"To hold otherwise would render the First Amendment right of access meaningless," the court said. It noted that openness of the court process acts to protect, rather than to threaten, the right to a fair trial." It doesn't take the arrest of a celebrity for a legal case to draw such a spodlight that the defendant becomes a household name. That happened to 19-year-old English au pair Louise Woodward, convicted in Massachusetts in 1997 cikilling a baby by shaking him violently. "A judge's overriding concern is the tainting of a jury pool or the jurors after they are selected," said retired Massachusetts Superior Court Judge Hiller Zobel, who reduced Woodward's sentence from second-degree murder to involuntary manslaughter.
"But when you start having justice in the shadows, you're looking for constitutional and societal trouble. The circumstances have to be quite externe before a judge can shut off media access to matters of serious public interest."

DENVER (AP) — As John Kerry winds his way across the country and ultimately to Boston to accept the Democratic presidential nomination next week. he'll be talking more about something he hasn't discussed much in his campaign — John Kerry.

Kerry's campaign has been more about what President Bush has done wrong and which policies Kerry would implement to do better. Kerry does not typically open up about himself personally, and it's part of the reason Americans don't know much about him.

War on terror fails without serious policy change

Rare is the book that can change the course of an international debate. But 'Imperial Hubris: Why the West is Losing the War on Terror' is juits such a book. We are losing the war on terror't yes, though that's the least of the bad news, asy the author, a senior U.S. intelligence official who wishes to remain anonymous.

MARTA SALIJ

We are losing, and we coin-ceen see that we're losing.
We are losing because U.S.
Leaders refuse to consider—Osama bin Laden, at-Qalda and their allies and sympathicers as they are, rather than as they would like them to be, writes Anonymous, We are losing because we underestimate bin Laden's support, his skill and his patience. We are losing because we misunderstand
why at-Qalda and other Muslim extremists are fighting.
And because we misunderstand — Anonymous would say we hubristically insist or misunderstanding—we don't consider actions that could to consider actions that could make our nation safer. We do exactly what could make us less safe.

Years of failed policies

"One of the greatest dangers for Americans in deciding how to confront the Islamist threat lies in continuing to believe—at the urging of senior U.S. icaders—that extremist Muslims hate and attack us for what we are and think, rather what we are and think, rather than for what we do," Anony-mous writes. ious writes. It's not U.S. values, but U.S.

It's not U.S. values, but U.S. policies that are under attack. What are these inflammatory U.S. policies? Bin Laden has told us many times, writes Anonymous, so here again are the six main ones:

We keep troops on the Arabile occupy Iraq and

We occupy Jraq and Afghanistan. We support Russia, India and China in suppressing Mus-lim militants in their countries. We support corrupt and tyrannical Muslim govern-ments, such as the royal House of Saud.

or saud.

We pressure Arab oil producers to keep prices low.
We support Israel in policies that keep Palestinians in the Israelis' thrall.

melis' thrall.

Anonymous analysis has one small comfort to it: If this is a war over policy, tertifory, influence and autonomy—over power—then it's a familiar beast, albeit in unfamiliar terrorist clothing.

But if we are under attack because of our policies, then we might have to change our policies.

Have you met the politician who would risk suggesting we would be safer if oil prices were higher? Have you met the politician who would risk sug-gesting we would be safer if we were to forgo the role of Israel's protector? Neither have I. and were to forgo the role of Israel's protector? Neither have 1, and neither has Anonymous, and we don't expect to meet him or her this election cycle.

Anonymous bases his contrasting analysis on his two deades of experience as a Washington-based U.S. Intellegence officer tracking bin Ladein and insurgent groups in Ladein and insurgent groups in Ladein and insurgent groups in the Boston Phoenix newspaper as CIA officer Michael Scheuer, though his publisher will not contirm that.

How is that Anonymous analysis differs so much from Carlotte and the contrast of the contra the Soviets' defeat at the hands of Afghan fighters, the primacy of tribal ties in Afghan culture and the concept of honor among Afghans and Arabs, which differs from Americans'. Thinking like the enemy

Anonymous hopes that politicians will absorb at least this much: To defeat our foes, we must consider them as their supporters might. The evidence shows that bin Laden is seen by many Musilms — even by some who deplore his methods — as a leader whose cause is just. ause is just.
If you want proof that U.S.

