Monday started out innocensy enough.

But it might have violated idahot open meetings law.

Thee-mail, sent by SIED O Ex-ecutive Director Jan Rogers at the request of the SIED O Execu-tive Board, asked the organiza-tion's board members to vote year no on a motion to support the city of Jerome's application for a federal grant to make road, sewer and water improvements at Jerome Butte and extend sewer service to the Crossroads sewer service to the Crossroads Point property.

The e-mail concluded with the statement that the organization would assume a yes vote from members who didn't respond to the e-mail by 10 a.m. Tuesday.

At least one SEEDO board member -Twin Falls City Manager form Courtney - was concerned about the legality of such a vote. After all, some of SIEDO's funding comes from public en-tities, and public money partly pays the salaries of Rogers and an assistant.

"We believe they're a public entity, Courtney said. They re-ceive public money, and they're under the umbrella of (the Col-lege of Southern Idaho).

Courtney voiced his concerns in an e-mail back to Rogers. He pointed out that Idaho's open meeting laws require a public notice be posted 24 hours before a special meeting and that the law 'doesn't allow for voting via the Internet."

Most of the people on the board agreed e-mailing is an OK thing to do, Rogers said. But because the city of the Think Falls is a stakeholder, we're certainly exploring these concerns. After stepping back and taking another look at the situation, SIEDO Executive Board Chairman Jerry Beck decided the organization will adhere to the state's open meeting laws. "We're going to do this again using open meeting laws," Beck said.

Bleck locks ready for action, but he's not quite there. He needs to be certified, which-could happen in the next week or two, Green sald.
Although Green can certify dogs, and helped implement the state certification program in 1992, he must get another person to certify his dog. Bleck is undergoing training in narcotics—cocaine, methamphetamine, marijuana and heroin—and patrol.

Because some drug traffickers try to disguise the smell of heir haul by slipping it inside hamburgers, dirty diapers, anything that can throw off a dogs sense of smell, TFPD dogs are rained to sort out distracting odors from drugs. Further training teachers them avoid all human food so they don't munch the evidence.

Besides teaching him to sulf for narcotics, Green is training Bleck to go through obstacle courses, conduct sulfding searches to look for suspects and to track scents. "These are our partners," Green sald. "Every day we go to work."

The benefits of such close contact with one handler are bonding and off-leash control of the dog, Green sald. Bleck drives around with Green, and if Green suspects marcotics in a whicle, he can allow Bleck to sniff out the scene.

A question of tactics

Not everyone may be happy to see a drug-sniffing dog bounding up to his car, however, regardless of whether that person has something to hide. The extra time involved to bring a dog to the scene, or to have a dog conduct a search, has caused ripples of concern. "The question is, once they we pulled the car over for a raffle stop, can they keep you there longer?" said John Hansen, Twin Falls County public defender. Idaho officials help prompt bull-trout review

BOISE (AP) – The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service said Tursday it will review whether the bull trout should remain a threatened species under the Indangered Species Act, even before the agency has finished impliementing court-ordered habitat protections.

The purpose of the review is to ensure that the species has the appropriate level of protection under the ISSA, Fish and Wildlife Pacific Regional Direc-

Fish and Wildlife spokes-woman Joan Jewett acknow-ledged that five-year reviews re-quired by the Endangered Species Act have been rare, but Interior Assistant Secretary. Craig Manson agreed to this one at the request of Idaho Gov. Dirk Kempthome and the Idaho congressional delegation.

Kempthome "pokesman Michael Journee said the governor believes bull trout are thriving in Idaho, where steps have been taken to improve habitat protections, and getting them off the threatened species list would reduce problems for timber and ranching interests. Environmentalists who went to court repeatedly to force listings and habitat protection for

Because the truth is, until the airplanes and ether is rammed into those buildings, most Americans never took the threat of homeland terrorism seriously enough to prevent Sept. 11.

The problem with stopping terrorism is the vast difference in odds. Ferrorists need only one success to overcome hundreds of failures. For law enforcement agencies, just one failure will eclipse all previous success-ess. And. when Sept. 11. thir; it—was an enormous success for terrorism.

American citizens and leaders, however, didn't heed rising threats of terrorism until the worst had passed.

In spite of previous attacks on the World Trade Center, the Khobar Towers in Saudi-Arabia, two U.S. embassies in Africa and the USS Cole, terrorism on the U.S. homeland was never a priority for voters or leaders.

