetoed the bill.

Parole

Beaulard said. "As a last resort, we'll shift other responsibilities because it's too important."

A number of options for additional case officers are under consideration, but he conceded they will not fix the problem. As more felons are placed on probation or parole, Beaulard said any erosion in supervision increases the prospect for a higher failure rate and an increase in prison inmates.

State parole board Director Olivia Craven asked lawmakers on Monday to approve a policy change authorizing unsupervised probation for extremely low-risk offenders who essentially have only restitution to complete before being discharged.

The department's request for 16 additional probation and parole officers was not recommended by Gov. Dirk Kempthorne, who said after unveiling his budget a week ago that the prison officials "still have some very tight times. It calls for good management and innovation."

The governor's position was reiterated on Monday by Kempthorne budget analyst David Hahn.

"The governor understands what's happening here in moving offenders out into the community," Hahn told the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee. "However, the governor is asking as with other departments that the Department of Correction dig a little deeper."

Funding from the Legislature increased the number of probation and parole officers statewide by six last year. There were 133 officers in fiscal 2002, and 139 in fiscal 2003.

Beaulard said the state's crime management strategy is also being undermined by pay scales that are near the bottom regional. He said prison officers are making $2 an hour less than their counterparts in neighboring states while being asked to do more than just guard inmates.

The turnover rate for guards is 19 percent throughout the system, and as high as 34 percent in the maximum-security prison.

ness. The dairy doesn't have odor problems, difficulties handling waste or a shortage of land, Steve Whitesides said.

"Right now we are handling our situation and our manure through a compost situation without issues," he said. "We're not pushed into a situation that dictates that we have to do this."

Steve Whitesides has been in the dairy business about 26 years, in the same location in Minidoka County. His brother has been in the business nearly as long.

The dairy has 4,000 head of milking cows.

Meanwhile, Idaho House Agriculture Chairman Doug Jones of Filer said Monday he intends to push for federal grants this year to pay for anaerobic digesters in southern Idaho.

The western part of Magic Valley has been increasingly plagued with dairy odor problems, pitting dairy operators against local residents.

"I want the dairymen to be able to drive down the road and kick the tires on these things — see how they work," Jones said. "If we don't get off dead center, it's only going to get worse."

upon which a residence may be constructed. The terms "garage sale" or "rummage sale" are synonymous with "yard sale."

The ordinance would limit yard sales to 96 hours from beginning to end and allow only two yard sales per residence per calendar year.

City Administrator Travis Rothweiler told the Planning and Zoning Commission last month that there would be "no grandfathering of garage or yard sales currently in progress."

In another public hearing scheduled tonight, the council will take comment on an ordinance proposing the zoning of the Washington Elementary School campus located at 500 S. Lincoln Ave. as "central business district."

The campus has not been zoned before this proposal.

The urban renewal agency is considering expanding its boundaries to include the Washington Elementary campus and upgrading infrastructure in the immediate neighborhood. The city wants the zoning of the campus to reflect the city's plans for the area.

The council will also take comment on a request from Sandra Capps for a preliminary plat subdivision to be located at 333 E. 16th Ave. Capps is proposing a subdivision for senior citizens containing 12 houses in the $110,000 to $150,000 range with smaller houses and lots designed to cut back on yard maintenance.

And Dan Hall will be officially appointed as the city's chief of police.

"Troubled youths, ages 17 to 19, could be housed here, so they learn skills to help them function successfully in mainstream society. The home could accommodate up to eight teens, who would be supervised around the clock by qualified personnel, supporters say.

According to May, Kolouch wants to sell her property near the site. Purchase negotiations have taken place with Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, he said, but the parties have not come to an agreement on price. Magic Valley Regional is one of the backers of BILLS Place.

Kolouch also said that property devaluation is "absolutely" a concern of his client.

"Having that kind of home there would affect whether you want to live (in that neighborhood) or not," he said.

"We're not trying to be the bad guys," he said. "But that lies next to a piece of property that is very valuable." To jeopardize that in any way would be unfair, he said.

Submitted to the council for consideration is a letter written by Mike Jones, president of Idaho Youth Ranch, addressed to Catherine Haynes, coordinator of BILLS Place. In it, Jones addressed the question of decreasing property values. He wrote that "numerous" studies by the National Board of Realtors found that in areas where group homes were established, property values did not change, nor did the speed at which listed properties sold.

Other people who have submitted letters of support for the transition home include Magistrate Judge John Varin, Bev Ashton of the Idaho Department of Juvenile Corrections and Kyle Fisher of Jerome County Juvenile Probation.

May questions the support coming from juvenile justice employees who work outside Twin Falls County.

"All of them are searching for places to put individuals," he said. "It doesn't mean this is a good place."

Other scheduled council business today includes:

- Rezoning request — Messersmith Inc. will request a zoning district change and zoning map amendment from RR to R-2 for about 45 acres located 1,100 feet southwest of the intersection of North College Road and Grandview Drive North.
- Property trade — The council will consider a property trade with Wills Construction Inc. for a pressure irrigation pump station site at the intersection of Cheney Drive and Grandview Drive.

