TWIN FALLS — The job offer came one day too late for Nate Greener. He wouldn't be able to take the position in construction because earlier that day he had been arrested on a probation violation and booked into the Twin Falls County Jall. Greener had been scrambling to find a way to pay his debts, much of which came as a result of a conviction that required him it or register for sex offender classes that ran $235 per month, plus hundreds of dollars in other fees every month.

month.

His crime? Having consensual sex with his underage gitfriend.

Inside

There is no such thing as statutory rape in Idaho. 5th District Judge Richard Beván sald. Sex with someone under the age of 18 is considered rape, whether the defendant is two years older or 10 years older than his or the rpartner, and regardless of mutual consent. Greener pleaded gully to felony charges, which was the beginning of a series of compounding troubles that his mother said has nearly been the undoing of her son.

Usually, the tax break ends only after construction of buildings begins; sometimes, it doesn't even stop then. Some examples:

• In lowa, real estate developer Knapp Properties Inc. owns 239 acres near the Destones Airport. The land, close by a Wingate Hotel and a Federal Reserve check-processing plant, is subdivided for commercial development and is for sale at a total price of $7 million. Grant request changes

Jerome's grant application changed several times since officials first unveiled plans for the Southern Idaho Telecom Corridor. The original project was expected to cost almost SI million and was to have included, in addition to the infrastructure, a tech incubator facility operated by the College of Southern Idaho and 12 miles of fiber optic cable-stretching from the Point of Presence at Jerome Butte down U.S. Highway 33 to CSI. That EDA grant application in April 2002 asked for 56 million for the project.

EDA officials told Jerome that although they liked the project, asking for 56 million was asking for a little too big ble out of the economic apple.
So the city of Jerome trimmed off the tech incubator and fiber optic cable, bringing the total cost of the project down to SSJ million and the grant application to S23 million.

And then there were the Jobs

Even if defendants are able to avoid jail time initially, many find the terms of probation impossible to abide by.

Depending on court orders, they many have to attend sex offender-classes, behavior, therapy, or, substance abuse classes. Some offenders are electronically monitored, barred-from-buying or possessing sexually explicit material, are not allowed to have internet hook-ups, can have no contact with girls under 18 years of age, and must abide by a curiew, take polygraph tests and pay for all financial obligations.

(An example of the latter was the 1920s photograph of Jack Riley and other Twin Falls High School yelf-leaders. Bolton knew nothing about the picture until Jerome resident Donna Golay, Riley's daughter, submitted a copy of the sump photograph for publication on The Times-News' Centennial page.)

But other exhibits are supported by text panels detailing Twin Falls weather records, for instance. Or the archeologically significant Wilson Butte Cave north of Eden. Or the 90-year-old brick Union School, which now houses the musum itself.

The county historical muserum displays the glass plate negative camera used by Clarence Bisbee, who captured the best known collection of images of early Twin Falls. A huge kaleidoscope there was made by Norman Herrett, who dreamed of a public observatory in Twin Falls. Photos of prove-up shacks, field work and farm produce offer glimpses of the labor that turned the valley's desert to green.

Fear overwhelms Uzbeks in ancient city following attacks

BUKHARA, Uzbekistan – Uzbeks in this ancient Silk Road

Uzbeks in this ancient Silk Road city that's a center for Islamic learning say they are confused and troubled that their region has been touched by terror.

Police are guarding centuries-old mosques with brilliant urquoise domes, while Muslim faithful rushed home from Friday prayers, deserting the streets and bazants. The region surrounding Bukhara was the site of the opening volley in a week of deadly violence, arrests and fear that killed 44 people in the Central Asian nation.

The spree of violence started

The spree of violence started Sunday when an explosion went off at an alleged bomb factory in the village of Kakhramon, killing 10, including a 2-month-old baby. The school's existing student-dress code, written more than a decade ago, is generic and vague. As times change, so do teen fashions-and not necessarily for the better. Twin Falls- High isnite only, school facing the problem.