Could the Bush administration have done more with the warning? Certainly. Information should have been shared between the FBI and federal aviation authorities. But Bush's predecessor had his chances as well. Bill Clinton actually balked at the chance of capturing bin Laden from Sudan in 1996.—and-he-took-no-action after the Cole explosion in 2000. The other favorable trend has been a transformation of the mortage industry. To get a loan 20 years ago, you usually went to a local bank or savings association, which approved the application and provided the money.

Now, the mortgage business is mostly national.

You may still go to a local bank or mortgage broker, but most loans are packaged and sold to national lenders (led by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac) and serviced by major corporations (Wells Fargo, Chase).

We should also have learned something about quality of life. For example, take a look at what these plants do to visibility. I don't know what your favorite view may be, but take a long look at it because you won't see it again if we allow a coal-fired plant in the valley. As evidence, take a look at the Grand Campon. On most days, because of the coal-fired plants near the Four Comers area, you can't even see across the campon. Is visibility important? Of course it is. Many of us live in he Magic valley for the quality of life it provides. Clean air is a major part of that quality of life.

These plants, if they are needed, should be located far from any populated areas as most of them one. The problem of a multiplity of coal and were have been solved time after time for these plants, and they can be solved again.

It's too bad that we have to go through an 'age of coal' before we will decide to develop cleaner sources. But if we have to do that, we can at least minimize the negative impacts of the SICK FLORES.

A Patient's Perspective

DIN CLARE IN LAND AND AND Professional Hearing Aid Services Tenny Garner Did!

When Tenny Garner, one of Twin Falls' top loan officers and a mother of three children, needed a hearing aid, she turned to one of the town's top hearing aid practices, Professional Hearing Aid Services.

"After saying "what" and asking people to repeat themselves for 10 years, I finally made the decision to get a hearing test," she says. Not to mention, my littlest daughter, now 11 years old, kept saying to me, "Mom, I don't want to have to say it three times."

"For years, my kids kept telling me to get a hearing aid. My hearing aids stopped that irritation in my family."

Tenny, age 56, has been wearing her hearing aid for a high-frequency hearing loss for nearly a year. "My hearing loss was embarrassing," she explains. "But now I hear everything. I no longer have to ask people to repeat themselves." Like many people who have had others tell them about their hearing problems or who have recognized their hearing difficulties on their own, Tenny started with an inexpensive hearing enhancer. She then moved on to the more advanced hearing aid technology. "Til wear them the rest of my life," she proclaims, and upgrade to more advanced hearing aid technology as I need to."

She is so pleased with the hearing aids provided, by Professional Hearing Aid Services, she tells everyone. 'I even take them out to show people and say, see how small? And ask them to try it!' She also tells everyone to go to Professional Hearing Aid Services for their hearing healthcare. "They take care of you!"

County needs to get more from commissioners more from commissioners. In response to a recent editorial of April 1, it is of no supprise to us that the board of county commissioners would take it upon themselves to avoid voters in an attempt to be 'heavy handeed' and some what 'sneaky' in government. We have had the unfortunate opportunity to have to deal with the board of county commissioners in the recent past. Both times, they have mandated requirements on us that either could not be completed or were not practical for our situation. All the while saying they were there to help—and wanted us to prosper. There is no way that an elected board can possibly know everything, yet they passed to the proper of the pr wrong.

The board of county commissioners we have found to be very bold on mandates yet very denying on proper discourse and reasoning.

In this election year, it is time to really look at the candidate(s) and decide if we as citizens of this county and taxpayers are getting our money's worth from this current board of commissioners. We say 'no this course current' worth from this current boar of commissioners. We say 'nt to re-electing our current board; we need new leader-ship that can make conscionable and wise deci-sions while in office. JACK AND LAURA SPENCER Buhl

The shipping casks look like large silos and are carried on a fatbod truck They will reach Twin Falls on U.S. Highway 93 and then head cast on interstate 84.

The casks will not be carrying transuranic waste and will not pose a nadiation threat, Halverson said. Two trucks are coming from national laboratories operated by the University of California at Berkley and Lawrence Livermore. Local officials have been notified that trucks are on their way and are not carrying waste, he said.

Camas breaks school-project ground

The Times-News

- FAIRFIELD - Thanks to community support and favorable weather conditions, construction is ahead of schedule, said head architect Jim Main on Monday, when officials representing the Camas County School and its contractors broke ground to mark the official start of construction. "It's exciting to see the ground being broken," said Main, who works for Design West Architects. "Were looking forward to a very good project that will be an asset to the community."

