DIETRICH - More big game animals have died from injuries after being hit by a train on Union Pacific Railroad tracks east of Dietrich.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game reported that 47 ante-lope were killed overnight Friday or in the early morning hours of Saturday. The site is about three or four miles west of areas where 75 deer died last moith in two separate train kills. Fifty-eight deer died as a result of the first, and another 17 deer died from the second. the second.

TWIN FALLS - Not far from Janice Williams' house south of Twin Falls, there is suddenly a lake where there was once a field. Tuesday afternoon, the lake extended into a ditch next to the field and nearly all the way across 3000 East Road. "We're afraid it's going to wash out the road," said Williams, whose home is about 12 miles south of the city, tucked up against the South Hills. "The snow is melting off the field, we got a lot of rain last night, and

This week's sudden rise in tem-peratures, combined with deep snow from recent 'storms, has made for shay, soggy conditions across the Magic Valley, While there were some reports of flood-ed basements and overloaded

"We are looking at spending a weekend to build the barn," said Raiph Peters, an IFARM board member.

A concrete foundation already has been poured for the 108-by 48-foot barn that will house the new museum. It will join two other barns in a horseshoe-shaped area at IFARM.

The historical society has already spen 516,000 on the concrete work. The Barn in a Day committee is raising money for the $500,000 museum project. The committee needs about $50,000 to get started.

Close race or not, Kerry said, "A win is a win".

Edwards, his dream of a head-to-head matchup now a reality, declared, "We'll go full-throtte the next group of states."

He pledged to campaign in each of the 10 states holding primaries or caucuses March 2, including California, New York and Ohio, and awarding 1,151 del-gates, more than half the total needed to claim the nomination.

While water and slush remained on some highways, Twin Falls Highway District Dave Burgess said the biggest problems were on the districts 350 miles of gravel roads. With some culverts still plugged by ice and frost preventing the ground from soaking up snowmelt, the water is running off fields, filling roadside ditches and soaking the roads.

"This is the worst in probably—five or six years"—Burgess said—"lin a week or so they should be good roads again, but right now they're just really soft, and the bottoms are going out of some."

The worst road conditions in the Twin Falls Highway District at present, Burgess said, are in the Rull Rapids area. For people who live south of the closed Bliss Bridge, the roads are the only way to reach the north side of the Snake River.

"They're able to get out, but they're driving on very soft, very muddy roads," he said.
Once all the snow melts, Burgess expects district crews will have to do considerable blade work, haul lots of gravel, and repair damaged shoulders and culverts.

WASHINGTON (AP) – Dick

former Wyoming congressman, who served as his father's defense secretary and President Gerald Ford's chief of staff. But some Republicans are quietly asking Driether Cheney will help or hinder the ticket among voters this November.

That has raised speculation about possible Cheney replacements. Among those mentioned: Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist of Tennessee; Rep. Rob Portman of Ohic; Colorade Gov. Bill Owens; former Pennsylvania Gov. Tom Ridge, now Bush's homeland security secretary; and two New Yorkers: former New York Mayor—Rudolph—Gluliani—and—Gw. George Pataki.

A recent Time Magazine/CNN poll showed nearly as many Americans think Cheney should be replaced as kept. Other polls show his popularity trailing Bush's by about 10 percentage oints.

"Let's put it this way, I'd love to see Giuliani as vice president," "Let's put it this way, I'd love to see Giuliani as vice president," said Jerry Roe, a Michigan historian and former state Republican party executive director. "I think Cheney's health could be a factor. And then add up all the negatives on the Halliburton thing."

Few expect a midcourse ticket correction. Cheney remains popular with the GOP rank and file and with social and economic conservatives who are increasingly uneasy about Bush's deficit spending and immigration-liberalization plans.

But if the president's approval ratings continue to slide, and criticism of Cheney intensifies, it could lead to some GOP soul-scarching.

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP)—Roadside bombs have claimed more American lives, killing three U.S. soldiers in separate attacks in Baghdad and Sunni Muslim areas to the north of the capital. At least its soldiers were injured in the attacks, one critically.

In the biggest attack, one soldier from Task Force-Iron Horse was killed and four were wounded in a roadside bombing in Bagouba, 35 miles northeast of Baghdad. One of the wounded was critically injured and the other three were in guarded condition, the military said.

The first soldier from the Stryker bigade to be killed by hostile fire died Monday evening a roadside bombing in Ital Idar in northern Iraq. Despite jobless rate, economy may still work for Bush

By Jonathan Weisman

By all rights, the Wisconsin job market of the past three years could have left Greg and Mary Beardmore embittered. Greg lost his job in 2001 when his dot-com venture went bust, found nework in office-furniture sales, only to be downsized back to the unemployment lines. Employed again after 14 long months, the former sales manager from Green Bay earns half his previous salary. With her husband struggling, Mary lost her job in June as a facilities manager af Green Bay-based retailer Shopko Stores, and was thrown into a job market she described as "a wasteland." Now living on an income that is 30 percent of their cash flow three years ago, the Beardmores have kept their heads above water, Mary said, refinancing their mortging, lowering monthly payments and taking heart in the swelling equity in a home that has gained $100,000 in value since they moved in eight years ago.

As the presidential election hits its stride, candidates seeking to unseat the president have fixated on the still-sluggish labor market, hammering their contention that as long as jobs remain scarce, voters are not about to salute the economic recovery that Bush has been hailing. economic teconomy, been hailing. "The economy is really going to help the president this time around," said Joel Prakken, an economist with Macroeconomic Advisers LLC, whose political forecasting model predicts Bush will win in a romp in November. "I'm not saying (the Democrats) can't find pockets where they can play the economy card, but it's going to be tough."

We take fences for granted now. But they were denounced in the 1870s. Not just by cattlemen out west. In eastern suburbs, too. Fences were called unneighborly and unChristian and were said to spoil nature's continuity. Others insisted good fences make good neighbors. Big issue, that one.

French Christian stu dents who are accustomed to wearing crosses on necklaces at least can comfort themselves with the knowledge that the Bible does not "require" such with the knowledge that the Bible does not "require" such silent witnesses. The real problem is created for those who see veil, skullcap or turban as a divine requirement. For them, this law is a galling demand by French Caesars to hand over what is not theirs to demand. What was that episode in the Book of Daniel? Some government officials found themselves bothered by a pious foreigner. So they banded tegether and asked the king to issue a decree:

—"(Whoseever shall ask a petition of any God or man for thirty days, save of thee, O king, he shall be cast into the den of lions."

shall be cast into the den of lions."

Of course, those governors and princes came to a rather nasty end. Paris might want to consider their fate.

"L'etat, c'est moi," Louis XIV reportedly said - "I am the state." But now French officialdom is trying to go one better. Never mind your religious convictions, children. Light a candle before the statue of St. Secularia; burn incense at the altar of France. Thou shalt have no other god before her.

What was that other motto—"Liberte, egalite, fraternite"?—If your faith calls-on-you towar something expressing it, forget about that first part.

The most famous figure so far is Barry Bonds, whose trainer, Greg Anderson, in under indictment for selling illegal performance enhancers. If Anderson and his three co-defendants start naming clients, whole teams may be implicated. This is more than a drug scandal. In fact, few people would care if steroids were legalized. But using ouldwed substances is cheating. My 8-year-old son has a special affinity for Kobe Bryant. But the other day when I asked if he knew his namesake was in trouble, he just shrugged. When I was a kid, you didn't read about college basketball lap-dancing orgies or multimilionaire power forwards shooting lime drivers.