Coles reports for jail sentence

BOISE (AP) — Former Mayor Brent Coles reported to the Ada County Jail on Monday to begin serving a six-month sentence for missing public money in a scandal that ended the budding political career of the former president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

Brent Coles
Booking photo

Coles was scheduled to go through the normal intake jail process, which will determine his housing assignment, said Ada County Sheriff's spokesman Gary Raney Sunday.

The 51-year-old Coles is expected to begin a behavior control class on Tuesday. He also will have to take a personal financial management class.

After he completes both classes, which could be done within a month, he is eligible for work release.

Last year, Coles admitted to filing a false reimbursement expense for tickets to a Broadway show in New York City in fall of 2002. He also pleaded to misusing public money during a 1999 trip with his chief of staff, Gary Lyman.

Coles, who can never hold public office in Idaho again, cut a deal with prosecutors last November to limit his maximum prison term to three years. In return, Coles pleaded guilty to two of the five felony charges against him. The others were dropped.

Lyman was sentenced last week to a full six month sentence, plus a $50,000 fine.

Agency plans road closures to help trout

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — The federal government plans to close forest roads that clog creeks with sedimentation, which is a contributing factor to low numbers of trout in the Coeur d'Alene River.

By cleaning the sediment from creeks that feed the river's headwaters, the Panhandle National Forest hopes to help the Coeur d'Alene River return to its past glory.

"The bottom line is trout populations in the Coeur d'Alene Basin are not what they could be," said Chip Curtis, regional supervisor for the Idaho Fish and Game Department. "The Coeur d'Alene River system has the potential to grow very big fish."

Forest roads are the biggest detriment to the health of streams and a major reason the Coeur d'Alene River does not flow thick with large trout, said Coeur d'Alene District Ranger Joe Stringer.

The silt clogs up the spaces between the gravel, destroying insect habitat and causing eggs deposited among the pebbles to be suffocated.

Out of about 250 watersheds in the 2.5-million-acre forest, only 20 percent are in good enough shape to prevent sedimentation, according to a recent survey.

The forest has about 11,800 miles of road, making it the most densely roaded national forest in the West. Closing roads is always controversial, but Stringer said most of the roads there are now too covered with brush and thorns for even foot traffic.

The projects are not cheap, and erasing more than a century of impact will be slow, Stringer said. But he expects the revised forest plan to reflect the importance the agency is giving now to fixing sick streams.

The long-term management plan will not be ready for another year or two, but it will undoubtedly have a greater emphasis on heading a forest scarred by mining, logging and road building, Stringer said.

Governor opens 2004 legislative session in Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Legislature opened its 2004 session on Monday with Gov. Olene Walker expressing optimism in the state's economy, which is showing signs of recovery for the first time in three years.

Walker, 73, predicted her relations with legislators would be cordial despite grumbling about her spending proposals.

"Quite frankly, the revenue picture looks better now than when I had to do my budget," Walker said Monday in a Capitol hallway.

Walker submitted an $8 billion budget plan to the Legislature last month that would increase overall spending by 3.4 percent for the next fiscal year. She said she was standing by her plan to boost public education spending by nearly $116 million.

Walker, a former legislator and lieutenant governor to Gov. Mike Leavitt,

Group marks historic trails

GLENN'S FERRY - Members of the Idaho Chapter of the Oregon-California Trails Association recently marked historic trails near Glenn's Ferry and Mountain Home.

On Dec. 19, Jim McGill, who is president of the chapter, and his wife, Patti, worked on and almost completed marking the South Alternate of the Oregon Trail in those areas. Instead of crossing at Three Island, some pioneers followed the south side of the Snake River to create the South Alternate, McGill said.

They had received permission from a couple to cross their private land along the Snake River west of Glenn's Ferry to reach a parcel of public land never before marked or cultivated near the river, McGill reported. The land, which is about one-half mile wide and a little over a mile long, was a 1913 Frank A. Greer homestead, according to the Bureau of Land Management Patent Internet site.

Previously, chapter members had marked the South Alternate trail up to the start of the Greer land, McGill reported. On Dec. 19, they were able to finish marking the South Alternate route on the north side of Strike Reservoir. The ruts crossed through the reservoir land in two places and went almost to where Strike Dam is now located and then headed west.

The McGills also found and marked a loop of ruts on another section of public land near Glenn's Ferry. The ruts had not been indicated in the Emigrant Trails of Southern Idaho book. There are also several partial routes across the Greer land, which had never been marked, probably because the land had previously been in private hands when the BLM was marking the trail, McGill reported. The reason there are so many ruts off a main or alternate route is that pioneers would often take a different way to avoid the dust of the main trails, McGill said. The chapter members placed 27 new markers in these three areas, which included a section of private land, and checked and/or replaced decals on five existing posts on the Strike route. With the exception of about 1

1/2 miles of ruts west of Guffey Butte, chapter members have almost finished marking the South Alternate across Owyhee County, he said.