In a permissive society that reflects Patis Hilton-more than Donna Reed, self-discipline has become a forgotten virtue among both-adults and youths. When we teach less self-discipline to kids, we risk eroding other qualities such as respect, manners, faith and hard work.

Most educators recognize their example, sets a standard, and they dress appropriately. But some take a more casual approach to classroom attire. That sends a message to kids that school is more of a social endeavor than an intellectual one. Parents have an even bigger duty to police fashion. If a child head to school wearning-inappropriate-clothing-mom and Dad need to draw the line. Better yet, they could stop, their kids from buying those clothes in the first place. High school kids will be adults soon. Recognizing the importance of dressing with self-respect and modesty will give them a head start on success.

9/11 commission lives up to task

In the storm of controversy over the anti-terrorism records of the Bush and Clinton administrations, the one thing for which everyone can be grateful is the quality of the referee who is handling the fight. The 9/11 commission, formally titled the National Commission on Terrorist Attacks Upon the United States, is proving to be everything one could hope for in this delicate but critical role. Created by Congress, with a

It is well-staffed, but that has also been true of many other commissions whose members have shucked off their responsibility to the hired hands. What makes this commission impressive is the high degree of engagement that all 10 of its members are displaying—and the skills they are showing as they sort through the mass of data and opinion surrounding the question: Why were the attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon so successful and how can similar calamities be prevented?

The guru of administration economics, Mr. Greenspan, says the economy is showing signs of recovery but they are ruther feeble. Mr. Bush says all is roses. Do like the government does and borrow and spend like mad. Mr. Bush took his economics 101 al fackpot. Put in five quarters and get a two-pay and you are a winner. What a sweet talker he is!
In the richest country the world has ever known, Bush says one of the necessary actions is to cut grandmas Social Security check. Our legislators get periodic cost of living raises on either their regular jobs or retirement pay. Chief executive officers' salaries have gone up about 15 percent, and the average worker has jost about that amount. A worker making $53,000 a year and trying to keep his family in comfortable living conditions pays taxes on all he earns and spends. Intrusion of smoke knows no bounds concerning smoking in public places.

Judy, you said that non-smokers were taking seats in the smoking section of restaurants. Does this mean that you think that smokers never sit in the non-smoking section? Let me assure you that they do. I don't see it as a big problem as long as they don't smoke while they are sitting there. You also said something about non-smokers being able to have a glass of wine while they had their dinner, but that you couldn't have a smoke after you had yours.

Smoke knows no boundaries, and when you smoke, if I am near you, I am forced to breathe second-hand smoke, which is a proven health hazard. If I drink a glass of wine, it certainly isn't going to harm your liver or have any other affect on your health. Many people take their children any other affect on your health. Many people take their children out to dinner, and lots of folks who go out to dinner have health problems that smoke can negatively affect. Should they all just six hy home so that you can have your smoke? Those of us who abstain from smoking have had to deal with it no matter our views or our health. I don't care if you smoke, Judy, tonly want the right to be able to breathe clean air when I go into a public place.

Use WWII resolve to rebuild our aliles

One of our strongest allies is the ancient empire of japan. We gave the Japanese many opportunities to come to a peaceful agreement during World War II. We told them that we would release a terrible force, so terrible that millions of lives in Japan millions of lives in Japan millions of lives in Japan mould be ended. We told them they would agree to seek peaceful resolution, we would be international trading partners, and there would be freedom, not a dictatorial kingdom. If our cause is just and right, and we believe it to be, we must use whatever tactics, whatever force are necessary to settle a conflict that has afflicted this world since the beginning of time. However, we must keep in mind that when a vanquished and defeated nation is given terms of surrender that are 50 horrendous it is upparent they cannot live up to those terms, we then lay the seeds for the next war. A Patient's Perspective

Professional Hearing Aid Services Tenny-Garner Did!

When Tenny Garner, one of Twin Falls' top loan officers and a mother of three children, needed a hearing aid, she turned to one of the towns top hearing aid practices, Profession Hearing Aid Services.