TIP OF THE WEEK: Get sweet peas in now. These old fashioned, fragaral flowers are too good to pass up in any garden. The Old Spice Collection is exceptionally heat resistant, so that's a super variety for our area. They like to climb, so set them next to a fence, trellis or tree trunk. For faster germination, soak the seeds anywhere from an hour to overnight. That will help those tough seed coats to soften up and get going a lot faster. Remember: The seed pods of sweet peas are not edible.

Spring Cleaning!

The spring season is now upon us and the phrase most synonymous with this time of year is "fresh air." Spring is when we turn off our home's healing unit and open the windows to welcome the ambiance of spring for most of us, a spring cleaning is essential to achieving that "fresh air feeling in our homes. There are a few points to keep in mind to make your cleaning experience more enjoyable and efficient:

Get organized and stay organized.

Before you begin, make a list of the rooms you want to tackle, then clean each room fully before moving the next. Prepare one bucket of supplies to bring with you to each room that has the essentials (paper towels, rags, furniture polish, an all-purpose glass and counter cleaner) along with a few trash bags.

Practice safe cleaning. Wearing rubber gloves protects your skin from the harshness of hot water and chemicals. Also, mixing chemical agents found in common cleaning products such as ammonia and bleach can be tout. To promote proper venti-lation and air circulation, use a fan. Open the win-dows and let your fan force the stale air out or bring the fresh spring air into your home.

Through organization, safety and proper air circu-lation your spring deaning effort can be enjoyable and leave you feeling refreshed.

Toss everything you don't use. Less clutte equals less dusting. And it relaxes you when are enjoying the rooms in your home.

LANDSCAPE ARTIST LIGHTS IT UP Designer offers illuminating tips for yards

When Glen Blandy looks at a ouse and garden at night, he nouse and garden at light, he sees it as a scene on canvas just waiting for an artist to paint it—with light. Which isn't surprising, since this landscape lighting expert started out as a high school ant teacher.

Blandy still talker about negative and positive space, perspective highlighting shadowing, and all the describes as a dynamic and the discribes as a dynamic nightscape.

Many of these were on display last month at the Philadelphia sin month at the Philadelphia list month at the Philadelphia (white philadelphia gownilishing, shouette lighting, and grazing. "People make the mistake of having a bright post light, thinking they are lighting the walkway," Blandy says. "But usually that light is at eye level, and it blinds you so that its harder to see the path because of the glare."

More effective are path lights. The traditional mushroom vari-

—Awold, the runway effect. Too-often, says Blandy, people put lights evenly along both sides of a path, which makes it look as if hely re walding for a plane to land. On a straight path, a coulpe of lights are interesting and attractive if you stagger the lights.

And less is more. You don't want to light your house evenly across the front, because that flattens it. Highlight specifier areas, such as a chimney, and leave some of it dark.

In the garden to life at right, can glight in a dark area can illustrate depth. But lights can also bring garden to life at rights can also brings garden to life at rights can also brings growing in front of a pillar. Check the lighting effects from both inside and out. And make sure none of your lights blind visitors or shine into neighbors windows. Even glaring porch lights can be a problem. They should be softened by frosting the glass or using a lower-watt bulb, "Blandy says." Even if that's the only light you have, it's a lot more effective if you can accent an area such as the steps for salety, rather than having it shining (directly at you." Blandy stresses safety installation – positioning all wires at least 8 inches below ground where they cross lawns and making sure all connections are as watertight as possible. Any moisture reaching a wire cause corrosion, which reduces the power to lights.

fattening the squirrels

By Joan Bean Times-News correspondent

Imme-Hews correspondent
TWIN FALLS — Once upon a time, there were no squirrels in Twin Falls. Now the bush-talled little creatures are all over the place.

Sarah Harris, membership chair of the National Audubon Society's Prailer Falcon Chapter, said they don't belong in this area, but seem quite happy here. "I'm not sure when they arrived on the scene, but it does seem they've been real successful and that their numbers have definitely increased."

Stu Murrell, retired regional conservation educator for Fish

Landscapes – in an instant

At the Washington Home & Garden Show in March, Byrne Kelly designed a towering, cas-cading, noisy waterfall that drew flocks of viewers like spring-fevered robins.

"Tmight space out the trees a little more in the actual land-scape, but the exhibit is real," said Howard Cohen, landscape with Surrounds chitect with Surrounds indscape Architecture + Con-houses need image, elements.

In addition, said Kelly, residents of older communities are having to replace 50-year-old garden walls that are now falling.