The McGills also worked with Wally Meyer and Bill Wilson, both of Boise, at various times and with other chapters' members and visitors in finishing marking the ruts, as well as several miles of trail and alternates in Elmore County.

'South Pacific' costumes have a long history

BURLEY - Several local residents have contributed to the vintage clothing to add to the authenticity of the Mount Harrison Heritage Foundation production of "South Pacific," which will begin Friday at the King Fine Arts Center in Burley.

Marge Newman, whose son Robynson, Emily, in the show. She donated a large collection of World War II-era clothing. Many items were worn by Marge and her husband, the late Lt. Col.

Grover Newman. "The show calls for a dress made from a parachute in the USO Thanksgiving follies scene," Lori Bai, costume director, said. "As I worked on getting such a dress, I remembered a wonderful story Marge had told me.

Marge and Grover met at a USO dance in her hometown of Waycross, Ga., where he was stationed at an air base. The couple married five months before he was shipped overseas in World War II. While in Germany, he sent home a set of Polish crystal as a gift to his bride, which he wrapped in a silk parachute to protect from breakage. Marge's mother made her a gown from the fabric, which will be worn by Christie Hamilton, who plays Nellie.

An original parachute, also from the Newmans, will be a backdrop in a scene. Marge also had a silk Japanese jacket that was sent to her by a friend stationed in Japan during the war. The jacket will be worn by Kylie Barrus, who plays Liat.

Many of Lt. Col. Newman's military clothes also will be used in the show. Lt. Cable, played by David Ketchum, will wear Newman's original second lieutenant uniform, which he wore in World War II. All of the badges and insignias are original. Also, his foot locker and other military items will be used in the set.

Williams opens with easy win

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Venus Williams is ready to make up for lost time. Showing no ill effects from her extended layoff, Williams returned at the Australian Open with a 6-2, 6-1 victory Tuesday (Monday night MST) over American teenager Ashley Harkleroad. Sidelined for almost six months last season because of an abdominal injury, the third-seeded Williams won in her first major since losing the Wimbledon final to sister Serena last July. “I was real excited out there today,” said Williams. Before the match, she was feeling “a little sentimental.” Afterward, “it was just like a breath of fresh air,” she said. The only slips were a twisted ankle in the fourth game and one dropped service game, in the fifth game of the second set. “I was going for my swing volley and I twisted my right ankle,” she said. “I’ll monitor it, see how it goes — I’m not expecting it’ll cause any problems.” She served at speeds up to 119 mph and won 75 percent of points on her first serve. She didn’t waste any time, between points or on them, producing 27 winners against Harkleroad, ranked No. 51 last season. “Williams closed in 51 minutes, approaching the net and springing not to jump for Harkleroad’s desperate lob on match point. She smiled as she watched it drop behind the baseline. “It’s been a long, long time,” she said. “It’s been a Grand Slam winner” the four-time Grand Slam winner said.

Williams was given the No. 3 seeding here, despite her ranking dropping to No. 11 at the end of last season. The WTA Tour made the recommendation based on Williams’ “projected ranking.” “I’m really grateful. I suppose, for the seeding, I think it’s pretty consistent with the WTA rules,” she said. Her last match at Melbourne Park was a loss in last year’s final to Serena, who withdrew from this tournament because she hadn’t recovered from a knee operation. “I wanted to do well, do what my coach said — which is my mom, so I had to,” said Williams. After losing five Grand Slam finals to her younger sister, Venus should be grateful Serena didn’t travel.

Tverdy sparks win

Rodgers hits 8-of-12 from free throw line to clinch Wolves victory

By Joe Paisley
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — Oakley student managers Kelli Bobbitt and Lexie Searle loudly hoped and prayed during the fourth quarter that Castledorf senior Wes Rodgers would miss his free throws.

He didn’t often enough for their liking. Rodgers shot 8-of-12 from the free throw line during the final quarter to help the Wolves hold on for a 52-43 Magic Valley Conference Southside boys basketball win Monday.

While Rodgers’ shooting from the line was pivotal late, it was the inside play of sophomore Drew Tverdy in the first 3.5 quarters that put the Wolves ahead and forced the visiting Hornets to foul. “We had an answer for (Tverdy),” said Oakley coach Scott Arnell. Tverdy scored all 11 Castledorf points as the Wolves took a 33-27 lead into the final quarter. “He started out a little slow. But when he flips the switch, God, he’s scary,” said Castledorf coach Tyler Gaston. “He was the difference in the game. We kept telling everyone, ‘Give Drew the ball, give Drew the ball.’” They did, with the sophomore pumping in 25 points, 19 in the first three quarters.

But Tverdy would not have had as many scoring chances if the Wolves hadn’t handled Oakley’s press as well as it did.

Both teams forced each other into sloppy play, with some players rushing themselves into mistakes.

Castledorf made fewer than Oakley and that was the biggest difference.

“We’ve been working on handling the press,” Gaston said. “We’ve got them passing instead of dribbling and using the middle. Once we did that we set up into a triangle offense and looked for Drew.”