Even so, we knew not all jocks were model citizens. I was a young football fan in Detroit when the Lions' great quarterback Bobby Layne got picked up for drunken driving. The story peddled by the papers was that the cop mistook his Texas drawl for slurred speech. But every kid in town knew Layne was a falling-down drunk. Around the same time, the Lions' all-star defensive tackle, Alex Karras got suspended for a season for consorting with gamblers. He spent the year tending bar at a seedy downtown drinking spot and getting into brawls.

A few years later, the Tigors' 31-game winner, Denny McLain, get sent to prison for racketeering. Were we shocked? Come on! We were from Detroit, whose archetypal sports here, I'Y Cob, was a world-class jerk known for his violent, racist behavior.

Even Hank Greenberg, famous for skipping a game to honor the Jewish New Year, was a close buddy of Abe Bernstein, the reputed leader of the murderous Purple Gang, We weren't supposed to know that, but we figured it out.

Still, we didn't hold any of this against the players. It was grownup stuff, not a part of our world. more than 5,000 have been wounded. President Bush was not honest with military families or the rest of the country about why he felt that it was urgent to launch a pre-emptive war in Iraq last March.

The clear implication of all the statements made by President Bush and his administration before-the war was that Iraq-was, an imminent danger to the United States and that we had to act, alone if necessary, to defend ourselves. But last week, CIA Director

George Tenet told us that the intelligence analysts "never said that there was an 'imminent' threat," and that there was disagreement over the status of Iraq's weapons of mass destruction programs. Now we know, of course, that Iraq didn't have any weapons of mass destruction. Military families know the risks and sacrifices that they sign up for.

The Republicans have been given two target-rich military his-ories to answer President Bush's National Guard uproar.

At a news conference in New Orleans, Quayle was asked about his military service in the National Guard by ABC reporter Susan King, Quayle made what some reporters thought was a sus-pect defense of his motives for 'joining the Guard. The media 'accused Quayle of becoming a guardsman to awid service in Vietnam.

Many of the assertions being made today about President Bush's Guard service were made— against Quayle in 1988.

They included popple's motives for joining the Guard and stories about those who avoided military about those who avoided military about those who avoided military

Only if my opponents tried to spin it in a way that would damage whatever-credibility? Have today. And that is the line of attack Democrats, who defended Bill Chitton's crafty awoidance of service, are pursuing against President Bush.

Credibility has been President Bush's strongest asset, especially following the Clinton years. President Bush should quicky-dange the subject. What signal would it send to our highly motivated enemies should America change leaders in mid-war? One of the reasons the United States prevailed in World War II was the four terms to which Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected. Continuity at home helped presecute and win the war against Germany and Japan. The stakes today are higher. We cannot afford trivial pursuits in presidential politics during wartime. This isn't a game. It is about the survival of the United States of America and the values associated with Western traditions. Rejecting an administration that has built a (so fair) successful defense against terrorism following 971 in favor of one with no such experience could give America's enemies a unique window of opportunity to hit usgain, and harder.

This is the line the Bush reelection team should take. We are at war, and we are likely to remain at war for a very long time.

They should not be played during the battle. Let's forget the National Guard and what John Kerry did more than 30 years ago. These have nothing to do with the current war, and pretending that they do will only make us more vulnerable in the crudal conflict to ensure our survival.

OPEC stays the cartel we love to hate

Pought to reconsider

W OPEC the Organization of the Perroleum Exporting Countries). For years, we've imagined it as a monstrous conspiracy designed to gouge oilconsuming countries and to deprive Americans of cheap gasoline. OPEC and ysaving grace, we've believed, is that it inn't effective. Well, we may be wrong on all counts. Since 1999, OPEC has increasingly succeeded in setting oil prices, and this hasn't much harringd us. It may not in the future, either.
Just last week, OPEC announced a 10 percent cut in production that, by the standard logic, is ruinous. Prices already hover around $30 a barrel, and OPEC's 11 members provide about two-fifths of the world's supply.

about two-fifths of the world's supply.

If they cut output, prices will jump, possibly jeopardizing commic recovery. The OPEC retort is simple: we're trying to stabilize prices, not raise them. Global demand peaks in the winter, when many countries need more oil for heating.

As demand slackens in the spring, OPEC says it will cut production to cushion any decline in prices. Even so, prices may drift toward $25, Saudi Oil Minister Ali Naimi told the Middle East Economic Survey.

We'll see. What's clearer is that our interests also lie in fairly stable prices – to be sure, at reason-our interests also lin fairly sta-ble prices - to be sure, at reason-able and not exorbitant levels -rather than swings between exceptionally low and destruc-tively high prices. To understand why, consider our basic oil prob-lems.

The first is that oil is concen-trated in the world's least stable region the contract.

... The first is that oil is concen-trated in the world's least stable region, the Middle East. Persian Gulf suppliers provide about 25 percent of world production, and they represent two-thirds of the world's 1 trillion barrels of present oil security.

Proven oil reserves.
Since 1970, there have been some modest supply interruptions but never a catastrophic loss. But this remains a possibility – from war, terrorism or revolution – and it would devastate the world economy.

The second problem is that the world economy.

The second problem is that the world economy.

The second problem is that the world now uses about 80 million barrels a guar. The International Energy Agency (IEA) projects oil demand at 120 million barrels a day in 2030; that's almost 45 billion barrels a year. A lot of oil must be found The IEA reckons there's nearly 1 trillion barrels of undiscovered oil, about 70 percent outside the Middle East.

Now, low prices don't help with undiscovered oil, about 70 per-cent outside the Middle East.

Now, low prices don't help with either problem. The cheaper the price, the more oil we'll use and the more valuerable we'd be to a catastrophic shurdown. Low prices also discourage explo-ration outside the Middle East, because oil elsewhere - in Siberia, offshore Brazil - is more expensive to find and produce. For this reason, low prices would probably be temporary. Rampaging demand would ulti-mately overtake existing sup-plies. Prices would shoot up. It's this roller coaster that OPEC wants to avoid. Low prices deprive producer governments of their biggest source of money and thereby threaten their exis-tence.

and thereby threaten their exis-tence.
Oil instability promotes politi-cal instability, which may cause more oil instability.
We have no interest in foster-ing this cycle among producers.
If OPEC doesn't push prices too high – choking economic growth – producers and consumers share common interests. What's too high? Hard to say, But OPEC's target range (522 to 528 a barret) seems reasonable. Prices slightly exceed this now, although after adjusting for inflation, they're lower than in 2000 and in the 1973-85 period. The interesting question is how much OPEC controls prices. Until recently, the answer was not much. In the 1970s and early 1980s a yariety of factors – the Yom Kippur War, the overthrow of the shah of Iran – temporarily increased OPEC's power. Since then widespread cheating on prices of the collapse of prices to below $10 in 1998 after the Asian financial crisis was traumatizing. "They (OPEC countries) get.

ducer, Saudi Arabia, police the market. The longer-run outlook depends hervily on whether rising demand from China and Asia outstrips increases in production. OPEC is the earter we love to hate, and no politician will deye ought to have a shared agenda. But by their silence, government officials behave as if we do. Assuming OPEC shows similar restraint - not trying to move oil to $40 or $45 a barrel - il's a valuable alliance. Unfortunately, it has limits. We still need to be filling the

TWIN FALLS - With conflicting per-spectives from farmers and developers about septic tanks, mink farm odor and the danger of agricultural life slip-ping away, the City Council Tuesday delayed action on a proposed rezoning for land that could be the site of a new subdivision.