"After saying "what" and asking people to repeat themselves for 10 years, I finally made the decision to get a hearing test," she says. "Not to mention, my littlest daughter, now 11 years old, kept saying to .me, "Mom, I don't want to have to say it three times."

"For years, my kids kept telling me to get a hearing aid. My hearing aids stopped that irritation in my family."

Tenny, age 56, has been wearing her hearing aid for a high-frequency hearing loss for nearly a year. "My hearing loss was embarrassing," she explains. "But now I hear everything. I no longer have to ask people to repeat themselves." Like many people who have had others tell them about their hearing problems or who have recognized their hearing difficulties on their own, Tenny started with an inexpensive hearing enhancer. She then moved on to the more advanced hearing aid technology. "I'll wear them the rest of my life," she prodaims, and upgrade to more advanced hearing aid technology as I need to."

BYU-Idaho strains town

University's growth dominates_ city's economy

By Bob Fick
Associated Press writer

REXBURG – While most rural communities struggle to survive the rapidly utbanziling West, one pioneer town in eastern Idaho is wondering just how much growth it can stand. Insulated from the economic vagaries that plague other cities. Reaburg-has-been-an-oasis-of-prosperity for decades – the beneficiary of the stability pro-yidded by a junior college owned by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. But change is in the wind that sweeps across the Upper Snake kiver Valley in sight of the Teton Range and Grand Teton-Behind is the expansion of the two-year Ricks College into Brigham Young University-Idaho. It has created problems many rural towns would covet:

Stability has given way to rapid growth.

"Somewhere in there-something's going to happen," he says. "It's either going to break or a company's going to come in.

In payroll alone, the former Ricks College pumped $78 million a year into the economy of the city of 17,500.

On top of that has been the unestimated tens of millions of collar in services and construction the college buys every year and the economic activity all that money indirectly generates. "There really is no line of demarcation between the university and the community, school President David Bednar says." The fact that Rechurg is over whelmingly Mormon makes that all the more apparent.

So, Bednar says. "when we hiccup, it has ramifications throughout the valley."

Those hiccups have been positive for years and none more so at least in the minds of many-han the announcement in mid-200 that the junior college university.

ed BYU-Idaho flooded the small city with thousands more students and triggered an invasion of land speculators expected to cash in on the growth. Over the previous century, life in Resburg, heavily influenced by the college, had been assuring as well as productive.

The last disruption was the Teton Dam collapse in 1976 that caused-severe flood-damage. But residents got the cleanup

Mormons celebrate __ DASHING THROUGH THE SNOW_ growth of church

SAIT IAKE CITY (AP) – The increasing international reach that the Mormon church has made in its 174-year historywas celebrated Satuday at its semi-annual conference. "We are now a great international family, living in many languages," said Gordon B. Hinckley, the president of The Church offens Christ of Latter day Saints, whose words were translated into 66 languages eight more than 121,000 faithful gathered at the downtown Conference Center to hear Hinckley's comments opening the 174th General Conference Overflow crowds watched closed-circuit television broadcasts in the Mormon Tabernade and Assembly halts. About 35 percent of the church's members across the world also had access to the conference, either by watching to n television or listening on the conference center to the conference center by the conference center to the conference center by the center by the

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Sur-

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Sur-prising Georgia Tech sure is making a name for itself at this Final Fout.
Will Bynum shook loose for a layup with 1.5 seconds left and sent the Yellow Jackets further, than they've ever been in the NCAA tournament, putting them into the championship game with a 67-63 victory over Oklahoma State on Saturday.
John Lieas capped a furious, comeback with a 3-pointer for the Cowboy's that tied it at 65 with 26.3 seconds left, After a timeout, Tech worked the ball around to Bynum, who didn't even start, He drove down the right side of the lane, dou-ble-clutched and banked home the winner. Lucas, the star of ble-chitched and banked home the winner. Liteas, the star of Oklahoma-State's tirtilling win over Saint loseph's in the regional final, threw up an airball from practically the other end of the court at the buzzer. Now conch Paul Hewitt and his third-seeded Jackets will play for the title Monday night for the title Monday night against the Duke-Connecticut winner.