Castledorf committed 18 turnovers, 11 in the first half, while Oakley hurt itself with a number of ill-timed miscues. Many came just as Oakley looked ready to go on a scoring tear.

“All night long we would make a small run and then make a poor decision to negate it,” Arnell said. “We don’t have any problems with their effort.”

Both Super Bowl teams’ role players play some great defense

By Dave Goldberg

FOXBORO, Mass. — Just who is Jarvis Green? And how did he get three sacks for New England in its 24-14 victory over Indianapolis in the AFC title game?

Answer: He’s a role player on a team of role players.

The Patriots and their Super Bowl opponent, the Carolina Panthers, both fit that description.

And both teams win with punishing defense, so expect a low-scoring game Feb. 1 in Houston.

“We have shut out some teams, and we have had some good games at home where we didn’t give up any points, but I don’t think that we have had the perfect game yet,” Patriots linebacker Willie McGinest said.

“Hopefully, we are saving it for the Super Bowl.”

defensive coordinators. No wonder the over-under line set by Las Vegas is 38 — fewer than 20 points per team.

“Obviously, John’s a good coach, and he’s done a tremendous job,” Belichick said. “Foxy’s game down there, he’s built a tremendous team, a good program.”

Duke reaches No. 1 for seventh straight season

By Jim O’Connell
Associated Press writer

Duke was due to be No. 1.

For the seventh straight season, the college Devils make an appearance atop The Associated Press men’s blue basketball poll, moving up one place Monday to overtake Connecticut.

The streak dates to the 1997-98 season and is the second longest in history, behind UCLA’s 12 straight seasons with a stay at No. 1 from 1964-75. The Bruins won 10 national championships during that span; the blue Devils have one NCAA title during their run (in 2001).

“Being No. 1 is very important to us, and we actually earned it, it wasn’t just given to us,” Duke senior guard Chris Duhon said Monday. “This team has matured and right now we feel we are the best in the country, but we’re not, and know we have a bigger target than usual on our backs.”

Duke (14-1) is the fourth school at No. 1 this season; its women’s team is also ranked No. 1 this week.

The Blue Devils beat then-No. 4 Wake Forest 84-72 Saturday, the same day Connecticut lost 86-83 at then-No. 9 North Carolina. The Huskies (14-2) were No. 1 for eight weeks this season, including the last five in a row.

Kansas and Florida each were No. 1 for one week this season.

Duke has won 11 straight games since losing to Purdue in the final of the Great Alaska Shootout and received 45 first-place votes and 1,763 points from the national media panel.

That was 30 points more than Stanford, which moved up one place to second.

Saint Joseph’s (15-0) received one first-place vote and moved up three spots to third, the Hawks’ highest ranking since they were No. 3 on Jan. 18, 1966.

Connecticut dropped to No. 4, followed by Louisville, Cincinnati (13-0), North Carolina, Pittsburgh (18-0), Kentucky and Wake Forest. Clemson got the other two first-place votes.

Grant's 37 points buries Buhl

The Times-News

HAZELTON - Michael Grant scored 37 points as Valley proved to be too much for Buhl, 69-49 Monday night in a non-conference game.

"(Buhl) let (Grant) get a little bit loose on the front line," said Valley head coach Bernard Mussman. "He was hitting his shot tonight."

Valley used big first and third quarters to put distance between it and the Indians. The Vikings outscored Buhl 21-12 in the first quarter and 19-13 in the third. Buhl's $3 overall travels to Wood River Wednesday.

Hagerman 49, Murtaugh 41

HAGERMAN - Murtaugh used a swarming defense in the first quarter as the host Pirates jumped out to an early lead on the way to a 49-41 Magic Valley Conference win over Murtaugh.

"I think it was our defense in the first quarter," said Hagerman coach Kevin Cato, whose team outscored the Red Devils by 10 points in the first eight minutes. "We came out and played well defensively and held them to five."

Brian Brown paced Hagerman (9-4 overall, 5-1 conference) with 17 points. Bridger Ward led Murtaugh with 12 points. Hagerman plays at Oakley Friday.

Hansen 54, M.V. Christian 51
HANSEN - Hansen used a balanced scoring attack and an 18-2 spurt in the third quarter to upend Magic Valley Christian.

Remington Barnes scored 14 points, Matt Freestone 12 and Mark Pearson 11 for Hansen (6-4 overall, 5-2 Magic Valley Conference Southside).

"We were down 14 at halftime and we had three players that didn't play due to injury," said Hansen coach Mike Pfeiffer. "We came out and gave the kids the challenge - told them that this would be our third conference loss."

Cody Griffith led M.V. Christian with 16 points, Nick Probst added 14 and Jon Jarvis had 13.

Girls basketball
Shoshone 42, Twin Falls JV 27
SHOSHONE - Haley Harris and Meghan Sorensen each scored nine points while Katie Strunk hauled down rebounds as the Shoshone varsity beat the Twin Falls High Junior varsity, 42-27 Monday night.

Shoshone's defense held the Bruins to single-digit scoring in the first three quarters before Twin Falls went on a four-quarter run.