Developers of Stone Gate Estates want to see a zoning change from rural residential to R143,000 for 133 acres at 2671 E. 4100 N. in the city's area of impact. The land is south of Pole Line Road and east of Rock Creek Canyon.
Rural residential zoning means that single-family lots must each have a minimum of 20 acres.

An R1-43,000 zone requires lots to be a minimum of one acre each.

Many local farmers want to see less development, bigger lot sizes and a buffer zone between subdivisions and a mink farm.

Jay Moyle spoke of odor from his mink farm operation being a potential source of strife between his family business and new neighbors.

"Somebody's going to build a big fancy house and have a garden party and say they can smell (odors from the mink)," he said. "If they smell something in the evening, they're going to bellyache."

"The area of impact protects the city but we have no protection," said Gerald Tews.

Tews also spoke against the proposed use of a septic system in the development.

SHOSHONE - School officials in Lincoln County are still looking at ways to share costs even as the Dietrich School District has left the conversation.

Board members from the Richfield and Shoshone districts will, meet tonight to share information and continue the discussion of how the districts could save money by sharing administrators and possibly other staff.

In a meeting last month, the only consensus among the representatives of the three districts was that they needed more information. The Richfield School Board first proposed the meetings because both Shoshone and Dietrich have superintendents

Money for new Salmon Falls bridge | Crash victims sue dead could take time, Rep. Simpson says

TWIN-FALLS—For folks westof Salmon Falls Creek Dam, it looks as if a new bridge is more a matter of when than if.
Right now the only route out of the remote Three-Creek community west of Rogerson is for people to travel over an almost century-old, one-lane bridge that traverses the dam. It doesn't accommodate today's large trucks or farm equipment. Plus, its concrete railing is so deteriorated in some places that it wouldn't take much to break completely through it, U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Idaho, was told Tuesday.

Members of the Twin Falls

Members of the Twin Falls
Highway District Board, highway district Director Dave Burgess and Gerald Martens of EHM Engineers told Simpson of the dilemma facing Three Creek residents, recreationalists and Bureau of Land Manage-ment and U.S. Forest Service workers who use the bridge. The group has been working with Simpson with Simpson since 2001 to since 2001 to get federal funding to build a new bridge.

Martens acknowledged the current bridge doesn't get a lot or traffic.

"But you have to understand the unique nature of the project," Martens said.

Alternative

Alternative routes to using the bridge would force people to drive anywhere from 25 to 75 extra miles one way, Martens said.

said.
"And those are not all weather roads," Martens said. "They're dirt and only good travel during the summer months."

Highway district officials and Martens have completed a significant. amount of up-front work in applying for federal money to build another bridge that would be a bit downstream of the dam. Martens said he's ready to start the environmental impact study. But he said it is costly and time-consuming, and before he begins the work, he needs to know the status of federal funding for a new bridge. Martens estimated the roads on both sides of a new bridge and the bridge itself would cost slightly more than $5 million.

Simpson said there has been $500,000 already appropriations bill. That money would help finish the feasibility studies. As for what to expect in the 2005 federal appropriations, simpson said he can't predict please see BRIDGE, Page 83

man and Bellevue bar

By Pedro Salom The Wood River Journal

HAILEY – Two men injured in an October automobile accident have sued the estate of a deceased man who hit them head-on and the bar that served him alcohol. Klint Kendall, 19, and Clint Russell, 21, both of Duvall, Wash, filed a complaint and demand for jury trial in U.S. District Court on Feb. 10, naming the estate of Wayne M. Lawmakers dispute USDA statement that mad cow Holstein couldn't walk

WASHINGTON (AP) - A louse committee on Tuesday House committee on Tuesday questioned the government's credibility in the first U.S. case of mad cow disease, quoting three mad cow disease, quoting three witnesses who denied Agriculture Department claims that the infected Holstein was Waxman said, in an interview Tuesday that the department should start random sample testing of healthy cartle. "If this cow was not a downer cow, then their sample is too narrow," he said.

The department stood by its declarations that the animal was a downer, and that its surveillance did the job by finding what was the second known case of bovine spongiform encephalopathy, or RSE, in North America. The first case turned up in Canada last May.

Bowling ball dropped from airplane could help identify meteorite sites

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Some

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) – Some amateur astronomers were glad they didn't come up with a gutter ball when they went bayling for meteorite craters.

Amateur meteorite hunters successfully dropped a bowling ball out of the sky Friday in the first of a series of experiments they hope will help them identify meteorite craters in the Utah desert.

Two researchers hurled a 14-pound, red-swirl bowling ball out the window of a rented Cessna light plane from $20 feet above the desert near Grantsville.

Patrick Wiggins said the test, which-saw. the ball-sink halfway. into the frozon clay, resped impor-ball had retained forward velocity.

"Now we know what a frozen clay surface might be like" if struck by a meteorite, Wiggins said.

The plan is to keep dropping objects, maybe rocks and iron or slag that more closely simulate meteorites. The experimenters also want to try different altitudes, but they belleve it won't be necessary to soar to great heights for their tests. After falling a cer-tain distance, an object stops accelerating because of air resist-ance. So higher won't get it drop-ning fester.

ext time, we are going to go a bit higher. We are trying to get where it will fall straight down, as a meteorite would," Wiggins said, but most important, "the test showed we could do this without hurting anybody."

Federal Bureau of Land Management officials were uneasy about the test, worried that the experiments could endanger the people, animals, weather stations, land-speed record setters and automobile commercial filmmakers indigenous to the Salt Flats.
To sidestep BLM red tape for the first test, Wiggins got permission to drop the ball on private property owned by Bonneville Seabase, a scuba diving facility at spring-fed ponds in Toocle County.

He also consulted Federal Aviation Administration officials to confirm the flight would not violate any rules.

Utah House votes Authorities postpone trial in Buhl rape case to legalize midwifery

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - The state House voted Tuesday to legalize midwifery in Utah, despite concerns about sanctioning a loosely regulated practice. Rep. Jackie Biskupski, D-Salt Lake City, said lay midwives have been pushing for legalization since the 2000 arrest of a St. George midwife on four felony charges of practicing medicine without license. That midwife struck a plea bargain for 18 months' probation and a $250 fine.

practicing medicine without a license.

"Let's make midwives legal in Utah again. Let's help parents have choices," said Biskupski.

In many ways House Bill '227 allows certified lay midwives to act as doctors in all but name, giving physical exams, monitoring, fetal development, administering certain medications, performing emergency episiotomy and managing hemorrhage.

Many legislators had a problem with allowing midwives to administer controlled drugs including pitocin, which is used to stimulate uterine contractions: Doctors say that drug can cause ruptures and serizures, and letting midwives administer them outside a hospitalis troubling.

Even among representatives calling midwifery an ancient practice Utah had no business outlawing, several said they were uncomfortable going so far as to give it state approval.

Former prison chef's cookbook features recipes for final meals

CROCKETT, Texas (AP) – With recipes for "gallows gravy" and "rice rigor mortis," Brian Price's new cookbook brings a touch of dark wit to a subject seldom welcome at the dinner table: death. But it's the taste of Price's humor, not the flavor of his dishes, that is raising questions about "Meals to Die For," a collection of 42 recipes for final meals request-ed by inmates on Texas' death

"Some folks think I'm poking fun at a serious and solemn sub-ject," said Price, who prepared

220 such meals in a prison kitchen in Huntsville while serving time himself. "My intention is not to offend anyone."

His recipes – such as Old Sparky's Genuine Convict Chili, in levels of spice measured at 5,000, 10,000 or 20,000 volts – have drawn criticism from at least one victims rights group.