Here's a good omen for them. Tech has aiready beaten both of those powers.

Tech has already beaten oom or those powers. Picked to finish a lowly ser-enth in the Atlantic Coast Conference, the lackets werent expected to do much of any-thing this season with a team of unknowns — hardly an All-American among them. And subjounded by big names like Mike Krzyzevski, Jim Calhoun and Oklahoma State coach Eddle Sutton at this Final Four. they were considered the biggest underdogs of all. "We know a lot of people are basically saying this is a three-team Final Four." Tech guard Jarnett Jack said Friday. After Bynum's winning basket, the Jackets mobbed him. "We felt very comformable if we got the ball to him for the last shot," Hewitt said.

Marvin Lewis shot the Jackes tout on early lead from 3-point range and curly-haired center Links Schrenscher kept them ahead until Lucas late heroics. Schenscher had 19 points and 12 rebounds and Lewis had 15, all on first-half 3-pointers. Bynum finished 11.

Lucas scored 11 on 4-for-14 shooting, loey Graham had 17 points and 10 rebounds for the second-seeded Cowboys and kan McFarlin had 16.

"It's tough because I failed." The loss ended Sutton's 34th uran to the biggest one I failed." The loss ended Sutton's 34th year as a head coach and left him still without a champinship. This was his whird trip to the Final Four, having last made it in 1995.

Pak in 2002, is two-shots in-ront of Meg Mailon and Rosic Jones.

Sorenstam was at 4-under 138 in the 54-hole tournament.

Mallon had a 71, and Jones shot her second straight 70 at 12 Caballero Country Club, with the course again not yielding many low scores. Sorenstam has been difficult to catch when she takes a lead into the final round, winning 33 of the 52 times she previ-ously was in front beginning the last 16 holes. If she wins, it would be her 50th career IPCA Tour victory, and also mark the seventh time she's gone wire-to-wire to win.

Jehnson retains lead at BellSouth Classic DUILUTH, Ga. – Zach Jofnson's first full day as the leader on the PGA Tour felt very familiar to him.

He played solidly, made putts when he needed to, and held on to the top spot.

"I really didn't get nervous," Johnson said. "It doesn't felt that different. It's just golf." The rookie shot a 4-under 80 on Saturday to take a threstroke lead over Padraig Harrington and Scott Hend after the third round of the BellSouth Classic.

Harrington shot a 67, rallying after a triple bogey by making six bridles on his stat 10 holes in the last event before the Masters. Coming off a second-place finish in The Players. Minnesota's Final Four

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Pam Borton could see it in their faces, she could sense it in how they talked. Her predecessor as womens basketball coach at Minnesotta had bolted after nine months on the job, leaving behind players who felt they had been abandoned — jilted just as they were starting to win. So Borton went to work building trust and out of that, just two years later, has come the most successful season in school history and a Final Four data Sunday night against Connecticut.
How's that for working fast? Tilght when she got hired, those was people before we were really basketball players, senior guard Lindsay Whalen said. Now here was Borton, the team's third coach in as many years.

"I just falt like it was my job for them to get to know me as a person, let them know that I care about them and I was going to be around. Borton said. "Sometimes it's not just about what they do on the floor. You've got to show them what you're going to do for them off the floor as well. And that was most important thing that I did."

Whatever she did, it worked. The Gophers went 25-6 last season and reached the round of 16 in the NCAA tournament for the first time. This season: the ride has been even better. 25-8 record, adoring fans who have followed the team every setter of the way –including the 11-year-old boy who held up a sign asking Whalen to marry him – and now (gulp) a chance to win the national championship.

WOODLAWN, Md. (AP) – A brawl broke out during an anger management assembly at a suburban high school. Two people were arrested and 11 students were suspended after a shoving match escalated into a melee during Thursday's assembly. Authorities said a comfrontion between a students mother and agroup of girls who had been bothering her daughter turned into a shouting match, and led to pushing and hitting before the crowd of 750 students erupted into "chaos," said C. Magic Valley producers say other factors besides low-carb craze affect prices

TWIN FALIS — As high-protein diet plans that restrict the consumption of carbohydrate-laden floods — such as portatoes, sugar and wheat — grow in popularity, producers and trade groups are striving to promote their products to the seemingly carb-crazed masses.