"We had a little bit of a letdown in the fourth quarter," said Shoshone coach Tim Chapman. "Overall, it was a good team effort."

Shoshone (16-2) plays Friday at Valley, looking to avenge a home overtime loss to the Vikings earlier this season. The Bruins were led by Carla Marin with 12 points.

Valley 53, Glenns Ferry 39
GLENN'S FERRY - Valley used a strong second quarter to put away Glenns Ferry in Canyon Conference play.

Valley outscored the Pilots 15-3 in the second frame to take a 30-14 lead into halftime.

"We just had one bad quarter," said Glenns Ferry coach Kelli McHone, whose team's lone points in the quarter came on a 3-pointer from Sarah Morin. "That's the way it goes with these guys. We just couldn't stop them and we went cold."

Mindy Malone scored 25 points to lead Valley. Glenns Ferry (5-11 overall, 1-2 conference) was led by Jessica Simons with 16 points.

Glenns Ferry travels to Gooding Thursday.

Haft River 81, Lighthouse Christian 21
MALTA - Haft River's Alex Nelson scored 28 points as the Titans used experience to overcome Lighthouse Christian.

Haft River (13-0 overall, 7-0 Magic Valley Conference Northside) outscored Lighthouse 51-13 in the second half.

"They (Lighthouse) are just starting out and have a young team," said Haft River coach Jeff Greenwood. "It was good to be able to work on some different things. In the second half, we were able to get out a little bit more in transition and get in the passing lanes a little more."

Pistons win 13th straight, beat Spurs, 85-77

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) - Chaubey Billups scored 18 points to help Detroit beat the reigning NBA champion San Antonio Spurs 85-77 Monday for their franchise record-tying 13th straight win.

The last time Detroit won 13 straight was 1989-90, the season it won its second straight NBA title. Pistons coach Larry Brown has not had 13 straight in his Hall of Fame career until Monday.

Detroit matched the league's best winning streak, which was set by the Spurs in December. The Pistons have not lost since New Jersey beat them at home on Dec. 26.

After the Spurs enjoyed slim leads in the final quarter, Billups tied it at 72 with a 3-pointer with a few minutes left.

Billups made a go-ahead 3-pointer with 1:28 left, and his three-point play put the Pistons up 81-77 with 48.6 seconds to go. He made one of four of his free throw attempts to seal the win.

Kneks 90, Raptors 79
NEW YORK - Stephon Marbury had 28 points and 14 assists to keep coach Lenny Wilkens undefeated in his new job, extending the Knicks' winning streak to four games.

The Knicks improved to 3-0 under Wilkens - by defeating the team he coached the past three seasons. Toronto's Vince Carter, who missed his second consecutive game with a strained right quadriceps.

Pacers 100, Hawks 97
ATLANTA - Reggie Miller hit a go-ahead 3-pointer and added two free throws in the final minute to lead the Pacers to their fourth straight win.

With the score tied at 93, he made an open 3 with the shot clock winding down. Miller's free throws with 5.1 seconds left put the Pacers back up by three, and they hung on from there.

Jermaine O'Neal had 24 points and 10 rebounds for Indiana. Shaunté Robinson scored 22 points and Jason Terry had 23 for the Hawks.

Kings 125, Clippers 100
LOS ANGELES - Peja Stojakovic scored 31 points to help the Kings win their fifth straight and ninth in 10 games.

Sacramento improved the NBA's best record to 29-9. The Kings had a season-high 38 assists on 49 field goals, including eight each by Doug Christie and Vlade Divac, who scored 15 points.

Magic 106, Bucks 99
ORLANDO - Tracy McGrady scored 34 points, while Juwan Howard added 19 points and 12 rebounds to lift the Magic.

Joe Smith led Milwaukee with 19 points and eight rebounds. Milwaukee trailed by as many as 17 in the fourth quarter but closed to 98-96 with 25.4 seconds remaining.

Howard was fouled both on the inbound play and made both free throws to give Orlando a 100-96 lead. McGrady then stole the inbound pass and scored on a breakaway dunk to make it 102-96 with 19.8 seconds to go.

SuperSonics 90, 76ers 81
PHILADELPHIA - Ray Allen scored 28 points and hit two late off-balance shots to help the Seattle SuperSonics end a four-game losing streak.

Glenn Robinson scored 27 points for Philadelphia, which lost its third straight game. Allen Iverson was held to 18 points on 7-for-22 shooting.

Seattle erased a 19-point first-half deficit to win.

Wizards 93, Bulls 83
WASHINGTON - The Wizards overcame an 18-point deficit to win consecutive games for the first time in two months.

"He's our most experienced player," Gaston said. "He picks his shots and plays good team basketball."

Evan McBride led Oakley (2-7 overall, 2-7 Southside) with 12 points while Bryce Adams added eight.

Since beating Atlanta on Nov. 17 and Cleveland two days later, Washington had gone 5-22 before Saturday's 99-84 win over Seattle.