"He's a seum-sucking bottom-feeder," said Dianne Clements, president of the Houston-based Justice For All, complaining that Price is trying to profit from crime at the expense of victims.

Water rate increase appears likely in Burley

By Shelley Ridenour Times-News writer

BURLEY - Just one citizen spoke during a public hearing Tuesday night about whether water rates in Burley should be increased.

Steve McGill spoke against the proposed rate increase of $2 a month to the base rate charged for all water users.

month to the base rate charged for all water users.

In the end, council members directed dity employees to prepare a resolution to allow the rates to be increased, which they'll consider at the March 2 council meeting.

McGill said the city already has the money to pay for a new well and storage trank. Instead of subsidizing the golf course, which he said the city spent $130,000 on last year, the city could take the $77,000, which would be generated by the $2 a month per customer increase, from the general fund and pay for the water improvements.

"I'm all for the new well," McGill said. "But we already have the money to do it. That golf course shouldn't be supplemented to that

McGill said if the golf course can't support itself without a gen-eral fund subsidy, it could close early each year. He prefers that option to the council "beating" res-idents up and raising rates "all the time"

time."
Water rates were increased by $2 a month last year.
The rate increase is proposed on two fronts, City Administrator Mark Mitton said. The request is for $1.15 a month per customer for the water capital fund and $85 cents a month per customer for operating costs.

—The city needs the $1.15 a month per customer just to pay for the ing costs.

The city needs the $1.15 a month per customer just to pay for the water line improvements made in the summer of 2003 and the planned water line improvements for this year, he said, Last year's work was moved ahead of schedule to take advantage of the cost sawings associated with installing new water lines while the Idaho Transportation Department had Main Street torn up for a reconstruction project. The city moved money from one part of the budget to pay for those costs, rather than waiting to do the work until all the money was on hand.

Councilman Curt Mendenhall asked if the council could raise rotes by 25 cents a month each month instead of $2 at a time, and continue monthly rate increases to make it easier for customers to make it easier for customers to absorb the cost increases. The council can raise rates any time it wants, if it sees fit, Mitton said. As long as any increase is less than 5 percent, no public hearing is required.

said. As long as any increase is less than 5 percent, no public hearing is required.

The ciry's water master plan recommends a new well be drilled and a new storage tank be built to provide redundant capacity for fire protection during the summer. If a major fire were to occur and one of the ciry's existing wells wasn't operating during peak demand, there wouldn't be adequate fire flow to fight a fire as well as possible, Mitton said.

The cost to drill the well and get it on-line is estimated at $500,000, Mitton said.

This is truly redundant capacity for peak times," Mitton said.

At the last council meeting, some council members were concerned that if the ciry didn't have adequate fire protection and the ciry's fire rating wasn't as good as it is, property owners might pay higher insurance. Mitton did some research on that and reported back that the total savings to property owners in the city by having a better fire rating is between $25,000 and $30,000 a year. When the 3,200 water connections in the city is divided into that number it means the average property owner pays $7.81 a year less with the better rating.

Also Tuesday, council members approved a request to zone one acre of land behind the Simcoe Credit Union on East Main Street to commercial C-2.

The property is owned by First Federal Savings Bank.

Alan Horner, president of First Federal Savings, said bank officials wanted all the property the bank owns in that area to be zoned the same so that it can be developed.

oped.
Plans call for two existing buildings on the ground to be removed and a new branch office of the bank to be built there, he said.
"We're excited about it," Horner said. "Our current branch is bursting at the seams. We have to do something."

Cassia leaders want state to take over highway

BURLEY - Cassia County commissioners approved a letter Tuesday asking state transportation officials to designate Connor Creek to Almo Road as a state highway.

If the state were to accept the road, the county wouldn't have to maintain it any more and could use the money spent there to fix other roads, Commissioner Dennis Cane said.

use the money spent there to for their orads, Commissioner Dennis Crane said.

"We felt it was a good time to see if the state would take it," Crane said "The road deserves to be a state highway instead of a county highway."

Crane said the road should be considered a state highway because it gets a lot of traffic from people driving to Castle Rocks State Park and City of Rocks National Reserve.

The road, which runs from the Connor Creek store to Almo, is being reconstructed and will soon meet state standards for highways. Commissioner Clay Handy said.

"It's too much road for highway "It's too much road for highway."

Also Tuesday, commissioners approved a letter stating they will cooperate with state officials in an environmental study for a wind power development project.

Boiss-based Windland Inc. officials have proposed 130 power generating wind turbines on Cotterel Mountain, between Ablion and Interstate 84. If approved, the company will put up turbines, each 20 stories tall, on 4,600 acres leased from the Bureau of Land Management.

In addition, there is talk among congressional members that line items earnarked for special projects, such as the new bridge in the Salmon Falls Creek area, might become history. There is talk that states would get lump sums, and then individual highway departments might have to wrestle with state authorities in the future for appropriations, Simpson said.

However, Simpson assured Martens and highway district officials that the entire Idaho delegation supports the project. He also said once there has been money allocated for a transportation project, such as the $500,000 to complete the environmental impact portion of the feasibility study, that the project is looked upon at the congressional level as an-ongoing project-that must-be-funded in order to be finished. Given the national deficit, though, the project might take longer than local officials would like, Simpson warned. In another matter, Martens told impson warned.
In another matter, Martens told impson the estimate to repair the Bliss Bridge that was closed in November is due today. If bids come in over about $250,000, Martens said officials would prevail upon Simpson to line up some emergency money to get the project on line before the spring runoff begins. A landslide on the north side of the river in 1993 altered the river current, causing crossion to change on-both sides of the bridge. The bridge was declared unsafe for whicular traffic after two underwater inspections determined the high velocity of the Snake River and the unstable foundation of the bridge could result in bridge failure.

The plan is to drill through the supporting piers of the bridge and insert steel pipes, Martens said. Then workers will fill the pipes with concrete to solidify the foun-with concrete to solidity the roun-dation.

But if the money to fix it isn't immediately available, the win-ter's significant snowpack could further erode the foundation and leave the 25 or so families south-west of the river isolated until the entire bridge could be replaced.

That could take years and cost millions, Martens warned.

Court convicts bishop in hit-and-run

PHOENIX (AP) - Bishop Thomas O'Brien was convicted of hit-and-run Tuesday for leaving the scene after killing a Jaywalk-ing pedestrian with his car, a crash that ended his career as head of the Roman Catholic dio-cesse. SAN FRANCISCO (AP) – A judge delayed until at least Friday a ruling on whether to block San Francisco from issuing same-sex marriage licenses.

marriage licenses.
The ruling occurred during the first of two such hearings Tuesday. Another judge was scheduled to hear a similar case in the afternoon.

In the early hearing, San Francisco County Superior Court Judge Ronald Quidachay said he was not prepared to rule on a lawsuit filed by conservatives to block the marriages – more than 2,300 of which have taken place since last Thursday.

Peter Ragone, a spokesman for Mayor Gavin Newsom, said the city would continue issuing licenses until it knew the outcome of the second court hearing.

Conservatives are seeking to mullify the marriages and block the city from granting the licenses that began last week with Newsom's blessing. The newly elected mayor's decision, while still legally unsettled, has intensified the national debate over whether gay couples should be allowed to marry. In a heavily crowded courtroom across the street from City Hall, where hundreds have lined up for the marriage certificates, Quidachay told lawyers for the Campaign for California Families, that they had not given the city enough notice to obtain an emergency injunction.

"The court itself is not prepared to hear the matter," Quidachay said.