Promotling the business as seemingly carb-crazed disease, also come into play.

According to a recent survey conductated by market research group ACNIelsen, 172 percent of U.S. households reported that someone in their household was followed by the product of the pr longer. AcNielsen survey also tracked sales of foods sold in supermarkets from 2002 to 2003. Several high-carb foods showed sales declines, while many low-carb and high-protein foods showed sales increase. Delilar-volume siles of fresh potatoes in 2003 totaled $1,455 billion — a 10 percent drop from one year ago, according to the ACNielsen data. Contrast that with sales of eggs and bacon — both Akins diet staples — which showed increases of 18.5 percent and $3.9 percent, respectively.

18.5 percent and 8.8 percent, respectively.

But the ACNielsen data reveal that while fresh potatoes show strong dollar sales declines, unit sales were flat in 2003, with only a -0.5 percent change from 2002.

The bottom line! When potatoes are cheaper for consumers to buy, total sales in dollars tend to be lower. When this happens, producers don't make as much from the sale of their potatoes.

Numbers like these can make determining the true impact of the low-carb craze on Magic Valley commodities difficult, said Bob Keegan, manager of Keegan line. In Twin Falls, which processersesh potatoes for shipment to U.S. supermarkets. Keegan sald he believes low-carb diets are "just a fad like all distances of the control of the same of the same carbon determines and the same carbon determines and the same same carbon determines and the same same same carbon determines and the same affecting and the same and the same affecting and the same and the same affecting and the same affecting and the same affect low-carb diets are "just a fad like all diets."

"I think the low-carb diets are affecting us, but I said that a year ago, Keegan said. The demand is just off — people are not eating the potatoes like they used to.—

But what's really affecting potato sales for Keegan so far this year is a smaller supply of spuds — a result of last summer's scorching temperatures.

"This is the poorest crop I've seen in 30 years," Keegan said. "The really hot summer made everything either really small, or big and crooked. But were selling them for good money—it's just that the supply is very low."

Keegan believes the potato industry will see a comeback when the low-carb trend comes to an end. He hopes that day will be soon.

"It's just one of those things," Keegan said. "We know it's affecting us, but it's pretty hard to prove."

The Idaho Pointo Commission and the said. "We know its affecting us, but its pretty hard to prove."

The Idaho Potato Commission and the U.S. Potato Board aren't taking any chances in walding for consumers to return to their product. According to the Akins plan, consumers should, eat, a maximum of 20 grams of carbohydrates per day during the first stage of the didte—the "Induction" phase. A typical potato has 26 grams of carbohydrates.

That kind of information, encouraging consumers to restrict their potato intake, could have a serious effect on the potato industry if the low-carb craze continues to grow, said Pat Kole, vice president of legal and governmental affairs for the Idaho Potato Commission.

"If people are cutting back on carbs, they're cutting back on potatoes." Kole said.

they're cutting back on potatoes. Kole said.

In response to the Atkins consumer blitz, the U.S. Potato Board has launched its own media campaign promoting the healthful benefits of including potatoes in one's diet, touting the starchy vegetable's levels of potassium rather than its carbohydrate content.

".Consumers are confused about the nutritional content of the potato." U.S. Potatoners and in a statement. "Without complete information," people may be depriving themselves unnecessarily of this vegetable."

AGRICULTURE OUTLOOK

Low-carb diets also restrict consumers sugar intake, which is a concern for the sugar industry, said Ralph Burton, vice president of agriculture for Amalgamatet of Sugar Co., a division of Bolse-based Sanke River Sugar Co. Domestic sugar deliveries have declined in the past few years, due in part to various diet trends, Burton said. However, the industry is more concerned with the importing and consumption of sugar-containing products made outside the United States.