If you want proof that U.S. leaders are not considering bin Laden through Amb eyes, I direct you to the two Woodward books, the Clarke book and even former President Bill Clinton's memoir, "My Life," in which bin Laden is curiously solidom sealed.

which bin Laden is curiously seldom seen. I thought I'd read widely on al-Qaida and terrorism — I get a new book every day, it seems — and yet Anonymous' well-organized and data-backed organized and data-backed arguments gave me a new framework to consider our threats. For that alone "Imperations with the second of the second there? No one can truly say, Anonymous warns. And even if they could, what of it? What we face is not a finite group of terrorists, but a growing islamist insurgency, Anonymous warns, manned by people with oelieve jail or even death are to be welcomed as paths to Paradise. "The battle with al-Qaeda is a plain old war," Anonymous writes, "not an intelligence service-let counterterror cam-paign."

Pragmatic isolationism

What to do? Anonymous re-jects an aggressive interventionist policy to overinterventionist policy to over-turn regimes and install.
West-friendly governments, as recommined by former De-fense Policy Board chair Richard Perle and former Bush speechwriter David Frum in their new book. "An End to Evil." Such a course would only inflame Islantic hattred even-mons. Anonymous believes.

inflame Islamic narea even more. Anonymous believes. And he rejects a focus on eliminating "root causes," such as poverty or a supposed failure of Islamic culture, as recommended by Democratic presidential candidate John Kerry, among others. Americans have a fatal tendency to define causes through our such cans have a fatal tendency define causes through our prism, rather than others', Anonymous would care reame tanese union of the prism, rather than others, Anonymous would say, and then making matters worse. What Anonymous does recommend is a pragmatic isolationism, in which the United States acts in its national security interests foremost. Less regime-changing, less liberating— and certainly less dependence on foreign oil. "We must unflinchingly let foreign dragons devour each other without expending American lives, treasure and self-respect on an endless series of fools errands," he writes. Some will of course call this appeasement under a new name.

Ver his teolationism is a noll-

Yet his isolationism is a poli-cy for the future, Anonymous warns.

Now we must decide whether to fight those who hate us with milliary might alone, at a terrible cost, or with milliary might and policy changes, at a slightly less terrible cost.

statutory rape law

Does Idaho want more restrictions on juvenile abortion laws so they can get more constitutions of page? According to current Idaho law, a woman under 18 who engaged in secual intercourse must have been raped. Does that entitle them to an abortion because of extreme circumstances? A rape victim should be able to decide on their own whether or not they want to have a child. Sound contradictory? How about this: A judge tells a young boy in the courtroom. 'I don't feel you're a threat,' but yet has to throw me into prison. Or take this next example: I am told I need to do a program to get parole but due to overcrowdling, by the time I get into the program! I would end up doing my full term (no need for parole).

the program I would end up doing my full term (no need for parole).

The state of Idaho spent a lot of money on rape cases (young boys having consensual sex with similar-age girls) from the officer to jalling in country throughout court proceedings then eventually to prison. Was all of this precious taxpayer money spent on a just cause? In Iraq, we are concerned with how men with guns burning American flags are treated in Abu Ghraib prison.

In Idaho, 18- and 19- year-old boys are being incarcerated for several years because of an old law and persistent prosecutor. While Martha Stewart steals millions, gets five easy months; OJ. 5 still playing golf and yet I'm here for loving a girl.

Well, Idaho is finally getting its veteran cemetery (the last in the union). Hopefully, we will change our rape law to have a statucy law (also last in the union) to get with the rest of the nation. And maybe a good lawyer will due some pro bono work and stand up to these people sabotaging young men's lives.

MEKECE, Turkey (AP) — Critics lashed out at the government Friday for Ignoring warnings that old train tracks were not designed to handle and the second of the country's worst rail disasters.

The cause of the country's worst rail disasters.

The cause of the derailment was unclear, but government officials ruled out sabotage. The disaster was a major embarassment for the government, which dismissed concerns raised about the high-speed train before service was inaugurated last month.

Paramilliary police Friday detained the trains conductor and his assistant for questioning, a police official told The Associated Press on customy.

At daybreak, a crane lifted one of at least four Ilipped cars and loaded it onto a freighter train as railroad workers began repairing the tracks.

Engineers carse forward after Thursday's accident saying they had warned the government numerous times that the old tracks along the Istanbul-Ankara line could not handle the new high-speed cars.

"It's tough to come back from a hole like that," Minico coach Ben Frank said.