Also at play is the shift in the notion of what a garden is, with greater emphasis on architectural elements, from paving to waterfalls.

"Twenty, thirty years ago a yard was something you worked in," said Russell Allan, of Terra Landscape & Design in Falls Church, Va. "Now people want to view something, and the fact that brick and pavers and the technology has advanced has added to the trend."

vanced has added to the trend."

Pavers and wall blocks now-replicate bricks, cobbles and stones and they are modular, they go in quicker, sald Michael Hill, of Chesspeake Landscape & Design Inc. in Crotton, Md. His exhibit featured the facade of a Southern bouse, a cascading reflecting pond and plantings of azaleas, cherry trees and spring bulbs forced into bloom.

Of course, an instant garden will need years of maintenance, just like one that has been modestly developed over many years. Some people find maintenance companies; others like to do it themselves. For the time-pressed, there are shortcuts.

When it comes to asparagus, size doesn't matter

True lovers of asparagus are a de-vout bunch, united in their passion for springs first green spears. But within this flock lies a deep division. Spear size—thick or thin has become an ideological issue. Believers in skinny spears claim theirs is superior because it doesn't need to be peeled and it's delicate and criso.

need to be peeled and its delicate and crisp.
Followers of fatties say the spears arent tough at all, and have a rich, julcy texture. First, a slender spear is not a sign of the first harvest. In fact, the opposite is true. Whether asparagus is thick or thin depends on many things, but primary among them is how healthy the plant is.

Plants just beginning to produce make fatter spears.
But asparagus grows from mass of roots and each mass send to justice of spears.
Those that come up closest to the center, where the plant stores its nutrients, are fatter.

And the fatter asparagus has a thicker, more fibrous peel that should be removed before coulding. The peel is thinner on stender asparagus, but so is the center. The lower portion of asparagus is tougher and stringler, and some of needs to be removed before cooking.

Football coach says all who attended 2001 party share blame

Associated Press Writer

BROOMFIELD, Cola. – Sus-pended Colorado football coach Gary Barnett told investi-gators. Tuesday there is "no question" there was misbehav-lor at a 2001 party at the center of a rape scandal but suggested everybody who attended shared the blame.

or a tipe suchtaon suggested the blame. Barnett, appearing for the first time before a panel looking into recruling practices at the school, said there were 10 people at the off-campus party. Including four football players. "There is no question in my mind that inappropriate behavior of the 10 young people involved was the result of their own poor decisions and under the influence of alcohol." Three women have said they were raped by players or recruits at the party or just afterward. They have sued the school in federal court, seeking unspecified damages for what they say was the school's failure to rein in athletes and provide qual protection to women. Barnett has said his statements were taken out of context—he was answering questions about why she left Colorado to later enroil at New Medco—and that he and the university tried to make her feel welcome.

A few hours before Barnett spoke, the panel released a March 30 e-mail to a commission attorney from Dr. David Hnida, the women's father, an Army surgeon posted in Iraq. Hnida said Barnett and other university officials must have known about sexual harassment problems his daughter was having before she left Colorado.

Crosby knew how tough it would be to crack a New York roster filled with All-Stars, but he grabbed everyone's attention this year with a huge spring, hitting, 357 with two homers and 11 RBis.

He was a surprise addition to the big league roster when the team broke camp – thanks, in part, to some injuries.

'I'm not surprised,' Sheffield said. 1 played with him a little said. 1 played with him a little said. 1 played with him a little said. The played with him a little said. The was a spark there, and they're fortunate to have him here.

Davis wasn't the first. Six years ago, Connecticut women's basketball star Nykrosh Sales, lost for the season with a torn Achilles tendon, hobbled onto the court at the star of a game to make an uncontested layup that gave her the school scoring record. In January 2002, Green Bay quarterback Brett Favre appeared to take a dive so New York Glants defender Michael Strahan could set the single-season sack record. Both players denied they were in cahoots.

And Last November, a high school quarterback in Illinois, Nate Haasis, asked officials to ense a record-setting pass because his coach made a deal with the opposing team to allow a completion late in the game. The pass was disallowed and the coach resigned under pressure. Michael Sachs, a sports psychologist at Temple University, praised Sura for apologizing and the NBA for striking the shady accomplishment from the record books.

"It's a good sign that this it not something we just accept as a matter of course," Sachs said. There's still gootsmanship involved. There's still a sense of fair play and doing things the right way that people are concerned about.