The sugar industry is now faced with a domestic price that is "considerably lower" than in the past, but the market should correct itself over time. Burton said But these prices could be impacted further through the recent signing of the Central American Free Trade Agreement (CAFIA) which could flood the sugar market with Central American sugar, he said.

"Since Amalgamated sells most of its

Meanwhile, the effect of low-carb diets on the production of wheat in Magic Valley; is difficult to determine, said Steve. Salisbury, University of Idaho cooperative extension crop specialist for Twin Falls County.

Magic Valley's contribution to the overall American wheat market — about 4.45 million bushels per year in Twin Falls County.

Conferences for wheat growers and flour distributors have been held recently in the United States and overseas, as in, the potato industry, wheat industry representatives are developing new marketing strategies for products like carb-leavy breads and pastas.

But Salisbury said low-carb diets have probably had little effect on area wheat growers. In fact, Salisbury said, the wheat market is up right now, as the national wheat supply is down.

Reduced cow numbers are, in part, a result of the national organization's Cooperatives Working Together (CWT)

Higher gas prices hit farmers as crop season starts

TWIN FALLS — Rising prices on crude oil and natural gas are delivering a double whammy to farmers as the 2004 crop season begins. Not only are prices near an all-time high on diesel to fuel farm equipment, but price increases on natural gas — the key component in making nitrogen fertilizer — are pushing fertilizer prices as much as 20 precent higher than a year ago. Petroleum products figurer into almost all aspects of modern farming, from the cost of diesel fuel in ractors, combines and irrigation pumps to the price of chemicals and fertilizer used in the fields.

Low-carb craze proves a raw deal for the humble potato

By Erika Niedowski The Baltimore Sun

The potato wants you to know the truth — even if it takes $4 million. That's how much the U.S. Potato Board is spending on an ill-month campaign to convince Americans that the high-carbohydrate, startch vegetable is a healthy food choice, rather than one that's widening their hips. "We like the potato," says Dr. George L Blachturn, associate director of the nutrition division at Harvard Media School, whose endorsement of potatoes appears in one of the someone on a low-carb dlet. That spells a big-time threat to the potato.

The Denver-based trade group's campaign — "Get the-skinny on America's favorite vegetable: The Healthy Potato" — Is designed to teach consumers everything they always needed to know about potatoes (and certainly more). The effort stems from a series of focus groups held last summer with about 70 women, including some who were "carb-averse," according to board spokeswoman Linda McCashion. Another 1,000 people filled out an Internet-based questionnaire.

Ninety-six percent of respondents didn't know the "main attributes" of potatoes. Only about one-third thought they were rich in potassium, even though they have more of Potatoes have gotten a bad rap in recent years not just because, they are high in carbohydrates, but because, among carbohydrates, they rank high on the so-called glycemic index. That means they break down rapidly during the digestive process and the level of glucose in the blood spikes quickly.

Foods that score low on the glycemic index. by contrast, cause a more gradual increase in blood sugar and keep you feeling full longer. The popular South Beach Dlet, created by Florida cardi-ologist-Arthur Agatston, relies in large part on Gl rankings to flgure out which carbs are good" (apples, grapefruit, high-fiber cereal) and which aren't (crackers, cookles, pasta, white bread). No type of potato is allowed during the diefs first phase, which lasts two weeks. During phase two, sweet potatoes are permissible — they are inherently a low-scoring Gl food—but white potato varieties remain strongly frowned upon. (Sweet potatoes and white potatoes are botanically unrelated.)

Some dietitians counter that glycemic index Isn't a fair measure of nutritional value because foods are rarely caten

And every time you throw on an extra — margarine, salsa, chilli, a springle of cheese—the potato's glycemic score changes. In combination with other foods, it may raise blood sugar less quickly.

Berning is perplexed by the anti-carb concerns from Atkins and other high-protein diets. People don't seem to understand, she says, that the body needs carbohydrates for fuel — and to "fight fat." The body cannot burn fat without the flame of carbohydrates," she says. "Any time you create a huge deficit of carbohydrates, you te using protein as an energy source, particularly from skeltal muscle,"

In the simplest terms, she says. weight. loss. Isn't about cutting out carbs. It's about cutting out carbs. It's about cutting out carbs. It's about cutting calories.