The Reds jumped all over Brandon Colwell in the first two innings, scoring four runs on four hits, five walks, and two hit batters. Colwell struggled with his control early, walking or hitting five of the first seven batters he faced. The game could have been a lot ugiler for Colwell, but with one out and the bases loaded in the bottom of the first. Colwell instituted a 1-2-3 double play, getting the force out at home before catcher Jarred Tracy connected with first baseman Grag Christensen for the innings final out.

Colwell's fortunes turned in the second inning, as he gave up four runs before being pulled for relief pitcher Andy Carlysle, who allowed four runs in one and two-thirds innings pitched.
Tralling 4-0 after the top of the third, the Spartans were finally able to make a run at Reds pitcher Andy Hill. Minico batted around the order in the bottom Please see $$EASON, Page 82

Peaking holds the key to winning at Snake River

TWIN FALLS — Swimming pools all over the country this summer are filled with children splashing and playing in the water. The Twin Falls City Municipal Pool is also filled this weekend, but you won't find water wings lying around or klds squirting water with their hands. That's because the 240 swimmers at the Snake River Summer Championships have a higher agenda — like qualifying for Team Idaho and advancing to the zone competition in early August. This is their last chance to qualify, said Magic Valley Marlins Swim Team coach Celeste Walz. This is their big thing, what they taper for and what they plan for all summer for those kids who aren't close to qualifying or maybe those that are really close."

arent close to quantying to mayor cross-that are really close.

"Most of the kids I have that are sup-posed to be tapered for this meet are swimming very well."

If peaking is the goal, this meet is a good time to do it. The competition is flerce, with many quality swimmers from around, and outside, the state.

This is the biggest meet of the summer, said Bart Steninger, 18, of the Elko (Nex) Swim Team, who will be swimming at the University of Arizona this coming school year. This is what you train for, to come here, swim finals and have them say your name first and last up there. It's pretty fun. And there are so many other great swimmers here, and you know they're training hard, too.

But other swimmers aren't the only opponents the athletes are facing this weekend. Fatigue is a factor for some. The athletes are allowed to compete in a many as there events each to compete have the same and the swimmers and the same and the swimmers are for the weekend after preliminaries and finals.

Russets all four times the teams faced-off this season. The Cowboys will now have to face the Idaho Falls Reds at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, If they will, have to turn around and play the winner of the Highland vs. Madison showdown for a chance at Sunday's state play-in game. Priday's game was back and forth in the early innings. The Cowboys led 5-4 after the third inning but lost their lead for good in the fourth. The Russets scored three runs on four hits off Tim Mealer in that fourth ining to take a 7-5 lead.

Tim Mealer threw a lot of pitches early on and wasn't getting shead of batters, "Cowboys coach Tim Sudelmeir said. 'Any time you get behind in the count, it's hard to be successful. He's been automatic lately, but he just had one of those nights.' The Russets were led at the just had one of those nights.' The Tidahe Falls elempt hitter also tailled a walk and a double.

Pitcher T.J. Stosich earned the win after giving up six runs in eight innings pitched and struck out a pair. Jared Archart pitched a com-

And that's exictly what he's been doing on a pond at a friend's farm all week.
Beern, who carded a second straight 66, len' a big practicer, either. He said Franco's non-built maybe a little bit exaggerated, too.
"He probably practices more than he leads on. The guy's so talented it's unbelievable. You don't get that good without practicing a little bit." Beem said. "I think the way he practices is probably by playing more."

struck out a pair.

Jared Archart pitched a complete ninth inning to shut the door on the Cowboys, giving up a single to Cody Howerton and tallying a strikeout.

The Cowboys were led by Howerton's 3-for-5 day, while Steve Turner went 1-for-4 with two RBis.

steve Airner went 1-for-4 with two RBIs.
"I can't put all this stuff on our guys," Stadelmeir said. "I mean, those guys (Idaho Falls) played great. They came out and they battled all night. They swung the bat and they stepped up to the plate. They just outplayed to to the state tournament, we have to make the routine play. Hopefully, we can fine-tune that and get better prepared for (Sat-urday)."

Man could face federal charges

State drops case against man facing weapons, drug charges

By Rebecca Meany Times-News writer

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With a federal indictrent possible, state prosecutors have filed a motion to dismiss their case against a man facing multiple weapons and drug-charges.

Daniel Ben Nogara, 25, appeaced in 5th District Magistrate Court Friday for a preliminary hearing. He faced one count each of carrying a concealed weapon, resisting/obstructing an outcombattery on an officer, possession of paraphernalia, unlawful possession of a firearm and possession of a controlled oil parapiretinain, possession of a firearm and possession of a controlled substance.