Timberwolves 97, Hornets 90
MINNEAPOLIS - Sam Cassell had 22 points, including seven in the final 2.5 minutes to lead the Minnesota Timberwolves.

Kevin Garnett led Minnesota with 29 points, 15 rebounds and three assists. He finished with 18.2 seconds left that led to New Orleans coach Tim Floyd's ejection.

Baron Davis had 25 points for the Hornets before mildly spraining his left ankle midway through the fourth quarter with his team trailing 85-84.

After a missed dunk by Stacey Augmon, Cassell converted a jump shot from 18 feet on the other end to put the Timberwolves ahead 91-90 with 1:48 left.

Grizzlies 88, Rockets 83
MEMPHIS, Tenn. - Pau Gasol had 24 points and 11 rebounds, and James Posey scored 13 of his 17 points in a fourth-quarter comeback for Memphis.

Gasol connected on 10 of 13 shots from the field, as three Memphis players finished with double-doubles.

In a 17-6 win over the New York Giants this season, the Patriots were outscored 199 yards to 29 in the first half. But New England led 7-3 at intermission because Matt Cleveland - another one of those "who's he?" players - scooped up a fumble and returned it for a touchdown.

The Super Bowl could have plenty of that: outstanding plays on defense and special teams, hallmarks of good squads. That's especially so in an era when the difference between good and bad teams is so small.

For example, Carolina beat Tampa Bay 12-9 in overtime by blocking two field goals plus what would have been the winning extra point after the Bucs scored on the final play of regulation. That game was in Tampa in Week 2 and turned around the season for both teams. The Panthers gained confidence by beating the defending Super Bowl champions, and the Bucs began questioning themselves.

Cubs, Lee agree to $6.9M, one-year deal

CHICAGO (AP) - First baseman Derek Lee and the Chicago Cubs agreed to a $6.9 million, one-year deal Monday and avoided salary arbitration.

Lee, who helped the Florida Marlins win the World Series after they beat Chicago in the NL championship series, was traded to the Cubs in November for first baseman Hee Seop Choi and minor league pitcher Michael Nannini.

"We have a pretty good foundation to do something multiyear before spring training. We reached a fair agreement on a one-year deal," Cubs general manager Jim Hendry said Monday. "It was something to work off and work with."

Last week the Cubs and pitcher Kerry Wood agreed to a $9.75 million, one-year deal, giving the sides more time to work out a multiyear contract - another deal that also could be done before spring training begins next month in Mesa, Ariz.

The Cubs have also offered

Greg Maddux a two-year deal believed to be worth at least $13 million. Hendry said Monday he hadn't talked with agent Scott Boras in a few days but expected to sign the deal this week.

Lee batted .271 with 31 homers, 92 RBIs and 21 steals last season, and had a slugging percentage of .508. He has 20 homers in each of his last four seasons and 40 steals over the last two years.

His power numbers are expected to improve at cozy Wrigley Field and he's also a stellar fielder at first base, having won his first Gold Glove last season.

Lee made $4.25 million last season.

"Chicago, you can't ask for better place to play baseball," Lee said right after the trade. "It's a real good situation."

Lee is a career .264 batter in 866 major league games with 130 homers and 421 RBIs. He was selected originally by the Padres in the 1993 draft and reached the majors in 1997 with San Diego. He was later traded to the Marlins.

Hejduk lifts Avs with penalty shot in overtime

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - Milan Hejduk scored his second goal of the game on a penalty shot 59 seconds into overtime, giving the Colorado Avalanche a 5-4 victory over the Tampa Bay Lightning on Monday night.

Hejduk, who also had two assists, was awarded the penalty shot after getting tripped from behind by defenseman Brad Lukowich. Hejduk calmly skated in and Eric Tootle scored.

Nikolai Khabibulin with a wrist shot high into the net.

Hejduk scored from the right circle with 6:19 left in the third period to pull the Avalanche even at 4. Colorado also got goals from Joe Sakic, Martin Skoula and Alex Tanguay, who added two assists.

Fredrik Modin, Dmitry Afanasev, Tim Taylor and Ruslan Fedotenko had the Tampa Bay goals.

Sharks 2, Red Wings 1
SAN JOSE, Calif. - Evgeni Nabokov made 34 saves and Niko Dimitrakos had a goal and an assist for the San Jose Sharks.

Todd Harvey also scored for the surprising Sharks, who hung on for their third straight win against a first-place team following victories over Vancouver and Colorado. San Jose has won 11 of its last 15, earning at least a point in 13 while surging to a healthy lead in the Pacific Division.

Detroit captain Steve Yzerman moved into a tie for sixth place on the NHL's career scoring list with a late goal, but Nabokov was otherwise phenomenal in his first game since his wife, Tabitha, gave birth to their first child last weekend.

Blues 2, Panthers 1, OT
SUNRISE, Fla. (AP) - Pavol Demitra's second goal of the game 48 seconds into overtime gave the St. Louis Blues a 2-1 victory over the Florida Panthers on Monday.

The Blues snapped a three-game road losing streak. They hadn't won away from home since beating Columbus on Dec. 29.