For its part, the U.S. Potato Board, which already has run pro-potato ads in The New York Times. USA Today and the Oscars edition of People magazine, doesn't want to get involved in the cultural die wars. "Were trying to just take the high road and not get into the fray, and talk about our good qualities." McCashion says. "We are healthy food, and we belong on the plate."

The third phase of the CWT program implements an export sastiance program to help stabilize milk prices. Exports will soccur as overseas buyers are found for the producters and participating producers bid to be compensated for selling cheese and butter to those importers. Galen. said. This- program will uperate during periods when the U.S. price of cheese is $1.30 per pound or lower of $1.20 or lower for butter.

The export nassistance pro-

Meanwhile, sales of cheese have been stronger in the past six to 12 months, Galen said. "As the conomy shows more signs of life we hopefully will have more people eating out—eating pizza," Galen said. That's a big driver of cheese. Whether it is coming from 10 months of 10 months of

"Closing of the Canadian border will certainly have an effect on the helfer market and will eventually work into being an Issue with the price of milk because it will tighten supply." Naerebout said.

While beef prices have dropped off somewhat since the mad cow scare, they are still higher than a year ago. That encourages more aggressive cuiling of dairy cows to be sent to the market sooner, Galen said.

Valley beef producer Lorl Shafer told The Times-News shortly after the Washington mad cow discovery.

"The thing is, beef prices have been so high that a drop in prices really doesn't seem that ad now," Shafer said Jan. 7. Shafer had just sold several older cattle for an average of 40 to 42 cents per pound — only about 2 to 3 cents lower than she would have received before the mad cow scare. 2-speed shaft drive, rear bagge

Tik's a good time for cheese as well as nutritional supplements, Williams said.
Meanwhile, local cattle producers saw record-high prices in the fourth quarter, which beef industry analysts attributed to high-protein diets and the closing of the United States border to Canadian beef after the discovery of mad cow disease in Alberta. Idaho cattle generated about $1.1 billion last year, more than 25 percent of the total receipts for Idaho agriculture, according to numbers released March 1.

But the discovery of the disease in Washington state—closing—many-foreign—export—markets to American beef—sent beef prices tumbling. The high prices of 2003 have served as a sort of safety net for beef producers in 2004, Magic about 2 to 3 cents lower than she would have received before the mad caw scare. C. Wilson Gray, University of Idaho extension cenomist for the Twin Falls Research and Extension Center, predicts beel prices will remain low throughout—the spring—but could—increase by-summer-or fall—as foreign export markets reopen to American beef.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

Dear Mr. Wolff: Dear Mr. Wolff:
When your partner opens with a major sult and the opponents intervene with a pre-empt or the Unusual No-Trump, should a simple raise of partner's suit be a limit raise and invitational, or should it show a weaker hand? If the latter, what are you supposed to do with an invitational hand?
Simpliatic, North Bay, Ontario

ANSWER-If partner opens one spade and the next hand overcalls (say) three clubs, treat a simple raise to three spades as 7-10. With a decent invitation, drive to game and cross your fingers. After a two-suited overcall, you always have at least one artificial bid to be to a limit injury between the with the control with the with have at least one artificial bid to show a limit raise or better. With two artificial calls at your dispos-al, use the higher artificial bid be-low partner's suit as the limit raise and the lower one to show the fourth suit and a good hand.

Dear Mr. Wolff:

I was dealt ♣ 4, ♥ K-Q,
♠ A-Q-8-6-4-2, ♣ K-J-9-5 and bid
two diamonds over a one-spade opening on my right. This was passed back to my RHO, who tried two spades. Was I supposed to act now — and if so, should I double, bid three clubs, or try three diamonds? All at Sea, Durango, Colo.

ANSWER: You are worth a second call, but doubling seems to bring hearts into the picture unceessarily, while three diamonds is very unilateral. My vote would be for three clubs — or perhaps you could risk two no-trump, which suggests diamonds and a secondary club suit.