Grant Loebs, Twin Falls County prosecutor, told Judge Mark Ingram that he tendered a motion to dismiss based on a federal charge.

"The federal government has filed a written complaint," Loebs told The Time-News after the hearing, "I assume there will be an indictment."

Aaron Lucoff, assistant U.S. attorney, said the document is a one-count criminal complaint.

autorney, saud the accument is one-count criminal complaint charging Nogara with unlawful-possession of a firearn. Nogara is a convicted felon, Lucoff said, which prohibits him from possessing weapons. A written criminal complaint is a charging document that serves a similar purpose to an indictment but is not handed down by a grand jury. Theoretically, a person could be charged by both a written complaint and an indictment, but a complaint and an indictment on the possibility of an indictment in Nogara will be arraigned in federal court, Lucoff added, but Lucoff was not sure when. On June 17, officers with the Twin Falls Police Department served a search warrant on the house at 445 Second Ave. S. Inside, they found digital scales, pipes, bongs, finger scales, Ectasy and several grams of methods of the property of the pro rounds of ammunition, according to the affidavit.

They also found chemicals police say are commonly used to manufacture meth, the affidavit says.

In September 2003, a grand jury indicted Nogara on multiple drug-related charges, including conspiracy to sell and offer drug paraphernalia for sale and conspiracy to transport drug paraphernalia in interstate commerce.

GODING — A mingling of homespun humor and somber respect welcomed Gooding County Magistrate Judge Casey U. Robinson to the bench Friday.

Comments from well-wishers — such as, 'Hey, you look pretty good when you're all cleaned up' — were squelched early on during a special ceremony at the Gooding County Courthouse as Sherilf Shaun Gough asked the audience to stand as 10 Judges filed into the courtroom.

He went on to bemoan the loss of legal guidance for the Shoshone City Council. Robinson's wife, Wendy, is a city councilwoman.

"And then I starting thinking of the high school volleybalt team. What are they going to do without their outside hitter," Ingram said, refering to the Robinson's oldest daughter at Shoshone High School. "And basketball, what about their point guard? It's just not good."

After the Jesting, Ingram took a more somber note.

County's incoming prosecutor, said he's looking forward to working with Robinson.

"I don't hink the commission could have found a more professional, even tempered and compassionate individual than Casey. he said.

Belore Judge Barry Wood administered the oath of office to Robinson, he issued a semi-formal judiciary warning.

"I'm warning you to go slowly." Wood advised. "You know, you started out in Richfield and then rolled down the Little Wood River to Shoshone. And nowyou've rolled on into Gooding, and if you don't slow down you're going to go off the cliff in Tuttle."

Caspian terms that eat young salmon would be squeezed off at Columbia River island in hopes they find new nesting grounds as far away as San Francisco Bay under a plan proposed Friday by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The draft management plan was prompted by a lawsuit brought by wildlife groups. State officials added two Central Valley counties to their watch list the day after they confirmed infected birds in eight new counties statewide, including as far north as Tehama County. Those discoveries came as a 57-year-old Orange County man became the state's first West Nile fatality. Five more human cases were confirmed Friday in San Bermardino and Riverside counties, bringing the number of human cases in California this year to 40, said Robert Miller, as pokesman for the state Department of Health Services. So far this year, West Nile has been detected in 18 of the state's 58 counties and in nearly 1,000 birds. Man denies link to wife's disappearance SALTLAKE CITY (AP) — Mark Hacking's father "looked him in the eye" and asked if he had anything to do with his wife's disappearance amid revelations of deceit and erratic behavior, that threatened his credibility. Police and family members had feared those doubts would diminish the public's interest in adding the search for 27-year-old Lori Hacking, who vanished early Monday, reportedly as she went for a jog near downtown. But that worry appeared unfounded Friday when an estimated 500 volunteers roamed downtown areas and posted filers featuring Lori's picture.

FILER — School Board members have postponed a final decision on the future of drug testing in Filer.

With a unanimous vote Wednesday evening. School Board members set the issue on the shelf until at least April 2005.

Despite efforts to notify parents and other members of the community, a lack of response has created a concern that people may still be unaware of the proposed random drug testing plan, school officials said.

"I really think that it's important that the patrons understand exactly why we're

Joe and Denise Stanzak argue that the Twin Falls School District's random drug testing policy violates the rights of high school students and should not apply to classes such as band. The Stanzaks have two children in that district: Anastasia and Danielle.