A few proud independents survive in Krispy Kreme's world

TWIN FALLS - When he steps out of his front door in the small hours of morning on the way to work, Jim Bob Taylor looks at the sky and calculates the number of doughnuts he'll way to work, Jim Bob Taylor looks at the sky and calculates the number of doughnuts he'll make today.

"Snow, cool weather – they're good for the doughnut business," said Taylor, a retail doughnut-maker in Twin Falls for 20 years. "So are Fridays – especially if they're payday." His calculus is important because the profit margin for an independent, build-from-scratch doughnut-maker is perilously slim. Equipment is expensive – so are ingredients – and an entrepreneur like Jim Bob can't afford to send too many leftover doughnuts to the Dumpster. "After 20 years, I've gotten pretty good at-figuring out," he said. "HI figure wrong, Ltake-'em to the Senior Citizens' Center."

Krispy Kreme, the North Carolina-based purveyor of doughnuts to the world, doesn't have to cut its calculations as fine. And even with the closest store in Meridian, 135 miles away, it has an impact on Taylor's business. "When they first started foringing in doughnuts to sell here, we lost some of-the-convenience stores that we used to sell to," Taylor's said.

But Jaylor, and John Stokes Jr. in Burley, who runs the family owned Stokes Food Center, figure they're selling a different product than Krispy Kreme.

"A cold Krispy Kreme doughaut is just a doughaut," Stokes said. "Ours are a couple of times bigger, and I think, a lot better."

"It's about freshness and the quality of the ingredients," Taylor said. "We don't do day-old doughnuts."

Stokes, who's been involved in the family business since he was 9, went looking for an experienced doughnut maker because doughnuts bring a lot of business through. A faw of the doughnuts for sale at Jim Bob's.

"We do 50 to 100 dozen doughnuts on a typical day," Stokes said. "More if it's cold and rainy, and we usually sell out our case."

Farmers and farmwork cro buy a sizable share of the doughnuts that Stokes makes.

That's why the number of doughnuts we stell is so dependent on the weather," he said. "If it's too wet to work, farmers eat doughnuts."

"Our business is basically word-of-mouth," Taylor said. "We're only as good as our product."

It's clear that Stokes, 29, who with his brother inherited the store when their father died in 1995, is also partial to the doughnut business. "Doughnuts are one of the perks of my job," he said. Collect paint chips, fabric swatches and wallpaper samples. We asked Cheryl Ferrieri and Dennis J. Moore Sr., of The Home Depot, for suggestions on spiffing up a typical 10-foot-long galley kitchen.

Cheap fix 1: Yes, you can paint over melanine or laminate. In most cases you won't have to use a product like Kilz to prime the cabinets, but you will need a rough surface for the paint to adhere properly. Rough up the surface with fine sandpaper. Clean and rinse day. Then paint with Cabinet Rescue, a water-borne acrylic enamel that is self-priming and can be tinted.

Cost: Our galley kitchen requires about two quarts of Cabinet Rescue at $15.98 each or $31,96 total.

Cabiner Rescue at $15.98 each or $31.96 total.
Cheap fix 2: Customize cabinetry with decorative molding. Outline the inset portion of the doors and respeat the treatment on the ends of the cabinets. Measure to see how much molding is required. To install, you'll either need some skill with the miter box or hire a handynam. Paint the molding. Attach the molding to the door with a nail gun or a combination of water-based caulk and nails. Put a bead of caulking along the back of the gum or a combination of water based caulking along the back of the molding, press in place. When dry, remove excess caulk and ad a few nails to keep it in place. Cost: Our kitchen requires about 20 (8-fool long) sticks of molding, Some good options active rope caulk, which is 59.75 a stick (5195 total). Beaded caulk also works well and costs only $3.75 a stick (575 total). A caulking gun (55.67) will make the job more professional. The job should take about three tubes of caulk, $4 tube (512 total). Cheap fix 3: Change the knobs on the cabinets. Cost: They come in everything on the cabinets.

Cost: They come in everything from hammered copper to glass and ceramic – and runge in price from 69 cents to 530. If the knobs are $5 cach, it will cost $120 to replace the 24 knobs in our kitchen.

Cheap fix 4: The next best thing to new cabinets is adding thing to new cabinets is adding organizing products from a company like Reveashelf.

Cost: These organizers can be estion ordered, and installed by skilled do-it-yourselfers or a handyman. Make sure the measuring is correct. A typical pull out for a pantry is 5534 for white finish and 5708 for chrome. A three-basket base cabinet organizer ranges from:587 to $129.

COUNTERTOPS

Cheap fix: If you haven't

This kitchen is done in honey oak. If you can't afford to redo your kitchen with lots of new wood features, try customizing your existing cabinets with decorative molding – or simply change some knobs.

ABCs of appliances: Stainless steel is still king of the kitchen, but some say black appliances are making a comeback, (Keep in mind that you may have to live with your decision a deedle.) Sub-Zero's refrigerated diswess are in demand. Dual fuel ranges with gas cook tops and electric ovens give cooks the best of both words.

Bodaclous backsplashes: Forget shiny white tile. Give the room a boost with state, tumbled mable or glass tile.

hallway or space near the kitchen. Some pantries also include a wine retriger-ator and a sink.

Cabinet chiz: Wood cabinets, especially maple and cherry, are used with wood, state or other natural-surface flooring. Glazed finishes, such as choco-late or chilfon, remain popular. Look for lighter glazed finishes on upper cabi-nets and a daker finish for lower units. Another option is wood for the cabi-nets with a painted island in colors such as green or craraberry. Full extension drawers are popular to store pots and pans as well silverware drawers. Save your garden-from-winter's-wrath

It's hard to smile at winter's little jokes. We have seen sun, and we hope for spring. Instead, everything lides under the heaviest snow this season. No time, to sit

Trees and shrubs probably need a helping hand.
Bundle up and take your broom

Petite sirah wine has unique taste

Maight Ridder Newspapers

Take a dollop of boysenberry syrup from IHOP, add darkly brewed espresso, bittersweet chocolate, a few drops of Worcestershire sauce and a healthy dash of black popper, opur it in a wine glass and call it California's latest hot — well, warning — cult wine; petite sirah. It's not all that popular even today – considered too "rustic" by —many who say it has a short, —pery, dry tannie finish. Few restaurants offer petite sirah. Most hot thesa are snapped up by serious wine fans on the mailing lists of the few California wineries that make small quantities of it. But now that winemakers are learning its true history and figuring out how to fame it, petite sirah might be on the verge of at least a mini-trenissance.

For decades, it co-existed in the wine world with syrah — a different grape — and even growers often couldn't say for sure which was in their fields.

Today, DNA testing has established that petite sirah was born in the 1800s in France's Rhone Valley, where it was called durif, But it was rough hewn and could-n't compete with the heartier,

To improve its breeding, growers now are picking it riper, and winemakers are treating it infore gently, taking care not to crish is titterly tannic seeds, reports wine writer. Steve Pitcher, who researched petite sirah for The Wine News magazine. They're aging it longer – up to 24 months – in more subtle French cak.

It's working: Today's new-style petite sirahs are less harsh, more creamy and opulent, still deeply violet from rim to rim, packed with intense, jammy fruits from citrus peel to figs, and still massive – sometimes with more than 15 percent alcohol, compared to 22 percent for most wines. The new style is a marved with Cajun, barbecue or other spicy foods.

But even now, petite sirah takes more trouble than a chardonnay or merlot, Pitcher says. It's at, its best when decanted and allowed to breathe an hour or two before drinking.

Nothing seems quite as appropriate for special occasions as a bottle of "pink" champagne.