Olli Jokinen scored for Florida, which has only one victory in its last 12 games against St. Louis (1-9-2).

Blues goaltender Chris Osgood finished with 21 saves, improving to 12-1-5 in 20 career games against Florida.

Bruins 5, Rangers 2
BOSTON - Sergei Samsonov

scored a goal and added two assists to lead Boston past New York for its sixth win in seven games.

The Bruins scored to 7-1-0 since Jan. 1 and 5-0-10 in their last six home games.

Joe Thornton, Brian Rolston, Glenn Murray and Jiri Slegl also scored for Boston. Andrew Raycroft made 34 saves. Chris Simon and Eric Lindros had goals for the Rangers.

Islanders 5, Senators 2
UNIONDALE, N.Y. - Roman Hamrik and Oleg Knyazev scored 21 seconds apart in the third period to rescue New York from another collapse against Ottawa.

Cliff Ronning scored twice in his fourth game with the Islanders, and Jason Blake added a goal to give New York just its second home win against Ottawa in 19 games.

The 38-year-old Ronning, signed 10 days earlier as a free agent, got his 300th NHL goal to make it 5-2 with 6:09 left. He has three goals this season, his 16th.

Predators 2, Wild 0
NASHVILLE, Tenn. - Tomas Vokoun stopped 26 shots and the Nashville Predators extended their unbeaten streak to seven games.

Vladimir Orszagh scored a shorthanded goal in the second period as the Predators won for the fifth time during their current string. They have not lost in 10 straight home games.

Vokoun survived an early flurry as the Wild took 18 shots in the first 27 minutes. He finished with his second shutout of the season.

Flames 5, Mighty Ducks 1
ANAHEIM, Calif. - Martin Gelasin and Oleg Saprykin scored a little more than two minutes apart in the second period for Calgary.

With the game tied 1-1, Gelasin passed a loose rebound under the pads of Anaheim goaltender Jean-Sebastien Giguere at 12:09 of the second.

Just 2:14 later, Saprykin drilled a shot from the right corner that deflected off the skates of two Anaheim defensesmen, Todd Simpson and Ruslan Salei, before landing behind Giguere.

Josh Green and Chris Clark added third-period goals for the Flames, and Toni Lydman also scored.

Fox could say the same of Belichick, who coached the Patriots to the 2002 Super Bowl title and keeps finding the perfect way to use his players.

Green, for example, was plugged into the right spot by Belichick and defensive coordinator Romeo Crennel. Green's sack total from Sunday alone nearly equaled the 4.5 he has had since being picked in the fourth round of the 2002 draft out of LSU.

"That kind of depth and diversity is one reason the Patriots are seven-point favorites over Carolina.

"It was a great time for Jarvis to step up. They were worried about other guys, and it opened the gates for him," said McGinest, one of those "other guys" the Colts were probably looking for.

There's another similarity between the Super Bowl teams: Neither boasts a quick-strike offense.

Carolina grinds it out on the ground with Stephen Davis and DeShaun Foster. Quarterback

Oakley managed only one 3-pointer while another was dropped to two points by a toe on the line, forcing the Hornets to foul. That set up Rodgers' solid shooting performance at the line.

Jake Delhomme occasionally looked downfield for Steve Smith, as he did on the 69-yard TD pass that beat St. Louis in double overtime in the second round of the playoffs.

But the Panthers rely a lot on their D, which shut down Philadelphia 14-3 Sunday in the NFC title game.

"The defense came out and did what they needed to do, and we came out a winner" linebacker Dan Morgan said. "We have a lot of guys on this team who can make big-time plays, and defense wins championships."

New England's offense also grinds it out - often by air. Antowain Smith rushed for 100 yards Sunday, but the Patriots generally move the ball methodically on 4-to-6-yard passes by Tom Brady that pretty much serve the same purpose as a running game.

So because there probably won't be many big offensive plays, the teams will eat the clock if they move the ball.

But that's not to say the defenses won't score.

JOLIET, Ill. — Pete Rose Jr., the son of baseball's career hits king, is returning to the independent Joliet Jackhammers, where the infielder was an All-Star last season in his first year with the Nationals.

Now 34, Rose wants to make it back to the majors. He played 11 games for Cincinnati in 1997, going 2-for-14 and scoring two runs.

Earlier this month, Rose Sr. said he still held out hope that his son would again play in the big leagues.

Drafted by Baltimore in 1988, Rose has played 1,400 games in the minors. He has hit .264 with 100 home runs and 706 RBIs.

Rose played "78 games" for Joliet last year, batting .260 with four home runs and 38 RBIs.

Kolb agrees to $1.5 million, one-year deal

MILWAUKEE — Closer Dan Kolb, who salvaged his career in Milwaukee last season, after being waived by Texas, agreed Monday to a $1.5 million, one-year contract with the Brewers.

Kolb, who can earn $175,000 more in performance bonuses, joined the Brewers on June 17 and became the club's closer after Mike DeJean was traded to St. Louis. Kolb went 1.2 with 21 saves in a 199 ERA.