The committee that developed Filer's random drug policy also debated whether to include students in speech and band. But Garey said the choice really depends upon how parents will react.

"I think it's important for the parents of those people to talk about it," he said. "Maybe we don't want to include band and speech, I don't know."

Allstate Corp., which expects to pay out $2.90 million to $330 million to policyholdera sa are sult of last falls fires, is demanding that the city and county of San Diego as well as the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection help it cover the costs because it says they did an incompetent job of lighting the most costly of the blazes, the Cedar fire.

The agencies have rejected the claim, which accuses emergency officials of "gross, malfeasance" in allowing the fires to blacken 300,000 acres across San Diego County's backcountry and destroy 2,300 homes. Officials said a state law provides governments virtually blanket immunity to lawsuits arising from firefighting efforts.

Candysse Miller, executive director of the Insurance Information Network of California, a trade group for insurance companies, said San Diego is the only city or county to face such a claim. The October wildfires struck parts of San Bernardino, Riverside, Los Angeles and Ventura counties.

The government response in the early hours of the Cedar fire has been the source of debate.

Fire officials have said that they were hampered by poor communications and a lack of resources and that some of their early tactical decisions did little to slow the fire's spread.

Crities say San Diego has ignored numerous warnings over the last 20 years that its fire agencies were woefully understaffed and could not respond effectively to a major brush fire. Although the problems stated in Alstates chaim — lack of helicopters and aertial tankers, radio foul-ups, and poor coordination — have been documented by the agencies in their "after-action" reports, the insurance company's language is some of the toughest that has been applied to the firefighting effort.

Other Western states have also experienced a recent boom in mice.

Under fils order, all nuclear weapons labs and other Energy Department installations will suspend work Monday involving removable data-storage devices such as computer disks and zip drives. Each site will conduct an inventory of such items and perform weekly inventories after that. Staff members will get additional training and security procedures will be reviewed. The trouble at Los Alamos-suggests that we must minimize the risk of human error or malfeasance to a much greater extent." Abraham said in a statement from Washington. Energy Department officials did not say how long the halt in operations might last. A department spokeswoman could not immediately say how many sites will be affected, but the installations that said they would comply included Argonne National Laboratory outside Chicago; Sandia National Laboratories in Albuquerque; the nuclear weapons plant in Oak Ridge, Tenn.; and Brookhaven National Laboratories, and Brookhaven National Laboratory in New York.

The monouncement comes are reported mispiter disks were reported missing from Los Alamos on July 7. On Thursday, the nuclear weapons lab announced that 19 employees had been suspended pending an investigation into the security breach and a separate incident in which a worker suffered an eye injury from a laser.

Officials at Los Alamos are searching more than 2,000 safes and vaults for the missing disks. Abraham said. Work at the nuclear lab, which created the first atomic bomb, has been hafted for a week.

"While we have no evidence that the problems currently being investigated (at Los Alamos) are present elsewhere, we have a responsibility to take all necessary action to prevent such problems from occurring at all, "Abraham said.

The incident at the Los Alamos lab was the latest in a series of embarrassments there.

Drug gang hires Mexican army deserters as hit men

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Aruthless drug gang is using a group of deserters from an elite Mexica marry unit to carry out contract killings along the U.S. border, Mexico's top anti-narcottes investigator said.

The alliance pairs the Arellano Felix smuggiling syndicate with the Zetas, a criminal group led by former members with the Zetas, a criminal group led by former members and tradificaters.

border. Mexican officials said the Catas were recruited by Osiel Cardenas, the reputed leader of the Gulf cartel, during the 1990s when their unit was posted to the border state of Tamaulipas. More than 100 killings and dozens of kidnappings are attributed to the deserters.

In March 2002, Mexican fed; In March 2002, Mexican fed-eral agents' and soldiers captured Benjamin Arellano Felix, the suspected operations chief of the gang bearing his family's name. The deputy attorney general, who traveled to Tijuana to investigate Ortiz's killing, declined to say Thursday if the Zetas were involved. In previous comments to Mexican media, however, he identified the chief suspect in the slaying as Heriberto Lazcano, who is linked to the Zetas.