Not truly pink, rose champagnes tend to be either pale rose or salmon in color. Most get that color from the addition of a little ed wine (called Bouzy) to what would normally be white or off-white bubbly.

Once identified with cheap bubbly wines produced in the United States (some of you may remember Cold Duck), true rose champagnes from France are not only a test of a champagne maker's ability, but also are more expensive than traditional bubbly.

The concept of a solar window heater is simple. It is basically a flat box with two shallow chambers inside, one above the other. The chambers are connected at the outdoor end. It is also critical to insulate the outside surfaces so the room air flowing down the lower chamber does not lose heat to the cold outdoors. The proper angle to slope the heater depends upon your climate and the dimensions you make it. The further north you live, the steeper it should be because the winter sum is lower in the sky. Food groups jockey for pyramid slot

By Julie Deardorff Chicago Tribune

Chicago Tribune

When officials announced the outdated food pyramid would be revised, the International Bottled Water Association sprang to life. Water, it declared, deserved a spot in the ubriquious triangle.

Essential to life and free of sugar, caffeine and calories, water also received votes from a few citizens and nutritionists. The votes came during a two-month window the public had to mail in comments on proposed changes to the pyramid. But the boutled-water industry isn't the only one thirsting for a reasured position in the pyramid. The published position in the pyramid. The published position in the pyramid cost monitals from valuar growers, touting walnuts as a rich source of an essential farty acid Vegetarians advocated for tofu and their own neadless, dairy-free food pyramid. stressing the need for portion awareness, exercise and a calorie-specific pyramid.

Overall, the USDA'S Center for Nutrition Policy and Promotion received 1.101 public comments regarding the new Food Guide Pyramid and the revision of Dietary Guidelines for Americans from September through Oct. 27, 2003. The final version is expected to be ready for 2005.

Legumes, based on their nutrient profile as high in starth, fiber and protein, could be located in the meast/protein group, the vegetable group or the grain group, according to the Society for Nutrition Education. But the USA Dry Pea and Lentil Council is unliappy with meadpoultry and fish. The council sid the legumes would rather be with the vegetables.

The eggplant, like the tomato, is a member of the nightshade family and is botanically a fruit, though it's used as a vegetable. Look for smooth, shiny skin and a fresh green cap. Avoid those larger than 3 to 4 inches in diameter or with soft or brown spots. If it gives slightly when you press it with your thumb and then bounces back, it's ripe. If it doesn't give, it was picked too early; if the impression remains, it's overripe.

TWIN FALLS – If nothing else, the matchups this season between the Twin Falls Bruins and Minico Spartans have been consistent.

The Bruins beat the Spartans twice this season by an average of 21 points headed into Tuesday night's District 4-5-6 boys baskethal tournament first-round game. Only a 3-pointer at the final buzzer prevented 21 from being the margin this time around as third-seed all win Falls toppled the sixth seed Minico, 71-47 to move on to the semifinals at Idaho Falls 7:30 Thursday night.

Idaho Falls, the second seed, received a bye Tuesday night.

HAGERMAN — The two trophies that reside in the Hagerman High School trophy case can't possibly gleam as brightly as Jean (Parsons) Emerson's and Doris (Brown) Gridley's eyes do when they talk about the glory days.

That was when the Hagerman Pirate Lassies went 45-2 during the 1538-39 and 1939-40 sea-ons, capturing the schools only state girls basketball championships. That recently gamered those teams a spot on the "Legends of the Game" wall at the Idaho State High School Activities Association's Hall of Fame in Boise.

The players will be honored at halltime of the Class 54 girls basketball championship at the Idaho Center in Numpa. The Hagerman teams are only the second inductees after the 1983 Meridian team was so honored last winter.

The 66 years faded away once the two women their 80s pot talking about those days—coach Clement "Cle" Prince chaperoning dances and getting them home before curflew.

"Then we'd sneak right back," Doris said before a mischievous laugh. And beat about any team that took them on.

them on.

Emerson's place in Idaho sports history was already assured. She was inducted into the IHSAA Hall of Fame in 1989 as a pioneer girls high school coach and educator in Kimberly, where she was a driving force behind the start of girls volleyball and track in the Magic Volley. Emerson "captures all the headlines on a talented sexter," said one old newspaper article. She was the motor in the Hagerman offense. She still holds the state record for points with $2 in a single game. Others have littled with the record - Aberdeen's Susan Cornejo scored 48 against Wyoming Indian this season - but Emerson remains supreme. Records are sketchy, as girls basketball didn't have a state tournament until 1976.

Emerson outscored Hagerman's opponents by herself, $55-$24, during the 1938 season. The Pirates scored $69 total points that year. Their only losses during the two-year span were to Glenns Ferry, which Hagerman defeated in postsesson play en route to the

Probably the most important of those offensive rebounds came when Burley reserve guard Brian Fletcher missed his third fourth-quarter free throw attempt, but chased down his own rebound and was fouled again. Fletcher hit his next

"That was a big play." Burley coach Jack Bagley said. "We were only up five and he scored three points off that one possession." IOC chief: Record number of women in Olympics BRUSSELS, Belgium — A record number of temales will compete in the Athens Olympics, and the IOC expects an equal number of men and women to participate in the games within a decade.

"The prediction we have now for Athens is that we will already have 44 percent women's particular of the prediction of the pr

2000 Sydney Games. "Within a decade, there will be 50 percent women participating at the Olympics," Rogge said. The number of nations without female competitors is also declining he said. Eight years ago in Atlanta, there were 26 all-male delegations. That number dropped to nine in Sydney. Rogge expects "no more than four or five" in Atlens. Even though the modern Olympics started in 1896, the first women weren't allowed in the games until 1912.

Webber suspended for elght games by NBA

NEW YORK - Kings forward Chris Webber was suspended for eight games Tuesday; five for violating the NBA's drug policy and three for pleading guilty to lying to a grand jury.

Webber has missed the entire season after left knee surgery and was taken off the injured list Monday. His suspension started with Tuesday night's home game against Beotic.

The five-time All-Star was the Kings l'eader in soring, rebounding and assists last season. He has replayed in his left knee during the second round of last seasons helpoylis.

Webber pleaded guilty in July to charges of lying about his relationship with Ed Martin, a University of Michigan booster who claimed he loaned $280,000 to Webber.

Webber has been practicing with the Kings for several weeks, but he wasn't healthy enough to appear in games.

He averaged 230 points, 10.5 rebounds, 5.4 sassists and 1.5 steal last season.

during an interview in his Cincinnati office.

P&G on Tuesday announced details of its new alliance with coffeemaker producers Black & Decker, Krups, Mr. Coffee and Hamilton Beach to come out with "Home Cafe" single-oup coffee - in flying saucer shaped, teabag-like packets called "pods" which fit into the coffeemakers designed for their use. The new "Home Cafe" line, in the works for three years, will feature P&G's Folgers and Millstone brands.

Typically, each pod holds 5 to 9 grams of coffee. The first of the coffee makers from the P&G-led alliance will be Black & Decker's black plastic Applica model, followed by those of the other manufacturers in the alliance.

The suggested retail price for the coffee maker will start at 559.99. The Folgers and Millstone coffee supplies for those machines are to sell at a suggested retail price of $3.99 Please see COFFEE, Page E2

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—A federal court jury awarded $1.28 billion flussday to a group of cattlemen after finding that the nation's, largest beef packer, l'yson Firsh Meats Inc., had unfairly manipulated cattle prices.

Attorneys for Tyson Fresh Meats said they planned to appeal the class action verdict.