Interest rate fears prompt stock selloff

NEW YORK (AP) – Wall Street took a sharp downward turn Tuesday as investors interpreted a big jump in retail sales as a harbinger of an earlier-than-expected fise in interest rates. The Dow Jones industrial average gave up early gains, falling more than 180 points by the Close. The selolf was spurred by the Commerce Department's report of a 18 percent interest in retail sales for March, the biggest jump in a year liwas three times greater than the 0.6 percent hike economists expected.

That raised the specter of inflation, and investors worded that the Federal Reserve would raise interest rates soon to keep the economy from growing too fast. A hike before year's end could put President Bush's re-election into question, according to Hugh Johnson, chief investment officer af First Albany Corp.

That worries investors that we're going to see a Democratic administration, which might foll back the 15 percent tax rate on capital gains and dividends, Johnson said. 'It's a whole string of dominoes. If this weren't an election year, you'd see earnings and economics outweigh the interest rate concerns and economics outweigh the interest rate concerns and helped What have the property of the

Vending machines offer more than snacks

Imagine waking up in a hotel in the middle of the night with a splitting headache and discording you have no Tylenol. Or ushing through the airport on your way to an important business meeting and realizing you forgot your laptop's power cord. Or jumping into the rental car at that vacation resort and re-membering the suntan lotion is at home on the bathroom shelf. New high-tech vending ma-chines may be the answer Target, Sanjes, Kodak, Ba-nana Boat and Avs are among brand names being embla-zoned on a new generation of vending machines anchored in high-traffic areas such as universities, airports, theme parks and hotels.

In south Florida, for example, 30 machines that dispense Banana Boat sunscreen are set up in such "points of sun" as Miam! International Airport. an Avis rental car center, Boomens water park in Dania Beach, Fla., and the Doral Golf Resort and Spa in Miam!.

Test runs are being considered by cosmetics manufacturers, drug companies and other consumer-product makers?

Matkreters are hoping the United States will finally get over its hang-up about vending machines, long the domain of snacks and sodas, and join countries that have embraced the machines as the easiest, most convenient form of retailing.

Never has it been so easy to reach so many job seekers for so small an investment.

SO California companies interviewed had explicit policies to move jobs out of state if possible. And half said they planned to deter job growth in California. Some cited high housing costs, others the widening gap between operating expenses in California and other states.

If businesses continue to flee, it could make a notable dent in the state's job growth. State officials reported Friday that California added a measly 5,200 jobs in March, while the nation created 308,000 payroll jobs. It sunclear whether a shift of jobs to other states played a role in California's lagging performance. Gardena, Callt.: "Its nice having suppliers virtually next door."

But then there are the downsides. Although TCI Precision has seen its orders accelerate since last fall, it hasn't added a single new Job. Doing so would only add to workers' comp preniums, which Belzer expects will rise to $355,000 this year from $227,000 in 2002.

That's not. all: Even. though, TCI Precision. is, getting, discounted power rates, because it agreed to curtail energy us when supplies were short. Belzer says the discounted California rate is higher than or Newada.

TCI Precision is still in Gardena, south of Los Angeles, only because Belzer believes moving-would be too hard on the employees. As time goes on amore companies in California go' to other states, he said, businesses like his just might' find it easier to make the decision' to join them.

"Merit envies success, and success takes itself for merit."
— Jean Rostand

On today's deal, North was able to help his partner to reach a spade slam by cue-bidding in support of spades at his third turn to speak. His four-diamond call suggested a spade fit and a diamond control in the context of his having shown a minimum balanced hand on the previous round.

When West led a passive trump, South made the assumption that East was slightly more likely to have the club are than West — since the latter might have led that card if he held it. So he won the trump lead with dummy's 10, drew a second round of trumps with dummy's 10, drew a second round of trumps with dummy's not his king. (It would have done East no good to fly up with his ace prematurely.)

Now South finished drawing trumps, pitching diamonds from dummy on the last two high spades. Next, led out the heart king, played a heart to the ace, and played the heart jack from dummy, discarding his club on it.

West won with the queen and tried to cash a club, but declarer ruffed and crossed to the diamond ace to pitch his diamond loser on the heart 10, for his 12th trick.

If West had turned up with the club ace at trick three, declarer would have been forced to guess the location of the heart queen, and the logical assumption would have been to play East (the hand short in spades) to hold that card. But the way things went, he turned a guess into a sure thing.

ANSWER: Raise to three dia-monds — and wash your mouth out if you bid two no-trump. Here, your priority should be to support partner, and your singleton spade and great diamonds make a suitcontract look far more promising than no-trump.