Federal authorities also say Zetas are suspected in the January slaying of former Baja California deputy state attorney general Rogelio Delgado Neri, who was shot by men who burst into a cantina. Delgado Neri, who died along with three bodyguards, had been suspended from his post be-cause of suspected links to the Arellano Felix gang, a relation-ship that apparently went sour. Santiago Vasconcelos said Ti-juana's main smuggling gang was so weakened by the cap-ture of Benjamin Arellano Felix and other top leaders that it had to reach out to the Zetas to keep control of its drug smug-gling routes into the United States.

"Just one group can't sustain a territory by itself, so they begin complementing each other and fortifying in order to cover weaknesses, he said. But Blancornelas said he doesn't believe the syndicates were sharing drugs or smuggling routes.

"Its an armed alliance, not a drug-trafficking alliance," he said. The Arellanos do not need help when it comes to cocaine." Luis Astogo, a sociologist at the National Autonomous University of Mexico who studies the drug trade, called the drug-gang friendship "an alliance that won't last."

WHAT'S IN YOUR WATERSHED'S FUTURE?

You'll find the future of fish and wildlife planning in "subbasin plans" developed through collaboration among local landowners, watershed councils, state, federal and tribal government agencies and others.

These plans affect fish and wildlife in the Columbia River Basin.

Learn more about these proposals for protecting our treasured fish and wildlife at www.subbasins.org, or call us at 800-452-51 to request copies of the plans on CD. Please send us your comments by August 12, 2004.

One of several interesting issues raised in the article, titled "Holy Wars," is whether those to whom we have entrusted our pulpits muzzle themselves be-cause of timidity, political correctness and the perceived need not to get folks mad. After more than a decade walking his beat, I know from having fought off a few naps that there are preschess around here who tread more lightly than a ballet dancer.
But I also know from experience that the fault for a lack of courage in the church doesn't just lie with pastors.
It lies with people in the pews the ones too indifferent or self-centered to relish being prodded and pushed.
This town is not without preachers willing to raise the temperature in their sanctuary, whether they are rulling against homosexuality and Janet Jackson's "wardrobe malfunction from the left.

But this town also has more than enough worshippers who don't want to hear that from their church or their pastor. They want a lot from their church or their pastor. They want a lot from their faith experience — a good choir, friendly people, a big gym, affordable child care, valuable support groups, nurturing pastors. But an angry sermon Ism always on their wish list.

A lot of pastors know this. They feel pressure to grow church attendance. They feel the heat of corpetition from the 699 other houses of worship in the area. And so they often make pleasing people a higher priority than ticking them off.

I hear that frustration expressed all the time by pastors. Warrago, as Frye noted, the special pastors like Goren pastors and Panthers. Is anyone listening? There's hope.

Over this last year, I watched Co-pastors at one church spread over the garden of their church the ashes of a homeless inan who died alone.

I listend to one of the staff members of a wealthy congregation take to the pulpit one Sunday morning to recount the story of the Goren Samartian and take and admired the givenand-take between a conservative Christian preacher and a room full of liberals who probably couldn't agree on what to order for lunch, much less what to de about hatterd and homoseconality. All of it was infused with conviction, passon and the belief that were better off for sitting down and taken between a for sitting down and taking about these white goren when to order for lunch, much less what to de about hatter dand homoseconality.

urts. My question is: How many of us today are illing to feel the pain?

Christian spiritual book genre experiences boom

The Philadelphia inquirer

PHILADELPHIA — The search for Christian publications in tiny, out-of-the-way religious bookstores is long over. Today, that hot new read everyone is talking about may very well be a religious book stacked on the shelves of your local Barnes & Noble.

As publishing groups and research firms cammine sales statistics for 2003, it's clear that religion and spiritually books emerged as retail powerhouses.

The No. I nonfiction book in 2003 was Pastor Rick Warren's The Purpose-Driven Life, according to the Book Industry Study Group. The self-help guide has Bookstore chains and mass-market outlets are benefitting most from all this. Christian bookstores have suffered. A main reason is that larger stores can offer deeper discounts that independent booksellers often can tafford to match.

Evelyn Husband, widow of the space shuttle Columbia's commander, has written a tribute to her late husband's life as an astronaut and a devoted family man. Described as Texas and apple pie. Rick Husband was clearly a man of faith, as witnessed by everyone from his childhood friends to NASA employees. He even upped devotional videos for his bil-fared Columbia mission. Pellyn Husband gives detailed, when the Columbia husband, when the Columbia was lost just minutes before its scheduled landing. Back in their empty home, the phone would ring incessantly as NASA and police stood guard. Piles of funeral food "stacked up in the refrigerator. Evelyn Husband shares her path honestly — sounds were coming out of me half didn't recognize — celling how she grieved over her husband's remains, found weeks after the tragedy.