Cattlemen from across the country fifed sulf in 1950 against Tyson known then as BBP line, claiming the company used contracts with a select few beef producers to create a captive supply of cattle.

The plainfilf said Tyson relied on this captive supply when cattle prices were high and entered the cash market for cattle only when first market for cattle only when first market for cattle only when the cash market for cattle only when the cash market for cattle only when the cattle only when the cattle only when the cattle only the cattle market for cattle only when the cattle only when decision.

do not call registry

DENVER - A federal appeals ourt upheld the government's do

DENVER - A federal appeals court upheld the government's do not call registry fluesday, dismissing telemarketers' claims that it violates free speech rights and its unfair because it doesn't apply to charities and political solicitations. The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals called the registry "a reasonable fit." "We hold that the do-not-call registry is a valid commercial speech regulation because it directly advances the government's important interests in safeguarding personal privacy and reducing the danger of telemarketing abuse without burdening an excessive amount of speech," the court said.

The politically popular registry, which took effect in October, contains more than 55 million phone numbers. Industry officials have said they expect about 2 million of their 6.5 million workers will lose their jobs within two years if the do-not-call rules stand.

Officials in the telemarketing industry did not immediately return calls seeking comment.

"The Tenth Circuity fulling represents a major victory for American consumers," said Timothy Muris, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission. "We are pleased that this popular program, like America's dinner hour, will not be interrupted."

The appeals court overturned U.S. District Judge Edward Nottingham of Denver, who said the list violated free-speech rights by barring calls from businesses but not charities.

"As a general rule, the First Amendment does not require that the government regulate all aspects of a problem before it can make progress on any front," the appeals court said. The court also said there was no evidence sugesting charitable or political callers were as troublesome as general telemarketing calls.

The registry "offers consumers a tool with which they can protect their homes against intrusions Please see REGISTRY, Page E2

Appeals court upholds | IRS requires taking 'fair market value' of a car donation to charity

Question: I think you should stop beating up on car donation services. A car donation allows a taxpayer to write off 100 percent of the fair market value of the car, which is more than he or should usually get by selling it.

If you could only sell a car for $1,000 but you could get a $1,500 deduction, why wouldn't you take advantage of that? It's perfectly fair and legal.

Answer: First of all, the IRS' definition of "fair market value" is what a willing buyer would pay a willing seller if neither was under pressure to buy or sell. So, by definition, the maximum deduction a taxpayer could legally take in your example is $1,000. And deductions aren't the same thing as tax savings. You multiply your deduction by your tax bracket to determine you ratual savings. If your tax bracket is 15 percent, your tax bracket is 15 percent, your tax bracket is 15 percent, your tax bracket is 15.000 and the same and $1,000 deduction would be just $150.

That's assuming you itemize.

MONEY Talk Liz Pulliam Weston

Two-thirds of the nation's taxpayers can't, because they don't have enough write-offs. If you take the standard deduction, your savings on a car donation is zero.

By the way, Congress last year boosted the standard deduction for married couples filing jointly from 57,850 to 59,500, which means a bunch more taxpayers just lost their ability to take this dubious write-off.

Dear Readers: A number of you responded to my call for strate-

ıd ideas. Dear Liz: I loved your column about "when it's time for parents to let adults be adults" (Jan. 21). When our children call and ask for a quick loan, we give it to them. Then the next time they call for another loan, my husband says, "You still owe me from the first loan. Pay that back and I'll be glad to loan you more." It works great – they seldom ask for money again.

Dear Liz When my own twentysomething son wanted money and implied that without it have the would suffer, I told him, "You have my full moral support, but I. will not give you financial support." Although he was angry with me for a while, which made me sad, eventually he admitted that J did the right thing.

My suggestion to the parents who wrote to you is to tell the child that you're not going to give him money but that you care for him and are always available for advice and (nonfinancial) comfort. It's likely to be difficult at Please see MONEY, Page E3

Stocks go higher on merger news

NEW YORK (AP) - Investors sent Stocks sharply higher Tuesday as Cingular's $41 billion bid for-ATET Wireless set an upheat tone on Wall Street, and plient tone on Wall Street, and Disney rejected a hostile takeover proposal from Comeast but said it would consider other offers that fairly valued the company. There was also encouraging economic news from the Federal Reserve, which reported a reboind in production at the faation's factories, mines and utilities list month. The O.8 percent rise in industrial production matched forecasts and was welcome following a flat reading in December.

The fairly aggressive bid for
AT&T Wireless Services Inc., which many thought would sell for about $30 billion, sparked a good deal of optimism on the first trading day of a holiday-stortened week. Some hoped the deal would inspire more spending in the telecommunications sector.

"Seeing corporations pay a premum like this for companies

The Dow Jones industrial aver-age surged 87.03, or 0.8 percent to close at 10.714.88, after a gain of 0.3 percent last week. The broader market gauges also moved higher. The Nasdaq compos-tie index sprinted 26.79 or 1.3 per-cent, to 2.080.35, after falling 0.5 percent last week. The Standard & Pour's 500 index closed up 11.18, or 1.0 percent, at 1,156.99, following an advance of 0.3 percent.

AT&T Wireless soared $1.96, or 16.6 percent, to $13.78, after accepting a $41 billion cash offer from Cingular Wireless, a merger that would create the nations largest mobile phone company. Cingular's joint owners posted losses; majority stakeholder SBC Communications Inc. declined 18 cents to $24.87, and BellSouth Corp. fell 49 cents to $29.06.

regarding the Cingular/AT&T Wireless deal as of Tuesday afternoon.

The deal – subject to approval by AT&T Wireless shareholders and federal regulators – would be a boon for Atlanta-based Cingular's efforts to cut costs, fill service gaps and expand its spectrum, or raido frequency, in several key U.S markets, thus enablingit to offer wireless Internet access at broadband speed.

"This combination is expected to create customer benefits and growth prospects neither company could have achieved on its own and will mean better company could have achieved on its own and will mean better coverage, improved reliability, enhanced call quality and a wide array of new and innovative services," said stan Sigman, president and chief executive of Cingular, who will continue to lead the company.

Some fear the merger could reduce the fierce competition that has driven down prices in the U.S. cellular market, trimming the number of national players from six to five.

"Losing a competitor in this kind of market hurts consumers, especially when you're merging the big players," said Mark especially when you're merging the big players," said Mark

Cooper, director of research at the Washington-based Consumer Fedeqation of America. "It's not five and six that's merging. It's two and three, and that's a much bigger impact on competition."
Guzman and Co. analyst Patrick Comack said he doesn't expect prices to go up if the deal is approved.

"You still have some very aggressive competitors out there," Comack said.
Cingular, a joint venture between SBC Communications Inc. of San Antonio and BellSouth Corp. of Atlanta, said its winning bid was for 515 cash per share, an amount that would value Redmond, Wash.-based AT&T Wireless at 5407 billion. Cingular also will assume 56 billion of debt owed by AT&T Wireless.

The combined company will carry the Cingular name. Once a deal is approved, billing and other operational functions will be merged, though there will be no immediate effect on customers, said Ralph de la Vega, Cingular's chief operating officer.

Federal regulators may ask the combined company to divest certain assets where they overlap, he said. The said the companies of the processor.

said.

But he said the companies believe that shouldn't be necesary.

"The greatest competition is perhaps right here in the U.S. so the consolidation of two of the players should not cause any problems for competitors. Even in areas of overlap, there is sufficient-competition not to warrant it."

As for possible job cuts or magement changes, de la Vega indicated there could be some, though he would not elaborate.

Comack, the Gurman and Conadyst, said significant layoffs are expected because there is so much duplication.