ANSWER: When your LHO opens or overcalls one no-trump, I believe that all right-thinking individuals must be able to double for penalty. (Not everyone agrees with mel) However, almost all doubles of pre-empitie openings or overcalls below five diamonds are more sensibly treated as takeout, though once you get to the four-level, the doubler's partner is encouraged to pass with a balanced hand.

Dear Mr. Wolff:

My partner opened one heart and my RHO overcalled two diamonds. I sat staring at a K.4.

♥ Q-10, ♦ 10.8-6.3, ♣ A.9.7-5.3
for some while before deciding to risk a negative double, intending to convert a spade response to hearts. Also, my partner's next. hearts. Alas, my partner's next call was FOUR spades. Was I out in left field with my choice? Social Leper. Salinas, Calif.

ANSWER: Doubling did not have to work badly. Passing seems-wet, while a three-club call would be a huge overbid. But did you consider simply raising to two hearts? You have decent values and, to my mind, the equivalent of a three-card raise.

Dear Mr. Wolff:

Dear Mr. Wolff: Is it ever right to play a no-trump overcall of a weak two as unusu-al? What about this action by a passed hand? And is a jump to three no-trump ever unusual, or is it always to play? Gambling Greg, Wausau, Wis.

ANSWER: All simple overcalls in no-trump by an unpassed hand should be strong and balanced, while jumps to three no-trump over a pre-empt would be either VERY strong and balanced or gambling with a long suit. With a nessend hand most not runn hids passed hand, most no-trump bids would be unusual, as indeed would most jumps or overcalls of four no-trump in competitive auc-support a family without an education."

But there are other reasons women en masse are going to college. Howard and Matthew Greene, who publish "Greenes Guide to Educational Planning". say young women are maturing earlier than their made counterparts and thus tend to achieve academically at a higher level at an earlier age. As public and private colleges have been become-more selective for admissions, a regater number of women present a more impressive academic, and often leadership, profile to admissions committees, the Greenes say.

"Two-thirds-of-four-year-college students enroll in public universities, which put greater emphasis on statistical qualifications — high school grade-point average, quality of grade-point average, quality of courses taken, class rank and test scores — in selecting their entering class. The result is that a higher percentage of women are accepted. "It is no longer a question of whether a woman will become an educated professional but rather which career direction she will choose," the Greenes write.

Beck isn't sure whether men who've passed on college will change their minds in large numbers, but there are sollid reasons for doing so, he says. "Iwent to college later, after a period of being out of school, he said." Il's just a question of being able to attain a standard of living that shard to achieve without a degree."

But whether they return or not, their absence has changed campus. Iife. In fundamental ways.

Gyms are proud of their social component—that's social component—that's social in a good way, not an icky way. Managers are quick to talk about other gyms where anyout wear or six-pack abs is fair—game for hitting on.

The good kind of social is the atmosphere at Crunch in West Hollywood, boasts Bill Stepanian, the gyms general manager. The club's young, hip urbanite members—many in the entertainment industry—flock together in and out of the gym. Its location in a mini-mal featuring a movie theatr complex a Wolfgang Puck Cafe and a Buzz Coffee makes it conducive to extracurricular activities.

"We'll have people who will take a class together and then go see a movie or get coffee," he says. "People just seem very social and friendly."

Yes – you can trim your cat's nails and live to tell!

In the old days, cats wore their nails' down naturally as they ann and clawed their way through the great outdoors. Today, although some cats will keep lifet' nails' ridmend down nicely walking around the house or by using a scratching gesting up for an occasional snack and then rettring with the human family for the last of their 20 hours of sleep per day. Easter bunnies face sad fate after holiday

DEAR ABBY: Easter is coming. Many families still purchase live rabbits as pets for their children. Parents. often think rabbits are good 'sarrer' pets' and don't understand what they are getting themselves into. As a result, too many of these poor creatures end up in animal shelters, and children learn that pets are disposable.