Turkmenistan relaxes rules for minority religions

ASHGABAT. Turkmenistan—Pastor Pavel Fedotov was in church leading services when the buildozers and wrecking balls showed up. Over the next week, they razed his house of worship as part of the authoritarian Turkmen government's crackdown on minority religions.

That was November 1999 Now, Fedotov's small group of Seventh-day Adventists has become the first organization registered under relaxed religious restrictions in. this majority Muslim nation. But Fedotov is still treading carefully, unsure whether his 70 congregants finally will be able to practice their faith freely.

"We prayed for this," Fedotov said of his registration certificate, issued May 31. But '15 only paper... We hope that the situation will continue to get better.

President Saparmurat Niyazov made the changes to religion laws this year in response to strong international pressure, including the threat of possible sanctions from the United States, which has made recedent with the positive steps, however, groups have freedom swith repidation. The denomination's General Assembly woted 431-62 to direct its corporate witness office to research withdrawing church investments from the Jewish state, modeling the action on the divestment campaign against South African apartheid two decades ago.

ADL national director, Abraham Foxman, and interfaith director Gary Bretton-Granatoor, said they were "offended and distressed" by the vote — and by others at the meeting this month. "To assert that there is a moral equivalency between the racist policy of apartheid and the efforts to protect the citizenty of Israel is unconscionable," the CDL leaders wrote in a letter to Presbyterian officials last week. But the Rev Victor Makari, the Presbyterian's linison to the Mideast, said. service, on Saturdays for a vigil mass and monthly for retreats of about 30 people. The program can last 10 or more years and is most popular among Hispanics. A Spanish painter and a missionary working among Spalin's poor founded the Way in 1964. Thousands of Catholics worldwide participate in the program, which galned the poppes approval in 1990. Critics say that the Masses are unorthodox and that the program divides parishes. Supporters say it strengthens parishes with small faith communities. And although the liturgies are modern, the theology is orthodox.

Christian CD has big, broad ideas

Matt Redman, "Facedown" (Label)
Matt Redman is a young British songwriter/worship leader with a powerful gift for communicating big ideas. His song "The Heart of Worship's wept through churches, breathing fresh life into the modern worship movement. "Facedown" was recorded live in January at a songwriters' conference in Georgia and was produced by Nathan Nockels, half of the Watermark recording duo. The songs flow from celebration to contemplation and back again. Redman sums up the theme of the CD: When we face up to the glory of God. we soon find ourselves facedown in worship. To worship facedown is the ultimate outward sign of inner reverence. The lyrics are sometimes so intimate that you feel as if you're peeking over Redman's shoulder as he writes in his personal journal. But the effect is always to draw you along with him to sing shout and dance in praise to God.

"Dancing Generation" invites us to "Celebrate with all we have"; "Facedown" and "If I Have Not Love" are especially beautiful songs. Outstanding musicians, well-written music and thought-protoking themes. combine to make this CD shine. A companion book songbook and DVD are due out soon.

Some hope — or fear — that the DVD release next month will increase the movie's reach. A few Christian leaders say people have told them they started coming to church after seeing the movie. The American Tract Society, based in Garland, Texas, sold more than 4 million evangelistic pamphlets pegged to the film. But churches have not reported any flood of new adherents. A survey by the Barna Group, a polling company that special ises in issues of interest to evangelical Christians, indicated that less than 1/10 of 1 percent of those who saw the movie were moved to become Christians as a result. utilities, credit cards and other expenses.
Instead, Chatzky recommends setting up a "bill payment center." Keep your checkbook, pens and stamps in one location, near wherever you open your mail. Open each bill and pay it the day it arrives; then put it in the following day's outgoing mail. Save the account statement as a reminder to youself that you've paid it. Paying your bills as they arrive will also help you cut out the added stress and other complications that stem from overdue or nearly late payments.

Dow below

NEWYORK (AP)—Wall Street skidded further Friday, sending the Dow Jones industrials back below 10,000 as disappointments from Microsoft Corp. and Amazon.com Inc. deepened investors' dread of a second-half carnings slump.

All three indexes ended the week lower for the fourth straight week, as investors sold stocks across all sectors and industries, with technology and consumer staples taking the brunt of the selloff. The techleavy Nasdaq composite index fell to its lowest point of the year. The drop was triggered by lower-than-expected earnings from Microsoft — a rare miss that unnerved investors. And Wall Street saw Amazon.com Lower-than-expected earnings and revenues as a potential sign that consumer spending was slowing.