"They don't need the AT&T Wireless employees at all. They might save some salesman, but everything is redundant," Comack said. "Cingular doubled their succomer base and doubled their succourse the same amount of employees."

AT&T Wireless had planned to cut 1,500 jobs from a work force of 31,000 by the end of 2000.

Cingular has about 39,000 employees.

that Congress has determined to be particularly invasive," the court said.

"Just as a consumer can avoid door-to-door peddlers by placing a 'No Solicitation' sign in his or her front yard, the do-not-call registry lets consumers avoid unwanted sales pitches that invade the home its telephone," the court said. "We are convinced that the First Amendment does not prevent the government from giving consumers this option."

The court consolidated the appeal of Nottingham's decision with two related challenges—a case brought, against the Federal Communications. Commission by Deniver telemarketers and the FTC's appeal of a ruling in Oklahoma that said the agency had no authority to create and enforce the list.

It was Nottingham's ruling that had been closely watched because of the constitutional issues involved. His decision had threatened to cripple the FTC's ability to fully punish telemarketers and keep it from sharing information about the list, hindering the FTC from enforcing it.

The FTC also had to stop providing the list to telemarketers, meaning they were free to call listed numbers without fear of reprisal. The appeals court had un Nottingham's raling on hold pending its decision.

Earlier this month the FTC said it wants to shorten the time it takes for consumers who sign up for the de-not-call list to start seeing a drop-off in telemarketing calls. The plan would require telemarketing of the plant of the p

Visiting senior U.S. District Judge Lyle Strom must decide any injunctive actions against the company. Cattlemen's attorney. David Dominas said Strom likely will wait until after similar trials in Nebraska involving two other large packers: Swift & Co.; and Excel Corp.

The cattlemen will ask Strom to issue an injunction requiring that a "substantial amount" of the nation's cattle are bought on the cash market, not with contracts.

IBP 'merged with Arkansas, based Tyson Foods Inc. in 2001.
The strial lasted abour a month and juriors deliberated for about four days before returning the verdict.

Eight years have passed since six cattlemen filed a class-action lawsuit on behalf of up to 30,000 producers who sold cattle to Tyson in the cash market from February 1994 to October 2002.

The exact size of the class is much smaller than 30,000, and Tyson contends it is much smaller than 30,000. Schrift to the extilenent's chain is Terrial to the extilenent's chain is Terrial to the extilent and the extilencent is the second of the extilencent is the extilencent to direct the top anchor; the extilencent to direct end those agreements to direct prices down, afteratening the livelihood of thousands of ranchers.

Tyson-countered that even though it buys roughly one third of the 30 million cautie sold to U.S. packers each year, that share of the market does not allow the company to set the market price.

An Auhum University agricultural economist testified that Tyson's contracts had driven down cattle prices by 5.1 percent, or about $2.1 billion, during the eight-year class period. The defense countered with two economists which claimed the Auhurn professor's model greatly exagerated the plaintiffs' alleged loss.

first; however, ultimately parents and the child will be better friends.

and the child will be better ricinds.

Dear Liz We agreed with your advice wholeheartedly, as parents of four adult children. There is a time when it is detrimental (and stifling) to support them financially.

About four years ago, when our children were ages 35 to 45, we told them that the Bank of Dad was closed—and stuck to it. At the same time I let them know that I might be available or emergencies but that I would be the one to determine what an emergency was.

emergencies but that I would be the one to determine what an emergency was.

The only quarrel I might have is with your statement that parents might share their wealth when they are flush and-the child is financially responsible. A trust account for a grandchild, in my opinion, would be much healthier and demonstrate to the adult off-spring continuing fiscal responsibility.

Dear Liz: I read your column concerning the question of when to say no to an adult child. I could not disagree more. Even in cases of drugs, alcohol and extreme hepavior, it is not necessary or appropriate to just say no, because help in some form is always required.

I should know – I have been there more than once. I am that adult child. I am in my 408, in business, and if my parents had not been there for me, had they taken your suggested approach, God only knows what would have happened.

A: You seem to have confused earing with financial handous which was the whole point of the original column.

Parents can care for, support and encourage their adult off-spring without having any obligation to bail those kids out of their financial messus - particularly when doing so would drain the parents' resources. What's more, giving money to a drug addict or alcoholic can have potentially fatal results. At the very least, it postpones the day of reckoning that could jolt the addict or alcoholic into seeking help.

You've obviously benefited addict or alcoholic into seesing help.

You've obviously benefited from generous and patient parents. The question that leaps to mind, of course, is whether you read together much sooner if your parents hadn't stepped in over and over and over and over and over a lais.

A BIG DEAL

Mary Casper, right, enjoys a laugh with Ariene Schmidt at the recent annual Magle Valley Symphony League Card Party at St. Edward's Parish Hall in Twin Falls. Other players are their table were Jerry Hillman and Pearl Stapleton. The fund-relaing event drew about 80 people, who enjoyed a fashion show, raf-fles, desserts and of course, bridge and pinochie. High scorers in bridge were Jo Ann Irwin, Margáret Brown and Cheryl Kaatz. High scorers in pinochle were Hazel Gates and Irana Surface.

Mitchell wants to travel

"I like drawing and listening to music. I like rap, rock and a little bit of mix. I'm good at art and rhyming, like with songs.
"I would like to travel and watch movies with my future family. For a family I would like younger or older siblings so they could look up to me and I could look up to them. In the future I'd like to ride a go-cart. Seling art is a-job I might like to do or I might. like to work in my foster brother's future business."
Mitchell said he would like to like to work in my foster brother's future business."

Mitchell said he would like to remain in Idaho where he can sen is younger sister once in a while. It is also possible that a single parent or a couple who live further away could negotiate visits and regular contact between two families. Someone who understands and supports this important link in Mitchell's life is more likely to be successful as his adoptive parent.

De SUCCESSIU as ms accorder. Per Mitchell relates well in regular situations with authority figures. He would do well with a parent-mentor who will not only build on his creative talents, but also encourage him as he experiences the highs and lows of peer rela-tionships. Mitchell looks forward to family time, travel and trying

The economy of a novelist is a

"The economy of a hoverna man little like that of a careful liouse-wife who is unwilling to throw away anything that might per-haps serve its turn."

— Graham Greene

In three no-trump, when West In three no-trump, when West leads the heart king, you must try to set up the diamonds. Even then, you will have only eight tricks, and you cannot simply lead toward the club queen for a ninth trick because West would cash tricks, and you cannot some, toward the club queen for a ninth trick because West would cash four hearts and a club. Conversely, if the club king is with East, you cannot develop an extra trick from the club suit at all.

Your best plan might be to throw West on lead with a heart, forcing him to lead away from the club king. However, to do that, you must take the second heart, retaining a heart as a throw-in card, rather than ducking two tricks in that suit. You then cross to the spade king and lead the diamond tricks, and West therefore has to find two discards.

That player can afford one club, but if he throws another club, his king will be bare and you can score two clubs. If he throws a heart, you can safely lead toward dummy's club queen, so he will probably throw a spade. You can now cash your second winner in spades and throw West on lead with a heart. At trick 12 he will have to lead away from the club king giving you your ninth trick.

Note that West's best defense is offiandedly to throw two clubs on the diamonds, hoping that you ANSWER: Having transferred to hearts, you should now bid three no-trump to offer your partner the choice of games. Do not commit the hand to hearts. Yes, you have a nice suit, but if partner has only Lwo hearts, surely no-trump will play at least as well as hearts. Partner's two-heart cell did NOT promise a fit; he was only obeying orders.