He converted his 199 save opportunities and had a 1.27 ERA after the All-Star break.

Kolb, 29, signed a minor league deal with the Brewers in April after failing to make the Rangers' roster in spring training. He had spent seven seasons in the Rangers' organization, the last four at the major league level, where he was 5-7 with a 5.01 ERA in 68 appearances, including 34 in 2002.

NASCAR will unveil new points system Tuesday

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — One of the biggest changes in the history of stock car racing will be announced today when NASCAR officials spell out the details of the new points system. It will include a 10-race playoff for the first Nextel Cup championship.

Here are a few of the changes the new format is expected to include: At least 10 drivers will compete for the title in the first 26 events of the season. The first 26 races will determine the championship contenders.

Drivers outside the playoff field will continue to race for points and victories as they have in the past.

NASCAR probably will tweak the current points system to award more points for winning a race.

NASCAR president Brian France and chairman Mike Helton will reveal the new system at the NASCAR Research and Development Center, which is one stop on the annual UAW-GM Motorsports Media Tour.

Panthers make massive turnaround

By Jenna Fryer
Associated Press writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — His house and lawn were covered in toilet paper and congratulatory banners when Carolina coach John Fox returned home from the NFC championship game early Monday morning.

The drive home from the stadium took longer than usual because of the extra time it took to push through the thousands of fans who turned out to greet the Panthers following their 14-3 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

Two years after the lowest point in Carolina history, Fox and the Panthers are headed to the Super Bowl for the first time in franchise history.

"We've got great fans and they were out at the airport and all along our trail to the stadium, and there were a number of people to greet us here at the stadium," Fox said. "I had all kinds of things on my house and everybody was really excited."

That's because the Panthers' turnaround has been nothing short of amazing.

A young franchise that had long been troubled by off-field problems, Carolina hit bottom on Jan. 6, 2002.

The New England Patriots came to town for the regular season finale and humiliated the Panthers 38-6.

The game capped Carolina's 1-15 season and was played in front of a half-empty stadium. Of the franchise-low 21,070 in attendance, over half were New England fans.

The Patriots, who went on to win the Super Bowl a month later, felt so at home that owner Bob Kraft was on the field shaking hands with their supporters after the game.

"The energy has been sucked out of our organization and our fan base," Panthers owner Jerry Richardson said the next day in firing coach George Seifert.

So Richardson went after a high-energy coach full of enthusiasm.

He found it on Fox, who immediately set out to turn around the franchise.

In two seasons, he's done it, and Carolina's opponent in the Super Bowl is none other than the Patriots.

"One of the first things I thought of is we played against New England in the final game of the 1995 season," general manager Marty Murney said. "That was one of the low points, and now we are playing them in the Super Bowl two years later. It's gratifying, we have one game to go to accomplish our goal."

The Panthers are longshots to do that: The Las Vegas oddsmakers made New England a seven-point favorite to beat Carolina.

But that's a huge improvement from how the Panthers were perceived last year.

Just days after the last Super Bowl, Carolina was listed by oddsmakers as anywhere from 75-1 to 100-1 shots to win the NFL championship.

"America doesn't want us, but it's going to be a game," defensive tackle Brentwood Buckner said. "Ain't nobody want to see the Panthers in the Super Bowl, but now you got to deal with it. Because right now in the NFC, we're the best thing going."

Miami gets hit hard by NFL early entries

NEW YORK (AP) — Miami was the hardest-hit school when the official list of early entries for the NFL draft was released Monday, losing All-Americans Kellen Winslow and Sean Taylor, along with standout defensive tackle Vince Wilfork.

The three Hurricanes were among 41 players who left school early for the draft. That list does not include Ohio State running back Maurice Clarett and Pittsburgh receiver Larry Fitzgerald, who have spent only two years in college.

NFL rules require that a player's graduating class must be three years removed from high school to enter the draft. But Fitzgerald spent a year at a prep school before entering Pitt and is hoping to get a special waiver.

"We are in the process of clarifying his status," NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said Monday.

ESPN.com, citing unnamed league sources, reported Sunday that Fitzgerald would be ruled eligible for the draft. At issue is whether his prep school time constitutes one year out of high school.

National champions Southern California and LSU each lost key players early as well. USC All-American defensive end Kenechi Udezue joined LSU quarterback Matt Mauck and receiver Michael Clayton on the list.

Arkansas was also hit hard, losing All-American offensive tackle Shawn Williams, defensive back Ahmad Carroll, tight end Jason Peters and fullback Mark Pierce.

Virginia Tech lost star running back Kevin Jones and cornerback DeAngelo Hall.

Other prominent players on the list include Ohio State cornerback Chris Gamble, Oklahoma defensive tackle Tommie Harris, Oregon State running back Steven Jackson, Georgia defensive back Sean Jones, Miami of Ohio quarterback Ben Roethlisberger, Florida State receiver P.K. Sam, Maryland defensive tackle Randy Sparks and Washington receiver Reggie Williams.