Combined with economic data that has pointed to which economic recovery, the week was a brutal one throughout the markets.

You take the economic data over the last few weeks, which has been disappointing, and now all these negative earnings outlooks, and then you add in all the words about energy prices, terrorism, itaq, the elections—there's all Michael Sheldon, chief market strategist a Spencer Clarke LLC. "It's going to take a while for these issues to be resolved, and I think well be stuck moving sideways to lower mudt then."

The Dow Jones Industrial average fell 88.11, or 0.9 percent, to 9.952.22. It was the first time the Dow closed below 10,000 since May 24.

Broader stock indicators were also sharply lower. The Nasdag composite Index dropped 39.97.

Nasdaq is now 7.7 percent lower for the year.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index was down 10.64, or 1 percent, at 1,086.20, just 2 points sly of low for the year.

For the week, the Dow and Nasdaq both fell 1.8 percent, while the S&P 500 was down 1.4 percent. It was the fourth straight down week for the Nasdaq, the fifth losing week for the Dow and the sixth for the S&P 500.

the economy. Since then, other downbeat economic data and a series of surprisingly poor second-half earnings outdooks have taken the market lower and lower, although the majority of second-quarter results have surpassed estimates.
Still, many analysts noted Friday that with the major indexes near or below their year-to-date lows, the market has nonetheless managed to find a discernable bottom, and most expected the major indexes to trade in this lower range until enough time passes to assuage at least some of investors fears.

"We have to get past some of these milestones on the calendar—the-conventions—the-clympics, the Fed meeting on Aug. 10. even the elections—and we have to get through them unscathed, said Jeff Kleintop, chief Investment suntegist for PNC Financial services Group. Judge faults snack giant for making a chip claim

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge ordered Frito-Lay to stop ads that say Chicago potato chip finan prefer Lay's over local rival Jays, saying the snack food giant can't prove the claim.

U.S. 'District Court Judge Samuel Der-Veghiayan faulted data clied by Frito Lay because testers had not screened out participants who were not from Chicago, and because Jays chips were labeled as "unflavored during the tests, while Lay's were labeled as "unflavored during the tests, while Lay's were labeled as "chastic," a tactic the Judge called 'clearly derogatory.

Tay's appears to be motivated by greed in displaying and airing advertisements which are not only damaging to Jays-but are deceiving to the public. Der-Yeghlayan said.

He ordered Frito-Lay to Immediately remove billibands trumpeting the test results.

According to Frito-Lay, of 300 people who participated in the survey at three suburban mails. Si percent voted for Lay's chips. 41 percent were undecided.

A Frito-Lay spokesman didn'immediately return a call for comment. Friday. A Jays spokesman declined to comment.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE[®]

Bobby Wolff

"The man who has made up his mind for all contingencies will of-ten be too quick for one who tries to understand."

-Pieter Geul

Today's quction may look complex, with both sides bidding each other's suits, but it all made sense. West's two-club overcall promised spades and hearts, and North's two-spade call was artificial, promising at least a limit raise in clubs. Now when East bounced to four spades, South could bid five clubs as a two-way shot, in the hopes that one game or the other would be close to making.

shot, in the nopes that one game or the other would be close to making.

On the lead of the spade five, declarer put up dummy's ace and tried to reconstruct the hands. West had a broken spade suit and five hearts, probably headed by the king. Was this enough for his cuebid, or would he also have the diamond ace?

After winning the spade ace and ruffing a spade, South drew trumps ending on table, then led a diamond, ducking East's nine. When East painlessly continued with a low diamond, South decided that West must have the ace. So he also ducked the second diamond, forcing West to win his bare ace and to be endplayed into the bargain.

The noint was that West now.

The point was that West now, had the choice of leading away from the heart king, allowing declarer to play the suit for no loser, or of conceding a ruff and discard. Either way, South would have 11 tricks.

Incidentally, had West overtak-the first diamond and returned en the first diamond and returned the suit, he would have fared no better. He would then have been thrown in with the third round of hearts to concede a ruff and disNORTH

ANSWER: Bid four spades, even though you would have competed only to the minimum level, however many hearts East had bid. You cannot afford to sell out to four hearts with such offensive values. The good news is that no one knows who can make what on these sorts of auctions, so even if you are wrong to bid, it should not prove expensive.
